PORTALES, NEW MEXICO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 12, 1928

NUMBER 18

Chicken Hatchery Began Operation Monday This Week

The Wicks mammoth chicken hatchery began operation on Monday of this week, with the initial setting of 2000 eggs.

The capacity of this plant is 50,000 eggs, and Mr. Wicks says it is to be running at full capacity in a short time.

O. S. Hatch is in charge of the local plant, and is giving it his undivided attention.

The coming of this hatchery to Portales means much to the poultry industry of the county, and will tend to encourage better poultry.

Messrs. Wicks have made a big success of their hatchery at Clovis, are expert poultrymen and will give the poultrymen of the county the advantage of their experience in this line.

The plant is operated by steam and electricity, and is of the very latest model in use.

Mrs. Harcrow Injured Sunday

On last Sunday evening, the Dodge roadster driven by a son of Porter Dean collided with a Ford coupe in which Mr. and Mrs. Jim Harcrow were riding, overturning the coupe and painfully injuring Mrs. Harcrow.

The accident happened on the Portales-Clovis highway about one and one-half miles from this city.

Mrs. Harcrow suffered broken ribs and other injuries which were very painful, though not serious. She was brought to Portales and given immediate medical attention by a local physician.

It is understood that neither car suffered much damage. Speed and no brakes are alleged to have caused the collision.

Kornegay & Colligan Dissolve Partnership

On Monday of this week, the firm of Kornegay & Colligan, owners of the Blanco barber shop at Portales and the K. C. barber shop at Wink, Texas, dissolved partnership. Mr. Kornegay retaining the Portales shop and Mr. Colligan the Wink shop.

The Portales shop will be known in the future as Mill's Barber Shop. There will be no change in barbers.

On the occasion of the last meeting, which was held at Elida, there were ninety delegates present. Fully as many are expected at the coming meeting. Of course Portales is to be well represented. Harris Mid-Winter Clearance Success

On last Saturday the store of C. V. Harris was crowded with buyers from the four corners of the county, who came to take advantage of the splendid bargains being offered by this firm.

The sale continues to the 28th of this month, and by that time it is safe to say C. V. will have very little left when he takes his annual inventory.

A. F. Jones Attends The Talley Hearing

Arthur F. Jones, cashier of the First National Bank, who is a member of the stockholders' advisory committee of the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank, returned Sunday night from a trip to Dallas. This was the third trip made by Mr. Jones in his capacity as member of the advisory committee. The matter especially under consideration by the members of the Federal Reserve Board has been the manner of administration of the policies of the bank by Mr. Talley, present governor of the bank. Mr. Talley was re-elected by the Board for the coming year.

Luper Goes To Denver For Ford

Fred N. Luper is in Denver this week and will drive home in his new demonstration Ford car.

Deliveries are expected to begin in the next week or so.

Old Timers' Adv. Missed Last Week

Do they read the ads? Well, we reckon! Last week the ads of the Model Grocery and the McCall Grocery were accidentally omitted and the public wanted to know if they were out of business.

The Model has not missed an issue with its ad until the past week, and the ad of this firm has become a landmark to the readers of The News and its omission for one week caused much comment.

The McCall ad has been in every week, with the exception of possibly two, since this firm has been in business, and the omissions were regretted more from a spirit of loyalty of these firms than from the financial loss occasioned by their omission.

Look this week and you will find them both represented.

Boy Scout News

Boy Scouts of the Eastern New Mexico Council are planning to make good use of the loud-speakers in their neighborhoods next week.

By courtesy of radio station WEEA, The Dallas News-The Dallas Journal, James E. West, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America, will convey a special message to the boys of the Southwest and to all listeners promptly at 6:30 p. m. central time, January 26th, 1928. At 8 o'clock from the same station Mr. West will broadcast his entire address to the Ninth Regional committee meeting.

Eastern New Mexico Council is one of the 64 councils in the ninth region, which is composed of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. Minor Huffman, Boy Scout Executive, is making an effort to have some of the council members attend the regional meeting at Dallas on the 26th and 27th.

The Boy Scouts met Tuesday night at the Methodist church. Minor Huffman, Scout executive for this area, was present, as well as local scoutmaster Stroup. A feature of the meeting was the pantomiming of Scout laws.

MISS ODESSA HILL DIES AT POST, TEXAS

Mrs. Lee English returned Sunday night from Post, Texas, where she had been called to attend the funeral of her sister, Miss Odessa Hill, who died last Tuesday afternoon at the Lubbock sanitarium, where she underwent an operation on Jan. 1st as the result of a car accident some 7 or 8 weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee English and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hill visited her while she was in the sanitarium. At that time she was thought by doctors there to be doing nicely and it was believed she would recover. But on Tuesday last week word came to her sister, Mrs. English, and her brother, E. B. Hill, of her death.

Miss Hill was a sister to Miss Odell Hill, who attended school in Portales last year. Mr. Hill did not attend the funeral.

Roswell Building & Loan Associat'n. Is Prospering

The Roswell Building and Loan Association has just issued its annual statement, and is now seeking new business. This company has made many loans in Portales, and has been responsible in a large way for development of the town in the past year or so. In fact the Portales loans have exceeded the loans in any territory covered by this company.

J. L. Ashley Buys Woodell Produce

Last week, J. L. Ashley bought the Woodell Produce business and is now in full charge.

Mr. Ashley was former manager of the Reese Produce Co. at this place, and since leaving Portales has become homesick for the best town in Eastern New Mexico, so has decided to cast his lot here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashley will make their home in the second house off the paving on the left side of Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodell have moved to Bovina, where they will engage in the restaurant business.

Activities of The Cham. of Com.

The weekly luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday brought out the fact that practically enough funds have been subscribed to take care of the amount requested by the Board of Regents for the purchase of the location site for the normal school. A small amount is yet to be raised but it is felt that this will be subscribed before the end of the week. In view of this fact, the Board of Regents will meet the latter part of this week for the purpose of choosing a location.

Mr. Freeman, clerk of the town of Portales, was present at the meeting and, at the request of the members present, very clearly outlined the proposed sewer and water extensions as recommended by a recent survey and report on needed improvements in this line by Prof. Garst of the A. & M. College of New Mexico. This matter was referred to a committee for further investigation with a view of recommendation for acceptance of plans being made to the city council.

It was considered inadvisable, on account of incomplete condition of the general budget, to make an agricultural exhibit at the Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth, Texas, for this year.

The matter of better loan values and smaller acreage on loans to farmers by Federal Land Bank of Wichita has been referred to Dr. Kent of the A. & M. College, the agricultural department of the Santa Fe Ry. Co., Senators Bratton and Cutting, asking their support in the early consideration of this matter by the land bank. Senators Bratton and Cutting have advised that their influence will be used in this connection.

Various other matters came before the meeting but were postponed until later date.

On next Tuesday five minute talks will be made by J. N. McCall and Ralph R. Will on things needed for our city. These men are both splendid speakers and, no doubt, their talks will be of much value in furthering the constructive program of the city.

B. F. Alexander of Lubbock, Texas, was in town Saturday of this week looking after the taxes on his holdings in this county. Mr. Alexander owns land in the west part of the county, and is very optimistic as to the oil outlook for this section of the state.

Supper guests in the Franse-Christie home Thursday were Mrs. S. A. Padden, Mrs. J. S. Kerr and Miss Sara Kerr. The supper was excellent and was prepared in honor of Mrs. Kerr's birthday.

Chas. M. Cox of Elida, candidate for sheriff of Roosevelt county in the coming primary, was in Portales Tuesday in the interests of his campaign and made a short visit in The News office.

New Mexico Offers Dead Bandit Reward

Albuquerque, N. M., Jan. 18.—New Mexico today followed the lead of Texas when the New Mexico Bankers' Association offered a reward of $1,000 for each bandit killed while in the act of robbing a bank. An additional step was taken in the offer of $500 for each robber arrested and convicted.

Pointing out that surrounding states had taken similar action, the announcement said it was feared bank bandits would be driven into New Mexico and there was great need that the bankers protect themselves.

This offer has been posted by several states of the Southwest in the past few months. In Texas, the reward is $5,000 for dead bank bandits, with no reward offered by the association for those captured. The president of the Texas association stated that captured bandits were of no value to the association as they were seldom punished.

Frank Shaw Makes Plans For New Broom Factory

Frank Shaw is a busy man these days getting the final arrangements completed for the opening of his broom factory. In fact, he will be ready to place his machinery as soon as a suitable building is completed.

Mr. Shaw is thoroughly familiar with broom corn and the manufacture of brooms, and as Portales is now the broom center of the state, a factory of this nature cannot help but succeed.

This will not only be another industry for Portales but will provide a home market for a part of the immense broom corn production of this section.

He has the hearty support of the entire town as well as the farmers of the county, and Portales will soon be swept with Portales-made brooms.

Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary Mon.

D. B. Robinson, sixty-nine years old, and his wife, Nannie Robinson, same age, of Portales, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Monday, January 16th, 1928, having been married near Hernando, Mississippi, in 1878.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson are the parents of twelve children, nine sons and three daughters, six of whom are living. They also have seven grandchildren. Three sons, Messrs. Earl, Carl and Van now reside in Los Angeles, California; one daughter, Mrs. W. A. Bass, Logan, Utah; a son, Claude R. Fort Smith, Arkansas; and a son, C. B., who makes his home with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson spent most of their married life in Johnson county, Arkansas, and Mr. Robinson was one of the most prosperous mountain farmers of the county, also served a number of years as Justice of the Peace of that community. About ten years ago they moved to New Mexico and settled in the Causey community, and a few months ago, moved to Portales.

The main celebration was a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Robinson at their home on Monday noon, which was a lovely affair. Those present other than the host and hostess were one son, C. B., a grand daughter, Miss Grace Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dushington, Mr. and Mrs. Will King, J. F. Keller, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Catt and Walter King.

Many friends congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, and wish them many more years of happy married life.

Last Sunday morning at Sunday school the diplomas were given to those who made a passing grade. Those who received diplomas were: William Vick, J. A. Vick, Mrs. Ida Short, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Stephenson, Richard Vick, Mrs. Maude George and R. B. Rogers.

Elida Man Is Burned To Crisp

On last Friday evening Elida was the scene of a tragedy which cost James L. Belcher his life.

About five o'clock in the afternoon he ordered ten gallons of gasoline, which was delivered. He had it poured into an open tub in a room in the house. The deliveryman warned him that it was rather dangerous as it was likely to explode.

The deliveryman on reaching town looked back and saw the house in flames.

A crowd soon gathered, but no help was possible as the unfortunate man lay in death in the burning building. All attempts to rescue the body were futile as the intense heat prevented anyone entering.

When the fire died down the body of Belcher was found to have been literally burned up.

Belcher occupied the house with "Progs" Cullens and family, but none of these were at home at the time. He was using the gasoline to renovate some bedding.

Portales Truck Growers Meet

A meeting of the Portales Valley Truck Growers who are interested in sweet potatoes and tomatoes will be held at the court house Friday night, January 20, at 7:15 o'clock.

"Control of Sweet Potato Diseases (Black Rot, etc.)."

"Control of Tomato Diseases (Wilt, Western Yellow Blight)."

"Tomato Varieties, and the Raising of Tomatoes."

"Commercial Fertilizer for Tomatoes and Alfalfa."

(1928 prices on fertilizer will be announced at this meeting.)

The public is invited to attend.

NEW BANK BEEN PROMISED THE CITY OF LOVINGTON

Lea county, New Mexico without a bank, a railroad, or running stream, a mountain or even a bridge, is soon to have a bank and expects a new railroad within the next few years, according to Attorney Powhatan Carter, of Lovington who has recently made application for a charter for the Lea County National Bank, which is to be located at Lovington, county seat of Lea county.

The bank is to start business with a capital of $25,000 and a surplus of $15,000, all of which has been subscribed, according to Mr. Carter who believes that Lea county will enjoy a remarkable expansion within the next few years.

Survey has been made for a short line of railroad from this city to Caprock in Lea county, a distance of 43 miles and capital is now being secured to extend this road to Lovington and across the Texas south plains, according to Carter.

Oil development in Lea county during the past two years, which has resulted in the discovery of considerable quantities of oil and gas at widely separated points, and the agricultural development of the county together with the steady growth of the stock industry, has made the bank a vital necessity, says Mr. Carter.

A railroad across Lea county providing for an outlet for agricultural products would result in a heavy freight tonnage out of the county within a few years, according to Mr. Carter. Oil drilling in various parts of the county has shown the existence of an almost unlimited supply of shallow water and the nature of the soil would mean the opening of one of the largest shallow water irrigation projects in the Southwest, according to those closely in touch with the situation here. — Roswell Record

Legion and Auxil. Elect New Officers

Election of officers, a resolution of congratulation to Senator Bronson Cutting, endorsement of the proposed Universal Draft Act, and minor matters of business occupied the attention of Carl McDermott Post of the American Legion at its annual meeting Friday night, Jan. 13th.

A sumptuous banquet, prepared by the ladies of the Christian church, was awaiting both the members of the Ladies Auxiliary and the American Legion in the Bryant building at 7 o'clock. After the banquet the Legionnaires repaired to the Universal Motor Co. sales room for their business meeting, while the ladies met in the banquet room.

This meeting was one of the best and most enthusiastic in the history of the Post. The report of the out-going officers revealed a year of much accomplishment both from the standpoint of service and finance. The following officers were elected for 1928:

Fred Luper, Post Commander.
J. H. Lee, Vice Commander.
W. E. Davis, Adjutant.
Tom Jernigan, Sgt. at Arms.
E. B. Siddall, Chaplain.
H. F. Wood, Historian.

The features of the Universal Draft Act which the National American Legion will endeavor to have passed by Congress during 1928, were discussed. It was voted to put the local Post on record as endorsing the provisions of this proposed law. Under this Act should it become a law by action of Congress, upon the declaration of war, capital as well as man power would be drafted, and pay of civilian labor would be leveled. It is contemplated that such a law would be passed.

ing, and would put the factory and mine operators, the bond protectors, and industrial laborers on the same basis as the soldiers as regards their status before the Government.

The Auxiliary members, after hearing reports of the work of the Auxiliary since it was organized in May, 1927, elected the following officers:

Mrs. R. L. English, President.
Mrs. J. R. Poindexter, Vice President.
Mrs. Paul Morrison, Secretary-Treasurer.

MRS. SANDEFUR BURIED SATURDAY

Mrs. Ella Sandefur died in Clovis at the Baptist hospital last Thursday night at 9:30. She was taken to Clovis on Tuesday by her daughter, Mrs. Paul Morrison, and Dr. Brazell. She was operated on Wednesday noon. She survived the operation but died Thursday night of cerebral hemorrhages. Funeral services were held Saturday at 2:30 at the Morrison residence and burial was made in the local cemetery.

Mrs. Sandefur was fifty-four years of age. She was born October 3, 1873, in Lebanon, Missouri. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Paul Morrison, of Portales, and by father, step-mother, three sisters and several half brothers, whose homes are in Missouri and Kansas. Mrs. Sandefur was a member of the Baptist church. She was a devoted mother and a loyal friend.

Seniors to Stage Play

Begin now to save your pennies for the all school play "HER HUSBAND'S WIFE" which will be staged in the high school auditorium February the third. The proceeds are to be used for support of the annual.

The play is a comedy of the highest type, although it verges on the brink of tragedy in places. It ran several successful seasons in New York before it was released for amateur production. Old and young enjoy this play, since it contains parts that every one likes to see and hear. The cast has been well chosen and all members are working hard on their parts.

Tickets for the play will soon be printed and the persons who buy tickets will be assured an evening of wholesome entertainment at a low cost.

Watch for further announcements next week regarding "Her Husband's Wife."

Lee & Thomas Order Their Ice Plant Machinery

This has been a busy week for J. H. Lee and Luther Thomas, as they have been busy with ice machinery salesmen, selecting equipment to be used in their ice plant.

Mr. Lee says that he expects to have the plant in operation by the 15th of April, and will begin the erection of the buildings within a few days.

The plant capacity in the beginning will be 10 tons per day, but building and equipment are being installed so that this can be increased as demand justifies.

Messrs. Lee and Thomas have been successful operators of the Service Gin since its establishment in Portales, and will doubtless make a big success of this new industry.

In order to secure a suitable name for the plant, they have offered a prize of $5.00 to the high school student submitting the best name.

Portales Post Office Makes Gain Over '26

The post office is a sure index to the business of a community, and as shown by the increased business of December 1927, over that of 1926, Portales is surely progressing.

Receipts for the sale of stamps at the Portales Post Office in December, 1927, were $1,553.64 against $1,194.64 in December, 1926; an increase of a little better than 34 per cent. The incoming mail, however, was somewhat lighter than in 1926, and the rush of incoming mail did not last up into January as it did then. The post office was practically clear of Christmas parcels by noon December 29th, the best clean-up of Christmas mail in a number of years.

The County Spelling Bee

The time is drawing close for the County Spelling Bee. A number of schools over the county are preparing to enter. The prospects are for a bigger and better spelling bee than was held last year.

In the public bee to be held in Portales, $25.00 or more in cash prizes will be offered.

Business men who wish to contribute to this fund or who wish to offer supplementary prizes are requested to notify The Portales Valley News, so that these prizes may be announced.

The Spelling Bee tends to encourage and add interest to the school activities of the county, and should have the hearty support of every citizen of the county.

Schools who are planning to enter, are requested to notify The News as soon as possible, as the public is interested in these entries.

MISSIONARY INSTITUTE

On last Thursday, Jan. 12, an all-day meeting was held at the First Methodist church.

This was one of a series of missionary institutes being held throughout the entire church. Their object is to stimulate a larger and deeper interest in the spread of the gospel in all lands.

About one hundred people from various parts of Eastern New Mexico attended the meeting.

The principal address was delivered by Rev. A. L. Moore, P. E. of the Roswell district. Rev. J. H. Walker, presiding elder of Las Vegas district, also took an active part in making the meeting a success.

One of the principal things done was the distribution of missionary literature, including some 300 copies of the book, "New Tasks for a New Day."

Not the least item of the day was the fine fellowship enjoyed by all present; for at the noon hour, while the guests were enjoying an excellent plate lunch served by the Woman's Missionary society and their friends, everyone got acquainted with everyone else and were mutually inspiring.

WILL ROGERS FOR PRESIDENT

An Oklahoma solon wants Will Rogers for Presidential nominee, and suggests that both parties give him the nomination. The News heartily indorses this move.

There is no more popular man in America today than Will Rogers, and to give him the presidential nomination would at least break away from the old time tired political scraps.

The News cares not what his politics are. He has a sense of humor which would radiate from the White House to every corner of the world, and would give the United States an executive such as the world has never known.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you" would doubtless be the campaign slogan.

By all means let's make Will Rogers the next president on the democratic nomination. If he is chosen by this party the republicans would be compelled to fall in line and give him the nomination also.

It is high time that the masses be represented in the White House by some one from the common herd. Politicians have held this honor too long for the good of the people.

Portales is growing and the growth of the past three years is but a forecast of the future. To keep the town in a compact substantial form should be the aim of every citizen. There is a building ordinance made to safeguard the town. This ordinance should be enforced. It is only for the protection of those who have invested in the town and those who may invest in the future. A fire limit has been established and under no consideration should the town board permit buildings to go up in this area which do not conform to the fire ordinance. This may seem to work a hardship on those who wish to build less substantial buildings than come under this provision. But the future development of the town is at stake, and the responsibility is upon the town board.

Years ago Denver established a building standard which has resulted in a town of the lowest insurance rate in the west. Today there is not a frame building in the city of Denver. The town board, when Denver was a village about the size of Portales, looked to the future, and the result is one of the most substantial cities in the Union. A costly mistake at this time may run into millions within a few years.

Not many years back Kansas City was small village. Today it is a city of national importance. The foresight of the town board of Kansas City, while in its swaddling clothes was largely responsible for the substantial city that stands as the commercial and livestock capital of the middle west. Who can foretell the future of Portales within the next decade or two?

Amarillo twenty five years ago was not much larger than Portales. Today it is a city of fifty thousand or more. Twenty five years ago, many frame buildings were found on Folk street. Today it is a street of skyscrapers, the wooden buildings have been replaced by brick and stone. It is easier to build a substantial city than to have to tear down structures which are menace to every section of the city.

A few days ago a good section of Portales was in danger of destruction, when the Pecos Valley Hotel caught on fire. Prompt action of the fire department saved thousands of dollars in the business property. Why have more fire hazards within the business district.

Progressive citizens of Portales have removed a number of frame buildings from the business section within the past two weeks and are replacing them with structures of brick. In the face of that it is wise to allow buildings other than stone or brick to be built within the fire limit?

Portales still has a few fire traps on the public square. These have been here for years and cannot be removed except by the action of the owner or the act of Providence. If they go the latter way, the entire town may be in ashes. A wise town board will not allow such risks to be increased. Build for permanency and safety should be the watch word for the wise.

II. THE PECOS RUINS

Between Las Vegas and Santa Fe, just off the main highway and easy of access, lie the ruins of Pecos, once the largest pueblo in the Southwest. The red adobe walls of the old mission still stand at the transepts to almost their full height and serve to direct the attention of the traveler to a site he might otherwise pass quite unnoticed. One of the great pueblos of Yesterday, Pecos now appears at first glance to be little more than a heap of stones, yet here one may spend a thrilling hour if one has a little background of knowledge and understanding of aid him in his appreciation of this historic spot.

Pecos was the easternmost of the great pueblos. In location and environment it forms an interesting contrast with Acoma. Pecos was in the midst of woods and water, in much more promising country than the desert plain about Acoma. It had rich fields irrigated from the Pecos river. The streams were full of fish and the mountains full of game. It seemed to be encircled by verdant mountains like a favored child. It held a commanding position near the edge of the buffalo country, and was active in trade between Pueblo and Plains Indians. Its position was not, however, without some disadvantages. The eastern outpost of the Pueblo people, Pecos was in later days a convenient and easy prey for marauding Indians from the east, and in the end met its doom at the hands of raiding Comanches. While built as a fortress and located on a little mesa on relatively high ground, it was not nearly as inaccessible or impregnable as Acoma.

Pecos is a recent ruin and is unique in this respect. The Southwest is full of pueblo and cliff ruins. There are literally hundreds of them. Most of them, however, were ruins long before the Spaniards came in 1540. Pecos is an outstanding example of a great pueblo which has been abandoned in historic times. It has become a ruin almost under our very eyes. As late as 1838, only a decade before the American occupation and three hundred years after the Spaniards first penetrated the region, the pitiful remnant of Pecos people left their ancient home, to go to live with their kinsmen at the pueblo of Jemez.

Pecos is unique, too, for its long continuous period of occupancy, covering a thousand, perhaps two thousand years, and including both prehistoric and historic times. The Pueblos were a sedentary people and their homes permanent buildings of masonry, but few pueblo sites have been occupied for as long a period as Pecos. For this reason archaeologists have found it a peculiarly valuable site for excavation and study. Here at Pecos, the evolution of Pueblo Culture could be traced in unbroken sequence for many centuries. Pecos may be said to epitomize a long period in the culture history of the Southwest.

Pecos had attracted the attention of scholars previous to 1915, notably Bandelier and Hewett, but active excavation of the site did not begin until that year, when an intensive program of work covering a period of ten years was begun under the direction of Prof. Kidder of Andover Academy. This excavation has afforded the archaeologists many thrills and surprises.

One of the first surprises was the discovery of the greatest rubbish heap and cemetery ever found in the Pueblo region. Rubbish heaps do not sound overly interesting to most of us, but this one at Pecos was a veritable gold mine to the students of the life of ancient man in the Southwest. The nature of the site and the great length and circumstances of its occupancy had resulted in the laying down of great deposits full of material throwing light upon the customs and beliefs of the Pecos people during their many centuries of life on the little Pecos mesa.

In the earliest days the houses were built on the very edge of the rock mesa and all refuse—ashes, sweepings, table leavings, bits of broken pottery, discarded implements—was thrown off the cliff out of the way, especially, of course, to the leeward. All this refuse, together with wind-blown sand and dirt worn from the rock, gradually built up a deposit around the mesa, thus enlarging it. When excavation was begun at Pecos, it was believed that most of the high ground of the site was rock but a great part of it proved to be deposit built up gradually through the centuries as the Pecos people lived on there century after century and continued to throw more and more rubbish from their homes to the ground below. So extensive was the rubbish pile that it occupied all the time of the excavations for several years. The bits of pottery, the implements and tools, and the skeletons, together with the many mortuary offerings buried with them—all of these found in the deposit—were great archaeological finds. Over 1200 skeletons were taken out from about twelve per cent of the total area.

The custom of burying offerings with the dead has provided the museums with some of the best examples of ancient pottery and handicraft of all kinds. The custom undoubtedly indicates a belief that the dead would need to be equipped in the life to come with what had been essential in this world. Some of the pottery is "killed," i. e., broken, that it, too, may be dead and ready to enter the great beyond. An interesting custom worthy of mention, is the method of burial in the more ancient graves in flexed or embryonic position, symbolical perhaps of the idea of a new birth. Burial in rubbish heaps was quite general throughout the Southwest. It meant no disrespect to the dead. The rubbish probably provided the only available loose dirt around many of the pueblos.

The great rubbish heap at Pecos provided in absence of written history, a chronological account of the life at Pecos. The deposits that lay deepest were, of course, most ancient. Each succeeding period deposited its rubbish on the earlier. By examining specimens from all depths in this great stratified deposit it was not difficult to trace the evolution of many aspects of life at Pecos from the founding of the pueblo to its abandonment. It was particularly easy to trace the development of pottery. The most ancient was a black-on-white ware, found in many places over the Southwest. Six different types of glazed pottery in successive layers and last of all the modern.

A second great surprise came when attention was turned from the rubbish heaps to the excavation of the houses. It had been expected that the great heaps of stones would prove to be the remains of a single large pueblo erected en bloc and occupied until 1838 and then abandoned. It was thought, of course, that there would be signs of repair and enlargement but it was thought that it would be founded on the rock and permit of easy examination of its walls from top to bottom. Instead of this, it developed that the historic town was erected on the broken and tumbled walls of earlier houses and that these again had been built over still more ancient ones. Portions of no less than six distinct towns were uncovered. Some of the earlier walls had been almost obliterated by stone robbing. All of these earlier buildings could be dated relative to each other by means of the pottery and burials found in and about them.

The work of excavation at Pecos was often dangerous. None of the walls were very well built and with later walls built on earlier, it was often risky to uncover the early structures. Removing the deposit from the floor of the rooms was often to remove a needed wall support. Though much of the masonry was erected far later than the wonderful specimens of Pueblo masonry in the San Juan area, it cannot compare with it. The Pecos people were never good masons.

The site has to date been only partially excavated. Even if funds were available for the work, it would have been inadvisable to exhaust such a valuable site now. The science of archaeology should grow and excavations at a later date should be more fruitful.

The old mission walls have been given cement foundations that they may be preserved as long as possible. It was found that erosion at the base was most disastrous. With protection there they should last for some time. The Pecos mission, erected at the beginning of the 17th century, is said to be one of the three finest examples of the early missions of New Mexico, the other two being at Gran Quivira and Jemez.

A large model, a reconstruction of Pecos, 16 feet long, was made in 1914 and exhibited at San Diego.

It is now in the museum in the old Palace of the Governors at Santa Fe. The model shows the old mission at the south, the two main communal dwellings, the long, narrow South House and the great North Quadrangle all surrounded by a defense wall.

South House was not mentioned by Castaneda, Coronado's chronicler, and so was probably not standing in 1540. There was, however, a south house—perhaps more than one, before that time, but it was in ruins when the Spaniards first came. Sometime later during the 16th or 17th centuries there was a new South House erected on the same ground and used during historic times. The nucleus of the Pecos pueblo was on the North Terrace. Here the oldest remains are found. From North Terrace the pueblo gradually extended itself southward. There are ruins of an early pueblo under the ruins of the main quadrangle. After building well to the south, the inhabitants turned again to the north. To trace all the movements on this little mesa would be too complicated. Suffice it to say that there were many shifts of population from north to south and south to north.

Hewett discovered in 1904 that descendants of the Pecos people still visited the ruins and made pilgrimages to a sacred cave somewhere near. There are many stories about this cave. Some said that a fire had been burning there from time immemorial, never allowed to go out and never revealed to white men. Others said that an enormous serpent was kept in the cave and brought to the pueblo for certain feasts. It was said, too, that the Pecos people were peculiarly addicted to snake worship and that their religion called for human sacrifice to the rattlesnake. A story used to be told of a young Pecos mother's fleeing from the pueblo temporarily and hiding in a home nearby for fear her baby would be sacrificed to the snake. There has been a great deal of tradition about the Pecos religion, mostly about the dark and unpleasant aspects. The pueblo seems to have more than its share of dark legends.

During the course of the excavations a few idols were found. One of them had been patched together. Perhaps it was broken by one of the padres, or by others under their influence, and then later restored to its former position of honor.

Pecos, or Cicyue as Coronado called it (Tahiquite was its Pueblo name) figured conspicuously in the early annals of the Spaniards in New Mexico. Out in front they had camped and exacted tribute. From here they set out on the expedition to the supposedly rich city of Quivira.

Here at Pecos, Coronado found a rich and populous city—a community of five plazas, sixteen kivas, and 2000 inhabitants. The pueblo in Coronado's time was probably at its best and near its maximum size. The "great period" of Pecos history began sometime before the conquest in 1598 and lasted until about 1680. There is more deposit from this period than from any other. A given type of deposit can be identified as of this period because at this time new things of Spanish origin begin to appear in it. The written records which begin with the Spanish explorations are, of course, also helpful in dating the late debris.

In 1540, very shortly after Coronado reached New Mexico, a deputation of Pecos Indians with their chief, visited him where he was camped at the western margin of the state. They asked that the Spaniards treat them as allies and friends. They brought presents of tanned skin and bucklers for Coronado, who gave them in return bead necklaces and bells. The Indians gave him much information about the country from which they came, particularly of the buffalo, a picture of which was painted on the body of one of the Indians. Coronado was much interested and decided to send an expedition east to Pecos and the plains. Alvarado with a friar and

SOCIETY and Club

Christian Endeavor Social
The doors of the Christian Endeavor were opened and Pastor and Mrs. Loris gave a cordial welcome to the senior Christian Endeavor society on Wednesday night of last week.

The hours were happily spent in various games, after which the hostess served an appetizing lunch consisting of sandwiches, salad, relish, cake and cocoa.

Christian Ladies Aid

On Thursday afternoon, Jan. 12, at the Carl Case home, 715 Utah, the Christian Ladies Aid was delightfully entertained by Mrs. Case and Mrs. J. J. Spires.

This was not only the regular social and Bible study session of the month, but the date set for revealing the identity of the "peanuts" as well, and while the season was a little advanced for a Christmas meeting, the holiday spirit was much in evidence in both the decorations of the spacious living room, the little tree occupying one corner, and the general good will prevailing.

The program opened by prayer by the president; this was followed by the unloading of the tree and the meeting "face to face" of the "peanuts."

The plan of being especially nice to someone proved so satisfactory that it was unanimously decided to "carry on" for another three months, and at the next regular meeting Thursday, Jan. 25th, the "peanuts" will again be passed.

The hostesses served a most palatable lunch to twenty three members and three guests.

Next social meeting Thursday, Feb. 9th, with Mrs. Fred Luper, with Mrs. Herman Luper as joint hostess.

Birthday Surprise

Sunday, the 15th, A. W. Stokes came by and took Roy Hollis for a drive. When they returned at 12:30 to the Hollis home, the table was loaded with eats and a large cake with twenty-six candles which his wife and friends had prepared.

Great was the merriment of the crowd to watch the bewilderment of Roy; but very soon he fell in with the fun and a great day of enjoyment was spent.

Those invited were: Mr. and Mrs. Dan Smith and little daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stokes and Baby Roy, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Bracken and son, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hollis and children, Mrs. Minnie Reller and Misses Wilda Rogers and Berta Rickard.

Spikes Entertain
Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Spires entertained Wednesday night with a lovely forty-two dinner. The guests were seated at tables decorated with green and yellow candles.

Baptists Have Church Social
On Wednesday night of this week the Baptists held a church social. This took the place of the usual quarterly banquet. The evening's entertainment consisted of an old fashioned spelling-bee, and musical numbers. Mr. Nelson proved to be the champion speller of the many-syllable words. Besides songs by the whole group there were two quartet numbers and a solo by Mrs. Love Deen. A plate lunch was served late in the evening.

M. M. C.
Miss Sara Kerr was hostess on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 18th, to the M. M. C. and in spite of the inclemency of the weather thirty ladies were present and the afternoon was both pleasantly and profitably spent. The subject for consideration was "The Home Maker and Her Job," and roll call brought to light many beautiful tributes to home. The opening number, a "Welcome song," was followed by the "Home Makers' Commitments," some two score in number and each very appropriate to the subject.

The leader, Mrs. T. E. Livingston, in a very interesting talk gave a comprehensive outline of the duties laid upon woman in her job as home maker.

During the social hour which followed the program, Miss Kerr served tea and biscuit, the biscuit being a demonstration of plain baking powder biscuits with several variations, each of which is most palatable. Recipes for same will appear in an early issue of The News.

Next meeting Wednesday, Feb. 1st, will be held at the court house with Mrs. Orr in charge. Subject, "Renovation of Furniture." Roll call: Personal experience in renovation.

Jolly Party at B. F. Smith Home
On Tuesday night Mr. B. F. Smith came into town with a wagon to take the girls of Mrs. Keith Payne's class of the Methodist Sunday school and the boys of Thurman Harris' class out to the Smith home for a "Hay-Seed" Party. The girls wore gingham aprons and the boys overalls and straw hats. The party was the culmination of a contest between the two Sunday school classes. The evening was spent in playing many jolly games. A bountiful two-course luncheon was served before the boys and girls returned to their homes.

Mrs. Deen of Ft. Worth Honored
Love Owens Deen of Ft. Worth, who has been visiting her parents in Portales, was the guest of honor at two dinner parties this week.

On Monday evening, Misses Leta and Irma Bell Smith entertained. Those present besides the hostesses and guest of honor were Misses Cymbeline and Janie Warnica and Helen Lindsey.

On Tuesday evening, Misses Cymbeline and Janie Warnica entertained for Mrs. Deen. The guests besides the honoree were Misses Leta and Irma Bell Smith, Miss Helen Lindsey, Miss Allie Warnica, Mrs. Paul Morrison and Miss Beola McMinn.

BY THE LINO OP

Representative Howard of Oklahoma wants Will Rogers, humorist, folks star and cowboy from the land of impeachments, for president of the United States. All of which goes to show that said Mr. Howard is a man of thought. He uses his head for other things than a hat rack.

Will Rogers would, we believe, be an ideal president after the great epidemic of silence and cow-pasture pool that has been heaped upon the heads of the American people in the past decade. He admits he knows nothing of politics, and does not want to learn. And although he has spent many hours before the Kleigs and has a mansion in Beverly Hills, he has kids of his own and has never swapped wives.

But, in order to be as good as anything that has occupied the White House in the past few years, Rogers would only have to know how to shake hands and go yachting.

And how nice to pick up your daily paper and see a photograph of a president who did not look as though he had a dark brown taste in his mouth; how nice to have an executive who was not noted for his silence; how nice to have a president who, being different from the rest, admitted he was a joke. In fact his wise cracks, and his funny face have brought the world to his feet.

We have often read of the knight who came riding out of the West, and, with Will Rogers as president of the United States, he would be, as it were, "arrived."

And the steed with which he is familiar is not a hobby horse, nor a mechanical contrivance that would do nothing more than scrape the paint from the White House floor.

Please, Will, don't tell us that you "do not choose to run."

Sometime back we saw where a Dallas, Texas, surgeon offers one thousand dollars for the ears of Edward Hickman, to be used for grafting onto the cranium of another party. A pretty stiff price, but then it might be worth it to say that your eavesdropping apparatus once belonged to the California kidnapper and murderer.

CARD OF THANKS

To those who gave words of sympathy, did deeds of kindness, contributed beautiful flowers and in many, many other ways showed their thoughts and hearts went out to us during our recent sadness, we wish, in our feeble words, to thank each and every one of you. There is no way in which we can repay you, but there will be a reward waiting elsewhere. We love you all.

Lurline and Paul.

MILNESAND

Still we have lovely spring-like weather. We've listened for quite a while for the song of the meadow lark, but as yet he hasn't made his appearance.

Sunday was a beautiful day and attendance at Sunday school was fine. Our lessons are very interesting. We wish everybody would come out. Everybody can help, you know.

R. H. Ferguson has returned from Levelland, Roaring Springs, and other points in Texas where he has been buying and selling mules.

Mrs. J. C. Easter and children had Sunday dinner with Mrs. Baker.

"Deacon Dubbs," played at Milnesand Friday night by the Highway high school, was greatly enjoyed by all present. Come again. There will be preaching at the school house Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night. Everybody invited.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Betts were guests in the L. J. Pate home Sunday.

Arthur Clark spent the week end with Prof. McAllister in his home at Floyd.

Look out for the announcement of the Fifth Sunday Meeting in The Portales Valley News, and remember there will be some fine preaching. Also lunch Saturday and Sunday. Everybody cordially invited.

The Master has come and calleth for thee. Jno. 11:27.

CHARLEY M. COX OF ELIDA FOR SHERIFF

I take this method of announcing to the voters of Roosevelt county that I have entered the race for the nomination for the office of sheriff, subject to the action of the democratic primary.

While I do not think it necessary to make a lot of promises as to how I propose to run the office if I am elected, I realize that the voters expect some statement as to my qualifications. It will take the co-operation of all the citizens for any man to make good as a public official, and this is what I want if I am successful. Given this, I promise to use my best efforts to make you a good sheriff.

I moved to New Mexico fourteen years ago and took up a homestead eleven miles northeast of Elida where I have lived continuously ever since and have engaged in stock raising and farming. My experience on the range has been such that I believe I am qualified for the work required of a sheriff.

I am making this race on my own merits and not on the demerits of the other candidates. My opponents are, as far as I am concerned, gentlemen and were my friends before I entered this race. I expect to remain friendly with them all during the campaign.

To those who do not know me, I ask that my past record be investigated and refer thereto as business or professional Elida where I have made for fourteen years.

I will thank you to give a candid and careful consideration of my record and casting your vote at

PEOSOS OF NEW MEXICO.

Twenty men set out with the chief in August of 1540. It was evident to the Spaniards that the Pecos chief was powerful in that country and his people feared. When they arrived at Pecos the people received them in a friendly manner. They marched out and escorted the Spaniards into the town to the music of drums and flutes. They presented goods and turquoise to Alvarado. Alvarado remained there many days, and met an Indian from far to the east whom the Spaniards named Turk. Turk gave a glowing account of the famous cities in his country, Quivira, and of the abundance of gold and silver to be found there. Alvarado made a quick trip to see the buffaloes, and hastened back to report to Coronado. The tales of gold sounded good to the credulous Coronado and he resolved to visit Quivira. It was not long before difficulties arose between the Spaniards and the Pecos people. Coronado attempted to verify Turk's statements, and when the chief and the cacique would not obey his commands, he cast them into chains. Before his departure and on his return, the Pecos were actively hostile. It was not long, however, until the Spaniards returned to Mexico. They were disheartened because they had not found rich treasures. Turk's stories had been only a method of enticing them out on the plains to die. Turk was a plains Indian, a captive of the Pecos. The Pecos had persuaded him to undertake the task of losing the Spaniards on the desert.

When Coronado's expedition left for Mexico, one of the friars, Luis Besalona, decided to remain and work at Pecos. A little flock of sheep was left with him. There is a legend that he was killed and his sheep eaten, because the medicine men feared his power.

Between 1540 and 1598, when Onate the Colonizer came, Pecos was visited by a few Spanish explorers. At the beginning of the 17th century missionary work began again. The old mission was built at that time by Friar Francisco de San Miguel. It was completed before San Miguel Chapel in Santa Fe and was larger than that. The mission was partly destroyed in the Pueblo rebellion in 1680, and its resident padre, Fernando de Velasco killed. One of his converts gave him warning but he fled right into the jaws of death. Pecos submitted to De Vargas reluctantly when he recaptured the country. For some time the pueblo was abandoned and the people took refuge in the mountains. In the rebellion of 1696 Pecos remained loyal to the Spanish. The mission was repaired but was abandoned in 1792. It had been a resident padre for some time prior to that.

About 1700, the Comanches began to drift in from the eastern plains and to harass the Pecos. Warfare with the conquerors and the nomad Indians thinned the ranks, and pestilence also took its toll. Archaeologists say that the water supply was polluted, that it drained through the main cemetery. Contagious diseases brought by the whites were responsible for many deaths. The population of Pecos declined from 2000 in 1540 to 1000 in 1740, to 600 in 1780, to 180 in 1795, to 55 in 1820 and to 8 in 1838, when the survivors left to go to the pueblo of Jemez.

New Series Pontiac Six Is Coming

The Oakland Motor Car company is planning to present soon a new and improved Pontiac Six series at no advance over the present base price. It is stated by an executive of the company.

Although declining to discuss details or specifications of the new car, the Oakland official authorized the following statement:

"The Oakland Motor Car company will offer on or shortly before January 7, the date of the New York Automobile Show, a New Series Pontiac Six that will establish even more firmly Pontiac's position in the low-priced six class. The new series is emphatically 'more car' and the base price has not been increased."

It is also stated on excellent authority that the New Pontiac Six will carry a more powerful engine, and that the increased power has been obtained without change in piston displacement. The car is said to have been improved by the adoption of several features which have proved their value on the Oakland All-American Six. Four wheel brakes are only one of the many improvements.

The New Pontiac Six is stated to offer something radically different in the matter of heat radiation. A totally new method of cooling the warm water received from the engine passages is asserted to have eliminated evaporation even of such volatile anti-freeze fluids as alcohol.

The car is said to retain the same wheelbase but to be slightly heavier due principally to a heavier frame. Two of the present body types, it is believed, will be replaced by other and even more attractive models.

A new automobile so sensational as to electrify the nation!

With marvelous new Fisher bodies offering all the distinction, beauty and luxury for which Fisher craftsmen are famous! With performance that is a revelation to owners of even higher priced cars! With 107-inch wheelbase—four inches longer than before! With four-wheel brakes—and many additional mechanical achievements!

And... prices that demonstrate again Chevrolet's ability to provide the utmost in modern motoring luxury at the lowest possible cost!

The engine of this great new car is of the improved valve-in-head design. With alloy "invar strut" pistons... specially designed hydro-laminated camshaft gears... mushroom type valve tappets... and a complete new steel motor enclosure—it provides a type of motor operation so thrilling that it must be experienced to be appreciated!

Coupled with this thrilling acceleration and speed is a type of riding and driving comfort almost unbelievable in a low-priced car. Four inches longer than the previous Chevrolet chassis... swung low to the road... and with four semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—the Bigger and Better Chevrolet holds the road with a surety that is simply amazing, and rides in perfect comfort at high speeds over the roughest stretches of highway.

And never before was a low-priced car so easy to drive—for the worm and gear steering mechanism is fitted with ball bearings throughout... even at the front axle knuckles.

All these spectacular new mechanical advancements are, of course, in addition to the host of notable features that Chevrolet has previously pioneered in the low-price field.

Come in and see this latest and greatest General Motors achievement! Learn why it is everywhere the subject of enthusiastic comment—why everywhere it is hailed as the world's most luxurious low-priced automobile.

5 reasons why STEEL ECLIPSE WINDMILLS run in lightest breeze

Why does the Steel Eclipse run when other mills are motionless? The answer is, scientific design and fine workmanship. Note these five reasons—
(1) Wheel is tilted to take advantage of lightest breeze. (2) All working parts run in oil. (3) All wearing parts are made of the lightest materials and surfaces are machined. (4) Mill starts on two-thirds load—not full load; quick downstroke and slow upstroke means less effort required on the lift or pumping stroke. (5) All bearing surfaces are in line, reducing internal strain and power loss.

Winter's Colds and Chills Throw Heavy Burdens on the Kidneys.

COLDS put extra burdens on our kidneys. When the kidneys show up, impurities remain in the blood and are apt to make one tired and achy with headaches, dizziness and often nagging backache. A common warning is scanty or burning secretions. Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of waste and aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor.

REVIVAL MEETING AT CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

A revival meeting will begin at the Nazarene church January 22nd, 1933. We are to have with us, as evangelists, Revs. Alie and Ema Frick of Bethany, Oklahoma. Brother and Sister Frick are great preachers and evangelists. Brother Frick is a former district superintendent of one of our large districts. These workers are known in every state in the Union; having known them most of my life I can say that if you will hear them once you will surely want to hear them again. We invite all to attend every service. Especially do we invite all the business men to attend these services. Come, it will do you good.

Our objective is the salvation of immortal souls. All that believe in prayer, pray for a salvation time.

ogy which is used in the Portales High School. (See pages 142-143) "In order that all parts of the lungs may easily be filled with air, both the diaphragm and the ribs must be free to move. Tight clothing about the waist not only hinders free respiration, but stops in some degree the circulation of the blood, and worst of all presses the internal organs of the abdomen out of place. In this way serious ill health is often caused in later life. The evil results of tight bands worn about the waist, especially by young girls, frequently continues to make the life of the victim miserable to its end."

I wonder if our pupils in school pay no more attention to the other subjects on the curriculum than they do to their physiology? If not, then no wonder that people are asking the question: "Are our schools worth the money?"

I find children with waistbands so tight that it is with difficulty that I can push a finger under the belt or band.

It seems that our physicians have lost heart in advising to prevent appendicitis. Therefore, they stand by the operating table with instruments in hand ready to relieve the patient from the result of his own obstinacy.

In the words above quoted from the High School Physiology we see that a tight waistband affects injuriously the whole body from head to foot. Tight clothing "hinders free respiration," (that is, free breathing) "stops . . . the circulation of the blood," and "worst of all presses the internal organs of the abdomen out of place."

It is this last statement to which we shall give, briefly, special attention.

By referring to a good picture of the internal organs of the abdomen it will be seen that the connection or outlet of the intestinal coil into the cecum, (which is the blind end of the ascending colon); and the union of the descending colon and the rectum are almost on a direct horizontal line across the lower part of the abdomen. It will be seen, too, that a tight band, or belt, around the waist must hinder the free and natural operation of these organs at these points. It is clear that such an obstruction around the waist affects the proper functioning of the intestines in the following three particulars: (1) It hinders the free flow of the contents of the intestinal coil into the cecum; (2) It hinders the movement of this material up the ascending colon; and (3) It hinders the movement of this material from the descending colon into the rectum.

Plainly, a tight waistband promotes appendicitis on the right side, and constipation on the left side of the abdomen. It has been set forth in a preceding chapter of this series that, after the food properties have been extracted from contents of the alimentary canal, the remaining material, unless moved on and eliminated in its natural order, soon putrefies and generates poisons, and that these poisons are quickly absorbed into the blood and distributed throughout the whole body.

Could there be any stronger or more convincing argument that there must be no compression around the waist? By way of concluding this chapter, I want to set forth an important psycho-physiological law. It is this:

That particular organ of the body, or that particular affliction of the body, upon which the mind dwells continuously, tends to be developed in the body. In support of this statement I wish to cite two cases within my own observation.

Upwards of thirty years ago there were two members of the medical profession living in Denver, Colorado. One was a surgeon and made a specialty of operations to relieve appendicitis. It was said he had performed more than 800 such operations. He died of appendicitis. The other was an alienist, that is, he made a specialty of diseases of the mind. He was called far and near in his own and neighboring states to give expert

WHAT 1933 SHOULD BRING TO US

We Can Hasten Progress and Prosperity by More Farming and Better Farming, and Reach Out For More Land Buyers.

During 1928 more rapid development and big increase in our population can be had by more farms and more farming. The price of all farm products points upward and the man who owns grass land and puts it under the plow is the man that is going forward faster and make the most of his opportunities during the year.

Sam Seay, secretary of our Chamber of Commerce, after careful survey of our county, estimates that there is more than a million acres of our good lands lying idle, which is less than 15 per cent under cultivation—only one section out of 15 sections—and only about 1500 farms in the county.

This statement is astounding and we should find a remedy. In the first place we need to encourage the plowing of more land to raise profitable crops nine years out of ten. In the next place we need more farmers in our county and need them badly, and every individual should encourage in every possible way "newcomers" to come and settle in our county where resources are unlimited as regards farming in all its branches. In the third place we have something to sell—ITS LAND—and the prices are bargain prices, and half as much as like land 50 to 75 miles East of us. This land is level testimony in such cases. He died a maniac.

Deduction: The tight waistband keeps the mind of the wearer set on that part of the body most affected by such a garment. This fact plus the constant compression develops appendicitis and constipation.

In the next two chapters we shall consider Physical Exercise, under two heads: Athletics and Physical Training.

Breaking Land Has Started Several people in this community have started breaking land, in order to be ready for spring planting. Although there has been little moisture this winter farmers are able to flat break the ground and some are even listing.

Church at Richland Rev. L. A. Blair preached at Richland Saturday night and Sunday morning. On Sunday evening Rev. J. H. Hicks preached. Next Sunday morning Rev. Robert Tomlinson will preach. Sunday evening is singing night.

Entertains With a Party Mrs. W. A. Stephenson entertained the intermediate and junior Sunday school classes with a party last Friday evening. The time was spent in playing games and in various contests. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Stephenson.

Personals Emerson Vick returned home from Littlefield last Sunday evening.

George Luce of Richland community is teaching a singing school at Midway on Friday nights, Saturday evenings and Saturday nights. This school will last for ten nights and it started last Friday night.

Miss Naomi Silvers and Albus Smith from Midway were visiting Bennie and Opal Jones Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Denver Cox of Rogers visited in the Grady Wakefield home last Friday.

short grass land with no rock or gravel, underlaid with clay subsoil and the very best quality land to be found from east Texas to the Pecos river. Plow it up and cultivate it and grow profitable crops 9 years out of 10.

To increase our population there is only one answer—increase our cultivated lands. To increase our population is to increase the business and profits of every individual business in the county. Double our farms and you more than double our population, our business and our profits and our property values.

We want new comers, need them badly; our Chamber of Commerce will help and our real estate men will help, and each individual should co-operate with them both in encouraging land buyers to come look over and buy our cheap lands.

There is a railroad now building to Plainview from east and will this year be completed to Olton, about 60 miles east from us, with branch line to Lubbock. Lands along this railroad are being sold this winter and the big influx is expected during the year, and with our crops getting reasonable start with broad fields of wheat, cotton, broomcorn and feed we will have something to show them that is convincing. They will buy our cheap lands if we encourage them to buy.

We should reach out for our share of these land buyers and new comers, most of which are within 200 miles east of us and will come with encouragement and advertising and boosting by us will bring them and sell them. Only slight expense will bring them and boosting what we have to show them will sell them. Let's all work together and double our cultivated area in next 18 months, and more than double our population and our property values.

Land owners who have land to sell can help by giving liberal listings on their land to a live real estate firm, and encourage them to get out and bring in land buyers. Then when he has them, try to meet the requirements and terms of the buyers to close the deal. Us town fellows and Portales Valley men can help by remembering every time we cross the Texas line going east to speak a good word for and boost Roosevelt county to every man we talk to at filling stations and every place we might stop. Men who are trucking potatoes and produce out of here should remember to boost to every one he sells a bushel of potatoes to or comes in contact with. These thoughtful efforts on the part of our people will create good feeling and publicity that it worth much to us and will result in bringing land buyers to us. In truth we have more cause to boost and more reason to boost and more to back it up and more to be thankful for and appreciate than any county within 500 miles of us.
