NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—Just what are the motives behind the inspired talk of a third term for Gov. James V. Allred provided the chief topic of conversation among the political wiseacres here this week. Few believe that Allred seriously is considering seeking a third term, but the politically sophisticated readily agree that the governor is playing his cards skillfully by starting a boom at this time.

Judgeship Involved?

Friends of Senator Tom Connally believe Allred may be trying to "scare" the junior senator into renewed effort to revive the moribund bill to create an additional federal judgeship at Houston, by talking of a third term. If Allred were elected governor again, he would be in excellent position to run against Connally in 1940. It is believed here that Connally would go a long way to avoid a race with Allred as his opponent, particularly in view of the sharp division of sentiment in Texas over the president's court reform plan. Connally has fought the bill unequivocally, while Allred has never committed himself on the issue. Connally undoubtedly strengthened himself with the lawyers, and with the conservative Democratic element in Texas, but recent events have raised grave doubts among his friends about whether he has done himself any good with the mass of Texas voters, who most observers here think are strongly for the president. They cite the results in the recent special congressional election in the 10th district—probably the most conservative in Texas—in which Lyndon Johnson won overwhelmingly over a court plan opponent. Johnson endorsed the Roosevelt program enthusiastically.

Allred Aides Drifting Away

There is little doubt that the third-term talk on behalf of Allred also is designed to hold the Allred machine together, and halt a distinct tendency which it has been manifesting in recent weeks to break up. The governor, in the always unfortunate position of a second-term governor "on the way out" has seen politicians whom he has rewarded with one, two and in some cases, even three fat appointments, drifting away from his influence. Most notable is the case of R. B. Anderson, ex-assistant attorney general under Allred, and later state tax commissioner, then director of the unemployment compensation commission. Anderson hired out to Waggoner interests of Ft. Worth as an attorney. The governor was rather burned up to discover later that Anderson had worked to defeat his race-track betting repeal bill. Still other Allred stalwarts, highly placed in state bureaus by the governor, have conveniently "overlooked" recent patronage recommendations of the governor. Actually, the boys have been scurrying about, seeking new alignments in the forthcoming governor's race. They figure Allred has done all he can for them—and politics, after all, is a cold-blooded business. A notable exception is Ed Clark, secretary of state, ex-secretary to the governor, and ex-assistant attorney general. Clark has remained loyal, and the "third term boom" is largely his own idea to whip some of the others in line.

School Fund Row

The action of the state board of education—including a healthy sedgment of Allred appointees—in ignoring the governor's expressed hope that the per capita school appropriation might be held at $19, and the tax rate on property reduced, was still another manifestation of the waning Allred influence. The board promptly hiked the per capita figure to $22.00. If Allred can get one other member of the state automatic tax board—which includes the governor, Comptroller

Railroads Offer Low Rates To Exposition

Dallas, July 12.—Railroad companies throughout the Southwest have lowered their week-end fares for passengers who wish to come to the Pan American Exposition in Dallas.

For a week-end excursion to the Exposition, arriving at Dallas on Saturday and leaving not later than Tuesday, a round-trip ticket may be purchased for the price of a one-way coach fare. This is now in effect throughout the Southwest. Thirty-day tickets, first class, are reduced to 2 cents a mile for the round trip. Thirty day coach tickets are one and a half cents per mile.

For any group numbering approximately 125 adults, special trains will be run from any town in the Southwest to the international fair. Local agents in any community will arrange for the special train.

Full attention will be given each group or community celebration at the Exposition. A day will be designated in their name on the Exposition daily calendar. Exposition officials will welcome the delegations and give them especial recognition. All uniformed bands accompanying the groups will be admitted free and may play concerts during the day. The radio studios within the grounds are available for any radio talent accompanying the delegations.

Proper housing facilities and reasonable rates are promised all visitors.

Mrs. H. K. Sadler left Tuesday for El Paso to accompany her brother and family to California for a visit of several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Callahan of near Canton, Texas are visiting their son A. Callahan and family.

George Sheppard, and Treasurer Charley Lockhart—to stay with him, he may nullify this action, however, by getting the tax board to reduce the school ad valorem tax rate from the present 30 cents to 6 or 8 cents, thus giving the property taxpayers the "break" Allred claims they deserve. The school lobby, however, is all powerful, and it is doubtful whether, with an election in the offing next year, either Sheppard or Lockhart would care to antagonize the school vote by joining the governor in such action. The board meets July 20 to settle the matter.

Third-Term Reaction

First reaction from out over the state to the third term movement is privately reported somewhat disappointing to Allred strategists. Observers who have traveled into the creek forks report a lack of strong public demand for the breaking of the two-term tradition. Allred, despite his vetoes of many measures affecting large groups, seems not to have made many bitter enemies recently, except an extreme, but comparatively small group of "liberals"—over the race repeal business. But, on the other hand, the scouts report he has made virtually no new friends, as they point out he had the "moral" vote almost solidly already. And too many folks just don't think a governor ought to have a third term to steam up the boom very much at this writing.

Gilchrist To A. & M.

Inside information that Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer, will accept the proffered post as dean of engineering at A. & M. college—which he has under consideration as this is written—is welcomed enthusiastically by A. & M. alumni throughout Texas. Gilchrist is recognized as one of the nation's ablest engineers, even by those who have clashed with him politically in the past, and the offer to head A. & M.'s engineering school is a high compliment to his fine ability. The honor that goes with the post promptly will help to compensate Gilchrist for a sacrifice in income which his acceptance will necessitate.

Postmaster Warns Mail Tamperers

Postmaster R. B. Cope issued a warning this week to those children and adults, who are in the habit of tampering with other people's mail boxes in the post office. Recently some mail was taken from a box and found later part of the shipment was missing. It is a very serious offense to tamper with the U. S. mail and if someone is caught in the act it will go hard with them.

Some children have the habit of going from box to box to see if they can open them. Mr. Cope says such practice must be stopped or severe measures will have to be taken. If the practice is not stopped the lobby doors will have to be locked when the office is closed and that would be very inconvenient for patrons.

Those who have boxes in the office should see that they are locked after they get their mail. If the box is left unlocked your mail may be taken out by anyone who happens to tamper with the box.

W. F. JAMES TO BE APPOINTED TRUSTEE

The board of trustees in a meeting this week appointed W. F. James to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rowland Hall. Mr. James came out second in the election last spring and the board considered it the wish of the people for Mr. James to be appointed to the vacancy.

INFANT DIES

Funeral services for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Cary were held at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Richey, Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock with Rev. W. H. Capps officiating.

Mickie, one of twins born Friday night, died Saturday afternoon after only a few brief hours of life.

We join with the many friends of the young couple in extending condolence in their sad hour.

BAPTIST W. M. S.

The Baptist W. M. S. met in the home of Mrs. W. H. Capps Monday with Mrs. Woodrow Pratt joint hostess.

A very interesting program was rendered on "Our African People and what a Great Work our Missionaries are doing over there." The devotional was read by Mrs. R. E. Bennett.

After the program a special series of prayers was offered for the meeting which is to begin on Friday night before the first Sunday in August.

During the business session it was voted to invite Mrs. Childress of Westbrook here to help in the organization of a Y. W. A. Hope was expressed that the girls meet Mrs. Childress and get started in this work as it is felt that it will be a great work for young girls. Delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to fifteen ladies.

WORLD FLIERS STILL LOST IN PACIFIC OCEAN

Amelia Earhart and her navigator Fredrick Noonan are still missing though the navy has used ships and planes in searching many miles of ocean in the vicinity where the round-the-world fliers dropped into the water 11 days ago. The last authentic message from the Earhart plane was received eleven days ago and stated that only a thirty-minute supply of gasoline remained. At that time they were supposed to be within 100 miles of Howland Island a tiny dot in the Pacific where the plane was to have been refueled to continue its flight to Honolulu.

RAIN IS NEEDED

A good rain is needed throughout this territory at this time. Cotton seems to be doing alright so far but feed is beginning to show signs of needing moisture. A good rain would help cotton to mature the fruit that has formed on it.

Rain threatened all of last week but somehow the clouds just did not get heavy enough or the atmosphere was not right for rain. While a large part of the country was sweltering under high temperatures which caused the death of several hundred people this section was enjoying cooling breezes.

School Benefited By $22. Apportionment

Should the state apportionment for school children remain at the $22 figure recently set by the board of education the Loraine school district will have more than a thousand dollars in addition to the amount received last year when the apportionment was $19.

Should this district get the additional funds it should be possible for the board to add vocational agriculture to the course of study offered here, and it may be possible that manual training can also be offered.

We have been hoping for a long time that the board could see its way clear to add these two very worth while subjects to the course of study. The value of both is unquestioned by those who want the school to keep in line with other schools. Home economics was offered for the first time last year and the course proved very popular. This course could be strengthened a great deal by making it vocational.

SHORT COURSE PROGRAM ANNOUNCED BY EUDALY

College Station—The program of the general assembly meetings of the Farmers' Short Course, which will be held at Texas A. and M. College on August 16-19, will feature several nationally known personages, according to E. R. Eudaly, extension dairyman and chairman of the joint program division.

The general assembly meetings for men and women, which will be held at Guion Hall each day between 10:50 and 11:50, will again be interspersed with group singing led by Walter Jenkins, song leader of Rotary International.

The principal speakers of the four sessions will be Dr. T. O. Walton, President of Texas A. and M. College, Monday; Honorable Hatton W. Sumners, Member of Congress, Tuesday; C. A. Cobb, Director, Southern Division, AAA, Wednesday; and Miss Barbara Van Heulen, Associate Extension Specialist of the Farm Credit Administration, on Thursday.

The chairmanship of the general assembly meetings will be held by H. H. Williamson, Director of the Extension Service, on Monday; by Dr. T. O. Walton, Tuesday; Miss Mildred Horton, State Agent and Vice Director of the Extension Service, on Thursday.

Preliminary estimates place the number of men and women who will attend each of the general assembly meetings at between 2,000 and 2,500 Eudaly said.

HARDIN—MEARSE

Mr. Odus Hardin and Miss Lola Mearse were united in marriage at the Baptist parsonage Friday afternoon at three o'clock with Rev. W. H. Capps, pastor, officiating.

Odus is the son of Mrs. H. H. Hardin and a brother to Rev. A. C. Hardin, former pastor here. He is a young man of splendid character and has a host of friends in the community.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Mearse. She was graduated from the Loraine High School in the spring of 1935 and attended business college in Abilene for some time last year. Her friends are also numbered by her acquaintances.

The News joins with their many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes.

Templeton Thompson of Dublin visited his aunts Mrs. T. R. Bennett and Mrs. O. I. Griffin this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Williams and children have returned from Abilene where Mr. Williams has been attending Hardin-Simmons.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Smith left Wednesday on a ten-day trip to Alabama. They were accompanied by Mr. Smith's brother at Abilene.

Bingham's 4th of July

ROBERT WORTH BINGHAM, United States ambassador to London, became the third prominent American to bring down the fury of Nazi Germany's officialdom and press when, in an Independence day speech before the American society in that city, he declared Uncle Sam had been forced by the dictator countries to join Britain in an armament race.

"We did everything in our power to avert it, but it is a race, and the British and ourselves must inevitably win. I admit the strongest arguments that can be made for dictatorships—they offer a better method of preparing for war. But I am sure that democracies provide a better way to finish a war."

Navy Hunts for Amelia

FOUR ships of the United States navy, with attendant airplanes; two ships of the Japanese navy, and a British freighter scoured the vast wastes of the South Pacific in an effort to find and rescue Amelia Earhart Putnam, America's No. 1 woman flyer, and her navigator, Fred Noonan.

So alarmed was the world at the loss of Amelia and her companion, the United States even sent out the giant aircraft carrier Lexington with 98 planes aboard, which, it was said, could explore an area of 36,000 square miles in five or six hours.

Nation Finds More Jobs

NEARLY 35,000,000 persons are now employed in non-agricultural pursuits, the federal reserve board has announced. This is only 1,000,000 or 1,500,000 shy of the average in 1929 and 8,500,000 to 9,000,000 more than in March, 1933.

Dugan Claims Yanks Are in Third League but Picks 1928 Club

JOE DUGAN—Jumping Joe who now presides over a Gotham hot spot with the same zeal he once devoted to the Yankee Stadium hot corner—started this. Having returned on a Sabbath visit to his old playgrounds, having inspected the cash register and having set up a few on the house, he was talking about the third major league.

"Greatest team around nowadays," he was saying. "Sure, those Tigers are good but what happens when the checks are down? Those Yankees just romp home with the marbles, don't they? Sure they do and they'll continue doing it all season. They'll win all by themselves. There's nobody like them. They're tops. They're a whole league to themselves. There's no other organization even close to them."

A timid customer edged a pound note upon the mahogany. He obtained the same prompt service which it was Mr. Dugan's pleasure to provide ten years ago when the lower end of the batting order was up and a rally was needed in the ninth. Then Mr. Dugan continued.

"Yessir," he said. "They're that third major league folks gossip about now and then. Where they're going to get opposition from is more than I know."

"Maybe," offered another customer, tossing a $10 bill down the middle, "they could choose up sides and play games among themselves."

Mr. Dugan took care of the bill and the suggestion with the same aplomb that used to distinguish him when the bases were loaded and a line drive came whizzing over the third sack.

"Yeah, maybe," he agreed. "Or, maybe they could take the pick of the league and let them play the Yankees for a while. That might help for a couple of weeks anyhow. Some of those all-star outfits go pretty good."

The reporter had dropped into the Dugan emporium for some inspiration concerning a piece that is done by all baseball scribes every year.

This epic piece always starts out with the information that it is baseball custom for the team that is leading in July to continue in the same spot up to World Series time. Then, if the scrivener is such a ceaseless searcher after innovations as is your present correspondent, he tries to find some iconoclast who can be quoted as saying the dope is the bunk during the current campaign.

Now, although he had once known Mr. Dugan as a very independent thinker, the reporter knew that he had come to the wrong spot. Such views as those expressed about the Yankees are merely those of a few million other discerning citizens. And, even if he would have liked to know what is due to happen in that entertaining feud being staged by the Giants, Cards, Cubs and Pirates, the reporter hesitated to intrude the name of a rival organization into the talk again. Then he had a happy thought.

"By the way," he asked. "You played on some pretty sweet Yankee teams yourself. What do you think would happen if time could be arranged so that Ruth, Meusel and the rest of you ancients could be stacked up against this present outfit of Yankee paragon?"

"Well," said Mr. Dugan. "That would have been power against power and good defense against good defense. The way I figure it is that pitching such as Hoyt and Penneck and those others used to give us would have enabled us to have an edge over this year's Yankees but—"

"Joseph," interrupted the reporter. "I see a picture of the 1928 Yankees in back of the bar there. Take a look at it yourself and quit stalling."

Mr. Dugan looked fondly at the Mensels, Ruths, Hoyts, younger Gehrigs and the rest.

"Why," he said then. "I guess you're right. These present Yankees may be a whole league to themselves, but we coulda licked 'em easy."

Freddie Lindstrom and Bill Terry will confer with the probable result being that the once great Giant soon will be playing the Jersey City outfield and assisting Travis Jackson with managerial problems.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

NOTRE DAME'S football team probably will be better next fall than in 1936. More experience and weight and just as much speed. . . Lynn Waldorf says he needs a fullback, two tackles and a center at Northwestern, but smiles when he says it. . . Purdue will have a swell first eleven but, as usual, will lack reserves. . . Minnesota is likely to be close to tops again. . . There will be no considerable improvement at Wisconsin. Friends say that is because Harry Stahl-dreher spends too much time recruiting players from far-off parts and neglects the material around home. . . There also is a rap in for Michigan, where another Notre Dame alumnus holds forth as Harry Kipke's chief assistant. The boys insist Hunk Anderson is great at teaching individual line play but is unable to impart the principles of teamwork.

Hype Igoe, the boxing writer, dotes upon using lead pencils instead of a typewriter and insists upon traveling in upper berths. . . Jack Dempsey says a big heavy-weight fight in New York is worth $40,000 extra money (ten G's a night for four nights) to his restaurant. . . Now that Chicago has had its turn at handling a major sports event Philadelphia and Baltimore no longer can claim first place in the traffic mugging league. . . Solly Seaman, the former lightweight, is one of the best judges of weight in the fight business. A week before the Braddock-Louis affair he guessed the ringside weight of each man within a half a pound. . . Would anybody mind my calling attention to the fact that three months ago this space predicted the net gate for the Louis-Braddock fight would be less than $600,000? . . . Pacific Coast league writers are touting Sacramento's kid shortstop, Joe Oringo, as the best big-time prospect in their circuit. . . Talk about crowds here—Minneapolis hotels already are sold out for the Notre Dame-Minnesota football game that won't be played until next fall.

Archie San Romani is sure he will crack that mile record before the summer is out. Glenn Cunningham agrees with him, as does Don Lash, who recently had his appendix sliced out. . . Garry Le Van is achieving quick success as a Chicago business man. The once slumped quarterback must have gained at least 30 pounds since those 1935 days when he was leading Princeton's Tigers to an unbeaten football season. . . George Moorhouse, who captained the U. S. F. A. eleven against Charlton Athletic at the Polo Grounds recently, performed for the famous Bootle St. James Team and was a schoolboy international star long before he decided to transfer his soccer talents to the United States.

The favorite sport of Ralph Guldahl, National Open golf champion, is football. . . Sylvia Annenberg, the very pretty lady golfer, is preparing for her third new name. . . Titanic Thompson, the eminent Northwestern plunger, started Ky Laffoon on the way to golfing glory. Titanic, who used to astound Broadway with his own golf feats before he decided to remain away from the hot spots more or less permanently, stalked Ky to expense money for his early tournament travels. . . The first golf ball ever owned by Walter Hagen was given to him by a Rochester pro. Walter promptly knocked the thing through a window of his father's farmhouse. Just as promptly the elder Hagen retired him from the game for a year.

Walter Hagen's favorite beverage now, according to Joe Kirkwood, who is touring the world with him, is barley water. Once before Hagen departed from his traditional liquid diet. That was when he drank milk as a press agent stunt. . . Henry Picard once was the victim of a nervous breakdown, something rare in pro golf ranks. . . It is because of a serious minded had spent thirteen hours a day on the lesson text at Charleston. . . Gene Sarazen plans a trip to the Orient late this year and hopes to enter the Japanese Open.

There are more actual competitors in dog shows than in any other sport. A large show such as the Morris and Essex may have as many as 3,000 competitors; small shows seldom drop below 100, the average is 350 and there are more large shows than small ones. . . Although he thought he had retired from public life years ago when he served as a member of the state assembly his friends are insisting that Sol Strauss, the eminent 20th Century Sporting Club attorney, should let his name be presented the next time there is a vacant judgeship.

Tasio Nuvolari, the little Italian, once won a race while driving with his thigh in a plaster cast. Nuvolari, generally rated as the greatest daredevil of them all, now chides his younger teammates for taking unnecessary chances. "You are young and have a long time to live," he told Achilles Varzi recently. "You should not be reckless. I have lived a long time. I can take chances." Nuvolari is in his early forties. He used to carry a copy of his will in his pocket whenever he raced.

4 cups (1 3/4 lbs.) sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin
1. To prepare juice, grind or crush thoroughly about 2 quarts fully ripe berries, (not black caps). Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (If there is a slight shortage of juice, add small amount of water to pulp in jelly cloth and squeeze again.)
Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure juice into a 3 to 4 quart saucepan and place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1/2 minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 7 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

Household Questions

Keeping Brassware Bright—Brass ornaments will remain bright longer if, after polishing, they are given a thin coat of white shellac.
Measuring Sugar—One pound of granulated sugar equals two cups. One pound of powdered or confectioner's sugar equals two and one-half cups.
Banana Toast—Place sliced banana between two slices bread, spread with shortening. Place in baking pan in hot oven until lightly browned.
Why Fans Warp—Aluminum cooking pans are frequently warped out of shape by repeatedly putting cold water in them while they are still hot.
To Prevent Scorching—Leave one small section of a gem pan empty when putting gem batter in pan. Fill this section with water and gems will never scorch.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—just tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Limit on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure by the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed a hitlerio unknown with Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving. Jed suggests that Mark open his part of Lookout House, get friendly with Brooke and try to find out about the will. Jed agrees to stay with him. Mark accepts Brooke's invitation for a family Thanksgiving dinner at Lookout. Mrs. Reburn announces on Thanksgiving eve that she has been invited to England. Sam and Lucette decide to move in with Brooke and Sam plans to produce new play locally. After the Thanksgiving dinner Brooke tells Mark that little of Mrs. Dane's silver collection is left. Jerry Field and his sister Daphne drop in and announce they will be neighbors for the winter. Sam adds them to the cast of his play. Later Inspector Harrison of the local police visits Mark and is informed about the missing will and silver. As Harrison leaves, Lola arrives.

"I don't like the twist you gave that 'lady,' Jed Stewart. Don't shake your head at the Jap, Mark. Why shouldn't I have a cup of tea with you? I'm famished. Place it here."

The servant looked at Mark Trent before he pressed the springs which released the legs of the tray he was carrying and set it before the woman. He brought in a muffin stand with sandwiches and cakes.

"You needn't wait," she dismissed the man as if she were the mistress of the house. Mark nodded confirmation as the Jap's eyes sought his. Did he know that the woman so dictatorially giving orders had been his wife?

Side by side the two men watched her, watched her restless hands. Once she had been told by a stag that her hands were like pale butterflies, Mark remembered, and they had fluttered ever since. In the silence the tick of the clock set the air vibrating; the fire snapped and blazed cheerily; the tide against the ledges boomed a dull undertone.

Lola Hunt flung a crumpled doily to the table.

"Now a cigarette, Mark, and I shall be ready to proceed with my story."

"Sorry, haven't any."

She raised brows which had been plucked to a thin arch.

"You do want to get rid of me, don't you. Well, I strive to please." She rose and crossed to the desk. With a glance over her shoulder, she opened a box of Chinese lacquer.

"You see I still know my way around. Oh, by the way, your aunt's legatee is living at Lookout House, I hear. Henri wrote me—"

"Henri!"

"Yes. I always got on with Henri, perhaps because he knew that I detested your aunt as much as he did. He wrote that Miss Reburn evidently didn't like his wife and himself, asked if I would give him a reference in case they lost the position."

Was that all Henri Jacques had written, Mark wondered. There was a hint of mockery in Lola's voice and eyes. What was behind that letter? He watched her thoughtfully as he perched on the corner of the desk, crossed her knees and lighted a cigarette. She blew a ring of smoke toward the two men standing back to the fire.

"Forgot these were in the box, didn't you, Mark? You really should do something about your memory; it's slipping. Her eyes and voice sharpened. "Well, here's my news. Bert Hunt—the my present husband, in case you've forgotten—is planning to go into business in the residential part of this town, has gone, in fact. I shall help when he's rushed or—indisposed. When I heard that you'd opened this house, I thought perhaps you wouldn't care to have your former wife working—I've been warned that I've been taking chances with my heart—that perhaps you'd like to buy us off. With $20,000 we could go abroad and stay for a time. Don't stand there like a bronze Nemesis ready to swoop. Nothing shameful about any kind of a job these days, is there?"

Mark Trent laughed. It was not an especially merry burst of sound, but it would serve.

"Do you call extortion a job? Nothing doing, Lola. Your heart! You're used your weak heart as an excuse to get what you wanted for years. Why should I deprive the town of Hunt's business ability and so charming an assistant?"

She slid her feet. Her face, which had been blank with amazement at his laugh, went white with anger.

"You mean that you don't mind my working—here?"

© Emilie Loring. WNU Service.

"If it's what you like, why should I? But," his face was as colorless as hers, "if you do stay in this town, the allowance I am making you—purely voluntary—will stop."

"Are you threatening me?"

"Not for a minute. I'm merely reminding you—"

"Then I'll remind you that it may cost you more—"

"Mrs. Gregory, Miss Reburn," murmured Kowa at the door.

Mrs. Gregory registered amazement and anger when she saw Lola. Her skin mottled, her eyes flashed as she thumped her cane on the rug and went into action.

"What are you doing in this house, Lola?"

"I might ask you that," Lola Hunt's eyes moved insolently from her to the girl beside her. "Match-making mayhap? As I remember it was one of your passions." Her glance brought color to Brooke Reburn's face.

"Just as cheap in your answers as ever, aren't you, Lola? Wise-cracking, I believe they call it now. Don't tell me you have taken her back, Mark."

"Taken me back! That's the joke of the week. He couldn't get me back."

Lola Hunt pulled the silver fox cape about her shoulders and drew on the fabric gloves.

"So glad to have met you here, Mrs. Gregory. It will save sending you a card."

Anne Gregory's face took on a purple tint. She thumped her cane on the rug.

"A card! A card to what, you brazen hussy?"

Lola Hunt shrugged. "Don't try to stop her, Mark. She would call a woman who chose to live her life according to modern ideas of marriage a hussy. You'd know that from her clothes, they're so deliciously Victorian. I really must go."

She stopped on the threshold. "Dear Mrs. Gregory, I didn't answer your question, did I? The card to which I referred is an invitation to patronize the business which we have started in my old home on the point. You remember that house, I am sure, remember how you and your friends tried to freeze out the girl who came there to live. She didn't freeze, did she? She burned up a few of the husbands and all the lads. Is it any more shocking for me to go into business than for some of your pet socialites to sponsor cigarettes, soap, or bedding in every magazine in the country?"

"You Do Want to Get Rid of Me, Don't You?"

"You haven't forgotten that nickname, have you, Mark? I like it from you. You use your mother's silver, don't you? By the way, what became of that gorgeous antique service of your aunt's? I haven't seen any of it at Lookout House, Brooke."

The girl felt as if the eyes of both men were regarding her with suspicious intent. She finished filling a cup, added a slice of lemon and two lumps of sugar.

"For Mrs. Gregory, Mr. Stewart. Will you have yours the same strength? Oh, about Mrs. Dane's silver. There isn't any."

"Isn't any? You say there isn't any silver? Where is it, then? Did your aunt rent and give it to you, Mark?"

"No. Miss Reburn and I were wondering about it on Thanksgiving day. Glad you brought up the subject. Aunt Mary Amanda didn't speak of having disposed of it, the day you wit—the last day you saw her, did she?"

Why had Mark Trent floundered in his question? What had he meant by "the day you wit—"? Why change the end of the sentence? Witness was the word he had started to use. What had Mrs. Gregory witnessed?

Even while she was driving Mrs. Gregory home, under a sky already freckled with stars, making what she hoped were intelligent responses to her monologue of question and answer, Brooke was weighing and disposing of conjectures as to the meaning of the Hunt woman's warning. It was with a sense of strain lifted that she helped the older woman out of the car. Mrs. Gregory laid her hand on her arm.

CHAPTER V

Lola Hunt's malicious laugh lingered eerily in the silence which followed her theatrical exit from the room. Somewhere a door closed with a bang which clanged through the house.

Her spiteful warning struck like an irritating burr in Brooke Reburn's mind. She glanced at the two men standing back to the fire; Stewart's eyes, still on the doorway, smoldered with anger; the tortured look in Mark Trent's hurt her unbearably; even with his pride knifed, his courtesy had been invincible. The woman had warned him also. Why think of him, she asked herself angrily. Better have her mind on what Mrs. Hunt had insinuated. Had those two men come to live in this house because they suspected her, Brooke Reburn, of dishonestly influencing Mary Amanda Dane? If so, what could they do about it? Drag her into court? Was that why Inspector Harrison had been with them? It was fantastic, incredible, yet hadn't she wondered times without number why they, city men so obviously, should have come to this village for the winter?

As if her thoughts had drawn his eyes to her, Mark Trent regretted: "Sorry, Miss Reburn, that you should have been bored with a scene."

He pressed a bell beside the fireplace. With a little snort of anger, Anne Gregory settled heavily into a chair and flung back her sable cape. The color of her face suggested a red-hot balloon. Temper and voice blew up.

"How about me, Mark? Do you think I liked meeting that shameless woman here? Shameless! Perhaps I'm too hard on Lola. She was right. We old residents did our best to snub her when she came here to live, and she did have every man in the place parking on her doorstep sooner or later. And what did Lola mean, she hoped I'd patronize the business she and her husband were about to start?"

"She didn't say what sort of business, did she? Let's forget her. Let me take your coat, Miss Reburn." Trent stood behind Brooke as the servant appeared in the doorway.

"Kowa, take out the tray and bring fresh tea."

Mrs. Gregory removed her gloves and resumed cross-examination.

"Did Lola really mean that she and her present husband are going into business in this village?"

"What's strange in that? It's being done every day." Mark Trent crossed his arms on the mantel and stared at the fire.

In spite of her suspicion of his motive in coming to live next door to Lookout House, Brooke's sympathy surged out to him. Why didn't Mrs. Gregory drop the subject of the Hunts? Couldn't she see that he was sick at heart over the whole sordid situation? With more kindness than finesse, Jed Stewart plunged into the breach.

"Has that pair of Japanese goldfish I ordered for you arrived yet, Mrs. Gregory?"

Anne Gregory looked up at him with eyes made shrewd by years of living, by joys, by uprooted affections, by hopes unrealized. She shook her head.

"You can't sidetrack me, young man, even with goldfish. I mean to get at what Lola is after—not merely customers, I am sure of that, she was here to hound Mark, I know her. I'll see that she doesn't get a license to carry on business on this point. I still have influence, Miss Reburn will pour the tea," she directed, as Kowa approached her with the replenished tray.

Involuntarily Brooke looked at Mark Trent. He smiled.

"Please, Stewart and I have given up cocktails, they're too effeminate. We have become tea-minded since we came here. The cup that cheers offsets to a degree the pound of the surf outside. Have a sandwich, Empress?"

"You haven't forgotten that nickname, have you, Mark? I like it from you. You use your mother's silver, don't you? By the way, what became of that gorgeous antique service of your aunt's? I haven't seen any of it at Lookout House, Brooke."

Massed Horse Races

Up to 150 years ago most race tracks around the world permitted all spectators on horses to enter the course and to ride, during the races, directly behind the thoroughbreds. Consequently, says Collier's Weekly, few of these horses ever had their minds on the race. Their only thought was to save their lives—from the thundering and howling mob at their heels.

IT'S THE TRUTH

The editor of this newspaper received a communication Sunday morning from someone who termed himself "Just an HONEST Subscriber" in which he congratulated us on telling the truth. We wish to inform Mr. HONEST Subscriber that we have always tried to tell the truth in everything we write. It may be that sometimes we have indulged in an untruth but far be it from us to have done so intentionally. It is our aim and ambition to publish a newspaper of which Loraine citizens will be proud to claim as their home town newspaper. We would not be guilty of telling an untruth if we knew it. Thanks Mr. HONEST Subscriber for your kind words. The letter follows:

Someplace
July 10, 1937

Mr. J. W. King
Editor Mitchell County News
Loraine, Texas
Dear Mr. King:

Allow me to congratulate you on telling the truth!

There is absolutely no falsity in your statement written in your recent article about the Loraine baseball team having to resign because of lack of backing by the Loraine Bum Sports.

You only made one error in saying that the Loraine Poor Losers would back ONLY winning baseball teams. They feel that way about any sport.

I am a regular subscriber to the Mitchell County News and before this baseball article, I have never paid a great amount of attention to it. But you have sold me on this little newspaper now that you have shown me you are not afraid to tell the people of Loraine that they are Hard Losers. I'm for your little TRUTHFUL JOURNAL one hundred percent.

Just an HONEST Subscriber We are sorry Mr. HONEST Subscriber that Loraine sport fans are poor losers. It is regrettable that our baseball team had to quit because of non-support and we hope our poor loser fans will want to see any kind of game bad enough to help to organize another team and support it even though it is not a winning team. Any team cannot win all of the time and sport fans should be sports enough to realize it and sports enough to pat the players and the manager on the back and tell them they are behind them and hope they will be able to do better next time. You know, though, Mr. HONEST Subscriber that it is the habit of most men to kick anything that is down rather than extending a helping hand. When this newspaper fails to come up to the usual standard or if it fails to get a news item these same poor losers are ready to call the editor a lazy bum instead of calling him on the telephone and telling him about the news and encouraging him to do better.

This is a cruel world Mr. HONEST Subscriber. Most men care only for themselves. If they can make a dollar they hope their competitor across the street lost two. This is a sorry plight but it is almost that bad for a fact.

Mr. HONEST Subscriber, would you believe we were telling the truth if we said "Loraine is just as good a town as it is possible to make it." Would you believe us if we said "Loraine merchants are the most progressive in the country." Would you believe us if we told you "Loraine merchants really want and appreciate their home town newspaper because they support it to the very best of their ability." Would you believe us if we told you that "Some Loraine merchants will not even subscribe for their home paper." Would you believe us if we told you that "Some Loraine merchants (?) buy all of their printing from printers who live far removed from Loraine and never spend a dime in Loraine for anything." Would you believe us if we told you that "Some Loraine merchants are smarter than the heads of the largest business institutions in the world who spend money for advertising their wares—some Loraine merchants do not believe it pays to advertise their merchandise." Would you believe us Mr. HONEST Subscriber if we told you that "Loraine business institutions of all kinds are doing all they can to expand the Loraine trade territory." Would you believe us if we told you that "Most Loraine business men do not care a hoot about a chamber of commerce or any other organization designed to build a better town."

Write us again Mr. HONEST Subscriber when you think we tell the truth or an untruth.

Those who think of you invariably recall something you have said or done. A fool defends himself when he knows he is wrong. Enemies come only from those you dislike. Don't try to find a reason for everything you do. The way to get out of your head is to keep another on your mind. Better give inspiration than expiration.

CHAIRMAN OF STATE BOARD REVIEWS PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURAL PROGRAM

College Station—The state AAA office has received 188,370 worksheets under the Agricultural Conservation Program from 213 counties, according to George Slaughter, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee. Of the 213 counties 173, with 153,005 worksheets, in 1937, as compared with 153,105 in 1936, are complete.

Heavy participation in the range conservation feature of the program was indicated as Slaughter announced that applications covering 18,306 ranches, totaling 62,744,827 acres, had been received. Range inspectors, who are checking the grazing capacity of these ranches, are expected to complete their work during July. The work sheets from 20 of the 173 complete counties have been analyzed and the quotas for these counties have been determined. Tabulations on five additional counties have been carried through and figures from these counties are ready for analysis by the statistical unit, Slaughter said.

Compliance under the 1937 program is already under way in South Texas, according to Slaughter, and 12 instructional meetings are scheduled on this phase of the program. Eight recheck engineers are supervising the compliance work in the field and will visit all counties in which farms are affected by the Agricultural Conservation Program.

Uncle Jim Says

"Winter cover crops hold rainfall, check soil losses through erosion and leaching, and provide early spring pasture several weeks before permanent pastures are ready for grazing."

Dairymen who have planted winter cover crops of oats, barley, Italian rye grass, and similar small grains or grasses, have long noticed that the fields devoted to this purpose are more fertile than other fields which remain bare during the winter.

Over a large portion of the State, erosion does its worst during the winter, when heavy rainfall on unprotected fields allows a high loss of soil.

In addition to offering protection against loss of rainfall and soil, winter cover crops offer green roughage at a time when livestock need it the most.

Which Is the Beauty?

First glances at the Most Beautiful and Most Popular girls at Texas State College for Women leave some doubt as to which is which, since both could well qualify for beauties. However, facts reveal that Miss Irene Pyle, left, is the lovely lady, and Miss Judith Stegman, right, was elected most popular. Miss Pyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pyle of Celeste, is a senior English major. Miss Stegman, whose home is in Brownsville, is active in college dramatics and will receive her degree in Speech this August.

WEEKLY HEALTH LETTER

Austin, Texas, July 12.—Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, states that infantile paralysis, like typhoid fever, is largely a summer disease. Although cases may occur during any month of the year, over half the total number come in July, August, September and October. To date, 69 cases of poliomyelitis have been reported to the State Health Department in 1937.

Direct contact between persons is regarded as being the chief factor in the spread of infantile paralysis. Because of the seasonal prevalence of the disease, flies and other insects have been suspected of conveying the virus or germ. Insect transmission has not, however, been demonstrated. Although animals are subject to paralysis, they are seemingly not susceptible to the human type of this paralytic disease. Carriers are difficult to determine; this fact makes advisable the reduction to a minimum of human contact during an outbreak.

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis comprise headache, fever, vomiting, bowel disorder, drowsiness and irritability, followed by neck or back stiffness. Prompt medical care, early recognition and reporting of cases make possible the use of valuable preventive and control measures.

After the acute state of the disease has passed and walking is finally permitted the patient, under no circumstances must the affected part be fatigued. It is thus observed that the secret of successful rehabilitation lies in continuance of professional guidance and large doses of patience.

Children under five are more susceptible to the disease and all children under 12 should be watched for suspicious symptoms. There are important things to do when a child shows symptoms. Your family physician should be called at once and physicians should report all cases to the health authorities immediately. When the disease occurs all cases should be isolated for 21 days. All milk should be boiled unless it is pasteurized.

Children should not visit homes where the disease exists or there are symptoms of it. Flies should be killed and their breeding places destroyed. Promptness in diagnosis of poliomyelitis is important in preventing spread of the disease.

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

Clean Comics That Will Amuse Both Old and Young

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for July 18

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 3:13-16; 4:10-16; 5:1. GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord will give strength unto his people.—Psalm 29:11. PRIMARY TOPIC—When Moses Was Afraid. JUNIOR TOPIC—Moses Made Ambassador. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—God Stands by His Workers. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Strong in the Strength of God.

Never in a hurry! Who? God! He needed a human leader to bring his chosen people up out of the bondage of Egypt and he spent 80 years getting him ready—40 years learning all the wisdom of Egypt, and 40 years learning the lessons of God, patience and humility, on the back side of the desert.

Infinite and omnipotent is God and he may move with faster-than-lightning speed. But usually we find him working out his blessed purposes, normally, quietly, but always "on time."

Our lesson brings before us the meeting with God which preceded the appearance of Moses as the head of the nation of Israel in its mighty conflict with Pharaoh. We find him first proceeding with commendable care but then going on in unfortunate humility which amounted almost to unbelief and which resulted in the substitution of his brother Aaron as his spokesman, but eventually we do see him going about his difficult task with resolution and courage.

I. Justifiable Caution (Exod. 3:13-16). Neither God nor man dare entrust a high and difficult commission to a foolish man who brusquely "rushes in where angels fear to tread." The fact that one feels fully and unhesitatingly qualified to take over such a responsibility is almost a certain indication that he is not the man to assume it.

The ambassador must have credentials. When "they shall say"—what an important and difficult situation that creates. The one who speaks for God must expect not only the scornful bitterness of God's enemies, but also the unbelieving questions of those he seeks to serve.

"What shall I say?" asks Moses, and God answers that he may say that "I AM" had sent him. This name of God reveals him as the eternal, independent, self-sufficient, self-existent, immutable, personal being. Consider, Christian brethren, whose we are and whom we serve. Here indeed is "inspiration in excess of duty," real equipment for Christian life and service.

But Moses seems to be unable to see beyond his own human infirmity even in the light of such a glorious revelation, supplemented as it was by miraculous powers, and we find him showing an

II. Unjustified Humility (Exod. 4:10-12). When God calls a man he knows his limitations—why then should one plead them as an excuse for not serving? The excuse of Moses that he was not a fluent speaker has been the stand-by of unwilling workers all through the ages. When asked to lead a prayer meeting, teach a Sunday School class, conduct a young people's meeting, thousands have lamely thus excused themselves and missed a blessing.

The perfect answer of God in v.11 merits attention. God made your mouth and mine. He gives us the eloquence of polished rhetorical periods, or the flights of man's imagination. He wants but the incomparable eloquence of his own words on our lips. Dr. Richard Ellsworth Day in "Bush Aglow" rightly points out that this was the secret of the power of D. L. Moody.

III. Unnecessary Substitution (Exod. 4:13-16). Loving and patient is our God, but there is a boundary line to that patience. Moses went too far in his humility and reflected on the ability of God, who promptly substituted Aaron as the spokesman.

Gracious was He in thus providing a helper for Moses. But one wonders what Moses missed of blessing and power because of his slowness of heart.

IV. "Afterward" (Exod. 5:1). Commissioned, bearing credentials from the infinite and eternal "I AM," and with a strong and eloquent brother by his side, Moses stands before Pharaoh to say in God's name, "Let my people go." Preparation and the holy privilege of fellowship with God are to make us ready for service. While it is folly to go unprepared, it is double folly to prepare and then fail to go when God commands.

Morning and Evening Prayer. It is well to let prayer be the first employment in the morning and the last in the evening.—M. Luther.

As He Sees Us. As we come to know ourselves through and through, we come to see ourselves more as God sees us.

The Curse of Progress

Food for Thought "I am sixty years old," said the rich old man to his friend's wife. "Do you think it would be better for me to tell a certain woman whom I should like to marry that I am fifty?" "Well, to be perfectly frank, I thought your prospects of getting her would be better if you told her you were seventy-five!" — Washington Post.

Result of Investigations "Dennis," said the boss to his office boy, "you are late this morning. What is the trouble?" "I had to go to court this morning, where they were investigating a little occurrence, that happened last night." "Well, did they find anything?" "Yes, they fined me."

Chic Swim Suits and Deck Fashions

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FICKLE fashion? Maybe so, but decidedly practical and dependable when occasion demands.

shirt outfit is genuinely amphibian—takes to water like a duck and when it comes to setting a fashion pace on dry land it is all that it should be.

If you want to show up colorfully in fashion's swim and beach parade by all means choose a flamboyant print. Designers land print this season for the entire outfit, swim suit, matching beach coat, accessories in everything, even to the very sandals one wears.

To fashionables who go in for aquatic sports here is a message to delight the imagination. It's concerning the wide use of costume jewelry being made this season by those who go forth to brave the surf.

The idea is to wear pinned here and there on your swim suit frogs, turtles, or decorative fish hand-carved from rich white catalin. See the cunning little lady to the right in the picture. Her clever play-suit is of Congo cloth with gray, white and red striped halter and gray shorts trimmed with same striping.

A hand-carved frog of handsome white catalin blinks at you from the edge of her amusing coconut husk hat, another frog is pinned to her halter bodice while a third pins casually to one side near her waistline.

GAY SILK PRINT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

As the season progresses the fascination of silk prints leads on and on to acquire another and another "just one more."

NEW SUMMER SUITS FAVOR EMBROIDERY

Heim has gone in for embroidered details on spring and summer suits. One black tailored suit in black wool has a straight little skirt and a tailored and fitted jacket that fastens high at the neck with a cut-out and embroidered design of a bird in a cage.

A more summery suit is grege (between gray and beige) shantung. The skirt is made with front pleats that are stitched down to the knees and then pressed into place.

Skirts Shorter and Fuller

Shorter, fuller skirts are shown in the new Chanel collection and waistlines are slightly dropped to give a more youthful silhouette.

Tulle, laces and sheer organdies are shown in white and in pastel shades for summery evening gowns that are fashioned with full, bouffant skirts to stress the youthful and girlish trend.

Nassau Hats for Beach

Those picturesque colorful hats worn by dusky market women of Nassau and Havana have influenced beach hat fashions.
