In ceremony at Chamber office

New industry welcomed

By JAMES WERRELL
Lubbock Manufacturing Company was named this morning as the first new industry to locate on Webb AFB property. The ceremony, which took place in the Chamber of Commerce offices, attracted nearly 40 people, including members of the press.

The firm is a major area producer of pressurized tanks for the transport and storage of compressed gases. Its main plant is located in Lubbock, covers about 20 acres and employs 320 people.

The company will occupy three structures on the base, covering 12 acres. These will include a metal frame building with metal siding and two concrete block shops.

The other two structures comprise a water pump station with a large holding drum. The complex was built in 1960 at a cost of $718,000.

BIG SPRING operations will center on repair of damaged tanks, but may eventually branch into the production phase of the industry. Work will begin full swing in 60 days, but the firm will begin to move equipment onto the base within the next few days.

A work force of 30 to 50 people will be hired initially, most, if not all, of whom will be Big Springers, according to company officials. "The force may grow to 100 within 12 months as operations expand."

"We will be hiring as many as possible from Big Spring. We plan to draw on the people here," said Bob Rogers, company vice president. "We have had cooperation in every aspect of this operation. The junior college (Howard College) has even offered to adjust its curriculum to include our special needs in welding training," he added.

Rogers stressed the specialized nature of the work to be done here. According to the vice president, there is little difference between the skills needed in repair of tanks and those used in production of tanks.

The signing of Lubbock Manufacturing was the culmination of four months of negotiations between the firm and the Big Spring Chamber Industrial Team. Principal contact with the company during this period was Clyde McMahon Sr., member of the team.

McMahon was praised by all parties involved for his dedicated pursuit of the new industry, and by the firm itself for his great cooperation.

"I have really begun to understand the concept of city leaders looking after the welfare of the community. Clyde gave us a good 75 per cent of his time, and someone who is that dedicated should carry a lot of respect

THE FIRST AT WEBB — Members of the Rogers family, who own and operate Lubbock Manufacturing Co., sign an agreement which will make their tank trailer company the first civilian industry to occupy Webb Air Force Base. Seated are Mrs. Willie Mae Rogers, secretary-treasurer of the board, and T.A. Rogers, board chairman. Standing are Clyde McMahon Sr. (left), a member of the Big Spring Industrial Team; Thomas Rogers, (center) president of the firm; and Robert Rogers, vice president.

THOUGH HE singled out McMahon, Rogers also cited the entire industrial team, and members of the chamber, the Webb Steering Committee and the City Council for their cooperation.

The Lubbock Manufacturing Company has been a part of the T.A. Rogers family for 47 years. Through the years it has undertaken a variety of enterprises.

In the early '30s, the main operation was cotton gin repair. In 1937 the company moved to the production of butane and propane holding tanks.

During World War II the company produced buoy and landing pontoons for the Navy. Today its main products are pressure vessel transports, and storage tanks for propane, ammonia, carbon dioxide and other compressed gases.

The firm also produces component parts, agricultural equipment and cable layers at its main plant in Lubbock.

Within the last year the demand for tank production and repair has risen sharply for the company. Although the demand was welcome, it posed several problems.

"We got to the point where production and repair were interfering with each other. We were 6 months behind on repair orders and we were beginning to embarrass ourselves," said Rogers.

This sent company officials on a concerted search for a location for new repair facilities. The search included several cities in Texas and at least one in New Mexico.

Why was Big Spring chosen? "All aspects were weighed and Big Spring seemed to offer us the most. Time was a big factor. Labor was immediately available, and your people pulled strings to allow us to move in before the Air Force was completely gone. I don't think that has ever been done elsewhere," answered Rogers.

Bill Albright, chamber vice president, noted that it was significant that the company was signed and would be occupying the site long before the announced base closing of Sept. 30.

"It's an indication of the determination of our community leadership to turn this situation into a positive and progressive era for Big Spring," he said.

active at the time that Big Spring obtained many of its lasting industries, including the Big Spring State Hospital, and Veteran's Administration Hospital.

Her daughter, Mrs. Joe Pond, said, "Mrs. Greene reads the Big Spring Herald from cover to cover. She became concerned with the industrial drive and decided to contribute."

"She believes firmly that Big Spring is getting ready to come back and grow more than it has in many years and she wanted to be among the people who actually backed the project—not just talk about it."

Junior rodeo is nearing

The 32nd Howard County junior rodeo kicks off at 8 p.m. Thursday in the rodeo arena with over 300 participants.

Junior directors for the big show include Dirk Perry, Brent Nichols, Sammy Don Buchanan, Kent Robinson, Randy Phillips, Lyle Grantham, Van Gaskins, Danny Peugh and Paul Ray.

The candidates for queen this year are Toni Hale, Jana Wegner, Lauri Daniels and Tammy Peugh.

The events will include bareback broncs and bulls for the older participants and such events as ribbon roping, break-away, barrels, pole bending and others.

The age brackets are 12 and under, 13 to 15 and 16 to 19. Kelly Brothers are the producers and will furnish rodeo stock and the rodeo clowns for the event.

Kenneth Williams, longtime announcer, will be assisted this year by Ross Westbrook with announcing duties.

With the large number of participants, slack events will continue into the early morning hours after the Thursday and Friday performances.

Tickets are on sale for $1.50 and a pair of boots will be given away nightly.

Nonagenarian has unshaken faith in future of city

Mrs. J.H. Greene, 91, wife of a former Big Spring Chamber of Commerce manager, sent a $100 check to the Industrial Foundation "to invest in the future of Big Spring."

Mrs. Greene who was Nell Ruddick from Colorado City, has always had the interests of Big Spring and West Texas at heart. She moved here 40 years ago in May with her husband, who was the new chamber manager at that time.

He served as chamber manager until he was 72 years old, seven years prior to his death in 1963.

Mrs. Greene recalls that he was

Hundreds forced to flee

Fire out of control

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A brush fire, fueled by bone-dry chaparral and fanned by gusty winds, roared down from the Santa Ynez Mountains today, destroying expensive Spanish-style homes and threatening the downtown of this picturesque coastal community.

Police said an arsonist set the fire. Hundreds of persons fled their homes as firemen fought the blaze which raged out of control in the northeast section of the city, less than one mile from the city's courthouse and about two miles from the Pacific Ocean. At least 150 homes were destroyed.

City Fire Chief Rich Peterson said he did not know how the fire was set, but he said it was started within 200 feet of a 1964 blaze that burned 78 homes in the exclusive, hilly residential area overlooking the downtown and Pacific Ocean beach area. He said no other details were available.

Twenty-two persons were reported injured, most of them suffering from smoke inhalation or minor burns from wind-carried firebrands. No deaths were reported.

Shortly before dawn, the winds shifted and blew from the sea into the fire, then died down altogether. At first light, five bombers and two helicopters began dropping chemical fire retardants on the fire.

The absence of wind was a hopeful sign for the 500 fire fighters who had been battling the blaze since it began around 7 p.m. Tuesday at Sycamore Canyon, near the Riviera, the city's most exclusive residential section where homes cost at least $250,000.

Although the wind stopped, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman said he had "no idea at all" on when the blaze would be contained, the first major step toward putting it out. A fire is contained when a fire lane has been cleared completely around it.

The Forest Service and the city fire department provided the estimate of the 150 homes destroyed. However, a fire department spokesman said the number of residences damaged "would obviously be much higher, but we don't have any good idea right

Home of captain's mother destroyed

The home of Mrs. George Edmonds, mother of Capt. George Edmonds, a graduate of Webb AFB in 1969, was completely gutted by flames in Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Kenneth Cole, of Big Spring, was called by her daughter today with the news. Her daughter, a former resident of Big Spring, Bettie Jane, and husband, Captain Edmonds, are now stationed in Hawaii, but received emergency leave to take care of Mrs. Edmonds in Santa Barbara.

According to Mrs. Cole, only a few personal things were saved from the fire.

Action/reaction: Changes made

Q. Why is there a different artist drawing the cartoon panel, "Rick O'Shay"?

A. We thought you'd never ask. Alfredo R. Alcada and Marian J. Dern assumed the task of keeping Hipshot Percussion alive after Stan Lynde decided he would be happier and his fame perhaps would be more enduring if he painted in oils — so he rode off into the sunset. Lynde reportedly didn't like fighting deadlines all the time. Incidentally, Roy Crane, creator of "Buz Sawyer" died recently. (He spent his early years in Sweetwater). The strip will be carried on, however, by Edwin Granberry, professor emeritus of creative writing at Rollins College, and Henry Schlessner, who actually has drawn the strip for some time now.

Calendar: Junior Rodeo

THURSDAY
Howard County's 32nd Annual Junior Rodeo, 8 p.m. Rodeo Bowl.

All residents of precinct 3, Glascock County, are invited to a social, 8 p.m., in the Lee Drumright Community Center. There will be a microwave oven demonstration. Homemade ice cream and cookies will be served.

The Big Spring State Hospital volunteers, staff and patients will put on a Summer Music Festival at 7 p.m. in the gazebo mini-park area in front of the Allred Building on the State Hospital campus.

Offbeat: House call

PORT LAVACA, Tex. (AP) — James Tagert decided his sore throat was worth a quick trip to the hospital. So he simply set his helicopter down in the hospital's front lawn near the emergency room.

Tagert, a drilling engineer on an offshore oil rig, was flying to work with another man Monday when they spotted the hospital. Astonished emergency room personnel said Tagert's common cold symptoms didn't warrant immediate treatment, so they hailed a cab and went to a nearby clinic.

They returned later, climbed into their helicopter and flew to work. The hospital has no landing pad.

Tops on TV: Boy King

"Tut: The Boy King", a special narrated by Orson Wells, and dealing with the mysteries surrounding the tomb of King Tut, starts at 7 p.m. on NBC.

Inside: Movie plot blamed

AN IDEA for a movie plot triggered the real-life kidnapping of 26 children and their school bus driver, according to information reported after surprise guilty pleas by three young men accused of the bizarre crime. See p. 7B.

OPPRESSIVE government regulations have been blamed for the apparent failure of the Seadrack deepwater oil port project off the Texas coast. See p. 7A.

Rapist will kill?

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — An elusive rapist who has terrorized the Polytechnic area of this one-time cattle capital now has a price on his head.

A spokesman for the Black Chamber of Commerce here said the group is offering $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the man police believe has raped or assaulted at least 10 women, most of them elderly, in the last 3½ months.

"The women are scared out there," a chamber spokesman said. "It was suggested that I remain anonymous because I'm afraid of possible vengeance against my wife."

Police say they have had extra units in the area for several weeks now but thus far all efforts to catch the man have failed.

The man, dubbed the "Poly Rapist" by local newsman and police, struck again Monday wounding 54-year-old Theda Dill Jones. Mrs. Jones was in serious condition at a local hospital early this morning with a bullet wound in her head.

Early last Saturday, police believe the same man was responsible for an attack on Mrs. Gladys Maxwell, 65. The woman said she awoke to find an intruder standing over her bed. Officers said Mrs. Maxwell told them she managed to scare her attacker off when she opened fire with a pistol.

"This has got to stop," said the spokesman. "This man will probably kill somebody."

Hundreds die in Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-ranking Carter administration officials are depicting communist-ruled Cambodia as a country where "tens if not hundreds of thousands" have died. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke told a House panel Tuesday that some "journalists and scholars guess that between half a million and 1.2 million have died since 1975."

Carter hails Italian leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says Italy is recovering from serious social and economic problems under the leadership of Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti. In a toast to Andreotti following a White House state dinner Tuesday night, Carter saluted the Italian leader as a man whose record is "impressive indeed."

Anti-black attitude hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Programs for America's minorities are being jeopardized by an anti-black attitude in the Carter administration and in Congress, the leader of the Congressional Black Caucus is charging. Rep. Parren J. Mitchell, D-Md., told the National Urban League convention on Tuesday he believes President Carter may be reacting too harshly to criticism of his policies by blacks.

U.S. 'deeply disappointed'

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli cabinet met today to decide whether to grant full legal status to three Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River. A cabinet committee approved the move Tuesday. The U.S. State Department said it was "deeply disappointed" by the action and it called settlements in occupied Arab territories "an obstacle in the peacemaking process."

Fifteen prisoners file jail suit

PALO PINTO, Tex. (AP) — A new jail may be built before a law suit filed by some prisoners in the current facility is resolved, Palo Pinto County Sheriff Ray Patterson says.

Patterson said Tuesday that the North Central Texas County had already received $500,000 in state funds to go with county money to finish the new jail. He said the new building should be completed in about a year.

Fifteen prisoners in the current facility filed a class action suit this week in U.S. District Court in Fort Worth claiming, among other things, that the conditions are so bad that some prisoners plead guilty just to get out of the jail.

Some allegations in the suit are fabrications, said Patterson, who added that the 37-year-old jail does not meet present day standards. The suit alleges also that the jail could be a fire trap and that meals are often cold and lack nutritional value.

"The prisoners eat better than I do," Patterson said.

Patterson said the new structure will have 30 beds — six more than the current facility.

"There's a lot of room for improvement in our present jail," Patterson said. "But we are making progress to alleviate the situation."

"It is just in the last few months that we have begun to approach our maximum capacity," he said. "Today on big weekends we might go over the maximum by one or two."

The prisoners' suit also seeks a court order to prohibit Patterson from separating prisoners by race. Patterson denied doing this.

"We do separate the prisoners but only to segregate the high risk people and try to keep them from fighting," he said.

Patterson said there is always room for improvement in law enforcement and "sometimes it takes things like this suit to get the changes."

The suit was filed on behalf of the prisoners by the Texas Civil Liberties Union (TCLU). TCLU attorney John Buckley said in Austin the suit was one of several his organization had filed against some of the county jails in the state. Similar suits are also pending against jails in Burleson (Caldwell) and McLennan (Waco) Counties, Buckley said.

Buckley said he had not received an answer to the suit.

Palo Pinto County Judge Robert H. Smith said he would confer with Patterson and the four county commissioners in drafting an answer formally denying the allegations.

"Those prisoners wouldn't be happy if we kept them in a Holiday Inn," Smith said. "They've got to gripe about something."

No storms 'mystery'

MIAMI (AP) — The summer months are normally stormy times for the Caribbean and regions of the southwestern North Atlantic Ocean. But the absence of even a single tropical storm so far this season has forecasters at the National Hurricane Center wondering.

"It is a little unusual to not have any depressions or tropical systems this summer," forecaster Ray Biedinger said Monday. "So far nothing has happened."

A depression is a surface low-pressure system that can combine with ocean-warmed air to produce first a tropical storm, then a hurricane.

storm and is named when maximum sustained winds reach at least 39 miles per hour. It becomes a hurricane when the winds top 74 m.p.h.

Coahoma council meets Thursday

COAHOMA — The city council will discuss both the police and fire departments when they meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

The councilmen plan to discuss the funding of the police department and also discuss the possibility of again accepting money from Howard County for fire protection.

The funding was stopped after some of the volunteer firemen became upset with the amount and bills on repairing equipment.

The council will also discuss the possibility of putting several lots back on the tax roll through the process of auction and resale.

They will discuss city policies, the water lines in the Foster Addition, and the paving of Ramsey Street and seal coating of other streets in the community.

Trustees will delay meeting

The special meeting of the Big Spring School Board has been postponed until Aug. 8, according to the school administration office.

The postponement was due to problems in getting a quorum. The special meeting had been called to discuss the school calendar and budget.

Donny Knight renamed veep of safety group

Donny Knight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Knight, and Craig Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Drake, attended the National Student Safety program and national convention in Cheney, Wash., at Washington State University.

Knight, a national vice president, presided at the convention in the absence of the president and was again elected a vice president of the national group.

President of the local Big Spring High School Student Council, Knight has been active in safety campaigns at the school ever since he was a freshman and the council has won the state safety award for three straight years.

The two local delegates flew up with 20 Texas high school students, who were also from outstanding district safety high schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Joddie Witte of the Texas Education Agency and Hayden Willhite, representing the Texas Association Student Council executive committee were sponsors. These organizations finance the trip.

Tim Scatfeatti of Colorado defeated Knight for the presidency.

Drake presented a capsule presentation outlining some of Big Spring High's safety activities during the past year. They were honored along with 11 other high schools in the nation.

Next year the meeting will be in Colorado. Donny and Tim also attended the American Driver Traffic Safety Education national meeting in Milwaukee.

Panel fails to reach compromise on abortion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional dispute over spending federal funds to pay for abortions is returning to the House and Senate after the failure of a conference committee to reach a compromise on the issue.

The House is scheduled to vote first on the abortion issue, which is part of a $60.1 billion appropriations bill for the departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

The conference committee, appointed to reconcile differences in the House and Senate versions of the bill passed earlier, was able to agree on all issues except abortions.

At a meeting Tuesday, House members of the panel voted 10-1 against accepting the Senate-passed provision that federal funds could be used to pay for abortions in cases of incest, rape or medical necessity. Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, was the only House member of the panel willing to accept the Senate's terms.

The other House members objected that the phrase "medical necessity" is so vague that it leaves open the possibility that federal funds could be used to pay for most abortions performed on poor women.

Last week Senate members of the conference committee refused to accept a more restrictive House provision permitting federal funding for abortions only when the life of the woman is in danger.

The same provision was written into law in 1976.

Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., chairman of an appropriations subcommittee on the departments of Labor and HEW, said he will recommend that the House adopt an identical provision when the bill comes up for a vote, possibly on Friday.

The House voted earlier this year to ban federal funding for abortions in all cases, a prohibition Senate members on the conference committee rejected. Senate members, led by Sens. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., and Edward Brooke, R-Mass., declined to accept any provision more restrictive than their own.

Stanton school board rejects building bids

STANTON — The Stanton Independent School district board of trustees turned down all bids on remodeling of the physical education facilities as too high when it met Tuesday night.

The five bids were all higher than anticipated and the board turned them down to further discuss the matter.

Supt. Russell McMeans reported that the school has a full faculty with the hiring of two Big Spring women as teachers and is ready for the school year. Mrs. Gay Cowan will teach the seventh and 8th grade English and Miss Tresa Wash will teach 5th and 6th grade science. The superintendent expressed pride in his faculty for the coming year.

The board also approved raising the salaries for the drivers of the bus routes for the coming year on all routes with the short routes raised to $1,200 and the long route to $1,700.

The school will open Aug. 22 as planned with teacher workshop beginning Aug. 15. The five days of school will be taken off the end with Stanton schools to get out next spring on May 18 rather than May 25.

Police beat Part of loot recovered

A sneak thief managed to dip into an open safe at the Sears Store at 403 Rannels, and got away with a substantial amount of cash between 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

According to reports, the safe was located in the warehouse area of the store, and had already been opened earlier by a member of the management.

Taken from the safe were three First National Bank money bags, containing 8 truck titles, checks made out to the Sears Co. a set of keys to the store, and $1,090 in cash.

There were no leads or suspects for the theft until approximately 10:30 a.m. today when a local businessman brought the three missing money bags in order to the police station.

According to Lieutenant Avery Falkner, Detective Division of the Big Spring Police Department, the three bags, containing all but the missing cash, were found in the mail box of Kimo's Palace, on W. Hwy. 80.

Apparently, the thief ditched the bags in a mail box after removing the cash sometime Tuesday afternoon.

The recovered truck titles, keys, and checks were returned to the Sears store shortly after.

Falkner said the cash would be impossible to trace since no record was kept of the serial numbers.

The three bags were kept by the police department in order to check them for fingerprints.

Earl F. Jones, 3800 Calvin, reported that burglars had kicked in the door facing on the north side of his home to gain entry between 9 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

According to reports, nothing has been found missing at this time, but damage to the door-facing amounts to $100.

Someone removed a sliding glass door, and a wooden door from the construction site at 809 Mount Park Drive between 6:30 p.m. Monday and 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

According to reports the doors are worth $85.

Someone took the starter from a 1975 Chevrolet belonging to Frank Edwards, 1321 Elm, between 11 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday.

According to reports, the car was parked on the south side of Edwards' home when thieves stole the starter worth $45.

Eleven-year-old Sandy Huff, 2502 Carleton is under observation at Malone-Hogan Hospital after a 1975 Dodge Van driven by Mrs. Ann Patterson, 2201 Cecilia, struck him as he was riding his bike on Carleton Ave. at around 9:15 a.m. today.

Weather— Panhandle-Plains sector dotted by rain

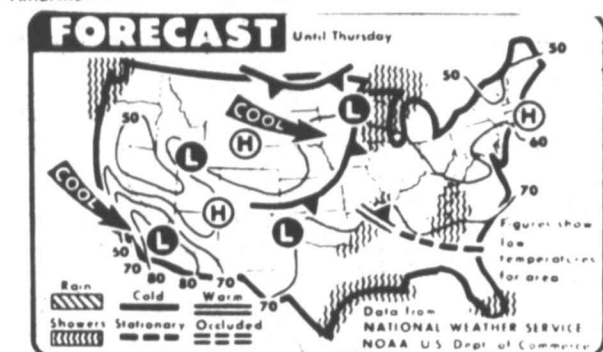

By the Associated Press

Widespread thunderstorms brought briefly heavy rain across a big part of Texas during the night and more were expected today.

The moisture brought a little relief from torrid heat but also made itself felt in sharply increased humidity.

Most of the rain fell in the Panhandle-Plains sector, in North and East Texas and in West Texas east of the Pecos River.

Neutron bomb debate heats up

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A growing debate over the possible stationing of the neutron bomb in West Germany may threaten tentative American plans to deploy the weapon in Central Europe.

Key figures in the ruling Social Democratic party have denounced the new bomb, which is designed to kill while causing relatively little damage to property.

The defense committee of the Bundestag, West Germany's parliament, is scheduled to review the bomb when the Bundestag reconvenes in September. And Defense Minister Georg Leber has called for a public debate over deployment of the weapon in this country.

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt says more study is needed before his government can decide whether to accept the ultra-sophisticated weapon.

But Schmidt acknowledged to reporters that the neutron bomb could give the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "considerable psychological and strategic problems."

Discussion of the controversial weapon has dominated the West German press in recent weeks, and it has become the principal issue of debate in the West German capital.

President Carter says he has not made a final decision on whether to order production of the bomb although he considers the weapon to be in the United States' security interests.

Supporters of the bomb in Congress insist it is needed to counter the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact's superiority in tanks and ground troops in Central Europe. They point out the bomb could kill thousands of Soviet soldiers in a future European war without the destruction of cities that would result from the use of conventional nuclear weapons.

The neutron warhead produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than one-tenth as much blast power, heat and fallout. The deadly radiation emitted is relatively short-lived, lasting no more than a few hours.

U.S. defense officials want to deploy the warhead on Lance missiles and artillery shells. Many of the bombs presumably would be stationed in West Germany, where most NATO troops are stationed.

Uranium discovered

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "Potentially significant" uranium reserves have been discovered in a band of sandstone that runs from near Rio Grande City to Newton County on the Sabine River, paralleling the Texas coast, a University of Texas news release declared today.

Dr. William E. Galloway, working under contract with the UT Bureau of Economic Geology on loan from the Energy Research and Development Administration, conducted the investigation.

Today marks start of new era here

Today marks the beginning of a new era for Big Spring. The contracts have been signed to allow the first industry to move onto Webb Air Force Base.

THE INDUSTRY. Lubbock Manufacturing Co., is an excellent one with a history dating back to 1930. It will occupy one of the large alert hangars on the west side of the base.

This company will be an outstanding contribution to our community, especially since the skills it requires will fit nicely into Big Spring.

Tank trailer repair and manufacturing is a highly specialized field. The fact that the Air Force has allowed this — and hopefully other — firms to begin occupying the facilities at Webb before the base has been entirely closed can keep Big Spring from dropping into the economic depression that has hit some other towns.

With firms like Lubbock Manufacturing moving in as the Air Force departs, the community will be able to keep much of its labor and attract new workers to the area.

New firms like Lubbock Manufacturing will bring talented managers and skilled employees to our town, and while the company is one with an established history, it has its eye on the future.

Many people in Big Spring have worked to make this first announcement happen. Chief among them are Winston Wrinkle, leader of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Industrial Team, and Clyde McMahon Sr., a team member.

All the members of the Webb Steering Committee, officials of the city and the leadership of the chamber have been deeply involved.

The Industrial Team is negotiating seriously with four or five other firms who are very interested in Webb as a plant location site.

It seems likely that this announcement can be followed by others within the next few months.

Perhaps by the time the Air Force is ready to lock the gate in October, the base will have a number of civilian industries already in operation there.

The future of Big Spring has never looked better.

Round One to Begin

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — President Carter's tactical decision to avoid public confrontation with Menachem Begin, Israel's tough, brilliant prime minister, has not installed Begin as the principal obstacle to Mr. Carter's strategic goal: resumption of the Geneva Mideast peace conference.

That is what gives special irony to the triumph of Begin as the man who totally dominated this city and everyone in it last week. The force of his personality and the power of Israel's in U.S. politics persuaded President Carter to go along with Begin's private appeal to withhold public U.S. pressure on Israel. But the immediate result is to torpedo early resumption of the Geneva conference — the essence of Mr. Carter's own peace plan.

IN SHORT, the hard reality of domestic politics wedged its way into Mr. Carter's Mideast diplomacy. As one Mideast expert told us, "Hamilton Jordan (Mr. Carter's top political aide) moved in and Zbigniew Brzezinski (National Security director) moved out, at least for now."

Barring an unlikely reversal by Begin permitting the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to attend, there almost certainly will be no early Geneva conference. Yet, capping Begin's triumph, and in the very face of his refusal to accept PLO participation, Mr. Carter praised the Israeli leader for helping to lay the "groundwork" that will lead to the Geneva conference.

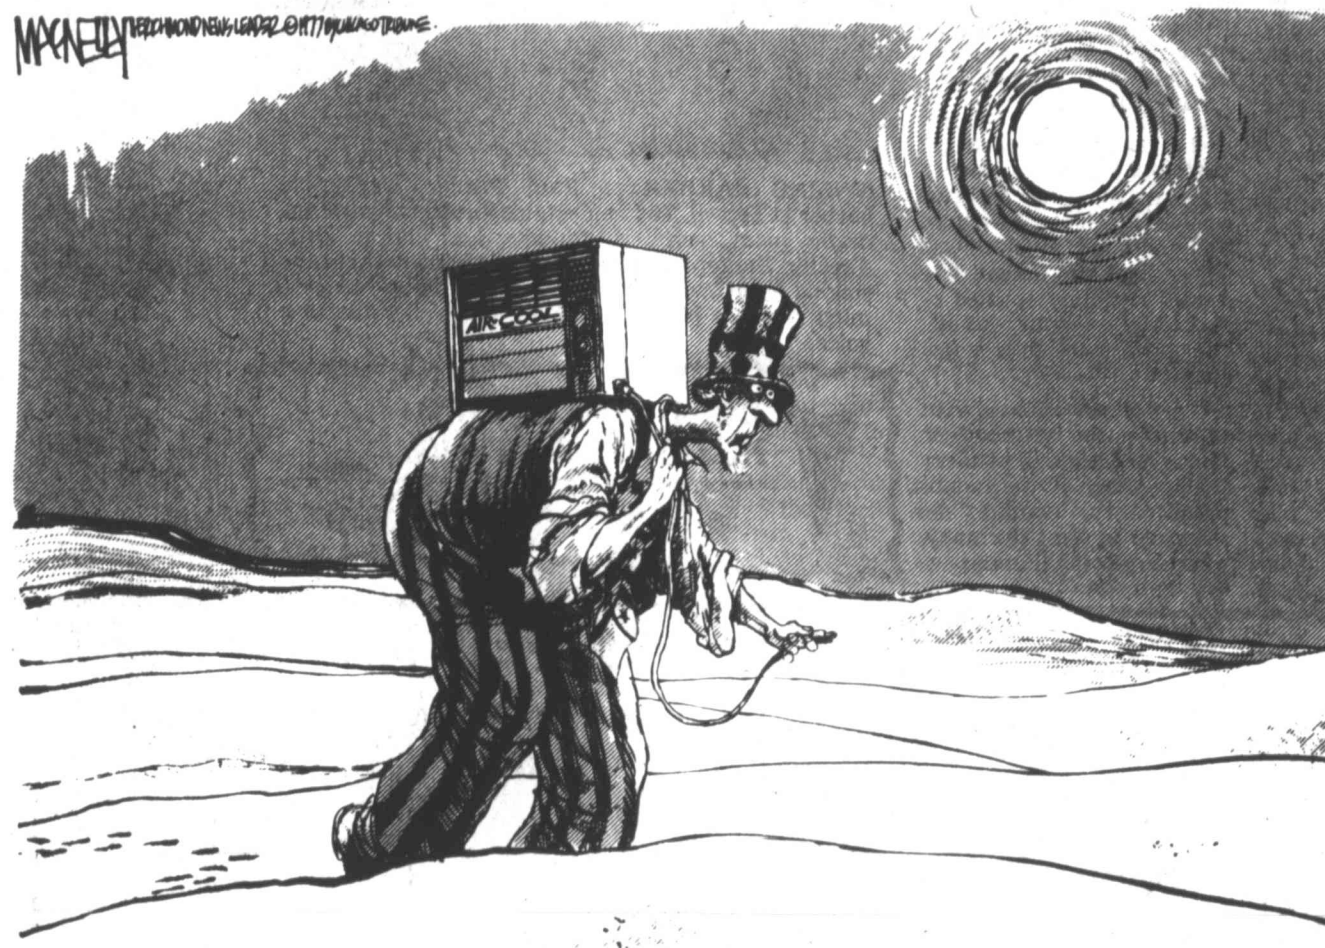

Instead of Geneva, the "groundwork" seems better laid for Israel's preferred route to a Mideast settlement: step-by-step diplomacy through the good offices of the U.S. That is the route that Arab leaders know will weaken a common Arab front. With Israel offering territory to Egypt and Syria, the West Bank of the Jordan with its heavy Arab population — the crux of the peace problem — can once again be finessed.

The Arabs went that route three years ago, but now, partly persuaded by President Carter's own rhetoric, they want an overall settlement. Indeed, when two of Israel's closest allies here, Sens. Jacob Javits and Richard Stone, told Egyptian leaders on separate visits the past month that the time was not ripe for an overall settlement, the Egyptians were certain they were speaking more for Israel's position than Jimmy Carter's. Now the Arabs are not so sure.

WHAT TRANSPIRED to swing Jimmy Carter away from his earlier public appeal for Israel to heed the U.S., its closest ally, and cooperate in a genuine peace move? That move would include return of almost all the captured territories and a homeland for the Palestinians — as the U.S. had supported a homeland 30 years ago for the Jews.

Several weeks ago, President Carter studied the possibility of going on national television to the American people with a full description, including maps and population statistics, of the territorial issues blocking a Mideast settlement. The President would give special attention to the West Bank and to his own conviction that the Palestinians had as much right to a homeland as had the Jews.

But that possibility quickly collided with the unexpected success of Israel's new headline prime minister in consolidating his position both in his own country and (more important) with the American Jewish community. Then followed the President's White House meeting with Jewish leaders. Mr. Carter came away from that encounter determined to steer clear of political conflict.

Obesity: Reduce or die

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a 35-year-old woman. At present I weigh 265 pounds and am 5 feet, 4 inches tall. I have had a weight problem since age 5 or 6. I have had thyroid tests made and they come out normal. I can't tell you how much weight I've lost and regained.

It seems I am powerless over it. I have even failed on Weight Watchers program, and that is such a sensible and well-balanced diet. I have the best intentions when I start, but after two or three weeks I lose my willpower and don't care anymore. Sometimes food cravings are so strong I sit and cry and wish I could sleep all the time so I wouldn't have to suffer the mental anguish. I want some information on the by-pass operation. Do you still have to count calories after such an operation? —Ms. S.G.

Your obesity is serious. Your letter, which I printed only in part, has tragic overtones so typical of mail I receive throughout the year.

The tragedy is not only psychological but physical. You are probably aware that your obesity is endangering your health. You should, therefore, be under a physician's care, and specifically for your obesity. Has a doctor ever told you point-blank you had better lose that excess weight. Well, I'm telling you now. I have seen smokers with heavy lifetime habits give up the weed overnight when a doctor has looked them in the eye and told them it was either quit or die.

Your glands are apparently functioning normally, and from your letter you indicate you have been able to lose weight through dieting. I could be wrong, but based on those two facts, I doubt a physician would agree to the intestinal surgery you speak about.

So we come full circle back, as we so often must, in such cases to willpower. You have to have a fixed goal. It took some courage for you to write to me about your problem, and I don't consider you a "failed cause." Analyze the reasons for your falling "off the wagon." Are there social or domestic factors? There are other groups that operate on an "Alcoholics Anonymous" basis. Perhaps this is what you need.

At 35 you are in the prime of life if not in the prime of physical condition. Your motivation should be high. Are you a religious person? If so, use prayer to help you over troublesome periods. These are just extraneous thoughts you might mull over, and they are directed to those others who write me these tragic letters.

A final thought: the smoker who jokes that "quitting is easy, I've done it a hundred times," is speaking a great truth. But remember also that each time someone quits there is always the possibility that this time it will "stick."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I take great exception to your note to the "Mses" in your reading audience, which appeared in your column recently.

Sexual activity has nothing to do with whether a woman calls herself "Miss," "Mrs." or "Ms." She can be sexually active or inactive and call herself "Miss"; she can be sexually active or inactive and call herself "Mrs."; and in this day and age it certainly has nothing to do with whether she (or he) is married or not.

You could have better solved your problem by being straightforward and merely stating that "to adequately discuss vaginal irritations, I must know whether the writer is sexually active or inactive." —Ms. G. G. (You'll have to guess about my sexual activity!)

I agree with you. But sometimes it's a help to know the marital status of the person the doctor is talking to.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that if a woman drinks quinine she will be able to terminate a pregnancy. True or false? —Anon.

False, as are most of these old abortion tales. I don't get nearly as many of them in my mail these days, perhaps because of the new approach to abortion, which takes it out of the kitchen and into the clinic.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What does "C.V.A." mean in medicine? M.K.

It means "cerebral vascular accident" — disruption of blood flow to the brain, as in stroke.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am beginning to doubt whether or not God even exists. I pray a lot to ask Him for things, but he never seems to give me what I want. Why should I believe in Him? —H.L.

DEAR H. L.: I think a lot of people probably feel as you do. However, I think you may have the wrong view of God. God is not some sort of glorified Santa Claus whom we ask to give us things we want. He is not our servant; we are called to be His servants. Yes, He does answer prayer, but He does not give us everything we want. Instead, He has promised to give us those things that are His will. "And this is the confidence that we have in Him, that if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us" (1 John 5:14).

You see, God answers our prayers in several ways. Sometimes He says "Yes," but often He says "No" or "Wait." Why? Because He loves us, and He knows what is best for us. Often I have prayed for God to do something for me and He has said "No." Only later could I see that He knew best, and had He given me what I had asked for I would not have received His best for my life.

Your letter indicates that you have never really come to know God through Jesus Christ. God has revealed Himself to us by sending His Son into the world. When we invite Him into our lives and ask Him to take away our sins, God comes to live within us through His Holy Spirit. Let Christ come into your life, and He will begin to show you not only that God exists, but that "he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Hebrews 11:6).

Tasteless, funny

Around the rim

Bill Werrell

The music surges up into a swinging din and out of stage entrance left shuffles Gene, Gene, the Dancing Machine.

To thunderous applause and the awe of his audience, the slightly overweight dancer performs miracles of grace with his high-topped tennis shoes.

THE DANCE ITSELF, seemingly a combination of a wild voodoo medicine dance and an Irish jig, is only interrupted as the Dancing Machine dodges various styrofoam and soft rubber obstacles thrown at him by a loving audience.

Gene, Gene, the Dancing Machine is one of the regular outlandish acts which appear on the "Gong Show" at noon five wonderful days a week, on NBC.

The outrageousness of the acts themselves is only outdone by the show host, Chuck Berris.

A self-proclaimed weirdo, Berris puts together a lunch-time special which is always full of surprises, sick humor, and more often than not, entertainment.

Although at least two of my friends find no use for the drudgery away from the noon-time sandwich, I find it sometimes strangely exhilarating.

The entertainment is put together from a few somewhat regular acts, but mainly of contestants, who with their original acts try to win a check of $518.37 given away each day by the sponsors of the show for the best act.

The acts are judged by three celebrity judges, most of whom seem to forget their position as the show goes on and join the spectacle.

Out of the shadows of stage right saunters a man with black pants, white socks, and shiny black flip-top loafers who demands our attention with "Hey... Hey, hey... Did you hear this one? What do you call a fly without wings? Hey, hey what? A walk."

No surprisingly, the Unknown Comic also wears a paper sack over his head.

ONE OF THE THINGS about the Gong Show that I really like is the fact that another $518.37 is given away every Friday to the contestant with the most outrageous act.

Last week the winning contestant in this category happened to be a five-foot, two-inch tall woman weighing in the area of 200 pounds.

To win her check for $518.37 she simply buckled on a belly dancing outfit and gyrated to the joy of the audience.

Several weeks before, a woman came on stage and put a box on her head. She immediately began to stumble about, yanking at the box attempting unsuccessfully until the curtain came down to remove it from her head.

Throughout the act she kept repeating, "I can't get this box off my head, I can't get this box off my head." Needless to say she was a sure winner, and received her check for $518.37 that next Friday.

The show, as illustrated above, often represents the paragon of tackiness.

The blatant tastelessness, and the idea of gonging someone whose act is really, really bad, in my opinion is what makes the show hilarious at times, and almost disgusting at others.

Perils of growth

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — The final Armageddon will likely come, in the opinion of intelligence analysts, not from a nuclear holocaust but from the simple crush of people.

No less than the National Security Council has labeled the runaway population growth around the world as a "threat to our national security."

The council called for population reports last year from U.S. embassies in 77 countries. Their responses have now been summarized in a grim intelligence document.

The study warns that the sheer mass of people already is beginning to stifle human life on this planet. Our ambassadors report that underdeveloped nations are running out of food to sustain their people. Living costs are plunging these nations into debt until they are unable to finance their own survival.

THE HUMAN ENCROACHMENT, like a plague of locusts, is also devastating the land. "A majority of our embassies in Africa, Asia and some in Latin America, report large pockets of declining agriculture productivity due to widespread slash-and-burn farming, overgrazing and overcropping," the study asserts. The cause: "population pressures."

The same warning is echoed in an Agriculture Dept. report which declares "urgently" that unless the population explosion is contained, "there ultimately is no solution to the world food problem."

The population bomb, warns the intelligence study, will also produce a political explosion. In many countries, the U.S. embassies predict "rising unemployment and underemployment, with countless millions unable to eke out a living in rural areas, jamming into already overcrowded cities where living conditions for many are appalling."

This "can only spawn social unrest with serious political and even potential strategic implications," the study stresses. By the year 2000, for example, Mexico City may be the most populous urban area in the world.

One expert fears there may be 60 million Mexicans fleeing across U.S. borders within the next generation to escape the overcrowding in Mexico.

Yet there is "a widespread unawareness of the economic facts of life," states the report, "including wishful thinking that economic development will automatically resolve the population problem." A disturbing 62 per cent of the nations have no population policy at all.

The U.S. population policy, for that matter, consists of shipping contraceptives abroad and supporting family planning programs. These efforts, contends the report, "will not help reduce population growth rates enough to avert a major disaster."

Nor is migration "the safety valve it once was for relieving population pressures," adds the study. It will take "the commitment of millions of dedicated people if mankind is to be spared disaster."

Footnote: Rep. Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y., is leading a move in Congress to deal with the population problem.

TEXAS TALE — The people who run nursing homes in Texas have made friends and influenced the right people from Austin to Washington.

They appear to have a friend, for instance, in their governor, Dolph Briscoe, a wealthy rancher now in the statehouse, has received $13,000 in campaign money from the Texas Nursing Home Association's political action fund.

This may explain his indifference to nursing home abuses, which appear to be worse in Texas than in any other state. He has put together a licensing board which rarely acts against homes caught in violations.

"We don't lift many licenses," one board member admitted to our associate, Howie Kurtz, whom we sent to Texas to investigate the nursing home scandal. "We've had some people come before us that should have had their licenses yanked."

A SPOKESMAN FOR Briscoe denied that the governor is influenced by his contributions. "He gets donations from a lot of people," the spokesman told Kurtz.

The nursing homes have also helped to send several Texans to Congress. Omar Burleson, J. J. Pickle and Olin Teague, all Democrats, have received generous contributions from the industry. But Sen. John Tower, a "rootin' tootin'" Republican, has also been blessed with nursing home money.

The industry invested $10,000 in the abortive presidential campaign of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex.

Dear Editor:

Marj Carpenter's column "Ridin' Fence" in the Sunday, July 24, 1977 edition of the Big Spring Herald is totally insensitive and irresponsible.

The writer's comment about missing "the excitement of the occasional" Webb Air Force Base plane crashes, "indicates a complete disregard for the human pain and suffering which can result from these often tragic accidents."

Apparently to Ms. Carpenter, these accidents aren't tragic but amusing as she goes on to state that "... the funniest of all was in November 1972 ... I find it difficult to find anything funny about accidents in which people can, and often are, killed."

Perhaps Ms. Carpenter feels that readers should be amused by the stories she tells and the little games she makes of these accidents.

However, rather than being amused, it is depressing and infuriating that someone could feel the way she apparently does about aircraft accidents and to have the audacity to try to write an amusing article about them in the newspaper.

Her article indicates a complete lack of judgement, a disrespect for authority, and a total absence of caring about the feelings of those who suffer as a result of those crashes.

It is very strange that with the closing of Webb AFB the only thing worth writing about that Ms. Carpenter will miss, is Webb plane crashes. It is strange and unfortunate too, that the Big Spring Herald apparently feels this way also, by allowing such an irresponsible article to be printed.

MIA's living behind bars in Vietnam?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Vietnamese teacher who was a member of the communist parliament is preparing to tell Congress about reports he heard in Hanoi of missing Americans who are living in jails in Vietnam.

Nguyen Cong Hoan, who fled from Vietnam to Japan in March and arrived in the United States as a refugee two days ago, told a House panel on Tuesday that he had "heard news" about Americans still listed as missing.

Hoan's information on the MIAs was not from any direct contact, he admitted, but were "rumors" from a "completely truthful" source. He said he could not publicly identify the source for fear of putting the source in danger.

"I can only say that I hear some rumors that there are still some Americans living in jail in Vietnam but I cannot be more specific than that," he said.

With his House subcommittee on Asian and Pacific affairs scheduled to take up the MIA question today, Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y., reportedly intended to pursue Hoan's report behind closed doors.

Some 1,800 Americans still are listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia.

SMILES ALL AROUND — U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown, left, smiles with Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda during Brown's visit today to Fukuda's official residence in Tokyo. Brown met with the Japanese leader to brief him on agreements reached in two days of talks with South Korean leaders on a plan to phase out virtually all U.S. ground forces in Korea.

'Strong Pacific power'

TOKYO (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown said today the United States intends to remain "a strong Pacific power" despite the planned withdrawal of 33,000 U.S. troops from South Korea.

Brown met with Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda and other Japanese officials to brief them on agreements reached in two days of talks with South Korean leaders on the plan to phase out virtually all U.S. ground forces in Korea.

In a statement issued before departing for the United States, Brown said he made clear to the Japanese "the intention of the United States to remain a strong Pacific power, recognizing that our national security in a very real sense derives from peace and stability in Northeast Asia."

He said he told the Japanese the withdrawal would be made "in a careful and considered fashion."

Besides Fukuda, Brown also met with Foreign Minister Ichiro Hatoyama and defense agency Director-General Asao Mihara.

In Seoul, the South Korean news agency Hapdong, quoting an unnamed Korean official, said South Korean President Park Chung-hee had asked Brown Monday for a public commitment from the United States to use nuclear arms to protect South Korea if North Korea attacked.

Brown turned aside Park's request on the grounds that it is U.S. policy not to refer publicly to the use of nuclear weapons, according to the official, who Hapdong said attended the meeting.

Before leaving Korea Tuesday, Brown told a news conference that South Korea would continue to be "protected by the U.S. nuclear umbrella." But he said non-nuclear deterrence would suffice in South Korea.

Informed sources said the Japanese defense chief today welcomed the U.S.-Korean agreements and did not express any concern over the withdrawal, although the Japanese government is known to be uneasy about the possible disruption of the military balance in the region.

U.S. sources said the defense secretary told the Japanese that "neither the Soviet Union nor the People's Republic of China wishes renewed conflict" on the Korean peninsula.

Tank trailers

How Lubbock Manufacturing makes them, and fixes them

MAKING A TUBE — A flat piece of steel must be rolled and welded to make a tube for tank trailers. The welds are first made by hand to hold the tube together, then grinded down and welded by machine to make them perfect.

Plant blends technology, skill

By J. TOM GRAHAM
LUBBOCK — If the Big Spring plant of Lubbock Manufacturing Co., in anything like the one in Lubbock, it will really be an operation to see. I visited there Tuesday with Clyde McMahon Sr., the industrial team member who has worked with the firm, and City Attorney Jim Gregg. The three of us were there for the signing of the contract which will make Lubbock Manufacturing the first civilian industry to locate at Webb Air Force Base.

DURING THE MORNING, we also were invited to tour the 30 acres which the firm occupies on the north side of Lubbock.

The operation is a dichotomy of 21st Century technology and skilled human craftsmanship.

The firm has a computer room so sophisticated that it does contract programming for IBM and a computerized inventory system for every bolt in the operation.

Yet, it is clearly the skills and experience of its workers which makes the pressurized tank trailers manufactured there among the best in the industry.

THE FIRST thing one notices about the plant is that it has dozens of tank trailers in various stages of completion. Finished ones have lettering on them in languages that indicate they are bound for all over the world.

Some trailers make one stop and look again, especially those bound for Michigan with four, five and six axles (some of which can be raised off the ground).

Basically, what the firm does is this: It takes raw materials, mainly steel, and fashions it into pressurized tank trailers for hauling such things as butane, propane, ammonia and other liquids.

This line is where Lubbock Manufacturing feels it can be most competitive in the tank transport industry.

THE INSIDE work is a miracle process of bending and fitting and sealing a substance like steel into a tubular tank. Huge sheets of steel, up to almost an inch thick, are rolled into tubes and welded together.

Giant presses fashion the heads, the round portions at the end of the tanks, and veteran craftsmen melt them together.

Welding on the tanks is first done by hand for assembly. Then the hand-made weld is gouged out, and the weld is redone automatically.

"The welds must be perfect," a company official said, "without a crack or a bubble."

When the tanks are built, the seams are so smooth they could be difficult to find.

Every tank is X-rayed to make sure that each inch of each weld is perfect. Then the tanks are baked, actually taken to temperatures above 1,000 degrees for at least two hours. This process removes the stress from the banded steel and restores its strength even as a cone to the same it has as sheet steel.

The tanks are then sandblasted, painted, road tested and delivered to clients.

THE ENTIRE manufacturing process takes about 28 days for an average tank trailer. Almost everything but the axle is built on site at Lubbock.

The repair process for tank trailers is very similar to the manufacturing process. Some tanks are only still, while others that carry substances like carbon dioxide are insulated and covered with a skin of aluminum.

Lubbock Manufacturing also makes plows and other products, but tank trailers is the main line of the 47-year-old firm.

Lubbock firm has 47-year history

Lubbock Manufacturing Company, the first industry to locate at Webb Air Force Base, is a firm whose roots go back to 1930.

It began in August 1930 when T.A. Rogers bought a junior partnership in Lubbock Machine Co. The main operation of the firm at that time was gin repair.

In 1933, Rogers bought the total stock, and the business was incorporated. Butane and propane tanks became the principal products of the company in 1937.

WORLD WAR II saw the company doing major work for the U.S. Navy. From 1941 to 1945, the main production was buoy and landing pontoons.

In 1946 the firm moved into the same location that it now occupies in Lubbock.

The name of the company was changed to Lubbock Manufacturing Co. in 1962. It is a family corporation also involving two sons and their wives.

The sons are Thomas A. Rogers, president, and his wife, Grace, and Robert D. Rogers, senior vice president, and his wife, Peggy, who is manager of the computer department.

T.A. Rogers is chairman of the board, and Mrs. Willia Mae Rogers is secretary-treasurer.

THE LUBBOCK plant covers about 20 acres and employs 320 persons. The main products are pressure vessel transports, and propane and ammonia as well as carbon dioxide and other compressed gasses and the storage tanks for them.

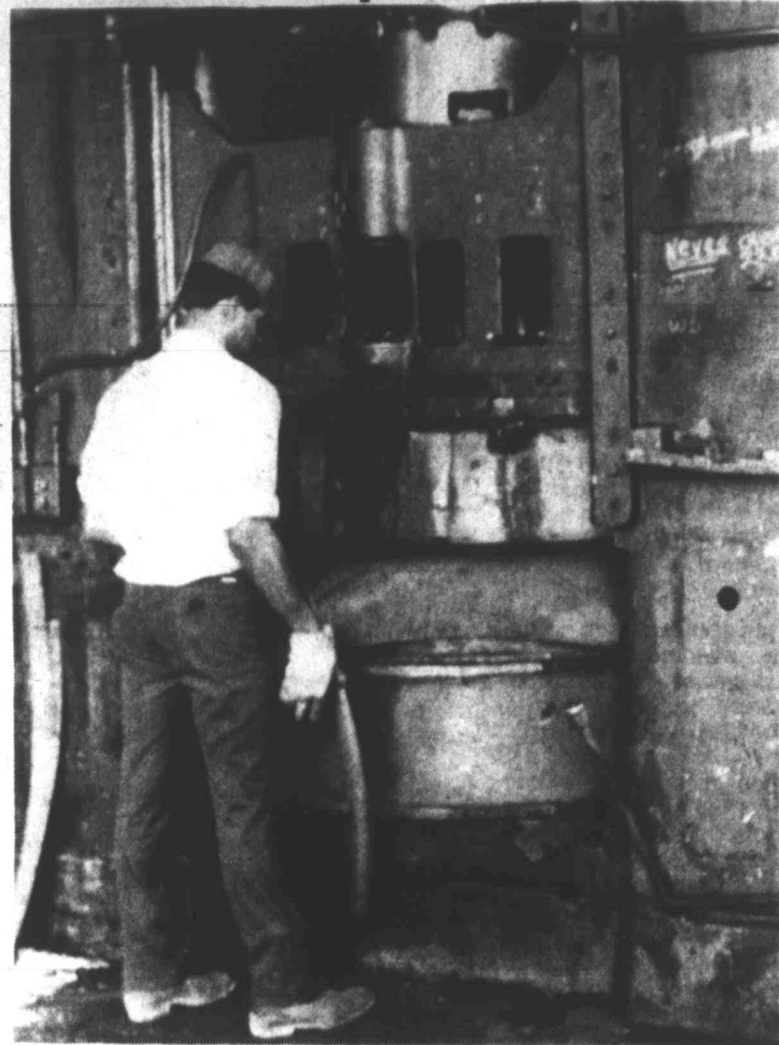

The firm also sells component parts, agriculture equipment and cable layers.

The Big Spring plant will start by mainly doing repair work on transport equipment.

Mrs. Willia Mae Rogers said that the company is happy to be operating in Big Spring and feels it is a wonderful place to work.

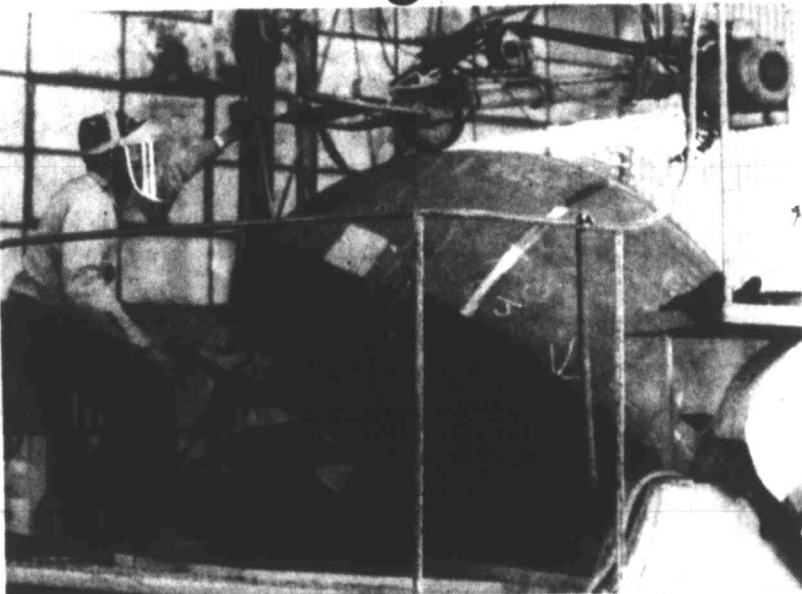

The people in Big Spring have been most helpful, very hospitable and friendly, she said.

First, shape steel

MAKING CURVES — An employee operates a giant press which shapes the steel into curved surface so the cones or heads of the tanks can be made. Other machines roll the steel into tubes.

Weld it together

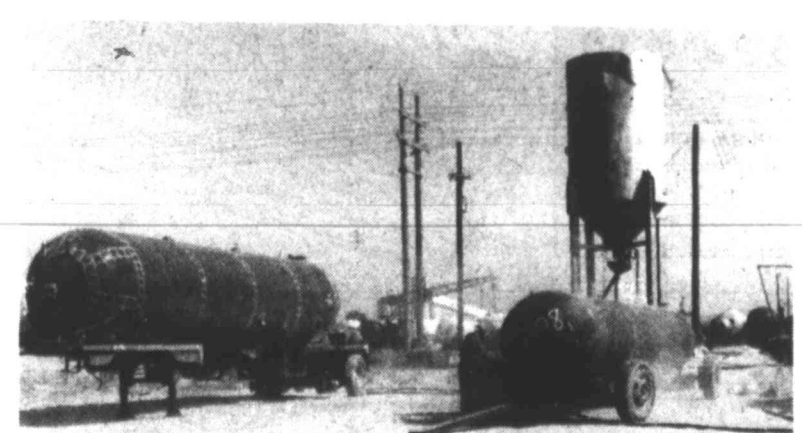

JOIN IT — The Steel is first welded by hand, then by machine to make sure no joint has an imperfection. Above, a machine rotates the head of a tank so a worker can grind and weld on it.

X-ray the seams

TAKING PICTURES — The tank are X-rayed again and again until every flaw is removed. Then they are baked at temperatures above 1,000 degrees to remove stress.

Sandblast surface

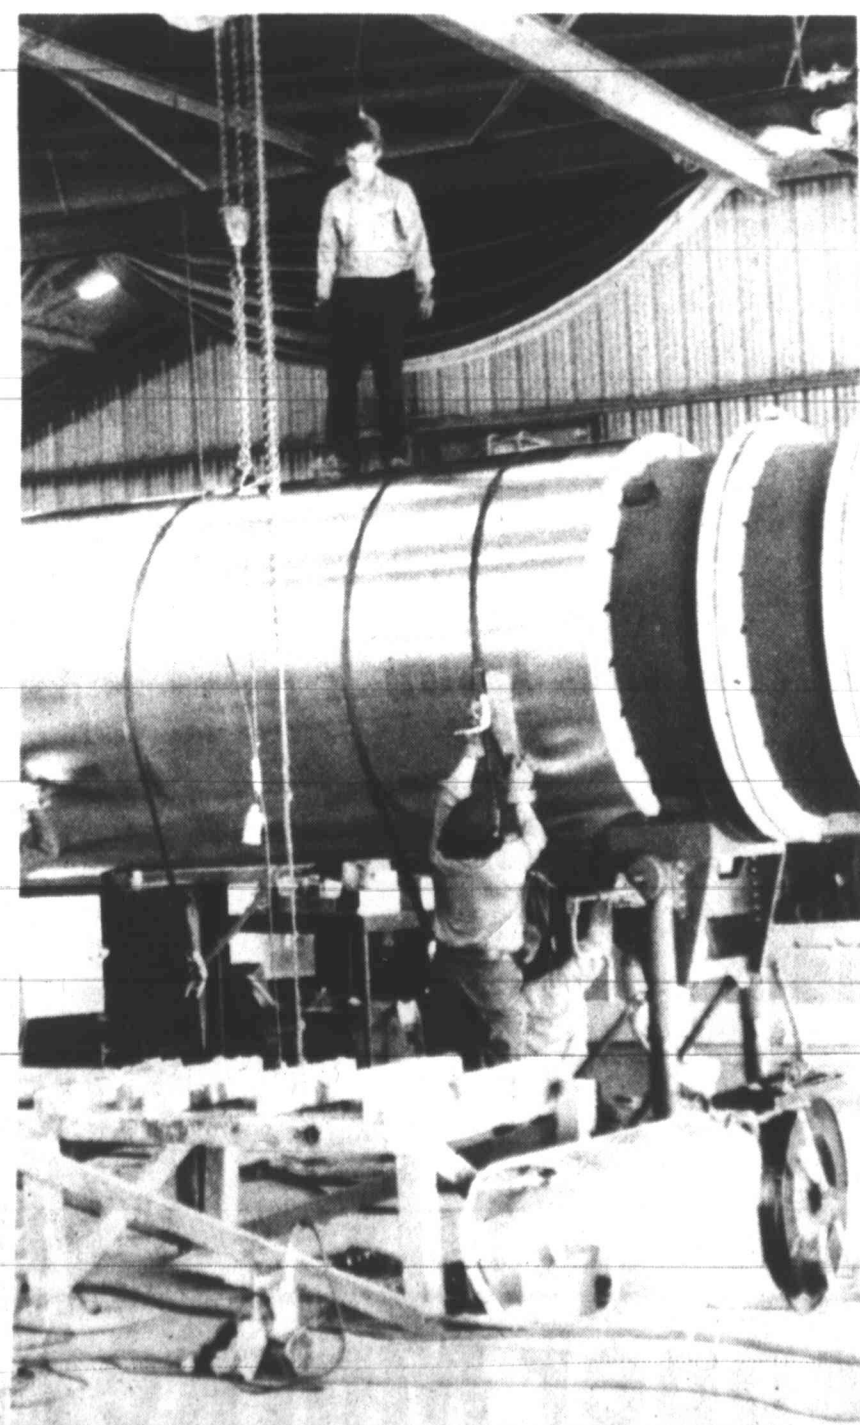

BLOWING HARD — Sandblasting the surface is the final step before painting of the tank trailers.

Paint and deliver

INSPECTING — Paint Foreman J.J. Johnson looks at a tank which is in the process of being painted and lettered. Then it will be road tested and delivered.

INSULATION — Tanks that hold temperature sensitive chemicals must be insulated. Above workers put an aluminum skin around a steel tank and pack insulation between the layers.

TWO THOUSAND APPLY FOR THREE HUNDRED JOBS — Some 2,000 job seekers line up Monday around the parking lot of a Jewell food store being built on the south side of Chicago. They were waiting to apply for 300 jobs which will be available when the store opens next month and Monday was the only day applications were to be taken.

Few are hypersensitive to stings by insects

Bees, wasps and spiders send many people running. But a small per cent of the population should run for their lives, the Texas Medical Association says.

Estimates show about 2 or 3 per cent of the population is hypersensitive to insect stings and bites. These hypersensitive reactions are more serious than the usual pain, itching and swelling around a bite site. Check with a physician if a victim has any reactions other than localized problems. Or if there is a severe local reaction on the face and neck, some doctors recommend administering drugs to prevent more serious reactions.

Hypersensitive reactions to insect bites can include headache, vomiting, diarrhea, a feeling of heat throughout the body, itching all over the body, breathing difficulty and anaphylactic shock. This last condition can occur in the very small percentage of people hypersensitive to insect venom. It may be fatal. Anaphylactic shock symptoms can include weakness, faintness and pale, cold, clammy skin.

Many severe reactions occur within 20 minutes to an hour after a bite. But a few severe reactions may not occur until about two weeks after a sting. Sometimes hypersensitive reactions hit people who never have had major problems with insect bites previously.

Most reactions to insect bites are caused by ants, bees, wasps, hornets and spiders. However, some people have hypersensitive reactions to lice, flies, bed bugs and other insects. Bees seem to be the most common offender. Bees also have the distinction of being one of the few insects to leave the stinger in the victim. Attached to the stinger is a venom sac that can keep pumping venom into a victim for awhile. The best way to remove the stinger is to gently scrape across it with a fingernail or knife edge or carefully pull it out with tweezers so more venom will not be injected.

Treatment for bee and other insect stings also may include applying cold compresses to slow venom absorption and reduce swelling. Calamine lotion often can relieve itching. Other lotions may be used but victims need to be careful not to apply anything that will further irritate the skin.

The majority of insect bites and stings can be taken care of with such simple treatment but it is important to remember more serious reactions could be a life and death situation if a person does not get immediate medical attention.

CBers, hams set to meet

LEVELLAND — Ham radio operators and CBers, together with their families, are being invited to attend the 12th annual Northwest Texas Emergency Net Picnic and Swapfest in the Levelland City Park Sunday, Aug. 7.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. Lunch will be served at 12:30 p.m.

Sponsors of the event are the Hockley County Radio Club and the Northwest Texas Emergency Net. Several prizes, including a Kenwood TR-2200 2 meter FM portable transmitter, will be given away during the afternoon.

Early visitors will gather in the park Saturday night to swap stories. A live western band will be present to provide entertainment.

Blamed for failure of Seadock

Oppressive regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oppressive government regulations have been blamed for the apparent failure of the Seadock deepwater oil port project off the Texas coast.

The opinion was expressed Tuesday by major oil company executives who gave Congress little reason to hope the project can be revived. They blamed oppressive government regulation for its failure.

The executives testified before the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, which is looking into the reasons for the collapse of the consortium of oil companies that was to build the $700 million facility 26 miles off the coast of Texas.

Gulf, Mobil and Exxon, which together represented 52 per cent of Seadock's financial backing, pulled out this year because the government "apparently concluded that the members of Seadock were a bunch of scoundrels," said Hugh Scott, president of the Seadock Corp.

Representatives of the Department of Transportation protested that they were trying to carry out faithfully the Deepwater Port Act of 1974. They noted that negotiations are proceeding satisfactorily with another consortium that plans to build a deepwater port off the coast of Louisiana. And they said they would be willing to resume negotiations.

And one Texas congressman, Democrat Jack Brooks, blamed the greed of the oil companies. Brooks said the oil company plan for operating Seadock was "an unconscionable abuse of the American consumer" that the government "fortunately recognized for what it was."

Brooks, however, had a parochial motive. Rather than build a deepwater port offshore, he would prefer to see federal aid for improving the harbor at Galveston, in his district, so it can handle the new generation of supertankers.

The metal frame building has a sprinkler system, seven acres of concrete ramp and about 40,000 square feet of floor space, including concrete block workrooms. It was built in 1960 at a cost to the government of $718,000.

Comment from capital

Was voters' error corrected?

By SCOTT CARPENTER
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Lest we forget, the whole Don Yarbrough fiasco started when Gov. Dolph Briscoe decided to appoint his longtime friend from Uvalde, Ross E. Doughty, to the State Supreme Court.

Doughty was a "good ol' boy" who was nearing retirement from his district judgeship. No one thought he'd run for the office. They were right; he didn't. Besides the honor of having served on the highest court, even for only a short time, Doughty substantially increased his retirement benefits.

Several highly qualified attorneys and judges started talking about making the race. But it was the State Bar's decision to back appeals court judge Charles Barrow of San Antonio. That chased everyone else out of the race.

That is, everyone except Don Yarbrough, a Houston attorney who did exceptionally well as an unknown candidate against State Treasurer Jesse James in the Democratic Primary two years earlier.

To put it mildly, Yarbrough slaughtered Barrow in the Democratic primary then walked to an easy victory over two write-in candidates in November.

So now the legislature, by forcing Yarbrough to resign, and Briscoe, by picking Barrow to replace Yarbrough, have corrected the error the voters made in May, 1976.

Republicans say the whole situation just proves that political parties should be able to nominate candidates for office in races where no person has filed.

Those who favor appointed judges say the whole thing just goes to show that the current system of elected judges doesn't work — presumably because average voters just aren't able to make rational choices between judge candidates.

Those who abhor what the federal judiciary has become fear appointment of judges — at least any lifetime appointment.

Certainly, the next legislature will have a chance to look at several proposals for the method of picking judges. But the expeditious handling of the Yarbrough situation probably stymied any real ground swell of support for a change.

The current system where normally the governor picks the Bar's choice so that he will run for election the first time as an incumbent — something Briscoe messed up by his appointment of Doughty — does need to be examined.

As Bill of Rights scholar J. Edward Gerald wrote about the decision to go with lifetime appointed federal judges: "Independence was promised to the courts because guarantees of rights are of doubtful worth unless the judges are strong enough to stare down the king."

Said differently, judges are in charge of protecting the rights of the underdog and the minority. It seems ludicrous that they should hold office on the basis of majority rule.

The State Democratic

Party has come out with its rating sheet, based on legislative votes on election issues on which the party lobbied.

Three Democratic state senators got a zero for their voting — Sens. Peyton McKnight of Tyler, Don Adams of Jasper, and Bill Moore of Bryan.

Of the remaining Democrats in the Senate, seven voted with the party each time and 18 were with the party sometimes.

In the House, no Democrat voted against the party every time, but two, Reps. Forrest Green of Corsicana and Jerry "Nub" Donaldson of Gatesville, voted against the party three of four times. Sixty-two Democrats voted a straight party line and 68 split their votes.

In a special inter-office memo at the Department of Health Resources, the head of the nursing home regulation division said, "It is generally accepted that each professional works an average of 180 days per year. This permits annual leave, sick leave, and other kinds of leaves such as training."

That memo caught a few eyes. The Texas Legislative Council figures that if you take the maximum allowed vacation for longtime employees one month, and the number of state holidays and allowed sick leave, you still should get 213 working days out of every state employee.

Of course the health department's memo came when they figured the additional state cost of increasing the number of required nursing home inspections would be $450,000. During the long-session that was dropped twice.

After the governor endorsed the bill and opened the special session for its consideration the added cost estimate was dropped to "no additional cost to the state."

Sort of makes you wonder if there's any truth to charges that state agencies play politics with estimates of the cost of new programs. It also makes you wonder what those "professionals" out at the health department are doing for more than a month they are supposed to be working.

Music festival set Thursday

The volunteers, staff and patients of Big Spring State Hospital will join efforts to produce a Summer Music Festival at 7 p.m. Thursday in the gazebo-mini-park area in front of the Allred Building on the BSSH campus.

Six musical groups will present a variety of Christian music styles including country-western, gospel and contemporary folk rock.

Participating in the musical program will be the Cooper Sisters (Cecilia Ward, Teresa Welch, Vernessa Cooper and Melissa Cooper); BSSH employees Jack and Cliff Stovall, Adolph Supak and Gail Sutphen joined by Terry Stovall; The Hallelujah Brothers plus One (David Spence, Paul Spence, Clarence Palmer, Tommy Sullivan and Shirley Adams); the 1000 N.W. 3rd Church of Christ Gospel Group; Joe Dunn (fiddler) backed by the Hallelujah Brothers plus One and the BSSH Chapel Choir.

Following the program, volunteer-donated homemade ice cream will be served.

Pipeline blasts trigger arrest

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A 26-year-old miner has been arrested and charged with setting the explosions that state officials have branded "an amateurish attempt at sabotage" along the Alaska pipeline.

Larry Wertz was arrested Tuesday night as he walked along the Elliott Highway, about 10 miles north of Fairbanks and only two miles from the explosion site.

State troopers said Wertz was carrying a rifle and a pistol in a shoulder holster when he was arrested. Wertz, who works a claim in an old historic gold mining area, has never worked on the pipeline "as far as we know," said Lt. George Pollitt of the state police.

"Information from citizens who had some knowledge of his activities led to his arrest," said Pollitt.

Wertz was charged with malicious destruction of property and held on $100,000 bail.

Pollitt said officers had obtained a search warrant to check Wertz's home, near where he was arrested.

Police suspected that commercial dynamite had been used in the explosions, which caused minor damage to the $7.7 billion pipeline, but they had no idea how much was used, Pollitt said.

The transmission of oil was not interrupted, pipeline officials said. The first crude oil from the Prudhoe Bay oil fields was expected to reach the ice-free port of Valdez late this afternoon, completing an 800-mile journey that began June 20.

Pollitt said officials didn't know when the series of at least five explosions took place in a wooded area north of Fairbanks. They were reported Monday night.

He said, however, that a

Move planned by M&M firm

M&M Construction of Valmoor are planning to expand its operation and move to a location nearer Big Spring, possibly in the next three to four weeks, according to James Massingill, owner.

The location will be announced in the near future, according to Massingill who said, "We sure are planning to expand unless something ripe, rattles, or tears."

The oilfield construction firm keeps a base of 35 employees and employs up to 60 when activity is intense.

The firm is busy in the northern part of Martin County, according to Massingill, who reported that "the oilfield activity is picking up a little."

trooper on patrol in the same general area early last Wednesday reported hearing a series of explosions.

The trooper reported that he investigated but said he could not find the source of the explosions. He did not go onto the pipeline right-of-way, however, Pollitt said.

Pollitt said the explosions caused "noticeable dents" in two vertical support columns on an elevated section of the pipeline and tore some 60 feet of insulation from the 48-inch line.

Wife of vice president visiting LBJ library

STONEWALL, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Joan Mondale resumed her tour of Texas today after spending a quiet night on the ranch of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The wife of the vice president arrived at the LBJ Ranch late Tuesday afternoon and had a private dinner with Mrs. Johnson, who had earlier co-hosted a luncheon for Mrs. Mondale in San Antonio.

Mrs. Mondale was to leave the ranch this morning and fly to Austin, where she planned to tour the LBJ Library on the campus of the University of Texas. Later, she had scheduled a quick trip to Dallas before flying back to Washington tonight.

In San Antonio, Mrs. Mondale continued her criticism of the federal government's funding of the creative arts.

She said the government is spending "practically nothing" on the arts and that she favors more direct grants and subsidies to artists and craftspeople.

Mrs. Mondale made the remarks at an impromptu news conference at the hacienda-style home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Steves, where she viewed a sampler of Texas arts and crafts and attended the luncheon.

Before flying to the LBJ Ranch, she was honored by about 100 people at a reception in one of the historic homes in the city's riverside La Villita district.

Press aides said Mrs. Mondale's Texas trip is part of her "continuing effort to talk with and learn from craftspeople, artists and museum people in searching for the best ways for government to help the arts."

Field day will be August 25

The annual field day for Growers Seed Association is scheduled Aug. 25. The event will take place at the Research Farm located on Highway 62-82, four miles east of Idalou.

Field tours and discussions will get under way at 9:30 a.m. and continue until 2:00 p.m.

Highlights will be our Research and Testing Programs on hybrid sorghums, cotton, hybrid corn, forages and hybrid sunflowers. There are many new hybrids and varieties in the program this year for one's observation.

MEMPHIS — Dallas is the site selected for the 1978 Beltwide Cotton Conferences sponsored by the National Cotton Council.

The four-day series is made up of specialized research conferences and ends with a day and a half devoted to the more general production-mechanization conference.

Research groups involved are the Cotton Disease Council, Cotton Physiology Conference, Cotton Improvement Conference, Cotton Insect Research and Control Conference, Agricultural Engineers' Regional Research Committee, Cotton Weed Science Research Conference, and the Cotton Economic and Marketing Conference.

The research conferences are scheduled Jan. 9-11 and the production mechanization conference Jan. 11-12. All sessions will be at the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel.

Dr. Jim Brown, the Council's manager of production technology, said the purpose of the meetings is to review and disseminate latest knowledge about cotton production, markets, and policies.

Treatment load boosted for third month in row

The Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center has increased its treatment load for the third month in a row, said center Executive Director Jack Davis this week.

Davis told the July meeting of the center's Board of Directors that the units of treatment, however, still remained below last year's level.

For the month of June, the center located at Third and Lancaster had 672 treatment units against 931 for the month in 1976.

Davis, who said he was happy to see the recovery from a slump in patients earlier this year, noted that the center operated at a $690 loss for July, but it remains $3,426 in the black for the year.

He said the "no show" rate for patients scheduled for treatment who didn't come or cancel was a high 28 per cent, probably because of summer vacations.

The board also heard a report that the new hearing aid sales service by the center was beginning to produce revenue.

Mrs. Jan Morgan, who is putting together a cookbook to benefit the center, said that it was at the printer and will be ready by October in time for the annual gala.

The board also authorized the center's staff to look initiate a test project which would help parents prevent speech problems in their children. The program, which is being done in Midland, assists parents of babies in teaching them how to talk and avoid later speech problems.

Counseling received at Planned Parenthood

Misconceptions, worries abated at center

By SUSAN HAMPTON
With unwanted teenage pregnancies on the rise locally and across the country according to recent statistics, a strong need has arisen for more and better sex education.

The Permian Basin Planned Parenthood, located in the Permian Building, counsels any woman, regardless of her age, on any problem relating to family planning, abortion or sterilization and contraceptives.

"Teenagers are receiving the wrong kind of sex education today in their music and magazines," Sue Drake, director of the center, said.

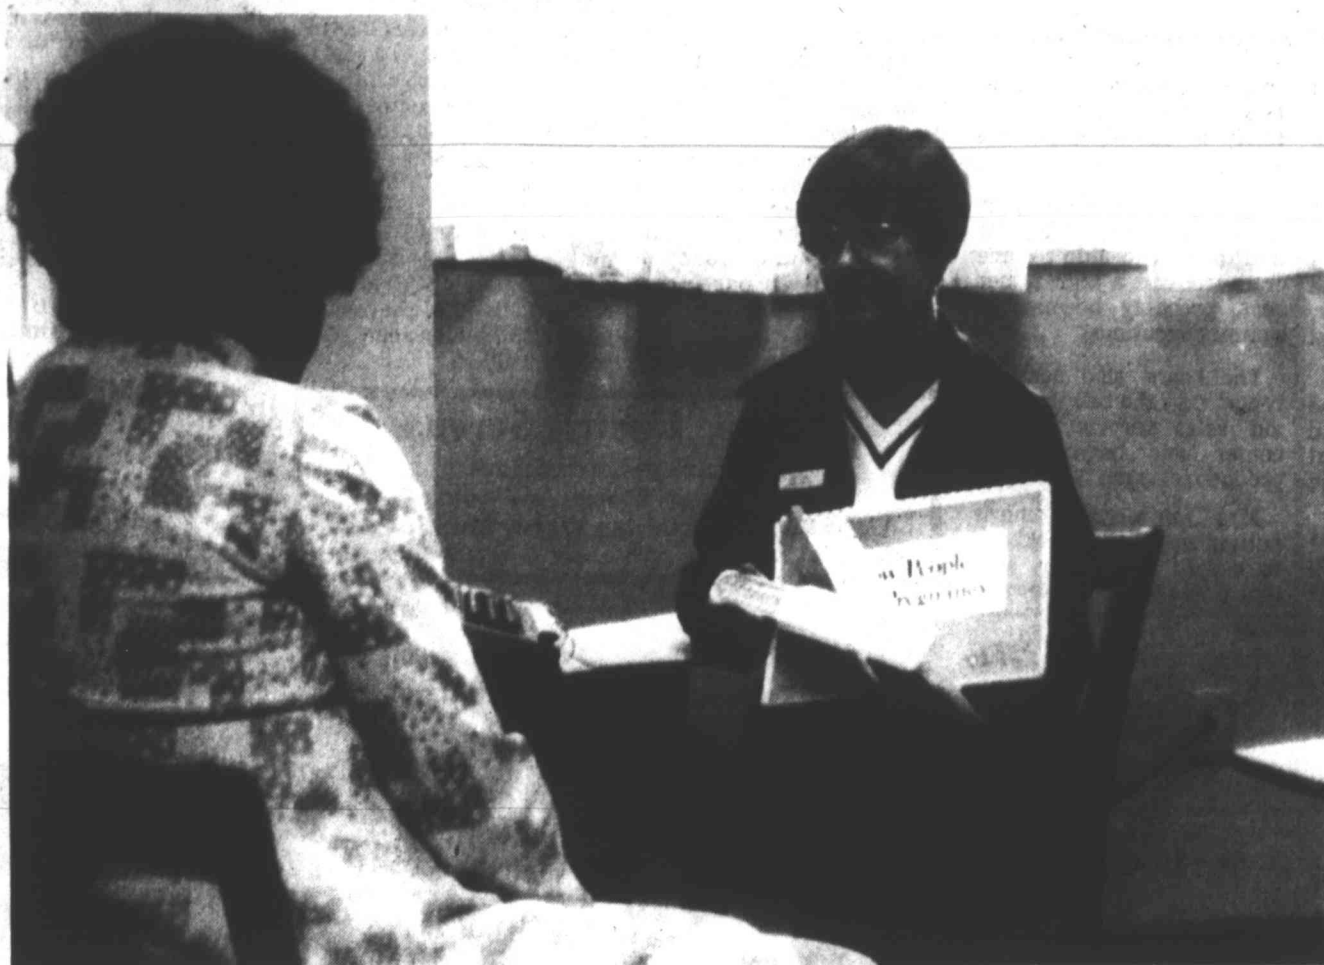

"Too many misconceptions are being perpetuated in the area of sexuality, especially among the teenagers. Consequently, they worry about many needless things," she said.

"We feel we can give good, sound advice to a young woman in these areas," she said.

Drake said she feels the ideal sex education should be initiated in the home, however "parents who think they are giving good advice may not because they do not always understand their child's special need or problem."

As with many counselors in any field, Drake believes an unbiased person can sometimes best solve a problem.

An unwanted pregnancy, especially in an unmarried teenager, can be very upsetting to all those around her, including herself. "More sex education in the schools would solve a lot of unwanted pregnancies," she said.

COUNSELING ON various matters concerning family planning is just one aspect of the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood. Here, director Sue Drake counsels a patient on the various methods of contraception available to her at the center.

The local center does not perform any surgery, such as sterilization or abortion, but does refer the patient to a qualified doctor. There are no doctors locally who perform abortions, Drake said, but the center refers the patient instead to a doctor in such places as San Angelo, Midland, Odessa or Lubbock.

A woman requesting an abortion who comes to the center will have all of the alternatives given to her first, she said. "An abortion is not always the answer."

The different procedures of an abortion will be explained to the woman considering one, so she will know exactly whether she will want one, Drake said. "The pain factor and the trauma factor will be mentioned in the discussion also," she added.

"Every woman wants an abortion for a different reason," she said. "Therefore we treat every case differently."

Drake indicated abortions are very popular with teenagers today, because of the easy availability of the procedure.

The center works under the auspices of the United Way, and is funded under state and federal grants, as are all Planned Parenthood centers.

Some women who come to the center are qualified for free medical care and contraceptive devices if they are all ready welfare program recipients or potential ones, Drake said.

However, she said, no woman should stay away from the center because she feels she will not be able to afford the services.

"Our policy here is no one will be refused services because she cannot pay for them," she said.

"We are here to prevent unwanted pregnancies and to help control world population."

Before any contraceptives are given out to a woman at the center, she must undergo a complete physical examination.

The physical, which takes place at the center with a registered nurse-practitioner conducting the tests, includes all of the necessary items required by a physician to issue a particular type of contraception. A pap smear, breast exam, blood tests and a urinalysis are included in the exam, Drake said.

After the test results are in, the woman can discuss the type of contraception she will be able to use.

"All types of contraceptives are distributed here," she said. "Of course, the birth control pill is still the most popular."

Besides counseling women who try not to have children, Drake counsels those who want one, but cannot.

"Sometimes we get both the husband and wife to come in so we can counsel both of them on planning their family and difficulties they may have in doing so," she said.

A small number of men have come to the center requesting information on vasectomies, she added.

As well as being director and counselor for the center, Drake acts as a public speaker for the area Planned Parenthood. She is often invited to women's groups and home and family living and child development classes at the local high school.

"It helps talking to the youngsters about their sexuality," she said.

Former mailman still deals with words writing poetry

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — "Poetry can be fun," says an ex-mailman who decided it would be more fun to write greeting cards than to deliver them.

Fun, in fact, is an essential ingredient in his poetic recipe, says 37-year-old Edward Cunningham, who likes to laugh at life and, accordingly, doesn't take himself too seriously.

When people think of poetry, they think of something weighty and cryptic," he says. "Poetry to most people is something you have to ponder for days. It doesn't have to be. Poetry can have meaning without fracturing your mind."

Cunningham, who started with the company as a greeting card writer after working as a soda jerk, cook and postman, now writes for Hallmark books. He has written or collaborated on some 50 books, which have sold nearly three million copies in card shops.

The son of an Irish immigrant, he likes to sing the hundreds of Irish ballads he knows but admits he can't carry a tune. As a kid, he says, he was not better at sports. A confirmed bench-warmer, he played only two downs in two years for his high school football team.

"I was sent into one game and was so excited I ran over the guy I was replacing. He had to be helped off the field," relates Cunningham, whose ironic view of his brief football career is reflected in his poem, "Sports Fans."

He writes most of his poems with his wife, Gail, in mind. One, "An Accidental Valentine," is based on an actual incident; "Noticing the note on your desk top that began 'Dear Mom and Dad'" and was plainly none of my business.

I carefully devoured every syllable discovered certain rave reviews about myself too flattering to repeat and hoped your folks would enjoy hearing from you as much as I had."

That's from "Sharing Our Love," his most recent book. And though he's one of the most productive poets in America, his fame hasn't increased greatly since his days of toting a mailbag. But Cunningham says that doesn't bother him at all.

Wanted Wife
To Act Alive

DEAR ABBY: I just read in a magazine that one of the most unusual letters you ever received was from a woman who said that on her honeymoon her husband wanted her to lie in a tub of cold water for 20 minutes, and then come to bed and "pretend" she was dead.

Boy he IS weird! I would have been satisfied if on our honeymoon my wife had taken a hot bath and came to bed pretending she was ALIVE!

OPPOSITE PROBLEM

DEAR OPPOSITE: The wife of the weirdo who likes 'em cold and lifeless wrote to my sister. Not me.

DEAR ABBY: I was raped almost two years ago and something has been bothering me ever since. I was a virgin before I was raped, and now I won't be able to wear a white wedding dress because white stands for purity, and I'm not pure anymore.

I don't have a boyfriend and I may never get one, but in case I do I'll have to tell him the whole story and he may not even believe me.

Or do you think because I couldn't help myself I can wear white?

TROUBLED AT TWENTY-ONE

DEAR TROUBLED: Even though you may not be a virgin technically, you are still morally "pure." However, white gowns are not reserved for virgin brides only. Any bride who has never been married before may wear white.

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended a wedding with a male friend of mine. Although the invitation was sent to him, he asked me to accompany him. I accepted and we had a wonderful time. To my amazement, my friend received a bill for $25 for "taking a date."

In the past, my friend and I double-dated several times with the bride and groom, so I was no stranger to them. My friend and the groom had even been roommates for a while.

I'm in my 30s and have attended many weddings (myself taking a date, or vice versa) and I have never heard of being "billed" for my guest.

The parents of the bride are supposedly "upper crust" society. Is this proper? Have you ever heard of it before?

SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SAN: It is not proper, and I've never heard of it before. You fail to mention whether your friend asked if he could bring a date. If he brought you without asking, perhaps this was their way of punishing him. In any case, it was a chintzy stunt.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24¢) envelope.

Eagle auxiliary meets

A meeting of the Fraternal Order of Eagles Auxiliary No. 3188 was held July 25 at the Aerie Home, with 14 members in attendance.

Miss Vickie Ledsoma was initiated into the auxiliary.

A district 4 convention was held in Crane, July 23-24. Attending from Big Spring were Mr. and Mrs. Ron Blankenship, Mrs. J. M. Dalton, Mrs. Errol Porter and Mrs. Richard H. Sayers. Mrs. J. C. Davis, Odessa, Broncho Auxiliary, was named as District 4 Auxiliary mother.

The next district 4 convention is scheduled to be in Ft. Stockton in September.

Cash prizes were awarded at the state convention for top membership producers. The membership chairman for the Eagle Year 1976 was also awarded a prize. Those who received awards included Mrs. Nell Tippie, Mrs. Mae Steele, Mrs. V. B. Wrye, Mrs. J. M. Dalton and Mrs. Watson Pickett.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be Aug. 8 at the Aerie Home.

Good storage space

NEWARK, Del. (AP) — An attic is a good storage area only if it is protected against pests, rain and snow and the floor is well supported by the area below it, warns Pat Wilson, Delaware extension family living agent. Make sure that items stored in the attic can withstand a variation in temperature from well below freezing to as hot as 140 degrees Fahrenheit, Ms. Wilson adds.

Tickets and predictions

Ex-Techer, and now tooth-terror, Reg Cranford confirmed a week ago a story that appeared in the Lubbock paper yesterday. "I sent off for tickets to the Tech-A&M game," Cranford said, as he demonstrated on the models how I wasn't brushing properly, "and they sent back a letter saying that nothing was left but end-zone seats."

The situation has even worsened for those of you out there who don't have your ducats yet. Now, according to ticket manager Carol Baker, there are only a limited number of tickets remaining in one end-zone . . . the grassy knoll section located at the north end of Jones Stadium.

Tickets for the "green" seats are $3.50 for adults and $2 for high school age and under.

A scarcity of tickets is a relatively new problem for the local Tech booster. Cotton Bowl fever really didn't hit big on the caprock until last year, and tickets became as hard to find as a brass sprinkler at the city park.

The whole situation has given me an idea. I think I'll set up a small daily box entitled "Have tickets . . . need tickets" when football season arrives.

Therefore, those of you who might experience an unexpected game-negating occurrence and need to get rid of tickets in a hurry can call in and have an outlet so that someone else can attend the game, so the ducats won't be wasted.

And those of you who really want tickets "bad" to a particular game can also call in and get your name on the list, just in case those who have the tickets are too shy to call in themselves.

Permian has been picked to finish as top-dog in District 5-4A against this year, and the Steers are tabbed for a dead last encore.

So says the latest poll. For those of you who believe in polls, it's the same old story of love and glory commonly known as "Stud Buzzards over Turkeys."

Don't put much stock in it. The coin-flippers are wrong just about as many times as they are right. But since everyone else has done it, here's what "sports writers across the state" (nobody ever asked me!) saw in the echoes of their minds:

Bryan is the writers' choice to win the Class 4A crown; Mt. Pleasant got the nod for Class 3A; Spearman was to take the 2A, Seagraves Class A, and Wheeler the B title.

Other predictions indicate that Borden County High School will make it to regionals, Colorado City will win its district (although Coahoma might have something to say about that), Permian will journey all the way to the semi-finals, and Andrews, finish third in Class AAA, with a little help from their superstar quarterback Booger Brooks.

Predictions are predictions, that's all I can say. Personally, I'm waiting until the Playboy poll comes out. The pictures are always better. (kidding, just kidding!)

One postscript: If the "experts" are even close about Andrews, (and oo-whoe I saw that Booger machine last year), the locals will have one hot baptismal of fire in their first contest. Also, look for Andrews to fill up the visiting side of Memorial Stadium.

One more postscript, this one courtesy of Redneck from San Angelo — the Texas High School Coaches Association poll of the various districts:

Rangers hand BlueJays worst defeat ever

TORONTO (AP) — Texas Rangers Manager Billy Hunter has been involved with major league baseball for nearly 30 years, but still gets a surprise every once in a while.

"I haven't seen anything like that for a long time," Hunter said Tuesday night after his Rangers trounced Toronto Blue Jays 14-0 in an American League game before 22,357 spectators at Exhibition Stadium.

"What can I say about something like that?"

The Rangers banged 17 hits off five Toronto pitchers, including Jim Clancy, who was making his first major league start. Clancy lasted two innings and gave up five runs before giving way to the Blue Jays bullpen.

With the victory, the Rangers broke a club record for the most lopsided shutout victory and set a Texas mark for the most doubles in a game—seven. The club record for hits in a single game is 20.

"Was the record really 20 hits?" said Hunter, who was named manager of the Rangers a month ago after 12 years as third-base coach of Baltimore Orioles. "If I had only known..."

The victory was the 14th for the Rangers in their last 17 games and leaves the club eight games back of first-place Chicago White Sox in the West Division.

The loss was the sixth in a row for the Blue Jays and the 16th in their last 20 games. Since the all-star break, the Blue Jays have lost five games in a row—all by at least four runs. The loss Tuesday night was the worst in the expansion club's history.

Hunter was in a buoyant mood following the game, predicting bigger and better things for the Rangers.

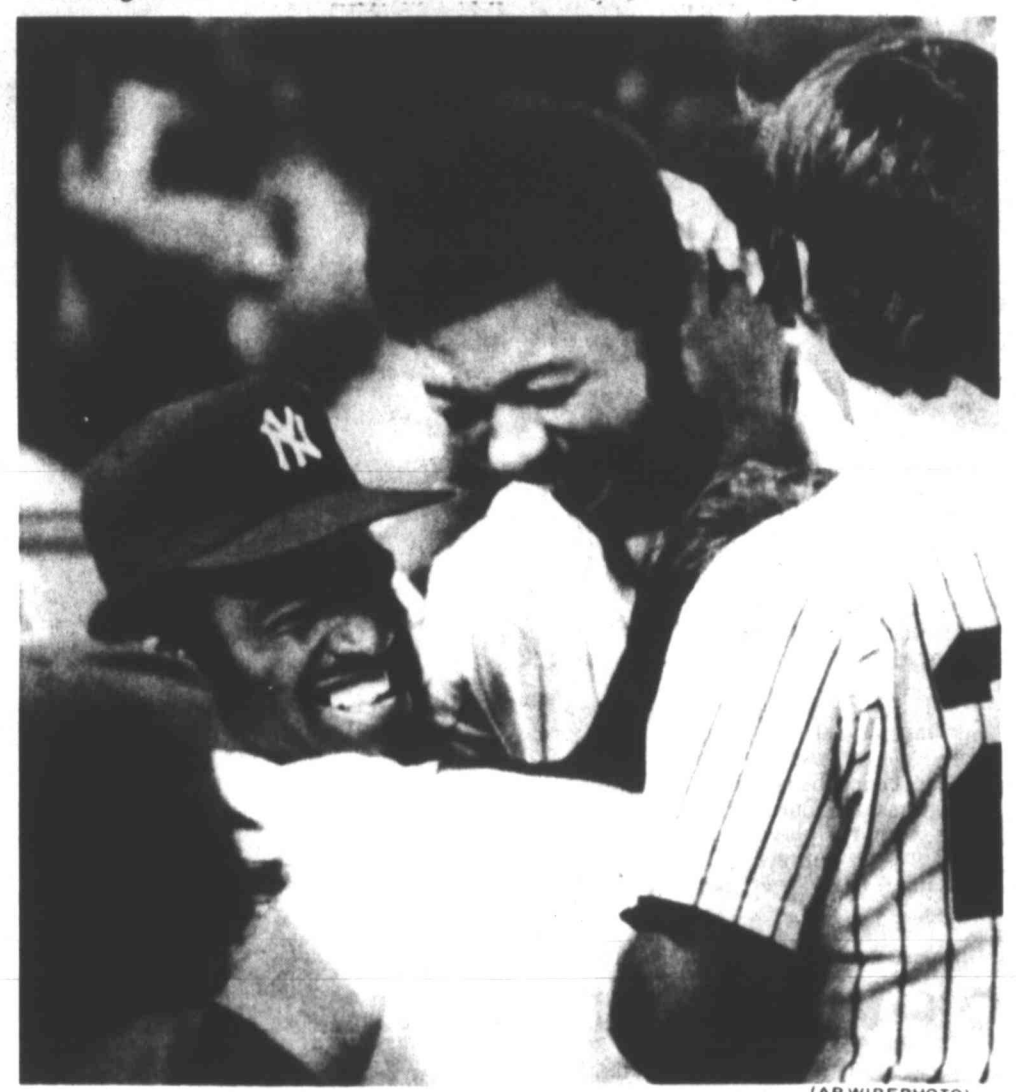

"I think we're playing now like we're capable of playing," Hunter said. "It's been more of a team thing. The pitching's been super and we're making the most of our hits."

Designated hitter Willie Horton, who was 4 for 5—including three doubles—and knocked in two runs, said the Rangers have the talent to make a run for the division title.

"We've got the team. There's no doubt our attitude has really changed in the last few months."

Kurt Bevacqua, who replaced starting third baseman Toby Harrah in the fourth-inning after the game was out of reach, knocked in three runs with a home run and single as Bert Blyleven, 10-9, pitched a four-hitter.

Claudell Washington and Bert Campaneris also knocked in two runs each for the Rangers. Washington's RBI came on a sacrifice fly and a single. Campaneris tripled home two runs in the second inning.

PINCH HIT HERO — Cliff Johnson of the New York Yankees gets a dugout welcome from teammate Del Alton after hitting a game tying two run home run in the bottom of the ninth inning at Yankee Stadium Tuesday night. An inning later the Yanks bested the Baltimore Orioles 5-4 on Reggie Jackson's homer.

Sell the Rangers? not on your life!

DALLAS (AP) — One of the two businessmen interested in buying the Texas Rangers baseball team says he's beginning to think majority owner Brad Corbett has had a change of heart.

It was a discouraged and exasperated Corbett who shocked Ranger fans last month when he announced he had decided to sell the club.

But that was last month. "I'm not optimistic about anything happening because I don't think Brad Corbett wants anything to happen," said Bill Seay, who along with developer Ray Nasher have shown an interest in swapping their minority-owner status for a larger slice of the pie.

"Some of the ideas Brad has about the price of this thing and just exactly what he wants to sell and for how much, I just can't go along with," Seay added. "I just don't think he really wants to sell the ball club."

At the time of the announcement, Corbett said he would be willing to part with his share of the team for $6 million. The Rangers were in a dismal slump at the time.

But that has changed. The Rangers have caught fire and won 14 of their last 17 games, including their last four.

Howell qualifies in two tourneys

David Howell, No. 1 letterman on the Big Spring High School Golf team, traveled to Lubbock to compete at Meadowbrook Golf Course on July 25 for qualifying in both the Texas State Junior Championship and the P.G.A. National Junior Championship.

Howell's round of 74 qualified him for both the State Junior and P.G.A. National Tournaments. He will now compete Aug. 8-12 at North Texas State University in Denton for the State Junior Championship.

Concurrent with the State Junior, the first 36 holes will determine the one qualifier for the Chevrolet-P.G.A. National Junior Championship which will be played at Walt Disney World, Aug. 17-21.

The West Texas qualifying at Lubbock determined 4 places for the P.G.A. and 8 places for the State Junior. The low round was a 72 on the par 71 Meadowbrook Course.

Chris Howell, who qualified for State last year, did not qualify this year, but both he and David will be competing at Big Spring Country Club next Tuesday for the West Texas Junior Tournament of Champions along with their teammate Bruce Carroll.

Wright examined, other Pokes ail

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — While the Dallas Cowboys practiced in sweltering 100-degree heat, team officials awaited the outcome of examinations in Dallas on the right knee of veteran offensive tackle Rayfield Wright.

Wright returned to Dallas Tuesday to be examined by the team physician. A spokesman said they will attempt to determine Wright's status as soon as possible.

Second-year man Jim Eidson replaced the four-time All-Pro, 11-year veteran Wright at right tackle.

Veteran linebacker D.D. Lewis came to terms with the team. Lewis, a nine-year veteran, signed a series of one-year contracts late Monday, but the terms were not released.

Tony Dorsett, the Heisman Trophy winner and top draft choice, was able to move freely in a scrimmage Tuesday and showed no effects from the knee sprain he suffered last week.

While Washington Coach George Allen's troubles continue to mount, Minnesota mentor Bud Grant had his biggest headache eliminated Tuesday.

Allen lost what he called "the best back I ever coached" Tuesday when seven-year veteran Larry Brown announced his retirement. Allen also has the problem of holdouts Mike Thomas and Frank Grant, two of the Redskins' key performers.

Meanwhile, Bud Grant regained the best running back he has coached when Chuck Foreman agreed to a two-year extension of his contract.

Brown, 29, led the National Football League in rushing in 1972 with 1,216 yards as he led the Redskins to the Super Bowl. But he took a tremendous physical beating throughout his career as he averaged 236 rushing attempts for his first six seasons. That heavy toll caused his premature retirement.

"It was physically impossible for me to endure another football season," said Brown. He will remain with the club in public relations, working with youth and charities.

Allen said Thomas and Grant, who together accounted for more than half the team's total offense last season, would be fined $500 a day for missing two days of training camp. They were expected to report Monday but did not show up until Tuesday evening.

Nets allowed to move

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Nets won just 22 games during the 1976-77 National Basketball Association season. But they scored a significant off-court triumph Tuesday when they received permission to move to New Jersey.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien stepped into the dispute between the Nets and the New York Knicks, who—citing terms of the NBA-ABA merger agreement—claimed their territorial rights would be violated by the move and asked the courts to provide a solution.

The Nets, meanwhile, filed two suits asking permission for the move. Judge Robert L. Carter presided over a two-day trial, then asked the teams to attempt an out-of-court settlement. A 10-hour bargaining session, directed by O'Brien, produced the agreement early Tuesday.

The settlement allows the Nets to play in Rutgers University's new 8,500-seat gymnasium in Piscataway, N.J., for at least one season, then move into a prospective 20,000-seat arena to be built in the Hackensack Meadowslands.

In exchange, the Nets will give the Knicks "financial and other considerations," according to O'Brien. It was reported that these financial considerations could be $4 million, in addition to the $3.2 million owed the Knicks from a $4 million indemnity provision of the merger. The Nets may also be required to deliver a first-line player.

Judge Carter approved the agreement late Tuesday. Nets owner Roy Boe scheduled a news conference today to announce the team's move to New Jersey.

THANKING THE GALLERY — Former President Gerald Ford holds a bullhorn as he talks to the gallery surrounding the 18th green Tuesday at the Jerry Ford Invitational golf tournament in Vail, Colo. Ford thanked hundreds of people surrounding the final hole and said that the money raised by the tournament would benefit Vail charities. Celebrities that played in the event included Bob Hope, Jackie Gleason and Jack Nicklaus. At left an unidentified caddy listens to former Chief Executive.

Dibbs has dibs on win

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Second-seeded Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla., rallied to defeat Ramiro Benavides of Bolivia 2-6, 6-0, 6-2 in the first round of the $125,000 Louisville Tennis Classic.

In other first-round action Dick Stockton of Dallas defeated Deon Joubert of France, 7-5, 6-0; Brian Fairlie of New Zealand advanced with a 6-3, 6-2 defeat of Jean Louis Haillet of France, and Ray Moore of South Africa was upset by countryman Bernie Mitton, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Bethea, Oilers still split

NACOGDOCHES, Tex. (AP) — Two veterans commanded the most attention at Houston Oilers' practice sessions Tuesday — one because he was present and the other because he wasn't.

Wide receiver Gary Garrison, claimed off waivers from San Diego last week, observed his first practice.

Defensive end Elvin Bethea failed to practice for the third day in a row, running his fine to a possible $1,500 since it is believed he is being hit with a $500 fine each day he doesn't show.

Bethea, who is involved in a contract dispute with the National Football League club, was in camp, ate at the training table but did not practice.

"I talked to him and I got he feeling he intends to report Wednesday," said Oilers Head Coach "Bum" Phillips. "Something better develop soon. It's costing him money."

Neither Bethea nor Oiler officials will comment on the specifics of the disagreement.

Garrison, 33, feels he can help the Oilers.

"If I didn't feel I could still play," he said, "I wouldn't have gone to this much trouble."

Garrison, who averaged 40 catches per season in his first 10 years in the league, spent last fall on injured reserve after suffering a shoulder separation in the second game.

"I'm not fast," he said, "but I have good concentration and, after 10 years, I know how to read a defense."

He said sitting out the year helped him.

"I was able to heal myself by letting nature take its course," he said. "Football looked good to me again, too. Getting away for a while cleared my mind."

"I had the option to declare myself a free agent or come to Houston. I made the decision because of the relationship Bum Phillips has with his players. If he tells you something, he means it. He is a man of his word."

Astros lose game of leaping inches

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rich Gossage, who came within a single leap of throwing a grand slam pitch, earned his 17th save under difficult circumstances.

The Pirate reliever entered Tuesday's game with the Houston Astros after lefthander John Candelaria was literally knocked out in the eighth inning, but hung on as Pittsburgh won 3-2.

Candelaria was on his way to a hospital with an injured pitching arm when Gossage arrived. There was one out, the score was 3-1 and the bases were loaded.

Gossage, who has been idled by a pulled rib muscle since the All-Star game, faced Enos Cabell, who promptly smashed the ball to right field where Dave Parker had to make a leaping, twisting catch at the wall.

Roger Metzger, who had reached first on a Parker error, scored on the sacrifice fly, but Gossage finished the inning without allowing another run.

J. R. Richard, 9-8, took the loss. Candelaria earned his 11th win against three losses.

"I felt great tonight," Gossage said in the lockerroom. "I felt super. I was glad I got in because I was going crazy sitting on the bench."

"Gossage was throwing harder than I've ever seen him throw," said catcher Ed Ott, whose seventh inning homer proved the game-winner. It was Ott's fifth home run of the season.

Candelaria, meanwhile, was hit in the left forearm when Wilbur Howard laced a line shot back to the mound.

"I thought something was broken, the way he went down," said Gossage, who struck out two of the five batters he faced.

"He didn't even go after the ball when he was hit. Usually, your first instinct is to look around for the ball."

Slow pitch

meeting altered

The organizational meeting for the second half of the city Men's Slow Pitch Softball Association, originally slated for 7:30 p.m. in the high school choir room, has been changed to the bleachers at Johnny Stone Park, same time.

Tuesday night, the National League All-Stars over-powered the American League team 15-8.

THSCA All-Stars battle tonight

DALLAS (AP) — Listen to schoolboy basketball All-America Gilbert Salinas talk about himself and you'd swear he was club-footed and five-feet tall.

"Everyone expects me to be a super star but I'm really not that much of a crowd pleaser," says the quiet-spoken, articulate bluechip from San Antonio Burbank, who stands 6-11 WITHOUT his sneakers.

The lanky Salinas, who weighs only 210 pounds, says "I don't have super moves. But I think I'm an all-around player. People don't get to see my complete statistics. They judge only the scoring."

Salinas, who is Notre Dame-bound, can score. He averaged 21 points per game in taking Burbank to the Class 4A schoolboy finals.

But he's more proud of the hidden stats.

"A lot of people don't see the assists, the rebounds and the blocked shots," says Salinas who leads the South against the North tonight at Dallas Convention Center in the annual Texas High School Coaching School All-Star game.

He adds, "Some players have the ability to jump over buildings and don't have basketball sense. Now, I think I do."

Salinas says one of the reasons he chose Notre Dame is that he knows he won't be expected to be a super star first crack out of the box.

"It would be difficult for me to start and have to produce immediately," says Salinas. "It's a difficult thing and I'm not sure I could stand the pressure. I'll be playing against people better than me and I'll need a year or two to adjust."

Salinas is already a hardened All-Star game competitor and has yet to score in the double figures.

Why? "Well, for example, in the New York game it was so free when the guards brought the ball down that the only time you could get it was a rebound," he says. "I'll get the ball here because we have some guards who will pass it."

The North will be hard-pressed to match Salinas in height. Ralph McPherson of Arlington and R. Q. Tolliver of Munday both stand 6-7 or four inches below the towering Salinas as the tallest players Coach Kenneth Cleveland of Dimmitt High School have to offer.

Boyce Honea of Houston Milby is the South coach.

Some 6,000 fans were expected for the 7:30 p.m. tipoff.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is the time when it is advisable for you to keep your cool for most persons are ready, eager and willing to get into arguments at the drop of a hat. You can turn such conditions to your benefit by maintaining an objective and impersonal attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid picking an argument with a higher-up or you could regret it very quickly. Use tact in handling a troublesome credit matter.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You find many new interests that are fascinating but study them well since all that glitters is not gold. A new acquaintance can pose problems now so avoid him or her.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Give full attention to responsibilities you have to handle but don't let them upset you or you lose out where it counts the most.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take under advisement anything that a partner wants you to do, since this is not the right time to handle such. Don't become involved with problems of others. Avoid a positive pest.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy at your work without bothering others and get much accomplished. Avoid arguments with anyone. Plan work wisely for best results.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care that amusements are not more costly than you can afford. Get busy with a particular talent you possess but don't involve others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study home affairs well and do nothing that can spoil the harmony there. Get rid of any cause of friction. Handle credit affairs well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Solve personal problems easily today, but don't upset others around you. Avoid one who talks too much.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study into new interests that appeal to you but be careful where financial matters are concerned. Listen to what an expert has to suggest and follow through where feasible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It is important you control yourself and show others you are suave and get good results. Use diplomacy in the handling of a vital matter. Plan some time for restoring your energies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Spend some time by yourself and plan how to make your life more profitable and ideal. Show others how practical you are.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use tact in going after some personal wish and you can soon gain it. Take care of any health problems you may have.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be capable of solving any problem and will try to do so, thus getting involved in the affairs of others, so be sure to teach to mind own affairs strictly, otherwise your progeny could get into a good deal of trouble.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

DO YOU CALL THAT PERMANENT?

BOSS, I'VE GOT TO TALK TO YOU

IT CONCERNS MY SALARY!

THE LAST TIME I HAD A RAISE WAS TWO YEARS AGO TODAY!!

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY!

BLONDIE

THE LAST TIME I HAD A RAISE WAS TWO YEARS AGO TODAY!!

HAPPY ANNIVERSARY!

BUT, ENOUGH TALK ABOUT ME. LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU, LOLLY.

WHAT DID YOU THINK OF MY PLAYING?

MY PLAYING TODAY WAS POSITIVELY BRILLIANT!

MY BATTING AND BASE RUNNING WAS A THING OF BEAUTY. MY FIELDING AND THROWING WAS ABSOLUTELY SUPER.

BUT, ENOUGH TALK ABOUT ME. LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU, LOLLY.

WHAT DID YOU THINK OF MY PLAYING?

SHE SEEMS TO FEEL THAT I'M COMING BETWEEN HER AND HER FATHER... THAT I HAVE DESIGNS ON HIM!

THERE'S THE PHONE! I'LL TAKE IT!

THIS IS HENRY, RUTH!... LOOK! IT'S A BEAUTIFUL NIGHT! IF I WALK PAST YOUR PLACE WOULD YOU JOIN ME IN A MOONLIGHT STROLL?

HOW MUCH DO I OWE YOU FOR THE MILK, LOWEZEY?

NARY A CENT, ELVINEY... IT'S ON THE HOUSE...

--OR I SHOULD SAY "ON THE BARN"

JOE SHARKEY PITCHES FOUR INNINGS...

FOR TONIGHT, JOE... SAM THINKS YOU'VE PITCHED ENOUGH FOR YOUR FIRST OUTING.

LET'S SEE... NO RUNS... ONE HIT... FIVE WALKS... AN EIGHT STRIKEOUTS! NOT BAD!

THANKS FOR THE OPPORTUNITY, SAM! I REALLY APPRECIATE IT!

WELL... HOW DO YOU FEEL, JOE?

REAL GOOD, COACH... EXCEPT FOR THE TIME I WENT UP TO BAT... THAT HURT!

I DON'T BELIEVE YOU!

THAT'S THE WORST WEB I'VE EVER SEEN!

IT MAY NOT BE ARTY... BUT IT'S FUNCTIONAL.

IN WHAT WAY?

THE HEAD ROACH FROM THE WELFARE OFFICE IS DUE IN TODAY.

CAN I BUY YOU A DRINK, MISS?

THAT'S NICE OF YOU.

WATCH IT, LASS... HE'S MARRIED... NOTICE HOW HE TURNS HIS BACK WHEN HE OPENS HIS WALLET?

DRUNK AGAIN, EH?

YES.

DID YOU PLAY CARDS AGAIN?

YES, AND I LOST A BUNDLE!

HOW CAN YOU STAND THERE AND GRIN THAT SILLY GRIN?

YOU'RE THE BUNDLE...

BUT, ENOUGH TALK ABOUT ME. LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU, LOLLY.

Billing rate is reduced

H. M. Fitzhugh, manager of the Federal Land Bank Association of Lamesa, has announced that the Federal Land Bank of Houston will reduce the interest billing rate on variable rate loans to 7% per cent. This reduction will be effective Aug. 1, 1977, and will affect $1.04 billion in variable rate loans to 18,026 Texas farmers and ranchers. This billing rate change will be effective on both farm loans and rural residence loans.

The variable rate, loan was introduced by the Houston Bank in July, 1969 and provides for the rate to fluctuate with the variation in the cost of money. A more favorable money market has made this billing reduction possible. Fitzhugh stated, "This continues to demonstrate the bank's policy to furnish credit to Texas farmers and ranchers at the lowest possible cost consistent with sound business practices."

The Federal Land Bank of Houston makes long-term real estate loans on farms and ranch land and rural residences throughout Texas and now has $1.3 billion in loans outstanding.

The local association makes and services loans in Andrews, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Midland, Upton, and Winkler counties. Officers and directors of the association are H. M. Fitzhugh, manager, and K. G. Hamilton, assistant manager; directors — James C. Barr, president, John H. Montgomery, vice president, J. E. Hopper, Frank B. Jones, Jr. and Thomas W. McKinzie.

HANGING JUDGE — The courtroom of Judge Isaac C. Parker is shown through a noose, using a fish-eye lens. The courtroom, in Fort Smith, Ark., is a national historic site and the gallows has been reconstructed. A total of 79 persons were reportedly hanged by Parker during his 21 years as a judge.

Idea for movie plot triggered kidnapping

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — An idea for a movie plot triggered the real-life kidnapping of 26 children and their school bus driver, according to reports published after surprise pleas by three young men accused of the bizarre crime.

New information about the case's most baffling aspects came forward Tuesday following guilty pleas in Alameda County Superior Court by James Schoenfeld, 25, his brother Richard, 24, and Frederick Woods, 25. In published reports: — A defense attorney and Woods and the Schoenfelds changed their pleas to guilty Monday in the ransom kidnapping, which carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment with the chance of parole. But they reaffirmed innocent pleas to five counts of kidnapping with bodily harm, which carries a maximum penalty of life in prison with no chance of parole.

The three are accused of abducting their victims at gunpoint on a narrow country road in central California on July 15, 1976, transporting them by van 95 miles north to a Livermore rock quarry and imprisoning them in a buried moving van.

Kurt Sproul and Robert Beal proudly present
'HOT STUFF'

Kurt Sproul and Robert Beal are stopping in Big Spring for a fast week with their sizzling new revue from Las Vegas called "HOT STUFF." It is a mini-revue that features fast-paced choreography in their dance numbers, comedy, singing, magic acts, lightning-fast costume changes, and "one of the best-looking casts ever to be in show business." The majority of the cast were in an all time favorite show called Bottoms Up. Kurt Sproul and Robert Beal put their heads together and decided to produce a show very similar but faster, fresher and newer. Sproul and Beal, currently being billed as the youngest producers in show business, have worked with such names as Ann-Margret, Sammy Davis, Jr., Phyllis Diller, Bob Hope, Olivia Newton-John, Mitzi Gaynor, John Davidson, Jerry Van Dyke, Rip Taylor, and a host of other luminaries. The sets and costumes that Sproul and Beal have conceived have been executed by the same companies in Las Vegas who work for all the production shows, such as Hallelujah Hollywood, Follies Bergeres, Lido de Paris, and Casino de Paris. Ennea will be providing the background music. "HOT STUFF" will be appearing at the Brass Nail for one week only. We are unable to accept reservations, so make plans early to see the show.

A lot of remembering

with Marj Carpenter

There's an awfully lot of remembering that goes into the Heritage Museum calendars each year and the newsletters when they are published.

I took a little time to sit down this week and look through the last calendar and study it a little. It was my first few minutes of a breathing spell since New Year's.

I was particularly interested in the picture of the class of 1920. There in that picture stood five lovely lasses and one young lad. The cutlines said one girl and one boy were missing from the picture.

So that made a total of seven in that class. Now what amazed me is that out of that seven there came one college professor in Elinor Pancoast and one major editor in John King, who became managing editor of the Dallas Morning News.

Elinor, who was a professor of Goucher college in Silver Springs, Maryland, retired in Denton. She visited the museum here a few years back and said it was the first time she'd been around in 50 years.

But that was some class. It makes you wonder. We work and worry so hard to get our town to grow and provide adequate education and all of that bit. And I must say, there will be bigger classes that fail to produce a college professor and an editor of a major publication.

Also in that class were two of the Coffee sisters, who are still living in Dallas — Ollie and Vera.

Their sister, Reba, married Clyde Thomas. She was one of eight children, born to Richard C. and Ollie

C. Anderson Coffee in 1890. They moved to Texas in 1893, filing claim on two sections of land about 20 miles northwest of Big Spring.

Reba died in 1968 but she left quite a diary which her published after her death. She had nine children including Adele, Clyde (Dr.), Richard, Rebecca, George, Ruth, Don, Peggy and Ray. All nine were college educated.

Reba met Clyde when she came into Big Spring to high school and he was the principal. She graduated from high school and attended the University of Texas for a year. Then she returned home to marry Clyde. He had decided to go to summer school at UT and study law. He wanted both of them to go to college and graduate, then marry.

But Reba had not reckoned with her father. He refused to finance her college education unless she broke her engagement. She did not break her engagement but started a small kindergarten class and got married in June. She told the minister not to put "will obey" in the marriage vows. But she said, "He not only put the part in, but came down on it with vengeance." I smiled and said "I will."

One of the things that Clyde and Reba did through the years was take all nine children to the picture show once a week. After the children were to old to go with them, they still attended once a week to break the monotony.

Lots of modern couples could have taken a few lessons in how to keep a family together from Reba and Clyde Thomas.

I always read those old stories with fascination and wonder how we would have fared with the lack of luxuries and the tough times of those turn of the century families such as Richard and Ollie Coffee or those early 1900 families such as Reba and Clyde Thomas.

I don't know. But I wonder a lot, when I'm out ridin' fence.

Puberty begins at night

Sleep is fastest way to manhood

DALLAS (AP) — The fastest way to manhood is through sleep, says a Dallas researcher who maintains that puberty begins at night.

Dr. Robert Boyar, using sophisticated equipment at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School in Dallas, says his research shows that hormonal secretions that eventually separate the men from the boys are most active while teenagers are asleep.

"In the last seven years, we've begun to understand that sleep is a very active period of endocrine secretion," the associate professor of internal medicine and pediatrics said.

"This research has taught us that the fluctuating secretory episodes of the pituitary hormones during sleep are in some way related to the normal endocrine onset of puberty," Boyar added.

Boyar and his colleagues do their work while their patients doze. The volunteer subjects are hooked to a blood-monitoring device that bloodlessly draws the some of the life fluid every 20 minutes.

A brainwave monitor is used to record the various stages of sleep. These results are analyzed along with the blood samples.

The changes are touched off by increasing secretions of gonadotropins, which stimulate the production of the sex hormones that turn teenagers into adults, he explained.

The secretions subside when the teenager awakens but Boyar says the hormones continue to pump during the sleeping hours.

Once adulthood is reached, however, the secretion levels remain constant — unaffected by sleep.

The researcher believes the information will help in determining if a patient is just undergoing normal late puberty or experiencing hormonal disorders.

"This technique isn't something a doctor can do in his office. It's expensive and difficult. You have to have someone with the patient for a 24-hour period and you need the laboratory backup. No patient could afford it," Boyar said.

Since the treatment is part of a research project, there is no charge to patients and normal volunteers are paid for their sleeping participation.

CBS will pay you to watch new show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The old saying, "You couldn't pay me to watch that show," may get the acid test next fall. CBS, to help publicize its new series, will run a $250,000 sweepstakes for viewers then.

"It's designed to get 'em to at least sample the shows," says Louis Dorfman, the veteran CBS advertising chief who hatched the campaign. "If they get hooked, that's marvelous." The campaign, costing CBS more than a million, kicks off at the start of the 1977-78 campaign with an 11-page advertisement in the Sept. 17 edition of TV Guide magazine.

In addition to touting the 10 new series on CBS' fall schedule, the ad includes a card viewers are asked to fill out and mail to CBS to be eligible to win cash, goods or both.

The last day for card-mailing is Oct. 21. The winners — no individual can win more than $25,000 — will be announced on Nov. 21.

"What we're doing is asking the reader to watch at least five of the new shows and answer some simple questions we pose about them," said Dorfman. He was asked for a sample.

"Oh, tough ones," he said in jest. "Like who plays the lead on 'The Betty White Show'?" Other questions will ask viewers what they like about various stars and various new shows, he added.

Must viewers actually observe the offerings to be eligible?

"That's an iffy question," Dorfman said. "But there's no arm-twisting. What we say is, 'We would like you to watch.' However, they theoretically can send the cards in without watching the shows."

When Dorfman first unveiled his sweepstakes campaign to CBS affiliates last June, he noted that campaigns similar to it had been run the last 18 months by a number of package goods advertisers.

In those efforts, viewers were asked to watch specific commercials on specific shows, he said, and it resulted in a 17 per cent average rise in ratings for all the programs in which the ads appeared.

And, in a phone chat from New York, he made no bones about CBS' campaign seeking to raise ratings as well as publicize new shows.

If the advertisers' works caused a 17 per cent ratings hike, he said, "I don't know why I couldn't figure on a 25 per cent increase. I think people would rather watch shows than commercials." Dorfman, who expects three million to five million viewers to answer CBS' question cards, said it's the first time he can recall that any television network ever tried a campaign such as his.
