

Rivercrest Rebels Lose Game To Ore City

By Diana Eudy
The Rivercrest Rebels dropped a tough game to the Ore City Rebels last Friday night. The point spread was less than a touchdown which shows both teams fought hard -- on offense and defense. The match was up for grabs until the last minute -- an intercepted pass allowed Ore City to run out the clock. The first quarter was controlled by the defensive squads. They prevented any scoring in the period.

Ore City was first on the scoreboard with a touchdown and extra point early in the second quarter.
Rivercrest put six points on the board with 1:42 left in the half. On first and 10 from the RC 29, Randy Galloway picked up seven yards. From the 36 on 2nd and three it was Galloway again -- this time for a 64 yard TD romp. The two point conversion was good. The Rebels held a one point lead over Ore City.

The lead didn't last though as the Ore City Rebs took the kickoff and returned it to the 2 yard line. They kept the lead throughout the game after the TD and conversion. The score was 15-8 at the halftime break.

With a fourth and four for the Ore City Rebels, Galloway intercepted a stray pass to stop the drive. The RC Rebels couldn't capitalize on the possession and after two fumbles they were forced to punt. This set the pace for the third quarter. The ball was handed back and forth with no one getting into the endzone.

Seeing some defensive action were Jesse, Bivins, Damron, Mangrum, Russell, Roberts, Mauldin, Screws, Lewis, Jones and Wright.
With 8:04 left in the final period Ore City crossed in from the one for the score. The point after failed leaving the spread at 21-8.
Rivercrest answered with a halfback reverse pass play from Number 16, Bobby Thomas, to James Anderson for a gain of 29. Ore City drew a pass interference call which set up 1st and goal for Rivercrest.

Randy Galloway toted it in from the 5 for the TD. Quarterback Jeffery connected with James Anderson for the conversion. Rivercrest trailed by 5.
Ore City tried to run out the clock but gave River-crest one last shot when they recovered a fumble on the 9. There was less than a minute to play. It just wasn't meant to be. An intercepted pass stopped the drive and Ore City killed the remaining time.

The Ore City Rebs remain undefeated in district play with the 21-16 victory over Rivercrest. Rivercrest is 2-Rivercrest had 12 first downs, 191 yards rushing, completed 5 of 11 passes for 65 yards, and were penalized for 2 yards.

Ore City had 16 first downs, 207 yards rushing, completed 3 of 8 passes for 41 yards, and were penalized for 31 yards.
The Rivercrest Rebels will host the New Diana Eagles next Friday night. Kickoff will be at 7:30 p.m.

RANDY GALLOWAY romped 64 yards for a touchdown in last Friday's clash with the Ore City Rebels. Galloway showed his tremendous running ability by evading the Ore City tacklers. Despite last minute efforts Rivercrest lost the contest 21-16. (Staff Photo by Diana Eudy)

This is a column devoted to praising a fine organization...the Rivercrest Band and their director, Claire Jesse.

The band does such a fine job...and it makes such a difference in spirit at ball games.

The youngsters in the band received very little individual glory...they perform as a unit and there are no touchdown plays for them to be cheered for...yet they practice and march with dedication.

The formation of a band is not something that happens overnight...nor yet in a few years. Learning to play in a band takes years of practice, and these kids start early.

They work as hard as any athletic team...marching in heat and cold, mud and frost.

Band boosters work hard too, raising money to provide instruments, uniforms and all the other expensive necessities that make a functioning unit.

The band uses two talents, marching and musical ability. For someone like me these talents are special...with two left feet and no ear for music they seem as mysterious as the secrets of the universe!

And it is a never-ending pleasure to hear them after their hours of practice...because they make it all look easy!

Their concerts are enjoyable to all who hear them...whether it is a proud parent or just an interested citizen.

This flag corps provides that extra touch of color needed, and they too, work long and hard on perfecting their complicated routines.

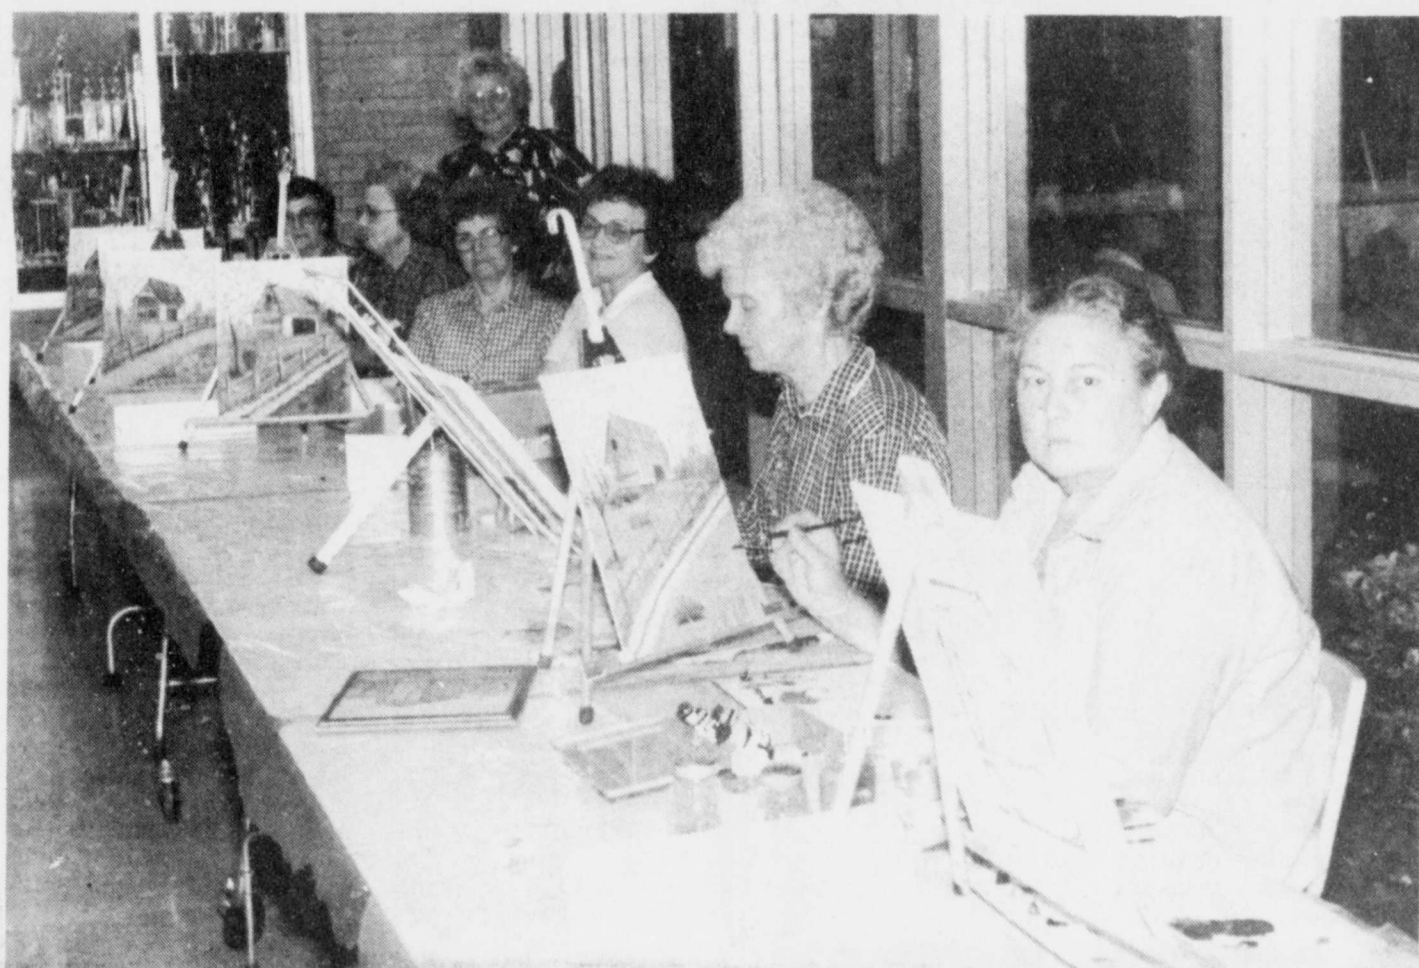

Mrs. Jesse dedicates hours of time to helping these young performers, and is to be much commended for her devotion.

All in all what we've been trying to say to a group of hard working, talented young musicians is...well done!

Alcohol Abuse Major Problem In Teenagers

What if you were told your child drank heavily at a teenage party and then drove several friends home afterwards? Would your initial thought be "thank goodness he wasn't smoking marijuana"? Or would you be relieved that he made it back home since he was driving the family car that night?

Parents often worry about the influence their children experience to "take drugs" even when most parents directly tell their youngsters that drugs are "bad". Yet, how often do we directly tell children that alcohol also can be harmful and is the drug (other than nicotine) that is most widely abused today?

Alcohol use is common among all age groups and is especially used by teenagers. Unfortunately, teens usually drink to get drunk and often drive while drinking. In fact, the number one cause of death among teenagers is drunk driving accidents. With such statistics, how can we say "thank goodness it isn't marijuana or LSD"?

Further, we as adults cannot continue to blame peer pressure for such grim facts. Adults must begin to realize that we greatly influence the drinking habits of teens. In fact, our example is a lasting one while peer influence begins to fade as the child matures. Peer influence is a strong force, but children can be helped by their parents to face it more comfortably.

What can you do to aid your child to make responsible decisions regarding drinking and other drugs? Consider the following:

1. Accept alcohol as the number one drug of use and abuse among youngsters. If parents keep saying "it's only booze" children probably will not be responsible drinkers. "Only booze" is killing 26,000 people a year on our highways.

2. Teach your child to handle some discomfort. Life is full of pain, both physical and emotional. None of us need to depend on drugs for instant relief of tension, small physical discomforts, or boredom.

3. To the best of your ability, have a strong family relationship. Even with current divorce rates, parents and step-parents must try to develop close family ties with their children. A sense of belonging can help children feel secure enough to say "no" to peers.

4. Adults must set an example of resisting adult peer pressure. We may be shocked to learn that teenage peer pressure is learned from adults. We cannot expect our children to say "no" if we as adults cannot turn down liquor from our friends.

Parents often feel they must "warn" their children about alcohol and other drugs by scare tactics, lecturing, and programs on drug paraphernalia. But, adults can help their children much more by instilling self-confidence and personal integrity. These two qualities help a child say "no" to peer pressure and also help him make mature decisions about alcohol and other drugs. Parents can then know they have not indirectly "encouraged" irresponsible alcohol use by not teaching limitations and self-discipline.

Footprints From The Past

By John W. Hood

I think that one of the worst things about renting a place to live is that you have to move around so much and that is especially hard if you happen to be a small boy or girl and have to change schools. First you will be going to the unknown and have to make all new friends and get acquainted with a new teacher and how they do things. The one thing that makes it bearable is if you happen to have some one to share it with like a brother or sister, if you are a boy it makes it better if it is a brother and I guess if you happen to be a girl to have a sister to share with would be better.

I can still remember the first time that I had to change schools. I was in my first year of school and that was bad enough, but then we had to move out of town and go to a country school where I did not know any one and besides I was not hooked on the idea of going to school in the first place and then when I had to move to the country and start to a new school that made it all the worse as I was not used to school and then to have to change schools was I thought the last straw. The school that I had to go to just had one room and all the kids had to come and go through the same door. There was a wire stretched across the room and they had a curtain that you had to draw across the wire to make the high school all the bigger kids would shove you out of the way so they could be the first ones in or out of the building, but I lived over that one as I only had to go for about two months before school was out.

When time was getting close for us to start to school for the next year Dad knew how bad we hated to go back to that school so he said he would transfer us to a school that had folding doors in it and that it had two doors to get in and out of. That sounded like it would be alot better and we said that we would like to give it a try so we were transferred to the other school and that meant that we had to make all new friends. Well the first day at school I met up with a boy that I liked and he and I became good friends and we still are. He lives in Paris and I see him occasionally and we talk of the times that we had together when we were growing up together and the good times that we had together. I also met a boy that I did not particularly care for as he made fun of the dinner box that I had my lunch in. It was the custom for the kids to either wrap their lunch in an old newspaper or to put it in a paper bag. He said that I was a sissy and thought that I was better than every one else or I would carry my lunch in a bag like every one else. One thing he said made me mad and then I said something to him that made him mad so we agreed to meet after school and settle it as we did not want to get in a fight on the school ground as if we did we would get in trouble with the teacher and in those days if you broke the rules and regulations the teacher would march you into the school room either during recess or after school and you would get the bottom of your pants warmed and then you would be in trouble at home as we were supposed to mind the teachers and if we did not the teacher had the authority and was also expected to use it.

Anyway as I started to tell you the other boy and I were to meet after school and settle our differences and as we both lived the same way from the school it was no trouble for us to get together. We walked along for about a quarter of a mile arguing until one of us got enough nerve to hit the other one and then the big fight was on. I don't remember how long we fought or who won the fight all that I remember was that all the other kids told me that he was a really mean guy and tha; he had a sharp knife and was just waiting until the right time and that he was going to really work me over and what I did not know was that they were telling him the same thing about me, luckily the big knife fight never did happen and after that we got to be best friends in fact, he was the best man when I got married.

There were a lot of changing of schools and alot of making new friends when I was small and times were hard and you had to do alot of things you did not want to but the grown ups made all the decisions and they did what they thought best and you had to go along even if you did not like it.

HELPFUL IDEAS FOR SUCCESSFUL RETIREMENT

Change

The one thing that should be kept in mind as retirement approaches is the word "change." Retirement is a change that arrives at a point in life where change does not come easy. We become accustomed through the working years to a regular pattern of sleeping, waking, eating, working. Without proper planning, retirement voids the need for rising early and may create a vacuum in which there is a lack of purpose or incentive. One must plan for the change that comes on retirement day.

Planning should be directed to diffusing the effects of change. A man who has worked in a steel mill for 20 years, or who laid bricks, or was in any way physically active on the job has to plan some busy activity, hobby or interest. The man who spent his time behind the desk should not jump into strenuous physical activities just because he finally has the time. The older we get, the less our body is capable of adjusting to sudden changes in our lifestyle.

Retirement should be planned so that the precious gift of time earned through a lifetime of work is utilized in some self-gratifying manner. This dictates that there be something to do, something that needs doing. For every man and woman there is something to do, something that can replace the job and the career, that provides a challenge, and will fill the hours as life takes on a new direction.

GIRL SCOUTS from Bogata participated in a handicapped awareness event, the Junior Jump-off, held recently at Camp Gambill in Paris. The girls learned first hand what it is like to perform simple everyday tasks, like going through a door, in a wheelchair. (Photo courtesy of Red River Valley Girl Scout Council)

Scouts Have Jump Off

Two Girl Scout troops from Bogata recently attended an event sponsored by the Red River Valley Girl Scout Council. Girls and their leaders who participated in the Junior Jump-off event held at Camp Gambill in Paris were: Tonya Hinsley, Kelly Screws, Melissa Warren, Sharon Williamson and their leader Alice Ann White, troop 22; Melissa Crawford, Kimberly Perry, Gretchen Cowan, Tisha Crayton, Cami Eilers, Lana Pirtle, Amy Stidham, Donna Strain, Susan Tabb, Jeannia Woodie, Rosalva Jasso, Krista Weatherall and their leaders, Dee Crayton, Linda Eilers and Pat Cowan, troop 91.

The focus of the event was handicapped awareness. The girls were given the opportunity to learn about the world of the disabled through hands-on experience. In one activity the girls were given certain everyday tasks to perform from a wheelchair, such as opening a window, going through a door, turning on a light switch and eating in a cafeteria.

Mr. Arthur Crawford, radio announcer from stations KBEL and KWDG in Idabel, who was struck with polio as a child, talked to the girls about what it is like to be disabled and how it has affected his life.

Ms. W'Gene Harden, who works with visually impaired children in Lamar County Schools, explained some of the problems encountered by children who cannot see as well as others, and demonstrated various aids developed to help them live a more normal life.

The girls were entertained by "Kids on the Block", special puppets designed to teach that children with learning disabilities are just like you and me in many ways. "Kids on the Block", was performed by Debbie Porter, Utley Nowlin and Martha Collins of the Region VIII Educational Service Center in Mt. Pleasant.

Other activities during the day included outdoor games lead by Karen Weber of the Kiamichi Youth Service in Idabel, hiking and painting T-shirts.

WIN SECOND PRIZE $7
WIN THIRD PRIZE $5

RULES OF THE GAME

CLIP OUT THIS PAGE AND MARK YOUR CHOICE OF WINNERS OF THE GAME THAT APPEARS IN EACH OF THE ADS ON THIS PAGE.

Do not guess the score, just the winner. If you predict a tie, so indicate with the word "Tie" written across the ad.

GUESS BOTH THE WINNER AND THE SCORE FOR THE GAME MARKED "TIE-BREAKER", THAT APPEARS ON THIS PAGE.

Tie-breaker game winner will be counted with other games but tie-breaker game score will be used only to break ties among contestants, with the game winner first, margin of victory second, total game points third and total points by winner fourth. If still tied, the prize money will be divided equally.

Fill in your name, address and phone number (if any)
and either mail or bring this page, or a reasonable facsimile of the list of games, to either The Deport Times or The Bogata News.

Entries brought to either of the newspaper offices, must be in that office no later than 5 p.m. Friday of this week. If tries must be mailed in time to arrive with the Saturday mitted. In event of more than one entry from a contestant, that person will be eligible for only one prize in that contest week.

Most Christmas tree growers can relax in their control efforts on the pine tip moth, according to Dr.

the tip moths will enter the Southeast Texas, the life cycle could continue a little longer.

Weekly Agricultural Update

Many producers are concerned about their winter pastures. Although some areas of East Texas had some rainfall, it has basically been spotted. With rainfall, seed that were dusted in earlier should germinate and do well.

Dr. Sim Reeves, Jr.,
agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says that some producers may want to plant ryegrass alone in some areas. Good results were obtained last year in Henderson County with seeding rates of 35 to 40 pounds per acre. Marshall ryegrass did well under these conditions.

If the ryegrass is planted in a sod, Reeves advises to hold back on applications of nitrogen until after the first frost. Otherwise, the nitrogen may cause the permanent grasses to compete too heavily with the seeding ryegrass.

Once winter forage plants
get a little growth, Reeves says that they are pretty tough and can withstand some dry weather. With adequate rainfall, many of these plants can survive.
