FFA Parent-Son Banquet Held At Burk High

The annual Parent-Son banquet of the Burk Burnett chapter of Future Farmers of America was held April 7, at Burk Burnett High School cafeteria.

Chapter guests were welcomed by Steve Cozby with Charles Fletcher making the introductions. Each member introduced his parents.

Guest speaker, Jim Harwell was introduced by vice president, Kenny Bob Roberts. Mr. Harwell is a former Burk Burnett resident. He is manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce.

Speaking of the fantastic changes that have and will take place in agriculture, Harwell told of mesquite and screw-worm eradication and of plants grown in chemically treated soil which will result in the plants consuming bugs instead of being consumed by them.

He advised FFA members to practice 'impatient patience' in farming and in life.

President, Garry Don Koenig presented the chapter awards. Chapter Star Farmer award went to Charles Fletcher, who then presented Koenig with the Public Speaking Award. Other awards were: Dairy Farming, Charles Klinkerman; Poultry Farming, Gary Mullin; Soil and Water Management, Larry Sullivan; Farm Mechanics, Kenny Bob Roberts; Crop Farming, Tony Landers; Farm Electrification, Jerry Bradley; Livestock Farming, Allen Green; Ornamental Horticulture, Hubert Smith; Star Green Hand, Steve Cozby. Farm Safety Award was won by Rickey Morris who displayed a broken arm which was not the result of a farm accident.

AGAINST THE GRAIN

A short time ago, a meeting was held in Spokane to protest a proposal that the cost of federal meat inspection be shifted from the federal government to the meat industry itself. Industry executives, along with farm leaders and state officials attended. The sponsors were the National Independent Meat Packers Association, the Western State Meat Packers Association and the American Meat Institute.

The case made for maintaining the present system, whereby the government which does the regulating also pays the costs of such regulation, was a convincing one. A spokesman for the independent packers observed that meat inspection is not a voluntary but a mandatory matter and is "basically a service on behalf of the general public." And a representative of the Institute stressed an all-important point when he said that, "it is wrong in principle and contrary to the public interest when a regulatory agency of the government is paid for by the industry it regulates."

Government regulates all manner of activities and enterprises — the utilities, transportation, the securities business, food and drugs, and so on. In every case, government pays, and always has paid, the costs. That is precisely as it should be. This regulation is conducted in what is believed to be the public interest. Meat inspection falls into exactly the same category. The proposed cost-shifting legislation is without merit or justification, and it goes straight against the grain of any sound regulatory principle.

TIME TO THROW THE SWITCH

"It's time to throw the switch on public power," Thus observes Barron's, National Business and Financial Weekly. And its lengthy editorial has to do with the Rural Electrification Administration and its co-ops.

As Barron's put it, "With the enthusiastic support of the federal bureaucracy, public power at the local level, notably through projects financed by the Rural Electrification Administration, lately has been running wild." It has been doing that despite the fact that now 98 per cent of all our farms are electrified.

So REA and the co-ops seeking new worlds to conquer, have been moving or attempting to move into service areas which have no discernible relationship to rural electrification. This situation was dramatically illustrated by a recent decision of the Colorado Supreme Court. There a $30.5 million power plant has been built, of which $22 million was advanced by the REA. The Court has declared this plant to be illegal. And the main reason given by the Court is that the plant was "... constructed only for the purpose of providing service to substitute for that already being rendered."

The Colorado Court has provided a long-needed roadblock against REA co-op efforts to raid territories served with complete adequacy by taxpaying, publicly-regulated systems. In any event, it is certainly time that Congress and all other agencies involved threw the switch on more tax-eating, tax-consuming public power.

THE WORD IS "PHENOMENAL"

Gas is among the oldest of American industries — this year it celebrates its 150th Anniversary. But nowadays it is a vastly different sort of enterprise, measured by any standard, than it was in the comparatively recent past.

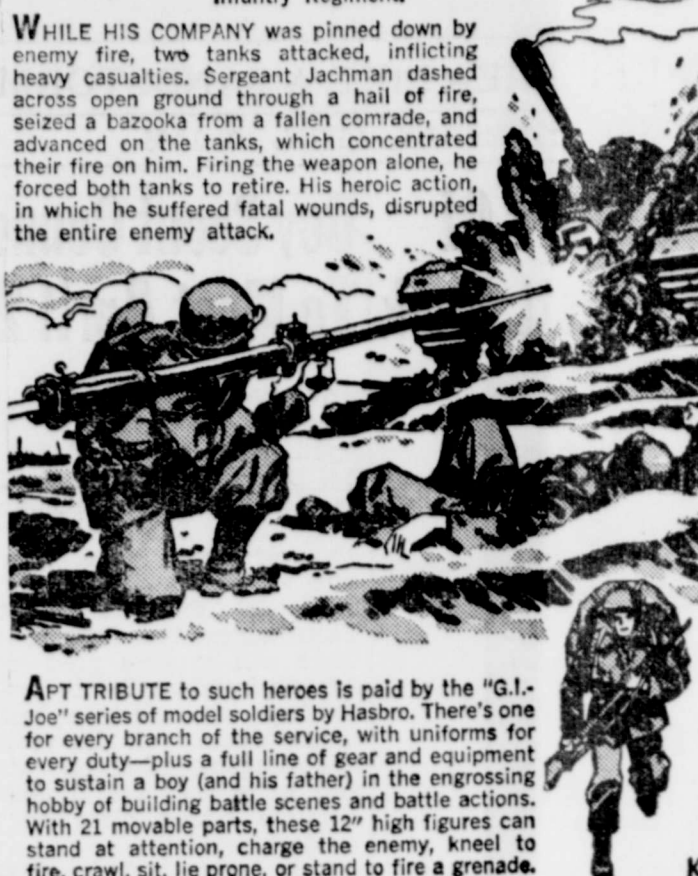

Throughout most of its long history, the industry provided its customers with manufactured gas. It was known that natural gas was a superior fuel, but the sources of supply were generally far away from the important centers of consumption. The technological breakthrough permitting the manufacture of strong thin-walled pipe made possible the construction of pipelines. Reaching like fingers into all areas of the nation, they brought about revolutionary change. Natural gas now accounts for nearly all — 98.8 per cent to be precise — of total gas sales.

The growth of this industry over the last decade is often described as "phenomenal" — and this is a case where that powerful word is certainly justified. The number of customers increased from 28.5 million in 1955 to over 37 million at the beginning of 1966. Sales rose a smashing 81.5 per cent during that period. And all the projections point to continued dramatic growth.

Last, but certainly not least, the vast majority of gas customers are served by taxpaying, regulated, investor-owned utilities. They are good citizens of their communities. And they represent private enterprise at its dynamic best.

The Mark of Bravery

GREAT PERSONAL bravery played an integral part in the winning of World War II. Staff Sergeant Isador Jachman takes his place with the bravest Americans who were honored with the Medal of Honor during that appalling war. He was cited for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at Flamierge, Belgium, on January 4, 1945, while a member of Company B, 513th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

WHILE HIS COMPANY was pinned down by enemy fire, two tanks attacked, inflicting heavy casualties. Sergeant Jachman dashed across open ground through a hail of fire, seized a bazooka from a fallen comrade, and advanced on the tanks, which concentrated their fire on him. Firing the weapon alone, he forced both tanks to retire. His heroic action, in which he suffered fatal wounds, disrupted the entire enemy attack.

APT TRIBUTE to such heroes is paid by the "G.I. Joe" series of model soldiers by Hasbro. There's one for every branch of the service, with uniforms for every duty—plus a full line of gear and equipment to sustain a boy (and his father) in the engrossing hobby of building battle scenes and battle actions. With 21 movable parts, these 12" high figures can stand at attention, charge the enemy, kneel to fire, crawl, sit, lie prone, or stand to fire a grenade.

TOO SICK TO WORK?

As the result of a stroke, Mary suffered permanent disability in one hand. This made it impossible for her to carry on her usual job in a textile mill. So she put in a claim for disability benefits under the Federal Social Security Act.

However, her claim was turned down. Reason: she was still able to perform other jobs in the mill which were open to her.

Generally speaking, the Social Security Act does provide monthly cash payments to an eligible workman with a long term disability. The purpose is to "bridge the gap" until he is old enough to collect retirement benefits.

But when is a person sufficiently disabled to qualify for aid? The law seeks to help those truly in need, yet not those who in all fairness could still earn their own living.

Thus, you ordinarily cannot collect benefits if your handicap is one that could be remedied with a reasonable exercise of will power.

In one case a man was suffering from back pains, too severe to allow him to work. However, it appeared that his condition could be greatly improved if he would diet off some excess poundage.

Under these circumstances, a court held he was not disabled in the sense that the law meant — and therefore he did not qualify for disability payments.

Another rule, illustrated by Mary's case above, is that you are not disabled merely because you can no longer do exactly the same job you have done in the past. The law expects you to take an alternative job, if you are fitted for it.

On the other hand, the law does not expect you to seek work beyond your capacities. For example:

A workman, forced by injuries to give up manual labor, was still physically able to do clerical work at a desk. But he had neither the education nor the experience for it. Therefore, a court held him sufficiently disabled to qualify for benefits.

Nor must you seek a kind of work which you could do only at the cost of grievous pain and effort. As one judge put it, the law should not be applied so sternly that it would aid only the "totally helpless and bed-ridden" and "those at death's door."

Residents Hear
Speaker At Town Meeting Monday

"We kept tourists in Texas an average of four hours and 48 minutes less in 1964 than in 1963 and it cost us 7½ million dollars." So spoke George Jordan, Director of Tourist Development of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at the monthly Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

The noon speaking engagement was one of four in Burkburnett on Monday for Mr. Jordan. He conducted two workshops for employees and employers and a general meeting at Town Hall in the evening.

Recreation is the third largest industry in the United States, according to Jordan, but not in Texas. A bill was introduced in the 1961 Legislature to provide tax money to advertise Texas, but failed. One supporting legislator was credited with saying, "It's just as well. Looking around, I think it might be a good idea to fix up the joint a little before we invite people in for dinner."

Was this statement true? Mr. Jordan traveled 25,000 miles as a "Texas Tourist" to find out. One startling discovery made by Jordan was the almost complete lack of interest or knowledge on the part of "Service Industry People," to learn and know the product to be sold to tourists. Even though there exists a tourist gold mine in every backyard in West Texas!

The clinics conducted by Mr. Jordan on "Selling and Servicing the Tourists" were developed to reach the primary contact — people engaged in the three basic service industries who serve the traveling public—the service station industry, the food industry and the hotel/motel industry.

Those attending the clinics Monday were asked by Jordan, "What is happening in (or near) Burkburnett that might be of interest to visitors?" Replies were at first slow until those present began to think of Burkburnett, their town, as a place where visitors might stop with time and tourist dollars to spend.

As suggestions were given, Jordan listed them on a blackboard. Surprise was expressed at the length of the list—the collective, cooperative thoughts of those attending.

A visit to Burkburnett's unusual gun shop, watching RCA cowboys work out, viewing oil wells and cattle, water skiing, boating, fishing, skating, bowling, club make-up meetings and attending church were some suggestions listed.

"One of the biggest mistakes we make," said Jordan, "is not inviting visitors to attend the church of their choice while in our community."

"Tourists are home folks away from home." This was perhaps the most significant conclusion reached by those participating.

MAKE BREAKFAST A FAMILY MEAL

Week we had you smiling, as you said "cheese." week you may be groaning over the subject of getting child to eat breakfast. Well, youngest son used to re- when he was five years old, "life." We never found where he learned it.

Children's breakfasts are a in many households, for reasons. One is that the trends are permitted to into a problem, instead being anticipated and pre- The other—well, let's talk about wrong trends. should a child dutifully nutritious breakfast under following conditions:

The various members of the family get up at different times and breakfast on their own time; some don't eat any break- est; others take a cup of coffee; nobody talks to anybody else it can be avoided; everybody follows his own pattern of breakfast; they all expect Jimmy or Gus to do as they say, not as they do; the only way to get attention is to keep mother worried. Under such conditions, any in- child can hardly be and if he makes a project not eating.

fast with fruit or juice, milk, and cereal one day, eggs another, bacon or sausage another, an occasional omelette or chipped beef in cream, or waffles or french toast or pancakes, should tempt both children and adults, provided...

Provided, there is an atmos- phere of courtesy and good hu- mor pervading the occasion. One hardly expects, or desires, ex- uberant and effervescent brilli- ance at the breakfast table. But the morning grouch so fondly nursed by many who boast that they don't come alive until after 10 a.m., is just as much out of place.

Mother The Key

Mother is the key person. If, even before her first child, she establishes good breakfast hab- its as a part of the process of civilizing her husband, the chil- dren are more likely to follow their parents' example, and the problem is less likely to arise.

The second reason a child's breakfast may be a problem in some households is that mothers are too prone to worry if a child doesn't eat everything put before him. This may be a carry-over from the "clean plate" fallacy, which was touted as a "health hab- it" some years ago. There are times when a clean plate can make a rebellious tummy. Grown folks don't eat when they don't feel like it? Neither do animals. Why should children? As long as it does not become a habit, an occasional "Mommy, I'm not hun- gry," should be passed off without a fuss. If it becomes habitual, a doctor may be needed.

Need A Good Used Car? Now Is The Season To Shop

Spring cleaning isn't just the job of diligent housewives. Car dealers do it, too.

In the spring they make a special effort to clear their lots and showrooms for the arrival of next year's models. Their buys on used cars are especially good.

It takes more than an ideal shopping season, though, to get a dependable used car. Several other principles apply:

Think first and save some shoe leather—Daydream about the car you'd like, being specifi- cally about make, model and equip- ment. It's a good idea to avoid a used car overloaded with ex- tras; repair bills can skyrocket if they get out of commission. It's advisable, too, to stay with- in the three-year limit. Often, cars older than three years start having problems disproportionate- ate to their years.

Most women prefer compact cars that are lively, long on mileage, and easy to maneuver. Choosing a popular model makes it easy to get replace- ment parts.

Top off your thinking process by reading the classified ads. They'll give you a good idea of what kind of car is going for what average price. As you shop, you can compare the of- fers you get with the facts from your market research.

Shop the most reputable deal- ers — It's wise to avoid a pri- vate sale unless you're really sure of the car and the owner. By going to a well-respected large-volume dealer, you'll get a broad guarantee on the car you buy—in legible, understand- able black and white. A 60-day guarantee is best, although 30 days will give you enough time to discover any problems you're entitled to have solved free. Be- ware of two-day guarantees or other painfully short assurances.

Good shoppers usually make the rounds BEFORE they're ready to buy. If a dealer knows exactly what you're looking for, he can watch his stock and let you know when something promising comes in.

Inspect the body and interior of each car you consider—Rust patches on a fender can't posi- tively tell you the condition of the engine. If the surface fea- tures of a car show unusual wear, though, the mechanism has probably had hard treat- ment, too. Check for excessive wear on foot pedals, arm rests, and upholstery especially.

After the inside-and-out in- spection, stand back and take a long look. Does the body set too low on the chassis? Do the doors sag? Does the car lean to one side or the other 'Yes' to any of these questions, and you'd better look at another car.

Check specifics — Be sure that lights, directional signals, radio, heater, horn and wipers work.

Examine the tires. If they're smooth or unevenly worn, you would need new ones—immed- iately.

Check the oil. If it's molasses- thick, watery or laced with gas- oiline, it can indicate serious en- gine trouble.

Be sure the brakes are firm and, as a last test, gun the motor to see if any blue smoke comes from the exhaust. Blue smoke usually shows the need for new piston rings, a costly repair.

Take a test ride. Go fast and slow, over rough roads and smooth; listen intently for strange noises. If the car shim- mys, shakes, or veers to one side or the other, the trouble can be anything from weak springs to worn-out shock ab- sorbers—also expensive to re- place. If the brakes squeak, chatter or grab, if there's too much play in the steering wheel or if you find any other major trouble, insist on repairs before you buy.

Double check — Before you sign the final papers, get an impartial professional opinion of the car—from a mechanic you know and trust or, better yet, from an automotive diagnostic lane operated by such compan- ies as American Oil. At a diag- nostic lane, machines, not peo- ple, will examine the car and tell you precisely what condi- tion it's in.

INSTANT FISH FRY

A trick some cooks use is to clean and fillet fish. Then, be- fore freezing roll filets in fa- vorite cracker crumbs (or what have you) mixture and freeze. Individual wrapping keeps pieces from sticking together. No mess to prepare next time. Just thaw and set a fire under a dandy bait supply.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Don Craig of Odessa, Texas, are happy to an- nounce the birth of a baby girl, Kelly Dawn, on March 25, 1966. Mrs. Craig is the former Judy Hofacket of Burkburnett. Grandparents of the new baby are Mr. and Mrs. Don Hofacket of Wichita Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Craig of Burkburnett.

BEE NEST

Only ice fishermen would figure out that in their fishing time a bees nest is full of dor- mant bees. Take nest lang and pull bees out one at a time for a dandy bait supply.

Mrs. Pat Dunn Spoke Recently To Boomtown Jaycee's

Speaking recently to Boomtown Jaycees about the possibility of forming a Jaycee Wives Organization, Mrs. Pat Dunn, wife of president elect Aderan Dunn, read the following:

A Jaycee Wife is many things to many people. She can be a housewife, a typist, a clerk, a banker, a watch-dog or a club woman. She is called Mrs. Smith, Darling, Tootsie, My Dear, the Old Lady and Hey You. She can be found in the kitchen baking, in the yard raking or on the phone talking.

A Jaycee Wife can be as understanding and as demanding as anything in the world. She can scrounge around the house for an hour looking for a lost article, but can tell you exactly where you put your Jaycee Pin the minute you ask. She knows more secrets and more Jaycee Wives than anyone.

A Jaycee Wife is Cinderella with cold cream on her face, Marilyn Monroe in shorts and Raggedy Ann in her best dress. Most of all, a Jaycee Wife is heaven and earth rolled up into one.

Jaycee Wives are assorted into the long, the short, the fat (pleasingly plump) and the skinny (trim.) No matter which one you married she is certain to be just the right kind.

A Jaycee Wife can giggle more, dance longer, talk more seriously and spend less time dressing than any other wife in the world.

She manages to be quietest when you want her to talk, loudest when you are trying to think and the most tender when you've had a bad day at the office.

She can cause you worry, grief, joy, sorrow, satisfaction and delight.

She can forget the breakfast dishes entirely while watching morning TV, smash the family car, spend your money and compare you to a half dozen men.

Yet when there is no one left in the world to say a kind word, when you have been a fool too often, when it looks as though there is nothing left but your shattered dreams; she can pick up your spirits and your broken dreams and fit them together with no trouble at all by just holding your hand and saying, "Darling, I love you best of all."

THIS IS A JAYCEE WIFE!

Self-Help Has Virtues To Highly Commend It

Reprinted from The Mobile, Alabama, Register, Wednesday, March 16, 1966.

In these days of so much eager-beaver handout from the federal treasury and so much eager-beaver competition to ride high on the receiving end of the totem pole, enthusiasm over the country for the self-help example of a town in President Lyndon Johnson's home state of Texas unfortunately will be limited.

Nevertheless, U.S. Sen. John G. Tower of Texas thinks so much of it that he commends it as a model for other similar towns whose people are interested enough and industrious enough to solve their own urban problems.

Burkburnett is the town. Founded in 1907 on the edge of the Texas-Oklahoma border, it has a population of several thousand. Senator Tower says its do-it-yourself efforts:

"Under a community improvement program sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Sears, Roebuck Foundation, the people here have proved how resourceful a town can be in solving its local problems by its own actions."

A library became the first project, a site for which already has been donated. With a committee organized to push for construction of the library, other projects were begun," the senator relates:

"A campaign to clean up litter in the town brought out the men's clubs, schoolchildren, the high school student council, the Community Service Council, and the Boy Scouts. This campaign continues. Members of the ministry in the town mounted actors and cleared vacant lots of rubble and litter."

"Other ambitious projects are under way. I am proud to say that none of them lack volunteers, nor enthusiasm, nor interest."

There is no doubt in anyone's mind, says Mr. Tower, that Burkburnett is a "better place in which to live." In addition to the beneficial things either accomplished or under way, the program is a source of civic pride and satisfaction among citizens because they have "acted in their own behalf," the senator suggests.

This, of course, is not the first or only town that has earned applause for self-help.

Other examples can be found in various parts of the nation. But it is regrettable that these examples are not more numerous, and that enthusiasm for them is not greater and more extensive.

Obviously and unquestionably, both room and need exist for federal assistance in some public service fields. To the extent that this is true, it is proper not only to welcome this assistance but to solicit it.

But when federal handouts reaches the excess of discouraging local initiative, encouraging too much dependence on "something for nothing," and opening the floodgates for increasing dictation from Washington, D.C., in affairs which Thomas Jefferson called "home concerns," it is time to stop, look and take heed.

The more done at the local level within the capacity of citizens to help themselves, the less will be the temptation to go to Washington, D.C., for assistance which ultimately might be recognized as a mistake.

It is easy to say, "Let Washington do it," but unnecessary turning to Washington for assistance gives unwelcome acceleration to federal handoutism.

4-H'ers Look After Time, Money, Skills

New Management Project Shows How

"Work smarter . . . not harder," advises Mary Ann Dean, home economist. "Think, plan ahead, compare, evaluate your time, talents and cash before you take on any major projects around the house."

Miss Dean's comments are directed to 4-H Club members about to embark on the new 4-H Home Management program announced by the National 4-H Service Committee in cooperation with the Extension Service.

The practical home-based program was designed to fill a need of older club members, and was a couple of years in the planning stage. Miss Dean, a staff member of the 4-H Service Committee, also disclosed that a national sponsor has been secured to provide awards and other assistance to the program. Tupperware Home Parties of Orlando, Fla. is the new sponsor.

Annual awards will consist of eight $500 scholarships (national winners); one expense-paid trip per state to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, and four gold filled medals of honor per county.

Winners will be announced next fall by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Miss Dean urges girls, and boys too, to take up home management now. The idea behind this modern program for the older teenager is to learn to make the best possible use of your resources, energy, knowledge and ability.

"When about half of today's

Miss Linda Lopez, 17, (far right) a Chicago 4-H Club member, and her mother, Mrs. Jesse Lopez (center) a volunteer leader, were among the first to hear about the new 4-H Home Management program just announced by the National 4-H Service Committee and the Cooperative Extension Service. Miss Mary Ann Dean, home economist, tells them about the program's aims and that annual awards will be provided by Tupperware Home Parties, the new sponsor. Linda and her mother have been in 4-H since clubs were first started in Chicago nine years ago.

homemakers are young (under 28) it is imperative that home-makers and parents of tomorrow be ready to spend wisely," she adds.

Through the 4-H Home Management program, high school-age students will better understand the many aspects of shopping, banking, financing and decision-making. This knowledge can be put to good use in college, on a job or in the home, Miss Dean remarked. Information on how to take part in the 1966 program can be obtained from the county extension 4-H office.

While wood plank-and-beam construction is best noted as a combination roof structure and ceiling, it can also form a highly efficient floor system.

For the latter use, solid wood beams are placed horizontally and widely spaced above four-ply decking, which covers the beams, serves as a structural element while providing a comfortable walking surface. Predominant Southern Pine is well adapted to such applications.

Health and Safety Tips From AMA

From The American Medical Association

If your blood has too few cells or too little hemoglobin, you have anemia. Hemoglobin is the red coloring substance in the red cells.

A favorite self-diagnosis by people who do not feel well is anemia. Although more often than not this sort of diagnosis is completely wrong, anemia is a serious health problem.

The symptoms of anemia typically include fatigue, shortness of breath, lack of energy and a generally washed out feeling. However, the presence of one or more of these symptoms does not justify a self-diagnosis of anemia.

Anemia can have various causes — improper diet, poor absorption of food, excessive or chronic bleeding, injury to the bone marrow, certain parasites and infections. Whatever the cause, it isn't safe to make your own diagnosis and to treat yourself. Only a physician can determine what is causing your anemia, and can then prescribe treatment.

The function of the hemoglobin in your blood is to pick up oxygen from the air you breathe in and carry it to all your body tissues, as well as to carry carbon dioxide from these tissues to the lungs to be breathed out. If anemia reduces the number of red cells and the amount of hemoglobin, the blood can't carry enough oxygen to supply your body's needs.

Unless you have some abnormal condition, you can prevent nutritional anemia by eating a variety of nourishing foods. There are all sorts of products on the market that are advertised to supplement your diet and correct nutritional deficiencies. None should be used unless you have been examined by a doctor and he has prescribed some particular product for your particular deficiency. Otherwise, the odds are great that you are wasting your money, with the risk of overdosing yourself with more nutrients than your body needs.

If you suspect that you are anemic, see your doctor. He will first determine whether you actually are anemic, and, if so, what is the cause. Then he will be able to prescribe treatment.

LOOKING HER BEST FOR

Easter

Easter is a day of conquest... a day of new life... a day of beginnings... This is the day that our Saviour arose in a mighty triumph over the grave. This is a day of joy... a day to remember... a day to attend services in the church that our Lord loved so much, but even though we all want to dress up and look our best for this special day it is not the most important part, for God does not look on outward appearances, but looks on the heart.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

DESIGN FOR SOFT LIVING: POP SMOCKED PILLOWS

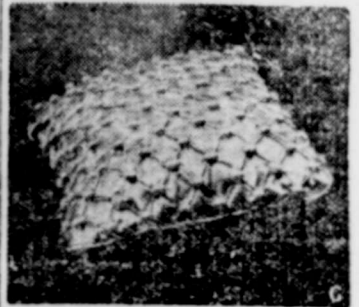

No matter how your home is furnished, chances are you could be sitting prettier. Attractive pillows can be made from an existing pattern; you can machine-sew these unusual accessories or purchase them in stores. The pillows have lively color and texture interest to upholstery -- and you can custom-make them yourself, you are automatically cushioned against high prices.

McCall's Pattern #8215, a comfort to the creative decorator, includes three "pop smoked" pillows with a rich luxurious look. Many sewers will remember a McCall's pillow from that became a best seller a couple of years ago. The new design for soft living will produce a 12-inch square pillow as well as a 14-inch square, each in different "pop smoking" fabric. Velvet or satin, added with stuffed knobs "pops" which release stress in interesting patterns, create bright sheen and deep shadow across the face. Despite this intricate look, the sewing is a touch even for beginners.

Because their beauty of design requires considerable accuracy, however, these pillows can only be done by hand.

The pattern outline in #8215 is ironed directly onto the wrong side of the fabric.

The pillow top is a single piece of material on which circles are gathered up with a running stitch around a piece of batting; you may use the cotton balls sold in drugstores. The knife-edge pillows, finished with self-covered welting, will fit standard foam pillow forms -- but instructions for making inner cases, or adapting the pillows into seat pads are included.

After you've finished your project, just sit back and enjoy it. With these pillows, you can really rest on your laurels in style.

Freshness of Black and White Enlivens Spring Shoe Styles

BLACK and white set the fashion pace this spring, lending crisp definition to these classic spectators in a combination of shining black and smooth white "Corfam" poromerie. Du Pont's shoe upper material. Young low-line walking shoes in smooth white "Corfam" are sure to find favor too, because of the easy care and long lasting smartness of the material. Dirt and mud can be removed easily with a damp cloth or sponge. In the past shoes of "Corfam" have been hard to find. This spring, the smart new black and white styles will be widely available, and at moderate prices. These are by Vitality.

FISH IN THE DIET

The Pennsylvania Medical Society reports that an estimated billion tons of fish are born every year in the waters which cover so much of the earth. The use of this huge increase is hampered because the larger fish feed on the smaller fish, themselves fall prey to the larger fish. And to man. Many homes during this season, religious considerations call for abstention from meat products on fast days. There may also be some who will give up meat for Lenten sacrifice. If so, protein alternatives are essential to a balanced diet.

Fish Is Plentiful

Among the best of these is fish. There are many nations where fish is much more plentiful than meat. One finds fish as a staple in the diet of many nations. Fish is plentiful in all of Europe, at dinner and sometimes luncheon. In the Orient fish is a staple in many diets where meat is seldom eaten. The variety and tastiness of fish dishes from the Scandinavian countries is well known.

When we say "fish", we include a matter of course, the shellfish -- oysters, clams, crayfish, lobsters, crabs, mussels, abalone, and the less popular fish. Any variety of fish supplies good quality protein. Fish is also a source of vitamins and minerals. In addition, necessary quantities of iodine required by the body. Before the use of simple goiter was ascertained about 45 years ago, populations using extensive quantities of deep sea fish in their diets thus were automatically protected against this condition, and they still are.

THE OLD-NEW ART OF EMBROIDERY

One of the fastest-growing hobbies in this space-age is the gentle art of embroidery! Why should this nostalgic pastime hold such appeal for modern women? Today's woman finds, as her great-grandmother did, that she needs little cash, even less elbow room, and only a few spare moments now and then for her stitchery.

Variety is another factor, says Nanina Comstock, who as Editor of the popular McCall's Needlework and Crafts Magazine has helped greatly to build the do-it-yourself boom "Embroiderers can choose among techniques old and new, simple and intricate. They can use antique motifs, work from new designs by contemporary artists and borrow a whole world of ideas from folk art of other countries."

Illustrating this wealth of inspiration at milady's fingertips are over 30 embroidery designs in the Spring-Summer issue of Needlework and Crafts. These range from subtly hued pillows from Finland to a baby's coverlet with cross-stitch lullaby. Among the most interesting is a delightful embroidery picture using the Adam and Eve theme which inspired some of the oldest known examples of embroidery.

Adam and Eve, by needle artist Erica Wilson, employs "Pop Embroidery" This example of an old-new technique is an updated version of stumpwork. According to Miss Comstock, this old method got its name from the practice of padding embroidered surfaces with carved wood chips to produce bas-relief effects. In the way modern picture Adam and Eve are flesh-colored yarn in a weaving stitch, padded the serpent is folded felt wound with gold cord, and the apples of temptation are bright colored beads.

Quick Embroidery, a bold breezy technique of big easy stitches, creates a vibrant picture of tall autumn wild flowers with yellow grass. Artist Eleanor Corcoran has imaginatively used yarn to express foliage and flowers, the grass, for example, is a tweed yarn.

These fresh designs help explain why more and more women can picture themselves embroidering just for the fun of it.
