

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCH E. BEAN
Amateur Woman's Editor

THE recent notice about the marriage of Miss Irene Hall, 30-year-old co-ed of the University of Colorado, and Gopal Singh Khales, lecturer, author and newspaper man of India, reminds us of the marriage some months ago of Nancy Ann Miller to Maharaja Tukolj Rao Holkar and gives us another opportunity to wonder again if East and West can ever mate and be happy.

And just as I am wondering I find a story in a current magazine about this latter couple, written by Praxer Hunt who visited the Holkars at their chateau in France and he has to say of them, "I have seen a rare union of two races, two people, two religions. I have seen one of the happiest couples I have ever met."

Happiness is an indefinable thing and many people have attempted to create formulas which will assure marital happiness, but there is no one factor that may be employed. Maharaja Holkar has this to say: "If different people would only try to understand one another. Sometimes I feel they do not want to understand. They condemn so quickly and understand so slowly."

This might apply to marriages of people in the same race and of the same religion who find compatibility so elusive. So many of our difficulties disappear if we try to understand other people instead of demanding that they always understand us. I'm always reminded of that old saying attributed to the Quaker: "Everyone but me and their art queer, and sometimes I think that art a little odd."

WHAT AN INDIAN DOES
THERE'S no moral to this story and I'm not going to make any comments. But it is interesting so here it is:

Mrs. Alice Brown Davis, of Wekiva, Okla., who is 78 years of age, is still as active as the queen of a century ago in seeking the general welfare of her tribe, the Oklahoma Seminoles. She was formerly principal chief of the Seminoles in Oklahoma, having been appointed to that place by the president in 1822, and she has made a number of trips to Florida and other places in the interest of the Seminoles. Her hobby is philanthropic work and she is a good swimmer, in spite of her years.

SCHOOL SIDE LIGHTS
WE had a few more at cooking school yesterday afternoon than came on either of the previous days. Things are still happening down there to interest the women of the city. Mrs. Thrig is hearing a lot of questions at the end of her lecture each afternoon. She's glad to answer them.

Here are some side lights, caught from the back of the room. Several business men of the city dropped in during the afternoon to see how the school was progressing. A playfellow arrived for the children who were attending and immediately found friends, probably to the consternation of some of the mothers. He ate the colored sandwich bread but didn't seem to have any particular appreciation of its significance. This visitor was a tiny moth-eaten kitten, looking very much the forlorn orphan.

Mrs. Thrig reminded us that she can't dance and she can't sing; that she is just a cook. But what a cook! I went up and sampled some of the things after the school. Anyway, doing one thing at a time is plenty. Why should we wish that we could do everything?

A FROZEN SALAD
THE concluding paragraph today is a recipe for frozen fruit salad. It didn't come from the cooking school, but it is good just the same: One cup sliced pineapple, 1 cup sliced oranges, sixteen dates cut in halves, 2 cups mayonnaise, 12 marshmallows, 1 cup apricot pulp, 2 tablespoons gelatin soaked in 3 tablespoons cold water, 1 cup whipped cream.

Melt gelatin over hot water. Beat in salad dressing. Add prepared fruit. When mixture is cold, add whipped cream and freeze.

ANNOUNCE WEDDING
Couple Is Married Sunday in Clovis
Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Eula Mae Brown, of this city, and Jack Wakely, of Hobbs, New Mexico, which took place Sunday morning in Clovis. Misses Carrie Scott and Glennie Barton, of Lubbock, were present at the ceremony.

The couple is living in Lubbock temporarily. Mrs. Wakely is cashier at the J. C. Penney company.

ELECT PRESIDENT
Miss Zella Riegel President of Social Club
During a business session held by the Fortnightly Bridge club Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. B. A. Hicks, 2223 Broadway, Miss Zella Riegel was elected president. She was decided to play contract bridge and members drew for entertaining dates during the year.

PEP RALLY TONIGHT

Almost on the eve of the football team's departure for Canyon where they will take on the West Texas Teachers Buffaloes, Jake Schober yell leader, has called a special pep rally for tonight in the Tech gym.

No special train has been chartered for the game, due to the fact college officials deemed it unwise to attempt another special after the one last week. A big sendoff is planned for the Matadors, however, when they leave for their annual clash with the Canyon eleven.

PLAN FOR W. T. C. C.

When the city of Lubbock entertains visitors to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention here next May 15 and 16, Texas Technological college will do its part.

Heading the list of entertainments to be afforded the visitors here next spring is the annual engineers' show which will be in full swing during the gathering. The annual show usually is presented in April each year, but officials plan to postpone the affair until May when the visitors of the convention gather here.

President Paul W. Horn has written letters to the deans and department heads of the college asking them to plan a display of each department of the college during this time. It has been suggested by the president that the Home Economics school could very easily put on an "At Home" display, the bookstore could be on display, the registrar's office could be open for inspection, the green house could be open for inspection, and practically all of the science departments could be on display.

PARTY POSTPONED

Postponement of the Sourry county party which was to have been held Friday night has been announced by Roe Bavousett, president of the club.

There will be a regular meeting of the members of the organization next Monday evening at 7:30 in room 214 of the administration building, however.

ARTIST NUMBER POSTPONED

"An Evening of Opera" one of the five numbers of the Tech artist and which was to have been presented here next month, has been postponed indefinitely, according to an announcement from college officials. The number was scheduled for November 6.

LETTERING COURSE OFFERED

As a special benefit to those interested in commercial art and engraving a special course in lettering is being offered during the next spring term. The course will be under the direction of Professor Carl Lars Svenson, head of the engineering drawing department of the college.

TO ELECT OFFICERS

Initiation of new members and election of the remainder of officers will occupy the main part of the program scheduled for a meeting of the Tech Chamber of Commerce which meets tonight at 7:30 in the engineering building auditorium.

Julius L. Bergfeld, is president of the organization, which was organized for the purpose of promoting civic activities on the campus. William E. Street, now a member of the Tech faculty, and Elmer J. Moore, who is working as a geologist, are past presidents of the organization. Bergfeld was elected as head of the organization at a recent meeting and other officers will be selected tonight.

HELP STUDENTS

Students in the agricultural school at Tech have been aided in their cotton grading work by Charles M. Davis, manager of district 2 of the Texas Cooperation association, and W. M. Hyan, head cotton classifier of this district.

Students in the school are being trained in grading and stapling of cotton.

ORGANIZE CO-ED BAND

Under the direction of Miss Cravens and Harry LeMaire a Tech co-ed orchestra has been organized on the Tech campus. The band which is composed of six members recently made its initial appearance at Ropes under the auspices of the Ropes P-T. A. The orchestra is available for all occasions excepting dances which are excluded from their program.

Members of the orchestra are: Misses Viola Cravens, Allene Huston, Mary Frances Gale, Florence Jackson, Dolly Clements and Carolyn Poe.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

They way is in the sea, and thy path in the great waters, and thy footsteps are not known. Thou leddest thy people like a flock by the hand of Moses and Aaron.—Psalm, lxxvii, 19, 20.

THE T-P-NORTHERN MEETING REPRESENTATIVES of every city on the proposed Texas and Pacific Northern rail line, connecting Big Spring, on the South, with Vega, on the North, will gather for conference in Amarillo tomorrow.

As one of the cities affected by the proposed line, Lubbock should be strongly represented—both in numbers and in brains.

There are among us people who do not believe the Interstate Commerce Commission will permit the building of the line, which in its present state calls for connections at Lamesa, Brownfield, Levelland, Littlefield, Hereford, Dimmitt and Vega, with branch lines running into both Lubbock and Amarillo. There are others who believe that even if the principal line is allowed, the Lubbock and Amarillo branch line cut-offs will not be approved.

But let individual opinions be as they may, Lubbock is affected by the proposed line, and it is in the interest of the city to be represented at the Amarillo party tomorrow.

The Chamber of Commerce is bending every effort to enlist at least 50 Lubbock citizens in the party going to Amarillo. Leaders want more than 50 if possible—50 at a minimum. Don't wait to be urged; don't wait for a special invitation. It is your meeting, Lubbock's meeting as well as the South Plains meeting. Go to Amarillo tomorrow to lend counsel—and to learn more about a most important proposition.

THE LURE OF FIGHTING

BRAZIL is a long way from the United States, and the civil war there is neither very interesting nor understandable to the average American; but it is interesting to note that hundreds of young men are striving earnestly to get down there and take a hand in the fighting, even though they have not the remotest notion of what it is all about.

Representatives of the Brazilian rebels, who have offices in New York, are besieged daily by many of these ardent Americans, hot for war; so are the official representatives in this country of the Brazilian government. There may not be a hundred people in this country who know just what is going on down there, but there are a great many who would like to be in whatever it is.

All of this, coming little more than a decade after a war that was supposed to have disillusioned the world forever about fighting, is a somewhat jarring. It emphasizes two facts that will rise to plague pacifists for years to come—the fact that there is an insatiable yearning for high adventure planned in the breast of mankind, and the fact that mankind persists in believing that high adventure is best gained by getting into a fight.

That, of course, is only another way of saying that men are by nature restless. Safety and security do not begin to look attractive until after one has had youth, far behind him, and is taking a walk in a way that the modern world does not provide very many outlets for restlessness. Most of us, from the cradle onward, are safe and secure whether we like it or not. So, when someone touches off a war in Brazil, there is a grand rush to get in on the ground floor, and a little later, very likely, sundry youthful Americans will fill unmarked graves far down in the southern hemisphere.

To be sure, it is youth's privilege to fling its life away recklessly, for small gain or for no gain at all. Indeed, many a sedate, middle-aged householder would probably change places with these youngsters who are off for death below the equator. To live intensely for a few months, is sometimes worth a premature and unpleasant death.

However, recognizing the existence of this spirit is not at all the same thing as admitting that there is nothing that we can do to hold it in check. A revolution in Brazil is something the world can take in its stride, but another world war, on the scale of the last one, is not. And it is unfortunate, in fact, that Americans to Brazil is the same spirit that would take all nations into another great war, if the circumstances were propitious.

This means that the statesmen of Europe and America must take care to keep even the danger of a new one at bay. Emotionally, we have learned nothing whatever by the World War. We shall enter a new one as eagerly as we entered the last one. International crises hereafter must be met and solved before they come to a head.

Those two Marylanders who sold sawdust for high-grade fertilizer could make good in the bootlegging business.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

SENATOR TOM HEFLIN NOW HAS REAL SCRAP FIGHTING ON HIS OWN

By Charles F. Stewart (Central Press Staff Writer)

ASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Experienced politicians almost all say that no candidate for elective office ever believes he can be beaten until he is beaten. Personally I doubt this. There must be exceptions. It can't be possible that ex-Gov. Jonathan M. Davis really thinks he stands a ghost of a show to take Senator Arthur Capper's toga away from him this year, in Kansas, that C. O. Harris is not certain Senator Morris Sheppard will lick the stuffing out of him in the Lone Star state.

Naturally candidates don't admit that they will be beaten, but they must know it sometimes. I am quite prepared, however, to agree that Senator J. Thomas Heflin may err as to the lead pipe cinct which he appears to feel that he has on reelection in Alabama.

Tomtom has waged so many campaigns in his nearly 40-year public career that one loses count, trying to foot up the total number of them—without ever once taking a trivium. Such a series of triumphs is calculated to convince any man of his 100 per cent invincibility.

If, therefore, John H. Bankhead does trounce him for the senate in November, it is readily conceivable that Tomtom will be, in all sincerity, the most astonished Ku Klux of the present autumn throughout Dixie.

Such is the disagreeable awakening for Cotton Thomas that the regular Democrats are predicting. He can't get away with the new stunt he is attempting, they argue.

His past fights all have been nomination fights—that is to say, fights between himself and rival Democrats, and when he has won, his erstwhile rivals have pitched in and helped to elect him. And invariably he HAS been elected; of course he has, running as a Democrat—in Alabama!

But now John H. Bankhead is the Democrat and Tomtom is merely the opposition candidate. The situation has been so turned around that, virtually, the senator is in the position of the Democratic nominee's challenger.

This reason the regulars—not illogically.

In the back of the head Tomtom evidently realizes that it is a state of affairs which has its dangers for him—for he is doing his utmost to impress it upon the voters that his ticket is the Jeffersonian Democratic ticket, testifying in this manner to the high estimate placed by him upon the value of the Democratic label.

It remains to be seen whether or not the voters are convinced that he is a better Democrat, as a Jeffersonian Democrat, than John H. Bankhead, as a plain regular Democrat.

Tomtom gives every evidence of feeling sure he has accomplished this.

The regulars, as I get the news through their headquarters here, from Birmingham, Montgomery, Mobile, Tuscaloosa and other centers, are equally sure of the contrary.

Between the two I am bound to say that the regulars tell somewhat the more plausible story.

Their version is that Tomtom was strongest at the campaign's opening.

For awhile, they concede, the Democratic state committee's action in barring him from the regular ticket, as an Al Smith bolter, simply looked like having aroused popular sympathy in his favor—but it has worn off, according to the regulars.

They admit that he probably would have won an early October election; since then, they insist, his prospects have faded steadily. Each day now, they maintain, justifies prediction of a bigger Bankhead majority.

Yet we must remember that Cotton Tom is too busy sawing wood down in Alabama to be wasting any time sending hopeful forecasts up here to Washington, and he has no farflung organization to attend to it for him. Much he cares for optimistic publicity anyway—beyond the borders of the Valley-Hammer state; it isn't a national office for which he is running.

Before he left the capital for the south the last time to begin spell-binding, Tomtom promised himself out loud (I heard him) to "teast on John H. Bankhead's bones the day after election."

Coooh! but it sounded good!

If I were John H. Bankhead I know I never would feel safe about my bones until I had interment my entire skeleton, down to the ultimate knuckle, the day after election, and found nothing missing.

UNIFORM WARMTH IMPORTANT IN PROPER CLOTHING FOR INFANTS

(This is the first of two articles by Dr. Flah-beth on the proper clothing for infants.)

By Dr. Morris Flahbeth, Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

At the last meeting of specialists in diseases of children of the United States, one period was devoted to the study of the proper clothing for infants.

Dr. Charles Hendee Smith, who led the discussion pointed out that proper clothing for infants should provide uniform warmth without overheating, ease of dressing and undressing, certainty of covering for exercise, and proper care of the diaper.

Since the diaper is the most important article of infant clothing, it demands special consideration. Nowadays a diaper is often of triangular form, in square form, and with tapes. The triangular diaper is more easily applied than the square one and requires fewer pins. The square diaper covers a good deal of the abdomen and is more likely to be wet over a large area than is the triangular one.

In general, physicians have urged the avoidance of rubber or oil cloth over the diaper, but mothers insist on using them. The chief objection is that there is a tendency to irritation of the skin when rubber coverings are used.

Dr. Smith believes that irritation is just as frequent without the waterproof covering as with it and that it is due to some irritating substance in the excretions rather than the waterproof covering.

A recent test was made in a hospital ward in which six babies were covered with oiled muslin and six were covered with rubber. At the end of the week the babies without the covering had used more than four hundred additional pieces of laundry than those with the coverings. Moreover there was extra time required on the part of the nurses for changing the entire bed and the child with the waterproof coverings were no more irritated than those without.

Heart Hungry

BEGIN HERE TODAY Adventure enters the life of CELIA MITCHELL. It, when she learns that the father she has supposed dead is alive and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore for a home in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her aristocratic grandmother.

MARGARET ROGERS, her mother, divorced Mitchell, remarried and is now a widow. BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl, and before leaving Baltimore, Celia promises to be loyal to his love.

She is lonely in her new home. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to other young people. Mrs. Parsons considers Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections and agrees. She invites the girl to her Long Island home for a week-end. TOP JORDAN, fascinating but with a dubious reputation, is attentive to Celia. Mitchell joins the house party on Sunday.

Mrs. Parsons, seeing the father and daughter together, becomes jealous. She tells Mitchell her pearls are missing and casts suspicion on Celia, but the scheme is unsuccessful. It is arranged for Celia to continue her visit for several days. She goes to her room and is awakened by a knock at the door.

NO GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII Evelyn Parsons entered the room. She wore a fluttering turquoise negligee.

"Oh, my dear! I didn't think you were asleep—I wouldn't have wakened you."

Celia popped herself up on one, rounded elbow and rubbed her eyes. She smiled.

"Gusta I just dropped off the first thing. Has anything happened?"

"No, I only came in for a bedtime chat. Shut your eyes again! I'm going right away."

"Don't go! Anyhow I'm awake now. My—oh you look lovely in that shade of blue."

Mrs. Parsons wrapped the fragile garment about her and sat down on the opposite side of Celia's bed.

"Have a good time this evening?" she asked earnestly.

"Yes, I did. And I enjoyed the tennis this afternoon, too. Lisa's a wonderful tennis player, isn't she?"

"Lisa's good at all sports," Mrs. Parsons agreed, "except the rather important one of attracting the men. I noticed that a certain little young lady had more dancing partners than she knew what to do with tonight!"

"Oh, Mrs. Parsons—!"

"No need to blush. I saw it all right. And why not? All men like to dance with such a pretty girl as you are, Celia. I must have you here often. You'll make all my parties successful."

It was the sort of talk to which a girl of Celia's age is susceptible. Mrs. Parsons casually brought Tod Jordan's name into the conversation.

"He was ever so popular on shipboard. Evelyn said, "My dear, there were women and girls who actually dogged his footsteps. He didn't pay the slightest attention to any of them. I guess that's why I couldn't help but notice how attentive he was from the minute he met you. Of course, he's that dark type that usually does attract—"

"Oh, but you're mistaken, Mrs. Parsons. He was just being polite to me. And anyhow I only danced with him once."

Celia said these things because she wanted to hear Mrs. Parsons deny them. Perhaps if Evelyn thought Jordan had been impressed it might be true.

"Only once? Why, that's impossible. I know he came to me half a dozen times this evening asking where he could find you. Celia Mitchell, I do believe you've been coquetting!"

Celia laughed.

"I couldn't," she said. "I wouldn't tell that to someone else, my dear! Someone who's younger than Evelyn Parsons. Well, I only hope you won't be too hard on the sniffling creature. Tell me—do you like these young men as well as the ones you knew in Baltimore?"

"Oh, there weren't any—I mean—"

"No young men in Baltimore? Nonsense. You know you can trust me, Celia. Who's the one lad in your heart?"

"There isn't—that is, we—"

"What's his name?"

Celia forgot her caution.

"There is someone," she said shyly. "I mean there's a boy I like awfully well. He's—well, he doesn't earn very much yet, but he's going to some day. He's a newspaper photographer, and he does the most exciting things. Of course we aren't really engaged, but he says some day he's going to marry me. You'd like him, too, Mrs. Parsons. I know you would! He's tall and slim, and he has the most wonderful eyes. They're gray Barney's his name."

Meandering of Red River May Cause Dispute

Arrest of Six Prominent Men from Texarkana on Charges of Illegal Hunting Brings Up Ownership Question

TEXARKANA, Ark., Oct. 29. (P) Meandering of the Red river may result in the United States supreme court's being asked to decide a dispute between Texas and Arkansas over a strip of land near the river, brought about by the arrest of six prominent Texarkana men on charges of illegal hunting.

Both states claim the land and trouble over jurisdiction has arisen between Bowie county, Texas, and Little River county, Arkansas, on several occasions.

The six men arrested, including David Arnold, former Arkansas state senator; R. R. Greckmore, W. M. McClain, J. H. Young, Sam Milazzo, Jr., and Bryant Holmes, are held under $110 bonds for hearings before Peace Justice J. T. Grounds at Ashdown, Ark., Saturday.

Had Texas Licenses.

The men, members of a hunting club located on the land, declared they believed they were hunting in Texas and had Texas licenses. They said a test case would be taken to the supreme court, to determine which state owns the land.

Little River county, Arkansas, officials have been collecting taxes from the land for several years and declared there was no question of ownership. Hugh Ashford, Texas game warden, said he had been informed the land belonged to Arkansas. However, Judge George Johnson and many other prominent Bowie county, Texas, officials asserted that the land belonged to Texas.

A department of agriculture map shows the land in question as in Bowie county, Texas, with the Red river on the north. The old bed of the river lies to the south, its meanderings having caused it to move north several hundred yards. The land lies between the old river bed and the present channel.

Residents of the vicinity recalled today that the Arkansas game warden attempted to arrest a district judge and deputy sheriff of Bowie county, Texas, several years ago, and the deputy retaliated with a threat to arrest the warden for impersonating an officer in Texas. On another occasion, they said, a Bowie county man was reported to have driven an Arkansas official away at the point of a gun, believing the Arkansas man was without jurisdiction on the territory disputed.

Matadors Eager To Spoil Canyon's Homecoming Fete

Westerners Little Excited Over Amarillo Game; Work On Defense

Scrimmage on Practice Lot Menu of Week

All Members of Squad Report for Workout for First Time in Weeks; Vinsant May Be Unable to Start

Every man who wears the Scarlet and Black of Texas Tech on the gridiron was present yesterday at the practice field for the first time in several weeks, and there was not one scrimmage session, but two, for the benefit of Tech's Matadors and Picadors.

It is thought that all of the Matadors will be ready to go next Saturday against the Canyon Teachers with the possible exception of Rip Vinsant, regular end, who has been out for two weeks with a crippled shoulder. He has been on the practice field in uniform every day this week, but unable to take part in the heavier workouts and scrimmages. It was first thought that he would be ready for action against the Buffaloes Saturday, but Rip's weakened condition may make it impossible for him to play.

C. A. Doore, regular fullback, who has been out this week with severe bruises about the hand and minor body injuries, was back in uniform yesterday and taking part in the regular workout. Unless complications set in, he will be able to go Saturday, and it is well for the Matador backfield that he is improving. He is a great plunger, and when on his right game is not to be denied a gain when carrying the ball. He is a sophomore, with one year's experience on the Picador team. His home town is Ballinger, where he starred in high school grid programs.

Chief Yeager, reserve fullback, who has not been able to practice this week due to an injured knee, was on the field yesterday, though he did not take part in the harder workouts. He is a former Glens High backfield star, and is likely to prove his metal in college yet. Injuries have kept him out of the lineup except in one game this season. He is one of the heaviest men on Cavthon's squad, weighing 180 pounds, and carrying well.

Lawrence Franz was out one day this week while waiting for a nasty cut about the mouth to heal, but is going strong now. He was in the scrimmage yesterday. One of the most valuable men on the team, Franz plays half back when Woolridge is not in the game, and when the regular quarter is not there, Lawrence calls the signals and plays the position. He is a good safety man, a fair punter, and swift on his feet. Although light, he has proved indispensable so far. He hails from Sulphur Springs, and has two years of college experience behind him.

The presence of big George Langford in the line at tackle after a month's absence is one of the bright spots in the practice field this week. Coaches Cavthon and Morgan have worried nearly as much in connection with the tackle positions during the past few weeks as with the ends. Langford was welcomed to the practice field this week, and was reactivated last Saturday when coaches and faculty members got together.

Yesterday was given over mostly to scrimmages, with the freshmen Picadors of Coach Dutcher Smith running Canyon Buffalo plays against the varsity Matadors. Two teams of each squad battled at either end of the field in a lengthy workout, and will be back this afternoon at the same business as preparations are made to invade the Canyon stronghold Saturday. The game will be the feature attraction on Canyon's annual Homecoming Day bill.

Canyon defeated the Matadors last season, 29 to 0, and with this ever in mind the coaches are urging the men along, who are eager to settle the score with the Buffaloes. The temporary ambition of the Matadors is to spoil the Teachers' homecoming, thereby getting revenge for the past year's defeat. Last year the Cardinals traded him to the Glens.

Well also said acquisition of another outfielder probably will be announced in a few days.

Unsung Heroes of Line Draw Praise Of Frank Cavanaugh, Fordham Coach Who Specializes in Lines for Wins

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The unsung heroes of the line, carving out paths for flashy backs who reap the glory, taking the batterings, missing the headlines—those are the boys to delight the heart of bespectacled Frank Cavanaugh, football's "iron major" and head coach at Fordham University.

Defense is Cavanaugh's forte. He has bulled a massive eleven at Fordham that has piled up 14 straight victories and has yet to be scored on this fall. His teams boast forward walls of human concrete buttressed with steel. They are the front line trenches, throwbacks to the astrapel-doused ditches he commanded during the war years in France.

Not Enough Attention So it isn't any wonder he feels sports writers fail to give adequate attention to the linemen who make it possible for the backs to run and then desperately hold the fort when the other fellows bid to wipe out the advantage. He suspects, though, the reading public probably isn't interested in the niceties of line play and probably wouldn't know what you were talking about unless you stuck rather close to the sensational runs and spectacular passes, backs capitalizing on opportunities given by the protecting linemen.

Big Men Wanted in Line The good big man is always better than the good little man in the line, all other things being equal, Cavanaugh believes, and he likes to slant a little toward the heavy side. He is a great center, with players like big Frank Foley, a massive tackle. Intelligence and speed are the main requisites of a good lineman and he likes to get them young, 19 years old if possible.

Cavanaugh thinks Knute Rockne's teams are mostly likely to demonstrate a good defense because of the perfect cohesion of the Notre Dame defense. Knute will take the play you are using and gain eight yards with it after you have gained two.

"Then," says the "iron major," "the morale of the boys goes to pieces. They can't help saying to themselves, 'wow, we're in for a licking.'"

WALTER ROETZGER TO REDS

WALTER ROETZGER TO REDS

(By The Associated Press) NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The New York Giants today announced the outright sale of Walter Roetzger to the Cincinnati Reds.

Raymond Fitzgerald, outfielder, to the Cincinnati Reds. The prior was announced.

Roetzger, traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Giants for Eddie Farrell and George Flahr last April, had 279 for John McGraw. Playing in 121 games, Roetzger made himself highly useful to the Giants, fielding well and binging out 15 two-runners, five triples and five homers.

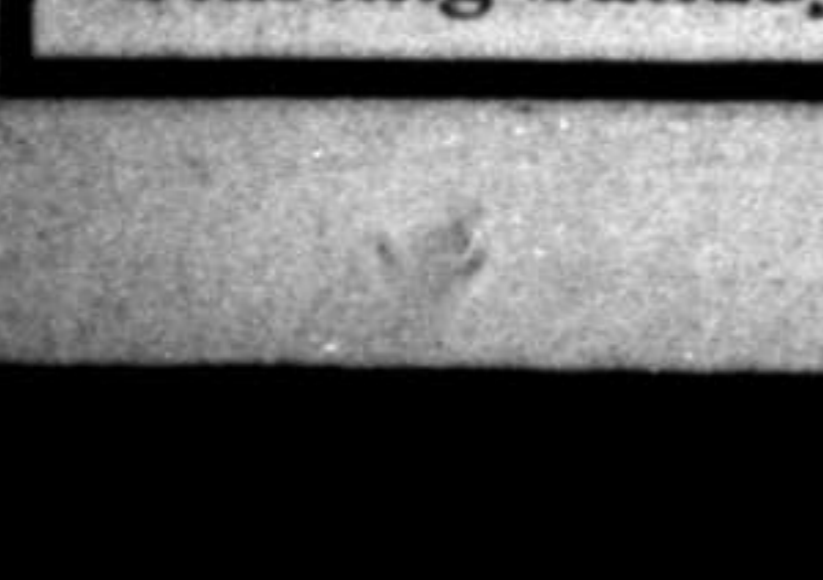

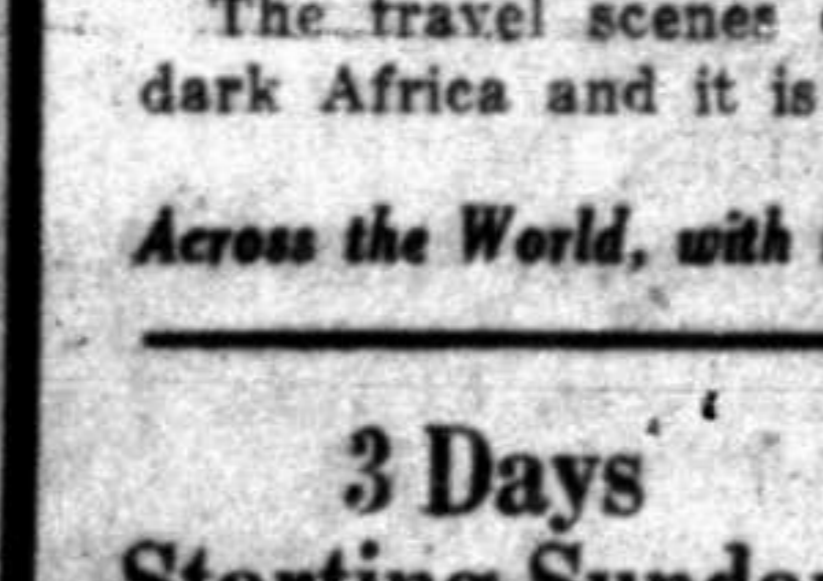

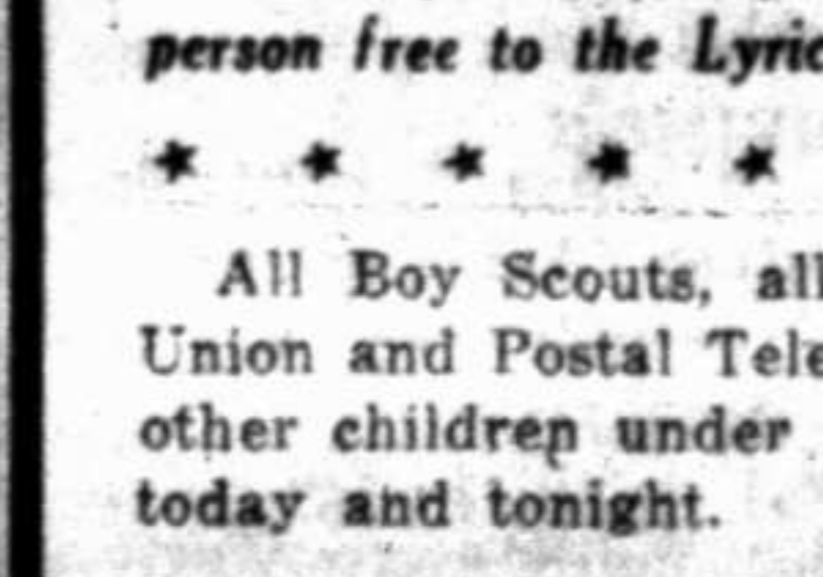

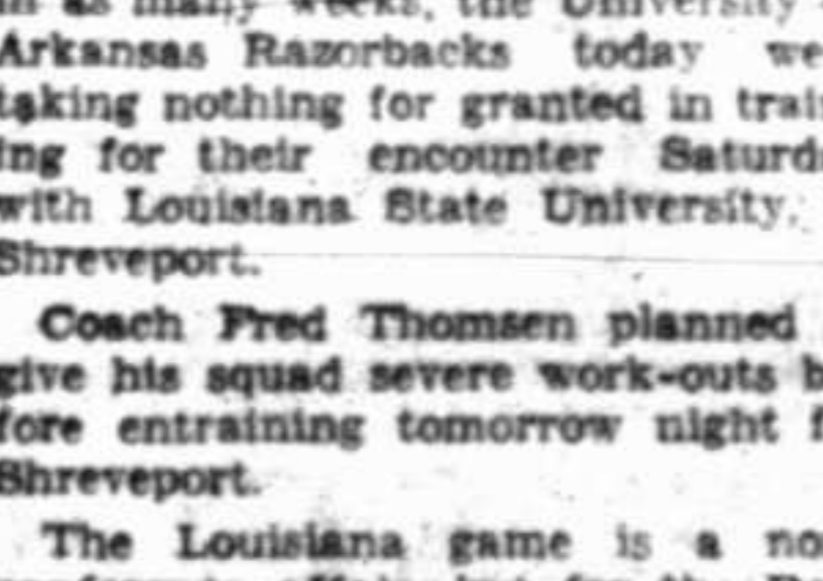

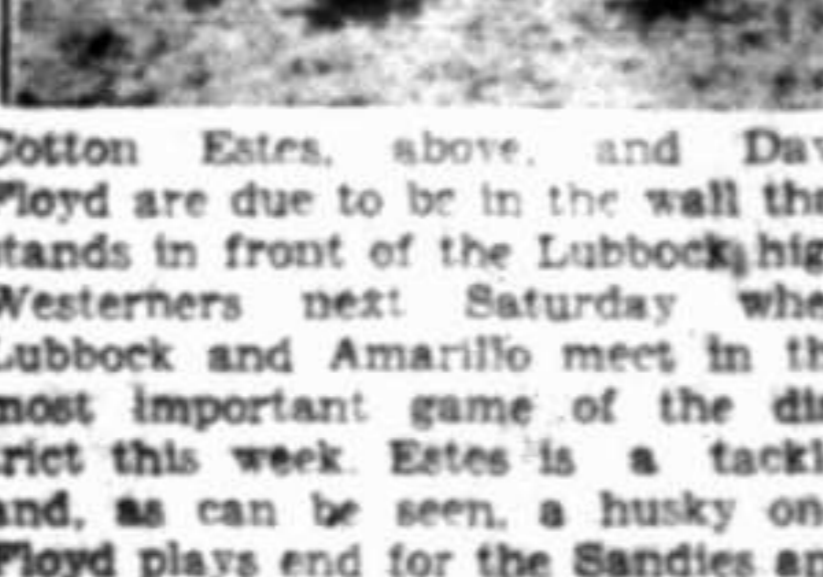

Fitzgerald, acquired by the Giants, last fall, was farmed out to Bridgeport of the Eastern league during the past season.

First Purchase By Reds Roetzger's purchase was the first step taken by Manager Well to strengthen the Reds for the 1937 campaign.

In 1925 Roetzger played with the University of Illinois baseball team and his first professional experience was that same year with Syracuse in the International league. The 1927 season found him with Houston in the Texas league where he was picked up by the St. Louis Cardinals and in 1928 was considered one of the coming young stars in the majors. Last year the Cardinals traded him to the Giants.

Well also said acquisition of another outfielder probably will be announced in a few days.

Class B Teams Meet Tomorrow

Brownfield and Lamesa Hold Spotlight with Title Tilt at Brownfield; Spur Meets Crosbyton Tomorrow

The interest of Class B high school football fandom will center around the Brownfield-Lamesa clash in Brownfield this week, and the Floydada-Canyon game and the Spur-Crosbyton tilt looming as possible outstanding contests. The clouds which hung over the Spur team until this week threatened to remove one of the strongest teams from the District 2 race, but with the reinstatement and reprimand accorded the Bulldogs by the state executive committee last Monday the team will be in the thick of the fight for district honors for the rest of the season.

The Spur Bulldogs are due to sweep the Crosbyton scrap with comparative ease, giving the lion's share of the limelight to the Brownfield-Lamesa game. Neither of these teams has suffered a defeat so far this season, though Coach Marlin Hayhurst's Cubs have been tied once. Lamesa, with a second consecutive bi-district championship in sight, will be putting forth its best efforts against the Brownfield horde, which in turn will be fighting to maintain an unbeaten record.

Three Conference Games Tomorrow Many of the games so far this season have been inter-sub-district games, which have no bearing on championships of the four sub-districts which make up District 2. The Brownfield-Lamesa game tomorrow will go a long way in deciding the championship of sub-district No. 4. Slato and Tahoka are in the same district and are the only other teams, with the exception of Crosbyton and Spur, and Levelland and Littlefield, to play sub-district games this week.

Mulehoe High will meet Amberst tomorrow, and Ralls will tangle with Lorenzo Levelland and Littlefield meet in a conference battle and Slato meets Tahoka at Tahoka in an important game.

The Class B teams of District 2 are divided as follows: sub-district 1: Amberst, Levelland, Littlefield, Olton and Spring Lake; sub-district 2: Floydada, Lockney and Paducah; sub-district 3: Crosbyton, Post, Ralls and Spur; sub-district 4: Brownfield, Lamesa, O'Donnell, Slato and Tahoka.

Floydada Whirlwinds To Meet Canyon

FLOYDADA, Oct. 29. (Special)—The Floydada Whirlwinds are training intensively this week for the next game on their schedule which will be played here Friday against the Canyon Eagles. The local squad is improving daily under the direction of Coach Barksdale and a real game is promised. Barring injuries and untoward circumstances, the whirlwinds will be a hard proposition to do away with if they keep up the pace they have set in the last three games played. By their victory over Paducah last Friday, Floydada advanced to a position where only victory stands between them and the high school championship of the north half of this district. Local fans are pepped up as the championship of the district is not far distant.

Spur Ready to Go With Crosbyton High

SPUR, Oct. 29. (Special)—The Spur High school Bull Dogs are getting in shape for their second conference game to be played Friday at Spur with the strong Crosbyton Eagles. The Spur team has not been hurt materially since Edgar, the player declared ineligible, is only a first year man never having had a football uniform on until September the first 1936. The action of the State committee in refusing to act on the recommendation of the district committee that the strong and so far undefeated Spur eleven out of the conference has blighted the hopes of the Ralls team who took a 27 to 7 defeat two weeks ago from Spur and gave Floydada a technical defeat in causing them to forfeit their game to Spur although it would not have counted in the conference running. Slato was defeated last Friday by a score of 40 to 0 in a non-conference game. The Spur fans, Coach, and team are looking forward to the hopes of getting to play at least two strong runners-up in the conference.

Weldon Mason and Malcolm Powell, both of whom had been out of the lineup for two weeks, have worked out daily and will be ready to go Saturday, as will Bruce Kastman.

The Mustangs had another stiff practice game today, during which they continued to stress perfection of their passing game.

Longhorns Ready to Go Against S. M. U. Ponies

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 29. (P)—Still exhibiting a determination to defeat S. M. U. their annual tilt here Saturday, the University of Texas Longhorns spent several hours tonight perfecting their plans for the reception of Coach Ray Morris.

Intersectional Games in East To Hold Light

Kansas U., Leaders of Big Six, Meet Pennsylvania; Army Entertains North Dakota Saturday

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. (P)—A small but select group of newcomers will be introduced to eastern football this week in some of the leading intersectional battles which will vie with all-eastern games that date back into the twenties.

Kansas makes its debut against Pennsylvania Saturday at West Point against Army. Mississippi College comes north to play Colgate. Kansas is the only one of this trio which is expected to put up a battle against the east. The Jayhawks are leading their conference, the Big Six, and have prepared for the Pennu game by giving "Jarring Jim" Bausch, their star back and bond salesman, a rest over last week-end.

North Dakota, although undefeated this season, is not rated quite in the same class with the powerful Cadet eleven while Mississippi college is one of the lesser schools of the southern section.

In contrast to these newcomers are the games between Yale and Dartmouth, which have been going on since 1884, when they were first evenly matched that season, the Cornell-Columbia series, which goes back to 1889 and a few rivalries among the lesser colleges which have almost as much football history behind them.

Majors, Minors in Final Conference

CHICAGO, Oct. 29. (P)—The American baseball association today asked the minor leagues to appoint a committee to meet with it for a final conference on the draft controversy with the major leagues.

Representatives of the American Association met to consider the ultimatum of the major league that unless the minors submit to the draft rule by December 1, relations between the circuits would be severed.

The invitation sent out by the American Association suggested the meeting be held in Chicago or some other centrally located city within the next few weeks in an effort to arrive at an agreement with the majors.

Mustangs Work on Passes for Steers

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 29. (P)—Southern Methodist University had the prospect today that all of its first string eleven would be ready for the University of Texas game at Austin, Saturday.

Lonie Long, star end who played sensational football against Notre Dame and Baylor and who scored one of his team's touchdowns against the Mustangs last Saturday, "tired out" his injured knee today and reported he felt fine. He was injured when kicked during the Indiana game.

Weldon Mason and Malcolm Powell, both of whom had been out of the lineup for two weeks, have worked out daily and will be ready to go Saturday, as will Bruce Kastman.

The Mustangs had another stiff practice game today, during which they continued to stress perfection of their passing game.

Longhorns Ready to Go Against S. M. U. Ponies

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 29. (P)—Still exhibiting a determination to defeat S. M. U. their annual tilt here Saturday, the University of Texas Longhorns spent several hours tonight perfecting their plans for the reception of Coach Ray Morris.

Kansas Gridsters Declared Cleared Of Subsidization Charges; Eligible To Compete In Big Six Conference

In K. U. Tangle

LAWRENCE, Kas., Oct. 29.—The University of Kansas replied to Big Six Conference charges of subsidization and recruiting of athletes today by declaring all its football squad eligible, including James A. (Jarring Jim) Bausch, whose amateur status has been specifically questioned because of his $75 a month job as insurance salesman.

In a statement following a 2-1-2 hour session, the university athletic board said:

Charges Not Justified "With the evidence as collected and presented today, this board feels that it is not justified in declaring any of the present football squad ineligible."

Twenty-eight varsity players, including Bausch, were named to compete in the Pennsylvania game Saturday in Philadelphia. The squad entrained tonight. Arrival in Philadelphia is scheduled for early afternoon Friday, in time for the Jayhawkers to practice on Franklin field.

The board made no reference to the charges which formed the grounds on which the conference faculty council voted last week-end to schedule no more contests with Kansas after the expiration of present contracts, which would be at the close of the coming basketball season.

Bausch Not Ineligible The faculty council did not declare Bausch ineligible. Rather it left to Kansas the responsibility for determining whether he should continue to play.

Kansas has contended Bausch's amateur status is unquestioned, as shown by several university investigations. Today's statement bore previous declarations.

The Kansas board considered a 48-page typed report of an investigation made for the board by Walter Thiele, Lawrence attorney.

Dean George C. Shand, faculty council member from Kansas who was present at the meeting at which Kansas was banned, issued a statement after today's session, in which he stated the board approved Thiele's investigation and "authorizes the continuance of the services sons prolegs."

"More punch," was the cry of Coach Clyde Littlefield, as the Longhorns drilled. Substantial increases in the effectiveness of the Steer aerial attack also were sought, while the Longhorns were drilled long and ardently in defense against S. M. U. passes and plays as exhibited by the scrubs and yearlings.

to go Saturday, as will Bruce Kastman.

Daily Drills At Fair Park Improve Team

No Great Show of Excitement as Westerners See Sandies Looming Ahead; Coaches Dispell Over Confidence

If the Westerners are excited over the prospects of their game Saturday with the Amarillo Golden Sandies they do not show it on the practice field. The Lubbock High gridsters are going through their daily workouts, slightly tougher than usual, with customary patience and ease, as if they were preparing for a hard but not unusual contest.

There is no spark of over-confidence in the squad, and every man is eager to learn as much of the details and fundamentals of the game. Taking the course of things in a matter of fact way, the Westerners are thinking as little as possible of the impending crucial game and its possible results.

There is naturally a bit more interest in the practice for them but little if any uneasiness is visible to the casual onlooker. For them a victory Saturday means, at best, a corner in a three-cornered tied for first place, while a loss will mean that they are lost to a championship title.

Coaches Henry Frka and W. H. ... are expending every effort to put the team in sound condition for the fray this week, which shall draw the eyes of the entire district as well as the more interested glances of the state football fans.

The winner of the game Saturday will be in a good way to finish high in District 1 and have the right to meet the District 2 champion in the early stages of the state championship race. Heavy scrimmages daily on the Fair Park field against fellow squadmates and against the Picadors of Coach McMurray furnish the Westerners plenty to think about.

Work yesterday was directed toward perfecting a defense against the powerful onslaught of the Sandies, who come here Saturday backed by nearly 3,000 rooters for the most important game of the district title week.

Avenue J Will Be Made Wider

Grading Between Nineteenth and Twenty-first Streets Scheduled to Begin Today; Property Is Dedicated

Widening and grading of Avenue J between Nineteenth and Twenty-first streets will begin today, persons owning property abutting on the strip having agreed to grading of the street to a width of 31 feet. It was announced Wednesday afternoon at the city manager's office.

Final dedication of property for the purpose was received Wednesday. Avenue J will be widened from Twenty-first street south as soon as property owners involved have decided the ground necessary, city officials said. Failure of several property owners in blocks 5 and 6 Boyd subdivision to make such dedications is the only obstacle in the way of extending the work to Twenty-third street, records at the city manager's office indicate.

The city also is preparing to widen Avenue T south of Nineteenth street through McCrummen's park to eliminate a traffic hazard. At present, there is a slight jog in Avenue T, the part of T north of Nineteenth street being slightly west of the south section.

Completion of the new senior high school building is expected to result in increased traffic on both streets and the wider traffic way will aid in relieving a congested condition, city officials said.

To Open Bids for School Fixtures

Bids on furniture and fixtures for the new senior high school building in the 2000 block of Nineteenth street will be opened by the board of education Wednesday, November 12, according to A. C. Jackson, business manager.

Earlier announcements were that the bids would be opened between November 1 and 15.

The contracts will be let on a unit basis, Mr. Jackson said. There are about 75 units in the bid and total expenditure will be between $50,000 and $60,000, he said.

Distribution of plans and specifications for the furniture has been started, requests for specifications having been received from four or five Lubbock firms in addition to

Charity Needs Outlined Here

United Charity Asks Budget of $13,500 of Community Chest for 1931; Hospital Fees Are Sought

A budget of $13,500 to be asked of the Community Chest, for the newly organized United Charities in 1931 was recommended by members of the United Charities budget committee at a meeting in chamber of commerce offices Wednesday.

The group agreed to appear before the city commission and county commissioners court to ask that hospital fees in connection with the charity work be assumed by the city and county.

The committee voted that all applications for the position of executive of the United Charities be made in writing and mailed to Glenn Hess, secretary-treasurer. Personal applications will not be considered.

In asking aid from the county, it was explained that only the hospital fees would be sought. The cost of medicine and medical attention will be met from the budget.

John Dairymple, chairman, presided at the meeting. A. M. Scott and Mrs. George A. Meiser were present. Roscoe Wilson and E. L. Pitts were unable to be present.

Meeting with the budget committee were the following members of the executive committee, P. T. Trigg, Mrs. A. T. Biggers, Snydie S. Wilson, Glenn Hess, Mrs. I. C. Enoch and Mrs. W. B. Price.

Cooking School Note

In the cooking school conducted under the auspices of the Avalanche-Journal this week, Mrs. Leona Guss taught the modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, she uses and recommends CRISCO the modern shortening.

Fruit trees 250 years old—

and a recipe that grew up with them

THERE are fruit trees that old, right in the quaint little old village of Middletown, N. J., where the woman lives who sent me this excellent Crisco recipe for Dutch apple cake.

She told me, too, that the thrifty settlers used to mark their boundary lines with fruit trees, mostly apple, instead of fences. And the wives had to devise all manner of ways to use these apples so the husbands wouldn't turn them all into hard cider. This cake was one of their recipes.

I don't know how good the original apple cake was, but it couldn't have been any better than this modern version of it, made with the modern shortening—Crisco—whose delicate flavor allows every little piece of apple to assert itself in the finished deliciousness of the cake. This recipe is simple and quick like all Crisco recipes.

No matter what kind of food I'm cooking, if the recipe calls for a shortening or a fat, I use Crisco—for I sort of grew up on it. It's been in my mother's kitchen for 18 years. We've both always found it sweet and fresh-tasting just as it came from the can. Crisco stays good-tasting, too. And so do foods cooked with it.

DUTCH APPLE CAKE

1 cup flour	1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder	4 apples
2 tablespoons sugar	1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt	1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons Crisco	1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 egg yolks (save whites for sauce)

Mix and sift together flour, baking powder, 2 tablespoons of the sugar and salt. Cut in Crisco and add egg yolks mixed with milk. Mix. Pour into shallow Criscoed cake pan and top with apples which have been cut into wedge-shaped slices. Sprinkle top with rest of sugar, and the cinnamon and lemon rind and dot with bits of Crisco. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) about 35 minutes or until apples are tender. Serve hot or cold with lemon sauce.

Fluffy Lemon Sauce

Mix one egg, 1/4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Add water and cook in double boiler about 5 minutes or until thick, stirring constantly. Then mix in 1 tablespoon Crisco, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg and lastly fold in 2 egg whites beaten stiff. This sauce may be served with almost any dessert similar to the Apple Cake.

THE PHONOGRAPH is Columbia's triumph of acoustical and electrical art. In this Electric Reproducing record player tone is richer, volume is fuller. For every note is caught from the record by a new, improved type of electric pickup—and delivered through a new, improved electro-dynamic speaker. Every note comes to you "like life itself!"

In addition to this new Columbia Radio-Phonograph Combination, you can also get the new COLUMBIA TELE-FOCAL RADIO alone in two handsome cabinet models—high-boy and low-boy. Both are exquisite examples of the finest cabinet work—both are beautifully finished.

"Is that all?"
Barney Shields. Don't you think it's a pretty name? I do, and oh, Barney always been terribly nice to me."

There was a far-away look in Celia Mitchell's eyes. She was thinking how tender and gentle Barney Shield's voice could be. She could see his gray eyes looking at her. Celia forgot about Mrs. Parsons. She did not see the hard, tightening line about the older woman's mouth.

"Did your mother approve of this engagement?" Evelyn asked.
"But we really aren't engaged! We couldn't be. You see, Barney said it wouldn't be right because he hasn't enough money, and he didn't want me to give up coming to New York and everything. Of course mother likes him, but she doesn't know he said anything to me about getting married. I thought it would only worry her."

"But do you care for him a lot?" Celia nodded her head. It was comforting to have someone to whom she could talk in this confidential way. Mrs. Parsons seemed so understanding.

"I suppose Evelyn went on carefully. You miss your mother a great deal?"
The girl's face sobered.
"Lots," she agreed.
"Does she ever come to New York?"

"Oh, no. She couldn't do that. You see, mother works. She does sewing for Margot's shop. It's a very nice place. She's worked there for years and years."

Mrs. Parsons' brows raised expectantly.
"Tonight, Celia went on impulsively. My father said something awfully nice. He said I reminded him of mother when she was a girl. Wasn't that sweet?"

With the light behind Evelyn Parsons' head her face in shadow, the girl could not see the angry flare which crossed the woman's face. Celia would have been amazed if she could have caught the cruel glint in Evelyn's blue eyes.

A moment passed. Then Mrs. Parsons said, rising. "That was charming. But it is dreadful of me to keep you awake like this. Forgive me. I'll slip along, and in the morning we can talk to our hearts' content. Good night, dear Celia."
"Goodnight."

Mrs. Parsons closed the door behind her. Celia extinguished the bed lamp and in 10 minutes she was asleep again.

In the morning they had breakfast at a table set on the shady end of the porch. It was a glorious day cool but bright with sunshine. There was a bird-bath at the left and throughout the meal a chorus of fifty songsters kept up a cheerful serenade.

Celia could scarcely finish her muffins for constantly praising Larchwood. She was looking cool and dainty herself in her sleeveless white frock. Mrs. Parsons, pouring the coffee, seemed pleased at Celia's enthusiasm. There was no sign this morning of the angry hours the widow had spent the night before.

"And what would you like to do this morning?" she asked Celia.
The girl said she would like very much just to follow the gardeners around and ask questions and if it would be all right, to dig in the ground here and there and pretend she was really helping the flowers to grow.

Mrs. Parsons laughed. "If Ben is willing and will tell you where you can dig and where not to, I guess you can garden to your heart's content," she said. Ben was the gray-haired gardener who had taken care of the grounds around Larchwood for 20 years. He was tauter when Celia found him clipping a hedge of spirea bushes. When Ben found she was a willing listener to his tale of prize roses and chrysanthemums which he had raised, the morning sped along and they became close friends. The gardener sent her back to the house bearing one of his choice black roses.

In the afternoon Celia wrote a letter to Barney Shields and another to her mother. She told both of them about the week-end visit, adding to her mother's note several paragraphs about her lovely new pawns. In neither letter, however, did she write anything about Tod Jordan. She had begun to wonder if she could have been mistaken about seeing him with Mrs. Brooks. They drove to the country club for dinner. Mrs. Parsons seemed to have a great many acquaintances, and she introduced Celia to every one. After dinner there was dancing, and Celia found that apparently it made no difference with most of these young people that they had never seen her before. Evelyn played bridge and Celia had plenty of dancing partners. A large part of the evening she spent with a good-natured youth whose first name was "Red" and who seemed to have no other. They were dancing when Mrs. Parsons came to say it was time to drive home.

"Oh, Mrs. Parsons," the girl said as the car sped over the winding road. "I'm so glad you asked me to stay! Today has been wonderful!"
Evelyn acknowledged this with a smile. "We must plan more wonderful days," she said.

There was excitement from the minute Celia appeared at the breakfast table next morning.

"Surprise!" Mrs. Parsons greeted her. "Lisi just telephoned. She's having a swimming party this afternoon, and you're invited. I've already accepted the invitation for you. Of course you want to go! Kate and Walter Carr are going to stop for you at two o'clock."

Yes, Celia wanted to go. She ran upstairs as soon as breakfast was finished and packed her swimming things. She had a neat green beach case large enough to hold her jersey suit and cap and the little Japanese clogs for her feet.

After that she did a good deal of fretting until two o'clock arrived, and down the driveway she saw the brilliant blue roadster. Walter Carr drove. Celia was waiting when the car stopped. Amid gay cries she climbed into the rumble seat and the roadster whisked away.

It was nearly an hour's drive to the beach. The place was a neat and swimming club, which seemed to be the favorite resort of the young people in Lisi Duncan's crowd. There was a large white club house with broad verandas, boat houses and smaller buildings and stretching as far as the eye could see to right and left a beach of clear, gleaming sand.

Beyond was Long Island Sound. The dark green, rolling water plunger and splashed and broke in foaming waves.
Lisi was waiting to greet them. "Hurray!" she cried. "Hurry up and get dressed! Everybody else is here."

Celia followed Kate to the dressing room. There were a dozen girls there getting into bathing suits. Most of them were browned by sun. There was much poking and laughing. In less than five minutes Celia had pulled on her one-piece suit and tied a gay orange bandanna around her neck. Then she stepped into the clogs and ran after Kate Duncan out onto the sand.

No one thought of introductions. There were young men waiting down on the shore. Some of them were already in the water.

"Hello there!"
She was facing Tod Jordan. Evidently he had just come from a dip.
"How do you do?" said Celia. Then she stepped and with a rub-there she plunged into the water. She began swimming rapidly with easy strokes.
Jordan walked away. He turned as a sharp cry cut the air.

Terrace Lynn County Farms

County Commissioners Aid in Work with Purchase of Four Farm Terracing Levels for Free Use by Farmers

TABOKA, Oct. 29. (Special) —Terracing of Lynn county farms on a large scale this winter has been made possible by the county commissioners purchasing of four farm terracing levels for free use by farmers. County Agent Ray E. Shaver will have charge of the terracing campaign, which will get underway early in November.

Plans are to hold a series of terracing schools over the county, one in each community. From six to 12 farmers will be asked to attend each school until the entire county is covered. Mr. Shaver will spend a day in each community instructing the farmers in use of the machines and proper methods of terracing. The four levels will then be left in the community for three days for the completion of the work. Levels will not be loaned farmers who will not promise to run their rows parallel with the terraces.

Terracing on the Plains is proving very profitable. Shaver says, many farmers having greatly increased their production over that of neighbors by the use of the terracing level alone. Lynn county has been taking a lead on the Plains in this work and terracing demonstrations which have been carried on here have been watched by many from neighboring counties. Many thousands acres of Lynn county farming land were terraced last year.

An interesting feature of the local terracing move is the fact that machines for the work have been bought by the county. Lynn county setting an example to other West Texas and Plains counties in this respect. Besides these machines, a number of privately owned levels will be kept busy throughout the winter.

BUILDING STARTS

TABOKA, Oct. 29. (Special) —Work has been started on a new filling station in Taboka on Sweet street. The business will be operated by John N. Thomas under the Phillips Petroleum company agency at this place. The new building is a modern and creditable addition to the business section.

PRACTICE STARTED

Tech Band to Give Concert Here December 5

Practice for the annual concert to be given by the Tech band on December 5 has been started by director Hary Le Maire. It was said yesterday in announcing the date of the program.

The concert will not be given in the college gymnasium it was said, but the place of holding the program is to be announced later. Classical and popular numbers will be given. There will be two or three solo numbers and a trombone quartet. The latter will be the "comedy" number.

Preparation for the concert was delayed until after the Fort Worth trip. The boys, wearing their new uniforms, feel that they made a hit in the "Cow Town" by their appearance. They report a splendid reception from Fort Worth.

Women make 40 per cent of the crowds at boxing shows in Houston, Tex., promoters say.
