Begin Says 'Sham' Pact Unacceptable

Israeli Leader, Carter Open Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin opened critical talks Thursday with President Carter, vowing that his government "cannot be pressed into signing a sham" peace treaty with Egypt.

In a tough arrival statement, Begin said Israel was being asked to alter terms of a treaty with Egypt that would make it "null and void."

But later, after meeting alone for nearly two hours with Carter at the White House, the Israeli leader said he was encouraged.

"There was not even one difficult moment," he told reporters as he entered Blair House, the official guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue. "I think it was one of the most important and constructive talks I ever had with the president."

A joint statement, issued by White House press secretary Jody Powell, said Carter agreed that the meeting was conducted in "a most friendly atmosphere."

The statement said the talks would be a useful prelude to their forthcoming extensive discussions "on a whole range of issues of key importance to Israel and the United States" as well as the peace process.

Posing at the start for photographs, Carter — in a friendly gesture — said he and Mrs. Carter would join Begin at a festive Sabbath dinner tonight.

But, at the same time, the president said the United States intended to be tenacious and determined in trying to break the negotiating stalemate.

Two more meetings were set for today with no indication when Begin would conclude his visit.

Earlier, at Andrews Air Force Base, Begin said the negotiations had reached "a state of deep crisis" and that the demands Israel faces would contradict last September's Camp David agreements.

But Begin said he was an optimist and that he was confident that the talks with Carter, held in a spirit of friendship, ultimately will resolve remaining differences.

U.S. Backs Egypt

Before Begin's arrival, diplomatic sources made clear that the United States backs Egypt in the dispute over the remaining issues blocking completion of a treaty.

And as he left Israel, Begin had expressed his unhappiness with the U.S. position, saying "the American delegation should think again and change their attitude." He said U.S. officials also should work to change Egypt's stance.

At Andrews, he told Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance: "We cannot be pressed into signing a sham document."

He added: "We are asked to sign documents which are in contradiction of the Camp David peace agreements and enabling our southern neighbor (Egypt) at any moment to declare the treaty null and void and to make war against Israel."

Begin, Vance Confer

He and the secretary of state conferred during their drive into Washington.

President Carter scheduled his first session with Begin immediately after the prime minister's arrival in the capital from the airport.

Vance expressed "a very warm welcome" in greeting Begin and stressed a "special relationship" between the United States and Israel.

"You come at a time when peace in the Middle East has never been more urgent," Vance said.

Having come a long way toward a treaty, Vance said, now is the time to resolve the remaining issues.

West 'Incensed' By Lie Charge In SPAG Fuss

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ALLEGATIONS that Lubbock City Manager Larry Cunningham lied to the city council about the South Plains Association of Governments are "incredible and stupid," Lubbock Mayor Dirk West said Thursday.

A member of the SPAG Criminal Justice Advisory Committee accused Cunningham Wednesday of lying to the city council about funding priorities set by the advisory committee.

West, who said he was "incensed" over the incident, said "anyone who would question Larry's integrity and honesty is either stupid or not acquainted with Larry."

Although the committee is "made up of some excellent folks — some good friends of mine," West called it "unfortunate" that one committee member would "make these incredible allegations about Mr. Cunningham."

"Larry has briefed the council, as is his responsibility, on many activities of SPAG," West said. "His reports to us are factual, non-personal and objective.

"We do question SPAG's activities and decisions — we will continue to question them — and the council will continue to look to our excellent city manager for his concise and valuable appraisal of SPAG's activities," West said.

The city council has scheduled a Thursday meeting with Lubbock County Commissioners to discuss mutual problems with SPAG, including difficulties with the Criminal Justice Advisory Committee.

Funding Practices Protested

City officials have complained about seeming inequities in the criminal justice funding priorities recommended by the committee since Lubbock has received none of the federal funds since 1977.

Since 1974 the city has requrested funding for 18 projects and received monies for only seven.

However, city officials have noted that more than 67 percent of the funds allocated for the SPAG region are a direct result of the city's crime rate and population.

The recent controversy over the allocation of the federal monies began when the advisory committee again ranked City of Lubbock projects too low to receive funding.

And at a committee meeting Thursday, committee member Jimmy Ward lambased Cunningham for his role in the dispute.

"I wish city officials had the manhood to tell the truth once in a while," the Texas Youth Council parole supervisor said.

Ward, who asked not to be quoted on his comments at the meeting, said Cunningham "stood there and flat lied to the commission (the city council)" by saying Criminal Justice Planner Dorothy Miller had influenced the committee on the priorities which were set.

"I don't appreciate him lying about Dorothy Miller," Ward said.

"Nobody has bent over backwards to not influence the committee like Dorothy Miler," Ward said. "It's just terrible somebody can just do that."

Ward said Cunningham had "deliberately lied" even though he didn't "know what happened" when the committee was setting priorities.

Other committee members were more restrained in their comments over the flap, calling it "unfortunate."

Howard Davison, a retired Lubbock district judge, commented the committee set priorities based on what were the "best priorities," not on which county or city had requested the funding.

"The publicity is awful bad as far as the public is concerned," he said. "I'd like to think it's settled down — it's not good for the program and not good for the committee," Davison said.

Cunningham said he "regretted" the fact that the dispute over the criminal justice priorities had "gotten personal."

"I felt we could disagree with someone without everybody getting so upset. We

Tractorcade Ends Vigil Of Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protesting farmers staged a final Washington tractorcade Thursday as Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland resumed normal daily activities for the first time since the demonstrations began nearly four weeks ago.

More than 150 tractors rumbled 20 blocks from their encampment near the Capitol to the headquarters of the Federal Reserve Board where the farmers complained about high interest rates they said were strangling American agriculture.

After the protest, farmers continued to haul their tractors out of the city as part of an agreement with police to clear the Mall, a grassy stretch from the Capitol to the Lincoln Memorial, by Sunday.

About 50 tractors are expected to remain as a reminder of the nearly 2,000 tractors and other vehicles that came to Washington Feb. 5 in a campaign for higher farm prices.

Bergland, who has opposed the farmers' demands, contending they would fuel inflation and threaten farm exports, spent most of the past three weeks away from his headquarters to avoid the protesters.

He set up a temporary office at the Executive Office Building near the White House, but continued to keep out-of-town speaking engagements and appear before congressional committees.

For the first time since the protests began, he ate lunch Thursday at the department cafeteria where he is seen regularly in normal times. Department sources said Bergland had returned to

Precautions Taken After Report Of Threat Against DA

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LUBBOCK police are taking security precautions to protect Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford on discovery of a possible conspiracy against his life, The Avalanche-Journal has learned.

Police Col. C. G. Bartley said Thursday that Montford was under 24-hour police guard at his home for two days last week after an informant reported a $25,000 "contract" had been made with a Dallas hoodlum to kill the new district attorney.

Montford declined comment but reportedly had asked for the 24-hour guard to be lifted.

Pistol Licenses Issued

Five of his assistant prosecutors have been sworn in as peace officers and licensed to carry pistols, however, and Montford, who took office Jan. 1, has not driven a car for more than a week. He is being driven to and from work.

The 35-year-old former prominent Lubbock defense attorney reportedly has received nine or 10 death threats since announcing in January that his office would be taking a harder line against crime in Lubbock County.

None of the threats were taken very seriously until the recent secondhand report of $25,000 being offered and then possibly upped to $27,000, for his death.

Bartley said police were given a description of the killer and the car he would be driving and that Dallas police reported three underworld characters fitting that description in Dallas. The Dallas authorities said one of them was in jail and the other two still were in town, he said.

The informant told Lubbock police the money might have been offered by relatives of a defendant in a criminal trial conducted since the first of the year, Bartley said.

Montford had begun trying a heroin possession case last week when police talked to the informant. On their advice, he turned the case over to an assistant and stopped appearing in the courtroom while security measures were drawn up.

China-Viet Fighting Indecisive

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Chinese and Vietnamese troops fought bloody but indecisive battles around the strategic provincial capital of Lang Son, intelligence sources in Bangkok reported Thursday. In Peking, the Chinese proposed peace talks to end the two-week-old war.

The Chinese proposal, in an official note to the Vietnamese Embassy in Peking, did not mention China's earlier demands that Hanoi pull its forces out of Cambodia in exchange for a Chinese withdrawal from northern Vietnam.

No Vietnamese response to the peace overture was reported.

Claims By Hanoi

In its latest battle communique, Hanoi said its troops had killed or wounded 27,000 Chinese troops since the invasion force drove into Vietnam Feb. 17. It also claimed to have knocked out 200 Chinese tanks.

These claims could not be independently verified. Intelligence analysts say they believe Chinese casualty figures given by Vietnam are exaggerated.

On Thursday, the Soviet Union rejected the initial Chinese proposal for a mutual withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia and Chinese troops from Vietnam.

The Vietnamese invaded Cambodia in December, ousted the regime of China's ally Pol Pot, and installed a new government in January. The Chinese, alleging Vietnam had provoked bloody border clashes on the Chinese frontier, invaded Vietnam in February.

Soviets Give Warning

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin said Thursday, "The changes which have taken place in Cambodia are irreversible." He also said the Chinese were hypocritical for linking their attack on Vietnam with events in Cambodia.

Kosygin reiterated that Russia will not renege on its commitment to Vietnam, but his speech did not take the Soviet position on the Vietnam conflict beyond an 11-day-old Kremlin statement that warned China to withdraw "before it is too late." The extent of Moscow's treaty commitment was unclear because the treaty merely calls for consultation if either country is attacked.

Kosygin, in a Moscow speech, also revived unconfirmed Soviet reports that the Chinese are preparing to invade Vietnamese-dominated Laos. He said, "The policy of appeasing the aggressor must not be repeated."

Bank Robber's Wish Fulfilled By Jury

A-J Correspondent

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — A man who admitted he wanted to rob a bank so he could go to prison and write poetry was found guilty of robbing a Hobbs bank Thursday after a two-day trial in federal court here.

Horace Eldin "Bud" Lewis, 47, an unemployed oil field worker, faces a maximum 20-year sentence after a jury found him guilty of robbing $3,113 from the main branch of the New Mexico Bank and Trust in Hobbs on Nov. 29, 1978.

U.S. District Judge Edwin Mechem set sentencing for March 21.

Lewis was arrested immediately after the robbery by police who had been following him. Lewis testified in his own behalf, saying he told both Hobbs police and the FBI two days before he robbed the bank that he was going to commit the crime because he wanted to go to federal prison.

Lewis said he wanted to go to prison so he could kick his drinking habit and write.

Lewis allowed himself to be photographed by police before the robbery so his picture could be given to bank employees.

But Lewis said he changed his mind about wanting to go to prison and instead wanted to stay out so he could raise funds to fight alcoholism. He said he never meant to rob the bank.

"I'm intelligent enough to know that if you're going to rob a bank you don't inform the police two days ahead of time and take 20 of them with you to do it," he said.

According to testimony, Lewis walked into the bank licking a double-dip ice cream cone and handed a teller a note telling her to put the money in a bank bag.

He then asked the teller how to get to the FBI office upstairs over the bank. He said he planned to give the money to FBI agent James Gallagher.

Gallagher testified that Lewis told him this was just "a ruse" and that Lewis hoped the police would go running upstairs while he slipped out a back door.

Dr. Robert Walters, a psychologist called by the defense, admitted he had said he hoped Lewis would get off but he added, "I resent the idea of him going to prison where my tax dollars will support

Thief Flees With Rings

A MAN dressed in a purple suit took four diamond rings valued at about $4,000 from Zale's Jewelers in the Town & Country Shopping Center shortly before it closed Thursday night.

The suspect reportedly was trying on three rings about 7:40 p.m. when he grabbed a fourth ring from the assistant manager's hand and ran out the door, headed east across University Avenue.

The suspect, a black man about 5-foot-10, reportedly dropped a wallet containing more than $90 in the street while he was being pursued by assistant manager John Queve and salesman Vic Johnson.

The thief reportedly had come into the store earlier and said he would return with his brother to select a ring. Another man did return to the store with the suspect, but reportedly left the business before the theft took place.

FORT WORTH (AP) — Priscilla Davis testified Thursday she spent up to $20,000 per month for clothing and other personal items during her marriage to millionaire Cullen Davis. But Mrs. Davis, 37, said during her divorce trial that she "really wasn't aware" of the extent of his wealth when they got married in August of 1968.

Dust, Rain Predicted Today

DESPITE a 30 percent chance for rain today and tonight, temperatures today should return to the lower 70s while southwesterly winds blowing 20 to 30 mph kick up dust across the South Plains.

A vigorous upper level disturbance responsible for the gusting winds and expected rain began pushing toward the Lubbock area Thursday.

As the system moves across the area, forecasters expect temperatures to become slightly cooler by Saturday, with the high reaching only into the upper 50s. A slight chance of showers will continue through Saturday.

Skies should be clear to partly cloudy Sunday as a warming trend begins pushing the mercury upward.

Temperatures are expected to rise to near 70 through Tuesday with lows in the upper 30s.

Winds gusted to 23 mph in the Hub City Thursday while temperatures rose to 74 about 3 p.m. The early morning low was 36.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms also are expected to spread over the rest of the state through the weekend.

Temperatures in the Lone Star state at 4 p.m. Thursday varied from 64 at Dalhart to 80 at Laredo.

Nationally, Ohio flood waters kept nearly 200 persons holed up in two schools at Richmond and Manchester as the victims waited for the stabilized waters to begin going down.

In Texas, minor low land flooding is expected to occur by Sunday along

Plainview Meat Plant Set To Open June 15, Jimmy Dean Officials Say

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PLAINVIEW — Jimmy Dean has targeted June 15 as the date for the reopening of the Plainview meat plant, which the company is renovating from a sausage production facility to a slaughtering operation at a cost exceeding $1 million.

Vincent Bernard, president of the company, said the plant will begin operations with 110 local employes at an annual payroll of $1.5 million and that in about 14 months the company plans to be paying area pork producers up to $60 million annually for hogs.

Dean and company officials talked to about 50 area pork producers and Hale County officials about the reopening of the facility during a noon luncheon Thursday at the Plainview Country Club.

Dean, a Plainview native and founder of the company, said the company's major problem right now is getting enough hogs from the area to supply the plant, which plans to butcher 3,000 to 5,000 hogs and produce one and a half million pounds of fresh pork weekly.

In two to three years, Dean said, he hopes the plant will be slaughtering 12,000 hogs a week and employ 200 persons.

One area producer told Dean that he didn't think the area could supply the Plainview plant with enough hogs.

But, Dean said that initially the availability of hogs would not control the company's acceleration. "We'll import hogs from the Midwest until we get off the ground," Dean said. "But, being that this is my hometown, I eventually would like to see all the hogs at the plant coming from this area. It's imperative to me that this plant work."

Company officials said they have talked to area swine specialists and have been told the number of hogs available on a monthly basis would be 25,000 to 30,000 within a 200-mile radius of Plainview.

"I see no reason to have to go to Nebraska or Missouri to buy hogs," Dean told the producers. "I think this area is most conducive for raising hogs."

Dean added that the company will be competitive with the Omaha market in paying area producers for their hogs.

He said that pork products from the Plainview plant will be sold to Cudahy Foods of Phoenix, Ariz. Cudahy trucks will be picking up the majority of fresh pork cuts, transporting them to Cudahy meat plants for further processing and marketing the products under the Cudahy name throughout the Southwest.

Rick Goss, a pork producer from Hereford, called the reopening of the plant "a tremendous asset" to area producers.

"I think the plant's reopening is going to especially benefit the small producer because it'll be affordable for him to send a load of hogs to Plainview rather than sending them to Oklahoma City or San Antonio," Goss said.

"If nothing else, the reopening of the plant will bring in more competition," Goss said, adding that most area producers he has talked to are very interested in seeing the plant get started again.

The Plainview facility, which was shut down in the early part of 1978, was closed to consolidate sausage production to the company's plant in Osceola, Iowa, company officials said.

Although the renovated Plainview plant will be basically a slaughtering operation, Bernard said about 5,000 square feet will be used for sausage production. "We also plan to ship lots of hogs at the Plainview facility to Iowa for sausage production," he added.

The Plainview facility, located northwest of the city, was the first Jimmy Dean sausage plant and opened in May of 1969.

China Agrees To Pay U.S. $80.5 Million

PEKING (AP) — The Chinese will pay Americans 41 cents on the dollar to settle $197 million in claims outstanding since the Chinese expropriated American property in their 1949 takeover, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal announced Friday.

The payment of the claims will total $80.5 million. Blumenthal signed the agreement with Chinese officials at the Peking civil airport just before departing for Shanghai.

Blumenthal said the last-minute agreement makes his trip here a success. Settlement of the claims question has been considered a prerequisite to full-scale trade between China and the United States.

The Chinese will pay $30 million to U.S. claimants on Oct. 1 of this year, with the remainder to be paid by Oct. 1, 1984.

"We consider this to be a very good and fair arrangement," said Blumenthal, who received approval for the agreement from President Carter during the night.

The largest claim is for $53.8 million for property seized from the Shanghai Power Co., a subsidiary of Boise-Cascade Corp. Against the claims, the United States has frozen about $80 million in Chinese assets in the United States.

Prior to Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping's visit to Washington earlier this year, Carter administration China experts had said they were hoping China would agree to pay part of the claims, with Congress putting up the money for part of the balance.

Before announcing the claims agreement, Blumenthal said his talks had already been fruitful because of advances made in such areas as trade, banking, and the establishment of a joint committee to deal with economic relations.

Two-way trade — a record $1 billion last year — is expected to be at least $1.6 billion in 1979.

Teng is looking to the United States for help in modernizing his poverty-stricken nation of 900 million people.

In exchange, Teng has said, China could export oil, coal, light industrial products, rare metals and chemicals to the United States.

Earlier Thursday, Blumenthal hoisted the American flag above the U.S. Liason Mission in Peking, officially transforming it into the U.S. Embassy.

U.S., China Resume Diplomatic Relations

WASHINGTON (AP) — With an enthusiastic welcome from President Carter, the United States and China established full diplomatic relations Thursday for the first time in almost 30 years.

Setting aside for the time his concerns about China's 12-day-old invasion of Vietnam, Carter received diplomatic credentials from Chinese Ambassador Chai Tse-min and declared, "I consider this to be a momentous day in the historical evolution of our nation. We consider this to be a great opportunity for the future."

Chai pledged efforts to "further promote the friendship between the two peoples."

U.S. Ambassador Leonard Woodcock was unable to be in Peking for the occasion because his swearing-in ceremony at the State Department took place only Wednesday, two days after his nomination was confirmed by the Senate. Woodcock was en route to Peking on Thursday.

In Peking, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal hoisted the American flag over the U.S. embassy and welcomed the formal end to the long Sino-American diplomatic estrangement.

"For too long, our peoples and our governments have been separated. That separation has ended. Our histories and our political and economic systems are different, yet we can trade together and we can work together," he said.

At a similar ceremony at the Chinese Embassy in Washington, China's minister for metallurgical industries, Tang Ka, expressed confidence that the new relationship will promote "friendship and cooperation between the two countries."

As a crowd of about 100 persons, mostly embassy officials, looked on, a new Chinese flag was raised on the embassy roof and a gold-colored name plate was put alongside the embassy door.

The events culminated a process that began seven years and one day ago, when President Richard M. Nixon and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai pledged to move toward normal relations.

A barrage of firecrackers celebrated the conversion of the U.S. liaison office in Peking to full embassy status. A phonograph played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and a dozen American children sang the U.S. national anthem.

The guests at the occasion included American and Chinese employees of the embassy and about 100 American businessmen. About 200 other Chinese stood across the street and looked on quietly.

Blumenthal also hosted an evening reception for Chinese officials. In Washington, Tang was to offer a reception for American officials led by Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance did not take part in any of the day's acticities.

The mood in the two capitals was not as festive as it was a month ago when Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping made his official visit to Washington.

Since then, China has invaded Vietnam and drawn a strong rebuke from the Carter administration.

U.S. policymakers do not share Peking's hard-line approach to dealing with the Soviets, allies of the Vietnamese.

Just two days ago, Blumenthal called on China to withdraw its troops from Vietnam "as quickly as possible" and said that the invasion "ran risks that were unwarranted."

The completion of the normalization process also marked the formal end to official relations between the United States and Taiwan.

The two countries will continue trade, cultural and financial relations through private agencies. The American entity, known as the American Institute on Taiwan, was scheduled to open Thursday but did not because Congress has yet to provide funding.

In the interim period, dealings between the two countries will be carried on through the Taiwanese agency, designated the Coordination Council for North American Affairs.

Soviets Reject Dual Withdrawal Plan

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin on Thursday rejected China's call for a mutual withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia and Chinese troops from the Soviet's Vietnamese ally.

Kosygin said "the changes which have taken place in Cambodia are irreversible" and the Chinese were hypocritical for linking their attack on Vietnam with events in Cambodia.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia and ousted the regime of Pol Pot in January. The Chinese, who were allied with Pol Pot, attacked Vietnam after accusing it of precipitating a series of border clashes. Meanwhile, Pol Pot's guerrila forces continue to harass the Vietnamese invaders.

In calling for a mutual withdrawal, China said it did not expect the Vietnamese or Russians to accept its offer. China said that if Vietnam pulled its troops out of Cambodia the "puppet regime" it installed there would collapse."

Kosygin also reiterated Soviet support for Vietnam. He said Russia will not abandon Vietnam during its "time of trial," and will honor its treaty to committments with Hanoi.

But his speech did not take the Soviet position on the Vietnam conflict beyond an 11-day-old Kremlin statement that affirmed Moscow's friendship with Vietnam and warned China to withdraw "before it is too late."

That statement also promised that the Soviet Union would uphold its treaty committment with Vietnam, but it is not clear just what this commitment entails.

AN EDITORIAL:

'Can-Do' Beats 'Stand-By'

THE "CAN-DO" ENERGY plan outlined by Texas Gov. Bill Clements is clearly superior to the "stand-by" gasoline rationing plan being pushed by President Carter.

Clements wants to "unfetter" American free enterprise and let it do the job it is capable of doing. Carter wants to withdraw the United States into a shell of conservation and economic stagnation.

The governor wants to go full-speed ahead with development of existing and new forms of energy and seek oil and gas from Mexico. The President wants to keep domestic energy companies in an economic vise and keep America at the mercy of OPEC suppliers.

ALTHOUGH MR. CARTER says he would not necessarily implement gasoline rationing if Congress gives him that authority, his approach to the whole energy crisis has been and is one of retrenchment and making-do.

In sharp contrast, oilwell driller Clements thinks the way to meet the crisis is to turn the oil, gas and coal industry loose "to do what it is capable of doing—produce energy."

"There must be no energy rationing in the United States without an all-out production effort," he says.

He thinks the government should remove barriers to nuclear power plant development, open federal lands for energy production, moderate environmental restrictions and allow completion of a pipeline from the West Coast to Texas refineries to handle Alaskan production.

Windfall profits in the energy industry can be beneficial if "used only for development of energy," Clements adds.

In short, he would have the U.S. overcome the energy crisis rather than—as is the President's plan—learn to live with it.

"IF A DROP IN production in Iran—a country from which we import only 5 percent of our petroleum supplies—brings us to the point of gasoline rationing in peacetime, we are in serious trouble in regards to energy," the governor points out.

"Obviously, our problem becomes worse if a similar interruption occurs in other countries," he adds with a wary eye toward Saudi Arabia and other distant lands.

We have lost precious time between the 1973 Arab oil embargo and the 1979 fall of a friendly government in Iran; time that should have been used to develop our own energy resources, including nuclear power, to a greater extent.

There is no physical shortage of energy; the crisis is in the political and economic realms and a simple change of leadership is what's needed there.

AN EDITORIAL:

More Promises, Promises?

IT MUST BE small solace to the peoples of Taiwan to read how a U.S. Senate committee has expressed its "concern" over the island nation's future and suggested that it would be upset if anything dire happened to the Taiwanese.

Just after President Carter unilaterally and abruptly announced that Washington was re-establishing formal diplomatic relations with Red China and dropping Taiwan, there was a hue and outcry over mistreatment of an old friend and ally.

Congressmen up in arms vowed that Mr. Carter wouldn't get away with his action. Sen. Barry Goldwater and others even filed a suit.

NOW, AS THE event fades with time, the umbrage does likewise, if one is to judge from the Senate group's latest action.

Like the President's giveaway of the Panama Canal and his reported threat to implement certain portions of SALT II regardless of what Congress thinks, it seems that Mr. Carter gets much of what he wants by just defying not only the consensus of the people but the "advice and consent" of Congress.

Of course, the Taiwan resolution still goes to the floor of the Senate, where numerous senators have vowed they will seek to strengthen the language to bind the U.S. to defend the island should Peking decide to attempt to take it by force.

The fact that the Carter administration did not even ask the Red Chinese for written or verbal assurances that no such action would take place has alarmed many, inside and outside of Congress.

MR. CARTER has expressed dismay that his carefully orchestrated Camp David accord of last Fall is in trouble again.

He says he doesn't know of anything we could have done to have prevented what happened in Iran, citing "the peoples' will" and ignoring Communist activities in the process.

Someone, perhaps Prime Minister Begin of Israel, should tell the President that other friends of the U.S. are taking a mighty dim view of "assurances" of help when they see what those promises meant to a friendly regime in Iran and a longtime ally in Taiwan.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Corporation Case Puts Critics On Defensive

WASHINGTON—Only slightly less novel than the spectacle of man-bites-dog is the sight of an intellectual defending corporations.

Dislike of corporations is so widespread in our society that it cuts across the usual ideological lines.

"Neo-conservative" Irving Kristol is skeptical of them, collectivist academic John Kenneth Galbraith holds them up to obloquy, and self-styled consumerist Ralph Nader wants to saddle them with punitive regulations. They are convenient whipping boys, it seems, for nearly everyone.

Everyone, that is, except Dr. Robert Hessen of the Hoover Institution at Stanford University.

Hessen has delved into the history of corporations, the legal foundations for their existence, and the economic record compiled by them.

HIS CONCLUSION, as expressed in his recently published study, "In Defense Of Corporations," is that most of the charges lodged against them are mistaken.

Hessen's principal target is the idea that corporations are "creatures of the state," and as such should have their actions intensely regulated by the government.

In the view of the Naderites, corporations exercise powers and privileges unavailable to other citizens, conferred on them by law, and must be held accountable for their actions through airtight regulation.

On Hessen's analysis, such arguments are nonsense. He shows that corporations are voluntary associations of individuals, coming together in the marketplace to pursue legitimate business purposes.

THE FACT that they file articles of incorporation with government as a condition of doing business makes them no more "creatures of the state" than couples who have to secure a license in order to get married.

As for the special privileges allegedly conferred on corporations by government, Hessen shows there aren't any. Limited liability for shareholders, the most famous of these alleged privileges, in fact confers nothing on the corporation that its creditors aren't willing to grant it voluntarily.

A corporation unlikely to pay its bills is also unlikely to get credit; a corporation known to be reliable will have no trouble getting credit. Limited liability has nothing to do with it.

The point of this provision, Hessen argues, is to safeguard shareholders uninvolved in management, giving them a reasonable assurance that they will not be individually responsible for debts and other obligations incurred in the name of the association, beyond their own investment and resources.

THIS IS A concept that is also applicable to limited partnerships, and does not affect the corporate creditors one way or the other.

(Tort liability, which does not really involve large corporations, is a different issue. Hessen recommends that prevailing law on this subject be changed to impose accountability for intentional wrongdoing on the partner or officers directly involved, and that unintentional torts be construed as the responsibility of all who have the active management of a business, regardless of the technical form.)

Hessen also blasts the Naderite idea that stockholders are victimized by separation of formal ownership and managerial control, and that corporations should be run on a plebiscitary basis permitting all shareholders to have a say in managerial decisions.

THIS IGNORES the fact that most people buy stock as an investment, not to participate in management. Their control—which is airtight—is their ability to dump the stock when they don't like the way the company is performing.

Throughout, Hessen demonstrates, the keynote of corporate activity is voluntary action: No one is compelled to become an incorporator, shareholder, customer, or creditor of a corporation.

It is all a matter of individual decision. By the same token, the common theme of the Naderite critics is coercion—through Federal chartering, compulsory plebiscites, diverstiture, etc.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Rosy Pique Cheeks

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—In the aftermath of stunning global events that chipped away at remaining U.S. prestige, there was self-congratulation at the White House that Jimmy Carter had not followed the course taken by Gerald Ford in the 1975 Mayaguez affair.

President Carter commented privately that if he had sent Marines to Tehran to protect the U.S. embassy, he would have won popular plaudits but risked casualties surpassing the number of rescued Americans (Gerald Ford's experience in using force against Cambodia to retrieve the S.S. Mayaguez and its crew).

Such restraint is the watchword of the Carter White House, both substantively and symbolically.

The emphasis against sending the Marines to Iran derived from the same mindset that determined Carter's silence after Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo's toast insulted both Carter and his country.

While dangerous and unexpected events across the world have surely cracked the complacency in the White House, the President is not asking his fellow Americans for sacrifices.

His Georgia Tech speech, intended to reassure the nation, again emphasized restraint.

Turning the other cheek to the Mexican president's insult on the same day that the U.S. ambassador to Afghanistan was murdered and the U.S. embassy in Iran was stormed precisely mirrored the White House mood and its deficiencies.

THE LACK OF any suspicion inside the White House that Lopez Portillo would violate good manners and diplomatic custom was viewed by some senior administration officials as inexcusable.

And once the Mexican gauntlet was thrown down, why did Carter respond only with his self-demeaning "Montezuma's revenge" joke about getting diarrhea from Mexican food (an "ad lib" that would have been immediately edited out if the State Department had known about it)?

The easy answer is that Carter, a Southern Baptist and born-again Christian, was turning the other cheek.

Yet, Jimmy Carter is no softy. His own aides talk about his "steely-eyed stares" as shown in nationally televised news conferences.

At the most recent press conference, he snapped, "What is your question?" to interrupt a thoughtful question by Roy Betts of Johnson Publications about energy conservation.

THAT BY no means suggests that the President is a bully who scolds young reporters but quakes before the president of Mexico.

Carter's icy wrath has been felt by many administration officials, from White House aides to four-star generals to cabinet officers.

In meeting Lopez Portillo's rebuke with platitudes and smiles, the President is reflecting the guilty mood of this first post-LBJ, post-Nixon, post-Vietnam administration.

"I think we all want to avoid returning to the macho presidency," one aide told us. "Macho" long ago became a pejorative among politically conscious young people, who carried the concept into the administration.

ONE YOUNG Democrat who was an early Carter supporter but has since become critical, was content with the President's lack of response in Mexico City.

As long as Carter had no advance warning of the Mexican insult, he told us, "I was just as pleased that he held his tongue instead of attacking Lopez as a 'tin-horn greaser.'"

Similarly, domestic aides to the President were pleased that he rejected national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski's advice to send a naval task force as a show of support for the shah of Iran.

"I think the world has changed enough to make such a show ineffective," said one such aide, apparently unaware of the political impact of Soviet naval displays around the world.

THE STATE OF mind at the White House disputes the possibility that Jerry Ford's Mayaguez operation, however botched and bloody, was an essential morale booster for an American public demoralized by the Indochina fiasco.

Apart from morale, a President who predictably will turn the other cheek—for reasons of theology, policy, or both—makes life more certain for the gentlemen in the Kremlin.

If they never were quite sure whether Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford would suddenly choose force, they can be certain—on the experience thus far—that Carter will not.

Overheard: "He thinks he's executive timber but the boss sees him more as deadwood."

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Blooming Red Ruse

WE AMERICANS are lost in dealing with totalitarians until we realize that great stupidity and great cunning can go together. This is the great danger to the peace of the world and the direct cause of the wretchedness among so many millions.

Often the Kremlin is stupid. At other times the Kremlin masters are just too, too clever—which comes to the same thing.

For example, the USSR turned down the Marshall Plan. Poland had accepted, but the Kremlin went into a huddle, called off Poland's participation and refused the Marshall Plan out of hand.

Yet the Kremlin could have milked the United States for untold billions each year and easily could have managed to allow the suffering Russian people to know little or nothing about this American aid.

THE RUSSIAN people suffer needlessly. Their Kremlin leaders are not interested in the people but in impressing the people because they are their leaders.

In the long run, Red China can get from the United States the only two things it really needs: diversified economic aid and security from the USSR under the tremendous free atomic retaliation umbrella that America possesses.

China is by no means a superpower. Its mechanization is rudimentary. Mainland China, with an estimated 800 million people, is the world's most populous country.

China is only about one-third the size of the Soviet Union (252 million), but it has three times the USSR's population. China's population density has a ration of about nine to one.

CHINESE CHILDREN under 15 exceed the entire population of the United States. One of every four persons in the world is Chinese. In a few short years some Chinese baby will be its billionth.

The payoff to Red China? It is caught in an economic morass like a dinosaur in an antediluvian bog. It faces the potential of atomic annihilation by the USSR, its only true enemy.

And how has tyrant Fidel Castro's preoccupation with being smart instead of wise paid off for him?

Cuba's economy is so closely and inevitably geared to the economy of the United States that all Castro needed was to have good relations with the United States.

This has been completely—and even excessively under President Carter—available.

BUT WHERE is Castro? The United States needs good relations with him like it needs the bubonic plague.

His own future is as risky as the wretched Cuban people's future is desperate. And, again, the entire Cuban tragedy is totally unnecessary.

Totalitarians know how to miniaturize people by the Japanese method of slowly decreasing their intake of courage and individuality until they are fit only to serve the State.

They have many ways of twisting a man or woman's arm or breaking their backs without laying a hand on them.

This is precisely what the totalitarians do.

JAY HARRIS:

The Four Guides...

THE U.S. NEEDS to remember four basics in dealing with its friends and foes in today's world...

First, how others see us often is as important as how we perceive ourselves, whether on a personal or national level.

Secondly, words and "saving face" means more in many places, especially the Mideast and Asia, than they do to Americans who have seen the language compromised and superlatives diminished in the world of hard-sell and sports.

Third, a requisite for running a store, a railroad or a world power is to never forget who and what comes first. In the world of diplomacy, being No. One is all there is.

And lastly, human rights, the Democracy of which we are so proud are important—to us. But, these aren't commodities which can be pre-packaged and delivered on demand or in any specific time frame. In brief, we must be more realistic.

THERE IS NO better time than today to put all of those points to work. After all, it is obvious that what we have been doing is not working.

Earlier this week, President Carter in a rare moment of public candor admitted that he was frankly frustrated and disappointed at how his foreign policy hopes had gone awry.

Yet, in the same breath, he said the latest snags in the Mideast peace talks were small and inconsequential, while the man who has to live with them saw them in a different light.

"I do not agree with President Carter that only very small, insignificant things exist between Egypt and Israel," Prime Minister Begin said. "Great issues relating first of all to our future and security remain..."

THOSE WERE some of the important words of which we spoke earlier, even if the "face saving" weren't involved.

They also are the bottom line for Israel..."Our future and security..."

It is too bad that Mr. Carter, and some administrations before him for that matter, have not perceived our basic interests in the same vein, and acted with the same resolute determination which has kept the tiny nation of Israel alive and a respected power, both in diplomacy and on the battlefield.

Can you imagine what the response of the Israelis would have been to having one of their longtime, respected Ambassadors shot down as was the case for the U.S. in Afghanistan?

Can you imagine the cry of outrage, if not more concrete response, to having an Israeli Embassy and its staff held hostage by a bunch of ragtag renegades?

THE ANSWERS to those questions already have been given, at Entebbe and elsewhere.

Mr. Carter's problem, as well as his frustration, is of his own making.

As U.S. News & World Report noted this week, "through failure to project clear intentions and follow-through an announced policy, the White House has sketched an image of the U.S. as a helpless giant—aimlessly flexing its muscles while hedging and backing away from one firm stand after another..."

Observers also cited the President's address in Atlanta in which instead of projecting a strong image of America, Mr. Carter repeatedly stressed how limited U.S. influence and power are in the world. "This is precisely the view, opponents say, that dominates Mr. Carter's actions in foreign affairs and lies at the root of the administration's difficulties."

SOME WHITE House aides argued that short of "sending in the Marines" or "dropping a nuclear bomb," there was little the U.S. could have done about Iran. We beg to disagree.

In the first place, Mr. Carter's argument that the Iranian people have a right to choose their own type of government is a valid one. But, it ignores the fact that it was a radical, religious revolutionary and a strange coalition of mullahs, students and Communist-leaning leftists who made the choice—not the people in an orderly fashion at the polls as we understand such things.

Granted, that in the climate in which Iran was operating, such a process was not possible.

But, much of the progress and results of such a system were at work. And it was this "modernization," the bringing of Iran out out of the Dark Ages that plunged the nation perilously close to just that spectre again.

AS FOR WHAT the U.S. could have done, in Angola, in other parts of Africa, in Afghanistan, in Iran, there were and are options...

We could have sent material aid to Angola in such a way that the tide of Cuban "hired guns" may have been stemmed. Or if not, then we would have gotten "the message" long ago.

We could not let Amb. Andrew Young and certain State Department people water down Mr. Carter's denunciation or strong reaction to Moscow-Cuban intrusions when the President visited Africa last year.

We could have found ways and means of working with the Shah to bring about possible reforms, yet maintain Iran's position as a strong link in the Western world's defense perimeter.

And we could have broken all relations with Afghanistan over the slaying of a U.S. Ambassador and bluntly told Russia that there would be no SALT II treaty if that part of the world was further influenced by Moscow.

In short, we could have acted in the same manner which our forefathers and others have acted, and perhaps saved the nation in the process. All it would have taken would have been some realism, some straight talk, some backbone, and the will of the people and a leader...

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q. "HOW DO you account for the fact that the basic tambourine, which hasn't been improved on in the last 2,000 years, remains a popular musical instrument?"

A. It's not the basic instrument, it's the basic instrumentalist. The girl who plays it hasn't been improved on in the 2,000 years, either.

Certainly you recognize the names of Nixon, Ford and Carter. They play for the Los Angeles Lakers basketball team.

How do you account for the fact that the cracks in old snags almost invariably spiral counterclockwise?

A drink or two of liquor tends to lower your ability to distinguish colors. A drink or two of coffee tends to heighten that ability. That's what Air Force researchers claim.

House Committee Approves School Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A House committee voted Thursday to use a carrot-and-stick approach in reimbursing school district revenue losses caused by the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

The action was taken by the House Ways and Means Committee.

In 1980, a district would be reimbursed dollar-for-dollar for its lost revenue.

But after that, a district could receive as little as 90 cents on the dollar if its property appraisals for tax purposes stray from market value by more than the state average.

On the other hand, school districts whose appraisals are at least as good as the statewide average would get more than their actual losses.

A computer printout indicates there are 253 such school districts, but there could be more in the 1981 fiscal year when the carrot-and-stick treatment would begin.

"We are not cutting anybody out. ... This will make them all get out and do a good job and actually lower taxes because they will reappraise," said committee member Wayne Peveto, D-Orange.

The committee expects to take its final vote on legislation implementing the Tax Relief Amendment on Monday. Speaker Bill Clayton says he wants the House to debate the bill March 12.

Clayton disagreed with using reimbursement as a lever to improve school district property appraisals.

"My perception of reimbursement was reimbursement dollar-for-dollar. I would think anytime you mandate somebody to do something that costs them money, you are required to reimburse that full dollar loss," Clayton told reporters.

But committee Chairman Bob Davis, R-Irving, says federal courts held dollar-for-dollar reimbursement unconstitutional in a Louisiana case.

Davis said the courts found Louisiana's scheme rewarded districts for underappraising real estate for taxation.

The committee had voted earlier in the week to limit a district's reimbursement "reward" for accurate appraisals to 15 percent, but decided 6-3 on Thursday to remove that ceiling.

Davis said a district could receive as much as 48.3 percent more than its actual dollar losses.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock now estimates the two-year cost of reimbursement at $420.7 million. The Legislative Budget Board's recommended general appropriation bill includes $450 million for reimbursement.

The Tax Relief Amendment would cost districts revenue because the amendment requires taxation of agricultural land on its productivity — instead of market value — and raises homestead exemptions from school taxes.

Clayton said there is sufficient incentive with dollar-for-dollar reimbursement for districts to reevaluate property.

"I believe dollar-for-dollar for two years ... would be incentive enough for them to get their house in order because there is no guarantee after that," he said.

One of several printouts furnished by the comptroller showed how each school district's "self-reported" appraisals of taxable property compared with true market values determined by the state School Tax Assessment Practices Board.

As interpreted by Peveto, it showed a number of major districts would get back more than their actual dollar losses if the committee sticks with its reward-and-punish approach.

These include Waco, Austin, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Wichita Falls, Kerrville, Lubbock, Borger, Galveston, Killeen, Houston, Beaumont, Fort Worth, Texas City, Denton, McAllen, Victoria, Denison, Midland and Ector.

In its current draft, the tax relief implementation bill also would:

— Exempt $15,000 of the market value of disabled persons and those over 65 from school taxes, without regard to income and in addition to exemptions granted by local school boards. Taxes on homes owned by the elderly would be frozen for their lifetimes.

— Exempt two cars or light trucks per family from property taxes, starting in 1980.

— Evaluate agricultural land, including that owned by American-owned corporations, by dividing a "capitalization rate" of no less than 10 percent into the estimated average five-year yield. The maximum capitalization rate would be the Houston Federal Land Bank's interest rate on Dec. 31 of the preceding year, plus 2½ percent.

The Tax Relief Amendment automatically exempts $5,000 of the market value of all homesteads from school taxes. Old persons and the disabled would get $10,000 on top of that if the committee bill passes.

Texas Senate Votes Speed Increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas senators asked Congress and President Jimmy Carter Thursday to take the lid off highway speed limits.

"This is exactly the same resolution that Oklahoma and several other states have passed," said Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin.

"It is ridiculous for states with about three miles of straight away to tell Texas and other states with good highway systems what to do."

The resolution was passed on voice vote and sent to the House with little explanation and no discussion.

Traeger's resolution, if approved by the House and Gov. Bill Clements, would be forwarded to the president and all members of the Texas delegation.

"Since the national speed limit has increased shipping times and costs, the fuel-saving benefits have not been substantiated, the motorists have not been complying with such, causing enforcement officers to be called from the more dangerous two-laned roads," the resolution said. "The Senate and House of the state of Texas join in support with U.S. Sen. S.I. Hayakawa in maintaining that the right to set such standards be left to the states and as such support the efforts of Senator Hayakawa in abolishing the national speed limit of 55 miles per hour."

Following passage of the resolution, Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, made a special privilege speech saying federal plans for gasoline rationing discriminated against Texas and other states in the South and Southwest.

Mengden, a member of the Southwest Energy Council, said if rationing is started as planned after a 25 percent reduction in the supply of gasoline, the federal government plans to give Pennsylvania motorist coupons for 94.6 percent of their normal supply while Texans would get only 65.9 percent.

Mengden estimated Texas would lose $70 million to $75 million in state revenue from the rationing.

The House passed, 132-2, and sent to Gov. Bill Clements a bill requiring health insurance policies that cover eye care to pay optometrists as well as medical doctors.

House members approved and sent to the Senate a bill plugging a loophole left when lawmakers passed the Natural Resources Code last session. The measure restores the General Land Office's authority to lease public land for development of any minerals, not merely oil and gas.

A bill empowering the Texas Board of Corrections to lease unused land for any purpose for up to 20 years won tentative approval on voice vote. Currently, the board may execute mineral leases only.

Rep. Jimmie Edwards, D-Conroe, the sponsor, said some of the prison system's "dormant" land is "good commercial property. We can generate revenue" by leasing it.

According to the House Study Group, a convenience store wants to lease some prison-owned land at a busy highway intersection near Sugarland.

The Legislative Budget Board estimated the bill would result in annual revenue of $93,750 by 1984, assuming the prison system starts by leasing five acres and leases five more acres each year.

New Bill Okays Insurance Payments To Optometrists

AUSTIN (AP) — If your health insurance policy includes eye care, you could use it for an optometrist's services as well as those of a medical doctor under a bill passed by the Legislature on Thursday.

A 132-2 House vote sent the measure (SB96) to Gov. Bill Clements for signature or veto.

The bill specifies that insurance companies cannot refuse to pay benefits because eye care was given by an optometrist rather than an opthalmologist.

Executive Director Quits

AUSTIN (AP) — Dr. H.Q. Sibley has stepped down as executive director of the Texas Animal Health Commission and has been reassigned as the agency's area veterinarian at Beeville.

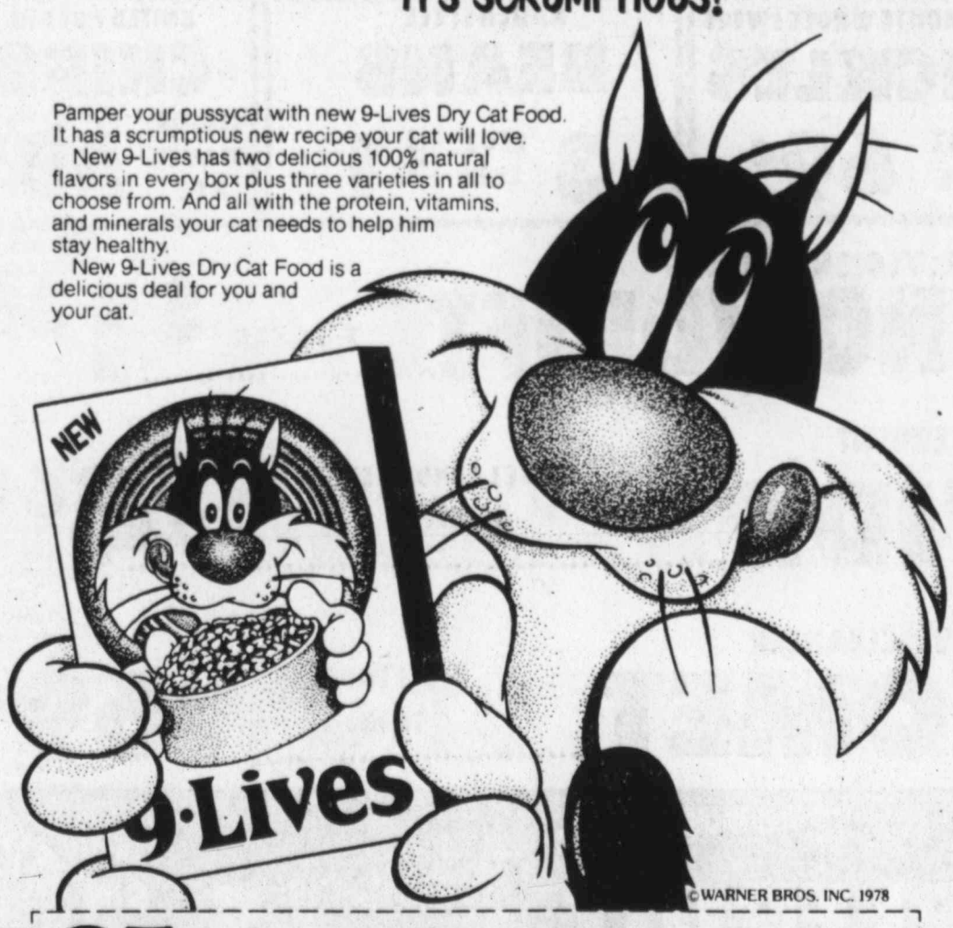

"I think he asked to be reassigned. The pressure has been something else," said Deputy Director Joe Hubenak.

Bankers And Lawyers Show Concern Over New Erasable Ball Point Pen

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A new ballpoint pen that features erasable ink has lawyers and bankers worried because it would make it easy to change signatures and endorsements.

Paper Mate Division of the Boston-based Gillette Co. has scheduled marketing this spring for the Eraser Mate, a $2 pen with ink that for about two days can be erased as easily as a pencil, according to the manufacturer. After two days, the ink sets and is permanent.

Bankers are worried that the pen could be used for fraudulent purposes. For example, after a check is written and endorsed, someone could remove the name of the person to whom the money is to go and write in his own.

In fact, a warning from the American Bankers Association will be printed on the back of the pen's package, said Sidney Golub of the ABA in Washington, D.C.

In the message, the association recommends the pen not be used "to sign or endorse checks or other similar documents in order to guard against any possible alterations."

A Paper Mate spokesman, who asked not to be identified, agreed. "This is a brand new product, and it's created a great deal of interest and excitement. But it would only be reasonable not to use it to sign legal documents."

Paper Mate says it provided the ABA with 25,000 pens for advance distribution to members. The security committee of the New Jersey Bankers Association met Thursday in Newark to examine samples.

The pens "will undoubtedly cause some problems as they find their way into the hands of some people who want to take somebody else's money," Juris Mednis, president of Howell State Bank in Monmouth County, sad Thursday.

Mednis suggested people not use pens lent by strangers when writing checks in stores or other public places.

Paper Mate plans a $3 million promotion for the pen.

New Tech Regent Quits Medical Job

Dr. Nathan C. Galloway, Jr. has resigned his clincial faculty post with the Texas Tech School of Medicine to avoid a conflict of interest in his new role as a Tech regent.

The appointments of Galloway, J. Fred Bucy of Dallas and B. Joe Pevehouse of Midland to the Texas Tech Board of Regents were unanimously confirmed Thursday by the State Senate by a vote of 28-0.

Following his confirmation, Galloway told The Avalanche-Journal that he sent a letter of resignation "sometime last week. I don't remember the date" to Dr. A.W. Holmes Jr., chairman of the medical school's department of medicine.

Galloway had been a member of the Tech medical school's clinical faculty in internal medicine, but he said that after being named a regent, "I really didn't think it was appropriate that I hold a position over which I had approval."

Clinical faculty members are unsalaried community physicians who maintain a full-time private practice, but donate time to the medical school.

Galloway replaces Judson F. Williams of El Paso on the board, while Pevehouse, a Midland oilman, replaces A.J. Kemp of Fort Worth.

Bucy, president of Texas Instruments Inc. in Dallas, was reappointed to a second term.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible©

Luke 11:11-20, The Living Bible

11 You men who are fathers — if your boy asks for bread, do you give him a stone? If he asks for fish, do you give him a snake?

12 If he asks for an egg, does he get a scorpion from you? Of course not!

13 And if even sinful persons like yourselves give children what they need; don't you realize that your heavenly Father will do at least as much, and give the Holy Spirit to those who ask for Him?"

14 Once when Jesus cast out a demon from a man who couldn't speak, his voice returned to him again. Most of the crowd was enthusiastic,

15 But some said, "No wonder He can cast them out. He gets His power from Satan, the king of demons!"

16 Others asked for something to happen in the sky to prove His claim of being the Messiah.

17 He knew the thoughts of each of them, so He said, "Any kingdom filled with civil war is doomed, so is a home filled with argument and strife.

18 Therefore, if Satan is fighting against himself by empowering Me to cast out his demons, as you are saying, how can his kingdom survive?

19 And if I am empowered by Satan, what about your own followers? For they cast out demons! Do you think this proves they are possessed by Satan? Ask them if you are right!

20 But if I am casting out demons because of power from God, it proves that the Kingdom of God has arrived!

Senate Cheers Talmadge, Back From Alcoholism Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — With his cigar billowing and his step steady, Herman E.Talmadge returned from a battle with the bottle to the warm embrace of his Senate colleagues Thursday, "feelin' wonderful" despite an uncertain future.

"The battle-ax from Georgia is back!" exulted fellow Democrat and longtime friend John Stennis of Mississippi. And one by one, nearly a score of others rose to offer public greeting and friendship to Talmadge.

After five weeks hospitalization in Maryland and California for alcohol rehabilitation, Talmadge strode into his office at 7:35 a.m. to find it already volcanic with activity and cheer. "Welcome Home," declared a huge, overhanging banner.

Talmadge, 65, who still faces Senate and federal grand jury probes into his official finances, launched almost immediately into a killer schedule, including his resumption of duty as chairman of the Agriculture Committee.

The ranking Republican member of that panel, Bob Dole of Kansas, later told the Senate that "I don't know of a fairer chairman" and, turning directly to Talmadge, said "We need your leadership, your insight, and above all, your support."

Talmadge himself rose time and again on the Senate floor, once to ringingly chastise the body for failure to obey a rule of his own writing — aimed at reducing red tape — and another time to introduce a new bill designed to reduce Medicaid payments to certain hospitals deemed inefficient.

But he was on his feet most often to respond to the tributes of his colleagues. The scene was in poignant contrast to his last appearance, on opening day of the 96th Congress, when he had to steady himself at each passing desk as he walked down the aisle while others took whispered note.

"I am overwhelmed by the warm, generous and elequent remarks ... I shall always cherish your friendship," he said.

President Carter called him earlier in the day to express his greetings. Talmadge declined to repeat the president's words, except to say that they, too, were "overwhelming" in their good cheer.

Wearing a sharp, pin-striped suit and bright red tie, Talmadge appeared genuinely relaxed and eager to get on with his work after his long hospital stay and, prior to that, months of erratic performance.

"The most difficult decision I've ever had to make in my life was to go out there to the hospital," he told a reporter. "But now I'm feelin' wonderful. I've worked hard all of my life, and I'm going to continue to work hard."

Talmadge's troubles began in a bitter divorce action, finally settled in late 1977, with Betty, his wife of 35 years. Their property dispute exposed his finances to intense scrutiny which later produced charges that he had wrongfully pocketed cash from constituents and official expense accounts.

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

A LITTLE SNOWY BLEACHES LIKE A LOT OF CLOROX 2

The people who make Snowy—America's first non-chlorine bleach—have some rather interesting information for those people who now use Clorox 2.

Snowy costs less to use per wash, and still cleans just as effectively.

Amazingly enough, it actually takes over 87 ounces of Clorox 2 to bleach as many washes as effectively as one 40 ounce box of Snowy.

TO PROVE A LITTLE SNOWY BLEACHES LIKE A LOT OF CLOROX 2, WE'LL HELP PAY FOR YOUR NEXT BOX.

There's a better way to dust and here's a 25¢ coupon to prove it.

Rags and t-shirts waste time scattering dust and pushing it around. They're a nuisance to shake out. ONE-WIPE DUST CLOTHS LOCK IN DUST UNTIL YOU WASH IT AWAY. Spray can dusting products are cumbersome, you still need a rag, and the spray doesn't always land where it should. WITH ONE-WIPE, THE TREATMENT IS ALREADY IN THE CLOTH. As for other dust cloths '... they just can't measure up to One-Wipe quality, consumer acceptance and performance. THAT'S WHY MORE ONE-WIPE DUST CLOTHS ARE SOLD THAN ANY OTHER BRAND.

Lubbock Man Arrested In Rape Case

City police arrested a 21-year-old man shortly after 3 p.m. Thursday, approximately four hours after he allegedly raped a 19-year old woman in her apartment.

The suspect, who was placed in Lubbock County Jail following his arrest in the 1700 block of E. 14th St., allegedly knocked on the door of the woman's 36th Street apartment about 11 a.m., and told her he was a friend of her husband and wanted to speak to her about finding an apartment, according to police reports.

The woman said she let him in but asked him to leave soon thereafter, when he asked to see her body. She said he picked up a glass vase and told her to lie on the couch or he would hurt her.

After she got on the couch, she said the man told her this was the sort of thing that could happen to her while she was alone, and began to leave.

But, as the woman tried to lock the door behind the man, he pushed his way back inside, saying he had changed his mind. She said he forced her into a bedroom where he disrobed her and raped her.

A rural Lubbock resident reported losses totaling about $2,300 after his home was burglarized during the day Wednesday.

Randy Daniel of Route 2, Lubbock, told sheriff's department officers he found a door kicked open when he returned home late Wednesday afternoon. He said a stereo system, tools some water skis and equipment were among the missing items.

A microwave oven and a dishwasher, together worth about $1,400, were taken early Thursday from a house under construction at 5315 85th St. belonging to L.L. Bates, according to police reports.

Bates said the house also was damaged because the burglars left the water running, flooding much of the new home.

Alfred Velasquez said someone removed $875 worth of tools from the back of his pickup while it was parked in the driveway of his 5710 74th St. residence early Thursday. A spare tire, tools and a survey transit were taken, he said.

Wayne Storrs of Amarillo said Thursday that someone removed a radio-tape deck unit from a truck parked in a fenced lot at 1802 Erskine. He reported the unit was worth $300.

A 33-year-old Lubbock man said he was hit on the chin and robbed of his billfold, containing $80, by two men who confronted him while he tried to leave a club in the 400-block of Idalou Road about 12:30 a.m. today.

Robert Alvarez of 3020 E. Third Place, who suffered a bruised chin and split lip from the assault, described his attackers as two medium-built black men.

In another incident early this morning, Gregory Sanchez Jr., 17, of 1017 E. 29th St., an employee at an oil mill at 34th Street and Avenue A, said he was taking a coffee break about 3 a.m. today when another mill employee asked if he wanted to "trade punches."

When Sanchez declined the offer and told the young, muscular black man he would have to wait until after work to fight, the man reportedly struck Sanchez in the eye.

Kansas Man Accused Of Child's Murder In Lubbock Motel

A 49-year-old Wichita, Kan., man Thursday was charged with murder in the Jan. 15, 1977, beating death of a 3-month-old infant boy whose body was found here Feb. 19.

Patrick Brito Olivas is being held by Kansas authorities, and the criminal district attorney's office has recommended $100,000 bond for him.

His common-law wife recently told authorities in Amarillo that Olivas had beaten the child to death after an argument the couple had at a Lubbock motel, Sheriff C. H. "Choc" Blanchard said.

The woman led Blanchard and other authorities to where she said she had buried the body about a mile north of Farm 1729 and North University Avenue.

Olivas is accused of "repeatedly hitting the infant child with an open hand, holding the infant by the feet and striking the body of the infant child against the bed and holding the infant child in a sitting position, repeatedly bending the child forward, then striking the child, thereby causing the death of said individual."

Other charges filed included burglary charges in separate cases against five Lubbock men.

Child Denied Chemotherapy Succumbs

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A man who moved his family across the country to avoid court-ordered chemotherapy treatment for his son's leukemia said before the boy's funeral Thursday that he would do the same thing again.

Eight-year-old Mark Garippa was brought to Arizona by his parents from Albany, N.J., where authorities wanted them to have the boy treated with chemotherapy, which can control cancer but has side-effects.

"My only regret is in giving Mark any chemotherapy at all," said his father, Michael Benoit. Mark, who was on limited anti-leukemia drugs and a so-called natural foods diet, died Monday in Phoenix of respiratory problems. He was buried in Phoenix Thursday.

The case is similar to the saga of Chad Green, whose family moved him to Mexico after a judge ordered them to stop treating him with the illegal substance Laetrile. Mark Garippa, however, was not being given Laetrile.

Benoit said Mark was on a natural foods diet similar to that often used in conjunction with Laetrile treatments. And he said he is so convinced that the diet and limited drug program helped Mark that other members of his family will go on the diet, even though they do not have cancer.

"It's the way God wants it," Benoit said.

A statement from Tucson Dr. Barbara J. Felland, who was treating Mark, said he died when he choked after vomiting.

"He was doing well other than that," Benoit said.

Mark was living with his family in Albany a year ago when social service authorities said they wanted the boy to undergo chemiotherapy. His mother, Lois Benoit, took Mark and fled to Florida.

Benoit stayed behind but said he was harassed by officials who wanted him charged with child abuse. He also left but New York officials contacted authorities in Florida and the Benoits again were pressured to submit Mark to chemotherapy, they said.

They then moved to Phoenix. But a Phoenix doctor got a court order making Mark a ward of the state and he was hospitalized and chemotherapy was begun. As the family prepared a court battle, the boy was released.

The family then contacted Dr. Felland and Mark was hospitalized in Tucson in January to start a limited drug program and the diet. He had been discharged and was reported by the doctor and his family to have been doing well before he died.

Trial Of Russian Dissident Postponed

MOSCOW (AP) — Dissident sources in Moscow said Thursday physicist Andrei D. Sakharov has flown to Tashkent to attend the trial of an activist there, but that the trial has been postponed for 10 days or more.

They said the trial of Crimean Tatar activist Mustafa Dzhemilyov, set to open Thursday, was postponed until "after March 10," and that the postponement might be related to Sakharov's arrival in the Central Asian city, they said.

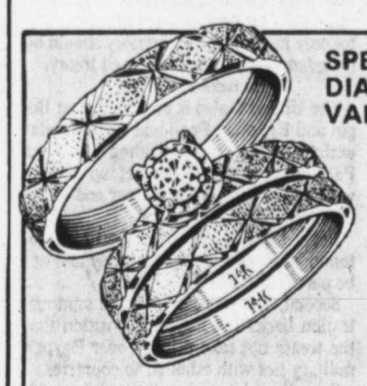

Dzhemilyov, who has agitated for the return to their homeland of the Crimean Tatars deported by Stalin, is on trial for violating the terms of his parole from an earlier conviction, after being caught trying to board an airplane for Moscow last month.

He had been told not to leave Tashkent, the capital of Soviet Uzbekistan, not to leave his home after 8 a.m. and to report regularly to police.

Khomeini Sees End Of West's Influence

QOM, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini returned to his native city Thursday to a tumultuous welcome from hundreds of thousands of backers. He told them Iran's culture, "destroyed by colonialism, must be turned upside down," and promised to purge the country of Western influence.

The 78-year-old Shiite Moslem patriach pledged: "The remaining one or two years of my life I will devote to you to keep this movement alive," indicating he will not take a back seat in plotting Iran's future.

An aide said Khomeini will live permanently in the holy city of Qom, about 100 miles south of Tehran, but has "no intention of retiring."

His address was at the theological school courtyard where in 1963 he attacked Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's Western-style reforms. That led to arrest and nearly 15 years of exile in Iraq and France. He returned to Iran on Feb. 1 as the monarchy was on the brink of collapse.

In humble tones Khomeini thanked the Iranian people for sacrificing blood to end the monarchy. He vowed to be in their service whenever the nation needed him.

His call Thursday for demonstrations if necessary to keep the nation alive was an indirect threat to Prime Minister Medhi Bazargan, who threatened to quit because of what he called meddling by Khomeini's revolutionary committees in governmental affairs.

Khomeini orchestrated from exile the demonstrations and strikes that brought down the shah.

Bazargan, picked by Khomeini to head a provisional government, said in Tehran that Khomeini's committees are "arresting people. They oppose us, they are against our appointments. Our day has been turned into night."

Bazargan indirectly accused the revolutionary committees of the attack Feb. 15 on the U. S. Embassy, saying: "They put people in jail, attack embassies and foreign residents and damage our reputation and even the reputation of Imam Khomeini. This is disgraceful. If this goes on we will have no alternative but to resign."

In his hour-long address Khomeini urged Iranians to approve an Islamic republic at a referendum scheduled for March 31.

"Everyone who is a Moslem must ask for an Islamic republic," he said, but added Iranians are free to ask for a monarchy or a Western-style democracy if they wish. Political observers forecast overwhelming approval for an Islamic republic.

Properties Confiscated

Chants drowned out his words as he waited for the crowd to calm down. He announced he has ordered the properties of the "hated Pahlavi dynasty and people attached to them to be confiscated for the benefit of housing the poor."

In Tehran a government commission said an inventory is under way to determine the value of the shah's palaces and houses in the country.

He said the royal fortune "is enough to develop the whole country."

Estimates of the shah's wealth abroad range from $5 billion to more than $20 billion in holdings and cash.

Press reports in Kuwait on Thursday said Iran's treasury is $3 billion in the red, and that Saudi Arabia recently refused a request by Iran's revolutionary government for a loan.

Shah's Funds Sought

Khomeini has asked Switzerland to freeze the accounts the shah and his family deposited there and return the funds to Iran. Swiss banking officials say the estimate of the shah's wealth is exaggerated.

In Washington, government officials said American capability to monitor Soviet missile tests was significantly reduced when Iranian employees forced the shutdown of a second monitoring station.

First reports said the station at Kabkan was attacked by guerrillas, but later information from Washington said Iranian employees clashed with about 20 U.S. technicians over severance pay.

Station Closed

Another station was closed earlier because of Iran's political upheaval. However the United States has stations in other countries.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Americans destroyed sensitive equipment before fleeing the stations to Tehran.

The American technicians flew from Tehran to Paris aboard a regular Air France flight Thursday and later were to fly to the United States.

They were taken directly from the plane to a waiting bus in Paris and driven to an hotel near the airport, avoiding a crowd of newsmen. Sources said the group would leave for New York today.

SPAG Member, West Disagree

have the right to disagree with the priorities set by the committee," he said.

However, Cunningham said the discussion had become "petty" and said he hoped "we could forget personalities and get back to the merits of the projects."

Cunningham denied ever lying to the city council about the criminal justice committee, saying "I've never lied to the city council about anything at all — I've only been straightforward."

As for Ward's allegations, Cunningham said, "I don't have any idea what he's talking about."

Also, the city manager said he didn't recall ever telling the council anything about Miss Miller attempting to influence the committee.

Ward's comments will only "add fuel to the fire," and hinder a resolution of the dispute in a "businesslike manner."

Committee members gave final approval to the 1980 Criminal Justice Plan this morning, with the same ranking of projects previously approved by the committee and the SPAG Board of Directors.

The City of Lubbock had requested funding for a crime prevention program and a police information system which would computerize all police records.

Those projects ranked 15th and 18th, but the project ranked 13th was the last to be fully funded in 1980.

The city had proposed hiring three more police officers in the crime prevention program to speak to civic clubs about crime prevention, organize "neighborhood watches" and encourage more participation in the marking of valuables. Requested funding for the project was $58,619.

The city is though to be the largest city in Texas withou a crime prevention program.

Also, city officials requested $26,000 to hire a systems analyst to computerize police records.

The SPAG region is expected to receive more than $389,000 in criminal justice funds during 1980.

Schlesinger Denies Gas Price Okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger denied Thursday that his prediction of $1-a-gallon unleaded gasoline was intended as a "green light" to oil companies to raise prices.

Schlesinger defended his remarks, claiming he was only answering a question from a senator and not promoting price hikes.

On Wednesday, the energy secretary told a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee the price of unleaded fuel would reach $1 a gallon "within a year or so" because of the crisis in Iran.

He was taken to task Thursday by Sen. Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., who said the comment "seems to me to be a green light signal to oil companies to raise prices."

Huddleston reminded Schlesinger that the Carter administration in 1977 and 1978 had unsuccessfully sought to raise gasoline prices through taxes on crude oil and gasoline.

"Are you trying to accomplish (indirectly) what you were unable to accomplish through legislation?" Huddleston asked Schlesinger.

Schlesinger responded: "I was answering a specific question in response to when will gasoline reach $1-a-gallon."

The energy secretary said he was in no way suggesting oil companies should go out and raise their prices. He said that under existing price controls, oil firms are allowed to pass through higher imported oil costs to the consumer at the gasoline pump.

He said there was no evidence of price gouging by oil companies, nor would it be tolerated.

Zoning Change Okayed For Transmitter

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday modified, then approved a request by KFYO, Inc., to change the zoning of its transmitter site north of 82nd Street and east of Quaker Avenue.

The radio station and South Plains Broadcasting, Inc., both of whom own the tract, had requested a change from single family residential (R-1) to R-1 specific use and local retail (C-2).

However, the commission decided to approve the specific use portion but radically diminished the C-2 area, opting to leave most of it R-1.

The radio station plans to move its operation from downtown Lubbock to the transmitting site. Representatives for the station argued to commissioners that residences in the area would be impractical because radio signals wuold disrupt television reception.

However, the commission agreed with Planning Director Jim Bertram that to turn the entire section over to retail usage would be strip zoning.

The commission also okayed a request by the YWCA to amend a site plan to allow expansion of the existing YWCA building.

The site is south of 35th Street and west of Flint Avenue.

Georgia Wilson Dingus, represented by Ralph Brock, won commission approval for a change from R-1 to neighborhood retail (C-1) property located north of 81st Street and east of Ash Avenue.

The change will permit the construction of a convenience store on the site.

All commission recommendations are forwarded to the City Council for final approval.

Oil Companies Begin Limiting Gasoline Sale

By The Associated Press

The squeeze in world oil supplies caused by the Iranian revolution is filtering down to the American consumer. Oil companies on Thursday began limiting sales of gasoline and heating oil to dealers, and Texaco said it would close 2,200 gas stations in five states over a three-year period.

Industry sources, meanwhile, said the United States was on the verge of asking the world's industrialized nations to cut their use of oil voluntarily. And Venezuela denied a report that it planned to implement a 9 percent crude oil price increase Thursday.

Motorists wanting to buy gasoline during March from Texaco, Standard Oil of Indiana (which sells Amoco brand fuel), Cities Service, Mobil, Atlantic Richfield, Phillips Petroleum Co. and Continental Oil may occasionally find the pumps empty. Those companies are selling less gasoline to dealers during the month in attempts to conserve supplies that are low because Iran's oil fields have been idled by political turmoil. But analysts said the shortages at gas pumps would be infrequent and probably not last more than a day.

Phillips, which announced a week ago that it would limit dealers to 70 percent of 1978 levels, said Thursday that retail sales of gasoline at some company-owned stations in Oklahoma, where the company has its headquarters, would be restricted and said some stations would be closed on Sundays.

Before the revolution, Iran produced 10 percent of the crude oil used by the noncommunist world and 5 percent of that used by the United States. The short supplies have caused gasoline prices across the country to rise a penny or two a gallon in recent weeks. Prices also have been going up because OPEC raised crude-oil prices Jan. 1 by 5 percent.

According to the Lundberg Letter, an industry newsletter, regular gasoline is selling at a national average of about 70 cents a gallon at full-service stations, up two cents from the start of the year.

Sun Co. said Thursday it is cutting shipments of home heating oil, kerosene and diesel fuel in the six New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland to 80 percent of March 1978 levels. Demand for heating oil has been about 5 percent above last year's levels, says the American Petroleum Institute.

Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company and fourth-largest gasoline marketer, said it would close 2,200 gasoline stations in portions of Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio and upstate New York to bring its sales "more closely in line" with its current refining capacity. The firm said it provides "only about 5 percent" of the gasoline sold in the affected areas.

Parley With Vietnam Proposed By China

Vietnam, told the Parliament in Tokyo Thursday that China's actions were "unjust."

The Bangkok sources said Vietnamese forces in Lang Son province, 80 miles northeast of Hanoi, had repulsed Chinese troops near the city of Lang Son and at Loc Binh, a town a few miles to the east on Highway 4.

The Chinese then mounted counter-attacks with tanks in the lead and scored some successes in both areas, the sources said.

Sources in Hanoi said Chinese troops in the Lang Son area launched human wave assaults urged on by buglers, Japan's Kyodo news service reported.

Many analysts in Bangkok and elsewhere have been expecting a major battle around Lang Son, an important crossroads town 10 miles south of the Chinese border. Both sides have reinforced their positions in the area with fresh infantry, tanks and artillery, the sources said.

Voice of Vietnam radio claimed the Vietnamese had killed a total of almost 2,000 troops Wednesday in Lang Son province and in victories in the provinces of Hoang Lien Son in the west, central Cao Bang and Quang Ninh, on the Gulf of Tonkin seacoast.

Before the peace talks proposal was announced, Chinese Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien had given another possible signal that Peking may be ready to wind down its invasion.

Kyodo reported that Li told journalists in Peking that Chinese troops had badly battered "two or three" regular Vietnamese divisions. Sources in Peking and elsewhere have said throughout the brief war that the "punishment" China wanted to inflict on Vietnam was to damage its military might by mauling some main-force units.

There has been no indication Hanoi has committed any major regular army units to the fighting. But even if Li's statement was untrue, Peking could stick by it and proclaim its mission accomplished in Vietnam.

"We will pull out once our objective is achieved," Li was quoted as saying.

Asked whether Chinese troops would stay on in Vietnam until Hanoi agrees to negotiate, Li replied, "Not necessarily."

In a further indication that China may not demand a Vietnamese withdrawal from Cambodia, Li denied that the Chinese invasion was aimed at helping the deposed Pol Pot regime, which has China's backing, to regain power in Cambodia.

Rumors of impending Soviet action against China swept financial markets in the Far East and the United States on Thursday. The rumors may have stemmed from an unconfirmed Japanese news report saying Moscow might announce today it is sending volunteer troops to Vietnam to help defend aganst the Chinese attack. Pentagon officials in Washington and Japanese officials said they had no evidence to substantiate the rumors.

Farmers Hold Final March

his regular office only a few days ago.

When the farmer protest began, security officials advised Bergland not to follow his regular work routine. He met three times with small groups of farmers representing the American Agriculture Movement, but he generally sought to avoid any confrontation with the demonstrators.

Thursday's tractorcade, under strict police supervision, went peacefully. While scores of tractors idled in the streets outside the Federal Reserve Board headquarters, six protest leaders complained to the Fed's staff members about high interest rates.

Bud Bitner, a farmer from Walsh, Colo., said farmers face interest rates of from 13 to 18 percent, and unlike some other sectors of the economy "we have to borrow money no matter what the interest rate."

The Fed's policy during the past year "only has a negative affect on us. ... It's strangling us in the agriculture sector," Bitner declared. The farmers had sought to meet with Chairman G. William Miller, but neither Miller nor other board members were present.

Theodore Allison, the board's secretary, said he was sympathetic toward the farmers' problems, but said a lowering of interest rates would add to inflation.

Under the Fed's tight-money policy the nation's banks during the past two years have steadily increased their prime interest rates — the rate charged to their best customers — from 6¼ percent to a four-year-high of 11¾ percent.

Begin Raps 'Sham' As Talks Open

amid growing signs of strain between the United States and Israel.

Carter has expressed frustration over the deadlock in negotiations. The Israelis are unhappy because the United States is supporting the key Egyptian demands and have maintained they will not be pressured by Carter.

Still, White House press secretary Jody Powell said before Begin's arrival: "The United States is going to explore every legitimate opportunity" for a settlement.

Even so, the outlook for concluding a treaty between Egypt and Israel did not appear bright as Carter moved into what he says will be "a frank discussion of the issues" with Begin.

"It is not our intention to pressure anyone," Powell said. "The pressure is on us all."

Twice during a news briefing Powell emphasized a concern with "the consequences" should the long-elusive treaty not be completed.

No Comment On War

Asked if he was implying failure would mean a resumption of hostilities between Israel and her Arab neighbors, he replied: "I really don't want to comment further on this."

Carter and Begin scheduled morning and afternoon sessions for today. In between, Vance will confer with the prime minister over lunch at the State Department.

Begin did not elaborate on the U.S. proposals for resolving the deadlock that he found unacceptable. But diplomatic sources in Washington told The Associated Press the specifics of U.S. support for Egypt's position on the three major unresolved issues. The sources insisted on anonymity.

First, the sources said, the administration agrees with Egypt that a one-year timetable for establishing Palestinian autonomy in Israeli-held territory should be included in the Egyptian-Israeli treaty.

Letters Proposed

The United States is proposing that Begin and Egyptian-President Anwar Sadat exchange letters providing that a Palestinian authority be set up on the west bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza district.

Begin has insisted that Palestinian autonomy be negotiated separately and not be part of the treaty.

Second, the sources said, the administration backs the Egyptian position that the treaty not take priority over Egypt's military ties with other Arab countries.

On a third key point, the sources said, the administration is backing Sadat in his refusal to exchange ambassadors with Israel until all of the Sinai held by Israel is relinquished and steps are taken toward Palestinian autonomy.

The U.S. package was presented to the Egyptian and Israeli delegations by Vance last week during secret talks at Camp David, Md.

Up To Egypt, Israel

Powell said "if is not a matter of the United States having and insisting on a position" in the treaty disputes. Rather, he said, it is up to Egypt and Israel to resolve their differences.

Meanwhile, Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's national security adviser, said Carter hopes his talks with Begin will result generally in "continued momentum toward a resolution of the differences between the Israelis and their Arab neighbors ...."

Ultimately, the president would like to see "the attainment of a peace between Israel and Egypt and also the generation of genuine progress regarding the West Bank issue," he said.

In an interview on CBS-TV's "Morning News," Brzezinski said it would be premature to say what action would follow the talks. He said it could include consultations with the Egyptians or "perhaps a summit," presumably with Carter, Begin and Sadat.

House Rejects Ouster Of Convicted Solon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House turned back an attempt Thursday to oust convicted Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., from office, voting instead to refer his case to the ethics committee for study.

House members voted 322-77 to accept a proposal by Democratic Leader James Wright handing the case to the ethics panel, which already has authorized an investigation of the 13-term congressional veteran.

Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., chairman of the ethics committee, said the panel has hired an attorney and he expressed hope the probe could be completed within 60 days. He promised the investigation would be "expeditiously handled."

Diggs, who sat in the House during the debate but did not speak, cast his vote in favor of handing his case to the ethics committee.

The Michigan Democrat is free while he appeals his three-year jail sentence and conviction on charges of accepting kickbacks from employees. He could not be reached for comment after the vote.

The move to oust the veteran Democrat was led by first-term Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., who tried to have Diggs expelled.

His proposal never came to a vote, however, since Wright's call to refer the question to the ethics committee was adopted.

Gingrich conceded in advance he lacked the two-thirds vote necessary to expel Diggs, and the Democratic leadership had expected all along to have its way.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, discussing the matter with reporters before the session, said he expected an attempt to expel Diggs would be led by a "young fellow from Georgia, what's his name."

Wright argued that expelling Diggs would punish his constituents more than him, since his district would be left without representation in the House.

And Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., added, "The will of the people, that's what this House is all about. And if they want to elect Hitler or a Klansman, it's their right."

But Gingrich, noting that Diggs had voted Wednesday on legislation to increase the federal debt limitation, said convicted felons should not be voting on proposed laws.

Rep. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., who read from part of a court transcript of Diggs' trial, called for expulsion to "restore the confidence of the American people in this institution."

Diggs was convicted in U.S. Court in Washington last October on 11 counts of mail fraud and 18 counts of filing falsified congressional pay vouchers. The indictment against him said he was padding the pay of employees, who in turn were using the additional money to pay for their boss' personal expenses.

Following his conviction, Diggs refrained from voting in the final days of Congress' 1978 session. But he was easily re-elected last Nov. 7, and had vowed to exercise his right to vote in the new Congress.

First-term Republicans, from their first week in office, had been speaking out against Diggs, urging him to refrain from voting while he appealed his conviction.

Sixty-two of the 77 votes against the motion to refer the Diggs case to the ethics committee were cast by Republicans.

him while he writes poetry."

During the trial, Lewis was asked by assistant U.S. attorney Tom Udall, "Is it a fact you want publicity?"

Lewis answered, "Yes. I'd like to have nationwide publicity."

When he was arrested in the bank lobby, two police officers reported that Lewis said, "I've been framed." Lewis said he was joking.

But Ray Twohig, the public defender representing Lewis, told the jury, "His joke has turned out to be true."

Twohig characterized Lewis as "a hopeless drunk" who could not hold a job and who had been through five marriages.

Twohig told the jury that even though Lewis had told the FBI and police that he wanted to go to federal prison, "it's not your duty to say we'll acommodate him."

Shah's U.S. Worth Set At $15-$23 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington spokesman for the new government in Iran said Thursday the deposed shah owned $15 billion to $23 billion in assets in America. He said he wanted the U.S. government to help seize them for the revolution.

Standing under a banner hailing in Arabic "the destruction of the hated regime of the shah," Shahriar Rouhani told a news conference in the ornate Iranian embassy that everything Shah Mohammad Rheza Pahlavi had now belongs to the Iranian people.

"When the shah's father came to Tehran, he barely had a robe and a pair of shoes," Rouhani said. "How could they take more than $50 billion of money out of the country? Those things belong to the Iranian people."

Rouhani said he was the spokesman for a committee appointed by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to take control of the embassy until the new government names an ambassador. Rouhani represented the new government in a meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance a few days ago.

In other comments, he said:

—Documents found in the embassy indicated the shah's government had made numerous payments to members of Congress and representatives of the American press, presumably to win friends. He said he was instructed to forward the documents to the revolutionary government.

The New York Times quoted Rouhani Thursday as saying that Ardeshir Zahedi, had a secret fund of $25,000 a month to the shah's ambassador to Washington, be used to win friends in this country.

Short Introduces Two New Proposals

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Sen. E.L. Short, Tahoka, presented legislation to create a "taxpayers' dedicated fund" and a proposed constitutional amendment dedicating a portion of the sales tax to schools to the Senate Finance Committee Wednesday.

No action was taken on the matters, due to the lack of a quorum at the session.

Short says he "can't see a single downside factor" to the proposals.

SB 585 would create a special fund in the State Treasury, to be used for the general operations of school districts, for primary and secondary programs, including vocational and special education programs.

Acquisition of land payment bonded indebtedness athletic activities and construction of building could be financed from the fund, which would be used to offset reduction of property taxes by school districts.

SPAG Begins Selection Process For Directior

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Glenda Robinson, executive secretary for the South Plains Association of Governments since 1968, was named acting director of SPAG Thursday following the death of executive director Truett Mayes on Wednesday.

At a two-hour special called meeting, the executive committee of the SPAG board of directors also recommended steps to locate and hire a new executive director.

The committee recommended to the board that the four-member personnel committee be expanded to include representatives of the entire 15-county SPAG region and all types of governments.

That committee, to be appointed by SPAG President Medlin Carpenter of Plainview, would recommend qualifications for the $25,000-a-year position and establish a timetable on accepting applications and interviewing.

The committee recommended it screen the applicants, then recommend candidates to the full board of directors for final approval.

Lubbock City Councilman Alan Henry, SPAG first vice president, said it is "absolutely critical that every member of the SPAG board and every member government have input" into the selection of a new director.

Carpenter urged committee members to put aside "political or selfish interests" and cautioned, as he has before, that disagreements about SPAG should be resolved within the association "not in the newspaper or news media."

Hale County Judge Henry Heck, SPAG second vice presidne president, commented, "SPAG can come out of this stronger than it's ever been or come up in a jumble.

"If we will be consistent in what we say and do and be responsible in our actions, we can come out stronger," he said. "Or we can play it low key and come out in a mess."

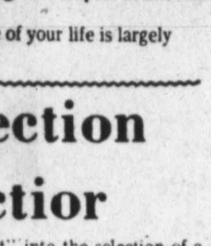

Also at the meeting, the committee recommended Ed Paul, SPAG alcohol and drug abuse planner, be named acting assistant executive director.

The board of directors will meet on March 13 to consider the executive committee's recommendations.

China Sees United Europe As Benefit

TOKYO (AP) — Roy Jenkins, president of the European Common Market, ended a week-long visit to China Thursday. Peking's official news agency Hsinhua reported in a dispatch received here.

The report said China hopes the Western European nations will "gradually integrate politically, economically and in defense...."

Economic Indicators Fall For Third Month; Slowdown Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's economic barometer fell for the third straight month in January, pointing to an economic slowdown later in the year. Economists disagree over whether there will be an orderly decline or a deep recession at the end of 1979, and President Carter was pictured as still confident there'll be no recession.

The 1.2 percent drop in the Commerce Department's index of leading economic indicators was the steepest since a 3 percent decline in January 1975, which occurred toward the end of the nation's last recession.

The 1.2 percent decline followed decreases of 0.4 percent in November and 0.1 percent in December. The index also declined for three months in a row in the summer of 1977 but the economy kept growing rapidly.

Press secretary Jody Powell said Thursday's report was consistent with the White House view that the rate of growth would slow this year, but that the new figures don't signal recession.

He said there were other indicators that show improvement in the economy, mentioning that orders for durable goods rose and that employment grew in January.

William Cox, a Commerce Department economist, went one step further. Cox said decline actually was welcome news. He said the economy must slow down from the hectic pace of last fall if inflation is to be brought under control.

"It would be premature to conclude that a recession is in the offing," Cox said.

Nonetheless, many private forecasters are sticking to their predictions of a recession late this year or early next year.

Economists for the Business Council, composed of corporate leaders, say that as many as 1 million persons may be thrown out of work.

Other economists say the indicators show the direction in which the the economy is moving but cannot tell when a slowdown will take place or how severe it will be.

The leading indicators report, when combined with a variety of other recent government statistics, paints a bleak picture of the economy:

— Consumer prices jumped 0.9 percent in January as food, health and housing costs continued to climb.

— Prices received by farmers rose 3 percent in February, the third consecutive increase. These increases often show up later on grocery store price tags.

— New housing construction plunged to its lowest level in two years in January as housing costs and interest rates began affecting home buying.

— The nation's trade deficit grew from $1.8 billion to $3.1 billion in January, the biggest monthly deficit since February 1978.

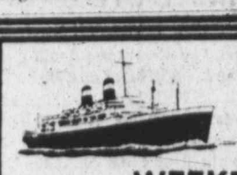

— Americans' personal income grew by 0.4 percent, about one-third of the December increase. Consumer spending also began to slow down.

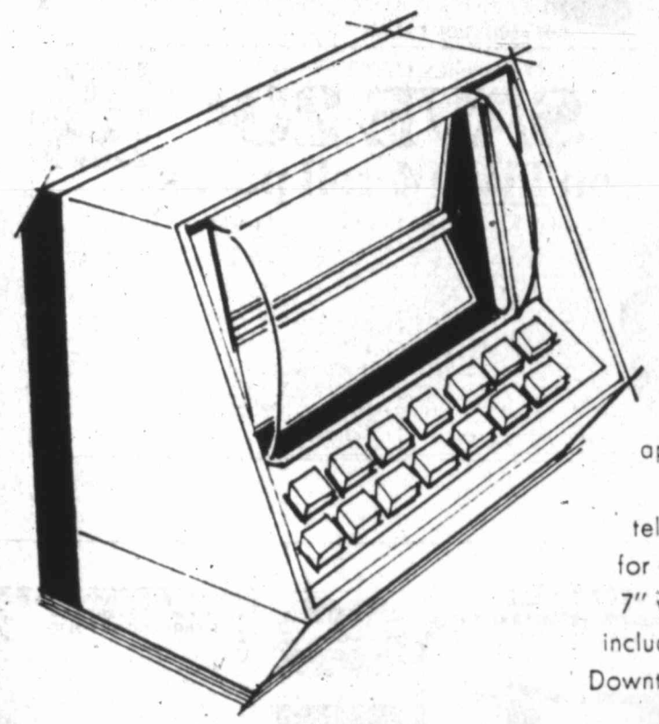

However, the unemployment rate dropped from 5.9 to 5.8 percent and orders received by factories for heavy-duty products rose by a strong 4.1 percent.

Senate Panel Approves City Court Of Record

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Legislation creating municipal courts of record in Lubbock won approval Thursday in the Senate Intergovernmental Relations Committee, but the bill's sponsor says he won't try for Senate passage until some changes can be made in its final form.

Tahoka Sen. E.L. Short predicted the bill will come up for a Senate vote in about three weeks, after he confers with local judicial officials and bill supporters to make changes in the current language on election of judges, seating of jurors and fees for transcripts and records.

But Short and his only supporting witness, City Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, convinced the panel to approve what the city has called its top legislative priority.

The measure would create city courts with jurisdiction to hear all criminal cases that occur under city ordinances, much as district courts have authority to hear criminal cases that occur under violations of state laws. They would be given authority to "make and enforce all necessary rules of practice and procedure for appeals."

But that issue of appeals drew the greatest controversy.

Lubbock Mayor Dirk West had reported to Short before the bill was introduced that appeals involving traffic accidents are a major reason for creating the new courts. The legislation will not abolish the right to appeal to county courts, but would require appeals to be decided on the record made at the municipal court level.

"As a matter of principle, I think it's bad," Lubbock attorney Bill Davis charged.

"You're cutting off the poor man's right to appeal."

Davis argued most attorneys don't like to handle traffic cases under the current system anyway — but that a stronger municipal court would discourage many people from fighting citations they believe are unfair.

The costs of transcripts of municipal court proceedings when a case is appealed, he said, will cut down on the number of extended traffic cases, along with some defendant's chances for justice.

Davis also questioned the wisdom of creating another local judicial system, and said the courts could be used to insure that the city's revenues from traffic citations continue to be collected.

"Privately, some policemen tell me that if their number of tickets drop off, they end up on the night shift," he testified, adding that justice suffers "when the city is using the court as a source of revenue."

Davis introduced a petition from a local group of attorneys who oppose the bill, saying the Lubbock County Bar Association petition supporting it does not include much of the bar membership.

(Bar members voted to endorse the court of record legislation with the condition that the judges be elected, the Lubbock County central jury pool be used by the court of record and that judges meet the same qualifications as those presiding over the County Courts-at-Law.)

But Mrs. Jordan said with Lubbock leading the nation in traffic fatalities per capita, the city should have some way to toughen its system of disposing of traffic cases.

"To put it bluntly, our current situation is such that we feel justice is thwarted.

"In essence, (traffic cases) are blocked in the county court and never heard," she said.

Mrs. Jordan and Short testified they favor amendments lowering from $50 to $10 the fee for having transcripts written for appeals, and permitting indigents to take a pauper's oath to have transcripts furnished for them.

Other changes would increase municipal judges terms from two to four years, and possibly establish separate jury pools for municipal and district courts.

Reese Landmarks To Give Way To Shopping Center Complex

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A multi-million dollar exchange-commissary complex is in the near future for Reese Air Force Base.

A mini-mall to be constructed in the present commissary area with easy access from the Reese gate will put all shopping in one location.

Lt. Col. Hirum E. West, base engineer, described the new "community complex" as a very nice base addition where the service wife or retired person can come to one parking lot for all shopping purposes. Even the bank is nearby.

Bid date for the base exchange segment of the complex is July 1, but the preparations begin Wednesday with the sale, by bid, of the first two of several buildings which will be cleared away for the project.

The last building to go will be the commissary, which will stay open until the new commissary facility is complete, then will give way to a parking lot.

Normally, base construction is completed and then existing facilities are replaced or removed.

With the new complex, which is not from appropriated funds, the land must be cleared before the contract is let. The mini-mall will be paid for with exchange and commissary profits.

Buildings giving way to the new construction are warehouse type facilities constructed with the base in 1941-42. They have served a number of purposes from warehouse to office to commissary. A massive warehouse completed several years ago now fills the storage needs of the base.

The structures for bid Wednesday are two of eight which flanked either side of a railroad spur. Originally, the eight received all supplies for Lubbock Army Air Field.

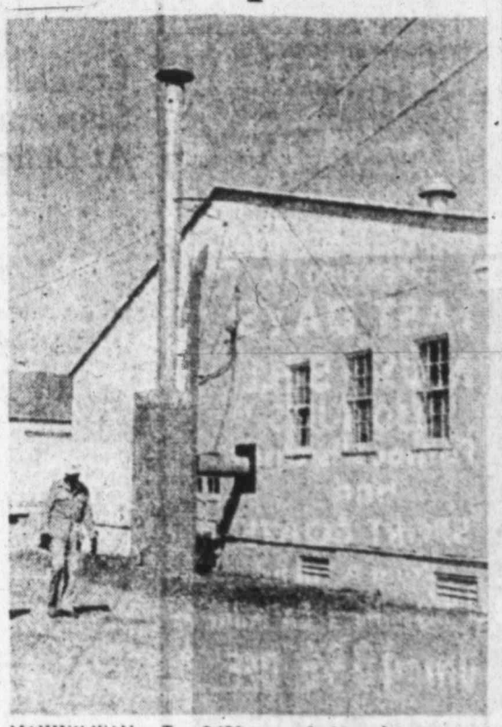

Today, pavement covers the area where rails were taken up long when the spur was abandoned in favor of truck transport.

Both buildings are 60 feet by 153 feet covering 9,190 square feet each.

One, still in use, has outside walls with no partitions while the other shows changes made inside as it was adapted to different purposes — clothing and equipment shop, pilot clothing sale store and administrative offices for base supply.

The wooden buildings with sheet metal covering must be razed in 90 days so cement docks can be removed in time for July construction.

An adjacent warehouse with the same dimensions will be shortened for additional space needed immediately for the project.

MAKING WAY — Two 9,190-square foot warehouses are set for removal from Reese Air Force Base to make way for the first phase of a multi-million dollar exchange-commissary complex. Bids will be opened Wednesday by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.(Staff Photo)

A representative of the Army Corps of Engineers will be at Reese Wednesday to open bids on the two structures and also on three houses and a barn purchased in Hurlwood by the corps to provide a clear zone for Reese.

As space is needed for the complex on the base and as property is acquired in Hurlwood within 3,000 feet of the end of Reese runways, other structures will be sold by the corps.

Grocery Stores' Prices Show 71 Percent Rise In Six Years

By The Associated Press

Supermarket bills declined last month, with lower prices for coffee and eggs accounting for most of the drop shown by an Associated Press market basket survey.

Meat prices, however, continued their steady climb, while almost half of the items in the survey stayed the same in price.

The AP has been checking the prices of a random list of grocery items for six years — since March 1, 1973. The latest figures showed that the average cost of the products involved in the survey has gone up 71 percent in the six-year period. That compares with an increase of about 55 percent in the Consumer Price Index of all items in roughly the same period.

The AP checklist includes 14 commonly purchased food and nonfood items; a 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped when the manufacturer discontinued the package size. The items are priced on or about the start of the month at one supermarket in each of 13 cities.

Among the findings of the latest survey:

—The market basket bill declined at the checklist store in eight cities, down an average of 3.7 percent. The bill was up in four cities — rising an average of 4.1 percent — and was unchanged in one city. On an overall basis, the market basket bill was an average of 1 percent lower at the end of February than it was at the start of the month. The drop compared with a 2.7 percent boost in January.

—Comparing prices today with those a year earlier, the AP found the market basket bill increased by an average of 8.3 percent. The bill increased at the checklist store in every city except Miami, where the total declined 3.5 percent during the 12-month period.

—Coffee prices declined at the checklist store in eight cities during February, reflecting cuts at the wholesale level. The price of a pound of coffee at the checklist store has dropped about one-third from its June 1977 peak of around $4.

Supermarket Survey Shows Food Prices Remain Stable Here

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Consumers probably won't save any money buying groceries this month — but neither will they spend any more than they have been, according to an Avalanche-Journal marketbasket survey.

Grocery prices registered a lot of ups and downs this month, but the total for 16 standard items hasn't changed one cent since February's survey.

The total for 16 grocery items (checked monthly at a local supermarket) falls at $20.64 in March, just as it did in February.

The same 16 items sold for $19.15 in March 1978, but in March 1975 the total was $16.10. That's an increase of $4.54 over the past four years.

At first glance, the most dramatic price increase shows up in the cost of a 49-ounce box of laundry detergent. The detergent sold for $1.29 last month and is marked at $1.63 in March. However, last month's price was an advertised special and the March figure is still 10 cents below the norm.

Round steak is back up after a few months of lower prices. Cuts of steak that sold for $1.98 last month will sell at $2.19

The Professor, sitting East followed quickly to the student's king of hearts lead, but he had already planned his defense.

South surely held the heart and club aces since he had jumped to six with a suit headed by king and no other honor. The Professor saw that his nine of trumps was the key to a second defensive trick.

At trick two, South led a trump. Should South hold a singleton diamond the way to beat the contract was to duck two spades, win the third and lead a diamond to kill all but two of dummy's diamonds. That would mean the student held five diamonds and the Professor knew that the student never preempted with a two-suiter.

How about taking his ace of spades and trying to force dummy? No good. The student would not have opened three hearts with just a six-card suit.

Finally, the Professor saw one chance. He won the first spade and led his king of clubs!

South won with the ace, cashed the last two spades and was faced with the problem of getting back to his own hand to pull that nine of trumps. He led diamonds, but the Professor ruffed the third lead while South had to follow.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: Our 12-year-old daughter has a small hole between the upper chambers of her heart. I've forgotten the medical term. Surgery has been recommended, but we want to know more about it. Is it necessary? She never had any symptoms until an X-ray (because of a cough that lasted too long). How painful is recovery from surgery? Would the patch over the hole take care of it or would she need other surgery later? — B.D.

The hole is called an "atrial septal defect." "Atrial" refers to the two upper heart chambers and "septal" to the dividing wall between them. That's where the hole is.

Surgeons have perfected the patching procedure to the point where risks are quite low. The surgery is being recommended almost routinely in cases where circulation is impaired because of the defect. This was most likely the cause of your daughter's lung problem. The hole prevents proper flow of blood within the heart, increasing the strain on one side. That causes abnormal pressure in arteries leading to the lungs. That's a very rough description of the problem.

Pain after surgery subsides when the tissue heals and it can be controlled with medicine. Your daughter should be in full activity again in a short time, so long as the hole is the only abnormality. In that case, no other surgery would be needed. The alternative is to allow the circulation problem to worsen, increasing the complications. The surgeons should describe the situation to you fully and tell you exactly what they intend to do about it. Any open heart surgery involves some risk, and it would be foolish to imply that it does not. Fortunately, surgical risks drop sharply as surgeons refine such operations with a lot of experience.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have a boy going to go in for tonsil removal this summer. He has had a habit of eating aspirins. He likes the taste, I guess. I have tried to discourage it, but it does no good. Should his doctor know about all these aspirins? — H.H.

He certainly should, especially with the upcoming surgery. Even two aspirin can have a blood-thinning effect, and excessive bleeding can occur. You should try stronger methods to stop his practice as soon as possible.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I know you won't answer this. But if I wanted to have intercourse (I've never before) and took one of my mother's birth control pills before, would I get pregnant? — Miss H.K.

You probably would — at the correct time of the month (when ovulating, if you are of childbearing age) and if your boyfriend had a healthy sperm count. The usual birth control pill program is not a one-pill arrangement to be used before intercourse. I can't fill in obvious gaps in your sex education in this limited space. You should be able to get that from your parents or teacher or planned parenthood clinics.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have heard both ways — that a person with glaucoma should limit liquids and that it makes no difference. What do you say? — B.E.

Liquids should be limited, especially at night.

Dear Dr. Ruble: What does "palpable liver" mean medically? — Mrs. W.M.

It is a liver that can be felt by the doctor through the skin. An enlarged liver is usually felt this way. But it may be felt and still be normal size if the diaphragm is low as in certain body builds.

At Wit's End...

BY ERMA BOMBECK

If I ever stage a telethon, it will be for one of the most underrated diseases of the 20th century — Cabin Fever.

Cabin Fever has been with us for as long as there has been children, but during snowstorms the disease reaches epidemic proportions. A minister in Iowa recently noted that the city's Dial-a-Prayer number increased 125 calls a day due to the malady. "There's no doubt about it," he said, "Cabin Fever is a reality and people are depressed when they're shut in and unable to get around."

Back in Ohio when the kids were little, I used to crawl out of bed every morning during the winter, fall to my knees and pray, "Please God, let there be school." For my intentions, I would offer up 18 shirts to be ironed by the end of the day, 30 pounds of hand washables to be dunked, and a promise to return the bank's call.

Everything gets through to you when you have Cabin Fever. It's as if you have no control over your own actions. You find yourself sitting there watching a child force a button up his nostril and saying nothing. You see them coloring your marriage license and you mumble, "Stay in the lines." You observe the chandelier over the dining room shaking as they jump up and down on their beds above and you are numb.

You go to the window and for the life of you can't remember what color the lawn used to be...or what the downtown area looked like. To keep in touch with reality, you count by sevens backwards...recite the Greek alphabet...or name the presidents in order.

Your mind drifts back to your youth when the most traumatic moment in your week was when you had used up all your no-shower days after phys. ed.

Bitterly, you envy nuns their social life and make plans for all the things you're going to do when the weather clears. These include: training for the Boston Marathon, finishing college, and dedicating your life to Population 0.

Cabin Fever is nothing to kid about. I've seen women who retreat into the house just after the New Year's Eve party as vivacious, spirited women only to emerge in April pale, heavily sedated, and nearly catatonic.

Help stamp out Cabin Fever by taking a mother to lunch or offering to carry her coloring book. We're making progress. Due to last year's sparse donations, we have research going on. To date, one rat has responded to a cure for Cabin Fever.

Now, all we have to do is cure him of his acute alcoholism.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I'd like to say a word in behalf of old-fashioned morality and the sexual conduct you have upheld for years — and I laughed at.

Al and I are college seniors. We met during our freshman year. The attraction was instant and mutual. After a few weeks we were having a "meaningful relationship." (This phrase, translated into current English, means "sleeping together.") We talked about getting married after graduation. I thought we had an understanding so I let him move in with me.

Last night I started to talk about the kind of wedding I wanted. He looked very uncomfortable. Finally he blurted out, "Don't let's spoil everything by getting married." Then he began to recite the latest divorce statistics and added, "A piece of paper and a ring are meaningless." He gave me chapter and verse on all the lousy marriages he knew of — went on and on about the way everyone is cheating, swinging, swapping and so on. His message was clear — two people should stay together and remain faithful because they WANT to, not because they are bound together by law.

I am shattered and heartsick. Now I am asking myself, why should he marry me? He has all the advantages of marriage and none of the responsibilities. I am ready to admit I bought a lifestyle that has made me ashamed of myself. It also has cheated me out of what I wanted most.

Since the young people out there keep demanding that you tell it like it is, I hope you will print my letter because THIS is the way it REALLY is. — Thorns Among The Roses

Dear Friend: No situation is a total loss if you learn from it. And you did. The trouble with life is you get the grade first and the lesson later.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband runs his mouth from morning till night. He wakes up talking and the sound of his voice is the last thing I hear at night. He is semi-retired and the only relief I get is when he leaves at 1:30 p.m. for four hours. The man has vocal cords like inner tubes. Sometimes I wonder where he gets all the air.

I didn't think my husband was aware of the problem until one day he said, "I must drive you nuts with all my talking. I don't know what I'd do if I didn't have you to listen to me."

When he said that I silently thanked God for giving me the patience to listen when I wanted to say "Shut up" at least 500 times. You have said so often in your column, Ann, "Understanding can make the unbearable bearable."

He still drives me up the wall with his constant verbalizing, but I know he needs an audience and I'm glad I have the patience to listen. Maybe this letter will help some other woman who is married to the same kind of man. Thank you for listening to ME, Ann. — From Dixie

Dear Dixie: Your letter might also help some man who is married to the same kind of woman. Thank you for sharing your wisdom.

CONFIDENTIAL TO L.S. IN BRENTWOOD, I don't know whether they don't want to quit smoking or can't, but three people whose smoking bothers me the most are Johnny Carson, Jerry Lewis and Sammy Davis Jr. Why? Because they are among the most talented entertainers of our time. I would like to see them around for a long, long time — and smoking reduces their chances.

Living Legend In Spotlight

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

The most recent achievements of Alfred Eisenstaedt, a living legend among photojournalists, place him once again in the photo spotlight.

Eisie, as he is affectionately known by his colleagues, was the focal point of four newsworthy events recently:

1. The publication of his eighth book, "Eisenstaedt's Guide to Photography," by Viking Press ($17.95), a helpful manual for amateurs based on a pro's half-century of experience.

2. The celebration of his 80th birthday, a party hosted by LIFE magazine, which brought top celebrities in photography and communications to cheer him on further.

3. His participation in the recent rebirth of LIFE, photojournalism's most potent popular publication. Eisie, one of LIFE's four original staff photographers, who remained throughout its 36 years of existence, was on hand again with an assignment for the opening issue of the new LIFE. And once again he will be an active contributor to today's pictorial history.

4. And the presentation by the American Society of Magazine Photographers of their ASMP Lifetime Achievement Award, a recognition by his peers of Eisie's dedication to photojournalism.

While his colleagues know him by his remarkable record and as the recipient of the profession's highest awards, the public has a chance to know him by his books. His latest, "Eisenstaedt's Guide to Photography," can be a valuable teaching tool for anyone, from beginners to advanced photographers, if they absorb his thoughts and study his illustrations.

He writes simply and clearly, stating his ideas on how to make better pictures. His topics include composition, lighting, portraits, children, travel and special effects, among others. He has made his share of mistakes and tells about them to avoid their being repeated. His ideas, technical guidance and pictorial illustrations provide a personal home study course which, if studied and applied, can improve anyone's photography. None of it is unusual, startling or out of reach but all of it is time-tested, professional and proven.

Acquiring skill in photography, just as in any art or craft, takes practice and learning from mistakes made. "Anything that makes you stop, look and ponder for a second is probably a good picture possibility," Eisie says. "But what doesn't particularly interest you may attract another photographer who has other ideas in mind. Everyone's point of view is a little different."

Always prepared for the unexpected, he carries a 35mm rangefinder camera with him almost everywhere he goes. He constantly checks the exposure situation for the film in the camera and sets the shutter speed and aperture for anything that might catch his eye. He suggests shooting anything of interest immediately, then, if there is time, improving the first quickie shot by shifting to a more suitable lens or a different angle.

For good composition, he believes nature does a beautiful job of arranging things and the photographer's job is to select the best view of natural arrangements. But patience is often required and one has to wait for better lighting perhaps, or more interesting shadows or the arrival of a missing element — human, animal or maybe an object such as a sailboat or vehicle — that can enhance the setting or provide a scale.

Good composition can be learned by studying the paintings of old masters, he suggests, and then it becomes a matter of good judgment and taste. In time, one becomes aware of balancing light areas with dark ones, large objects with small. It's also important to review one's work frequently, to analyze the shortcomings and see where improvement can be made.

The direction of light in relation to the camera makes an enormous difference in the mood of photographs and must be studied always, Eisie emphasizes. Strong side lighting brings out textures; back lighting can be dramatic and objects become silhouettes. Direct sunlight produces strong shadows which are too harsh and contrasty for photographing people. Eisie prefers sunlight diffused by overcast because it gives good modulation of tones and is a soft, pleasing light.

In shooting formal portraits, he usually has the camera on a tripod so that he can talk to the subject without continually raising the camera to his eye — an action likely to make a sitter nervous. For informal portraits, he doesn't bother with the tripod but tries to establish an atmosphere of ease for the sitter. People are apt to be tense and self-conscious at first but you should keep shooting — even wasting some film — until the initial inhibition passes away and the subject becomes used to the camera.

For vacation and travel pictures, Eisie advises traveling light and not taking all the equipment you possess. Your concern should be in making a good picture, not in choosing a piece of equipment. Three lenses are enough to cover nearly every situation: a normal lens for general coverage; a wide-angle lens for confined spaces; and a telephoto lens when it's not possible to get closer. A monopod or tripod is helpful for dimly-lit interiors and night photography.

Eisenstaedt's advice is practical and serious, a reflection of his own personal nature.

Second Tax Credit May Be Taken

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — I just finished reading your article on tax credits for insulation and other energy-saving home improvements. According to what you said, I qualify for such a credit because I had mineral-wool insulation installed in my house in December of last year. Presumably I will get the maximum tax credit of $300 that you mentioned. What I would like to know now is whether I also can get a tax credit if I have solar-energy equipment put in later this year? Or do you just get the one credit?

A. — You will qualify for a second tax credit. The law says that you get a credit of 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on components to conserve energy. Insulation falls into that category. The law also says you can get an extra credit for what is called a renewable energy source expenditure, which includes the installation of solar, geothermal or wind-powered equipment. This credit amounts to 30 percent of the first $2,000 spent plus 20 percent of the next $8,000 spent. That would make a credit of $2,200 if you spent $10,000 for solar energy equipment.

Q. — I am thinking about installing a solar-energy system just to take care of hot water, not for heating. Where can I get some information about what it entails in money?

A. — Write to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402, and ask for the "Solar Hot Water Handbook." It costs $1. This booklet provides a form for estimates of costs and performances and for a comparison with conventionally fueled systems.

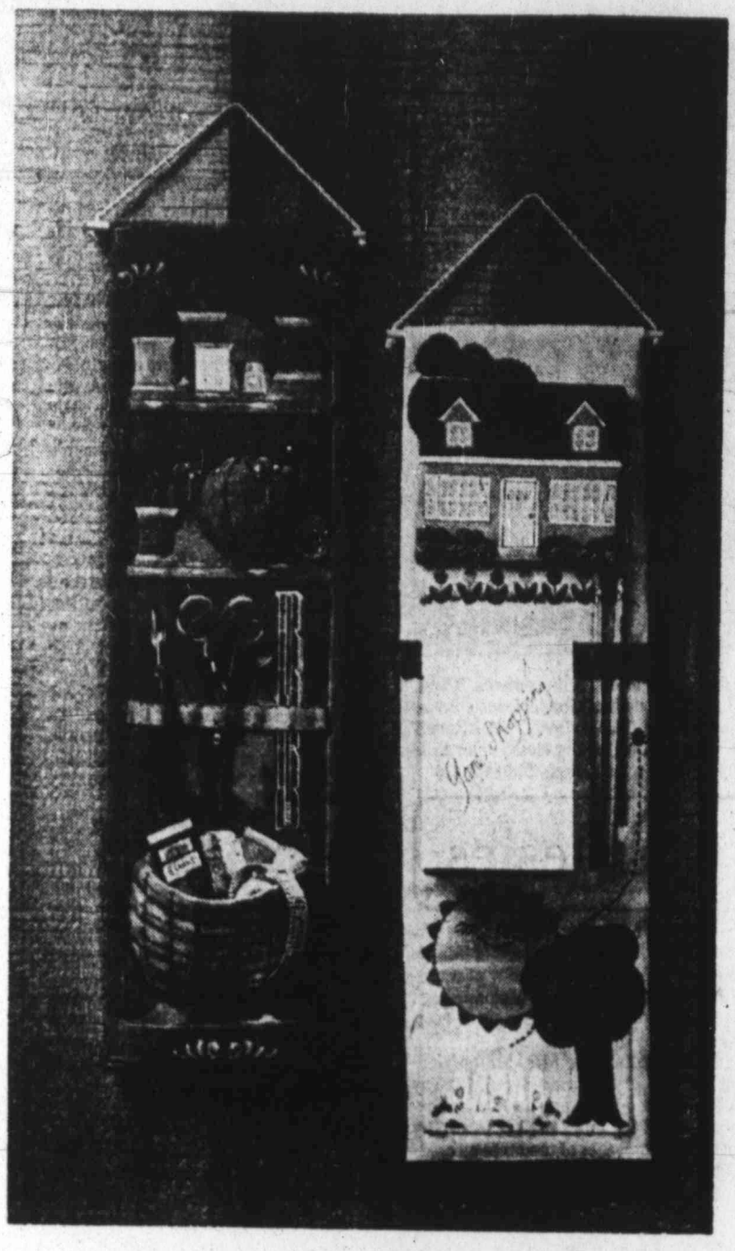

Q. — Someplace I saw a way of estimating how many floor tiles are necessary to use on the floor of a room of a specific size, but I never saved the information. Can you help me? I intend to use standard 9-by-9 tiles.

A. — Yes, but you probably don't need any assistance. Take the measurements of the room to your tile dealer. He has a chart which will show how many tiles you will need. However, if you want to figure it yourself, here is the formula. Get the square footage of them multiplying the width by the length. Then multiply the square footage by two. The result will be the approximate number of tiles needed and is geared to take care of the extra tiles required for cutting and fitting around irregularities.

(The techniques of installing resilient floor tiles are detailed in Andy Lang's Resilient Floor Tile booklet, which can be obtained by sending 35 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

INDONESIAN VILLIAGES BURIED

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Landslides touched off by heavy rains buried 15 villages on the remote eastern Indonesian island of Flores, killing 35 persons, injuring about 100 others and leaving 91 missing, the newspaper Sinar Harapan reported Thursday.

Hanging Helps Keep Items Organized

Do you have trouble finding a note pad when you need one? The scissors have taken off on their own? And you can't find a needle when you need to sew a quick button on your jacket?

If this sounds familiar, back up and make a better-late-than-never New Year's resolution to get your organization together. There's an easy and decorative solution to end this chaos — notion's nook or note 'n tote. The Notions Nook holds sewing notions and has a removable pin-cushion. The Note n' Tote keeps notes handy and a removable pocket lets you carry notes, savings stamps, store coupons and the like. It's also great for storing correspondence, the telephone bill, keys — all the things you can never quite seem to lay your hands on when you need to.

It'll be a great start to a newly organized you and it'll give you something to keep you busy while you're wondering where you last saw the appointment card for the next trip to the orthodontist. Cut a vertical strip of washable fabric (ours are 6½-inches x 21½-inches), stitch on pockets and decorate with embroidery floss, fabric crayons or water proof markers.

If you would like a little help with the design, the pictured kits come complete and are truly a snap to make. They combine a basic quilting technique, (if you can handle sewing a simple two-hole button, you'll breeze through the quilting stitch required) basting, stuffing, (to give that three-dimensional quilted feel) and if you'd like, there's some touch-up-here-and-there embroidery.

If you're one of the lucky few already organized, the Notions Nook/Note n' Tote would make great shower gifts for the soon-to-be bride.

Order Notions Nook, Kit No. 14981 for $5.99 plus $1.45 postage and handling. The Note n' Tote Kit No. 14982 is also $5.99 plus $1.45 postage and handling. If you order both kits, postage and handling is $1.95.

Israel Stamp Honors Christian Friends

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

Israel pays tribute to its Christian friends who helped save Jewish lives during World War II and the holocaust with the issuance of a new commemorative stamp.

Numerous Jewish people were rescued from certain death by their Christian neighbors who knowingly endangered themselves. They acted out of conscience, religious belief and opposition to the Nazi conquest. They were called "the righteous among the nations."

The new stamp is entitled "Salute To the Righteous Among the Nations," according to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

A second new Israeli stamp is dedicated to the 30,000 men and women of the "Yishuv" — the Jewish community in Palestine which volunteered its service in the British Forces during World War II, carrying with them the hopes of the rebirth of a Jewish nation. The stamp features a Star of David and the years 1939-1945.

Both of these stamps are available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

The cards, priced at $1 each, will be printed in 12 colors and may be purchased directly from the UN Postal Administration, P.O. Box 5900, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y., 10017. The cards will remain on sale for three months from the date of issuance.

DID YOU KNOW THAT: The dolphin is a popular fish when it comes to stamp designs. Dolphins have appeared as the main designs of stamps from Bulgaria, Greece, Russia, San Marino, Senegal, Tristan da Cunha, to mention a few... The tale of the Pied Piper of Hamelin was the basis for a design of a recent stamp from West Germany. It featured the piper followed by a flock of children... In 1952 the U.S. honored the newspaper delivery boys of this country with a 3-cent stamp.

COMPUTER MOSAIC — This mosaic of Jupiter was assembled from nine individual photos taken through an orange filter by Voyager I Feb. 26, 1979 when the spacecraft was 4.7 million miles from Jupiter. Distortion of the mosaic is caused by rotation of the planet during the 96-second intervals between individual pictures. (AP Laserphoto)

Scientists Hope Jupiter Probe Answers Age-Old Mysteries

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Information sent back to Earth by the Voyager I spaceship, now soaring through Jupiter's bizarre flock of moons, should provide clues to the origin and evolution of the solar system, a scientist said Thursday.

The giant planet and the four largest of its 13 moons "form sort of a mini-solar system unto themselves," said Laurence A. Soderblom, deputy leader of the Voyager imaging team. "The thing that's exciting is that they exhibit regular trends which are reminiscent of the solar system as a whole."

For instance, he said in an interview, the closest of the four large moons, Io, is a rocky, dry world similar to our moon. Farther out, however, the large moons become less dense and at least one seems to be mostly water ice.

In the solar system, the inner planets — Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars — are rocky while distant planets such as Jupiter seem to be mostly giant balls of gas.

Soderblom spoke as Voyager I neared its closest contact with Jupiter. The instrument-laden spaceship will pass within 172,750 miles of the planet Monday, then continue toward an inspection of Saturn in 1980 and on into deep space.

As Voyager I passes Jupiter, it is sending back the most detailed pictures ever seen of Jupiter and five of its moons.

In July, a sister craft, Voyager II, will also pass near Jupiter. Both ships were launched in 1977 for the long trip to Jupiter, 400 million miles from Earth.

Soderblom, of the U.S. Geological Survey in Flagstaff, Ariz., said the Jovian system is "useful in understanding why the planets are different" — for example, why the Earth is a pleasant place to live and nearby Venus is such a hostile and dry world.

"Some of the variables we have to worry about as we go out from the sun are not a problem here, where we have a nice condensed little set of things (moons)."

The four largest moons, each the size of a small planet, were discovered by Galileo in 1610 and are known as the Galilean satellites. Eight other moons stretch out beyond them and scientists think the smaller moons are probably stray asteroids captured by Jupiter's tremendous gravitational pull. One of the eight is little more than a boulder — four miles across.

And inside Io's orbit is the 13th moon, little Amalthea — "a very, very dark and very, very small moon" — about which scientists know little, Soderblom said.

A 14th moon may have been spotted from Earth but that has not been confirmed. Voyager I will search for still more moons as it passes Jupiter.

Soderblom said scientists should be able to use meteor craters on the moons like tree rings to crudely date surface features.

"We can compare lifetimes and the rates of surface processes for something very like our moon to something that ... heaven only knows what it's going to be like," said Soderblom.

TEEN SUICIDE RATE UP IN JAPAN

TOKYO (AP) — A total of 866 Japanese teen-agers committed suicide lastyear, 82 more than in 1977, the national police agency reported Thursday. Juvenile suicide reached a peak in January 1978, when 104 took their lives, 31 of them teen-agers who had problems with school life.

Suspect Skips Before Guilty Verdict

SANTA FE, N.M. (Special) — While a jury was heading toward a verdict of guilty in the rape and kidnapping trial of a Roswell man Wednesday, the suspect walked away from the courtroom and failed to reappear when the jury returned.

Billy Brown, 23, of Roswell, who was free at the time of the trial on $2,500 bond, is believed to have left the Santa Fe County Courthouse about noon, shortly after the trial had recessed for lunch.

The jury met at approximately 2 p.m. for deliberation and was ready to announce a verdict at 5 p.m. — but Brown was not present.

A nation-wide police alert was issued for Brown, last seen as a passenger in a light green Pinto around 12:30 p.m. The automobile was last seen in Santa Fe on a road leading south to the interstate according to assistant District Attorney Joe Shattuck.

"He flew the coop but we're looking for him," Santa Fe Chief of Police Woody Miller said. He speculated that Brown may return to Roswell, where he was raised in foster homes.

Roswell Chief of Police C.M. Teague said his officers had been alerted to watch for Brown but were not involved in a special investigation.

Brown, a 5-foot-7 black man with black hair and brown eyes, was wearing a dark blue corduroy jacket over a dark green shirt and a pair of dark blue jeans. He has a slight moustache and frequently wears ski caps.

The jury found Brown guilty of rape, kidnapping and aggravated assault with intent to commit a violent felony. The victim of the May 1978 incident was a 23-year-old Guatemalan tourist. She returned to Santa Fe to testify in the three-day trial.

The woman identified Brown as the man who had picked her up in Santa Fe, offering to help her find a store she was having trouble locating. She testified Brown took her to a van in south Santa Fe, where the attack occured.

Brown faces from 10 to 50 years in prison on the rape and kidnapping charges and from two to ten years for the charge of aggravated assault. He was found innocent of a related aggravated battery charge.

Mart Posts Broad Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, taking in stride a sharp drop in an index designed to forecast future economic trends, staged a broad-based rally Thursday recouping much of its loss from earlier this week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, after posting modest gains in the morning pushed ahead steadily throughout the afternoon and finished with a gain of 7.02 points at 815.84.

The Dow industrial plunged more than 14 points on Tuesday amid worries over rising oil prices and international turmoil. The market turned in a mixed performance Wednesday with a modest 1.80 gain in the blue chip indicator but a few more losing issues than gainers.

In Thursday's trading, gaining issues outnumbered losers by more than 2-to-1 in the final tally at the New York Stock Exchange. The composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose .37 to 54.30.

Volume was a moderate 23.83 million shares, down from 25.09 million in the previous session.

"Some of the atmosphere of crisis has been blunted," said Monte Gordon, an analyst at Dreyfus Corp.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Sorghum Plight Outlined

Growers' Loss Mounts Despite Price Increase

WASHINGTON (Special) — Comparisons of the price received by farmers for grain sorghum with the cost of producing it were given to the House Agriculture Committee here recently by the Grain Sorghum Producers Association, headquartered at Lubbock.

Mabry Foreman, a Felt, Okla., farmer and legislative vice president of the GSPA, said his comments were based on U. S. Department of Agriculture statistics.

"I'm not speaking of isolated incidents of farmers who used bad judgment," he said, "but the national averages of all sorghum farmers."

Foreman said the cost of production figures he used were based on USDA's actual and projected cost studies.

Cost of production is established by taking the total average cost (USDA figures) of producing an acre of sorghum and dividing it by the tenant's share of the crop, after deducting the expenses paid by the land owner, he said.

This gives the average net cost for tenant farmers, he added. Fifty-five percent of all the sorghum in this country is grown on a crop-share basis, he said, with the tenant paying slightly more than one-third of the total crop as rent (cost of land).

Foreman pointed out tha Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has said average farm income is up 25 to 40 percent from the previous year.

"Here are the facts: Sorghum prices have decreased over the last five years. In January 1979, the average sorghum price received by farmers was $3.53 per hundredweight. That was up from January 1978 by 38 cents, but it was $1.43 below 1975," Foreman testified.

While the grain sorghum market price increased 38 cents last year, he said, the cost of production increased by 49 cents.

"That's an increased net loss of 11 cents per hundredweight," the GSPA official said.

"Secretary Bergland told you U. S. agriculture is healthy," Foreman continued. "The fact is that grain sorghum farmers are losing $1.84 on every 100 pounds they produce. There is nothing healthy about that. Sorghum farmers are in a worse depression today than they were a year ago."

Foreman said he often was asked why a farmer would keep planting if he knows there isn't a profit in it.

"My answer is that he has no choice if he intends to keep farming," he said. "Land and equipment maintenance cost continues. A tenant farmer must plant in order to keep his land.

"A farmer who operates on borrowed capital must at least attempt to repay it. Farming is not a business that can operate only in profitable years, even if we could know which years would be profitable.

"A farmer will continue to hang on as long as he can. When he quits, he loses the investment of a lifetime of labor and sacrifice.

"In most cases, a farming operation has been built over several generations of 12 to 16-hour workdays, frugal living, and good business management. A man doesn't abandon that until he has exhausted all resources. Today, many farmers have reached their limit."

Foreman's testimony blamed much of the present situation with feed grains on the Carter administration's "minimal implementation" of the set-aside program under the Agricultural Act of 1977.

As a result, he said, feed grain reserves were filled and surpluses actually were increased. Now, he said, "another record crop is practically guaranteed."

Another problem, Foreman said, is the administration of the reserve program.

Bergland has announced that he will demand payment of feed grain reserve loans when the market prices reaches 140 percent of the loan rate.

"This is only $4.75 per hundredweight when the average cost of production is $5.37," Foreman said.

He said this "recall" price limit sets a maximum market price because few farmers are in a financial condition to redeem the grain and hold it for higher prices.

"It, in effect, forces the grain into the market and holds maximum prices at that level until all reserves are depleted," he said.

The GSPA made these recommendations:

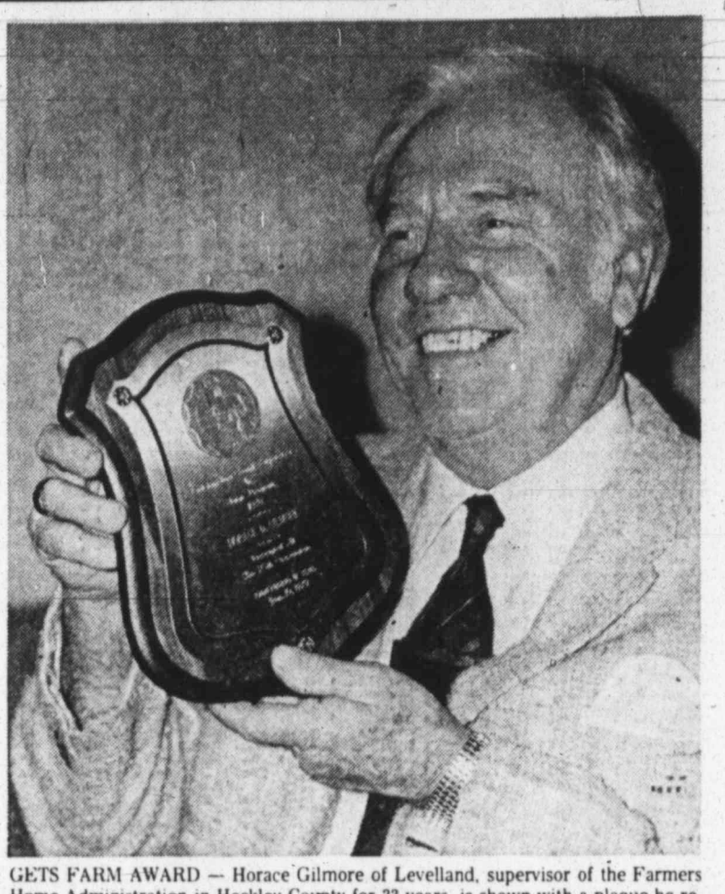

Price support program — Congress should establish government farm programs with price support levels (target price and-or net loan to the producer after storage and other charges are deducted) at not less than the national average total cost of production for each commodity.

Reserve program — To solve the problem of price ceilings on grain, the release prices should be established under the farmer-held reserve program at not less than full cost of production for the minimum release price and the market price at which the secretary of agriculture may call the grain out of reserve should be not less than 115 percent of the cost of production, plus carrying charges of storage, interest and so on.

COST-PRICE COMPARISONS — This table, prepared by the Grain Sorghum Producers Association of Lubbock from U. S. Department of Agriculture data, shows comparisons of prices received by U. S. sorghum farmers with the national average costs of production. It shows sorghum prices have decreased over the last five years while production costs have increased. The January price of $3.53 per hundredweight was up from a year earlier by 38 cents but it was $1.43 below the 1975 price.

Hockley FmHA Chief Gets Texas Honors

LEVELLAND (Special) — Horace Gilmore, supervisor of the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) in Hockley County for 33 years, has been named the Outstanding County FmHa Supervisor in Texas for 1978.

He was selected for the award by the Texas County Supervisors Assocation of the FmHa. He was presented a plaque at the recent convention in Abilene of the Texas Young Farmers Association.

A distinguished graduate of Texas A &M University, where he received a B. S. degree in vocational agriculture in 1937, Gilmore has been ranching for 40 years in Hockley and Cochran counties, raising registered Angus and Chianina cattle.

The Hockley County FmHA caseload included a total of 657 borrowers, including 127 operating loans, 284 emergency loans, 7 soil and water loans, 94 farm ownership loans, 118 individual housing loans, 14 guaranteed operating loans, 2 rural rental association loans, 3 loans to organizations, associations and cooperative borrowers, 7 emergency livestock loans and 1 youth loan.

Obligations for all new loans and grants for the 1978 fiscal year totaled $16.5 million. The estimate for the 1979 fiscal year is $32 million.

When Gilmore joined the FmHA here in 1946, the agency made about 100 loans totaling approximately $200,000.

Gilmore has been with the FmHA as a county and district supervisor for 40 years.

Reared on a farm at Turnersville, in Coryell County, Gilmore taught rural school and vocational agriculture at Hico and Molene for seven years.

Gilmore is a past stockholder and director of Superior Pork, Inc. He made one of the first FmHA farrow-to-finish hog loans in Texas about seven years ago.

Gilmore is an honorary Chapter Farmer of the Future Farmers of America and is an honorary State Farmer of the FHA.

He is a director of the American Chianina Cattle Association from the Southwest region, a past director of the Levelland Youth Center and of Cook Memorial Hospital at Levelland, and is an adult 4-H Club leader.

Overseas Sales Key To Farm Prosperity

By RODERICK TURNBULL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY — In the popular musical comedy of a few years ago, "The Music Man," the opening song carried the message, "You Gotta Know Your Territory." The scene depicted a bunch of traveling salesmen riding a coach on a train and the theme of their conversation was that no matter what you were selling, to be a success you had to know the potential of your sales area.

More and more, the world is becoming the "territory" as a market for produce from American farms. Expansion of American exports and, in fact, the economic prosperity of U.S. farms depend to a major degree on increasing sales overseas.

But sales are not going to be increased by a fixed percentage to each and every country. The opportunities for expansion vary greatly. So, looking ahead, it behooves the American farmer, his government and the grain trade to know their territory.

In the trade and in government parlance the world currently is divided into three categories, the developed or industrial nations, the developing (poorer) nations and the centrally controlled economies, the latter being the Communist nations including the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China.

Presently, the major buyers of American farm products are the developed nations. A chart of the 15 top markets for U.S. farm exports in 1977 shows Japan leading by a large margin.

Next in line was the Federal Republic of Germany. The next 13 in order were the Netherlands, Canada, The Soviet Union, United Kingdom, Korea, Italy, Spain, Mexico, Taiwan, Egypt, Belgium-Luxembourg, France and Iran.

When all the European Economic Community nations are lumped together, they, by far, are the leading market for U.S. farm exports.

The newest big market for U.S. farms has been the centrally controlled economies, the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and the People's Republic of China. Also growing as buyers are the new oil-rich countries.

But the greatest potential for growth in food demand and U.S. exports is in the developing countries, which include some of the oil exporters.

Bob Bergland, secretary of agriculture, in a talk in Washington recently, said the developing countries now account for about 30 percent of U.S. agricultural exports.

"In these (the developing countries) increased consumer income goes to buy more and better food," the secretary explained, "whereas demand changes in the developed countries are apt to be from one type or quality food to another."

Commenting on government policy toward boosting farm exports, Bergland said, "Our market development objectives are to maintain and expand demand for U.S. products in traditional markets and to develop and fill demand in emerging markets."

He added that the developing countries (including China) now have about three-fourths of the world's population and in most of these nations incomes are increasing, a situation that suggests a tremendous potential for growth.

"World demand for agricultural commodities will continue to rise," Bergland said. "It is our belief that a world system in which trade can move relatively free in response to market forces offers the most efficient use of the world's agricultural resources — which are not infinite — in meeting demand."

It is difficult to make definite predictions for the future on food exports because so many things are involved. Weather continues as one of the most unpredictable factors.

Obviously, any country which suffers a shortfall on domestic production becomes a candidate for increased imports, at least temporarily. The Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China are the most erratic of major importers because what they buy is tied so closely with their own production. And, because of weather, both experience wide variations in domestic output.

Political decisions also become major determinants in certain countries on the volume of their imports.

But there are certain trends which appear logical for the future. One is that as the world population increases, the world will need more food. Another is that growing incomes increase demand for food plus the fact that demand rises for higher quality foods.

Thus the developed countries likely will increase their imports of feed grains, oilseed crops, fruits, vegetables and high quality meat products.

On the other hand, the developing countries will continue to need more food grains such as wheat and rice. The Federal Reserve Bank in Kansas City, in a study on export potential, observed that the People's Republic of China, a developing country, for the near future may be most concerned about meeting adequate dietary standards.

Thus for a time, maybe a decade or more, demand for food grains will increase substantially. But eventually, China, and other developing countries, will also begin to upgrade their diets and then they will shift their emphasis on imports from food grains to feed grains and oilseed (soybeans and others) crops.

Such data as mentioned here is being studied in the grain trade and obviously by the U.S. government. Future developments in the export business, as reflected in the market, will help to guide farm production in America.

Feed Yard At Hale Center Sold

HALE CENTER (Special) — Frank M. Phariss, executive vice-president and general manager of Producers Grain Corp., and Pat Shepard, president of South Plains Feed Yard, Inc., have announced the signing of a contract for the sale and purchase of Producers Grain Corp.'s South Plains Feed Yard, located eight miles west of Hale Center.

No purchase price was announced.

Although the contract calls for a closing date of April 30, there are still some details to be worked out that might delay the change in ownership.

Producers Grain Corp. retains an interest in the facilities through ownership of common stock in the new company.

Shepard indicated that there is no contemplated change in the present personnel at the South Plains Feed Yard.

Dan Valentine Elected

HOUSTON (Special) — The Texas Charolais Breeders Association has elected Dan Valentine of Whiteface as president.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A COMPREHENSIVE REFORM OF FEDERAL farm disaster and crop insurance programs to provide producers with "more balanced insurance coverage" against losses caused by natural disaster was formally proposed to Congress this week by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The proposed Farm Production Protection Act of 1979 is the Carter administration's top priority in farm legislation for this session of Congress, said Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

The bill would combine the insurance programs of USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corp., federal farm disaster indemnity and other payment programs and the subsidized interest portion of emergency loans made by the Farmers Home Administration and the Small Business Administration.

After consolidation, the USDA's Commodity Credit Corp. would be responsible for the new insurance program, and FCIC would be dissolved.

UNDER THE PROPOSAL, THE CURRENT federal disaster payment program, due to expire at the end of this year, would be extended one additional year to allow the gradual phasing in of the new program. The present disaster payment program is administered by the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

First-year coverage would be offered on 18 crops, including, among others, barley, corn, cotton, grain sorghum and wheat. The USDA intends to expand insurance coverage into all other commercially produced farm products within 10 years.

Speciality insurance could be developed on livestock, agricultural products, prevented planting situations and others on an experimental basis.

The proposed all-risk, all-county, all-producer plan would cost no more than current federal protection, USDA said. The USDA estimates that about $632 million would be necessary to operate the program fully for the initial 18 crops. This compares with $653 million for the existing programs.

* * * *

A STANDBY GASOLINE RATIONING PLAN submitted to Congress this week by the Carter administration makes no apparent provision for a full priority for agricultural needs.

The plan covers on-farm needs but leaves all other agricultural operations the option of filing individually with the Department of Energy for a gasoline allocation during rationing.

Farm groups say this would be detrimental to full U. S. food and fiber production. They will be working with USDA during the plan's review period to try and secure a "reasonable priority category" for the complete food chain.

Meanwhile, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger predicted a serious gasoline shortage this summer and said prices could rise three to four cents by July. He added that rationing, which could cost up to $2 billion per year to administer, should be approached with caution.

Expansion Project Advancing At Plainview Oil Mill Ltd.

PLAINVIEW (Special) — A $3.5 million expansion of the Plainview Oil Mill, Ltd., is scheduled to be completed here by November.

"When we complete the project, we will have one of the newest, best designed plants in the entire oil mill industry," said Bill Quattlebaum, executive vice president and general manager.

The mill, first opened in 1965 to crush castor beans, was renamed from Plains Co-Op Mill when a group of area farmers and ginners purchased the facility last summer.

Although currently involved in an interim-type crush of sunflower seed, the facility will be undergoing the massive construction project starting almost immediately and will be ready to begin receiving cotton seed the first of November.

"The mill not only will have solvent extraction but mescilla refining, which enables us to sell refined cottonseed or vegetable oils instead of crude oil," Quattlebaum explained.

Using the latest equipment, the facility will be able to handle up to 275 tons of cotton seed per day with annual purchases estimated at 90,000 tons per year.

"We will be paying area gins about $13,410,000 for their commodity, which in turn should help out the farmer," Quattlebaum said.

The meal from the milling operation will be sold to area feedlots as livestock feed. Quattlebaum expects the plant to have annual sales of $19 million to $20 million, including oil, meal, hulls and lint.

At the height of the milling season the plant will employ about 85 to 90 workers.

There now are 28 persons working at the plant, but Quattlebaum expects an annual payroll of almost $1 million after renovations are completed.

The facility is unique in the area in that it offers limited partnerships to area independent ginners.

"The gins will be 50 percent owners in the oil mill," Quattlebaum said. "This is the first time in this area where the gins actually are part-owners of an oil mill itself."

As limited partners, the ginners will be able to share profits based on the amount of cotton seed they bring to the mill. However, the mill will serve other gins as a conventional oil mill, whether they are a limited partner or not.

The general partners, in addition to Quattlebaum, are nine Dawson County cotton farmers and ginners, including Frank and Jerry Jones, Charles and Bobby Warren, George and Randy Eiland, Jerry Harris, A. J. Broyles and James Grammar.

"To show the scope of the mill's operation, our capitalization is $5.25 million," Quattlebaum said.

"Of the 23 oil mills in Texas, we are one of only five locally owned and independently operated...The corporate arrangement is such that we are trying to get a congenial, compatible group of general and limited partners together to work as a team to insure a stable price. Also, it gives ginners an additional source of revenue which they can pass on to their producers. It helps cut out one of the middlemen."

Although geared toward crushing cotton seed, the plant will be able to handle all types of oil seed — sunflower seeds, soybeans, peanuts or sesame seeds. The plant currently is finishing a crush of sunflower seeds that began in November.

"We sold about 5 million pounds of this oil to Frito-Lay, so before long we might be eating corn chips fried in Plainview sunflower oil," he said.

All contracts for the updating and expansion project have been let and actual construction should start immediately, Quattlebaum said. All machinery for the new portions of the facility is to be delivered by July 25.

"The mill will be able to use every part of the cotton seed when we get into full operation," he said. "First of all, the seeds will undergo a delinting process with the lint being cleaned and baled.

"This lint is an important source of cellulose used in making plastics, paper and gunpowder. The lint also is used in upholstery for padding."

The meal is used in cattle feed and the refined oil is used in cooking oil and in making margarine. The hulls are important to the oil exploration industry, serving as loss circulation material in oil well drilling. They also are used as a roughage in cattle feeding rations.

Quattlebaum is a native of Abilene and a graduate of Texas Tech. Reared in the ginning industry, he was with Anderson Clayton & Co. for 22 years, the last seven in oil mill management at the Lubbock oil mill.

He is a past president of the Texas Cotton Ginners Assoication and the Texas Independent Ginners Association and a past director of the Oklahoma Cotton Exchange.

A. J. Franklin, a former resident of Plainview, oversees the 40-acre operation as mill superintendent. He has 28 years of experience in the oil mill industry as mill superintendent, sales engineer and master mechanic.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Buying by local traders and a shortage of wheat in Chicago warehouses pushed wheat futures to new season's highs today on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Analysts said commission house and local trading pushed wheat futures 2 to 8 3/4 cents higher. The maturing of the March futures contract has highlighted the shortage of wheat in Chicago deliverable against it, analysts said.

Soybean futures rose by 3 1/2 to 9 cents a bushel in generally quiet trading. Reports of heavy deliveries against the March contract pushed nearby prices lower early in the session, but renewed buying came in sympathy with higher silver prices.

Plentiful supplies of corn deliverable against March corn contracts helped hold prices mixed in a narrow range.

Reports that Pakistan bought 10,000 tons of soybean oil and a 20,000-ton oil sale to unknown destinations helped support prices in the soybean complex. Taiwan also reportedly bought 198,000 tons of U.S. corn.

At the close, soybeans were 3 1/2 to 9 cents higher, with March contracts quoted at $7.53 1/2; wheat was 2 to 8 3/4 cents higher, March $3.84 1/2; corn was 1/4 cent lower to 1/2 cent higher, March $2.36 1/4; and oats were 1/2 to 2 cents higher, March $1.30.

Livestock Contracts Soar Anew

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 92 points higher to 5 lower on 25,895 cars Thursday on the Chiago Mercantile Exchange. April was up the most after climbing 115 with only December ranging lower.

The advance carried all contracts to new highs for the season with April up to a new historic high at 72.25. The market rallied sharply after slipping 5 in distant August. Limit high feeder cattle futures generated buying as did continued strength in cash cattle and beef.

Wholesale beef was unchanged at 98 to 99 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points, which is a record high. Cash cattle were steady to up $1 with the best top $68.50 per hundredweight. Slaughter was 129,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 3,650 head today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 27 to the daily limit level of 150 higher led by March through May at the limit. Sales totaled 3,646 lots. The limit advance was the second in a row with March and April locked limit up most of the day.

The advance lifted all contracts to new seaosn's highs with April rising to a new historic high at 90.10. Aggressive short covering continued and traders also noted good demand from commercial feeders.

Deliveries total 23 thus far. Cash feeder cattle were steady to firm with the best top $124 per hundredweight at Oklahoma City. About 2,125 head are expected today at the major terminals.

Hog futures closed 27 to 80 higher led by April at only a tick away from the day's high. Volume was estimated at 5,541 contracts. The market rallied after an early loss of 17 in July on weakness in cash hogs.

The reduced hog supply along with continued strength in the cattle complex sparked short covering and other buying as did firmer tone to pork products at noon.

Wholesale hams were unchanged to up 2 1/2 cent at 85 to 89 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to off $1 with the best top $54 per hundredweight, which is a six-week low at Omaha. Kill was 287,000 head. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to be 20,800 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 110 to 137 higher led by March with all contracts at the day's highs. Sales totalled 4,842 cars. Prices rallied after an early loss of 20 in August extended Wednesday's selling.

Support on the break came from continuing strength in the cattle complex and firmer tone to cash bellies after earlier softness.

CLEAN UP FOR NIAGRA

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Niagara Falls has hired a public relations firm to help clean up an image tarnished by pollution problems at a former chemical dump in the city's Love Canal area. The City Council earlier this week voted to pay $28,000 to Doremus Co., of New York, to quell any tourists' fears about the chemical dump, now a state and federal emergency site.

Grocery Costs Show Big Six-Year Gain

—The price of a pound of frankfurters increased at the checklist store in seven cities, while pork chops went up in six cities. Declining beef supplies and smaller than anticipated increases in pork production have been blamed for the price boosts.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes were used when available. If the requested size and brand was not available on March 1, 1973, a comparable substitute was selected.

The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The USDA marketbasket issued each month is based on a complex set of statistics. It includes 65 retail items of U.S. farm-produced foods and the the department says the figures do not correspond to actual family food spending, but are used mainly to illustrate cost changes.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Here is a breakdown showing what happened during February in Albuquerque and Dallas:

ALBUQUERQUE: The market basket bill went from $15.46 to $16.26, up 5.2 percent. Butter, pork chops, orange juice, coffee, paper towels, eggs, fabric softener, detergent, tomato sauce and milk all went up in price. Only chopped chuck went down. Peanut butter and sugar were unchanged and frankfurters were temporarily out of stock.

DALLAS: The market basket bill went from $15.33 to $14.58, down 4.9 percent. Only orange juice and tomato sauce increased, while chopped chuck, coffee, butter, eggs and frankfurters decreased. Pork chops were temporarily unavailable and other items were unchanged.

a pound in March. Round steak sold for $1.39 a pound in March 1978.

Iceberg lettuce is turning into a real investment, selling at a high of 79 cents a pound. Lettuce was selling at 69 cents pound last month, but was marked 39 cents a pound this time last year.

A gallon of homogenized milk is also up, selling at $2.33 instead of last month's $2.27. Chicken prices are climbing too, selling for 69 cents a pound instead of February's 65 cents a pound.

The last increase is a small one — all-beef wieners are marked at $1.99 for a one-pound package instead of last month's $1.98.

Bacon lovers can save some money this month if they buy the right brand. The brand of bacon usually included in the survey is marked at $1.39 a pound for one week only. Other brands were marked at the average prices of $1.83 and $1.98, and the brand surveyed is expected to level off at about $1.90 next week.

A five-pound bag of flour is down nine cents, selling for 75 cents this month. Coffee prices are moving down a bit too, as seen in this month's price of $2.89 for a one-pound can. The beverage sold for $2.98 last month.

The last decrease is seen in the price of a can of whole green beans, which sold for 47 cents in February but is marked at 40 cents in March.

A large loaf of bread sells for 69 cents and a dozen medium eggs are priced at 83 cents.

A pound of stick margarine is still 73 cents, a five-pound bag of sugar is still $1.29 and 10 pounds of potatoes are still $1.19.

JUDICIAL SLEIGHT OF HAND

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Everyone's attention was focused on the judge as he read a four-year jail sentence for convicted defrauder Ceferino de Guzman. But by the time he finished De Guzman was gone. The Philippine news agency said authorities could not explain how De Guzman slipped out of Judge Cirilo Soriano's courtroom.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My husband and I are both 30 and want to save for when he retires, which will be in 22 years. He has $37.50 taken out of his paycheck each week to buy a Series E, U.S. Savings Bond. What would be the best way to invest our bonds?

A. The E bonds your husband is now buying through the payroll savings plan are an investment, of sorts. But considering the relatively low interest on E bonds and the much higher yields available elsewhere these days, E bonds can't be really considered a good investment any more.

If $37.50 is all you can afford to put away each week and if — like many families — you have to be "forced" to save, the payroll savings E bond route is right for you. It's a steady method of tucking money away and you won't have to pay federal income tax on the interest building up on your bonds until you redeem them.

But you can't redeem an E bond until two months after you buy it and you receive no interest for those two months. When the new EE bonds come out — in January, 1980, for regular purchases and in July, 1980, through payroll savings — you won't be able to redeem them for the first six months.

Just the same, if those E bonds are your family's only savings, stay with the payroll savings plan until it amounts to about three months of your husband's salary. That will give you the emergency reserve every family should try to build.

Past that point, you should start investing in things that are expected to grow in value. A no-load mutual fund, with growth as its objective, would seem right for you.

Q. We own shares in three mutual funds, with a total current value of $11,000. These were initially purchased to finance the education of our three children, two of whom are now in college.

We have been able to pay for college costs so far, without redeeming any of the mutual fund shares. Six month savings certificates appear very attractive. We are debating whether to cash in the fund shares and put the money in a six-month certificate. What is your recommendation?

A. There's little doubt that, over the next six months — and perhaps the next year or longer — you'll do better with those high-yield certificates than with those three mutual funds.

But, over the longer-term future, my crystal ball clouds up. When interest rates in general come down — as they eventually will — so will the yields on six-month certificates. But no one can tell you, for sure, when that will happen.

Nor can anyone predict when investments in mutual funds will again out-perform fixed-interest things such as savings certificates. Over really long-term periods many — not all — mutual funds have been better investments than savings certificates.

In your shoes and in hopes that the long-term trend will take hold again — sooner or later — I'd hang on to the mutual fund shares.

Q. Why is the minimum amount a person is allowed to put into a federally-insured, six-month, savings certificate $10,000? Why not $1,000? Who sets those minimums?

A. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) does it for banks; the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp. (FSLIC) for savings and loan associations. And there has been a great deal of public pressure, lately, to reduce those minimums.

The six-month certificates were authorized on June 1, 1978, to stem "disintermediation" — people taking money out of banks and S&Ls to invest it at higher yields elsewhere. Now that yields on those certificates are way up, it's understandable that people with less than $10,000 would like a piece of the aotion.

Watching Birds Fascinating Pastime

TAPPING VISITOR — Every season is interesting for birders, but early spring and late fall are excellent because of less foliage. This small downy woodpecker inspects a bare limb.

By TED J. SIMON
A-J Outdoor Editor

Not too many years ago when you heard the term "a bird watcher" — more than likely you thought of professorial type persons in tweed jackets or little old ladies in tennis shoes. They would be hiding in a bush while looking through field glasses at a rufous-sided towhee or a scissor-tailed flycatcher.

Well, to use an overworked phrase — they've come out of the closet, if not the bushes. Today's bird watchers are referred to as "birders." And the pastime of birding is growing in popularity while appealing to a cross section of people. Computer designers and short order cooks compare life lists, while joggers discuss migrants with birders confined to wheel chairs.

An influence on our environment, birders have also become healthy contributors to our economy. Statistics show that the nation's bird observers spend more than one-half billion dollars annually on their hobby. The dollars (500 million worth, remember) go for such items as bird seed, feeders and houses, books, photo equipment, binoculars and scopes. Plus there are unknown expenses for meals and accommodations during birdwatching trips.

Discovery

Because so many persons are not "joiners" — it's virtually impossible to know the number of persons involved in birding. But, more than 400,000 Americans are members of the National Audubon Society. Birding has become a very popular hobby, sport and pastime combined with camping, boating, hiking and annual vacations.

There are two essential items for the enjoyment of birding — binoculars and a book for identifying various species. Binoculars come in several sizes, powers of magnification, and a wide price range. The most popular size of power for birding and general purpose use is the 7x35. The numbers are not as mysterious as you might think. The first number (7) designates the magnification. The second set of numbers (35) is the diameter measurement in millimeters of the objective lens, the larger glass opposite the eyepiece.

Power of magnification is important — after all, that's why you want and use binoculars — but too much power has certain disadvantages. A 10 power binocular is difficult to keep steady without the use of an artificial support such as a tripod. Also, the higher powers are usually heavier; the weight of binoculars becomes very noticeable when used for long periods of time.

The objective lens needs to be of a size to transmit enough light to the eye of the user. It can be very difficult to differentiate various shades of gray, brown, and red when you are receiving a dim image. Think of the objective number as a window in a house; the larger the window, the more light reaches the room.

Also on the binocular will be the field of view. For example a binocular might show 420-feet: that is the diameter of the viewing area you would see at 1,000 yards — a standard measurement for distance.

Shopping for just one particular power of binocular will present a wide price range. Sometimes one company will manufacture more than one model or line. For instance the Bushnell Optical Company (a division of Bausch and Lomb) has the Custom 7x35 with a list price of $193.50, while the Explorer 7x35 lists for $110, and the Sportview 7x35 lists for $50. After that you get into wide angles, zooms, and different prism designs. It all boils down to the features, construction, size and weight that meet your needs or what you can afford.

Before you purchase a pair of binoculars, check with friends that use binoculars, compare several types, and then look at your budget. If you stay with a major brand and a dependable name, you'll have a good product that will provide years of service.

With the binoculars you will also want a book describing various species of birds. There are several bird books to select from for field application. One of the most popular books (mine has seen better years) is A Field Guide to the Birds of Texas. This book by Roger Tory Peterson probably is used by more birders in this state than any other guide. The dependable publication proves useful before you turn the first page by providing some roadside silhouettes; following the book's last page are flight silhouettes.

Another field guide that birders will usually have in their backpack or coat pocket is the Golden Press edition of Birds of North America. The guide by Robbins, Bruun, Zim and Singer features a quick guide to major families of birds for rapid field use.

Relatively new to the birder's choice of field guides is The Audubon Society Field Guide to North American Birds. Composed of two compact volumes, one for the Eastern U.S. and one for the Western U.S., the guides use actual photographs for what is believed to be a truer image of the bird under natural conditions. Also, birds are grouped according to appearance instead of bird family. This feature should prove very useful to novice birders.

Time may determine how popular the new Audubon guides become. The books are supposed to be very durable, but I noticed one Eastern Region copy at the Mahon Library is in need of repair. As with binoculars, the beginning birders might seek the advice of experienced observer before purchasing a field guide.

More than 500 species of birds have been recorded in Texas; our state has a greater variety of feathered friends than any other state in America. And the South Plains of Texas has many varieties to keep a birder as busy as he or she chooses. Attend a meeting of the Llano Estacado Audubon Society and you'll be amazed at the bird life that can be found within the immediate area of Lubbock. The world of birding — a very rewarding pastime — may be right in your own backyard.

BOOKS FOR BIRDERS — Most birders will have more than one book for identifying birds. A favorite publication for Lubbock residents is A Field Guide to the Birds of Texas by Roger Tory Peterson.

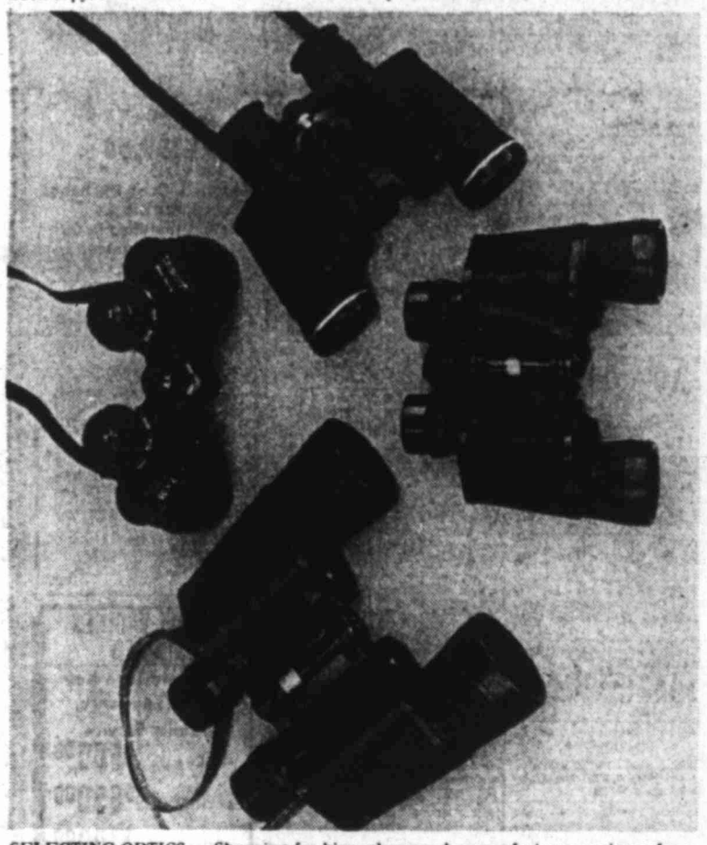

Local Bird List Available Here

A new edition of a local check list for birds is now available from the local Audubon Society.

Persons wanting the updated pocket size publication may write to the Llano Estacado Audubon Society, P.O. Box 3603, Lubbock 79450.

Be sure to request "Birds of the Texas South Plains" and include 25 cents for each copy. Five of the lists cost $1.

The society also publishes a monthly newsletter that is sent at no cost to members of the National Audubon Society residing in its area. Others may subscribe to the newsletter by paying a subscription fee of $3 annually and sending their name, address and phone number to the Llano Estacado Audubon Society Treasurer, P.O. Box 3603, Lubbock 79452. Be sure to include your Zip Code in your address.

SELECTING OPTICS — Shopping for binoculars can be a confusing experience for a beginning birder. The most popular size is the 7x35 which offers light weight, compact design, and general purpose optics for activities such as watching sporting events. (Staff Photos by Ted J. Simon)

Trip For Beginners Set For Late March

The Llano Estacado Audubon Society will feature a slide program pertaining to bird identification at its monthly meeting Tuesday night at the Lubbock Garden and Arts Center. A birding field trip for beginners is planned for the latter part of March. Both events are free and visitors are welcome.

Formally organized in 1966, the organization's name originally was Lubbock Audubon Society. The name was changed in 1975 to conform with the local society's expanded territory of 15 counties consisting of Bailey, Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Kent, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Motley, Terry and Yoakum.

Since the local society became affiliated with the National Audubon Society, members have been more active in matters pertaining to pollution and conservation and the related legislation.

Expanded activities also include invitations to lectures, films, parties, birdwalks, field trips and outings. Valuable volunteer activities of the local organization include placing bird feeders at convalescent homes, providing food for birds at City of Lubbock Cemetery and K.N. Clapp Park, compiling and distributing lists of plants, shrubs and trees that will attract birds, presenting programs to various groups such as Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, and exchanging information with other nature organizations in Texas.

The local Audubon society has met with various city officials in regard to the Canyon Lakes Project. A proposal was presented for a nature area along the south side of Canyon Lake Six.

Meetings of the Llano Estacado Audubon Society are held the first Tuesday of every month at 7:30 p.m. at the Lubbock Garden and Arts Center, 4215 University Ave. The meetings are free.

This Tuesday's meeting will consist of a program featuring tips on field identification of birds by Dr. George Jury, D.V.M. Mrs. Otis English will give pointers on planting to attract humming birds. Refreshments will be served.

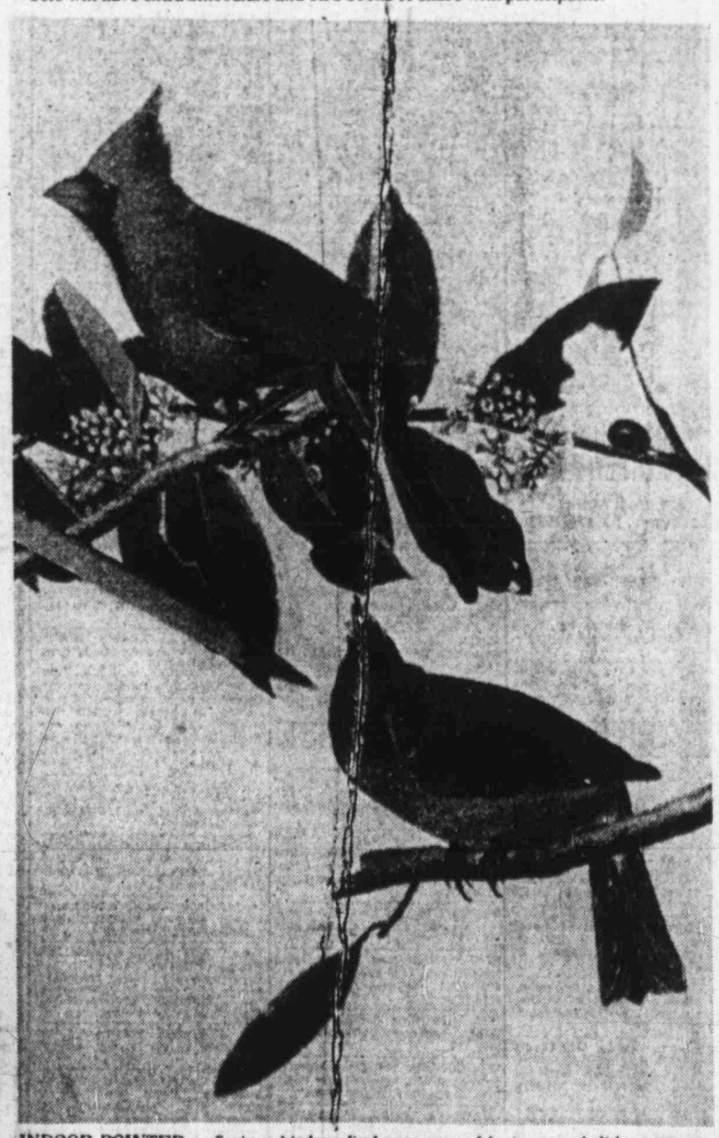

The society will sponsor a Beginners' Bird Watching Trip for Saturday, March 24. Meeting at 8 a.m. at the south parking lot of the Garden and Arts Center, participants will be taken to birding areas in and around Lubbock.

The field trip is planned for persons of all ages. Particpants should bring binoculars, bird book and picnic lunch and wear appropriate clothing. Some members will have extra binoculars and bird books to share with participants.

Persons interested in joining the National organization and receiving its prestigious magazine may contact Alvalene Barron, Membership Chairman, 1717 Norfolk Ave., Lubbock 79416, or by phone at 795-0546. Dues in the National Audubon Society begin at $18 a year.

CHECKING THE BOOK — Mrs. Otis (Rosemary) English and daughter, Rachel, active members of the Llano Estacado Audubon Society, note the arrival of a migratory bird.

INDOOR POINTER — Serious birders find year around lectures and slide programs on bird identification an important benefit of belonging to the Llano Estacado Audubon Society.

Slaton Coach Kathy Wilson Looks Over Her Slaton Tigerettes During Practice Before The State Tournament

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

For one quarter Tuesday night in Snyder the Slaton Tigerettes looked like anything but the defending state champs, in their game against Merkel.

After outscoring Merkel 22-7 in the first quarter and 17-10 in the second, Slaton appeared to have things well in hand at the intermission as it led 37-17. Keying that first half onslaught was Cindy Robinson with 11 and Esolita Whaley with 8. The girls finished with 17 and 11 points respectively.

Then came that third period. The Tigerettes gave up 12 unanswered points and were outscored 14-4 in that quarter.

"Our kids were able to keep their poise in the third quarter though," said Slaton coach Kathy Wilson. "And we played fairley well in the fourth quarter."

Well, when a team is the defending state AA titlist's, playing "fairly well," entails outscoring the opposition 12-3 and rolling on to an easy 56-34 victory.

And now, with the Merkel game notched as just another win, the Slaton girls must look towards the regional competition that begins Saturday moning in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Slaton will face Crane (20-8) at 12:30 p.m. in the second AA contest of the day. If the Tigerettes can survive that contest then they will face the winner of the Dimmitt—Henrietta game at 8:30 Saturday night.

"We haven't seen them (Crane) play," said assistant coach Janet Fails. "But what I've heard on them from other coaches is that they've got one big girl and some quick, good-shooting outside people."

Slaton should be able to handle the Crane offense alright but the Golden Cranes could give the Tigerettes some problems defensively.

Crane employees a no-holds-barred, all-out-full court press for the entire length of the game.

"We've really been concentrating on breaking the press in practice," said the

Seminole Gains Finals

By A-J News Service

AUSTIN—Mike Grass, Dann Wrenn, Albert Villalva, Joe Stewart and Glenn Moore gave Seminole varying degrees of control, but the Indians were in firm command at the end in beating Boling 49-42 here Thursday for a berth in Saturday's 11 a.m. Class AA state schoolboy basketball championship game.

Alonzo Moore, Boling's tallest player at 6-3, gave the Bulldogs a 2-0 lead, but Seminole, working effectively inside the Southeast Texas' zone defense, blazed to a 19-8 lead after seven minutes, rolled a bit with James Greenwood's scoring punch, then hewed out a 28-16 lead with three minutes left in the first half.

Boling began its long climb back into contention midway of the third period, behind Alonzo Moore and 6-0 forward James Greenwood. Seminole's lead was cut to 34-32 with 4:26 left in the third and both teams then went scoreless for the next four minutes.

After Villalva and Glenn Moore each hit a free throw and Wrenn a baseline jumper, Seminole was up 38-34 with 4:30 in the game—but in two minutes, on field goals an by Greenwood and Moore, Boling tied the score at 38-38.

Stewart then made one of the game's finest clutch plays. He emerged from a welter of arms and hands to seize an offensive rebound and put in a difficult layup shot for a 40-38 Indian lead with 2:11 to go.

Boling then contracted the turnover virus again (the losers finished with 16, setting up 14 Seminole points, but collected only six of 17 Indian turnovers) and the next two minutes the West Texasns spurted to a 47-40 lead, hitting nine of 10 free throws.

Although Greenwood and Alonzo Moore teamed for 26 Boling rebounds, Seminole won the board war 54-41, with Wreen grabbing 15, Glenn Moore 12 and Stewart eight. Seminole hit 18 of 54 field goal attempts, while Boling was modest 20 of 67.

Greenwood was the game's top scorer with 18 points, while Grass and Villalva netted 12 each for Seminole, which will carry a 29-5 record into Saturday's title game.

In the Class B game, rebounding strength and penetration of Snook's full court press kept Whitharral in contention through most of the first half, but the Blue Jays then broke away for a 69-41 victory in the

Snook, now 44-2 and booked to play 44-0 Krum in the championship contest at 9 a.m. Saturday, had early difficulty in coping with the rebounding of Whitharral's

Tech Earns UA Rematch

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

HOUSTON — Only a black suit and white sh irt with a little black bowtie and, oh yes, a pair of wingtip shoes, could have been mnore conservative than either the Texas Tech or Texas A&M offensive units Thursday night.

But the Red Raiders got a carnation, in the form of senior Geoff Huston, pinned on their lapels just when they needed it and Tech went on to defeat the Aggies 63-62 in overtime to advance to the secsond round of the Southwest Conference postseason tournament against the University of Arkansas.

For most of the night, though, things were pretty drab. That is, until Huston decided to dress things up right.

The senior, the only one starting for the Raiders, pumped in 24 points (the second most in his collegiate career). But more important for the Raiders, he hit — get this — the layup that threw the game into overtime with 25 seconds left, and four of Tech's seven points in the extra period. The final two free throws came with just 12 seconds remaining after he was fouled by Aggie David Britton.

But not only was Huston offensive toi the Aggies, he was also extremely defensive.

For lo and behold, if it was the Brooklyn, N.Y. native that pulled down a rebound after giant Rudy Woods had missed an apparently easy shot with Tech leading 61-60.

Don't get things jwrong, though, he wasn't Superman. He did miss the front end of a one-and-one with a couple of ticks left. But it didn't really matter because only the Soviet Olympic team could pull out a win with that much time left.

"I wasn't looking to go one-on-one with them," explained the articulate Huston. "I just looked for an opportunity and when jit came I just went after it."

Huston, the only Tech player left off the team that won the SWC tournament back in 1976 added: "Once the game started, I began looking to the basket more. It seemed A&M was disrespecting me. They covered (teammate Kent) Williams very well so I knew I had to score for us to win."

Had the Raiders lost it would have been Huston's final game, something he said he wasn't and isn't really looking forward to. "I really came in pumped up," he pointed out. "Hey, they're ain't no tommorrows for me, you know. And I want to go out on a high note...leave a winner."

Huston ended the night by hitting 9-14 from the floor and six-of-nine from the free throw line. Ralph Brewster and Williams were also in double figures for Tech with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Vernon Smith, the powerful sophomore, led the Aggies with 16 points (8-16 from the field). He had 10 of those in the first half and was the only Aggie in double numbers.

GOT IT — Andy Bean signals his triumph after sinking a short putt for a birdie during the Citrus Classic's first round Thursday. Bean had a 7-under-par64 to take the first day's lead. (AP Laserphoto)

Bean Rips Course For Citrus Golf Lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Andy Bean ripped Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill course for a superb, 7-under-par 64 and assumed a one-shot lead Thursday in the first round of the $250,000 Bay Hill Citrus Golf Classic.

"Arnold's not gonna like you shooting that kind of number on his course," chided Jack Nicklaus, who fired a 68.

"I know," said Bean. "I apologized to him, but I told him I wanted to shoot three more just like it."

The 6-foot-4, 210-pound Bean didn't make a bogey and had a one-foot tap-in for an eagle-3 in his romp around the 7,102-yard course that Palmer owns in the Orlando suburbs.

"I'm just glad to get back to Florida where I can read the greens," said Bean, a Florida native. "I had a chance to win three or four tournaments out West, but I always came up with a round that wasn't so good. It was my putting. Just wasn't quite good enough."

Jim Colbert, who was assessed a $200 fine for slow play in last week's Los Angeles Open, stormed into second place late in the day with a 65 that included an eagle 2 — he holed a 5-iron second shot — on the final hole.

Lubbock JV Downs Dunbar

Only the number of sand particles in the air was greater than the amount of walks relinquished in the baseball season opener between the Dunbar varsity and the Lubbock High junior varsity.

Twenty five batters stolled to bases-on-balls. Broken down, Dunbar walked 15 batters, while the Lubbock High junior varsity's pitching staff gave up 10. The Lubbock High junior varsity took better advantage of their oppourtunities to record a 17-9 victory.

In other games, Gene Segrest pitched a one-hitter, to lead the Coronado Mustangs by Abilene 9-1 and the Lubboch High varsity was involved in a suspended game against Amarillo Caprock.

Segrest's one-hitter included 17 strikouts and only three walks. Lee Brock paced the Mustang hitting attack with two hits and three RBIs. Jim Wells had two doubles and one run batted in.

In Amarillo, the Lubbock High varsity and Caprock called the contest in the middle of the sixth inning because of darkness.

Down 8-5 at the end of five frames, Lubbock High exploded with 9 runs in the top of the sixth. Jaime Green started the fireworks with a three run triple.

Indians In State Finals

6-4 pair of Jimm Avery and Mark Bryant and with the drives of point guard Jimmy Polk.

After Whitharral carved out four two-point leads in the early going, however, Snook's defensive pressure forced four consecutive turnovers, the Jays scored off them all and and their 17-11 lead provided the momentum to send them on to the finals for the seventh time in 12 tournament trips.

Snook, alternating eight players, forced 28 Whitharral turnovers, turning them into 21 points, while the losing Panthers netted 13 points on 19 Jay errors.

"Our mistakes hurt us," said Whitharral coach Phil Warren, "and our trunovers allowed Snook far more shooting opportunities (59, with 31 field goals) than we had (33, with 13 hits) that we just faded out of it."

Whitharral, finishing its season at 26-9, used the early scoring of Roger Reding, Bryant and Avery for leads of 4-2, 6-4, 8-6 and 11-9. But then the turnover virus hit and James Washington, Mike Junek, Clifton Butler and David Kovar scored off the errors to give Snook control.

Avery, with 16 points, and Reding with 11, were Whitharral's most productive scorers, while Junek, with 19, Washington, with 17 led Snook.

Krum and Snook were among four schools defending state championships in the tournament this week. Houston Madison, the state's only Class AAAA undefeated team, is given a good chance in its division, as are the other defendng champions, Huntsville (25-5) in Class AAA and Whitehouse (27-6) in Class AA.

Huntsville (25-5) met Daingerfield (26-1) in the semifinals Thursday night. Bay City (28-2) and Mineral Wells (31-3) follow to determine the other finalist.

LaPoynor (Larue) (32-6) plays Hull-Daisetta (23-8) in the first Class A semifinal contest Friday morning. Reagan County (Big Lake) (29-5) follows against Vega (26-6). LaPoynor is going after its fourth state crown in the last eight years.

Houston Madison (39-0) meets Lufkin (29-6) in the first Class AAAA semifinal game Friday for the right to play the winner between Fort Worth Dunbar (35-3) and Austin Lanier (33-3) for the championship.

All championship games will be played Saturday at the University of Texas Special Events Center.

Raiders Win

"It was just another typical Texas Tech-Texas A&M basketball game," sighed winning coach Gerald Myers. "I thought both teams were a little tight at the start of the game and played rather conservative. But things changed later on and we both started playing a lot harder."

"But the key to the game," Myers continued, "was the play of Huston. I really give him credit. He has been a very unselfish basketball player his entire career at Tech. He really took things into his own hands in the second half and showed some good leadership."

It was during that first half that things came almost to a standstill at times, as both teams played a slow-down type game, looking for the best shot in town. The Aggies ended the first 20 minutes on top 31-27 thanks primarily to the strong play of Smith, who continuely moved into the key for a close shot.

But press or no press, the Slaton coaches have a positive attitude about the regional tourney. And why not, the Tigerettes have three returning starters back from last year's championship team and the Slaton depth extends even further than that. Six members of this year's team saw extensive duty last year.

"If we play as good as we're capable of playing we'll have an excellent chance in regionals," said coach Fails. "Of course, there are a lot of good teams in regionals."

But what the Slaton assistant coach didn't say is that the Tigerettes should be the strongest team in the tourney. And in her four years as a head coach, Kathy Wilson, has yet to miss the state finals in Austin. Twice she took Nazareth to the finals in Class A competition and of course last year she guided the Tigerettes to their state title.

Chaparrals Begin Long Trip

EL PASO (Special) -The way Larry Hays figures it, losing only three players off a 47-24 team isn't all that bad, but it could be a lot better.

"Three's not hard to replace," he said while packing for today's season opener against the University of Texas at El Paso. "But when it's those three. . ."

Let's complete that statement for him. When "those three" include a pair of all-Americas and a .340-hitting catcher, that's a bunch of people to try and replace.

The all-Americas were centerfielder Darius Copley and relief ace Oscar Acosta. Mark Lisle was the receiver.

As if they weren't enough, there's a chance that last year's starting shortstop, Glenn Wilken, may not be fully recovered yet from the shoulder injuries that have beset him during his stay at LCC.

"If Wilkens shoulder doesn't come around," Hays said, "We'll be without four instead of three."

But is he down? Hardly.

"We've got some good ballplayers," Hays said. "Our season will just depend on how we fill in for what we've lost.

Leading those good ballplayers is returning junior all-America Tim Leslie. A 1976 Monterey High grad, Leslie hit .359 including 34 home runs in earning co-Most Valuable Player honors on last year's team.

He'll be batting cleanup this year, following leadoff hitter Tommy Inman (.343, left field); Steve Brigante (.344, second base) and either right fielder Richard Bowles (.263) or designated hitter Bobby Doe (.353).

Following Leslie in the lineup will be Kenny Toney (.321, third base); either Bowles or Doe; Wilken; Brady Brashear (.419, center field) and then Nottebart catcher Bob Nottebart.

LCC will hit the road running this season, playing its first eight games in only five days. Where this will really hurt, says Hays, is in the pitching corps.

Fully 11 of the 28 players leaving town on the Chaparral team bus are throwers, but when you have that many games that quickly, even that might not be enough.

"That only leaves us three in the bullpen," says Hays. "I believe that that's lost us ballgames in years past, games we would have won if we'd had the luxury of going to the bullpen.

"But we just have to face up to it. If a pitcher gets in trouble early in the game we'll stay with him. We'll let him try to work out of it. It may cost us the game but we haven't really got much choice.

"Besides, we'll learn something about him -who can work out of trouble - and around playoff time that'll start paying off.

"Then we'll be used to playing on the road and unusual umpireing and all that."

It's good Hays can see some advantages to playing on the road, because with a schedule that looks like it was made out by a greedy travel agent, he's going to need all the silver linings he can get.

Of LCC's first 27 dates, 23 are on the road, including 12 away doubleheaders. All tolled, 35 of the Chaps first 42 games will be played in unfriendly confines.

Blue Devils Edge Wake Forest

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Duke senior Jim Spanarkel calmy sank two free throws with two seconds remaining Thursday afternoon to stave off a furious Wake Forest rally and lift the No. 5 Blue Devils to a 58-56 win over Wake Forest in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament.

In the second game, Kendal "Tiny" Pinder poured in 20 points to lead North Carolina State to an 82-78 win over a determined Virginia team, which had rallied in the last minutes.

Duke and N.C. State meet in the semifinals Friday night. The winner of Thursday night's Clemson-Maryland game will play North Carolina, which had a first-round bye, in the other semifinal game.

Spanarkel went to the line after he was fouled by Mark Dale with two seconds showing on the clock and the score tied 56-56.

Duke, 21-6, had led by as many as 14 points in the second half, but the Deacons, 12-15, evened it up when freshman Alvis Rogers hit a 25-footer with 20 seconds remaining, pulling the Deacons even with Duke for the first time.

Spanarkel led all scorers with 20 points. Duke center Mike Gminski added 17 points and forward Gene Banks had 15.

For Wake Forest, forward Mike Helms and center Jim Johnstone scored 16 points each. Guy Morgan added 12, and point guard Frank Johnson got eight before fouling out with 2:30 remaining.

The Wake Forest rally began when Duke went cold in the final 12 minutes. Johnstone, a freshman, scored from inside with 11:58 remaining to spark a three-minute spurt in which the Deacons out-scored Duke 10-2.

In the second game, N.C. State, 18-11, led by as many as 13 points with less than three minutes remainingrew the Cavali three points, 79-76, with half a minute remaining.

Pinder kept N.C. State alive in the final stretch, hitting five free throws inside he final minute.

Virginia, 18-9, was led by Jeff Lamp's 22 points. Center Steve Castellan fouled out after scoring 12 points, 10 of them at the line, with 2:58 remaining. Lee Raker had 11, and Bobby Stokes had 10.

Tech Entertains Owls At Home

The Texas Tech baseballers will open Southwest conference play today when they face the Rice Owls today at 3 at the Tech diamond. The two squads will meet again on Saturday at 1 for a doubleheader.

Steve Ibarguen, 0-1 this year, will be on the mound for the Raiders. This will be only the second start of the year for Ibarguen, a junior college transfer, who picked up the loss in Tech's 5-1 loss to Texas Lutheran last week.

On the mound for the Owls will be eitherMatt Williams or Doug Watson. Rice sports a 2-4 slate while the Raiders 5-3.

"Rice has always been a tough series for us over the years," said Tech coach Kal Segrist. "Our club has been playing with good entusiasm and if (Robert) Bryant and (Gary) Moyer can come around and pitch like they're capable of, we will be able to give Rice a tough series."

Both Moyer and Bryant are scheduled to see action in Saturday's double header.

Allisons, Cale Match Up Again

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Bobby and Donnie Allison and Cale Yarborough, whose paths seem to cross a lot, earned the first three starting positions Thursday in the first round of qualifying for Sunday's $155,000 Carolina 500 Grand National stock car race.

The race is being billed as Round Two in the long Allison brothers vs. Yarborough conflict, which flared out of control in the Daytona 500 two weeks ago. Whether Sunday's race is similar to the bruising Daytona battle — and officials promise it won't be — the promoters at North Carolina Motor Speedway are likely to reap windfall profits at the gate.

The normally meager crowd for first-round qualifying ballooned to about 2,000 Thursday at the 1.017-mile track in the rural southeastern part of the state.

They saw a classic qualifying battle among the trio, each of whom still is under disciplinary control of NASCAR as a result of fist fights and crashes at Daytona.

Yarborough, winner of a race here last fall, was only the second out to qualify, and he took the provisional pole position with a speed of 136.418 miles per hour.

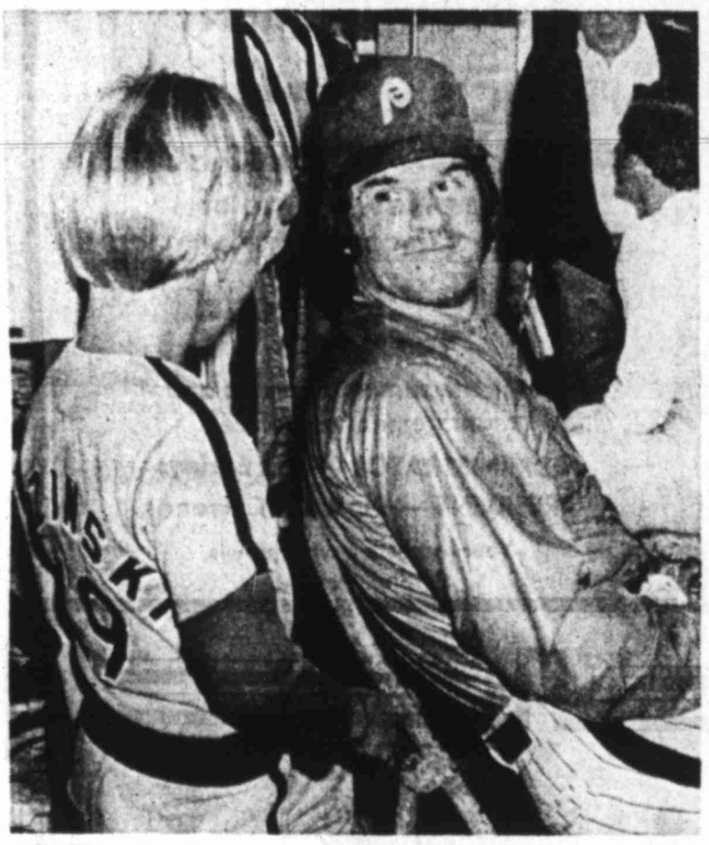

That held up until until Donnie Allison, with whom Yarborough crashed while dueling for the lead on the last lap of the Daytona 500, went out. The younger of the Allison brothers came up .032 of a second slower than Yarborough's best time on his first of two qualifying laps. On the second lap, he was seven-hundredths faster and beat Yarborough with a speed of 136.612 mph.

Bobby Allison was out next, and turned the fastest speeds of the day, the best being .033 faster than his brother, at 136.780 mph. It was the 41-year-old Allison's first pole of the season, and first in nearly a year.

Speeds overall were about one second slower than a year ago, presumably because of recent maintenance after a hard winter, and nowhere near Yarborough's year-old track record of 142.067 mph.

The top 15 starting positions in the 36-car lineup were decided Thursday; the rest go in rounds two and three Friday and Saturday.

Former Tech Aide Picked For Giants

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Air Force Academy football Coach Bill Parcells, who led the Falcons to a 3-8 record in his first season here, has resigned to become an assistant with the New York Giants.

Athletic director Col. John Clune said Thursday the search for a successor would begin immediately, with two of the team's assistant coaches mentioned as the most likely prospects.

Both assistants spoke with athletic administrators about the opening Wednesday, and said they felt the academy would have to act quickly in naming a new head coach because spring practice is just a month away, beginning on April 6.

Others mentioned as possible candidates for the job are Marv Braden, an assistant coach with the Denver Broncos, and Leland Kendall, a member of the Air Force staff under former Coach Ben Martin.

Parcells, 38, who had been defensive coordinator at Texas Tech for three years before coming to the academy, will become linebacker coach on the staff of new Giants' Coach Ray Perkins.

"I didn't decide because of anything negative here at the academy," Parcells said of his decision. "But this was my third chance to go into the National Football League, and you can run out of chances."

Parcells, who was born in Englewood, N.J., is returning to the area where he grew up by joining the Giants' staff.

He said he regretted "leaving a job incomplete and at a time when the football program is in a rebuilding stage. I hope the small amount I have accomplished will eventually take hold and be a factor in the development of Air Force football."

Clune said Parcells resigned on Wednesday, but said the announcement was delayed until Thursday so all team members could be notified first.

The athletic director said he hoped to name a replacement for Parcells within the next few days.

"Bill has done a fine job, and we hate to lose him," said Clune. "But I know he is doing what he feels is best for him, and we wish him the best of luck."

Parcells faced a major rebuilding task if he remained at the academy. Three assistants resigned earlier to take other coaching jobs, and two of those positions have yet to be filled. In addition, a number of the team's better underclassmen have resigned from the academy, including standout wide receiver Cormac Carney.

Parcells became only the third head football coach in academy history when he took over from Martin, who had coached the Falcons for 20 years. Parcells' 3-8 record here was the fifth straight losing season for the Falcons.

Oriole Shopper Remains Same Despite Fortune

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ken Pollock, the Pennsylvania man who has offered to contribute $6 million toward the purchase of the Baltimore Orioles, "would rather you think he works in that coal breaker than that he owns it," according to his accountant.

Pollock, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is a one-time coal driver who became a coal company owner.

He still lives by Hunlock Creek, where he was born. His home is next to his mother's. But other than the fact he is a baseball fan, not much is really known about the multimillion.

"The guy's worth a fortune, and there aren't 10 people in Wilkes-Barre who know him," said Thomas V. Timsley, his accountant.

"Most guys want to impress you with how much money they have. He wants to impress you that he doesn't have it," Timsley added.

Judge Peter Paul Olszewski, of the Luzerne County Court, calls the 58-year-old businessman "a typical Horatio Alger."

"He's an old truck driver and a guy who ran a barbecue stand. He delivered coal at the start," Olszewski said.

Since it was announced Monday that Pollock had offered to invest in the Orioles, he's been a very elusive person.

"He's a tough man to find sometimes," said an aide at Heavy Media Inc., a coal processing plant in Larksville.

The coal plant processes culm, a coal residue which had been discarded until it was discovered that the product would burn efficiently.

Olympic Pact Finally Signed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The acting secretary of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee's executive committee expressed satisfaction — and relief — over the city's official award today of the 1984 Olympic Games.

"Naturally I'm delighted because we had unprecedented problems," said attorney Paul Ziffren. "This is the first time in history that the International Olympic Committee has awarded the Games to a city without that city having financial responsibility.

"And obviously, we're relieved because the problems were unprecedented."

Ziffren, who is also the acting secretary of the LAOOC itself, pointed out that two unusual moves caused discussions to last almost a year before Los Angeles was officially awarded the Games.

"We worked out an unprecedented agreement with the IOC whereby the city of Los Angeles is insulated completely from financial liability," said Ziffren. "And we worked out an unprecedented agreement with the United States Olympic Committee whereby they are sharing responsibility with the Los Angeles Organizing Committee.

"That explains why it took so long for today's signing."

In the absence of IOC President Lord Killanin, the final, formal contract was signed in Lausanne, Switzerland, by Count de Beaumont and IOC Director Monique Berlioux. Bob Kane, president of the USOC, and Rodney Rood, representing the LAOCC, also signed the agreement.

Ziffren said that the local organizing committee is totally pleased with terms of the arrangement.

"We committed ourselves to the city, to protect the city and we have done that," he said. "We are satisfied that the 1984 Olympic Games will result in a substantial profit and the result will be that the profit will go to benefit amateur athletes in Los Angeles and the United States as a whole.

"Now we've got to start working to make sure the 1984 Olympics will be the most successful in history," added Ziffren. "Fortunately, we've got 5½ years to work out all the remaining problems to ensure that these Olympics will be the most successful ever.

"We have the people and the resources to ensure that happening."

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley was not immediately available for comment and John C. Argue, temporary chairman of the LAOOC, was en route to New York.

'Dutchman' Picked Boss At Ga. Tech

ATLANTA (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin, the former National Football League great turned gentleman farmer since being fired as head coach of the Atlanta Falcons, will be named an assistant coach at Georgia Tech Thursday night.

A highly placed source at Tech told The Associated Press on Thursday that Van Brocklin's appointment would be made official Thursday night at the school's annual football banquet.

"Norm will be at our banquet Thursday night," said Pepper Rodgers, head coach of the Yellow Jackets.

Although he would not confirm the appointment, Rodgers did say, "We plan to use Norm in a lot of areas. Certainly, his football knowledge will be a tremendous asset to me and Georgia Tech, and I want to use him in selected recruiting cases and some other special areas.

"Plus, Norm is a star. When he's in a room, people notice him. His name is special in football," said Rodgers.

Rodgers has said Tech will employ a pro-type offense next year.

Van Brocklin, 53, was head coach of the Atlanta Falcons for seven years before he was fired midway in the 1974 season.

He was an All-America at Oregon, led the Philadelphia Eagles and Los Angeles Rams to NFL championships as quarterback, and then was head coach of the Minnesota Vikings and the Falcons.

Border Contest Last On Cinders

LAREDO (AP) — Seven Southwest Conference track teams, including the Rice Owls who were the surprise winners of last year's meet, gather here this weekend to help retire the old red cinders and yard markers at the Border Olympics.

The 47th annual meet, billed as the first major outdoor meet of the year, is the only major track event still contested on cinders. But Shirley Field, longtime home of the border meet, is due for a new synthetic track in time for the 48th running.

The yard markers will also disappear after this weekend's meet. All events will be run in metric distances starting next year.

Rice surprised the field last year by piling up 120 points to edge Texas A&M — second with 116 points.

"Sure it was a surprise," says Owl Coach Bobby May. "Any time you beat everybody else in the conference with a little old school like Rice it's a surprise."

Although Rice beat the Aggies in a dual meet last week, Texas A&M is the favorite here, according to May. The Owl victory came over an Aggie squad without star sprinter Curtis Dickey. Dickey watched from the stands after competing in a New York meet.

The muscular Dickey is scheduled to run in the 100-yard dash here, making him one of four returning Aggie winners from last year. He is joined by Leslie Kerr, winner in the 440, Mike Moseley in the 120 high hurdles and Steve Stewart in the discus.

Other defending champions to compete are Rice's Bruce Gingrich in the 880 and Darrell Mouton in the 220.

The Texas Longhorns also return a pair of winners: Frank Lyons in the javelin and Robert Robinson in the shot put.

Other 1978 winners due back are Todd Harbour of Baylor in the milé and SMU's Tom Marino in the three mile.

The university division, due to run preliminaries and finals Saturday, also includes Lamar, Texas Tech, Texas Christian and North Texas.

The university division high jump is expected to be among the feature events. The field includes six jumpers who hae cleared seven feet.

The college division, headed by perennial power Abilene Christian, includes 10 Texas schools and several Mexican entries. ACU amassed 111 points last year to far outdistance runner-up Angelo State with 75 points.

Other college division teams are Wayland Baptist, Stephen F. Austin, Southwest Texas State, Sam Houston State, Tarleton, Texas AI, Houston Baptist and McMurry.

Angelo State returns Wylie Turner who took the 100 and 229 last year.

Te junior college division features powerful Ranger Junior College. Ranger is aiming for its fifth straight team title here.

The high school division includes more than 40 squads. San Angelo Central captured the division last year.

Disc Jockey Loses Dull Job After Poor Taste Display

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Disc jockey Mitch Eaves tried to generate a little excitement by promising record albums to listeners who would brave the cold winter night and "shoot the moon" — expose their backsides — in public.

About 100 listeners dropped by radio station WPEG in Concord, dropped their drawers and got their albums. But Eaves got fired.

"It was a very spontaneous contest," the 19-year-old disc jockey said of his stunt on Feb. 10. "I was once told by a friend, another disc jockey, that when your're trying to get something going, you've got to get their attention."

Eaves created plenty of excitement in Concord, a town of about 18,000 some 20 miles north of Charlotte. Moments after he announced the contest, the highway outside the station filled with honking motorists, drawing the attention of police.

"We didn't give away albums to everyone who dropped their pants," Eaves said. "It had to be a nice shot — really hanging out the car window."

On Saturday, station manager Charles Hicks fired Eaves and Paul Alan, who produced Eave's disco music radio show.

Hicks said he fired Eaves because he "ran a contest we didn't particularly like."

"For Concord, N.C., the contest just wasn't what we wanted on the air," Hicks said. "I have a lot of young people listening to the station. The contest, in my opinion, was not the proper thing to do."

'Ordeal Of Patty Hearst Shows She Joined SLA To Survive

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Patty Hearst was kidnaped Feb. 4, 1974, Special Agent Charles Bates was in Washington for a conference on improving the FBI's image.

Bates rushed back to San Francisco to direct the investigation, but the events of the next 19 months apparently contributed little to the reputation of the FBI.

Her Symbionese Liberation Army captors eluded arrest for months, Miss Hearst joined theie ranks and participated in a bank robbery, and remained at large long after the core of the SLA was killed in a shootout in Los Angeles.

Bates, former head of the San Francisco FBI office, as seen in the ABC movie, "The Ordeal of Patty Hearst," was under tremendous pressure from the FBI hierarchy to wrap up the case. It finally ended on Sept. 18, 1975, with the arrest of Miss Hearst, radical artist Wendy Yoshimura, and SLA soldiers William and Emily Harris.

Dennis Weaver stars as Bates and Lisa Eilbacher is Patty Hearst in this three-hour recreation of the case. It airs Sunday on ABC.

The film is largely told from the viewpoint of Bates, who retired in 1977 after 36 years with the FBI. Writer Adrian Spies reconstructed the story from lengthy interviews with Bates and other research.

It is a straightforward presentation of known facts, plus speculation of what happened inside the SLA. It spends little time on motivation and characterization. In the end, Miss Hearst remains basically an enigma.

Nevertheless, the film takes a sympathetic view of Miss Hearst. From court testimony and other evidence, it shows step-by-step how she was terrorized and then recruited for the SLA and made to believe the FBI would kill her.

"Remember Attica," Miss Hearst is told in the ABC movie, "when they killed the prisoners and the hostages. The FBI will kill you to silence us. They'll splatter you all around the room."

The film's point is that she joined the SLA as her only means of survival.

"Bates' feeling was that Patty was basically a victim," said Weaver, who conferred with the former FBI agent. "After his retirement he wrote a letter to the Department of Justice asking them to commute her sentence. If this had gone on the air when it was originally scheduled it would have been just three days after her release on Feb. 1.

"My own feelings parallel pretty much those of other people. I think it's unfortunate that she spent as much time in prison as she did. Here was a girl kidnapped violently by people who had no compunction about killing. You have no idea what went on when they had total power over her. The fear must have been staggering. She feared the SLA more than anything else."

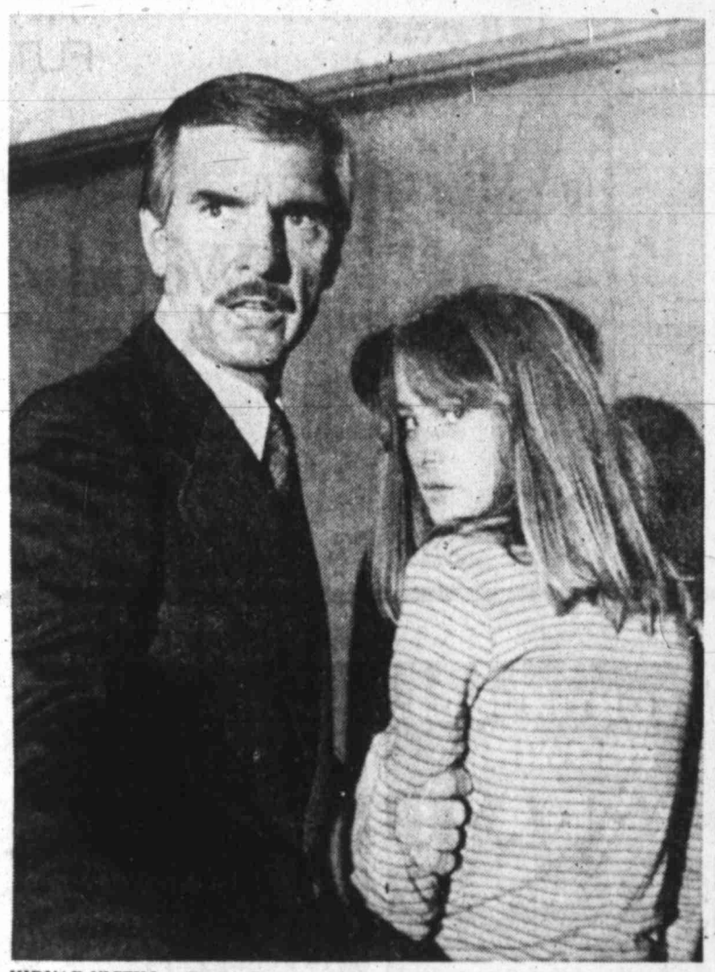

During the first week of shooting in San Francisco, Weaver spent some time with Bates. The former agent took him on a tour and pointed out the various sites involved in the case. Many of the actual sites were used in the filming.

"I played a great deal from myself," said Weaver. "I didn't try to imitate him. I didn't go into the mannerisms as you would with a well-known historical figure. But this was the first time I ever played a man I sat across the table from.

"I did get an idea of his manner, his rhythm. He's from Texas, which is one reason they asked me for it," Weaver is from Missouri by way of Oklahoma.

Weaver, who's been doing TV movies and miniseries since he left his "McCloud" series, may soon be back in a regular program. An earlier effort for CBS, "The Islander," failed, but he will make a two-hour movie and four one-hour shows for ABC.

Weaver will play a police sergeant who suddenly becomes a successful and wealthy novelist. If you think that sounds like Joseph Wambaugh, who also created "Police Story" in addition to writing books, you wouldn't be too far off.

South Dakota Battle On Equal Rights Bill Returns To Senate

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — South Dakota's move to rescind ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment was sent back to the state Senate Thursday, where rescission was earlier approved by a one-vote margin.

The House voted on Tuesday to rescind approval of ERA, unless it is ratified by 38 states by March 22. But the House resolution contained slightly different wording than the Senate's, which was adopted by an 18-17 margin two weeks ago.

South Dakota lawmakers, who ratified ERA in 1973, had rejected moves to rescind in three sessions since then.

ERA, which has been approved by 35 states, would outlaw discrimination based on sex. It must be ratified by 38 states by June 30, 1982, to become part of the Constitution. The original deadline was March 22, but that was extended by act of Congress.

Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska, had previously rescinded approval, but the validity of that move still is in question and the Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide. Complicating matters still further, Kentucky's action was vetoed.

Star Of 'Movie, Movie' Lands TV Series Part Set In Bygone Chicago

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — William "Studs" Lonigan was a sore disappointment to his parents. They had such high hopes for him.

His pious mother, a trace of Ireland still on her tongue, says, "Wouldn't I love to make a Jesuit out of my William. I say a rosary every day."

His father, with a big belly as testimony to his success as a painting contractor, fumes, "I don't want him to be a priest. I want him to be a tycoon in the world of business."

Nobody asked "Studs" what he wanted. He tried to join the Marines to fight the Kaiser and impress the girls, but the recruiter called him "sonny" and told him to run home to his mama.

After that, he never knew what he wanted — and he found nothing.

"Studs Lonigan," James T. Farrell's classic trilogy of growing up in Chicago, has been brilliantly adapted for television in a six-hour miniseries for NBC. The first segment airs Wednesday night, with subsequent chapters to follow the next two Wednesdays.

Harry Hamlin, in his TV debut, is "Studs." Charles Durning and Colleen Dewhurst play his parents, Brad Dourif is his friend, the James Farrell character, and Lisa Pelikan is the unattainable girl of his dreams. Dan Shor plays "Studs" as a youngster.

It is a piece that evokes nostalgia for a bygone era, of boys in knickers sneaking smokes in the school restroom and girls blushingly playing post office. But this is no "Happy Days." It is hewn from anger and sorrow.

Farrell is uncompromising in his acerbic view of the Irish-American neighborhood in which he grew up, the Catholic Church, and the bigotry and narrowness around him. He saw a world in which boys sought manhood by swigging whiskey, bullying the mentally retarded and baiting Jews.

It is powerful stuff, adapted by Reginald Rose, who wrote "Twelve Angry Men" and created "The Defenders." It is directed by James Goldstone, whose credits include "Red Sky at Morning," "Winning," and "They Only Kill Their Masters."

"I've never done TV before," said Hamlin, 27, who recently starred in his first motion picture, "Movie, Movie."

Hamlin said he had been offered TV roles before, "but since I hadn't been watching I didn't know what was on. It just wasn't a part of my life. Most worthwhile things come on in prime time, and I'd always been working in the theater.

"I'd stopped watching when I was 14. That's when you go from TV dope addict to participating in the world."

He got the role in "Studs Lonigan" as a result of "Movie, Movie." And how he got the role in "Movie, Movie" is indicative of the way an actor's career can take a sudden turn.

He was in Los Angeles, preparing for a trip to London to study Shakespeare, when he dropped in to see the casting director at Warner Bros. Pictures. He was told all the male parts in "Movie, Movie" had been cast, but the director, Stanley Donen, was looking for someone to read lines for actress Ann Reinking.

"I agreed to postpone my trip if they'd pay me $250 for it," he said. "I wanted a camera and that would buy me one."

He read with Miss Reinking, and Donen suggested filming the dialogue. He offered to give Hamlin a copy of the film so he could show it in the future when job hunting.

HARRY HAMLIN, Portrays 'Studs' Lonigan

"After Donen looked at the film he offered me the role," Hamlin said. "I figured it was better to work than to study. Then 'Studs Lonigan' came along and I never went to London."

Hamlin said he saw "Studs" "as a kid who's a product of the Great American Dream Machine. The philosophy of the country fosters a romantic dream life. That's great. A lot of people are encouraged to create and use their imaginations. But a few people like 'Studs' go out on a limb and don't make it. He's ultimately crushed under the wheel."

Veteran Jazzman Explains Shift To Unusual Seven-String Guitar

NEW YORK (AP) — In the world of jazz guitarists, it's easy to pick out Bucky Pizzarelli. His guitar has seven strings, not the usual six. Such weapons are as rare as a tax refund.

But he's played it 11 years, on such records as Janis Ian's "At Seventeen," on such shows as "Today" and "Tonight," on his own albums and in clubs with such guys as tenor sax star Zoot Sims.

In fact, he's in New Orleans this week with Sims, playing at the Hyatt Regency there, after a long run at Cafe Pierre here. He was asked how he decided to try seven strings after years with six.

He genially blamed it on a seven-string pioneer, George Van Eps, who, like Bucky, isn't well-known by the general public but is highly regarded by musicians and most older jazz fans.

He said he'd always loved Van Eps's distinctive style — rich, complex chords and a subtle swinging approach — both as a kid growing up in Paterson, N.J., and as a professional out on his own.

But the moment of decision didn't come until 1968, when Van Eps, now in semi-retirement in Burbank, Calif., came here for a rare club date. Guitarists galore showed up, among them Pizzarelli.

"He just knocked me out," said Bucky, a pleasant, always impeccably tailored man of 56 who works out of New York and lives in Saddle River, N.J. "So the next day, I bought a seven-string."

He was in NBC's "Tonight" band then, when the show came from New York, "and when it was time to go on, I just carried it out and said, 'I'm going to play this tonight.'"

A bold move. The guitar's extra string — a bass A — can make the best pickers fumble-fingered at first. Bucky, who broke in with Vaughn Monroe's band in 1943, was no exception.

"The string got in the way," he allowed. "Your first tendency is to take it off the keyboard completely. But I left it on and said, 'Well, let's see what happens.'

"A few days later, I did a record date with it and" — he started laughing — "oh, I couldn't find home plate."

But he persevered. In time, he began a series of now-famous jazz duet dates with the late guitarist, George Barnes, working small clubs, even a fire house, in New Jersey, before clicking here.

A duo album ensued. So did other duet albums with other players, from saxman Sims to a pedal-steel man from Nashville, Doug Jernigan.

Now, no one is startled to see Bucky playing seven-string.

The way he sees it, such guitars have two things going: the sound is lush and distinctive and the extra string lets you be your own bass player, which does help when club owners won't hire one.

Bucky, who heads to France this July for his fifth year at the annual Nice jazz festival, agrees his kind of guitar isn't widely used. But college kids seem to be trying it nowadays, he says.

"They're not the only ones," he added. "Some kid from Mexico, a guitar student, came in last night and was just fascinated by it."

Is the seven-string the guitar world's coming thing?

"It'll be around a long time," said the man who plays one. "It may not blaze any great paths of glory. But for a kid who's really interested in guitar playing, its concept is perfect."

Play By Pope Premieres On Italian Radio

ROME (AP) — An Italian radio music and talk show gave way Thursday for the world premiere of a play about love and marriage authored by Pope John Paul II when he was a bishop in his native Poland.

"The Jeweler's Shop," ran 80 minutes in mid-afternoon with a potential audience estimated at one million people, who usually tune in to a program mixing pop music with telephone calls from listeners.

Italy's state-owned radio said it will conduct a survey to estimate the actual audience. The pope's play had been widely publicized for several weeks.

The play in three acts tells about the way three couples fall in love, marry and handle troubles and conflicts in marriage.

Of the three couples, Teresa and Andrew experience happiness until he is killed in World War II; Anna and Stefan gradually become estranged and drift toward adultery; Christopher and Monica, children of the two couples, marry but experience many difficulties because because their parents' troubles weigh on them.

"Love is not an adventure... The eternity of man passes through love," Adam, a wise-man character, tells Anna when she tells him she longs for some other man's love.

Pope John Paul wrote the play in 1960 when he was auxiliary bishop of Krakow. It appeared in "Znak," — Sign — a Polish Catholic magazine under the pseudonym of Andrzej Jawien, the same the then Bishop Karol Wojtyla used to publish a number of poems.

The Italian radio will run the play a second time in the evening on Sunday. There is talk of staging it also for the state-owned television. The play will soon be staged in Poland by a cast of Roman Catholic actors of Gdansk.

"The Jeweler's Shop" has been published in Italian by Libreria Vaticana, the Vatican's publishing house. The book went on sale a week ago and the first two editions, totaling more than 20,000 copies, already are sold out.

Libreria Vaticana said the play is being translated into English, French, German, Spanish and Portuguese. It said Random House of New York will publish it in the United States, probably this summer.

Royalties from the play as well as from all other publications by Pope John Paul II will go into a Vatican-based "Fund for Needy Countries." The fund is meant to make money available for the pope to provide donations to countries struck by disasters or other calamities.

According to published reports, 476,000 lire — about $500 — was paid into the fund for the right to put the play on the air. According to the reports, the sum was calculated on the basis of authors' fees set by Italy's National Association of Authors.

Three Inmates Hold Guard Prisoner In Washington

MONROE, Wash. (AP) — A Washington State Reformatory guard was held hostage by three inmates for about 90 minutes before fellow guards freed him, prison officials said Thursday.

The guard, Carl Forsberg, 26, was listed in satisfactory condition suffering facial bruises and possible rib damage in the Wednesday night incident. The inmates were returned to segregation cells.

Forsberg was overpowered by an inmate who used the guard's keys to free two other men.

New Problems Expected In Taking 1980 Census

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau's head count in 1980 may underestimate the size of the population because it will be hampered by money problems and a lack of public support, an agency adviser said Thursday.

The Rev. George E. Riddick, chairman of the Census Advisory Committee on the Black Population, testified on Capitol Hill that a proposed $2.4 million cut in the bureau's budget is a "handicap."

But potentially more important is the failure to adequately include members of minority groups in the agency's policy-making positions, Riddick told a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee. He said this problem could undermine the public's willingness to cooperate with census takers.

The census is used as a basis for allocating billions of federal dollars to states and localities for a variety of programs.

Riddick said the ineffectiveness of the bureau's affirmative action program "almost guarantees an absence of public confidence in the minority communities."

There are no minority group members in senior executive positions in the agency, he said, adding that most of these people are in low-level jobs and there is a "basic insensitivity" in bureau personnel practices.

"It is essential that all minorities be given a role proportionate to their numbers and percentages in the population," he told the subcommittee on energy, nuclear proliferation and federal services.

The Census Bureau estimates the 1970 census underestimated the U.S. population by 2.5 percent.

John Shattuck, director of the American Civil Liberties Union's Washington office, raised questions about some planned Census Bureau procedures.

He said his organization wants all personally identifiable census records protected from disclosure at any time. Shattuck objected to an arrangement whereby census records are handed over to the National Archives after 72 years.

Such disclosure, he said, "would violate the agreement of confidentiality made when the census count is taken."

Bhutto Chance For Clemency Slight

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — President Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq said Thursday he sees "no justification" for granting clemency to save former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto from the gallows.

Zia, speaking at a news conference in Lahore, 180 miles southeast of here, likened the Bhutto case to former President Richard M. Nixon's being "taken to task" in the Watergate scandal.

Bhutto was sentenced to death after being convicted of conspiring to kill a political opponent in 1974, while Bhutto was in power. According to trial testimony, the targeted politician escaped but his father was slain. Four other men were convicted and sentenced to death in connection with the same alleged plot.

The death sentence was confirmed by the Supreme Court, the nation's highest, by a 4-3 majority Feb. 6. The same court is hearing yet another appeal from Bhutto's lawyers, this time on technical grounds.

If the court rules against him again, Bhutto's final resort would be clemency from the president.

"I will certainly exercise my prerogative as head of state in deciding Bhutto's case," Zia told reporters, "but I see no justification for undoing the findings of a criminal case decided by the superior courts."

Zia also deplored the activities of those he said want to politicize a criminal case. He gave no names, saying only, "It is a pure and simple criminal case, having nothing to do with politics at all."

Many world leaders, including President Carter, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and Pope John Paul II, have appealed to Zia to grant clemency to the former prime minister, who was ousted by the general in a military coup in 1977.

"Have not people been taken to task before?" Zia asked. "What were the implications of Nixon's departure from presidency? What had been the political implications of a hundred and one other cases before?"

Speaking of the international appeals for mercy, the general said almost 400 persons had been given death sentences and executed in the 1½ years since he took power.

"Weren't they human beings?... Why consider the case of one person on human considerations and why not of others?" he asked.

"My government or my collegues may not have given the country anything else, but one thing we are really proud of is that we have given the country the rule of law," he said. "We have confined ourselves within the bounds of law. This gave the judiciary its due place of honor in the country. The government wishes to give such an honored place to the judiciary that nobody can ever feel the necessity of altering its decisions."

Passengers Assaulted In Subways

NEW YORK (AP) — A man was fatally burned at the entrance of a subway station, a passenger was set afire aboard a train, and a third man was attacked on a platform in three separate incidents of violence Thursday in New York City's subway system.

One of the attacks occurred at the same subway station where a man was pushed to his death in front of a train last Sunday.

An indigent man known to police as Reilly "Shorty" Ford, about 45, was found engulfed in flames shortly after midnight on the stairs of a subway station in midtown Manhattan, police said.

He suffered burns over 85 percent of his body and died at a hospital about eight hours later. It was not known whether he was attacked or set himself on fire.

In Brooklyn, police said Michael Starkman, 51, a drifter, was asleep aboard a subway train about 3 a.m. when a youth set him afire.

They said the young assailant threw lighted matches at Starkman and then stuffed newspapers into the sleeping man's clothing and ignited them before leaving the train. Other passengers smothered the flames, and Starkman was not injured.

In the third violent incident, a man identified as Juan Vargas, 57, was struck on the back of the head, hit in the face and pushed toward the tracks at a subway station in Greenwich Village, officers said.

Robert Cromarte, 36, of Brooklyn, was arrested by Transit Authority police and charged with attempted murder. No motive for the attack was established.

Last Sunday at the same station, a 39-year-old native of Korea, Young Sou, was thrown to his death by a man he tried to stop from harassing a woman on the platform.

MORE EQUAL RIGHTS

BOSTON (AP) — School boards that deny sick-leave benefits to pregnant teachers are guilty of sex discrimination in employment, the state Supreme Judicial Court has ruled. "By withholding from women what is offered to men — the comprehensive protection from the inability to earn income during a period of disability — the school (board) quite clearly treats females less favorably than it does males," wrote Chief Justice Edward F. Hennessey in a decision released Wednesday involving the case of a Brockton teacher denied benefits upon her 1973 pregnancy.
