State Soaked By Slow Rains

Houston Opens War On State Highway Dept.

County Court Riled at What It Terms "Affront" From Austin

BITTERLY ASSAILED

Acting County Judge Says Road Work Has Fallen To Low Levels

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 25.—R. H. Spencer, acting county judge, today issued what he said "was a declaration of war" on methods of the state highway department in this and other counties. He was speaking for the county court.

The statement bristles with charges and declares there will be no bond issue "proposed by the commissioners court until friendly and businesslike relations have been established with the highway department, and until the commissioners court feels that the investment of the people of Harris county in the state highways is in the hands of a body in whom they have confidence and to whom they can look for proper care and maintenance in the future."

Considered Affront.

The statement came as a result of what the county commissioners consider an affront to them Monday, when the state highway commission at Austin failed to answer a telegram sent by Spencer asking the board to meet with him during the week.

Spencer has heretofore charged that maintenance work done on state highways in this county is not satisfactory.

L. A. Sherman of Sherman and Youmans, Houston contractors, is in Austin to appear before the board, when he will also ask for authorization to start work of topping 46 miles of county road with asphalt.

E. S. Atkinson, district engineer for the state highway commission in this district, refused today to be drawn into the controversy between the county commissioners and state highway commission.

"Falling Low."

"We regret exceedingly the level to which the state highway department has fallen," said Mr. Spencer in his statement, "for the reason that up to the past year it has been a body which has commanded the respect and confidence of all who were familiar with it. The highway commission has at its disposal something like $25,000,000 a year and is concerned with probably the most important branch of our state government.

"Nevertheless we believe that the operation of the commission in this and many other counties has reached such a point that as county officials trying to protect our interests and acting for the welfare of the people of this county and trying to see that we get back a reasonable proportion of the $800,000 auto tax money which Harris county pays into the treasury of the highway department, should inform the public of the conditions as they exist in not only this but other counties.

"We will do this in the hope that the weight of public opinion will bring about a change at Austin and a conduct of the affairs of this important branch of our state government which will remove the stigma under which Texas is now laboring. Many of the counties of the state are suffering from the same experience as Harris county and as long as we think we are right and the influences which we are attempting to oppose are wrong, we will fight to the bitter end and, if necessary, join with the many other dissatisfied counties to help the state highway department to get right."

500 in Search For Sheriff's Slayer

COLBY, Kan., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Five hundred men had tonight joined in pursuit of the slayers of Sheriff Sam Pratt of Colby, shot down by two men near here last night.

John Clear of Atwood, a mail carrier, reported today that he encountered two men 12 miles southwest of Atwood at 10 o'clock this morning. When they halted ahead of him he said, he turned his car into the prairie. One of the men shot at him several times, a bullet hitting the car.

COOLIDGE HAS PLAN

—(AP).—Settlement of the French and Italian indebtedness to the United States, in the president's opinion, should be based on the ability of the two nations to pay and the terms need not be the same necessarily as those granted Great Britain or Belgium.

The capacity to pay principle which the president should apply to all refunding agreements is not to be varied in his judgment by provisions of the Versailles treaty or any other international agreement understood or actually consummated.

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Redesignation of highway number 37 from Winnsboro, through Mount Vernon, Cuba to Clarksville and aid of $175,000 to the project were two of the largest items passed on at the final session today of the state highway commission after a brisk two-day meeting.

IN CITY TODAY

Capt. E. V. Rickenbackers

RICKENBACKER, WAR ACE, AUTO EXPERT COMING

Will Speak At Noon Before a Meeting of Two Clubs

Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, America's foremost fighting ace during the world war and now a commanding figure in the automobile industry of the nation, will arrive for his first visit in Wichita Falls this morning. Unless present plans go astray he will land at the fair grounds in an airplane in which he expects to come from Dallas in an hour and 15 minutes.

The famous airman and motor car builder will put in a busy day, according to L. O. Brown of the Victory Motor company, dealer in Rickenbacker cars here. At noon he will address a joint meeting of the Lions and Optimists clubs at the Kemp hotel, bringing them a business message of interest; and will devote the balance of the day to a trip through the city and in conference with officials of the motor car handling the product of his factories. He goes from here to St. Louis, it is understood.

A speaker of more than average power and ability, his appearance before the luncheon clubs is looked forward to with keen interest. Business men generally have been extended an invitation to attend the dinner and listen to the noted visitor.

Waite Phillips Gets a Real Oil Well at Mankins

After dickering here and there with semi-commercial producers and combination salt water and oil wells Waite Phillips has a real oiler on his T. B. Wilson lease, south of Mankins, in northwest Archer county, and has proven beyond a doubt that in some spots in seemingly condemned stretch of the country real pools that will pay off can be found.

The Waite Phillips No. 2-B, Wilson, located between the discovery well on the tract, Benjamen Howard survey, and the Carter pseudo-extension well had swabbed 18 hours yesterday afternoon and showed something like 360 barrels of oil. Swabbing was being continued prior to putting on the pump. Sand was topped at 1,711 feet, and very little taken. The well was reported to be free of water. Its exact location is 1,650 feet north and 1,050 feet west of the northeast corner of section 11, Parkey ranch, to the south.

In the face of the history of this particular stretch of the county completion of a well of this size is something more than a surprise. It should result in greatly increased activity in that section.

Dirt On Rails Causes W. F. & S. Wreck

ENGINEER DIES AS TRAIN HITS OBSTRUCTIONS

J. W. Fine of Wichita Falls Is Instantly Killed Near Olney

CAUSED BY AUTOS

Rails Packed With Earth From Wheels of Passing Motor Vehicles

OLNEY, Texas, Aug. 25.—An accumulation of packed earth on the rails, deposited by passing auto trucks, is assigned here by officials of the Wichita Falls and Southern railway as the cause of the wreck which took the life this morning of J. W. Fine, engineer on train No. 24; brought injury to Fireman R. L. Durham and resulted in the demolition of the locomotive, tender and damage to a mail and baggage coach. The train was wrecked at 10:30 a mile and a half north of here as it was on its way to Wichita Falls.

The engineer died at his post, an eye-witness of the wreck said. Fine, feeling the locomotive twitching beneath him, closed his throttle and was applying the emergency brakes when the big machine left the rails, plowed up the track for more than 100 feet, turned at right angles and after tearing up a siding, toppled into a ditch beyond. The cab was a splintered, broken mass of debris drenched with scalding steam from broken boiler pipes.

Killed Instantly.

When rescuers reached the scene and pulled the engineer's burned and mutilated body from the wreckage he had already been dead several minutes. Fireman Durham escaped miraculously and crawled from the wrecked cab only slightly hurt. Through some way he managed to dodge the flying splinters and suffered only minor burns from the escaping steam that seemed to concentrate its full fury on the engineer.

An inspection of the wreck showed that none of the coaches were badly damaged although all left the rails. The mail car and baggage car trucks were all derailed and left standing on the crest of the road's embankment, which at the point of the wreck was raised to a considerable elevation. The front trucks only of the third and rear coach left the track. Officials said that had this last coach toppled down the embankment a severe loss of life might have resulted.

Makes Investigation.

Conductor W. J. Burt in charge of the train made a hurried inspection immediately after the wreck and said he was convinced it was caused by a crust of tightly packed earth on the rails. The pony trucks of the locomotive jumped the track just as it crossed a heavily traveled dirt road and evidence was found of the dirt on the twisted and torn rails, it was said.

A relief train was hurriedly made up in Wichita Falls when news of the wreck near Olney reached the offices of the Southern. The remains of the engineer were brought back to this city on the train and are being held by a local undertaker pending funeral arrangements, none of which have been made yet. The dead man lived at 213 Austin street.

Officials in the local Southern offices said last night that a formal report had not yet been made as to the cause of the wreck and until an investigation now under way was completed they would have no statement to make concerning it.

Paved Road System In Young County Sought By Olney Business Men

OLNEY, Tex., Aug. 25.—Plans for a paved road system in Young county were launched here this morning, when on a called meeting by W. L. Scott, president of the Olney chamber of commerce, 15 of the leading business men of the city met to discuss the matter and take active steps looking to a start on the program. Committees were appointed to meet with citizens of Graham and Jean and submit further plans. A joint meeting will be held at Jean Wednesday morning for that purpose.

A unanimous vote of "Ays" came when the matter of paved roads was broached by President Scott. Subsequent discussion crystalized into plans for forming of a special road district in the county, so arranged that road improvements may be made to the Jack and Young county lines on the east; to the South Bend district on the southwest and to the Archer county line on the north. This would give a comprehensive system of hard surfaced roads through the entire county.

Members of the committee named to meet with citizens from Jean and Graham were as follows: A. A. Cooper, chairman; Dr. George B. Hamilton, E. Hunt, M. D. Wolverton, W. P. Reynolds, W. C. Harrell and Rhea Anderson. Those attending this morning's meeting in addition to members of the committee and Judge Scott were C. B. Epps, E. G. Christi, J. H. Alexander, W. N. Lee of Cisco, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, carried his doctrine of diversified, intensive farming into the north plains, speaking at Stratford, Texhoma, Spearman and Perryton today. A royal reception was accorded, entire towns closing up shop to hear him. The section has been following a one-crop system of wheat and a disastrous wheat failure this year caused Lee's program of intensive diversified farming to fall on sympathetic ears.

FIND BURIED TREASURE ON STOREY FARM

Officers Uncover Cash, Gems and Silver Near Denton

DENTON, Texas, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The raid on the Yancey Story farm, begun here yesterday by state rangers and Dallas and Denton county officers and resulting in charges of robbery with firearms against Story and Shelby Stiff in connection with robbery of Krum and Sanger banks, was continued today finding an acetylene tank buried in the woods 400 yards north of the ranch house and finding of $2,075 in war saving certificates and between $40 and $50 in dimes buried under a rock near the barns.

The officers are holding an unmounted diamond found in the house, a quantity of men's and women's wearing apparel, a talking machine, additional household silver and other property.

DALLAS, Aug. 25.—Yancey Story and Shelby Stiff, who are held in the Dallas county jail following their arrest on the Story farm yesterday in a spectacular raid by state rangers the Dallas and Denton county officers continued protests of innocence of charges that they robbed banks at Krum and Sanger. "GAS" IN TOWN PUMP

But Nearby Garage Finds That Fuel Leaked Out of Its Tank

ROBINSON, N. D., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Motorists here thought they had struck a bononza yesterday when a visitor to the town pump discovered the erstwhile reliable well was producing gasoline.

GIANT BOILER PLANT SCENE OF CLUB DINNER

Throbbing Machines Furnish Music For "Tech" Men's Feast

MAKE AN INSPECTION

Factory Is Found One of the City's Leading Industries

A lavish picnic dinner served in the midst of throbbing machines capable of making a meal themselves on monster steel beams and plates was the unusual and at the same time spectacular treat accorded more than 100 members of the Technical club Tuesday night when they dined at and inspected the plants of the Panhandle Boiler Works. The affair was one of the regular midsummer picnic meetings of the Tech club and was voted one of the most interesting ever held.

The plant, which is the boiler and tank department of the Panhandle Refining company, was a revelation to most of the Tech members by reason of its size and activity. It was running full blast all through the evening and gave an impressive demonstration of why it is numbered as one of the city's largest manufacturing enterprises.

Eat on Steel Tables.

As a sample of last night's entertainment, the guests dined from huge, circular tables fashioned of thick plate steel especially taken from a steel tank ten feet across and big enough to swim in, stamped and shaped from a single piece of sheet steel; and for a musical instrument they had the sputterings of acetylene torches and flashing electrical welding lines.

Previous to partaking of the dinner, however, they were conducted through the plant by John Tancred, manager; C. F. Helmcamp, superintendent, and M. C. Leopold, foreman, who with Roy B. Jones, president of the Panhandle Refining company, acted as hosts of the evening. The dinner, by the way, included barbecued chevon, or goat kid, various assorted meats and all the trimmings of salads, relishes, desserts and soft drinks.

Seeing Big Machines.

As a start on their inspection, the visitors were taken to a machine recently imported from Germany which was punching holes in a steel plate an inch thick as easily as one would thrust a finger through a newspaper.

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—The governor's office is expected to join in the protest of the Texas state railroad board of managers to the interstate commerce commission against what is considered too low a valuation placed on the railroad property owned by Texas, it was learned today.

She Denies New York's Requisition

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—(AP).—When Governor Miriam A. Ferguson denied the requisition of Governor Al Smith of New York today for the extradition of Mrs. Roscoe Canaday of San Antonio, charged in Queens county, New York, with kidnaping her own five-year-old son, Roscoe, Jr., she not only satisfied a mother's heart, but terminated a long drawn-out domestic embroglio and in a statement of reasons, severely criticized Roscoe Canaday, separated husband of Mrs. Canaday.

No Jury Would Do It.

"I do not believe that any jury in New York or Texas would convict any good mother on the testimony of her husband, who would want to put his wife in the penitentiary simply because she wants to continue the care and control of her own infant children," Governor Ferguson said. "As Canaday, the husband of Mrs. Canaday, resisted in the courts extradition granted by the governor of his own state in response to my request upon a charge of kidnaping these children from Texas, I don't think he has a right to complain if I refuse the same remedy which he seeks to have used against his good wife, the mother of his children. But whatever his rights are to the children, I will not permit him to use the governor's office of this state to visit his spleen

GAS PRICES TUMBLE IN TRADE WAR

Big Reduction In Seaboard and Middle West States

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Gasoline prices came tumbling down in many Atlantic seaboard and middle western states today, giving widespread joy to motorists.

A general reduction of one-half cent a gallon by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was the fourth to be initiated by that company this month and it brought the tank wagon quotation throughout its territory to 16 and 17 cents a gallon. Other competitors met the Stanard Oil's cut.

Competitive conditions in the middle west which caused the Standard Oil company of Indiana to lower its gasoline prices two cents a gallon today, also forced the Sinclair corporation to make a similar cut.

An invasion from the Pacific coast was said in oil circles here to have prompted recent reductions in the east and indirectly to have shut off the eastern outlet for many of the Mid-Continent refiners.

Objected to Lady Who Knew No Use For Window Shades

BEAUMONT, Aug. 25.—Belying charges that the world is degenerating morally, a complaint was filed with the police today by a Beaumont man that a girl across the street persisted in undressing without pulling down the window shades much to his embarressment and contrary to the peace and dignity of the city. The case was referred to a policeman of known tact and diplomacy who called at the home of the damsel and reminded her that she annoyed the gentleman across the way.

SHOWERS FALL TUESDAY OVER MOST OF TEXAS

Heaviest Precipitation Is Recorded In Central Portions

PLAINS DRENCHED

Late Gardens and Pasture Land Benefited Greatly By Downpour

DALLAS, Aug. 25.—(AP).—Slow, soaking rains of varying intensity fell over north, central, east and portions of west and south Texas last night and today, accompanied by marked drops in temperature and benefitting to some extent late feed crops and aiding condition of the cotton crop, reports indicated tonight. The northern edge of the drouth area of south central Texas was visited by rains varying from light to heavy showers. Prospects for continued rains were reported good in many sections of the state late today.

Heavy at Waco.

Heaviest rains fell in the vicinity of Waco, Dallas, Grand Saline and in a few localities in extreme south Texas. Rainfall at Waco was about one inch and at Dallas over one-half inch.

Intermittent showers were general over central and east Texas.

Austin and Beaumont received a light shower with indications of continued rain tonight.

Plains Visited.

The South Plains was visited by light rains, described as benefitting all crops. Precipitation at Longview was two-fifths of an inch.

Late gardens and pastures were benefitted by the moisture in that section, while it was regarded as probable that cotton generally would be prevented from opening too prematurely where the heavier rains fell.

WACO, Texas, Aug. 25.—A slow rain of about one inch falling for several hours here today brought the total rainfall for the month to 2.75 inches. The rain was reported generally over Central Texas.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 25.—Intermittent showers which started Saturday continued in Beaumont and vicinity throughout today. Indications tonight point to more rainfall during the night.

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—After threatening all day, a slight shower fell here at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Indications tonight point to further parcipitation.

LYRICS OF LIFE.

By Douglas Malloch.

All of Us.

Heaven over all of us,
Not over one or two.
Grasses under all of us,
Not only I and you.
Birds that sing for all of us
And not for two or three—
Beauty here for all of us
For all of us to see.

We are losers, all of us,
When a robin falls
That had heartened all of us,
With his happy calls.
When some tree of all of us
It is the human fells,
We are poorer, all of us,
Even he who sells.

God has given all of us,
Not to three or four,
Beauty near to all of us,
At our very door.
We are stewards, all of us,
Of the things that smile,
Held in trust for all of us
For a little while.

Submarine Which Blew Up Lusitania With Loss of 1206 Lives Is Sunk By Denmark

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Another drama of the world war ended today at Veilby Beach, on the west Jutland coast. The German submarine U-20, credited with the destruction of the Lusitania torpedoed and sunk off the Irish coast May 7, 1915, with a loss of 1,206 persons, was blown up today by order of the Danish admiralty. Explosives to the amount of nearly a ton were used in destroying the submarine, whose conning tower had been sticking out of the water since November 1916.

The end of the U-20 recalls the days of Germany's submarine warfare, which culminated in the entry of the United States in the European war in April 1917. One hundred and forty-two Americans perished in the sinking of the Lusitania.

The U-20 grounded off the Jutland coast November 4, 1916 in a fog. The boat was abandoned by her crew, after ineffectual attempts to destroy her with explosives.

BIG YEAR AT COLLEGE HERE IS EXPECTED

Large Enrollment Likely; Officials Anxious to Confer With Prospects

Dean S. H. Rider and Registrar A. K. Presson are ready and anxious to confer with students who intend entering the Junior college this fall, according to announcement from Dean Rider's office yesterday. "We'll all be crowded and rushed from September 7 on," the dean said yesterday, "and it will assist us and aid the prospective student materially if those planning entering this fall would see us now and arrange their entrance requirements, course of study, or straighten out a badly mangled schedule."

This request applies especially, he said, to those entering or re-entering the college with any irregularities in their credits and schedules. The district institute begins September 7 and actual registration starts on September 14, and much useless rush can be avoided if those that find it convenient will do necessary conferring with the college officials now, he said.

Expect Big Increase.

Every preparation is being made at the college to receive the largest class in the four years of its history. Three years ago at its inception enrollment amounted to only 33. The second year a few more than 100 took advantage of the facilities, and last year the first year in the new million dollar Junior college building, nearly 250 registered at the beginning of the term. This year a large increase, possibly enough to bring enrollment to 400, is looked for by college officials and every preparation is being made to accommodate the influx.

Faculty and officers of administration of the college now number 17 with one other, a professor of chemistry, yet to be chosen. Substantially, a list of these is the same as that of last year.

Idea More Popular.

Since the inception of the Junior college in Wichita Falls the idea is becoming very popular throughout the state, it is learned. The Wichita Falls institution ranks with those at El Paso and Beaumont as one of the three oldest municipally financed colleges in Texas, but in the last two years similar institutions have sprung up at Hillsboro, at Gainesville, at Paris, and, this year, at San Antonio.

Its growth and development here has been a source of wonder to its founders, who had never anticipated such an extraordinary popularity, it is said. The minimum expense with which college credit may be gained and the fact that such credit may be acquired without leaving home and will be accepted at its face value at state institutions, colleges and universities, account for much of this, it is held.

Offers $5,000 For College Course To Train Movie Men

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP).—The fact that eight young men who never went to college are earning an average of $1,000 a week in New York motion picture studios is one motive for the offer of Robert T. Kane of an annual endowment of $5,000 for a university chair to be devoted to the art of the screen.

Referring to these unnamed eight, Mr. Kane said:

"Not one of them would last a week if pitted against college trained highly specialized and serious minded contemporaries. I have felt for years that we in the industry are paying genius prices for mediocre. This must be curbed."

Mr. Kane's offer is limited to Yale, Harvard, Princeton, University of California, University of Pennsylvania, University of Chicago, University of Wisconsin and Columbia university. The first to accept the offer will receive the first $5,000.

"The parascitic scheme of attempting to reduce novels and stage plays to the screen will not do," Mr. Kane explained. "We have a new and distinct device for dramatic expression and no one seems to know what to do with it."

Mr. Kane, a producer himself, invited other motion picture magnates to co-operate with him. He offers to assist in practical teaching.

Yesterday's Cuts

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The fourth reduction in gasoline prices this month was announced by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey today when it lowered quotations half cent a gallon throughout its entire territory.

The latest cut brings the tank wagon price down to 16 cents a gallon in New Jersey, Baltimore and Washington and to 17 cents a gallon in other parts of the territory, including Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina. The new prices are from 3 to 3½ cents a gallon below those prevailing at the first of the month.

The Gulf Refining company and Sinclair announced they would meet the cut and others are expected to follow.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The Sinclair Oil and Refining company announced today that it would lower the price of gasoline 2 cents a gallon and kerosene 1 cent a gallon in middle-western states to meet a cut announced last night by the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The Atlantic Refining company today announced another one-cent a gallon cut in the price of gasoline in Pennsylvania, effective tomorrow.

RUSSIAN BUREAUS GROW

WASHINGTON.—Co-operative societies in the Soviet Union have grown in the last few years to a membership of 22,000,000, reports gathered by the Russian information bureau here show. The co-operatives' membership in all other countries is given as 8,000,000. The government, it is said, takes no part in the business process of the co-operatives except to facilitate credits and assist in extending their capital.

Foreign trade carried on last year by the co-operatives for their members is shown to have amounted to about $30,000,000.

The consumers' co-operatives, foremost in importance, now includes 24,516 societies, with 42,000 shops and stores and 8,000,000 shareholding members. The business turnover last year was reported to have been $701,000,000.

New Mexico reports

Breen and Braden of Tulsa, in No. 1, in S-16-28, located 10 miles north of the New States producers of the Ohio Oil company in the Artesia field of Eddy county, New Mexico, found better than a million feet of gas a day at 2,375 to 2,420 feet. It bears evidence of being the discovery well of a new pool, and if it finds oil when deepened it will mean an active drilling campaign to the north of the present Artesia field and following the line of the Pecos river. The gas showed a trace of sulphur and came from a gray lime.

In the Artesia field, Flynn, Welch & Yates in No. 22, in the southwest of the southeast of 21-18-28, found 28 gravity oil at 1,865 to 1,905 feet.

Someone's best efforts to make an oil producing county of Haskell county yesterday seemingly met with failure. No confirmation of several wild and glowing reports could be obtained.

TEXAS 'U' DIGS INTO RECORDS OF PROSPECTS

Wants Rating In School And Asks Recommendation of Principal

The new college entrance blanks sent out by the University of Texas to high school principals and school authorities over the state this year have rubber stamped in the upper right hand corner a query about the prospective student's rating in his graduation class. What was that rating? Was it good? Was he in the lower fourth of his class so far as grades and standings are concerned? And, to the principal, "Can you recommend this man to enter the university?"

The query is being used by the university for the first time, says school authorities here. Hitherto they have been satisfied to accept graduates of affiliated schools without further questioning as to their status in the high school in which they graduated. Never before has the high school principal been asked if he could "recommend' a prospective student from his school to the university.

Raising Standards.

And if the principal cannot recommend the student, or if his rating is in the lower fourth of his class then what? In California such students are refused admittance to the universities of that state. Similar conditions prevail in various other states. In Texas, even, the Rice institute maintains such a practice. There are numerous graduates to high schools in Texas, say school authorities here, and they say also, Wichita Falls has its share, who are content to lag along through their high school term and finish in five or six years what should have been finished in four. Notable among these are certain types of high school athletes. But they are always classified in the lower fourth of the graduating class, and if the principal's recommendation of the better students is to mean anything he is not going to be able to stamp his approval on these too.

Do Not Bar Them.

It appears, however, that it is not the intention of the university to deny admission to such. In a letter from Registrar E. J. Matthews of that institution the policy of the school is clearly outlined: "In case you cannot conscientiously recommend a student to us, or must class him with the lower fourth of his schoolmates as to scholarship, we are making it a practice this year to write the student's parents and suggest that another year of high school or preparatory work prior to starting work for a degree would be highly beneficial to the student. In case the parent should not see fit to regard this advice, however, we will place no other barrier to entrance."

Even at this the new policy which has been inaugurated is a new step for the university, thinks S. H. Rider, dean of the Wichita Falls Junior college. It is the opinion of school officials here that entrance from accredited high schools to the universities of the state has been entirely too easy in the past, and that the warning conveyed in the new policy will assist greatly in abetting certain poor scholarship which has existed in the past. "If the student finds the entrance requirements to the college he had contemplated attending suddenly lifted above his head he is very likely to make an effort to conform and get there anyway," says Dean Rider, "and a consequent improvemen in his grades in high school will result."

FAT IS KILLING US

This Is Lament of Insurance Company Chief at Chicago Convention.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(AP).—It is more dangerous to be fat than it is to travel on an ocean liner, ride on a railroad train or fly in an airplane.

Fat is killing off Americans at such a rate that special education is needed, thinks President Albert M. Johnson of the National Life Insurance company of the United States of America, in convention here.

The cabin of an ocean liner is the safest place in the world, a railroad train is next and it is possible the third may soon be an airplane, he told delegates.

"Death from disease is increasing enormously, but deaths from automobile accident, murders and homicides have increased over 200 per cent in the past 20 years. Automobile accidents have increased over 200 per cent in the past 20 years. Automobile accidents have killed more than 1,700 per cent more than they did 10 years ago."

U. S. Bureau Has $238,266 But Knows Not Where to Put It

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—(AP).—The department of agriculture has $238,266.46 it does not know what to do with. It belongs to some sheep growers, but the department can not find out who they are.

In 1918 the war industries board fixed the price of wool and limited the profits of dealers who were required to turn back to the government for distribution to growers all profits in excess of a certain amount.

The excess profits of that year amounted to $1,489,866, of which $754,144 has been collected and so far as possible turned over to the growers. It has been impossible to obtain a record of the owners of the balance and it has about been decided to turn it into the miscellaneous receipts of the United States treasury.

MEXICO CRISIS UP AS CABINET MEMBER QUITS

Government Affairs Reported In Precarious Position

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 25.—(AP)—An unexpected cabinet crisis occurred yesterday when Secretary of Interior Gilberto Valenzuella resigned owing to "substantial divergency of opinion" between himself and President Calles concerning the gubernatorial election in the state of Mexico.

Four different legislatures were established in the state last Sunday, each claiming it had secured a victory in the recent election. President Calles, however, decided that the labor candidate, Carlos Riva Palacio, had been elected governor. Senor Valenzuella differed with the president and in his letter of resignation said he considered the decision of the executive "openly contrary to my convictions and of the utmost importance to national politics."

Other officials are expected to submit their resignations, among them Primo Villa Michel, under secretary of the interior; the police inspector, Colonel Martin Barcenas, and the governor of the federal district, Ramon Ross.

Senor Ross is a close friend of former President Obregon. He has been persona non-grata to the labor elements since the recent conflicts between labor and capital in Mexico City.

College Men Set Styles in Clothing

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(AP).—The college man with his pep and craving for new things sets the style in men's clothes and from him the clothes makers get their cues, R. E. Bigelow, president of the National Association of Retail Clothiers, said at the twelfth annual convention of the association today.

Young men's styles predominate he said. There are no old men's clothes now. Nineteen-inch trouser bottoms will be the limit, it is agreed.

Some tendencies pointed out in fall styles are:

Wide belts and fancy hose will continue popular.

Hats will be soft with wider brims and of lively color.

Blue unfinished fabrics with forest green and tan as second choice will be popular in suits.

Coats are medium in length and easy fitting with long lapels.

SLAUGHTER IS CAUGHT AFTER PRISON ESCAPE

Wrecker of Pueblo Bank Arrested In Denver Monday

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Coney C. Slaughter, who escaped from the Leavenworth federal penitentiary last February while serving an eight-year sentence for wrecking the Mercantile National bank of Pueblo, Colo., of which he was cashier, told police when he was arrested here late last night that he came back to Colorado to find $100,000 of the embezzled funds which he had hidden.

He would not reveal the place where he had concealed the money, the police announced.

After extracting the admission from him that he had a little fortune concealed somewhere in Colorado the officers took him to a cell.

HIS STORY ONE OF FAMILY TRAGEDY.

KANSAS CITY Aug. 25.—(AP) Coney C. Slaughter, wrecker of a Pueblo bank in 1915, who was arrested in Denver last night, escaped from the federal prison at Leavenworth January 31, this year. He was a trusty in the deputy warden's office. He had an outside pass which he used to make his escape.

Both Slaughter and his father, William B. Slaughter, were well known in Kansas City where the son received much of his early education, attending central high school here. The elder Slaughter, to whom the son eventually brought financial ruin, was one of the old-time "cattle kings" of the southwest.

Ruins Family.

The story of Coney Slaughter's embezzlement not only involves the loss of large sums of money to depositors of the Mercantile National bank of Pueblo through his defalcations amounting to $352,000, but brought about ruin of a family that dates back to the days of Lone Star state's struggle for freedom.

William B. Slaughter's father was the man who carried the message from General Sam Houston to the defenders of the Alamo at San Antonio to evacuate the fort, a message which was ignored by Bowie, with the result that the garrison was wiped out to the last man by Santa Ana's Mexican forces.

The only son of indulgent parents, young Coney Slaughter had plenty of money. His father was owner of the famous "Lazy S" ranch in Texas. Coney spent much of his time on the ranch, but got his start in the banking business when his father bought the controlling interest in a bank at Dalhart, Texas. Later the Pueblo bank was acquired with the father as president and the son as cashier.

The wrecking of the Pueblo institution occurred in 1915. Young Slaughter became a fugitive and led a nomadic existence. He finally was traced to a sanitarium near Philadelphia and arrested. In the time he was a fugitive he became a hanger-on at race tracks and a frequenter of gambling houses.

Business Man, Held In Robbery of Bank, Blames His Friends

DAYTON, O., Aug. 25.—(AP).—Fred G. Nichol, prominent manufacturer and confessed "phantom" bandit, who held up the North Dayton branch of the Dayton Savings and Trust company two weeks ago and obtained $21,000, today declared his friends were partially responsible for his downfall.

"Friends—there are no such things as friends," he said. "If I had any friends to help me out of my financial dilemma I would not be in trouble today."

He said that he had worked hard, but had failed to get ahead, that he was facing ruin and needed money.

"I tried to obtain money, but I failed," he explained. "Then suddenly the robbery idea came upon me. It grew on me, and before I knew it I was making plans to hold up the bank."

Blame New Style Of Dance for Cave-In Which Cost 35 Lives

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP).—The Charleston has officially come into its own. But if the Society of American Teachers of Dancing has its way it will be a dance of dignity, censored to win the favor of people of culture.

The battle for recognition of the Charleston nearly split the dancing masters' convention here yesterday. New England representatives especially protested because the rhythmic swaying, clicking of heels and stamping of feet was alleged to have caved in the Pickwick club in Boston on the night of July 3, causing the death of 35 persons.

It was finally agreed that the flapper and sheik mode of doing the dance was to be combatted.

$60,000 for a Bull

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 25.—(AP).—What cattlemen say is a world record price for a shorthorn bull was paid yesterday at the annual cattle show. A prize winning shorthorn bull named Faithful was knocked down for $60,000 to Bartolome Ginocchio.

It is asserted that the previous high mark paid for a bull was 10,500 pounds sterling in England whereas Faithful fetched the equivalent of 12,000 pounds.

Foreign judges at the cattle show said that Faithful was the finest specimen they had ever seen. The bull's father some time ago brought $44,000.

CANAL, DREAM OF AGES, SOON A FINISHED WORK

Last Rocks to be Blasted Oct. 1 From French Undertaking

MARSEILLES.—A project that has been on foot 418 years will be realized October 1, when the last rocks that keep the water of the Mediterranean out of the Rhone-to-Marseilles canal will be blasted. Then will have been finished a continuous waterway navigable by the largest canal barges from the North Sea to the Mediterranean, by way of the Rhine, Doubs and Rhone rivers and the Rhone to Marseilles canal. The work will have cost 216,000,000 francs and besides the record for time consumed in its realization it will have surpassed all tunnels in Europe in rock and earth removed.

Five Miles Long.

From the tunnel part of the canal, which is only five miles long 2,300,000 cubic yards of earth and rock were taken, beating the record of the Saint Gothard and Simplon tunnels in Switzerland which are longer, but much smaller.

When Richilieu came upon the scene of European politics as minister of Louis XIII he found the proposal for this canal in the archives of the state awaiting action. Religious controversies occupied the attention of France too much at that time to permit attention to such a broad scheme. Richilieu and Louis XIII passed from the scene of action and all the rest of the French kings came and went before the proposition again came to light. It was resurrected in 1820 for a brief inspection and again forgotten until 1840, when a functionary of the publics works department drafted a plant for the realization of the project. It took 39 years more to get it before parliament and 24 years more to get it voted. Finally, the creation of a canal from the Mediterranean in the vicinity of Marseilles to the river Rhone at Arles, a distance of 81 miles, was authorized by law in 1903. It took eight years more to complete the preparations for the work, which was begun in 1911, and has continued uninterruptedly since in spite of the world war.

GIANT

After that it was easier to believe their eyes when they saw big shears cutting through other steel plates, severing massive angle irons and channel irons, and saw gigantic rollers flattening out steel bars into sheets, later to be riveted into tanks.

At one point in their visit the Technicians watched a part of the fabrication of 178,000 pounds of steel to be used in the new W. B. Hamilton garage on Lamar avenue, and later they saw workmen busy on a huge boiler to be sent to the Reece Allen refinery in Amarillo.

Plant Eight Years Old.

Once when some of the more adventuresome sought to enter a room where a flashing play of light and shadow bespoke some spectral fusing in a Vulcan's furnace they were waved back and allowed to enter singly only after being provided with thick colored glasses. One direct look at the leaping electric torch at work would have brought on instant blindness, they were told. Another time the same glasses were called in use while the guests watched an oxygen torch eat through a steel girder with the facility of a red hot wire biting through a piece of cheese cloth.

It was not brought out at the meeting, but possibly some of the Tech club members there knew that the Panhandle plant was launched only eight years ago. At that time Mr. Jones obtained from the local chamber of commerce a seven and three-quarter-acre tract of land on the understanding that within a year he would have 30 or more men at work there. Inless than six months the 30 men were working and now 110 are employed. The monthly payroll of the plant reaches around $18,000 and its products of all kinds of tanks, boilers and steel products are shipped far through Texas. Its sales territory runs as far west as Albuquerque, N. M., and it does a large local business. Many boilers from locomotives used by railroads operating out of Wichita Falls are rebuilt in the plant.

President Jones said last night that enlargement of the plant was planned within a short time.

Airship Operation Proving Expensive

LONDON.—Operation of airships is an expensive hobby for any country. The cost of reconditioning the dirigible R33 by the British government prior to April last was $140,000 and the outlay for one charge of hydrogen gas $5,000. It costs $965 to get R33 into her hangar at Pulham on April 17 after her enforced voyage over the North Sea when she broke from her mooring mast.

The approximate cost of the R33 (flown 800 hours) and R36 (flown 97 hours) was $1,750,000 each. Up to the present $375,000 has been spent on R35 and $1,625,000 on R37, both airships being yet in an uncompleted state.

The cost of R38 (70 hours), chargeable in part to the American government, is roughly $2,500. This information was given by Sir Samuel Hoare in a written answer to S. R. Viant, parliamentary member for West Willesden.

Thugs Loot Mail Car; Aged Express Messenger Shot

SANTA ANA, Cal., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Robbers who looted the combination mail and express car of Santa Fe train No. 75 between here and San Diego last night after shooting and probably fatally wounding Elmer Campbell, 62-year-old express messenger, early today appeared to have made a clean get-away with three pouches of mail and other loot of undetermined value.

Campbell was found lying in a pool of blood on the floor of the looted car when the train arrived here at 8:47 p. m. when the messenger did not open his door to receive mail and express. Examination revealed that a bullet, apparently fired down at him through a ventilator in the roof of the car, had lodged in the base of his brain.

Tractors Lead In Farm Equipment Sales, Is Report

CHICAGO.—Tractors lead farm equipment sales throughout the first half of 1925, as shown by the research department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers, which surveyed its officials who are heads of most of the 200 odd firms making up its membership and selling through some 21,000 dealers to the farmers.

Plow and tillage tool makers report the first half of the year ahead of 1924, and the tendency towards bigger equipment to eliminate man and horse labor is more marked than at any time in the history of the tractor's development. Oliver Chilled Plow Works reports 20 per cent increase. One great company estimates its two-row cultivator business 50 per cent ahead of last year.

upon his wife, by returning her to the state of New York there to be further persecuted by an ungrateful husband."

Mrs. Canaday did not appear at the lengthy hearing in the governor's private office. Her attorneys, W. C. Linden and Walter Linden of San Antonio, said they did not wish to subject her to the jurisdiction of courts out of Bexar county.

McDonald Makes Plea.

C. C. McDonald of Wichita Falls, attorney for New York, and Mrs. Canaday's attorneys carefully recounted the Canaday's separation more than two years ago, the Bexar county jury holding that Mrs. Canaday was the custodian of Roscoe, Jr., and the New York court holding that Canaday was the rightful custodian of the child.

The kidnaping of the child by Canaday from Mrs. Canaday at San Antonio and her taking of the child from Canaday in New York were related.

Governor Ferguson listened with utmost intentness to the attorneys' eloquent argument. Her husband, former Governor James E. Ferguson, questioned the attorneys on various technicalities and it became apparent that the governor was deeply impressed by the defense of the woman.

Mr. McDonald told the Associated Press as did Miss G. M. McLaughlin, New York woman detective sent to take Mrs. Canaday in custody in event the requisition was honored, following the hearing, that they expected the denial.

WALES NOW TO GET READY TO BECOME KING

Prince Has Toured All World and Has no More Fields to Conquer

LONDON.—(AP)—What the future travel programs of the Prince of Wales will be after his visit to South America is a popular topic for speculation. When he bids farewell to the American continent south of the equator he will have completed his rounds of all the continents of the earth, his trips having taken him to all the great dominions and larger colonies of the British Empire as well as to several countries outside the kingdom which he will eventually rule.

Carrying out the extensive program of trips that was planned for him after the world war, the prince has spent part of each year since that time away from London. With no more worlds to conquer he will, in the opinion of those who intefest themselves in speculating on his future, settle down to seriously prepare himself for the business of being king.

England's Best Salesman.

The Prince of Wales has been characterized as the greatest salesman that ever represented the British Empire and his wares, international relations. As such he has been a success in all that the term applies. While South Americans may have an intimate knowledge of the future king, as have the peoples of most countries of the earth, his visit is giving them an opportunity to get acquainted with the persouality that has caused the people of other countries to receive him enthusiastically. Britishers, both royalty and commoners, feel that the prince has accomplished a great work in creating good will and cordial relations between the empire and the countries he has visited and that his South American visit will be accompanied by the same results.

To Study Ranches.

Aside from the official receptions and social events arranged in his honor there will be a number of things of special interest to the prince while he is in South America. With somewhat of a reputation as a practical farmer, he is sure to give more than passing notice to the great ranches, the types of their pedigreed stock and the methods of raising them.

During his stay in Argentina the prince will have an opportunity to indulge in one of his favorite pastimes, polo. Teams from that country have made notable records in the United States and Europe, including the last Olympic games, and with an abundance of fine polo ponies the prince undoubtedly will engage in the sport as often as his program will permit.

Gold Placer Found In Idaho Mountain

POCATELLO, Idaho.—At a desolate point at the juncture of Clark, Butte and Jefferson counties in northeastern Idaho, where three rivers sink into the sands of the Snake river basin, a gold placer which is expected to be as rich as that of the Boise Basin of early days has been discovered.

Announcement from Dubois confirmed the discovery and with the movement just started claims are being rapidly staked out.

The three streams, Big Lost river, Little Lost river and Birch creek, have in ancient time and up until the advent of irrigation in the early eighties, virtually merged their waters and disappeared in the sands on the same square mile of desert.

For nearly 50 years these mysterious rivers have been the despair of geologists, engineers and gold seekers because they gave but piggardly indication of the gold values that geologists insisted must be present.

Spitzbergen Homes Offer Luxury And Real Convenience

BARENTSBURG, Green Harbor.—Travelers who imagine Spitzberger to be inhabited by a few rough trappers and seal hunters, living on raw blubber in wretched hovels, are agreeably surprised at the comforts and even luxuries enjoyed at the different adminstration buildings at Barentsburg, Longyear City and Ny Aaelsund.

These local headquarters of the different coal companies are veritable havens of refuge for the few visitors who lack the comforts of the tourist steamers which run up to these ports during Spitzbergen's brief summer season, between July 15 and August 15.

There is no field here for the "drummer." All supplies are provided by the coal companies and may be obtained at reasonable prices fixed for the common benefit by the company administrators.

Here in Barentsburg, all the houses, which are of wood, as they are elsewhere in Spitzbergen, look trim and freshly painted. The local director's house, high up the mountainside, is easily the finest in the archipelago. Steam heated, with double doors and windows, music and billiard rooms, a well stocked library, priceless rugs on polished floors and old Dutch masters on the walls, Director Dresselhuy's far northern modern home appearsr as if it might have been bodily transplanted from the finest residential quarters of The Hague or Amsterdam.

MOONSHINERS ROUTED

International Boundary Proves No Protection For Brewers

BELFAST.—Moonshiners in the south of Ulster have lost the protection which formerly was accorded them by the border line, across which they used to flit when hard pressed on one side or the other.

The Ulster constabulary under command of Inspector Robinson, and the Monaghan civic guards, under Chief Superintendent Murphy, recently carried out a joint raid on an 18-mile front. It was the first time the rival police forces have cooperated in such a manner. Together they carried on their activities for eight hours and thoroughly routed the stills.

TEMPLE TOLD TO REMOVE FIRE HAZARDS

Eight Cent Increase In Key Insurance Rate Is Threatened

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—C. L. Walker, mayor of Temple, Texas, today was advised by the state fire commission to make numerous improvements in the fire fighting apparatus of the city of Temple, adopt a modern building code, inspect buildings for fire hazards, enforce the fire marshal ordinance, appoint an electrical inspector and maintain records of waterworks distribution system, or an increase of eight cents will be made in the key rate.

Temple's key rate is now 21 cents.

A three-cent charge on the key rate will be made in case the fire marshal's ordinance is not enforced, the letter to Mayor Walker said. An increase of two cents for failing to adopt a modern building code, and in order to retain the two per cent credit for enforcement of the national electrical code, the letter recommends.

Further recommendations include a regular system of fire drills, three residential stations with sleeping quarters for firemen and purchase of three new auto pumpers.

The fire commission requests proper action and an early report on the improvements.

Such ships, however, can be sold to foreigners only on condition that they shall not be used in trade with the United States. There are about 120 of them tied up at present.

DUSSELDORF, Germany, Aug. 25 (AP)—The French and Belgian troops today evacuated Dusseldorf, Duisberg and Ruhrort, the "sanction cities" which they had occupied since 1921.

Foreign Trade In Korea Showing a Healthy Increase

TOKYO, Aug. 00.—(AP)—Following up last year's advantage of nearly a 20,000,000 yen export surplus, the trend in Korea's foreign trade continued to show remarkable improvement during the first five months of the year. Statistics show that Korea shipped abroad and to the mainland merchandise valued at 142,000,000 yen as against imports of 130,000,000 yen.

The favorable condition is reflected in the trend of the money and finance markets where plenty of credit is available for legitimate requirements. The statement of the clearing house banks in the principal business centers of the territory shows deposits are ever on the gain, standing at 130,000,000 yen at the end of May, an increase of more than 15,000,000 yen over a year ago. A study of the details discloses that, while there was a slight decline in current deposits, there were notable increases in fixed accounts, which were larger by more than 7,000,000 yen than a year ago.

Austin Legionnaire Enters State Race

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—C. C. Taylor of Austin, district committeeman, was unanimously endorsed here today by Travis post, American legion, as a candidate for state commander of the legion at the annual meeting in Fort Worth in September.

The MacMillan Expedition's Return Southward Halted, Says Message.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—(AP) Bad weather has forced the MacMillan Arctic expedition to halt on its way south from Etah, Greenland. A dispatch received at the navy department today from Lieutenant Commaner Byrd, commanding the navy section, said:

"Perry and Bowdoin are lying to at Dooth Sound on account of bad weather.

PLAN NEW SCHOOL

CHILDRESS, Aug. 25.—A two-story brick school house will be erected within the next few weeks at White's Creek, ten miles north of Childress in Childress county, according to Miss Mabel Hare, county school superintendent. Contract for the school will be let in a few days, she says.

Cities Names Bring More Confusion

AMSTERDAM.—Confusion of the town names, Bayreuth, in Germany, with Beirut in Asia Minor, which led recently to erroneous reports that the Dutch government had decided to establish a consulate in Bayreuth instead of Beirut, recalled to the Allgemeene Handelsblad that the two names had been confused once before in 1876.

On the latter occasion, the Oriental city was somewhat surprised to receive at the time a specially constructed machine which had been intended to animate a dragon in the Siegfried performance of "The Ring," in the first Wagner festival at Bayreuth. The machine had been made by an English firm and as Bayreuth was a small and little-known town a shipping clerk thought an error had been made in the spelling and that such a complicated bit of machinery could only be intended for Beirut.

DRINKING NO EVIL HERE

Persons in Court Room Vote to Release a Defendant.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Mayor Hugh Gilmore, presiding in police court, recently adopted a novel method to determine whether a defendant charged with intoxication should be fined. There were seven persons in the court room and the mayor referred the question to them for a vote. All seven voted for the release of the prisoner. The case was dismissed.

Plan Memorial For Famous Humorist

FLETCHER, N. C.—Five memorials to Edkar Wilson ("Bill") Nye, grouped about his last resting place in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains, at Fletcher, will be formally dedicated Tuesday, August 25. These reminders of the famous humorists include a memorial window in old Calvary Episcopal church; a bronze tablet marking his grave in the churchyard; a monument on which a bronze tablet will tell a brief story of his life, on the Hendersonville-Asheville highway; a memorial flagstaff, the gift of the city of Asheville, and a memorial shelter, erected by the Masonic fraternity of Asheville.

Dedictory exercises over these memorials will mark the 75th anniversary of the humorist's birth at Shirley, Maine. Frank W. Nye, son of the humorist, and Mrs. Eugene Pharr, a daughter, will be present.

ROTARIANS STRIKE BACK

Charles E. Keck, president of the New York Rotary club, in a recent radio address, struck back at Sinclair Lewis, author, for poking fun at the Rotary and similar organizations in his book, "Babbitt." Mr. Keck said Mr. Lewis was a writer who, having written two or three books that resemble some sort of moving picture without a plot, "thinks he knows everything in the world."

He said he was making the speech to counteract a popular misunderstanding of Rotary, which, he charged, had been spread abroad by Mr. Lewis, H. L. Mencken, editor of The American Mercury, and some other writers. He said these men "don't take into account the actual facts," and thinks they "are so darned clever that they can settle any question they are of a mind to, off-hand."

Mr. Keck said Rotarians merely laughed at Mr. Lewis. "Lewis is just a little bit off his trolley," he declared.

Mr. Lewis, the speaker declared, "fixed up a little city of Zenith, or whatever you call it, and has a little Rotary club, and tells everybody that a Rotary club is a bunch of great, big, bumptious small-town boosters.

"Of course," Mr. Keck said, "there is in every Rotary club a spirit of good fellowship, and a lively interest in any proposition that is for the common good. But that is distinctly not the basis of Rotary. The basis is the need of something to bring business men in a big city together in a way that no other organization can, to enable them to work for the good of the community."

Mr. Keck, as some would say, is eminently correct, except for a bit of phraseology in the sentence above. Rotary clubs and other luncheon clubs are not for "big" cities alone.

Wichita Falls likely would not be the city it is today if its business men had not co-operated as they have, across luncheon club tables, for the upbuilding of the city. In addition, luncheon clubs serve a real need that the social life of every city demands. It serves, as well, as a means of genuine recreation for the busy men of the city.

When business and professional men lean over their desks six days a week in an effort to serve humanity and to make money for themselves and for their friends, they deserve the recreation that good fellowship, good food and entertainment a luncheon club affords.

There are many reasons why luncheon clubs should be encouraged, not the least important of which is that "in union there is strength," and that city growth is the result of combined effort, organized activity and community support.

Wichita Falls is fortunate in having a number of wide awake luncheon clubs.

"BEST OF FRIENDS."

Rudolph Valentino, the sheik of the screen, whose smile reminds one of some mentally weak gentleman who thinks he is the queen of the May, and his wife, Winifred Hudnut Valentino, known professionally as Natacha Rambova, have separated.

They have called it a "marital vacation." What rot! Mrs. Valentino sometime ago announced her intention of becoming an independent producer of motion pictures. For one time, Valentino did the sensible thing: he objected, saying that Mrs. Valentino's duty was to preside over (and remain at) her home. This brought rumors of dissension in the Valentino household.

Mrs. Valentino, it is said, does not wish to "tie herself down to any definite statement" with respect to returning to her husband. As a matter of fact, few of the participants in Hollywood marriages wish to promise anything if you ask them whether they are to remain with their husbands, or wives.

From California (Mrs. Valentino is in New York and Rudolph is in California) comes a statement quoting the sheik as saying that "Mrs. Valentino and I are the best of friends. Owing to a difference in temperament we decided to separate for a short time. It is impossible to tell what the future will bring forth."

Now, beat that if you can! Who ever would suspicion that they were friends? To think that two of "the best of friends" should marry! What a splendid way to ruin a friendship in Hollywood!

WHY A DEMOCRAT?

Wisconsin democrats have named William George Bruce as a candidate for the seat in the senate left vacant by the death of Robert M. LaFollette. He is said to be one of the foremost citizens and builders of Wisconsin and an American citizen of the highest type.

There was a time when the Wisconsin democracy was a virile and aggressive organization. Its leaders wandered in the wilderness after strange gods and finally the rank and file of the party of Jefferson found themselves worshiping at the shrine of LaFollette.

Now the survivors of the ancient party hope to resurrect the dead and make history in the coming years. There is room for it. Democracy in Wisconsin has been for years a skeleton organization.

MISS SCOPES WILL NOT STARVE.

Miss Scopes lost her job as a teacher in Tennessee because she would not repudiate her brother and his views on evolution. Now Miss Scopes is in luck. She has signed a contract to teach at a fashionable school for girls at Tarrytown on the Hudson and is to receive a very handsome salary.

Paducah turned her out in the street. Paducah is the birth place of Irvin Cobb. Irvin deserted Paducah in the long ago because his fellow townsmen did not appreciate him. Now his income is $150,000 a year.

Paducah casts them out: New York gathers them in. New York pays for genius and no questions asked. Which is the American civilization—that of Paducah or that of New York?

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Job-made Men.

The man who was asked if he could play the violin and replied that he did not know, for the reason that he never had tried, provoked a smile from his listeners.

Yet it is possible that he might have played the violin, at least acceptably, by trying, and trying hard for ten or fifteen years.

Jobs very often make men, as well as break them.

But for the war between the states General Grant would have remained in obscurity for the rest of his life.

He had given up the army, abandoned as a useless asset the training he had received at the United States Military academy, and retired to private life to conduct a little tannery.

The war made an asset of an education that would have otherwise proved useless.

The emergency developed the latent genius in the great soldier and his training enabled him to make the best use of it.

General Lee, equally talented, and trained in the same institution would have been heard of had there been no war. For he was a leader in his part of the country.

Grant would have disappeared, and outside of his own town and his own family would have been forgotten.

Many a man, who through some accident is shifted suddenly into some important position, astonishes his friends by filling it with shining success.

On the other hand, many a man who is given such an opportunity makes a dismal failure of it.

The job-made man has always some preparation. He has thought about the work that he may have to do, studied it, and been in some measure trained for it, or he cannot possibly make good.

Take a half educated lawyer, or the sort who spends most of his time in petty litigation and put him in charge of a great case, and he would be sure to make a dismal failure of it. Far abler and better trained men would overwhelm him.

But give the same fighting chance to a young man, who in spite of a small practice had toiled over his work, who had pored over cases and studied their conduct by eminent men, and as soon as his own faculties were sharpened by contact with his mental equals, he would acquit himself brilliantly.

I know a young theatrical manager who all his life thought he would like to produce a play. But he was moderately successful in another line, and did not venture to abandon it for something with which he had no practical experience.

However he continued to read and think about the theatre, to go to plays and watch the audiences as well as the actors.

At last a chance presented itself. He went into theatrical work. He was successful almost overnight, and is now one of the most important of managers.

His friends marvelled that he could do this. But he did not. He had learned how to do it. He was a job-made man, but he was a self-made man before he found the job that gave him his big opportunity.

A CITY IN THE MAKING.

Good news has been coming from Iowa Park recently. Iowa Park is a progressive little city about ten miles from Wichita Falls on one of the finest paved roads in the state. Accounts of the development that is taking place in the little city, meager and brief as they are, tell a story of real growth, of real building and of real prosperity that the city is experiencing.

One of the oldest cities in this section of the state, Iowa Park is destined to growth within the next decade or two that it never before has known. If we may venture a forecast, Iowa Park in 25 years will be one of the nicest little cities in this section of the state. The city has every reason to advance. In the first place, its citizenry is progressive. This means that the city will go ahead if it has the proper advantages. There can be no question as to the advantages of Iowa Park.

The soil in that section is rich and productive. It produces good crops. Iowa Park is so situated as to reap a big share of the benefits of the great Wichita valley irrigation project. With "rains" assured, good crops virtually are guaranteed. By proper diversification of farming activity, agriculturalists of that section can be assured of a steady, sound income on the year 'round crops.

Situated as it is within a few minutes of Wichita Falls, Iowa Rark can share justly in this city's development and prosperity. No one doubts that Wichita Falls will continue to grow.

To quote from a recent story in this newespaper, "New enterprises scheduled for fall openings (in Iowa Park) include two big electric gins, a large department store a new tailor shop and a new barber shop. Extensive building both in the residential and business districts is taking place, and the city, with a good cotton crop a matter of a few days away, is looking forward to a prosperous fall and winter."

In another column of the same issue appears a news story announcing that the city council of Iowa Park has authorized the paving of two additional streets, which will give all avenues of traffic in the business district of the little city a complete hard surfacing.

Yes, sir, Iowa Park is building!

FOR HUMANITY'S SAKE.

Sixteen thousand dollars, to some folks, may be "a drop in the bucket." To others it represents a lot of digging. To a small community it means a great deal.

But when citizens of the Margaret community, near Crowell, decided that they needed a modern new school building, they decided to have it. As a result, a new $16,000 brick school house is expected to be ready for use when school opens at Margaret this fall.

They could have made no better investment for themselves, for their children and for their children's children. They built the school for humanity's sake. There is no nobler cause for action.

NEW YORK LEADS THE WORLD.

New York is to build the largest sky scraper in the world. It will be a monarch of office buildings, a sixty-three-story structure on Forty-Second street, which will reach eight stories higher than the Woolworth building, now the loftiest in the world. Arrangements have been made for financing the structure which will cost $15,000,000. Walls of the building will rise in the form of steps with a nineteen-story tower on top. Are all the monarchs of architecture to be found in the new world?

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

Virgo.

Today's planetary aspects show a continuation of those favorable conditions that revealed themselves at about sundown yesterday. They apparently favor all new enterprises, provided thought and careful deliberation has been previously given them. Under no condition, do the signs spell success for anything of a speculative or risky character. In taking advantage, if you do, of these conditions for the launching of some fresh undertaking, care must be taken to avoid misrepresentation, as the very optimistic sense that will be in evidence is liable to make your wish father to the thought, and possibly color your ideas with too roseate a hue. Go ahead, by all means, but go ahead slowly!

A girl born today, will experience quite a lot of sickness during infancy, but, with correct alimentation and careful attention, will outlive these early weaknesses, and blossom into a healthy and wholesome womanhood. A boy, on the other hand, will be practically immune to sickness during his early years, but will, in all probability, suffer, more or less from one or two ailments or gravity during his youth. In disposition and temperament, both boy and girl will be very similar. They will both have winning ways, and a firmness of decision and strength of character that will keep them from doing things that they should not do, or leaving undone those things that they should do.

If today is your birthday, your character is made up of many contradictions. At times you are very dependable and reliable. At other times, you are whimsical and headstrong. At times, you are cool, self-contained and reserved. At other times, you are impulsive, emotional and frank to the point of excessive candor.

In one thing, however, you never change. You always refuse to take anything for granted, and 'must be shown."

The signs denote that you should be blessed with a confiding, dominant love, and have a home that will be both attractive and happy.

Successful people born on this date are:

John W. Philip, naval officer.

Charles J. Paine, solider and yachtman.

Stephen, P. Nash, lawyer, of New York.

James Harlan, lawyer and senator.

Joshua C. Stoddard, inventor.

Both horses were winners of first, second and third in the various events of the show. Miss Waggoner, riding Miss Flapper, won first place in the ladies' division. Both horses will be entered in the Texas-Oklahoma fair this fall.

RICE INSTITUTE.

Japanese Expert Will Teach America How to Eat It.

TOKYO.—Dr. K. Sugimoto, a rice expert attached to the Tokya Nutrition laboratory, one of the three special scholars of the Rockefeller Foundation, said that one of his missions abroad would be to teach the people of the United States "how to eat rice." He has been making a special study of the nutritive value of rice for the past five years and has experimented on 30 persons.

Say Hall County May Be First In State Cotton Crop

CHILDRESS, Aug. 25.—Predictions are made by local cotton men that Hall county will rank first in Texas cotton production this year. It is predicted that the county will raise over 85,000 bales. Wilbarger, they say, will raise about 50,000 bales, while Childress, Hardeman and Collingsworth are expected to yield better than 40,000 bales each. Hardeman and Childress counties are the smallest counties of the five, having about 75 per cent the area of the others.

Charity Gets Bulk Of Lawson's Estate

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Virtually three-fourths of the estate of the late Victor F. Lawson, noted editor and owner of the Chicago Daily News, was left to benevolent purposes. The newspaper and other property was left to the management of the Illinois Merchants Trust company as trustees.

Specific bequests totaled $4,775,000 of which more than one-half or $2,555,000 were for benevolences.

A specific bequest of $200,000 was left to his long friend and coworker in journalism, Melville E. Stone, of New York city, now counselor and formerly general manager of the Associated Press.

After the specific bequests, three-fourths of the residuary estate was left in equal parts to the Chicago Congregational Missionary and Extension society which also received a specific bequest of $1,300,000; the Chicago Theological seminary, which in addition was bequeathed $100,000 specifically, and the Young Men's Christian association, which was left a $100,000 specific bequest.

The remaining one-quarter of the residuary estate was bequeathed to the publisher's only brother, Iver N. Lawson of San Diego, Calif., who will receive a speciic bequest of $200,000 and the income of a trust fund of $300,000. He was the chief individual beneficiary named in the will.

Church Can Outlaw War, Bishop Avers

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 20.—(AP).—The church constitutes the most powerful element in the movement to outlaw war, Bishop Charles H. Brent of New York told the Universal Christian conference at its session today which was taken up by a discussion of the place of the church in international relations.

Every other method of bringing peace to the world has been tried, Bishop Brent said, but he declared that the religious bodies alone had the ability to make war a crime in the minds of the people.

HOW IT STARTED

Aesop's Fables.

Tales of beasts and animals are common in the folk lore of all nations. But it is to a circumstance that started the practice of using these tales to make a point, as a vehicle for satire or moral teaching, that we owe what has become an institution on the bookshelf of every child, our collection of Aesop's Fables.

Though we call them Aesop's Fables, the little stories known by that name have come down to us from the lips of many story tellers of ancient times and the bards of the middle ages. Their common character, however, of showing the rewards of virtue and the penalties of selfishness and other vices, had its origin with the ancient Greeks after whom they were named.

During the epoch of the Tyrants in Greece, free speech was dangerous, and political criticism unwise. It was then that one Aesop, an educated slave of Samos, conceived the idea of putting over attacks on the government veiled in fables. The practice was taken up all over Greece and thereafter it was his name that was given to all fables—animal tales whose object was satire or moral teaching.

When free speech was established in the Greek democracy the custom of using fables to prove a point and to teach was continued. Then or about the year 300 B. C., Demetrius Phalereus, founder of the Alexandria library, collected all the fables he could find and gave them the title of "Assembles of Aesop's Tales." These and the similar tales which have come down from ancient India, where the fable was also used for moral teaching, form the bulk of what we know today as Aesop's Fables.

Childress Soon To Be One of Texas' Best Paved Cities

CHILDRESS, Aug. 25.—Paving is underway in this city on more than 60 blocks of the business and residential sections. To do the work more than 1,000 carloads of material have been ordered by the contractors. Childress will be one of the best paved cities in Northwest Texas with the completion of the present paving program.

TO BUILD HIGH LINE

Start Work Soon on 56-Mile Stretch From Childress to Clarendon.

CHILDRESS, Aug. 25.—Construction of a 56-mile high line by the Texas Central Power company from Childress through Estelline, Newlin, Memphis, Hedley, Lelia Lake to Clarendon will start within a few days, according to information from officials of that concern. Material is already on the ground for the line, and the 12-mile line to Kirkland, east of Childress, is nearly finished. The total cost of both lines is estimated at $182,000.

The Texas Central Power company is also contemplating the construction of a second ice factory here to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000 and to have a capacity of 50 tons a day. They have lately completed their new $300,000 power plant and ice factory in this city.

GETS A-1 RATING

CHILDRESS, Aug. 25.—Lake Childress, the water supply source for this city, has received an A-1 certified water rating from the state board of health. Lake Childress covers over 400 acres and has an average depth of over 30 feet.

"How has she ever been able to endure it, Uncle Raoul?" he burst out; "my mother, I mean. How has she ever stood this appalling loneliness and this perfectly horrible desolation?"

Sain Hubert shrugged.

"It doesn't impress everyone that way," he answered slowly. "It has a very great fascination for some people—myself, for instance. Your mother fell in love with the desert years ago, and for her its charm outweighs its discomforts. And if she did not love it for itself, she would love it for what it means to her."

"But she must have had to give up so much" objected Caryll. "She must have had to—to—sacrifice a lot to—to—" he broke off with a sudden snort of indignation. "Good heavens—a man has no right to make such demands on a woman!" he cried vehemently.

Saint Hubert shrugged again. "But if the woman wishes it, too," he countered. "And in this case she did wish it—and has never regretted it."

Caryll looked at him with a puzzled frown. "She must be—rather wonderful," he said, almost shyly.

Sain Hubert met his gaze without flinching. "She is—wonderful," he said, quietly.

It was during the midday halt that Caryll spoke of his mother again.

The picnic lunch was over, and all about them the men lay wrapped in their cloaks, sleeping like the sheeted dead. Even Williams, the adaptable, had succumbed to the custom of the country and was stretched at full length in typical English fashion, flat on his face, his head buried in his arms, his helmet balanced precariously on the back of his neck.

Saint Hubert was awake, lazily watching the frantic endeavors of a scavenger beetle to carry off a piece of bread three times its own size, and glancing from time to time at Caryll, who was lying near him.

Since lunch the young man had neither moved nor spoken. His nerves quieted somewhat by the soothing effects of a pipe which had at last condescended to draw, he was striving to overcome the nervous shyness that had beset him all morning, and which was momentarily increasing as the inevitable meeting grew steadily nearer.

He stirred at length, breaking the long silence.

"It's rather—an odd sort of feeling," he began, hesitatingly, "not to know what one's own mother even looks like. I don't remember her at all, and the only photograph I have is a curly headed boy in breeches. She can't look like that now, you know. It must have been taken a very long time ago. I suppose she has changed a good deal. Of course she must be—must be—" he paused awkwardly, his face crimson with embarrassment. Saint Hubert eyed him with a faint smile. Mas Caryll, with his precise and old-fashioned notions, going to be shocked at the youthful appearance of his mother? Was that very youthfulness, which constituted one of her greatest charms, to be a cause for further grievance to this critical and already prejudiced young man?

"She is not quite a Methusalah," he returned dryly, "though, of course," he went on slowly, steadying his voice with difficulty, "life in the desert sometimes has a very aging effect on women. Some of those wrinkled old ladies we saw in Tougourt were probably years younger than your mother."

And Caryll, lying prone and idly raking the sand, heard only the seriousness of his tone, did not see the amusement dancing in his eyes. Instead he had a sudden and distressing vision of certain withered old crones whom he had seen during his sojourn in this land of short lived beauty.

"Oh!" he said, rather blankly. And Saint Hubert did not enlighten him.

The baggage caravan had long since been overtaken and passed, and it showed no signs of making an appearance when the cavalcade started on its southward journey.

The midday halt was briefer than usual, there was no necessity today to make allowance for the slow-moving camels, to linger by the way that tents might be erected and food in process of preparation when the horsemen got into camp.

Hot though it still was, the rays of the sun had lessened somewhat in intensity, and the heat haze had vanished, giving a wider and more distinct outlook.

They had been riding for about an hour when, all at once, Caryll saw, still a long way off, a column of dust that seemed to be coming rapidly toward them. His throat went suddenly dry, and the involuntary nervous pressure of his knees made his high spirited horse bound violently.

Dragging him down, he turned to Saint Hubert with a hoarse word of inquiry.

The count was also peering intently ahead.

"Too far off yet to be certain," he answered, "but I expect it is your father."

And, for the first time in his life, Caryll was seized with an odd kind of panic. The dreaded meeting actually upon him, he would have given more than he cared to define, to be able to turn tail and bolt in the opposite direction. What would this Arab father of his be like? What on earth was he to do when they met? What on earth was he to say? He had rehearsed this meeting in his mind many times. Feverishly he strove now to recollect even one of the elaborately thought out and carefully prepared speeches that, far from the intended recipient, had come to him so readily, had formulated so easily.

He racked his brains, sweating with nervousness, but his mind seemed a dense and hopeless blank.

And all the while, the column of dust rolled steadily on.

Then, gradually, it appeared to eddy and lift, to drift slowly backwards, disclosing a little band of Arabs galloping with customary recklessness, a solitary horseman riding a few paces in front of them.

For a few minutes, Caryll clung forlornly to the hope that perhaps the evil moment had not yet come, that these might be other Arabs than the ones they were expecting. But the wild shout that rose suddenly from the escort behind him made him realize that the respite for which he had hoped was denied him, and a queer sensation that was nervousness mingled with excitement, rippled up and down his spine.

Angry with himself, and resenting the strange feeling which he did not know was emotion, he felt the old antagonism, the old intolerance surging through him again. The escort's outburst reminded him of the noisy demonstration when they had met him. Was there to be another similar exhibition now? Why the dickens didn't they bring the whole bally band along, shawms and trumpets—or whatever the devil they played—and be done with it! he reflected disgustedly, his upper lip curling with scorn.

Saint Hubert had signaled to their own troop to halt, and, wrestling with his excited mount, Caryll glowered at the rapidly advancing horsemen, the admiration he would otherwise have felt, swamped in the angry prejudice that made him view them with critical disdain.

They were a magnificent looking lot of men, superbl mounted and they could ride, he admitted grudgingly, but what a rotten way to push cattle over ground like this! And they would stop, presumedly, with the same horrible abruptness that characterized all these merciless riders, regardless of the abominably cruel strain on their horses.

That one in front must be his father—his Arab father. The native dress, even though he was prepared for it, gave him a kind of shock, and again the odd sensation of chill rippled up and down his back. Dismounted now, he stood with his hands thrust deep in his jacket pockets his heart pounding furiously.

Would they never slacken speed? Had they gone quite mad? The sudden crash of musketry made him start and his face hardened as he listened to the wild uproar of shouts and rifle shots. Pandemonium, that was what it was, he thought contemptuously, a childish and theatrical displays that was stupid and unnecessary! His lip curled again as the oncoming troop stopped, suddenly as he had known they would, dust and sand swirling beneath the horses' feet, and another deafening uproar arose, mingled with the shrill screams of excited stallions, the jingle of accoutrements and the sharp crackle of rifles.

Only the leader dismounted.

And, as if rooted to the ground, Caryll watched the tall, picturesquely clad figure swing down from the big black horse and walk slowly towards them.

So this was his father—this was the Earl of Glencaryll! An Arab of the Arabs! An Arab, moreover, whose dark, handsome face was strangely familiar to him. It was not early recollection, it was a more recently seen likeness—a likeness that seemed to carry with it the remembrance of something sinister.

Where had he seen that face before? He was still puzzling when Saint Hubert's warning touch recalled him to the present, and he turned a face that was white and strained in response to the Frenchman's urgent whisper.

"For God's sake, go first, Uncle Raoul," he said, thickly. And, as Saint Hubert started forward, he pulled him self together with an effort, and followed laggingly, in an agony of shyness and constraint.

The two old friends met as Frenchmen. And, watching their enthusiastic greeting, Caryll shivered with disgust, swallowing nervously. What a loahtsome custom. Would it also be expected of him?

His short, slim figure drawn up stiffly, he stood with set lips rigidly awaiting the ordeal.

But the sheik made no such demands on his English son. Turning to him with a grave smile, he stretched out a slim brown hand of welcome.

"Enfin, mon fils," he said, in his deep, soft voice. "Soyez le bienvenue." The genuine feeling in his tone, the warmth of his firm handclasp, were all that any son could have desired. But Caryll was conscious only of the language in which the hearty greeting had been spoken, and the resentment he had tried to conquer welled up again irresistibly. Saint Hubert had warned him of his father's prejudice against the country he refused to recognize, had warned him of the sheik's unwillingness to speak the mother-togne with which he was perfectly acquainted. But surely, in this case, an exception might have been made. Surely, in this one instance, prejudice might have been laid aside. He had been prepared to meet his father halfway, to sink his own prejudice as far as possible, but this French welcome was like a slap in the face. He was hanged if he was going to answer in the same language. He was going to make his own sympathies clear, from the start. But speech did not come easily, and the color flamed into his cheeks as he returned the pressure of the muscular fingers that were holding his in a grip of steel. He had a sudden curious impression of inferiority: a feeling that, obstinate as he knew himself to be, he was face to face with one whose determination was even greater than his. Tongue-tied, and furious at his own gaucherie he found himself stammering like a veritable schoolboy.

"Thank you, sir," he muttered awkwardly. "I'm very glad to come," and flushed deeper as he realized the lie that had somehow been forced from him. And the quick gleam of amusement that flickered momentarily in the dark, penetrating eyes that were looking at him to intently did not seem to soothe his ruffled feelings. But the sheik did not seem to notice the lack of spontaniety in his son's reply, or the coldness of his tone. He made a few remarks of courteous inquiry regarding the journey and then with a little friendly nod, turned back to Saint Hubert who, on thorns as to the outcome of his first meeting, had moved away to leave father and son alone. And left to himself, Caryll struggled with emotions that were contradictory and perplexing. In spite of all his endeavors to the contrary, he seemed to have made a fool of himself again! Once more he was aware of the same feeling he had experienced that day in Tougourt when the Arab chief had rescued him from the excited mob. More than ever did he feel it now. From what did these inscrutable Arabs derive their calm dignity of demeanor? What made them seem so sure of themselves? Though classing them as savages, he had been forced to acknowledge that their courtesy and tact were beyond reproach. With hot didscomfort he admitted to himself that his own courtesy seemed to have strangely deserted him.

TAKE SMUGGLED ARMS

SHANGHAI, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The French police today seized arms and ammunition valued at $46,000 which they believe was smuggled into the country by an international band of former high army officers and officials. The shipment was intended for hostile Chinese and was to be paid for with counterfeit coin.

More Truth Than Poetry

TO A BABY

On learning that scientists are seeking ways and means to stop his crying.

Cry away baby, when you feel blue,
Make people pay some attention to you,
What other way has a poor little elf
A month or two old of expressing himself?

Supposing you lie all the long day around,
With never a wriggle and never a sound,
Supposing you always were gentle and good,
Would parents neglect you? They would!

Cry away baby, when you want food,
Cry 'till your face like the poppy is hued,
Cry till your parents are forced to take heed—
And bring you the bottle of milk that you need.

Supposing you lie without ever a cry,
While the clock said "tick-tick" as the minutes dragged by—
And never got fussy and started to fret,
Would parents forget you? You bet!

Cry away baby, never be mum,
When the old colic is hurting your tum,
Tell the whole household that something is wrong,
And mother and father will soon be along.

Cry away baby; speak out your mind—
Parents are just human being you'll find,
If you are placid and peaceful and still,
Will you regret it? You will!

Slim Love Bumps Spudders Into Third Place With Four Hits

WICHITA FALLS SUBDUED BY A COUNT OF 4-1

Long Dallas Hurler Has Locals Completely at His Mercy

Slim Love sent the Spudders back into third place Tuesday afternoon when he held them to four scattered bingles, and won his game 4 to 1 for Dallas. This sent Snipe Conley's Bovine herd hurtling into second place. Love was in the right mood, and the Spudders were unable to touch him. The first two to face him collected hits but after that he was complete master.

Jimmy Brett got off to a poor start and was rioted in the third to be replaced by Jess Winters. Jess was going great until he was removed from the game in favor of a pinch hitter and Martin went to the hill to toss the final three innings in great style.

Tanner Out.

Buddy Tanner was absent from second base today due to illness. He was out with a headache and some fever. While speaking of cripples it might be mentioned that Carl Williams was limping about the park with a wrenched back and Ping Bodie has a swollen little finger on his right hand.

Dorman led the Spudder attack with a single and double while Bauman, Williams and Kearns each slapped out three safe smacks in the Dallas side of the hit column.

Dallas started off in the first inning by driving over two runs. Bauman doubled to left. Gross popped out to Turgeon. Williams doubled to left, scoring Bauman. Miller singled to center, scoring Williams, but was thrown out trying to make a double on his hit. Fitzgerald to Turgeon. Miller was hurt on the play and had to be removed from the game, Snipe Conley going to right, and Griffith to center.

Another run was shoved over in the third. Bauman singled to left. Gross hit to Turgeon who forced Bauman at second with a toss to Distell. Williams hit to Turgeon who tagged Gross on the line, but threw low to first. Williams went to second on the play. Conley singled through the box and Williams spiked the rubber. Griffith singled to left and Conley went to second. Winters was then sent to Brett's aid and he forced Kearns to hit one to Distel who forced Griffith at second. Distel made a great stop and a fine throw.

Distel also starred in the next inning with a great stop of Segrist's hit in deep short and heaved the runner out at first.

Both sides scored in the sixth inning and concluded the scoring for the day. Kearns singled to center. Segrist filed out to center and Hungling popped out to short. Love walked. Bauman dropped a single in right, scoring Kearns but Metzler threw Love out at third with a long peg to Dorman.

Love had his bad inning in the sixth and walked Turgeon and Callaghan, Dorman promptly smacked a double to right center scoring Turgeon and sending Callaghan to third. Jonnard whiffed and Sutherland, batting for Winters, went out swinging.

After this the Spudders were three up and three down until a walk to Jonnard in the ninth broke the string.

BEAUMONT, Aug. 25.—Beaumont took the second in a row from Houston's slumping Buffaloes here Tuesday afternoon, beating the invaders 8 to 5. Timely hitting by Taylor and a three-bagger with the bases loaded by Devireros proved too much for the Buffs to overcome, while Si Morgan hurled an excellent game with the exception of a bad first inning when four hits netted three tallies. Falls 50 Feet In Stack; to Recover

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 25.—Falling 50 feet down the inside of a smokestack being erected at the Elliott Jones refinery on the Blanco road, J. M. Logan, 29, suffered nothing more serious than a fractured left leg and severe cuts on the face and arms.

Lying in a heap at the bottom of the stack, it was half an hour before he was rescued, and then it was not until a hole had been burned in the bottom of the stack with an acetylene torch.

BUCK UP

(To the gods belong tomorrow—Cowley)

Today, if you happen to flivver,
Why worry? It's only today.
Tomorrow, perhaps, you'll deliver
The pinch hit that settles the fray.

They'll jeer as you fish for a third one—
They'll give you the raspberry—true!
But a hoot never yet has deterred one
From winning—so why should it you.

There is trouble enough you can borrow
If the jeers of the bystanders rile—
But the High ods are lords of tomorrow—
It may be, old pal, they will smile!

Jawn McGraw says that ball in the National league now is slower than the one that started the season. So is the New York ball club.

It may be slower but the 400 hitting goes on just the same.

Miss Ederle Fails

It is of no particular moment that the youthful American failed in her attempt to cross the channel. After all, the daring involved merits some praise, although there is far less risk involved in testing the choppy seas of the Anglo-French waterway with a brass band, a tug, and swimming as well as lifesaving company, than in "taking off" as Hawker once did, to fly across the Atlantic. Endurance rathe than daring would probably be the proper term.

Still it is a feat few of us would attempts to swim the channel merely which it was intended as well in failure as in success, advertising publicity, if the two terms are not interchangeable.

The fair Gertrude put it over rather well. Where the two recent attempt and serve the purpose for got in the papers, Miss Ederle and her brass band reached headlines before and after the fact. She could not have done better had she landed after a perfect swim.

Still, there is common sense in Johnny Weissmuller's promise that he for one is not going to try the channel. As it happens Johnny does not need publicity. If he did, he would probably make the attempt.

He gets his by breaking records.

When Eve span and Adam delved,
I think that sportsmanship was shelved—
And since Adam delved and Eve span,
It has not come again to man.

We read a lot of the spirit of sportsmanship of this race and that. Every nation likes to think that it has it—and the others have not, truth is that there is mightly little of it anywhere.

In mind of course is the action of the gallery in the Wightman matches when the officials rebuked the spectators and the next day saw them cut loose again for their pains. This in tennis where they have tried for years to instill the idea that this is a polite game for polite people.

Baseball long since dead itself out. There are crowds that cheer a great play by an opposing player, but few that stand up under all tests. How many carry their sportsmanship to the umpire and see as many close ones called against the visitors as against the home team? Nine tenths of a baseball audience are for the home club and give not a dern how it wins if it does.

College sports fail to qualify. Here the home feeling percentage is even higher for Alma Mater can do no wrong—from hiring trained performers to committing mayhem on the field. A visiting football team hears few cheers except perfunctory ones and those from a little group of alumni brought together to revive the memories of other days. While a dropped punt for instance is no exceptional tribute to the play of the recovering team, it has been known to raise a perfect pandemonium of elation.

College and school sports run much the same. A prize ring audience is frankly — and rankly — partisan, though its affection shifts quickly when a reigning star is beaten to the resin.

Golf and tennis hew closer to the line than any. They are the socalled "gentlemen's sports"—and the spectator under ordinary circumstances acts better. A fine drive up the fairway—a putt across a tricky green—the well placed service ace or brilliant recovery draw a quick round of applause. But this is because the competition is individual, not an community affair.

What does the baseball rooter want for his money besides a pennant winner? The answer is—nothing.

The need of triumph may be more or less—
In baseball, nothing matters but success!

PERSIFLAGE

Philadelphia and Pittsburgh played an exhibition game the other afternoon. Who won means nothing. The AP report said: "It was regarded here as a test between the teams that will meet in the world's series this year." Why?

The Athletics had six regulars in the lineup. Pittsburgh had five. Both Mack and Dreyfuss are far too clever showman to want to see their two teams clash just now at full strength and top stride. One such encounter might knock thousands off the gate of the world series—and the gate interests the owners. What makes the series is the advance speculation on its possibilities.

GIANTS 4; REDS 6.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The Giants strengthened their hold on second place today by winning the first game of their series with Cincinnati, 7 to 6. Hartley's hitting was the big factor in New York's victory. He doubled in the fourth and scored on Nehf's single. He clearce the bases with a triple in the fifth, and scored the winning run in the eighth on Frisch's single. After Young was hits with a pitched ball by Donohue in the sixth, he rushed out to the box and took a few punches at the Cincinnati pitcher. Third paseman Pinelli got between the players, and Umpire Quigley carried Young away. Young and Donohue were both put out o the game. Score:

PIRATES FALL BENEATH HARD HITS IN BOSTON

Mann Comes Through In Two Punches, Beats Corsairs 2-1

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Mann's hitting was responsible for Boston's two to one victory over the league leading Pittsburgh Pirates at Braves field today. After Welch singled in the first inning, he was sent across the plate with the Braves' first run when Mann tripled to the score board. In the sixth Gautreau's single, Welch's sacrifice and Mann's base hit gave Boston its winning run. Somerville fans turned out in large numbers to pay honors to their favorite Harold "Pie" Traynor, the Pirates' third baseman. They presented him with several gifts. His triple after Gooch drove out a two-bagger gave Pittsburgh its only run. After the second inning Barnes, the Braves' hurler held the Pirates to but two hits. For the third time since 1908 President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club came to Boston with his team as a compliment to Traynor. Score:

Pirates Hailed As League Champs

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP).—The Pirates were generally regarded today as the next champions of the National league. They have left New York after taking four out of five games in a crucial series with the Giants, thereby almost making the pennant certain.

Only 32 games remain to be played by McGraw's entry, while the Corsairs have 38 and a long stretch at home. Nothing but a diamond miracle can break the hold of McKechnie's men on the 1925 bunting, as critics view the situation.

The final blow dealt New York yesterday by the Pirates, 9 to 2, not only left the Giants six games behind first place, but found their defense almost wrecked. The inner works cracked in the fifth. An infield fly went for a sacrifice as Cuyler stole home while Jackson held the ball. Three errors were made on easy chances. Their disorganized aspect indicated the resignation of the four-time title holders to the passing of the pennant from the masthead at the Polo grounds.

DODGERS 5; CARDS 4.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Deberry's single with the bases filled in the ninth scored Cox with the run that gave the Robins a 5 to 4 victory over the Cardinals today. The victory carried Brooklyn within a point of fourth place. Mails started for the Cardinals and gave way to Allen Sothoron after pitching six innings. Osborne was the first pitcher used by the Robins. He allowed one hit until the seventh when he became wild and was relieved by Petty. In the fifth Fournier hit his 21st home run of the season. CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(AP)—New York bunched hits today and easily defeated Chicago, 7 to 4, in the first game of the series. Thurston who started for the locals was driven off the mound in the first inning. Kerr checked the hitting until the third inning when the Yankees scored two more runs. Edwards, the third pitcher to go on the hill for Chicago, pitched a good game but was touched for two runs, one of which was a homer by Meusel in the seventh, it being his 25th of the season. He knocked out his 24th homer off Kerr in the third inning. No one was on base when he connected. Jones pitched a good game for the visitors, especially in the pinches. Dugan, third baseman of the Yankees, was unable to play and probably will be out for the rest of the season due to an old injury to his knee. Score:

AGGIES MAY BE SURPRISE OF CONFERENCE

All Bible Needs Is Capable Gridster to Handle Punts

COLLEGE STATION, Texas. (AP) If Coach Dean Xenophone Bible, head football coach of the Texas Aggies here, can find or develop a gridster who can catch punts with any dependability, the Texas Aggies, though pre-season prospects are only fair, may prove the surprise team of the Southwest conference in 1925. Last season the Farmers were fearfully handicapped by lack of a man able to snare punts. This weakness cost them dearly in more than one contest, and was a big factor in sending down to defeat the Biblemen Thanksgiving Day by the Texas University Longhorns.

It is hardly likely that Berry, the game, speedy little quarterback who was used last season as the safety man, will draw the same assignment this season. The dope points to the playing at this position of Hunt, star halfback of the Aggie "Fish," eleven of 1924. In freshman games of last season he showed an ability to catch punts when opposing ends were coming full tilt at him that approached the form shown in 1919 by the famous "Nick" Knickerbocker, one of the best quarterbacks of Aggie history. Not since the days when "Nick" was starring at Aggieland, have the Farmers had what might be called a consistently dependable handler of punts.

Last Year's Line Back

Last season the Farmers had a typical Texas A. & M. line—one that was almost impenetrable against straight football. Though such stars as Waugh, a great tackle who won All-Southwestern honors last year; Allison, All-Southwestern end; and Meltzen, light but hard scrapping center, will not be back for service this fall, Coach Bible and his able assistants are expected to turn out another heavy, powerful forward wall.

Since Bible came to Texas A. & M., he has been turning out stalwart lines. His success in this department has won for him the generally accepted title, "the Southwest's greatest defensive coach." Five of the veteran forwards who will be available for the 1925 team are: "Bones" Irvin, 215-pound tackle; Johnson, end; R. Dansby, husky guard; Hardman, a fairly light but very effective guard; and Sid Kyle, rangy, sandy-haired lad who should be a regular at end or tackle in 1925.

Despite the fact that Coach Bible will have at his command the same backfield combination he used in most of last season's games, it is probable the wily Dana is worrying more about the composition of his backfield than about his line. Berry, quarterback; Kishi, halfback, the only Japanese college football player in the country last season; Wilson, halfback; and Milt Dansby, big fullback, compose a veteran back of the line combination that likely again will be called on to bear the brunt of the offensive work. These four men in 1924 were not rated a first class combination; but it is entirely possible they will come through in great style in 1925.

At the present writing Wilson, Kishi and Dansby appear to have excellent chances of retaining regular berths in the backfield, while the hard fighting Berry will give Hunt and any other rivals plenty of competition for the quarterback's job.

Wilson Is Big Bet

Captain "Mule" Johnson, who was one of the early conference sensations last season but whose play fell off toward the close of the season, is being depended on by Aggie supporters to play a big part in the efforts of the Farmers to regain football laurels. Big, powerful, and the fastest man of his size in the conference, Wilson has the natural endowments of a wonderful gridster. His admirers believe he will come up this fall to his full possibilities.

James Sullivan, business manager of athletics, and Coach Bible have arranged a most attractive schedule for the red and white. Games with S. M. U., Baylor, T. C. U., Rice, and Texas, outstanding Southwest conference schools, and the annual colorful clash with the Sewanee Tigers will furnish thrills for the cadets.

As usual, the clash with the Texas University Longhorns headlines the Aggie schedule. For two successive years in 1923 and 1924, the Longhorns have won over the Farmers. Coach Bible and his pupils will make desperate efforts to stage a comeback this fall.

The schedule follows:

Sept. 19—Open.
Sept. 25—Trinity University at College Station.
Oct. 2.—Southwestern University at College Station.
Oct. 10.—Sewanee at Dallas.
Oct. 16.—S. M. U. at College Station.

MATSUDA WINS FROM ROSS IN STRAIGHT FALLS

Jap Successfully Defends Title In Hard Match Here

Matty Matsuda, famous Japanese wrestler and holder of the world's welterweight championship, successfully defended his title in a match at the arena here last night with Tony Ross of Junction City, Kan., when he threw the Kansan in two straight falls. Although the Japanese conquered, his success never was a certainty until he tilted his opponent for the second time. Local sportsmen said the match was one of the best ever seen here. Matsuda struggled with his opponent for 50 minutes and 10 seconds before he took him for the first fall. The last fall took an even 25 minutes.

Both men showed remarkable endurance and throughout the long, but none the less interesting combat, gave frequent and sudden flashes of strength to free themselves from dangerous holds of their opponents. At no less than half a dozen times during the half hour, victory hung in the balance. Ross' famous leg split came near taking the Japanese for a fall early in the match.

Matsuda took the first fall with a body scissors and an arm lock. He won the last with a flying headlock that brought to a finish one of the best matched main events ever seen here.

Jack Gorman made short work of Sylvio Checco, the barefooted champion of the U. S. navy. Gorman took the first fall in eight minutes and twelve seconds, and the last in three minutes and two seconds. Both were with toe holds. With his opponent barefooted this was the most open place for Gorman's attack. In the last fall Gorman split the toes of Checco with his toe hold.

CATCH 22 ALIENS.

Were Smuggled in From Canada; Found Working in Gyp Mines.

OAKFIELD, N. Y., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Twenty-two men, who have been employed here in the mines of the Akron Gypsum company, were arrested today in a wholesale roundup of smuggled aliens.

Most of those arrested were declared by immigration inspectors to be natives of Italy and Poland who had entered this country illegally from Canada.

OIL TAX PAYS WELL.

$430,000 Collected From Companies of Texas During July.

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Approximately $430,000 was collected from oil companies operating in Texas on the one-cent gasoline tax during July, Comptroller S. H. Terrell reported today. This represents an increase of approximately $23,796.52 over June.

The five largest oil companies paid the following amounts in July: Gulf Refining company, $107,669.35; Magnolia Petroleum company, $83,598.63, and Humble Oil & Refining company, $22,514.28, a total of $316,164.05.

Texas Stars Put France to Rout In Tennis Play

White and Tholheimer Win Sizzling Match From Lacoste and Borotra

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 25.—(AP)—Lewis N. White and Louis L. Thalheimer, youthful Texas tennis stars, sixth in the 1924 national doubles ranking, staged the biggest upset of the day during the second round matches of the national doubles championship tournament on the turf courts of the Longwood Cricket club today when they eliminated the ranking French Davis club team, composed of Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra in a sizzling five set match, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

Their victory, due largely to White's terrific service on which he won five love games, and his deadly accurate placements, will bring them against the Kinsey brothers, Howard O. and Robert G., defending champions of San Francisco, Cal., in a third round match tomorrow.

While White and Thalheimer were staging their brilliant match, William T. Tilden, II, national champion, and his young protege, Al Sandy Wierner of Philadelphia were eliminating the other French Davis cup team, Max Decugis and Jaques Brugnon, 6-1, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2, leaving France without a representative in the play.

The elimination of the Frenchman leaves only two foreign threats in the play. Australia, represented by her Davis cup stars, Gerald L. Patterson and J. B. Hawkes, and Spain, represented by Manuel Alonso and Eduardo Flaquer, are the surviving teams.

TO START TOURNEY.

The all-club tourney of the Municipal Golf club for members only will be started soon at the golf club. The tournament has been arranged in four flights, all of the same value. The first flight has eight, the second sixteen and the other two thirty-two.

$80,000 Compress At Frederick, Okla., Presses First Bale

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 25.—The first bale of Tillman county cotton to be harvested this season was brought here Monday by A. J. Tipton, tenant on the A. P. Deyong farm, two miles north of Tipton. The first bale to be ginned in the county was handled in the new plant of T. B. Simmons Gin company. Tipton's cotton, turned out Tuesday morning from 1,260 pounds of seed cotton, made a 410-pound bale. It is the first bale ever compressed in Frederick. The compressing was done by the Traders Compress, a new $80,000 plant. A premium is being raised.

The Chatterbox At Garden Theatre Today, Thursday

"The Chatterbox," Bayard Veiller's great crook melodrama has been adapted from the stage success and is coming to the Garden theatre today and Thursday under the title "Smooth as Satin." F. B. O. is presenting their brilliant star Evelyn Brent in this thrilling tale, the screen version of which has been done by Arthur Statter, and if reports from the coast may be believed, nothing which Miss Brent has done in the past touches the performance she gives in "Smooth as Satin." The Veiller drama is a perfect vehicle for the transmission of her undoubted ability, and that it is a corking story with many unexpected twists goes without saying, for there have been few if any playwrights with the fitness in handling this type of entertainment to compare with the author of "Within the Law" and "The Thirteenth Chair." Ralph Ince has directed the production with his usual force and skilled technique, and the supporting cast is worthy of a De Mille.

Crops West Of City Excellent Is Report Here

Reports on crop conditions west of this city as far as Childress and Hall county show excellent conditions prevailing in almost every quarter, reports here indicate.

Hardeman county in the area around Quanah has excellent crops, although in spots a good rain is needed. A good rain around Tolbert in northern Wilbarger county would help some although the Vernon portion of this county is in good shape and should produce a big cotton crop. The Kirkland territory in Childress county and the Goodlet section in Hardeman county have splendid crop prospects with a good rain last week to help them along. Hall county is in excellent shape and the best cotton crop in its history in prospect.

The irrigated district of Wichita county probably is in better condition than any section of northwest Texas. Cotton and other crops are in wonderful shape. A good rain over the whole area, however, would be of untold benefit.

TO DECIDE USE OF TEXAS 'U' OIL ROYALTIES SOON

Court Will Tell Where $878,980 Funds to Be Used

DALLAS, Aug. 25.—(AP).—Where oil royalties amounting to $878,980 may be used by the University of Texas for erection of new buildings on the campus probably will be settled by the state supreme court in October, W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasury, said today. He received a warrant for that amount today from the comptroller's department designating the funds to the permanent university fund, which would permit use of the interest only.

In view of a law passed by the last legislature specifically placing university royalties in the available fund for immediate use, Mr. Hatcher declared he would refuse to credit the money to the permanent fund until so instructed by a court.

Comptroller S. H. Terrell has designated that the fund should be placed in the permanent fund following a ruling of the attorney general that the new statute was unconstitutional.

"University regents want to use the money to replace the temporary buildings with permanent ones," R. G. Storey, regent, said today. "It is probable that in the fall they will attempt to have the money credited to the funds indicated by the legislature."

NO FESTIVAL PLANNED

Fiftieth Anniversary of Bayreuth Opera Goes Unnoticed.

BERLIN.—Notwithstanding that next year will mark the 50th anniversary of the Bayreuth opera house, there will be no Bayreuth festival to celebrate the event. Even the significance of such an anniversary cannot reduce the powers that be to relax the custom of having the festival on two consecutive years with an intermission the year following.

In 1927, however, there will be a compensating festival with "The Ring" and "Parsifal," while "Rienzi" will be produced for the first time.

ASKS DROUTH AREA GET FIRST ROAD BUILDING

Ferguson Suggests That Preference Be Shown Stricken Sections

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Preference to the drouth area on all road improvements was recommended to the state highway commission by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson in a letter made public late today. The letter suggested that the commission take such action to relieve the people in the section without interfering with any previous commitments.

The governor's letter follows:

"In view of the devastating and disastrous drouth which is now prevailing in a radius of 100 miles of Austin, which might cause suffering and want among the farming masses of this territory, I am writing to suggest to you that so far as the same may not interfere with your previous commitments that you give preference to all road improvements in the drouth area.

"I am sure that the Christian people of Texas who have been blessed with good crops and who will soon enjoy a certain degree of prosperity, will be perfectly willing to have you, as far as possible, defer road construction and improvements in their territory until the want and needs of the people who are sorely afflicted with the drouth are supplied.

"Assuring you of my pleasure to assume full responsibility in the premises, and with continued esteem, I am yours truly,"

Miriam A. Ferguson,
Governor of Texas.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 25.—(AP)—The cotton market was fairly active although prices were reactionary from the start and kept on the down grade all day with the exception of moderat but short lived rallies around noon and in the final trading. Prices were under pressure from increasing hedge selling and although there was more or less trade buying and some price fixing by southern mills the offerings were larger than the demand could absorb except at lower levels. At the lowest October was 34 points below the previous close and although the market rallied slightly near the end the close showed net losses for the day of 25 to 30 points on the general list. At the start as Liverpool was about as due the market here opened steady, 2 to 3 points down. These initial sales, 22.64 for October and 22.85 for December proved to be the highs of the day. Right after the opening call, hedge selling was in evidence at once and the market eased off slightly until around mid-season October traded at 22.32 and December at 22.54, or 33 to 34 points below the previous close. After mid-session the market rallied 11 to 14 points on trade buying and some price fixing by mills, but the improvement promptly brought out renewed hedge selling and prices eased off to within a few points of the lows of the morning. There was again a slight rally near the end but it did not go very far, final figures being only five points up from the lows.

Marrs Flays Plan For Distributing State School Funds

AUSTIN, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Per capita distribution of school funds to schools in Texas was called unfair by S. M. N. Marrs, superintendent of public instruction, in an address before the Rotary club here today.

Mr. Marrs said that such a distribution plan where each school received $14 for each pupil, certain sections of the country which were but sparsely settled, were unable to give school children equal advantages as those in thickly settled section, although the tax rate might be the same.

"Propaganda is being spread throughout Texas that the state is doing too much for the schools, but we will not have any system unless the district system is abolished," he declared. "One section of Travis county has a 50-cent tax on the $100 valuation and all this tax raises in a year is $58. One half of this sum must be withheld for the sinking fund to pay interest.

"We have made a mistake in the per capita distribution. The state does not owe equal sums of money to its school children, but it does owe equal opportunities and these are not obtained by the appropriation of the same number of dollars to each child."

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Stock prices moved irregularly higher today in a market that was featured by wild speculation in a few motor stocks and specialties. Chrysler was the spectacular performer, soaring 20 points to a new high record price at 145 on what was widely characterized as urgent buying by a trapped short interest. This represented a gain of nearly 30 points in two days. White Motors rallied over six points to 102¼ and then eased to 101⅝.

Waves of profit taking and bear selling apparently inspired by stiffening money rates and growing uneasiness of investors over recent violent fluctuations in many issues, swept over the market at intervals throughout the day but they were generally well absorbed and failed to stem the rising tide of prices. Widespread gasoline price cuts in the east and moderate west did not bring out any extensive liquidation of the oil shares although the Pan-American issues were conspicuously heavy.

Further accumulation of the railroad shares, particularly those with promising merger or higher dividend prospects lifted several southern and southwestern carriers to new peak prices for the year. Among them were Frisco common, Seaboard Air Line common and preferred Western Maryland, Wabash common and Southern railway.

Standard industrials were again mixed. United States Steel common closed fractionally lower at 123⅜ with trading in relatively small volume. Baldwin crossed 117 and then fell back to 115⅛ for a net gain of ⅝.

Withdrawal of funds by interior banks in apparent anticipation of heavy month end requirements was reflected in stiffer money rates. Call loans renewed at 4¼ per cent as against 4 yesterday and then advanced to 4½, closing at the top. Time money also was firmer, 60 to 90 day funds being quoted at 4¼ to 4½ per cent instead of 4 to 4¼, with corresponding advances in the longer maturities.

Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A sharp drop of 50 points to 16.50 cents in Polish zlotys featured the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm around 4.85⅝, but French francs were slightly lower around 4.68 cents. Norwegian and Danish kroner maintained their gains of the past few days, ruling around 19.04 and 23.90 cents respectively.

PLAN FLOOD CONTROL FOR RED RIVER

Conference Soon To Be Held In Oklahoma, Says Blake.

AMARILLO, Texas, Aug. 25.—(AP)—Control of the flood waters of the Red river will be the subject of a conference soon to be called by the Oklahoma irrigation, drainage and reclamation committee, E. E. Blake, chairman, who is attending the conference here of flood control and irrigation problems of the Canadian river, said today. Plans for the conference, which likely will be held in Dallas, were discussed by Mr. Blake with A. S. Stinnett, Texas commissioner for the Canadian and Red rivers. Officers of Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas will be invited to attend.

The 68th congress a year ago appropriated $1,500,000 for a study of flood control along the North and South Canadian, the Red river and the Cimmaron rivers. Engineers of the war department have completed a survey of all the rivers. Mr. Blake said he expected the Red river would be made the project.

Inspection of the two of the four dam sites along the Canadian river recommended by war department engineers were inspected today. Every irrigation commissioner pronounced as almost ideal both the Potter county site, north of Amarillo, and the Hutchinson county site, 30 miles east of the Potter county site.

A proposed site in Oldham county will be visited Friday; but the fourth, the proposed site at Lockhart crossing in Roberts county will not be visited because of lack of time.

HOUSE IS AGITATED.

Town in Arms at Report That De Luxe Liners May be Sent to Cherburg

HAVRE. —(AP)—This city, especially its shipping circles, is agitated because of the possibility of the French line taking its de luxe boats to Cherbourg, leaving only the smaller boats and cargoes to port at Havre. There has been much contradictory talk concerning the scheme, but it is now admitted that it is more than rumor. The United States line, it is said, has made proposals to the Havre authorities to dock their boats at this port, being unable to come to terms with Cherbourg. This would be an excellent thing for local trade, but would also be close competition for the French line.

It is said the chamber of commerce at Cherbourg intends to build new quays in the Mielles Creek in such a manner that three of the largest vessels could dock at the same time.

IF SICK TODAY! TAKE NO CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Upset You—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Read Guarantee

I discovered a vegetable compound that does the work of dangerous, sickening calomel and I want every reader of this paper to buy a bottle for a few cents and if it doesn't straighten you up better and quicker than salivating calomel just go back to the store and get your money back.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your thirty feet of bowels of the sour bile and constipation poison which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable.

I guarantee that one spoonful of this harmless liquid liver medicine will relieve the headache, biliousness, coated tongue, ague, malaria, sour stomach or any other distress caused by a torpid liver as quickly as a dose of vile, nauseating calomel, besides it will not make you sick or keep you from a day's work.

Calomel is poison—it's mercury—it attacks the bones often causing rheumatism. Calomel is dangerous. It sickens—while my Dodson's Liver Tone is safe, pleasant and harmless. Eat anything afterwards, because it can not salivate. Give it to the children because it doesn't upset the stomach or shock the liver. Take a spoonful tonight and wake up feeling fine and ready for a full day's work. —Adv.

Bishop Answers Protest At Removal of Word "Obey;" Marriage Needs No "Boss"

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The protest of the Right Rev. Irving Peak Johnson, Episcopal bishop of Colorado, against the elimination of the word "obey" from the Episcopal marriage ceremony, brought a quick response today from the Right Rev. Charles L. Slattery, bishop of Massachusetts and chairman of the joint commission on prayer book revision which proposed the change.

From Hancock, N. H., where he is having his vacation, Bishop Slattery sent to the Associated Press his rejoinedr summarizing the attitude of the commission. The amendment which he says he feels sure will be ratified at the triennial general conference at New Orleans in October, is, he says, in the interest of simplification and directness. He believes that the promise and the espousal being the same for the man and the woman will be stronger because of elimination of "obey" and, further that marriage being a mutual relationship, the use of a mandatory expression has lowered the divine height of matrimony. Below is his elaboration of this thought:

Unnecessary Words.

"The first reason for this change is historical. I am away from books, but I think I am right in saying that no other histroic church uses the word 'obey' in solemnization of matrimony. This is a time for simplification and directness. We wish to be rid of unnecessary words and get down to the root of the matter.

"The promise and espousal as we shall now have them are stronger for the elimination of the 'obey.' The words are as full of weight and meaning as they can be packed. To promise to love and to cherish through all vicissitudes of life till death parts one from the other is vastly greater than any mere formal obedience. To add 'obey' is an anticlimax. In the home where love and service really reign each obeys the other instinctively. Husbands and wives sometimes agree to live most of the time apart, keeping up the form of obedience but they set a woefully bad example to their children of what love is.

"Obey" Won't Save World.

"Most of the unhappy marriages come from haste and from lack of intimate knowledge of one another. If I thought for one moment that the word 'obey' would keep together husbands and wives in their days of misunderstandings and quarrels, I should cheerfully vote to retain it. But I know that since it has not restrained thousands from breaking their marriage vows in the past, we should now be wise to make the promise and the vow so plain that no one can avoid its strict meaning.

"There is another reason—marriage is a mutual relationship, not a subordination of one to the other. The moment there is need to use the force of such a word as 'obey' the marriage has been lowered from its divine height. The moment you begin to compare marriage to a business organization or an army where you rightly say that there must be one head from whom explicit obedience must be required, you show that you do not know what marriage is."

Spitzbergen Winter Not so Rigorous

BARTENSBURG, Green Harbor.—Wintering in Spitzenbergen is anything but the dreadful ordeal that people in other parts of the world might imagine it to be. A correspondent of the Associated Press, discussing the subject with the wife of an official here was told:

"We have the jolliest time imaginable in winter. People who don't know Spitzbergen think of it as a land shrouded in gloom, lashed by incessant blizzards and wholly unfit for civilized people. That is quite a mistake. After the ice closes in, say in October, we know we are thrown upon our resources, and we make the best of them.

"It is never really pitch dark, for several months there is always a faint glow in the sky, and of course the whiteness of the snow helps. Then we have the radio; in winter we hear London and Paris; we have music parties, social evenings, billard tournaments and my goodness! think of the glorious snow sports and skiing competitions and the lovely sledging trips. We often visit our neighbors at Advent Bay with our dog sledges. It takes 18 hours across the mountains. The Advent Bay people visit the Swedes at Braganza Bay and we have no end of fun—we are just one happy family. But it would be lovely to see Paris and London again," she added, with a far-away look in her eyes.

SHIPPERS FIGHT RATES.

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 25.—Shippers from five southwestern states are massing their strength for a vigorous fight to have this area declared independent of all other sections of the country in the matter of fixing freight rates.

They are organizing to appear before the interstate commerce commission at a hearing scheduled for September 8, in Chicago, to urge this segregation.

U. S. Pawkett, secretary-manager of the San Antonio freight bureau, declared the present alignment of states work a distant hardship on southwestern shippers. For rate making purposes this section is now included in the western group of states, including all the territory west of the Mississippi river.

You Can't Tell a Man By Clothes He Wears

NY-AALESUND, Kingsbay, Spitzbergen (AP)—Polar explorers, it seems, do not like to look the part unless they are exploring.

When Ronald Amundsen, Lincoln Ellsworth and their companions landed back here, they did not lose much time in shedding their Aretic apparel for every day garb.

True enough, they all needed shaves and baths badly, but their metamorphosis into well-groomed men of the world was so complete as to startle those who met them soon after their arrival.

Amundsen wore a well-fitting gray sports jacket, with cap, breeches, hose and brogues to match. A silk handkerchief peeped out of his breast pocket, and with his grave courtly maners he had the air of a typical country squire.

Riiser-Larsen's athletic figure showed up bravely in dark blue serge, silk socks and patent leather shoes. Oscar Omdal also affected blue serge. Leif Dietrichson sported neat gray tweeds and Ellsworth affected a gray woolen sweater with flannel trousers. He generally went about bare-headed. Feucht was dressed in a plain business suit that might pass in any European capital.

Japanese Can Fast 50 Days

TOKYO—(AP)—Hideo Takahira of the Tokyo Nutrition laboratory, recently achieved the degree of doctor of science from KeKio university for presenting a thesis on "The Anagennesis of the Body of a Japanese." For many years Mr. Takahiro has been studying the subject and has experimented on himself, abstaining from food for from three to four weeks. In his thesis the scientist argued that a Japanese is able to fast, without harm, for a period of 50 days.

Physicians Appear Before C. of C. and Endorse Project

A hospital for the treatment of nervous and mental diseases is a possibility for Wichita Falls in the near future if present plans of the chamber of commerce and certain leading doctors of the city materialize.

At the meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce yesterday a committee of physicians, composed of Drs. Q. B. Lee, L. Mackechney and C. W. Stevenson appeared and suggested such a hospital. They stated that Wichita Falls was the logical place for its location and that it would prove a highly profitable institution for the individuals connected with it and for the city of Wichita Falls. It was pointed out that Doctor White, formerly in charge of the asylum at Lake Wichita, is the foremost nerve and mental specialist in the state and the best qualified to take care of such a place

A committee composed of W. B. Hamilton, C. E. McCutcheon, H. R. Voelker, Drs. L. Mackechney, Q. B. Lee and M. M. Walker was appointed to consider definite plans for such an institution and methods for financing it.

T. H. Lawson, W. O. Boeman, G. H. Wilson Jr., and G. D. Fox were appointed members of a special committee to canvas the local manufacturers in regard to their support of an industrial display at the Dallas fair and to work out details of space and the extent of the exposition at Dallas to be taken

Plans for a trade trip into the territory to be covered by the new Denver-Plains line were deferred pending a report from the trade extension committee.
