Fulton Mansion opens to public

Fulton family photographs among objects in exhibit

By PAT BLAIR
Managing editor

FULTON — The doors of Fulton Mansion, long closed to the public, will be opened at 9 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 10.

June Secrist, superintendent of the state historical site, said no special ceremonies are planned and, in fact, Texas Parks & Wildlife Department officials are trying to keep the opening as "low-key" as possible at this time.

Not everything will be finished when the museum opens Saturday, Secrist said. The mansion's dining room, for example, won't be open yet for public viewing. "But so many people have been asking when the mansion is going to open, and public interest has been so high, we decided to go ahead and open now."

Secrist added the opening of the mansion at this time will serve to "get any bugs out of the system." A formal dedication is planned this coming spring or early summer, after "everything is completed," according to Secrist.

Museum hours will be from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1-4 p.m. Wednesdays through Sundays and the mansion will be closed to the public on Mondays and Tuesdays, Secrist said. It will also be closed on Christmas Day. She advised that some people might want to wait a few days after Fulton Mansion opens before coming to take the tour.

"People will have a more enjoyable visit if they wait a while, until the initial crowds die down," she said.

For a period after opening, she said, the mansion/museum will offer only guided tours under one of the approximately 35-40 docents, volunteers who will work four-hour shifts at the museum and who are versed in the history of the Fulton family and the time period in which the mansion was built.

"The docents," Secrist said, "have had to learn not only facts, but what the various objects meant" in terms of the time period.

For example, she said, the 1880s — the period to which the mansion has been restored — were a time of the rise of the middle class, due to the industrial revolution. Women not only among the wealthy but in the middle class found themselves with more free time in which they could indulge in hobbies and social activities.

In homes such as the Fultons', there were servants, Secrist continued. She said records indicate the Fultons had five to seven servants, plus two yardmen whose duties were to maintain the 60 acres of ground on which the mansion sat. Records show the Fultons had a cook "and probably a butler," Secrist said, plus a laundry woman who worked for the family part-time.

Another example of knowing what objects meant in terms of the period are the plants that visitors will see not only in the conservatory but throughout the mansion's rooms.

"Plants were extensively used in homes of the period," Secrist said. The Victorians were going through a "back-to-nature" movement, stimulated in part by Darwin, in part as "a kind of reaction to the industrial age" and possibly a reflection of the fear of the rapid changes and economic instability of the times.

"The 1880s could be a time of enormous wealth," Secrist said, "but that wealth was often short-lived."

The tour will include the first and second floors of the mansion "and the basement if it isn't flooded," Secrist said. "We will also of-

A $10,000 CHECK was presented to Rockport Mayor Burt Mills, left, by Butch East, district manager of H.E.B., prior to the beginning of the special city council meeting Tuesday evening at City Hall. The money is to help the city pay its matching share of the $178,000 improvements project at Memorial Park. Also in the photo is Alderwoman Betty Jean Ward. Present but not shown are Alderman W.B. Allen and H.E.B. Store Manager Eric Moede.

City officials set hearings on $3.6 million grant proposal

Public hearings have been called for Jan. 3 and 10 on a proposal by Rockport city officials to seek a $3.6 million grant through the federal Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program.

The action, which included setting the hearing dates and adopting on second reading an ordinance officially calling the hearings, was taken during a special meeting of the Rockport city council at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 6.

In other action during the special session, the council approved transfer and assignment to a third party 300 sanitary sewer connections to the Seachase property between Hwy. 35 North and Aransas Bay.

Another item on the agenda, for discussion and possible action relating to the city's setting up an industrial development corporation to seek industrial revenue bonds, was tabled on the motion of Alderman Richard Beck, seconded by Alderm... Betty Jean Ward.

In making the motion, Beck said, "I have a real problem with this industrial revenue thing. Regardless of the reason it's done, I have a real problem with declaring any part of Rockport a blighted area."

In order to qualify for an industrial revenue bond project, all or part of the city would have to be declared a "blighted area."

Beck also made the motion to set the hearing dates on the proposed UDAG application. That motion was seconded by Alderman W. B. Allen.

If public response is favorable at the hearings next month, city officials propose to apply for $3.6 million in federal grant money. This money will then be loaned at low interest rate to Jim Hasslocher's Frontier Enterprises for construction of a 61,600-square-foot community mall, an office building that will become a new city hall for Rockport, a 5,400-square-foot restaurant and a community entertainment and swim center.

Hasslocher in turn is putting up $21,730,000 of his own money to fund the project, a ratio of just over $6 of private money to every $1 of federal funds, according to Hasslocher's attorney Jane Macon of San Antonio.

Proposed location of the project is on a tract of land just off Hwy. 35 North between Wal-Mart and Live Oak Plaza.

During a workshop meeting on the proposal held Nov. 28, Macon emphasized the UDAG money is a 100 percent grant that does not have to be paid back to the federal government. All of the money, including the interest that will be paid on the loan, she said, will be returned to the city.

She emphasized that the private sector funds being paid into the project by Hasslocher is "leverage" used to secure the federal grant money.

Under the proposal, the city will not immediately own the office (city hall) building but will lease it for a 20-year period. At the end of that time, the building and the land on which it is located will belong to the city.

During this week's special meeting, Beck asked if any of the federal funds would be used for any of the proposed private sector developments in the project.

"Oh, heavens no," Macon said, saying again that the private sector projects are "merely there as a leverage." She said any other private sector projects in that area can be used to add more leverage and thus increase the city's chances to get federal funds.

The $3.6 million in proposed federal grant funds is to be used only for construction of what will be Rockport's new city hall, drainage and planning costs, according to Macon.

Macon reminded the council during Tuesday's meeting that there are no guarantees the city will receive any funding through the UDAG program. In order for the city to take advantage of UDAG at this time, a grant application must be submitted by February.

ACND to seek financial assistance

Aransas County Navigation District commissioners have voted to seek participation from the City of Rockport in funding recreational facilities on Rockport Beach and deferred a decision on a possible tax increase until the district's first meeting in January.

The votes came during the ACND meeting Tuesday night, attended by four of the five ACND commissioners and by members of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association.

The navigation district began seeking means of increasing its recreational revenues this year after the district was faced with a $26,000-plus deficit in its current recreation budget.

ACND Commissioner Charles Augustine earlier presented the district with a series of proposals for increasing these revenues that included — among other possibilities — an increase in the leases and fees presently charged by the district for organizations that use recreational lands and financial help from the cities of Rockport and Fulton and Aransas County.

At Tuesday night's meeting, ACND Chairman Hillis Dominguez pointed out that, although city officials have been approached on an informal basis on the question of participating in funding on Rockport Beach, "We have never approached the city officially."

Augustine observed, "I don't think we've ever approached them at one of their meetings where they could take action."

Commissioner Roy Hicks moved to officially approach city officials on the question of recreational assistance and the motion received unanimous approval after a second from Augustine. Dominguez and Augustine said they would bring the request before the city.

A decision on whether to proceed with action relating to a possible increase in navigation district taxes was deferred on a motion by Commissioner Hal McKnight, seconded by Augustine — but both commissioners expressed an opinion that, if it is to continue maintaining its recreational facilities, the district will have to increase taxes.

Commissioners are considering raising the present tax of 2 cents per $100 valuation by either 1 or 2 cents.

Commissioners pointed out that a person who presently pays $15 per year to the navigation district in taxes would, if the tax was increased by 1 cent, pay an additional $7.50 in taxes.

McKnight observed that all of the tax money collected by the district is now being spent on the recreational facilities. "To raise the kind of money we've been spending out there (for recreation)," he said, "we're going to have to increase taxes."

Fulton to fill administrative posts

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

FULTON — The town council suggested the names of several Fulton residents to fill administrative positions created by the adoption of several recent ordinances — including a subdivision ordinance and an ordinance imposing a city-wide hotel-motel tax — during a workshop meeting Tuesday evening, Dec. 6.

Among the positions which must be filled by the council in order to enforce the adopted ordinances are a foreman or engineer to locally oversee construction of the hike and bike path along Fulton Beach Road; a city building inspector; a five-member city planning commission; a three-member board of adjustments; a city judge; and a city tax assessor/collector to enforce the hotel-motel tax.

Alderwoman Pat Loflin suggested hiring ACND Commissioner Hal McKnight to oversee construction of the hike and bike path. Since the ACND is participating in the recreational project and McKnight has a background in construction, the rest of the council agreed that McKnight would be right for the job.

The possibility of entering into a contract with the City of Rockport to allow Rockport Inspector Mike Henry to also do inspection work for the Town of Fulton is being examined by Fulton attorney Gene Garcia. If Rockport does agree to such an arrangement, Garcia must determine if any possible conflict of interest exists since Henry is the son-in-law of Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline.

Those suggested to possibly serve on the city planning commission — which would include zoning if and when such an ordinance is passed — include Jack Carter, Ottie Mundine, Jess Glasgow, Jean or Jerry Jenkins, Wilma Littleton and Jimmy Garza. Council members will check with those nominated this week to see if they will serve. Five persons will be appointed at next week's regular meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 13.

A board of adjustments, which will hear appeals of decisions made by the planning commission, will be comprised of three members. Those nominated to serve on the board include Jane Goodrich, Gary LaBerge, Gene

Lease is granted to Texas Maritime Museum Association

By a split vote with one abstention, the lease of a 1.75-acre tract of navigation district land was granted to the Texas Maritime Museum Association Inc. of Rockport Tuesday night.

Aransas County Navigation District (ACND) Commissioners Hal McKnight and Roy Hicks voted for the motion — made by McKnight and seconded by Hicks — to grant the lease for 29 years at $1 a year in accordance with an agreement made three years ago when the museum association was granted an option to lease the land.

ACND Commissioner Charlie Augustine voted against the measure and Commission Chairman Hillis Dominguez abstained from the vote taken following a long discussion of the matter and a feeling expressed by several members of the audience that the land should not be leased for the museum.

Dominguez subsequently asked ACND attorney Reese Rozzell if the motion carried, since only two of the district's five commissioners voted for it (Commission Dave Maguglin was absent from the meeting) and Rozzell replied that it did.

The museum association came before the navigation district in March 1981 with a request for an option to lease the 1.75-acre tract adjacent to the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce building for a proposed maritime museum.

Bill Christian, who spearheaded the move for the museum, came before the district Tuesday night to secure the lease itself. In response to a question from Kathryn Winkelman on why the request was being made before the end of the option period, Christian said, "In the sequence of events in creating a museum, this is the step we need to take now." He elaborated that several steps that must be taken, including the securing of financing for the project, are contingent upon getting the lease.

Christian told those at Tuesday's meeting that the museum will be open to the public and that plans to charge an admission fee and operate a curio shop in the museum are strictly to raise the money needed to maintain the museum.

Purpose of the museum, he said, will be educational as well as to entertain and exhibits will focus not only on Texas' maritime history but on present maritime activities.

Christian added, "We hope to have it in operation by the Sesquicentennial year (1986). There's nothing commercial about this thing," he emphasized. "What monies we're talking about would be just to keep the doors open."

Kathryn and Ralph Winkelman said they were not opposed to the museum itself but, Mrs. Winkelman said, "As a citizen, I'm kind of spooked. This land that I dearly love is being gobbled up by one group or another."

Christian told those in the audience the museum would be a public facility and "something that would be a real boon to our community."

"He's got all the credentials," McKnight said at one point during the discussion. "I commend this group. I think it (the museum) will be a real asset to the community."

Christian added the museum will include an education room large enough to hold two classrooms of children. "Any time any school group comes, there will be no charge," he said. "The museum is never, under any circumstances, to be denied to children."

Expressing his concern over leasing the land, Augustine said, "We only have so much land. We already have leases to the woman's club, the art association — if we lease this, we're out of land except for the beach."

Natural gas deregulation debate heats up in Congress

Mark White reports

AUSTIN — As winter comes to Texas, the debate over natural gas deregulation is heating up in Congress.

Although the issue is far from settled, the House Energy and Commerce Committee gave an encouraging sign last month to those of us who favor allowing the free market to determine natural gas prices.

The committee refused to recommend a set of proposals, co-sponsored by U.S. Reps. Phil Sharp of Indiana and John Dingell of Michigan, that could interfere with Texas' 55-year history of regulating natural gas production in our state.

The Sharp-Dingell proposal would pile more federal regulation on top of an industry which has been over-burdened under the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 with a pricing schedule for 28 categories of natural gas and a complex timetable for decontrolling most gas prices.

Over the past five years, escalating natural gas costs have debunked the myth that the federal government can protect consumers' pocketbooks through price controls. Texas consumers pay a higher price for natural gas than many out-of-state customers purchasing gas produced in Texas, because federal regulations do not give interstate and intrastate pipelines equal access to lower priced gas supplies.

Congress should eliminate this dual treatment of pipelines, deregulate gas prices at the wellhead, allow all gas to flow at volumes and prices determined by the free market, and resist imposing a windfall profits tax that would reduce the incentive to develop new gas supplies.

If the free market is allowed to operate, additional sale spurred by demand for competitively priced natural gas will result in lower prices for consumers and more capital for future gas exploration and development.

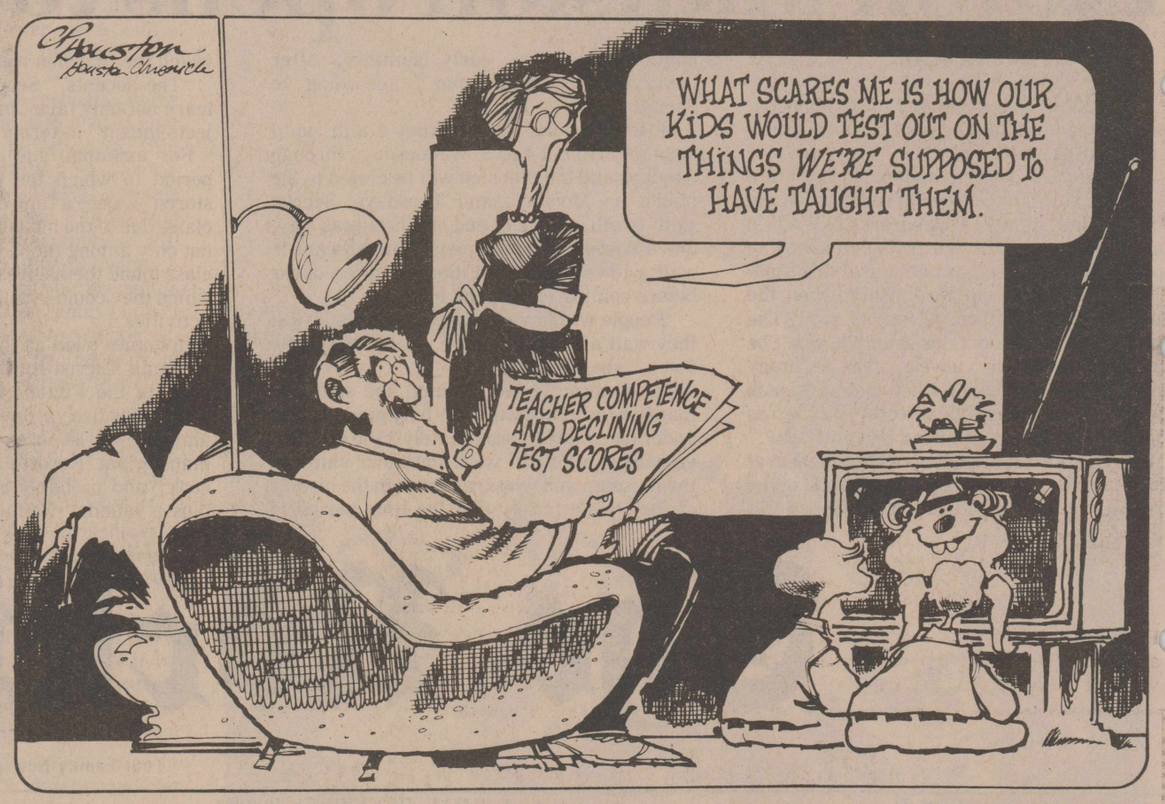

The Sharp-Dingell bill, which may come up again early next year, would roll back some gas prices to September 1982 levels and extend price controls beyond 1987 — possibly jeopardizing economic recovery in the natural gas industry.

To secure our energy future, we also cannot ignore efforts to develop coal markets and conserve energy.

Member governors of the Southern States Energy Board met last week to discuss ways to work with coal companies and railroads to reduce hauling rates and make America's coal industry more competitive in European markets.

While the Reagan administration is pushing for more energy development, it is quietly eliminating federal standards for energy efficiency in home appliances. I have urged the U.S. Department of Energy not to take any action that would undermine appliance standards in Model Energy Codes adopted by some 50 Texas cities.

Without better energy planning and conservation, we cannot hope to build up the neccessary energy bank to meet the future needs of our industrialized economy.

Presidential agreement distressing

HOW SHALL I SAY IT? Anger, disgust, fear are callous emotions and I am filled with them and there seems no escape, unless to shut myself off from the world, reject reading, listening to world news, avoid conversation with intelligent friends. Thus far I find my sentiments shared only by a former secretary of state, George Ball, at least for now.

Our distress is over the agreement between President Reagan and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir of Israel. Our two countries plan to set up a political-military stockpiling of American arms in Israel. What wilder madness can be conceived?

Saudi Arabia has already voiced its displeasure, and — count on it — the disappointment, anger and frustration of the entire Arab world. If there is surprise in any of this it is only at the callous rejection, thumbing of noses at the Arabs.

It has long been evident that when it comes to dealing with the United States, the State of Israel can get away with whatever it chooses. One thinks of a meek and abused wife who, the more abusive her husband becomes, the more affection she shows. Needless to point out that in this instance the U.S. is the wife and Israel the husband.

FROM THIS QUARTER it is has long been held that in dealing with countries of the Middle East, American relations should be strictly on a businesslike basis, however, the more friendly the better. The politics, religions and problems of countries within themselves are and should be regarded as strictly their business, not ours.

Our actions are strictly the reverse, no matter the pious claims of the state department. Our efforts to serve as peace mediators in Lebanon are stupid, ineffective, futile. That country is and has been in various stages of civil war for centuries and our intervention can and will only make matters worse.

Bluntly, we should mind our own business. The Reagan-Shamir agreement serves only to make matters worse. No matter our holier than thou pretenses to the contrary, we have tossed the gauntlet to the Arabs and invited the Russians to come in and be the good guys. Well, perhaps it's not that simple. Nothing is simple in that part of the world.

Nevertheless, countries such as Saudi Arabia have been made to come face-to-face with the acceptance of a fact they have long sought not to recognize: the United States is pro-Israel and anti-Arab no matter the difference between the two groups.

TODAY, EVEN THOUGH I shall continue to support President Reagan I must candidly acknowledge that his agreement must certainly bring joy to Moscow. The door to the Middle East has been cracked further. At the same time, Moscow must realize that the move has or soon will bring the two great powers closer to confrontation, and this time armed conflict if not a nuclear showdown.

EVEN THOUGH I considered him a bit too flamboyant for my taste I have always had considerable admiration for Ross Perot. A few days ago I read Welshman Ken Follett's "Wings of Eagles," the story of Perot's rescue of two of his employees from Iran.

Now Perot is the All-American boy and success story: newsboy to Annapolis graduate to multimillionaire, Horatio Alger and John Wayne, but with an exception of the latter instance. Wayne was the good guy, the picture of American ideals, all we stand for — on the silver screen. Perot is all of those things in real life. Granting possible prejudices on the part of Follett, the record of Perot's patriotism and loyalty to his country and to those who worked for him sometimes sounds unreal, at least in this day and age. Reading "Wings of Eagles" one easily forgets that he is reading an account of something which actually happened, instead of a popular thriller. All that's missing is sex.

Perot currently holds the appointive job as chairman of a state committee to study and make recommendations to improve secondary education. Some fine ideas have already come from the committee. But ideas from such sources have a way of fading, serving at best the interests of politicians and bureaucrats. I am not so sure of that in the instance of a group headed by a fellow like Perot. He's a man not given to spending his time foolishly, certainly not being a pawn of self-serving politicos.

Thus I suspect that if enough action doesn't come from his committee findings he'll make loud noises — raise pluperfect hell if you like. Why can't we elect to office men of the Perot stamp? I still have enough faith in the country to believe they exist in sufficient numbers. About time then to open the political arena to them. By that I mean ending the sleazy business attached to gaining office — stuff from kissing babies to name calling and telling partisan audiences what they want to hear.

I'M THINKING OF MEN who think straight, act straight, who understand and believe in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States of America. It would be a whole new ball game on the polluted banks of the Potomac. Corny, eh?

The price of liberty is vigilance

Bill Patman

The price of liberty has never been small. Vigilance in safeguarding liberty has always been costly, in dollars, in effort and in lives.

Many people have personal recollections of the events leading up to World War II. I believe we would agree that we must never lose touch with the lessons of those events.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger emphasized this point in a recent interview. he said, "We barely had time in World War II to do the things that we had to do. Obviously, we don't ever want to get in that situation again.

"We have to do quite a lot to make sure that a potential enemy doesn't get the impression, as Adolph Hitler did, that it would be perfectly safe to attack us because they had a sufficient margin to win."

The interviewer asked Weinberger whether he would compare the current buildup of Soviet military power with that of Hitler's Germany.

Weinberger replied, "It's at least as great as Hitler's. It's something that's been growing for 21 years. It's a threat that we can see because of their capabilities and the ways in which they're adding to their military strength, which are primarily offensive in character. They are acquiring bases, overflight rights and things of that kind that indicate a very, very aggressive intention."

With those words in mind, we should remember that Soviet military leaders have been compared with great chess players.

They are cautious but determined to advance their position whenever they think they can succeed. As they have built up their military power, relative to the Western Alliance, the possibilities for their advancing have increased dramatically.

There is no sign of a slowdown in their buildup. With this shift in military power has come an erosion in the key element in keeping the peace. That element is deterrence.

Wherever the Soviets perceive an advantage that would allow them to advance — including the possible use of nuclear weapons against objectives in the United States — our deterrence becomes less effective.

The challenge is clear, as our response must be. America must have the military capability and the moral resolve to persuade the Soviets against adventurism and to deter war at any level. We must meet the spectrum of threats, which ranges from special operations through conventional combat to strategic nuclear war.

Freedom and liberty cannot be taken for granted. Liberty is one of the most expensive commodities. That is true because liberty is among the rarest and most precious conditions that we can enjoy.

Senate serves notice to Japan with trade resolution

Watching Washington

By U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen

American farmers and ranchers are tired of paying the bills for our nation's foreign policy.

They wonder if this nation really stands behind them on agricultural trade issues when they are repeatedly subjected to embargoes, refusals to negotiate of unfair trade barriers for fear of offending foreign countries.

One case in point is our trade relationship with Japan, particularly our exports of beef to that nation.

Japan now sells $16 billion more of its goods each year to the U.S. than we sell to Japan.

Every month billions of dollars worth of Japanese televisions, automobiles, computers and toys crowd into our ports and stores as fast as Japanese producers can pile them into ships. We could scarcely fill one small steamer with the U.S. beef that Japan allows through its trade barriers.

Japanese officials have repeatedly dragged their feet in responding to requests to lower or elimate those trade walls, which have held U.S. beef exports to Japan at less than 10 ounces per Japanese per year. Because of these trade barriers, a pound of sirloin strip steak that sells for $4 on the West Coast of the U.S. and for $4.50 in Hong Kong, goes for $15 in Tokyo.

U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates show that if these trade barriers were removed, U.S. beef sales to Japan could triple, bringing $340 million more annual income to our ranchers.

Back in the 1970s, when we were working on a bilateral trade agreement with Japan, I kept urging U.S. negotiations to press the Japanese to accept more American beef. Finally, a great "breakthrough" was announced. The Japanese said they would accept another 10,000 metric tons.

That sounded pretty good to some people, but when I put a pencil to the figure, it came out to one Quarter Pounder a year for every Japanese. That was hardly a breakthrough.

Last year, the Senate approved my resolution calling for U.S. negotiators to seek open access to Japanese markets for U.S. beef during trade consultations with Japan, and failing that, to evaluate appropriate remedies under U.S. law and our international trade agreements.

Our bilateral trade agreement with Japan will expire in March.

The Senate recently voted overwhelmingly, 92-6, to approve a new resolution, which I co-sponsored. It calls for U.S. negotiators to take action under U.S. and international trade law should Japan refuse to dismantle its nontariff trade barriers against U.S. beef by the time our trade agreement expires.

The resolution, along with our president's visit to Japan, should send a clear signal to the Japanese that we want more reasonable negotiations. Japan must understand that maintaining its trade barriers will violate international trade agreements and will not be acceptable.

The Live Oak Peninsula philosopher

Good word about newspapers

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr ranch brags on newspapers a little this week.

Dear editor:

There has been a lot of letters-to-the-editor in newspapers and magazines lately about the refusal of the government to let reporters and photographers cover the war, if that's what it was, in Grenada.

Some say the government was right, some say it was wrong. Some were outraged; others laughed, saying it's about time the media had its horns clipped. I haven't asked, but I don't suppose the Rockport Pilot had planned on sending a reporter there anyway.

There are two sides to every issue, unless you're a crusading non-smoker, but the press should spend some time pointing out what it does, rather than what it didn't get a chance to do.

For example, if it hadn't been for newspapers reporting it, the Pentagon would have gone on — as it has for years — paying unbelievably outrageous prices for things it buys. Now, for instance, due to the publicity, the Navy pays $60 for a 2-foot fiberglass cover it had been paying $1,800. Moreover, it no longer pays $780 for a screwdriver.

On having these gross over-charges pointed out, the secretary of the Navy said, "We have not found any criminal intent, but the companies should have known the prices were unreasonable."

Well, I'll tell you, if a store tried to charge me $780 for a screwdriver, I wouldn't have found any criminal intent either, but I sure would have looked for another store.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Planning for college

Scott Burns

Q: We are trying to decide on the best vehicle in which to put money for our children's college education. They are 5 and 8. Setting up custodial accounts would have the advantage of tax protection for the accrued interest or dividends, but if either child decided not to go to college it seems absurd to be giving them $10,000 or $30,000 to play with at age 18.

It is possible to close out a custodial account prior to the date when it becomes their money? What other means of accumulating college education money should we consider? My current inclination is to set up separate custodial accounts in mutual fund shares, but I await further information and advice. Finally, my parents have set up a custodial account in my father's name for one of the children in a Real Estate Investment Trust. How would you rank this investment relative to a mutual fund? — S.V.R., Davis, Calif.

A: A gift is a gift; you can't take it back. However, you can maintain some control by taking for following steps:

— Establish a trust for the child. (This can be done inexpensively and will pay for itself in tax savings.) Make a small cash commitment to the trust as an outright gift.

— Lend the trust further money, with no interest charged. Make certain that the loan is formal, that it is a demand loan (the money is returnable on demand).

At a later date you will either be able to "forgive" the loan or recall the original principal. No matter what you do, the money that your gift and loan has earned — dividends, interest and capital gains — belongs to the child.

— Once the money is in the trust, you can direct its investment to take advantage of tax breaks, etc. I recommend that you put your emphasis on minimal-care investments in which reinvestment of income is virtually automatic. Two years ago, for instance, I helped a widow establish a trust for her son, investing in a high-yield bond fund, and electric utility with a discount dividend reinvestment plan, and a growth and income mutual fund. The original investments have nearly doubled with virtually no taxes or further attention. It's important, I believe, to keep the details as simple as possible.

But something in your letter bothers me. Why not give money to an 18-year-old who decides not to go to college? College isn't for everybody and different children in the same family can have dramatically different needs. Our goal as parents isn't to provide each child with the same education, it is to provide each child with as complete a "start" as possible.

Finally, let's consider what a college education will cost 10 years from now. Depending on whether you go to a state or independent school, the current cost per year can be more than, or less than, about $10,000 a year. Tuition and fees at Stanford this year, for instance, are $9,027 exclusive of room, board and other expenses. That's up 44 percent in just three years. The cost at my alma mater, M.I.T., is now $9,600, up a stunning 55 percent in the same three-year period.

The important thing to note is that college tuitions have been rising faster than the rate of inflation and are likely to continue to do so for the foreseeable future.

Depressing?

You bet. That's why we've got to have the equivalent of IRA plans for college educations, or tuition tax credits, or something. The numbers simply do not work for middle and upper-middle-income Americans who want to educate their children. And when the numbers get this far out of kilter, it is a political problem, not an economic one.

Q: I am a widow, 89, own my home clean and am on Social Security. In addition, I have $30,000 in a bank money market fund paying 8.4 percent, $10,000 in a government-only money market fund, $30,000 in a 6-month certificate maturing very soon and $10,000 in joint ownership of my daughter's house, which gives me interest and a depreciation write-off. How can I have security and better yields? —M.P., Roseville, Calif.

(Her daughter writes . . .)

Q: I am 61 and have pension and Social Security income of about $1,000 a month, $48,000 in a government-only money market fund, $9,000 in a bank money market fund at 8.4 percent and $675 per month rental in a beach house worth about $175,000 with a $58,000 first mortgage at 11.25 percent.

Joint ownership with mother on my home gives her half interest and all depreciation deductions on a $45,000 note. I think the capital should be giving a better return. Would second trust deeds be a good investment? —C.H., Roseville, Calif.

A: Your joint ownership deal doesn't sound quite right to me, and I wonder if it is necessary. As I see it, mother has $70,000 in assets that produce about $6,300 a year in income, much of which escapes taxation by way of the standard deduction and exemption. I see no need to pursue any tax gimmicks that might backfire.

Both of you can increase your income return by committing some, not all, of your savings for a longer time period — say two years. In addition, if you buy U.S. Treasury or other federal obligations you will escape the California state income tax, which probably costs you more money than the federal tax.

Finally, I question the value of retaining the rental property. The rent barely covers the mortgage, let alone insurance, taxes and repairs. If you sold the house you would net about $100,000, which would produce an income of $10,000 to $12,000 per year. To put that in perspective, the total income change is about equal to the combined income mother and daughter receive in interest!

You could get still more interest income by giving the buyer a second mortgage, provided there was a significant down payment. As a rule, however, I don't recommend owning second mortgages because a few individuals are psychologically or legally prepared to negotiate them and to protect their own interest when problems occur.

Pipeline and gas summaries reported

AUSTIN — A total of 2,947 drilling applications were processed by the Railroad Commission (RRC) in November, according to RRC Chairman Mack Wallace.

The November 1983 total included 2,385 applications for permits to drill new oil and gas tests, 45 applications to deepen existing holes, 160 applications to plugback existing holes and 167 applications for service (non-producing) wells. Operators also filed 341 amended drilling applications.

In October, the total included 2,158 applications for new holes, 94 applications for deepening, 259 applications for plugbacks and 58 applications for service wells. There were 319 amended applications.

Applications for new oil and gas holes in November included 256 in the San Antonio area (District 1), 94 in the Refugio area (District 2), 210 in Southeast Texas (District 3), 181 in deep South Texas (District 4), 47 in East Central Texas (District 5), 96 in East Texas (District 6), 360 in West Central Texas (District 7B), 218 in the San Angelo area (District 8A), 368 in North Texas (District 9) and 138 in the Panhandle (District 10).

The commission reported 27 oil and 75 gas discoveries in November. In October, 38 oil and 71 gas discoveries were reported.

A total of 403 dry holes were reported in November, as compared to 548 in October.

Wallace announced Texas oil and gas wells produced 486,024,031 mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas in August, down 4.83 percent from field runs a year earlier.

That brings total production for the year through August to 3,679,970,948 mcf of gas. Through August 1982, Texas had produced 4,094,887,655 mcf of gas.

Marketed gas production in August totaled 393,491,460 mcf and reflected a 6.19 percent decrease from the August 1982 volume.

Exports of Texas-produced gas in August totaled 146,566,596 mcf, and reflected a 8.46 percent decrease from the year-earlier month.

Texas gas production in August came from 235,810 oil and gas wells.

Larson has built a lot of bridges — 1,000, in fact

By PAT BLAIR
Managing editor

Norman Larson figures he's built bridges on "practically every river in Texas" during a career that spanned more than 30 years in the construction business.

During that time, he figures, he built about 1,000 bridges across the state — a fairly impressive figure for a man who left school in the eighth grade and began his work life as a newspaper carrier earning $3 a week . . .

Norman was born in Wisconsin in 1908 but his family moved to San Antonio when he was 10 years old. "I went to school there," he said during an interview this week at his residence in Rockport Country Club Estates.

At 13, he got a job with the San Antonio Evening News as a paperboy. School didn't interest him much, he says, so he dropped out when he was in the eighth grade and at 17, he joined the McKenzie Construction Co. as a carpenter's helper.

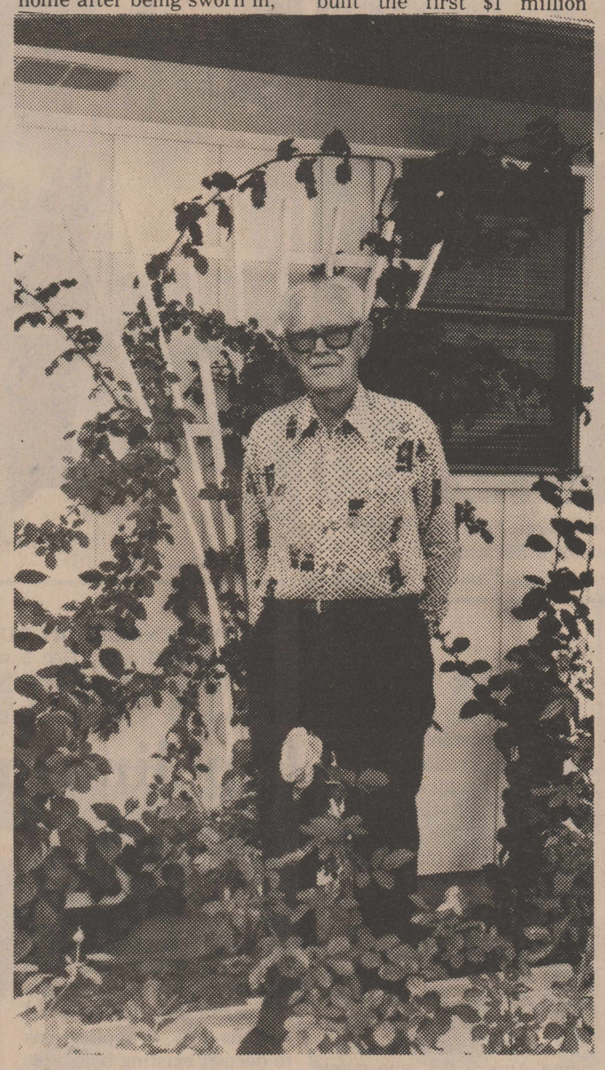

That was when he fell in love with the construction business — and resolved that someday he would go into the business for himself.

In 1936, Norman got a job as superintendent with a construction company and in 1940, he was a subcontractor. During this time he was saving the money for a company of his own and in 1944, he had saved $15,000 — enough to start his Norman L. Larson Co. and begin building bridges for the State Highway Department.

By this time, he says, he'd also started his family. He and his wife, Bea, were married in 1928 and their family now numbers their daughter, son-in-law, two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Over the next 27 years, Norman operated under a variety of names with a variety of partners. When he found a good man to work with, he said by way of explanation, "I would make him my partner."

Through those years, Norman's coumpany built bridges in Austin, Mathis — "I helped build the first dam at Lake Mathis in 1927," he said. In 1942, he helped build Ft. Hood, then joined the Seabees — but he never got to serve. "I was coming home after being sworn in," he said, "and I had a terrible bad wreck so I was discharged and never wore the uniform."

In 1967, along with L. H. Lacy of Dallas, Norman built the first $1 million interstate highway in Texas, in Navarro County.

He built all the structures in Austin County on Interstate 10, from Columbus to the Brazos River, he added, as well as others at Tilden, near Fredericksburg . . .

Along the way, Norman served for three years on the board of directors of the Association of General Contractors (AGC) of Texas, was on the board of directors of the Good Roads Association for 15 years and on the board of directors for Texas safety "for several years."

Throughout his years as a contractor, safety was uppermost among Norman's goals. "Every time I got a job, if it was big enough, I gave a barbecue and I preached safety to my men."

In 1970, Norman got the warning that he needed to slow down: he suffered a heart attack. At the time, he said, "I had 17 highway jobs going all over Texas. I realized I was burning my candle at both ends. And that was when I decided to retire."

He turned the business, then (and still) Larson and Pugh of Austin, over to his daughter and grandchildren and, because he didn't want to be one of those "retired" fathers who are still running the business behind the scenes, he and Bea moved — to Rockport.

He already had ties with this area. He and Bea met while he was building the Mathis dam back in '28 and at one time, in the '60s, Norman's brother owned the property "where the Big Tree is in Lamar.

"My wife," he added, "is crazy about Rockport."

From 1971 until February 1980, the Larsons lived on Key Allegro, but in '80, they decided to move back to Austin to be closer to their family.

Two years later, they were back in Rockport "because we like it so well. It's a good place to live."

About four months ago, Norman and Bea "pioneered" their home in Rockport Country Club Estates, moving into the subdivision even before utilities were available. "I produced my own electricity with a generator," he says.

Theirs was the first home in the country club development in north Rockport and Norman designed it himself, with a little help from an architect friend, laying it out on the tract by means of string to show where rooms, doors, windows — even furniture — would go.

He was also his own contractor on the project and, with the help of three friends, did the carpentry work although some of the other work was subcontracted.

Beside his house, Norman built a birdhouse for martins — and he gardens, tending tomatoes and other vegetables — including cauliflower and eggplants that he planted among his rose bushes . . .

He confesses he's going to miss the gardens and birdhouse when he and Bea move into Nautical Towers — which they're planning to do when the high rise is constructed. But he feels it's the right thing to do: "I'm 75 and not getting any younger." In the vacant lot next to his house, there's a design laid out with string — the floorplan for the condominium Norman and Bea plan to have . . .

Among Norman's momentos are the pencil set given him "personally" by then-President Lyndon B. Johnson when he retired from the AGC and the 1956 edition of "Who's Who in the Southwest," in which he is listed. Recently, the AGC unanimously elected him a life member of the association.

He is equally proud of another recent invitation, from the First United Methodist Church asking him to serve on its administrative council.

Norman's church membership is important to him. "I'm a great believer in Bible classes," he says. He served on the board of stewards at the Methodist church in Austin for more than 20 years and is on the board of Rockport's First United Methodist.

Norman is wary of the title, "self-made man," which has been applied to him. "There's not anybody that's self-made," he said. "I've had lots of help.

"And," he adds, "if I've been successful, I'd say a whole lot of it's due to my church life. I don't think anybody can hardly be too successful without a Christian life."

White appoints three to board of pardons

Governor Mark White today announced the appointment of Antonio Gil Morales of Fort Worth, Albert Neal Pfeiffer of Elgin and Winona Wilson Miles of Austin to the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Morales, 44, is owner of Amex Distributors in Fort Worth. Born Aug. 9, 1939, he is a graduate of the University of Texas at Arlington. He is a member of the GI Forum. Morales will serve a term extending to Jan. 31, 1987.

Pfeiffer, 38, is currently serving as Bastrop County District Attorney. Born Nov. 6, 1945, he received his bachelor's and law degrees from the University of Texas at Austin. He is a member of the board of directors of the Texas District and County Attorneys' Association and a member of the advisory committee of the State Prosecutor's Council. Pfeiffer will serve a term extending to Jan. 31, 1989.

Miles, 39, is deputy director of the Travis County Adult Probation Departemnt. Born June 17, 1944, she received her bachelor's degree from Huston-Tillotson College and her master's degree from Atlanta University in Georgia. She is a member of the board of directors of the United Way, the Alcohol Council of Texas and the Capital Area Planning Council. Mrs. Miles will serve a term extending to Jan. 31, 1985.

Chamber of Commerce directors at their Tuesday night meeting heard committee reports, agreed to sponsor an annual fishing tournament, discussed the annual banquet and listened to a talk by A.A. Autry, Central Power and Light industrial engineer from Corpus Christi.

Many Cub Scouts of Pack No. 49 were given awards at their November pack meeting. The Weblo Den was in charge of the opening ceremony while Mrs. Yates' Den No. 4 presented a skit which was a demonstration of the Telstar project with a miniature model and appropriate background.

Rockport LULACs elected officers and appointed committees for the coming year. Simon Garcia was chosen president; Julio Flores, vice president; Joe Garcia, secretary; Alvino Garcia, treasurer; Pablo Garza, chaplain; Tony Rodriguez, guard; and Genaro Valdez, guide.

An informal meeting between Southwestern Bell Telephone Company representatives and telephone subscribers was held in the Aransas County High School Auditorium. At the meeting there was a question and answer panel which endeavored to bring about better understanding between the company and subscribers.

The Yard of the Month awars was presented to Mr. and Mrs. C.C. Welhausen of Fulton. The focal point of the four-lot expanse was 28 massive live oak trees, some more than 100 years old. The award was given by the Rockport Home and Garden Club.

Mother Goose Land Nursery and Kindergarten center took 24 boys and girls on a field trip to area stores to see the different types of fruits and vegetables that the kids had learned about.

The women of Mobile Inn Trailer Park decided to call their club the Creative Arts Club. There were 22 ladies present at this decision-making affair.

Christmas decorations were installed in the business districts of Rockport and Fulton and in the Ski Basin area, but they were not lighted because of the energy crisis.

Lady Pirates take second

The Rockport-Fulton Lady Pirates hosted their own varsity tournament at home last weekend and took second place in the event, losing their last game of the tourney to Ingleside, 30-47.

Coming off the tournament, the girls had a disappointing evening in Flour Bluff Tuesday, losing to the Lady Hornets. The Pirate Junior Varsity also took a loss, 40-22, and the freshmen fell behind 48-17.

The Lady Pirates will participate in the Aransas Pass varsity tourney this weekend and all three girls' teams will face Beeville Tuesday.

In last weekend's tourney, the Ladies' first game, against Tivoli, was their closest contest of the event. Tivoli trailed the Lady Pirates throughout the game, with four points to the Pirates' nine at the end of the first quarter; 14-19 at the half; 26-22 at the end of the third and 28-31 behind R-F at game's end.

Senior Mona Cowen led the scoring through the tourney. In the Tivoli game, Cowen had 10 points. Regina Gatlin turned in seven and Lee Anna Cassel had six.

On Friday, the Ladies met Premont and defeated them 42-20. Ahead all the way, R-F led Premont 12-1 at the end of the first, 22-12 at the half; held them scoreless in the third and ended the quarter 34-12; then finalized the score 42-20 at the end of the game.

Cowen had 14 points for the game, Missy Mayes was a close second with 13 and Cassel had five.

Off to a bad start, the Lady Pirates trailed Ingleside 10-13 at the first quarter; 16-22 at the half; 24-34 at the end of the third; then lost the game 30-47.

Cowen had 16 points for the night and Mayes had eight.

MORE WEIGHT EQUIPMENT for the Rockport-Fulton High School athletes will be the result of Allied Live Oak Bank's donation to the school this week. Above, Live Oak's Tim Gilles presents Head Football Coach Aubrey Schulz with a check for $2,877, to be used for the purchase of equipment for the school weight room. "We're very supportive of the school district," said Gilles Wednesday."We sincerely hope that this donation will enhance the sports program."

Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary elects new officers

A slate of officers for 1984 were presented to members of the Lamar Fire Depertment Auxiliary at the Monday, Dec. 5, meeting of the group. President Polly Moss conducted the meeting, which 17 members attended.

Gladys Krenek, chairperson of the club's nominating committee, presented the slate of officers which were then elected by acclamation. Those elected included Jessie James, president; Callie Myers, vice president; Jennie Heldenfels, secretary; Helen Andrew, treasurer; Gladys Poole, historian; Pat Heldenfels, parliamentarian; and Jan McGlasson, sergeant at arms.

Plans for the annual Christmas party for firemen and their spouses were announced by Vardell Guertin. The party will be held at the St. Charles Bay Restaurant on Dec. 12.

Chairperson Jan McGlasson thanked members for the work involved in the Market Days sale last month. Proceeds from the sale are to be turned over to the fire department.

Bon appetit!

By ANN THOMAS

Cookies and Christmas just seem to go together, don't they? While many of us enjoy baking them, we don't want to take a lot of time to decorate them. This week I have gathered some recipes which produce tasty results with a minimum of effort:

EASY LIVING COOKIES
1 stick oleo
2 cups sugar
½ cup cocoa
½ cup milk

Boil the ingredients for 1 minute. Stir in ½ cup crunchy peanut butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 3 cups 1-minute oatmeal. Mix and drop onto wax paper. Allow to "set."

CRANBERRY COOKIES
½ cup soft oleo
1 cup sugar
¾ cup packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅓ cup milk
1 egg

3 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon baking soda
2½ cups fresh cranberries, coarsely chopped
1 cup mixed candied fruit, coarsely chopped
1 tablespoon grated orange rind

Combine oleo, sugar and vanilla and cream until light. Add milk and egg and beat well. Combine dry ingredients and gradually add to the creamed mixture and mix well. Stir in remaining ingredients. Drop the dough by tablespoons onto greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375 degrees F. for 15-18 minutes. Makes 5 dozen.

ORANGE-COCONUT BALLS
12 ounces vanilla wafers
1 pound powdered sugar
½ cup soft oleo
6 ounces frozen orange juice, thawed and undiluted
1 cup finely chopped nuts
7 ounces flaked coconut

Crush wafers to fine crumbs. Add next 4 ingredients. Mix well and form into balls and roll each in coconut. Freeze until firm but not solid. Makes 6 dozen.

CHOCOLATE NO-BAKE COOKIES
2 cups sugar
1 stick oleo
½ cup canned milk
4 tablespoons cocoa

Boil the ingredients listed above. Add and beat in the following:
½ cup peanut butter
2½ cups quick oats
1 teaspoon vanilla

Drop by teaspoon onto wax paper. Makes 6 dozen.

CHINESE CHEWS
¾ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup nuts
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup dates, chopped
2 eggs, well beaten

Mix ingredients. Place in greased 8-inch by 10-inch pan. Bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees F. Cut and roll in powdered sugar while hot.

SAND TARTS
1 pound oleo, melted
1 cup sugar
6 cups flour
2 tablespoons vanilla
2 cups chopped pecans

Mix all ingredients and shape into cresents. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet for 30 minutes at 275 degrees F. While still warm, roll in powdered sugar. This makes a very large batch of cookies!

CHEWY PECAN SQUARES
4 eggs
1 pound brown sugar
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups chopped nuts

In heavy saucepan and over low heat, cook until thickened the slightly beaten eggs and sugar, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, sift flour and measure it, sift it with baking powder and salt. Add to the egg mixture along with vanilla and pecans. Pour into well-buttered 8-inch by 10-inch pan. Bake in pre-heated oven at 350 degrees F. for 25 minutes. Cut in squares while hot.

ROCKY ROAD BARS
½ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup flour
½ cup chopped pecans
2 tablespoons cocoa
¼ teaspoon baking powder
2 cups mini-marshmallows
1 package semisweet chips
1 cup peanut butter
1½ cup rice cereal

Cream butter and sugar; beat in eggs and vanilla. Stir together flour, chopped nuts, cocoa, baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir into egg mixture. Spread in bottom of greased 13-inch by 9-inch by 2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 oven for 15 minutes. Sprinkle marshmallows evenly on top. Bake 3 more minutes. Cool.

In small pan combine chocolate pieces and peanut butter, stir while cooking over low heat until melted. Stir in cereal, Spread mixture on top of cooled bars. Chill and cut into bars. Makes 3-4 dozen.

That concludes our column for this week. Bon appetit!

'Tis the season for shrimp

Shrimp. You know it tastes good, but is it good for you?

Good news is always welcome, and the nutritional content of shrimp is good news, indeed. A recent study conducted at Cornell University in New York has lifted the high cholesterol restriction from white shrimp and rock shrimp. According to extension specialists, shrimp contains only about 90 milligrams of cholesterol per 3½-ounce serving. By comparison, one medium egg yolk contains about 240 milligrams of cholesterol.

Shrimp contains only about 90 calories per 3½-ounce serving. That's low, especially when compared to other protein sources. Protein is the most important component of shrimp. That same 3½-ounce serving contains 19.3 percent protein. Moreover, shrimp contains less than 1 percent fat and 2 percent carbohydrates, according to Annette Reddell Hegen, seafood consumer education specialist with the Texas A&M University Marine Advisory Service.

America is currently very health and diet conscious. This awareness is reflected in the rising consumption of seafood nationally. This increase is one-third greater than 20 years ago.

With Christmas upon us and special foods on the menu, treat your guests and family to delicious Rockport Shrimp Dip. It is easily prepared and has just the right amount of "bite" to make you want more.

ROCKPORT SHRIMP DIP
1½ pounds cooked, peeled, deveined shrimp, fresh or frozen
1 container (16 ounces) whipped cream cheese
1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspons liquid hot pepper sauce
2 tablespoons chopped green onion tops

Thaw shrimp if frozen. Coarsely chop shrimp. In small bowl, combine all ingredients. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Serve with crackers. Makes 3 cups dip.

Rockport Shrimp Dip

Here are three more recipes for low-calorie holiday buffet treats

Editor's note: Last week we began several low-calorie Weight Watchers recipes for a holiday buffet. This week's article gives the remainder of those recipes.

CREAMY ANCHOVY DIP WITH VEGETABLE DIPPERS
Makes 4 servings.

Dip.
½ small garlic clove
1 teaspoon mashed drained canned anchovies
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil or ½ teaspoon dried
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon mayonnaise
½ cup plain unflavored yogurt

Vegetables:
1 cup each blanched broccoli and cauliflower florets
1 cup drained canned artichoke hearts
24 cherry tomatoes

Garnish:
Basil leaves or parsley sprigs

To Prepare Dip: In small unbreakable bowl mash garlic; add anchovies and continue mashing to form a paste. Add basil, mixing well to combine thoroughly; beat in mayonnaise. Add yogurt and stir to combine; cover and refrigerate until chilled.

To Serve: On large serving platter arrange vegetables in a decorative pattern; serve with chilled dip. Garnish dip with basil or parsley.

SESAME FINGERS
Makes 4 servings, 4 sticks each.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Spray cookie sheet with nonstick cooking spray and set aside.

Using 4 ready-to-bake refrigerated buttermilk flaky biscuits (1 ounch each), cut each biscuit in half. Roll each half between palms of hands into a 6-inch-long strip; cut each strip in half, making a total of 16 3-inch strips. Place strips on sprayed cookie sheet. Sprinkle 1 teaspoon sesame seeds evenly over sticks, pressing seeds down so that they adhere to dough. Bake until golden brown, 5 to 8 minutes.

PEARS FRAMBOISE (PEARS IN RASPBERRY SAUCE)
Makes 4 servings.
2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons reduced-calorie red raspberry spread (16 calories per 2 teaspoons
1½ teaspoons raspberry syrup
⅓ cup white grape juice
1 teaspoon cornstarch
2 small pears, poached, cut into halves and cored (stems left on)
6 ounces vanilla dietary frozen dessert
1 cup fresh red or black raspberries (or frozen, no sugar added)

In small saucepan combine raspberry spread and syrup and heat. Combine juice and cornstarch, stirring to dissolve cornstarch; add to raspberry mixture and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and let simmer, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened, about 2 minutes. Let cool slightly, then cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate until chilled.

Into each of 4 dessert glasses place a pear half and top with 1½ ounces frozen dessert; top each portion with ¼ of the chilled sauce (about 2 tablespoons) and ¼ cup berries.

Wine enhances classic French entree

The French have long been known for their innovative and flavorful cuisine. Chefs from around the world continue to debate why French cooking is unique, yet, almost all agree that the French have mastered the art of cooking with wine. Used to enhance the flavor of poultry, beef, seafood, sauces, soups and stews, wine seems to add a special "Je ne sais quoi" to many dishes.

Beef Bourguignon is a classic French meal enhanced by red Burgundy. This hearty winter stew is warm, flavorful, and filling — perfect for feeding large groups of hungry people when the temperature chills. The beef stew meat is first cooked in onion and garlic. It is then simmered in a savory sauce made with tomato paste, wine, bacon, carrots and mushrooms.

This mouth-watering dish makes about 9 cups, which will easily serve 4 people as a main entree. Serve Beef Bourguignon with French rolls and a spinach salad.

BEEF BOURGUIGNON
¼ cup pound coarsely chopped bacon
¼ cup oil
⅓ cup flour
1½ teaspoons salt
2 pounds (1-inch cubes) beef stew meat
2½ cups coarsely chopped onion
1 crushed large garlic clove
⅔ cup (6-ounces can) Contadina tomato paste
2 cups Burgundy wine
1 cup water
1 cup sliced carrots
4 cups (¾ pound) cleaned, quartered mushrooms
¼ teaspoon pepper

Place bacon in Dutch oven. Fry until partially cooked. Remove bacon leaving drippings in pot; add oil. Combine flour and ½ teaspoon salt; coat meat with flour mixture. Brown stew meat on all sides. Add onions and garlic; cook until onion is transparent. Stir in tomato paste, wine, water, carrots, 3 cups mushrooms, remaining 1 teaspoon salt, pepper and bacon. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat; boil gently, covered 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender. Add remaining 1 cup mushrooms; cook additional 15 minutes.

Inventive cooks are discovering how good table grapes are when used as an ingredient in main dishes.

Oriental Chicken and Grapes combines traditional Oriental flavors of soy sauce, mustard and sesame seeds with honey. The basting sauce richly browns economical chicken pieces during baking; the flavors blend smoothly and complement the mild meat. Grapes are added at the last minute just to heat through.

Serve Oriental Chicken and Grapes with steamed rice and a tossed green salad for a meal that requires little advance planning and no elaborate shopping.

ORIENTAL ORIENTAL CHICKEN AND GRAPES
3 pounds fryer chicken pieces
3 tablespoons each prepared mustard and soy sauce
2 tablespoons honey
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1½ tablespoons sesame
1½ tablespoons sesame seeds
2 cups seedless grapes

Arange chicken, skin-side down, in large shallow baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees F. 20 minutes; drain excess fat.

Combine mustard, soy sauce, honey and garlic powder; brush chicken with mustard mixture. Turn chicken skin-side up and brush with remaining mustard mixture. Sprinkle sesame seeds.

Bake 20 to 25 minutes longer or until browned; baste once during baking.

Add grapes to chicken; return to oven 5 minutes or until grapes are heated. Serve with pan juices. Makes 6 servings. Recipe can be halved.

fer the option for the strong of wind and limb to make it upstairs to the third floor and the 'growlery' " — a small tower room with a view of the Fulton Mansion's front lawn and Aransas Bay.

Office space for museum personnel is on the mansion's third floor, along with a room that can eventually be used for slide or film presentations and small exhibits.

Eventually, Secrist said, TP&WD officials hope to have programs on the Fultons and their time period, but the initial emphasis will be strictly on the tours of Fulton Mansion.

Visitors to the mansion will be prevented from going all the way into the rooms but will be allowed to sufficiently far to see the exhibits which include some photographs of Fulton family members and several of the family's original furniture.

Among the pieces of original furniture, Secrist added, are a bookcase in the library, donated by Caesar Fulton, and a small library table donated by Gladys Gibson.

Secrist added that most of the furnishings in the mansion are not Fulton family originals but are "period furniture close to what the Fultons originally had."

A painstaking eye for detail and a desire to come as close to the original as possible in restoring the mansion have marked the restoration process since the property was acquired by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department in 1976.

Restoration began in 1978, under contractor Bill Shaw of Corpus Christi, and a room on the second floor — left in its pre-restoration condition to give visitors some idea of the project's scope — includes a restoration exhibit.

"I think the workmen who restored Fulton Mansion took a tremendous amount of pride in their work," says Secrist, adding, "It proves that the American craftsmanship that was alive in the 1880s is still available today."

Architect for the project, she added, was Jim Rome of Turner, Rome & Boultinghouse of Corpus Christi.

Secrist emphasized Fulton Mansion is both a State and National Register landmark and as such is protected by both state and federal laws. She said there are some restrictions on visitors to the mansion, including no smoking — "which is unsafe both firewise and because it can damage furnishings."

Fulton Mansion was built by George F. Fulton, completed in 1877 at a cost of about $100,000. The structure boasted many innovations ahead of its time, including central heat, indoor plumbing, hot and cold running water and a gas-producing plant.

Cost to restore the structure is more than $1.3 million and is the most expensive restoration project undertaken by the TP&WD to date.

Secrist asked those who come to tour the mansion to "be patient with us. It won't be perfect, and we'll be improving and changing things as we go along.

"I just hope people will enjoy the house," she added.

ACND

Augustine later noted, "Even if we went with all the recommendations I gave the board (for increasing revenues), I think we'd still have to go out for a tax increase. Eventually we will have to go out for a tax increase. Recreation is not a profit-making deal — it's a service."

J. C. Harlan, a member of ACTA and in the audience at Tuesday's meeting, asked the commissioners "on behalf of several concerned citizens" not to make a decision on the matter at the Tuesday session.

"We're working on some conservation measures we think could help the navigation district," Harlan said, asking for time to finish that work and present recommendations to the district.

McKnight expressed agreement to the request but said, "We need to set a deadline on this." He suggested that the matter be deferred until the district's first meeting in January, subsequently putting this into a motion.

In other action during Tuesday's meeting, the navigation district commissioners gave approval to the Fulton Volunteer Fire Department to hold the department's Oysterfest V on navigation district property in Fulton on March 2-4.

Also approved was payment of $1,235 as the district's share of legal fees incurred in the Texas Ports Association's battle against an injunction to block the dredging of Lydia Ann Channel by the Army Corps of Engineers earlier this year.

A request by J. E. Lawhon for an extension of his lease and permission to make additional improvements at his Cove Harbor Bait Stand was tabled until Dec. 20, pending receipt by the commission of more detailed plans.

A request for the transfer of Bobby Shaw's bait stand lease to Jimmy Woods was approved.

Fulton

Sprinkle and Ken Faulkner. Appointments will be made at next week's meeting.

Garcia will also check into the possibility of Fulton hiring Precinct 4-4A Justice of the Peace Eileen Jeffers as municipal judge. Several council members voiced concern that a problem may again exist since Jeffers is Casterline's daughter.

City Secretary Lucille Hinson will take on the additional duties of city tax assessor/collector to enforce collection of a city-wide hotel-motel tax passed during a regular meeting which preceded the workshop Tuesday night.

The hotel-motel tax ordinance authorizes collection of an occupancy tax of 3 percent which goes to the state, plus an additional 3 percent city tax which will be used for the promotion of tourism in Fulton. The ordinance was approved on its third reading Tuesday night by a unanimous vote of the council. The tax will be collected by all city hotels, motels and trailer parks which rent rooms or trailers by the night or by the week.

A letter from the State Board of Insurance was read, announcing that Fulton is eligible for "protected status" with a key rate less than 81 cents for fire insurance. However, the letter continued, the protected status is contingent upon Fulton's 1980 FMC pumper passing the required tests, which it failed during an inspection.

The letter also mentioned other areas which could reduce the town's key rate for fire insurance including less than 75 percent of the roofs in Fulton being made of combustible material (wood shingles); regular monthly inspections and reports to the state by Fulton's fire marshall, adoption and enforcement of an acceptable building code and passage of an arson reward ordinance.

Fulton's attempt to pass an arson reward ordinance is currently being hampered by the requirement that notice of the $250 reward be posted inside six public buildings, a number higher than Fulton has.

Salvation Army needs volunteers

The Aransas County unit of the Salvation Army will put out its Christmas kettles starting this weekend, according to Unit Field Representative Jack Forrest.

Forrest added the Salvation Army needs volunteers to help man the kettles. Volunteers would be asked to work two hours on Fridays and Saturdays and possibly during the week preceding Christmas if enough volunteers can be found, he said.

Anyone wanting to donate some time for the annual Christmas effort is asked to call Forrest at 729-0021 or Grover Traylor at 729-2360.

Maritime

Referring to minutes of an ACND meeting held Dec. 4, 1979, Augustine quoted then-Commissioner Ken Faulkner as saying a public hearing must be called before a lease could be granted. "It was the understanding of everyone that a public hearing must be called before the lease could be granted," Augustine said.

"It is not in the agreement," Christian said, to which Augustine replied, "It's in the minutes of the meeting."

McKnight then asked Christian, "Would you object to a public hearing?"

"Gentlemen," Christian said, "I came here tonight to get approval on the lease." He repeated there was nothing in the agreement that called for a public hearing on the matter.

Rozzell said the statement made by Faulkner in the minutes of the 1979 meeting were not in the form of a resolution or motion "that would be binding on the commission" and a motion made by Faulkner on March 3 to grant an option to lease the land did not include any recommendation on a public hearing.

Under terms of the agreement, the museum association is to pay all expenses incurred in preparation of the lease, will provide a survey of the property and to maintain the property "commencing immediately."

If for any reason the association is unable to begin construction of the museum within the next two years, the lease will be voided.

B-E Glass Co. has not left — just moved

You've probably seen the familiar red truck ambling through town, although you may not have seen it parked in its usual spot along Austin Street lately. Don't fret, B-E Glass Company is still around, it's just moved to a diferent location.

Owner Ed Opstad credits his customers with enabling him to move his shop from 214 South Austin Street to its new location at 408 South Verne Street. The new shop has allowed him to consolidate his material, equipment and home on to one large location.

B-E Glass Company repairs broken windows in homes, trailers, mobile homes and boats. "We offer good quality, prompt service at reasonable rates," says Ed. In addition, the firm has a large stock of glass, plexiglass, windows, mirrors, doors—anything which concerns glass-related work, whether Ed does the work or the customer does it himself. Ed also does work involving shower doors and tub enclosures, the building and repair of screens, repair and adjustment of patio doors. He also makes custom three-dimensional mirror designs.

B-E Glass Company is located at 408 South Verne Street. The phone is answered 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The phone number is 729-9181.

A bridal shower was held Thursday night, Dec. 8, for Tracy Lehman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Shelton, in the home of Mrs. Richard Giller. Hostesses were the Ladies of Joy Ministeries. Twenty-five guests were served punch and cake from a red and white decorated table. Tracy is the bride-elect of Bubba Jennings, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Jennings of Fulton. The wedding will be performed at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 10, in the Fulton Community Church.

Brother B.O. Anthony is at home now recovering from a fall after a stay in Spohn Hospital.

At 3 p.m. Saturday afternoon at the Unified Pentacostal Local Church of Rockport, Rev. A.C. Vega and his wife Antonia will be honored at a service marking their 50th wedding anniversary. This will be followed by a dinner and reception at the VFW Hall. The decorations will be gold and ivory. Four of their children from Rockport, son Riley Vega from Beeville, daughter Sophie Huckaby from Humble, daughter Mary Vega from Deer Park and daughter Rachel Montemayor from Houston will all serve as host and hostesses.

Carrie Sue Cuff was honored at a bridal shower Dec. 1, at the First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall. Carrie is the bride-elect of Tim Eaton, who is stationed at the Naval Base in Corpus Christi. She is the daughter of Darnell Huffman of Rockport and Cliff Cuff of Rockport. Twenty guests were served petit fours and punch from a white lace-covered serving table centered with an arrangement of blue silk flowers, a gift to the bride from hostesses Jane Adams, Brenda Arthur and Nell Reed.

Mrs. Benet Stewart was honored at a baby shower Dec. 1 in the home of Mrs. George Taggart. Other hostesses for the party were Bobbie Mills, Mollie Laqua, Debbie Hamm, Jane Groseclose, Nancy Adams, Katherine Theodore, Laura Molleur and Pam Ballentine. Twenty-three guests were served sherbert punch and cake from a glass table centered with an arrangement of matching wrapped baby gifts.

A tree trimming ceremony was held at First National Bank Thursday. The decorations were made by the staff and furnished by the bank. Punch and cookies were served. Following on Dec. 22 and 23, a reception will be held for the public.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Williams are home after spending a week in Veterans' Hospital in Kerrville for checkups and everything is fine.

Along with rider education, proper motorcycle licensing is one of the best countermeasures for reducing motorcycle accidents. A motorcycle licensing examiner is the last checkpoint before a new rider gets out on the highway. With effective licensing tests, the licensing examiner can spot a rider who does not possess the skills necessary to ride safely.

In the past, in many states, it was possible to obtain a motorcycle license by weaving through a few traffic cones and coming to a stop without losing control of the motorcycle. Other states had no licensing test at all.

After three years of research, the Motorcycle Safety Foundation developed a standardized motorcycle operator testing procedure. Research shows the test works. In comparison with an existing state test, the Motorcycle Operator Skill Test (MOST) showed a 15 percent reduction in accidents. When coupled with a rider training program, accidents were reduced 21 percent.

In the past, many states believed that no special license was necessary to operate a motorcycle. This is simply not true. Riding a motorcycle requires even more skill, coordination and alertness than driving a car. Thus, a special license is necessary to ensure that all riders possess needed skills for safety.

Standardized motorcycle licensing tests and procedures are the best way to ensure a qualified motorcyclist is riding the streets. The tests should include a written knowledge test which covers the rider's familiarity with the special rules and conditions necessary for safe cycling, as well as a skill test of the rider's actual ability on the motorcycle.

YOU AND YOUR HEALTH

by Peter J. Esse, M.D.

Dear Dr. Esse: My doctor, who is still in his 30's, dotes on being called "old-fashioned." He claims it's an honor to be classified as being too conservative and cautious. "I'd rather not take chances with my patients. Calling me names doesn't bother me." My family became upset when he told me to stop taking aspirin when I became pregnant. He also took away an occasional glass of wine at dinner. Other obstetricians allow their patients aspirin and liquor. Why should mine be so conservative? Mrs. P.

Dear Mrs. P.: I know several obstetricians who would agree with your family. They would say that aspirin is absolutely harmless for pregnant women. As for alcohol, they don't believe that a little wine will be harmful. But your doctor doesn't believe that any medicine is "absolutely harmless." Aspirin increases bleeding tendencies in many patients. Why take that chance, he thinks.

As for liquor, small amounts may be harmless. But some patients disregard "small" and take too much liquor. In such cases, studies have shown that there may be complications in the infant. Here is a patient who calls her doctor an old "fuddy-duddy" because he has advised her to quit smoking. Yet, we know that smoking during pregnancy may produce prematurity and weight changes. Some doctors simply don't want to take chances with their patients. They don't even allow a cup of coffee daily. This may be going too far. Conservatism can be overdone. Yet, Mrs. P., be thankful that your doctor is cautious. Don't blame him for "caring" too much. All he's interested in is your having a healthy baby.

Parson Jones

It's time for the Angels' song again ... "Peace on earth, good will to men." At Christmas time, we focus our attention to the Holy Land, and listen to "Silent Night, Holy Night" hovering over the merchandise in department stores. With such joyful throughts dancing through the disco spot of my mind, I had a vision.

It was Christmas Eve in the Holy Land. U.S. Marines were out in the fields, keeping watch over the fields by night. Suddenly, there appeared in the sky a multitude of Angels, tuning their harps to render the Hallelujah Chorus in honor of the newborn King. Just as the conductor raised his baton to signal the beginning, a Russian jet fighter flew by and blasted them from the sky with a flurry of rockets. "Mission accomplished," reported the pilot. "We have destroyed a multitude of U.S. spy planes."

At the moment of this heavenly activity, another drama was unfolding in the sky. A group of wise men were flying from the East to see the new King. As these learned scholars pondered over their briefing papers, one of the passengers sprang into the aisle with a bomb tied about his neck. "Take me to Cuba." he yelled. "Or I will blow this plane to smithereens." "Looks like we're going to spend Christmas with old cigar-mouth," lamented one of the wise men.

Meanwhile, back at the barn, Christmas was moving along despite these setbacks.

Little did they know that at this very moment a truck loaded with explosives was headed straight for the stable on a suicide mission. Seconds later, there was a crash, flames of fire ... and silence.

"Oh, no!" I shouted as I leaped form my chair, "It can't be!" Then I realized it was only a vision. Thank God! Merry Christmas, everybody!

THE REAL ESTATE CONSUMER

FORCES AFFECT UNDEVELOPED LAND VALUES

The value of undeveloped land and its resale potential are affected by four main forces: physical, economic, governmental and sociological.

Physical forces include the size and shape of the parcel, topography, vegetation and soil conditions. Economic forces come from national, regional, state and local levels. A favorable employment trend and growing incomes are desirable.

Governmental forces include utilities, services, taxes, building codes and environmental regulations. Investors may want to know what utilities and services will be available to the property in the future. Sociological forces include demographics, attitudes and tastes. Land's investment value depends on whether or not people want to use it.

If you are an investor, you will want to consider each of these factors carefully before purchasing undeveloped land.

CONTRACT FOR DEED COMMON IN SELLER FINANCING

Seller financing means the seller actually becomes a lender. The seller will receive a cash down payment and finance the remainder of the sales price. The seller receives monthly payments which include interest and principal.

Often a contract for deed is used in seller financing. With a contract for deed, the buyer does not become the true owner of the property until some future date, such as when the obligation is paid in full. The contract for deed enables the seller to evict the buyer if he or she defaults. Complicated foreclosure procedures are not necessary with a contract for deed.

Using seller financing, a buyer may be able to buy a home with a small down payment and with a loan which is below current market interest rates. However, if the contract for deed is not properly recorded, a dishonest seller could resell the same property to another family.

PROTECT EARNEST MONEY IN CONDO PURCHASE

When entering a purchase agreement for an uncompleted condominium, the buyer should make certain the earnest money is absolutely protected.

The purchase agreement should provide any down payment or earnest money to be held in escrow by a third party and not paid to the developer to help with the construction costs. The agreement should be made voidable at the buyer's election if construction is not commenced or the project is not completed by a specific date. It also should provide that earnest money be placed in an account bearing the highest rate of interest safely available.

If the purchase agreement does not provide that the earnest money be held in escrow with a third party, a purchaser may find that a developer has used down payment funds in the construction of a project that has subsequently gone bankrupt. Contact an attorney for additional information.

DOUBLING OF INVESTMENT EASY TO CALCULATE

The time period required for an investment to double while earning compound interest can be estimated using the rule of 72s. Simply divide the interest rate into the number 72.

For example, if you invest money at 12 percent compounded interest, it will take six years to double. If it earns 9 percent, it will take eight years to double. The same technique can be used to forecast home prices: they will double in eight years when compounded at a 9 percent rate.

Since most houses are mortgaged, the equity or value in excess of debt will more than double when the house price doubles. For example, if you bought a home for $40,000 with a $10,000 down payment, and its price doubled to $80,000 in six years, your equity will have increased five fold during that time, from $10,000 to $50,000.

LENDERS CONCERNED ABOUT TITLE QUALITY

Buyers are not the only parties to a real estate transaction who are concerned about the quality of the title. Mortgage lenders require assurance that they have a valid, acceptable first mortgage lien on the property.

This is not only common sense but generally is a legal requirement of regulated mortgage lenders. The lender's title insurance, however, does not protect the new buyer of the property. Although the land is the same, the interest of the buyer and the interest of the lender are very different. The provisions of a lender's title insurance policy are not the same as those of a buyer's policy, so the buyer should obtain a separate policy. However, before a buyer can obtain a title insurance policy, a title search must be made.

The title search will establish the history of ownership of the property, uncover taxes or judgments against it and sort out any confusion over names.

RAA to begin on O'Connor House

Cam Leonard, president of the Rockport Art Association, presented the owners of Gottschalt Moving Co. with a check for just over $40,000 Thursday, marking the end of the Gottschalt's involvement in the association's new gallery.

Norris Gottschalt and Robert Cuellar accepted the check on behalf of the moving company. Gottschalt moved the house from its previous location on Broadway Street to its present location near the Rockport Harbor.

Leonard, along with officers and directors of the art association, the architect and chairman of the building committee, were on hand to present the check. Leonard explained that the renovation of the building would cost somewhere between $125,000 and $150,000 and will take three to four months. "The renovations will likely cost quite a bit more than we anticipated," he said, adding that the Rockport Art Association will need some help raising the extra funds.

The finished building will include a gallery and a workshop for local artists.

Rockport Art Association officers for 1984 are Cam Leonard, president; Joe Lister, vice president; Fawn Nolley, secretary; and Nora (Tieny) Tiller, treasurer. Serving on the 1984 board of directors will be Ella Anderson, Nancy Mayhood, Louise Scaling, Harold Shirey, Al Vandeveer, Estelle Stair and Milt Sorem. Pat Lister will be the chairperson of the 1984 Rockport Art Festival.

The slate of officers was compiled by a nominating committee comprised of Milt Sorem, Herb Booth and G. Bryant.

Paul urges stronger nuclear defense

WASHINGTON — Continuing to press for defensive weapons, Congressman Ron Paul (R-Texas) has commended the Reagan Administration for plans to proceed with the development of weapons capable of repelling nuclear attacks.

"I am very heartened and encouraged by this news," Congressman Paul said in a letter to President Reagan, "for it means that the American people will actually be defended against a strategic attack for the first time since the age of the ICBMs began."

During the Eisenhower Administration, the United States possessed thousands of interceptor aircraft stationed within its borders, capable of stopping any bomber attempting to penetrate American airspace.

With the development and deployment of the intercontinental ballistic missiles and the adoption of the "immoral and suicidal" policy of Mutual Assured Destruction, Americans were left totally defenseless and subject to devastation on a scale greater than that recently protrayed on national television, Paul charged.

Think twice about gifts you give to elderly

COLLEGE STATION — The holiday gift you give an elderly relative or friend may send an unintended message, says a specialist on aging.

"Many of the common stereotypes about the elderly are reflected in the type of gifts they receive from younger family members," says Judith L. Warren, a family life education-aging specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economics program.

For example, if you always give grandpa a pair of pajamas or slippers, you could be telling him that you think he doesn't do anything more than sleep, she explains.

Selecting a gift for an elderly person should be no different than the process of selecting a gift for a younger person, says Warren. The object is to give something that relates to that person and provides pleasure or delight.

"Consider the elderly person's life now, or past related experience for a clue to gift ideas," says Warren.

The woman who used to have a beautiful flower garden, for example, might enjoy a pictoral book about floral gardens, a painting of a garden to hang in her room, a favorite photo of her garden enlarged and framed or a monthly gift of cut flowers from the florist.

Elderly persons may be less physically active, yet mentally active — thinking and reminiscing about the things they have been interested in throughout their lives, whether that's politics, hobbies, a sport, the movies or whatever. Many gifts can stimulate this cognitive activity and thus provide pleasure for the older person, says the specialist.

Here are some suggestions for the type of gifts that many elderly people would enjoy:

— A home-made certificate for a lunch date, either at a new restaurant or a favorite eating spot.

— Fruit, plants, flowers or food gifts that come on a monthly basis. Many local shops or mail-order firms offer this service.

— Home-baked goods, especially if they are made by the grandchildren.

— A membership in a local health spa where the older person can enjoy a swim, the whirlpool and sauna.

— A gift certificate at the local beauty salon or barber shop.

Boat burglarized, window broken

A 45-foot shrimp boat belonging to Bill B. Bullman of Rockport was the object of a burglary sometime between Nov. 28 and Dec. 4. Entry was gained through a rear window on the port side of the vessel. Among the items missing are a set of automobile speakers and weights.

A window and screen of an East Market Street apartment were the object of criminal mischief Dec. 7. Betty Jo Mullins reported that she was awakened at approximately 9:50 p.m. by the sound of a window breaking. Damage was estimated at $75.

HONORED AT OPEN HOUSE. These six regulars at the Aransas County Council on Aging's Adult Activity Center were honored at this past week's COA open house as being the six oldest COA participants. From left are Myrna Young, 85; Flora Davis, 85; Virgil Waters, 91; Trudy Allemang, 85; Ella Mae Ebert, 86; and Cordelia Lanfair, 81. A corsage was also presented to Jeanette Muecke, not shown, for her contributions to the COA. COA Director Gwen Gonyea reported nearly $1,000 was raised by a quilt giveaway, won by D. Doggett, and $585 on the sale of items during the Dec. 3 open house.

'Is God sovereign or subject?'

The Shepherd's staff

By the Rev.
JOHN NORVELL
Pastor, Gospel Lighthouse

Beginning Jan. 1, 1984, churches in America will be taxed. Hard to believe isn't it? But the law was passed by Congress, signed by the president and applies to every single church in America, whether they want it or not.

The Supreme Court has said that Social Security is not insurance, but a tax. It is a coercive, involuntary tax, for if it is not paid, punishment ensues and it is taken forcibly. Now the government is dictating to the church that they are "in."

The issue is not "Can the church afford it?" but — can the government tax God?"

According to our Supreme Court, the power to tax is the power to control. If government has the right to tax the church, should Christ then resign as its authoritative head and allow the government to assume that position? Of course not.

To whom then does the church belong? A denomination? The pastor? The people? No. It literally belongs to God! "Upon this rock I (Christ) will build my church."

Consider the ruling in "Florida Co. v. Reynolds":

"A tax is a power by which the sovereign raises revenue to defray the necessary expenses of government." The key word is "power." All power requires a relationship: Who has the power, and who is under the power?

And the power to tax can only be exercised against subjects: Who is sovereign, and who is subject? Sovereigns do not pay taxes. If a sovereign paid a tax then he would no longer be a sovereign. City, county and state governments cannot tax each other because they are sovereigns. Thus, a subject is anyone who is not a sovereign.

Now, can federal taxation authorities levy tax against God's Church? The question that must first be answered is: Is God sovereign or subject?

Church of God observes anniversary

Rockport's Church of God will observe its 23rd anniversary with special services at 3 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 10, at the church on Liberty Street.

District Chairman David Jones, pastor of the Victoria Church of God and East Side Church of God in Hallettsville, will be guest speaker. Special music will be provided by the district choir and choirs from the Victoria and Hallettsville Churches of God.

The Rockport Church of God was dedicated for service on the second Sunday in December 1960 under the leadership of the Rev. V. V. Lister who served the church about 10 years.

Other pastors have been the Rev. George Hawkins and the late Rev. Charlie Walls who served as interim pastor and Sister Elsie M. Huff who is now associate to the present pastor, Rev. Percy L. Lewis.

Luminarias are a Texas tradition

Among traditions of a Texas Christmas are luminarias or "little fires." They are said to date from the fires lighted by shepherds, such as those who visited the Baby Jesus.

History says a Spanish priest, writing in 1736, described luminarias placed in patios of churches and terraces of homes in the Southwest. Indians sang, beat drums, rang bells and danced around them.

The early Spaniards made bonfires of brightly burning pinon branches on Christmas Eve to light the way for the processions to the village church for midnight Mass and in front of homes to help the Christ Child find the way.

With the introduction of paper sacks in the 1820s by American traders on the Santa Fe trail, settlers adapted their custom of lighting bonfires or farolitos, small lanterns, into the symbolic little fires now called luminarias.

Luminarias are made with ordinary lunch sacks. Fold down the top into a one- or two-inch cuff so that the bag will stand up. Fill the bottom with sand about two inches deep. Place a votive candle firmly in the sand. Set the bags two to three feet apart and light the candles at dusk.

The warm glow will last several hours. Care should be used to avoid placing the sacks near anything that may be a fire hazard; while the candle usually burns out or is extinguished in the sand, the bag may catch fire if the wind blows.

Let us not go faster than God. It is our emptiness and our thirst that he needs, not our plenitude.

— Jacques Maritain

Christian trio Watermark to appear in concert at First Presbyterian

The Christian trio Watermark is coming to Rockport's First Presbyterian Church, Live Oak at Laurel Street, at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 11.

The concert will be free and open to the public.

Watermark is composed of Phil Wiebe of Mission Viejo, Calif., on guitar, Martin Rude of Wichita, Kans., on drums and percussion and Steve Ratzlaff of Denver, Colo., on keyboards. Based in Wichita, Kans., the group has toured extensively since 1978, combining smooth harmonies with unique instrumentation to present a clear, contemporary Christian message.

The trio has released three albums — "Channels Only", "Straight for the Heart" and "Watermark Live."

The Rev. John Bradshaw, pastor of First Presbyterian, invites everyone to come Sunday morning to the concert.

Movie Week

SATURDAY

(CBS) SATURDAY NIGHT MOVIE

SUNDAY

(ABC) SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"THROUGH NAKED EYES" (1983) David Soul, Pam Dawber. A bizarre love story about a classical musician who is unnerved to discover that the beautiful woman he has been watching through binoculars is watching him back — and that he has become the chief suspect in a series of murders terrifying the residents of the high-rise apartment complex in which they live.

(NBC) SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"COAST TO COAST" Dyan Cannon, Robert Blake. A fast-paced comedy-drama about an escapee from a mental hospital whose husband wants her permanently out of the way and a trucker whose rig will be repossessed if he's caught, and how they team to evade and eventually triumph over the people who are trying to ruin them.

MONDAY

(NBC) MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"LITTLE HOUSE ON THE PRAIRIE: LOOK BACK TO YESTERDAY" (1983) Michael Landon, Matthew Laborteaux. Charles Ingalls and his son, Albert, stop in Walnut Grove to visit family and friends, but Charles is determined that even though Albert is dying from an incurable blood disease they will make the lad's last few weeks as happy as possible.

TUESDAY

(CBS) TUESDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"COOK AND PEARY: THE RACE TO THE POLE" (1983) Richard Chamberlain, Rod Steiger. A dramatic special focusing on the controversy that surrounded two men who both claimed to have reached the North Pole. Richard Chamberlain stars as Frederick A. Cook, the physican who became captivated by the lure of exploration, and Rod Steiger stars as Robert E. Peary, the ambitious explorer who sought to discredit Cook and claim the Pole for himself.

Michael Landon and Melissa Gilbert re-create their roles from "Little House on the Prairie" in a special TV movie, "Look Back to Yesterday," airing Monday, Nov. 12 on NBC.

WEDNESDAY

(CBS) WEDNESDAY NIGHT MOVIE

FRIDAY

(NBC) FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"OH, GOD!, II" (1980) George Burns, David Birney, Suzanne Pleshette. A young girl's life is dramatically changed by her encounter with the Almighty, particularly after she reveals the fact and is scorned by her parents and the psychologists who will decide her fate.

ARIES
(March 21-April 20) Someone with questionable ethics could come to you with a scheme. Turn this person down and suggest ending your relationship.

TAURUS
(April 21-May 21) A difference in opinion with an older individual may provoke feelings of guilt on your part. Business enterprises requiring large outlays of cash should be closely investigated before you sign on the dotted line.

GEMINI
(May 22-June 21) Keeping a younger person from becoming romantically involved with someone much older could prove difficult unless the situation is delicately handled.

CANCER
(June 22-July 23) Keep up correspondence with a friend who has moved away. Unconventional ideas creep into your mind and may be put into action rather quickly.

LEO
(July 24-Aug. 23) A person with a different background from your own provides you with interesting insights about others and life in general. Leisure time activities might have to be kept to a minimum because of work commitments.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Household responsibilities could prevent you from accepting a tempting invitation to take a trip out of town. Be on your best behavior when being introduced to influential acquaintances who can help you financially.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Your interest in the arts could be turned into a profitable enterprise with the assistance of a talented young person who inspires you.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Rewarding a relative for acting in a fashion that ought to be second nature is not correct. This individual will come to expect such a response and won't behave unless special treatment is imminent.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An exciting experience comes your way through taking a chance romantically with a stranger. This could be the beginning of an important, major interlude.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Set aside enough time for rest and relaxation or your hectic schedule will begin to wear you out. Business engagements could require you to travel out of town for a while before they are completed.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Startling family revelations start relatives talking and leaves you feeling confused. Entertaining people provides you with moments of delight.

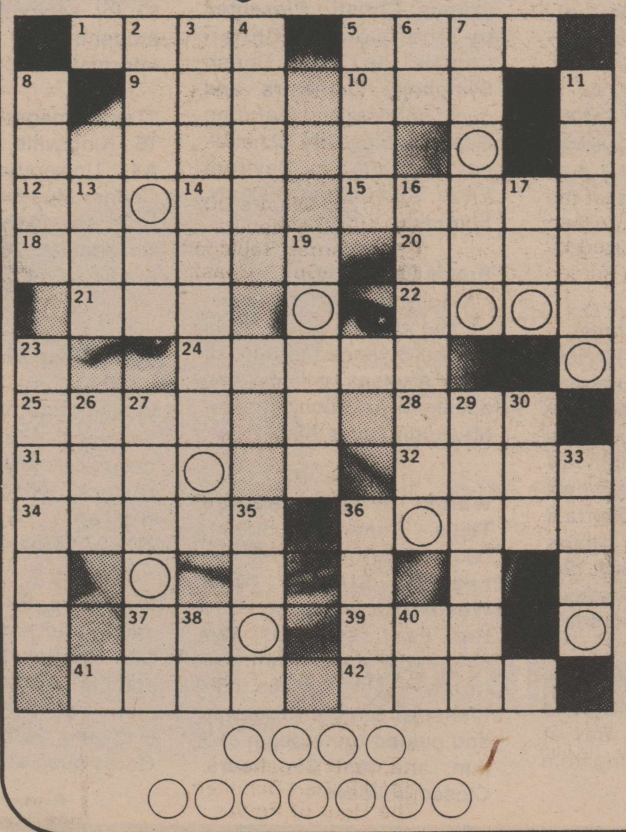

PISCES
(Feb. 20-March 20) Keep a close watch on youngsters for they could be up to mischief. People who are unemployed may have the opportunity to begin a new job.

'Little House' returns

By Andy Noble

The Ingalls family of "Little House on the Prairie" — the clan that was as wholesome as the "Addams Family" was bizarre — returns to TV this week.

Once again, you'll be able to see Papa Charles (Michael Landon), daughter Laura (Melissa Gilbert) and son Albert (Matthew Laborteaux). They're featured in "Look Back to Yesterday," a special that airs Dec. 12 on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies."

It's the first of three "Little House" TV movies that NBC will air this season. The movies are NBC's compensation for canceling the series last year after nine, mostly successful seasons. The network's decision was criticized by many people, because it removed from the small screen one of the few series suitable for children.

"Look Back to Yesterday" centers on the tragedy faced by the Ingalls family when they learn that young Albert has an incurable blood disease. The trauma nearly destroys Charles, until he becomes determined to help the young man face death with dignity. Charles must also convince Laura to accept her brother's fate.

"It's a seven-Kleenexer," says Victor French, who reprises his role as Mr. Edwards, the Ingalls' neighbor. French also directed the movie.

Laborteaux should get an Emmy nomination for his performance, French says. He adds that the subject matter is handled sensitively and will not frighten youngsters. "We don't dwell on the death. You don't see him die."

Since "Little House" was canceled, French has been considering directorial and series offers, Laborteaux is featured on "Whiz Kids" and Miss Gilbert recently starred as a murdered American missionary in the TV movie "Choices of the Heart."

Oil worker becomes 'celebrity'

PORT ARTHUR — When the production company began preparations for filming a television commercial aboard an oil drilling platform, 22-year-old Glynn Shofner had no idea that he'd be one of the stars.

Shofner, a worker aboard the rig, knew only that he'd be coaching two professional actors who would portray the rough-and-ready world of oil drilling for a Schlitz Beer commercial. But he did his job so well that the producer decided to use him in the commercial to ensure authenticity.

Describing how he was chosen for the role, Schofner says, "I guess it was mostly a case of being in the right place at the right time. It was a great opportunity for me. Not many people get the chance to be in something like this."

Today, less than a year after the commercial was filmed aboard a floating rig in Sabine Pass waterway near Port Arthur, Shofner is something of a celebrity . . . at least in his hometown area of Jaspar.

"People will come up to me and think they know me, but they aren't sure where from," he says. "When I tell them, they ask how I got in the Schlitz commercial. I tell them it was just fate. Some of the guys at work are calling me 'Hollywood' now.

"To tell the truth," he adds offhandedly, "I've really been surprised about the attention I've got from this."

How is he handling his new-found fame? "I'm loving every minute of it," he answers candidly with a laugh. "I've even autographed a few Schlitz cans."

The TV commercial is one of several filmed in Texas last January for Schlitz. Two are being shown in selected markets, primarily in the East, Southeast and Southwest. Others are in the final stages of editing. Produced by MCA Advertising, the commercials focus on Americans hard at work in jobs that have an aura of excitement and even risk.

Another of the TV spots currently being aired features steelworkers on the girders of a building under construction. It was filmed in Houston.

To add impact to the advertising campaign, Schlitz has revived its famous "Gusto" and "Go For It" slogans. Also added is a patriotic note in the form of a red-white-and-blue comet and the tag line, "Here's to the guys who are making America great . . . from the guys who make Schlitz a great American beer."

"We wanted the TV advertising to capture the indomitable spirit of the American blue collar worker," explains Michael Jaeger, Schlitz brand manager for the Stoh Brewery Company. "These are the people who help make America great, who get the tough jobs done.

"The commercials are really a salute to the American work ethic. They appeal to the feeling of accomplishment in a hard day's work and to pride in a job well done. Using dramatic work situations — something a little out of the ordinary — helps to get the point across."

In creating the "dramatic situation" involving offshore drilling operations, the production company obtained the cooperation of Houston Offshore International, the Texas firm which owns and operates the huge drilling platform.

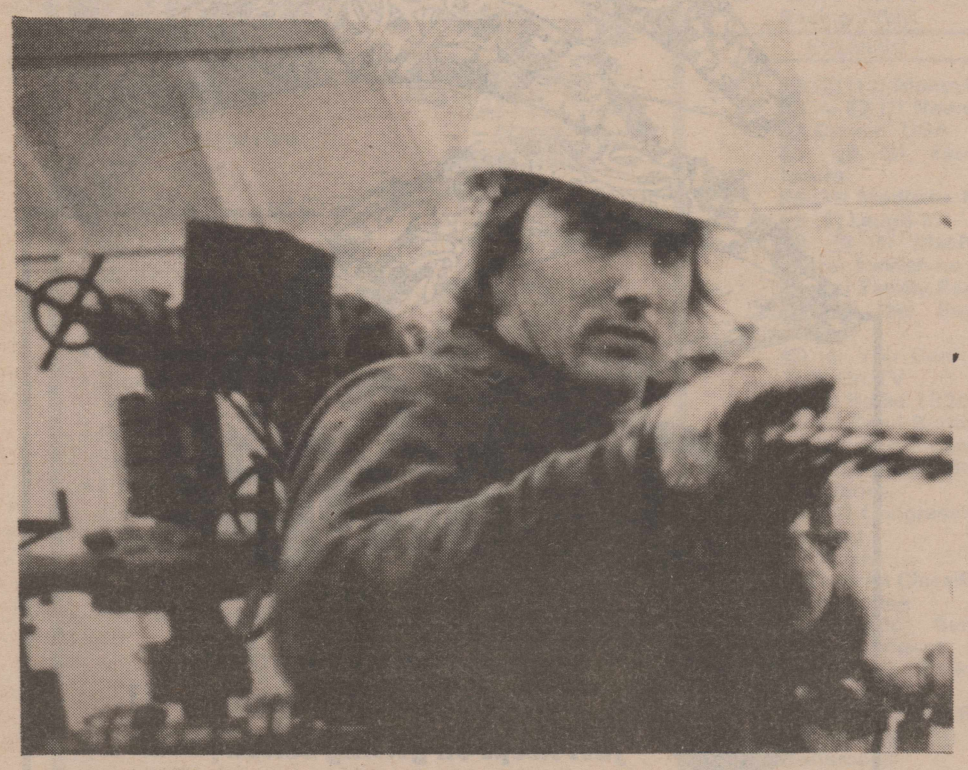

The company agreed to permit filming of simulated drilling operations aboard its temporarily idle "Sabine III" rig. Shofner was assigned to help familiarize the actors with proper procedures.

Jerry Chiles, president of the drilling firm is pleased with the outcome. "I guess ou might say the arrangement was mutually beneficial," he observes. "It helps sell Schlitz Beer and it's giving our company some extra visibility. We've received many positive comments from people in the oil industry who recognize our company logo in the commercial."

Jaeger says the patriotic theme was designed into the commercials to evoke positive feelings.

"Americans have always felt that hard work is part of our heritage," he points out. "Our market research shows that this feeling is still very strong among young American blue collar workers, one of our primary consumer groups. When it's time to enjoy a beer with friends after a hard day's work, we hope they'll choose Schlitz."

The favorable reception the TV spots have received has prompted the Stroh Brewery Company to commission new segments in the series. Commercials featuring a similar theme, but in different settings, will hit the airwaves soon, according to Jaeger.

OIL WORKER GLYNN SHOFNER "throws a chain" on the drilling platfrom where the Schlitz commercial in which he is featured was filmed. While training actors how to perform the work, he was selected for inclusion in the television spot.

Brent Musburger — a hard-working host

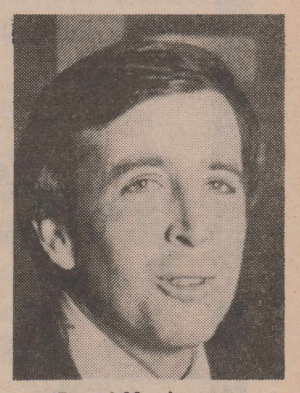

NOW BACK TO BRENT — While most viewers enjoy Saturday and Sunday afternoons watching sports on TV, one man on the other end of the camera is too busy to relax. He's CBS' Brent Musburger, host and managing editor of both "The NFL Today" and "The NCAA Today."

Musburger handles highlight replays, settles discussions with his co-hosts, gives scores and discourses on college games with Ara Parseghian and pro games with Irv Cross.

Now that the regular college season is over, Musburger works the pro games on Saturdays and will host and edit "CBS Sports Saturday" and "CBS Sports Sunday," CBS' multi-sports series.

In his career, Musburger has done play-by-play reports of both professional basketball and football games.

While he talks football like a retired jock, his first professional association with sports came as a baseball umpire. After attending Al Sommers' Umpiring School, he worked spring-training games with the Cleveland Indians in 1958. He was signed to a Class D contract, becoming, at age 18, the youngest umpire in professional ball.

Brent Musburger

But he didn't pursue umpiring. Instead, Musburger studied journalism at Northwestern and became a sports reporter and columnist for the Chicago American. He later moved into radio, where with WBBM he was sports director and did morning and afternoon sports commentaries.

When Musburger moved into TV, he joined CBS Sports in Chicago, where he became sports director at WBBM-TV. He later went to Los Angeles where he co-anchored the nightly news broadcast for KNXT.

He's been with CBS Sports in New York since August 1975, and it looks as though Brent has found a home.

MEDICINE CHEST

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

Is it true that alcoholics require lower doses of drugs? — H.D.

Alcoholics are well-known to develop cirrhosis, which impairs the liver's ability to assimilate drugs. This impaired liver function results in the medicine accumulating in the body and, in effect, could result in a drug overdose. Any drug which is assimilated by the liver, for example, narcotic pain killers, antidepressants, antianxiety and anti-psychotic agents must be used with extra caution when given to alcoholics with cirrhosis.

Will tamper-resistant packaging as a result of the Tylenol poisonings really do the job? — C.R.

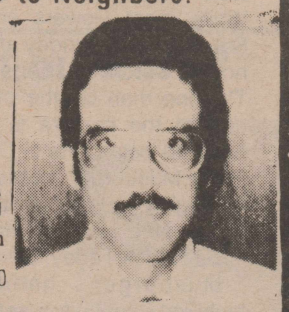

A mind that is fiendish enough to poison medicines on drugstores shelves might conceivably out-maneuver plastic barriers or other deterrents. It is unrealistic to expect the industry to offer iron-clad guarantees against future package tampering.

What is the name of the new product that delivers more of the cancer drug to the tumor because it works differently? — B.T.

You may be thinking of a product manufactured by Fortia Pharmacia of Sweden. It's called Spherex and it does just what you said. Spherex consists of small spherical particles. The product is injected directly into the cancer organ where it will block the blood vessels so that more of the cancer agent can exert a local effect.

RUTH WARRICK

Ruth Warrick (Phoebe, "All My Children") will leave the series permanently as has been rumored in some quarters. If Ruth is to be away from Pine Valley for any length of time, it will be for one of her many trips around the world ... Anthony Herrera, so good as the so-bad James Stenbeck on "As The World Turns" will soon turn up in "Loving" ... Charita Bauer (Bert, "Guiding Light") was in a wheelchair for the taping of the soap's Thanksgiving Day segment because, in real life, she had just come through a painful leg condition and was determined that she would go on no matter how she made it to the set ... Imogene Coca's character, Mrs. Hammond, has really caught on with the "One Life To Live" viewers. She'll be back for more guest-star spots following her two most recent appearances ... Fan club information for Gregg Marx (David, "Days Of Our Lives") can be obtained by writing him c/o his soap at NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda, Burbank, CA 91523.

TUBE TIPS: Look for more departures from "Guiding Light" before the new year rings in. They're also saying that at least two recently wrung-out roles will be brought back with new actors ... The new "Search For Tomorrow" producer reportedly has plans that should delight long-time viewers of the venerable video epic.

Blame the gremlins who goofed up some of my notes for my error a couple of weeks ago when I said Isabel Sanford (Louise, "The Jeffersons") was on "Another World." Of course, I meant to say Louise Mandrell was the lady who shared a guest star singing stint with Roberta Flack on that soap. My apologies to all and to all my goof-up gremlins, I've assigned the penance of calculating exactly how many times the character of Ada (Constance Ford) on "AW" has been wed and widowed.

MINI BIO FILE: Arlene Carol Dahl (Lucinda King Schenk, "One Life To Live") was born August 11 in Minneapolis, Minn. She and her soap series costar, Phil Carey (Asa Buchanan) worked together in a film, "Wicked As They Come."

Arlene has three children: son Lorenzo Lamas stars on "Falcon Crest;" daughter Carole Holmes is a university honor student and 12-year-old son, "Sonny" Schaum is a rock'n'roll musician. Stepson Chris Barker (Arlene was once wed to Chris' dad, actor Lex Barker) also appeared on "OLTL." She's written 16 books, several on beauty (she's an obvious expert) and on astrology. McNaught Syndicate astrologer Salome says Ms. Dahl is a true Leo: beautiful, loyal, loving and fiercely protective of those she cares for.

Look for sizzling storylines for Lucinda and Asa.

The Wine Rack

By BIANCA St. JOHN

GOOD WINE CHOICES

* The German Wine Information Bureau reports that its country's production of dry wine is up 35 percent in the last year. The term, "Trocken," on the label designates wines that, by law, may have no more than 9 grams per liter residual sugar and the unfermented sugar may not exceed the existing total acidity by more than 2 grams per liter. In many cases, color-coding of bright yellow signifies the trocken (or dry) German wines. While 88 percent of all German wines are white, and two-thirds of these whites are characterized by a balance of sweetness and fruity acidity, the new trend in a drier style, particularly with grape varieties like Mueller-Thurgau and Silvaner, adds a new dimension to tasting German wines.

* While Alsatian wines are generally thought to be quite sweet, one recently tried, Cuvee Les Amour Pinot Blanc "Hugel" (about $7) provided all the interest of a complex, well-balanced and intensely-flavored white. Light golden in color, with a lot of fruit in the nose and a very pleasant finish, this Alsatian white makes an excellent accompaniment to heavy meals, as well as a good aperitif with strong cheeses.

* "The Quintessential Wine Tour of the Napa Valley" is now planned for January 27th through the 29th at a cost of $1300 per person. The tour is to include a champagne reception and dinner with Andre Tchelistcheff at the Auberge du Soleil, accommodations at Meadowood, (a private reserve in Napa), two wine-making seminars with Robert Mondavi, a chardonnay tasting and tour at Far Niente, dinner with Louis and Elizabeth Martini, a champagne brunch and tour of Domaine Chandon, a lecture and tasting with John Shafer and a picnic with Warren Winiarski of Stag's Leap Cellars. For information, write to: Wine Adventures, Inc., P.O. Box 3273, Yountville, CA 94599.

Popcorn Video

By James Smethurst

On Dec. 11, MTV features an interview with Paul McCartney, taped last month in London. Among the items McCartney discusses are his new album "Pipes of Peace" and his working with Michael Jackson on the video for "Say Say Say."

ESPN airs 13 continuous hours of live sports coverage on Dec. 17, beginning at 12 noon. Among the events televised will be the 1983 California Bowl, the 1983 Florida Citrus Bowl and the Nastase-Connors Invitational Tennis match from North Miami, Fla.

Also on the schedule for the evening is the third round of the Chrysler Team Invitational golf meet and the Champion of Champions Quarterhorse Race.

*

USA airs a promising professional basketball game on Dec. 14 when the Philadelphia 76ers meet the Milwaukee Bucks. This match could possibly be a preview of the playoffs.

Some Spotlight Movies:

"Swamp Thing" (Dec. 12) — It's like an EC comic come to life — funny, scary and self-parodying. You can tell the makers of this film both love this genre and find it amusing.

"Cannery Row" (Dec. 16) — A sentimental adaptation of a sentimental novel, which made being broke and homeless seem romantic and admirable. Nick Nolte stars.

RACE TO THE POLE

Richard Chamberlain stars as Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the physician-turned-explorer who suffered danger and hardship to reach a spot where no man had stood before — the North Pole. His voyage and the controversy that resulted from his claims is dramatized in "Cook and Peary: The Race to the Pole," an "ITT Theatre" special, airing TUESDAY, DEC. 13 on CBS.

Ask Kate

Where did Lou work?

By Kate Woods

Ed Asner

I know that Lou Grant and Mary Richards worked in Minneapolis, but where did Lou work on "Lou Grant"? — S.H.

After being fired from WJM-TV, he became city editor of the Los Angeles Tribune.

TWIN SPIN — What are the names of the twins that used to sing on "Hee Haw" and played a couple of aliens on an episode of "The Bionic Woman"? — W.K.

You're thinking of Jim and Jon Hager.

NOT GERE — My sister and I are having an argument about who played the killer in "Looking for Mr. Goodbar." She says it was Richard Gere. I know he was in it, but Tom Berenger of "The Big Chill" was the killer, no? — T.O.

Yes. It was Berenger, playing a transvestite with a severe identity crisis.

BEYOND THE HORNET — Did Bruce Lee ever appear in a TV series other than "The Green Hornet"? My brother says he did, but can't remember the show. — T.K.

The late kung fu king was a semi-regular on "Longstreet," the James Franciscus series that ran on ABC during the 1971-'72 season.

WRONG HOUSE — Did Michael Nouri ever appear on "Upstairs, Downstairs"? I vaguely remember him in it. — B.B.

You're confusing the British drama with the CBS imitation, "Beacon Hill," on which Nouri played the smoldering Giorgio Bellonci. That was back in 1975, and was his first prime-time series role.

'Cisco Kid' rides again

by Kim Cooper

"The Cisco Kid," the old Western favorite, rides again. The vintage adventure series airs Saturdays at 10 a.m. (ET) on the CBN Cable Network.

Cisco (Duncan Renaldo) and his sidekick, Pancho (Leo Carillo), ride through the West on a crusade to help the victims of outlaws. Lawmen consider the pair to be desperadoes, but Cisco and Pancho maintain that they're innocent.

On the episode airing Dec. 17, Cisco, Pancho and stagecoach company owner Bill Shannon join forces to put outlaw Larry Martin in jail. While incarcerated, Martin plans revenge.

Renaldo received the Nosotros Special Life Achievement Award in 1980. He was honored for "being instrumental in changing the image of Hispanics in the media, and for introducing several generations of youngsters to a positive role model of a Hispanic-American hero figure."

"The Cisco Kid" begins CBN's 10-hour marathon of Westerns on Saturday. Programming includes two movies as well as the series, "The Westerners," "Wild Bill Hickok," "Call of the West," "Western Classics," "Wyatt Earp," "Wagon Train," "The Monroes" and "Alias Smith and Jones."

On Sunday, CBN airs a Western movie at 2 p.m., followed by another episode of "Wagon Train" and a Western starring Roy Rogers.

Kim Cooper is publicity director of the CBN Cable Network.

STAR 80 (Ladd Co., released through Warner Bros. — R) ★ ★ Starring Eric Roberts, Mariel Hemingway, Cliff Robertson

By J.T. YURKO

"Star 80" was the license plate attached to a new Mercedes bought by Paul Schneider, husband of Dorothy Stratten, a Playboy centerfold and Playmate of the Year. She was beautiful, somewhat talented, and more than a little naive. He was a sleazy character trying to make it big any way he could, and Dorothy was his meal ticket to success.

Only it didn't quite work out that way. In the middle of August 1980, Schneider used a shotgun first on Dorothy and then on himself.

"Star 80's" director Bob Fosse likes to make movies about the sordid side of show business ("Cabaret," "Lenny," "All that Jazz"). Miss Stratten's tragic tale has become another examination of Fosse's favorite theme. Fosse makes films the way he choreographs — detailed, busy, full of nuance.

"Star 80" is undeniably one of the best directed and edited films of the year, but it's also unnecessary.

For instance, Eric Roberts plays Dorothy's husband, and it is obvious from frame one that this guy is a homicidal nut. Since this is based on a true story, we know where the story will end, so the accent instead should be on examining the characters.

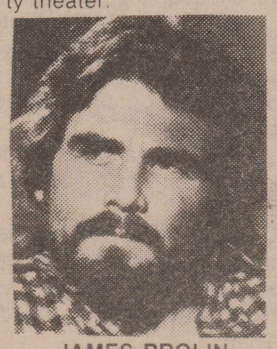

Roberts is just this side of brilliant as the hustler desperately trying to be somebody. His scenes in front of a mirror are just as disturbing as those of Robert DeNiro in "Taxi Driver." Mariel Hemingway is perfectly cast as Miss Stratten. But the film ends up as a sumptuous but unfulfilling Fosse field-day of style and directorial device.

INSIDE TV

BY CHRIS COLBY

CLOSEUPS: "Three's Company's" Jenilee Harrison is a native Californian raised in the San Fernando Valley and graduated from the University of Southern California with a bachelor's degree in education. Out of 1,000 hopefuls, she competed for a place on the Rams Cheerleading squad and won. She began her acting career in community theater.

JAMES BROLIN

James Brolin likes his life. "I've always been lucky," he explains, "to have had the kind of career where I'd work three months and then be off the next three to six. That's given me the opportunity to mess around doing things I like outside the glare and glitter of Hollywood." ... Jm J. Bullock is as zany in real life as he is on TV. To kick off one Christmas season, he invited two hundred guests to a housewarming party. Impeccably gowned ladies and tuxedoed men arrived to see and be seen. Instead of a fancy buffet of pate and champagne, they were served Twinkies, Cheez-its, bread and peanut butter, franks and beans, tuna and crackers by surly waiters dressed in their Sunday worst. The guests loved it ... Barbara Whinnery, Dr. Cathy Martin in "St. Elsewhere," is self-admittedly shy. "However," she says, "acting has opened me up. I'm not as bad as I used to be." Cathy admires Vanessa Redgrave's work, and enjoys horseback riding, tennis and swimming when she's not before the camera ... Brian Mitchell, Dr. Jackpot Jackson of "Trapper John M.D.," spent his early years on the island of Guam and in the Phillipines with his father who was a civilian employee of the U.S. Navy. The family returned to the States when he was 14. Brian is also a singer and composer, spending much time writing and arranging music. He also loves woodworking and refinishing antiques.

DIAL-OGUE: It has often been suggested leading men types jealously guard their youthful images and shy away from roles that border on "age." "Not so," says Hal Linden. "I never give a thought to age. As long as a person is goal-oriented and growing toward that goal, he can be young no matter what his age. When you stop growing, that's old!" ... Loretta Lynn says her life wasn't easy. "I got married at 13 and moved to Washington State when I was several months pregnant. Then I had four kids before I was 17. I didn't start singin' till 1961. Before that, I was just a housewife havin' babies and pickin' strawberries." ... Justin Bateman who plays Mallory Keaton in NBC's "Family Ties" says she hopes the series stays on the air a long, long time. "But," she adds, "whatever happens, I'll find a way to attend college. I'm interested in photography, psychology, journalism, drama and literature and I plan to study and apply each of these studies at some point in my life."

DID'YA KNOW? Michele Lee's father was famed Hollywood makeup man Jack Dusick ... Stephen Macht has an MA degree in playwrighting from Tufts University ... The late famed conductor Arthur Norris ("Porgy and Bess," "Oklahoma," "My Fair Lady," etc. was the father of Trapper John M.D.'s Christopher Norris who plays Nurse Gloria Brancusi ... Jamie Rose's mother Rita was a Rockette. Jamie is Victoria Gioberti in "Falcon's Crest."

MR. WIZARD — Remember Duncan Regher, who played the villain on the CBS summer series "Wizards and Warriors"? He's been cast to play Errol Flynn in "My Wicked, Wicked Ways," a CBS-TV movie based on Flynn's autobiography.

Others in the cast are Barbara Hershey, Lee Purcell, Hal Linden, Darren McGavin and Alan Oppenheimer. Casting Regher as Flynn is a good choice. He has that same swashbuckling manner.

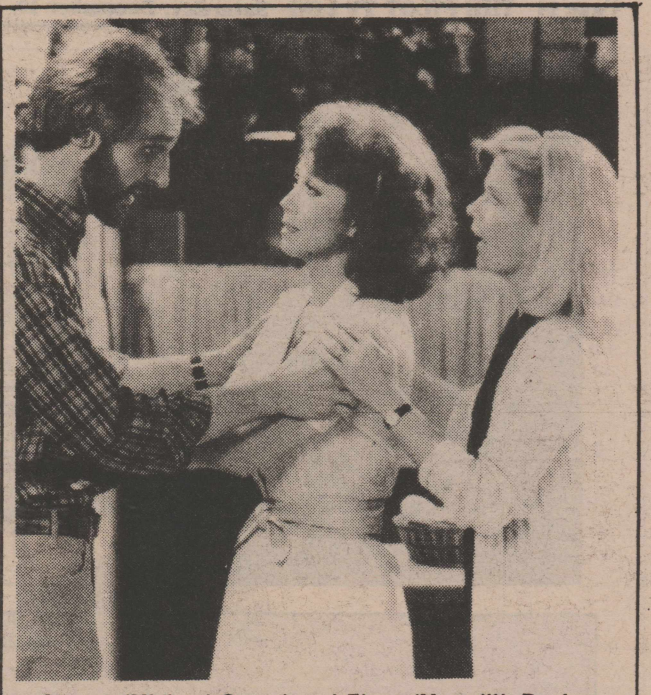

COMFORTABLE — "Too Close for Comfort" is taping its fourth season of shows, although this year its new episodes are in syndication, rather than on ABC. Forty-nine markets have now picked up the show. One guest star who'll appear is animator Walter Lantz, creator of Woody Woodpecker. Sounds like a good choice, since series star Ted Knight plays a cartoonist.

EVERYTHING'S DUCKY — NBC has a series set for midseason called "The Duck Factory," which is set in an animation studio in Hollywood.

OLYMPIC FEVER — NBC will air a five-hour miniseries, hosted by Angela Lansbury, Louis Jourdan and David Ogden Stiers called "The First Olympics — 1896." It's about the 13 athletes who made up the first U.S. Olympics team.

HOPEFUL NEWS — Bob Hope, who has 45 honorary doctorates from U.S. colleges, will teach four courses on comedy at Southern Methodist University in Dallas. The five-day seminars will be held in a campus theater named for him, for which Bob helped to raise funds.

Byrd hopes he'll hit high note as 'Boone'

By Joan Crosby

Tom Byrd

Tom Byrd has been overwhelmed by the amount of mail he's received — considering that he's a TV newcomer whose series, "Boone," has not scored high ratings.

"I'm getting letters from people in Arkansas, Oklahoma and South Carolina and it makes me realize there are really people out there," says Byrd. "I have answered all of them and sent signed photos. I try to write something personal for each one, based on the letter to me because I find the mail touching."

"Boone," about a young Tennessean who wants to become a singing star during the early 1950s, was developed by Earl Hamner Jr., who also created "The Waltons." Like that show, "Boone" also stresses family values, which means the show should have a wide appeal. But initial ratings haven't been high.

Byrd, who was born in the Philippines and raised in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. (his father was a Navy man), has a strong background in music and acting. He studied at Northwestern University's school of drama.

"I came to Los Angeles two years ago," Byrd says, "and I worked an average of every two months. Just as my money would start to dwindle and I'd think 'Oh God, now I have to get a job', another acting assignment would come along."

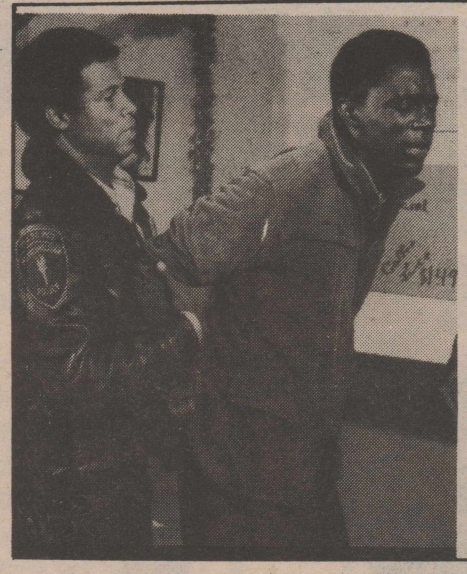

Asked how he got the role in "Boone," Byrd's answer is to the point: "I auditioned."

So did a lot of young actors but Earl Hamner says Byrd had the quality that was "right."

Since Byrd's training was for theater, he found he had to make adjustments in technique for the camera. Byrd, who sings up to four songs a show, brushed up his guitar skills for the role of Boone Sawyer.

"The first day on the 'Boone' set I was anxious but as soon as the cameras began rolling I was OK. I have gotten good about putting anxiety and pressure aside when I am working."

TV Nostalgia

By Marie Iandiorio

The time was the late 1870s, and the location was the American West, but "Little House on the Prairie" was not a Western in the usual sense. Rather, it was more like "The Waltons" in a different setting — the story of a loving family in trying times.

Based on the books of Laura Ingalls Wilder, the series focused on the Ingalls family — Charles, wife Caroline, and their three daughters, Mary, Laura and Carrie. Episodes related the experiences of family life and growing children, the constant struggle against natural disasters and ruined crops, and the dealings with other members of the small Minnesota community in which they lived. "Little House" was an immediate ratings success, and despite some rather fantastic plot lines, remained so for most of the 1970s.

Question: Can you name the town in which the Ingalls lived?

Answer: Walnut Grove.

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

I work in a large company as a secretary. I have four people to answer to. That in itself is okay since I'm fast and good at what I do. However, I do have a problem with one of my people. She is fresh out of college and has that typical arrogant attitude that she knows everything and everyone else is doing things all wrong. I can live with that because I know she'll learn sooner or later. What I don't like is that I feel she is using me. I've been with this company for about four years and I know all the ins and outs, so to speak. In fact, since she's at a junior executive level, I know her job better than she does. As a result, she often leaves me holding the bag, doing all her research reports etc. and then takes credit for what I've done. Yesterday, she pulled the ultimate. There were some pretty heavy clients due in for a meeting. She called in sick and I had to conduct the meeting. Fortunately, all went well, but I know if it hadn't, I would have been held accountable. I have spoken to her supervisor about this and have not gotten anywhere. He tends to be somewhat weak and ineffectual. Should I go over his head about this?

FURIOUS

DEAR FURIOUS:

Going over someone's head usually doesn't go over too well, but is sometimes necessary. However, I think you should lie low for a while. Document everything you do which is actually this woman's responsibility. I gather she gives you these things to do in the guise of secretarial work. Once you have gathered enough evidence, present it to your supervisor (and hers). It's usually pretty difficult to ignore something which is in black and white. If that doesn't work, then you should, by all means, go over his head.

I do wonder though, why you've never gone out for a promotion. You are obviously capable of handling more responsibility. Your knowledge and years in the company would make you a very likely candidate. Why not go for it?

* * *

DEAR DEBBIE:

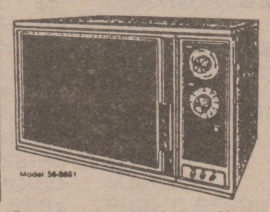

I have been married for three years and have no real complaints about it. The only thing is I find myself constantly attracted to other women. So far, I have not cheated on my wife, but I'm afraid one of these days I just won't be able to resist. Sometimes, I go out after work for drinks with the guys and of course, we meet women. You know how it is when you've had a few drinks. Your guard is down and anything can happen. I love my wife, but I'm beginning to think maybe I'm just not cut out to be faithful to one woman. What do you think?

TEMPTED

DEAR TEMPTED:

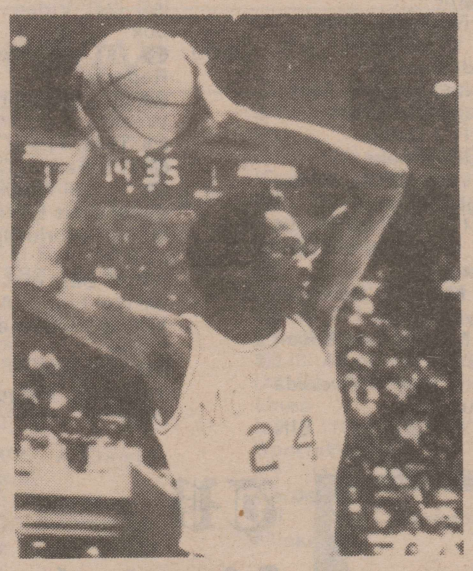

Of course I could wax philosophical about this and discuss whether or not man is truly a monogamous creature. However, I'm not going to do that. I think you're just looking for an excuse to go with another woman. Naturally, when a person gets married, it doesn't mean he will never again be attracted to someone other than his spouse. The point is are you willing to risk pursuing that attraction to its ultimate conclusion? There are some pretty heavy consequences involved. Is your marriage worth risking? The choice rests with you.
