House 'explodes' in tornado; Three people killed

OLNEY, Texas (AP) — A small frame house "exploded" when it took a direct hit from a tornado, and all three people who lived there were killed, a sheriff's officer said.

"This is the worst I've ever seen," Sgt. Joe Hall of the Young County sheriff's department said Sunday night.

"I think this one here just exploded. It just whipped the whole place apart. It wasn't recognizable as a house," Hall said.

The bodies of Arch Curtis, 88; and his wife, Beulah, 85, were found in a field 200 to 300 yards from the house, authorities said. The body of their son, Malcolm Curtis, 64, was found near the house beside a pickup truck.

Trees were split apart, power lines ripped down and barns destroyed as several tornadoes bounced around the ares, officials said.

The Curtis family lived at the end of a winding, muddy dirt road about a quarter-mile off Texas Highway 79. The property is right on the Throckmorton-Young County line, about halfway between Olney and Throckmorton, which are 30 miles apart, and about 60 miles southwest of Wichita Falls.

The tornado covered an area about 50 to 100 yards wide, Hall said. Spotters said the tornado traveled about four to five miles, touching down several times.

Several other homes in the area had flooded yards.

The twister that hit the house about 6:20 p.m. Sunday was one of "at least seven" tornadoes that were reported to have touched down in Throckmorton and Young counties late Sunday afternoon, civil defense officials in Throckmorton said.

A house belonging to George H. Roach about six miles due north of the Curtis residence was struck from another tornado from the same storm, officials said.

Roach, 43, and his daughter, Robin, 15, were injured when their pickup truck was hit as they tried to drive home during the storm. Roach was thrown 100 feet from the truck, and the truck was thrown 100 yards, he told authorities.

The Roach residence was destroyed, but Roach's wife took shelter in a hallway and escaped injury. Roach was treated at an Olney hospital for multiple fractures and lacerations and transferred to a Wichita Falls hospital, where he was in the intensive care unit. Robin Roach was released from the Olney hospital after treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

Earlier, about 4 p.m., the National Weather Service had reported a tornado five miles west of Throckmorton, moving north-northeast at 15 miles an hour.

A weather service observer said that although the tornado was one mile wide and stayed on the ground for several minutes, it was in a sparsely inhabited ranching area and caused no injuries.

An unoccupied trailer house was destroyed, as were numerous oil tanks, said weather service spokesman Les Hiesler. Extensive crop damage is expected, he added.

Golfball-size hail was reported in Throckmorton, Anson and Knox City, marble-size hail at Lake Stamford, and pea-size hail at Haskell.

In Archer City, about 15 miles south of Wichita Falls, sirens sounded moments before 7 p.m. and again at 7:35 p.m. as "heavy, heavy rain and marble-size hail" pounded the area and fire department spotters reported seeing a funnel cloud near the city.

Another funnel cloud was reported near the ground in Iowa Park, a few miles west of Wichita Falls. Flooding was reported along county roads in several counties south of Wichita Falls.

Chinese oil men tour Permian Basin

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

It was a day of "questions, questions, questions" from nine Chinese oil industry personnel as they toured the Petroleum Museum and Permian Basin Sunday in one of the first steps toward establishing a business and cultural relationship with Midland.

The nine Chinese, including the vice chairman of the petroleum industry in that country, were hosted by an independent oil operator, George Staley, and his wife, Sandra. Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Dick Dunbar.

China opened its doors in the 1970s and began changing from a strict Communist philosophy to one that leans more toward free enterprise, according to Mary Bray Neelley of Neelley China Express Co. in Houston. A former Midlander, she originated the idea to divert the Chinese from their Houston trip to give them a first-hand look at the independents and the work they've done for the oil industry.

SEVERAL YEARS ago, China opened up its offshore exploration to the western world. According to Mrs. Neelley, 17 major oil companies from the United States are operating in the South China Sea. But recently, the Chinese have decided to develop their inland drilling. "It was the independents who played a major role in the development of the oil industry in America," she said.

Prisoners to be transported to other jails to meet maximum standard

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

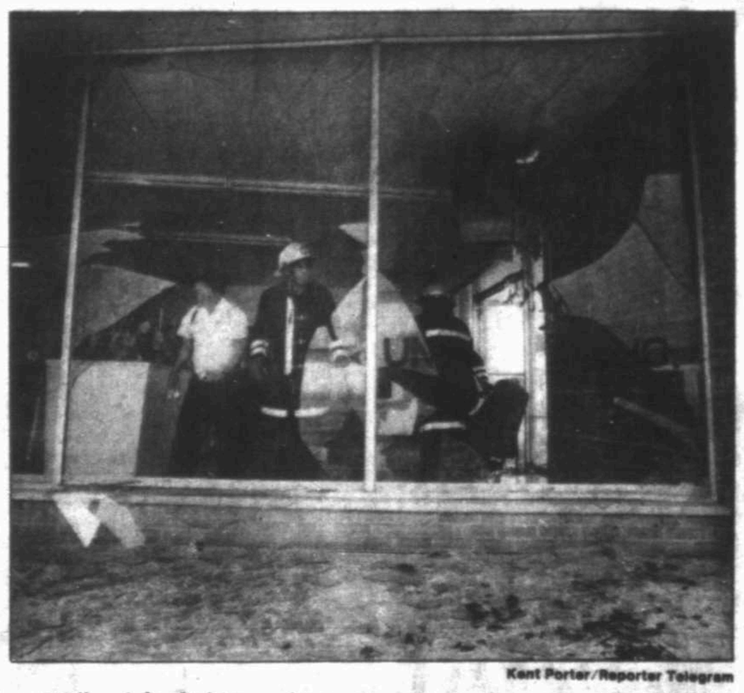

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter on Tuesday will begin transporting prisoners to other jails to keep the county jail inmate population down to a maximum of 85.

Painter said today the Texas Commission on Jail Standards' remedial order limiting inmate population to 85 takes effect Tuesday. "If they (other jails) can handle some prisoners, we're going to ship them (prisoners) to them," he told the Midland County Commissioners meeting today. "Of course, "their jail facilities come first."

The jail population today reached 96, which is 11 beyond the legal limit. Painter said he has to move the prisoners because "I've got no other choice." Last week, the jail population reached 104.

The Commissiomners' Court today approved a resolution which would authorize County Judge Bill Ahders to go under contract with other counties to house Midland County prisoners. Commissioners are budgeting up to $45 per prisoner per day for boarding elsewhere.

Midland firefighters, above, investigate the scene of an explosion Sunday that resulted in heavy damage to Town & Country Cleaners, 1200 S. Big Spring. Dan Radloff, an employee of Town & Country Cleaners, right, collects himself following the explosion. Radloff, who was inside the building when the incident occurred, told firefighters the blast knocked him to the floor. He received no apparent injuries.

Explosion at dry cleaners attributed to clothes dryer

From Staff Reports

A clothes dryer was the apparent cause of an explosion Sunday at Town & Country Cleaners, 1200 S. Big Spring, that resulted in heavy damage to the building but no injuries, according to Midland Fire Department reports.

A fire department spokesman said the force of the explosion, which occurred about 2:30 p.m., broke plate glass windows located at the front and sides of the building but resulted in no apparent structural damage.

The building was occupied at the time of the incident, but the spokesman reported no injuries following the blast. Ten firefighters responded to the incident. Total damage to the building has not yet been determined.

Midland man dies in accident near Bangs

Five others injured

From Staff Reports

A two-vehicle accident Sunday at Farm-to-Market Road 585 and U.S. Highway 67 near Bangs claimed the life of a 53-year-old Midland man and injured five others, according to a spokesman with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

DPS officials said Darrell Winiford Hocker, 4405 Wilshire, was pronounced dead at Brownwood Regional Hospital in Brownwood following the crash which occurred about 5:40 p.m. Sunday one mile west of Bangs.

According to reports, Hocker was traveling south when his 1980 Ford pickup went through the intersection of FM 585 and U.S. Highway 67 into the path of a 1985 Ford flatbed truck driven by Rex Clark, 38, of San Angelo. Clark was westbound on U.S. Highway 67.

The impact of the collision forced Clark's vehicle to overturn into a barrow ditch, the report said.

Clark was taken to Brownwood Regional Hospital where he remains in stable condition.

Also injured in the crash were Wanda Hocker, 48, 4405 Wilshire and Reagan Lynch, 4, 4905 Sherwood, both of Midland. Mrs. Hocker was listed in critical condition at Brownwood Regional Hospital with a broken leg and arm. The youth was taken to Hendricks Medical Center in Abilene where he is listed in critical condition with a broken leg and head injuries. Both were passengers in Hocker's vehicle.

Mary Ann Clark, 36, of San Angelo, was listed in critical condition at Shannon Memorial Hospital in San Angelo with head and spinal injuries. Joshua Clark, 5, also of San Angelo, was listed in good condition at Shannon Memorial Hospital with possible head injuries. Both were passengers in Clark's vehicle.

Boy runs to repay March of Dimes

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — An 8-year-old boy who has had extensive surgery to correct birth defects ran more than 30 miles to repay a long-standing personal debt to the March of Dimes.

"My stepdad and I were thinking they had spent $26,000 on me," said Billy Holder. "Why don't I pay them back? It is sort of a thank you."

Billy, who has set his sights on becoming an Olympic marathoner, completed the 30.1 mile solo run in 5 hours and 20 minutes under sunny skies Saturday. He collected $2,000 in pledges for the March of Dimes, a charity that focuses on birth defects.

The boy was born with a hernia in his diaphragm and a slight heart defect that required extensive surgery. The March of Dimes contributed to his medical bills.

IDEAS IN DECORATING
"THERE'S GOLD IN THAT OLD SOFA."

If your old sofa looks as though it's on its last legs, don't be too quick to bundle it out of the house. Resourceful home-owners are discovering that many old pieces have a value you can't buy today. And they are restoring them through reupholstery. The economics of reupholstery works for them, too. For dollars and cents it can be one of today's best buys.

THE VALUE IS IN THE FRAME. If your old sofa (or chair) has a good frame, it's well worth reupholstering. A frame is the essential element in the structure, and if it's solid there's no point going out and buying a new one. So, what's a good frame? One that's made of hardwood—Oak, or maple, for example. Hardwood is strong and has longevity. A clue is its weight: Hardwood is heavy. That's why furniture salespeople will often lift up one end of a sofa when showing it to a customer. They are demonstrating the frame's weight. And the frame is what your upholsterer can check out.

THE ART OF REUPHOLSTERY. Building on your old frame (where you save big dollars), the upholsterer re-ties the springs, puts in new webbing, all new padding and filling, and totally re-creates the sofa. This is all hand-work involving a high order of skills. What you get back is a piece of furniture in the class of a custom-made.

THE FABRIC ADVANTAGE. A significant advantage in reupholstering is fabric selection. You choose from a practically panoramic range of colors and textures. So you can find just about any fabric, at any price, to fit any decor.

All of the above advantages, are available at Hines Wood Upholstery Co. They have served the upholstery needs of the Permian Basin for the past 34 years. Come by 1105 N. Midkiff or Call 694-8891 for more information on solving your furniture problems.

Tornado watches were posted Sunday for much of the eastern Panhandle and the western portion of North Texas. Another tornado watch was issued at 1 a.m. today for 44 Texas counties in a 70-mile-wide area reaching from San Angelo and Big Spring to Vernon and Wichita Falls.

The weather service reported as much as 2 inches of rain in parts of North Texas and southern Oklahoma, and a flash flood warning was in effect early today for Wichita, Archer and Clay Counties as the new storm system moved through.

Four tornadoes were sighted southeast of Colorado City in West Texas Sunday evening, the weather service said, and police in Nacogdoches also said they spotted a funnel cloud.

In Anson, about 30 miles north of Abilene, heavy rain and hail fell Sunday while the town was still trying to get over damage inflicted the day before, when winds gusting up to 75 mph blew over several trailer homes and took several roofs off buildings. Telephone service and electricity was out for up to four hours.

Also on Saturday, winds of up to 92 mph hit Cisco, causing extensive property damage.

A spokesman for the National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo., Scott Tansey, said the weather system that generated the tornadoes meant a continued chance of severe weather for a region from northern Texas to southern Oklahoma and Kansas, and from Minnesota to the Dakotas.

Sarney vows to carry out Neves' policies

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Jose Sarney, named president following the death of Tancredo Neves, promised a mourning nation today he would carry out the policies of the man who died before he could take office as Brazil's first elected leader in 21 years.

Neves, 75, died Sunday night of heart and lung ailments, after a 39-day struggle through seven operations that began hours before he was to have been inaugurated.

Sarney, 54, a compromise candidate who had previously been allied with the nation's military party, was declared president at a special session of Congress in Brasilia today.

Sarney had been acting president since March 15, when everyone in the new civilian government took office except Neves, who had undergone emergency intestinal surgery.

"Our program is Tancredo Neves' program," Sarney said in a breaking voice on national radio and television early this morning.

The government decreed eight days of mourning and declared today a national holiday.

Neves' coffin, draped with the Brazilian flag, was taken on a fire truck from the Sao Paulo's Clinical Hospital to Congonhas airport for the flight to Brasilia, 700 miles away.

Thousands stood or watched from rooftops along the eight-mile route to the airport. As the 40-car cortege passed, many applauded and waved white handkerchiefs.

Neves' body will be on public view throughout the day in the capital, Brasilia, officials said. On Tuesday, foreign dignitaries will pay their respects, and military honors are scheduled.

The coffin will be taken Tuesday afternoon to Neves' birthplace, the town of Sao Joao del Rei, 550 miles southeast of Brasilia, officials said.

About 300 Brazilians, many weeping and some screaming, gathered outside the hospital when his death was announced Sunday night. The crowd sang the national anthem. Police took away some who were hysterical.

"This never should have happened. Tancredo meant hope," Sebastiao Mesquita de Paula, a 51-year-old accountant, said outside the hospital. Nearly everyone in the nation of 134 million referred to Neves by his first name.

"In the past 50 years, the public life of Tancredo Neves was an integral part of the hopes and ideals of Brazilians: Union, democracy, social justice and liberty. From now on, Brazil will have to attain those ideals without the leader it has just lost," government spokesman Antonio Britto said.

The new president promised to govern with "morality, austerity, honor and responsibility," help the poor, fight inflation and proceed with Neves' plan to call a special assembly to rewrite the constitution to allow direct elections. Neves and Sarney were chosen by an electoral college.

Neves had suffered from abdominal pain in the weeks following his January election, but had delayed medical care while forming his new government and meeting with world leaders, including President Reagan in Washington. He was rushed to a hospital for emergency abdominal surgery just hours before his inauguration. He was transferred from a Brasilia hospital to the one in Sao Paulo, where he had six more operations.

In Washington, the State Department said in a statement: "We are greatly saddened by his untimely and tragic demise. Our deepest condolences are offered to the family of the president-elect and to the people of Brazil."

Neves, whose political career spanned a half-century, was highly popular, but Sarney has many enemies.

Until mid-1984, Sarney headed the military-backed Social Democratic Party, acting as the leading voice and defender of the policies handed down by the military regimes that had ruled since a 1964 coup.

He and other dissidents quit the Social Democrats to align with Neves' Brazilian Democratic Movement Party, which gave Neves the majority needed for his January victory. In exchange, Sarney was put on the ballot as vice president.

Some Social Democrats felt Sarney was a traitor, and many in the Democratic Movement distrust him because of his past loyalties to the military rulers. In 1984, Sarney fought a congressional bill that would have reinstated direct elections.

CHINESE

China "is moving so much into free enterprise. The reform began in 1979 and 1980 with the peasants in the countryside. Today, some farmers are quite rich by Chinese standards. This same program is going into the urban areas now."

She noted that major oilfields are located in 10 provinces, or states, in Southern China. The largest field is in Chianghan, which reportedly has similar geological formations as the Permian Basin.

Although drilling for oil is not new for the Chinese, their techniques are old. Mrs. Neelley said some of the older men involved in the oil industry were educated in the United States and worked for the major companies. When China shut its doors, the men went home. But the technology has remained at that point in the 1930s and 1940s.

"They're still drilling with cable tools," she said.

At one point during the museum tour, guide Margaret Rhea pointed to one of the exhibits on cable drilling and remarked that it had been invented in China several hundred years ago. One of the Chinese corrected her: "It was 1,600 years ago."

According to Mrs. Staley, the Permian Basin's petroleum techniques "are technologically advanced and the Chinese are here to learn. They've been at Hughes Dynamics for the mechanical and equipment part. They're coming here for technical advice on oil wells. They asked questions about cable drilling and we haven't done that in years."

DUNBAR ADDED that in developing their inland drilling, the Chinese are wanting to put in the newest equipment and technology. During that morning's tour of the Permian Basin, "it was questions, questions, questions about the oil industry," he said.

At the museum, the Chinese group that also included geologists and engineers, listened quietly to Mrs. Rhea and the interpreter during the first portion that related the history of the oil industry in the Permian Basin. But in the North Wing that is devoted to the newer technology, the men began pointing to displays, asking questions and talking among themselves.

They laughingly took the test to determine if they would hit a dry hole or produce oil (they all hit dry holes), watched solemnly the blowout demonstration and expressed shocked looks on their faces at the nitroglycerin explosion.

Mayor G. Thane Akins, touring the museum with the Chinese, said a sister city relationship with China "might provide some economic opportunity we wouldn't have otherwise. We need to do something to generate some economic activity. It may be a good way to introduce them to the advantages of our (free enterprise) system. It has a potential like Shanghai and San Francisco. They do a tremendous amount of business with each other. With our equipment and their need for it, there is an obvious advantage to pairing up."

Jiao Liren, senior consultant for China's Ministry of Petroleum Industry, said through an interpreter that China is trying "to find good oil and finding it is very difficult task. People who drive cars and use gas think it's easy. But is very difficult. Geologists work very hard. Petroleum engineers must do a good job and then we can find oil. Financial people must calculate cost to find if it is economical. Some people think black oil is dirty, but it gives people a lot of help and benefit."

THE GROUP had been told of Midland's 100-year history, and Liren noted that at first Midland had few people. Since then, they have found oil and this has become an important region for this country. "The development of oil in this area improved the culture and gave help and development to the rest of United States. People did a lot of work and did a good job here," he said.

Also on the tour were Shou Xuan Cheng, deputy director of the Department of Science and Technology for Petroleum; Yuan Guang Ming, director of Chianghan oil field; Li Shau Liang, deputy director of the oilfield; Zhang Wei Xue, deputy director of the Manufacturer Bureau of the Ministry of Petroleum; Liu Dai You, manager of Chianghan Drilling Co.; Liu Lan Xiang, engineer; Sun Shang Zhang, engineer; Miss Chang Jing Fen, interpreter; and Madame Jiang Ren, consul of the Consulate General of the People's Republic of China in Houston.

The quickly arranged visit was a result of the Thouvenel String Quartet's recent visit to China, according to Dunbar who had accompanied the musicians. Initiating the cultural exchange was a performance in Midland last year by the Peking Opera. "Through our meeting with various governmental dignitaries we became interested in establishing a sister city relationship. We want to form a cultural and business understanding with the people," Dunbar said.

Shultz: Ortega's proposal 'fraud'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz said today that Nicaraguan President Danial Ortega's latest peace proposal was just a "fraud...designed to distract attention" one day before Congress votes on President Reagan's request for $14 million to help Ortega's guerrilla enemies.

Shultz also said he thought the two Democratic senators who negotiated the proposal with Ortega had been used, adding, "It's quite a problem for us when senators run around and start dealing with the Communists themselves."

Interviewed on the NBC-TV "Today" program, Shultz said the proposal, which contains no provision for a dialogue with the opposition, amounts to a demand for the rebels' unconditional surrender.

Painter said he would be contacting area sheriffs to see if there is any room for additional inmates. He doesn't have any sheriff committed to take Midland's prisoners today but said he would be contacting sheriffs at Martin, Glasscock, Culberson, Dawson and Ector counties.

Painter isn't considering sending inmates to El Paso County because it's "more costly and it is the farthest away than are the other jails."

Painter said he would have to take some deputies off patrol and from other divisions to transport the prisoners. Transporting the prisoners would continue "until we can get our population down and the courts get caught up," he said.

County Attorney Mark Dettman noted the cost to Midland County of housing prisoners will include transportation, any medical or dental expenses and any telephone calls from the defendants to their attorneys.

"We've got to be prepared (for moving the prisoners)," said Commissioner Durward Wright.

Sealy, McLaughlin and Browder is the bond counsel.

"Wish you a lot of luck on the election," said Joe Liberty, senior vice president of Rauscher, Pierce. Afterward, Liberty said "interest rates are going down" and that even one-half of 1 percent would be "a lot of money based on a $10 million bond issue." Interest rates on municipal bonds today stands at 8¾ to 9 percent. Sixty days ago, the rates were 9¼ to 9⅛ percent.

Voters on May 11 will select one of two bond programs: a $9.9 million jail for 225 inmates to be built 2⅛ miles east of Midland, or $3.3 million to renovate the courthouse jail and fund a study on the county courthouse and jail needs. Both bond issues, which could be rejected by the voters, provide $500,000 for expanding Culver Youth Home, a juvenile detention center.

In other business, the commissioners gave the approval for the Centennial Branch of the Midland County Public Library to be located at Midland Park Mall near Sakowitz. The branch would consist of 1,375 square feet and hold 15,000 books.

In other action, commissioners approved advertising for bids for installing electrical and mechanical doorlocks on the jail's 15 single cells, and for putting in plumbing in a holding tank. The Jail Commission has ordered the single cells be equipped with emergency locking and unlocking mechanisms. The commission also said that no prisoner can be kept in the holding tank more than 30 minutes unless it is equipped with plumbing facilities.

"The electrical-mechanical door openers are going to be expensive," Painter told the commissioners. He said cost estimates range from $27,000 to $100,000.

"My gosh," said Commissioner Win Brown. "What a spread."

"It would be a good idea to have both manual and electrical locking mechanisms," said Commissioner C. Wallace Craig.

In preparing for the May 11 jail bond election, commissioners authorized contracts with the bond counsel and financial advisers. Rauscher, Pierce, Refsnes, Inc., is the county's financial adviser, and the law firm of Stubbeman, McRae,

Thousands of Holocaust survivors place flowers under Liberty Bell

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Thousands of survivors of the Holocaust filed past the Liberty Bell, each pausing to put a white carnation under the American symbol of freedom in memory of family members who died in Europe at the hands of the Nazis.

The fragile flowers, delicate reminders of the brutal reign of terror that gripped Europe as Nazi rule spread during World War II, were put in wicker baskets below the bell.

The march came as about 5,000 survivors and their children from across the country gathered here Sunday for the three-day Inaugural Assembly of the American Gathering of Jewish Holocaust Survivors.

"I was in Auschwitz and I was sentenced to death," said Genia Klapholz, of Philadelphia, during the flower ceremony. "I am very glad I survived because the third generation is here," said Mrs. Klapholz, who has two sons and two grandchildren.

After the war, Mrs. Klapholz said she went home to Krakow, Poland, but only found one cousin. She lost three sisters and one brother to the Nazis. "My youngest sister was so beautiful, like a flower," but she was burned alive in a concentration camp, said Klapholz.

The flower remembrance was preceded by a march from the Monument to the Six Million Jewish Martyrs, a twisted, black stone sculpture about a mile from Independence Mall.

About 6,000 people packed into a one-block area before the march for a memorial service to the 6 million Jews who died in the Holocaust. The crowd was silent as speakers repeated that the Holocaust must never be forgotten, and thanked the American liberators who freed the concentration camps 40 years ago.

Thousands of people walked to Independence Hall. Children led the march, carrying cardboard signs bearing the names of Jewish communities wiped out during World War II.

Linz, Dresden, Kishnev, Leipzig, Yaroslav and Rega, were some of the names on the placards. The marchers wore blue caps with "remember" written in Hebrew, and sang and chanted prayers in Hebrew on the 13-block walk.

Josh Mintz, 14, said youths carried the signs "to pass it (the legacy) on from generation to generation."

At Independence Mall, politicians and religious leaders spoke to the crowd. U.S. Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said the controversy over President Reagan's planned visit in May to a German cemetery containing the bodies of Nazi soldiers "stimulated understanding of the Holocaust." He said the issue "is not yet over with finality."

"How many of those buried at Bitburg were on duty at Dachau? I doubt that even now President Reagan has bothered to ask," said Manachem Rosensaft, founding chairman of the International Network of Children of Jewish Holocaust Survivors.

Earth Day passes with few celebrations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 15th anniversary of Earth Day, the celebration credited with launching the modern environmental movement and a decade of legislation, is passing today with practically no notice at all in the nation's capital.

Environmental Action, the group founded by many of the Earth Day organizers of 1970, put out a statement to mark the occasion, will hold a fund-raising party this coming weekend and is publishing a special issue of its magazine.

But calls to the Sierra Club, the Wilderness Society, the National Wildlife Federation, the National Audubon Society and Friends of the Earth all turned up spokesmen who said their organizations had no plans for any celebrations, and knew of none in Washington with the exception of Environmental Action's.

The Energy and Environmental Study Conference, an organization of members of Congress with more than 200 senators and representatives, has scheduled nothing.

Friends of the Earth is holding its annual meeting in San Francisco, and spokesman Jeff Webb said in Washington, "no doubt Earth Day will be commemorated. But if I had to guess, I would say it would not be a major item" in the meeting.

"I am ashamed to say it is not even on our calendar," said Adrienne Weissman of the Sierra Club. The calendar is among the most popular of all nature calendars.

White supremacist leader wants 'guarantees' before surrendering

THREE BROTHERS, Ark. (AP) — The leader of a white supremacist survivalist group whose enclave is surrounded by heavily armed police says he may surrender today if he gets certain guarantees in writing from federal authorities, a newspaper reported.

The Arkansas Democrat at Little Rock said in a copyright story today that a man, identifying himself as Jim Ellison, spiritual leader of the Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord group, talked by short-wave radio with a reporter.

According to the newspaper, Ellison said CSA leaders negotiated late Sunday night to end the standoff at the CSA encampment.

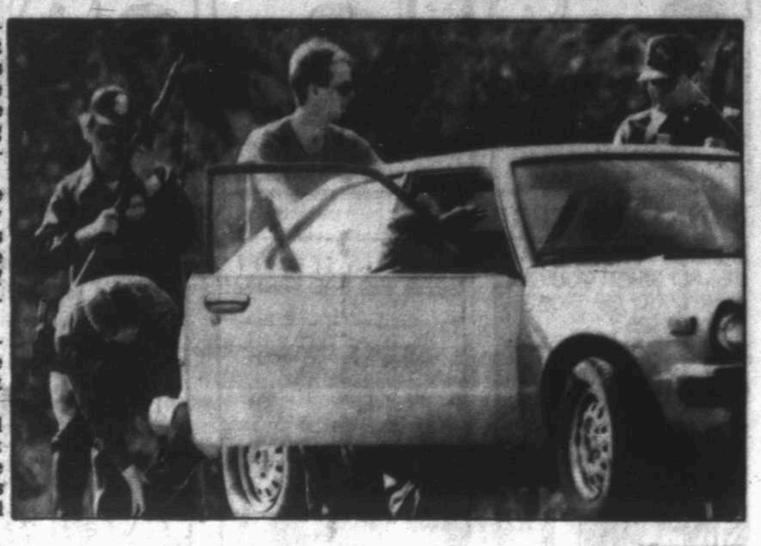

"We hope to come to a peaceful solution," said Ellison, 44. "I don't want needless bloodshed." He declined to specify what assurances he was seeking from the federal officials.

The newspaper reported that a man familiar with the CSA, who asked not to be identified, put a reporter in touch with Ellison using a radio located in woods about eight miles from the CSA compound.

"At the time, we are trying to negotiate with the authorities in good faith," Ellison said, "but we're not getting real close to a solution, I'm afraid."

Ellison said he was innocent of the weapons charge on which federal authorities are seeking his arrest, and contended the warrant naming him was invalid because he hasn't been indicted by a grand jury.

He said he feared that authorities were setting him up. "It's just too vague and feels too much like a trap right now," he said. He said he thought police might try to arrest him on charges other than the weapons violation.

Officials from the FBI and Treasury Department search a motorist who ventured near a roadblock set up Saturday near the Missouri-Arkansas border. The operation was part of the federal government's attempt to serve a warrant on Jim Ellison, leader of a paramilitary group, the Covenant, Sword and Arm of the Lord.

The federal government, he said, wants to shut down the CSA.

"They're trying to tear up the free exercise of religion, free speech and the right to bear arms," he said.

On Sunday, officers combed the top of a mountaintop plateau in the CSA compound for explosives and weapons as negotiations for Ellison's surrender intensified.

Officers, some of them slipping across a lake in boats, were in sight today of the heavily armed central camp of the CSA as they looked for land mines and booby traps in one of two smaller camps taken over by police.

"We have found no booby traps nor dismantled any booby traps," Jack Killoran, special agent with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said.

"Things are looking better and better," FBI special agent Ray McElhaney said Sunday. "We are quite optimistic and hopeful."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, April 23, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Too much comfort and luxury could slow you down. Stay active. Your contributions help someone's career. Have faith in your ideas. New financial opportunities give you a chance to achieve something really wonderful. Choose your associates with care and check employees' references. A newcomer who appears very talented could lack the particular skills you require. Romantic partner could become impatient if you devote all your time to work. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: "Fall Guy" Lee Majors, actress Valerie Bertinelli, Sandra Dee, actor David Birney, Joyce DeWitt of "Three's Company" fame, hockey's Tony Esposito, fashion designer Halston, Russian composer-conductor-pianist Sergei Rachmaninoff.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Push as hard as you can to impress people who can do you some good. Mate or partner cheers you on. Exercise greater self-discipline where eating or spending is concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It is time to move to center stage. Blow your own horn for a change. Seize a golden real estate opportunity, even if you must borrow money. Business interests deserve top priority now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A domestic situation continues to require great tact. Do not allow little things to be blown out of proportion. Avoid all forms of gambling. Regular work brings the biggest rewards and benefits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Think big, but back up your promises with excellent work. Influential person may be considering you for a promotion. A move to another city could be involved. Welcome a change.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Try to resolve a domestic matter before leaving home this morning. A logical approach helps you find the answer to a financial problem. A newcomer adds glamour to your social life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Curb a tendency to make hasty financial decisions. This is not a good time to form new partnerships. Follow your instincts if asked to mediate a conflict.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stick to projects already underway and near completion. Small comforts mean more to you than making a gaudy splash. Treat yourself to a couple of luxuries, but postpone major purchases.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take the initiative in solving a domestic problem. A compromise may be necessary. Make sure any letters you write say exactly what you mean. A phone call brings delightful news.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Creative and artistic work is best pursued independently. Your friends' advice could impede progress. Travel could prove frustrating and full of delays.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take care of old business before launching a new project. Someone's inexplicable behavior could catch you off-guard. Seek the facts before passing judgment. A friend's financial advice could be faulty.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Adopt a logical approach when seeking to convince someone who is difficult. Recycling an old project boosts profits. Someone may have a terrific idea but lack financial backing. Guard your savings.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The ability to speak a second language is a tremendous business asset. Those in the import-export business have a banner day. A sympathetic official helps you cut through red tape.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠8 ♡K9872 ◇742 ♣10643
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?
A.—This is basic stuff. You have 3 high-card points and even a one no trump response requires 6. While you are not thrilled with your singleton spade, do you really believe you can improve the contract by acting? More than likely partner will persist with spades. Pass.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠8 ♡K9872 ◇742 ♣10643
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—Despite the fact that you could not bid at your first turn, partner has competed freely. While you do not have much, you do have five-card support for his second suit and a singleton in his other suit. That might be enough for game, and you should certainly advise partner of this possibility by raising to three hearts.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠102 ♡K76532 ◇Q98 ♣Q3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—There is not much you can do. The chances of finding partner with even two hearts has been reduced by the fact that he has already bid two suits. Therefore, it is simply a question of whether you should "correct" to two spades or pass two diamonds, and we have a slight preference for the former because partner might have six spades and only four diamonds.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J762 ♡QJ853 ◇952 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—If you bid again, you are looking for trouble. Partner has every right to expect more from a partner who takes two bids than a queen and two jacks, even though you have a singleton. If you pass now you can support spades later should the enemy compete, without unduly exciting partner.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠5 ♡A103 ◇KQ1095 ♣AQ98
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You are in slam territory. Although you have more than adequate support for a suit that partner has introduced freely at the two-level, you should not raise him yet. Instead, plan to bid out your shape by first making a forcing rebid of three clubs. When you later support hearts, partner should realize that you are short in spades.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQJ95 ♡AKQ762 ◇83 ♣
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	2 ◇	2 NT	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass

What action do you take?
A.—North almost surely has the ace of spades on this auction, and he should have at least three-card support for one of your majors. Slam should depend on no more than whether partner has first- or second-round diamond control. The way to get him to bid the slam in those circumstances is to jump over game now to five spades.

Poll: Readers would rather not hear about Reagan, Jackson

Reagan

Jackson

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan and pop superstar Michael Jackson have tied as the celebrities most People magazine readers would "be happy not to hear another word about in 1985," according to the magazine's seventh annual poll.

Reagan and Jackson each polled 16 percent of the poll's 13,000 responses, trailed by pop phenom Prince, with 5 percent, and Joan Collins and Elizabeth Taylor.

But the unscientific survey also tapped Reagan as the man most readers (14 percent) would chose as the next president. Vice President George Bush and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy placed second, with 8 percent each, followed by Sen. Gary Hart (6 percent) and Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca (5 percent).

The survey, appearing in the April 29 edition, found that 73 percent of respondents balance their checkbooks, and that 33 percent believe the national defense budget could be cut one-fifth without endangering national security.

And 51 percent don't care if actress Farrah Fawcett, "America's favorite unwed mother," marries actor Ryan O'Neal, the father of her child.

MIAMI (AP) — Roxanne Pulitzer says she's not worried about the reaction of her school-age sons, Mack and Zack, to her nude appearance in the June issue of Playboy magazine.

"I certainly hoped I raised them not to be closed-minded about Playboy. My husband was a subscriber for years," said Mrs. Pulitzer, whose widely publicized 1982 divorce from Peter Pulitzer involved allegations of wild sex, drug parties, and witchcraft.

"I see nothing wrong with nudity if it's done tastefully," she said. Mrs. Pulitzer, who lost a share in her husband's $25 million fortune, now works as an aerobics instructor.

Her sons live with their father.

BADMINTON, England (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II was greeted by well-wishers singing "Happy Birthday" when she arrived for the last day of the annual horse trials at Badminton House, home of the 11th Duke of Beaufort.

The monarch, celebrating her 59th birthday Sunday, stopped to smile and wave at a small group in front of the 17th century Palladian mansion during a heavy rain shower.

The song was heard again from thousands of people in the main arena when the queen drove in to watch the showjumping trials.

Earlier, police on foot and horseback arrested 10 animal-rights advocates who invaded the arena to protest fox-hunting. The queen turned her head away during the melee.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "The Ballad of Bobby Knight," a country music paean to the Indiana University basketball coach, is in heavy demand from radio stations in the Hoosier State, says the song's composer.

"It's a true tribute to the man," said WNAH radio talk show host Ken Scott, who has been writing and singing for 20 years.

The song, scheduled for release Thursday, touches on Knight's coaching the Olympic basketball team to a gold medal last summer, as well as his suspension for one game during the regular season for throwing a chair across the court to protest officiating.

"I didn't want to make a big deal about the chair, just show that he's human," said Scott, who roots for Arkansas and Nashville's Vanderbilt University.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If he had it all to do over again, former California Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown wouldn't have tried for a third term in office.

"I would have started running for the presidency of the United States, although I would have faced Robert Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey," said Brown, celebrating his 80th birthday at a family breakfast Sunday.

"You never think anyone can do anything as well as you can, but I think I could have defeated Nixon, because I already defeated him," said Brown, who beat Richard Nixon in the 1962 governor's race, but was defeated by Ronald Reagan in bidding for a third term.

Sunday's breakfast was attended by another former governor — his son, Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown Jr., who held the office from 1975 to 1982.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Irving Mills, who published some of jazz great Duke Ellington's most popular songs, including "Mood Indigo" and "Sophisticated Lady," died Sunday. He was 91.

Mills was Ellington's manager in the '30s, breaking racial barriers by scheduling concerts in previously all-white halls.

• • •

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rudi Gernreich, who shocked the fashion world in 1964 with his introduction of the topless bathing suit and promoted unisex clothing and partial nudity in the 1970s, died Sunday. He was 62.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Warren I. Susman, a history professor at Rutgers University who was known as a bold and creative chronicler of American pop culture, has died after collapsing at a historians' conference. He was 58.

Susman was stricken with a heart attack Saturday while speaking as a panelist at the national convention of the Organization of American Historians.

• • •

TOKYO (AP) — Nguyen Duy Trinh, a deputy premier and foreign minister in the North Vietnamese government throughout the Vietnam War, has died in Hanoi, Radio Hanoi reported. He was 75.

The broadcast monitored Sunday said Trinh had suffered a heart attack and died Saturday.

• • •

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Former gubernatorial aide William Loy, who along with Gov. Arch Moore was acquitted of a federal extortion charge in the 1970s, died Saturday. He was 53.

Loy served as Moore's top aide for six years before resigning in 1974 for an unsuccessful campaign for the 2nd Congressional District seat held by Democrat Harley Staggers Sr.

Soviet health

When asked if communism offers any benefit superior to that in the West, defectors from behind the Iron Curtain invariably have told Americans that, yes, the Marxist system provides better medical care.

The statement has been made so often and with such conviction in the past three decades that Americans have come to take it almost for granted that the sick and disabled of Russia and its satellites can count on better all-around treatment than is available in the U.S. – and at little or no cost.

Well, guess what? It now turns out that this assumption isn't accurate. In fact, a research report presented in Washington to the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies disclosed that illness in the Soviet Union's military forces is so widespread that it imperils combat capability.

Influenza frequently sidelines up to 30 percent of an individual unit, the report says, and military authorities acknowledge that the incidence of hepatitis has increased three-fold in the past 10 years. Meanwhile there has been an alarming climb in the number of cases of such "medieval" afflictions as typhoid and cholera.

What's more, treatment of the epidemics have been hampered by repeated instances of misdiagnosis on the part of Soviet physicians as well as shortages of medical supplies, according to the report. These shortcomings heighten the risks of complications in the patients and tend to spread the diseases even more.

In view of the fanatical devotion of the Soviets to their military establishment, it follows that civilian health care must be far worse off than that given the soldiers, sailors and airmen. This appraisal is backed up in the report by an admission from one civilian Russian doctor that his hospital has so few hypodermic needles on hand that they are routinely straightened out, derusted and used over and over.

If Communist medical care ever was as good as the refugees once claimed, it certainly has gone downhill fast. And the Soviets have lost just about the last selling point their system ever had.

Another View:

Good cop, bad cop

South Africa is to abolish its laws prohibiting marriage and sexual relations between whites and nonwhites. The laws were vicious and racist in content; they blighted countless lives. They were flouted, in practice, by whites: the Colored or mixed-race minority is the evidence. For ending its intrusion on matters elsewhere left to personal choice, South Africa's white ruling class hopes to win some respite from the pressures bearing in upon it. In selling the change to alarmed constituents, however, it concedes the damning truth that its purpose is not to undo apartheid but merely to dismantle one of its less essential but more politically burdensome abuses.

If the government is determined to treat people humanely and to cultivate family values, it must go on to abolish the pass laws, by which apartheid undertakes to provide cheap black labor to whites without inconveniencing them with the nearby presence of large numbers of blacks. The needed black worker is allowed to work in a particular city, say, but his family must live hundreds of miles away in an authorized black area.

But it is not going to be enough even if the regime abolishes the pass laws tomorrow. A current is running that will eventually, somehow, sweep out apartheid. Petty modifications take much white political exertion but do not come near meeting the expectations of nonwhites to be treated with dignity. Increasingly, blacks see the pursuit of dignity not simply as the receipt of ameliorating dispensations at white hands. It means the sharing of political power in their own land. Nothing else will do. Nothing else should do.

Secretary of State George Shultz this week defended, on pragmatic and moral grounds, the Reagan policy of "constructive engagement" in southern Africa. At times the administration has seemed and has been insensitive to black rage and black claims. But it is right to try to bring along the white establishment, which holds all the real power.

The administration functions as a "good cop," carrying American criticism of its policy to white South Africa and warning that it can't hold off the "bad cop" much longer unless further changes are made. Like it or not, the administration's critics play that "bad cop," denouncing constructive engagement and insisting on censuring, isolating and punishing South Africa. The combination is not working fast or well enough, but it is probably working better than any feasible alternative.

There is a risk in the economic sanctions now being debated in Congress. A strong bill would dramatize American impatience but might also upset the good-cop-bad-cop partnership, leaving white South Africans the more defiant and black South Africans the poorer and more frustrated. That is a formula for greater misery and strife.

Today is Monday, April 22, the 112th day of 1985. There are 253 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 22, 1864, Congress authorized the use of the phrase "In God We Trust" on U.S. coins.

On this date:

In 1509, Henry VIII ascended to the throne of England following the death of his father, Henry VII.

In 1870, Russian revolutionary Vladimir I. Lenin was born.

In 1898, the first shot of the Spanish-American War rang out when the USS Nashville captured a Spanish merchant ship off Key West, Fla.

In 1954, the televised Senate Army-McCarthy hearings began.

In 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson opened the New York World's Fair at Flushing Meadow-Corona Park.

Ten years ago: Following the resignation of South Vietnamese president Nguyen Van Thieu the day before, Vietnamese Communists said the Ford administration's "only way out" would be to stop all involvement in South Vietnam.

Five years ago: In the Pennsylvania presidential primary, George Bush upset Republican front-runner Ronald Reagan while Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy narrowly beat President Jimmy Carter in the Democratic contest.

Today's birthdays: Actor Eddie Albert is 77. Violinist Yehudi Menuhin is 69. Television producer Aaron Spelling is 60. Actress Charlotte Rae is 59. Actor Jack Nicholson is 48. Singer Glen Campbell is 47. Actor-writer Jason Miller is 46. Actor Joseph Bottoms is 31.

Thought for today: "There is no man so good, who, were he to submit all his thoughts and actions to the laws, would not deserve hanging ten times in his life." — Michel de Montaigne, French philosopher (1533-1592).

Crop Insurance running dry

WASHINGTON — About three weeks ago, a federal agency actually experienced the nightmare that Social Security beneficiaries often worry about: It ran out of money to pay the people it owed.

Jack Anderson

There was practically no money left in the till to pay insurance claims filed by farmers for crop losses — though the farmers had paid premiums for the protection.

According to our sources, the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. simply stopped processing demands for payment. To cover its financial embarrassment, the FCIC secretly resorted to a bit of Peter-Paul robbery, transferring $50 million of administrative and operating funds to the bankrupt claims section. It has since asked Congress for permission to take yet another stopgap measure to cover the first one.

But it's becoming obvious that FCIC needs an overhaul, which will require some hard decisions by both Congress and the administration.

The FCIC was created in 1938 as an attempt to spread the risk of an inherently risky business. And through 40 years of dust, droughts and deluges, it worked. It was not only self-supporting, but for 30 postwar years it took in more in premiums than it had to pay out in claims.

That cheery picture darkened abruptly in 1980, when the FCIC paid out $199 million more than it took in. In the past five years, it has gone $861 million into the red.

Various stopgaps have kept it afloat — but as precariously as a henhouse in a flood. First it borrowed $250 million from a sister agency in the Agriculture Department, the Commodity Credit Corp. That loan was swallowed with barely a burp to note its passing. Commodity Credit has written it off as a bad debt.

Then the FCIC went to the Treasury Department. With congressional permission, it may sell up to $500 million in so-called "stock" in itself to the Treasury, supposedly to build a reserve against the lean years.

But the money from the stock sales disappeared rapidly — in both fat and lean years. Now the FCIC has only $50 million of its worthless stock left to peddle to an understandably reluctant Treasury. It is trying to extract this last residue to replace the money it transferred from its administrative budget.

How did the FCIC get in such pathetic straits? Merritt Sprague, a plain-spoken Illinois farmer who is the agency's third manager since hard times struck, put it simply: "The truth is we've experienced losses that have exceeded our premium income for five consecutive years, and that has resulted in an unintended Federal subsidy to the program."

Diplomatically, Sprague told us that "the expectations of Congress were very high and probably unrealistic" when it passed a sweeping law in 1980 that required the FCIC to insure many more crops for a higher portion of the value (75 percent), and to make its premiums "actuarially sound."

The FCIC dutifully expanded its coverage, but it never raised its premiums to make them actuarially sound. The result was predictable.

Sprague claims the FCIC "never technically stopped processing claims." But another agency official acknowledged that "we were very selective on our payments" until the $50 million transfusion, which he said keeps the agency alive today.

Sprague retains the farmer's inborn optimism, insisting that "the obligations will be covered" and expressing confidence that "Congress will recognize its responsibility."

LATIN AMERICA BEAT: No terrorist group is quite as mysterious as the Peruvian Sendero Luminoso ("Shining Path") guerrillas. State Department experts have concluded that, unlike Moslem terrorists with ties to various Middle East governments, the Peruvian group seems to be genuinely unaligned with any sponsoring outside regime.

The guerrillas wear black masks, detest media of any political persuasion and profess an old-fashioned Maoist philosophy. They apparently have no ties to either China or the Soviet Union, and are determined to overthrow the Peruvian government, whose security forces have found it impossible to penetrate the group.

— A recent "background" paper out of Foggy Bottom warns of the Soviet challenge in Latin America beyond Cuba and Nicaragua. It notes, for example, that the Soviets buy $1 billion worth of grain from Argentina per year, supply weapons to the Peruvian government and provide more scholarships for Latin American students than the United States does.

Regan dodged Deaver's debacle

WASHINGTON — White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan noted weeks ago to a colleague that Michael K. Deaver's original plans for President Reagan's European trip spelled "trouble," but because of a personal commitment did not press for a change.

Rowland Evans

When Regan came to the White House two months ago, he pledged to treat longtime Reagan aide Deaver with the greatest deference until he left the president's staff (in mid-May), and ordered his own aides to do the same. So he did not press Deaver for a change when he returned from his first advance trip to Europe with the scheduled visit to the German military cemetery at Bitburg that has proved a political debacle.

Robert Novak

A footnote: The origin of the president's own determination to pay tribute to German war dead was his highly emotional meeting in Washington last year with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl. As Reagan describes it to aides, Kohl ended up "in tears" as the two leaders discussed the need to bind up the wounds of 40 years ago.

KEMP'S PLOY

Another sign that Rep. Jack Kemp is intent on a 1988 presidential campaign was an indirect pitch he made to a key figure in Vice President George Bush's plans for the Republican presidential nomination: ex-White House political aide Lee Atwater.

During an off-the-record dinner with prominent Washington correspondents, Kemp was asked what one political operative he would like for a presidential campaign. Kemp without hesitation named Atwater, who was deputy manager of Reagan-Bush re-election campaign and since then has been one of the vice president's top political advisers.

Kemp's answer was quickly relayed to a surprised Atwater, who was described as "flattered." Two of Atwater's partners in a major Washington-based political consulting firm, Charles Black and Roger Stone, have been advising Kemp. They all claim the firm will end up unified behind one presidential candidate, probably either Bush or Kemp.

TREASURY SABOTAGE

Secretary James A. Baker III and Deputy Secretary Richard Darman are growing more and more vexed about Treasury bureaucrats whose super-methodical work habits have delayed completion of the administration's tax reform package.

Career employees in the Tax Policy Division have been dragging their feet in coming up with the estimated revenue impact of Baker-Darman changes in the Treasury's tax proposal. Since the new Treasury chiefs are compromising pet "loophole closers" authored by the Tax Policy bureaucrats, the delay could be intentional.

The politcally-appointed Tax Policy chief, Assistant Secretary Ronald Pearlman, has been part of the problem. Pearlman, a former St. Louis tax lawyer, is an ex-Internal Revenue Service bureaucrat and has done nothing to speed the process.

NO 'COMMUNISTS'

Langhorne Motley, assistant secretary of state for Latin American affairs, got an unexpected going over when he appeared before the House Republican Conference to stir up support for aid to the Nicaraguan freedom fighters.

Rep. Dan Burton of Indiana complained that State Department documents repeatedly mention "Sandinistas" but hardly ever "communists." Motley briskly indicated he would take care of that, but Rep. Vin Weber of Minnesota chimed in to say that was not good enough. The same criticism had been made two years ago, said Weber, without result. Rep. Newt Gingrich added more of the same.

"I thought we were all on the same team," Motley said, reeling under the blows. But many GOP congressmen present believe State Department reluctance to put a communist label on the Managua regime reflects lack of enthusiasm for the Reagan policy.

LEHRMAN'S SURPRISE

Lewis Lehrman, 1982 Republican nominee for governor of New York and now head of the Citizens for America (CSA), did nothing to prepare either party leaders or his political lieutenants for his surprise conversion from Judaism to Catholicism.

Republican politicians felt Lehrman erred in not informing New York State GOP Chairman George Clark in advance. More surprising, he did not alert either Jack Abramoff, executive director of the Reaganite CSA, or Abramoff's predecessor, Marc Holtzman, now running for Congress in Pennsylania. Both are Jewish, and both were stunned by the news.

Despite these efforts by Lehrman to keep his conversion intensely private, senior administration officials got the wrong idea. White House aides and at least one Cabinet member expressed astonishment that he had issued a press release on his baptism. In fact, news of the event leaked out.

'Christmas' only start

Christmas in April is soon to be here and I am really touched to see so many people of so many different religious and social backgrounds come together in unity with one common cause (to the good of another person) and accomplish it and come out with such a good feeling.

I believe this is done out of people's hearts due to their love for Christ. Due to this reason, I feel really good about it being called Christmas in April.

To those of you involved, doesn't it feel good to do something for someone else that maybe you don't even know and touch their lives with Christ's love that is in you. Thank you, Midland, for sharing Christ with others as you do. God bless you all!

I do wish or even challenge those of you who like challenges that we could reach out with His love and touch someone of another faith different from our own. I become so tired of hearing the faults of the other man's religion and such closed minds and hearts to other fellow Christians.

"Let him who is perfect cast the first stone." Remember, how you judge is how you will be judged. Can you measure up? Are you 100% sure your beliefs are the true and correct understanding?

Let's find more joint projects to reach out together to share God's love with others. My challenge to Midland is to see more joint efforts for the good of all, in all religions and to those who do not realize God's love. We are all part of the body (Christ being the head) and we cannot all be the same but we must work together to accomplish spreading the love of God. If the body fights among itself, it becomes ill and nothing is accomplished.

Let's all just love one another and accept one another as we are and look for the Christ in each person and trust God with the rest. God bless you, Midland! It is the people who make Midland so great.

Post brings 'mixed bag'

After being a periodic visitor to Midland for a few years, I came here as an immigrant from England in January.

I have had many expressions of welcome and good will since I arrived, but today's post brought what we call "a mixed bag." From the city of Midland I received not the freedom of the city but a violation notice for twigs and branches in the alley — placed there less than a week ago actually, after a long-neglected garden was cleared.

There was also an invitation from a local funeral home to pay for my funeral today to guard against inflation tomorrow, a sort of pay now-die later offer.

To show there is no nationalistic bias in this letter, by the same post I had my accountant's bill from London.

The mailman cometh again tomorrow. I can hardly wait!

Incidentally, the more time I spend in America, the more I realize the truth of George Bernard Shaw's saying: "We are two peoples divided by a common language."

Area people need university

Why should the enormous tax revenues generated by us in the Permian Basin go for supporting colleges elsewhere when the Legislature is trying to take the University of Texas-Permian Basin away?

Working people, both Odessans and Midlanders, need this school. Losing it will deprive many educational opportunities.

And we need to support four-year status for it, also. Who cares where it is located? Give this school a chance.

Seat belt law would help

I would like to respond to Olin Burnham's April 7th letter regarding the proposed seat belt law.

I am appalled by Mr. Burnham's ignorance of safe driving practices, especially when you consider that he sells insurance for a living. To say that the only benefit of a mandatory seat belt law would be the collection of fines is utter nonsense.

The real benefits of such a law would be the reduction of deaths and injuries. This would lead to a reduction in insurance premiums for everyone.

I would like to see a limit on how much money an accident victim can collect if he was not wearing seat belts. If a person is not willing to protect himself, the general public should not be burdened by higher insurance rates when he gets hurt.

I see only two flaws with the proposed seat belt law: the fines are too low, and it is being enacted 10 years too late.

Israeli navy claims to have sunk boat carrying guerrillas

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli navy sank a boat carrying 28 guerrillas on their way to attack targets in Israel and 20 passengers were presumed to have drowned, the military command said today.

In Kuwait, the Palestine Liberation Organization's mainline guerrilla group, Fatah, confirmed that its "sea borne" guerrillas clashed with Israeli forces during the past two days south of Tel Aviv, and that a boat carrying guerrillas sank.

An Israeli military communique said the navy took into custody eight passengers and pulled one body out of the water off the Israeli coast after the firefight Saturday night, a communique from the command said. The other 19 were believed to have drowned, it said.

From initial questioning of the men in custody, it appeared the guerrillas planned to come ashore in three groups and carry out attacks on targets in central Israel during this week's Independence Day celebrations, the announcement said.

A routine navy patrol saw a suspicious boat and ordered it to stop. The boat refused to comply and the Israelis fired warning shots, said the communique.

The guerrillas fired back with light arms and rocket-propelled grenades and tried to get away, the communique said. It said the navy then fired back and sank the boat.

The Israelis discovered three rubber dinghies and a fiber-glass landing craft, and took eight of the survivors into custody, according to the communique.

The announcement did not give any details on the location of the firefight and a military spokesman said he did not know why the announcement was not made until today.

The communique did not identify the guerrillas but described them as "terrorists," which in Israeli military parlance usually means Palestinians.

Fatah said in its that "suicidal units" managed to reach the Israeli coast south of Tel Aviv early Sunday aboard a vessel called Somood Trablos of the Tripoli Steadfastness.

The guerrillas, who called themselves the Unit of the Martyrs of Ein Helweh, used three boats to travel from the main vessel, the communique said.

Ein Helweh is the name of a Palestinian refugee camp in southern Lebanon, that has been under fire from Christian militias in the past few weeks, and Tripoli Steadfastness refers to Fatah fighting that broke out in the northern Lebanese city of Tripoli more than a year ago.

"The Israeli forces detected one of the three boats," said the Fatah communique. "The boat was sunk and the unit drowned after a clash with the Israelis in which machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades were used."

Argentine president discloses coup plot

Alfonsin

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — "Traitors" plotted a coup against the 16-month-old elected government of Raul Alfonsin, but loyal military officers refused to cooperate, the president said on the eve of today's trial for nine former military rulers.

In a televised address to the country Sunday night, he said, "I denounce to the Argentine people the divisive activity of those who predict chaos and anarchy.

"The maddest have approached high officials of the armed forces with diverse proposals ranging from presumed coalition Cabinets to a government overthrow.

"There is not going to be any episode of this nature, in the first place because those who would try it would have to count on the complicity of the armed forces, and this is not going to be given," Alfonsin said.

He did not identify the alleged plotters, but said the military officials they approached had informed the government of the scheme. "The situtation is being controlled by the constitutional government," he said. "...The armed forces of the nation are loyal to the constitutional authorities."

The president called on Argentines to attend a pro-democracy rally in Buenos Aires Friday and show their support of the government. And he noted, "There are tensions created or aggravated by the trial of the military juntas."

Nine generals and admirals who were members of the military juntas that ruled the country following a coup in 1976 go on trial today in a civilian court. Charges against them include murder, torture and kidnapping in connection with the "dirty war" between the armed forces and left-wing guerrillas in the late 1970s.

A commission created by Alfonsin's government, which took office in December 1983 following elections the previous October, reported at least 9,000 people disappeared during the anti-subversion campaign. It said the majority were civilians suspected of leftist views but innocent of any terrorist activity.

The defendants are ex-presidents and former army commanders Jorge Videla, Roberto Viola and Leopoldo Galtieri; ex-navy commanders Emilio Massera, Armando Lambruschini and Jorge Anaya, and former air force chiefs Orlando Agosti, Omar Graffigna and Basilio Lami Dozo.

More than 2,000 witnesses are scheduled to testify in the trial before the six-man federal Criminal Court of Appeals in downtown Buenos Aires. Court officials expect the proceedings to last at least three months.

Prosecutor Julio Strassera has said he would present details of some 700 cases of disappearance and will argue that the military juntas sanctioned human rights violations.

Defense lawyers have said they will argue that harsh methods were essential to wipe out terrorism, and that they first were sanctioned by the elected government of President Isabel Peron, who was ousted in the 1976 coup.

In his speech, Alfonsin said the trials are "without precedence in the world, of such importance that in my opinion they will bring an end to 50 years of democratic frustration and national decadance."

In his call for a mass turnout at Friday's rally in the plaza in front of the presidential palace, he said, "Your presence is absolutely necessary because there has appeared on the scene, in suggestive concert, the voices of anti-democracy."

China hosts first Korean diplomats since '49

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Two South Korean diplomats have entered China to attend a U.N. seminar, making the first such visit since the mainland came under Communist rule in 1949, the Foreign Ministry said today.

Despite a lack of formal ties, South Korea and China have exchanged some visits in non-political areas such as sports and journalism in recent years. Chinese fought with North Korean troops against the United Nations forces and the South Korean army during the Korean war.

The Foreign Ministry said that two diplomats arrived in Peking on Sunday, via Japan, to attend a week-long seminar on Palestine.

Demonstrators arrested

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Anti-nuclear demonstrators were charged with a variety of offenses after a protest that included lobbing smoke flares onto the decks of a visiting American cruiser, police said today.

Those arrested Sunday at Fremantle will appear in court Friday on 27 charges, including disorderly conduct, hindering police, refusing to leave the wharf and resisting arrest, police said.

At one stage during the demonstration, American sailors had to run when smoke flares were thrown from the wharf onto the decks of the UUS Leahy. Protestors then boarded the cruiser and unfurled anti-nuclear banners and slogans from the ship's rails.

Ammonia gas fells workers

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Fourteen workers fell unconscious when ammonia gas leaked from a factory in central India, news report from the area said today.

The accident occurred Sunday in the industrial town of Nagda, 110 miles west of Bhopal, the site of last December's poison gas disaster that killed more than 2,000.

A huge quantity of ammonia escaped from the Nagda factory when the refrigeration device in the carbon sulphate unit burst, United News of India reported. Of the 14 workers taken to the hospital, 12 were released by Sunday night, the news agency said.

Cooler area temperatures expected

From Staff and Wire Reporters

Cooler temperatures are expected in the Permian Basin area Tuesday as forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport call for partly cloudy skies tonight with a low near 50. Skies should become fair and the mercury rise to a high near 80 Tuesday. Winds will be from the west at 10 to 20 mph tonight, becoming gusty Tuesday.

Sunday's high of 89 was 9 degrees below the record set in 1965. This morning's low was 14 degrees above the 1931 record of 36.

A shower Sunday afternoon dropped 0.02 of an inch of precipitation at the airport. This puts the year's total to 2.27 inches.

STATE

Several North Texas counties were warned to expect heavy flooding today in the aftermath of drenching rains that fell overnight.

At least 44 Texas counties were under a tornado watch early today, and flash flood warnings were issued for several of them, as heavy rains fell on ground already saturated by storms earlier in the weekend.

The tornado watch, which expired at 6 a.m., was along a 70-mile path extending from San Angelo and Big Spring to Vernon and Wichita Falls.

Tornadoes touched down Sunday evening along the Throckmorton and Young county line between Olney and Throckmorton, leaving three people dead and at least two people injured.

Other tornadoes were reported near Colorado City, Archer City, and Iowa Park.

Heaviest rainfall was reported at Timpson and Tenaha, nearby towns in Shelby County, about 30 miles northeast of Nacogdoches. The National Weather Service said 4.80 inches of rain fell at Tenaha and 4.62 inches at Timpson, where power lines and numerous trees were reported downed.

NATION

Snow-prompted travelers' warnings were in effect today in parts of Colorado and Oregon while a storm that produced nearly three dozen tornadoes Sunday moved across the Midwest and the East had an early-season heat wave.

The slow-moving storm crept along after unleashing at least 35 tornadoes, including one in Texas that killed three elderly people Sunday.

Rockets' Lewis Lloyd takes care of Jazz

Associated Press

Guards Lewis Lloyd and John Lucas, not the Houston Rockets' young and heralded front line, are the reason they are even in their playoff series with the Utah Jazz.

In Friday night's 14-point defeat to the Jazz in the opener of their first-round series, starting guards Lloyd and Lionel Hollins managed only 19 points.

Sunday, the Rockets got 27 points from Lloyd and 18 from Lucas, who was making his first start since his suspension for drug use last December, en route to a 122-96 victory and a 1-1 series deadlock.

"I was ready tonight. I came out fired up," said Lloyd, who surpassed his first-game total with 16 points as Houston took a 63-43 halftime lead. "I knew if we were going to win I'd have to hit jumpers, and that's what I did."

"If I had to give someone the game ball I'd give it to Lewis Lloyd," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said. "He did an excellent job of doing what he has to do in the offense that we played."

In Sunday's other playoff games, Milwaukee, Philadelphia and Detroit took 2-0 leads in their best-of-five series. The Bucks beat Chicago 122-115, the 76ers routed Washington 113-94 and Detroit defeated New Jersey 121-111.

The sites of Sunday's games change on Wednesday night, with Detroit at New Jersey, Houston at Utah, Philadelphia at Washington and Milwaukee at Chicago.

On Tuesday night, Boston will take a 2-0 lead into Cleveland and the Los Angeles Lakers will have the same margin going into Phoenix. In two series tied 1-1, Denver will be at San Antonio and Dallas at Portland.

The Rockets' game plan was to run, thus negating the shot-blocking and intimidation of 7-4 Jazz center Mark Eaton.

"They knew they had to get their fast break going and therefore Lloyd became involved more," Eaton said. "We accomplished our goal and that was a split. We felt we controlled the big men, but their outside shooting was uncontrollable."

The Houston front line of Ralph Sampson, Akeem Olajuwon and Rodney McCray scored 19, 16 and 16 points, respectively.

NBA

The Rockets led 29-25 at the first-quarter break and ran away to a 63-43 halftime lead. Houston extended the margin to 78-54 midway through the third period before foul trouble enabled the Jazz to narrow the deficit slightly.

"I didn't see them doing anything different except their shots went in," Utah Coach Frank Layden said. "The other night they were missing and today they were going in. They had some very beautiful fast breaks."

Pistons 121, Nets 111

Isiah Thomas scored 29 points and reserve forward Terry Tyler tallied all of his 16 points in the fourth quarter as Detroit rallied to beat New Jersey.

The Pistons led 64-59 at halftime after Thomas ended the second period with a three-point basket from beyond the midcourt line. But the Nets outscored Detroit 31-23 in the third period to take a 90-87 advantage into the final 12 minutes.

Then Tyler took over in the fourth quarter. His three-point play with nine minutes left gave the Pistons the lead for good at 95-94.

Bucks 122, Bulls 115

Terry Cummings scored 30 points, Sidney Moncrief added 25 and Paul Pressey 22 to pace Milwaukee's balanced attack against Chicago.

The Bucks broke away from a 95-95 tie with 8½ minutes to play on consecutive backets by Cummings, Pressey and Craig Hodges. The Bulls never got closer than three points thereafter.

A fight nearly broke out between Woolridge and Moncrief wih 50 seconds left in the game when Orlando Woolridge was fouled while driving to the basket. Chicago Coach Kevin Loughery was hit with a technical foul for his protest of the call.

76ers 113, Bullets 94

Andrew Toney, who missed the final four games of the season because of an ankle injury, hit 13 of 22 shots from the field and scored 31 points in Philadelphia's romp over Washington.

"I felt good and I felt sharp. The rest did me good," Toney said. "I felt like I was on a roll."

The 76ers took control of the game with a 16-8 spurt in the third period, expanding a four-point lead to 72-60 with 5:12 remaining. The closest the Bullets came after that was eight points.

Julius Erving added 23 points and Moses Malone and rookie Charles Barkley each had 14 rebounds for the 76ers.

Tennis

TOKYO — Defending champion Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia swept to a 6-4, 6-2 victory over John McEnroe in just 76 minutes Sunday to earn the $110,000 first prize in the Suntory Cup.

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. — Fourth-seeded Zina Garrison upset Chris Evert Lloyd 6-4, 6-3 to win the $32,000 first-place check in the Sunkist championship Sunday.

SANTIAGO, Chile — Henrik Sundstrom of Sweden defeated Chile's Hans Gildemeister 6-1, 3-6, 2-6, 7-5, 6-2 in a 3 hour, 35-minute match Sunday, clinching Sweden's 4-1 victory over Chile in Davis Cup tennis competition and moving the defending Cup champion Swedes into the quarterfinals. Sweden will next play India Aug. 2-4 in India.

HOUSTON — Unseeded Australian Paul McNamee upset second-seeded Anders Jarryd of Sweden 7-6, 7-2, 4-6, 6-4 in the championship match of the 51st Annual River Oaks Sunday.

BOCA RATON, Fla— Top-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia easily defeated Spain's Andres Gimeno, 6-2, 6-0 to capture the title at the $40,-000 Mutual Benefit Grand Masters Sunday.

Golf

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany beat Bobby Wadkins on the first playoff hole and scored his second consecutive victory Sunday, this one in the Sea Pines Heritage Classic. Langer, who last week became the first German to win any of golf's major titles, needed only a two-putt par on the first extra hole to turn back Wadkins and take home the $72,000 first prize.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Patty Sheehan refused to bow to pressure from a challenging Alice Miller and shot an even-par 72 Sunday for a tournament record-tying 14-under-par 275 and a two-stroke victory in the $200,000 J&B Scotch Pro-Am. The triumph was Sheehan's second 1985 LPGA win.

SEOUL, South Korea — Taiwan's veteran Chen Tze-chung shot a par 72—280 in the closing round Sunday to win the $120,000 Korea Open.

TOKUSHIMA, Japan — Taiwan's Tu Ai-yu sank a 20-foot birdie putt on the final hole to win the $80,000 Tokushima Tsukinomiya Ladies Classic by one stroke over Japan's Tatsuko Osako Sunday.

Angels subdue Diablos, 10-9

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Tito Nanni's two-run pinch single to tie set up Juan Cruz' game-winning sacrifice fly in the eighth and Greg Key, Midland's Angel-in-the-Outfield saved it in the ninth as the Midland Angels finally subdued the El Paso Diablos, 10-9, Sunday at Angels Stadium.

For the faithful who ignored the Angels' record and other early-season problems and then sat through a couple of showers despite a budding rout which saw Midland trailing 6-2 in the third and apparently going down for the third time in the series, their loyalty was dramatically rewarded.

For most of the game, the Angels seemed to be running on an endless treadmill. Every time, Midland scored, the Diablos would come back with a run of their own.

Midland still trailed 9-6 going into the eighth and time was running short. A lead off walk to Reggie Montgomery followed by Bill Merrifield's single up the middle, his third hit of the game, and Key's double to left, scoring Montgomery, brought Ed Myers out of the bullpen to replace Doug Norton. For El Paso, Myers has been like money in the bank, one win and two saves, both against the Angels.

ENTER "TEE-Toe, Tee-Toe" Nanni to a chorus of 808. "I've never been much of a pinch hitter, but in that situation, with none out and runners on second and third, I only had to make contact to get a run home. I was fortunate enough to get a hit and drive in two runs."

The line single to right came with two strikes and chased home Merrifield and Key to tie it.

As the infield charged in for the bunt, catcher Doug Davis beat the odds, dumping a textbook sacrifice down the third baseline, so perfect it became a hit and the NC State product took second on the wild desperation throw by Myers. Nanni was held to third by the umps.

Mark McLemore was walked intentionally, after Kevin Davis was called out on strikes, to load the bases.

With a 1-2 count, Cruz walked away from the plate, "I was trying to concentrate. Last year when I was with the A's, I faced Myers and I knew he had a good breaking pitch. The first two pitches were breaking pitches and then he threw his fast ball for the second strike. Out in El Paso, he had gotten me out with a breaking pitch, so I choked up. I just wanted to hit it somewhere."

Cruz did with a medium fly to center, deep enough to get Nanni home from third with the go-ahead run.

JOHN Beuerlein delivered a two-out single in the ninth and the Diablos, 6-1 against the Angels this season going into Sunday's game, were still alive. Leftfielder Key kept the fans in suspense right up until the end before catching up with Alan Cartwright's pinch hit drive with a back-to-the-plate, one-handed over-the-head stab.

"It carried better than I expected and I didn't get a good jump. Then, I realized the only chance I had to catch the ball was to jump. Luckily, I've got some jumping ability."

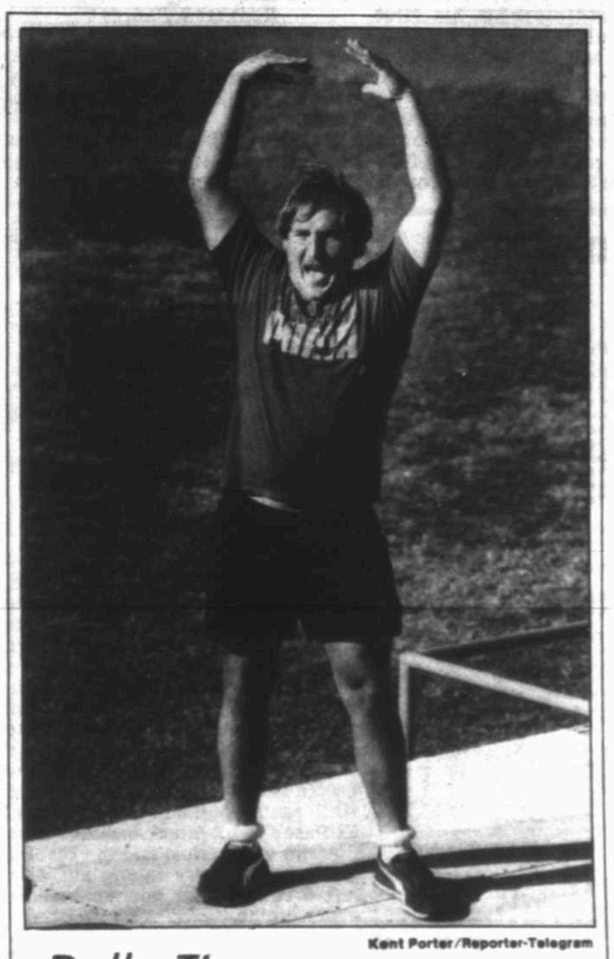

Up until the circus save, Key's contributions came on offense, two doubles and three rbi. His sac fly in the second scored Merrifield, who had doubled home Montgomery. Key also doubled home a run in the sixth.

After one-run losses the two previous nights, this was the kind of return from the depths of despair upon which to build something good.

And while the Angels were struggling to come back, Tom Bryden, the sidearm reliefer who has been wallowing in frustration, held the Diablos at bay for three innings for his first win in three decisions.

Of course, it was Nanni's hit that put the Angels' in position to win and his mere appearance out of the dugout started the crowd. It's something he is used to. "My name has been popular wherever I've played. No, it doesn't bother me. To the contrary, it's nice to have people behind you. I like it."

Giants need more runs

Associated Press

The San Francisco Giants are losing these days because they aren't scoring many runs. The Cincinnati Reds aren't scoring many, either — but that hasn't kept them from winning.

"We'll take every one we can get," Cincinnati player-manager Pete Rose said after Sunday's 1-0 victory over San Francisco extended the Reds' winning streak to seven games. "Score one run and win, score two runs and win, or score nine runs and win — whatever it takes."

The Reds haven't exactly been killing teams in their streak — scoring but two or less runs in three of the last seven games. The Giants, meanwhile, suffered their sixth straight loss, dropping four one-run games in their last five.

"I've never been on a ballclub that went this many times without scoring nothing," said Giants Manager Jim Davenport.

THE REDS scored the only run they needed when Eric Davis tripled off Atlee Hammaker, 0-2, with two outs in the third and came home on a catcher's interference call as he tried to steal home.

Davis broke for home on a 3-1 pitch to right-handed hitting Gary Redus and easily beat the tag from catcher Bob Brenly, who moved in front of the plate to take a high pitch from Hammaker. Brenly was called for interference and Hammaker was charged with a mandatory balk.

"Atlee went into his windup, and I could see (Davis) out of the corner of my eye," Brenly said. "He was well over halfway there and Atlee hadn't even started making his move toward the plate yet. He had no idea the guy was running.

"I knew if I stayed back (in the catcher's box) we weren't going to get him, so I tried to cheat and I got caught."

Tom Browning, 2-0, scattered five hits over the first eight innings as the Reds matched their longest winning streak of 1984, keeping them in first place in the NL West, 1½ games ahead of San Diego and Los Angeles.

Cubs 4, Expos 0

Richie Hebner stroked three singles and drove in three runs and Dennis Eckersley fired a five-hitter for his second consecutive shutout as Chicago ended Montreal's four-game winning streak.

Eckersley, 2-1, who tossed a 10-inning, five-hitter in beating Philadelphia 1-0 in his previous start, didn't allow a Montreal runner past second base. He walked only one batter and struck out three in recording his ninth victory in 12 decisions since July 15 of last season.

Hebner, playing at first base in his first start of the season, sent the Cubs into a 2-0 lead in the first inning with a two-run single against David Palmer, 0-2. It was all the support Eckersley would need.

"I had good control," Eckersley said. "My sinker was sinking, and I was making them hit the ball on the ground when I had to. And we got some runs."

Phillies 10, Mets 6

Ozzie Virgil singled in the winning run as Philadelphia snapped a 6-6 tie with four runs in the seventh inning to defeat New York.

Reliever Kevin Gross, 1-2, allowed only three hits and one run in 4 2-3 innings, striking out five and walking only one. Kent Tekulve, acquired in a trade with Pittsburgh Saturday, worked two scoreless innings in relief.

Flyers propped up

Associated Press

Sooner or later, Brian Propp was going to act like the 43-goal scorer he was during the National Hockey League season.

Sunday night, he did just that with a three-goal performance in the second period to lead the Philadelphia Flyers over the New York Islanders 5-2. That victory gave the regular season champions a 2-0 edge over the Islanders in the Patrick Division finals.

"Maybe I didn't score much in the last few years, but I think I've played my best hockey in the playoffs," said Propp, whose hat trick provided his first three goals of these playoffs.

Mike Keenan, the Flyers' coach, knew Propp would come around.

"Brian has had his chances to score and you can't keep him off the scoreboard for long," said Keenan. "He was due to break out and get a couple of goals and tonight he proved why he is a consistent 40-goal scorer in the NHL."

And the Flyers are proving that their surge down the stretch during the regular season — in which they won 16 of their last 17 — was no fluke.

"We were the best hockey team in the NHL over the regular season," said Tim Kerr, who had a goal and three assists. "Everybody keeps talking about our youth but they are the ones who helped us through the regular season and I don't see any reason why they shouldn't get us all the way through the playoffs."

All the series resume Tuesday night, at Uniondale, N.Y., Quebec City, Bloomington, Minn., and Winnipeg.

Philadelphia grabbed a 3-0 lead on a goal by Ed Hospodar and two by Propp in the first period, then coasted. Goalie Pelle Lindbergh stopped 26 shots for his fifth consecutive playoff victory.

Canadiens 6, Nordiques 4

Mats Naslund's second goal of the game with 4:52 remaining, when he converted a backhand pass by defenseman Rick Green, was the winner. Naslund also scored in the second period, capping Montreal's comeback from a 2-0 deficit and giving the Canadiens a 4-2 lead.

But the Nordiques tied it 4-4 after Michel Goulet and Peter Stastny each scored his second goal of the game in a 45-second span early in the third period.Serge Boisvert, Chris Chelios, both on power plays, Mike McPhee and Bob Gainey, into an empty net with 58 seconds remaining, also scored for the Canadiens.

Black Hawks 6, North Stars 2

At Chicago, Curt Fraser scored two goals in a five-goal second-period blitz for the Black Hawks, who handed the North Stars their first playoff loss. The teams combined for five goals in 3:06, eclipsing the mark of five in 3:20 set by Minnesota and Philadelphia on April 29, 1980.

Chicago's Keith Brown opened the barrage at 1:12, tipping a slapshot by Darryl Sutter past Minnesota goaltender Gilles Meloche.Ken Yaremchuk made it 2-0 15 seconds, then Minnesota tied it when Dino Ciccarelli drilled a wrist shot over goalie Murray Bannerman's shoulder at 2:48, and Tony McKegney connected on a 35-foot slapshot at 4:07.

Twins need work on 'High Fives' in wake of rare win

Associated Press

When you haven't won in a long time, it's easy to forget the little things —like "high fives."

"Kent Hrbek said he'd forgotten how to do a 'high five,' " pitcher John Butcher noted after hurling Minnesota to a 2-0 victory over the Oakland A's. "There was a lot of missing going on out there," Butcher said of the hand-slapping scene after the Twins snapped a nine-game losing streak on Sunday.

Butcher didn't miss much while he was sitting on the bench awaiting his turn to pitch.

"I noticed the last couple of days that the A's were swinging at a lot of first and second pitches," he said. "I just tried to keep the ball down and let them hit it. I knew they'd be up there hacking."

Butcher evened his record at 1-1 by striking out two and walking none while allowing Oakland just three hits.

Butcher's victory also stopped a six-game Oakland winning streak.

"That's usually the way a winning streak ends, against a hot pitcher," Oakland Manager Jackie Moore said. "He pitched a heck of a ballgame."

The Twins' tall right-hander faced only 28 batters, one over the minimum, throwing 81 pitches in the game that took just 1 hour, 55 minutes.

"I liked those 3½-hour games better, when we were scoring eight or nine runs," Moore said.

"He got a lot of groundballs with his sinker. Hopefully, this will get us going toward winning a lot more games," said Kirby Puckett, whose two-out single in the fifth inning drove in the only runs of the game.

Royals 3, Tigers 2

A bases-loaded single by Darryl Motley in the 13th inning drove in Willie Wilson with the winning run as Kansas City edged Detroit.

The winner was Dan Quisenberry, 1-2, the fourth of five Kansas City pitchers. Quisenberry took over at the start of the 10th and worked 2 2-3 innings, allowing one hit.

Detroit loaded the bases against reliever Larry Gura with two outs in the bottom of the 13th, but Gura earned his first save when he got Kirk Gibson on a game-ending groundout.

The Royals' Steve Balboni extended his hitting streak to six games with a solo homer off Detroit start Milt Wilcox, who was making his first start of the season.

Orioles 3, Blue Jays 2

Gary Roenicke's towering, two-run homer lifted Baltimore over Toronto and gave pitcher Dennis Martinez his first victory of the season.

The loss snapped Toronto's four-game winning streak.

It was Roenicke's second homer of the season — and his second off Toronto starter Jimmy Key, now 0-2.

Damaso Garcia homered for Toronto.

Indians 3, Yankees 0

Tony Bernazard homered for the second straight day and Verne Ruhl, Dave Von Ohlen and Tom Waddell blanked New York on seven hits to give Cleveland the victory.

Ruhl started for the Indians and pitched four innings, giving up four hits, before departing because of a stiff right shoulder. Von Olhen, 2-1, took over to begin the fifth, while Waddell came on in the ninth to record his third save of the season.

Cleveland shortstop Julio Franco, who missed Saturday's game, returned to the starting lineup and went 1-for-4 to continue to lead the major leagues with a .486 average.

White Sox 7, Red Sox 2

A two-run double by Carlton Fisk keyed a seven-run, seventh-inning rally and carried Tim Lollar and the Chicago White Sox over Boston.

Loser Roger Clemens, 1-2, had a two-hit shutout working when the White Sox struck in the seventh.

Lollar, 1-1, allowed three hits in the seven innings he worked, but one was Tony Armas' fourth homer of the season in the fourth inning.

Rangers 5, Brewers 2

Don Slaught belted a home run and singled twice to back the combined eight-hit pitching of Mike Mason and Dave Stewart as Texas completed a three-game sweep of Milwaukee.

Slaught slammed his first homer of the year in the fourth and Cliff Johnson hit a solo shot, his third, in the sixth.

Mason, 2-1, scattered three hits through seven innings, giving up two runs in the eighth.

Angels 9, Mariners 2

Juan Beniquez, Brian Downing and Doug DeCinces drove in two runs each to lead California over Seattle.

Geoff Zahn, 2-0, pitched four-hit ball through seven innings and benefited from the Angels' six-run explosion in the first two innings. Doug Corbett worked the last two innings for the Angels.

Beniquez slammed a two-run homer, his first of the season, in the fourth inning.

The Mariners scored their only runs in the sixth on Gorman Thomas' two-run homer, his fifth of the season.

NATIONAL

"We ran out of gas after the fourth inning," said Mets Manager Dave Johnson. "But I'm not worried about our ability to score runs."

After the Mets made it 6-6 in the fourth on Strawberry's RBI groundout, the Phillies scored in the seventh on Virgil's RBI single, another RBI base hit by Glenn Wilson and a two-run double by pinch-hitter Greg Gross.

Astros 4, Braves 2

Bob Knepper gave up only four hits in six innings and Jose Cruz got three hits to lead Houston over error-plagued Atlanta.

Knepper, 1-0, allowed no runs and only one hit over the first five innings in gaining his first decision of the season in his third start. He struck out three and walked one.

Cruz's three hits, two by Denny Walling and four errors by the Braves were enough to let the Astros send the Braves to their sixth defeat in nine home games.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 0

Terry Pendleton hit his first career grand-slam home run and Bob Forsch and two other pitchers combined on a six-hitter to lead St. Louis over Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals were leading 2-0 in the seventh when Pendleton drove a Rod Scurry pitch into the left-field bleachers at Busch Stadium. Lonnie Smith bunted his way on and Tommy Herr and Andy Van Slyke walked to load the bases before Pendleton's blast.

Forsch, 2-0, left the game after six innings because of a cut on the middle finger of his pitching hand. Andy Hassler and Bill Campbell pitched the final three innings for the Cardinals.

Dodgers 2, Padres 0

Orel Hershiser pitched a two-hitter and Candy Maldonado and Mariano Duncan each belted home runs to lead Los Angeles over San Diego.

Hershiser, 2-0, had a no-hitter through six innings but Tony Gwynn broke it up when he lashed a leadoff double to left in the seventh. Before Gwynn's hit, Hershiser had retired 29 batters without a ball being hit to the outfield over his last three games.

Padres starter Dave Dravecky, 0-1, blanked the Dodgers until Maldonado led off the seventh with his second home run. Duncan made it 2-0 in the eighth with another leadoff home run.

Nanni played at Salt Lake City, a Mariners Pacific Coast League farm, last summer and was signed by the Chicago Cubs in Dec. and subsequently traded to California for Angel Moreno.

The way things started out Sunday, Midland appeared destined for its fourth straight defeat. Jesus Alfaro hit his first homer in the third for two runs and Joey Meyer belted his seventh of the season and sixth against Midland in the seventh. El Paso's 13-hit attack included four doubles and a triple and the Diablos got a hit in every inning and also left a runner, just one, on base in every inning.

The way Juan Neives, a 6-3 lefthander from Avon, Conn., who is 17-4 for his last two minor league seasons, was going, El Paso was headed for its fifth straight win. Going into the home sixth, the Diablos led 7-2.

Cruz singled, Devon White walked and after Montgomery popped up, Merrifield gounded a run-scoring single through the left side. Key doubled into the left field corner and that brought on Norton for the fading Nieves.

Mike Heath got the inning's third run home on a grounder before North got the side out.

Sesame Street Live comes to Midland

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

His appearance is unusual, to say the least.

His voice is deep and raspy, his sentence structure broken. His fur is blue and his eyes can only be described as "googley." Most of his face consists of a giant mouth. And his philosophy of life can be summed up in one word: "Cookie!"

Cookie Monster and other residents of 123 Sesame Street — the nation's second-most famous address, after 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue — will be in Midland this week for a series of performances of their "Missing Bird Mystery."

Cookie, as he is called affectionately, is a resident of television's Sesame Street and has charmed millions of children while subtly helping them learn the alphabet, numbers and more abstract concepts such as in and out, up and down and cooperation.

In an exclusive telephone interview, Cookie discussed some fascinating but little-known information about himself. His birthday is Nov. 2, and although he is large, he is still very young — in fact, he is younger than his friend Big Bird, an eternal 5-year-old.

Cookies are his favorite food — obviously — and chocolate chips are his first choice. Robert Love, who helps Cookie in his performances, said the blue monster consumes two packages of Chips Ahoy daily.

But his manners leave a lot to be desired. Cookie has been known to munch on "just about anything that doesn't move," Love said.

His figure is round, but Cookie doesn't consider his weight a problem.

Cookie is looking forward to coming to Midland. "Cookie loves Texas."

In spite of his unusual looks, Cookie is a nice monster. Sometimes, though, children are afraid of him. And because he's so young, "usually he's more afraid of them," Love said. Then everyone laughs, and the fear disappears.

In its fifth season, the Sesame Street Live shows, produced by Bob Shipstad and presented by Vee Corporation in cooperation with Children's Television Workshop, will be shown at 7 p.m. on Friday, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Saturday, and 1:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. on Sunday at the Chaparral Center. Tickets for the 90-minute performances are $8 and are available at Chaparral Center Box Office and Sears in Midland and Odessa. For more information call 684-9811.

American toads lovable creatures, warts and all

Associated Press

No one thinks of the fat toad as a master musician, but the trilling song of the American toad has been compared to the opening movement of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata."

The unappreciated toad has long been the victim of bad publicity, according to an article in the May issue of Sports Afield, and not only does his singing talent go unnoticed, but he is wrongly blamed for causing warts if handled.

American toads do not give people warts, which in any case are not contagious. Toads do secrete a toxic fluid from their skin glands when pressured, but the poison is harmless to humans unless it is rubbed into the eyes or mouth. Even then, it causes only temporary irritation — not warts.

The poison does work on some predators who might consider the toad a tasty dinner. A dog who tried to eat a toad, for instance, probably would cough it out as soon as the toad's poison touched the dog's mouth and throat. Snakes, on the other hand, are immune and often swallow toads whole.

Other legends about toads include the myth that they represent loathsome and hideous people, or that it sometimes rains toads and frogs. Magazine writer George Harrison believes the latter stems from the way young toads and frogs move across the countryside in great numbers on rainy nights.

Only male toads sing, and their spring song is intended to attract females and, according to some researchers, to defend tiny territories in the marshland.

Besides the spring trill, toads also chirp when they are handled and scream when they are attacked.

It takes two to three years for a toad to become sexually mature, during which time toads live a solitary life on dry land, eating and growing during the warm months and hibernating through the cold.

If a toad survives its aquatic or tadpole stage, it may live three or four years in the wild. One captive toad lived for 31 years.

Eating is high on a toad's list of things to do, and insects are a favorite food. It has been estimated that during the three summer months, a garden toad will consume up to 10,000 insects.

Beetles, caterpillars, grasshoppers, spiders, snails, earthworms and smaller salamanders, toads and frogs all are on a toad's menu. They drink by absorbing water through their skins.

Toads never eat anything that doesn't move, according to George Porter in "The World of the Frog and the Toad." Nor do they stalk their prey.

The toad waits for dinner to come within range, then with incredible speed whips out its tongue, which is fastened to the front of its lower jaw and is loose at the back. The insect is captured on its sticky tongue and flicked back into its mouth.

The speed of the process is faster than the human eye can follow.

DEAR ABBY

Those who don't pay for fire protection could get burned

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: There is absolutely no justification for the actions of the Salem, Ark., volunteer firefighters who stood around and watched a $150,000 home burn down because the owner hadn't paid the $20 annual dues.

I am a volunteer firefighter in Boles, N.M., and I sincerely hope that what happened in Arkansas doesn't reflect on all volunteer firefighters.

The majority of us are hardworking, dedicated people whose only pay is the satisfaction of helping others.

Our priorities are:

1. Rescuing people from burning buildings.
2. Protecting adjoining property from catching fire.
3. Putting the fire out.

Nowhere is there any mention of money. I hope the citizens of Salem, Ark., will do something to correct this problem. — TAMI HARRIS, CAPTAIN, BOLES ACRES VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPT.

DEAR ABBY: Please point out the fact that there are three Salems in Arkansas. They are: Salem, Ark., in Fulton County; Salem, Ark., in Pike County; and Salem, Ark., in Saline County.

Abby, please make it clear that the volunteer firemen who refused to fight a fire because the homeowner had not paid his $20 dues were NOT from Fulton County — they were from Saline County.

I feel that people who would stand by and let a home burn when they could have saved it should not be allowed to be firemen. — DONNA JUSTUS, NEWPORT, ARK.

DEAR ABBY: I am amazed that you would criticize the volunteer firefighters for refusing to risk their lives to save the home of someone who was too cheap to pay $20 a year to protect it.

If you don't carry automobile insurance and are involved in a collision, do you really think you could call an insurance agent and say, "Quick, write me up a policy to cover the wreck I just had!"? — W.W. McCULLOCH, WENATCHEE, WASH.

DEAR ABBY: So you think the volunteer firefighters should have saved that $150,000 house even though its owner had not paid his $20 annual dues? Oh sure, just like Blue Cross should pick up your $50,000 hospital bill even though you failed to pay your premiums, and the Los Angeles Police Dept. will respond to a burglary in Santa Monica.

I have no sympathy for a nut who owns a $150,000 home and refuses to pay a measly $20-a-year fee in case he has a fire. He took a gamble and lost!

If the volunteer firefighters had fought that fire, nobody in the community would ever pay his dues again. Why should he, if he can get the same service free? — FOR THE VOLUNTEERS

Sanders named winner of pageant

Tina Marie Sanders, 17, daughter of Steve and Irene Sanders of Midland, was crowned 1985 West Texas Miss T.E.E.N. April 13 at Midland College. First runner-up was Armedda Tate of Big Spring, and Marvilyn Blair of Andrews was second runner-up.

Other winners were Yvonne Salazar, scholastic achievement; Brandy McHaney, volunteer service; Miss Tate, speech; Miss Blair, talent; Miss Sanders, interview and formal presentation; Miss Blair, congeniality; and Carrie Powell, photogenic.

Contestants were between 14-18 years of age, maintained at least "B" averages in school and volunteered at least 12 hours to some worthwhile charity of civic work. The March of Dimes is the national charity organization of the pageant.

Miss Sanders received a $750 cash scholarship and an expense-paid trip to the 1985 Texas Miss T.E.E.N. pageant to be Aug. 30-Sept. 1 in Dallas.

A special kind of competition

Beginning May 21, the eyes of Texas will be upon Memorial Stadium in Austin as hundreds of handicapped and mentally retarded youth participate in the annual Texas Special Olympics Track and Field Day.

More than 100 youths from Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Andrews, Pecos and other area communities will participate in Special Olympics — a year-round, ongoing event held for the mentally retarded and handicapped.

The event, held in conjunction with independent school districts across Texas, serves as a specially designed program to meet the needs of eligible handicapped students in the public schools, homes, hospitals and other institutions. It provides competition in the areas of track and field, softball, basketball, frisbee, soccer, gymnastics, bowling and wheelchair races for students who are orthopedically, visually, speech or multi-handicapped, hearing impaired, deaf/blind, mentally retarded, autistic, learning disabled or emotionally disturbed.

Patterned after the "other" games, the Special Olympics began in 1968 with a national meet for 1,000 children. Originally sponsored by the Kennedy Foundation and the Chicago Park District, it has since acquired other sponsors across the United States, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico and several foreign countries; and the 1,000 participants in 1968 have grown to over 600,000 today.

The reasons for the existence of Special Olympics, according to Ray Unterbrink, executive director of the Midland Association of Retarded Citizens, are:

— To sponsor year-round sports training.

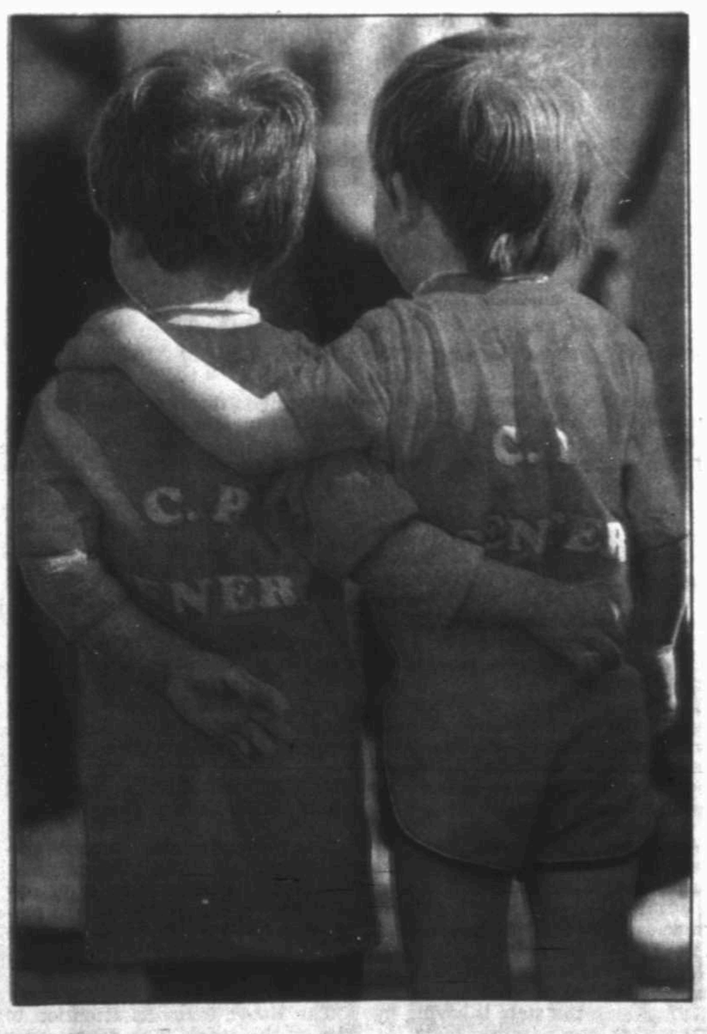

— To serve as an intermediary between the handicapped and the community.

Judge declares mistrial in trial of four Bandidos

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A government informant, accused of trying to sell his daughter for drugs, was unable to persuade a federal jury of the guilt of four Bandidos motorcycle club members on trial for drug trafficking.

A mistrial was declared when the jury remained deadlocked after three days of deliberating the case against James Lyndon Cheatham, 31; Steven Robert "Boo Boo" Barbour, 39; Patrick "Rawhide" Ledoux, 44; and Karen Brown, 31.

U.S. District Judge Hayden Head Jr. gave Assistant U.S. Attorney Jesse Rodriguez until today to decide if they want to try the case again.

Cheatham was charged with one count of conspiracy to distribute methamphetamines and six counts of distribution. The others each were charged with conspiracy and two counts of distribution.

Head on Saturday afternoon granted a motion of acquittal for Barbour, agreed to reduce his bond from $125,000 to $20,000, dismissed the conspiracy count against Ledoux and dropped two of the distribution charges against Cheatham.

On Saturday morning, jurors told Head they were unable to reach a decision and Head asked them to continue deliberations.

"First of all, this is an important case. The trial has been expensive in time and effort and money," he told the panel. "If you fail to agree on a verdict, the case is left open...another trial will serve only to increase the cost to the government and defendants."

The jury received the case Thursday afternoon and deliberated two hours. The jury returned Friday and deliberated about eight hours, before telling the judge it was hung. The judge ordered the jurors to continue deliberations Saturday.

Twice on Saturday, the jury sent notes saying it had failed to reach a unanimous verdict on any of the charges

One juror said the panel was deadlocked 10-2 for acquittal since Friday.

Runoff gives Tarrant County first black mayor

Associated Press

Runoff elections Saturday swept two incumbents off the Dallas city council and gave Tarrant County its first black mayor.

One of the losers in the bitter Dallas campaigns was a 65-year-old Dallas councilman who angered minority groups by suggesting that some criminals should be hanged from the county courthouse.

But Jim Hart refused to concede to economics professor Bill Milkie, a political unknown, and said he will ask for a recount if Milkie's 52-vote margin holds up without corrections.

Milkie, who got into the race only days before the filing deadline, said he ran because he was concerned about statements that Hart made in the past year, including Hart's assertion in a letter that illegal aliens "with no moral values" were destroying some Oak Cliff neighborhoods.

Hart, who was seeking a second term, also was quoted extensively when he suggested that some criminals be hanged on the courthouse square and left for several days as a message to others. He also said thieves' fingers should be cut off.

Hart said the statements merely reflected the feelings of his constituency.

Another Dallas City Council incumbent, 29-year-old investor and real estate broker Paul Fielding, also was beaten.

Fielding fared well only in black precincts and garnered only 42 percent of the vote to 58 percent for neighborhood activist Lori Palmer, who trailed in the first election two weeks earlier, but who had the active support of other candidates.

Fielding attributed his defeat to the repercussions of casting controversial council votes in a district almost evenly divided among whites, blacks, and Hispanics, with a large gay population.

Bill Nelson, president of the Dallas Gay Alliance, and Joe May, a Hispanic businessman, not only endorsed Ms. Palmer after they failed to make the runoff, but they gave her their telephone list of supporters.

In the race to succeed defeated mayoral candidate Max Goldblatt on the council, longtime civic leader John Evans, 63, captured 58 percent of the vote to defeat former Dallas County Commissioner Jim Tyson, 64. Evans is a former chairman of the City Planning Commission.

Computer system analyst Don Walker became the first black mayor in Tarrant County history when he got 60 percent of the votes in the southeast Fort Worth suburb of Forest Hill.

The community also was assured of the county's first black majority City Council, since the results put four blacks on the seven-member council. New members will be sworn in on Tuesday.

"I'm still pinching myself," Walker said Saturday night, an hour after learning of his victory. "I know this probably has historic implications in Tarrant County, but I'm ready to go to work."

In neighboring Fort Worth, incumbent councilman Jim Bagsby, 52, overcame a conviction for writing hot checks on behalf of a nursing home he owned briefly last summer and won election to a fifth 2-year term by taking 52.7 percent of unofficial returns in beating funeral director Virginia Webber, 40.

Mrs. Webber, who was only 23 votes short of a majority in the first election two weeks ago, refused to concede and said she would decide today whether to challenge the election.

She said she questioned some of Bagsby's campaign contributions and alleged that state workers campaigned for him during office hours.

Mrs. Webber blamed her defeat on fliers identifying her as a Republican in the predominantly black, Democratic council district.

Bagsby, with a strong record of supporting black causes, hadn't faced a serious challenge for the council seat until this year, when his personal and financial problems brought out two opponents.

Dallas oilman pushes pool-fencing legislation

DALLAS (AP) — When his 22-month-old son fell into the family swimming pool and suffered permanent brain damage, University Park oilman Jim Francis thought he was alone with his tragedy.

But after spearheading a statewide effort to compile statistics on similar accidents, Francis learned there were hundreds of other families suffering as well.

Each year in Texas, 250 children either die or suffer severe brain damage after falling into neighborhood swimming pools. In an attempt to reduce that toll, two Dallas legislators have introduced bills in Austin to require fences around residential swimming pools.

"Young children are like unguided missiles, zigging and zagging their way to the pools," Francis said. "People put their children in playpens because it keeps them there. We want to make pools secure, like playpens."

The bill is being modified by members of two legislative subcommittees, but in its original form it would require pools at single-family residences and apartments to be surrounded on all sides by fences.

Municipal ordinances in many Texas cities already require pools to be enclosed, but a building can serve as one side of the fence.

Under the proposed state legislation, a fence with a locked gate would have to separate the home from the swimming pool if a window or door opened from the residence to the pool.

Property owners who violate the law could be fined a maximum of $200.

"We think hundreds of children's lives could be saved," said Lee Jackson, R-Dallas.

But the proposed legislation has met with opposition from the apartment, swimming pool and fence industries.

"We think it places an undue burden and expense on the homeowner," said Bob Dalchau, who is vice president of the Austin chapter of a swimming pool-industry organization, the National Spa and Pool Institute.

"Every major city in the state has its own fencing requirement," Dalchau said. "We support anything that will prevent additional drownings. But we don't think this will."

Lynn Heimerl, director of the Austin-based International Fence Industry, said the bill is too vague.

Francis, who served as director of former Gov. Bill Clements' campaign, said he believes his son would have benefitted from just such a law.

One Sunday morning four years ago, 22-month-old Bo Francis wandered out a partially open back door of the family's home, walked through the unlocked gate to the family pool and fell in.

Mexico reportedly beefs up security for tourists

WASHINGTON (AP) — In response to pressure from the United States, Mexico is beefing up law enforcement to better protect American tourists, the State Department has told Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

Assistant Secretary of State William Ball wrote Bentsen, D-Texas, that the department decided against issuing travel advisories in Guadalajara and Puerto Vallarta despite being "particularly concerned" about crimes against Americans in those cities.

"As a result of our discussions with Mexican officials at the local and national level, we believe improvements are beginning to be made," Ball wrote.

He said crimes and accidents involving U.S. tourists in Mexico were up 13 percent in 1984 over 1983.

But, added Ball, "no accurate accounting of assaults or other incidents involving Americans in Mexico exists because our citizens often forego making an official complaint to the Mexican police, sometimes even in cases as serious as rape or robbery."

Ball said that in 1983 there were 736 assaults compared with 806 in 1984. The number of abductions or disappearances rose from three to 15.

But Ball stressed that the figures should be considered in the context that an estimated 4 million American tourists visit Mexico every year.

Bentsen had asked the department to issue travelers' advisories to Americans considering visiting Guadalajara or Puerto Vallarta because of reports of increased crimes against Americans.

Though the department turned him down, Bentsen said in an interview taped for distribution to Texas television stations, "They did tell me they're getting better cooperation out of the Mexican government.

"You have more Mexican policemen on the highways, they have put more Mexican policemen in those towns, and on the town of Puerto Vallarta, even have the cooperation of the Mexican Navy to try to provide security on the beaches," Bentsen said.

Ball said that in Puerto Vallarta Mexico is funding the hiring of 200 more police officers, installing eight new police booths and putting 10 new police patrol cars into service.

In response to State Department expressions of concern Mexico has established an office under its attorney general to monitor investigation and prosecution of crimes against Americans, Ball said.

The Ministry of Tourism also operates a 24-hour "hotline" for tourists needing aid, he said.

"However, I do not want to leave you with the impression that we are complacent about the situation," Ball wrote. "We are actively concerned with the safety of American visitors and are fully engaged with Mexican officials to reduce the number of assaults and accidents to the extent possible."

Items valued at $1,100 reported stolen Sunday

From Staff Reports

A videocassette recorder, camera, .38-caliber pistol and other property together valued at $1,100 were reported stolen Sunday from the O.G. Riggs residence, 925 N. Dallas.

According to police reports, the burglary occurred between 12:30 and 9 p.m. Also reported stolen were videocassette tapes, stereo speakers and about $20 in coins.

Cecil Dowdy, 115 W. Delaware, reported a radar detector, valued at $245, was stolen Sunday from a truck parked at the Best Western Inn in the 1000 block of U.S. Interstate 20.

Police reports said the truck was parked on the east side of the motel facing north. There was no apparent forced entry to the vehicle, according to the report.

In another weekend complaint, Tom Hyde, 1607 N. H St., told Midland police that someone removed four hubcaps from his vehicle while it was parked at his residence between 9 a.m. April 13 and 11 a.m. Sunday. The property is valued at $400.

Vickie Sharp, 2928 W. Louisiana, reported the burglary of a 35mm camera from her residence.

According to reports, the burglary occurred between noon April 14 and 10 a.m. Sunday. The camera is valued at $360.

It's time to get grass ready for summer

St. Augustine Planting

Till the area to be planted thoroughly, as you would a garden. A balanced fertilizer such as 12-24-12, at the rate of 5 lbs. per 1000 sq. ft., can be tilled into the soil while preparing the soil for planting. (Optional) Tilling a fertilizer into your soil allows the phosphate (this is the second number on your bag of fertilizer) to be tilled two to three inches deep into the soil. Phosphate is essential for establishing a good root system. If phosphate fertilizer was broadcast on top of the soil, the phosphorus would be absorbed into the soil at a rate of one-half inch per year. There are two good methods used in planting St. Augustine sod; (1) Planting sod (grass with dirt on it) but cutting the sod into three or four inch plugs; and (2) Planting sprigs by tearing the grass apart and cutting three or four nodes (joints) to each sprig.

April Bermuda Grass Lawn Management

1. Water once a week, one inch per application.
2. Apply 5-10 pounds of 16-8-8 or 12-6-6 or 10-5-5 and five pounds of copperas (iron sulfate) per 1000 square feet of turf.
3. Check for fungus problems.

Pecans

Hickory shuck worms are still in the larval stage in which they overwintered in pecan shucks. We are monitoring their emergence this year and I'll keep readers informed of when they emerge.

Home Landscape

It is still spring, but elm leaf beetles are already out and doing damage to the leaves of elm trees. So far only the adults are present, but they seem to have overwintered very successfully this year. Looks like elm tree owners are in for another long battle to keep their trees green in 1985.

Shortcourse offered

Midland County Extension Agents Agriculture and Home Economics — have planned a two-day short course on Horticulture and Food Preservation. These are scheduled for today and Thursday at 7 p.m. in the new Extension Building located on East Highway 80. We are behind the Midland County Exhibit Building, and just a little west.

The program will be the same on both days, so select whichever day is best for you and plan to attend. We believe this will be a most informative and interesting program for you!

Senate panel hopes to wrap up budget plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A Senate committee moving toward completion of a two-year state budget of about $36 billion scheduled another session today in hopes of wrapping up final details on the proposal.

The Senate Finance Committee worked Sunday on the spending plan, approving a budget for the Texas Education Agency, which is charged with overseeing the broad educational reforms adopted by the Legislature last summer.

Sen. Grant Jones, committee chairman, said the Senate appropriations bill includes about $36 billion for 1986-87. The House proposal, which is for $36.4 billion, is scheduled for a floor vote Wednesday.

Jones, D-Abilene, said balancing the Senate bill would require a tuition increase and an increase in numerous state fees.

A major difference in the House and Senate bills is that the House proposes raising state employee salaries by 3 percent each year of the biennium if seven fee bills also are passed.

The Senate bill contains no raises for the 180,000 people employed by the state.

"I don't see that we've got prospects of passing anything that leaves having enough money to make a significant employee pay raise," Jones said.

Another difference is in kindergarten funding. The Legislative Budget Board staff also told the Senate committee the House bill includes funding for full-day kindergarten. Senators indicated they prefer half-day state funding with the additional money going to the basic pupil allotment.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby attended the 4½-hour committee session as senators questioned new State Education Commissioner William Kirby on how the TEA would spend the money it has requested.

Afterwards, Kirby told reporters the Senate bill would provide the agency with about $36 million a year to administer public school programs — about $2.3 million less than in the House budget bill.

Much of the Senate committee discussion centered on what to do with $10.37 million the state is saving by postponing competency tests for teachers on their specialties and $1.67 million that would be raised by certain education fees.

A motion was accepted 9-2 to use the money for other TEA projects, including training teacher appraisers, certifying teachers, helping school districts remain accredited and developing a common curriculum for all public schools. These are items required by the Legislature.

An additional $325,120 was earmarked for school guidance centers, which now get a total of $3 million a year, and $1.5 million was added for community education, much to the surprise of Sen. Bob Glasgow.

"I'll be damned," he exclaimed when his amendment passed 7-4.

The committee also approved special provisions, called "riders," that would restrict hazardous duty pay for state prison employees and provide $660,000 a year to reimburse counties that prosecute crimes committed by prison inmates.

The House turns its attention to money this week, with debate on a fee bill today and the appropriations bill Wednesday.

Included in the fee bill is about $101 million worth of increases. The measure would add $2 to the cost of a four-year drivers' license and raise the cost of a variety of other state licenses.

Gov. Mark White has been pushing for additional increases, including a 400 percent hike in the fee for filing a lawsuit. It now costs $25 to file suits in state district courts.

The fee bill, and several other revenue measures, are needed to balance the $36.4 billion two-year state budget proposed by the House Appropriations Committee.

Appropriations committee members worked for weeks to produce a bill they hope will balance without a tax hike. Chairman Jim Rudd and Speaker Gib Lewis said they are confident the goal can be met.

In addition to the $101 million fee bill, it will take a state college tuition hike of about $280 million to help balance the proposed House measure.

Clements: I might have to run against White

DALLAS (AP) — Former Gov. Bill Clements says he may have to run for governor next year unless he can find a strong Republican opponent for Democratic Gov. Mark White.

Clements has spent much of the past six weeks talking to people like Roger Staubach and Ross Perot but none of those has given much inclination to run for governor.

Clements is still searching for qualified candidates to carry the GOP banner against White next year, the Dallas businessman said in an interview with The Dallas Morning News.

Despite past statements that he wouldn't run for office again, Clements said there is a possibility he himself will oppose White, who stunned Clements with an upset win in 1982.

"With all the ifs and ands and buts, which makes it speculative, I guess you'd have to say that's probably correct. But it's not anything I'm wanting to do or I'm running for," Clements said.

Clements met last weekend with some high-ranking Republican officials to discuss potential candidates, including himself, the newspaper reported Sunday.

Clements said his recruitment drive is not aimed at any particular candidate.

"I'm not trying to recruit one of my big buddies in order to say this is my candidate. If we can get two or three or four viable, outstanding and highly regarded candidates, why not?" Clements asked.

Sen. Phil Gramm, a conservative Democrat and leading Boll Weevil before changing parties and winning election to the U.S. Senate, has made overtures toward former Rep. Kent Hance, suggesting that Hance oppose White as a Republican in 1986.

Hance wouldn't rule out a switch of parties, saying he'd learned "never to say never," but indicated such a strategy is not in the cards, the News reported.

Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas of Hunt, also indicated last week that he is considering a race for governor.

Corporate raider T. Boone Pickens of Amarillo has also said he has considered a bid for the governor's mansion, but that his current business ventures might keep him too busy to enter politics.

Pickens told The Associated Press last week he will make a decision within the next six months.

According to Clements, White is vulnerable because of several things, particularly advocating union dues checkoffs for state employees.

"Union dues checkoff is as sensitive an issue as there is in Texas, and for Mark White to advocate that is amazing," Clements said.

Christmas in April spreads cheer among elderly citizens of Beaumont

BEAUMONT (AP) — With arthritic legs stretched in front of her, Annie Levias talked of happiness and miraculous visions while Southwestern Bell employees, working outside, repainted her home's flaking white coating.

Just down the street, more telephone employees sawed on the fresh boards of Rita Bean's new porch, while she reclined in a bedroom and spoke of her devotion to God.

Those were two of 18 houses that drew the attention Saturday of 270 Southwestern Bell workers, who donated their day off to help those less fortunate: the elderly living on scant incomes and the handicapped who cannot help themselves.

The volunteers call their program, which originated in Midland in 1973, "Christmas in April."

In addition to the telephone employees, members of three churches and workers for an area newspaper also participated.

Richard Wyatt, Jefferson County's Christmas in April chairman, said about 16 more groups, representing area businesses, will paint and clean more homes next Saturday.

Wyatt said area merchants donated all materials for the program. Carey Mason, a member of the Southwestern Bell planning department and organizer of the phone company employees, said he originally expected only enough workers to repair three homes.

"It was surprisingly easy to get volunteers," Mason said of the turnout that included nearly half of the employees of Southwestern Bell in the county.

Last week, program volunteers visited Mrs. Levias, telling her of their Saturday repair plans in time for her 77th birthday Thursday.

"I'm so happy, I don't know what to tell you," Mrs. Levias said in a muffled voice, while outside grinding drills prepared her front door for a new screen.

Some citizens question auction item

DUNCANVILLE (AP) — One vasectomy auction in this usually peaceful and conservative town was pushing things — but two in less than a month is ridiculous, some citizens say.

"They've gone too far. I really think people look at it and say that's a dumb thing to auction off," said City Councilman Gene Gilmore.

The latest auction — on Saturday — was sponsored by local builders and real estate agents. The vasectomy attracted six bidders and brought in $350.

"They're just trying to gain publicity," Gilmore said. "We can find better ways to promote Duncanville than that."

Builder Jim Sargent, past president of the Duncanville Builders Association, admitted that the vasectomy was included in the auction to "draw a little more attention to our city — a very selfish reason.'

The first auction, which drew national attention, was sponsored by a preschool PTA. The March 30 sale added $650 to the money raised in what the group called its most successful auction ever.

While the PTA auctioned off the operation by sealed bids, the builders took public bids.

Some citizens of this city of 33,000 question the propriety of auctioning off such a personal item.

Texas bank profits show slump during first quarter

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A slump in the energy industry was a key factor in declining quarterly profits for all but two of Texas' seven largest bank holding companies.

Five of the banking giants reported lower profits in the first quarter of 1985 than the last quarter of 1984. Three of the seven also showed lower earnings for the same periods, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

All six of the bank companies that provided figures for non-performing loans showed higher levels of bad loans, compared both to the fourth quarter and to the first quarter of 1984, the newspaper reported.

Bad, or non-performing, loans are those on which no payment has been made for at least 90 days.

MCorp of Dallas declined to provide figures for its non-performing loans because of accounting difficulties in the aftermath of its merger with Southwest Bancshares Inc., the Star-Telegram said.

"This just shows that we're in for a tough year for earnings," said Frank Anderson, analyst for Weber Hall Sale & Associates in Dallas.

Several bank chief executives agreed. They issued warnings at their respective shareholder meetings that 1985 shows little potential for earnings growth. They blamed the continuing slump in the energy industry, long the lending bulwark for Texas banks.

Every major Texas bank showed a profit for January through March, the newspaper said. However, there were disappointments.

Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc. of Houston saw its record of consecutive quarterly profit increases snapped at 64.

Fort Worth-bases Texas American Bancshares Inc. was a strong performer in 1984, but reported a 15 percent decline in profits for the first quarter of this year compared to its first quarter last year.

First City Bancorporation of Houston reported earnings of just $7.6 million on nearly $18 billion in total assets.

The lead in non-performing loans belonged to InterFirst Corp. of Dallas with $797 million, down slightly from the $816 million reported a year ago.

Texas Commerce reported non-performing loans of $485 million, compared with $242 million a year ago and $367 million at the end of 1984. RepublicBank Corp. of Dallas showed non-performing loans of $495 million, up sharply from $352 million last year.

"Those non-performing loans are cutting seriously into earnings," Anderson said. "As long as there is no improvement in the non-performing loan level, it will be hard for earnings to improve."

Most of the bank companies reported drops in earnings, citing problems with energy borrowers.

"With the price of oil flat, we're seeing problems developing with some of the better-capitalized creditors in the drilling industry," Anderson said.

Problems in real estate lending haven't materialized yet, bankers said.

The high office building vacancy in Houston and Dallas has prompted some analysts to suggest that the consequences of overbuilding eventually will hit Texas banks in a manner similar to the impact that declining oil prices had on the industry beginning in 1983.

The U.S. Comptroller of the Currency, which examines federally chartered banks, has said the agency is reviewing the real estate portfolios of the larger Texas banks.

Analysts said most of the major banks, while slimming down their energy portfolios over the past two years, have replaced those credits with loans to real estate developers.

IRS eyes taxing fringe benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — How do you value a joy ride in a $200,000 logging truck? What's it worth when a stewardess' mother takes a free plane ride, or when a corporate executive flies friends to the Super Bowl on the company jet?

Those are among the tough new issues facing the Internal Revenue Service. The questions have to be answered and somebody has to pay the taxes on those fringe benefits as part of Congress' efforts to slow tax cheating.

A three-day IRS hearing last week on those issues demonstrated the trouble Congress faces as it prepares to consider wholesale overhaul of the income tax. Few companies or individuals who face the prospect of paying more taxes are going to take it lying down.

Congress fears many people occasionally use vehicles and other business equipment for personal purposes but claim a tax deduction as if all the use were for business.

So, under a 1984 law, if a logging company executive, for example, drives a big logging truck home at night to avoid vandalism, he has to pay income tax on the value of that ride.

"Believe me, there is little joy and exhilaration" in driving a logging truck, Richard Lewis of the American Pulpwood Association told the hearing. "It isn't a perk — it's punishment" to drive one.

Lewis said vehicles that do not lend themselves to personal use — such as for driving the family to church — should be totally exempt from the requirement.

Free, space-available plane tickets that airline employees pass out to relatives other than their spouses and children are now being taxed as income to the employee as if they were worth 50 percent of the highest coach fare for a particular flight.

"But very few people pay the highest coach fare," protested Xaviere Chatagnier, an Atlanta-based flight attendant for Eastern Airlines.

"There is no market value to a seat that would otherwise go unoccupied," added Vicki Frankovich, president of the International Federation of Flight Attendants. She said many employees' families find it is far cheaper to pay for a discount ticket than to have a "free" ticket valued at half the full coach fare.

Professional photographer James H. Pickerell told the hearing his camera is as much a tool of his trade as a stethoscope is important to the medical profession. Using that camera to take pictures of his family or his vacation should not be considered a taxable fringe benefit but as practice to improve his skills, he said.

Manufacturers of private aircraft said the new rules for valuing personal trips on corporate planes threaten their companies' existence in what is already the industry's worst year on record.

While the government expects the aircraft rule to pick up about $5 million in taxes a year, James Walsh, president of Beech Aircraft Corp., Wichita, Kan., said strict enforcement will cut Beech's profits so deeply that its tax payments will fall by more than $5 million.

"Sales and jobs are being lost every day," added Russell W. Meyer, chairman of Cessna Aircraft Co., Wichita.

Then there are the policemen and firefighters. If they drive an official vehicle home, they — like many other types of business and government employees — are expected to value that privilege at $3 a day and count that as taxable income.

John J. Norton, president-elect of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, called the proposal "unfair, unworkable and ill-advised." Officers are required to drive their cruisers home, he said, in order to increase police presence in the community and cut emergency response time.

Police officers driving to work are not the usual commuters, said Col. Robert L. Suthard, superintendent of Virginia State Police. "They are in their workplace the minute they set a foot in a police vehicle."

Business executives differ on economic future

From Staff Reports

HOUSTON — A current survey of Texas Business leaders' expectations shows a mixture of positive and negative signs compared to the poll taken three months ago.

The survey, regularly taken by the Texas Association of Business, covers expected sales, profits and changes in the number of employees at the respondent's own company in the months ahead. Poll results came from 134 Texas business leaders, statewide.

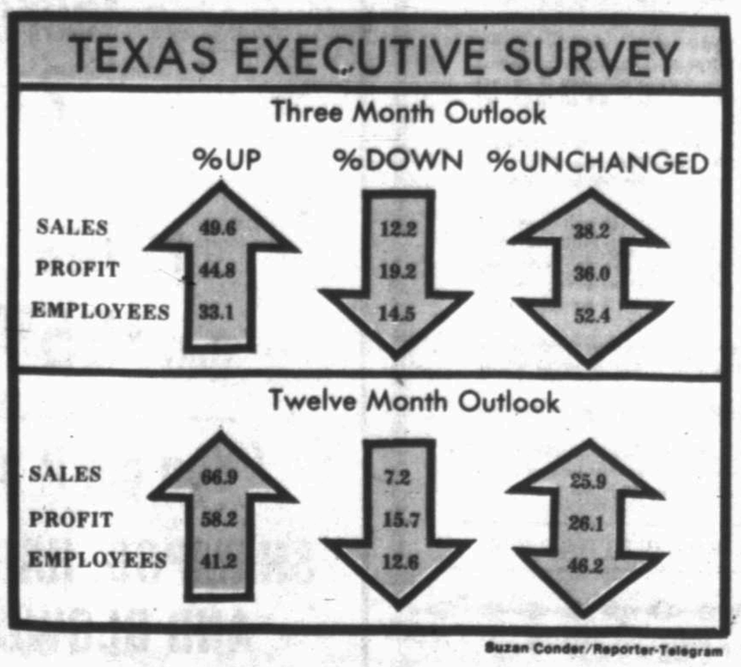

Almost a third of those responding indicated that they would be hiring additional employees before July 1. This presents an increase of just over ten percentage points compared to last quarter's poll which showed that just 23 percent were expecting to add employees.

The information conveyed by contrasting last quarter's survey with present predictions is not unalloyed good news, however. Executives expecting employment downturns at their own firms within the next three months are up over two percentage points compared to last quarter's poll. Now 14.5 percent say that the number of employees at their places of business will decline durin g the present quarter.

Both sales and profits appear slightly more positive than in the previous poll. Those predicting increased profits are up a bit to 44.8 percent compared to 41 percent previously. The percentage of those expecting higher sales figures for the next quarter also edged up marginally to 49.6 percent from an even 49 percent.

The present survey showed that Texas business executives were more optimistic in their predictions for the next twelve months than for the new quarter.

According to the survey, in the next twelve months 66.9 percent of the Texas employers see an increase in sales, 58.2 percent look for profits to go up and 41.2 percent expect to do some hiring.

Mesa Petroleum says it will seek injunction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mesa Petroleum announced Sunday it will seek a court injunction to prevent Unocal Corp., parent of Union Oil of California, from immersing itself in debt to stave off a Mesa-involved takeover effort.

The injunction will be sought Monday in Delaware Chancery Court, said David Batchelder, Mesa chief financial officer.

Batchelder said Mesa wants Unocal's "highly conditional poison pill" offer for 49 percent of Unocal's stock to be ruled invalid.

Mesa, led by Texas oil tycoon T. Boone Pickens, will seek the injunction as an amendment to a lawsuit filed 10 days ago seeking to overturn recent Unocal bylaw changes, Batchelder told the Los Angeles Times on Sunday.

The amendment also seeks damages from certain Unocal directors, including Unocal chairman Fred L. Hartley, of $1.57 billion if the exchange offer is consummated, the newspaper reported in Monday's editions. That figure represents the difference between Mesa's $54-per-share offer and Unocal's $72-per-share offer for the 87.2 million shares that would remain if the Mesa group of investors succeeds in step one of its two-pronged takeover bid.

Unocal offices were closed late Sunday, and there was no immediate comment.

GUIDE TO SMALL BUSINESS

Small businesses benefit from deregulation

By Maxine Wall

Has deregulation of certain industries helped small businesses?

Deregulation has resulted in sizable benefits for small businesses. New products have been introduced and new markets have opened in regulated industries. Prices have fallen, and thousands of new firms and new jobs have been created. Small firms with fewer than 100 employees have contributed a disproportionate percentage of new jobs in deregulated industries — from 52 percent in 1976-82 to 83 percent in 1980-82.

Deregulation has affected both sides of the economic equation. Many new small firms have begun supplying newly competitive markets in the deregulated sectors; business customers — both large and small — have been affected by price reductions and service innovations in these sectors.

Are computer-assisted learning programs available for the small business person?

Computer-assisted training covering numerous aspects of small business management is available to present and prospective small business owners in 38 cities. Through the coordination of the U. S. Small Business Administration, the training is available at Control Data Learning Centers.

Some of the topics include: locating your business, record systems, purchasing, revised marketing, cash flow, international trade, insurance and contract bidding. These topics, as well as others, have been incorporated into Control Data's PLATO computer base.

All present and prospective small business owners are eligible to take the course for a nominal fee.

For further information concerning PLATO and the training sites, contact the SBA office at 1611-10th Street, Suite 200, Lubbock, Texas 79401 or call (806) 743-7481.

I have read numerous examples of the Pentagon paying exhorbitant prices for spare parts — hammers, nuts and bolts, even toilet seats. Can't small businesses produce such parts at great savings?

In many instances they can — and do. That is why Congress last year passed a bill which directs the Small Business Administration to place procurement center representatives at just about all major military bases. These PCRs work to direct military orders to small firms.

In the last two fiscal years, a handful of SBA's representatives saved the taxpayers $187 million by directing spare parts contracts to small companies, which carried out order at les cost than major military contractors. SBA estimates that such spare parts savings will total about $170 million this fiscal year and more than $400 million in fiscal 1986, which begins October 1.

In one case, a single PCR saved taxpayers $150 million alone on two small business contracts.

Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower through morning trading today after opening mixed.

Auto, retail, aerospace and computer issues paced the losers, but oil-service stocks advanced.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which inched up less than a point last week, lost 3.42 to 1,263.14 after two hours today.

Declines held a 7-5 lead over advances on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index fell 0.33 to 104.67.

Big Board volume totaled 33.64 million shares at noon EST, against 36.39 million at that hour Friday.

Short-term interest rates slipped again in the money markets today. The rate on one-year Treasury bills, for example, fell 6 basis points — or one-hundredths of a percentage point — to 8.16 percent.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Market cycle's measurement can be misleading, adviser says

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — How can so many investment advisers graphically depict what appear to be superior performance records, when in fact their customers haven't even kept pace with the market?

Generations of investors have been intrigued by the question, and their inability to discern the answer has cost them dearly. The deception even takes in professionals, seducing pension managers who should know better.

And yet, advisers who rely on the illusion may do so without distorting in any way the list of stocks bought and sold during the period involved. The data in their sales materials are accurate and "truthful."

The catch, however, involves the whole truth rather than just part of it.

Despite the seeming completeness and the length of time covered by the ads, the period selected is almost always one that includes an important bull market. But the period seldom covers an entire market cycle.

As smart investors know, the market is cyclical, with a cycle covering the period from trough to peak to trough. By omitting the final trough, boasters can claim superior performance when in truth they merely rode a bull market.

If the claims covered a full market cycle, including a bear market, they might give an entirely different picture of the broker's results and his talents as a stock picker.

"The arbitrary five-year measurement period that some companies use can be especially misleading," says Martin Sass, an adviser who has run into the problem in seeking the accounts of pension funds and other institutions.

"It may reflect only a rising market, as happened during the past five years," says Sass, who declares:

"I don't know of any money manager who has beaten the market every single year in the past 10 years, and there are no reasons for a sponsor to expect him to."

Unfortunately for investors, few advisers offer detailed long-term records that cover several or many cycles. The most complete records seem to held by Value Line, the largest investment advisory service.

Over the past 20 years Value Line has logged by computer every one of about 1.5 million stock recommendations. The period includes the go-go years of the late 1960s and the market collapse of 1974, and various bull and bear markets.

Value Line outperformed the Standard & Poor's 500 stock average in 16 of those years, according to one accounting, and in 17 of 20 years by another method of calculating.

By one method of reckoning it cost its followers money in six years, and by the other technique, seven years.

In both respects — in relation to the S&P average and in terms of making or losing money — last year was a loser for Value Line. The S&P average rose, while Value Line fell 8.6 percent or 2.1 percent, depending on the calculation.

The Value Line system, developed over 50 years by Arnold Bernhard, is outperforming the averages this year, but more significant is the performance record when viewed for the 20-year period as a whole.

As of April 16, based on one method of caculation, Value Line's No. 1 ranked stocks had shown a gain of 6,688 percent, excluding dividends and broker commissions, compared to gains of 30 percent for the Dow Jones industrial average and 101 percent for the New York Stock Exchange composite index.

The calculation method used by Value Line statisticians might, however, have presented problems to an investor, since it assumes the investor would have shifted his portfolio throughout the year to hold only No. 1-rated stocks.

Value Line rates 1,700 stocks on a numerical basis of one to five, with the rankings changing through the year. To hold only No.1 rankings, therefore, would mean constant shifting — and tremendous brokerage fees.

However, if the investor chose Value Line's No. 1 rankings on Dec. 31 and held them for a year — disregarding changes in rankings and good news and bad — he would have shown a 20-year gain of 1,486 percent.

Taxes would cut into this, of course, but probably not nearly so much as a bad market would cut into the performance of those advisers who cite only a five-year rather than a 20-year record.

John Cunniff is business analyst for the Associated Press.

Interest on municipal bonds not subject to tax

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Many neighbors in our retirement community did not report their municipal bond interest when they filed their 1984 federal income tax returns. As a result, they paid little tax — or no tax at all — on their Social Security benefits.

These people say the Internal Revenue Service does not have any record of that interest. Are they right? If so, I feel like an absolute sucker for reporting my municipal bond interest.

A. Your neighbors' information is reasonably factual. The IRS does get reports of taxable interest paid on corporate and U.S. Treasury bonds, bank accounts and such, as well as dividends paid on stocks. Forms 1099, listing those payments, go to the people who receive taxable interest and dividends. Copies are sent to the IRS in "machine readable" form and are feed into computers to catch tax cheats.

Surprisingly, there's no similar reporting requirement covering the interest on municipal bonds issued by states and their political subdivisions. Because 1099s are not issued, the revenooers have no quick and easy way to check on that interest. But, if any of your neighbors are audited, they'll probably be nabbed.

Technically, municipal bond interest is not subject to federal income tax.

However, beginning with 1984, Social Security recipients were supposed to add to their adjusted gross income half of their SS benefits and all their municipal bond interest. If the resulting number passed a threshold — $25,000 for an individual, $32,000 for a married couple filing jointly or zero for married people filing separately — up to half of the SS benefits becomes taxable.

This, of course, is a backdoor way for Uncle Sam to tax some municipal bond interest.

• • •

Q. It seems certain that Congress will pass a major tax reform law this year, among other things, making interest from municipal bonds subject to federal income tax.

Will that mean I will have to pay tax on the municipal bonds I have owned long before the new law is passed?

A. That's highly unlikely. Although almost anything is possible at Endsville-on-the-Potomac, the U.S. Constitution still prohibits the passage of ex post facto laws. Anyway, none of the various tax reform proposals call for levying federal income tax on interest from all municipal bonds. New "public purpose" bonds issued to pay for state and local facilities certainly will retain their tax-free status.

However, we'll probably see an end to tax exemption on interest from new "industrial development" bonds issued to finance the building of everything from factories to office buildings to go-go bars.

• • •

Q. I sold several municipal bonds through a brokerage firm. I suspect the broker did not get the best prices for me. The bonds are traded in the over-the-counter market and I could find no price quotations on them in newspapers or any other publications.

Is there any place I can learn the actual trading prices of those bonds on the days I sold?

A. No. There are literally hundreds of thousands of municipal bond issues on the market and no central place where all trading prices are recorded.

Although competition among brokerage firms and other dealers in the municipal bond market usually keeps prices pretty much in line, you might get a slightly different price at Dealer A than at Dealer B. The same thing applies to the many corporate bonds traded in the over-the-counter market.

Also, when you sell or buy O-T-C bonds in relatively small amounts, you usually do not get as good a price as when you trade in large numbers. It comes as a shock to many people to learn that anything less than $100,000 — sometimes, even $250,000 — is considered an "odd lot" in the municipal or corporate O-T-C bond market. For U.S. Treasury bonds, it's $1 million.

Devices can make use of inhaler easier

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have asthma and I have been trying to use a medical inhaler, but it doesn't seem to work. Does everyone have trouble with these things or is it only me? — Albert, Columbia, Md.

Dear Albert: Anyone experiencing difficulty with the use of an inhaler should contact his or her physician. There are devices available that facilitate the use of the inhaler, and these should be tried before any patient concludes that an inhaler can't be used.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If a man takes medicine for high blood pressure and, as a result, begins to have sexual problems, would this also apply to a woman who takes medicine for high blood pressure? — Mrs. C.P., Macon, Ga.

Dear Mrs. P.: Sexual dysfunction in patients on antihypertensive medication is not limited to men.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Can you tell me what the symptoms of ovarian cancer are? I've heard that the reason it's so dangerous is that people don't know they have it until it's too late. If they knew the symptoms, they could go for help earlier. — Mrs. E.L., Battle Creek, Mich.

Dear Mrs. L.: The early symptoms of ovarian cancer are not very specific. For example, a woman may experience abdominal pain or other mild digestive disturbances. The symptoms usually become more specific only when the disease is advanced.

Regular checkups provide the best chance of detecting the disease at an early stage.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I can understand why pregnant women who have been exercising all their lives can continue to exercise without harming themselves or their babies. But I have never been very physically active. Now that I am pregnant, would it be better for me to wait until after I give birth to start with some kind of exercise program? I don't want to do anything foolish. — Mrs. B.E., Atlanta.

Dear Mrs. E.: Dr. Christine Haycock, of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey in Newark, recommends that pregnant women who have been sedentary perform exercises that can build strength and flexibility. Such women can also take part in some aerobic exercises, such as walking and swimming; like any beginner, however, they should start slowly.

Of course any indication that a pregnancy is not proceeding normally should alert the expectant mother to reduce her level of exercise or to stop completely.

Republicans call for special Indiana election

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are calling for a special election, and threatening "guerrilla tactics" if the House votes to seat the Democrat who won a recount in a disputed Indiana election by a four-vote margin.

A three-man task force was to meet today to consider a final report on the recount in the closest House election this century. The full House was expected to take up the matter later in the week.

Rep. Frank McCloskey defeated Republican challenger Rick McIntyre by 116,645 votes to 116,641, according to complete but unofficial returns from the first recount ordered by the House in 24 years. McIntyre had been declared the winner after the election and a state recount.

Rep. William M. Thomas of California, the lone Republican on the task force, said inconsistencies in the way recount rules were applied by the 2-1 Democratic majority require a new election to determine the winner.

The Democrats on the task force were William Clay of Missouri and Leon Panetta of California.

Panetta has said a special election "is one of our options" but declined to speculate on what the panel would recommend to the House, which is the final judge of its members' elections.

"If the House votes to accept McCloskey, the Democrats had better be prepared to reap the whirlwind," Thomas said at a news conference Friday.

Asked to elaborate, he said "that will be whatever it is whenever we feel it's necessary." He added, "I'm certainly not going to telegraph the various tactical maneuvers...we'll have to use guerrilla tactics."

Thomas declared: "What happened in Indiana was, plain and simple, a rape — of Indiana election law, Indiana 8th District voters, and the Republican Party candidate for Congress."

Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, said in a letter to colleagues, "Some Republicans may challenge the result and call for a special election. But this would contradict their previous position opposing a special election, as well as the indisputable fact that the General Accounting Office recount was fair, accurate and complete."

Coelho added: "The bottom line is that this is a credible result — the only credible result — and the House should abide by it."

McIntyre had been certified the winner of the Nov. 6 election by 34 votes and increased his margin to 418 votes in a state-ordered recount. But Democrats complained of inconsistent counting procedures and the House refused to seat either candidate.

Woman lied about rape to protect her home life

CHICAGO (AP) — Cathleen Crowell Webb, who has recanted a rape charge that sent a man to prison six years ago, says she lied about being attacked in order to preserve the only happy home life she had ever known.

"In the end I think this is all going to come out right," Mrs. Webb wrote in the latest issue of People magazine.

Meanwhile, an appeals court today was to consider whether to set bond for Gary Dotson, who is serving a 25-50 year sentence in the case.

Dotson, 28, had been free on bond briefly earlier this month after Mrs. Webb came forward with her recantation, prompting a court hearing.

But after the hearing, the judge who originally heard the case discounted Mrs. Webb's recantation and ordered Dotson back to prison.

The four-judge panel of the First District of the Illinois Appellate Court was asked Friday by Dotson's attorney, Warren Lupel, to set bond.

Lupel also said Sunday he will file a petition to vacate the conviction based on statements by the state's forensic expert at Dotson's 1979 trial.

According to the May issue of The Chicago Lawyer, released today, Timothy R. Dixon, a forensic expert from the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement, testified that semen found in Mrs. Webb's underwear could have come only from someone with Dotson's rare Type B blood. Only about 10 percent of the population has such a blood type.

But Mark Stolorow, chief serology expert for the department, testified April 11 that the semen could have come from any man with several other blood types that constitute about two-thirds of the population — not just from a Type B.

Dixon was not at his office Saturday, and no one answered his home telephone. According to the article, Dixon said the official transcript of the trial misquoted his testimony.

Lupel on Friday filed a petition for executive clemency with Gov. James Thompson. Thompson said he would decide by Tuesday if he should call a special meeting next month of the Illinois Prisoner Review Board to consider the clemency issue.

Mrs. Webb says she made up the rape story at age 16 because she feared she was pregnant and didn't want her foster parents to know she had had sex with her boyfriend.

In the People article, released Sunday, Mrs. Webb wrote that she suffered for years because of her "monster lie."

"I hated my life, and for years would lie in bed at night and cry because I hated myself and my life," she said.

She described an unhappy childhood: Her mother was committed to a mental institution and her father left her with an elderly aunt who later sent her to live with a married cousin.

The new foster parents provided "the first semblance of a happy home I had ever been in," and fear of losing it led her to lie, she wrote.

In 1977, at age 16, she had sex with a boy and feared she would become pregnant, so she ripped her clothing, scratched and bruised herself and made up a rape story, Mrs. Webb wrote.

She gave a detailed description of the non-existent assailant to a police artist, and identified Dotson in a photograph because it looked so much like the sketch that she feared not identifying him would expose her lie, she said.

NATION IN BRIEF

Reagan will take budget to nation Wednesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will press his case for a budget package cutting the rise in Social Security benefits and killing more than a dozen popular federal programs and subsidies in an address to the nation Wednesday, the White House announced today.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said that the president would speak from the Oval Office at 8 p.m. EST and that the address would be available for live radio and television broadcast.

The Senate, deeply divided over whether Social Security and other popular programs should be trimmed, begins voting this week on a series of spending proposals that include a compromise backed by Reagan and the Republican leadership to reduce proposed spending by $52 billion and slow the pace of the administration's defense buildup.

In all, the blueprint is designed to cut the deficits below $100 billion by 1988 without raising taxes.

Democrats, hoping to transform the budget issue into major election gains in 1986, already have served notice they will attempt to strip the Social Security provision from the package as well as try to restore at least some of the cuts proposed for education, Medicare, Medicaid, Amtrak and farm programs.

Underage teens still drink

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Despite the 1982 increase of the state's legal drinking age to 19, most 17- and 18-year-olds still drink at least once a month, a new state survey has found.

The study issued Sunday by the state Division of Alcoholism and Alcohol Abuse found that teen-age drinking generally declined between 1982 and 1983, down 3.1 percent, to 68.5 percent, among 17-year-olds and down nearly 10 percent, to 75.7 percent among 18-year-olds.

The survey compared two groups of 2,000 randomly selected New Yorkers between ages 16 and 20 in 1982 and 1983.

Five to undergo autopsies

AVOCA, Pa. (AP) — Autopsies are planned for a four-star Air Force general, his wife, and three crewmembers killed when a military jet overshot its landing and burst into flames, officials said Sunday.

The body of Gen. Jerome F. O'Malley, 53, head of the Tactical Air Command, was found in the cockpit and there is a "strong possibility" he was at the controls Saturday when the twin-engine Air Force T-39 jet crashed at Wilkes-Barre-Scranton International Airport, said Lackawanna County coroner Bill Sweeny.

Scientists lose years of data

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — University of California scientists said they lost years of medical research when Animal Liberation Front activists raided their lab, smashing equipment and stealing about 260 animals.

The ALF claimed responsibility for Saturday's raid, in which computer terminals were smashed and yellow swastikas were painted in the basement lab, officials said.

Scientists studying infertility and blindness at the lab said ALF claims of animal mistreatment were false.
