Cosmonauts In Orbit

MOSCOW (AP)-Two Soviet cosmonauts orbited the earth today preparing to board the Salyut 6 spaceship for new experiments and research.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the Soyuz 29 spacecraft was launched Thursday night carrying Col. Vladimir Kovalenok, 36, the pilot, and flight engineer Alexander Ivanchenkov, 38. It is Kovalenok's second space flight.

Hill Urges Probe

AUSTIN (AP)-Attorney General John Hill said today he has recommended a federal grand jury investigation of the death of Larry Ortega Lozano in the Ector County jail.

Italian Chief Quits

ROME (AP)-Italy's ruling Christian Democrats, still reeling from the murder of party chief Aldo Moro, have been hit by the resignation of Italy's president, Giovanni Leone, because of accusations of corruption. Urban violence continued, meanwhile.

Plane Threat

SAN ANTONIO (AP)-A Continental Airlines plane with 151 persons aboard en route from San Antonio to Los Angeles was forced to return Thursday night to this city's International Airport because of a telephoned bomb threat.

"Happiness in marriage is not something that just happens. A good marriage must be created. In the art of marriage, the little things are the big things.

"It is never being too old to hold hands.

"It is remembering to say 'I love you' at least once each day.

"It is never going to sleep angry.

"It is, at no time, taking the other for granted; the courtship shouldn't end with the honeymoon, it should continue through all the years.

"It is having a mutual sense of values and common objectives; it is standing together facing the world.

"It is forming a circle of life that gathers in the whole family.

"It is doing things for each other, not in the attitude of duty or sacrifice, but in the spirit of joy.

"It is speaking words of appreciation and demonstrating gratitude in thoughtful ways.

"It is not expecting the husband to wear a halo or the wife to have wings of an angel. It is not looking for perfection in each other. It is cultivating flexibility, patience and understanding and a sense of humor.

"It is giving each other an atmosphere in which each can grow.

"It is finding room for the things of the spirit. It is a common search for the good and the beautiful.

"It is not only marrying the right partner, but being the right partner."

Don Richards of the Azle News-Advertiser indulges in a bit of nostalgia, recalling the days before television when minor league baseball had a place in many West Texas cities and towns. Specifically, he tells of going to see the old Lubbock Hubbers of the West Texas New Mexico League, a Class C professional baseball circuit where players were happy to ply their trade for small salaries in hopes that they could move up the ladder to the major leagues.

Those were the days when the lower minor league franchises were operated on the proverbial shoestring, but it was the only professional baseball available to fans in the hinterlands. There were no such things as million-dollar contracts, even in the majors, and fans spurred their local players on by poking folding money through the screen when one of them got a timely hit, especially a home run. At one time there were as many as seven minor leagues operating in Texas, but there was no major league team closer than St. Louis.

Now, of course, you can see at least two major league games a week on television, provided, of course, the million-dollar-per-year stars are in the mood to play.—WACIL McNAIR

Tremor Measures 4.75-5.0...

Mother Nature Shakes Snyder

Mother nature gave Snyder area residents a startling shake to begin their day this June 16, 1978.

With a rumble, if not a roar, a bonafide earthquake caused considerable excitement but apparently little or no damage over a triangular area including Snyder, San Angelo, Abilene and Sweetwater.

The tremor hit the area at 6:47 a.m. according to instruments at the National Earthquake Information Service in Golden, Colo., which placed the epicenter of the quake 20 miles north of Snyder with a 4.75 to 5.0 reading on the Richter scale.

A measurement of 5.0 and above usually causes significant damage.

However, the only damage reported this morning was to some flourescent lights which were shaken out of their brackets at Texaco's Fuller Gasoline Plant 22 miles north of Snyder, which would put the plant near the epicenter of the quake.

C.L. Barnett, the plant superintendent, said several aftershocks had been felt at the Texaco plant.

"I think there were about three," he said. "The last at 9:27. None was as bad as the first one."

The quake set off a flood of telephone calls to police and to news media. Snyder police reported more than 20 calls in less than five minutes after the tremor.

Then, calls began to come in from points throughout the country checking on the quake. These came from news media, radio and television networks, etc., from New York City, Chicago, Tucson and the West Coast, as well as from other areas of Texas.

San Angelo police said they received about 30 telephone calls from worried residents who reported that the floor and walls of their homes shook and some furniture moved.

The municipal air terminal at San Angelo said it also felt the control tower shake.

The only damage immediately attributed to the quake in Snyder was a mirror which fell from the wall in the District Clerk's office in the courthouse. Polly Underwood, district clerk, said she assumed that the mirror was shaken loose by the earthquake.

Jim Dower, city engineer and radiological monitor for the local Civil Defense organization, said no damage to water lines and sewer lines had been reported.

"You would expect some damage from an earthquake this size in a populated area," said Waverly Person of the National Earthquake Information Service. However, he said the tremors in West Texas

(See Tremors, page 10)

Tremor Biggest Here Since '31

Earthquake experts say that tremors of the type felt this morning in the Snyder area are not uncommon in West Texas, but few of them are as noticeable as that of today.

Several old-timers recalled some significant tremors, and apparently the last one to "make the news" occurred Aug. 16, 1931.

The Scurry County Times, a weekly newspaper published in Snyder at that time reported in its issue of Thursday, Aug. 20, 1931, had a report on "an earthquake that stretched across Texas Sunday morning at about 5:45 a.m.

"Most folks around Snyder though the early birds were trying to kid them Sunday morning when they began talking earthquake," reported the Times. "It was not until radio reports flickered in that the doubters were convinced that an earthquake had really come.

"Reports from daily papers indicate that heaviest damage was at Valentine, where walls were cracked, roofs crushed in, plaster shaken down and every chimney in town dismantled. Dishes were broken, windows rattled and chandeliers swayed in San Antonio.

"Guests on upper floors of Abilene hotels report that light fixtures and pictures showed a swing of several inches. Other towns noting distinct shocks include Big Spring, Van Horn, El Paso, Pecos, Pyote, Odessa, Midland, Stanton, Post, Lubbock, Anson, Stamford, Winters, Coleman, Cisco and Colorado City."

Go-Ahead Given On Oil Exports

WASHINGTON (AP)-Petroleum refiners in California are being given the go-ahead to export some domestic crude oil to Japan and elsewhere because of a glut in heavy crude oil on the West Coast.

The move announced Thursday prompted criticism by some senators including Sen. John A. Durkin, D.N.H., who said he plans to introduce legislation prohibiting such exports.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger announced the change in government policy. It goes into effect automatically unless blocks by Congress.

Carter Off To Panama

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter left today for troubled Panama in a bid to translate the recently ratified Panama Canal treaties into improved relations with all of Latin America.

"We do not expect there will be difficulty," a U.S. official told reporters inquiring about possible violence following the deaths of at least two students in a bloody gunbattle Wednesday night half a block from the Panama City hotel where President and Mrs. Carter are staying.

The official, who asked not to be identified, said "normal security precautions" were being taken for the 22-hour presidential visit that ends Saturday afternoon.

The Pentagon plans no precautionary troop alerts in the Canal Zone, spokesman Thomas B. Ross said. But he added, "We are watching the situation closely." The United States maintains a 9,400-man military force in the Canal Zone.

The trip was scheduled so Carter and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos could sign and exchange diplomatic documents indicating final acceptance by their countries of the two treaties ending U.S. control of the American-built canal by the year 2000. The treaties also guarantee the waterway's neutrality.

'Stretch' Affects Water Revenues

Stretching of water supplies to insure unrestricted deliveries to municipal and domestic customers is beginning to be reflected in revenues and expenses of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Through May revenues aggregated $2,706,848, a decline of $26,644. City revenues were up by $203,715 in aggregating $1,867,686, but this gain was more than offset by a decline of $268,806 from oil companies and industries, which yielded $750,001 for the first five months. Actually, the decline in the latter division is worse than indicated because there is a month's lag in revenues shown on the monthly report.

At the same time, operating expenses were up $233,018 in reaching $1,218,728 for the first five months of the year, and $18,857 of this was in higher electric energy costs which reached $656,823 for the period. Energy costs are running about four times more than a decade ago for only about 30 per cent more water pumped.

Administrative expenses of $170,213 were down by $23,088, in part due to elimination of a bond handling charge under a refunding issue effected at the end of last year. Recreation expenses of $33,096 through May were virtually unchanged. The excess of revenues over expenses of $1,488,120 was $259,661 less than a year ago for application to debt service and special funds.

Revenues were based on billings for 6,815,436,000 gallons, or 143,00,000 gallons less than the first five months of 1977. During the first part of the year oil companies were held to half their normal deliveries of surface water; as of May 1, these deliveries were suspended entirely to save water for the cities.

Tax Cut Fever Hits Austin...

Special Session Hinted

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN (AP)-Proposition 13 fever broke out in the Capitol on Thursday with several reports that Gov. Dolph Briscoe might call a special legislative session on tax relief.

House Speaker Bill Clayton said Briscoe had talked of that possibility, but only casually.

"I talked to the governor the other day. He made some mention of the fact that a special session could take care of a tax rebate to the people and some kind of tax limitation," Clayton said.

Attorney General John Hill, the Democratic nominee for governor, and Clayton talked taxes for 30 minutes in Clayton's office Thursday.

When asked the subject of their discussion, Hill answered, "Proposition 13," referring to California's overwhelming vote for a cut in state and local taxes.

Briscoe's press secretary Bob Bain, discounted the special session rumors that saturated the capital city.

"His policy's the same as it always has been. He doesn't like special sessions," Bain said.

Clayton said he told Briscoe his staff was working on various tax relief proposals and one that would put a cap on state spending.

Briscoe "said if we did come up with a program of any kind that would look good, let him know about it," Clayton said.

"I would almost be willing to say that in all probability he would be wanting to look at more than a spending limitation - at getting money back to the people in some form or fashion," the speaker added.

He said he did not put much weight on the chat as indicating a special session was imminent.

"I just gave it a passing thought because nothing in the form of legislation was ready," he said.

Clayton's chief aide, Jack Gullahorn, said he has been at work on a proposal that would limit state spending to the present per capita level, plus an inflation factor.

Hill said he asked Clayton to expand the charge of the Legislative Council's property tax study committee "to include a study of the implications of Proposition 13 to Texas." Clayton said he was willing, but Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, council chairman, had to make the decision. Hobby was not in Austin.

The committee is headed by Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, a crusader for simplified administration of the property tax arising from Proposition 13.

Clayton said he would ask the House Ways and Means Committee to look at spending limits and various forms of tax relief, including repeal of the sales tax on utility bills and higher inheritance tax exemptions.

He said many representatives were upset that only one in seven school districts took advantage of increased state aid to cut property taxes. Lawmakers intended that result but did not require it.

"Members have expressed pretty strong sentiments aout it," he said, adding that the upshot could be mandatory property tax cuts the next time state school aid is increased.

Hill said he was "sure we will" provide some tax relief but "we want to provide it in a rational and responsible way."

"I think we realize a lot of groundwork has to be laid before any session, before we address the tax relief question. To me, the time to address those questions is when we are ready to do so in a responsible way," he said.

Hill has made some tax relief promises in his campaign for governor but said a special session enacting them before he gets the chance would not hurt him politically.

Ask Us

Q. - I notice a lot of towns are having ambulance service problems. How has Snyder escaped this problem?

A - The city and the county cooperate in subsidizing ambulance service here, with the city handling purchases of vehicles and both sharing in costs as well as a modest operation subsidy for the operator of the service who leases the equipment from the city. It has worked smoothly and both agencies as well as the public appear to be well pleased with it.

press and freedom

Press and government in the United States are no strangers to an adversary relationship.

Government, in all its levels and powers over the governed, is a subject of intense press attention - admittedly an attention that more often than not is critical and can, depending upon point of view, have undesired consequences.

What brings this up at this time is a squaring off that does not, for a change, have the press at odds with administrative or legislative interests but with the courts. Specifically, the highest court in the land.

In a five-three decision, the Supreme Court has sanctioned police searches of news organization premises without warning. A search warrant may be obtained on the "reasonable" belief that material relevant to a criminal investigation is on the premises.

Following several other court pronouncements which have been interpreted as potential limitations on press freedom, the decision is cause for alarm in editorial offices and columns.

The reasons are several, but foremost is a discerned threat to the relationship between newsmen and their sources of information - a point made by one of the dissenting justices, Potter Stewart, and echoed by media spokesmen.

John Hughes, editor of The Christian Science Monitor and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, observes that warrants "can be granted by a magistrate at midnight with no opportunity for a newspaper to present a countering point of view until after the police search has taken place. Obviously, this could have a chilling effect on the operations of the press, and the protection of the confidentiality of sources and notes."

Columnist James Reston of The New York Times suggests that had the ruling been in effect a few years back, publication of the Pentagon papers could have been prevented and the Watergate inquiry never completed.

There are most certainly those among us who would have preferred it that way. But power such as this can work both sides of a political street.

Had this administration been son inclined, it could have been employed to spike interest in the Korean influence-buying story, or conceivably the publicizing of Bert Lance's financial wonderland.

Justice Byron White, writing the majority opinion, dismissed fears of police abuse of search powers. "Sufficient protection" for news organizations is provided, he believes, by the requirements for obtaining a warrant plus "overall reasonableness."

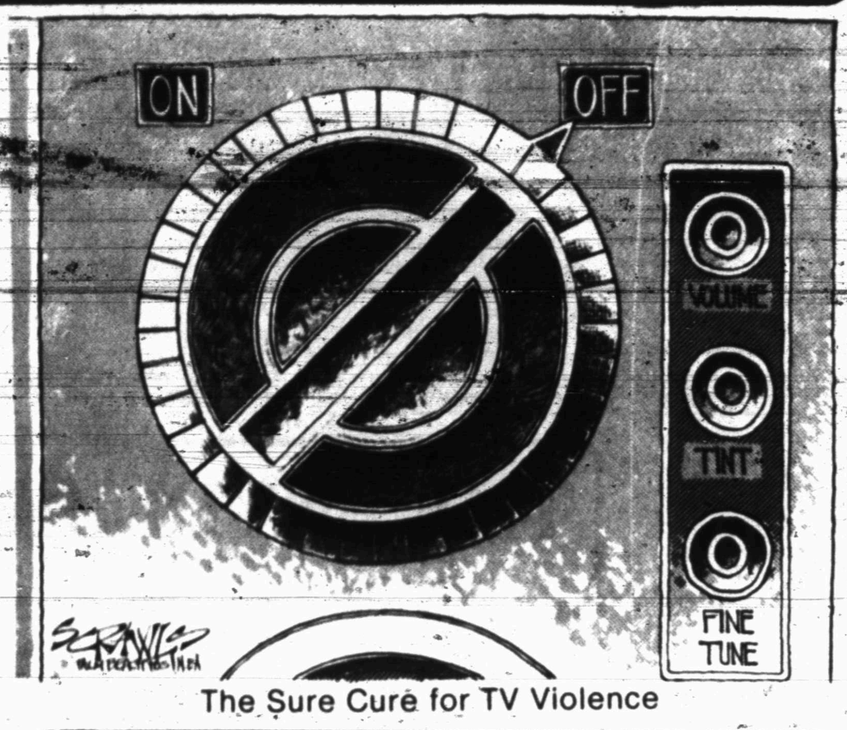
Maybe, but there are also among us some with reason to be skeptical of the reasonableness with which police powers have been exercised in other times and situations - say the pre-rights movement South, or certain political machine-run big cities. The decision adds a new twist to the definitions of the First (press freedom) and Fourth (search and seizure) amendments and as such will find future applications. Can we be so certain that situations of official misuse of power and distortion of justice are part of our past and not of our future - or present?

In all its imperfections and often irritating pretensions, it is the closest thing we have to a national ombudsman, a referee capable of blowing the whistle on other institutuions - and most especially government - gone out of bounds.

It can be argued that the intent of the First Amendment is to keep the press entirely separate from government and that to the extent that this separation is breached, the press becomes a tool of government.

The press may overstep or ignore or abuse its role, but there is no real alternative to it as the governed's watchdog on its governors.

Abridging in its freedom hurts the press, but the real loser is the public.



The Sure Cure for TV Violence

will agony spread?

The FBI has the responsibility for internal security in the United States. Yet there is inevitable overlap with the separate military intelligence agencies and with state and local police--overlap and some competition.

Inside each of these investigative and enforcement agencies there is a common fear these days that eventually the kind of terrorism which is intimidating Italy will spread here.

Italy invited the present reign of terror with some policies not unfamiliar in the United States.

Over the past 15 years, politicians, in the name of civil rights, have gradually curtailed police powers.

Then one day mostly-Roman Catholic Italy looked up and looked around and Communists were in control of trade unions; they had intimidated the government; infiltrated the newspapers and the entertainment media, monopolized universities and publishing houses.

Communists had capitalized on student unrest and worker unrest until they actually became frightened by their own success.

It is one thing to be on the "outside" attacking an incumbent government; that is comparatively easy.

But suddenly the Communists were in control of Italy. They had only to take over the political administration of the country--and they backed off.

They did not relish the idea of assuming control of a bankrupt country in decay. Who was going to feed the 56 million Italians suddenly cut off from Western credits?

It was only then that Italy's Communists modified their tactics and their rhetoric--accepted the principle of private property and market economy and law and order.

Well, that "softness" did not sit well at all with longtime, hard-line-Marxists, and those who refused to compromise became what is now the militant Red Brigades.

These are the Leninist-Stalinist veterans--the angry young men whose ambition is as ruthless as that of the Fascists who spawned and promoted Mussolini in the 1920s.

Some of their financing comes from Soviet dominated Czechoslovakia and from underground revolutionaries inside Italy.

Last month in Turin, Italy, police seized a 60-page pamphlet outlining a highly sophisticated strategy for armed takeover of Italy.

The ruthless rampage we are now witnessing--the assassination of Moro, shooting the legs out from under another government or industrial official almost every day--is following to the letter the published blueprint.

Hindsight is easy, but I said this before Moro was found murdered. When the terrorists demanded release of 13 of their own imprisoned members as the price for the life of Moro, the government of Italy should have responded with a counter-threat. You release Moro within three hours or we will publicly execute one Red Brigades prisoner in Rome and in public--and an additional one every hour that you delay.

But Italy's government was already too preconditioned to turning the other cheek.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - In domestic policy, as in foreign affairs, the Carter administration still seems unable to get its act together.

Even when the president clearly defines his objectives, as he did in making the control of inflation his number one domestic priority, the troops under his command keep marching to the beat of their own private drummers.

The latest example is the bitter and unseemly dispute between White House economic advisers and the Labor Department over new health and safety standards to combat brown lung disease in the textile industry.

It was, to put it mildly, a peculiar place to make a stand against potentially inflationary government regulations - as Carter himself ultimately realized when he sided with the Labor Department.

But even less controversial efforts to "jawbone" major unions and businesses into slowing the wage-price spiral have been muddled by conflicting signals from key administration officials.

A case in point is the rather confused approach towards labor-management negotiations under way this year in the railroad industry and the U.S. Postal Service.

Both Robert Strauss, Carter's top inflation adviser, and Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, have repeatedly emphasized the importance of these two contracts to the inflation fight, noting the settlements reached by railroad and postal unions could set the pattern for a far wider round of contracts coming up in other major industries next year.

Bosworth has publicly declared that unless the railroad and postal settlements are held below a 30 percent wage increase over three years, "we might as well forget about talking about decelerating inflation anytime in the near future."

Strauss, on the other hand, has carefully eschewed any discussion of numerical targets for acceptable settlements and has let it be known he doesn't think much of Bosworth's approach.

In this instance, Strauss is probably the more prudent man, both politically and practically. As soon as Bosworth tossed his 30 percent figure into the public domain, he guaranteed that any contract exceeding that target will be viewed as a defeat for the administration's anti-inflation effort.

Futhermore, Strauss realizes - as Bosworth apparently does not - that the bargaining in both the railroad industry and the Postal Service involves issues of productivity as well as money.

If the railroads, for instance, can achieve an agreement that permits them to reduce the size of operating crews on trains, they will realize such a substantial savings in overall labor costs that they may well be able to afford a more generous wage settlement for their remaining employees.

In the postal negotiations, as well, there are issues of automation which are at least as important to the overall cost of a settlement as the dollar figures of any wage increase.

In the railroad industry, especially, the administration needs to weigh the inflationary potential of a fat settlement against the economic impact of a strike - which would, by most estimates, be far more devastating and more quickly felt than the effects of last winter's coal strike.

It would appear, from the tugging and hauling within the administration, that Carter has a good deal more work to do internally before he can reasonably expect the rest of the nation to follow his lead in fighting inflation.

What has emerged from the White House to date is an uncertain trumpet call, at best.

john cunniff

trimming the fat

NEW YORK (AP) - A company on the skids often continues in that direction, its management either paralyzed into inactivity or panicked into reinforcing the very procedures that began the fall.

It is at that point that the company's financier, or perhaps its lawyers or accountants, calls on firms like Service Resources Corp., once described as a "have hatchet, will travel" operation.

Service Resources goes in and chops away, not it says at the sinew and muscle, but at the fat, which often means nonproductive personnel and hoary procedures. The outraged howls of management are ignored.

The company is trimmed down, refinanced, assigned management priorities and procedures. But, said Morton Sheer, president, "we stay around for a year to make sure they don't fall back into the old habits."

Sheer and his partner, Robert Rosen, claim they are unique in the New York area, in that they make a living by personally turning around poorly managed companies, sometimes resisted by management.

Some might call them ruthless, because they do things from which others shirk, such as firing unproductive workers. They see it differently; a profitless company, they say, endangers many more jobs.

"While it is very nice to be considerate of eight or nine unneeded supervisors," they told a concern losing at the rate of $200,000 a year, "the livelihood of a couple of hundred people is at stake."

The company, they said, "must take any steps required, no matter how untasteful they are, in order to become profitable." The elimination of those jobs alone, they said, would save $120,000.

Poorly conceived management procedures and absurb financing practices also are very common contributors to red ink, they say.

Poor production creeps in by doing things the same way for 40 years, they say. Some officers simply do not know what is going on, they find. Reduced to a cliche, said Sheer, "management doesn't manage."

And it resists change. "They know the problems. They know they haven't been producing," said Rosen. "They want to fight you."

The same stagnation impacts financing. "The businessman comes to think of his financier as the devil," said Rosen. "He's afraid to come to work. He's afraid of the problems."

Sheer and Rosen, both in their 40s, b th trained in economics and finance, both with long experience in industry, claim they've never lost a case or even had to close a company division.

But there's an explanation: They won't accept a client unless certain they can help and until they have a guarantee of cooperation, that is, that the boss will actually let them run the company.

Each contract to rebuild a company is for a minimum of one year, but a typical one runs 2 to 5 years, based on an annual retainer paid monthly, and an incentive based on increased profitability or cost reduction.

my turn

by john dunnam

Five years ago I bought a used car. I relied heavily on a friend's opinion when I bought it because I'm not what you call mechanically inclined. He agreed that for the money, it was a good buy. Lately it has begun giving me trouble. That just goes to show you can't trust anyone.

Usually when I need work done on my car I torment my little brother into doing it. He wants to be a mechanic anyway, so I figure the experience is good for him. He doesn't always share my opinion.

There was a time when twisting his arm would bring him over to my way of thinking. But in the last couple of years he has grown four inches taller than me and I find myself resorting more and more to diplomacy. I'm not saying I can't still whip him, it just takes longer than it used to.

But anyhow, the last time my car needed work he declined and I wasn't in a persuasive mood so I took it to a professional. All I wanted was a bolt replaced that had disappeared from the manifold.

I realized that having a garage do the work would cost me a little more than if I begged my brother into performing the task. But what the heck. I figured that I was not the first soul whose pride had cost him a buck.

I took my car to the shop and found I would have to leave it until they could get to it. The next day they called and told me that they couldn't replace the bolt because the manifold was warped. A new manifold was what I needed, the man said.

So after another day to find the part and still another day to install it, the garage finally released my car. I paid the bill, which lacked only a few cents being $100.

I then drove my car away and found that it idled at 30 miles an hour and had a water leak. Upon closer inspection I discovered that it still had that same bolt missing from the manifold.

I took it back to the garage and as I whiled away the hours in the waiting room my car was worked on some more.

When they released it again everything was back to normal, including the missing manifold bolt. The mechanic who did the actual work, a youth who looked almost as old as my 17 year old brother, assured me the other bolts would be enough. I wondered why no one had mentioned that to me three days and $100 ago.

"Besides", he said," all our work is guaranteed for 90 days."

I was afraid to ask what happened after that.

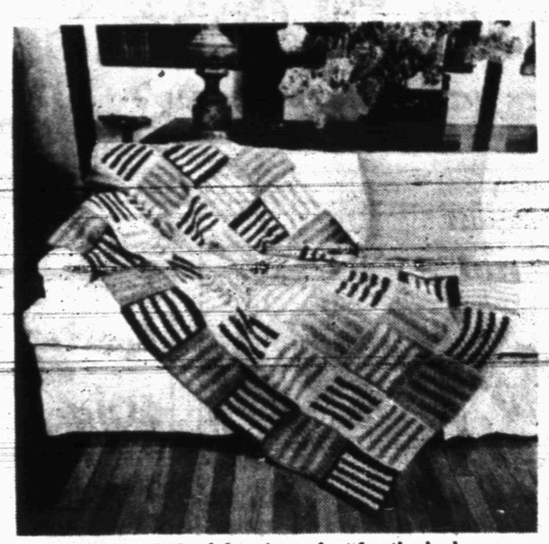
What's Summer For?

By Judy Love

Now that summer's finally here, winter is probably the farthest thing from your mind. But why not use those warm, lazy days to prepare for the cold months ahead? Put your leisure moments on the beach to double use and crochet this colorful patchwork afghan.

An afghan fills many needs, so you'll want to do several. If you shivered while watching your favorite football team last season, attend this year's games with an afghan worked in the team's colors. It's the perfect wrap for those chilly afternoons and also comes in handy for pre-game tailgate picnics. The blanket's patchwork pattern gives it a homey touch and makes it a pleasant addition to any family room or den. Worked in coordinating colors, the afghan can be a pretty bed throw and is so warm it begs to be snuggled under on frosty mornings. The most difficult part of working this afghan is choosing your colors. Make your choices from the wide range offered by Bear Brand's Machine Washable winsom wools. You'll need two ounce skeins, three each of six colors, and a "Boye" or "Diana" crochet hook in size J, or any size you require to obtain the proper gauge.

To obtain instructions for the versatile afghan, send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet number S500, and be sure to include your name, address and zip code.



THIS COLORFUL afghan is perfect for the bedroom or family room.

Dear Judy Love: What are the variations on a treble crochet? — T.R., San Diego, Ca.

Dear T.R.: There are two variations you might like to try, but first let's review the treble crochet for readers who may not know how it's worked. The treble crochet is accomplished in this way: Yarn over hook twice, insert the hook in stitch, yarn over and draw through stitch, (yarn over and draw through two loops on hook) three times.

The first variation, a double treble crochet, is worked in the same manner as the treble crochet except that yarn is wrapped three times over the hook instead of twice. Also, two loops are taken off four times instead of three times.

Another variation, the triple treble crochet, also is worked as the treble crochet. In this case, however, yarn is wrapped four times over the hook instead of twice, and two loops are taken off five times instead of three times. Happy Crocheting. Judy Love.

Two spades became the contract at both tables in an important match. At table one West cashed three top clubs and led a fourth. South ruffed with dummy's eight and when West failed to overruff, South just led a trump to his ace, dropped West's singleton king and made two overtricks.

At the other table Peter Weichsel cashed just two clubs and shifted to the deuce of hearts after Gene Neiger, his partner, had discarded the five of that suit.

Maybe declarer should have won in his hand, played his ace of spades and made 10 tricks. But declarer won in dummy and lost a trump finesse to Peter's king. Peter led a second heart. South won, played his ace of spades, got the bad news but still gave the hand a final try. He led a third club.

Peter won and led a diamond to Gene who led a third trump. South won in dummy and tried to cash a heart, but Gene ruffed. South overruffed, but the defense had five tricks in and were still sure of a club trick.

Ask the Experts

A Missouri reader wants to know if there is any foolproof way to avoid getting to a slam off the ace and king of trumps.

There are several methods designed to avoid this, but there is not one expert pair that hasn't landed in six off that ace and king of trumps.

SUMMERTIME DELIGHT - It's easy to make delicious desserts in a new countertop electric ice cream machine.

Flavor Ice Cream Your Own Way

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I'm thinking of buying one of the new electric ice-cream machines you can put on a counter and use whole ice cubes and regular salt in. I like the idea of choosing my own ingredients and experimenting with different flavors. Do you think such an appliance is worthwhile? - ADVENTUOUS.

DEAR ADVENTUROUS: We tried the most reasonably priced of these ice-cream machines and it worked well. We liked the fact that it is simple to assemble, its parts are easy to wash and dry and it's a convenient size.

Because you mentioned your interest in experimenting, we did just that. The recipe we tried is an unusual combination of coffee and almond flavors - with the almond taking over. Two of our tasters were British, another from New Zealand. They enjoyed the pronounced almond flavor because it reminded them of the thick marzipan frosting that covers sumptuous fruit cakes in their homelands. A couple of French tasters thought the ice cream deliciously creamy but the almond flavoring didn't go over with them - they said they would prefer all-coffee. Chacun a son gout! - C.B.

COFFEE ALMOND ICE CREAM

1 pint heavy cream
1 pint light cream
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons instant coffee
⅛ teaspoon salt

Assemble an electric countertop ice-cream machine according to the manufacturer's directions. Pour both kinds of cream and the extracts into the cream can. In a bowl stir together the sugar, instant coffee and salt; add to the cream mixture and stir until dissolved. Process according to manufacturer's directions. Makes about 2 quarts.

One of the world's first fishing experts, according to National Geographic, was a woman: Dame Juliana Berners, a 15th-century prioress of an English nunnery who described how to tie flies in her "Treatyse on Fysshynge with an Angle."

Chi-Sox Slap Texas Again; Sweep Two-Game Series

CHICAGO (AP) - Twenty days ago, the Chicago White Sox were buried in the American League West cellar with a 12-28 record, a distant 12½ games out of first place.

Today they are 29-30 and a mere 2½ games off the lead.

In that run of 17 victories in 19 games, Chicago has outscored its opponents 95-48, giving up an average of 2½ runs per game.

The yield was even less Thursday night when Steve Stone and Lerrin Lagrow shackled the punchless Texas Rangers on three hits for a 3-1 victory.

"The pitchers are pitching. We've had good defense. Everybody keeps asking me that (why the pitching is so good). I don't know," said Chicago Manager Bob Lemon.

Texas has managed just seven hits in its last three games, including one off Kansas City's Rich Gale on Tuesday, and three each off Stone and Schueler, who beat the Rangers Wednesday night 4-1.

"If our ball club the last three games had faced Bob Gibson, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale, I could see seven hits in three days," said Texas' Richie Zisk. "But not against those guys. They're good pitchers but not in the class of those other guys.

"All I can say is we stink."

Rookie Bobby Thompson got the first hit off Stone, a double with two outs in the sixth inning, and scored on Mike Hargrove's single. Stone had been untouchable until then, retiring the first 12 batters.

"I had very good control and I was throwing the ball exactly where I wanted to in every situation," said Stone, 6-4, who left the game after eight innings when Lemon told him his curve ball was starting to rise. Lagrow yielded only a walk to Zisk in the ninth.

"I didn't even think that much about a no-hitter. When you have a 1-0 ball game you have to get everybody out," Stone added.

Ron Blomberg produced that run with his second-inning clout over the right-field wall off loser Doc Medich, 1-3. Chicago went ahead 2-0 in the fourth when Chet Lemon singled, stole second, went to third on Blomberg's fly out and scored on Bill Nahorodny's single. Walks to Jim Breazeale and Lemon and a single by Blomberg finished the scoring in the eighth.

Giants 6, Phillies 1

Montejusco likewise credited his mates for making him successfu.

"I shouldn't have won five in a row," said Montefusco, 6-2. "The other guys carried me for a while, they were saving me. I was giving up five runs a game and still winning or getting no decision.

"Maybe I can carry them for awhile."

Larry Herndon's two-run triple in a four-run first inning and Jack Clark's two-run double in the second carried the Giants to the triumph and a 2½ game lead in the NL West over idle Cincinnati.

Angels 5, Orioles 1

Joe Rudi, who came into the game with a .185 batting average and 13 RBI, finally broke out of his slump, driving in two runs with a single in the first to help Frank Tanana to his 10th victory against three losses. The victory broke the Orioles' 15-game winning streak.

Red Sox 7, A's 3

Jim Rice slammed a two-run homer in the seventh that tied it up, then drove in the winning runs with a triple in the eighth, making right-hander Mike Torrez a 10-game winner. Torrez, who has lost twice, joined New York's Ron Guidry and Tanana as American League pitchers at that plateau despite allowing 12 hits.

LITTLE LEAGUE

LITTLE LEAGUE

Indians 10, Giants 1

Tracy Koch, pitcher, belted a double and a single and teammate Todd Pollard smacked a single as the Indians ripped the Giants Thursday evening.

Jon Zoda, Charles Bollinger and Marty Gutierrez hit singles for the Giants. Bollinger was the losing pitcher.

White Sox 31, Cubs 4

Norman Malone slammed two triples and a home run and Greg Mitchell powered two doubles and two singles as the White Sox clubbed the Cubs last night. Winning pitcher Kerry McCarter gave up only seven hits.

Others finding hits for the Sox were Mike Adams, a triple and a single; Jeff Minor, a double; McCarter and Bill Wilson, two singles each; and Jimmy Cole and Steve Parker, one single each.

Jimmy Cain slapped a double and a single for the Cubs and pitcher Kent Krop added two singles. Grabbing one base hit each were Lee Carroll, Tommy Holladay and Marty Allen.

FARM LEAGUE

Giants 19, Indians 6

Winning pitcher Mike McKinney drilled a double and two singles and allowed only one hit as the Giants whipped the Indians Thursday. Teammate Mark Doty slapped two singles and Kyle Layne, Brad Gambrell, Felix Gutierrez, Doug Vest, Cotton Merritt and Steven Mack knocked one apiece.

R.D. Stensell slapped the lone Indian hit. The losing club took nine walks however, which aided its score. Thomas Meetz was charged with the loss.

White Sox 25, Cubs 2

J. Casey belted a double and a single, Albert Rodriquez and Tony Thomason, pitcher, knocked two singles each and Hamp Long, David Cook, Ricky Gomez, David Millhollon and Casey Hale garnered a single apiece as the Sox destroyed the Cubs Thursday evening.

Todd Dunnam, Troy Burton, J. Bowden and Chad Sellers hit singles for the Cubs. B. Overhulser was the losing pitcher.

GIRL'S LEAGUES

Bears 20, Blue Angels 2

Brenda Zajicek gave up only two hits from the pitcher's mound, then led the Bear hitting with a triple, a double and a single as the Bears bounced the Blue Angels Friday night.

Teammate Christine Valdez knocked a triple and three singles; Kim Butler ripped off four singles and Becky Natividad added three as the Bears blasted the opponent. Kay McBroom, Dee Butler and Janie Murphy added a single each.

Kim Edminson, pitcher, slapped the only two singles for the Angels.

Gold Diggers 14, Black Panthers 1

Isabel Rios handed out only five hits as the Diggers buried the Panthers 14-1 last night. Teammate Billie Owens knocked a double and a single, Jill Kidd added a double and Belinda Fuentz slapped three singles. Sherry Rich knocked two singles and Rios added one.

For the Panthers, pitcher La Ronda Cain knocked a single, as did Terry Murphy, Norma Garcia, Martha McAnelly and Teresa Smith.

Grape Apes 16, Red Devils 12

The Grape Apes managed only three hits - but claimed 24 walks - to stroll to victory over the Devils yesterday. Teresa Beuerlein, Pam Gray and Tracey Hicks knocked singles for the winning team. Beuerlein was the winning pitcher.

Jamie Giddens slapped a double for the Panthers. Paula Caldwell and pitcher Karen Parmer hit two singles each. Dawn Farmer, Gloria Flack, Angela Smith and Lee Ann Webster added one single apiece.

TEENAGE LEAGUE

Rebels 8, Buffs 3

Dale Jenkins, winning pitcher, drilled two doubles and Hernandez added a pair of singles to push the Rebels over the Buffs yesterday. Jenkins allowed only four hits. Also base-hitting for the Rebels were Burrus, Seale and Tabor with a single each.

Single-hitting for the Buffs were Devin Donelson, J. Davis, D. Rios and Tommy Gressett.

Bullets 6, Dodgers 5

Sammy Willis zapped a double and a single and C. Martinez and Chad Peterson knocked a single each as the Bullets grazed the Dodgers last night 6-5. Willis, who relieved S. Warren after one inning, took the victory.

R. Young and N. Evans each powered a double for the Dodgers. S. Tate, pitcher, added a single.

Irwin Slips Under High Open Scores

DENVER (AP) - Ben Crenshaw's 8 on the par-4 16th hole was testimony to it. So were Tom Kite's 7 on the par-4 18th, and the pair of double-bogeys that stung defending champion Hubert Green.

"I thought the golf course certainly had the upper hand on most of the fellows today," said Jack Nicklaus, whose 2-over-par 73 put him 4 strokes back of first-round leader Hale Irwin at the 78th U.S. Open Championship.

Difficult pin placements, a swirling wind and Cherry Hills' deep rough caused scores to soar Thursday.

"If these conditions continue, a 290 might win," said Nicklaus, who earlier in the week had predicted the winner would need a four-round total of less than 280.

Only four players bettered par, led by Irwin's conservatively played 69. Andy North, J.C. Snead and 18-year-old amateur Bob Clampett carded 1-under 70s.

"This country club golf course that I heard someone call it earlier in the week has turned into something more than that," said Arnold Palmer, who was commissioned to toughen up the layout for this year's event. "This course is playing very difficult."

NBA Rewords 'Zone Defense'

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) - The National Basketball Association has grappled once again with the sticky problem of the "illegal" zone defense.

This time, they've come up with new working of the rule which prohibits zones and provides stricter panalties for violations.

Whether this will help on the basketball court remains to be seen.

"Wording is something you use to describe what is happening, and in basketball that can sometimes be very difficult," said Jack Ramsay, the erudite coach of the Portland Trail Blazers. "One man's zone, which is illegal, is another man's press, which is legal."

The NBA Board of Governors, at its annual summer meeting which ended Thursday, voted to accept the recommendation of the league's Competition and Rules Committee and "put some teeth into the zone rule," according to committee Chairman Joe Axelson, president of the Kansas City Kings.

The key change in the rule is a note which states, "When a ball has passed center court, no defensive player can guard an area of the court instead of guarding an opponent."

Most teams which use zones use them in the form of half-court presses, where two players double-team the man with the ball and the other three guard areas of the floor. If the above note is enforced, that would not be allowed.

In addition, the league retained the defensive three-second violation, which prohibits a defensive player from standing within the key for three seconds if he is "making no effort to play an opponent."

COACH BOB O'DAY

CHRIS BROWN

MILLER SCOTT

Foursome Sign...

O'Day Chosen Region Coach

Western Texas College's Bob O'Day, who guided the Westerners to sixth place in the final national standings this season, has been selected Region V Golf Coach of the Year for a second time.

O'Day received the honor during the 1975-76 season when the Westerners placed fifth in the nation at the NJCAA National Golf Tournament.

Added to the honor was a third consecutive title of Western Conference Coach of the Year.

WTC had the best team average of any junior college in the nation this year with a 290.2 (plus 5.2) average per 18 holes, and best individual average with a 72.5 (plus 1.3) per player. It was the seventh straight year for the Westerners to qualify an individual medalist or team to the National Tournament - a new NJCAA record in golf.

"We had an outstanding golf team this year," commented Coach O'Day. "It is a shame that we did not finish higher than sixth in the National Tournament. I think the rain for two days hurt us. We are just not used to playing in the rain like the junior colleges in the south.

"McLennan College (Waco) finished second in the nation and we beat them in the Regional Tournament and Fort Worth Intercollegiate Tournament. Also, we beat Broward (Fla.) who finished fifth, and Wharton (Tx.), which finished fourth in the National Tournament at the Southern Intercollegiate Tournament in Alabama. We just didn't play as well in the National Tournament as we did in other tournaments during the year. I wish the wind would have blown instead of the rain. We would have had a better chance," he reflected. "I'm still proud of our team and the players this year were from Texas, mainly West Texas."

Four WTC golfers have signed with universities according to Coach O'Day. They are Miller Scott, Ronald Koerth, Chris Brown and Terry Kendrick.

Scott, a native of Clyde, signed a golf scholarship to North Texas State University. Scott was the Western Conference medalist with a 70.2 average and was named All-Region V with an average of 70.3. His yearly average was 73.3; plus 2.

Brown, from Midland, has signed with Texas Tech University. A WTC co-captain, Brown was All-Conference two years in a row and placed third this season in the conference with a 71.4 average. He was All-Region V with a 70.3 average and had supported a yearly mark of 72.7; plus 6.

Koerth, from Ozona, has inked a scholarship to Eastern New Mexico University. Koerth was runner-up conference medalist with a 70.8 average. He was All-Region V with a 70.3 average and was selected to the Third Team NJCAA All-American. Koerth noted a yearly average of 73.1; plus 1.8.

Kendrick will continue his studies and athletics at Houston Baptist University. A WTC co-captain, Kendrick was named to the All-Conference team and placed sixth in the league with a 73.2 average. He was selected to the Fourth Team NJCAA All-America. Kendrick, a native of Perryton, had a yearly average of 74.9 (plus 3.5).

GUEST SPEAKER - The Rev. Jack Dean, a former pastor of Northside Baptist Church, will bring the morning message at the local church Sunday morning. Dean is now pastor of Grace Missionary Baptist Church in Bowie, Md. All former members, members and visitors have been invited to attend the service and hear Rev. Dean.

Avenue D Baptist VBS Next Week

Vacation Bible school will begin next week at Avenue D Baptist Church on 30th Street. Registration is set for 10 a.m. to 12 noon tomorrow at the church.

Classes will be from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. beginning Monday and continuing through Friday. Lunch will be served each day and refreshments, including snowcones, will be available during breaks.

Highlighting registration tomorrow will be a horned toad race. Prizes will go to the fastest, slowest and biggest toads. Those wishing to enter must bring their own horned toad. Refreshments will be served during registration.

"If you have children between the ages of two years and the sixth grade please bring them to vacation Bible school so that they may learn about the love of Jesus and have a good time with children their age," said Rev. Joe Stansell, pastor of Avenue D Baptist Church.

Those unable to register tomorrow will be welcome when classes begin Monday.

Dramatizes Reform...

Baptists Pay King Tribute

ATLANTA (AP)-Before an audience that had shunned civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. in his lifetime, his widow stood in the glow of lights, praise and applause from thousands of Southern Baptists.

It mirrored, in poignant personal terms, the swift march of history.

"I am grateful," Coretta Scott King told the hushed throng. She noted, without rancor, the immense change that distinguished the recent past from the present.

The difference also was graphically demonstrated in the declaration of Southern Baptists Thursday to "purge ourselves and soviety" of all remaining traces of racism.

But it was the appearance of Mrs. King that dramatized the reform accomplished - and paid tribute to her husband.

"It was a salute to the spirit of a man by those who would have never saluted him in his own lifetime," said James Young of Denver, editor of the Rocky Mountain Baptist.

Mrs. King mentioned the opposition of "most white churches" to her husband's movement for racial integration, some continuing into the mid-1960s. It was reflected in a 1965 Southern Baptist resolution condemning civil disobediance, a mark of King's non-violent tactics until he was murdered in 1968.

"But I am not here...to criticize anyone or any group for what did or did not happen years ago...," Mrs. King said. "Many of those battles have been fought and won."

Jobless Rate Dips In Texas

AUSTIN (AP)-Unemployment in Texas dropped to 3.9 percent in mid-April, the lowest mark in four years, the Texas Employment Commission reported Thursday.

"A sharp decline in total unemployment was realized as the number of Texans seeking work dropped from 280,100 to 299,800 at mid-April," said the TEC. "Persons unemployed by layoff were practically nonexistent during the month and this, coupled with a slowdown in the number of persons entering the job market, helped lower the total of unemployed for April."

The March unemployment rate was 4.7 percent, compared to a year ago rate of 4.9 percent.

The TEC said that statistics for the 25 major labor market areas showed that eight of them had unemployment rates of 3 per cent or less during April and 19 had unemployment rates below 6 percent.

Carter Speaks To Baptists

ATLANTA (AP)-President Carter stopped here today en route to Panama to speak "as a Southern Baptist to Southern Baptists" following the religious group's annual convention.

Officials said sales of $12.50 tickets to a breakfast and the Carter appearance had not reached expected levels and that the address had been opened to the public.

About 15,000 seats were available in Atlanta's Omni coliseum for the speech to the National Conference of Baptist Men. "We expect to fill it up," convention spokesman Roy Jennings said Thursday night.

The president's stop here precedes a visit to Panama, where Carter and Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos will sign the diplomatic documents indicating final acceptance by the two countries of the treaties ending U.S. control of the Panama Canal.

Carter, who transferred his membership from the Plains Baptist Church to a church in Washington after he took office last year, spoke to the Southern Baptist Convention by video tape last year when the denomination held its annual meeting in Kansas City.

In that speech, he appealed to the Baptists to support the newly formed Mission Service Corps, a project to place 5,000 volunteer missionaries at home and overseas by 1982 to supplement career missionaries.

In a move that raised questions in some Baptist circles about the separation of church and state, Carter later met with more than 200 wealthy Southern Baptists in Washington and challenged them to support the mission program. His personal appeal resulted in pledges of more than $75,000.

Cristina Ford Lives Like Nun

GROSS POINTE, Mich. (AP)-Cristina Ford says she wasn't a jet-setter until she married auto tycoon Henry Ford II, and now that they are divorcing, she says she "lives like a nun" at their Grosse Pointe estate.

Mrs. Ford, 48, told the Detroit News in an interview published Sunday that she reads, sculpts, and looks forward to the opera.

"I live like a nun here," she said. "For a year, I was so anguished that I shut myself off from the world...Now I walk with the dogs and contemplate nature...I walk and reflect upon all the beautiful days I had with my husband."

Contesting Money Motto...

Gospel Broadcaster Is Fighting O'Hair's Suit

AUSTIN (AP) - A Florida religious broadcaster has intervened in atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair's appeal of her suit contesting the motto "In God We Trust" on American currency.

"My purpose in joining in this case is to assure that the opposition to her motion is fairly and completely represented," said J.G. Whitfield at a Thursday news conference.

Mrs. O'Hair filed the federal suit Sept. 1, 1977, against the U.S. Treasury Department, alleging the motto displays a statement "antithetical" to atheists' "most deeply held convictions" in violation of the First Amendment.

U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts of Austin dismissed the suit April 17. He noted the U.S. Supreme Court and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals have ruled the motto does not infringe on First Amendment rights.

Whitfield, a long-time gospel singer and religious broadcaster from Pensacola, Fla., came to Austin to file a motion to intervene in Mrs. O'Hair's appeal of the dismissal to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. The appeals court granted his motion to intervene June 5.

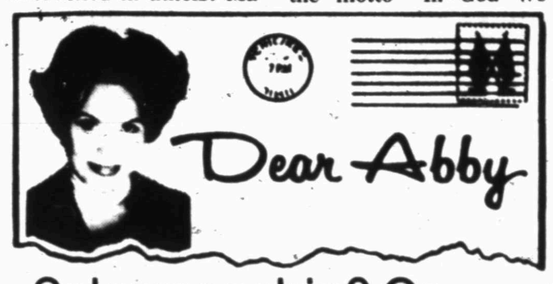
"If we got rid of the motto just because it has the word 'God' on it that would actually lead toward establishing a religion of 'no God,'" Whitfield said.

The motto has "been in our history so long that it is really ceremonial and patriotic," the gospel singer said. "It has no religious significance."

It would cost taxpayers into the thousands of dollars to erase currency dies and remove the slogan from money, he asserted.

"I have established an organization called the Religious Freedom Crusade, which will be used to fight Madalyn Murray O'Hair and this 'In God We Trust' suit," he said.

Whitfield said 100,000 persons have signed petitions backing his action.



Salesmanship? Or Junk Phone Calls?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I make an honest living soliciting new customers for a cleaning firm by telephoning people and advising them of our special introductory offers. But, Abby, I couldn't even repeat some of the names I've been called! Not only that, but I've had people hang up on me, telling me where to go and what I can do with my offer! You wouldn't believe some of the threats and curses I've been subjected to on this job!

It wouldn't take any longer to say, "Thank you very much, but I am not interested."

Please print this to remind people that telephone solicitors are human, too, and deserve a little courtesy and consideration. Thank you.

ABUSED BY THE PUBLIC

DEAR ABUSED: I do not condone rudeness for any reason, but judging from my mail, many more people resent telephone solicitation than appreciate it.

A businessman in Clackamas, Ore., wrote to the Public Utilities Commissioner in Salem, Ore., as follows:

"DEAR SIR:

I, as a very busy business executive, am writing to protest being called from my work to take unsolicited sales calls, and it is especially galling to find myself talking to a computer. We pay high telephone rates so we can use the phone in our business and have it available for legitimate calls. We very strongly resent the invasion of our premises via equipment we pay for by these sales, and especially computer calls. If I want to buy insurance and seek investment possibilities, I know how to contact the people I need.

While I would not want to restrict legitimate suppliers from being able to solicit our business via telephone, there must be some way to prohibit the invasion of our privacy by unwanted junk calls.

I am making it a practice not to buy anything from this type of call. Not only do these calls take my time and disturb my routine, but they take the secretary's time and tie up the line so that legitimate calls cannot get through.

Anything you can do to work toward the elimination of this annoyance will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
GORDON S. GLEASON"

For more on the subject of telephone solicitation, read on:

DEAR ABBY: You told readers who resent being called on the telephone by someone soliciting business to say, "Because you've inconvenienced me, I'll not buy your product or service."

I, too, am a salesman (insurance) who solicits by phone for many reasons. Some salesmen are too lazy to do otherwise; however, there are also valid reasons for telephone solicitation. First, our government has asked that we conserve gasoline, and secondly, I think a phone call is less of an intrusion than ringing someone's doorbell.

Abby, people who don't want to be bothered by soliciting salesmen should request an unlisted telephone number.

INSURANCE SALESMAN

DEAR SALESMAN: It costs money to have an unlisted telephone number. Furthermore, most people have a telephone for their own convenience—not a salesman's. And why must a private citizen be forced to choose between being bothered by a salesman who rings his doorbell OR one who calls him on the phone?

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Try low-fat varieties

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I think I read in one of your columns that you stated most cholesterol problems come from eating beef and drinking cow's milk. I hope I'm right. Yesterday we had a dinner of venison. There was no trace of any fat at all in the meat. Would it be better if we used this meat more?

Recently we obtained a roast of grass-fed beef and that meat seemed to have less fat than regular meats. I'm inclined to think that beef fattened in pens like they do to make them get fatter is not good for the health of those who eat it. I would appreciate your answers on the subject.

DEAR READER — I'm afraid the cholesterol problem is a bit more complex than you have represented my column as indicating. Lean beef contains only about 70 mgs per three-and-one-half ounces of raw lean separable meat. Skim milk which has almost all the fat removed is quite low in cholesterol. The trick then is not to eliminate beef or to eliminate milk but use the low-fat products from these.

That's what you're doing when you use grass-fed beef and the same applies to venison. I would agree and have stated that individuals who eat such lean meats are less prone to obesity and the fatty-cholesterol problems.

Not too many decades ago, before the heart and stroke diseases became epidemic in our society, most of the beef that people ate was grass-fed beef. It's usually tougher and has a slightly different flavor which turns some people off. However, it can be boiled or roasted to tenderness if a person wishes to do so.

You can accomplish part of the same thing at the grocery store by buying the leanest cuts and trimming away all of the extra fat before the meat is cooked and then preparing it without adding fats.

To give you more information about this I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-12, Red Meats: Good and Bad. It will give you some good guidelines on how to choose meats and still have a relatively low-fat diet of the type which we believe helps prevent fatty-cholesterol blockage of arteries. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am really frightened and I hope you can help me. I am almost 15 years old. Almost all of my friends have started menstruation. I haven't. I'm worried that there's really something wrong with me. I'm pretty old not to have started by now. What should I do or is it all right to start at this age? Could you tell me what is the normal age for girls to start menstruating? I know this is a delicate subject but it is one that needs some attention. Please help us.

DEAR READER — Don't worry about it. You'll probably have to cope with this regular event soon enough. The usual onset of menstruation is between the ages of 10 and 16, although normal girls have been known to be delayed as late as 19 and 20 years of age.

If you have no other apparent medical problems, I should think you wouldn't need to concern yourself about checking into this until you are at least 16. Even then it may still be all right in your case and you may merely be one of the girls who start later. Everybody doesn't do everything at the same time and maybe that's just as well.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO CHANGE RATES

The LONE WOLF ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE, INC. has filed an application with the Texas Public Utilities Commission, Austin, Travis County, Texas, for a rate increase applicable to each class of service available to its consumers. This rate increase is proposed to become effective on the first day of July, 1978 or the date of approval by the Texas Public Utilities Commission, whichever is later.

The proposed increase in gross revenue that the Cooperative expects the rate to produce is 13.7 percent.

While gas and oil represent only 6% of our nation's fossil fuel reserves, they are called upon for 75% of our energy requirements. Competition for this diminishing supply has driven prices higher. Alternate generating fuels can help solve this problem. Your member-owned electric cooperative is cooperating with industry and government leaders to hasten that solution. Meanwhile, the cooperative is exerting its best efforts to insure a dependable supply of power at a value price. It's a 40-year tradition.

NOTICE OF IMPOUNDMENT OF ESTRAY

On the 19th day of May, 1978, I impounded the following estray:
Kind of Animal Horse
Breed Welsh
Color Paint-Brn-White
Sex Female
Age Approx 5yrs
Size Approx 12 hands
Brand, Mark, Identifying Characteristics Wearing Blue Nylon Halter when found. and, on the 19th day of May, 1978, I filed a Notice of Estray in the Estray Book of———— County, Texas. I have made a diligent search of the register of recorded brands in Scurry County, Texas, for the owner of said estray, but the search did not reveal the owner.
Notice is hereby given that, if the ownership of said estray is not determined by the 30th day of June, 1978, said estray will be sold at public auction at Colorado City Livestock Auction on Saturday July 1, 1978.
Witness my hand this 19 day of May 1978.

Ford Motor Co. Marks 75th Year

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP)-Ford Motor Co. reached into history today, marking its 75th anniversary with the assembly of a 1903 Model A Ford.

Six vintage car experts, clad in turn-of-the century auto workers' garb, were to hand-assemble an original Model A.

The assembly line was in Greenfield Village, a collection of historic buildings portraying more than three centuries of American life. The line was a scaled-down version of the company's first plant, on Mack Avenue in Detroit.

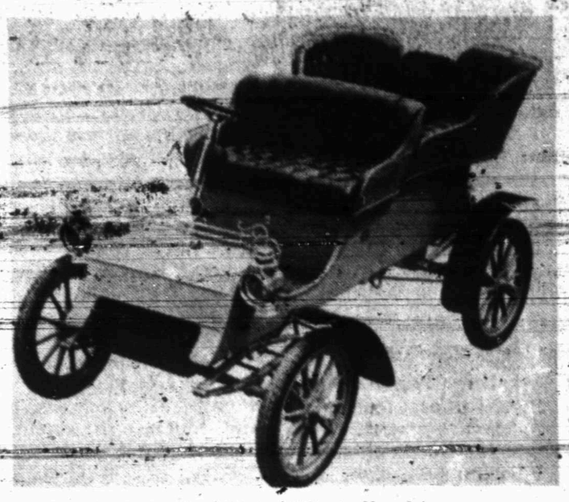
After the Model A was put together, William Clay Ford, grandson of company founder and auto pioneer Henry Ford, and brother or current company chairman Henry Ford II, planned to drive it in a parade through the village.

The parade route included Henry Ford's birthplace, a one-room school he attended and other memorabilia from the era that spawned the automobile.

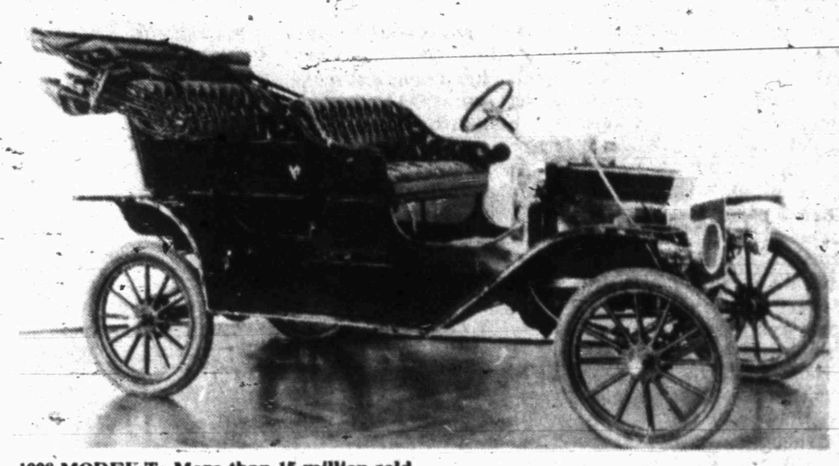
William Clay Ford is chairman of Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum in the village, and is the company vice president expected to take over the Ford chairmanship on Henry Ford II's retirement.

The line-up for the 75-car parade included one vehicle from each of the company's production years.

Assembling the Model A was expected to take one hour. The workers went through a dry run earlier in the week, and were confident the car would start on the first crank.

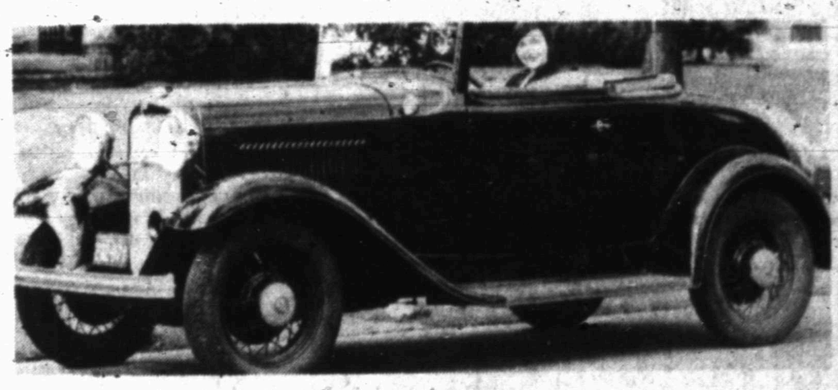


1903 MODEL A: Ford Motors' first offspring.

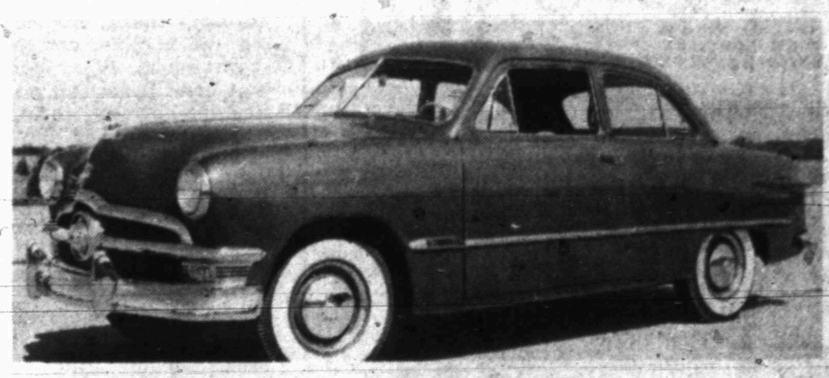


1908 MODEL T: More than 15 million sold.

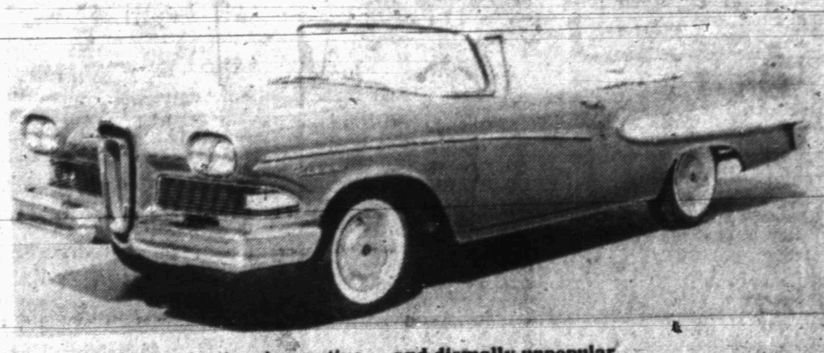
1929 'WOODY': America's first mass-produced station wagon.



1932 V-8 ROADSTER: Swift and sporty at $460 to $650.



1949 CUSTOM COUPE: Marked Ford's return to civilian life.



1958 EDSEL: Distinctive, innovative — and dismally unpopular.

MEGASTAR II CONCEPT CAR: The Ford of the future?

Krueger To Host Picnic On July 4

NEW BRAUNFELS--Congressman Bob Krueger will host a statewide family picnic and rally July 4 at his home here to kick-off his fall campaign for the U.S. Senate seat held by John Tower.

Krueger, who won the Democratic nomination for the Senate May 6, will make a brief speech at the event, which is expected to attract 7,000 of his friends and supporters from throughout the state.

"Independence Day has always been a day of celebration, and I am hopeful to make this July 4 a truly special one by being with all those people from throughout Texas who made our victory May 6 possible," Krueger said. "I invite everyone to attend."

The "Old-Fashioned Picnic and Rally" will be held from 2-6 p.m. in the field opposite the Krueger home. Concessions and games will be available, as will be free watermelon and tamales. Beer and soft drinks will sell for a nickel apiece.

Five Draw Sentences In County Court

Five men received sentences Thursday in county court.

A guilty plea to a charge of possession of alcoholic beverages for sale in a dry area netted Sammie Davis a $1,000 fine.

The charge stems from a reported April 5 liquor buy made by an undercover agent. The liquor cases against two other men arrested at the same time as Davis, and another misdemeanor liquor charge against Davis, were processed through county court last month.

Three of the cases yesterday dealt with charges of driving while intoxicated. They involved Casey Otis Matlock, F.M. Reep, and Julian Trevino.

Each man received a $100 fine and a 30-day jail term, probated for six months. All pleaded guilty.

Pleading guilty to a possession of marijuana charge yesterday was Rusty Dwain Byrd. He drew a $200 fine and a 30-day jail term.

2-Year Probated Term Assessed

A guilty plea Thursday in 132nd District Court netted Apolonio C. Garza a two-year probated jail term.

The guilty plea was entered to a felony count of driving while intoxicated.

Garza had been arrested on the charge Feb. 20.

Study May Spur New Filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) - A government study hinting that the compromise natural gas deregulation plan could cost residential users far more than expected is generating threats of a new Senate filibuster against President Carter's energy program.

As the report began circulating Thursday on Capitol Hill three deregulation foes - Sens. James Abourezk, D-S.D., Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, and Wendell Anderson, D-Minn. - announced plans for the talkathon.

The Department of Energy study suggests the painstakingly crafted congressional compromise might cost residential users more by 1985 than the Senate-passed and industry-backed bill which called for quicker deregulation.

The administration had fought a strenuous battle against the Senate deregulation bill. The study is the first to suggest the Senate bill might have cost less than the House-Senate compromise accepted by Carter.

The compromise, recently approved by a conference committee after 6½ months, would lift federal price controls in January 1985, permitting a steady increase in the regulated price between now and then.

The report was called misleading by several congressional energy committee aides and by an energy department spokesman.

Jim Bishop, the department spokesman, said one problem is the study "doesn't show what would happen to prices between now and the year 1985."

Other parts of the report give conflicting and sometimes contradictory estimates of what the compromise would cost residential users by 1985, he said, claiming the Senate bill still is "much more expensive." But the study says:

"Although the compromise proposal results in the smallest increase in industrial prices, residential prices are projected to increase while the House and Senate bills show a decrease."

The Energy Department study said that the price of natural gas destined for $3.28 per 1,000 cubic feet under the compromise - compared to $2.92 under the Senate bill and $2.89 under the House-passed administration proposal. It projected a price of $3.09 per thousand under continued regulation.

Amy Carter To Attend Public School

WASHINGTON (AP) - Amy Carter won't be returning to Washington's Stevens Elementary School in the fall.

Mary Finch Hoyt, press secretary to Amy's mother, first lady Rosalynn Carter, said Thursday that Amy would enter the sixth grade at Hardy Middle School, a public school near the fashionable George-town section.

Classes end Friday at Stevens, a public school that includes grades one through six and is several blocks from the White House.

Guilty Plea Is Heard Here

A guilty plea Thursday in county court netted a Sweetwater man a $200 fine and a 30-day jail term, probated for 180 days.

The plea was entered by Roy Darrell Sumruld to a misdemeanor charge of possession of marijuana.

Bodies Of Three Recovered

ANGLETON (AP) - The bodies of three youngsters who disappeared in the hazardous currents between the western tip of Galveston Island and the mainland had been recovered today and the search continued for two others.

Sheriff's deputies and members of the Gulf Coast Emergency Rescue Squad searched through the night after the five disappeared while wading in the surf late Thursday afternoon after a pickup truck used on an all day outing became stuck in the sand beneath the San Luis Pass bridge on the Brazoria County side.

The bodies of Carol Masters, 15, of Sugar Land, Linda Zahn, 13, of Houston, and James Bowman, 10, of Houston were recovered about 100 yards from the shoreline.

Still missing were Carol's brother Leroy, 7, and sister, Lisa, 10.

Sheriff's Capt. Gene Smith said young Bowman's sister, Kelly, 16, was sitting in the stuck vehicle and saw the other youngsters in trouble.

"She ran out to the water to help but the current was just too strong," Smith said.

C-City Sets AJRA Show For July 5-8

COLORADO CITY - The American Junior Rodeo Association Rodeo scheduled here for July 5-8 is headed for success, according to Larry Winders, Chamber of Commerce manager. "At this point everything looks great," he said.

The rodeo grounds west of town are being repaired by Winders and any volunteers he can muster. He said all help is appreciated in the effort to make rodeoings return to this old cattle town a smash.

Livestock, pick up men and clowns are being supplied by Kelly Brothers of Stanton who are directing the rodeo. Entry fees are set according to AJRA rules, said Winders.

Boys and girls up to 19 years of age may enter. The girls events are barrel racing, break-away roping and poles. There are three age groups for girls. Twelve and under, 13-15 and 16-19.

Boys 16-19 may enter bareback riding, bull riding, ribbon roping and tie down roping. Boys 13-15 may enter junior bull riding, break-away roping and tie down roping. Boys 12 and under will be competing each other in the barrel race, break-away roping and steer riding events.

Entries should be mailed to Mr. and Mrs. L.L. McFadden; Box 481; Rankin, Texas 79778.

For more information contact the chamber of commerce at 1-728-3403.

Jail Term, Fine Are Assessed

A four-month jail term and a $500 fine were assessed Larry Dan Beard Thursday in 132nd District Court following his guilty plea to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Beard had been arrested Dec. 11.

Silverman Won't Shuffle Network

NEW YORK (AP) - Fred Silverman, whose arrival at NBC as its new president was preceded by speculation that he would shuffle the network's management, apparently has no shake up in mind - at least for now.

Silverman said Monday that the network's drive for higher television ratings "is not going to be a one-man show."

"There's no doubt in my mind that this is the team that will be taking NBC to the preeminent position in broadcasting," Silverman told affiliate stations in a closed-circuit hookup after weekend meetings with network executives.

"I must stress the word team," said Silverman, 40, whose programming strategy during his two years at ABC helped boost that network to its No. 1 position in the ratings.

Silverman's remarks on what's ahead for NBC were his first since taking his new post Friday. NBC has trailed ABC and CBS for most of the past season.

Alternatives On Dam Project Are Pondered

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)-Officials are pondering what to do with a nearly completed $119 million dam the Supreme Court says cannot be finished because it would destroy the home of a three-inch fish.

"I guess if all else fails," quipped Gov. Ray Blanton, "I'll have our Department of Tourism look into putting together a campaign of private solicitations to buy the dam for a tourist attraction. We'll promote it as the world's largest monument to the world's smallest fish."

In a 6-3 decision, the court ruled Thursday that the Endangered Species Act prohibits the Tennessee Valley Authority from closing the gates of its Tellico Dam 25 miles southwest of Knoxville and turning the river habitat of the snail darter into a reservoir.

"There are alternatives other than scrapping the project, alternatives which may even produce better benefits for the people than the original project," TVA Chairman S. David Freeman said.

The alternatives mentioned thus far by TVA and other government officials include allowing the structure to stand as a "dry dam," knocking a hole in it or tearing it down altogether.

These would abandon the 16,500-acre lake the dam would have created and the envisioned shoreline industrial parks for easing high unemployment in the rural counties surrounding the project.

In an opinion dissenting from the court's majority, Justice Lewis Powell said he has little doubt that Congress will amend the Endangered Species Act.

"There will be little sentiment to leave this dam standing before an empty reservoir, serving no purpose other than a conversation piece for incredulous tourists," Powell said.

Chief Justice Warren Burger wrote, however, in the majority opinion that Congress' intent "was to halt and reverse the trend toward species extinction, whatever the costs."

A bill to establish a seven-member, Cabinet-level panel to review federal projects that would harm or destroy endangered species was reported out of committee and sent to the Senate floor last month.

The panel would have the authority to exempt such projects from the 1973 Endangered Species Act if it determined they were more beneficial than preserving the species involved.

The Interior Department says 11 projects were either under construction or being planned where there is such a potential conflict.

"There's no need for an amendment," said Zygmund Plater, a Wayne State University law professor who argued the court case against TCA.

"There's no need for a solution to a problem that doesn't exist."

Plater has made the 3-year-old David vs. Goliath court battle between the darter's supporters and the giant government utility a cause celebre for conservationists in their fight against industrial development.

The 17-mile stretch of the Little Tennessee River is the darter's only known natural habitat and also is one of the region's few remaining unspoiled trout streams.

are not uncommon and often go unnoticed or unreported.

In Houston, Dr. Jean-Claude de Bremaecker at Rice University said instruments there detected the quake despite the influence of traffic which often masks small quakes. He estimated the quake somewhat less servere than the National Earthquake Information Center, placing it at about 3.0 to 3.5 on the Richter scale. Dr. de Bremaecker said he would be greatly surprised if the final estimate exceeds 3.5.

Police in Abilene reported that they received a number of telephone calls concerning the quake and it was reported that slight tremors were felt as far away as Brownwood.

News media organizations from metropolitan areas who called expressed surprise that there had been no damage after hearing the reports from the scientific agencies.

In and around Snyder, residents reported that furniture moved around and that dwellings and other buildings shook, but that was about the extent of it.

King, Queen On Honeymoon

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)- King Hussein and Queen Noor were honeymooning at the Gulf of Aqaba today after the 26-year-old bride became the second American ever to be proclaimed a queen.

The 42-year-old monarch took Lisa Halaby as his fourth wife Thursday evening in a brief Islamic ceremony at his mother's Zahran Palace. Informed sources put the dowry as high as $3.3 million.

It is unlikely she will ever reign, unless the line of succession is revised. Hussein's 31 year-old brother Hassan is first in line, and the king's 2-year-old son Prince Aly is second.

A junior high school was built underground at Lake Worth, Texas, to get away from the roar of jets from a nearby air base.
