TORAL AND NUN ARE FOUND GUILTY

High Officials Named In 114 Booze Ring Indictments

GAMBLING AND LIQUOR PROBE EFFECTS FELT

State, County and City Heads Indicted In Conspiracies

SHERIFF ACCUSED

Officer's Sanctuary Used As Rendezvous For Violators

WOODSTOCK, Ill., Nov. 8. (UP)—City, county and state officials, including Mayor Peter W. Frett of McHenry, chief of police and deputy sheriffs, were indicted among 114 persons today by the county grand jury in its investigation of alleged liquor and gambling conspiracies.

The major indictment charged conspiracy to violate the law. Fifty indictments charging specific violations of liquor and gambling laws also were returned by the grand jury.

Officials Named

State Representative Roy J. Stewart of the eighth district, George Druggan, brother of Terry Druggan reputed beer baron of Chicago; Alfred H. Pouge, former state's attorney of McHenry county; Joseph Kandrack, chief deputy; Lester Edinger, former sheriff; Sylvester Muldoon, deputy sheriff; Gus Peters alderman of Woodstock; John Walsh, McHenry chief of police and other officials were named in the indictments.

Con Shea, former Chicago labor leader and friend of the late "Big Tim" Murphy, was among several resort owners named in true bills. Shea is alleged to have been owner of Richmond Inn, scene of numerous "parties" attended by various public officials.

Former State's Attorney Pouse, authorities said, is now a fugitive. The indictments date back to the time he was in office here. The investigation of the alleged graft and conspiracy ring, was the result of a demand by a citizens' committee which employed private detectives to gather evidence.

Sheriff Blamed

A special report submitted by the grand jury recommended the dismissal of the chief deputy sheriff.

"The jury believes the conditions such as are found in McHenry county could never have existed but for the inefficiency of the sheriff and the connivance of his deputies and law violators," the report reads. "We believe the conduct of the sheriff has had much to do with encouraging violators.

"We recommend that the sheriff correct conditions in his office and in the future report all such offers of bribery to the state's attorney and the next grand jury."

The report added that the investigation showed evidences that the sheriff's offices had been used as a "rendezvous for those this jury has seen fit to indict."

County Officials To Count Votes Tuesday

Wichita county returns for the general election will be canvassed at the Tuesday meeting of the commissioners' court, it was learned at the court house Thursday. It will be a routine matter as unofficial counts show all elections to be by such wide margins there is no probability of any contest.

Compilation of the vote is now being completed under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk.

Girl on Witness Stand in Case Here Denies Smoking or Drinking

Court Crowded As Woman Testifies On Charges Against Wichita Man; Character Evidence Offered

"That is untrue."

This statement was repeated many times Thursday afternoon by a pretty young girl in the 89th district court where she was on the witness stand in connection with a statutory charge against Carroll Onstott, Wichita Falls automobile salesman. The court room was packed and there was standing room only at the afternoon session.

The girl answered E. F. Fruechte, attorney for the defense, with these words when he asked her if she smoked, if she drank or if she ever been improperly associated with any man prior to the night several weeks ago when she attended a dance at Lake Wichita with Onstott.

Girl on Stand

Testimony was started immediately after the noon recess Thursday. The day and a half before that time had been used in selecting a jury. It was necessary to call almost 200 prospective jurors before 12 men who did not object to the death penalty could be found.

The district attorney had previously announced that the death penalty would be sought.

Twice during the afternoon a recess was called in the girl's testimony to allow character witnesses to her good name, habits and actions in her early life, to take the stand as these witnesses were from out of town. They were Dr. D. A. Shirley, Canyon, associate dean of a school in which the girl formerly taught.

"She was a good, clean, moral girl of excellent moral habits and distinctly not of the type that would do anything wrong," Dr. Shirley declared. "The people with whom she lived were excellent citizens and there was never the slightest doubt about her."

Character Testimonials

Judge William McMordie, county judge of Hartley county and as such an ex-officio board member of a school at which the girl formerly taught, also testified to her good character.

After these men had testified, the trial continued with the girl on the stand telling the details of the night on the road after the Lake Wichita dance. At one point, Mr. Fruechte attempted to elict testimony from the girl to show that she was not sure if the affair took place in Wichita county or not.

Judge P. A. Martin recessed the court at 5 o'clock in the afternoon until Friday morning.

MOODY DENIES MARTIAL LAW

Hidalgo Disorder Insufficient, He Finds

AUSTIN, Nov. 8. (AP)—Governor Moody wired from a sick bed today to Mayor F. B. Freeland of McAllen, refusing to impose martial law on Hidalgo county, scene of a situation hanging over from Tuesday's election, and involving the ballot count in the Mercedes and Edinburg boxes.

"In my judgment," the governor wired, "under no circumstances could the military forces take over the conduct of an election or the counting and tabulating of votes under the present laws of this state."

Martial law was asked by Mayor Freeland in a telegram. The situation involved unsuccessful efforts of the "Citizen-Republican" organization, composed of dissatisfied Democrats and Republicans, to have a ticket of their own printed on the ballot, leaving their followers only the recourse of writing in the candidates' names. No regular Republican ticket was offered.

"I understand that the request (Freeland's) is based on your belief that the declaration of martial law is necessary to insure an honest count of ballots polled in the Edinburg and Mercedes boxes," the governor wired the mayor. "In stating my understanding of the law, I want you to know this fact. The governor is authorized to issue proclamations declaring a territory under martial law when a state of insurrection exists in such territory or rioting or disturbances are going on which the civil authorities cannot or will not suppress or when the regularly constituted civil authorities refuse or otherwise fail to function in the enforcement of the criminal laws. Holder, who is ardently supporting Barron, said he believed there would be no trouble in obtaining the nine additional votes to elect.

Elmer, Okla., Man Casts Fish Hook On Main Street to Keep His Promise

Special to The Record News.

ELMER, Okla., Nov. 8.—Elmer's Main street, high and dry on the hills of Oklahoma, became a market for "invisible" fish yesterday.

It was the day after election, and a lone fisherman sat in the middle of Main street, patiently holding his hook, line and sinker into a wash tub of water.

His name was J. P. Hutchinson. He had promised Roy Hughes, official of the Bank of Elmer, that should Smith lose the election he would pull this sort of stunt on the Main street of town. And he kept his promise.

As the crowd, attracted by this unusual sight, clustered about the fisherman, Hutchinson would joyously announce a "catch" and offer his invisible trophies for sale.

Hutchinson is a prominent farmer of the Hess community.

Colquitt Promotes Organization Given Birth In Campaign

HOOVER HOLDS LEAD

B. D. Sartin Says Original Anti-Smith Clique To Continue

DALLAS, Nov. 8.—Texas' vote in the presidential election tonight was: 252 counties out of 253, only 149 complete, Smith 327,871; Hoover, 342,956. Hoover's lead 15,285.

DALLAS, Nov. 8. (AP)—Embittered factions which struggled for supremacy in the general election in Texas seemed undecided tonight whether to toss aside the gauntlet and reunite disorganized Democrats or continue the factional strife until the next presidential election.

Herbert Hoover's increasing majority over Gov. Alfred E. Smith brought varying comments from the factional leaders. Democrats, their state seemingly Republican on the presidential question for the first time, announced through leaders that they planned to continue the fight, keeping their organizaiton active between campaigns. Some of the anti-Smith leaders favored continuation of their group while others suggested that the Texas Democrats should forget their past differences.

Majority of 15,285

The Republican nominee's majority at the last count was 15,285, Hoover having polled 342,956 votes to Smith's 327,671 with complete returns from 149 counties and reports from all but one of the 253.

As Hoover's margin was maintained politicians turned their eyes toward future campaigns. B. D. Sartin, campaign manager for the anti-Smith Democrats, said their organization would be kept intact, and would fight the regular Democratic organization for control.

In the same camp, former Governor O. B. Colquitt was quoted as having said he favored organization of a third party in the state, to be BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 8. (AP).—Nicholas Titulescu, pressed by the regency to terminate Rumania's political crisis and restore credit abroad at any cost, made valiant efforts today to form a national coalition cabinet, but late tonight had not succeeded. He spent almost the entire day in earnest conversation with M. Bratianu, whose resignation as premier was requested by the regency a few days ago, and Julia Maniu, peasant party leader, urging them with all of his diplomatic persuasiveness to "bury the hatchet" and put their country's welfare and honor above mere party differences.

REFORM PARTY IS POSSIBILITY

Demos Ponder While Republicans Look Ahead

(By The Associated Press)

Tabulation of scattered additional returns from 21 states has pushed Hoover's national total past 19,375,000 and Smith's over 13,700,000.

With the votes of Tuesday's polling still far from complete, the unofficial standing last night was:

Hoover, 19,376,449; Smith, 13,717,604.

The president-elect added more than 1,607,000 during the preceding 24 hours and Governor Smith about 730,000.

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—The flood tide which swept Herbert Hoover on to victory Tuesday continued to grow today as belated returns arrived. His plurality surpassed the 6,000,000 mark on practically complete returns, and his electoral vote was 444 to Smith's meager 87.

Hoover's total popular vote this afternoon was 20,015,475 and Smith's 14,000,130.

Demos Pondering

With the solid south invaded and the Democrats' strength shown to be mainly in the northern wet urban centers, Democrats began pondering about their next move to rescue the remains, while the Republicans looked ahead for four—and perhaps eight years—on the course their party is to pursue.

The first tendency was to view Smith as hopeless for further presidential racing, though it was foreseen he may still wield considerable influence in party councils. Among many Democrats it was agreed that some alterations in party policies and methods must be attempted if it is to present real opposition in the future. Some politicians suggested it might become a prohibition modification party, centering its battles in the big cities

Blind Man Enabled to See When Another's Eye Is Given to Him

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (UP)—One of the most delicate operations known to medical science proved at least partially successful today when Bert Ferguson, once blind, looked dimly at the world through another man's eye.

Ferguson's one eye failed him several weeks ago and doctors, in an effort to restore his sight, decided to transplant the cornea from another eye. Charles Greenblatt, whose eye was removed because of a tumor, offered it to the surgeons and the cornea, still alive, was removed and grafted to Ferguson's member.

The medical world awaited the result anxiously and there was great interest today when the bandages were removed.

Ferguson was able to distinguish objects 10 feet away. Surgeons said that development of sight and the permanent success of the operation would depend upon the ability of Ferguson's optic tissue to nourish the cells of the grafted cornea.

DEATH VOTED TO OBREGON'S ASSASSINATOR

Abbess Given 20 Years In Prison For Planning Brutal Murder

VERDICTS CHEERED

Noisy Crowds Gleeful At Punishment Meted To Accused Pair

By GEORGE A. SCHREINER

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 8. (US)—Jose De Leon Toral, the youth who assassinated President-Elect Alvaro Obregon, was sentenced to death late this afternoon and Abbess Maria Concepcion Acevedo de la Llata, the nun accused of inciting the assassination, was given 20 years in prison.

The verdict of guilty was returned by the jury in the little court house at San Angel near Mexico City, after deliberations lasting one hour and 40 minutes. Both Toral and the nun took the sentences with an air of stoicism which had characterized their conduct throughout the trial.

Toral Kept Quiet

When Judge Aznar pronounced the sentences, Toral arose and requested an opportunity to speak. This was refused him. Abbess Concepcion did not make such a request. She refused even to address the jury just before it retired to consider its verdict. Toral, however, addressed the jurors briefly, though he stated nothing that has not already been placed before the jury.

Today's final session in the trial of the two was devoted to the arguments of counsel to the jury. The defense was often interrupted by members of the crowd in the court-room, so that the chief counsel for Toral, Attorney Sodi, finally told the judge he could not go on.

Meanwhile, outside the court-house, the crowd kept shouting: "Death to Sodi, Toral and Concepcion!"

This was continued from the time the court convened this morning at 10 o'clock, until the death sentence was pronounced at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The pronouncement of the sentences was greeted with vociferous applause.

Principals Guarded

Owing to the threats of death against the accused, and defense counsel, special precautions were taken by the authorities to prevent any outbreaks. Gendarmes were posted at every available point inside the building, and in addition guards were stationed on the roof and in front of the entrance to the court house.

The jury was unanimous in its decision on the most of the counts against both accused.

Ezequiel Padilla, federal attorney general, made the principal address

Bill Fritts Wins Delay of Trial

ANSON, Texas, Nov. 8. (AP)—Upon motion of defense attorneys, who said they were employed only yesterday and had not had time to prepare their case, the trial of Bill Fritts on a charge of murder in the death of Earl Hamilton two weeks ago near Rochester was continued at a special term of district court here today until Nov. 21.

A second plea for continuance set forth that Fritts' mother, expected to be an important defense witness, was ill and could not testify at this time.

Defense counsel announced at today's hearing its plea would be insanity. The case was brought here on a change of venue from Haskell county.

Mrs. Hamilton, widow and mother of the slain men, declared they were shot because Earl refused to leave the country before a liquor case in which he was to testify came to trial. Fritts surrendered two days after the shooting.

Death Voted Young Slayer Of Obregon

to the jury for the prosecution. He devoted the most of his speech to defining the government's attitude towards the Catholic church.

Medina Makes Plea

Enrique Medina, conducting the government's case, made an impassioned plea to the jury for the conviction of the defendants. Characterizing their crime as "treason against the country," he declared to the jury:

"Never in the history of the jurisprudence of Mexico has a case of so much importance in the destiny of the country come before a court. Nor has there ever been a case so profoundly interesting not only to Mexico, but to the world in general.

"Jose de Leon Toral killed General Obregon with premeditation, and as for Mother Concepcion, we accuse her of being co-author and the intellectual author of this crime. She conceived it.

"Mother Concepcion headed a group of conspirators—a group of young men all under 32 who planned and carried out this crime."

Defense Hissed

The burden of the defense argument was that Toral's act was not a felony, but a political crime against article 22 of the general constitution which, if sustained, would have meant that no death sentence could be handed down against Toral. Attorney Sodi is making his argument to the jury was continuously interrupted with taunts and insults from the audience. The judge left the defense to shift as best it could for itself.

Sodi was hissed when he complained against the courtroom's interruptions, and especially against the invasion of the court by the Mexican deputies several days ago. He declared:

"The whole nation has been offended by the invasion of this courtroom by members of the chamber of deputies."

There was an uproar at this statement, but Sodi entirely unruffled, continued:

"It is necessary for one to comply with one's duty—even to make sacrifices if necessary. Toral presented himself at the restaurant, La Bombilla, to kill General Obregon with an idea of complying with his duty.

Political Crime

"This crime will have profound consequences for Mexico. This is not a common crime—a vulgar crime. Senor Medina, for the prosecution, said these acts were not solely directed against Obregon and Calles, but against the government.

"This, therefore, is a political crime."

Towards the end of his speech, Sodi voiced the hope that Mother Concepcion would be convicted with Toral, since it was doubted if the nun would get out of the courtroom alive if acquitted.

The abbess was a tragic figure of resignation and despair during the final court session. She sat with folded hands and downcast eyes, and her face was deathly pale.

The defense was given five days to file appeals. Failing this, the execution of Toral and the beginning of the prison sentence by the abbess, Concepcion, will take place president-elect, immediately as the final act in the dramatic murder of the former known as the constitutional Democrats. He said that the nucleus of this organization already had been formed, and that it could be enlarged. He explained that he was not speaking for the anti-Smith Democrats, but expressing his own views.

G. O. P. Welcome

"If the Republicans wanted to come into our organization, well and good," Colquitt was quoted as having said.

On the other side of the river, W. G. Hatcher, state treasurer, said that talk of reorganization will "not contribute to the happiness of our party in Texas." He added he was glad he had supported the regular Democratic nominees.

W. A. Thomas, manager of the state Democratic campaign committee, and R. L. Stennis, secretary of the same organization, said they contemplated asking D. W. Wilcox, chairman of the state executive committee, to keep the Democratic organization active between campaigns, as has been done by the Republicans for several years.

WILCOX DOES NOT EXPECT TO QUIT

TEMPLE, Texas, Nov. 8. (AP)—D. W. Wilcox of Georgetown, announced today that he had no intention resigning as chairman of the state Democratic executive committee in response to demands that he turn the reins of the party over to other hands following its apparent defeat in the presidential election Tuesday.

Before the election Mr. Wilcox, in a statement, declared that Democrats who voted for Herbert Hoover would be barred from the next Democratic primary. When a count of the vote showed that the bolters, with the help of the Republican party in the state, had apparently defeated the Democratic list of electors, anti-Smith Democratic leaders demanded that Wilcox and other party leaders who were "tainted with Tammany" resign.

Mr. Wilcox refused to make a statement on the election. "It is not my intention to resign as state chairman," he said. "I may or may not issue a statement on the election when I return to my home, but if I do I want to be able to give some thought to it."

Mr. Wilcox is here with his daughter who is undergoing a medical examination at a local clinic.

SHEPPARD LEAVES CHANGES TO OTHERS

TEXARKANA, Texas, Nov. 8. (AP)—United States Senator Morris Sheppard, commenting on suggested reorganization of the Democratic party, said today that he was content to leave that question to the authorized party heads.

"The erroneous impression that the the Democratic presidential nominee could have carried out his personal views on the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act in the event of his election carried a large number of people into the Hoover camp," the author of the eighteenth amendment said. "This vote, combined with that of the Republican party, gave the state to Hoover by a small majority. In my judgement this does not represent a permanent deflection from the Democratic party in Texas."

Senator Sheppard left here today for Washington, where he will prepare for the coming congressional session.

MOODY WITHOLDS HIS COMMENT

AUSTIN, Nov. 8. (AP)—Confined to his bed with an attack of la grippe, Governor Moody said late today that he had not read newspapers reporting ambitions of "Hoover Democrat" leaders at Dallas to "reorganize" the Democratic party in Texas and call him and Senator Morris Sheppard to account for supporting the defeated Democratic national ticket. The governor had no statement to make for the present.

His voice was hoarse with cold. He said he intended to stay in bed and not take an changes of developing pneumonia.

Exports of chemicals and allied products from Germany to foreign countries have advanced steadily, especially during the past two years, until during 1927 they exceeded $300,000,000.

FRECKLES

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily

Here's a chance, Miss Freckleface, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes your freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any drug or department store and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.—Adv.

Reform Party Is Possibility

as contrasted to its recent appeal to both cities and farmers. The strength of the dry movement, especially in the South and West, was evidenced in the present battle, and the anti-saloon league and allied organizations will have renewed power as a result.

Reform Party Considered

From this standpoint, some Democrats doubted that an out and out modification party would get any further than the Democratic party did this time.

On the other hand, there was a disposition in some quarters to make the Democratic party into a reform party, appealing to the elements to which the Bull Moose and LaFollette groups appealed. To suceed, it would take considerable organizing and reorganizing.

This election has indicated that the race issue cannot be counted on the keep the South longer in line.

In view of this, further aligning must be done. The Republicans intend to use the lessons of the campaign, just closed, to strengthen their position in the South. There will be a nouseccleaning, and an organization with representative white men leading it undoubtedly will be the outcome.

Religion Too Dangerous

Many politicians in both parties believe that the religious issue stirred up in this campaign will remain to plague them later, but there are signs that both parties will endeavor to calm the passions aroused the past few months. Many politicians regard this issue as too dangerous to employ indefintely in their contests for office.

From Texas came reports that the anti-Smith Democrats there were planning to keep up their organizations and ally themselves with "progressive" elements in the party. Much probably will be heard of "progressiveism" and "liberalism" in the future from Democrats who have seen their party alter until it closely approacaed the Republican party on major issues such as the tariff—but without the Republican party's vote-getting ability.

G. O. P. Looks Ahead

Many political experts believed that any touch of "hard times" would tend to consolidate many of the "liberal" and "progressive" elements in the country into a party with new economic issues and with "reforms" as its backbone.

Meantime, the Republican party is studying out its future but with signs that there are to be no radical departures from the "Coolidge program."

The party will be faced with farm relief as a vital issue next spring. There is little chance of anything being done with that issue in the December congress session, and Hoover has promised to call an extra session to deal with it if the December session does nothing. A relief program is likely to come out of it, which will be designed to "help the farmer to help himself," but without the equalization fee, found objectionable by Coolidge and Hoover.

Friend of Interests

Boulder Dam and Muscle Shoals are other problems still to be solved. Hoover's few utterances during the campaign have placed him as a friend of private enterprise, and it is doubtful if he will recommend anything disturbing to the private utilities interests.

He has indicated he will keep his own counsel for the time being, hence any discussion of his future course lies wholly within the realm of speculation.

From his past history, however, it is fair to assume that he will undertake a foreign policy designed to make friends for America abroad and particularly to promote American business in foreign lands. As chief of the department of commerce he helped materially to stimulate foreign commerce, and he will carry into the White House both a keen knowledge and keen sympathy for this business. He believes that this business should be sought to keep up American wages and standards, while at the same time stimulating and encouraging expansion of the home market and the cultivation of efficient methods in American industry and distribution.

Many anticipate he will be "his own boss" in the White House, and there are some who foresee clashes with congress. Hoover, however, has apparently learned many lessons since the Kansas City convention, and he may decide to "play ball" with the politicians and thus get along with congress.

ROOSEVELT AND SMITH SAY 'FAREWELL'

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (US)—Defeated but not disheartened, Governor Smith returned to the executive mansion at Albany this afternoon.

Although his native New York turned against him in the presidential election, Al Smith was still the "happy warrior" which Franklin D. Roosevelt dubbed him at Houston.

The governor, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, his daughter, Mrs. John A. Warner and Major Warner, other members of his family and a few close friends, left New York on the 4:20 train from the Grand Central station.

The governor was smiling and expressed happiness over the relief from public office. The others in the party were obviously downcast.

Whether Governor Smith was really stung by his overwhelming defeat for the presidency did not show in his demeanor.

A few minutes before his departure the retiring governor was photographed with Franklin D. Roosevelt, the governor-elect and the man who had placed him in nomination for the presidency on three occasions. Both men seemed a bit affected by the situation. They shook hands warmly and fora moment gazed into each other's eyes. Then they broke hands and both of them smiled.

SOUTH ASKS HOOVER TO VISIT REGION

PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 8. (UP)—Herbert Hoover's popularity in the South, already demonstrated by the electoral vote of four states of the old "South," was emphasized further to the president-elect today by a flood of congratulatory messages from that section which brought invitations for a visit.

The people there want to see him. They are offering the hospitality for which the section long has been famed. Those who did not vote for him there want a glimpse of the man who did the almost miraculous and "broke the solid South." They want to know more about him.

The speculation of political philosophers as to what the breaking of the solid South means for the future of the American political scheme is being indulged in, likewise, by Hoover himself, and by those about him, astute in the ways of practical politics. For the first time they see real promise of live, effective and active Republican organizations in the South. They want to hold what they have gained, and this will take organization. The president-elect and his advisers will give attention to this phase of the victory.

FAMILY PERISH IN EXPLOSION

Celluloid Blast Takes Total Of 17 Lives

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 8. (UP)—Live ashes thoughtlessly flicked from a cigar or cigarette in a workman's hand, appeared tonight the most logical explanation of a terrific chemical-celluloid explosion which today snuffed out the lives of at least 17 persons.

The charred or battered bodies of 17 victims—a mother and her five children and 11 workmen—had been recovered from the smoldering ruins of the Preble Box Toe company's plant, scene of the tragic blast.

Ruins Searched

Tonight firemen, police and volunteers were still searching the rain-soaked, twisted wreckage for one other employe, reported missing and feared to be buried in the ruins.

Three of six persons in the Lynn hospital were believed dying. Three others, severely hurt, also were under treatment there. Many of the victims had been taken to their homes after receiving first aid treatment.

The Harry Blaney family's home adjoining the factory was destroyed. Mrs. Blaney and five of her children were fatally burned. Blaney himself was among those reported dying and two other children were painfully burned. The remaining two children of the family escaped injury only because they were going out the rear door of their home, en route to school, when the blast occurred.

Roof Blown Off

The explosion, which authorities tonight believed was caused by the smoking of an employe in violation of a factory ruling, lifted the roof from the one story cement building and threw an avalanche of flames against the neighboring tenement houses, several of which caught fire.

Huge pieces of cement blocks were strewn about the street, while flames poured from the factory and adjoining dwellings, ignited by the explosion and fire.

Several employes, who were buried beneath the wreckage, ran from the building with their clothing in flames, to collapse outside the building.

'Kiss' Slayer Guarded To Prevent Suicide

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (AP)—Vincent Rice, 17, who said he killed his 15-year-old sweetheart, Alice Joost, because she tried to kiss him, was held under double guard in Richmond county jail today to forestall any attempt at suicide.

An insanity defense will be offered for Rice when he goes to trial, it was said.

AIRPORT VISITORS

Charles Quinn of Quincy, Ill., and George Powers of Rockwell, Iowa, were guests at the municipal airport Thursday night. Mr. Quinn stopped en route to El Paso from Wichita, Kan., and is flying a Whirlwind Travelair. Mr. Powers will leave this morning for Oklahoma City in his Monocoupe plane.

Sixth Jury to Probe Election Frauds Called

CHICAGO, Nov. 8. (AP)—The sixth special grand jury to inquire into irregularities and violence in connection with last April's primaries was provided today in an order issued by Judge John J. Sullivan, chief justice of the criminal court.

Wurzbach Winner Over Demo Opponent

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 8. (AP)—Harry M. Wurzbach of Seguin, sole Republican congressman of Texas, was reelected by a majority of 122 votes over Judge Augstus McCloskey, on the basis of a tabulation of returns compiled late today by the San Antonio Light.

The poll was complete except for one precinct in Kendall county which has only about 40 qualified voters. The vote was Wurzbach, 29,843; McCloskey, 29,721.

MORGAN RETURNS

Frank Morgan, constable, returned to Wichita Falls Thursday from Kansas City, Mo., where he arrested a negro woman wanted here for trial in the district court on charges of stealing a trunk, gun watch and a quantity of clothing.

Mr. Morgan had obtained a clue from a letter the woman wrote to Wichita Falls and was in Kansas City only three hours in making the arrest.

NEW POLITICAL LINEUP SEEN

London Papers Interpret Hoover's Victory

LONDON, Nov. 8. (UP)—Many observers of international political affairs today believed the crushing defeat of Gov. Alfred E. Smith for the presidency of the United States forecast a new line up of political cleavage in the United States.

The new line up, some observers believed, will be not dissimilar from the conservative and labor parties in Great Britain.

The Laborite Daily Herald, of course, is the strongest adherent to the latter idea and said this was the inevitable consequence, what with the disappearance of the fundamental differences between the Republican and Democratic parties.

"What with the collapse of the sham party differences in the United States," the Daily Herald said editorially, "the real economic and social issues will assert themselves. This will be a step towards the ultimate Socialist government in the United States. Doubters of this prediction must be reminded that 20 years ago they would have jerred the thought that Great Britain ever would have a labor government."

All of the morning newspapers today stressed Herbert Hoover's election with the most laudatory comment concerning his ability.

The Conservative Daily Mail said:

"Hoover is safe and cautious, also a thinker and writer as well as a great administrator."

The Independent Daily Express said:

"Hoover will bring to the White House a first-hand acquaintance with Europe and its problems equalled by no previous president."

The Liberal Daily News said:

"Hoover is a man of outstanding ability and hard clear vision. His election is an occasion of critical importance."

The Conservative Morning Post: "Hoover is able and energetic and possesses the moral flavor of 'the full dinner pail'."

The Conservative Daily Telegraph said:

"Hoover undoubtedly is competent."

Berlin, Brussels and Paris newspapers were unanimous in praising the new president-elect of the United States.

FLORIDA DEMOS STILL IN DAZE

Hoover's Lead Continues to Swell in Size

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 8. (AP)—Democratic leaders in Florida still appeared dazed today as straggling returns from Tuesday's election continued to swell the majority the state gave to Herbert Hoover for president.

Never before has this southernmost rank of the "solid South" given a republican presidential candidate a majority. Not since the days of reconstruction has there been a real contest in the state.

With only a few more than 200 precincts out of more than 1,200 in Florida, still unaccounted for, Hoover had gained more than 30,000 majority on Governor Smith. The court in 997 precincts give Hoover 126,662, Smith 90,712.

There were two chief contributing causes for the bolt of the state from its normally Democratic practices. One is described as the annually increasing number of Republicans who adopt Florida as their residence, but the chief factor was the wide split in the state Democratic party.

Some consolation for the Democrats may have been derived as returns piled into tabulation centers, that the state had only gone Republican in the national election only. The Democrats were successful, on the face of still incomplete returns, in sending entire delegations to the senate and house of representatives, and in electing the Democratic nominee for governor and a state treasurer.

Youth Snubbed As 'Too Young' Is Hot Worker in Radio Commission

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. (INS)—When Sam Pickard, formerly of Manhattan, Kan., was named a member of the Federal Radio commission, there was considerable comment on his youth. There were those who expressed the view that he was "too young" to handle the complicated problems certain to confront him.

One hears no more of that sort of comment here in Washington. Instead there is an abundance of comment on the fact that the fourth radio zone, over which the young Kansan was called to preside, appears to be in more satisfactory condition than some other zones, notwithstanding the fact the most difficult problem confronting the commission in its reallocation work was the problem of the fourth zone.

Pickard is going into his zone to be in the field Nov. 11 and thereafter and listen in to hear for himself the results of reallocation in his territory.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as 10 times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

Literature Department of Forum Presents Interesting Program

Members of the literature department of the Woman's Forum met at the clubhouse Thursday afternoon when Miss Pansy Mills, president of the Blue Curtain players of the Junior college, was presented in two dramatic numbers. The first selection was a cutting from the book "The Sign of the Cross."

Viola Grace Doern gave a violin solo.

Miss Mills' second number was a one-act play, "The Boy Will." This play was the presentation of William Shakespeare's boyhood showing how he started out on his dramatic career.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (US)—A lady secured a divorce the other day because she caught her husband giving another woman what he termed "a chaste kiss."

A chaste kiss is something no married man ever can give a woman other than his wife. If his wife knows and is mad about it you can depend upon it the kiss was stolen, hence sweet, hence—grounds for divorce.

A New York college girl married a man because—she wanted to travel and meet famous people, and enjoy literary advantages. She didn't love him, she says. Now she claims fraud and wants the marriage annulled.

You see she found out he didn't know George Bernard Shaw and other famous men, wasn't a member of English society, and didn't have money.

There was a 50-50 marriage if ever there was one and she got exactly what she gave—nothing.

A Chicago girl screamed when a flirt accosted her. The police came running.

Somebody should buy her a poke bonnet, some lace mittens and a garden with hollyhocks.

The same day in New York, a girl was flirted with and she laughed loud and long, and when the traffic cop came to see what the trouble was she couldn't tell him for giggling. The man had run away.

In San Francisco next day a girl slapped a man for speaking to her, and walking too close to her on the street.

In Denver a girl was driving her car to the curb when an idler standing nearby asked for a ride, and made a few remarks. The girl backed the car up and ran it up on the walk so close to the offender that it knocked him over. When the policeman nearby came to see why she was driving on the sidewalk she said: "The brakes didn't work."

I would say they did.

There are so many ways of killing cats, besides choking them with butter.

A man of 88 tried to marry a girl of 16 in Belleville, Ill. But he couldn't get a license. Somebody might try getting commitment papers.

A girl with ideas saw a pretty bunch of tiny flowers, made with felt of various colors. "It doesn't take but a pinch of felt for each flower," she told herself. "I've got an idea." So she sewed a button on it.

She went to a department store and got samples of felt of various colors, went home, and made the flowers.

You're welcome.

A lady wanted some combs to water-wave her hair. She knew the hair store where she traded wouldn't deliver just a few combs, so she ordered a list of things, including perfume, hair tonic, face powder and what not.

When the package came, she took out the combs, paid the boy and sent the rest back.

When it comes to being resourceful, the women make the men look positively silly.

FROST HURTS COTTON

QUITAQUE, Texas, Nov. 8.—The recent frost killed about two-thirds of the cotton leaves, and will be the cause of the majority of the bolls to open. All of the potato vines were killed. Most every potato raiser in this section has dug his potatoes, with the production much better than they expected.

AT MISS VOLSTEAD'S WEDDING

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, right, quit campaigning long enough at St. Paul, Minn., to be bridesmaid for Miss Laura Volstead, left, the bride of Carl Lomen. Dorothy Willebrandt, center, adopted daughter of Mrs. Willebrandt, was flower girl for the ceremony. Andrew J. Volstead, former congressman and author of the Volstead act, gave his daughter in marriage.

School and College News

A most unusual and varied program featured the Junior college-high school general assembly Thursday morning. The first of the series was an all-faculty program with the following numbers: devotionals, Miss Verna Sellers; trumpet solo by L. M. Underwood, accompanied at the piano by Lois Baber; cartoons drawn by Miss Ima Pendergrass; vocal solo, Miss Jane McCulloch, accompanied by Ruby Mae Kemp. The last of the series of presentations was entitled "Pep." This series included selections by the Little Rovers orchestra, a tap dance by Curtis "Lefty" Watson, a talk on football by William Morris, assistant Coyote football coach, a number of school songs by members of the girls' pep squad.

Otto Juhl announced that the senior rings for the high school class had arrived and exchanges will be made immediately. When the rings that were ordered at the close of last year were received, an error appeared in the spelling of Wichita Falls. The students were given the rings to wear until corrected ones were received.

Henry Helgerson urged all students to patronize the advertisers in the "Wichitan."

Orders for college rings and pins are to be sent off Saturday, according to Dean S. H. Rider. All college students who desire them are requested to give their orders to R. O. Jonas at once.

In preparation for the game Saturday afternoon with Gainesville Junior college, and also for the purpose of advertising the contest, the Wichita Falls Junior college will broadcast over station KGKO Friday night from 8:30 until 9:30 o'clock. The program for the period of broadcast will be as follows: Introduction by W. A. Mangum, music by the Girls' Hiking club, talk on "College Football" by J. W. Talbert, selections by the Hiking club chorus, talk on the Hiking club by Virginia Belle Walker, vocal numbers by the Faith City Melody Maids, assisted by Walker Pinney and Curtis Watson, yells, talk by Jack Jamison, accordian solo by Lem Parks, vocal numbers by Walter Pinney, comedy skit by Pansy Mills, violin solo by Viola Grace Doern, Melody Maids, cornet solo by Paul Henry Packard, accompanied by Daniel Packard.

The annual college football parade will be held in the downtown district at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Many of the automobile corporations of the city have consented to furnish cars. A total of over 40 have already been promised. Students have been requested to decorate their cars and meet in front of the college between 12:30 and 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

An interesting feature of the parade will be the disclosing of the identity of the football queen who was elected by the Indian football squad at the close of school Thursday afternoon.

Day Nursery Provides Happy Home For Babies As Mothers Earn Living

Up on Lamar street, there is a comfortable brick building, with clean, sunny rooms, a long, low dining table with little red chairs, dozens of nursery beds and a white-clad nursemaid. You might stumble over a velocipede in the hallway, or a pair of skates—and wherever you turn, there'll be an inquisitive, bright-eyed youngster. It is the Day Nursery, a refuge for more than fifty children each day, whose mothers are forced to earn bread for them, and who without the care of some agency would be left without protection while their mothers are at work. The nursery largely maintained by its quota from the Community Chest fund, the campaign for which is to open Nov. 25.

At 7 o'clock in the morning they begin to come—babies who can only toddle about, and sturdy little boys and girls up to the age of 10. Their mothers bring them to the nursery on their way to work, and there they spend the day in comfort until they are called for at 6 o'clock. After a while, children who are over 7 go to the city schools. About 25 attendants at the nursery who are under school age enjoy the benefit of a kindergarten, which is taught by Mrs. Fred T. Datson. In the middle of the morning, the babies are given milk and cookies and the older children, milk. A well-balanced vegetable dinner, with fruits and milk, is served at noon. Another lunch is given the kiddies in the afternoon. They have regular hours for sleeping and play. In every way, they are taught the rudiments of good manners, social courtesy and politeness.

Mrs. Ada Woolsey, superintendent of the Day Nursery, has announced that during the first ten months of the present year, 10,320 children have been cared for in the nursery, the month of October bringing the banner enrollment of its history, with 1419 little girls and boys in attendance. An average of 25 and 30 mothers are accommodated by the nursery each day.

"These mothers," said Mrs. Woolsey, "are not usually what we term destitute. While they are poor and are forced to work, all they need is a helping hand in caring for their children, and it is our greatest good to help mothers help themselves."

Anyone who has visited the Day Nursery knows 7-year-old Billy. Billy can't walk, but now he has a nice, new wheel chair, and he has a lot of fun rolling around through the nursery halls.

Five-year old Bobby is a real nursery baby. He has been reared there. His mother brought him just as soon as it was possible for her to go to work and leave him after his birth. So the nursery is just as much Bobby's home as is his mother's.

A Red Cross nurse visits the institution each day and makes a careful inspection of the children. A city doctor is at hand when any child becomes ill, and all attendants at the nursery are vaccinated when they enter.

The playground at the nursery is provided with a good bit of equipment, but the lively, restless youngsters need more.

At 6 o'clock a group of rather weary mothers call at the nursery to take their babies home. They have had to work hard all day, but they know that their children have had every care and comfort during their absence, and that it is provided free for them by the kindly heart of a charitable community.

When wash-day comes try using half as much soap and a little Tromite

Tromite has remarkable cleansing value of its own. It not only softens the water but doubles the value of soap. Use it in the water, whenever you wash clothes. For soaking, washing, rinsing. Clothes will be whiter, labor much lighter.

PRAISE GIVEN YOUTH 'BUNK'

Dorothy Dix Derides Old Custom of Elderly

The Glorification of Youth Is a Silly Tribute We Pay to a Superstition, Says Dorothy Dix. It Is Not Youth, but Middle Age, That Is the Time of Greatest Pleasure and Happiness.

The cult of youth has become an obsession with us. Men annually spend millions of dollars on patent nostrums in the vain attempt to sprout hair on their bald pates and raise a crop of ambrosial locks. Pudgy gentlemen go on starvation diets and walk weary miles on the golf links in a frantic endeavor to eliminate their bay windows and regain a boyish figure, and hoary grandpas deck themselves out in Klassy-Kut kollege klothes and rattle their poor old bones doing the Charleston and the Black Bottom. Middle-aged and elderly women cut off their hair and their skirts, roll their stockings, paint their faces and go through tortures in beauty parlors worse than the Inquisition in their frantic desire to look like flappers, and the one compliment you can pay any member of either sex that he or she will swallow whole, without ever stopping to look at it and see whether it is genuine or not, is to say: "How young you look!"

Now this inordinate desire for youth, this determination to keep young at any cost, is not based on the fear of death or the love of life, but on the conviction that the young are better-looking than the old, that they are more attractive and that youth is the time of greatest pleasure and happiness.

This is not true. Not all boys and girls are beautiful. Many men and women are far better looking when they are middle-aged, or even elderly, than they were in their youth. Age, experience, intelligence and goodness are master sculptors that often chisel the rough feature of youth into symmetry and give to 50 or 60 a beauty that 18 or 20 never knew.

As for attractiveness, age has youth faded to a fare-thee-well. Boys and girls are only interesting to their parents, and to other youngsters as crude, callow and ignorant as themselves. They have no conversation, because they have not had time to live or read or think or experience anything; but people of even mediocre intelligence becomes interesting just through the sheer accumulation of the knowledge of the years. They have seen as much of the human drama. They have felt so much, seen so much, learned so much.

So it seems to me that all our glorification of youth is a silly tribute we pay to superstition, with no more to justify it than our belief that apples had a different flavor in our childhood, that there is no such bread as mother used to make and that our childhood was a time of unalloyed bliss.

In reality, youth is not the best time of life. On the contrary, it is a time of poignant suffering, when molehills bulk as large as mountains and when pin pricks stab deeper than sword thrusts do later on. Youth is miserable because everything seems final to it. It has not lived long enough to find out that sunshine always follows rain, and so it believes when it weeps that its tears will never cease, that there will be no solace for its hurts, no balm in Gilead. This is why suicide is much more common among young people than it is among old.

Youth suffers agonies through its vanity, which is being perpetually bruised and scarred. Its self-consciousness makes it believe that the eyes of the world are centered upon it; that it stands perpetually in the spotlight. Thus the young boy who cannot have just exactly the same kind of clothes as his fellows has his life poisoned by shame, and this is even truer of his sister. It takes years to teach us our insignificance, to realize that the rest of mankind are so occupied with their own affairs that they do not even notice what we do or wear.

Above all, youth has its problems without the philosophy to meet them. It breaks its heart over every disappointment, no matter how trivial. At middle life we have learned to shrug our shoulders when our plans go awry, for we have seen many a time how the thing we wanted so badly would have proved our undoing if we got it, and we know that on the ruins of our failure we often build our greatest successes. We have also found that if we can't do the one particular thing we want to do there is something else we can do that is just as pleasant.

Another ever-present thorn in the side of youth is the keenness of its desires. It wants what it wants when it wants it with an intolerable longing, and it is filled with utter despair when it cannot get it. We only attain contentment when our longing for things has atrophied and when we take the goods the gods bestow upon us with the thankfulness and are content with that. We who are middle-aged and older can smile now as we recall how we yearned for the bicycle we couldn't have, the buggy with red-painted wheels, the pink dancing frock, the satin slippers or the gay necktie, when we were in our teens. There are very few things now that would cause us such an ordeal of suffering as did that unsatisfied desire.

Certainly girlhood is not the happiest time of a woman's life, unless she is one of the favored few who are born to the purple of beauty and wealth. For most girls it is a heartbreaking struggle for pretty clothes, for the admiration of men, for dates and for a husband.

And in all the category of human humiliations and bitterness and despair there is none equal to that endured by the girl who is a wallflower and who sits forlorn and neglected while the more attractive sisters have partners at the dance and beaux to take them out and give them good times. The middle-aged bachelor girl may thank God that she has no husband to bother her, but no young girl was ever reconciled to being passed over by men and not having a date.

No, youth is not the happiest time of life. The happiest time is middle age, when we have grown a protective skin over our sensibilities and when we have learned enough about how to live to avoid the rough edges of life.

CHIC CHERIE

Latest Fashions

Cherie is going to a particularly delightful party and she has called Dina into a consultation on her wardrobe. It appears that Cherie has a becoming frock, but that's all. And it isn't nearly enough! The dress is black velvet with a series of flares in the back that gives it almost a bustle effect and is quite new.

Cherie thinks a little cocktail jacket might complete her costume nicely. They are made of gold or silver lame. They are made of spangled chiffon. This one is of rhinestone embroidered net and the evening cap matches it. It's more appropriate perhaps to a chiffon than to a velvet frock. A plain lame one might be better.

Then she could also wear this lame evening turban. Evening caps are a great comfort to any young woman who is letting her hair grow out and maybe that's why they were invented. Five years ago short hair took ten years off one's age. Now long hair does the same thing. There's a new little jewelled ring with a second ring from which one may suspend one of those large chiffon evening handkerchiefs. One of those might help to dress her. The silver brocade slipper has a rhinestone buckle. Yes, decidedly—a silver lame evening cocktail jacket, a silver lame evening turban and a silver lame pair of slippers. Simple and sweet.

Japan's Royalty Rehearses Fete

KYOTO, Japan, Nov. 8. (UP)—In the ancient shrine of the Mikados, Hirohito and Nagoka, emperor and empress of Japan, today held a dress rehearsal of the elaborate ceremonies of the final succession to Nippon's throne.

The dim beauty of the Shunko-Den, the inner shrine of the imperial palace where once the Sho-guns held sway when Kyoto was the capital of Japan, lent mystic enchantment to the rites which were enacted in practice testimonial of the emperor's succession to the black and gold throne of the empire of the Rising Sun.

Gaily decorated, the city was crowded to capacity for the significant spectacle of Hirohito's enthronement Saturday and threatening clouds had been dissipated by the advent of a cheery sun which smiled down on the ancient capital.

M'KEOWN WINS IN OKLAHOMA

But Two Other Demos Lose in Race

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 8. (AP)—With Democrats suffering a net loss of two members in the Oklahoma delegation in congress, the last imperiled Democratic incumbent appeared to have been pulled out of danger today when complete official returns from several counties restored a lead of 1,079 votes to Tom D. McKeown, representative from the fourth district, who had fallen behind Fred S. Patrick, his Republican opponent.

Although complete returns were not available from two counties of the district, because the count was tied up by injunctions, unofficial reports were that the final results there would increase McKeowan's lead.

The state lead of Herbert Hoover over Gov. Alfred Smith in the presidential race had climbed to 159,531, when all but 244 of the state's 3,292 precincts had been counted. The total at that stage was, Hoover 366,185, Smith 206,654.

Counting at noon was concentrated on the criminal court of appeals race in which Presiding Judge Tom H. Doyle, veteran jurist, was trailing Will H. Chappell of Pawhuska, Republican, by 5,032 votes. Justice J. I. Phelps of the state supreme court was the only Democrat who apparently had won in a statewide race, two other Democratic members of the court, including Chief Justice Fred Branson, having been defeated. Justice Phelps had a lead of 4,040 over Judge James B. Cullison, his Republican opponent, in 2,902 precincts. Judge Doyle was receiving the next highest Democratic vote in state races, with 2,943 precincts tabulated.

Burleson Decries South's Defection

AUSTIN, Nov. 8. (INS)—Commenting on the defection of certain southern states from the Democratic party in last Tuesday's election, Albert Sidney Burleson, postmaster general of the United States in the Wilson cabinet, today declared that the teachings of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson were "apparently forgotten" by the people of the South, and "religious bigotry and hate" seemed to have been the dominating influence at the polls.

"The result of the election is very disappointing to one who understands the fundamental principles of his party and knows why he is a Democrat," General Burleson said today. "Religious freedom, state rights and honesty in public office are treated as inconsequential issues and ignored. Religious bigotry and hate, frequently hiding in a cowardly way, behind the Volstead act, seem to have controlled."

CONTEST DISPELLED

HOBART, Okla., Nov. 8. (UP)—Threat of a possible contested election in Kiowa county appeared to be dispelled as no action had been taken on citizens' protests late today. Three major errors were found on the election ballots.

Canada has supplanted the United States as the world's leading supplier of canvas rubber-soled shoes.

YES INDEED, THE PUBLIC DOES RECOGNIZE QUALITY

The truth of Lincoln's immortal words about fooling the people is being more clearly demonstrated every day.

Take ginger ales, for instance. For a time some loudly "trumpeted" brand may win popular favor—but in the final analysis the public reverts to the brand which offers the highest quality. And that explains why so many discriminating people drink Original Manitou Pale Dry—and will countenance no substitute!

You'll understand why after your first sip of Original Manitou. Then you'll realize that the natural sparkle of this far finer beverage—caught at the world-famous Manitou Springs—puts Original Manitou in a class apart.

Hoover and Curtis, Both Orphans as Boys, Fought Their Own Way Upward to Success

By ROBERT TALLEY
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Nobody back in the tiny hamlet of West Branch, Iowa, 50 years ago ever dreamed that Bert Hoover, the barefoot little orphan whose father had been the village blacksmith, would ever be president of the United States.

And likewise nobody back in Topeka, Kan., 50 years ago ever dreamed that 18-year-old Charlie Curtis, another orphan, who had a good job as a hack driver and was studying law in his spare time, would ever be vice president of the United States.

The careers of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis have been strangely alike—and strangely dissimilar.

Each was an orphan boy, bereft of both mother and father at a tender age; each fought his own way to fame with little aid; each mastered his opportunities, rose to every occasion, climbed the ladder of success by his own efforts.

Their goal was the same—but their routes thereto were vastly different.

The orphaned Hoover came up by a route that brought him a college education, a world-wide reputation as a mining engineer and wealth almost beyond the dreams of avarice.

The orphaned Curtis struggled his way from an Indian reservation through a career as a jockey, a hack-driver, a self-educated lawyer, a county prosecutor, a congressman and a senator of slender means.

Curtis has spent almost a lifetime in politics; the first and only office that Hoover ever ran for was that of president.

Here are intimate glimpses of Herbert Hoover, caught by the ever-ready newspaper cameramen at various times during his public career. The picture in the center was taken in the midst of a campaign tour as a mother offered her baby to be kissed by the candidate, which Mr. Hoover declined to do. In the upper right is Hoover with a group of child refugees during the Mississippi valley flood. The other pictures speak for themselves.

The curtain rose on the life of Herbert Clark Hoover in a clapboard cabin on a scrawny farm in rural Iowa on Aug. 10, 1874. His father—a powerful bear of a man—was Jesse Hoover, a farmer, who also ran a blacksmith shop at the village of West Branch. Both of his parents were devout Quakers, sober of mien and stern of speech.

Before young Hoover was 10 years old both his father and his mother had died. For a time he lived with relatives on a nearby farm and then, when he was 10, an uncle took him to Oregon. There, young Hoover worked in his uncle's real estate office, for the Oregon land boom was on.

Lured by the tales of a roving mining prospector who chanced that way when he was entering young manhood, Hoover decided to become a mining engineer. His savings were small, but Leland Stanford university was just opening down in California so he went there and worked his way through. He waited on tables, collected laundry for fellow students, managed a college lyceum bureau and did almost anything else that would turn an honest penny.

After graduation, Hoover worked as a day laborer in California mines to gain experience and then went to work in the office of Louis Janin, a famous mining engineer. Janin recommended him to a London firm of mining engineers, and, in 1897, the latter sent him to Australia to take charge of its gold mines there.

A couple of years later, on one of his brief trips to the United States, he married Miss Lou Henry, who had been a classmate at Leland Stanford. They were the first and only sweethearts each ever had.

Entering business for himself, Hoover began developing mining properties in China, India, Burma and other far-away lands. Fortune smiled on his enterprises and he became a man of tremendous wealth.

The outbreak of the world war found Hoover at his office in London. The story of his career from that day on is too well known to need repetition in detail here.

Briefly, it is the story of a genius who organized the Belgian Relief commission that fed eight million homeless souls through weary years of war, that spent $17,000,000 a month, employed 50,000 workers, operated its own ships, flew its own flag and issued its own passports.

Briefly, it is the story of the man whom President Wilson called home in 1917 to become food administrator of the United States—who imposed "meatless Tuesdays," "wheatless Wednesdays" on a free people and, what is more, made them like it.

It is the story of a man who, in the trying days just after the war, conquered famine in devastated Europe by feeding whole nations and spent more than $600,000,000 for supplies at an overhead cost of less than one-half of one per cent.

It is the story of a man whom President Coolidge called to take charge of relief operations in the Mississippi valley in the spring of 1927, when 600,000 were made homeless by floods.

It is the story of a man who, as secretary of commerce, has saved American industry many millions by standardization of manufacture and other economies.

His constructive achievements stand out as among the greatest ever accomplished by one man in all history.

Of less magnitude, but even more colorful, has been the career of Senator Curtis, the next vice president.

Of Indian ancestry on his mother's side, he was born on an Indian reservation in Kansas in 1860. Before he was three his mother died, and his father—Capt. Orren A. Curtis, a trader who had come west from Indiana—died soon after.

For a time young Curtis lived with his father's parents in Topeka, but at the age of five he went back to the Kaw reservation, 60 miles away. There he lived with his Indian grandmother in her tepee, played with the Indian boys and attended an Indian mission school.

He might have been an Indian yet if, one day in 1868, a band of marauding Cheyennes had not attacked the reservation of the friendly Kaws.

Young Curtis, then eight years old, was a fast rider and could speak both English and Indian, so the beleaguered Kaws chose him to gallop to the cavalry post at Topeka for help. He slipped through the Cheyennes' lines and summoned the soldiers, who chased the raiders away.

Curtis didn't go back to the Indians. Instead, he made his home with his father's people for a time and then became a jockey, riding at Kansas race tracks before he was 10.

When increasing weight finally ended his days as a jockey, he sold candy and peanuts around the railroad station at Topeka and later worked in a livery stable. Next, he got a job driving a hack.

It was while he was a hack driver that Curtis studied law, often reading his lawbooks by the light of the oil lamps on his cab as he waited for fares. A sympathetic lawyer finally took the youth into his office.

At 21, Curtis was admitted to the bar and at 25 (in 1885) he got his first political job when he was elected as a county prosecutor. In 1892 he was elected to congress and served seven terms. In 1907 he was elected to the senate, in 1912 he was beaten but in 1914 he was re-elected and has since served there. He was named Republican floor leader upon the death of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts.

Such is the story of the two orphans, Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis, who have struggled their way upward through lean and bitter years to the two highest offices that the nation can bestow.

It is an epic of personal achievement, proof of the real opportunity that beckons to the young men of every generation in a land where all men are born equal; it is thoroughly in accord with the finest traditions of America.

Thus the barefoot son of the Iowa blacksmith and the part-Indian boy who spent his early days on an Indian reservation as a government ward will become president and vice president of the United States next March.

Watson, Former Enemy of Hoover, To Be Named New G. O. P. Leader

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. (INS)—By a queer twist of political fortune, the legislative program of President-elect Herbert Hoover will be handled in the new congress by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, who fought him for the Republican presidential nomination, it was learned today.

The early retirement of Senator Curtis as Republican leader of the senate, due to his election to the vice presidency, will be followed by the selection of Watson to the leadership. The Indiana senator outranks in seniority all other senators who have been mentioned for the post, and his election as leader will be unanimous. He undoubtedly will take office as leader during the coming short session of the old congress, as rumor has it Curtis will resign his post at once and perhaps may even retire from the senate before the first of the year.

Hoover Satisfied

The selection of Watson as senate leader will be perfectly satisfactory to President-elect Hoover, it was learned. Although Watson fought Hoover at the Kansas City convention, they have buried the hatchet since then and the Indiana senator took the stump for the standard-bearer early in the campaign.

The elevation of Watson will mark the greatest change in personnel of congress either in the short session or after next March 4. Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, again will be chosen president pro tem of the senate, while in the house the same Republican officials will be returned to office. Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio again will be elected speaker and Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut again will be chosen Republican floor leader.

The retirement of Representative Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, after March 4 will bring a new Democratic floor leader to the house. Representative John Garner of Texas, one of the most popular men in congress will be elected to this post.

Seven Vets Retire

There will be numerous changes in the membership of both house and senate after March 4. On the senate side, seven veteran senators will return to private life. Senator Edward P. McLean, Republican, of Connecticut, and James A. Reed, Democrat, of Missouri, retire voluntarily while an adverse vote will retire Senators Bayard of Delaware, Bruce of Maryland, Edwards of New Jersey, Gerry of Rhode Island, and Neely of West Virginia, all Democrats.

The new senate incidentally will line up with 56 Republicans, 39 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite. This will give the Republicans the opportunity to get through a lot of party legislation, but the margin is so close that the insurgents retained their "balance of power." There are eight insurgents, including the Farmer-Laborite, in the new senate. There are three other Republicans—Couzens, Johnson and Norbeck—who frequently vote with them. When all 11 side with the Democrats, Republican control is lost. Nine of them, in fact, can put the Democrats in command.

The house, however, will have an old-fashioned Republican majority, exclusive of the Wisconsin and other insurgent delegations. The Republicans in the lower branch probably will have 50 votes to spare on party matters. This will be helpful to Hoover policies, but it marks only half the job as the senate must pass upon all legislation before it goes to the White House to become a law.

New Leader Approved

The naming of Watson as the new leader in the senate has met the approval of Republican leaders everywhere. There probably has been no more popular member of the party than Watson, who has a host of friends in and out of congress. He will win the post, chiefly on his seniority, but will be helped by his wife's friendship among party leaders.

When Curtis was nominated for the vice presidency by the Kansas City convention, it started a scramble for his senate post. Friends of Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, and Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, pushed forward their candidacies. Fess, however, retired from the race immediately and pledged his support to Watson. Moses announced he would seek again his present post of president pro-tem and endorsed Watson for the leadership. Reed did likewise, and this left Watson without opposition.

There have been reports that Curtis would continue as leader during the short session. Party leaders, however, favor his retirement at once, feeling the vice president-elect—who will preside day after day over the new senate, making hundreds of decisions on parliamentary questions—should not participate in the factional battles which are certain to feature the sessions this winter.

I, the Lord, thy God am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate Me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love Me and keep My commandments.—Exodus xx:5-6.

God threatens to punish all who transgress His commandments, therefore we should fear His wrath, and do nothing against such commandments. But He promises grace and every blessing to all who keep His commandments; therefore, we should love and trust in Him and gladly do according to His commandments.

Fun For Sale

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Two Broadway wits were short of money and at the same time out of steady employment. In discussing their plight with several of their cronies, it was suggested that they had talents extraordinary and unique, and that they should commercialize their bright sayings and sell them to show people, as they paid well for good material. It was decided, without much persuasion, to form a partnership. They pooled their money and found they had enough to pay one month's rent for an office in the roaring forties. A neat sign adorned the door. It read: "Fun for sale."

Time seemed to move more rapidly than usual, and the month was about to end without any money coming in. They were dejected and didn't have a laugh left in their system. As they were about to give up they received a letter from a loan company, offering to lend them money. The one partner was so elated and excited that he could hardly wait until his associate had read the good tidings. He then picked up the phone and called the writer of the epistle. "We are in receipt of your letter and understand you have money to lend," he said in a businesslike tone. "Yes," came back the voice on the other end, "we always have money to lend; that is our business."

"Well, as I understand it, you have money to lend us," said the manufacturer of wit.

"Yes, we have," replied the banker.

"Well, if that is the case, all I have to say is that you are a mighty lucky concern." With that he hung up the receiver and the firm of Fun for Sale liquidated.

There was great consternation around certain sections of this nation when word got out that the food on the Graf Zeppelin lasted but three days, and on the fourth and last day of the voyage the passengers' only sustenance was caviar and champagne. Wine was never so high before.

There is a man about town named Hoover, who is a printing salesman. Through the day he makes many calls, in the performance of his work, and meets many people. During the past month he has been introduced to many people and every one has remarked, with a twinkling eye, "You're not the famous Herbert Hoover?"

He is hoping to meet a person who won't "pull" this obvious wheeze, and if he does meet him, although he is skeptical, he promises a rare treat. Which reminds us of a story, so let's have it.

A colored tramp came to the back door of a southern home and asked for a bite to eat.

"What's your name?" inquired the lady of the house.

"My name," said the darkey, "is Poe."

"Poe," repeated the lady, "are you any relation to Edgar Allen Poe?"

"Any relation," laughed the beggar, "why I is Edgar Allen Poe."

STILL A BOY

I saw him straying down the street,
A hungry, sad, lost pup;
He played upon my sympathy;
That's why I picked him up.
And, too, he looks just like a dog
I owned in Boyhood Land—
A dog that was my truest friend—
A pal to understand
My ups and downs and ins and outs,
My laughter and my tears;
And I have not forgotten him
Through all these passing years.

Well, now I have another dog,
Just like the dog I had;
And though I am a grown up man,
At heart I'm still a lad,
With love for dogs, and guns, and hunts—
The boyhood joys I've known.
If manhood has no place for them,
I hope I'm never grown!

At Death's Open Door

IT WAS a grisly sort of feast that was held the other night in the death house of the Ohio penitentiary.

The host was John Sabo, celebrating his 21st birthday by spending his last $30 for a dinner to the five other occupants of the condemned cells. The host recently was denied a retrial, and will know very soon when he is to be electrocuted. It is the only uncertainty that this world now holds for him—the date.

One of the guests was scheduled to die just five days later. Another was to follow him to the electric chair two days after that. The other three were negroes, all of whom knew that they had no hope of escaping the same fate a little later on.

Sabo made his $30 go as far as possible. There was chicken, sweet potatoes, biscuit, salad, pie a la mode, a huge birthday cake, coffee and cigars. It was a genuine banquet.

But imagine the circumstances! The meal was served in the open corridor into which the condemned cells open. At the end of the room was a door leading into the execution chamber—a door each of the six banqueters would pass through within a few weeks. Picture, if you can, the cheerfulness and ease that must have surrounded that festal board.

It was gruesome, of course. But, after all, the situation of those six condemned men, enjoying a feast in the short time that remained to them, was not greatly different from our own. Like them, we are all condemned to die; only they know exactly when they are to go, and we do not.

Knowing, and counting the hours, they grow desperate. Death that is certain and imminent becomes terrifying. We do not know the date of our own death and it fails to alarm us. We do not think about the matter; and we go along from day to day, really disbelieving that we shall ever die.

And, really, we do pretty well. The race has a number of very fine achievements to its credit; bits of poetry and music, deeds of self-sacrifice and heroism, patent struggles for truth, uncomplaining acceptances of heavy loads. In our vague denial that we shall ever die we now and then accomplish things that, in sober truth, will live forever.

It is not true that the presence of death brings wisdom. It destroys it. A man who knows he is soon to die can think of nothing else. But most of us, to whom that knowledge is not present, can see more clearly. By assuming that death is remote we stumble on a great truth—that it is unimportant. It cannot stop our slow progress upward from the dark abyss that lies back of recorded history. We triumph over it—triumph over it by forgetting it.

It is only under abnormal circumstances—in a penitentiary death house, for instance—that death appears real and terrifying. Most of the time we know that it is only a shadow, a half-way point between two eternities.

Seeks of Thrills

IT is the most natural thing in the world for youth to go looking for a thrill.

It is an excellent impulse, and has done a great deal of good in the world. But, like all good impulses, its gets oddly perverted now and then.

Consider these two ways in which American youths have sought a thrill in the past few days.

In Oglethorpe university, in Georgia, were two rich men's sons—George Harsh and Richard Gallogly. They wanted a thrill, so they took up banditry. They carried through a number of holdups, shooting two men to death in the process. Now they are awaiting trial for first degree murder.

That's one way of looking for a thrill.

Then there was a 19-year-old caddy at the Rye (N. Y.) Country club, named Clarence Terhune. He also wanted a thrill. So he went to Lakehurst, N. J., hid inside the envelope of the great dirigible Graf Zeppelin, and made the aerial trip to Europe as a stowaway.

And that's another way of looking for a thrill.

It's a queer business. The two university boys are being condemned from one end of the country to the other. The least that their fellow citizens wish for them is a speedy passage to the electric chair. And the young caddy is something of a national hero; we look on him with a sneaking admiration, feel that he displayed daring and ingenuity, and wish him all kinds of good luck.

Yet all of these young men were responding to the same natural impulse—the desire for a thrill.

No impulse of that kind is good or bad in itself. The need for a thrill drives some young men into crime; but it has sent many more into positions where they could serve their fellow men. It would be interesting to know just how many of the young men who forced their way through the Argonne forest in 1918 got there, primarily, for that very reason. The desire for a thrill has filled the world's armies since time immemorial.

In the long run, of course, it is up to society to fill that need. In it there are enormous potentialities for good and for bad. If we ignore it, as is our custom, we will see, every so often, an outbreak like this one in Georgia. If we take advantage of it, harness it and put it to work, the world will advance.

Nothing gives youth a greater thrill than the call to follow some high ideal. We who have passed our youth are at fault if we cannot raise such an ideal for our young people to follow. The material is there. If it goes to waste the fundamental blame lies, not on the shoulders of the young, but on our own.

WISE GIRL

An office girl showed a visitor six bank books, all representing accounts in her name. In one she kept Christmas money, in another vacation money, in a third money for the purchase of clothes. Then she had a permanent savings account, a checking account and a sixth account for emergencies.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Among those on friendly terms with the merchant were Count Emlen Jabassy and his wife, the Countess Katrane.

CHARACTERS:

GERANE, only daughter of
JONIFER THE HAWK, a robber chieftain who is planning a raid on a rich merchant who is to pass along the King's highway, begs to be allowed to accompany the bandits. Her father commands her to remain at home.

She catches up with the rear guard and proceeds with it.

Julius Broadaxe, one of her father's trusted lieutenants, takes her to him. He is so delighted to know that she is safe that he forgets to punish her.

INSTALLMENT V

A certain merchant in Edelweiss was named Leopold Mathias. His father was called Leopold Mathias, and, while he was rich, he was not so greedy, nor so contemptuous as his son.

This younger Mathias was known as a merchant who dealt only in what, for want of a better term, may be described as priceless things, and his trade, far from being confined to the inconspicuous, though ancient, city of Edelweiss, extended to such places as the royal palace in St. Petersburg, the emperor's castle in Vienna, the homes of the kings of Italy and Spain and Belgium. Certain notable actresses of the day, reigning in domains comfortably accessible to lavish spendthrifts, were known to be figuratively—and more or less impartially—"smothered" with pearls and diamonds and rubies that had passed through the hands of Leopold Mathias, the Second.

His place of business at Edelweiss was in Regengetz Circus, almost opposite the entrance to Castle avenue. The first floor was occupied by the banking concern of E. Blotz & Sons. The shrewd purveyor of gems was a member of the firm, although his connection was known only to a few noblemen who were as surreptitiously interested as he in the conduct of the reputable, if somewhat unpopular, establishment of E. Blotz & Sons. A duke, a marquis and a count were among the subrosa backers of this usurious concern. To be sure, they did not bank with E. Blotz & Sons, nor did Leopold Mathias.

But this has nothing to do with the story of Gerane Davos. And, for fear that the reader may be misled into believing that Leopold Mathias is to become a permanent character in the narrative, it is only proper to state here and now that his only excuse for coming into it lies in the fact that he fared forth on the morning of September the tenth, bent on transporting over the King's highway certain precious stones and ornaments intended for dispersal among ladies of high estate in St. Petersburg. And this journey of his would have been no different from dozens of similar trips over a period of 10 or 15 years, had it not happened to be co-incidental with the nineteenth birthday of the daughter of Jonifer Davos.

Nevertheless, Leopold Mathias was a person of importance. His position in Edelweiss was unique. He was the only merchant in the capital who could truthfully say that royalty itself, in the person of the recently deceased and greatly lamented prince, had, since earliest boyhood called him by his first name, while every nobleman in the land addressed him as "Leppy." And duchesses, countesses and baronesses bowed to him and called him Mr. Mathias. Nearly all of them owed him money.

Among those on friendly terms with the merchant were Count Emlen Jabassy and his wife, the Countess Katrane. The latter, a direct descendant of the "pretender" duke who, several generations back, had tried to oust his half-brother from the throne of Graustark, was one of the most popular women at court, notwithstanding her relationship to that distant, thwarted rebel who had been publicly beheaded. Her own great-grandfather, then a boy, had been whisked to Paris by his mother and escaped the fate that befell the would-be usurper's family and such of his followers as were not able to escape. He was the only son of the covetous duke.

The estates of this rebel half-brother were confiscated by the crown and the title abolished. All that part of Graustark lying west of Ganlook, including the forest of Droon, had belonged to the duke by virtue of a royal decree issued a few months prior to the death of the old ruler, the father of the two half-brothers. To the eldest son went the crown and all of its rights, privileges and powers.

The younger son hated and envied his half-brother, the successor to the throne. He had many friends and followers. The revolution that ended so disastrously came to pass in the fifth year of the reign of Prince Caspar, along toward the close of the eighteenth century.

Less than a score of the pretender's supporters found refuge from the fury of the enemy through the aid of noncombatants in the forests that made up part of the duke's domain. These fugitives were smuggled into the valley that was, in later days, the abiding place of Jonifer Davos and his "merry men," many of whom were the grandchildren of the original settlers. So relentless were the efforts of Prince Caspar to capture all those concerned in the uprising that these fugitives not only feared to stick their noses out of the sequestered glen, but finally cast their lot with the few ignorant hillmen who were there before them.

It was not until 1840 that a grandson of the duke and blood relation to the reigning Prince of Graustark came to dwell in the mountain stronghold, himself fleeing from the wrath of a Russian czar, against whom he had plotted.

This grandson was a marplot. It was he who inspired the dwellers in the glen to violence against the crown. And it was this Jonifer Davos, whose real name was the same as that borne by the royal family of Graustark, although it had been abandoned by his father at the beginning of his flight to Paris—it was this Jonifer who was the sire of Jonifer the Hawk, his successor as chieftain of the robbers and the father of Gerane.

When the first Jonifer came to the glen to hide among the people whose forebears had served under the banner of his grandfather, he brought with him his 2-year-old son, deserting his wife and daughter, a child of seven, both of whom he abandoned in Bucharest, where he had found sanctuary after the flight from St. Petersburg.

He despised his wife, a Russian, whose family, while not noble, was fanatically loyal to the czar. While he cared for his little daughter in a way, he had no compunction in leaving her. Girls did not count in the calculations of Jonifer Davos, the First. It was different, however, with his son. This boy was a link in the royal chain. If fortune had cut the cards differently, he would now be a direct heir to the throne of Graustark; and always there was the hope that—but even Jonifer, the duke's grandson, was too good a gambler to bank on the improbable.

His wife never heard from him again. In time she fell in with several rich residents of Edelweiss, who were, by virtue of certain sporting tendencies, in favor with the haute monde of Graustark's capital. She was a woman of the world. A gentleman of Edelweiss became enamored of her. She went to the city and stayed there until her death, some ten years later, and, through the intercession of friends, obtained from the crown forgiveness for the deeds of her husband's ancestor. She was conceded a small estate and an imperial pension. The royal family, however, ignored her. She was never received at court, nor was she recognized beyond the bestowal upon her of the title of the countess, and this, no doubt, was done for political reasons.

Her daughter married the Count Jabassy, a young man who was received in the best society. A year or so after Katrane's marriage, her mother died.

Among those who attended the funeral was a boy of 17. After the ceremony, he presented himself at the home of the young countess and delivered to her, with the compliments of his father, a small casket containing jewels and heirlooms that had been the property of her mother up to the day she was deserted by Jonifer Davos. Before departing, he informed her that he was her brother and the son of the woman who had died.

She was incredulous.

"You? You my brother? But my father, where is he, if you speak the truth?"

"Are you not satisfied, Katrane? Are you not satisfied with these things that were my mother's and now are yours? Or must you ask questions?"

"Of course, I must ask. First, what is your name?"

"The same as my father's. If you remember his name, you know mine."

"My father was called Jonifer. It was not his real name."

"Nor is Davos his real name. Now you know the name I go by."

"But where is he? Why does he send you—"

"My mission was to deliver into the hands of my sister, the things that were our mother's. I was to tell you who I am and then go my way. My father wants you to know that they come to you from him. That is all I can say. You are nothing to me—countesses are nothing to me. No more are queens and princesses. Good-by."

"But, wait, Jonifer," she cried, eagerly. "You shall not go until you have told me about my father. He must be alive. Where is he?"

"He doesn't care to be bothered with girls," broke in young Jonifer. "If he had wanted you, he would have taken you when he left. Any fool can see that he did not want to be saddled with a girl. Good-by."

"Tell me how I can find him," she insisted.

"Listen to me," he said, melting a little in response to the appeal. "I will do this much for you. I will tell my father what you have said. If he chooses to see you some time, he will say so. Then I will come to you with the message, if he so desires. But it will do you no good to try to seek for him. You have the jewels, have you not? Isn't that enough for the present?"

Several months passed, and one day young Jonifer, in the guise of a gypsy peddler, appeared at the house of the countess.

"Tell your mistress," said he to the servant, "that I would give her a message from one who knew her mother long ago."

Presently the young peddler was conducted to the countess' boudoir. The result of this visit was the meeting of father and daughter outside the city walls. Young Jonifer took a great fancy to his sister and she to him. But it was not until the death of the elder Davos and his son's ascendancy to the chieftainship of the band that preyed upon the rich that the Countess Katrane, urged by avarice and an almost prenatal antagonism to the house of Ganlook (the house that had produced rulers of Graustark since the reign of Prince Ganlook in the thirteenth century) became the head of a small group of intermediaries in Edelweiss, through whom the movements of cetrain rich travelers were made known to the thieves in the forest.

And now she and her husband lived in comfort on their share of the spoils taken on the King's highway. They were the leaders of a select coterie of rascals—the term being applicable to both sexes—and so skillful were their operations that Baron Dangloss, minister of police, never suspected one of them.

Several days before Leopold Mathias started out on his journey over the King's highway to Balak, in Axphain, where he intended to board the railway train that made connection with the express for St. Petersburg, he happened upon Count Jabassy and his wife in the Hotel Regengetz.

During the conversation, he spoke of the coming trip to St. Petersburg. Before he was through with it, he had said that he was conveying an impressive collection of jewels and priceless fabrics to the Russian capital, adding that he would have undertaken the journey with no other guard than that provided by his own servants, had not Baron Dangloss insisted upon supplying him with a small detachment of troopers from the tower.

"But, my dear baron," said I, "that is unnecessary. There has not been a depredation on the King's highway in nearly a year. Less than two months ago I passed over it with goods valued at a hundred thousand rubles and was not molested. Thank you, my dear baron, but I am not alarmed or uneasy.' (As a matter of fact, Mr. Mathias had begged for an armed escort.) The baron said dubiously: 'My dear Leopold, it is too great a risk you would take. The robbers have not been active in months, but'—and so on and so forth, my dear countess. Well, I am to have a bodyguard of a dozen men, armed to the teeth. It is amusing, is it not?"

"Very," said Count Jabassy.

"Quite," agreed the countess.

And so, without further words, the nutshell may be considered full. Jonifer Davos knew the hour of the merchant's departure from the city, the approximate value of his wares, the size of his escort, and, by process of reasoning, the time when he would reach a given point in the forest of Droon.

NEW CONGRESS BACKS HOOVER

Republicans Reinforce Hold on Seats

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (UP)—Herbert Hoover will have a working majority in congress that should enable him to put across any partisan legislation he may recommend in the next four years.

Congressional returns received by the United Press tonight indicated he had at least eight votes in the senate and perhaps 20 in the house over the majority which President Coolidge controlled in his congress.

The senate victories mean that the Republican insurgents from middle western states will be unable to block Republican legislation by voting with the Democrats.

The Republicans gained probably eight seats in the senate, including the election of Senator-elect Glenn of Illinois to fill the vacancy created by the contest over former Senator-designate Frank L. Smith of Illinois.

United Press returns tonight showed the Republicans were assured of at least five in the senate and 12 in the house.

In five other states Republicans were leading Democrat incumbents, with returns indicating at least three of the Democrats would be overthrown.

Copeland Wins

These two unusual upsets were surpassed only by the successful race which Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, of New York ran in this state. Copeland was nearly 6,000 votes ahead of his ticket, which was led by the most popular vote-getter of all time in these parts, Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the defeated Democratic presidential nominee. When Smith fell to defeat in his own state Tuesday evening, Democratic leaders conceded the defeat of the entire state ticket except Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was running for governor. They found in the early morning returns today their concession has been premature and that not only Roosevelt, but also Copeland, had run far ahead of Smith and that both of them had won, Copeland by a larger majority than the locally popular Roosevelt.

Numerous Democratic leaders in the senate fell before the Hoover slide. These included Senator Peter G. Gerry, Rhode Island, who was apparently defeated by his Republican opponent, Judge Felix Hebert. The familiar Senator Edward I. Edwards, Democrat, of New Jersey fell before the Hoover landslide in his state, which elected his Republican opponent, Hamilton S. Kean.

Gains in House

These returns showed also that the uncontested Republican majority in the house had been increased by 12, and returns in the doubtful districts indicated this increased majority would be swelled considerably.

The doubtful senatorial contests, 24 hours after the polls had closed, includes Missouri, Montana, Rhode Island, Washington and West Virginia, in which Democratic incumbents were contesting in close contests for re-election. It has been several years since so many senatorial battles were so closely contested that returns a day after the balloting failed to indicate a definite trend. However, the Hoover landslide so complicated the senatorial and congressional races that normally Democratic states were forced to count to the last ballot to ascertain who had won.

Southwest Wheat Area Represented at Meet

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 8. (INS)—Every state in the southwestern hard winter wheat area, as well as Minnesota, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa and the United States department of agriculture, was represented at the wheat improvement conference at the agricultural college here today. Nearly 200, each of whom is a leader in some branch of the Southwest's wheat industry, were present. As a result of the day's conference experiment station men of Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Oklahoma and Texas hope to evolve a definite, coordinated program for wheat improvement in the Southwest.

Wisconsin G. O. P. Slate In Congress Assured

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 8. (AP)—An all-Republican representation in congress for Wisconsin was assured today when the complete unofficial returns from the Fifth congressional district showed Representative Victor L. Berger, the Socialist, had been defeated for re-election by his erstwhile Republican opponent, William H. Stafford.

The complete unofficial returns gave Stafford, former member of congress, a victory by a margin of 810 votes. The totals were Stafford 41,582, Berger 41,072.

A recount may be asked by Mr. Berger.

VOTERS CRUSH BILL THOMPSON

Chicago G. O. P. Machine Snowed Under

CHICAGO, Nov. 8. (AP)—In retrospect, Cook county voters today regarded the remains of the machine of Mayor Thompson and state's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, crushed by the steam roller of ballots Tuesday.

The machine was badly shaken in vital spots in April at the primary. Not a candidate of the ring survived the election.

Judge John A. Swanson, backed for state attorney by the Republican faction of Senator Charles S. Deneen opposing the Crowe-Thompson alliance, was chosen by a plurality of 141,363 over Judge William J. Lindsay, Democrat.

The six candidates of the alliance were buried beneath an avalanche of ballots. Coroner Oscar Wolff was defeated by the greatest plurality in the history of Cook county by Dr. Herman Bundeson, former Chicago health commissioner. The doctor, dismissed as commissioner by Mayor Thompson when he succeeded Mayor Deever.

W. Jaronowski, Crowe-Thompson candidate for county recorder, was defeated by Clayton F. Smith, Democrat, whose plurality was more than 550,000. Eugene L. Nusser, alliance candidate for assessor was beaten by John E. Conroy, Democrat, by 250,637.

Morris Eller, Mayor Thompson's city sealer, now under indictment in connection with primary day disorders that resulted in the murder of Octavius Granady, negro, got the lowest vote of any of the ring's candidates. As a candidate for sanitary trustee, he polled only 332,141 votes. Edward F. Moore, Mayor Thompson's deputy commissioner of public works and a machine candidate to fill the vacancy on the drainage board, was beaten by Ross A. Woodhull, Democrat, by 228,582.

Another Wichita Falls Woman Was in Bad Health Several Years; Orgatone Brings Relief

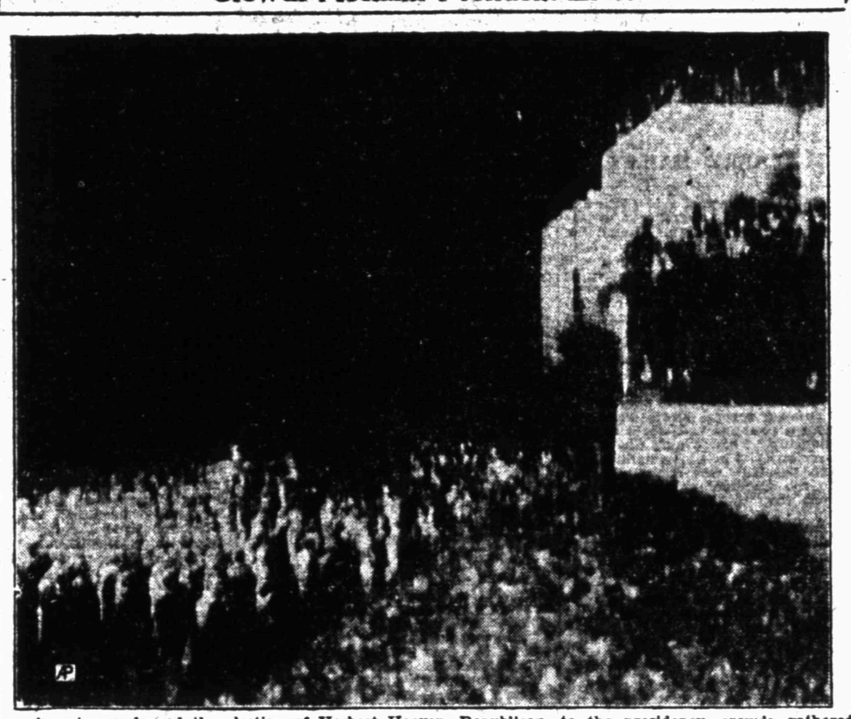

Another wonderful indorsement for Orgatone that will be read by thousands of frail, suffering women, was given recently by Mrs. S. Myers, 2510 Grant street, Wichita Falls, Texas. In describing her troubles and failure heretofore to find relief, to a Orgatone representative, Mrs. Myers said:

"I have been in very poor health for a long time. My condition has been wretched for two years. I suffered from acid stomach and it seemed like every thing I would eat would come back up in my throat and choke me. I was very nervous and had been constipated practically all my life. At times I was a mighty sick woman, and only those who are afflicted as I was know how I suffered. I paid out a lot of money for treatment and medicines of different kinds, but I kept getting worse. My liver was in such bad condition I would have sick dizzy spells and sometimes it was impossible for me to stand on my feet in this condition.

"I commenced to read about the good Orgatone was doing people right here in Wichita Falls and I can't tell you how glad I am that I decided to try Orgatone. What I have already taken has given me more relief than all the other treatments and medicines I ever took put together. I am not nearly so nervous now, can eat anything I want and digest it properly, and my awful dizzy spells are broken up. My constipation is gone and I have improved wonderfully in every way and feel that in a short time my troubles will be relieved entirely. Only those who have experienced the great relief I have can realize the joy I feel over what Orgatone has done for me and I gladly recommend it to others suffering as I did."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's Drug Co., 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene.—Adv.

Arkansas Passes Anti-Evolution Bill in Tuesday's Referendum

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 8. (AP)—Arkansas by referendum vote today apparently had passed an anti-evolution bill downed a year ago after a bitter fight in its legislative chambers.

On the face of returns, the act will become a law by a substantial margin as soon as returns can be certified to the secretary of state by county officials. It forbids the teaching of the theory of evolution in tax supported schools, including the University of Arkansas, and specifies no theory shall be taught that man "ascended or descended from a lower order of animals."

The vote at the latest tabulation stood 36,689 for the anti-evolution measure and 25,549 against it, being returns from 759 out of 1928 and including practically all the urban vote.

Charles Smith, president of The American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, Inc., who came to this state several weeks ago to fight the measure, was scheduled to start the return trip to New York today. Smith was convicted on a charge of breach of peace for distributing "Godless evolution" literature and fined $25. He chose to serve out the fine and fasted for 18 days in jail in protest to anti-Atheist laws in this state.

Stanton Slayer Files Appeal

AUSTIN, Nov. 8. (INS)—An appeal was filed in the court of criminal appeals today by Lee Smith, convicted of murder in Callahan county and sentenced to life imprisonment in connection with the slaying of Hilario Nunez, Mexican, at Stanton, Martin county, Dec. 23, 1927. The case was transferred to Callahan county on a change of venue.

Nunez was one of two Mexicans shot to death in front of a bank in Stanton. Their slayers alleged that they shot the men, thinking they were bank robbers. Later it developed the two Mexicans were shot down in a "frameup" to collect the $5,000 reward offered by the state bankers association for dead bank bandits.

Drink Water If Kidneys Bother

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's injurious waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

POINCARE MAY LEAD CABINET

Resigned Leader Plans to Reorganize

PARIS, Nov. 8. (UP)—Raymond Poincare, who brought back a national confidence in France's financial condition, today continued the favorable choice to head France's next government.

Poincare resigned his cabinet Tuesday after four radical Socialist deputies found their party would no longer permit their collaboration with the Poincare government. It was the third cabinet Poincare had headed since the world war and this one appeared to be going towards the longevity record for French cabinets, as it had been in office since July, 1926, without dissenting criticism.

But Poincare felt he could not meet opposition from the radical-Socialists—who, under the lead of Joseph Caillaux had promised a strong attack in parliament. Poincare resigned.

Since then Poincare has been going about attempts to form a new cabinet and conferences yesterday with President Dokmergue indicated he might succeed. Etienne Clementel, Paul Boncour, Jean Louis Malvy and Francois Marsall, former cabinet ministers, told the president they felt Poincare would succeed in his attempts to form a new cabinet of the national union

Question of Validity of Texas Water Control Districts Goes Before Court

AUSTIN, Nov. 8. (AP)—Litigation involving the validity of water control and improvement districts in Texas was submitted before section B of the supreme court commission of appeals today, and a decision is expected in a few weeks.

The Tarrant County Water Control and Improvement district's application for mandamus forcing Attorney General Claude Pollard to approve its $6,500,000 bond issue was to be argued this afternoon and the San Saba district's appeal from a civil appellate ruling holding the district illegal, was submitted this morning.

Tarrant county interests intervened in the San Saba case, but the status of the Tarrant district was left undetermined in the third civic appeals court decision, which declared the law under which water control and improvement districts are organized, is unconstitutional. The Tarrant district was converted to one like the San Saba district, and the life of both is dependent upon the supreme court decisions, which also will affect about 10 other districts in the state.

Olvany Explains Small Majority

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (AP)—George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany hall, today offered an explanation for the comparatively small plurality given Governor Smith in New York City. Tammany had estimated his plurality would be 581,000 at least, whereas it was 448,000.

Olvany denied that the organization had failed to function. "Nail that hard," he said. "The organization performed 100 per cent from top to bottom.

"It was the prosperity issue, the issue the Republicans kept to the forefront. It held enough of a small percentage of the business men in line."

ARMY-NOTRE DAME FEATURE COLORFUL SCHEDULE TOMORROW

BIG TEN TITLE IS IN BALANCE

Ohio Meets Iowa; Vanderbilt Faces Georgia Tech

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (UP)—While the Army's gridiron juggernaut attempts to vanquish Notre Dame at Yankee Stadium Saturday in its quest for the mythical national football championship, other strong elevens in the East, South and Middle West will be struggling for sectional football honors.

The Army-Notre Dame game overshadows all other Eastern games, not only as a gridiron battle, but as spectacle. Among the more than 80,000 persons who will see the game will be Army's grad-clad cadet corps and its military band. The largest crowd that ever saw a football game in the East is expected to witness the Army-Notre Dame contest from the triple-decked stands of the big American league ball park.

Unbeaten Teams Clash

Two of the four major undefeated Eastern teams, Georgetown and Carnegie Tech, will clash at Albany, N. Y., in a game which will elevate the winner to a commanding position in Eastern football circles. Carnegie Tech did not play last week in anticipation of a hard fight, while Georgetown inflicted the first defeat of the year on New York university, 7 to 2.

Boston college's undefeated record will not be endangered again until next week when the team, coached by a 22-year old boy, meets Fordham at Boston Monday.

The championship of the Big Ten conference hangs in the balance at Columbus Saturday where Ohio State and Iowa, the only two unbeaten and untied contenders, meet before a crowd of 75,000.

Wisconsin remains undefeated but has a 19-19 tie with Purdue to mar their conference record.

Individual Stars Meet

Two of the middle west's brightest offensive stars will be pitted against each other in the Ohio State-Iowa clash in Byron Eby, the fast stepping halfback who dashed through Princeton's defense for the tying touchdown in last week's intersectional clash and Papa Pape, whose phenomenal run in the last few minutes of the Minnesota game brought victory to Iowa. Pape has been married for three years.

Down South Georgia Tech meets Vanderbilt in a highly important Southern conference game which will pack Grant field to capacity. Although Tennessee and Florida boast undefeated records, the victor at Atlanta is quite likely to win the Southern title. Georgia Tech has a well-earned victory over Notre Dame, 13 to 0, to its credit, while Vanderbilt has intersectional victories over Colgate and Texas.

Vanderbilt has two all-American candidates in Abernathy, an end rated better than Lynn Bomar, a former all-American end from Vandy, and Captain Arimstead, a bald-headed quarterback. Georgia Tech has a raft of backfield stars, prominent among whom are Stumpy Thomason and Toy Lumpkin.

Ponies Face Texas Aggies

Southern California, leader in the Pacific Coast conference, has an easy intersectional game with Arizona Saturday following last week's 10 to 0 triumph over Stanford. California, unbeaten by a college team but tied by Southern California, will meet Washington in the big game on the coast at Seattle.

Southern Methodist, the only team Army hasn't beaten by at least two touchdowns, has another hard game in the Southwestern conference this week, playing the Texas Aggies at Dallas. Redman Hume, the dazzling Southern Methodist halfback, suffered a broken ankle against Texas last week and may be out of the game the rest of the season.

University of Utah, leader in the Rocky Mountain conference, meets Creighton university in an intersectional game at Omaha.

Army Should Win This One

Notre Dame figures its only chance to stop the rampaging Cadets is to pass them to death as the Southern Methodists nearly did. Above is one of the lads Rockne is grooming for this desperate effort. Johnny Murrel will be there for the Army to slap down aerials and to rip holes in the Rocknemen's line.

By JAY R. VESSELS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7. (AP)—Army's great football team will get its first taste of middle-west competition this year when it meets Notre Dame at the Yankee Stadium Saturday, Nov. 10.

The powerful West Point aggregation has tasted and liked the eastern and southwestern brand. And the indications are that it will relish the new change of diet. It is that kind of a team.

The Notre Dame invasion will mark the turning point in the schedule for the football hungry outfit of Coach Biff Jones. The Cadets have met and defeated about the best there is in the east; that is if Harvard and Yale can be called the best. After Notre Dame comes Nebraska, with Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., a minor eleven, sandwiched in between. Then comes the big shot from the Pacific coast—Pop Warner's hard-hitting Stanford troupe.

Beating Rockne's Ramblers—and the dope indicates they will—will mean a fresh start for the Cadets on one of the most ambitious undertakings ever attempted by a major football squad.

Having developed greater scoring punch with each succeeding game, the Army team is favored to swamp the 1928 edition of the South Bend "Rocks," a team that needs even a greater upset than a victory over the Army to make its season a success.

On the basis of this year's showing of the two teams the Cadets are all but conceded a victory. But, as is usually the case in annual engagements between two old rivals, anything may happen. No later than last year something did happen. Notre Dame was the favorite, yet the Cadets shut out the Hoosiers 18 to 0.

The West Point eleven can stand a few victories over Notre Dame, for of the 14 games they have played the Ramblers have won nine to Army's four, with one tied.

One-sided or otherwise, the game in all of its angles will represent a matchless spectacle. There will be the usual embellishments and a capacity crowd of 80,000.

AGGIE LINEUP TO BE INTACT

Eleven Who Started Last Week to Face Ponies

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 8.—While Coach Dana X. Bible has not announced definitely his starting lineup for the conflict with the S. M. U. Mustangs in Dallas next Saturday, it is considered likely that he will start the same team that worked to such good advantage against the North Texas State Teachers college last week-end.

It is possible that Dorsey, who has shown much power in scrimmage this week, will start at one of the halves and Northcutt at one of the guard positions.

The game with the Mustangs will be the first real test of the revamped Aggie eleven and a win over the vaunted Ponies would be a considerable upset in conference circles. With the Mustangs leading the race for the conference title and with only one defeat, a one-point victory for the powerful Army team, registered against them this season, the Aggies, who have lost three games, will enter the fray decidedly not the favorites. Two of the games lost by the Aggies were conference tilts and this places them virtually out of the running in the race for the flag.

It is this very point, however, which may be of value to the Aggies in the game with the Ponies. Playing with nothing more at stake than the game, they can afford to play a bit more recklessly than would be the case if a title hung in the balance. At all events, it promises to be an interesting game.

Crippled Indians Drill For Battle

Baggett's Men Work For Game Here Saturday

Coach E. A. Baggett continued to drive his crippled Wichita Falls Junior college Indians through hard practice Thursday afternoon in an effort to prepare them for a conference skirmish here Saturday afternoon with Gainesville Junior college.

Almost half of the Indian squad, including several first string men, are hobbling through practices with injuries.

St. Joe High Beats Zundelowitz, 38-0

St Jo high school defeated Zundelowitz Junior high school, 38 to 0, here Thursday afternoon.

The St. Jo team scored almost at will on the Zundy lads after the first five minutes of the game, with a baffling passing and off-tackle attac.

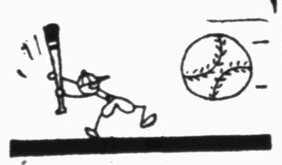

Michigan Loses Fullback Whose Kick Beat Illinois

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 8 (UP)—Joe Gembis, star fullback, who booted the field goal that defeated the University of Illinois eleven last Saturday, was taken to a hospital today suffering from acute appendicitis and probably will be lost by the Wolverines for the remainder of the season.

The University of Michigan eleven left for Baltimore late today.

Notre Dame Gridders Leave for Army Game

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 8. (UP)—Thirty-seven Notre Dame football players left here today for New York City, where they will meet the Army Saturday, a classic gridiron event in the East. Coach Knute Rockne and 200 rooters accompanied the team.

COYOTES READY FOR QUANAH GO

McCallum Expects Reserves to Help Win

By GORDON FULCHER

Perfecting reserves and new plays has been Coach Bud McCallum's chief occupation this week in directing practice of the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes. The Pack engages Quanah at Quanah Saturday in what is expected to be little more than a scrimmage for the Coyotes, with the real attention of the coaches focused on the game here next week with Lubbock high school Westerners.

Quanah's record this year is woefully weak and the game with the Indians Saturday will give the Coyote mentors more time in which to develop capable reserve material. Dick Hambrick and Harland Ray, reserve quarterbacks, will probably run the team through most of Saturday's game while Morris Lee, regular field general, will probably be kept on the sidelines on account of injuries.

One other member of the team will be absent from the contest on account of injuries this week, as Jud Bell, first string guard, is not yet able to scrimmage on account of an injured knee which he suffered in the game with Electra three weeks ago. Jack West, husky tackle, who has either been injured or ineligible on studies almost every week during the season, is again unavailable on his scholastic standings.

Frogs Must Win To Stay in Battle

T. C. U. Gridders Leave To Meet Rice at Houston

FORT WORTH, Nov. 8. (AP)—Forced to win or drop out of the Southwest conference grid race before their race is run, the Horned Frogs of T. C. U. departed Thursday night for Houston, where Saturday they meet the Rice Owls.

The Frogs, if they win, will still have a chance to tie or even win out in the pigskin race. If they lose, the two defeats will put them in the "also ran" class regardless of what they do the remainder of the season.

Husband Slayer Named in Charge

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 8. (AP)—A warrant charging first degree murder was issued today against Mrs. Helen C. Matlock who Tuesday afternoon killed her husband as he walked into an apartment where he was said to have established a young model and night club entertainer as another "Mrs. Matlock."

The warrant followed an inquest at which a coroner's verdict of homicide had been returned and at which both Mrs. Matlock and Rose Jokerst, the entertainer, had testified. Mrs. Matlock is 33 and Miss Jokerst, 21. The husband, Charles Matlock, an automobile salesman was 38.

M'ALLEN JUNIORS WIN

EDINBURG, Texas, Nov. 8. (AP)—McAllen Junior high school football team won the championship of the Rio Grande valley in its division by defeating the Harlingen Juniors, 12 to 0, today.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

EAST SIDE, west side (with sincere apologies and regrets to Al) east side, west side, all around the league goes Rogers Hornsby. Now we have it that the Rajah will pastime next season in uniform of the Chicago Cubs. The career of Hornsby is one of the most colorful in the history of the irrational pastime. And one of the many amazing things about the man is the frequency which he changes his summer residence.

Hornsby managed to stay at St. Louis for several years. Then he won a pennant and world championship. This event, the first ever enjoyed by St. Louis in modern baseball, was such a shock to the Cardinal powers that be that they sold him to the New York Giants. Hornsby was so successful as manager when John McGraw was away from the team that the Giants exiled him to Boston. All he did at the Hub in addition to managing a bunch of palooka ball players was to regain the batting championship of the National league.

SO NOW HE GOES to the Cubs, sold UP the river, it should be written. And he doubtless will make the Cubs an outstanding pennant contender. Hornsby is one of the greatest ball players of all time. Not only is he a batsman with few equals in annals of the game, but he is a "winning" ball player. He plays the game with all his spirit and great skill. His addition to an already powerful club, with a markedly mighty offense is viewed by many critics to point to the winning of the flag by the north side club next autumn.

THE DECISION of Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, to act as his own manager, is a surprise. Fuch's experience in baseball has been confined to being a fan in New York for years and in recent seasons as chief owner of the Braves. It follows, therefore, that his knowledge of the game, that is, from the standpoint of a field tactician, is decidedly limited. The experiment will be intently watched by baseball enthusiasts.

GEORGE BLACKERBY, Wichita Falls' contribution to major league baseball, Prexy J. Alvin Gardner of the Spudders and a few fans were talking at baseball headquarters the other day. George, returned home recently from his successful debut into fast company, discoursed interestingly and learnedly of big league baseball as he observed in the few months he was "up there." As George is a major league ball player and an observant young man, his remarks were highly illuminating.

George said, upon question, that Waite Hoyt had more on the ball than any pitcher he batted against. "Hoyt is fast," says George, "and he mixes 'em up. He gives you the impression that he's putting a lot on every ball, as he is." Alvin Crowder of the Browns and Lefty Grove of the Athletics were other cluckers whom George rates as hardest to hit.

AL THOMAS, of George's club, the Chicago White Sox, is one of the greatest pitchers in baseball, Blackerby says. Blackie, incidentally, says the Sox will have a mighty fine team next year. He likes Lena Blackburne, the pilot who succeeded Ray Schalk in mid-season and did a fine job the rest of the way and thinks Blackburne will have a club up in the race next season. Art Shires, the first baseman from Waco, seems to have the inside track on the regular job as pale hose initial sack guardian, though he has to keep that post from the hands of Bud Clancy, who was supplanted late last campaign by the former Texas leaguer.

BLACKERBY MADE a fine impression with the White Sox and although he isn't figured on as regular outfielder next season, a Chicago sports writer friend of mine sends word that our Georgie doubtless will be retained by the Chicago club. Blackerby, who was referee in the men's and girls' Commercial Basketball league and high school games last winter here will be available again this season as a cage official.

Dailey's Grid Average for Season .815

Forecast Baylor Win and One Exact Score

Larry Dailey scored high last week as a grid prognosticator. In addition to selecting 28 winners out of 36 predictions, with six losses and two ties, he correctly picked Baylor to upset the hitherto undefeated T. C. U. Frogs.

Dailey picked the exact score in Nebraska's 20-0 defeat of Kansas. In three games he missed the exact score by only one point. He picked Pittsburgh to defeat Syracuse, which, like the Baylor-T. C. U. game, was held by a majority of critics as to likely result the other way.

The Record News sports editor missed the score on Notre Dame's victory oven Penn State by four points. He forecast a low score result in the Cornell-Columbia game, picking the Ithacans to win by 7-6, while the result was a scoreless tie. He picked Yale to beat Dartmouth by 17-6 and the score was 18-0.

Dailey's average for last week was .821, and for the season is .815. Following is a resume of his forecasts for last week, with the predicted score named first and the actual score last:

More than 50,000 persons are expected to see the game at Baltimore. The sale of tickets has approached 40,000, officials of the Navy Athletic association announced today.

SUNDAY SPORTS

Bill in Massachusetts Passes By Decisive Margin

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 8.—Massachusetts went on record overwhelmingly in favor of Sunday sports in the election Tuesday. The vote on this referendum, with 390 out of 1,605 precincts unreported, stood:

Yes, 578,361; no, 395,348.

Passage of the measure will permit all sports on Sunday, including baseball.

VERNON DRILLS FOR AMARILLO

It's All or Nothing For Lions in Game Monday

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Nov. 8.—Preparing for the annual football game with Amarillo at the plains metropolis next Monday, Coaches Weir and Lyles are concentrating on offensive play and are driving the Lions at a terrific clip. The Vernon mentors admit they have little chance of defeating the vaunted Sandies, but no effort is to be made to keep down the score. "We will play to win," declares Head Coach Weir.

This policy has been paramount in the practice sessions of the week and the Lions have been given a number of new formations. Weak points in their passing attack have received much attention.

Latest reports indicate that all the regulars will be in the starting lineup at Amarillo. Captain Cox, Crawford, Coffee, and Sharp have been suffering from injuries but are rounding into playing condition rapidly. A special train is to carry about 300 Vernon fans to the game, and many others will go to the plains city in automobiles.

This appointment will bring the brilliant English politician into contact with the big industrial interests of the United States.

Flynn Pays Call On Mr. Dempsey

Significance Seen When He 'Drops In' for Workout

By ED FRAYNE

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (US)—The Dempsey comeback plot thickens—Leo Peter Flynn has been summoned from retirement!

Although the old silver fox didn't care to discuss what he was going to do, he put in an appearance at Stillman's gymnasium this afternoon while the former heavyweight champion was working out.

Flynn declared it was a friendly call, and had no significance, but it was learned reliably that Dempsey had asked him to drop around.

Flynn supervised Dempsey's training for both the Sharkey and Tunney fights last year, and was to all intents and purposes Dempsey's manager. His importance may be judged from the fact that he received a fee of $75,000 for three months' work.

"I just dropped in to say hello," said Flynn. "There's no chance of a comeback, in my opinion. Jack is doing this for his health. Besides, he has a vaudeville contract in view, and he wants to be in shape."

Dempsey has everyone guessing, and he always enjoyed that sort of a situation.

Big Ten Title At Stake When Iowa Meets Ohio State

These four young giants of the gridiron will have something to say about the outcome of the Ohio State-Iowa game Saturday. The loser faces elimination in the Western conference championship race.

Roosevelt, Protestant Dry, Looms As New Leader of Democratic Party

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (UP)—A little more than four years ago, Franklin D. Roosevelt stood in Madison Square garden and nominated his friend, Alfred E. Smith for president, dubbing him "the happy warrier."

Today, Smith had reached the end of his four-year fight for the presidency in a crushing defeat. Roosevelt, too affected by Smith's fate to make even a perfunctory statement on his own apparent victory for the governorship of New York, emerged from the election a potential national power in the Democratic party.

Fate dealt strangely with the two men, whose ways of life and rise to prominence had been so contrasting, yet who found so much in common. Smith was scarcely more the "happy warrior" than Roosevelt himself. Partially disabled by paralysis, he fought his way slowly back to an active life and made a vigorous campaign for Smith and himself—for Smith as much as himself.

Roosevelt was being hailed here as a possible leader of the badly shaken Democratic party. He has already attained national prominence as Democratic candidate for vice president in 1920 and as assistant secretary of the navy from 1913 to 1920. His public record has been good, he is an able politician and fighter, and he lacks the "wet Catholic" and "Tammany" handicap that played its part in Smith's defeat.

Roosevelt when he entered public life in 1910, soon displayed the fighting qualities of his cousin, President Theodore Roosevelt, and his first act as Democratic state senator from Dutchess county was to force a showdown on Tammany dictation at Albany. He won.

His record at Albany marked him as a public man more than a politician and he laid then the strength upstate which brought him votes in yesterday's election.

Roosevelt was profoundly affected by Smith's failure in the election. When he was informed today that Governor Smith had announced he was through with politics, Roosevelt did not look pleased. He shrugged his shoulders and said tersely:

"That's hypothetical."

Stock Car Race Carded Sunday

Cannonball Baker Sought To Drive Here

A 100-mile stock car auto race, with a purse of $2,000 offered, according to Don C. Onley, one of the officials, is scheduled to be held Sunday at the Texas-Oklahoma fairgrounds track.

The purse of $2,000 will be divided among the first five to finish and for lap prize money, Onley says. The victor is to receive $1,000, according to Onley.

Negotiations are under way, Onley said last night, to secure the entry of Cannonball Baker, noted dirt track driver.

Onley says the race here is the longest speed grind ever attempted over a half-mile track. He expects leading drivers of the Southwest to compete.

Onley and associates will stage a stock car race meet Monday at Duncan, Okla.

SOONER CAPITOL PROBE

Owner of Braves To Manage Team

BOSTON, Nov. 8. (UP)—Judge Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, announced that he would assume the duties of manager of the club.

"As to the successor of Manager Hornsby," Fuchs said, "my associate and friend, Charles F. Adams, urged me to assume the responsibility of becoming active managing director, in addition to my duties as president of the Boston Braves. I have decided to try."

Johnny Evers, captain of the Braves when they annexed the National league and world championship pennant in 1914, will act as Judge Fuchs' chief assistant, he announced.

In explaining the reasons for the trade, Fuchs said that the trade had been planned through Hornsby's own suggestion and that he left the club "with the good will of my associates and myself."

3 CONFERENCE CENTERS STAR

Gilliland of Baylor Looms As Greatest 'Find'

DALLAS, Nov. 8. (AP)—If their play so far this season is any indication of what may come later, at least three staunch Southwest conference football centers will offer a barrier in front of all their foes to come.

The showing in recent games of Paradeaux of Baylor, Atkins of T. C. U. and Powell of Southern Methodist has been such that the trio of first-year pivot men are being considered seriously for all-conference recognition, truly a gridiron novelty in these parts.

Paradeaux figured in Baylor's triumph over Centenary and Texas Christian after the former team had run up 14 consecutive victories and the Horned Frogs had ridden rough-shod over the first six opponents they met this season.

Atkins has been a tower of strength in the Frog forward wall, returning intercepted passes for substantial gains with the agility of a back.

It was the great work of Powell of S. M. U. in the Texas game that enabled Mustang forwards to resist four thrusts within the five-yard line and turn back their opponents, 6 to 2. The victory kept the Mustangs' slate clean and gave them a commanding position in the conference.

Nor has all the sophomore football crop been confined to the lads who snap the oval to backfield quarters, S. M. U. has carried on despite injuries to John Roach, all-southwest tackle last year, by Hammon's stellar playing at the position and Hopper, first-year fullback on the same team, has been consistently outstanding all season. Griffith of T. C. U. battered the Texas Aggies line to a pulp earlier in the year and has continued the same brand of offense.

The greatest "find," however, seems to be Gilliland, a rugged 185-pound ball carrier at Baylor, who twice during the season has sped 80 yards for touchdowns against teams rated potentially stronger than his own and galloped sundry other distances, outsprinting and eluding the defense as he went.

Others of his type who prevent grim looks on faces of Southwest conference coaches when they realize what gaps will be torn in their ranks by graduation are Delery, tackle, and Bible and Zarafonetis, halfbacks, A. & M.; Shelley, a Texas university back and Wilson, Baylor quarterback.

'Big Bill' Tilden Man Without Tennis Country

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—Big Bill Tilden now not only is an exile from the courts of his own land, but literally is a man without a country so far as his right to play amateur tennis is concerned.

By order of the International Lawn Tennis federation the ban applied to the famous American star by the United States Lawn Tennis association in August has been extended to its 34 other member nations and thus embraces the entire tennis playing world.

The only territory still available to Tilden for tournament competition comprises such countries as Russia and Abyssinia, where the citizens probably would find some difficulty in distinguishing a service ace from a lob.

Thus Tilden, six times American champion, is without a place wherein to swing his racket.

Bare Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Those 42,000,000 votes shrunk to 27,000,000 on Tuesday.

Which means that 16,000,000 people registered and then decided to go to the movies.

If it had rained in the West, Smith would have done much better. We don't know why he would have done much better. But it seems that western farmers consider it effeminate to carry parasols.

A tornado in Florida would also have assisted Al. That state went Republican for the first time in the school books.

But the real blow arrived when it failed to snow in Texas.

The only real happy man is Joe Robinson.

Joe doesn't have to be vice president.

A job that seems to be as important as a breakfast alcove in times of national stress and peril. Mr. Curtis is the new White House caddy.

Mr. Dawes is ready to show Mr. Curtis how to act when nothing is happening.

It does not require excessive diplomacy to smile for the news reels but it does require obese dignity to wear a high silk hat in such a manner that people will not think you are Grover Whalen.

Grover has just about monopolized the high hat business in America. He has been in every news reel for the last six years. Of course, the vice president is limited to dedications, welcomes and noddings in the affirmative.

Mr. Dawes made a good master of ceremonies. The only time they fooled him is when they asked him to dedicate the cornerstone in a new railroad roundhouse.

After the 17th lap around the structure Mr. Dawes said: "You got me this time. But the next building I dedicate must have corners on it."

So you can see that the job is not all velvet. Mr. Robinson feels no sorrow in his defeat. He was not yet ready to retire from public life anyway.

Mr. Dawes' term of office indicated great will power and restraint. He smoked a pipe when cigarets will get you much more publicity.

Nothing much remains now but the big parade up Pennsylvania avenue on March 4. If Mr. Robinson can finish first in that he still has a chance.

16 Players Purchased Or Recalled by Robins

2 FULLBACKS OUT FOR YEAR

Princeton and Dartmouth Players End Careers

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (UP)—Two of the East's outstanding fullbacks are out for the season with injuries.

Mike Miles, veteran fullback and defensive star of the undefeated but twice-tied Princeton eleven, and Capt. Dick Black, valuable cog in the Dartmouth machine, have played their last football games as under-graduates.

Keene Fitzpatrick, trainer of the Princeton team, will make every effort to get Miles in shape for the navy game at Philadelphia Nov. 24, but there is little indication at Princeton that the badly battered and bruised Miles would ever play again.

Stars Against Buckeyes

Miles reported for training this fall underweight, and early injured his shoulder. Except for his heroic work against Ohio State last week he has been on the bench most of the season. His hard and timely tackling featured the first part of the Ohio State game, but he became worn and weary in the final quarter and permitted Byron Eby to dash past his arms for the tying touchdown.

Last season Miles was rated the best defensive fullback in the East, and was placed on several all-American teams. Quarterback Jack Norman probably will be shifted to Miles' position, and continue to direct the Tigers, with Wittmer, who scored the touchdown against Ohio State, Bennett and Lowry, who kicked the winning field goal against Cornell, at the other three backfield positions.

Black Has Bad Knee

Captain Black of Dartmouth has been nursing one of the most troublesome knee injuries ever carried by any player. Black was injured over a year ago and has never been able to round into good shape. The knee was coming along until the Harvard game, when he hurt it again. In one of the last practice sessions before the Yale game last week Black fell on his bad knee and broke a blood vessel.

Despite the fact that Captain Black has had to have blood drained off his knee he refuses to shirk practice and was out on the field today at Hanover, N. H., limping about.

Dartmouth has had the worst luck of any Eastern team this season and has never been able to place its full strength on the field in any big game. Al Marsters, the backfield star, was out of both the Columbia and Yale Games. The Indians had to start a third string backfield against Yale last week.

Mustangs Jinx To Texas Aggies

A. & M. Hasn't Won Game At Dallas for Years

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 8. (AP)—When the Texas Aggies meet S. M. U. in the Ponies' corral at Dallas Saturday they will confront a double jinx, for since 1922, when the Steeds won their first victory, 17 to 0, the Farmers have been unable to win a Dallas game.

And since 1923 neither the Aggies nor the Mustangs have taken two games in succession from one another—and last season the Bible-coached team upset all predictions by trouncing their rivals.

A brief survey of the grid record of the two squads reveals that in 1916, the year of the first game between the two schools, the Aggies won 52 to 0. When they met again in 1919 the margin of victory was less, the Aggies winning 16 to 0.

Other scores were:

1920, A. & M. 3, S. M. U. 0; 1921, A. & M. 13, S. M. U. 0; 1922, A. & M. 6, S. M. U. 17; 1923, A. & M. 0, S. M. U. 10; 1924, A. & M. 7, S. M. U. 7; 1925, A. & M. 7, S. M. U. 0; 1926, A. & M. 7, S. M. U. 9; 1927, A. & M. 20, S. M. U. 13.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (UP)—Joe Jacobs, manager of Jack Delaney, announced today he had signed the former light heavyweight champion to meet Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo in a 10-round bout at Madison Square garden Nov. 30.

COTTON GAIN UPSETS DOPE

Price Advances $3.50 On Crop Forecast

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. (UP)—A cotton crop more than a million bales greater than the 1927 harvest was predicted today by the agriculture department which forecast a production of 14,133,000 bales as compared with 12,955,000 last year.

The estimate today was an increase of 140,000 bales or about one per cent over that made a month ago, but despite this gain it was below the figures expected by traders on the New York exchange and at the reopening of the market after the agriculture department's estimate was issued, prices advanced 50 points, or about $2 a bale.

Prices Advance

The New Orleans exchange also reflected disappointment in the department forecast, prices advancing nearly $3.50 a bale on the future market after the government report arrived. December and March futures rose to 18.95 for net gains of 68 and 69 points, closing within a few points of 69.

The department estimated 44,916,000 acres would be harvested, giving a yield of lint cotton of about 150.6 pounds per acre, as compared with a yield per acre of 154.5 pounds last year.

The increasd crop yield estimate was due in part to favorable weather conditions in five states—Arkansas, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas. In these states the estimate was 365,000 bales greater than anticipated a month ago.

Hurricane Hurts

The Florida hurricane which swept up through parts of Georgia and the Carolinas has had a somewhat disastrous effect on the crop in these states, November estimates disclosed. Yields are not fulfilling earlier expectations and the forecast for these three states is about 190,000 bales less than was in prospect a month ago, the department said.

The increased production over last year would have been greater but for the declines in Georgia and the Carolinas and for a drop of about 30,000 bales in the forecasted yield for Oklahoma.

Reports from the census bureau, made public simultaneously, showed 10,160,777 running bales, counting round as half bales, ginned from the cotton crop prior to Nov. 1, as compared with 9,920,846 bales ginned in 1927. The department announced cotton statistics by states as follows:

Indicated yield per acre lint cotton and indicated total production 1928 follows:

State—	Lint	1928
Virginia	251	43,000
North Carolina	230	885,000
South Carolina	141	735,000
Georgia	125	995,000
Florida	92	18,000
Missouri	206	158,000
Tennessee	168	380,000
Alabama	142	1,000,000
Mississippi	180	1,390,000
Louisiana	172	660,000
Texas	140	5,150,000
Oklahoma	122	1,180,000
Arkansas	162	1,175,000
New Mexico	319	72,000
Arizona	321	133,000
California	322	149,000
All Others	177	10,000

Foreign Crop

Foreign cotton crop prospects, the depratment has been advised, showed 21,700,000 acres planted in India, compared with 20,592,000 acres planted last year.

In Egypt the result of the second picking of sakels seemed no better than last year, according to reports.

China's cotton production this year will probably be 10 to 20 per cent less than last year, reports indicate, the department said.

Family Quarrel Causes Shooting

Special to The Record News

CHILDRESS, Texas, Nov. 8.—Family differences, said to have been existing over a long period, was the only explanation Sheriff John Compton could offer Thursday for the fatal shooting here last night of Hardy Brown in the bedroom of his neighbor's home.

Absolam Gossett, who lived next door to the Browns, surrendered after the shooting, and today was free on $4,000 bond. He waived preliminary hearing.

The shooting occurred in the presence of Mrs. Brown and members of the Gossett family, according to a deposition of G. H. Gossett, father of the accused man, read at an inquest last night. Brown was shot three times in the breast.

Funeral services for Brown are to be held Friday, it was announced.

Figures Are Funny Things-Here's What Could Have Been

420,000 Votes Properly Distributed Would Have Won For Al

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (INS)—Figures won't lie, but they can be marvelously juggled.

Governor Smith was the worst defeated Democrat in history in the electoral college, and ran perhaps 5,000,000 votes behind Herbert Hoover in the popular vote of some 35,000,000.

A statistician figured out today that the shifting of only 430,000 votes in that enormous total of 35,000,000, that is if 430,000 voters in 15 selected states had voted for Smith instead of for Hoover he would have been elected.

Governor Smith received 87 electoral votes in the eight states that he carried—Massachusetts, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas.

Texas' 20 electoral votes would have been Smith's had 10,000 of those who voted for Hoover voted for Smith instead. Florida's six would be in the Smith column by a similar shift of 20,000. North Carolina's 12 would be changed by another 20,000 shift, Virginia's 12 by 15,000; New York's 45 by 50,000; Connecticut's seven by 25,000, Missouri's 18 by 50,000; Nevada's three by 5,000; North Dakota's five by 15,000; Wisconsin's 13 by 50,000; Minnesota's 12 by 55,000; Colorado's six by 60,000; Tennessee's 12 by 20,000; Montana's four by 15,000, and New Hampshire's four by another 20,000.

These states were all carried by Hoover. Their electoral vote with what Smith won anyway totals 266—just enough to win the electoral college.

The 430,000 popular votes, appropriately scattered, would have changed the entire election, and perhaps the history of the world.

Figures are funny things.

Game Warden Instructs Hunters on Use Of License

P. H. Hopson, representative of the state game, fish and oyster commission, in the city investigating pollution of Wichita river waters Thursday, requested the attention of hunters to a provision of the game laws which, he declared, is being frequently overlooked. License to hunt in any county other than that of the hunter's own residence must be carried on the person when its owner is hunting in such county, as the game wardens are instructed and empowered to demand its being shown at any time, it was stated.

LAVA STREAM CLAIMS LIVES

Enormous Loss in Area Laid Waste by Flow

ROME, Nov. 8. (US)—A moulten stream of lava pouring forth from more than 100 craters which have been opened up in the latest eruption of Mount Etna, was laying waste to the entire district between Mascali and the volcano this afternoon.

Five persons are dead, thousands are homeless and the property damage, of which no estimate is yet possible, is enormous. All communications have been cut off between Catania and Messina. The lava has developed into a boiling river more than 200 feet wide, which is moving along at a rate of 1'0 yards an hour.

According to Professor Ponte of the Mount Etna observatory, the present eruption is the most serious since 1900. Property damage is mounting especially high since the lava from the present eruption is destroying the richest fruit orchards of Sicily, whereas in former eruptions the lava has merely flown over barren lands.

Reports from Catania reaching Rome estimated that 12,000 homeless persons are crowding the roads between the stricken areas and Riposto, and other nearby centers. Late this evening, the lava flow split into three streams ranging up to four yards thick. The flow had slacked in speed, and was expected to reach the sea by Saturday.

Moody Denies Martial Law

that as I understand the law your telegram does not state a case under which I could find legal authority for the issuance of a proclamation declaring martial law."

INDEPENDENTS PLAN ELECTION CONTEST

EDINBURG, Texas, Nov. 8. (AP)—Independent Republican leaders announced today that they were preparing to contest the recent election in the county if the final count showed that the Democratic administration candidates had been successful.

Tension, which has existed here since earlier in the campaign has decreased noticeably, but interest in the political situation is still running high, with indications tonight that the Democratic ticket was likely to come through with a majority.

The situation here was created by a split in the Republican party which led the regular Republican faction to join the Democrats as far as county offices were concerned against the Independent Republican slate.

A request for martial law, which was sent to Governor Moody last night by Independent Republicans, was withdrawn today when the crowds about the places where the votes were being counted diminished. Massmeetings are being discontinued until excitement attendant upon the election dies down.

'ROUND TABLE' PLANNED HERE

Civic Organization to Form Wichita Club

Clinton G. H. Fisher, realtor of Tulsa, Okla., and one of the directors of the International Round Table, arrived in Wichita Falls Thursday and will spend several days here for the purpose of organizing a table in this city.

The organization of which Mr. Fisher is a director is perhaps less well known locally than other older American clubs, but is extending its representation rapidly, he said. Founded at Oakland, Calif., seven years ago, International Round Table now numbers more than 250 local tables, including most of the larger cities of the United States, Canada, and Mexico. Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio comprise the four Texas members of Round Table, and Mr. Fisher declared that the organization of a club in Wichita Falls is the result of invitations from a number of local business and professional men who are familiar with the movement.

The Round Table is based upon a literary and legendary foundation, and draws from the legend of the sixth century King Arthur its motto, "He who seeks to serve another, best serves himself." Membership represents various business and professional vocations, as is true of other service clubs, but according to Mr. Fisher, local tables quite commonly select an evening dinner hour for the weekly meetings, in order that more time may be available for purely social relaxation and the development of closer friendships. It is expected that the Wichita Falls table will be inaugurated with a charter presentation within the next two weeks.

Mr. Fisher is stopping at the Kemp while in the city.

MEDICS REFUTE OWN FINDINGS

McDonald Claimed Abnormal, Then Normal

PARIS, Texas, Nov. 8 (AP).—Two physicians, one a specialist in nervous disorders, testifying today in the trial of the contested will of William J. McDonald, late Paris capitalist, protested after hours of cross-questioning by opposing counsel that the sets of hypothetical questions propounded them could not reasonably have applied to the same person.

Both witnesses, after listening to hypothetical questions from contestants' counsel, gave their opinion that McDonald was not of sound mind when he drew up his will leaving more than $1,000,000 to Texas university for an astronomical observatory.

Then, after answering questions of proponents' counsel, they agreed mutually that McDonald was sound mentally when the instrument was drawn. Neither side gained an advantage in the exchange.

The witnesses were Dr Guy F. Witt of Dallas, specialist, and Dr. M. A. Walker of Paris, practicing physician. Dr. Witt, who said he had testified in many similar cases in Texas, occupied the stand almost all of yesterday's session and did not leave the stand until noon today. He was followed by Dr. Walker.

STATE WARDEN STUDIES RIVER

Pollution Killing Fish, Says Hopson

Following the discovery some days ago of hundreds of dead fish along the banks of Wichita river a few miles below the city, P. H. Hopson, Vernon district representative of the state game, fish and oyster commission, has spent the past several days here investigating and reporting the condition to his department, it was announced Thursday.

This is Mr. Hopson's second investigation of the waters of the river near Wichita Falls, and is being made for the use of the pollution division of the director of natural resources office, it was said.

While recent rains have made it difficult to determine accurately the exact condition of the water prior to the rise, Mr. Hopson declared that there was present sufficient pollution to have killed both large and small fish in great numbers. The source of the pollution has not been definitely ascertained, it is said, but the possibilities of certain classes of sewage and garbage from the city's disposal system, waste oil and salt water from tributary creeks, and salt waste from refineries having caused the condition are being thoroughly investigated.

Mr. Hopson's report, it is announced, will recommend that should this polluted condition of the river's waters prevail after the stream has settled to normal levels, the department should take immediate steps to determine definitely the exact cause, and enforce adequate remedies. The matter has been taken up with the city officials, it is said, with the request that both they and the citizens of the community offer every possible cooperation in correcting the condition.

Religion 'Camouflaged' in Last Election Says Terrell Statement

AUSTIN, Nov. 8 (AP).—George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, declared in a statement today that he wants to "settle the question of religion in politics for all time to come."

"It was camouflaged this time," he said regarding Tuesday's election, "and I want a fair and square test on this issue to see if we have religious freedom in this country, as guaranteed by the constitution. I am for Senator Thomas J. Walsh for president in 1932. He is a Catholic, a leader of the drys, and a man of unquestioned integrity and outstanding ability.

"I accept the result of the election as all good citizens should do and as they always have done, except when the Republican party stole the election from Samuel J. Tilden in 1876.

"I notice that all the industrial stocks of the stock exchanges are soaring higher as the result of Hoover's election, but cotton and wheat, the great money crops of the farmers, are going lower. A man of Mr. Hoover's ability and friendship for the farmers ought to have advanced the prices of farm products."

Radio Program Broadcast From Giant Plane By KGKO Experts

A new stunt was pulled on Wichita Falls radio fans late Thursday afternoon when Honey Boy and Sassafras broadcast a short program from the cabin of a giant Ford monoplane while the ship was cruising over the city.

The plane was the big tri-motored $50,000 Ford ship brought here by the Rapid Air Lines, Inc., of Rapid City S. D., and a temporary aerial was rigged on the cabin by C. W. Locke, KGKO engineer. The program was picked up by the KGKO power house and relayed out to Wichita Falls fans.

The ship made a 125-mile trip over Lake Kemp and the Diversion lake early Thursday afternoon with 16 passengers in the cabin. One hour and 10 minutes were required for the trip.

The big plane will be at the airport of the Wichita Falls Transport company on the Henrietta road all day Friday and will take off for the airport opening at Ranger early Saturday morning.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

Doctor McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, November 11:

Sunday—Breakfast: Coddled eggs, waffle (browned through), stewed pears. Lunch: Cooked asparagus, cooked carrots, lettuce. Dinner: Tomato jelly, baked chicken or rabbit, baked parsnips, oyster plant, combination salad of string beans, cucumbers and lettuce, peach whip.

Monday—Breakfast: Cottage cheese, sliced pineapple. Lunch: Boiled rice, cooked string beans, raw celery. Dinner: Celery soup, broiled steak, cooked spinach, salad of grated carrots and chopped celery, minced prunes molded in gelatin, with whipped cream.

Tuesday—Breakfast: French omlet, melba toast, stewed figs. Lunch: Potato soup, cooked oyster plant, lettuce. Dinner: Roast pork, cooked turnips, cooked okra, salad of raw spinach leaves, baked apple.

Wednesday: Breakfast:  Wholewheat muffins with peanut butter, pear sauce. Lunch: Baked squash, cooked lettuce, cucumbers. Dinner: Mushroom soup, boiled lamb chops, steamed carrots, McCoy salad, apricot whip.

Thursday—Breakfast: Baked eggs, melba toast, stewed raisins. Dinner: Buttered noodles, cooked turnip tops, celery. Dinner: Clear tomato soup (beef broth with tomato added), roast beef, cooked string beans, salad of tomato-spinach-asparagus, pineapple sponge.

Friday—Breakfast: Coddled eggs, broiled ham, waffle, applesauce. Lunch: Sandwiches of real wholewheat bread and peanut butter, salad of shredded lettuce, ripe olives. Dinner: Baked halibut, stewed tomatoes, spinach, McCoy salad, no dessert.

Saturday—Breakfast: Cottage cheese, stewed peaches. Lunch: Carrot loaf, cooked lettuce and parsley, celery. Dinner: Vegetable soup, Salisbury steak, buttered vegetables (carrots, turnips and beets cooked separately and diced together), head lettuce with olive oil, apple whip or ice cream.

*Potato Soup—Peel and dice potatoes to equal three cups and place over fire with three or four cups of water. Cook until tender and add about three cupfuls of milk or thin cream and the desired amount of chopped parsley. Serve with thin strips of Melba toast. By using celery instead of potatoes you have a delicious non-starchy soup.

Wholewheat Muffins: To a well beaten egg add one cupful of sweet milk. Stir in one cupful of real wholewheat flour and beat until smooth, then add a half cupful of the wholewheat flour into which has been sifted one level teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix thoroughly and bake in muffin tins in a moderately hot oven until brown. The quantity makes six medium or eight small muffins.

Those who are overweight or who, for any reason, wish to eliminate the starches from their diet, may substitute any of the luncheons with any one kind of the following raw acid fruits or their juices, apples, apricots, peaches, pears, grapes, oranges, grapefruit, plums, pineapple, tomato or melon.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Soft Teeth

Question: Ollie B. writes: "My teeth are very soft and brittle. Will you please tell me what causes this and can it be remedied?"

Answer: Your diet is probably lacking in important mineral elements, such as calcium, magnesium and flourin. I have a special article giving a list of these mineral elements which I will be glad to send you if you will send me a self-addressed envelope and four cents postage.

Feeding a Three-Year-Old

Question: Mrs. K. H. asks: "Should not cheese and raw carrots and other raw foods be fed children three years of age?"

Answer: Children of three years can be fed any foods suitable for an adult. The foods you have mentioned may often be used to advantage when the child is only two years old, but the proportions and combinations of foods must be carefully watched. Send for a special article on "Feeding the Baby After Weaning," enclosing a large self addressed stamped envelope.

Asthma

Question: M. D. J. writes: My father, 75 years of age, is troubled with asthma. He has tried eating only an orange for breakfast, but a nurse has told him that going out in the cold morning without a hot drink will make the asthma worse. Do you recommend dieting?"

Answer: Any typical asthmatic case which is not too complicated with other disorders can be cured through diet treatment alone. Special instructions will be sent upon request.

Strychnine for Heart Trouble

Question: S. G. asks: Should one take medicine containing strychnine if the heart is fast, painful and jumpy, or is it only for slow hearts?"

Answer: Strychnine is usually given to enervated patients with slow pulses. When the heart is fast, painful and jumpy, it is usually because of overeating or gas pressure against the heart at that particular time. Strychnine is not usually necessary where the correct diet is used. I have a special article on heart derangements that I will be very glad to send if you will write to me care of this newspaper and enclose four cents in stamps, and a large, self addressed envelope.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By WILCY MOORE

Wilcy Moore is the Hollis Oklahoman who pitched his way from obscure baseball clubs in the South to the exalted position of official apple-tosser for the New York Yankees. He pitched for that club through two seasons of world series games.

Wilcy Moore

"During the beginning of the war," Moore recounted, "I was in a training camp down South. One day a corporal friend of mine was showing his girl friend over the post and explaining all the points of warfare. Presently they reached the target range. A squad of rookies suddenly raised their rifles and pointed them in the direction of the young couple. The rifles were unloaded, of course, but the girl did not know this; and when she saw the aim of the men she turned pale, shrank back into the corporal's arms and clutched him tightly about the neck.

"'Oh, it's the guns,' she explained, 'they frightened me!'

"'Let's go further on,' sugrested the young man. 'I'd like you to see the men practicing with the cannons.'"

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 8. (AP)—The government report placing the cotton crop indication at 14,133,000 bales evidently made a bullish impression on sentiment in the cotton market here today and there was an advance of a little over $3 per bale in prices. January contracts sold up from 18.75 to 19.41 or 65 points net higher but reacted partially in the late trading under realizing and closed at 19.34 compared with 18.76 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net advances of 50 to 59 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 1 point and showed some irregularity right after the call when orders seemed to be pretty well divided between trade buying and covering on one hand, and Southern hedge selling or liquidation on the other. These easy offerings were soon absorbed and the market developed considerable firmness on further covering by shorts, while considerable trade buying to fix prices was also reported.

Before trading was suspended to receive the official crop and ginning figures, active months were selling about 18 to 32 points net higher. The market's immediate response to the government reports was an advance of 15 to 20 points. This met considerable realizing by old longs who were supposed to have been holding contracts on an expectation that the crop would be under 14,000,000 bales, but the offerings were readily absorbed on setbacks of a few points, and the market became very firm again during the afternoon. Offerings were comparatively light after the realizing had been absorbed and prices advanced readily on continued covering which was supposed to be coupled with trade buying and some fresh commission house demand.

December sold up to 19.45, and May to 19.25, making net advances of about 60 to 65 points but realizing increased at these figures and the close reactions of some 4 to 8 points from the best. The government crop indication was not far out of line with the average views of local traders, but if anything was a shade under expectations.

The ginnings of 10,160,997 bales came in for considerable bullish comment, and the afternoon buying was accompanied by talk of a possible downward revision of the crop estimate owing to the unfavorable weather reported in the South right after the first of the month. Exports for the day were 8637, making 2,628,294 so far this season. Port receipts, 51,447. U. S. port stocks, 2,184,137.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 8. (AP)—The cotton market worked higher today under aggressive buying and covering by shorts promoted by a bullish construction placed on the government's crop and ginnings estimate as well as a belief that the freeze in the belt since Nov. 1, would materially alter the next crop forecast.

At the highest values showed gains of approximately $3.75 a bale from the day's lows. Some realizing developed in final trading and January contracts which had sold up to 18.88, eased off and closed at 18.78, compared with 18.14, the day's low and 18.19, yesterday's closing quotation. The general market closed steady at net advances of 58 to 60 points.

Although Liverpool cables were higher than due the market here opened irregular, first trades showed advances of 2 points to declines of 1 point. After a rally of 3 to 6 points the market weakened under some final liquidation in advance of the bureau report but offerings were absorbed at a setback of 5 to 8 points and when trading was suspended for reception of the government report, December was trading at 18.20, January 18.21 and March 18.20, or 2 to 4 points above the previous close.

The figures given showed an indicated yield of 14,133,000 and ginnings to Nov. 1, 10,160,997 bales. The first impression left by the figures was bullish as immediately after trading was resumed following the customary 15 minute suspension, December soared to 18.60, January 19.63, or 40 to 42 points up.

Realizing followed the advance and half the gain was lost but towards noon shorts covered heavy on the belief that the recent severe cold weather in the belt would reduce the crop to a figure below today's estimate and before the demand was supplied prices had soared to new high, 74 to 75 points above the lows. December sold at 18.84, January 18.88 and March 18.85, or 67 to 69 points above the close.

In the afternoon trading continued active but there was a good deal of profit-taking in evidence and although prices at one time rallied to the highs, the close was 9 to 10 points below those figures.

'Hoover Prosperity' Boosts Market To Second Highest Level Ever Hit

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 8, (US)—The second largest day in history was recorded on the stock exchange today, with most groups closing slightly higher on the average despite heavy wave of profit taking in the afternoon. There were 5,010,000 shares turned over with the ticker more than a full hour behind the actual market for a good part of the session.

"Hoover prosperity" was the slogan bringing in the flood of buying orders from all over the country. Radio and Montgomery Ward scored the most sensational fluctuations and lost with others in the closing reaction. General Motors was the most active individual issue and closed net lower after moving over 2 points higher in the morning. Kennecott and Cerro held the leading place in the copper group, the latter losing 5 points net as a result of closing profit taking. Oils were active but also turned irregular at the close, while the rails remained comparatively dull but fairly steady.

Motors Melon Seen

A General Motors melon was as forecast with the $2.50 extra cash dividend to give added enthusiasm. The two and a half for one split up of the stock will leave 43,500,000 odd shares outstanding. Payment of $3 regular divided rate thereon would be the equivalent of a $7.50 annual rate on the existing stock.

So in its real meaning the "melon" is an increase of 50 cents a share annually in the regular dividend and a $2.50 extra payment. Earnings this year are at the rate of close to $7 a share on the amount of stock to be outstanding when the split up goes into effect. This leaves the directors an ample margin for continuance of their policy of declaring extra dividends when earned.

At the closing price of 219¼ General Motors "ex" the cash dividends and allowing for the split up was selling at the equivalent of slightly over $86 a share for the new stock.

There was some feeling that such a great amount of stock as 43,500,000 shares would be bad in time of a market break. However, experienced traders point out that constitutes less danger than the lesser amount of shares at present prices.

Steel to Be Watched

With the General Motors "good news" out, more attention is expected to be attracted to Steel common. In this connection it is pointed out that there has been quiet absorption of the stock for many months. Not alone are operations holding near capacity but the belief grows stronger that directors will recommend a stock dividend before the end of the year.

Cerro de Pasco reflected the knowledge that insiders have completed plans for further addition to the output which at the current price of the red metal means even larger income than that which now warrants an extra dividend.

Anaconda continued to reflect Durant activity and the expectation that it would add to its holdings of Chile as well as take in other properties. Sinclair, it was stated, was stabilizing its gains and the manner in which profit taking was absorbed was taken as evidence that Cutten interests are going ahead with their campaign.

Loan increase of $71,804,000 was less than expected and therefore is not likely to exert material influence in the market tomorrow. However, it puts borrowings at $4,978,968,000 according to the reserve bank's compilation, and cuts shorter the time in which the reserve can hold off more drastic correctionary methods than have been pursued thus far.

CHICAGO REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 (US)—Grains closed higher, anticipating, many in the trade supposed, the November government crop report which is due tomorrow afternoon after the markets close.

At the end wheat was up ⅝c to ¾c; corn was ½c to ⅝c higher; oats were ¼c to ¼c better; rye was ¼c to ⅝c higher.

The strength in wheat seemed to depend wholly on local buying. There was nothing in the news that seemed to warrant suddenly renewed belief in higher prices.

Under the surface there were some things that might indicate wheat will not rally far before it begins to weaken. These signs may or may not be worth serious consideration.

The most pronounced of them, perhaps, is that there has been a good deal of short covering which may have weakened the market technically. The open interest is smaller than it was a few days ago, which would seem to indicate that some longs were glad to let go of their holdings when shorts bid for them.

There is not much prospect of any news concerning our wheat crop that is likely to make the situation look more bullish.

The visible supply is so huge that a good deal of optimism is required to make wheat look attractive as a purchase at the present level. Moreover there is a big scattered long interest.

Corn is in an entirely different situation from wheat. There are plenty of bullish influences under the market in this grain. But until after the government report has been digested it may be well to exercise great caution in following corn up by buying on bulges.

Today the market closed very strong.

The only thing that seems to hamper the corn market at present is the possibility of weakness in wheat. That is a danger that keeps corn bulls wary.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged to 1c up; corn was ½c to 1½c up; oats were unchanged; rye was dull; barley was stead.

The Reader's Opinion

The columns of The Record News are open to its readers for the discussion of questions of current interest or import. Letters should be not more than 300 words in length, preferably shorter, and should be signed with the name and address of the writer. Initials, or pen-name, will be substituted upon request. SAYS PRINCIPLE AND NOT PARTY SHOULD BE FIRST

Editor Record News: I read with some interest your review of some of the results of the election in your editorial this morning. You stressed party, party. If the election taught anything it was that party tradition will not hold the intelligent voter. It is principle that wins, not party. In this election the Democratic party threw to the winds a principle that was adopted by our country by an overwhelming majority and hoped to gather in the riff-raff of the northern voters and win with the solid South. Win at the expense of principle. In other words, throw away their birthright for a mess of pottage. Governor Moody criticizes Smith for appointing John J. Raskob as head of the party, at least finds fault with Raskob for his actions. He seems to forget the setup. If the party was to win Republican liquor men must be enticed into voting with the democracy. It was the most astute single act that the Democratic leaders did to put at their head a wet Republican. If the riff-raff were to be gathered, what better move than that could be made? Of course the Democratic voters of the South did not like it but that does not count in the deliberations of the northern leaders. But they did not count the hosts aright. The liquor men and liquor interests in the North have been making so much noise that it seemed within reason that the country was ready to rise up and smite prohibition and vote for Smith as a means to that end, therein they made their mistake. The great moral power of the country had not been touched and they rose up and did the smiting.

There is no one thing that is as dangerous to the continuous good government of our country as voting the ticket straight, no matter what the party stands for, or the individuals on the ticket stand for. A great deal of good is to come out of this election for it has been found out that even the South will not wear the brass collar of party regularity and a ticket cannot be set up regardless of principles and expect the good people of the South to support it. The result of the electon will tend to make the voters of the South independent and more ready to defy the party lash as well as being notice to the North that the South is susceptible to principles as well as to party.

PEOPLE VOTED PREJUDICES AND NOT CONVICTIONS

Editor Record News: The oft-asserted fact that people vote their prejudices and not their convictions, was never better illustrated than in the campaign just closed, wherein more than 250,000 Texans laid aside their convictions of a half century and voted their religious prejudices against their political convictions. Can it be questioned that this great body of erstwhile Democrats believe in the fundamental principles of the Democratic party as set forth in its platform and so clearly and forcibly enunciated by Governor Smith? Certainly they subscribe to every part of the party program and policies. Then why the defection? There can be but one answer. This militant army was filled with a zeal, approaching the zeal of those who followed Peter the Hermit. Let us hope that the analogy goes no further, and that, like the unhappy Crusaders, the termination of their career will not be a pyramid erected of their bones! They were not for Hoover; they were against Smith, and believed that in the casting of their ballots they were engaged in a great moral and spiritual crusade that would free this country forever of "Rome and Romanism." The menace to them is as apparent as if it really existed.

The noblest task to which democracy can commit itself the next four years, is that of educating its large army of backsliding communicants out of their false conceptions. I use the word "noblest" advisedly because of its wonderful appeal in the campaign just closed. In this campaign of reclamation the Catholic church can do much. Their wonderful spirit of Christian fortitude and tolerance under such an avalanche of vituperation and slander as was heaped upon them during the campaign, commands the admiration of every right thinking American citizen. By a spirit of co-operation with a campaign of education on this subject the Catholics can do much to allay the false alarm of this great body of honest but benighted Democrats who saw in an attempt to put one of its members in the presidency, the establishment of a great political oligarchy in this country. To this end, democracy should, during the next four years, put forth her most earnest efforts, and if out of it shall come a better understanding on behalf of such a large concourse of our fellow Democrats, and a better spirit of religious tolerance and Christian fellowship, then greater good will have been accomplished in behalf of democracy, and the nation, than would have resulted in Democratic victory last Tuesday.

"The tumult and the shouting dies," but the problem is still with us. Will the Protestant ministry, that did so much to foment this whirlwind, aid in the efforts to prevent its reaching the proportions of a cyclone? —R. S. RAGSDALE.

FARM OGRE TO FACE HOOVER

Congress Sees Issue As Main Worry

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. (INS)—The election of Herbert Hoover and an overwhelmingly Republican congress has made farm relief the outstanding legislative issue of the nation as long as the problem remains, it was declared by leaders today.

The farm ogre will raise its head on the first day of the short session in December and may result in a special session after March 4.

On nearly every other issue Hoover has unqualifiedly endorsed the Coolidge policies. His new legislative proposals are expected to be few.

Hoover's Own Problem

While regarded as sympathetic to the administration's farm stand, Hoover nevertheless professed to offer a complete plan to the voters and expressed willingness to make the problem his own by calling a special session.

Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, taking Hoover at his word, has already declared for the special session, asserting that nothing can be done in the three-months short session.

On the other hand Senator McNary, Republican of Oregon, co-author of the now orphaned McNary-Haugen farm bill, is confident that Hoover's plan can be put over this winter under President Coolidge. McNary will offer the plan when congress meets.

Among the other legislative questions to be raised in the short session are: Enactment of $274,000,000 naval building program, Boulder canyon dam, Muscle Shoals, reappointment of congress, a new demand for legislation aimed at the "Power Trust," and extension of the public building program.

Progressives Balked

The Republican landslide may demolish the last hope of congressional insurgents for a change in the Coolidge foreign policies, especially as regards Nicaragua. The progressive bloc is expected to find harder sledding in the next congress in their attacks on the "power trust."

The attitude of Hoover toward railroad rates has already furnished leaders on Capitol Hill with speculation. Although declaring that high freight rates was one cause of the farm depression he offered no solution but extension of inland waterways. Belief is expressed that Hoover, with his business mind, will demand action on railroad consolidation legislation.

The wet and dry question is expected to lie dormant until the new congress meets when Hoover will ask authority for the investigating commission he proposed. Some of his wet supporters have placed great faith in this commission, believing that a non-partisan board of able men will conclude that the dry law has failed.

Drys, however, expected the election to result in more and better enforcement.

Coolidge and Pershing To Be Armistice Speakers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. (US)—President Coolidge and Gen. John J. Pershing will head a distinguished array of speakers who will participate in the national Armistice day celebration Sunday, to be broadcast on a national hookup of radio stations beginning at 9:15 p. m.

General Pershing will make his speech from a Lincoln, Neb., station; Paul V. McNutt, national commander of the American Legion and Edward E. Spafford, past national commander, will participate.

MONKEY FARM

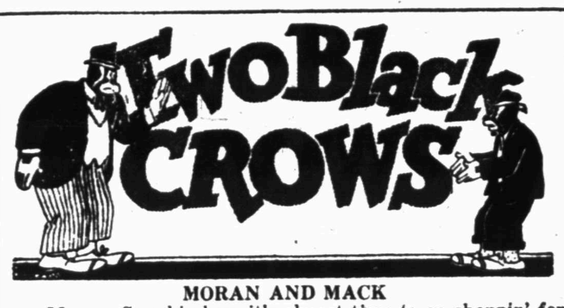

Russia to Enforce Use Of Glands For Rejuvination

LONDON, Nov. 8. (UP)—The Daily Mail's Vienna correspondent said today that the soviet government had inaugurated a monkey farm for the provision of rejuvenation glands.

It was reported that the soviet government intends to rejuvenate by compulsion persons whose longevity would be essential to the welfare of the nation.

The monkey farm and its attendant laboratories will be the largest of the kind, reports said, and it will be located in Sukkum, province of Abkhazian, in soviet Russia.

The production of insulin, used in treating diabetes, will be among the duties of the research staff stationed at the farm.

MORAN AND MACK

Moran: Say, big boy, it's almost time to go shoppin' for our Thanksgivin' turkey.

Mack: Philip, I don't like the way you SHOP.

Moran: What's th' matter with my shoppin', Fred?

Mack: Why, Andrew, you don't shop until all the stores is CLOSED.

Moran: You ain't sayin' I is a thief, is you?

Mack: I don't have to say it if you guess it.

Moran: Man, I'm honest. You can trust me with anythin' you's got.

Mack: You's honest because I ain't got nothin'.

Moran: I never stole no turkey.

Mack: No, Christopher, you never stole no turkey. But you never bought no chicken.

Moran: Well, Thanksgivin' wouldn't be Thanksgivin' without somethin' good to eat.

Mack: Ambrose, Thanksgivin' is Thanksgivin' even if you's starvin'.

Moran: Well, I's gonna get myself a turkey.

Mack: You'll get yourself a turkey, all right, but you'll have to share it with the janitor of th' jailhouse. All I ask when you gets that turkey is that you don't blow none of them feathers on me.

Moran: Well, you won't get none of the WHITE meat.

Mack: No, and I won't have to use JAIL bars for toothpicks, neither.

(Philip wants to "shop" for his Thanksgiving turkey. Big Boy doesn't like the way Philip shops. Andrew is honest when he is in the mood but he has got too happy a disposition to ever be moody.

Will the Two Black Crows eat turkey for Thanksgiving or will they meet at the pie slot in the Automat?)

Seething Russian Millions Join In Celebrating 11th Red Anniversary

By EDWARD L. DEUSS

MOSCOW, Nov. 8. (US)—A mass of half a million proletarians shouting and singing to their "brothers" in capitalist lands to shake off their chains, poured through Red square yesterday in celebration of the eleventh anniversary of the Red revolution.

Wave after wave of the seething mass of humanity rolled by President Kalinin, Assistant Comissar of War Unschlicht and Chief of Cavalry Budenny standing at salute atop Lenin's tomb. The power of the fighting spirit and determination of Russia's countless millions was vividly portrayed.

Less Enthusiasm

The enthusiasm appeared to be less than last year, when the frenzied cry of imperialistic war against the soviets raised the masses to a pitch of excitement comparable to actual mobilization. This year the people seemed to reflect the uncertainties and worries confronting their leaders.

Premier Rykov, speaking at the Grand theater, appealed for unity and harmony within the Communist party. He said:

"We must cease fighting as right factions and left factions and hew to the line. We must march on the straight road to socialism."

Joseph Stalin, Bukharin, Rykov and even Commissar of War Voroshiloff were not present. All were sent to provincial cities to assist in the celebrations. At 10 a. m. the red square bristled with the rifles of 25,000 troops in heavy colored khaki overcoats nearly touching the ground, and with peaked, woolen colored helmets.

21-Gun Salute

Kalinin, Unschlicht and Budenny entered a new American automobile and drove past the troops standing at attention. A hundred piece military band struck up the Internationale. As Kalinin mounted the tomb of Lenin the heavy artillery inside the Kremlin boomed out a 21-gun salute, their black smoke rolling over the square. Above were 30 airplanes in fighting formation.

Suddenly a hundred radio loud speakers crackled. The voice of the commandant of the Moscow corps area echoed through the square reading the army oath of allegiance, which the troops repeated, including the phrase: "The Red Army is the vanguard of armed proletarian masses throughout the world."

Kalinin, in a voice frequently gasping for air, urged the masses to continue the struggle for socialism, saying:

"Let our enemies dream of overthrowing the Soviet regime. They will wake up to find the workers' paradise."

The troops then marched in review, the infantry, marines, cavalry, tanks and armored cars ending with horse-drawn field pieces flying like Roman chariots.

Then the proletarian masses carrying a forest of banners swept into the square like a flood. Myriads of Red banners with jibes against British imperialism, Fascism, and the Franco-Roumanian entente. One group carried a fat snake inscribed capitalism. America and Germany escaped the taunts. At this moment the news arrived from abroad that Hoover had been elected. It was whispered to some one in the official grandstand.

"It is good—it is good," the Russians whispered as if in one country across the Atlantic one man symbolized some hope for Soviet Russia.

Vaudeville Bill All-Star Affair

Three Acts Good Enough For Headliners

(By The Record News Critic)

This week's Keith-Orpheum Interstate vaudeville bill at the Majestic theater is calculated to pack the house for the remainder of the performances. The bill scored heavily Thursday with three acts rated in vaudeville as headliners, sharing honors for favor with the Wichita Falls audience.

Galla-Rini, exclusive Brunswick artist, is a wicked accordionist who displayed his windjammer virtuosity to the complete satisfaction of his Thursday audiences by playing one continual selection on at least a score of band instruments in his imitation "one-man" band. He is aided by his sister, Victoria, herself no poor musician.

Bob Murphy, "Prince of Humor," makes a unit of the bill by acting as master of ceremonies with his endless humor. Bob "outfumbles" his audience by putting one laugh over before they have caught the last joke, leaving them one laugh behind when the curtain drops.

Noree with the dance novelty, "The Cobra," masters a specialty the motif of which is the writhing of her serpentine body. She has as co-star, Larry Farnum. This act won a great deal of applause Thursday.

Tom Lomas company in "Marching Along from Bottom to Top," gave a grostesque and novel stilt act: Ann Francis and Mr. Wally offered "Unique Ruffinement," a clever comedy act, to complete the exceptional bill. Laura La Plante in "Home James," a comedy, and Fox news are offered as screen attractions on the Majestic program.

"The Home Towners" is the vitaphone picture Wichita Falls movie fans have been waiting for. It is a lively picture with quick action which keeps the audience guessing. "The Home Towners" opens today at the Strand theater for a week's run as the third all-talking movie shown in the city.

The cast is mostly recruited from the legitimate stage. Richard Bennett, star last season in "The Barker" in Dallas, stars in the all-talkie; Robert McWade, another "legit," also does great work.

Dramatically, "The Home Towners" is the best vitaphone picture yet shown in Wichita Falls and will make an instant appeal to those who have been wanting a lively sound picture. The picture is a "knockout" and those who see it will undoubtedly recommend it to their friends.

Rehearsals on the tabloid show "The Zippity Zip company" to open at the Olympic theater Saturday are going on regularly and promise a to treat to those who like musical comedy.

Judging from this week's vaudeville bill at the Majestic theater, the season is just now opening. The bill for this week has three acts of exceptional attractiveness, including a dance novelty act by Noree who will leave the vaudeville stage within two weeks for New York where she will again appear as featured dancer with the Metropolitan Grand Opera company. Noree is assisted by two clever dancers and co-stared with Larry Farnum, songster and dancer. By the way, Farnum is in his home territory, having spent several years in Oklahoma City.

Frederick Visitor Sees Cotton in Fields For First Time

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Nov. 8.—Samples of 20 different articles made in Frederick from cotton were obtained Wednesday by B. A. Shupe of La Junta, Colo., nephew of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Duncan, who, together with Mrs. Shupe, are here on a visit. Shupe never saw cotton grow before and was much interested in the oil mill and gins, which he inspected. Among the articles obtained at the oil mill was boll hulls, formerly without value before the introduction of proper machinery.

He will take these samples home with him and show them to school children and others.

Shupe was also much interested in the prehistoric remains discovered in the Holloman sand pits, north of Frederick, and is in hopes that a museum will be erected here to house the valuable fossils.

Mr. and Mrs. Shupe will leave Friday for Carthage, Mo., for a brief stay before returning to Colorado.
