Soviets Brand U.S. Indecisive On Arms

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev said Friday that U.S.-Soviet arms limitation talks are "back on track" but some problems cannot be solved without concessions from the United States which he accused of "indecision and inconsistency."

Brezhnev made his remarks in a speech to Soviet troops aboard a cruiser in the far eastern port of Vladivostok less than two weeks before Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is to arrive in Moscow.

In Washington, the State Department said Vance's trip April 20 and 21 will focus on the Stragetic Arms Limitation Talks and other subjects.

Production Delayed

At the White House, President Carter on Friday delayed production of the neutron bomb but said any ultimate decision on the warhead depends on whether the Soviets show restraint in both conventional and nuclear arms.

The U.S. president made clear by his statement that he expects some action on the part of the Russians in response to the delay, thus using the weapon as a "bargaining chip" in the SALT negotiations.

The Tass news agency reported without comment Carter's decision on the neutron bomb in a three-paragraph dispatch from Washington. The U.S.announcement was made hours after Brezhnev's Far East speech.

Brezhnev Opposes Bomb

Brezhnev, who opposes the neutron bomb, claimed the United States was delaying conclusion of a SALT accord for "political reasons" and had shown an "absence of readiness to look for practical solutions."

The neutron bomb is a small warhead that produces twice the deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but with less than a tenth as much explosive power, heat and fallout. This means the bomb can kill people while causing little property damage.

Acknowledging that the range of outstanding issues in the arms talks have been "consistently narrowed," the Soviet leader nevertheless blamed the United States for the current slow pace of progress in negotiations.

U.S. "Inconsistency"

"The matter is that the U.S. government displays indecision and inconsistency, and looks over its shoulder at circles which were against this agreement from the very beginning and which are doing everything they can to thwart and to get their hands free for an uncontrolled nuclear-missile arms race," Brezhnev said.

He contended "that is apparently the reason why the American side repeatedly made attempts during the talks to amend in its favor or to call into question what was agreed upon earlier."

Vance left Moscow empty-handed after top-level arms limitation talks with Kremlin officials a year ago. Western diplomats here said Brezhnev was setting forth the Soviet position for the next stage of negotiations in advance of the secretary of state's second visit.

Brezhnev claimed "forces east and west of our frontiers" are trying to thwart any SALT agreement by sowing doubts about whether it is possible to practically limit the numbers of U.S. and Soviet arms.

He also expressed concern that "some people in the U.S.A." were interpreting the Kremlin's readiness to conclude a SALT agreement "as a chance to secure unilateral advantages for the U.S.A."

He said: "We do not demand that the agreement give us any advantages at the expense of the other side, and we expect the other side to take exactly the same approach. There can be no other solution."

Carter Defers Output Of N-Bomb, Urges Restraint By Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Friday he has decided against immediate production of neutron warheads but reserved the option of deploying them if the Soviets fail to show restraint in their arms programs.

In a terse, 200-word statement ending a week of speculation, Carter also ordered the Pentagon to go ahead with alterations in nuclear artillery and short-range nuclear missiles to adapt them to the neutron warheads if he decides to produce them later.

Carter ordered modernization of some existing tactical nuclear warheads to make them, in the words of a White House official who briefed reporters on the matter, "more efficient." It was left unclear whether this meant warheads with more explosive power.

The neutron bomb is a nuclear weapon designed to inflict battlefield casualties with radiation while limiting blast damage. Although it is sometimes referred to as a bomb, the weapon is designed for use as a warhead for the 81-mile range Lance missile and for howitzer shells that can be fired a distance of 10-12 miles.

Carter was reported earlier this week to have decided tentatively against producing the weapons. Later reports had him variously re-evaluating such a decision and deciding to put off production until later.

But on Friday the president issued a brief statement saying, "I have decided to defer production of weapons with enhanced radiation effects.

"The ultimate decision ... will be made later, and will be influenced by the degree to which the Soviet Union shows restraint in its conventional and nuclear arms programs and force deployments affecting the security of the United States and Western Europe," he said.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is scheduled to visit Moscow in two weeks for discussions primarily aimed at stepping up negotiations on long-range nuclear weapons. Carter had ended a last round of consultation with NATO allies earlier this week, meeting with West German Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher.

Postponing production of the neutron weapons could cause political embarrassment to leaders of West Germany and England who had been encouraged by the United States to support the weapon.

European leaders generally had resisted openly asking for production of the weapon, partly because of opposition to it within their own countries.

However, Joseph Luns, secretary general of NATO, said European allies understand Carter's decision. Following a meeting of NATO ambassadors he said members of the alliance are concerned about Soviet arms expansion but are aware of the important of arms control and disarmament through acts of mutual restraint.

Carter's decision was criticized by congressional supporters and opponents of the

Waldheim Terms Israeli Pullout Plan Inadequate

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim Friday termed "inadequate" an Israeli plan for withdrawal of its forces from southern Lebanon.

In a statement issued by his office, Waldheim said the plan fell short of a Security Council resolution calling for immediate withdrawal of all Israeli forces from Lebanon. Israeli sources said that a reply from Israeli Prime Minister Mehachem Begin had been delivered to Waldheim's office. They did not say what the note said. Waldheim is attending a U.N. conference in London.

Israel informed the United Nations Thursday it will begin a partial withdrawal next week. The first phase of the two-stage withdrawal affects only troops along the eastern half of Israel's front in Lebanon. Israeli said its forces will stay along the western half of the front to the coast.

Reporting on developments in Lebanon, U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said two Norwegian platoons of the U.N. peacekeeping force were fired on in the area of Kaouka near the Litani River. He said the shooting, which broke out shortly after midnight local time Friday, came from north of the Litani River. The river is the northern boundary of the 500-square-mile area Israel occupied when it invaded the area last month. Palestinian guerrillas and leftist Lebanese Moslem militias hold positions north of the river.

The spokesman said there had been "great activity and tension" in the area of the shooting and the U.N. troops were temporarily withdrawn.

The troops reoccupied the position Friday morning, the spokesman said. He added he had no indication that the Norwegians had returned the fire.

U.N. sources in Beirut said one Norwegian soldier was wounded.

The Norwegians are between the Palestinians and right-wing Lebanese militiamen and have come under fire from both sides.

The Christians are allied with Israel to keep the Palestinians from the border area and say they prefer the presence of Israeli troops to that of a U.N. force that could not stand up to the guerrillas.

The Palestinians say they will not let the U.N. troops bother their war against Israel.

The first of the U.N. troops arrived in southern Lebanon March 23. A Swedish warrant officer was killed by a land mine last month, and French troop were caught, but not injured, in a crossfire Wednesday. The incidents involving the Norwegians were the first direct assaults reported against U.N. troops.

The U.N. force in south Lebanon now numbers about 1,800, with 600 Nepalese due to arrive early next week. It had been planned to increase the force to 4,000, but reliable diplomatic sources in Beirut estimate it will take 6,000 troops to police the cease-fre that was called by Israel March 21.

The sources said the rightists had disarmed some Norwegian troops manning positions formerly held by Swedish U.N. troops.

In another development, a United Nations spokesman in New York reported that the Palestine Liberation Organization agreed to return the bodies of five Israeli soldiers killed Wednesday after they entered a PLO zone. The arrangements will be made through the International Red Cross.

Israel had said three were killed in the shooting. The Israeli army said the soldiers were on an unauthorized sightseeing trip when they were fired on.

Panama Clouds Treaty Outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — Panamanian objections to a provision allowing future U.S. intervention to keep the Panama Canal open could shift enough votes to defeat the treaty, Senate leaders on both sides of the issue said Friday.

"It is so close that if the Panamanians don't realize it, they should now know that the least rocking of the boat, any demonstrations in Panama, any hostile act at the United Nations, any expression of disappointment, would seriously imperil the chances of ratification of the second treaty," said Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn.

Baker supported the first treaty, which the Senate passed 68-32 last month. That treaty guarantees the neutrality of the canal once Panama takes control in the year 2000. However, it also contains a provision which would allow U.S. military intervention if Panama were unable to keep its new possession operating.

Assistant Minority Leader Ted Stevens said he would be surprised if the Panamanian protest did not bring some senators into the anti-treaty camp. Stevens, of Alaska, opposes the treaties.

In Panama City, Panama's Foreign Ministry said foreign news media had generated false reports and it denied Panama had decided to oppose Senate changes in the treaty. It said Panama would take no official position until there is a vote on the second of the two pacts on April 18.

"These rumors have been disseminated outside the country by some news agencies to confuse and distort the Panamanian government's firm and clear position on this delicate theme," the Foreign Ministry said in a statement.

It said the "clarification" was issued "because the government maintains the position that the Panamanian people voted for two treaties and not for just one."

Panama had protested the U.S. position on intervention in a letter to United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim. Reports also had circulated here and in Panama City that Gen. Omar Torrijos was prepared to tell President Carter the provision, which Panama believes suggests that the United States would be free to interfere in its internal affairs, was unacceptable.

Government sources in Panama said chief of government Omar Torrijos also told the State Department that the U.S. posture was unacceptable. The note stopped short of saying Panama would refuse to accept the U.S. right to intervention, the sources said.

The Foreign Ministry declaration appeared designed to defuse the controversy.

Senate leaders said they were puzzled by the timing of the protest to the U.N., coming just as the administration's Senate allies appeared to have the two-thirds majority needed to ratify the second pact lined up.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a leader of the anti-treaty forces, said the timing of the protest was "totally illogical" if the Panamanians wanted to keep the treaties. But he said his side would try to exploit it.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, floor leader for the treaties, said his colleagues were discussing some kind of statement clearly spelling out a U.S. rejection of "interventionist" intentions.

The second treaty, which actually turns the canal over to Panama at the end of 1999, comes up for a Senate vote April 18. The opposition needs 34 votes — if all 100 senators are present — to defeat the treaty.

Panama's displeasure with the amendment was already well known, but Torrijos told President Carter in a letter March 22 that he would reserve judgment on its acceptability until after the second treaty was ratified.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., who introduced the intervention amendment, speculated that the Panamanians are "laying the groundwork for a rejection" of the amendment. He said he would not

Yale Senior Hosts Party A La Gatsby

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — In the Great Gatsby tradition of opulent decadence, a Yale University senior is spending $40,000 to host a black tie party tonight reminiscent of a Monte Carlo gambling casino.

"I have always wanted to own a casino, but that costs $20 million. With my casino night, I can have the fun without the cost," said Alex Kwon, the son of a Korean steel magnate, who sent invitations in French to 1,000 guests.

Kwon has had 10,000 fake French 500 franc notes printed to give to guests at the door of the Yale Commons, the university's largest dining hall. He has ordered six blackjack tables and four baccarat tables from New York.

"I think the whole idea is appalling," said Yale University Secretary Henry Chauncey. "It is from the past, and there is no longer any place for it. It is silly and gaudy."

Maldwin Drummond, a freshman who describes his friend Kwon as "quite a bon vivant," disagrees.

"The admissions office has sort of an anti-heritage bias. They have all but killed elitism here," Drummond said.

The guests are divided into two categories: regular people and the VIPs who include deans and administrators, members of the Fence Club, the only private club left at Yale, and Kwon's close friends.

When the VIPs come in, they'll be given 25,000 francs. Others will get 1,000 francs. If anyone wins a million by the end of the party, Kwon will award the winner either a brand new Mercedes or a Cadillac Seville.

Cowboys Shave Times, Improve Scores In Wild Rodeo Action

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

COWBOYS STAYED aboard the hurricane deck of bucking broncs for a same song, second verse round of scarce scoring for their efforts in more wild action in the Friday third edition of the 36th annual ABC Rodeo in Municipal Coliseum.

Hurricanes bucked and pitched with respectable fury and cowboys weren't a bit bashful about bailing off or grabbing leather and looking hard for a handy pickup man at the sound of the bell.

Times were shaved and some scores bested in a last chance try for champion marks to stand up through the final round, which blasts off at 7:30 p.m. today.

More than 4,700 fans were rodeo ready by grand entry time, ready to cheer a winner, moan for a hardluck cowboy and make welcome country and western superstar Jody Miller.

All the pomp and pageantry, chills and spills were on hand as the annual benefit for the building fund of Lubbock Boys Clubs played out. There was the oldtimer clutching his hat to his breast as his horse minced around Old Glory in the grand entry and a tiny nose mashed through the fence as a minute fan contemplated a horse and rider, then strained harder to get chubby fingers a bit closer to a roping calf walking by.

And there was the too-fast try and the missed loop, the anxious effort and resulting no-time for riders.

Bobby Brown of Fort Worth left the chute needing a 68 to take the lead in saddle bronc competition and saw it twinkle up on the Winston scoreboard as he walked back from his crowd-pleasing ride.

A 59 by Daryl Jones of Wilson and a 50 by Bob Kahia of Schulenberg rounded out qualified rides in saddle bronc action.

Scores posted in high-rolling bareback competition were all short of the 75 by Ike Sankey of Rose Hill, Kan., set Thursday.

John Mundorf of Cozad, Neb., won a 70 from the judges followed by Lyle Sankey of Augusta, Kan., with a 68, Raymond Hulin of Kamay with a 64, Bill Steiner of Austin with 59 and Randy Koehn of Dodge City, Kan., with 49.

Loops flew a little fast as calf ropers romped through the first half of the second go-round. Two wraps and a hooey went on in rapid fire order as cowboys beat calves in shorter times than ever. Willard Moody of Wynnewood, Okla., roped and wrapped his calf in 8.9 seconds to top the roping field.

Other low times were a 9.3 by Wade Lewis of Hereford, a 9.5 by Ray Thompson of Tulia, a 9.9 by Tim Tierney of Lubbock and a 10.3 by Monte Cluck of Gruver.

The jackrabbit roundup brought the crowd roaring to its feet to scream encouragement, then shriek with laughter as jackrabbits and men slipped, slid, fell and hopped in a zigzagging course in the arena which put KLBK's team in the winning circle.

Fastest man on the jackrabbit field of play was Joe Ince, president of the rodeo-sponsoring American Business Club, as he managed some excellent broken field running to keep jackrabbits in and not out of the arena.

Winners in the first three roundups will scramble for rabbits tonight for the prize of a $500 donation to Lubbock Boys Club in the organization's name.

Bulldogging hit some low times, with George Devore of Mesquite pegging his in 3.3 seconds, followed by Leonard Huff of Clayton, N.M., with 4.2, Lawson Essex of Miami, Okla., with 4.3 and Stan Williamson of Kellyville, Okla., with 4.4.

Bucking bulls took back their reputation by allowing only three scores for the night — 69 for Don Gay of Mesquite and a pair of 62s for Butch Kirby of Alba and Mike Bandy of Adkins. A bull decided to call it a day while competing with champion bullrider Lyle Sankey, allowing a reride call from the judges.

Carol Goostree of Verden, Okla., rounded the cloverleaf for the lowest lapse of time in the barrel racing. A three-way tie with 14.5 for Kimbra Dorsett of Childress, Thay Lewis of Big Spring and Kay Garrison of Marlow, Okla., rounded out the top scores.

Panamanian Protest Burns Carter Effigy

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — About 300 Panamanian youths staged a noisy protest against the Panama Canal treaties Friday and burned an effigy of President Carter as national guardsmen watched.

The guardsmen escorted a 12-car caravan through the streets of Panama City to a downtown park where the youths hanged the effigy and then burned it. No move was made by the guardsmen to interfere with the rally.

Protest leaders told the crowd the two treaties should be rejected by the people of Panama even if the U.S. Senate makes no more changes in the pacts.

Chanting students leaving the park carried hugh banners with anti-treaty slogans.

"Panamanians, organize and fight against the treaties," one banner proclaimed.

Drug Ends Misery Of Ailing Elephant

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Zooella the elephant, paid a midnight visit by her heartbroken handler as she she lay on her side slowly dying, was put to death Friday to end her misery.

The ailing three-ton star of the John Ball Park Zoo was given an overdose of anesthetics after veterinarians determined she would never again rise to her feet.

"She was in a great deal of pain," a zoo spokeswoman said. "She was going out herself ... really fading. She got to the point where she could not lift her trunk."

Zooella had not been herself since January when her handler of 13 years, Harry Maxim, was forced to quit because of a rare blood disease. Maxim paid one last visit to his friend late Thursday.

"I got there last night at 11:30 and stayed an hour," Maxim said. "I didn't think she was going to make it through to morning. She didn't have any movement in her body other than in her truck and eyes."

Zoologist Mary Roth said Zooella may have developed a brain tumor or some type of blood clot or infection in the brain caused by her habit of bashing her head against the wall of her cage.

"An animal that big going at 20 miles an hour makes quite an impact," Ms. Roth said.

Maxim considered Zooella a member of his family, coming "right after the children."

"I'm gonna miss all the playing times we had with her," he said. "I guess I got a lot of memories. That's one good thing.

"She was a lot closer to me than any dog I ever had. I was attached to her. I always had that warm feeling just seeing her."

A substitute handler narrowly escaped injury in February when the middle-aged pachyderm butted and then tried to charge him. A helper prevented Zooella from turning killer by pulling her away with an elephant hook.

On Tuesday she suddenly plopped onto her right side, and her muscles quickly started deteriorating.

After her death, a crane unceremoniously dumped Zooella's carcass onto a truck for a drive to Michigan State University where an autopsy will be performed by the head of the Pathology Department.

Zoo officials said they agonized over their decision but decided there was no way to save the elephant.

"It was an awful thing," said veterinarian William Ball, Jr.

ARCO Official Says More Oil Available

DENVER (UPI) — The petroleum industry could triple domestic supplies of oil if given adequate financial incentives to develop the necessary technology, according to James Henry of Atlantic Richfield Co. of Dallas.

In an address Monday to the American Petroleum Institute, Henry said an estimated 68 percent of the nation's oil reserves remain unrecovered because of the expensive technology required for "tertiary recovery."

"We leave unrecovered an estimated 304 billion barrels. These barrels will be neither easy nor inexpensive to recover, but some portion can be recovered for a price less than that required to develop other fuels," he said.

After primary and secondary recovery processes have been applied, the oil remains trapped in rock, Henry said

Oil fields in West Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and the Rocky Mountains are prime territory to try new methods because production peaked several years ago and tests indicate another 25-35 percent of the total reserve could be recovered, said Henry.

"Industry needs an oil price policy for tertiary oil projects which either provides enough profit on the successful projects to offset the losses or some protection from large losses on the failures," he said.

Soldier Named In Two Murders

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A Fort Benning soldier was indicted Friday on charges of murder and criminal attempt to commit theft by extortion in the slaying of a black woman who had been threatened in letters signed by the "Chairman of the Forces of Evil."

A Muscogee County grand jury handed down the indictments against Spec. 4 William Henry Hance, 26, of Lexington, Va., in the beating death of Brenda Gail Faison, whose body was found near the military base March 30.

Police said she had been dead several weeks when she was found.

District Attorney William Smith said Hance was being held without bond in the county jail pending an arraignment which probably would be held April 14.

Hance, who is black, was arrested by military authorities and turned over Thursday to Columbus police.

Mrs. Faison, 21, also known as Gail Jackson, was one of two women mentioned in the "Forces of Evil" letters, which threatened to kill a "black woman every 30 days" unless police solved the stranglings of six elderly white women in Columbus.

The letters to police and a Columbus newspaper began arriving in early March, police said. The latest came March 27.

The body of a second black woman, Irene Thirkield, 32, whom police believe was the "Irene" named in the letters, was found at Fort Benning on Monday. She also had been beaten, police said.

Anonymous tips led authorities to both bodies.

Fort Benning's staff judge advocate, Col. Robert Poydasheff, said Thursday that an investigation was continuing into the Thirkield death, which is being handled by federal officials because it happened on a military base.

The federal investigation also includes the death of a white woman, Pvt. Karen E. Hickman, 26, of Omaha, Neb., Fort Benning authorities said. Her body was found last September on the base.

Police said one of the letters demanded money, and the FBI in Atlanta said Thursday it was looking into a possible violation of federal extortion laws. No amount was disclosed, and the FBI said no money was paid.

Columbus authorities have said they believe there is no connection other than the letters between the "Forces of Evil" slayings and the strangulations, which have occurred since September 1977.

The investigation has shed no light on "the motive behind linking the Fort Benning killings with the strangulations," one detective said after Hance was questioned Thursday.

Celebrities Pushing Immunization Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Star Wars" characters R2-D2 and C3P0 and Captain Kangaroo are joining forces with the federal government to publicize a child immunization program.

Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, says outbreaks of mumps and measles have dropped 65 percent in the last six months. But, he said, a bigger push is needed to immunize poor and preschool youngsters against the seven major preventable childhood diseases.

Part of that effort will include television, newspaper and magazine ads featuring the slapstick, mechanical "Droids" from the hit science fiction movie.

WEST POINT BOUND — Lewis Guy Morrison, a senior at Lorenzo High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Morrison of Lorenzo, has been appointed to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., following a nomination by Congressman Omar Burleson of the 17th Congressional District. Morrison is expected to graduate with honors in May from Lorenzo High School. He has served as class president three years, serves on the school yearbook and newspaper staffs and also is active in varsity athletics.

Rains To Bring Cooling Trend

Despite a 30 percent chance of precipitation today and a 20 percent chance tonight, rains are not expected to slow down the winds which should return from the southwest today at 15 to 25 mph, kicking up dust.

Late Friday the National Weather Service issued a severe thunderstorm warning for Cochran, Hockley and Lamb counties after a severe thunderstorm developed over eastern Cochran County. The storm appeared to be moving northeast at about 25 miles an hour.

Wind warnings for area lakes are predicted to persist under partly cloudy skies today as temperatures climb into the middle 80s during the afternoon and drop into the middle 40s tonight.

A cooling trend expected to accompany scattered thundershowers should keep temperatures in the lower 70s Sunday.

However, by midweek a warming trend should pull temperatures back into the high 70s and lower 80s with overnight lows in the 40s and 50s.

Friday, before thundershowers began rolling over the Panhandle and southern portions of the state, the mercury in Lubbock soared to 90.

By late afternoon thunderclouds over the Pecos area had produced a funnel five miles southeast of Pecos, moving north at 15 mph. Tornado warnings were posted for Reeves, western Ward, and Loving counties.

ACE IN THE HOLE — Veteran firefighter Lee Denny of station 9, 4814 50th St., checks out the water main Friday as firemen battled a $200,000 blaze at the Village Inn motel at 4925 Brownfield Road. The fire apparently started in a storage shed behind the motel and may have been touched off by cigarettes left behind by children. The fire was controlled in 38 minutes, but personnel remained on the scene until 11:30 a.m., more than 3½ hours after the fire broke out. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)

FIRE'S ORIGIN — An unidentified Lubbock fireman hoses down stacks of carpet behind the Village Inn motel, 4925 Brownfield Road, where an apparent storage shed blaze began Friday, then spread to the motel (background). High voltage wires above the south wing of the motel also contributed to the problems at the scene. Guests Routed, Losses High In City Motel Fire

By JACK DOUGLAS

A towering blaze caused almost a quarter of a million dollars damage to the Village Inn on Brownfield Highway early Friday, sending scores of guests fleeing their rooms amid billowing smoke, warning cries from policemen and a chain of explosions.

However, there were no injuries from the 7:45 a.m. two-alarm fire, thought to have been caused by youngsters smoking in a shed behind the motel.

Tom Butcher, part-owner and general manager of the motel at 4925 Brownfield Highway, estimated the damage to the 32 occupied rooms in the south wing would amount to about $200,000.

Twenty-three firemen manning four fire engines, a snorkel truck, a ladder truck and two booster units had the blaze officially under control at 8:22 a.m. Mopping up operations continued until 11:25 a.m.

Police were quick on the scene, since two officers were in the motel's coffee shop and another was at the intersection of Brownfield Highway and 4th Street when the billowing smoke was spotted.

"I saw smoke coming from the roof of the complex as I turned the corner of the restaurant, and saw two large explosions and one small one," said policeman Claude Jones, who was drinking coffee with officer Carl Trusler when they noticed the smoke.

Jones said he saw what he thought was a chain of explosions throwing gravel off the complex's roof. But Assistant Fire Marshal Robert Stokes said the explosions were actually the popping of two overhead, high-voltage electrical wires that had fallen after being burned.

Stokes said it appears the blaze started in a shed located in the back of the motel. He theorized that someone was smoking in the small structure and accidentally ignited rolls of stored carpet.

While no one was seen there this morning, Stokes said nearby construction workers had watched kids go into the shed and smoke cigarettes in the past.

Soaring flames from the large pile of burning carpet subsequently caught the motel's roof on fire. The flames melted the electrical wires, causing them to fall.

Firefighters contained most of the blaze to the roof, with rooms getting only minor fire damage. However, Butcher said the units suffered water and smoke damage. He said some of the explosions guests heard were overheated water pipes blowing up.

"The only reason no one was hurt was that we had so many police here," said officer Tom Martin, who was patroling down Brownfield Highway when he noticed the smoke.

Martin said flames were soaring 100 feet when "we started kicking doors in and getting people out of there....a lot of them were pretty embarrassed because they didn't have any clothes on.

Butcher said between 75 and 80 people were staying in the 32 rooms affected by the fire.

"The smoke woke me up, then there was this explosion coming from the bathroom area," said Charles Winburne of San Angelo, who was staying in Room 220.

Houstonian Paul Harbison, in town to look over Texas Tech University for next school year, said, "I was just sleeping and then there was this explosion and I heard someone yelling, 'Get the hell out'."

Harbison said that after he heard the first explosion he saw smoke billowing out of the air conditioner vent.

Wilburne said that when he first woke up "my first thought was that someone had some bombs." Harbison, who was next door to Wilburne in Room 221, said the explosion "sounded like a hand grenade going off."

Mr. and Mrs. Claudie West of Borger were staying at the motel while visiting their daughter, Beth, who is a senior at Texas Tech. "We got a real hot reception," said Mrs. West, dressed only in a night robe. "We started the day with a real bang," her husband quipped.

Zyra Nordike Jr., who lives in Room 114, said he was talking to a relative on the phone early this morning when he heard a popping sound and then the electricity went off.

Aiding firemen were members of the department's Explorer Post 502. Explorers Robby Christopher, 15, and Clarence Sharrick.

AN EDITORIAL:

Playing Into Soviet's Hands

IN DELAYING a decision on U.S. production and deployment of the neutron bomb, President Carter has piled another worry on top of numerous others related to his posture on the nation's defense.

Mr. Carter has said he will put off a decision on going ahead with full production of the N-Bomb to give the Russians a chance to respond by cutting down on their own weapons buildup.

In taking the step he has, the President in effect has ignored advice from his own Secretary of State, his Secretary of Defense and his National Security Adviser, all of whom reportedly urged him to go ahead with the weapon.

DURING THE past few days, there were all sorts of reports on which direction the President might go.

Those opposing the bomb—which has become known as a weapon capable of destoying people but not property—have cheered, arguing it is inhumane. Those backing its deployment in Europe have argued it would serve as a deterrent against Russian aggression, particularly Soviet tank forces.

Unfortunately, the public, as is often the case, has been subjected to emotional rhetoric and questionable reports on the whole issue.

As a matter of fact, with the exception of the equally emotional—and equally important defensive importance of the Panama Canal debate—few things have stirred the capital more in recent months.

THE TRUTH of the matter is that, taken with several other decisions on U.S. defense, and questionable U.S. positions in the Mideast and Africa, the decision on the neutron bomb is most disturbing to those who see Moscow's brand of Communism making ever new gains.

We are not alone in this attitude.

In vacillating over his decision, the President acted in what The Wall Street Journal termed a frightening manner.

The paper in an editorial last week said that what was alarming about Mr. Carter's action was that "the President has turned aside his top advisers and bought the arguments of the flaky left."

THOSE ARGUMENTS, it seems, in addition to the aforementioned emotional "people" bomb scarecrow, are that it would invite Russian retaliation and would alter the arms balance.

After noting that the neutron bomb would reduce the area affected in a target area, The WSJ noted:

"Nothing else would change, but a combination of anti-nuclear emotionalism, misleading press reporting and Soviet propaganda has turned the weapon into a cause celebre.

"The salient technical points area as follows: The defense of Europe against the overwhelming Soviet land armies has long been predicated on the use of tactical nuclear weapons; some 7,000 nuclear warheads are already in place..."

IN OTHER WORDS, the neutron bomb would merely replace or enhance nuclear weapons already in place.

Mr. Carter's delayed action in this case comes on top of his killing the B1 bomber, his cutting U.S. Naval forces and his tough talk and weak action against Soviet-Cuban intrusions in Africa, not to mention what many perceive as his leading role in the Panama Canal "giveaway."

In brief, the President is coming off as playing a most dangerous game with the nation's security.

It's no place for politics.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Dive Into The Deep

FRENCH CAPT. Rene de Froberville commands the "Archimedes." It is a plump, bright yellow 60-foot scientific bathysphere carrying a three-man French-American crew.

The "Archimedes," sponsored by France's National Center for Exploration of the Oceans in Paris and the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Woods Hole, Mass., made the most prolonged (three years) great-depths adventure ever undertaken.

Captain Froberville, in common with all oceanographers, does not think the way anyone else thinks. The oceanographers' world is upside down; almost a reverse mirror image of ours. They look down at mountains and rivers.

The "Archimedes" was accompanied by the French Navy tender "Marcel le Bihan" and, 200 miles south of the Azors, made seven amazing plunges.

The oceans average 12,000 feet deep and the sea pressure increases 15 pounds per square inch for every 30 feet. Each plunge was about 9,000 feet.

A ROBOT ARM gathered in 210 pounds of volcanic rock. The depths hobble light quickly and, although the "Archimedes" had powerful 12,000-watt headlamps, the visibility was often only 12 feet.

Captain Froberville and his crew, concentrating every second, faced vicious currents that threatened to smash their bathysphere against the volcanic peaks.

But they examined at first hand the forces that are reshaping the earth's crust.

They saw few fish. There is always life in the sea and monocellular animals usually abound. The only true fish they saw were the type called nematonurus armatus—grayish, narrow-tailed 26-pound probers undoubtedly predating the ghostly dinosaur period.

The robot caught one and Captain Frobervile delivered it to Paris for scientific study.

THE OCEANS are mysteries within mysteries. Most of the world is unknown ocean bottom. We know, literally, less about the underwater world than the surface of the moon.

Yet oceans cover nearly three-quarters of the earth's surface. The Pacific alone, with its 70 million square miles, extends from pole to pole—a water hemisphere larger than all earth's land masses combined.

The North Atlantic is the world's most predictable ocean, but the Indian Ocean is about 80 percent predictable.

Basically, oceans consist of three layers; surface, intermediate and deep-bottom waters. The surface or upper layer is heated by the sun and churned by the winds.

The intermediate is between this and the bottom water. The three layers never mix. But, due to North and South Poles glacial meltings, you find a rise worldwide in seas levels.

A RIFT (oceanographers call it "the world's navel") bisects all oceans—a system of weird mountains twists into all oceans for at least 47,000 miles. This is nearly twice the distance around the earth.

Its volcanic peaks dwarf the Andes Mountains, the earth's longest and greatest chain, and many peaks hurl upward at a 60-degree angle while fresh volcanic lava juts from the seabed.

The trenches, in turn, some deep enough to bury Mt. Everest, average 30,000 miles long and many miles deep.

At or near some surfaces the currents are another mystery. Oceanographers find an astounding number of new ones all the time—as if a new Mississippi were added to the earth's rivers.

THE BRITISH Isles survive because of the Gulf Stream. It comes out of the Gulf of Mexico on the way across the Atlantic, passing the West Indies.

Caribbean storms toss coconuts into the sea. As a result, you find palm trees growing along the coast of Ireland and Scotland.

But the Gulf Steam is only one of at least eight warm, vast ocean rivers: the Agulhas, Benguella, Cromwell, Humbolt (perhaps the world's most abundant source of marine life), Kuroshio—which allows Japan to survive—Labrador, Oyashio and Somali.

Some drift almost imperceptibly; others advance in a great underwater rush.

Ichthylologists, studying marine life, ask why the great Atlantic marlin always travel east to west against the currents and where they go after reaching Cuba's west end.

In the last stage of the marlin's life it becomes female and some Jew fish do the same thing.

Oceanographers and ichthyologists have the lion's share of the mysteries.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Retreat From Reality

EVANS

WASHINGTON—President Carter's unseemly effort to escape political blame for arming NATO with the neutron "bomb" has generated popular resistance to a vital military modernization program, building "a debate of enormous ignorance" within the alliance that is kept alive by Soviet propaganda.

President Carter at this writing was considering whether to announce the start of production of the neutron, a nuclear warhead for short-range tactical missiles which kills with enhanced radiation rather than fire and blast.

Nevertheless, the agonizing indecision that has marked the administration's handling of the neutron is a signal example of superpower leadership succumbing to pedestrian politics.

This retreat from reality is costly, considering the overwhelming consensus of military experts and knowledgeable officials in the State and Defense Departments:

The neutron bomb would vastly reduce the threat to Western Europe of blitzkrieg-style tank attack by the Warsaw Pact on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

ADMITTEDLY MANY Western politicians refuse to accept even the remote possibility of Soviet leaders ever authorizing an attack.

But such wishful thinking flies in the face of the conventional military imbalance in Central Europe.

Gen. Alexander Haig, NATO supreme commander, on March 21, described as "grievous" the superiority of Warsaw Pack tank forces alone.

Existing nuclear warheads on the 60-mile Lance missile, if delivered against a Communist tank attack, would spread terrible destruction and death to civilians through blast effect and fire.

In contrast, the neutron warhead is designed to kill tank crews through radiation, thereby menacing the heart of Soviet military strategy in Central Europe: the massed tank attack.

In popular debate, it has been transmogrified into a weapon that kills people but spares property—distorted but effective political propaganda.

By truly inhibiting the Soviets, the neutron warhead could make nuclear war on the continent less likely.

Since it deters the massed tank attack, Western nuclear response becomes less likely.

WHY, THEN, DID President Carter not order an immediate start of production when Congress approved funds for the neutron bomb?

The reason: he buckled to pressure.

Fearing a political reaction, the President overruled military and some civilian advisers (including the State Department's bureau of political-military affairs).

Instead, he quietly invited West Germany and other NATO allies to take the first step and formally "ask" for the neutron. From that safe perch, the President would then give his approval.

That forced on West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt a decision more painful than the one Carter sidestepped.

Although Schmidt could easily get his parliament to approve the neutron, he would endanger his own power because of opposition within his Social Democratic party in the absence of a strong U.S. lead.

AS THE CARTER administration continued to procrastinate and seek some easy way out, other socialist governments in Western Europe (particularly the Dutch) wavered under political pressure.

"The controversy suddenly started to build and a debate of enormous ignorance broke out all over Europe," one Western European diplomat told us.

Enter Moscow. Sensing disorder in NATO, the Soviet Union unleashed a typical campaign against the "inhuman" neutron bomb.

Demonstrations in Western Europe were promoted amid Soviet demands that the U.S. renounce the weapon.

The passion of the Soviet campaign derived not only from the attempt to exploit dissension within NATO, but the desire to safeguard Soviet strategy.

If confronted by neutron warheads, the Kremlin would have to devise a new battle plan for its still growing force of 20,000 tanks in Central Europe to carry out any attack against the West.

THE PECULIAR military value of the neutron warhead is that it has no obvious offensive role to play, only a defensive role which for NATO would correct the dangerous imbalance in conventional forces.

NATO's only role is defensive; the Warsaw Pact's only role, except for policing Moscow's European empire, is offensive. Thus the emotional political debate within NATO against the neutron is irrational.

That debate has become so heated in West Germany that its officials have been "verboten" to use the word "neutron."

In deciding finally to order production of this defensive weapon, Carter will undoubtedly come under harsh attack.

Ironically, it will be harsher than if he had grasped the issue firmly last summer instead of passing the buck to the Europeans.

The exasperated wife was describing her overweight husband: "George? Seven days a week he's a lawyer. Twenty-one times a week he's a fork-lift operator."

AN EDITORIAL:

Brown's The Man Who Can

REAGAN V. BROWN has earned a term of his own as commissioner of the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Brown took over the reins of the TDA so smoothly when longtime Commissioner John C. White left to become the Number 2 man in the U.S. Department of Agriculture that it caused hardly a ripple in the operations of this important area of state government.

A strong believer in the American free enterprise system, Brown puts great emphasis on strengthening and expanding the markets for Texas' food and fiber production.

TEXAS' POTENTIAL as the nation's leading agricultural state makes it imperative that the Commissioner of Agriculture be an informed and articulate spokesman on farm issues not only at home but in Washington and throughout the country.

As a public speaker, able to articulate issues and solutions understandably, Brown has few peers. As special assistant to Gov. Dolph Briscoe from 1974 to 1977, the 56-year-old sociologist spoke to more than 400 audiences throughout the state.

Before joining the governor's staff, Brown had been with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service since 1948, serving as extension sociologist in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology at Texas A&M University since 1956.

Challenges facing Texas agriculture and, thus, the entire economy and population of the state, in the years immediately ahead are enormous.

Texas needs a man as Commissioner of Agriculture who can understand and articulate the challenges and, more importantly, translate proposed solutions into action.

On the basis of his record to date, Commissioner Brown is such a man and deserves a full four-year term to further demonstrate what he can do.

ANDREW TULLY:

He's Our 'Leader'

WASHINGTON—It figured. On the day still another cost of living increase was announced, Jimmy Carter was in Venezuela urging handouts for the Third World. The next day, when U.S. Steel raised prices by $10.50 a ton, Carter was in Brazil saying how about some human rights down here.

We don't have a President. We've got an evangelist. It wasn't until a couple of weeks ago that the White House surrendered to reality and acknowledged that inflation was the nation's most pressing problem.

That has been true ever since Carter took office, promising love, leadership, and rejection of politics as usual. Well, the man may love us all, but off his record he couldn't lead a boy scout hot dog eating contest.

AND HE HAS been deterred from taking strong action against inflation by warnings from 33-year-old Hamilton Jordan—whose knowledge of economics would fill a teaspoon—that a get-tough position would be politically unpopular.

In short, in the tradition of ward heelers everywhere, Jimmy Carter has been preoccupied with the political urgency of not making anybody sore. He has been too busy posting "No Smoking" signs and worrying about the location of toilets in assorted factories to work at the job of being President.

Last week, the Council on Wage and Price Stability began consultations with key industries aimed at slowing wage and price increases. Carter's timidity was never more shockingly revealed than in a statement by a Council spokesman.

"THESE ARE NOT jawboning sessions," he said. "We're not asking anybody to do anything. We don't want to scare anybody."

"Scare anybody?" Everybody from Jimmy Carter down (or up?) should be scared to death. Never mind arguing about who the villains are.

Both Big Business and Big Labor, if still in their right minds, have to be fearful about what galloping inflation is doing to their empires. Neither can afford to do business if inflation goes unchecked.

Carter has seemed to believe that if he didn't notice inflation it would go away. His key economic advisers have met only infrequently and mostly they have talked about needing more time to come up with a program.

MEANWHILE, CARTER played cheerleader when Congress increased Social Security taxes and raised the minimum wage. Both add directly to the price of everything sold.

Experts in and out of the administration say the two pieces of legislation would add 1.25 percentage points to the inflation rate this year and 3 percentage points in 1979.

So it is not quite accurate to say Carter has no economic program. He has. It's called something for everybody, and kindly forget his campaign attacks on Big Brother government and his pledge to adopt zero-based budgeting.

On the inflation front, Jimmy Carter has been saving his umbrella for a rainy day. Looking out his window, the working stiff could tell him it's been pouring for more than two years. Carter can't see the rain in his own backyard because his eyes are trained on the vision of an overseas world drunk on the milk of human kindness.

M. STANTON EVANS:

It's No Small Wonder Republicans Can't Win

WASHINGTON—If you have ever wondered why the Republican Party is in such feeble shape politically, consider its performance in the debate about the Panama Canal.

While there is some disagreement about the degree of unpopularity of the Panama treaties, most observers concur in noting that public opposition has been high.

The Harris survey last October showed a national majority of 51 to 28 percent against, while Gallup in December recorded a negative margin of 39 to 23 percent.

And of course the mail to senatorial offices has been running even more heavily against, up to 90 percent opposed in many instances.

FROM A POLITICAL standpoint, therefore, the treaties presented the GOP with an unusual opportunity. For once, a Democratic President had locked himself into a position that was unpopular with the voters, and was committed to riding it out, whatever the political results.

This provided the Republicans with a chance to deploy themselves against the President and with the public on a major issue that was readily comprehensible to the average voter.

Instead of doing this, however, the Republican leadership in the Senate turned and marched off in the opposite direction.

Senate minority leader Howard Baker of Tennessee not only supported the treaties, but in the case of the neutrality treaty obviously supplied the margin of support required to ease it through to ratification.

Without him, it is fair to say, the neutrality treaty would not have made it. As the Washington Post observes:

"HAD BAKER DECIDED to oppose the treaty—and he had countless good reasons to do so—there seems no real chance that it would have won two-thirds approval in the Senate.

"As the Senate minority leader, Baker's support gave the proponents the banner of bipartisanship to dignify their case.

"More immediately, Baker's own vote and the handful he certainly swayed would have provided the margin of defeat, had they gone the other way.

"But Baker lined up with the President, the Senate establishment, and the liberal-to-moderate Washington mainstream."

Speculation as to why the minority leader adopted this position is rife, with considerable debate as to whether he has helped or hurt his presidential prospects by doing so.

SOME FEEL HE has irrevocably offended conservatives in his party and the nation, and cannot hope to get the Republican nomination in 1980.

The Post suggests, on the other hand, that he has picked up brownie points by refusing to accept "the diktat of the far right."

Whatever the impact on Baker's personal chances, there remains the impact of his performance on the Republican party.

Because of his position, a Republican minority that had a chance to align itself with popular opinion against a Democratic President has failed to do so.

Considering the number of times that the GOP has found itself backed into a corner with the unpopular side of the debate on public issues, the renunciation of such an opportunity is no small matter.

ONE OBVIOUS result has been to give to President Carter a major victory on an issue where his political prestige was deeply committed and a defeat could have been severely damaging.

Since its own selected leadership in the Senate went along with Carter, the party as such can't use the treaties against the President in future political debate.

All in all, the Panama squabble leaves the Republicans high and dry—missing an opportunity to take the popular side, converting a potential defeat for Carter into victory, and defaulting a potential issue for 1980. No wonder the GOP keeps losing.

OCCASIONALLY YOU hear a sportscaster describe an exciting game as "a real barnburner." The phrase has been around for awhile.

In the 1800s, a New York editor wrote that a certain group of Democrats were so zealous, they'd burn down the barn to get rid of the rats.

Those Democrats thereafter called themselves the Barnburners and took some pride in the fact that their political get-togethers were almost riotous.

NATO Allies View Neutron Bomb Decision

BRUSSELS, belgium (AP) — Joseph Luns, secretary-general of NATO, said Friday that the allies understand President Carter's postponement of a decision on production of the neutron bomb but they remain concerned about a Communist military buildup in central Europe.

The NATO ambassadors were informed of the decision at a two-hour meeting in Brussels by U.S. Ambassador W. Tapley Bennett. Luns said the ambassadors stressed the need to improve NATO's ability to match the Soviet buildup.

Luns said he could not speak officially for the 14 NATO ambassadors, since they had not consulted their governments, but he told them what he would say to the press and they did not object.

Reaction from individual nations ranged from support to tolerance.

In his 200 word statement Friday, Carter said the United States reserves the right to develop and deploy the weapon if the Soviet Union doesn't show restraint in its own arms development program.

The bomb is designed to kill troops with heavy doses of radiation while doing minimal damage to buildings outside the immediate blast area. It would replace about 7,000 nuclear warheads deployed now in Europe.

The bomb is actually a warhead that can be used on the 81-mile-range Lance missile and for howitzer shells with a range of from 10-12 miles.

Proponents say it is needed to offset Communist military superiority in Central Europe.

Opponents claim, among other things, that the bomb might make nuclear war more possible, since it wouldn't have the devastating effects of existing nuclear weapons.

Britain said it supported Carter's decision and that the Soviet Union should respond by cutting back it's armory.

The British said Carter's decision involved "a difficult judgment on political and military issues" and "rightly sets this matter in the context of arms control and the balance of forces on both sides."

West Germany, probably the strongest supporter of the bomb, cautioned that the West must keep its "technical options." The careful statement took no firm position.

It welcomed Carter's decision not to rule out development of the bomb and said Western weapons technology should be "used optimally in evening out existing disparities" between NATO and the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact.

Franz-Josef Strauss, conservative leader of the opposition Christian Social Union, however, said Carter had "...cringed before a Russian czar."

The Dutch, on record as opposing the bomb, said the decision "is in harmony with (Dutch) desire to possibly prevent deployment of the weapon by bringing it into the process of arms control." The communique stressed its previous position that the decision to produce the bomb is "the exclusive responsibility of the U.S. government."

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported the decision without comment.

Official French sources used the decision to underline French policy for its independent nuclear force.

In French eyes the decision tends to back up the French doctrine that France needs an independent nuclear policy because Washington ultimately will make key nuclear decisions based on American, and not European, interests.

LOTTERY WIN DISPUTED

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Australian hotel director Cheskel Gerszt, who won just over $1 million in a national lottery last month, has gone to Switzerland, leaving others to argue over ownership of the money. The Beverley Crest International Hotel where he was director is claiming in court that it paid for the ticket.

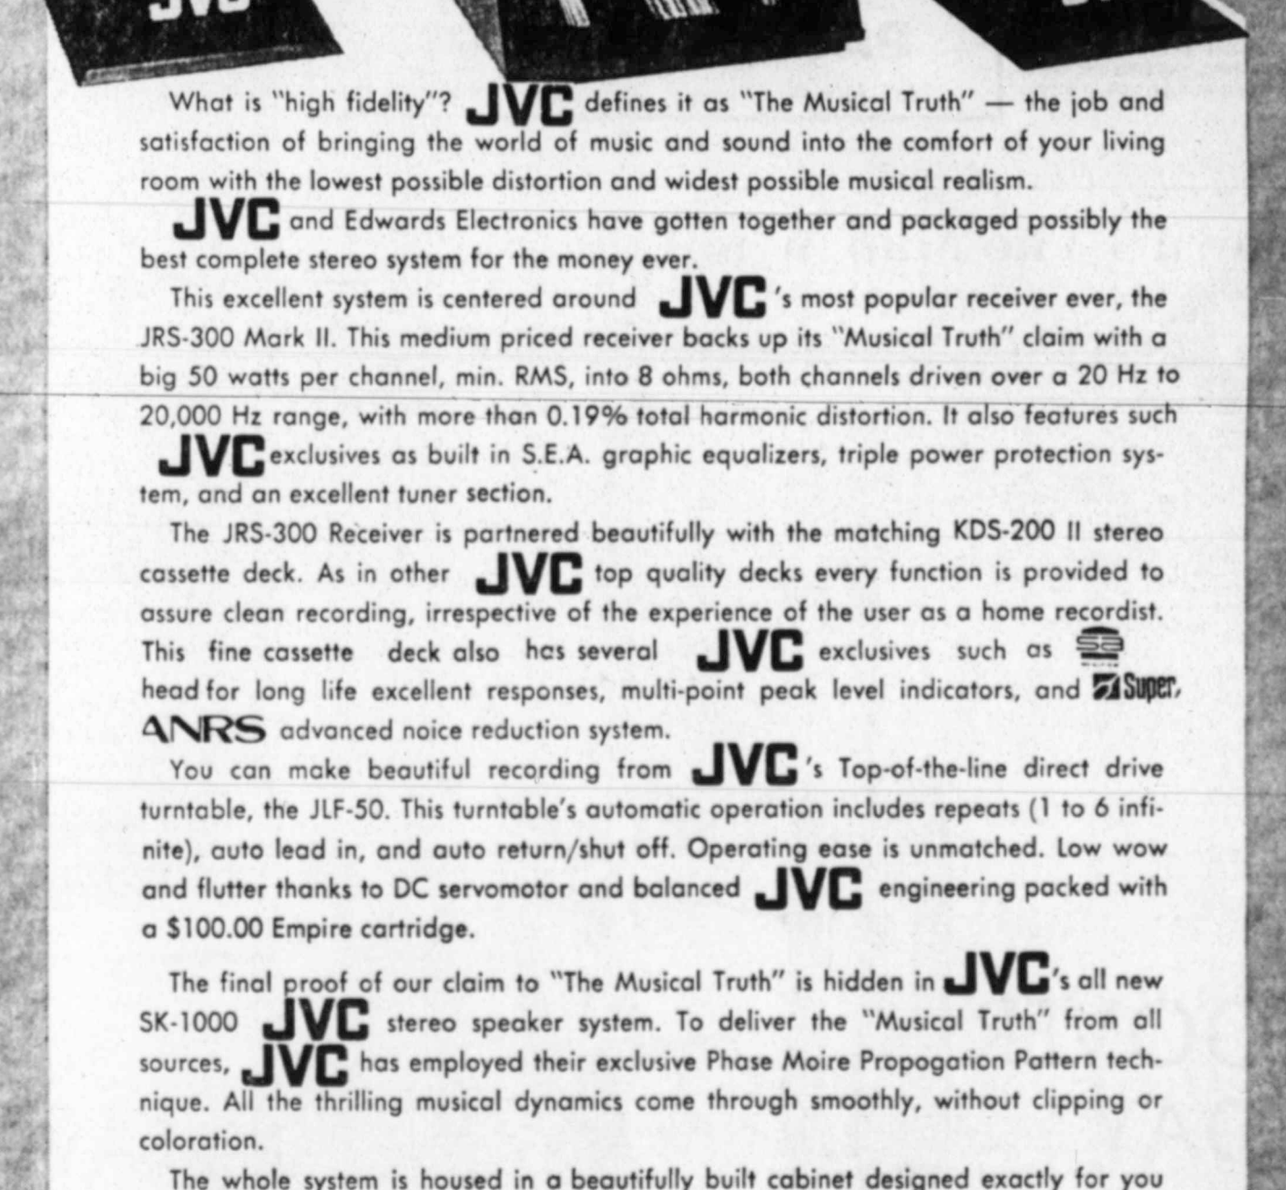
The Musical Truth

Save $470.65



Save 470.65

What is "high fidelity"? JVC defines it as "The Musical Truth" — the job and satisfaction of bringing the world of music and sound into the comfort of your living room with the lowest possible distortion and widest possible musical realism.

JVC and Edwards Electronics have gotten together and packaged possibly the best complete stereo system for the money ever.

This excellent system is centered around JVC's most popular receiver ever, the JRS-300 Mark II. This medium priced receiver backs up its "Musical Truth" claim with a big 50 watts per channel, min. RMS, into 8 ohms, both channels driven over a 20 Hz to 20,000 Hz range, with more than 0.19% total harmonic distortion. It also features such JVC exclusives as built in S.E.A. graphic equalizers, triple power protection system, and an excellent tuner section.

The JRS-300 Receiver is partnered beautifully with the matching KDS-200 II stereo cassette deck. As in other JVC top quality decks every function is provided to assure clean recording, irrespective of the experience of the user as a home recordist. This fine cassette deck also has several JVC exclusives such as Super ANRS advanced noice reduction system.

You can make beautiful recording from JVC's Top-of-the-line direct drive turntable, the JLF-50. This turntable's automatic operation includes repeats (1 to 6 infinite), auto lead in, and auto return/shut off. Operating ease is unmatched. Low wow and flutter thanks to DC servomotor and balanced JVC engineering packed with a $100.00 Empire cartridge.

The final proof of our claim to "The Musical Truth" is hidden in JVC's all new SK-1000 JVC stereo speaker system. To deliver the "Musical Truth" from all sources, JVC has employed their exclusive Phase Moire Propogation Pattern technique. All the thrilling musical dynamics come through smoothly, without clipping or coloration.

The whole system is housed in a beautifully built cabinet designed exactly for you and JVC.

Miscalculations Prevent Soviet Woman's Escape

MOSCOW (AP) — A Russian woman desperate to join her defector husband in Sweden said Friday several miscalculations kept her from succeeding in a daring attempt to escape from the Soviet Union in a small plane.

"Only the groundless cruelty of the Soviet authorities forced us to take this step," Ludmila Agapova, 39, told Western correspondents here as she related the details of her planned flight to freedom.

She vowed to keep trying to leave the country.

Mrs. Agapova said she, her teen-aged daughter and elderly mother-in-law have been been repeatedly denied permission to go to her husband, Valentin, a Soviet merchant sailor who defected to the West in 1974.

To dramatize her plight, Mrs. Agapova has met with the press, issued public appeals and once stabbed herself at the Soviet passport office.

The situation became even more serious, the woman said, when she heard that a Soviet official interviewed in Sweden last summer said defectors from the U.S.S.R. would never see their wives and families again.

"I realized that the only way to rejoin my lawful husband was to escape from the Soviet Union," she said at the news conference.

Mrs. Agapova said she arranged for a single-engine Swedish plane to pick up her family near a lake 15 miles from the Soviet-Finnish border near the town of Priozersk, about 87 miles north of Leningrad.

Careful planning was necessary in order to reach the rendezvous site from Moscow without arousing the suspicion of Russian border troops. Soviet citizens must have special passes to travel near the fontier.

The three women spent several cold, wet winter nights in an open shelter near the lake waiting for the plane to rescue them, Mrs. Agapova said. A border patrol unit stopped them once for questioning, but they were able to persuade the soldiers to let them remain.

On March 11, March 12 and March 19, the family waited at the site but the plane did not appear, the woman said. On the fourth date, April 1, the aircraft came too early before the trio had arrived.

Even if the timing had been correct on the final try, the woman noted, she could not have boarded the plane because warmer weather was melting the ice of the lake where the plane was to have picked them up.

"I'm not the Messiah, so I can't walk on water," she said.

The plane returned to the Finnish side of the border. Finland police confirmed Friday that the Swedish pilot and an accomplice were arrested after it made the fourth unauthorized flight into Soviet territory.

The Finnish Foreign Ministry issued a statement saying it "apologized for the incident to the Soviet Embassy."

Mrs. Agopova says she has lost several jobs since her husband defected to Sweden and she applied to join him there. Until 1975, she worked as a mechanical engineer specializing in noise insulation for machinery and just two months ago, she was fired as a lavatory cleaner.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Agopova said, the Soviet KGB came to her home and warned that she could be prosecuted for "parasitism," or living off the state. But she said the agent did not mention the escape attempt.

Carter Faces Battle Over Farm Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and the Democratic leadership are preparing for a battle against most Republicans, some farm-belt Democrats and supporters of the American Agriculture protest group over a controversial farm bill.

Strategists on both sides held breakfast meetings Thursday and then fanned out to lobby congressmen. Carter has said he will veto the bill if it passes. But he hopes the House or Senate will kill it and spare him the task.

The main feature of the bill could idle 59 million acres of wheat, feed grain and cotton land. The Congressional Budget Office says the bill would add 1.1 percent to 1.5 percent to food prices this year. That would be over and above "normal" inflation, currently projected to raise food prices 6 percent to 8 percent.

Court Denies Retrial In Hawkins Murder Case

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Dist. Judge Richard N. Countiss Friday denied a new trial bid by Samuel Christopher Hawkins III, who was assessed the death penalty by a jury here last month for the slaying of a pregnant Borger housewife.

The case will now be appealed to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Countiss actually denied two motions for a new trial during Friday's hearing in 99th District Court — one by court-appointed defense attorneys Gene Storrs and Russell Busby and the other filed by Hawkins personally.

Storrs' motion mentioned two main points.

The attorney argued first that a new trial should be granted because of the introduction during the capital murder trial of 35 color photographs of the six-months-pregnant victim and the blood-stained bedroom where she was found.

Victim Abbe Rodgers Hamilton, 19, was found inside her home May 3, 1977. Her hands and feet had been bound and she was stabbed numerous times.

Hawkins, 34, of Amarillo, was assessed the death penalty by jurors March 17 after the panel had found him guilty of capital murder. The case was moved here from Hutchinson County on a change of venue.

The defense contends the pictures were of no evidentiary value and served only to inflame the jury.

Defense attorneys also say remarks by Hutchinson County Asst. Dist. Atty. Linda Walden during punishment arguments amount to reversible error.

The new trial motion claims Miss Walden wrongfully referred in her argument before the jury to the defendant's failure to testify.

According to the motion, the prosecutor said at one point: "You have been able to observe him during this trial. Have you seen any showing of remorse? Have you seen him — a showing of any type of reform or I'm sorry I did this?"

The defense at that point had objected and moved for a mistrial. Countiss sustained the objection, denied the mistrial and instructed the jury not to consider the comment for any purpose.

Miss Walden then explained that her remarks were limited strictly to the physical action of the defendant and the jury's opportunity to observe his physical demeanor.

Storrs and Busby then renewed their objection and mistrial motion. Countiss again sustained and overruled, respectively, and instructed the prosecutor to move to another area.

Miss Walden Friday said the state did not concede the motion accurately duplicated her remarks. She also argued that the judge had ruled favorably on the defense objections and indicated it was incumbent upon the defense to cite cases or produce evidence that the comments had been harmful.

The bulk of Friday's hearing was devoted to an argument made by Hawkins on behalf of his motion.

The goateed defendant, who had frequent flareups with his lawyers during the trial, said he did not receive a fair trial from beginning to end.

Hawkins said he had asked on the record at least six times to have his attorneys dismissed.

Hawkins said he became "depressed" when the judge would not dismiss the lawyers. As a result, he said, he was able to work with the lawyers "hardly at all."

Among numerous other points, Hawkins argued:

•That a confession introduced into evidence had been given after inducements had been offered him, including an alleged statement by a police officer that the officer thought the courts would be lenient to him because of a mental problem.

•That a writ of attachment had not been issued for a medical expert who reportedly was out of the country.

•That the court gave the jury no instruction on insanity in its charge even though he had entered a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity.

Tower Avoids Choices

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, made it clear Friday he is taking no sides in the Republican primary race for governor.

"My position has been and will continue to be one of complete neutrality," Tower said in a statement. "I have not taken sides in the race, either in public or private, and I will not take sides, either in public or private. I consider both men to be friends of mine."

Tower made the statement after Ray Hutchison, former GOP state chairman, urged him to clarify his position.

Earlier, at a meeting of Texas Associated Press Broadcasters in Galveston, Bill Clements, opposing Hutchison, said Tower had authorized him say Clements would be worth 200,000 votes to Tower in the general election if Clements won the nomination.

Tower said he would support the gubernatorial nominee in November, no matter who it is, and would have no further comment "either in public or in private."

In the Democratic gubernatorial race, Attorney General John Hill said in Odessa that his main opponent, Gov. Dolph Briscoe, has reversed Texas' historic role of standing up for its oil and gas resources.

"The Carter energy program announced 12 months ago was a flagrant attempt to expand price and allocation control over our Texas oil and gas industry, and that slap has yet to be properly answered by our governor," Hill said.

Briscoe said in Fort Worth Friday that pornography was a blight on society and it would be an important part of his anti-crime package for the 1979 Legislature.

"I am especially concerned about the use of children as the subject of pornography and will propose that criminal penalties for this offense be made stronger," Briscoe said.

In the U.S. Senate race, Democrat Joe Christie asked Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Texas, to explain why he is conducting both his campaign and congressional business out of the same office in New Braunfels.

Krueger's office replied that Krueger personally pays the expenses of his New Braunfels office and that is the reason it is used at times for campaign work. The spokesman said one employee in the office handles some of Krueger's congressional business, but she does no campaign work.

Youth Facility Grant Okayed For County

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—A $40,000 grant to Lubbock County for the second phase of a juvenile facility plan was recommended for approval Friday by the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Board of the Governor's Criminal Justice Council.

The plans call for the money to be used to design a juvenile facility to house short term, "pre-adjudicated" youths from the 15-county South Plains Association of Governments region.

The facility would provide a long term rehabilitation program for juveniles which can be used instead of committing the youngster to the Texas Youth Council. The use of the facility would be restricted to youth charged with delinquent offenses while youths involved in so-called status offenses (runaways, traunts, etc.) would be provided for through other resources.

The $40,000 specifically would be used to contract for an architectural study for the proposed facility.

The advisory board also recommended third-year funding for the City of Snyder's juvenile division totalling $20,268.

The money goes to fund the investigation of cases involving juveniles justice system to community-bases services.

The board recommendations now must be okayed by the council and finally approved by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Shakeup Hits Company

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Andrew G. Galef, president and chief executive officer of Farah Manufacturing Co., and seven of the firm's vice presidents were fired Friday at the direction of the company's new chairman of the board, William F. Farah.

The action came at a special board of directors' meeting Friday morning, attended by Galef, Farah, and two other directors.

Farah's resolution to fire the Los Angeles-based management consulting firm of Grisanti and Galef and to dismiss the seven vice presidents carried by a majority vote.

Sources said Galef received his salary from the consulting firm and not the Farah firm. Galef resigned as a director after the meeting.

The dismissals left two Farah with two vice presidents. The seven who were fired said they were terminated because they previously signed affidavits threatening to resign if Farah became chief executive officer.

Farah assumed Galef's duties of chief executive officer on an interim basis after his termination, but has not assumed that title, company officials said.

Last week, Farah, son of the clothing firm's founder, was named chairman of the board in a shakeup aimed at avoiding an inter-company proxy fight.

Farah controls 40 percent of the firm's stock and had submitted his own proposed slate of directors.

Sexual Blackmail Ring Broken Up By Police

NEWTON, N.J. (UPI) — A Playboy bunny who was drugged, forced to engage in videotaped sex acts and then blackmailed helped authorities uncover an extortion ring operating in this northwestern New Jersey resort area, officials said Friday.

Five men were charged with luring at least 12 women — including six Playboy bunnies from the resort in Great Gorge — to a nearby house in Mount Vernon Township where they allegedly were drugged, photographed and blackmailed.

Sussex County Prosecutor George Daggett said a nationwide search is under way for four of the suspects in the alleged ring, which blackmailed some of the women to become cocaine runners.

Other victims turned over cash, their own cars or bought cars for the five men in exchange for promises the tapes and photos would not be sold as pornography.

Daggert said authorities raiding the house found 70 two-hour videotapes and polaroid pictures of the women engaging in natural and unnatural sex acts with the suspects.

Each bedroom in the home contained video cameras and recording equipment. Under the beds, authorities found loaded guns, Daggert said.

"The camera was set up right by the bed with the microphones set about for the sound," Daggert said.

Daggert said the women were lured to the house by men who developed friendships with them and promised they would be taped for a television promotion.

The women were beaten and intimated, but authorities said none were permanently maimed by the suspects. Daggert declined to discuss the victims but he said several have been placed in protective custody.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

REV. MYERS

MARGARET MEAD

GOV. HUNT

MRS. TALMADGE

Mrs. Talmadge Eyes Politics

LOVEJOY, Ga. (AP) — Betty Talmadge says if a poll she's having taken shows she's a "viable candidate" she will run for the 6th District seat being vacated by U.S. Rep. John Flynt. But if not, she can always go back to selling hot dogs and hams.

"So far I've been getting good feedback on the idea of running," 54-year-old former wife of U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., said Thursday.

Mrs. Talmadge said the poll would be completed in three weeks. She would not disclose who was conducting it.

"The important thing is for me to be realistic about the situation," she said, adding that if politics isn't in the cards, she can always return to her meat brokerage business and "sell hot dogs and hams."

The Talmadges divorced last year after 35 years of marriage.

Anthropologist Views Youth

LOUDONVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Anthropologist Margaret Mead says she's tired of hearing that today's college students are not as politically involved and concerned about the world as students of the Vietnam War era were.

"There was never more than 4 percent of the students in any institution that cared in the least what was happening in the world," Dr. Mead said at Siena College here Wednesday night.

"But when that 4 percent marched, the rest marched with them because they felt a bond among themselves — they felt they belonged to the same kind of people," she said.

Dr. Mead also said students may be getting involved at a younger age than previous generations. "Many the things that agitated college students 10 years ago are agitating the high school students (now) and soon may agitate the grade school students."

Bishop Undergoes Treatment

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rev. C. Kilmer Myers, the Episcopal bishop of California, has been undergoing treatment for alcoholism.

The 62-year-old bishop entered St. Mary's Hospital in Minneapolis five weeks ago, the San Francisco Examiner reported Friday.

The Rev. George Hunt, executive officer of the Diocese of California, confirmed the report and said the bishop's "progress has been phenomenally successful."

Hunt said the bishop "wrote a letter to some 400 clergy in the diocese Wednesday telling them of the reasons for his hospitalization.

"He said in his letter that the doctors at the hospital have helped me understand how I moved into this disease through the years.'"

Myers came to San Francisco in 1966. He is the current president of the Eighth Province of the Episcopal Church, the governing body for several Western states.

Oil Heiress Buys Mansion

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Oil heiress Carolyn Skelly Burford has paid $360,000 for the Bois Dore, one of the last great mansions to be built in Newport.

The mansion was built in the 1920s for William Fahnestock, a Wall Street banker, and sold to the late Elinor Dorrance Ingersoll and her first husband, Nathaniel P. Hill, in 1940.

Bois Dore has eight acres of grounds.

Mrs. Burford, who lives in St. Louis, is the daughter of the late John Skelly.

Amnesty Groups Seeks Meet

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — North Carolina Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., who arrived here Thursday, would not comment on reports that he had refused to discuss the Wilmington 10 with Amnesty International while in Bonn, West Germany.

"That is not the purpose of this trip," Hunt, who is on a trade mission, said.

The London-based group, which won a Nobel Peace prize for its world-wide campaign for human rights, said Wednesday it unsuccessfully sought a meeting with Hunt to discuss unconditional pardons for the Wilmington 10 and three civil rights workers sentenced to long prison terms.

Earlier this year, in the Wilmington 10 case, Hunt shortened the sentences of nine blacks imprisoned after racial disturbances in Wilmington, N.C. A white woman given a shorter sentence has already been released.

Grill Welcomes Special Act

NEW YORK (AP) — Toni Marie Chillemi performed Friday at the Rainbow Grill, a booking envied by even the most established performers, and got a hug from Eunice Kennedy Shriver, to boot.

Toni Marie, a 17-year-old mongoloid from Ocala, Fla., showed off her gymnastic routine at ceremonies trumpeting the Coca Cola Co.'s decision to aid the Special Olympics for the retarded, which Mrs. Shriver founded 10 years ago.

While appearing in the Rainbow Grill overlooking a fog-shrouded city was a new thrill for Toni Marie, performing is not. She is a Special Olympic gold medal winner accustomed but not immune to applause, which provoked an ear-to-ear grin and a series of ecstatic bows.

Sargent Shriver, Mrs. Shriver's husband, said Friday that Coke's financial, promotional and logistical suppport will make it possible to "greatly expand" the Special Olympics to draw in more Toni Maries.

Sam The Sham Has Problem

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — During the mid-1960s Domingo Samudio made the top of the record charts with such rock-comic hits as "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Wooly Bully."

Now Samudio, better known as Sam the Sham (and the Pharoahs), says nobody will take him seriously.

"Once you have been a clown, they don't let you take your make-up off," he said. Since 1965, he's been "writing, just writing. I'm a composer, not just a song writer.

"It's difficult for anybody to take you seriously after "Little Red Riding Hood," he said.

Samudio was in Buffalo for a '60s revival.

Ex-Cowboy Arrested

DALLAS (AP) — Police in the Dallas suburb of Addison arrested former Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Bob Hayes and another man early Thursday on drug charges.

Hayes, 35, and Bob Adler, 29, were charged with delivery of cocaine after what police said was a raid that capped a three-month investigation.

Hayes, vice president of Dycon, Inc., won two Olympic gold medals in 1965. He was a favorite target of then-quarterback Don Meredith and ended his career after being traded to the San Francisco 49ers.

Adler is a Dycon salesman.

Fond Memories Linger Of Famous Parishioner

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — As St. Mary's parish celebrates its 150th anniversary, it looks back on its founding by Irish immigrants, its services for working-class parishioners, and a famous occasional worshipper: John F. Kennedy.

The anniversary will be marked Saturday as more than 50 priests from all over New England celebrate Mass. There will also be a banquet and a reception.

Kennedy and Jacqueline Bouvier were married in the rust-colored Gothic church 25 years ago. They returned on some weekends while Kennedy was president.

"They used to come to Mass in the fall, sometimes in the summer," said the pastor, Rev. George B. McCarthy, a church curate in those days.

"Everyone took a turn at preaching. There'd be a lot of butterflies in the stomach, I tell you, with the president and the Secret Service and a lot of reporters around. You'd have to be careful about what you said."

But McCarthy says those memories don't tell the whole story.

"Oh you wouldn't call it upper class, not at all," he says, his voice lilting with the Irish brogue of his native County Kerry. "It's a working class parish: mostly Irish background, some Italian, Portuguese, a few French."

Newport itself is a city with a mixed history — elegant mansions where the rich used to summer and historic wharves where sailors would take boisterous liberties.

When St. Mary's was founded by Irish immigrants April 8, 1828, it became the first Roman Catholic parish in Rhode Island. Newport had been a major East Coast seaport, but was already being eclipsed by Boston and New York.

It would grow famous instead for tourism, yachting, a Navy base (most of it now closed), and the mansions (most of them now museums). But St. Mary's retained its early flavor.

A solemn memorial service was held when Kennedy was assassinated, but his family, which was in Washington, did not attend. Today, the only remembrance of the Kennedy years is a small plaque on the pew where his family used to sit.

Monsignor John Shea, pastor from 1965 to 1976, remembers Mrs. Kennedy attending Mass in the years after her husband's death. Her family had an estate in Newport.

McCarthy doesn't long for the the past, even though the parish has shrunk from 1,450 persons to 1,200 in the last 15 years. The parishioners are older, too — the average age is 50 — and few young families have joined.

"Those days had their own excitement, but there's a different challenge now," he said. "The people are alive. There's a lot of spirit there, and they're very independent."

Still, he remembers the Kennedy days. "It was kind of awe-inspiring ... You felt you were in the presence of history."

Tourists would crowd outside and Secret Service agents would ask priests to identify persons they considered suspicious, according to the Most Rev. Kenneth A. Angell, now auxiliary bishop of Providence and a curate at the time.

"It was funny. They people they thought were suspicious always turned out to be the most fine upstanding citizens," said Angell.

Strikers Eye Carter On Farm Bill Issue

HEREFORD (UPI) — A spokesman for striking Texas growers said Friday President Carter's veto of emergency farm legislation would cost the Democrats critical votes in the May primary.

"They would be totally reneging on their platform (of supporting farmers). It would be awfully hard for a farmer to vote for a Democrat in the upcoming primary," said Mike McCathern of the American Agriculture Movement.

"It would hurt the Democratic party more than it would hurt the president. We don't have any faith in the president any more," he said.

Carter has threatened to veto the legislation, contending an administration plan will raise farmers' iniome without the companion boosts in consumer food prices.

The bill, ready for final Senate and House action next week, raises basic 1978 supports for wheat, feed grains and cotton, and offers a "flexible parity" plan to allow individual farmers to qualify for even higher supports by idling large amounts of land.

The bill has the support of militant farmers, spearheaded by American Agriculture. The administration is vigorously opposing its passage.

"The propaganda machine is going full blast against us," said McCathern and that Carter has not made up his mind whether to veto the measure or not.

He said a spokeswoman identified as with the White House comment office told him that Carter has not decided the fate of the farm bill if it ever reaches his desk.

McCathern called threats of the veto "scare tactics to make Congress shaky. They're spending untold millions of dollars putting out anti-parity propaganda.

"He doesn't want to be faced with a veto. He'd just as soon put the monkey on the Congress' back (for failing to pass the bill). But the Congress wants it on his back," he said.

"They (the government) don't want us (the farmers) to make it," said McCathern. "The whole thing is to make a one-world government. The farmers are the last little stronghold of individuality and free enterprise. Everything else is regimented."

STRIKE IN JAPAN

TOKYO (AP) — The 76-member union of Japan's national tourist organization struck Friday to protest what it called the monopolization of the organization's higher-paid executive posts by retired bureaucrats from other agencies.

Suit Follows Protest Actions

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A suit was filed Friday charging a sheriff, a police chief and other officials with violating the civil rights of striking farmers who were arrested March 1 after blockading Hidalgo International Bridge.

The Texas Civil Liberties Union filed the suit in federal court here on behalf of leaders of the American Agriculture Movement.

The suit asks $70,000 for each of the more than 200 farmers involved in the incident. It also asks that a Texas law on obstruction of a public passageway be declared unconstitutional.

The suit said the farmers were demonstrating peacefully at the bridge and were obeying officers' commands to clear the roadway.

"Without provocation and at a time when plaintiffs were clearly exiting the bridge, defendants fired tear gas at the demonstrators and began to herd them in the direction of the United States Customs Station," the suit said.

Voyager No Longer Receiving Signals

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — After logging 286 million miles toward Jupiter and Saturn, Voyager 2 has lost its capacity to receive radio signals from Earth. Officials fear its mission may be ended.

"It would be disastrous if we couldn't communicate with it," said Al Wood, spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. A computer aboard Voyager 2 was scheduled to switch to a backup receiver next week, but scientists fear that receiver also is malfunctioning, Wood said.

The ship, with its twin, Voyager 1, was launched last summer.

Experts Monitor Soviet Crops To Project Export Picture

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Partly overshadowed by farm legislation in Congress and Carter administration plans for farmers, is the crop situation in the Soviet Union and how Moscow intends to pursue its grain import program next year.

For American farmers and consumers, few events have the impact on commodity and grocery prices as a crop disaster in the Soviet Union. Since 1972, when the Soviets bought huge quantities of U.S. grain secretly from private export companies, every jiggle in Russia's economy and weather is watched closely.

Soviet watchers in the Agriculture Department say it is still too early to estimate the 1978 Russian grain harvest, but some say privately that the production goal set by Moscow of 220 million metric tons this year is too high unless the crops get better-than-average weather during the growing season.

Administration officials, including Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, and grain farmers would not be unhappy if Soviet grain prospects suddenly worsened this year. That would mean Moscow almost certainly would have to maintain its relatively high level of imports through another year at least.

In turn, this would strengthen U.S. grain prices, to the joy of wheat and other cash grain producers. It also would please administration farm policy officials by putting farmers back into the market place instead of so deeply into federal subsidies.

Drought and other weather problems can strike suddenly and unexpectedly in the vast grain areas of the Soviet Union, as its record of erratic production shows. Thus, for the next six months at least, the USDA will be keeping a close watch on developments.

Last year Moscow set a 1977 grain production target of 213.3 million metric tons. Production turned out to be 195.5 million metric tons.

The goal in 1976 was 205 million metric tons and the harvest turned out to be a record of 223.8 million metric tons. But in 1975, a near-disastrous year for Soviet planners, the goal was 215.7 million metric tons and the harvest plummeted to 140.1 million metric tons, the smallest in a decade.

After the Soviet Union began ordering large quantities of U.S. grain to help make up for the short 1975 harvest, there were fears among some that American reserves would be depleted.

Temporary embargoes on further sales to the Soviet Union were ordered. Eventually, a five-year agreement was signed under which the Soviets are committed to buy a minimum of six million metric tons of U.S. corn and wheat annually, beginning Oct. 1, 1976.

About the minimum amount was purchased in the first year of the pact. The agreement also lets Russia buy up to eight million metric tons a year if it chooses without consulting further with U.S. officials and more if permission is granted.

For the second year, which began last Oct. 1, U.S. officials gave Moscow clearance to buy up to 15 million metric tons of grain. Department experts say the full amount will be bought, probably 10 million metric tons of corn and five million metric tons of wheat.

By early April, the Soviets had bought more than 12 million metric tons of grain for delivery in the second year of the agreement.

The Soviet Union has guarded closely its plans to import grain in 1978-79, the third year of the agreement which will begin Oct. 1. So far, there has been no disclosure of any purchases for next year.

Much will depend on how the 1978 grain harvest turns out in the Soviet Union as to whether it will again buy more U.S. grain than the minimum called for in the five-year agreement.

Another factor is the price of grain itself on the world market. Already the price of grain, particularly wheat, has gone up from its low marks of last year. And as farmers put more grain into the three-year reserve program offered by the administration, prices can be expected to go up further.

The U.S. harvest this year also will be a factor. If farmers get good weather, another round of bumper wheat and corn crops could materialize despite the acreage set-aside aimed at taking part of their land from production this year.

Grain production in other areas of the world, including Canada, Australia and Argentina, will be a part of the global supply and price situation in the coming year.

However, USDA experts believe that the Soviet Union still has made a firm commitment for modestly increasing livestock supplies in the years ahead and that this will require substantially more grain to support it than Russia can produce itself.

The five-year plan for Soviet agriculture calls for stepped-up grain output during the 1976-80 period to help attain the livestock goals. The record grain output of 1976 started the plan well but last year's shortfall was a setback, says David M. Schoonover of USDA's Economies, Statistics and Cooperative Service.

As of January, Schoonover said in a recent report, Soviet livestock inventories were larger than a year earlier, including a buildup in swine to within 5 percent of their record numbers in 1975 before many were slaughtered to reduce grain requirements.

Meanwhile, even with huge imports of grain this season, the Soviet Union is having to dip into its reserves which were built during the good harvest year of 1976-77.

"It follows then, that the estimated level of Soviet grain stocks is inadequate to cover a severe crop shortfall in 1978 without massive grain imports — and possibly some reverses in livestock expansion," Schoonover said.

Further, he said, the Soviet Union's exports of grain to its trading partners in Eastern Europe have been reduced sharply and over-all "will likely to be lower than in the past" for some time.

Schoonover said that the Soviet Union probably will have to import at least 10 million metric tons of grain annually "perhaps into the 1980s" in order to build up its reserves. Two record harvests in succession might enable this to be done, he said.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A U. S. COTTON TRADE TEAM will visit the People's Republic of China (PRC) May 15-21 to further strengthen relationships between the two nations, the National Cotton Council announced Friday.

Bert Kyle, sales manager of the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association at Lubbock, will be a member of the seven-man team. He will represent Amcot.

The team will meet with executives of the China National Textiles Import and Export Corp., PRC's buying agency for raw cotton, and discussions will be held with Chinese officials in Peking and Shanghai.

TEAM MEMBERS AND ORGANIZATIONS represented will include W. B. Dunavant Jr. and Fred Deans, both of Memphis, and Heinz Molsen of Dallas, American Cotton Shippers Association; Tom Smith of Bakersfield, Calif., president of Cotton Council International (CCI), and Kyle, Amcot; Robert Skov of Clint, NCC's Producer Steering Committee; and David C. Hull of Washington, D. C., executive director of CCI.

Arrangements for thhe visit were made by CCI through contacts with the PRC liaison office in Washington and officials of the buying agency in Peking. Late in 1977, CCI arranged an orientation tour for PRC officials to Cotton Belt locations, including Lubbock.

As of March 19, PRC had purchased 342,000 running bales of 1977-crop U. S. cotton, of which 134,300 had been exported.

SOILS ON THE HIGH PLAINS HAVE WARMED to cotton planting levels at a near record clip.

The 10-day average at an eight-inch depth reached 60 degrees — the minimum recommended for cotton planting — at Lubbock on Thursday.

This is the second earliest warmup on record, says Ken Wigner, agricultural meteorologist at Lubbock. The earliest the 60-degree average has been reached here is April 4, 1967, only two days earlier than this year.

Soils didn't reach the minimum cotton planting warmth last year until May 3. They normally reach that level about April 23.

"WITH THE SOILS BEING EXCEPTIONALLY dry and with the warm weather we've had, there hasn't been anything to cool the soils or retard the warmup," Wigner said.

If rains were to fall within the next 10 days, he said, the 10-day average soil temperature might drop back to the upper 50s. But then it probably would bounce back fairly quickly, he said.

If spring rains don't come within the next 10 days, Wigner said, the soils may be warm enough that any temporary cooling trend might not depress the average below the 60-degree minimum.

The average rainfall for April at Lubbock is 1.27 inches. The period from November through late March normally is dry, with each of those months having a rainfall average of only 0.48-inch to 0.84-inch.

Rainfall probabilities improve in May and June. The long-term average for May isd 2.60 inchesd and it is 2.47 inches for June. But by then it is too late to build much of a subsoil base for the summer.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures shot up about 7 cents on the Chicago Board of Trade today, as widespread rumors of a large wheat sale to China triggered substantial buying.

Analysts said they expected confirmation soon that a million metric tons of U.S. wheat had been sold to China. If confirmed, it would be the first time since 1974 that China had bought grain from the United States.

Soybean and corn contracts also finished with good-sized gains, despite heavy hedge-selling in the corn pit shortly before the close.

Grain exporters were buyers in the wheat and soybean pits, traders said.

The Agriculture Department's weekly export sales figures showed that grain companies sold 39.6 million bushels of corn and 12.3 million bushels of soybeans to foreign buyers. Both amounts were somewhat larger than traders had expected.

An industry association reported that soybean processors were continuing to crush substantial amounts of soybeans into soybean oil and meal, indicating good demand for those products.

Prices were steady to firmer for soybeans and products in Europe, even though the dollar was more expensive in foreign money markets.

Rumors of Chinese interest in buying soybean oil from the United States contributed to sharp gains in those futures.

At the close, soybeans were 1 to 14½ cents higher, with May contracts quoted at $7.00¼ a bushel, wheat was 6¼ to 8½ cents higher, May $3.26½; corn was 1½ to 4½ cents higher, May $2.63¼ and oats were 2½ to 3 cents higher, May $1.43¾.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON

U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading was moderate Friday on the Lubbock cotton market.

Supplies of cotton for sale were heavy and demand was moderate. High Plains growers sold mixed lots at 625 to 1,000 points over loan rates.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations held steady. The base price of grade 41, staple 34, micronaire 3.5-4.9, closed at 52.35 cents, even with one week ago.

Cattle Futures Climb Steadily

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures were up all day and climbed 122 points before closing 50 to 85 points higher Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

December led the advance. Profit-taking pared gains after the nearby rose to the highest level since 1974, up three cents from recent lows. October also set a new season's high. Sales were 23,765 cars.

Demand spilled over from Thursday and continued to reflect surging beef and firmness in cash cattle this week along with a lighter slaughter pace.

Deliveries total 43 thus far. Wholesale beef was up one-half to one cent at 81 to 81 1/2 cents a pound for all weights, highest since July 1975. The six markets expect 18,400 head on Monday.

Cash cattle were up 50 cents to $1, with the best top at $54.50 per hundredweight, highest since October 1975. Slaughter was 136,000 head.

Hog futures ended 47 points higher to 15 points lower on 8,899 sales. Nearby April was up the most with distant June off the most after slipping 45 points. Distant April gained 65 points early.

Early support was extended from Thursday on a firmer tone to pork products and moderating kill. Prices climbed 52 cents and lifted all contracts, except nearby April and distant June, to new season's highs and highest since March 1977. Late profit taking stemmed from possibly lower cash hogs Monday.

Europeans Seek Stability Of Money Systems

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — In a test of European unity, leaders of the nine nations of the Common Market began work Friday on an international program designed to steady the non-Communist world's trade and money systems.

The closed-door summit focused in particular on ways of countering the slide of the U.S. dollar. The government chiefs also were reported ready to deal with the Japanese threat to Europe's trade strength.

The conference in its first day was distracted by the issues of the neutron bomb and nuclear energy, however.

President Carter announced in Washington that he was deferring production of the neutron bomb, a controversial weapon most U.S. allies in Western Europe officially have backed. Spokesmen for European governments generally said Carter's move was understandable.

On nuclear energy, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing won the conditional support of the eight other members in his protest against Carter's insistence that the Common Market agree by Sunday to negotiate new security rules for its nuclear-cooperation agreement with the United States.

The renegotiation is required by a law signed by Carter last month to halt the spread of material that can be made into nuclear bombs. This does not relate to development of the neutron bomb.

The law forbids U.S. shipments of enriched uranium to Europe unless the Common Market agrees to negotiate new security rules. The other nations gave their support to France on the condition that the Carter administration be advised the Market nations will go ahead with renegotiations in due course.

Regarding the economic plan, Giscard d'Estaing said "a great organizing effort" will be needed to stabilize Europe's currency exchange rates — let alone to steady Europe's monetary relations with the United States and Japan.

Speaking with reporters between meetings, the French president said the problems stem from the fact that some European countries are economically stable but not expanding, while others are expanding without being stable.

The plunging value of the dollar against European currencies endangers the basis of Europe's export trade by making American goods more attractive on the world market.

Danish Prime Minister Anker Joergensen said before the summit that the participants would discuss the possibility of bringing European currencies closer together to stabilize them and to rival the dollar as the leading currency in world trade.

It was reported Friday that the Common Market leaders also were prepared to make new demands on Japan to ease its restrictions on imports or face tough European reprisals.

The influx of goods from Japan, which this year will have an estimated $14 billion surplus of exports over imports, also has undermined the European economy.

Market leaders believe Japan is not fulfilling earlier promises to reduce its huge surplus.

"In such a situation," one foreign minister here said privately, "the Common Market certainly will have to consider ways of slowing if not stopping the flow of Japanese goods into Europe. Studies of that problem already have begun."

On another matter, the summit participants set June 7-10, 1979, as the dates for the first election of a Parliament of Europe, a Common Marketwide legislative body to be chosen by universal adult suffrage.

Wealthy Arabs Set Tour Of America

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 100 Arab tycoons will start a five-city tour of the United States April 18 despite Saudi Arabian fears that the visit might hurt their chances to buy advanced American jetfighters.

Keynote speaker at the opening session in New York will be a son of the late Saudi Arabian King Faisal, Prince Mohammed al Faisal, sponsor of a plan to tow Arctic icebergs to Saudi Arabia for fresh water.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal will address the group in Washington April 21.

After meetings in Houston and Los Angeles the tour will wind up in Chicago May 1-3, where conference organizers said Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner will entertain the visitors at his mansion.

Businessmen from 10 Arab countries — Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, Syria, Jordan, Lebanon, Egypt, Morocco, Libya and Oman — are scheduled to attend.

A Jordanian newspaper, Dastour, reported that Saudi Arabia tried to postpone the trip, which was organized jointly by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Union of Arab Chambers of Commerce, to bring together Arab and American businessmen.

Conference sources confirmed the Saudi attempt to delay the tour. They said Saudi Arabia feared that Israel's supporters in the United States might try to fan alarmist fears of takeovers of U.S. businesses by Arabs, thus turning U.S. public opinion against the proposed sale of F-15 jetfighters to that country.

But, the sources said, Kuwait voiced objections to the postponement, and when its position gained support among other delegations, the Saudis were overruled. They then named Prince Mohammed to speak at the opening session.

"Kuwait is sending a group of some of the heaviest-hitting businessmen in the country. They want to raise hell about the dollar and they didn't want any delays," said one of the conference organizers, who did not want to be identified.

U.N. Forces Established In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — the United Nations force in Southern Lebanon made its headquarters Friday in an American oil refinery compound guarded by Syrian troops of the Arab League peacekeeping army.

Blue and white U.N. flags fluttered over the three-story building at the Mediterranean oil harbor of Zahrani, 30 miles south of here and 15 miles north of the Litani River.

The 50-room structure will serve as the headquarters of Maj. Gen. Emmanuel Erskine of Ghana, who is in charge of the U.N. troops, eventually to number 4,000.

The building is being rented from the Trans-American Pipeline Co. (Tapline) which operates a pipeline that moves Saudi Arabian crude oil from Persian Gulf oilfields across Jordan and Syria to the Zahrani terminal five miles south of Beirut.

Tapline supplies crude oil to a refinery owned and operated by Caltex and Mobil at Zahrani. It meets 40 percent of Lebanon's consumption.

The refinery forms the southernmost line for the Syrian forces that snuffed out a 19-month civil war between Lebanon's right-wing Christian forces and an alliance of leftist Moslems and Yasser Arafat's Palestinian guerrillas 17 months ago.

The Litani River is the approximate northern limit of the 500-square-miles of southern Lebanon Israel invaded last month to drive Palestinian guerrillas off its northern flank.

1978's 80th Armed Robbery Noted; Police Thwart Burglary

The bane of the convenience store industry, the gun-toting bandit, surfaced in the city again recently, marking the 80th such incident in Lubbock this year.

Clerk Tawa Cleveland of the 7-Eleven Store at 2806 Salem Ave. said the latest holdup artist, a Mexican-American youth in his late teens, approached her about 10:55 p.m. Thursday, brandishing a cocked pistol.

The suspect demanded that both registers be opened, she said, then took the money before ordering her to remain flat on the floor behind the counter.

With that, the gunman reportedly fled on foot with $158.

Despite being armed with Mace canisters, the end was hardly as gleeful for a pair of would-be burglars Thursday, who were discovered near the edge of a roof at the Golden Pawn Shop at 206-A N. University Ave.

Police, responding to a downed alarm, arrived on the scene about 10 p.m., scaled the building, then discovered a 17-year-old and his 18-year-old companion cowering nearby.

Following a search officers turned up a satchel containing a claw hammer and a kitchen knife.

Further investigation revealed a pried cover lifted from a nearby skylight. Both suspects wore gloves, police said.

Marcy Coronado of 2618 42nd St. said someone stole a $300 evaporative cooler from her yard Thursday, and Terry Wood of 4901 Fourth St. said car burglars took a tape deck, stereo tapes and a cassette player from his vehicle Thursday or Friday, inflicting a $300 loss.

Ross Chavez, who also lives in the apartment complex at 4901 Fourth St., said thieves lifted his $200 CB radio during the same time period.

Steve Borchus of the Quick Print store at 2301 Ave. Q said burglars broke through a window there Thursday or Friday and stole $159.65 from a nearby cash drawer, in addition to about $7 worth of change.

In recently reported residential break-ins, H.S. Hicks of 3216 53rd St. said he was victimized to the tune of more than $7,000 Thursday afternoon.

Burglars who pried a back door at the house reportedly made off with two matched dueling pistols, valued at $2,500, three shotguns, three rifles and two other pistols. Also taken, the complainant said, was a $650 television set, $650 watch and $300 ring.

Mary Ann Sandoval of 3408 Essex Ave. told officers someone broke through a window at her home Thursday and got away with more than $500 worth of property, including assorted jewelry, clothes and household goods.

According to Brenda Jiminez of 3405 E. 4th St., an intruder removed an air-conditioner and crawled through a window at her residence Thursday, taking 15 pairs of jeans and a stereo.

Tom Yates told police a $900 two-way radio was stolen from his vehicle parked at his 3712-B 53rd St. home earlier this week.

Meanwhile, Lubbock thieves showed a predictable streak recently by making off with bicycles and stealing license plates following the deadline for renewal stickers.

POT PARADE — An Atlanta police officer, right, restrains a demonstrator with his arm while a fellow officer struggles with a second demonstrator on the ground during a parade in Atlanta Friday. Marcos Opponents Appear Strong

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — Opponents of President Ferdinand E. Marcos made a surprisingly strong showing Friday in Manila-area voting for an interim National Assembly. It appeared they might gain five of the 21 contested seats in the first general election since Marcos proclaimed martial law 5½ years ago.

A pro-government legislature was guaranteed because Marcos' opponents ran candidates only for the 21 assembly seats in metropolitan Manila and not for the 144 being filled elsewhere in the nation. An additional 35 members of the 200-seat assembly are to be named later, but the government has not said how they will be selected.

The president's wife Imelda, who heads the government's New Society Movement, was running third in the 21 Manila contests according to early unofficial results. She has been governor of Manila for 2½ years and is expected to win a seat easily

Marcos is not running for office and under a constitutional amendment he decreed in 1976 he will become prime minister.

Opposition leaders accused the government of fraud and strong-arm tactics at the polls. Complaints to the election commission were rejected on grounds the statements were not sworn documents and lacked proof.

Unofficial tabulations of early returns by the Manila Junior Chamber of Commerce showed that five opposition politicians were among the top vote-getters in Manila. They include imprisoned Benigno S. Aquino Jr., a former senator who ranked 17th in the 21 races with almost 100,000 votes. Another ex-senator, Francisco Rodrigo, was tied for 21st.

The election commission said it would release official results Saturday.

Government candidates ahead of Mrs. Marcos were Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo and former Sen. Arturo Tolentino.

An estimated 24-25 million voters were expected to cast ballots nationwide. Voting was compulsory.

Opposition spokesmen issued statements accusing the government of "wholesale resort to fraud and force."

They said pro-Marcos politicians and poll-watchers used guns and clubs to keep voters and opposition observers away from the polls.

Five men who said they were opposition poll-watchers in one suburb told The Associated Press one of them was pistol-whipped by a police officer and beaten by the son of a local official.

A reporter at one suburban polling center saw club-wielding guards in New Society Movement shirts threaten and turn away voters of Laban, the opposition party.

Corazon Aquino, the imprisoned ex-senator's wife, said she saw precinct workers stuffing a ballot box and when she protested she was threatened.

Briscoe Outspends Challengers

AUSTIN (AP) — Campaigners for Gov. Dolph Briscoe, helped along by $500,000 in bank loans, already have outspent Attorney General John Hill two-to-one in the governor's race. Both men have raised $1 million or more for their campaigns.

Also joining the million-dollar campaign expense club was a Republican candidate, Bill Clements.

Campaign finance reports were submitted to Secretary of State Steve Oaks on Friday.

They indicated that Briscoe and his various campaign committees have spent $1,926,300 to Hill's $881,997.

Briscoe, meanwhile, has raised $1,254,653 to Hill's $1,066,050, the reports showed.

Hill's reports reflect no indebtedness, but Briscoe said he has borrowed $500,000 and has additional loan authorizations totaling $400,000 from seven Texas banks. Briscoe's loans are guaranteed by various supporters.

He said he borrowed in March from Mercantile National Bank and Republic National Bank of Dallas; Texas State Bank, Austin National Bank and Capital National Bank in Austin; Allied Bank of Texas in Houston; and Alamo National Bank of San Antonio.

Also borrowing heavily to finance his campaign is Clements, who reported $1,295,000 in loans — $400,000 of which have been repaid.

Clements personally guaranteed $650,000 in bank loans, and he "lent" his campaign another $400,000.

The former deputy secretary of defense said he has received $263,886 in donations while spending $1,512,829 on his campaign for the GOP gubernatorial nomination. Clements is his campaign's biggest contributor, pouring $65,000 of his own money into it as gifts.

No report had been received as of mid-day Friday from the other Republican candidate for governor, Ray Hutchison.

Former Gov. Preston Smith of Lubbock, the third Democrat in the gubernatorial race, reported spending $54,478, with contributions totaling $62,041, including a $12,500 loan from himself.

The primaries are May 6, and the next deadline for financial reporting is May 1.

Spending was lighter in the races for attorney general and railroad commissioner than in the campaigns for governor.

Mark White, a Democratic candidate for attorney general, said his spending totaled $47,453, against donations of $52,371.

Price Daniel Jr. reported spending $194,736 in the same race, while collecting $186,621 in contributions and borrowing $21,000 — mostly from himself and his mother.

In the railroad commissioner's race, commissioner John Poerner said he has received $70,189 and spent $41,759; Jerry Sadler collected $1,625 and spent $2,664 and Ray Lemmon raised $22,000, borrowed $1,500 and spent $2,825.

Reports in the U. S. Senate race are filed in Washington.

'Duke' Takes First Solid Food

BOSTON (UPI) — Actor John Wayne Friday felt more rested and had his first full meal since undergoing open heart surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital for replacement of a defective valve.

A hospital spokesman Friday said Wayne had his "best night's sleep" since the operation and awoke to a breakfast of grapefruit, toast and a poached egg.

"He looked more rested this morning and had his first regular meal since open heart surgery Monday," spokesman Martin Bander said.

Wayne had been able to get out of his hospital bed for short walks around his room. He sat by his bed for more than an hour on Thursday, the hospital said.

The star of more than 200 films, who 14 years ago lost part of his left lung to cancer, was described in satisfactory condition.

During the three-hour operation doctors replaced a defective mitral valve in his heart with a valve from a pig's heart. The new valve regulates the flow of blood between the left atrium and ventricle of the heart.

The "Duke" has continued to receive members of his family and close friends as visitors, and his physicians still hope he will be able to leave the hospital after about two more weeks.

Morton's Election Runoff Cancelled

MORTON (Special) — J.A. (Johnny) Love has been declared the winner of the mayor's race here, avoiding a runoff for the job.

A runoff appeared in the making after Love failed to obtain a majority of the ballots in the April 1 election. Love garnered 225 votes to 192 write-in ballots for Jim St. Clair, former city councilman, and 119 for Marshall J. Leitzell.

According to officials at city hall, the runoff was cancelled because state election codes do not provide for runoffs in cities of Morton's size.

Former Congressman Skips Court Appearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Otto E. Passman failed to appear in court Friday for arraignment on charges of taking $213,000 in bribes and other payments from South Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park.

His lawyer asked postponement and gave the judge a report from Dr. Christopher Meyers, a member of the New Orleans Touro Infirmary's psychiatric and neurology staff, which said the New Orleans Democrat is hospitalized indefinitely.

But U.S. Prosecutor Jeffrey E. White told the judge an unnamed San Francisco psychiatrist determined last March that the 77-year-old Passman has no physical problem "other than problems of age."

"We believe that he can stand trial and that he can be arraigned," the prosecutor told U.S. District Court Judge Barrington D. Parker.

Passman is the second former congressman to be indicted as a result of an investigation into the alleged South Korean influence-buying scandal. Former Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif., pleaded guilty last month to helping Park influence Congress.

Both White and Passman's lawyer, James Hamilton, refused to tell reporters why he was examined by a psychiatrist or what illness he is hospitalized for now. Dr. Meyers did not return phone calls and the Tuoro Infirmary declined comment.

Judge Parker gave the two lawyers a week to file briefs on Passman's medical condition. He scheduled another hearing for April 19.

The judge honored Hamilton's request that the doctor's report not be made public but said from the bench that it refers to "indefinite" hospitalization.

"These are private matters," the lawyer appealed to the judge. "Discussion of these matters in open court," he said later, "would be reported as national news."

A federal grand jury indictment charged Passman, who once had near-veto power over foreign aid, with three counts of bribery, three counts of accepting illegal gratuities and one of conspiring to defraud the United States of corruption-free government.

The indictment accused him of using his influence to pressure U.S. officials to sell U.S. Food for Peace rice to South Korea and to accept Park as the sales agent.

It also accused him of pressuring South Korean officials to buy the U.S. rice and to give Park back the position he had lost as Seoul's exclusive U.S. rice dealer.

Park testified to the House ethics committee this week that he gave Passman at least $237,000 from 1972 through 1976.

He testified he gave Passman and others a $1,500 lunch in Hong Kong in January 1972 and in following meetings agreed to give Passmen $50,000 a year in contributions for Passman's help.

Passman in return went from Hong Kong to South Korea and urged officials there to give Park back his U.S. rice salesman position, Park testified.

After Congress passed a law outlawing contributions to U.S. congressmen from foreigners, Park said he made an unspoken arrangement to buy watches and jewelry from Passman at inflated prices.

Park estimated this arrangement amounted to a contribution of about $20,000.

Passman was chairman of the House foreign operations appropriations subcommittee which originates all U.S. foreign aid money bills in Congress.

He chaired that subcommittee for 21 of his 30 years in Congress. He was defeated for re-election in the 1976 primary elections.

'Never Saw $500,' Ex-Legislator Says

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Former North Dakota Rep. Thomas Kleppe says he did not know about a $500 campaign contribution Korean rice dealer Tongsun Park says he made in 1970.

"I never saw the $500," Kleppe said Friday. "I have absolutely no recollection of it."

Park, the key figure in a congressional influence-buying case, testified earlier this week that he contributed the $500 to Republican Kleppe for his unsuccessful Senate campaign against Democratic incumbent Quentin Burdick in 1970.

Kleppe said he got a letter from congressional investigator Leon Jaworski March 31 saying a $500 check to Kleppe's campaign had been uncovered.

"It was made out to Thomas Kleppe for U.S. Senator," the former head of the Small Business Administration and U.S. interior secretary said in a telephone interview from his home in Kensington, Md.

Kleppe said he was unlikely to have known about the contribution. "There were a lot of checks coming in," he said.

In September, Kleppe was one of 27 former and present congressmen named in a federal indictment as having gotten campaign contributions from the Korean, in amounts ranging from $100 to $1,000. Kleppe was neither indicted nor named as an unindicted co-conspirator.

At that time he said he had never gotten any money personally from Park and doubted the campaign had.

He also said neither Park nor any other South Korean had approached him with an offer of money for his own use. "It's never been alleged that I got the $500 personally," he said Friday.

His campaign treasurer, Bismarck lawyer Harold Anderson, said in September he did not recall "anyone but Americans" contributing. He said the list of contributors had been destroyed in an office move.

Anderson was not immediately available for comment Friday.

Kleppe said he doubted Park had any influence-buying in mind with the contribution.

"When you talk about buying influence in Congress, you don't screw around with someone as junior as I was," he said.

Kleppe was elected to the House in 1966 and served two terms.

He also said the money would not have influenced him: "I can't be bought at any price, but $500 for my campaign just doesn't fit."

Kleppe said he knew Park "pretty well, but I knew him as a Korean businessman in oil and shipping" and as the owner of a Georgetown restaurant.

Kleppe was among a group of congressmen who visited Korea in 1969. Kleppe said that as a member of the House Agricultural Committee, he was interested in getting North Dakota barley sold to South Korea.

ORU Hospital Endorsed By Lawmakers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Despite opposition from Tulsa lawmakers, the Oklahoma House has voted overwhelmingly to endorse construction in Tulsa of evangelist Oral Robert's proposed City of Faith hospital.

A resolution was adopted Wednesday by a 72-22 vote, but the Tulsa delegation voted 8-5 against the measure, with three members not voting.

Supporters of the resolution argued that Roberts had become a victim of bureaucratic red tape in his efforts to win approval to build the hospital.

But opponents argued that state health planning agencies existed to keep order in the establishment of health care facilities. They contended the state has too many hospital beds, especially in Tulsa, and that members of the Legislature were not qualified to decide whether the proposed hospital is needed.

Rep. David Riggs, D-Tulsa, said lawmakers should not be stampeded into approving a resolution exempting the proposed hospital from normal certification procedures "because of the power of one man or one organization."

Governor Halts Use Of Guard Armory

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Gov. Meldrim Thomson said Friday that because he is New Hampshire's commander-in-chief, he has the power to cancel the contract between the National Guard and the Clamshell Alliance.

The anti-nuclear power group signed a $100 contract to use the Portsmouth National Guard Armory for a dance April 29, commemorating the occupation of the Seabrook nuclear plant site in 1977.

The armory was used as a holding facility for the 1,414 demonstrators arrested after they refused to leave the site of the power plant.

Thomson ordered Gen. John Blatsos, adjutant of the New Hampshire National Guard, earlier this week to cancel the contract.

The alliance says it is willing to go to court to fight to keep the contract.

Thomson told the Executive Council he usually does not oversee the renting of the armory "but with a matter as sensitive as this one, I was interested."

State Rep. Dudley Dudley, a member of the council, said Thomson was being discriminatory and asked him to reconsider his decision, but Thomson said that for the present, his order stood.

Matthew 18:1-18, The Living Bible

CHAPTER 18

1 About that time the disciples came to Jesus to ask which of them would be greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven!

2 Jesus called a small child over to Him and set the little fellow down among them,

3 And said, "Unless you turn to God from your sins and become as little children, you will never get into the Kingdom of Heaven.

4 Therefore anyone who humbles himself as this little child, is the greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven.

5 And any of you who welcomes a little child like this because you are Mine, is welcoming Me and caring for Me.

6 But if any of you causes one of these little ones who trusts in Me to lose his faith, it would be better for you to have a rock tied to your neck and be thrown into the sea.

7 Woe upon the world for all its evils. Temptation to do wrong is inevitable, but woe to the man who does the tempting.

8 So if your hand or foot causes you to sin, cut it off and throw it away. Better to enter heaven crippled than to be in hell with both of your hands and feet.

9 And if your eye causes you to sin, gouge it out and throw it away. Better to enter heaven with one eye than to be in hell with two.

10 Beware that you don't look down upon a single one of these little children. For I tell you that in heaven their angels have constant access to My Father.

11 And I, the Son of Mankind, came to save the lost.

12 If a man has a hundred sheep, and one wanders away and is lost, what will he do? Won't he leave the ninety-nine others and go out into the hills to search for the lost one?

13 And if he finds it, he will rejoice over it more than over the ninety-nine others safe at home!

14 Just so, it is not My Father's will that even one of these little ones should perish.

15 If a brother sins against you, go to him privately and confront him with his fault. If he listens and confesses it, you have won back a brother.

16 But if not, then take one or two others with you and go back to him again, proving everything you say by these witnesses.

17 If he still refuses to listen, then take your case to the church, and if the church's verdict favors you, but he won't accept it, then the church should excommunicate him.

18 And I tell you this—whatever you bind on earth is bound in heaven, and whatever you free on earth will be freed in heaven.

Youth For Christ Plans Report

For the second year in a row, the board of directors of Lubbock Youth For Christ (YFC) will present a "Report to the People" dinner. Date for the dinner is April 18. Time will be 7 p.m. and the place will be the banquet hall of Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Cost of the dinner will be underwritten by Lubbock businesses and individuals but reservations for tickets must be made by calling the YFC office at 744-4567 during business hours or 797-6870 at night.

According to Mark McBrayer, executive director of YFC here, the report dinner is a way of showing appreciation to those who have supported the work the past year.

"Since 90 percent of our financial support comes through the gifts of adults who are concerned about young people and who believe in what YFC is doing to help them develop balanced lives and a personal faith in Jesus Christ, we want them to know we are grateful for their support," McBrayer said.

"A second reason," McBrayer added, "is to let people of the community know just what YFC has been doing."

McBrayer described the ministry as one to high school students and "thus has to follow them (students) to where they go — to sports events, skiing weekends, into homes for Campus Life Club meetings, over a soft drink after school, wherever!"

Board chairman Jim Kersey said: "Last year's dinner focused on plans and goals, since the current YFC work was just getting started at that time. The people responded so generously to the need, that we are excited to share what has taken place. However, we are still short of our goal. We worked among students on three high school campuses this year, but we hope to expand to all Lubbock high schools and even to some of the junior highs."

The third purpose of the dinner, Kersey said, "is to find new friends of YFC who, along with current supporters, will make this growth possible through their involvement."

The dinner program will include stories of young persons whose lives were affected through the YFC ministry recently here. Also, the program will include the music of Pete Carlson of Upland, Ind., a singer.

Lubbock Youth For Christ is affiliated with Youth For Christ International, an interdenominational ministry to teenagers in more than 200 cities in the U.S. and in 53 foreign countries. The local ministry includes Campus Life Clubs for high school students and circulation of "Campus Life Magazine," an award-winning publication for teen-agers that has more than 250,000 subscribers. Local offices are at 1619 University Ave., Suite 225.

SPIRIT SINGERS SCHEDULED — Dr. Robert Bicknell, right, chairman of Wayland Baptist College's Fine Arts Division and director of the nationally-acclaimed "Spirit Of America Singers," finalizes plans for the 13-member ensemble to perform for the Olton Ministerial Alliance, April 30. Discussing arrangements with Dr. Bicknell, are the Rev. Alston A. Morgan, interim pastor of Olton's First Baptist Church, where the group will appear; and Spirit singer Christy Stringer. The "Spirit" singers have appeared with Bob Hope and showcased at Disneyland and toured Europe.

Church Roundup

Revival Scheduled In Dickens

DICKENS (Special)—The Rev. J.T. Campbell of Lubbock, retired Baptist pastor, will conduct revival services in the First Baptist Church here, Monday through April 16.

Weekday services will be at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday services will be at regular worship service times, 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Cline To Lead Slaton Revival

SLATON (Special) — The Rev. Vernon Cline of Canadian will be evangelist for a revival meeting scheduled here Sunday through April 14 at the Bible Baptist Church of Slaton.

Rev. Cline has lived in Lubbock, Slaton and Floydada, where he pastored before moving to Canadian. He has been pastor of Central Baptist Church of Canadian the past 25 years.

The Rev. H.E. Summar is pastor of the Slaton church. Services will be at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. each weekday night.

Jehovah's Witnesses Meet In Carlsbad

CARLSBAD, N.M. (Special)—A spring convention of Jehovah's Witnesses is being held here today and Sunday.

More than 1,900 delegates from more than 20 congregations of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico, are here for fellowship and Bible instruction. Theme of the meeting is: "Do all things for the sake of the Good News," (I Corinthians 9:19-23.

Speakers will include Rodney Griffiths, circuit supervisor of the 20 congregations here; and Dennis N. Bennett, district supervisor of several circuits in five states.

W.B. Lowery, presiding overseer in Lubbock, heads a group of 300 delegates from that city.

Moore To Conduct Revival

SLATON (Special) — A revival will begin at the First Baptist Church here Sunday and will extend through April 16.

The Rev. Bob Moore, pastor, will conduct the spring revival. Leading the singing will be Joe Jones, minister of music and youth at Oakwood Baptist Church in Lubbock.

Services will be 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday; and at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. weekdays. No morning service will be held on Saturday.

Astronomy Show To Be Presented

Slides of a presentation called "Hole In The North" will be shown at Bethel Assembly of God Church here at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Pastor Roy Love said the presentation is a 22-minute showing about a recent disclosure of astronomers that there is a "great empty space" in the north in the nebula of the constellation Orion.

Catholic Priests' Posts Changed

AMARILLO (Special) — Changes affecting four priests of the Diocese of Amarillo were announced by the Chancery Office Friday. All are effective immediately.

Involved in the changes are Rev. Joseph E. Bixenman, associate pastor of St. Elizabeth's Church, Lubbock; Rev. Richard Casey, pastor of San Jose Church, Lockney; Rev. Clyde Gary Sides, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Stratford; and Rev. Peter B. Otto, pastor of Sts. Peter and Paul Church, Dumas.

Rev. Bixenman will be pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Lockney, and St. Mary Magdalen, Floydada. Rev. Casey will be pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Stratford; Rev. Sides will be pastor of Sts. Peter and Paul Church, Dumas, with its mission of Christ the King, Sunray, and its station in Cactus; and Rev. Otto will be associate pastor of St. Elizabeth's Church, Lubbock.

Rev. Bixenman was ordained in June, 1972 at St. Laurence Church, Amarillo, and was appointed associate pastor of St. Elizabeth's Church, Lubbock, in July, 1972, where he has served since that time. He was appointed co-director of vocation activities in the Diocese of Amarillo in January, 1977.

Rev. Otto was ordained in June, 1977 at St. Laurence Cathedral, Amarillo, and was appointed administrator of Sts. Peter and Paul Church, Dumas, in July, 1977.

Rev. Sides was ordained in March, 1973 at Our Lady Of Grace Church, Lubbock. He was appointed associate pastor of Our Lady of Grace Church in June, 1973, and was appointed pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Stratford, in October, 1976.

Rev. Casey was ordained in April, 1962 in Lowell, Mass. He served in St. Joseph's Parish, Amarillo; St. Anthony's, Dalhart; Holy Cross, Post; and Sacred Heart Cathedral, Petersburg, prior to his appointment as pastor of St. Joseph's, Lockney, in 1973.

CHURCH BRIEFS

Evangelist Roger Smets of Eureka, Calif., will preach at Calvary Temple Four-Square Church here at 922 34th St., at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday.

• • •

A spring revival meeting will be conducted at Lubbock's University Christian Church, April 23-26. Speaker will be Richard Sutherline, minister of the Central Christian Church of Clovis, N.M.

• • •

A Sunday School Rally of the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church will be held in Lubbock's First United Methodist Church, April 15. Persons from church schools throughout the conference will attend. Purpose of the conference is to help leaders in local churches.

• • •

A Gold Missions Thrust banquet will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 24 in Lubbock's Oakwood Baptist Church. Speakers will be Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cobb of Amarillo.

Tech Students Set Telethon

The Student Foundation of Texas Tech will sponsor the 1978 Senior Challenge Telethon to be held Monday through Thursday.

Four thousand Tech seniors will be called from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. during the four days and asked to pledge $10 a year for three years. The goal for this year's Senior Challenge Telethon is $10,000, according to Mary Ellen Harter, foundation director.

Donors may specify where their gifts will be used. Four major areas the money will help support area: recreational sports, freshman orientation, scholarships and academic recruiting.

Russians Pastor's Son Gets Sentence

MOSCOW (AP) — Pyotr Vins, son of imprisoned Soviet Baptist pastor Georgy Vins, was sentenced in Kiev Thursday to one year in a labor camp on a charge of refusing an official order to find work, dissidents said.

Vins, 22, a member of a Ukrainian human rights group, was arrested Feb. 21.

His conviction follows by a week those of two other Ukrainians, Miroslav Marinovich and Mikola Matusevich, who each were given terms of seven years plus five years internal exile for "anti-soviet agitation and propaganda."

Church News

NOAH'S ARK — The Noah's Ark Rally at Sunset Church of Christ will be held from 10 a.m. to noon today for fifth and sixth graders. Each person attending will receive a free Noah's Ark game. "Uncle Noah" will draw pictures of the children's favorite animals. A couple of movies will be shown. You will laugh at the puppets. Refreshments will be served. Theme will be "We can understand the Bible puzzle." The church is at 34th Street and Memphis Avenue.

Sisters Jeffries, Toelle Celebrate Golden Jubilees

SLATON (Special) — A Golden Jubilee celebration for two Sisters of Mercy will be held here today at Mercy Convent and at St. Joseph's Parish Hall here. Celebrating their Golden Jubilees will be Sister Mary Mercedes Jeffries and Sister Mary Clotilda Toelle.

The Jubilee Mass will be concelebrated by Bishop Lawrence M. DeFalco, and other diocesan priests. Family members from throughout Texas and New Mexico, Sisters from area convents, and others will join in the celebration.

A reception honoring Sister Mary Mercedes and Sister Mary Clotilda will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. at St. Joseph's Parish Hall.

A native of O'Donnell, Sister Mercedes entered the Sisters of Mercy at Stanton in 1928. After receiving her professional training at St. John's Hospital in St. Louis, Mo., she came to Slaton in 1934.

Except for four years spent as associate administrator of Mercy Hospital in Laredo, Sister Mercedes has remained at Mercy Hospital here for 40 years in various capacities.

Sister Mary Clotilda entered the Sisters of Mercy in Oklahoma City in 1928. She received a bachelor of arts degree from St. Louis University at St. Louis, Mo.

Her teaching career began in Oklahoma and spanned every grade from kindergarten to senior high, as well as being principal 20 years.

MEISTERSINGERS — A concert by combined groups from Lubbock Christian College, including this group, The Meistersingers, will be heard at the Sunset Church of Christ Sunday on "Bustin' The Building Day." Sunset members are working for more than 2,000 persons to be in Bible classes. The groups from LCC will include the A Cappella Chorus. Sunset Church of Christ is located at 3723 34th St. It will dedicate a new auditorium, May 1.

Noted Black Clergyman To Speak

Bob Harrison, a multi-faceted black man, who sings, plays the piano, preaches and witnesses for Christ, will be at two Lubbock churches Sunday.

He will be at Trinity Church at morning and 5 p.m. services at 7002 Canton Ave.; and at 8 p.m. will sing and preach at Christ Temple Church of God In Christ at 2411 Fir Ave.

He became known internationally with the Billy Graham Crusade Team as an associate evangelist for several years. He and his family spent two years in Asia, sponsored by Overseas Crusades.

A product of the ghetto in San Francisco, Bob Harrison is said to be "a man of, by, and for today."

He has traveled more than 2 million miles ministering on all six continents, most major countries, and all 50 states of the U.S. He is the author of two books "How To Lick The Race Problem," and "When God Was Black."

He received a commendation for spiritual contribution to Ethiopia by the late Emperor Haile Selassie in 1963. He was awarded an honorary Doctorate in Humanities by Sue Chow University in Taiwan in 1967. He received a humanitarian award for work with Hong Kong refugees in 1968. He was listed as the Outstanding Black Clergyman in the U.S. in 1967.

He has served as guest lecturer at several colleges and universities.

He and his wife and five children live in Canoga Park, Calif.

RETIRE AT 70

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed legislation extending the mandatory retirement age for most private employees to 70 instead of 65. The bill, which goes into effect at the end of this year, was passed by Congress two weeks ago. The Labor Department estimates that only about 200,000 people might remain in the private work force as a result of the new law.

BLUEPRINTS

Back of every well-built house is a set of blueprints. Without plans how would the electrician know just where to install the outlets and switches? How would the plumber know where the pipes belong? Would the doors and windows be located correctly?

With knowledge and vision, the architect designed the house. The workmen followed his specifications. No guesswork!

Without plans, life would soon be hit-or-miss. All our intentions must be founded on some vision of the course we are going to follow . . . the goal we want to reach.

A man's religion is his primary help in determining the right plan of his life. As he grows to understand the God who created life, he learns how life can be used to bring the greatest good and richest happiness to himself, his loved ones, his neighbors, his world. That vision guides his everyday planning. His plans are right because his aims are right!

By following God's blueprints, you can put an end to guesswork in your life.

Ambushers Wound Italian Industrialist

GENOA, Italy (AP) — An ambush team using revolvers with silencers shot and wounded a leading industrialist in this northern Italian port city Friday. It was believed to be another attack by the Red Brigades, the terrorist gang that kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro.

Felice Schiavetti, 51, president of the Genoa Industrialists Association, was shot by two men as he left his home for his machinery company. He was hit in the legs and right hand by the gunmen who approached from behind and then fled.

It appeared that the massive police manhunt for Moro may have driven other kidnappers deeper underground in this country plagued by kidnappings. Relatives of victims are making public appeals to kidnappers to contact them.

Ransom Reported

In a Rome newspaper ad, the wife of Duke Massimiliano Grazioloi, who was abducted last Nov. 7, said she had paid an undisclosed amount in ransom last month but her husband had not been freed.

"Even if in the last few weeks police controls have increased, you were bound at least to give us a sign that Massimiliano is still alive," she appealed to his captors.

A Rome moviehouse owner made a similar plea through an Italian news agency to the kidnappers of his 19-year-old daughter, grabbed in front of the family home two months ago.

No New Breaks

Police reported no new breaks in the three-week-old search for Moro and his abductors. Investigators announced that four leftist extremists arrested in a beach villa near Naples Thursday would be taken to Rome for questioning.

An 8-year-old boy and his father suffered burns Friday in a firebomb attack on a Rome office of the Social Democratic party. Extremists claiming responsibility for the attack said they were protesting the arrests of 41 persons in the city during investigations connected with the Moro kidnapping.

Police banned a major demonstration by student groups and more than 1,000 officers were deployed throughout the city to watch for any more violent outbursts.

Six Shots Fired

Police here said Schiavetti's attackers, who were described as between 20 and 30 years old and wearing dark green raincoats, fired six shots.

"I heard shots, then felt an awful pain in the legs," the father of seven said from his hospital bed.

"They did not certainly intend to strike me as a person but for the office I hold," he said. "For some time they had been speaking of the industrialists' association in their leaflets. But it is necessary to stay calm. We must continue to carry out our duty. It is the only way to defeat them."

Thirty minutes after the ambush, a male caller told a Genoa newspaper: "This is the Red Brigades. An armed group has shot Felice Schiavetti, servant of the state."

The Marxist revolutionary Red Brigades, believed to number several hundred, have mounted an escalating campaign of terror against Italian businessmen, political leaders and police in recent years. The March 16 abduction of Moro and other recent attacks appeared aimed at forcing the release of Red Brigades leaders on trial in Turin.

Moro's wife on Friday made the family's first public statement since the kidnapping, saying in a front page letter in the Milan newspaper Il Giorno she hoped her husband would be freed but that "we unhappily have no sign to comfort our hope."

"We would like, however, that he should know that we are close to him, that we live with him, moment by moment, the hours of these very long days, that we pray with him, that having, despite everything, confidence in men, we believe that it may still be possible, after so much pain, to embrace him again."

Carter Defers Output Of N-Bomb, Urges Restraint By Russia

neutron weapon.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services manpower and personnel subcommittee, said postponed production will hurt the NATO alliance. Nunn favored production of the weapon.

On the other side, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said he only would have been satisfied if the weapon system were canceled permanently. "When is enough going to be enough?" he asked.

Defense officials estimated that it would take six to nine months to produce the first neutron warheads if the president eventually decides to order them.

A White House official, who spoke to reporters on condition that he not be identified, said the administration isn't looking for any particular action on the part of the Soviets.

However, the official made clear that a pullback of the Soviet's nuclear-tipped SS-20 missiles, which are capable of hitting any European country, or a reduction of the Warsaw Pact's 16,000 tanks would be considered appropriate.

The official said the public attention focused on the weapon by the week's news reports had resulted in increased public support for its production. He said he believes that neutron weapons are now "5 percent more popular than peanut butter" among the American people.

The official said he believes this increased public support for the weapon has made it more likely that the Soviets will take the possibility of its production and deployment seriously, and in turn make them more likely to make concessions on arms.

Opponents of neutron weapons have argued that production of the warheads will only force the Soviets to deploy similar weapons and that the limited destructive power of the weapons would make it easier to escalate a dispute into a nuclear war.

Carter said in his statement that he had ordered upgrading of 8-inch nuclear artillery and the Lance missile nuclear warhead, "leaving open the option of installing enhanced radiation elements."

The White House official said that neither weapon is now capable of accepting a neutron warhead, and that even if Carter had ordered production there would have been delays in deploying the warheads of 14 months for the Lance missile and 30 months for the 8-inch shells.

American military officials have pushed for the neutron weapon as an "equalizer," to counter the Warsaw Pact's 3-1 numerical advantage in tanks.

The views of West Germany and the other NATO allies "were a factor in the president's decision," the White House official said. But he declined to say what the NATO countries had told Carter privately.

Carter's decision gives the administration the advantage of blaming the Soviets if it is later decided to deploy the weapons.

If the Russians fail to make arms concessions, and if the United States eventually goes ahead with neutron weapons, "it will be quite clear to all political factions within the alliance and indeed to the entire world" that the Russians are to blame, the official said.

Declining Joblessness Trend Suffers Setback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising unemployment among blacks pushed the nation's jobless rate up slightly to 6.2 percent, the first increase in seven months, the government said Friday.

Labor Department analysts said the increase from 6.1 percent in February was minor and that the unemployment situation was virtually unchanged.

However, the number of Americans with jobs rose 260,000 to a record 93.3 million, the department said. Most of the improvement was attributed to rehiring by factories which had layoffs during the severe winter.

Making the biggest gains last month were adult women. The department said women over age 20 outgained adult men two to one, both in looking for jobs and finding them.

Analysts said more women may have been encouraged to seek jobs to supplement family incomes. Women workers also have become more available because they have been staying single longer, have fewer children and are more educated, government studies have shown.

Although the trend has continued for years, the increase of 200,000 women in the labor force last month was larger than usual.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell attached little importance to the increase, saying the change was "too small to be significant." But he added that the employment report and Thursday's report of another increase in wholesale prices buttressed President Carter's argument that unemployment and inflation must be combated simulataneously. It "would be a mistake to change your opinion every month when the figures come out," Powell said.

Despite the increased job opportunities, the black unemployment rate grew from 11.8 percent to 12.4 percent, the department said.

About 39 percent of black youths between ages 16 and 19 were unemployed last month, an increase from 38 percent in February. Black adult women on the jobless rolls increased from 10.1 percent to 11.4 percent.

Economists had no explanation for these increases but said it often takes more than a month to establish the trend for black unemployment. However, black unemployment has shown little change over the past year, while total unemployment has fallen from a 7.4 percent rate to 6.2 percent.

The March unemployment increase was the first since a rise from 6.9 percent to 7 percent last August. Since then, it has dropped to 6.8 percent in September and October, 6.7 percent in November, 6.4 percent in December, 6.3 percent in January and 6.1 percent in February.

In March, the average worker increased his weekly hours from 35.8 to 36.1 hours, with most of the gains taking place in factories, the department said.

The department also said:

— Unemployment remained virtually unchanged for adult men at 4.5 percent, adult women at 5.8 percent and teenagers at 17.3 percent.

— The number of discouraged workers, or those who have given up looking for jobs, dropped from 1.1 million in the last three months of 1977 to 900,000 in the first quarter of 1978. All of the improvement was among women, the department estimated.

— Every major industry reported gains in employment in March as industry payrolls rose by 445,000, the largest increase since a gain of 461,000 in March last year.

— Average hourly earnings of production workers increased by 0.4 percent.

Teachers Rap Bullock For 'Gutter Talk'

AUSTIN (UPI) — Three high school government teachers Friday demanded Comptroller Bob Bullock publicly apologize for calling Attorney General John Hill a "son of a b——."

The three teachers at Del Valle High School said Gov. Dolph Briscoe also should apologize for the "guttersnipe language" Bullock used while campaigning for Briscoe's reelection in San Antonio Thursday.

"We call on all government and social studies teachers in Texas to join with us in repudiating this appalling, indefensible and totally inappropriate rhetoric," the three teachers said. "We instruct our students to participate in their government on a high level — proposing policies, debating issues and making intelligent choices as voters based on issues.

Jerome Singer, Oscar Zepeda and Tom Prentice signed the statement issued under the name, "Government Teachers for Decency in Politics."

"Mr. Bullock is the composite Haldeman and Ehrlichman of Texas politics and his abusive language is enough to make even Richard Nixon pale," they said.

Bullock, introduced to a group of San Antonio businessmen as Briscoe's "imported hit man," told reporters after his speech, "You have a choice between a man with six years experience and a proven record and a son of a b——."

"We categorically reject the notion that character assasination and personally insulting, abusive and reprehensible rhetoric has any place in a political campaign," Bullock's critics said Friday.

Movie Experiment Costly To School

MILWAUKIE, Ore. (AP) — The North Clackamas School District has paid $4,500 to the parents of an eighth-grader who watched the television movie "Helter Skelter" as a class assignment and claimed to have suffered psychological damage as a result, school officials said.

"We're not admitting liability," Donald Charles, school district superintendent, said Friday. "It was a matter of expediency, to avoid litigation and to avoid problems for the teacher."

The 12-year-old schoolgirl took a class on death last summer with 20 other junior high school and high school students at Milwaukie High School east of Portland, Charles said.

He said the teacher obtained signed releases from the parents of students before instructing them to watch the movie, based on murders committed by the Charles Manson clan in California, but the girl's parents were on vacation at the time and did not sign a release.

Canal Treaty Vote Clouded vote for the second treaty if Panama refuses to accept the U.S. right to intervention.

The March 28 letter from U.N. Panamanian Delegate Jorge Ernesto Illueca said the amendment was intended to "permit the United States to intervene in Panama in the event of labor unrest, strikes, a slowdown or under any other pretext labeled as interference in canal operations."

Stevens said it was clear that Torrijos was trying to generate an "international climate to disregard the amendment. The seeds of war are in the mechanism of the Panamanians in dealing with these treaties. We'll have the impression that we have the right (to take action to keep the canal open) and the Panamanians obviously are going to deny that the right exists."

Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., said the controversy "should not affect" the way senators vote on the second treaty.

The intervention provision was attached not to the treaty itself but to the Senate instrument of ratification. This parliamentary move was designed to keep Panama from having to resubmit the treaty to a popular vote. However, if Panama accepts the treaty, the provision will be binding. Proponents and foes both agree that Panamanian government rejection of the amendment would kill the treaties as well.

EXERCISES MOVED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Atlantic command has switched a major spring military exercise to the North Carolina-Georgia area after Puerto Rican protests caused cancellation of plans on Vieques Island.

1944 Air Collision Wreckage Found

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Two World War II fighter planes whose wrecks were found recently southeast of Fairbanks went down as a result of an air collision more than 34 years ago, the Air Force said Friday.

Remains of the two P-39 Airacobras were found on a ridge between Harding and Birch lakes some 50 miles from here.

Army crews went to the site earlier this week, but found no clue on the fate of the pilots.

Air Force historians said that records show the pilots bailed out safely. They declined to identify the airmen.

Rare Old Bible Brings $2 Million At Auction

NEW YORK (AP) — A rare Gutenberg Bible was sold at auction Friday for a record $2 million, and within hours was acquired by a West German museum.

The culture ministry of the West German state of Baden-Wuerttemberg announced in Stuttgart that it had purchased the 15th century work, the masterpiece of German printer Johann Gutenberg. The two-volume, leather-bound Bible will be exhibited at the state library in Stuttgart, the ministry said.

The $2 million price, bid at Christie's auction house by New York bookseller Martin Breslauer, was nearly six times the previous record for a printed book sold at auction. A double, large-size folio of Audubon's "Birds of America" was sold at Christie's last November for $360,000.

The ministry did not announce the price it paid, but officials said State Secretary Gerhard Weng and library director Hans-Peter Geh had been authorized to spend up to 5 million marks (about $2.5 million).

A spokesman for Christie's said Breslauer had been required to pay a 10 percent "buyers premium," making his outlay $2.2 million.

Both Weng and Geh were reported to be in New York, presumably dealing with Breslauer.

At the auction, Breslauer said he had discussed resale, but would not name the possible client or clients, saying the matter was "very, very secret, confidential."

Sources, however, had pointed to the Stuttgart library.

The purchase brings to 14 the number of Gutenberg Bibles at German institutions. The nation's most recent acquisition was made last month, when the Gutenberg Museum in Mainz paid $1.8 million to a New York bookseller for an incomplete copy. There are 12 copies in the United States.

The last Gutenberg Bible that was auctioned went in 1926 for $106,000. It is at Yale University in New Haven, Conn.

The Gutenberg Bible sold Friday is one of only 48 known to remain of the 185 Bibles printed with the world's first movable, metal type by Johann Gutenberg in Germany about 1450. And it is one of only 21 such Bibles that exist in their entirety.

Breslauer outbid San Francisco book dealer Warren Howell to obtain the copy put up for sale by the Episcopal Church's General Theological Seminary here. Bidding started at $500,000 and rapidly progressed in increments of $100,000.

"We're very satisfied for the seminary," said the Rt. Rev. Mellick Belshaw, a seminary trustee. "Proceeds will be set aside in a separate fund to endow the seminary library."

A Christie's spokeswoman said the auction house would earn 10 to 20 percent of the sale price in commissions.

The Bible was given to the seminary by a former dean, the Rev. Eugene A. Hoffman, 80 years ago. He had purchased it at a Sotheby auction in London for about $15,000, Christie officials said.

It comprises 641 pages measuring 10½ by 15 inches. The black, Gothic print of the Latin words is highlighted with red and blue initial letters, put in by hand.

Before the sale, Christie's announced that the Bible contained an error, detected only last week.

"A recent re-examination ... revealed that Johann Gutenberg and his associates printed one page twice, historically the first printer's error, ironically perpetuated by the first printer in the first printed book," the auction house said in a statement.

As a result, the statement continued, folio 279 was printed twice — once in its proper place and once in place of folio 272.

A standing-room-only crowd attended the sale and applauded the final bid before many rushed to congratulate Breslauer.

Federal Jury Deliberates In Kim Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Urged by a judge "to find the truth," a federal court jury on Friday began deliberating whether Hancho C. Kim plotted to bribe congressmen to curry their favor for Korea.

The six men and six women on the jury were told in a closing argument that the evidence showed that Kim got $600,000 for the conspiracy but that he then decided "why not keep it" for himself.

"I submit that is what Hancho Kim did," said assistant U.S. attorney John T. Kotelly.

The jury deliberated for two hours, then quit for the night.

Kim is charged in two separate counts with accepting the $600,000 to be used to corrupt congressmen "on behalf of the government of the Republic of Korea and its officials," and then with lying to a grand jury when he said he never received the money.

Each count is punishable by a maximum of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

It is the first criminal trial growing out of the Korean influence-buying scandal.

Kim operated a not-too-successful cosmetics business in Lanham, Md., a suburb of Washington, with his wife, Soonduk. The government said bank records showed he was deeply in debt until September, 1974, when he allegedly got the first $300,000 from an agent of the Korean CIA.

Defense lawyer David Povich suggested to the jury, but never presented any testimony, that Kim brought back funds from Korea to get himself out of debt.

Last American Passenger Liner Concludes Final Sea Voyage

By SUSAN AGER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — America's last ocean-going passenger ship, the sleek white S.S. Mariposa, tied up at Pier 35 here Friday, ending her final cruise and 160 years of American passenger ship service.

It was lonely at the end. There were no bands on the dock, no flowers from the air, no escort ships and no crowds. Most of the 334 passengers kept their streamers rolled up in their pockets.

"There's a lot of bitterness aboard about not having a nice welcome in San Francisco," said passenger Beth Van Gelderen of Santa Barbara. "People sort of expected San Francisco to say 'Welcome home' to the old girl."

But Wallace Shrimplin, marine superintendent for the financially troubled Pacific Far East Lines, said the line could not afford to whoop it up, even for the sake of sentiment.

"You know, we're under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act. We just couldn't spend any money," he said.

"It's a pretty trite expression, but it is the end of an era," he said, shaking his head as the ship's band played its final song, "Arrivederci Roma."

The 25-year-old ship, still gleaming white and blue with only traces of rust, will move today to Pier 19, where it will sit until someone buys it. The asking price is $2.5 million.

Regular long-distance passenger ship service began in America in January 1818, when the James Monroe sailed from New York to England.

Passenger ships had a heydey in 1849, when 777 ships docked at San Francisco alone, disgorging gold rushers and the ships' crews, most of whom never came back. Most of those ships rotted in the harbor.

Ocean cruises have been in vogue for the wealthy through most of this century. But high union wages for American seamen made it ever more difficult for domestic passenger lines to operate in the black.

Many of the passengers on the Mariposa's last cruise — an 18-day run from San Francisco to Honolulu and back — said they had sailed with the ship before and came along this time to say goodbye.

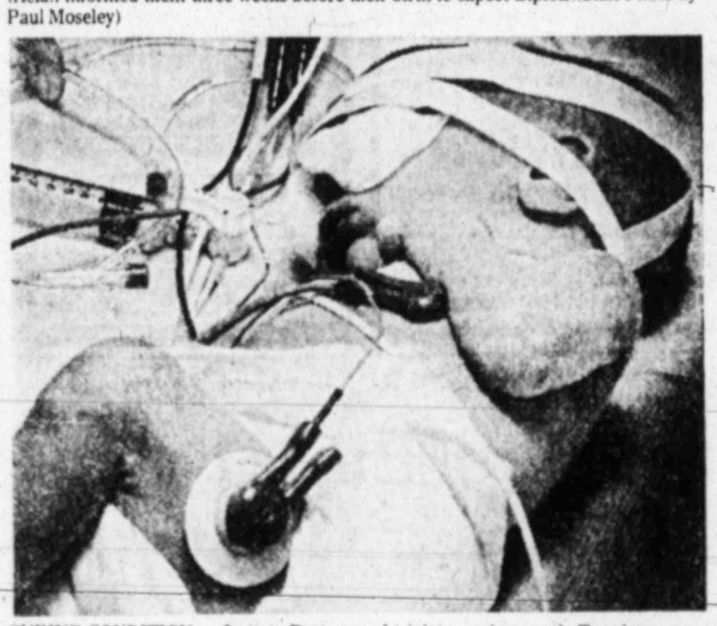
"We've been sailing on it for 20 years and loved it," said Anita Webb, 65, of Burlingame. "Now, I'll have to take a foreign ship, because I don't like to fly. But it won't be the same, because I have a soft spot in my heart for the Mariposa."

Passengers admitted they were taking home souvenirs from the ship — silverware, ashtrays and other knick-knacks — and said the crew had to lock up expensive wall decorations to prevent pilfering.

"It seemed like everybody was picking the boat apart, picking a dead carcass," sighed Don Van Gelderen, who conceded he'd taken "two or three small things."

But much of what might have been saved for posterity lies now at the bottom of the Pacific Ocean. Crew members said they dumped boxes of kitchenware, menus, vases, linen, flowers and other memorabilia overboard during a final riotous party Thursday night rather than unload it all Friday on reaching port.

TLC ADMINISTERED — Health Sciences Center Hospital licensed vocational nurse Patti Jenkins administered some tender loving care to little James Best recently. Mrs. John H. Best of Coahoma gave birth early Tuesday morning to triplet sons at the local facility and the Best triplets are in the facility's prenatal unit. Jerimia, who weighed 4 pounds 6½ ounces, was born at 1:17 a.m.; James, who weighed 4 pounds 6½ ounces, made his appearance at 1:18 a. m.; and Jonathan, who weighed 3 pounds 7 ounces, arrived at 1:19 a.m. The triplets are the Coahoma couple's first children. Their obstetrician informed them three weeks before their birth to expect triplets.(Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)



CURING CONDITION — Jerimia Best, one of triplet sons born early Tuesday morning to Mr. and Mrs. John H. Best of Coahoma at the Health Sciences Center Hospital, was born with a mild case of jaundice. The tubes linked to Jerimia contain medication for the condition, and his eyes are bandaged to prevent damage from the ultra-violet light used to treat the jaundice. The discs attached to the infant monitor his vital signs. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)

WATCHED OVER — Jonathan Best, one member of the first set of triplets born at the Health Sciences Center Hospital, is watched over by a nurse and physician in the Lubbock Health Sciences Center Hospital peri-natal unit. Jonathan, who weighed 3 pounds 7 ounces, was born at 1:19 a.m. Tuesday at the facility. The tube inserted in his mouth is to aid his respiration and the disc attached to his chest monitors his vital signs. The triplets, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Best of Coahoma, are said to be doing well in the facility. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley)

Teen-Ager Resting After Receiving Heart In Surgery

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A Massachusetts teen-ager who received a new heart at the Medical College of Virginia Hospital remained in stable condition Friday afternoon.

Brian Belleau, a 16-year-old high school junior from Dracut, Mass., was the 23rd person to undergo heart transplant surgery at MCV since May 1967. Six of the heart recipients survive.

The heart received by Belleau had been flown from Canton, Ohio, shortly before the operation began at 7:50 p.m. Thursday. The medical college would not reveal the identity of the donor.

An MCV spokesman said Belleau is one of "only a handful" of persons in the world in their teens or younger ever to have undergone the complex operation.

The youth suffered from cardiomyopathy, which causes the heart muscles to degenerate and the heart to become covered with scar tissue.

The condition was diagnosed a year and a half ago, an MCV spokesman said, and at the time of the operation Belleau's heart had enlarged to a size that could support a 600-pound man.

UT Students Lose Government As Regents Vote For Demise

GALVESTON (AP) — Student government at the University of Texas at Austin — a training ground for future politicians and an object of ridicule for many students — was abolished Friday.

UT regents voted to approve the results of a March 1 student referendum to wipe out the offices of student assembly, senate, court and executive branch.

Regents Jane Blumberg, Ed Clark and Jess Hay voted against approving the demise of student government.

Parts of the Students Association's constitution remain intact that would allow students to hold an election reinstating student government if enough signed a petition to call one.

UT-Austin President Lorene Rogers said she hoped a strong and effective student government could remain to represent students within the university community.

Both she and UT System President E.D. Walker recommended that the regents accept the results of the student referendum.

Walker was named acting chancellor of the system Friday, effective with the departure of Chancellor Charles LeMaistre to become president of the UT Cancer Center in Houston.

Regents said they would hire outside consultants to study possible reorganization of the system administration.

In other action, the regents:

— Approved affiliation agreements that will enable students in the UT-Austin School of Social Work to obtain direct experience by working with patients in the Bexar County Hospital District and the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

— Designated a site for a visitors information center near UT's McDonald Observatory near Fort Davis. It will be constructed within the right-of-way of Spur 78 halfway between the road's junction with Texas 118 and the UT property line.

— Accepted operating authority for the Southeast Fisheries Center at Port Aransas from the National Marine Fisheries Service.

— Made final plans to repair and enlarge the El Paso Centennial Museum on the campus of UT-El Paso. Cost of the job is estimated at $735,000. About 5,700 square feet will be added.

CORCO Loses $18 Million

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Commonwealth Oil Refining Co., Inc. (CORCO) reported Friday it had a consolidated net loss last year of $18 million.

That followed a loss of $32.1 million in 1976, company officials added.

CORCO filed a voluntary petition on March 2 under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Act.

"Administrative, accounting, legal and other non-productive costs have been extremely high during the past year due to CORCO's financial instability, and with the Chapter 11 filing, these costs will probably increase substantially," said Gary W. Davis, president and chief executive officer.

"The company obviously needs to reorganize and remove itself from Chapter 11 as rapidly as possible."

Davis attributed much of the 1977 loss to bad contracts related to joint venture operations, a $2-a-barrel supplemental import fee on crude oil and naphtha imposed by the Puerto Rican government and unfavorable, long-term marine charter agreements.

Davis also blamed much lower market prices for CORCO's principal petrochemical products and higher feedstock prices.

Hart Held In Jail Where He Escaped Twice

HIDEOUT — This tiny house tucked in the wooded Cookson Hill area of eastern Oklahoma is where Gene Leroy Hart was arrested for the slaying 10 months ago of three Girl Scouts. (AP Laserphoto)

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — Gene Leroy Hart, arrested in the sex slayings of three Girl Scouts, was sent Friday to a jail he escaped from twice.

HART

Hart had been brought to Mayes County Courthouse for arraignment, but the arraignment was put off until Tuesday by District Judge William Whistler to give Hart time to choose and confer with an attorney.

Hart, 34, was arrested Thursday, 10 months after the girls were killed. He spent Thursday night on death row in the state penitentiary in McAlester — "for his own protection," authorities said.

In court on Friday, District Attorney Sid Wise read the charges alleging that Hart killed Doris Denise Milner, 10, by strangulation and Lori Lee Farmer, 8, and Michelle Guse, 9, by "mortal blows to the head with a blunt instrument."

The judge then asked Hart if he was ready to select an attorney, and said he had messages from three lawyers who had either been approached about or were interested in taking the case.

"No sir, I am not ready," Hart said in a quiet voice.

Wise suggested the defendant be taken to the Tulsa County jail to allow him better access to Tulsa attorneys. Whistler asked if there were any objections to the Mayes County Jail, and Wise replied there were none. The judge then ordered Hart held without bond in the local jail.

Sheriff Pete Weaver said security at the jail would be tightened, and added that there have been telephoned threats against Hart since his capture.

Hart had eluded hundreds of searchers by hiding out in the Cookson Hills of eastern Oklahoma, which have harbored some of history's most wanted fugitives.

Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, gunman and bank robber; Belle Star, outlaw queen of the territorial days; the notorious Dalton Gang — all hid out in the hill country, covered by underbrush so thick that a man could walk within 30 feet of another person and not see him.

Hart, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, is an accomplished woodsman who knows the rattlesnake-and tick-infested woods the way a city dweller knows the route to work. The area is filled with his relatives, who are reluctant to talk to outsiders.

Hart was apprehended Thursday when agents of the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation kicked down the door of an isolated two-room, green frame home just 50 miles from Camp Scott.

"This is one of the most remote areas you've ever seen," said Dick Wilkerson, assistant director of the state bureau of investigation. "This is how Pretty Boy Floyd stayed away from lawmen so long."

He added, "You don't luck into anything in the Cookson Hills. You make your own luck by going out and kicking the brush."

Hart was captured in the home of Sam Pigeon Jr., described as a 60-year-old woodchopper. Pigeon was at work when the agents broke into his house, and Wilkerson said it has not been determind whether he will be prosecuted for allegedly harboring a fugitive.

Investigators do not believe he knew Hart was wanted, and Wilkerson said they doubt that Pigeon even knew about the killings.

The search got its biggest break in February. An anonymous caller said Hart was hiding in a cabin owned by a man who "received some type of check," determined to be a Social Security check.

Authorities decided to look for Hart when they found two photographs near the camp where the three girls were slain. Two of the girls were apparently bludgeoned to death and the third was apparently strangled. Authorities believed Hart, who had escaped from a county jail in 1973, had printed the photographs.

Walter Milner, grandfather of Doris Denise Milner, expresed "great relief" at Hart's capture.

"Maybe we can get some answers now that he has been arrested," he added. "I am not convinced that he is the one who committed the crime, but believe me it's a great relief knowing that at last they have something now."

Officers who accompanied Hart to prison said he was silent during the trip. They said the only comments he made were to acknowledge his identity and to object to the handcuffs the agents slapped on him.

Mobster's Tax Conviction Upheld By Appeals Court

CINCINNATI (AP) — The tax evasion conviction of reputed Detroit mob figure Anthony J. Giacalone was upheld Friday by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. In a unanimous decision, the appeals court rejected Giacalone's arguments that evidence in his tax evasion trial in 1975-76 in Detroit was tainted by publicity connecting him to the disappearance of ex-Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa.

Man Gets Life In Murder Case

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP) -A Great Bend man was charged in the January stabbing death of a Liberal waitress was sentenced to life in prison after changing his plea to no contest Friday.

Judge Keaton Duckworth of Seward County Distict Court sentenced John J. Edwards, 26, on the murder chage and imposed lesser sentences on five other charges.

Edwards would be eligible for parold in 15 years.

The murder charge resulted from the stabbing death of Beulah Purvis, who was stabbed more than 50 times after she left the motel and resturant where she worked.

The kidnap charge was filed after Edwards and another inmate in the Seward County jail, Mark Wilson, 27, of Lubbock Texas, locked Sheriff Howard Smith in a jail cell when they escaped in February. They were captured about three hours later.

Wilson pleaded guilty to kidnap and escape charges and was sentenced to concurrent terms of five years to life for kidnap and one to five years for escape.

Beauty Queen Graces Pageant

The reigning "Miss Texas-USA," Barbara Horan, will entertain during the title competition for "Miss Lubbock-USA," scheduled to get under way at 8 p.m. today at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Theatre.

Miss Horan, a 20-year-old junior at Southern Methodist University who hopes to be a model and pursue television work, will compete April 29th in the 27th Annual Miss USA Pageant, to be televised nationally on the CBS network.

Debbie Bowling, the reigning "Miss Lubbock-USA," who was 1st runnerup to Miss Horan for the Texas title, will also make an appearance at the pageant.

Tickets are $3.50, on sale at Dunlap's, Hemphill-Wells, Sears, Unique Imports and at the box office tonight.

Winner of the 1978 "Miss Lubbock-USA" title tonight will compete for the Texas title in El Paso with about 50 other contestants from cities throughout Texas.

The winner of the Texas title receives more than $21,000 in gifts and scholarships, and is provided with housing and a complete wardrobe during the year of her reign.

Competing in the "Miss Lubbock-USA" pageant today will be:

Kathy Ann West, Jan Williams, Sharon Kay Kelton, Teresa Lynne Russell, Elizabeth Hope Edwin, Cindy Greer, Kelly Whit, Donna Jean Nelson, Margaret Leslie Williams, Diane Davis, Karen Jan Shrimplin, Trudi Renee Lewis, Deborah Jean Stockdale, Barbara "Cathleen" Cross, and Debbie Henson.

Pageant judges will be:

Summer Bartholomew, Miss USA 1975, modeling school and fashion boutique owner who served as a judge at the 1977 Miss USA Pageant; Jim McBryde, photography studio owner in El Paso and official photographer for the Miss Texas-USA Pageant; Gary Bailey, El Paso attorney who is affiliated with the Miss New Mexico America Pageant and the Miss Texas-USA Pageant; Bill Maddox, Lubbock television personality; and Glynda Cobb, executive director of the Camp Fire Council of Lubbock and recipient of Lubbock's Woman of the Year Award for her volunteer and civic work.

The winner of the national competition, in the Miss USA Beauty Pageant in April, competes in the Miss Universe Pageant in the summer months.

Prizes awarded at the Miss Texas-USA event are valued at more than $34,000, according to sponsor Steve L. Bailey, who holds the franchise for the Miss Lubbock-USA Universe event. Guyrex Associates owns the Miss Texas franchise, granted them by Miss Universe Inc., New York.

The first Miss Lubbock-USA Pageant was in March of 1977 at the Hayloft Dinner Theatre, with a seating capacity of 300. This year's event will offer a seating capacity of 1,400 at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Theatre.

Miss Bowling, 1977 winner of the event, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Bowling of Port Arthur. As runner-up in the Miss Texas-USA event, she received a $300 cash scholarship, her trip to El Paso, her production outfit, valued at $150, and her Catalina swimsuit.

Area School Officials Agree To Land Transfer

MORTON (Special) — Representatives of the Morton and Whiteface Independent School Districts Friday agreed to transfer a strip of land, owned by Morton ISD, to Whiteface ISD.

The strip of land had been the center of controversy since the Cochran County School Board decision in March to allow the annexation of the land by the Whiteface ISD. The transfer is a necessary step in order for the Pep and Whiteface schools to consolidate.

Since state law requires the two districts to be contiguous, the Morton schools had been asked by Whiteface to relinquish a strip of land to make the Pep and Whiteface districts adjacent to one another.

Morton schools Supt. Marlin Dodds had estimated that approximately $2,500 in school taxes each year would be forfeited if the strip was annexed to Whiteface.

To help defer the tax loss, the Cochran County School Board Friday also ordered the Whiteface ISD to pay the Morton ISD $34,067 as "bonded indebted adjustment" in return for the land, said County Judge Glenn Thompson.

Thompson, who is the county school board's secretary, said Friday's meeting was "harmonious" and that members of both school districts are pleased with the arrangement. About 75 persons attended the meeting, he said.

Proposal Delegates Secretarial Courses

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A proposal to have Texas Tech business administration students receive university credit for courses taken at a local community college, dominated the discussion at the Tech Board of Regents meeting Friday.

Dean Carl Stem of the College of Business Administration asked the board to a proposal to allow business students to take secretarial administration courses at South Plains College's soon-to-be opened regional campus in Lubbock.

Stem said Business Administration was operating "under severe financial stress" and wanted to transfer the funds and staff being used to teach typing, shorthand, office equipment and procedures courses, to other areas of higher student demand within the college.

The regents also voted unanimously to increase residence hall rates for this fall by almost five percent.

With three members absent, board members approved raising the price for air-conditioned dorm rooms by $60 a year and by $50 a year for non-air-conditioned rooms.

The board also increased the different between the double-room occupancy rate and the single-room rate from $100 a year to $120 a year.

Tech housing officials said the rising cost of utilities, food and wages made it necessary to increase the 1978-79 dorm budget by $616,000.

Texas Tech President Cecil Mackey told the board the residence hall utility budget will increase by $216,500 next year, and state legislature-approved wage hikes and benefits will add $300,000 to wage and salary costs.

In addition, Mackey said, food price increases will tack on another $100,000 to the residence halls' upcoming budget.

The board also acknowledged the establishment of the Elo J. and Olga Urbanovsky Fellowship Endowment Trust in the Department of Park Administration and Landscape Architecture for fellowships in the doctoral program in land use planning, management and design.

A $4.8 million construction contract was awarded to the Herman Bennett Co. of Brownwood for the construction of a recreation building, pending the approval of additional information by the regents' building committee.

The board also approved affiliation agreements between Texas Tech School of Medicine and High Plains Nursing Home in Amarillo and Vista Heights Hospital in El Paso.

Board members also approved consolidation of the Amarillo Hospital District's medical library with the Texas Tech Regional Academic Health Center's library in Amarillo.

Absent from Friday's meeting were J. Fred Bucy Jr., Charles G. Scruggs and A.J. Kemp Jr.

Tech Regents Announce Urbanovsky Grant

By SALLY LOGUE
Family News Staff

"If it hadn't been for my wife, Olga, nothing would have been done. A fellow who thinks he can do it all himself is just plain crazy," said Elo Urbanovsky.

And Mrs. Urbanovsky has much to be proud of in her husband's accomplishments. Years of high academic performance and professional excellence have culminated in the establishment of the Elo J. and Olga Urbanovsky Fellowship Endowment announced Friday by the Texas Tech University Board of Regents.

The fund will provide a scholarship in the amount of $12,000 per year for a student working toward a doctoral degree in a land use planning, management and design program.

The endowment was provided by Urbanovsky, who assigned consultant fees in the amount of $75,000, which matches an earlier $75,000 grant by Laurence S. Rockefeller.

Horn Professor Emeritus Urbanovsky joined the faculty of Tech in 1949.

"Dossie M. Wiggins, (then Tech president) asked me to come here to landscape the campus. I agreed, but I didn't ask for any money, I figured he knew it would cost him.

"One of the first things we had to do was place that statue of Will Rogers. Well, they wanted it at the main entrance, and riding into the sunset. If we placed it that way, then the horse's rear faced downtown. That didn't go over too well with the men who were supporters of downtown, so we had to figure a way to turn him around," he said with a laugh.

When he came to Tech, the campus had only a few trees and very little grass. Now the campus is one of the most beautiful in the country. In naming him an honorary member of the Texas Society of Architects, the highest honor the Society can bestow, one society member said. "There is no question that the beauty of the campus as it is enjoyed...has inspired untold numbers to improve their own environment off campus."

Urbanovsky's professional expertise has earned him numerous awards including the Cornelius Amory Pugsley Bronze medal from the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society for his leadership and dedication to the principles of professional growth and preparation for public service, and for his work in conservation and education.

One of the highest awards, received by Urbanovsky in 1963, is the Pro Eccelsia Et Pontifice from Pope John XXIII.

During his tenure at Tech, Urbanovsky founded what is now known as the department of Park Administration and Landscape Architecture. The department has gained an international reputation through research studies and the performance of its more than 600 graduates working in nearly all of the 50 states and in three foreign countries.

Urbanovsky's influence has been felt not only by his actions but also through his character from which, Laurence Rockefeller said, there "ebbs an influence known for its determination, good judgment, design ability, appreciation for beauty and an ever-increasing imagination and desire to pass on to others the knowledge that is his."

These characteristics make Urbanovsky a hard task master in the classroom, but as one former student said, "he is a holy terror in the classroom but a real old softie." This affection his students feel for him is often demonstrated, and is best seen, when on occasion, students have applauded one of his classroom lectures.

Urbanovsky returns these feelings of affection for his students. "It always makes you feel so good when one of them (a former student) comes back driving a Cadillac and you're still driving a Ford," he said with a smile.

After 30 years as an educator, Urbanovsky has not lost sight of his main responsibility, his students.

"The professor who goes into a classroom without preparing is the biggest thief on earth. The kids are so smart, and so far ahead of a lot of professors, they have the instructor analyzed before they even get to the class."

With these ideals in mind and "as an expression of gratitude" to the school, this endowment was conceived.

Recipients of this scholarship can receive up to $12,000 for three years, enough time in which to complete a doctoral degree.

Recipients must have earned bachelor's and master's degrees in addition to at least three years experience in land use planning, management and design or in close allied fields.

After a period of three years, a faculty grant of $10,000 will be made available as often as every 10 years. The grant will assist a faculty member to further his or her study and work in the field of land use planning, management and design. As additional funds come into the endowment, additional faculty grants may become possible.

"I'm not interested in the number of professors or students aided by this grant, only in the quality of the people. The whole idea is to help these people become better professors."

Urbanovsky's character and abilities have endeared him to many noteworthy people including the Rockefeller family, artist Peter Hurd and the late president and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

Of Lady Bird he says, "She's a lady in every sense of the word. If I could pick a mommy, she's be the woman I'd pick. She's a vivacious woman with a keen interest in the outdoors."

Mrs. Johnson's interest in the outdoors led her to establish her beautification program during her stay in the White House. Urbanovsky has served on her committee for the past 10 years.

"When she first telephoned me I was out drinking a Coke and didn't believe it when they told me who had called," he recalled.

Urbanovsky believes that nature and plant life are the best catalysis for helping people to understand each other.

To demonstrate his point Urbanovsky tells the story of a group of men, all from different countries, who had gathered for a convention in Paris.

"We were in a garden outside of Paris and one of the gentlemen saw a rose that caught his eye and he began to tell everyone about it. Even though none of those men could speak the same language, they all could understand what the other was saying about that rose. Heck, even a mesquite bush can put us all together if we want it to."

Though he is now retired, Urbanovsky still serves in an advisory position to the University. Of his 30 year tenure at Tech Urbanovsky says, "I've had more fun than anyone. It just gives me so much enjoyment to see my kids be successful."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I'm a 52-year-old divorcee — much too old for this sort of thing. I accepted a job as bookkeeper for the husband of a dear friend who has had some bad financial reverses. I'm working at a fraction of my former salary because I want to help him get on his feet.

Our most important customer is an eight-handed idiot. He comes in at least five times a week, follows me around like a puppy dog and makes obscene remarks and passes left and right. The louse is getting bolder and bolder and I have been trying to make a joke of it — but it's not funny any more. (Never was, actually.)

If he wasn't such an important customer, I'd break his face. How can I get him to leave me alone and still be pleasant so we don't lose his business? — Tired Of Running

Dear Tired: If the future of your friend's business depends on the eight-handed idiot, you'd better lock the doors now.

The man didn't give the firm his account because of you and he probably will not take it away if you chill him — which you ought to do immediately. The longer it goes on the worse it will get.

• • •

Dear Ann: My husband and I have been invited to a wedding. The daughter of a long-time friend is being married. We will be out of town on the day of the wedding.

My husband insists that we are not obligated to send a gift since we will not attend the ceremony. I believe the mannerly thing to do is to send a gift regardless. Please settle this. After arguing for three days and getting nowhere, we have agreed to accept your decision. — Sickovit

Dear S.: The invitation was sent because they wanted your presence, not your presents.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Sleepless nights are a dime a dozen among people with money problems, people problems, or work problems. I have none of these, yet am plagued night after night with sleeplessness. No matter what time I retire, I am awakened about an hour later by a kind of shock effect in one or both legs just below the knee. Two EEGs and one brain scan showed normal, so I an not having seizures. Can you put me to sleep? — H.R.B.

Sounds as though you have the restless-leg syndrome (jitter legs), a problem that has defied most efforts to understand, much less cure, it. The symptom is a restlessness and discomfort of the lower legs, particularly after retiring. Various treatments have been tried with uneven results.

I might suggest you keep your legs warm under an electric blanket or use a hot-water bottle. Don't use an electric pad because long exposure while you are asleep might cause a burn. Others have found a little exercise (perhaps a short walk) before retiring is helpful. When awakened, try standing at the side of your bed and moving your legs about. This can shorten the time of discomfort.

You might also have a physician check your legs for proper circulation there. Massaging might help. It will be of little comfort to know that you are not alone, that many readers report the restless-leg syndrome. Sometimes elevating the legs during a siege will give relief. A woman reader once told me that had helped her.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will aspirin affect a person with gout? — D.J.

It shouldn't have any effect except for the easing of pain. However, there are better medications than aspirin if you have gout. Aspirin is not to be taken with certain gout medicines (probenecid or sulfinpyrazone). Aspirin will not cure or control it. It's a complex subject to discuss in this limited space, so I suggest you read my booklet, "Gout: The Modern Way to Stop It," for the full story. Send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is meant by the term "superinfection"? — M.M.

It's one superimposed over one being treated. For example, antibiotics may be used for a vaginal infection. This may change the balance of organisms in the membrane, allowing, say a yeast, to grow and take over. That is superinfection.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Thosteson, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Duplicate bridge has been held to be a game of skill in several courts of law, but no one will ever convince the unlucky expert that it isn't a game of luck and that the Gods of chance take special pleasure in victimizing him.

We'll let him tell the story of today's hand in his own inimitable fashion.

"There I was sitting West. It was the last hand of the game and all I needed was a fair score to win the tournament."

Our friend always uses the first person singular, except when talking about a partner's mistake.

"I picked up the usual collection of garbage I hold when I want to be able to decide my own fate and all I could do was pass while my opponents bid to six notrump. Mind you, six notrump — not six hearts. I made my safest lead — a heart. The queen was played from dummy. My partner took his king and declarer claimed the rest of the tricks.

"It was a well bid hand, but that didn't help me. Most pairs stopped at game. A few played six hearts. I had to defend against the one pair to bid six trump for a complete top score."

Colorado reader wants to know what a "Pianola" hand is?

A "Pianola" is a hand that is so easy that it practically plays itself.

Stop Smoking Clinic Set

Attitudes toward smoking are changing. In recent surveys of college students at Princeton and Harvard only seven percent of undergraduates this year are smokers — compared to 45 percent eight years ago. In the freshman class less than two percent are smokers. Students appear to be aware of the long term dangers of smoking, and are evaluating the information and acting on it.

If you would like to become a non-smoker, an opportunity to "Kick The Habit" will be offered April 10th through 14th at the American Lung Association building, 1961 Texas Avenue, Lubbock.

The 5-day plan to stop smoking will start at 7:30 each evening using materials produced by Elman J. Folkenbert, a minister of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, and J. Wayne McFarlang, M.D. The plan consists of group therapy sessions, films and a daily personal control program for home and work. It has been successful in major cities around the world. The Stop Smoking Clinic has been presented successfully in the Lubbock area over a period of 4 years.

L.J. O'Brien, M.D. will be present Tuesday April 11 to answer questions and counsel with the smokers attending.

A fee of $15.00 is charged for the entire course, which pays for a take-home booklet, other materials and for rental on the film used. Early registration can be made by calling Mrs. Doris Pate at 763-0951 or 795-0738.

On April 24, as a follow-up to the clinic and the Non-Smoker's Rights Forum, a Non-Smoker's Rights Group will be organized. The meeting will be held in the community room of the Mahon Library, 1306 9th St., at 7:30 p.m.

Chairman Named For Bike-A-Thon

Laurie A. Walker, fund raising chairman of the American Diabetes Association has been named chairman of the Lubbock Bike-A-Thon, according to Bill Davis, president of the Greater Lubbock chapter.

The Bike-A-Thon will take place April 30. Funds raised will support research and education programs of the association.

Those wishing to assist in the Diabetes Bike-A-Thon should contact Laurie Walker at 792-4597.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR FOLKS:
I have snapped green beans for years.

Today, for the first time, I learned a quicker, more sanitary way. (I was in such a hurry that I had to figure out something!)

I filled my sink with cold water, dunked the whole two pounds of string beans in the water, and sloshed them around with my hands. You should have seen the soil that was in that whole sinkful of water. I never knew beans had so much soil before.

Very carefully, I tilted the stopper in the sink, and let the water drain out. Then I replaced the stopper, turned on the cold-water faucet full force, and let the sink fill half full again. When I looked at the water!

We don't always know how much dust the beans have on 'em until we use this method.

Now, here is what is going to surprise you. Your beans will literally float on top of the water! Land o' Goshen, within one-third of the time it usually takes you to snap those beans, you can get it done this way.

Gently turn on the cold-water faucet, pick up a string bean with the left hand, hold it under the faucet, and snap both ends off.

Drop each broken end back into the sink.

Put the snapped string beans in the water in your cooking vessel. There is absolutely no need to break string beans into small pieces. Are you aware that canned whole string beans cost more?

After all the beans are snapped, gather up the ends and culls and discard them. If you have a disposal, you are lucky. Turn it on!

Drain the beans and fill the cooking vessel once more with water, pour this off for a last thorough rinsing, then add the necessary amount of water and seasoning to cook the beans.

You have saved one-third the time by using this new method of snapping beans, because the cold water makes them so crisp they snap much faster. — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:
Since you are the "Heroine of Homemakers," I feel comfortable to write and chat with you.

Your column has had a myriad of helpful hints over the years and I, for one, really appreciate your time and effort.

And when one of those "household helps" influences my husband, you've made all kinds of points.

Thanks for giving the title "Housewife" some special meaning. I'm proud to be of this chosen profession.

My life is far from being insipid. I really enjoy tending to my family's needs — they are my reward. — Mrs. Sandra J. Hulden

You're a luv and you sure nuff make me feel good.

Thanks heaps for the kind words. — Heloise

Scientist Says Oil Spill Worst Disaster Ever

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. (UPI) — The 220,000 tons of crude oil which spilled from the tanker Amoco Cadiz off the coast of France may be the worst ecological disaster in recorded maritime history, a federal scientist says.

"I don't know of any acute event of this scale in the world's oceans. It was a tragic event and something I don't want to see again," said Dr. Eric D. Schneider, director of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency research laboratory in Narragansett.

Schneider, just returned from France after viewing the spill, said Thursday it contaminated 150 miles of coastline "as the crow flies," but probably 750 miles of shore when bays, estuaries and marshes are tallied.

"It's probably the largest ecological impact the oceans have seen in recorded history," he said.

The American-owned supertanker ran onto reefs a mile from the coast on March 16 when its steering was disabled in a storm. The spill was 2.5 times the size of the 1967 spill from the tanker Torrey Canyon, which foundered off Plymouth near the southwest tip of England.

"If the spill had occurred here, Narragansett Bay would have been devastated," Schneider said. He said mankind must make sure "that this sort of event must never happen again."

No major cleanup is possible because of the spill's magnitude but small, antlike efforts are being made by Brittany's citizens, Schneider said.

He estimated the Persian crude oil is mixed with water to depths of 100 feet out in the ocean and said dead bottom-dwelling organisms are now washing ashore.

Schneider, three other scientists from the EPA lab and several others from around the country, arrived in France over Easter weekend when the area's tourist activity was to begin at hotels and beaches.

He returned Monday night and reported Wednesday to EPA Admninistrator Douglas Costle in Washington.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Except for early in the day when you could get involved in an necessary and unfortunate argument, the rest of the day is fine for getting into the specifics of plans of actions. Fine time for entertainment and romance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't give way to emotionalism or you lose out where it counts the most, particularly where money is concerned. Listen to what a financial expert has to suggest.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you are not too demanding about some special favor early, you can then gain it later easily. Handle some business matter with know-how. Group affairs are fine at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get rid of an annoying situation and then confer with an adviser who can help you attain a private aim. Evening can be most happy with a good friend. Avoid extravagances.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Forget that upsetting situation with a friend and have a good time with others. You are able to gain personal aims with speed now. Do what you can to improve appearance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Steer clear of a bigwig who is not in a good humor. Later you can make big strides where advancement is concerned. Seek out persons who can help you with support for your aims, projects.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make arrangements now for a trip you are planning. Don't lost your temper with anyone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't argue with a close tie as any misunderstandings will clear up later in the day. Keep those promises you have made and gain goodwil.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A partner is very difficult in the morning, but later is just the opposite and all goes well. New conditions present themselves that can be fine for you. Be clever.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The morning may be slow but later all picks up and get a good deal accomplished. Try to establish more harmony with co-workers. Avoid one who has devious motives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact good friends early and set up appointments for recreation later in the day. Seek information that will make your creative ideas workable. Take time out for some reading.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to come to a better understanding with family and have more harmony. Study a new project from every angle before you get into it. Go out with good friends.

City Manager Raps Marshall's Lawsuit

City Manager Larry Cunningham Friday denounced a Lubbock man's lawsuit seeking to hinder the sale of airport revenue bonds.

"It would be regrettable if one person could again interfere with the progress of a city of 175,000 citizens and block the city council's efforts to meet the needs of the community," Cunningham said in a statement which he and Mayor Dirk West drafted.

The planned bond sale, which was approved Wednesday by the city council, will proceed as scheduled "until all legal recourses have been exhausted," Cunningham said, adding the city plans to secure the earliest possible hearing in the case.

James G. Marshall prompted the statement by filing a lawsuit Thursday, asking 237th District Court Judge John McFall to halt the bond sale. In his petition, Marshall, who recently lost a mayoral bid, claims the ordinance authorizing the sale was not approved properly and that proper accounting funds were not set up.

The city plans to sell $1.73 million in revenue bonds to finance airport parking lot expansion.

According to state law, revenue bond sales do not need voter approval, something Marshall claims in his suit the city neglected to secure.

Cunningham said if the case is not settled quickly, the city may end up paying far more than it has bargained. New bids may have to be taken, he explained, which may mean a higher interest rate.

And, he added, he has been told that construction costs increase about 1 percent each month.

After noting that passenger boardings at the airport have more than doubled since 1970, the city's official statement warned if the parking lot project is delayed, "It would result in the inconvenience of thousands of passengers, whether they be executives flying on a business trip, families going on vacation or Texas Tech students flying home for the weekend."

Parking spaces "are already at a premium," the statement added.

The city also noted Marshall's past legal endeavors to block bond sales.

"Many of the allegations in the suit against airport financing are virtually identical to those appearing in some of the 14 or 15 earlier suits filed by Mr. Marshall," it said. "The courts have repeatedly upheld the City of Lubbock in those earlier cases."

Marshall last summer sued the city to stop the sale of general obligation bonds approved by voters in May 1977. Proceeds from the $26.4 million in bonds are to finance water, street, sewer and fire-fighting system improvements.

The City Hall critic contends the ordinance authorizing the election is too vague. After a 99th District Court judge upheld the election's validity, Marshall appealed the case.

The suit is pending before the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo.

Because of the litigation, none of the general obligation bonds can be sold, according to state law. Cunningham said the same fate will await the airport revenue bonds unless the suit is settled quickly.

Red Cross Meeting Set

The Board of Directors of the Lubbock Chapter of the American Red Cross will meet in open session at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the chapter office, 1313 Ave. L.

Agenda items will include chapter by-laws revision and policy development for the first aid program. The board also will hear various committee reports, according to Dr. Bill Dean, board president.

The meeting is open to the public and all Red Cross members.

Silverton Plans Weather Alert

A-J Correspondent

SILVERTON — A weather warning system will be installed soon on the Silverton Cable TV system. The total cost of new equipment to be installed is $2,300.

Civil Defense will pay one-half of the cost and the city of Silverton will pay $400. The Silverton Volunteer Fire Department has agreed to pay the balance.

The warning system will operate similar to that used by the National Weather Service offices, except that there will be no accompanying picture of the person speaking.

When it is necessary to make weather announcements, a beeper will alert the audience of the message to follow. Then, the voice, which will probably be that of Jerry Patton, will describe the weather situation on all five of the cable TV channels simultaneously.

Whoever makes the announcement will have been in touch with the National Weather Service by telephone, the Texas Department of Public Safety and local weather observers by two-way radio, and will be describing the situation from the local point of view.

The equipment is very costly, and local firemen are donating the pay they would normally receive for fighting fires ($3) and for attending practice ($2).

Anyone who would like to donate to that part to be paid by the Volunteer Fire Department may do so at Silverton City Hall.

SOLONS STUDY BUDGET

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional budget committees are preparing a tentative blueprint for the nation's taxing and spending for the year beginning Oct. 1 with the prospect of a budget-busting farm bill hanging over their heads. The House Budget Committee finished work on its version Thursday night. However, the recommendation provides only about $2.5 billion to cover the cost of farm relief legislation nearing final votes in Congress. The Congressional Budget Office estimates $5.7 billion is needed. The Senate budget committee is continuing work on its version.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. We are a couple in our mid-30s with $8,000 in savings certificates earning 7½ percent. We are now selling a $14,000 property. Should we use the proceeds to pay off a $14,000 mortgage (6.9 percent) on our home, or put it into another savings certificate? Or —?

A. I favor "or-?"... because:

1) There is no reason for a young couple to pay off a 6,9 percent mortgage. Let the mortgage lender fret about getting only 6.9 percent on his money in this much higher money market.

2) Insured savings certificates make a fine, "riskless," repository for money (that is, "riskless" except for the steady decline in the dollar's purchasing power) but a young couple must put some money out as hostage to the future. Since you don't mention any interest, or "know-how" in real estate, antiques, rare coins, etc., I would suggest common shares in leading U.S. corporations.

• • •

Q. Some land I bought eight years ago can now be sold at a much higher price. How can I avoid paying a capital gains tax? Could I do so if I invested the proceeds in municipal bonds?

A. Since the property involved is not your name, the profit is a straight out long-term capital gain, and therefore half of that profit must be added to your taxable income. Reinvesting the money in municipal bonds would now give you tax-free income in the form of bond interest, but it would have no bearing on the tax liability resulting from the capital gain on the land.

You might ask your attorney or tax accountant about arranging the terms of the sale so that you get only a portion of the proceeds in any one year. But however you slice it, it's a taxable gain.

• • •

Q. I understand that some municipal bond interest may not be exempt from certain state and city income taxes. How do you get around that?

A. Most states and cities do not exempt interest paid by municipal bonds issued in other states. Some states do not exempt interest paid by bonds issued even in their own states. You have to ask before you buy.

However, in recent months, the mutual fund business has offered special intrastate funds (in those states that do exempt municipal bond interest). By restricting their portfolios to in-state issues, an investor enjoys exemption from all federal, state and any local income taxes. Ask your broker.

• • •

Q. We have about $20,000 to invest for tax-free income. Can you advise on an issue?

A. Sorry, no -no more than I could suggest which vegetable happens to be a "best buy" today at your corner greengrocer. Municipal bonds are traded daily, but that doesn't mean every issue is always available or enjoys the same market liquidity we except when considering common shares of AT&T and General Motors. You must go to a broker who deals in municipals and ask, in effect, "What's around that's good?"

• • •

Q. I am interested in studing mutual funds — especially the no-loads — with the thought they might be my best investment vehicle. Would you please suggest some source material?

A. Four that come to mind, and which should be available in most libraries with financial divisions are: Wiesenberger Investment Companies Service, published by Warren, Gorham & Lamont, of 870 Seventh Avenue, New York City; the Mutual Funds Annual Almanac and the Mutual Funds quarterly "Scoreboard" published by the Hirsch Organization, 6 Deer Trail, Old Tappan, N.J.; the Mutual Fund Directory, published by Investment Dealers Digest at 150 Broadway, New York City, and, for information on the fund industry as a whole, the Investment Company Institute's publications from 1775 K Street N.W.; Washington D.C.

Other periodicals of more general financial nature also devote considerable space to mutual funds — the Wall Street Journal, Barron's Forbes, Financial World, etc.

Mistrial Granted; Snoozing Denied; Lawyer In Trouble

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Attorney Elihu Berman said the judge was snoozing through the testimony and asked for a mistrial. Granted, said Judge John S. Andrews, but he denied he had been asleep and ordered Berman held in contempt of court.

Andrews, 45, said Thursday that in addition to holding Berman in contempt, he told him to take his complaint about snoozing to the Judicial Qualifications Commission.

"I had no choice," the Pinellas Circuit judge said of declaring the mistrial. "Whenever personal attacks are made on you, it's difficult to remain impartial."

Berman said he wasn't making a personal attack.

"It's not contempt of court for me to ask for a mistrial on grounds that the judge was asleep," Berman said. "As an officer of the court, if I didn't believe he was asleep and that I could prove it, I would not have made that motion ... I thought my client was not getting a fair trial."

The incident occurred during a civil action March 22.

Judicial Meeting Mulls Opinion

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Two recent cases — one which struck down parts of the Texas Family Code, the other a controversial one concerning judicial immunity — were discussed Friday during the closing session of the West Texas Judicial Conference here.

The conference, conducted at the Holiday Inn, drew some 40 state district judges and is expected to become an annual event.

Friday, Fort Worth Juvenile Court Judge Scott D. Moore discussed problems raised by a recent Houston federal court decision dealing with custody hearings for children.

The decision — portions of which are being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court — says state child welfare workers cannot take custody of children whose parents are suspected of abusing them without a hearing being held within 24 hours.

There is a controversy over whether the 24-hour limit should be in effect during weekends, when judges and attorneys might not be available.

Many judges across the state feel the decision may tie the hands of welfare workers who suspect abuse, requiring them to leave a child in the custody of its parents or guardians during a weekend even though the child may be in danger.

"I have issued a blanket order to the director of our local unit authorizing workers to hold children until a hearing can be granted on Monday," Moore said.

Moore said he did not believe the problem would arise too frequently, however.

"In Fort Worth, we have only four or five such cases per month — in Houston, I'm sure they would have more," he said.

The juvenile judge also indicated he does not feel the new mandatory hearings will make substantial inroads on judges' dockets and time.

"Normally, the hearings can be held in five to 10 minutes. My regular docket begins at 8:30 a.m., and I usually handle the hearings before it."

The judge noted that in such cases a subsequent hearing, giving an opportunity for presentation of all the evidence available, is held within 10 days anyhow.

Another speaker Friday, Cullen Smith of Waco, president-elect of the Texas Bar Association, said the doctrine of judicial immunity had apparently been strengthened by a March 28 landmark Supreme Court decision.

In that controversial case, a mother presented a petition to an Indiana judge requesting authorization to have her 15-year-old daughter sterilized.

The mother stated her daughter was "somewhat retarded" and had been associating with "older youth or younger men," staying out overnight with them on several occasions.

The circuit court judge, reportedly without appointing an attorney ad litem for the child, approved the request.

According to Smith's account, the daughter was taken to a hospital where, she was told, her appendix was to be removed. The girl was reportedly released several days later, unaware of the true nature of the surgery.

The young woman married about two years later, was unable to become pregnant and then was told the facts of the surgery.

The young woman and her husband filed suit against her mother, an attorney, doctors and the hospital, as well as against the circuit judge.

An appeals court first ruled the judge did not have judicial immunity, but that decision was overturned by a 5-to-3 Supreme Court vote March 28.

The majority opinion noted there was no state statute or case law in 1971, when the event transpired, prohibiting a court of general jurisdiction from considering a petition of the type presented to the judge.

"A judge is absolutely immune from liability for his judicial acts, even if his exercise of authority is flawed by the commission of grave procedural errors," one justice wrote.

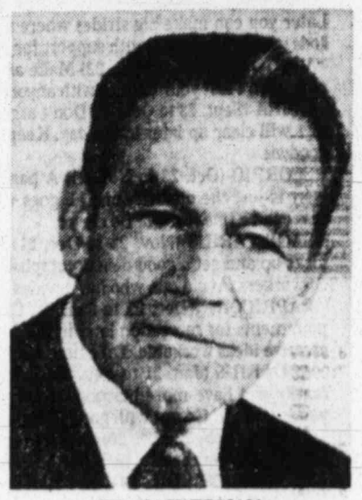
The opinion said disagreement with the judge's action did not justify depriving him of immunity.

Smith said Friday he feels judges could benefit more from studying the dissenting opinions in the case than the majority comments.

He particularly noted the comment of Justice Lewis Powell that a judge is not free, "like a loose cannon, to inflict indiscriminate damage" whenever he announces he is acting in a judicial role.

Smith said vigilance in spotting and removing corrupt judges from office is a strong safeguard for the judicial immunity doctrine.

Rice President Chosen As Graduation Speaker



DR. HACKERMAN

Dr. Norman Hackerman, president of Rice University and chairman of the National Science Board, will deliver the principal address at Texas Tech University commencement exercises May 12, in Jones Stadium.

Ceremonies for the individual colleges will be held on the following morning, May 13.

Widely regarded as one of America's most distinguished scholarchemists, Dr. Hackerman has been awarded the 1978 Gold Medal of the American Institute of Chemists, one of the most significant awards in chemistry in the United States.

The recipient of many awards, Hackerman received the 1956 Whitney Award of the National Association of Corrosion Engineers for his important contributions to the advancement of corrosion science.

In 1964 he received the Joseph L. Matiello Award and was named the 1965 Palladium Medalist by the Electrochemical Society. He also received the Southwest Regional Award of the American Chemical Society in 1965. In 1975 he was awarded the Honor Scroll of the Texas Institute of Chemists.

Hackerman is author and co-author of more than 170 publications. For over two decades he has served as editor of the "Journal of the Electrochemical Society," one of the oldest American journals in the chemical science area.

While carrying a heavy academic load, Hackerman has devoted much of his energies to teaching. He has been a pioneer in the application of modern techniques to electrochemistry. Hackerman and his students have provided fundamental insight in to proceses which occur at electrodes during electrolysis reactions.

Hackerman has held teaching position at Rice University, The University of Texas at Austin, Loyola College at Baltimore, and Virinia Polytechnic Institute at Blacksburg, Va.

A native of Baltimore, Hackerman received the A.B. and Ph. D. degrees from Johns Hopkins University. He holds the honorary degrees of LLD from St. Edwards University, Austin, and the D.SC. from Austin College, Sherman.

Florida Physicians Sue For Medicare Privacy

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The 11,000-member Florida Medical Association has sued to prevent public disclosure of Medicare payments made to doctors and their patients.

FMA President Louis C. Murray said Thursday the federal court suit opposes a decision by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to compile and disclose the money doctors and patients have been paid under the federal Medicare program. The suit, which seeks a temporary injunction until the case can be heard, claims releasing the information would be in violation of the Privacy Act of 1974.

Strippers Dress (Almost) For New Nashville Law

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Many strippers in Nashville's Printers Alley nightclubs planned to don pasties and G-strings Friday night as police begin enforcing a new anti-nudity ordinance.

But a stripper known only by the name Galatea will just grin and bare it.

"The other girls will be wearing pasties and full bottoms," said Ken Talley, manager of the Classic Cat II, where the woman dances. "Now, Galatea, she's got a very professional show. She's traveled all over the world and her act is very professional."

The ordinance, passed Tuesday by the Nashville Metropolitan Council, permits certain portions of the human body to be exposed in connection with "serious scientific, literary, political or artistic merit."

But Paul Uselton, assistant police chief, said any exotic dancer found without a G-string and pasties will be subject to arrest, along with the nightspot owner.

Conviction under the ordinance would subject them to fines of up to $50 each.

Copies of the ordinance were delivered Friday to Skull's Rainbow Room, the Blank Poodle Lounge, the Red Lion Lounge, the Classic Cat II, Ellwest Stero Theater and Adult World Cinema by members of the vice squad.

"Sure, we're going to comply," said David "Skull" Schulman, who runs the Rainbow Room. "We can't do anything but go along with this until somebody takes it to court."

And there were moves to take it to court.

Price Nimmo, attorney for the Classic Cat II, said he was trying to get several club owners and attorneys to pool their resources to fight the ordinance.

Sears Plans Stock Issue

CHICAGO (AP) — Sears, Roebuck Co. said Friday it is proposing to issue up to 50 million new shares of preferred stock and 100 million shares of common stock.

The world's largest retailer also wants to make a new stock option plan available for key employees.

The proposals will be put to a vote of stockholders May 15 at the firm's annual meeting.

Edward R. Telling, chairman and chief executive officer, said in a statement the company hopes the proposed measures will increase "flexibility in the company's capital structure" and in the administration of the company's total compensation program.

The plan would increase to 500 million the maximum number of common shares. This would be the first time in more than 50 years the company would offer preferred stock. The par value of common would be 75 cents a share and preferred would be $1.

"The board believes that the authority to issue additional common and preferred shares will provide desirable flexibility in the company's capital structure and will allow the board to act without delay at such times and for such purposes as it deems advisable," a proxy statement mailed to shareholders said.

The stock option proposal would offer up to 7 million shares to key employees of Sears and its subsidiaries for 10 years. The purchase price could not be less than the fair market value on the date the option was granted, Sears said.

MORE PART-TIMERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study conducted for the Labor Department shows that businesses are hiring increasing numbers of permanent part-time workers. The report says these workers tend to be more productive and dependable and less costly than full-time employees.

Television Show Views Funeral Home Frauds

Large numbers of the nation's 22,000 funeral homes have been overcharging the public; misrepresenting public health and legal requirements for funerals; and acting in concert to limit the availability of low cost funerals, according to a five-year investigation by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

"Consumer Survival Kit" looks into these and other findings at 4 p.m. today on KTXT-TV, Channel 5.

This special program not only warns consumers of possible ripoffs, it also examines alternatives to the standard $2,000 funeral and the memorial society movement that is dedicated to obtaining simple and dignified funerals for members.

Consumer Survival Kit's staff of researchers found that memorial societies are the consumer's best source of information on funeral alternatives such as cremation and other inexpensive options. There are 750,000 members of these 150 consumer groups located in 42 states. Lifetime membership costs a nominal fee of $10 to $20.

Memorial societies often have negotiated contracts with cooperating funeral directors who provide low-cost services.

Lubbock's Area Memorial Society, chartered in April 1974, serves a 100-mile radius. It is a non-profit, consumer group working to promote economy and simplicity in funerals. It encourages its members to pre-plan their funerals, and offers information on alternatives to the conventional funerals. Address of the Society is Box 6562, Lubbock, Tex. 79413, telephone 792-0367, or 795-0592.

The "Consumer Survival Kit" program on funerals will be repeated at 11 a.m. Monday, April 10, over Channel 5.

Language Classes Aired On Public TV

NEW YORK (AP) — The sixth-period language arts class at Ellington High is the scene Saturday night of "Watch Your Mouth," a new Public Broadcasting Service series.

Although the 10-part series of half-hour programs is billed as an educational drama-comedy, it's far from being a classroom bore.

On the contrary, "Watch Your Mouth" is an entertaining and informative look at high school students in a multi-racial urban setting.

Under the tutelage of Raymond Geeter — played by Joseph Morton — the 10 students in the class learn basic language skills, the kinds of skills that will enable them to communicate more effectively with each other and with people who speak what might be called mainstream English.

The show is based on the thesis that young people of ethnic and minority groups often speak their own, non-standard English which, while effective in their own communities, isolates them from the larger community.

Ellis B. Haizlip, the series' Emmy-winning executive producer, refers to the show's situation drama-comedy format as an "ed com." The classroom format was especially designed to attract and hold the attention of the 14-to 17-year-old target audience which, studies show, prefers dramatic and family situation programs with characters their own age.

Perhaps the best tribute that can be paid to the educational level of "Watch Your Mouth" is that often the drama and the lesson are one. One episode entitled "On Being 17, Bright and Unable to Read" tells the story of a teen-ager, played by David Harris, who loves language but suffers from dyslexia, a reading impairment. The episode is a lesson in Langston Hughes, Mark Twain, dialect, colloquialism and young people's sympathy for a classmate.

PBS will air the program at 11 p.m. Saturdays, immediately after "Sound Stage," which also appeals to the teen-age audience. Local telecasts vary.

Mr. Geeter and his regular students are joined by guest artists like Sarah Dash, Ruby Dee, Alfred Drake, Frances Foster, Stephanie Mills, Paul Roebling Jr. and Gretchen Wyler.

"Watch Your Mouth" was completed under a $1.8 million contract, awarded after competitive bidding, by the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare.

SOLAR ENERGY SATELLITE PROPOSED — The Sunsat Energy Council, a Washington-based non-profit organization to encourage the development of solar power satellites, released Thursday this rendering of a proposed system designed to trap the sun's rays from earth orbit and beam electrical energy back to receiving antennae on earth in the form of microwaves. The system, shown being deployed by NASA's space shuttle, should be capable of generating enough electricity to power a city the size of New York as early as 1995. (AP Laserphoto)

'Elvismania' Money Prompts Scholar To Sell Memorabilia

By United Press International

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Ed Rains quotes from T. S. Eliot while peddling Elvis Presley trinkets.

That's how the 32-year-old holder of degrees in history, philosophy and English justifies his profession as a hawker of rock n'roll memorabilia.

"I was measuring out my life in coffeespoons," Rains said, paraphasing a verse from Eliot's "Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock," to explain why he left a professional post in county government for the Elvis business.

Now working out of a portable building at a used car lot on Elvis Presley Boulevard, Rains admits that money had a lot to do with his decision.

"I won't try to defend this thing that I am doing as culturally worthwhile," he said as he looked around at the fans picking through the Elvis bumper stickers, belt buckles and alarm clocks. "But I speak their language well. An intelligent person can watch this with a great deal of interest."

What Rains and numerous profiteers are watching is the spread of "Elvismania" throughout the country.

Presley fans have been in abundance ever since his swiveling hips and rock n'roll sounds sent bobby-soxers squealing in the '50s. But the Elvis worshippers, who once hoarded money to bankroll their trips to his concerts and movies, now have no king to follow.

So they buy their memories.

"The day he died my partner called me and said 'There's a lot of money going to be made'," Rains said. "And we might as well make it."

That apparently was a thought shared by many.

Almost immediately classified ads began appearing in newspapers across the country with offers to sell 1957 Elvis Presley charm bracelets, his first records made on the Sun label, scarves that he tossed out at concerts and an assortment of other goods linked with the Presley life.

Factors Etc. Inc., a Bear, Del. firm, bought the exclusive marketing rights to the Presley souvenirs from Vernon Presley, Elvis' father, and Tom Parker, his business manager, for $100,000 and began licensing products. The offers are innumerable — and so are the prices.

At a memorabilia fair held in Memphis in January, on what would have been the singer's 43rd birthday, the wares ranged from 25-cent packages of bubble gum, containing Elvis pictures, to $500 gold medallions emblazoned with the sultry Presley profile.

There were ceramic decanters that look like hound dogs and play "Love Me Tender" and trash cans with the lament "The King Lives Forever."

Bumper stickers, offered by Rains' shop, extol the Presley fans to remember "The King is gone but his memory lives forever — Elvis lives through his music," and for only $3, anyone can have the special edition of the Commercial-Appeal and Press-Scimitar — one the Memphis newspapers sold for 50 cents.

Newspaper and magazines across the country carry offers of a $20 silent, 8 mm movie showing Elvis getting his crewcut before he entered the Army, marrying Priscilla Beaulieu in a Las Vegas hotel suite and on stage with Liberace. For just $6, fans can buy a ticket to a concert that will never be held — Elvis last "unplayed" concert of Aug. 22, 1977.

Freelance hawkers are also cashing in on the Presley memory. They are seen often at the gates of Graceland, Presley's home in Memphis where he is now buried. They come to sell newspapers that announced Presley's sudden death last Aug. 22 for $25 — making a $24.85 profit.

But the fans — approximately 130,000 of whom have visited Graceland since the graves of Presley and his mother were opened to the public last November — are willing to give up whatever it takes for a remembrance.

An Alabama man who drove to Memphis for the birthday celebration was ecstatic because he had gotten an original Presley Christmas album — for only $100.

Street signs at the intersections along Elvis Presley Boulevard were in such demand that city officials had to replace all 34 of them after fans ripped them from the posts.

"These are the relics," Rains said, trying to explain the dogma of the Presley cult. "Presley, in a sense, is a latter day saint."

Dennis Wise, a former Hawaii car salesman, apparently agreed. His devotion to Presley was so intense that he paid for plastic surgery to transform his face into a likeness of the rock n'roll king.

"A lot of people have been making a lot of money off Elvis Presley since he died," Wise said. "Everybody has been taking and nobody has been giving."

First Run Movies Set For Hotels

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — You may soon be able to watch feature films while staying in hotels and motels across the country, 20th Century Fox-Film Corp. announced Friday.

The films would be transmitted by satellite and would be offered to the entire hotel industry within one year for showing on televisions in hotel rooms, officials said.

The service will be a joint venture by 20th Century Fox Telecommunications Inc., Bell Howell, Holiday Inns Inc. and Southern Satellite Systems.

Kemmons Wilson, chairman of the board of Holiday Inns, said his company has concluded the films would be a significant attraction for hotel guests.

Robert Pfannkuch, president of Bell Howell's video division, estimated that within two years up to 500 receiving stations could be installed across the country to pick up the satellite transmissions.

"Once this satellite network is in place, a number of other uses, such as video conferences may become feasible, but movies are the best vehicle to justify the initial capital investment," said Pfannkuch.

Britain's Royalty Gets Pay Increase

LONDON (AP) — The government gave the royal family a pay raise Friday but left Princess Margaret wondering if she will benefit.

"If any of this increase goes to her, there will be nationwide outrage," declared William Hamilton, the Laborite legislator who has led a recent public attack on the 47-year-old princess for her liaison with young socialite Roddy Llewellyn and her alleged shirking of royal responsibilities.

But there was little Hamilton and other members of Parliament could do about the raise — they can debate it but not alter it. Whether Margaret receives any of it will not be known for several weeks.

The Labor government announced that the annual royal allowance was being raised to $5.29 million, 9.2 percent more than last year's $4.85 million.

The increase in the so-called Civil List was designed to help compensate for inflation — running at 9.7 percent — and is below the government's 10 percent anti-inflation ceiling for ordinary workers' wage hikes.

Queen Elizabeth II gets the bulk of the tax-free grant, which goes toward staff costs and the expenses of such public duties as attending charity events and opening new buildings. Five other family members share the remainder. Margaret last year received $101,750.

Critics in and out of Parliament say the queen's tempestuous younger sister should be dropped from the list because her much-publicized affair with the 30-year-old Llewellyn, a brewery heir and would-be pop singer who once told reporters, "I am completely unemployable," is undermining her royal duties.

The couple vacationed together on the private West Indies island of Mustique earlier this year. Pictures of Margaret up to her neck in the warm ocean, with palm trees and sun-soaked beaches in the background, stirred public wrath at home, where Britons endured a harsh winter.

Hamilton accused the princess Friday of "arrogance and indifference to public opinion."

The intense public interest in the relationship also was said to be embarrassing the queen, who formally is head of the Anglican Church. Margaret, mother of two, has been separated from her husband Lord Snowdon since 1976.

Buckingham Palace sources this week said the queen asked Margaret to end the affair. Then the palace made it known through a well-placed news correspondent that Margaret would not retire from public life, meaning she would remain entitled to taxpayers' cash.

Margaret was secluded Friday at Windsor Castle, recovering from influenza. The queen and other family members also were at the castle outside London.

There was no official word — nor any reliable gossip — whether Margaret would break entirely with Llewellyn or see him less frequently and less publicly. Nor was there word on whether Margaret and Lord Snowdon will seek a divorce, as they are legally entitled to after two years of separation.

A business agent for Llewellyn said the young man was not informed about what is going on within the royal circle.

In 1955 Margaret was pressured into breaking with her first love, Royal Air Force Group Capt. Peter Townsend, because he was divorced.

The queen's share of the Civil List last year was $3.5 million.

Royal fortunes and wills are kept secret. The queen's tax-exempt fortune has been estimated as $100 million to $200 million. She is believed to be the second wealthiest woman in the world, behind Queen Juliana of Holland.

'GYPSY RIGHTS' ASKED

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Representatives of the world's 10 million gypsies, from 26 countries, are meeting here for three days to push a human rights campaign to save "the last really free people" from cultural extinction. "We want integration ... but we do not want assimilation which would put an end to our culture and to our language.

Speakers, Crowds Drawn To Religious Festival

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — It looks somewhat like a rock festival and has upbeat music to boot, but the refreshments are sodas and the music celebrates Christianity.

It's the 1978 version of the "Jesus Festival" three years in the running and drawing more than 15,000 Christians to the 172-acre pasture near Disney World this weekend.

The adults and children arriving Friday shuffled down dirt streets with names like Glory Trail and Hallelujah Street to jam into three large, striped circus tests or lie on the grass in front of the stage of a huge outdoor arena resembling those used for hard-rock concerts.

Attractive young girls in abbreviated shorts and cutoffs mingled with paunchy, bald men and women with babies in their arms as they made their way to hear the evangelists preach of "The Late Great Planet Earth," "God's Vision for the World" and "Love, Sex and Dating."

Among speakers for the weekend are black activist Eldridge Cleaver, who says he found the Lord while in international exile from criminal charges in this country; popular singer and composer B. J. Thomas; and religious author Hal Lindsey.

"We are seeing denominational barriers broken down," said the Rev. Roy Harthern, pastor of Calvary Assembly of God in Winter Park, one of the annual event's chief sponsors.

"God is not concerned with denominations," he said in explaining the purpose of the gathering. "We are all united here in one church, and that's what it will be like in heaven."

Buses, campers, expensive mobile-home vans, pickups and cars came from all over — Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Virginia, Michigan, Canada and throughout Florida. Many of those attending camped out overnight in the open. Others pitched small tents or stayed in their campers, vans or nearby motels.

Most were roughing it for the three days, and many considered it a vacation, taking the opportunity to visit the central Florida tourist attractions at the same time.

Margaret Brookshier of St. Petersburg said she and her husband came "because we just wanted to worship and praise the Lord . .. Get spiritually fed."

One Person Seriously Hurt In Los Angeles Derailment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four cars derailed into thick mud after a freight train and a passenger train collided in a Los Angeles suburb. There was at least one serious injury.

About 12 other people suffered minor injuries in the Thursday night crash.

Mart Climbs In Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market put the finishing touches on its best week so far in 1978 with another steady advance Friday.

Analysts said traders continued to look ahead hopefully to President Carter's scheduled speech on inflation and other economic issues next Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 5.63 to 769.58, extending its gain for the week to 12.22 points. That marked the average's best weekly performance since it picked up 14.55 last Dec. 19-23.

The daily New York Stock Exchange tally showed advances outnumbering declines by about an 8-5 spread. The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks climbed .22 to 50.41.

Brokers noted speculation that the President might call for some significant new policy moves in his speech next week. The President has promised to propose a new plan designed to combat the recent acceleration in the inflation rate.

Expenses Mount In District Attorney Contest

Running for Lubbock County criminal district attorney, challenger John Montford has spent more than $14,000, while incumbent Alton Griffin has spent almost $9,000 — and those tabulations were made with 40 more campaign days left.

The DA's race is by far the most expensive of this year's campaigns for local office, according to reports filed with the Lubbock County clerk.

Thursday was the deadline for candidates for county offices to file statements detailing contributions received and expenditures made from the day they filed for office through March 27.

Montford, an attorney waging his second campaign for DA, lists expenditures of $14,063 — most paid to a political consultant — and contributions of $16,450.

The reported contributions included $9,100 in donations of more than $50; $4,018 in donations of $50 or less; $1,154 in gifts or donated services; and $2,178 in loans from Montford to his campaign.

Montford listed his largest contributors as John J.C. O'Shea, Ben Snyder and Tom West, $500 each; Douglas Haynes and L.S. Edwards, $300 each; Gerald Anderson, Dennis Burrows and Betty Powell, $250 each; Pat Abeyta, Joe Simmons, Joe Chamberlain, Betty Lou Petree, A.L. Cone, Noelin Powell, Dub Mantooth, M.P. Todd and Richard Berry, $200 each; and Mrs. Johnny Banks, $150.

Listed as $100 contributors are Tom West, Bernard P. Evans, Bill Vines, Robert H. Bean, Robert Don Collier, Larry Glazner, Robert Thompson III, Jose Ramirez, Fred Cismaru, Herb Boatwright, J.R. Blumrosen, Annie Lee Cooke, Mrs. Ken Scholz and Floyd Umsted.

Also, Durwood Mayfield, Roy Hammonds, Carroll Cobb, Yvonne Faulks, Harold Jones, James Eddleman, Ed Black, Joe Bob Martin, Mrs. John Hall Jr., Ross Hood, Bryan Teal, G.E. Byrd, C.W. Teal, My Vann, Virgil Johnson, R.F. Key, Ronny Taylor, W.R. Skirlock, Billy Sims, Phil Price, Mary Lane Mantooth, Hugh D. Reed, Don Hamilton, Gerald Coleman, Larry Corbin, Gary McMillan, Pat McGee and Charles Caperton.

In addition, Bill Eggert provide Montford a reception worth $344, Warren Goss provided $60 in postage and Mike Millsap made two $50 donations to the campaign, the report says.

Griffin listed expenditures so far of $8,885 — most of that to an advertising agency — and contributions of $9,065.

Griffin's reported contributions included $7,150 in donations of more than $50, and $1,915 in donations of $50 or less.

Listed as Griffin's largest contributors were Richard Wallace and C.L. Siewert, $500 each; Travis D. Shelton, Mike Irish, Clyde Elkins and Campbell Elkins, $250; Don Furr, Clem Boverie, Mrs. Carolyn Jarvin, Bill A. Davis, Byron Chappell, R.H. Whemple and Harris Underwood, $200 each; and Robert L. Layne and D &M Bail Bond, $150.

Contributions of $100, according to Griffin's report, came from Rex Fuller, R.P. Fuller, J.T. Krueger Jr., Toby Foster, John Mann, Cleddie F. Edwards, Dr. R.G. Hendon Jr., Forrest Bowers, Lee Atkins Jr., Jack Davis, J. Ray Dickey, Sloan Fortenberry, Arthur Lee Cook Jr., K.O. Peterson, Gene Messer, Willard Payne, Gerald Devault.

Also, Douglas Williams, Jack D. Williamson, B.G. Bradford, Western Body Works, Hugh Anderson, J.W. Hobgood, Don G. Furr, James L. McDonald, Quinn Brackett, Byron Chappell, Calvin Walker, Jackie Cox, Charles Scarborough, J.T. and Paul Beane, Blair Cherry Jr., Mary C. Raff, Glenn Archer and Bill Metzig.

Listed as contributing $50 to Griffin's campaign were Reginald Rushing, Weston A. Pettey, E.H. Phillips, Max B. Caraway, J.B. Hance, H.S. Humphries, Dalton Lee, Richard B. Dickey, Calvin Brunken, Sam C. Arnett III, Jesse K. Mattox Jr., Ronald T. Betenbough, E.H. Phillips, Arthur Rampy, G. Thomas Cannon, Tammie Stevens, C.B. Carter, M.H. Womack, Grace Womack, Bill Wischkaemper, Lonnie T. Hollingsworth and Harry Morris.

Griffin and Montford will square off in the Democratic primary May 6.

Another contested primary race is between Coy Biggs and Paul Enger Sr., for the Democratic nomination for commissioner of Lubbock County's Pct. 2 (southeast).

Biggs' campaign finance report lists expenditures of $767 and contributions of $1,520.

His reported contributions include a $1,200 loan from Biggs to his own campaign, a $100 donation from Wayne Finnell and $220 in donations of $50 or less.

Enger, who is challenging the incumbent, listed $819 in contributions and $790 in expenditures. His larges contributions were $500 from Dr. Stuart MacKenzie, $100 from Dale Pepper, $60 from Clayton Enger and $50 from O.C. James.

In another contested race, incumbent Charles Smith and challenger Charles H. Hutchinson are seeking the Democratic nomination for Justice of the Peace, Pct. 1, Place 2.

The county clerk's office has not yet received a list of contributions and expenditures from Hutchinson. However, Smith reported expenditures of $189 and contributions of $670.

Smith's report lists his largest contributors as Henry L. Stafford, who made donations of $200 and $220, and Tommy Sommers, who contributed $250.

In the race for the Democratic nomination for JP, Pct. 4, only one candidate — Dardenella Williamson — was found to have filed a campaign finance statement. Missing from the county clerk's office were reports from opponents Jean Holt, J.B. McAuley and Bobby Max Jones.

Mrs. Williamson listed no contributions or expenditures.

Candidates who are not opposed for a primary or general election are not required to file such finance reports, a spokesman for the Secretary of State's office said.

However, some unopposed Lubbock County candidates went ahead and filed their reports anyway.

Incumbent County Judge Rod Shaw, seeking the Democratic nomination, listed a $100 contribution from E.W. Finnell. Shaw said he has spent $300 so far.

Incumbent County Treasurer Connie Nicholson, seeking the Democratic nomination, listed a $100 contribution from Wayne Finnell. She said she has spent $300 so far.

Verna Boyd, seeking the Democratic nomination for district clerk, listed $150 in contributions and $982 in expenditures. She reported receiving three $50 contributions from J.R. Blumrosen, Bobby G. Rogers and John F. Maner.

Dixie Ryan, seeking the Republican nomination for district clerk, listed no contributions. Her expenses so far have totaled $300.

Bidal Aguero, seeking the Raza Unida Party nomination for Pct. 4 (northwest) county commissioner, listed $375 in contributions and $205 in expenditures. His largest contributors were Sepeda Builders, $100; and Tony Reyes, Dr. John Ray Jr., and La Voz Chicana CB Club, $50 each.

Claude Cravens, seeking the Republican nomination for Pct. 2 JP, listed $20 in contributions and $5 in expenses.

Trained Seal Set To Swim

ROCKPORT, Maine (AP) — It's that time of year again — Andre the seal is getting ready to swim back to his summer home here.

The 17-year-old trained harbor seal will leave from Marblehead, Mass., at high tide on April 26, said Harry A. Goodridge, the seal's trainer. Andre has swum the route each of the last four years.

Andre spends the winter in Boston, at the New England Aquarium, and returns each spring to Rockport, where he entertains tourists with his repertory of tricks.

Andre's trip usually averages four to five days, but timing can vary depending on his physical condition and diversions along the route. Two years ago, when his weight ballooned to 240 pounds, Andre spent about two weeks at sea.

This year, Goodridge said, the seal's weight is about 200 pounds.

Record-Keeping: Taxpayer's Big Problem

By The Associated Press

For many Americans, filing income tax returns means shuffling through shoeboxes, rummaging in drawers and poking about closets for financial records. If you're one of those people, you can save time next year by getting organized this year. Throw things out!

Keeping too many documents and — keeping them for too long — can be just as dangerous as keeping too few for too short a period.

Take income tax records, for example. Do you have drawers crammed with copies of the past 25 years' returns? Weed out the old ones.

With a few exceptions, the Internal Revenue Service has up to three years in which to audit federal tax returns. You can, therefore, generally discard receipts and other tax deduction records after the three-year period. Some papers you don't even have to keep that long; once you have compared the stubs from your weekly or monthly salary payments against your year-end W-2 form, throw them out — assuming there is no discrepancy, of course.

(If you fail to report more than 25 percent of your gross income, the IRS has six years to audit your return. There are no time limits if you file a fraudulent return or fail to file any return at all.)

State laws on tax audits vary; check with local authorities to learn how long to keep files.

To help you get organized, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has a brief pamphlet called "Keeping Household Records: What to Discard." A newly updated version is available, at no charge, from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 638F, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

If you are skeptical about the need for organization, ask yourself these questions:

• How easy or difficult would it be for other members of your family to figure out your record system?

• Who, besides you, knows where to turn for necessary information on family assets and obligations?

• Do you have a list, with addresses and telephone numbers, of important financial contacts like bankers, tax counselors, insurance representatives, etc.?

• What would happen if your home were burglarized or destroyed by fire?

If the answers to these questions add up to confusion, you need a system.

Start by dividing papers into two categories: replaceable and irreplaceable.

Keep irreplaceable records — including things that would be difficult or costly to duplicate — in a safe deposit box at a bank. (The boxes come in sizes starting at about 2 by 5 by 24 inches; annual rentals start at about $5.)

Sort other financial papers into three piles — active, dead storage and throw out.

Here is a specific list of what to put where:

Safe deposit box — Birth, death and marriage certificates; citizenship, adoption and veteran's papers; divorce decrees, wills, deeds, automobile titles, household inventory, bonds and stock certificates, contracts. Note: The original copy of a will usually is kept in the safe of the attorney who prepared it. You get two carbon copies; put one in the safe deposit box and keep the other one where it is readily accessible.

Household active file — Tax receipts, unpaid bills, paid bill receipts, current bank statements and cancelled checks, income tax working papers, employment records, health benefit information, credit card data, insurance policies, copies of wills, family health records, appliance manuals and warranties and receipts for those items on which the warranties are still in force, education information, a list of what is in the safe deposit box, loan records, receipts for expensive items which have not been paid for.

Dead storage — As a rule of thumb, anything that is more than three years old and cannot be thrown out should go in dead storage.

Discard -- cancelled checks for cash or nondeductible expenses, expired warranties and coupons, salary statements.

Once you have things organized, get a loose-leaf notebook and record the whereabouts of important papers, family members' Social Security numbers, the location of your safe deposit box (bank name and branch) and insurance policy information. You also should include information on savings and checking accounts — all of them — so you don't become one of the missing depositors who have forgotten about accounts or died without telling relatives about them.

350 DRUGS LISTED

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Pharmacists in Switzerland, Austria and West Germany said here Friday they have prepared a list of 350 drugs to give druggists immediate reference to dangerous pharmaceutical combinations. The list will be distributed to Western countries this summer.

Agency Task Force Eyes Indian Bureau

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Interior Department task force has recommended restructuring the Bureau of Indian Affairs and setting up a Cabinet-level panel to look after the interests of American Indians.

The recommendations were made in a 130-page report presented to Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus on Thursday, a department announcement said.

Andrus issued a statement agreeing that improvements are needed in the affairs bureau. He promised that "changes will be instituted in an orderly fashion and every effort will be made to minimize any hardship on BIA employees and upon established relationships between the tribes and BIA officials."

The task force, appointed by Andrus last December, was headed by Earl Old Person of the National Tribal Chairmen's Association. It included representatives of Indian tribes, the Interior Department and the BIA, and the public, among them former Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall.

Its report pointed out that the BIA is in the awkward position of having a double responsibility to represent the interests of the Indians on the one hand, and to administer government policies, budgets and legislation on the other.

The result, it said, has often been confusion over a definition of the government's trust responsibility to the Indians. This involves the relationship between the tribes and the government over the management of Indian-owned tribal lands, held in trust for them by the federal government under various treaties.

"Uncertainty, anxiety, and distrust thus pervade the Indian communities of the United States and the agencies formed to serve their needs," the task force report said.

"The Task Force, therefore, strongly advises the development of a definitive commitment to trust responsibility that may be used as a basic foundation for U.S. relationships with Indian tribes and Alaska Natives," it said.

In addition, the task force recommended:

— "That the president establish a Cabinet-level Federal Indian Trust Committee, headed by the vice president, and including the secretary of the Interior and the attorney general. The group would focus on issues of national interest, deserving the attention of the president."

— Establishment in the BIA of an Office of Resources Development and an Office of Business and Economic Development.

— Designation of three principal deputies under Interior's assistant secretary for Indian affairs, instead of two: one for policy, planning and evaluation; another for operations, and a third for budget and finance.

— Strengthening of the Office of Trust Responsibilities, in Washington and in the field, and elevation of the Rights Protection Office to an equivalent status with other units.

— Establishment of "a data bank for access to Indian and Alaska Native people with skills in critical disciplines."

The report also recommended improvement of the quality of management throughout the BIA, charging that "a general management crisis pervades the Bureau of Indian Affairs."

Police Probe Shooting Of Youth

HOUSTON (UPI) — For the third time recently, police involvement in a prisoner's death has become the subject of official inquiry because of "a serious unresolved question."

Federal prosecutors recently won civil rights convictions against three fired officers in a Mexican-American prisoner's drowning. Police shooting of a Louisiana teen-ager also is under federal scrutiny.

The new case is being investigated by the police department's internal affairs division, with state and federal authorities to be advised of progress, Chief Harry Caldwell announced Thursday.

"Approximately one month ago, a member of the news media brought to my attention a serious unresolved question regarding a case that occurred some three years ago," Caldwell said.

The chief said the case involved police shooting of a suspect but he refused to name the victim. Sources said it was Billy Keith Joyvies, 18, fatally shot in the head after a police chase on July 11, 1975.

Officers involved reported Joyvies shot because he fired on them at the end of the chase. Reports at the time did not make clear whether he was shot during or after the chase. Officers said a .25-caliber pistol was found in Joyvies' car.

Six policemen and Deputy Constable R.J. Hammond of suburban Porter, Texas, were involved in the chase after Hammond said he spotted Joyvies and a 15-year-old girl taking a toolbox from a parked truck.

Hammond said he ordered the couple to halt but that they jumped in a car and fled. ammond called in assistance from Harris County sheriff's deputies and Houston police.

A police report of the incident shows officers John T. Olin and Norval W. Holloway were among six policemen who joined Hammond at the end of the chase.

Olin and Holloway were among officers now under federal investigation in the 1977 shooting death of Randall A. Webster, 17, of Shreveport, La., after chase of a stolen van the youth was driving.

The other officers present in the Joyvies case were Tanny A. Lapaglia, Garland R. Estes, Bobby R. Cannon and Jesse S. Bell Jr.

Caldwell said he had notified the Justice Department and the Harris County district attorney of the investigation and will provide them a copy of his finished report.

A LEFT — RIGHT HOUSE
Curved streets make it slow moving to get to. But WOW for pleasant living and safety for the kids. Extremely nice 3 BR with a living room that has an attractive wrought iron separative for pleasant dining. Retrigerated air, 2 car garage and a very pretty color format. AND BEST OF ALL this home is only 28,500. The loan established & the equity is $6848.00 We believe this is one-if not the most reasonable-equity in our city. Check this home $6848 EQUITY.

Jacon REALTY 793-0666 6701-D Indiana

YOU HAVE TO live somewhere, so why not move into this cute 2 BR cottage at Buffalo Lake and have all the comforts of home plus the fun of lake living right outside your door. Living/den has fireplace and bar.

YOU WILL LOVE this 3 bedroom, 2 bath home. It has large rooms, and a BIG patio. The 15x30 den has a lovely corner fireplace and many built-ins. And don't forget the kids! They will love the playhouse in the large back yard! Perfect central location — close to swimming pool and park ... convenient to shopping, schools, work.

YOU MUST HURRY if you want to pick your own colors for this contempo-rary duplex...it is nearly completed in Melonie Gardens. This one's a beauty with suspended stairway to balcony bedroom, large kitchen, and entertainment area with wet bar.

YOU MAY BE THE ONE this house is looking for. We need someone who will appreciate the CAP-ROCK location as well as the 3 bedrooms and 2 baths in this just listed all brick home. VERY Clean with new paint, and wallpaper and professionally cleaned carpet.

● "SERENITY OF OPEN SPACE" ● The outside can be brought into your living area with a wall of glass overlooking the tree studded lot! 4 very private bedrooms, 3 baths, a vine covered contemporary built before it's time with "uncompromising frankness." Pat 799-2016, Bonnie 792-8364.

● "FUTURE CLASSIC" ● Curving driveway with covered entry surrounded by the greenery and freshness of well maintained landscaping. 5 bedrooms, formal dining and living, basement, Rush school. "An image of good design." Jan 799-5024, Margaret 799-6909.

● "ECHO OF THE PAST" ● Craftsmanship of a superbly built older home. Renew the bygone elegance, for your own sophisticated living. "Real" marble fireplace in living room, huge dining room, den, bedrooms, and two really large well tiled baths (with atrocious colors, dated), but it's built to last "forever." Estate settlement — priced to sell! Bonnie 792-8364, Cliett 799-6370.

● "SMALL CONTEMPORARY" ● neat and clean, pretty gold carpet, 3 bedrooms, only $28,500 with reasonable equity and payments under $200.00. Jackie 745-5725, Bob 797-8643.

● "SOOTHING SLATON LIVING" ● get a breath of fresh air in a comfortable custom-built, older home on a corner lot in west Slaton. Lots of nice trees, room for a garden, brick, fireplace, 2-car garage, under $30,000! Margaret 799-6909, Jackie 745-5725.

● "SLATON 2 BEDROOM" ● $17,950! Better see this spic-and-span house before it's gone!! Bonnie 792-8364, Eugene 795-4152.

● "RUSH SCHOOL" ● 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, only $32,300. Immaculately kept family home. Eugene 795-4152, Cliett 799-6370.

● "OPEN AND RESTFUL" ● styled for contemporary living! Let your free spirit soar in this sunlight-brightened 3 bedroom, in Quaker Heights. Jan 799-5024, Cliett 799-6370.

● "FOR REASONS YOU EXPECT: ● AND a few you didn't consider, YOU must see our new-listing, TODAY!! 4 bedrooms, basement, sewing utility, formal dining/formal living (fireplace). Many cabinets/huge closets. 3 bedrooms up-planned for teen activities. Built and designed for the entertaining of friends without a loss of privacy for anyone - child or adult!! New listing by Pat 799-2016 Bonnie 792-8364.

● "FUNCTIONAL IMAGINATION" ● coupled with superb construction, built by an "old-timer" to last a lifetime. Large formal living, den, storm cellar, lots of storage, 2 ceramic baths, central heat, priced to sell at only $42,-950! Only $21.45 SF. Pat 799-2016, Margaret 799-6909.

Trevino, Funseth Tie For Masters Lead

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—The storied Masters, which somehow seems to have a corner on sports drama unmatched by any other event, has been primed by the pumped-up grandson of a Mexican gravedigger for what could be its greatest theatrics ever.

"This time I came to play," said Lee Trevino, grim-faced as an Aztec god after a solid 69 had sent him swaggering into a share of the second-round lead with Rod Funseth Friday in the classic he once vowed he never would play again.

"I'm not quite so jolly," said Trevino, who made himself a part of the American legend in his self-created role as the Merry Mexican.

Then he quickly belied his own statement with a rapid-fire run of one-liners. But they came after the fact, after he had stalked the gentle, flowered hills he once said he never again would tread, after he had put himself into position to win the tournament that has been his personal nemesis.

Trevino, the ultimate actor, always on stage; the gesturing, grimacing, clown-hero, has set the stage for the high drama that has come to be expected over the last two rounds of golf's greatest show.

In recent years, it has produced the Jack Nicklaus-Tom Weiskopf-Johnny Miller finish; the Tom Watson-Nicklaus confrontation last year; Ray Floyd's five-wood heroics; Gary Player's incredibly beautiful approach on No.17. In earlier years, there was the tearful "I am a stupid," of Roberto de Vicenzo, Nicklaus' record-shattering performance; the inspired performances of the early-'60s Arnold Palmer; the Sam Snead-Ben Hogan playoff in '54; Hogan-Byron Nelson in '42; the Gene Sarazen double-eagle.

Just as it seems there are no more such scripts left, along comes a Trevino and it's all there again — the man trying to win where he said he couldn't win.

And facing him is a collection of the finest shot-makers in the world.

"I came into this like the baseball World Series," Trevino said. "I've won two games now. I'm going for four in a row."

Trevino, who has revised his game to accommodate the course he once said he couldn't play, said he isn't clowning around as much as usual — and then quickly proved otherwise.

"Why not?" someone asked.

"I want to keep my guest badges," Trevino said, straight-faced as could be while an embarrassed, red-faced, green-jacketed official of the sometimes-stuffy Augusta National Golf Club squirmed beside him.

He and Funseth, who putted his way to a 66, the best round of the tournament. They had matching 36-hole totals of 139, 5 shots below the listed par for this famed, 7,040-yard layout that was the brainchild of Bobby Jones and, for years, the personal nemesis of Trevino, whose low, right-to-left shots were ill-suited for its hills and dogleg-left fairways.

In 1969 he swore he'd never play here again. He boycotted the tournament several times. But, with his victory in the PGA in 1974, he took another look at his priorities. With a pair of British Open titles and as many American Open crowns, he needed only the Masters to become the fifth man to score a sweep of the game's Big Four events.

"I feel real good about my game and the way I played," Green said. "I thought about it last night when I got home, decided what I was gonna do. It worked on the practice tee and it worked on the course."

Arnold Palmer, 48, who has won this tournament four times, scored an eagle-three on the 15th hole, played his back nine in 33 and stirred anxious, wistful hopes in the hearts of his vast army with a 69 that put him at 142, only three strokes off the pace.

It's one of his best showings in recent years. He hasn't won in this country in five seasons and hasn't won a major title since 1964, but his head was up and his juices flowing.

"The big trouble I have, at this age, is concentrating, keeping my concentration," said the idol of golfing millions on five continents. "In one of the majors, in this one, it's easier to keep your concentration."

He was tied with a couple of other members of the jaunty over-40 set, Don January (48) and Miller Barber (47). Barber had a 67 and his long-time roommate on the tour, January, took a 70. Also at 142 were Joe Inman, with a 73, and Wally Armstrong, 70.

Jerry Pate and unhappy Tom Weiskopf, a four-time Masters runner-up, were at 143. Each had a 71. Also at that figure was first-round leader John Schlee, who blew to a 75.

"I'm just unhappy with my score," fumed Weiskopf, who complained bitterly of the lack of speed on the greens, which are exceptionally slow this year.

Jack Nicklaus, an overwhelming favorite to add still another crown to the record 14 major professionals titles he already owns, also had his putting problems while shooting a 73 that left him well back at 145.

"I just never could get the speed of the greens," Nicklaus said. "I never could get the pace of play and it kind of went through my entire game.

"It was a bluebird day, with everybody shooting low scores. And I didn't take advantage of it. Now I'm going to have to have a couple of really good rounds, really play well for two days."

But the game's most feared competitor added positively: "I'm only six shots back with two rounds to go," he said. "I can win from here. There's no reason I can't win from six shots back. That's not all that much on this golf course."

Twice he missed first putts by 12 feet or more and spent the rest of the day shaking his head in frustration.

Martin 'Home Again' As Yanks Face Texas

ARLINGTON (AP) — The telephone rang in the New York Yankee dressing room and someone told Billy Martin it was George Steinbrenner.

"Oh me, I've been fired and the season hasn't even started," Martin joked in mock seriousness.

Martin later cradled the telephone and smiled "Nope, he gave me raise."

Laughter.

Manager Martin and Principal Owner Steinbrenner have had their communication problems in the past. But a world championship and a silent, productive spring training have put their volatile emotions on the backburner–temporarily at least.

On the eve of the Yanks' season opener against the Texas Rangers in Arlington Stadium today, Martin reflected on his relationship with Steinbrenner.

"He's been just super this year," said Martin. "Last year I would hear a lot of things second hand. Now he talks...that's good. Not that he's not going to get excited.

"I'm not exactly a lilly when it comes to losing. But like I've told you guys down here before, a man has to learn to control his temper."

More laughter.

Martin was back home–he lives in Arlington–and loving it. Particularly since he was fired by Ranger Owner Brad Corbett.

Martin glanced around the recently expanded stadium and said "That's nice. I wish they had done that when I was here. They still don't have any place for the fans to go when bad weather hits. They'll probably get around to that in about 10 years."

The Yankees' No. 1 talked in depth about his club, saying "All I hear is about all the peace and quiet we've had this spring. There are always gonna be grumbles. But this team has been together a year now and are learning to do things the 'Yankee way.' A manager's biggest job is still in the clubhouse."

Asked what the "Yankee Way" was, Martin said, "Well, for one thing not many people know we have a dress code...shirts and ties when we go from one town to another, things like that."

Conaway Wins

AUSTIN (Special) — Monterey's Curtis Conaway, one of the state's leading milers, captured first place in the 3,000 meter run in the High School Division at the Texas Relays Friday night.

The MHS junior, a second-place finisher at the state cross-country meet last fall, was clocked at 8:40.3. Cameron Bird of Arlington placed second, running an 8:40.9.

Conaway was the only Lubbock high school trackster participating at the prestigious event.

TWC Shocks Chaps

FORT WORTH (Special)— Lifeless bats in the first game and TWC's ninth-inning rally in the second proved a disastrous combination for Lubbock Christian College Friday, as the Chaparrals dropped 3-0 and 6-5 decisions in a key Texoma Conference baseball series.

The two wins by Texas Wesleyan shoved its record to 8-2 going into today's 1 p.m. doubleheader, and the two losses dropped LCC to 6-4 and out of a tie for the league lead.

"That was a big doubleheader for us and them," said LCC coach Larry Hayes, in speaking of Friday's games. "If we could get a split (by winning today's doubleheader) in the series we'd be in good shape, but those wins (Friday) put them in the driver's seat."

The losses also snapped a Chaparral winning streak which had reached 27, and going into the twin bill, TWC had dropped three in a row. The games could alter the NAIA national rankings, too, as LCC came in ranked No. 4 in the land, TWC No. 7.

But, in the opener, LCC had scoring opportunities in the first and second innings

Raiders Capture First In Relays

ABILENE (Special)—Texas Tech picked up only one first, in the 440-yard relay, but the Raiders had the points through depth to score 117 points and win the Indian Relays at McMurry College Friday.

The Raiders topped Wayland Baptist which had four individual victories en route to 95 points for second. Lubbock Christian, paced by Willie Sang's double, scored 50½ points.

The Raiders' sprint relay of Cody Bradford, Ken Elder, Duncan Thompson and Billy Taylor sped to a 42.1 clocking in the sprint relay, but after that, the Raiders settled for points from back in the pack. In the shot put, however, Tech had a 2-3-5 finish for 16 points.

Sang was a double winner in the 880 and mile for LCC, and teammate Kip Mibey won the three-mile as the Chaparrals completely dominated the distance events.

WBC followed Ernest Beakley's lead to its runner-up spot. Beakley won the high jump at 6-7 and the triple jump at 44-1½. Teammate Steve Patridge won the discus, but Tech came in 2-3-4-6 for 19 points.

Ray Harvey won the high hurdles for Wayland in 14.4. Joe Green won the 440-yard hurdles for LCC.

A double winner for Tarleton State was ex-Monterey athlete Lane McManara, as he took the javelin and 440-yard dash.

Some of the teams—Tech included—had some of its better athletes at Austin for the Texas Relays.

Midwest, South Win

HONOLULU (AP) — The favored Midwest got top performances from All-American players Butch Lee of Marquette and Mychal Thompson of Minnesota to easily defeat the East all-stars 112-88 in the second game of the 10th annual Aloha college basketball Classic here Thursday night.

In the first game, Purvis Short of Jackson State led all scorers with 27 points as the South beat the West 112-103.

Lee, a 6-1 playmaker, tossed in a game-high 28 points and keyed the Midwest with his all-around floor game. The 6-11 Thompson controlled the boards, chipping in 23 points and several key assists.

Greg Tynes of Seton Hall led the East with 17 points, followed by Keven McDonald of the University of Pennsylvania, who had 15.

but could not score and had but three hits for the game. And single runs in the third, fourth and six were enough for the Rams to win.

In the second game, LCC got home runs from Kenny Toney, Tim Leslie and Tommy Inman. The last sent LCC ahead 5-4 in the top of the ninth.

However, the Rams rallied with a single, sacrifice, a walk and an infield single to score the tieing run.

Aggies Ease Past Frogs

By The Associated Press

Robert Bonner and Kyle Hawthorne hit third-inning home runs Friday and the Texas Aggies held on for a 4-3 Southwest Conference baseball victory over Texas Christian.

Bonner's solo shot was his fourth of the year and was followed by Hawthorne's two-run homer, his 14th of the season.

Texas A&M got what proved to be the decisive run in the eighth inning when Robert Verde tripled and scored on Hawthorne's ground out.

TCU, trailing 4-1 in the ninth, got two walks and three singles to narrow the margin to 4-3 before AM's John Pockrus came in and got the final out.

Starter Mark Ross got the win and now is 5-3. Dale Arnold, 2-4, was the loser. The victory raised the Aggies to 23-10 for the year and 10-3 in hte SWC. The Horned Frogs dropped to 10-19 and 4-9.

SMU 3, Houston 1

Paul Glogowski tossed a three-hitter as Southern Methodist defeated Houston.

Glogowski struck out three and walked three as he picked up his third victory against two losses.

SMU scored all of its runs in the sixth inning. Fla Strawn, Rick Greer and and Danny Seed each had two hits and knocked in a run for the Mustangs.

The three hits allowed by Glogowski were all singles with Cougar centerfielder Jay Beard collecting two of them.

Tom Lukish, who went all the way for Houston, gave up 11 hits and was tagged with the loss to even his season record at 5-5.

The victory gave SMU a 4-9 conference mark and Houston now is 9-7.

Texas 3, Baylor 0

Keith Creel threw a two-hitter, never allowing a runner past second, to lead Texas past Baylor in the first game of a three-game Southwest Conference series.

First baseman Terry Salazar lined a single to left center to drive in two runs in the first inning, staking Texas to an ealy lead. Bert Burrows was hit by a pitch, and Joe Bruno walked. A sacrifice by Mark Chelette set up Salazar's shot.

Baylor managed two singles off Creel. The hits by Mike Johanson in the fourth and Burl Coker in the eighth each followed a walk, putting men at first and second. But Creel retired the Bears without further trouble both times.

Creel walked four and struck out four in running his record to 9-1. The victory raised the Longhorns' record to 29-13 and 5-8. Shane Nolen, the losing pitcher, fell to 1-4. The Bears fell to 18-14-2 and 8-8.

Monterey Nabs Track Honors

Monterey won six individual events and racked up 207 points to edge past Coronado Friday night at the CHS track during Lubbock's high school three-way track meet.

Coronado, which won five individual titles and both relays, came in with 202 points for second place.

The third team at the meet, Lubbock High, managed 57 points, mainly on the stellar showing of Darrell Hicks and Glenn Francis in the 100-yard dash. Hicks rocketed to a wind-aided 9.9 while teammate Francis recorded a 10.0.

Odessa Permian and El Paso Burges both scored 17 points during the first day of the two-day San Angelo Relays Friday to tie for first-place in the Division I race after two events.

The San Angelo Relays, the area's largest track meet this weekend, will continue today, starting at 9 a.m.

Danny King of Permian led the way for the Panthers, scoring a first place finish in the long jump with a leap of 22-4¾.

In the Division II race, Levelland scored 12 points to trail leader Kerrville Tivy by four points.

Tim Faulkner scored the Loboes highest finish with a second in the long jump, leaping 21-2½.

Floydada's Rusty Cagle and Kary Helms placed third and fifth, respectively in the pole vault as the Whirlwinds scored 8 points in the Division III competition. Kermit leads with 16 points. Dennis Green of Idalou leaped 6-0 for a second place in the high jump. Idalou also has 8 points.

The Motley County boys and the Borden County girls both claimed team titles at the Dawson Relays. Motley County tallied 114 points Jayton by 10. Borden County rolled up 110 points on its way to the win.

In the first day of action at the Demon Relays in Dumas, Tascosa leads with Division II race with 37 points, while Boy's Ranch holds the edge in the Division I competition with 19 points.

Tascosa leads Big Spring by 21 points, Boy's Ranch holds a one-point margin over Stratford.

The second day of action at Dumas will begin today at 9 a.m.

City Fem Meet On Tap Today

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Some folks who spend a lot of time studying about wars, explorers and elections like to say that history always has a way of repeating itself somewhere down the line.

If that's so, Lynn Powell certainly hopes it does.

Last year, the Monterey girls track team captured the crown at the City fem cinder meet. Then, a week later, they turned around and won the District 4-AAAA title.

Now, 12 months later, the Plainsmen have a chance to do the same thing.

"This is what we've been aiming for all year," the Monterey fem coach said on the eve of the City Meet. "We've geared our program here to win the City and then win the district again."

The meet, which pits the city's five high school in head-on competition, starts at 10 a.m. today with the running preliminaries and concludes with the finals which begins at 2:30 p.m. on the Coronado track.

Miss Powell, who says she is "extremely confident in my girls", added, "I think our chances of winning are good. We've worked hard all year and now's the time to find out if it will pay off."

She went on to say that a win at the City Meet would give the Plainsmen "confidence to gone on and do a good job at the district meet."

Agreeing with Miss Powell's assessment of Monterey's chances is Lubbock High coach Peggy Stallings.

"I think the biggest battle will be for second place between us (Lubbock High) and Coronado," the coach said. "Monterey just has so many girls and they are so strong."

Mrs. Stallings said, however, the Westerners "aren't giving up though."

"We're not real strong in the field events," Mrs. Stallings pointed out. "But if for some reason we can score some points in them, we have a chance at catching Monterey in the running events."

Monterey's main strength in the field events are Jana Field in the shot put, discus tosser Rebbecca James and high jumper Sherry Davis.

Miss Powell said the trio have a good chance of racking up some early points, thus allowing the Monterey runners to glide on home.

Adding more strength to the already potent Monterey attack are milers Carla Leslie, Carolyn Lugo and Cindy Zips. Miss Leslie, the district champion last year, lead her teammates with a 5:40 time.

Perhaps the premier race of the day may come in the 80-yard low hurdles where Lubbock High's Rose Field and Connie Teters are expected to battle with Monterey's Marilyn Beckner for first place.

The LHS duo have both run 11.2s this year, while Miss Beckner, who got off to a slow start because of Monterey's prolonged basketball season, has posted an 11.6.

"The slow start has hurt Marilyn," sMiss Powell explained. "But I think she's ready to come on now."

While the gals will be sticking close to home, the Estacado and Dunbar boys will do some roaming to Brownfield for the Cub Relays.

The meet for the Matadors and Panthers will be the next to last before District 3-AAA action.

After a three-way meet Friday night, Coronado, Monterey, and Lubbock High boys teams plan on taking the afternoon off today.

Other South Plains track meets set for today include the Spur Relays, Cowboy-Cowgirl Relays at Plains and Roswell Relays.

Meets at Borger, Hobbs, N.M., Olton and Jayton are limited to girls only.

The San Angelo Relays, and Demon Relays at Dumas started Friday afternoon and will conclude today with the running events. Running prelims at Dumas start at 9:30 a.m., finals at 2 p.m.

NOEL JAIME

Westerners Face Unbeaten Bulldogs

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Vince Buffamonte really keeps Noel Jaime on his toes during baseball season and it seems to make all the difference in Lubbock High's attack, too.

Buffamonte's Westerners begin the District 4-AAAA season with a doubleheader against unbeaten Plainview in Mackenzie Park at 1 p.m. Meanwhile, Monterey (2-0, 12-4) seeks two more district wins in its doubleheader at Hereford today at 1 p.m.

The 5-5, 135-pound junior enters district with a .543 batting mark, just 354 points higher than his average last year. That's where Buffamonte has kept Jaime on his toes.

"When I would hit last year, my front toe would raise off the ground and I would swing up. He's kept my toe down this year and I'm hitting the ball on the line," Jaime said.

Jaime will lead off in the opener against Plainview righthander Jamie McAlister while David Rush pitches for the Westerners. Jackie Edwards should pitch the second game for Plainview (12-0) against either Abel Cardenas or Andy Vasquez. Jaime says McAlister "throws pretty good smoke" but the second baseman enters league play with confidence.

Whether or not he knew it was coming, Jaime found himself in a leadership role on the Lubbock team. A perfect example of this erupted after the fifth inning of Tuesday's game at Levelland when the Lobos led the Westerners 10-5.

"We were out there playing and nobody was talking in the field any. Coach Buffamonte came up to me and said, 'Come on Noel, let's get 'em up' and that really told me something. He wants me to be a leader," Jaime said.

The second baseman responded with a grand-slam home run in the top of the sixth and LHS rallied to win 15-10.

The .543 average doesn't overwhelm Jaime much. The junior remembers the days when he hit above .500 in the Pony League and the main adjustments have concerned his mental toughness.

"I read about the statistics and I like them but I don't let them get to my head because if I did, it would all go down," he said.

Jaime doesn't wish his average to drop and doesn't wish his spot in the batting order to drop either. During his sophomore season, the inexperienced Jaime batted seventh or eighth. The leadoff spot has aided his concentration.

Another aid to his success stems from the encouragement of older brother Benny, who earned all-city honors in 1976 with a .451 average for the district championship team. At 5-7, 135 pounds, Benny's small size never hindered his ability to compete in high school.

"He (Benny) pushes me a lot. He tells me that I'm bigger and stronger than he was. If it wasn't for Benny, I wouldn't be where I am. He's taught me everything I know," the younger brother said.

A Ranger junior college sophomore, Benny gets his first chance of the season to watch Noel today. So far, here's what he's missed:

1. Jaime leads the team in hits with 25 and runs scored with 28.

2. He's tied for the lead in home runs with 2 and leads the team in extra-base hits with 11.

3. Then there's the matter of RBIs which usually falls on the shoulders of the middle and lower hitters in the lineup. But Jaime stands second on the team in that category with 21.

As in Benny's case, good Jaimes still come in small packages.

Arkansas Rolls Past Raiders By 6-1 Count

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (Special)—Arkansas righthander David Rhodes limited Texas Tech to just three hits and struck out 13 batters to lead the sixth-ranked Razorbacks to a 6-1 win Friday in the first game of a three-game series.

The teams will battle in a doubleheader today, beginning at 1 p.m.

The SWC-leading Hogs raised their conference mark to 13-3. They are 21-7 for the season. Tech is 21-16 and 6-7.

The Raiders took an early lead with a third-inning run. Rusty Laughlin hit a one-out single and later scored on Larry Selby's RBI-single off the glove of third baseman Shaun Lacey.

But the Razorbacks broke through in the sixth frame off Tech starter David Bolton, knocking him from the box with two runs, and they added four more in the seventh.

First baseman Tim Lollar began the sixth-inning rally with a walk, Arvis Harper singled, and Hank Thompson bunted for a single to load the bases for designated hitter Mike Martin, who drove in Lollar with a single.

Later, Jeff Spence hit a sacrifice fly to center field to drive in Harper and give the hosts a 2-1 lead.

In the seventh, Tech reliever Chuck Johnson walked Lacey, Jeff Hemm and Harper to load the bases, and Thompson hit into a fielder's choice to force in one run.

Martin then followed with a triple to drive in Hemm and Harper, and Spence's RBI-double scored Martin.

Rick Hall (5-3) and Gary Moyer (4-1) are scheduled to start today's games for Tech, while Lollar (6-0) and Jeff Huddleston (4-0) are set to go for the Razorbacks.

ABILENE (Special) — After the first day of action at the West Zone women's college tennis tournament, Texas Tech leads the pack with 20 points.

Four Raiders, Debbie Donley, Lisa Bewly, Cathy Kuhn and Karen Schuard, all advanced to the semifinals of the tournament, which will be played today.

Trailing Tech with seven points is Angelo State, followed by Hardin-Simmons with three points and Abilene Christian with zero.

Perry Moves Into Third Spot On Strikeout List

By The Associated Press

San Diego's Gaylord Perry struck out eight batters in six innings Friday, tying for third place on baseball's all-time strikeout list, and the Padres came from behind in the eighth to beat the San Francisco Giants 3-2 in a National League opener.

Perry, a 39-year-old right-hander, matched the career strikeout total of 2,855 recorded by Jim Bunning and now trails only Bob Gibson and Walter Johnson.

The Padres were scoreless through six innings, but Giants starter John Montefusco suffered a twisted an ankle in the sixth and left the game with a 2-0 lead.

San Diego scored a run in the seventh on singles by Gene Richards and Derrell Thomas and a sacrifice fly by Oscar Gamble.

DODGERS 13, BRAVES 4 — Dave Lopes knocked in 4 runs, 3 with a homer, stole three bases and scored twice, while Rick Monday also drove in 4 runs, leading Los Angeles to a 13-4 triumph over Atlanta and spoiling the managerial debut of Bobby Cox.

Lopes homered in the third to wipe out a 3-0 Braves' lead built on solo blasts by Rowland Office and a two-run shot by Dale Murphy off Los Angeles starter Don Sutton.

Jerry Royster gave the Braves their last lead at 4-3 with a leadoff homer in the third before Sutton settled down and the Dodger bats came alive.

A 2-run single by Reggie Smith in the fifth off Atlanta starter Phil Niekro gave the Dodgers the lead for good at 5-4 and the defending National League champions made it a rout with 3 runs in the sixth, 2 in the eighth and 3 in the ninth on Monday's homer.

Steve Garvey, Monday and Steve Yeager had run-scoring singles in the sixth, knocking out Niekro.

REDS 5, ASTROS 4 — George Foster slammed a 3-run homer and Bill Bonham won his debut with Cincinnati as the Reds rallied for a 5-4 victory over the Astros.

Foster, whose 52 home runs last year were the most in the National League since 1949, enabled the Reds to overcome a 4-2 deficit with his first of the 1978 season, an opposite-field shot to right in the fifth off losing pitcher Joe Niekro.

St. Louis (Rasmussen 11-17) at Philadelphia (Christenson 19-6), 6:35 p.m.

Bonham, acquired from the Chicago Cubs last winter, survived a shaky start, then retired 11 of 12 batters before Dave Tomlin was summoned in the ninth after pinch-hitter Wilbur Howard singled.

Foster, who had a perfect 3-for-3 game, homered after Pete Rose singled and Joe Morgan walked. It was the Reds' second straight comeback victory over the Astros, who beat Cincinnati 13 times in 18 meetings last year.

PIRATES 1, CUBS 0 — John Candelaria pitched a seven-hitter and Willie Stargell drove in a sixth-inning run to give Pittsburgh a 1-0 victory over Chicago in the opener for both teams.

Candelaria, who last season became the Pirates' first 20-game winner since 1960, allowed only one runner beyond second base and was aided by a pair of double plays.

Chicago's starting pitcher Rick Reuschel, also a 20-game winner last season, yielded only three hits in seven innings before leaving for a pinch hitter.

In the sixth, Frank Taveras bounced a leadoff single up the middle and took second on Omar Moreno's sacrifice. After an intentional walk to Dave Parker, both runners advanced on a wild pitch, Bill Robinson walked to load the bases and Stargell forced Robinson at second to score Taveras.

The lone Chicago threat came in the top of the sixth when Dave Rader doubled and took third on a one-out single by Ivan DeJesus, but Gene Clines bounced into a double play.

METS 3, EXPOS 1— Consecutive first-pitch doubles by Willie Montanez and Ken Henderson keyed a two-run burst in the second inning that led Jerry Koosman and the Mets to a 3-1 opening-day victory over the Expos.

Koosman scattered eight hits, including a home run by Gary Carter. The left-hander struck out seven without issuing a walk.

Montanez and Henderson, both acquired in a major winter trade, gave New York its early lead off loser Steve Rogers. They ripped their doubles on the first two pitches of the second inning, producing the game's first run. After Lee Mazzilli grounded out, John Stearns walked and Doug Flynn rapped an RBI-single for a 2-0 lead.

Carter cut the margin in half when he opened the sixth inning with a long homer to left. But the Mets got that run back in the bottom of the inning when Steve Henderson singled and Mazzilli doubled to left.

CARDS 5, PHILS 1 — Ken Reitz hit a home run and Jerry Morales made his debut with St. Louis with three hits as the Cardinals beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 in a National League opener.

The Cardinals battered Steve Carlton, last year's NL Cy Young Award winner, for 10 hits and four runs in four innings, as the defending East Division champions lost their season opener for the fourth straight year.

St. Louis right-hander Bob Forsch, a 20-game winner last season, limited the Phillies to five hits but had to leave after walking Bob Boone with one out in the eighth inning when he suffered cramps in his right forearm and leg. Reliever Pete Vuckovich finished, allowing the Phillies' only run on a bases-loaded walk later in the inning.

BREWERS 11, ORIOLES 3 — Larry Hisle crashed a 2-run homer in the fifth inning and Sixto Lezcano belted his first major league bases-loaded homer in the seventh, powering Milwaukee to an 11-3 rout of Baltimore in a season opener.

Winner Jerry Augustine checked the Orioles on six hits until the ninth inning when the Orioles scored twice and had the bases loaded with one out. Ed Rodriguez came on to get the final out after a third run came home on a sacrifice fly.

Andy Etchebarren doubled home 2 runs and scored in the second as the Brewers to key the Brewers to a 3-0 lead in the second. A walk to Lezcano and a two-out single by Lenn Sakata set up the scoring. Etchebarren drove home both runners with his double into the right centerfield gap, then came home on rookie Paul Molitor's first major league hit, a single up the middle.

The Brewers made it 4-0 with a third-inning run chasing loser Mike Flanagan on a double by Hisle and a two-out RBI single by Cecil Cooper.

TIGERS 6, BLUE JAYS 2 — Phil Mankowski's 3-run homer, solo blasts by Milt May and Jason Thompson and Mark "The Bird" Fidrych's five-hitter powered Detroit past Toronto 6-2 in the teams' season opener.

Fidrych, out much of last season with injuries after being voted American League Rookie of the Year in 1976, rarely let a ball out of the infield. He struck out five and walked two.

The homer by Mankowski came with two outs in the fourth inning, chased ex-Tiger Dave Lemanczyk and snapped a 2-2 tie. It followed a double by Lou Whitaker and a walk to rookie Alan Trammell.

Toronto opened the scoring with a pair of runs in the second, one coming on a single by Tommy Hutton and the other when Dave McKay grounded into a double play.

May's homer came in the bottom of the second, then Detroit tied it in the third when Mankowski, Rusty Staub and Steve Kemp singled. Thompson's mammoth homer off the third-deck roof in right field, led off the seventh inning off Jesse Jefferson.

CHISOX 6, BOSOX 5 — Wayne Nordhagen dropped a bloop double into short center field to score Chet Lemon all the way from first base with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning and give Chicago to a 6-5 opening-day victory over Boston.

Losing pitcher Dick Drago, who was replaced by Bill Campbell gave up a home run to Ron Blomberg in the ninth which tied the game at 5-5. Drago was replaced by Campbell after giving up a single to Lemon.

Carl Yastrzemski's single in the eighth inning gave the Boston Red Sox a 5-4 lead before a White Sox record opening-day crowd of 50,754.

Rick Burleson singled off reliever Lerrin Lagrow to open the eighth, took second on Jim Rice's sacrifice bunt and scored on Yaz' secondgnle of the game.

It marked the 11th straight year that Yastrzemski has hit safely on opening day.

Drago took over for starter Mike Torrez at the start of the seventh inning. Steve Stone pitched the first sevem innings for Chicago before giving way to Lagrow.

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Rex Dockery is not the type that normally shies away from a decision, and he expects to make a few tomorrow.

Texas Tech will close its first full week of spring training with a two-hour scrimmage, beginning at 10:30 a.m. at Jones Stadium. It will be the second scrimmage of the spring for the Raiders and is expected to give the Tech staff at least a few concrete ideas about the club.

"We should know more about how we're progressing after this scrimmage," Dockery said Friday following Tech's hour-and-a-half drill. "It should give us a better idea of where we are, both offensively and defensively.

"We should be able to evaluate some things, personnel-wise, too, and make some decisions about individuals."

The Raider staff is working with a young squad this spring, and Dockery is particularly interested in how the quarterbacks and interior linemen—both offensively and defensively—perform today.

Quarterback is a vital area of concern, and there is much youth in both lines, also.

"I'm anxious to see how the quarterbacks do, since this is the first big scrimmage," Dockery said. "We'd like to get down to three quarterbacks, if we could, but that depends on how well they do today. If none of them stand above the rest, then it will be tougher to make some decisions."

Dockery said the staff "needs to make some decisions" on the line groups, too.

"We've got a lot of young guys in there. Almost the whole second-team offensive line is made up of sophomores. And there are some young guys in the defensive line that we need to take a close look at, like Jamie Giles (noseguard), Tracy Kensing, Dane Kerns, Jeff Hendley and Jim Verden (all tackles)."

Running back and the secondary are two positions that lack depth, and the staff will be checking the performances at these spots closely today, too.

There is a possibility that some players may be moved to different positions, based on the results of the scrimmage.

Dockery also said that he like to try and "get down to two or three field-goal kickers" after Saturday, also.

Today's scrimmage will not be a game-type one, but a controlled one, as Wednesday's was.

"We're not ready to have a game-type scrimmage," Dockery said. "We have to put our kicking game in first."

Much of the offense and defense was missing in Wednesday's scrimmage, and Dockery said little has been installed since then.

"We're taking things pretty slowly," he said. "You have to do it that way when your squad is young. We have to do a lot of teaching. And, if we put them in a game without them knowing what they were supposed to do, we couldn't get a good evaluation."

"We've got a lot of quarterbacks to work with now (six), and you just have to give them time."

Connors Advances

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors defeated defending champion Dick Stockton 3-6, 6-4, 6-0 and reached the semifinals of a $175,000 World Championship Tennis tournament Friday.

Stockton started the match well and delighted the crowd with some fine shots. But after losing the first set, Connors got his game together in the second set. In the third set Stockton found it more difficult to get his returns in.

Earlier, second-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden withdrew before his quarter-final match following hospital treatment for an infected toe on his left foot.

Tech Signs Swann

Alan Swaan of Odessa Permian has become Texas Tech's 28th football signee of the year.

The 5-11, 185-pounder is a defensive back, an area in which the Raiders are very thin.

Swann is also a track man at Permian and currently has the sixth-best time in the state in the 120-yard high hurdles, 13.95.

Plainview, Scott Add To District Golf Leads

Plainview, as a team, and Hereford's Barbara Scott individually added to their leads in the District 4-AAAA girls' golf race Friday.

Playing at Pine Hills Golf Course, the Plainview girls turned in a 373 total and continued to run away with the team race which has but one more meet to go. That one remaining match will be held at Plainview next Friday.

Plainview, after Friday's round, stands at 1142 for the district race. Coronado had a 400 Friday and a 1278 total for second, and Monterey, following Friday's 425, is third at 1296.

Miss Scott, the only Hereford entrant, had the day's best round, an 81, and that left here still in the individual lead at 257.

Second to her is Plainview's Ann Horne, who had an 88 Friday and 263 total. Kim Henson of Coronado had the second best reound of the day, 83, and is third in the individual shooting at 280. Fran Miller of Plainview is at 290 and teammate Kathy Owen fifth at 291.

The top two teams and top two individuals will qualify from district to the regional meet, to be held in Lubbock April 21-22.

Team scores—Plainview 373—1142; Coronado 400—1278; Monterey 425—1296.

Plainview—Ann Horne 88; Fran Miller 101, Kathy Owen 93, Lori Zelney 92, Roxy Lunch 100. Others—Melinda Thompson 131, Michelle Miller 127, Brenda Cole 128.

Coronado—Kim Henson 83, Bonnie Wilson 110, Kelley Price 113, Leigh Moody 94, Debbie Immell 113. Others—Carolyn Vorhies 119, Sharla Key 125, Sherry Wilks 121.

Monterey—Chrissy Cassell 107, Kathy Stahl 99, Cookie Creel 106, Mary Clark 113, Renee Bradshaw 182. Others—Kay Newmann 114, Julie Herrin 111.

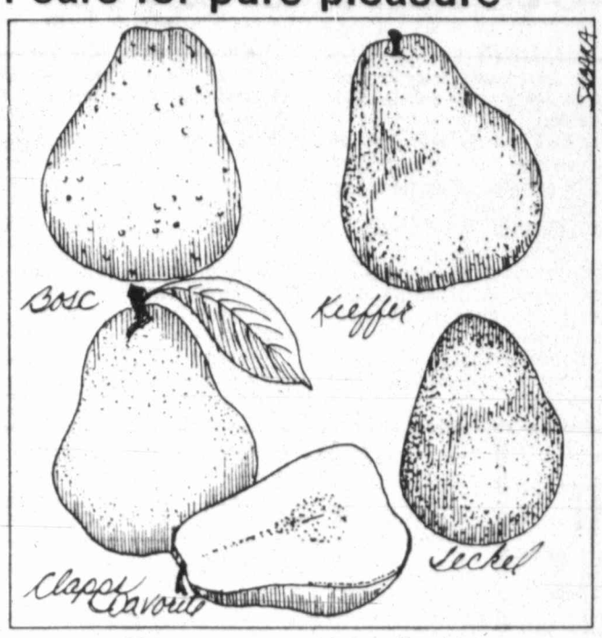
Pears for pure pleasure



Gardeners Pleased With Pears

Pears are not as widely grown in home gardens as they deserve to be. They are less troubled by most common diseases or insects than other fruits. Once established, they require less pruning are care to produce abundant harvests. You can pick new pleasure from pears in your own backyard, thanks to new, improved varieties that offer super juicy taste.

Plant breeders have solved the former fire blight problem tbat once plagued pear trees. You can grow resistant varieties. They also solved the space problem, by grafting popular varieties onto dwarfing understocks. Smaller trees take less room, yet yield fullsize fruit. Unlike apples, which may seem similar in flavor and texture, pears offer markedly different flavors between varieties. They have a wider range of texture, size and shape as well.

When you pick pear varieties, remember that they may not be self-pollinating. Usually you'll need two varieties so they cross pollinate to insure adequate fruit set.

Moonglow bears early. Trees are vigorous, upright in growth bearing large, juicy fruit, good fresh or for cooking.

Magness bears late on spreading trees. Fruit is medium, oval tough-skinned which resists insect puncture. Its flesh is soft, very juicy and sweet as well as aromatic.

Seckel pears, also called sugar or candy pears, mature late on vigorous, somewhat spreading trees. They are amazingly productive, yielding small, symmetrical, smooth fruit with white to slightly yellow flesh which is buttery, aromatic and spicy.

Bosc ripens late. These large pears with dark yellow undercolor and fine russet veil have white tender flesh that is juicy and aromatic. Boscs are slow starters, but once well rooted, they are highly prolific.

Bartlett is a superior pear for fresh use. trees bear large, golden yellow, flavorful, juicy pears early and abundantly, but are somewhat susceptible to fire blight. Clapps Favorite looks similar, but has pale lemon-yelow fruit with a bright pink cheek. It's finely-textured flesh is juicy with more delicate flavor than Bartlett. It too is susceptible to fire blight which requires spraying for effective control.

Tyson is an early ripening summer sugar pear that is blight resistant. Trees produce well, yielding medium sized juicy fruit with clear, smooth skin and mild flavor. This is recommended for northern and central parts of the country.

Comice is a premium pear, the kind you see in Christmas fruit baskets. Long, golden, blushed with red, Comice pears do well in western orchards.

Kieffer is a blight-resistant winter pear for all areas. Fruit should, like most pears, be picked hard ripe and allowed to reach the peak of flavor off the tree.

GE Gets Contract For Jet Engines

CINCINNATI (AP) — General Electric Corp.'s plant here will get about $140 million in aircraft engine orders as the result of Eastern Airline's order for 23 European-built jetliners, GE officials say.

The GE engines will be installed in the A-300 B Whisperliners, a two-engine, medium range plane carrying up to 250 passengers. The plane is manufactured by Airbus Industrie, a French-West German consortium.

GE has supplied its CF-6 engines since the plane's debut in 1974.

In addition to the 46 engines for the jetliners, GE will bring the total to 55 by selling Eastern nine spare engines.

GE spokesman Eric Falk said the contract, announced Thursday, helps preserve the jobs of employees threatened by President Carter's cancellation of the B-1 bomber.

"It's good, but we need a lot more like it to keep things going," Falk said.

Warrant Issued For IBM Trade Secrets Suspect

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A former worker at an International Business Machine Corp. plant here allegedly stole 15 confidential documents concerning IBM computer technology and offered to sell them for $50,000, police say.

Boulder District Court Judge Rex Scott on Thursday issued a warrant for the arrest of John Salvati, 24, and said that if apprehended he would be charged with felony theft and theft of trade secrets.

Salvati was identified by police as a student at the University of Colorado's College of Arts and Science in Boulder and a former IBM employee.

An IBM spokesman here, Bill Newman, said the company preferred not to discuss the case and said all information would have to come from the Boulder Police Department.

Boulder police Lt. Bob Diezi said an investigation was begun after a letter was sent to a corporation he declined to identify offering to sell the documents for $50,000.

Diezi said he and an IBM security official, Jerry Blaine, conducted negotiations with the person offering to sell the documents through classified advertising in the Colorado Daily newspaper.

Those negotiations led to the issuing of the warrant, Diezi said.

The IBM operation here includes development laboratories for the company's general products division. Newman said work done there included research on computer tape drives and storage products.

U.S.-HUNGARY TRADE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter told Congress on Friday that Hungary maintains "responsive and humanitarian" emigration policies that pose no barrier to granting that country most favored nation trade status. Under the law Carter must report such findings prior to congressional action on the trade agreement. Both the Senate and the House must approve before the agreement takes effect.

Washington Winter Impairs Advent Of Cherry Blossoms

By BARBARA S. MOFFET
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — The robins and crocuses might appear first, but Washington residents are more likely to look to the Tidal Basin for the first sign of spring — the blossoming of the cherry trees.

The white and occasional pink blossoms of the 3,000 flowering cherry trees that rim the Tidal Basin and grace the parkland alongside the Potomac River attract thousands of visitors every spring.

This year a stretch of abnormally cold, snowy weather at winter's end has kept residents and tourists wondering whether the blossoms will emerge in time for the annual National Cherry Blossom Festival scheduled April 1 through 8.

Petal Prophet

Winter's frigid finale has made life difficult for James Lindsay, horticulturist for the National Park Service. Since 1965 Lindsay has been the official forecaster of the date the cherry trees will show their petals.

To blossom, Lindsay told the National Geographic Society, the cherry trees must first experience an extended period of cold, wintry weather. Then, as days grow longer, the increase in light is needed to start the sap flowing and the trees' tissues growing.

Finally comes the key ingredient–a warm spell. "Six or seven days of 60-degree weather should do it," Lindsay said.

As the weather warms up, Lindsay takes a stroll around the Tidal Basin, a lagoon near the Jefferson Memorial, where he examines the cherry tree buds. From that close, though admittedly not very scientific inspection, his prediction is made.

"I've been pretty lucky the last four or five years," Lindsay remarked. "I've hit it very close."

The 3,000 cherry trees in 12 varieties were a gift to Washington from Yukio Ozaki, the mayor of Tokyo, in 1912. Mrs. William Howard Taft and Viscountess Chinda, wife of the famous Japanese ambassador, planted the first two trees, which still thrive.

The planting finally laid to rest an embarrassing incident that had occured two years earlier when the first shipment of cherry trees from Japan was found by U.S. officials to contain insects. The 2,000 trees were burned.

Today only about one-fourth of the original trees remain. The rest, most of which have died of old age, have been replaced. To preserve the old lines, scientists are grafting propagations of some of the trees that have adorned the grounds since 1912.

The single mission of the flowering cherries is to be beautiful; they bear no edible fruit. To the Japanese, the blossoms are symbolic of the spirit of their people. An old text states:

"The lotus flower in a vase is worth admiring. A rose can be pinned on a lapel. Both stand for individualism. But cherry blossoms are quite different. Their merit lies in seeing them in profusion."

And, because the cherry blossoms does not shrivel on the branch but falls to earth at its fullest beauty, Japanese poets have suggested that people should die the way the flowers do–without fuss or regret.

Blood Donors May Receive Tax Break

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service doesn't pay the proper attention to blood, says Dr. Robert Mahoney, Skidmore College biology professor.

When you give a pint of blood to the Red Cross blood bank you get absolutely nothing under "charitable contributions" on your income tax return.

But isn't it as much a donation as those things you give to the Goodwill or any charity? That's the question Mahoney asked in an interview.

"Give an old suit to the Salvation Army and the IRS gives you a deduction," he said in an interview.

"So why not blood?"

Mahoney has appealed to the IRS and state legislators and testified before congressional committees.

"Blood contributions ought to be tax deductible," he said.

The House of Representatives is considering bills to allow a $25 tax deduction for each pint.

"Taxable blood's already a reality in Arkansas. The legislature passed a similar measure for state tax purposes last year," Mahoney said.

In addition to giving the donor a tax break, the measure, enacted on a national scale, would help with the chronic shortages of stored blood in many of the nation's hospitals, Mahoney figures.

To meet demand, hospitals frequently must turn to commercial sources.

"More blood from volunteers would mean less blood from commercial banks and that," said Mahoney, "ought to help cut post-transfusion hepatitis."

Transfusion-linked hepatitis hits an estimated 100,000 and kills 850 annually, authorities estimate.

Much of the commercial blood comes mainly from indigents, drug addicts and alcoholics. It is 12 times more likely than volunteer blood to be contaminated with the hepatitis virus.

The commercial blood adds up to only 10 to 15 penent of the nation's blood supply, but authorities have linked it to nearly half of all cases of post-transfusion hepatitis.

The Food and Drug Administration recently ordered that the commercial blood be distinguished from volunteer blood by labels. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has urged it be phased out.

Mahoney said he had hoped the IRS would help his campaign when he petitioned the agency in 1972 to classify blood donations as charitable contributions.

"But you know the IRS," he said in an interview. "The IRS stood by its 50-year-old precedent."

That classes blood contributions as "services donated."

Mahoney said the Red Cross isn't delighted with his efforts. In fact, he said the Red Cross, the American Association of Blood Banks and the American Blood Commission all nix his idea.

"They say to equate blood with money at income tax filing time would alter the present ethical climate for giving, and some people — who for health reasons should not give — might lie about their medical histories."

The bills to amend the IRS code to permit a tax deduction on donated blood are now in the House Ways and Means Committee.

"They are HR 436, HR 1070 and HR 1274," Mahoney said.

In England, princes and princesses sign only their first names, except for the prince of Wales, who signs his name followed by a capital P.

Small Town Fights Bureaucratic Sewage Laws

Pacific News Service

ARCATA, CALIF.—Last winter, faced with a steep jump in its sewer charges, this little Northern California coastal city came up with a novel scheme.

Instead of hooking into the planned regional disposal system, which would dump treated waste water into the ocean, Arcata decided to use its effluent to grow salmon and trout, restore a mash, create a recreational pond and provide a better habitat for its wild bird population.

In this way, waste would become a resource and taxpayers would pay much less than for the conventional sewage treatment system.

The idea excited officials of this city of 12,000. It seemed appropriate to an era of shrinking resources and rising prices. But it also pitted Arcata into battle aginst neighboring communities, regional and state agencies and other commited top the $51 million regional sewage project.

To state architect Sim van der Ryn, who founded the California Office of Appropriate Technology, the Arcata story is a classic case of "people versus the machine."

To regional authorities and growth-eager neighbors it is a case of careless disregard of common responsibilities.

Both sides marshal hearty arguments to support their position. But one thing is certain. Arcat's attempt to build a biologically sensible water waste treatment system sheds light on a broader, nation wide problem.

It is widely recognized that there must be an end to dumping liquid wastes into marine and fresh-water environments. But the path toward water reclamation is blocked by Catch-22 traps, heavy investments in the current methods and well-intentioned regulations that stand in the source of food. Preliminary results of Allen's experiment have already proven the efficiency of the system.

Kloop, with Fairless and other city officials, worked on a plan to allow Allen to expand his experiments and to provide other benefits to the city as well.

Their scheme provides for creation of a 23-acre marsh, which would expand the shrinking habitat of many migratory birds; a 17-acre trout fishing lake; and the Allen experiment that, perhaps, would eventually return enough fish for commercial harvesting.

The first obstacle was a state law that forbids any discharges into estuaries or bay unless the discharge enhances the marine environment.

Proponents of the Arcata plan thought they had proved enhancement by planning a marsh where there was only a ravaged shoreline. The Regional Water Quality Control Board said they had not.

"There is no way to prove enhancement," said van der Ryn. It is a matter of values, beyond a certain point.

Further objections came from the Humboldt Bay Wastewater Authority. As a long-term experiment that might be relevant many years from now, the Arcata idea was fine, said John Stratford, general manager and chief engineer. But for the present, the regional project would have to move ahead to meet current needs.

Sam Sacco, mayor of nearby Eureka, complained that Arcata was holding up growth that Eureka badly needed.

David Joseph, executive officer of the North Coast Regional Water Quality Control Board, argued that Arcata came up with its alternative much too late in the game. "The regional project has been studied and restudied for six years," he way of creative change.

Arcata's Mayor Alexandria C. Fairless said the idea for the reclamation plan began as a flash in the mind of Public Works Director Franklin R. Kloop last February when he was worrying over the cost of the proposed regional system.

With 32 miles of pipe and 16 pumping stations, it was priced at over $52 million and would no doubt cost more, given inflation. Sewage rates, already higher than property taxes in Arcata, would become a hardship to many.

Federal and state authorities had required Arcata to join with nearby communities to plan a way to clean up the pollution going into Humboldt Bay, a source of shellfish and other marine life that provide income and food to area residents.

The regional system had been designed, approved by 16 authroties and would already have been under construction were it not for court challenges from citizens groups that were displeased with the cost and design or feared that the system would provide an incentive to sprawl.

Yet would it not be more sensible, Kloop reasoned, to make use of the sewage after treatment in the ponds at the edge of the bay?

For five years, George H. Allen, professor of fisheries at nearby Humboldt State University, had been raising young salmon and trout in two of Arcata's waste water ponds with a combination of sea and treated waste water. Under a grant from the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration, he was trying to create a less costly and more efficient method of ocean ranching by using settling ponds that offer available land and water. The organisms in them are a said. "This is not a reclamation controversy. In our region, 50 to 60 percent of the effluent is applied to irrigation.

"The issue really is whether any community that is part of a large community should, without any scientific, technical or factual basis, prevent the other entities from doing the clean-up job they have been ordered to do," he said.

State architect van der Ryne said Arcata "should be give a fair chance to try an alternative. The idea of a decentralized regional system now planned is a sewage transport system, not a sewage treatment system. The EPA (federal Environmental Protection Agency) has shown that any sewage plant leaks."

Whether Arcata will get a chance depends on the outcome of negotiations underway among several authorities. If it does, other communities in coastal areas might have a model for resource conservation.

Reclamation As An Afterthought

Despite a sincere commitment to waste water reclamation by many public officials and citizens, little is being achieved in most parts of the nation. Most sytems planned or under construction are the conventional types, with reclamation more an afterthought than a factor inherent in the design. Yet despite the snail's pace, California is a leader in moving toward change.

"We have estimated that by the year 2000, 2.5 million acre feet of waste water will be discharged annually into the marine environment from coastal areas," said Kurt Wasserman, chief of the office of Water Recycling at the state Water Resources Department. "If it were reclaimed it could meet the water shortage projected for California for that year by 75 percent."

(Studies indicate that the rest of the projected shortage could be met by conservation, especially in agriculture, which uses 85 percent of the state's water and which could be made 70 percent more efficient at modest cost.)

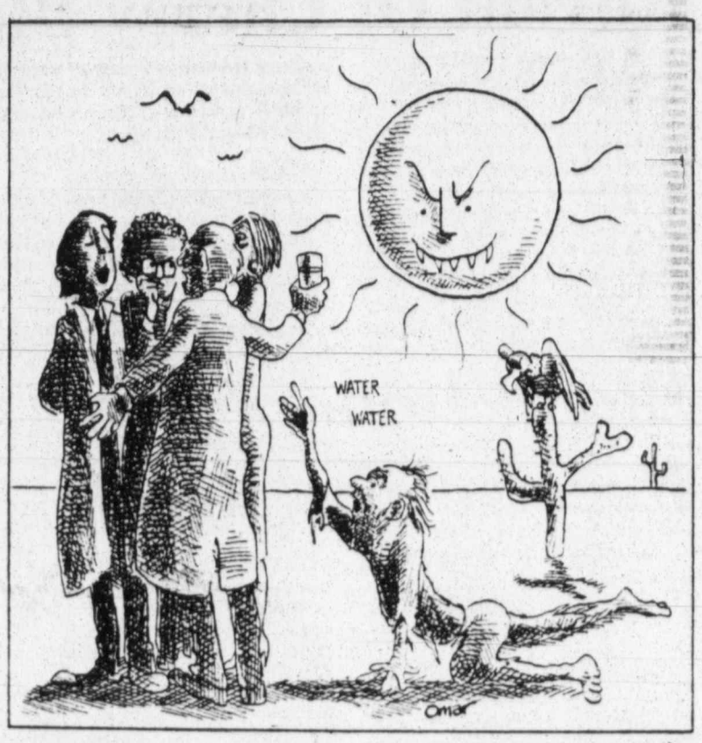
However, Wasserman acknowledged, "we are not reclaiming much now" in areas where the natural supply of water is most scarce.

A few innovative waste water projects are under way. Notable among them is the Triple Use Plan being constructed in Sonoma County. It will recycle treated wastes from Santa Rosa and two nearby cities to irrigate agricultural land and thus allow the growing of two crops a year for dairy cows, supporting an industry that hauls feed in from as far away as Idaho.

In San Diego there is a $2 million project combining sewage treatment and agriculture. Waste water also is being used to repel salt water intrusion from the ocean, and to water golf courses, parks and orchards. It also has been used in Los Angeles since 1962 to recharge ground water basins. But this program, which could be expanded, leaves questions unanswered about long-term effects on health.

But for the most part, communities remain locked into plans for conventional concrete-and-pipe systems that are to the pollution-conscious '70s what highways were to the prosperous '50s and '60s and dams were in the era when today's west was made. And like those earlier public works, sewage projects move ahead on the grease of federal money.

Given the immense obstacles and the national scope of the problem, the outcome of the Arcata fight seems trivial in context. It could, however, affect choices available to some 80 communities in California that face state orders to upgrade their sewage systems. And it is a milestone in a shift toward the recognition that what is called waste is often merely a misplaced resource.



Drinking 'Treated' Wastewater Health Effects Undetermined

By RASA GUSTAITIS
Pacific News Service

For fifteen years, some Los Angeles residents have been drinking treated wastewater that has been filtered into ground water basins that serve as the domestic water supply. Yet almost nothing is known about the long-term health effects of the water.

According to a report by John R. Goldsmith of the California Department of Health, there is "no information available on health hazards connected with use of reclaimed water."

There are, however, many questions, especially whether carcinogenic — cancer causing — compounds that escape secondary sewage treatment are still present when the water pours out kitchen taps.

Wastewater is recycled into ground water in Los Angeles, as well as elsewhere, to replenish ground water aquifiers — underground reservoirs — depleted by overpumping.

Los Angeles relies mainly on ground water. Since 1941, it has been recharging the aquifers with imported Colorado River water. Since 1962, it has added a mix of treated effluent, allowing it to percolate through soil and seep down.

Overpumping and consequent land subsidence and salt intrusion is a problem in much of the arid West. But "Southern California is the area where ground water recharge with wastewater effluent has had the most extensive application," according to Goldsmith.

In 1973-74, almost 30 percent of the recharge into the Los Angeles Central and West Coast Basins was by reclaimed effluent. About 55,000 people live in the 8 square miles most likely to be affected.

"We could probably double that project," said Kurt Wasserman, chief of the office of water recycling at the state Water Resource Conrol Board, if some health questions could be answered. A regional study is about to begin, he said.

Hardest to answer is whether the heavy metals and organic compounds that remain after secondary treatment are filtered out as the effluent percolates through soil. Many such compounds are known as to be carcinogenic, according to health authorities, especially after they mix with chlorine during the treatment.

The variety of such compounds is immense, for they derive from some 500,000 chemical products used in industry, agriculture and households. They find their way into almost all surface and ground water, flowing into rivers and streams and so into reservoirs and pipelines. But health experts said the compounds are likely to exist in greater concentrations in effluent.

A study conducted in 1971-1975 at the University of Southern California looked at cancer incidence in areas likely to be affected by use of ground water mixed with wastewater. Compared with an area that was similar in other ways, the study found a greater incidence of stomach cancer among women, more cancer of the gall bladder and bile ducts among men, more Hodgkin's disease, leukemia and lymph cancer. But because of other variables, the study found there was "no basis for concluding that a cancer risk exists." It did, however, suggest a need for more studies.

The state health department, which is responsible for setting standards for reclaimed water if health protection is involved, has set none for ground water recharge.

In 1976, a panel called to discuss the issue found that many questions about potential hazards "can not be resolved because basic scientific knowledge is lacking." It advised proceeding with caution and pilot studies. It also noted that other water resources are not without similar hazards.

Half the people in the nation get water from surface sources that contain industrial wastes, untreated sewage and effluent. In the Ohio River, at low flow, 17 percent of the water is wastewater.

Transplanting Key To Bedding Plants

AUSTIN (Special) — Nothing provides color like a mass of bedding plants in bloom. One of nature's most vivid gifts, these flowering plants will last through summer and into fall if certain varieties are planted and properly cared for.

Bedding plants can be purchased by the flat and massed for colorful effect across lawns and backyard gardens. "With the proper care your yard will be blooming with color," says Agriculure Commission Reagan V. Brown. "Here are a few tips from the Texas Department of Agriculture to help you reach that end."

Transplanting is the first important step in the proper care of bedding plants. More than one young plant has died of shock on its way from flat to garden. When the plant is purchased, it is removed from the carefully controlled enviroment of the nursery of greenhouse to the drier climate of the home. To protect plants from even this mild shock, water them well and keep them in a shaded location until ready to transplant.

Transplanting must be done under favorable conditions. This means avoiding the hottest time of day, mid-afternoon. Early morning, late afternoon or days that are foggy or cloudy are ideal.

Make sure the earth around the plant's roots is damp. Tap the pot gently, taking care to leave as much soil around the roots as possible when the plant slips from its casing. A small putty knife is helpful for loosening small plants from their pots.

Place the plants in holes that have been dug large enough to permit the roots to grow outward into the soil. Cut the sides of the holes vertically to approximate the shape of the small root ball. Place a soft mount of soil at the bottom of the hole to cushion and protect the root system.

Set the plant slightly lower than ground level. Fill in around it with soil mixed with fertilizer, and leave a shallow basin around the stem for water.

BIG BOUQUET — Flowers planted in a half barrel and set in full sun are a good way to provide color in a limited space. The Texas Department of Agriculture has designed this numbered guide to help gardeners choose and arrange their plants. Three Shasta daisies (1) are planted in the center of the barrel. A circle of four large yellow marigolds (2) is placed around the daisies, and outside of it another circle of four multicolored zinnias (4) alternated with four small yellow marigolds (4). Four sweet alyssum (3) are bunched at either side in groups of two, while four purple petunias (5) cascade front and back, also is groups of two. Though well-balanced, the arrangement is informal enough to suggest be lined with gravel and filled with approximately 50 pounds of porous soil.

Flame Violets Considered Fine House Plants

By ELVIN McDONALD

The first hybrid African violets were introduced in the United States shortly before World War II, and not many years following countless new varieties began to come on the market. These were lavenders, blues and purples, pure whites, pink, and finally maroon and chartreuse, but none produced the much-sought colors of tomato red and lemon yellow — except a relative in the same family, a gesneriad, known as the episcia.

Since the growers themselves had trouble pronouncing episcia, and there was lots of demand for a red-or yellow-flowered African violet, it seemed sensible and business-like to call this plant a flame violet. Now, it has become generally popular and widely distributed — but the name business still bothers some people. Horticultural purists object to the use of "violet" for any plant not belong to the genus Viola, so we're left with episcia. I say episcia ee-pish-uh; others intone eep-ee-see-uh or ee-Pisk-ee-uh; to tell the truth, I don't think it matters.

What is important is that the episcia has proved itself a fine house plant, one whose form and growing habit is unique. It sends off strawberry-like stolons (runners), but the main leaves grow in pairs or rarely threesomes along an upright stem. The lightly-haired leaves may be plain apple green or a combination of jade, chocolate brown, silver, white, pink or rose, all prominently veined in such a way as to make them appear to be quilted.

In other words, a well-grown episcia makes a beautiful foliage plant but when the flowers open, the effect can be spectacular. They vary in size from less than one to almost two inches across and in color from the snow white of episcia dianthaflorex, whose petals are lace-cut along the edge like a dianthus, to pink, rose, and lavender blue, not to mention the vivid reds and yellows.

Of all the plants I grow and write about, the episcia is one that really enjoys a tropical warmth, with medium to high humidity, say 40 percent or more. I maintain these conditions in my apartment during the cold weather heating season by keeping the episcia on the upper shelves of my fluorescent light garden, where warm air rises naturally, in partly sunny windows, and by the constant use of cool-vapor humidifier and pebble humidity trays, along with daily misting of the leaves.

Indoors in hot weather, protect episcia from chill air conditioning drafts and too much direct sun. Move them outdoors only after summer has settled in and temperatures stay generally above 60F. Dappled to full shade produces excellent growth outdoors with little or no direct sun, especially in hot climates. You can hang them from the branches of a tree, inside a vine, or lathcovered gazebo or from a roof overhang; they also make choice plants for a shaded window box.

Maintain the soil in which episcia grow between evenly moist and slightly on the dry side. Waiting to water until the leaves wilt will result in dead tips ad aborted flower buds. I grow mine in a mixture of equal parts all-purpose potting soil, sphagnum peat moss, coarse vermiculite and clean, sharp sand. They receive regular applications of flowering house plant fertilizer, alternated with fish emulsion.

I have seen episcia with mealybugs but in the 30-odd years I've been growing them, I can't recall ever having to treat one for any insect or disease. Environmental problems are more likely: total collapse from water-logged soil and sudden chilling to 50F degree or less at the same time; frail, weak stems, and pale leaves from lack of light; prematurely dead leaves along main stems and stolons from soil allowed to dry out to much; and no buds, or at least none that open, owing to an insufficient amount of warmth, humidity and light in the right combination.

If you want to grow an episcia indoors in natural light, hang it or display on a pedestal so that the stolons can cascade freely. One rooted stolon placed in the center of a six-inch pot will soon become a sizable plant with its own crop of stolons; these you can encourage to grow all around in moss-lined baskets by pinning the base of each into the moist surface of the exterior walls. Give the container a quarter turn in the same direction every time you water so that all parts will receive an equal amount of light.

FLAME VIOLETS

Nothing thrives in a warm, fluorescent light garden like an episcia, but to be really successful some special growing techniques are needed. One way is to allow no stolons to develop; as soon as new growth in a leaf axil can be identified as stolon or flower bud, the stolons are all removed. This tends to result in an episcia with unusually large leaves and somtimes lots fo flowers.

A variation of this technique is to eliminate the pot so that the upper leaves are a few inches beneath the tubes; selectively retain a few stolons and train them to cascade all around in a sort of mound or pyramid shape. Or place a four-inch deep box the size of your light garden about eight to 12 inches below the tubes, fill it with growing medium, and turn your collection of episcia loose. In constant warmth and humidity with ample moisture about the roots, they will quickly carpet the entire surface.

HOUSE CALL

Q. Is there a special way to grow the Pink Brocade episcia, the one with leaves that are mostly silvery white and rose pink?

A. Yes. This extraordinary beauty, which is also called Cleopatra, is rather uncompromising in its need for constant warmth, high humidity. I recommend growing it in a mostly covered terrarium, ideally in a fluorescent light garden, and with a growing medium moist but never soggy, wet or bone dry. As old leaves mature and begin to die back, remove them immediately, otherwise their decay may endanger health growth.

Q. Can I grow nasturtiums in a container garden in summer?

A. Yes; plant the seeds in warm, moist soil and place outdoors when danger of frost passes. Keep the soil most and started indoors to more sun outdoors. Keep the soil moist and make regular applications of a flowering house plant fertilier. Incidentally, nasturtium flowers are edible, delicious with tossed greens or stuffed with crab meat salad.

Officers Want To Give Advice To Commission

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Adult Probation Commission should have asked for more help from adult probation officers before drafting guidelines for a uniform probation system, a probation officer said today.

"I cannot understand why the busy people on the commission would not want to rely on the experience and knowledge of seasoned adult probation officers to do the nitty gritty work in setting up the rules," Tommy McWilliams, chief probation officer in McClennan County, told the commission.

The panel held hearings today on proposed rules for a standard adult probation program funded with state money.

McWilliams said he does not quarrel with the proposed rules, but said the commission should call on probation officers to deal with details of the program.

The commission was created under legislation passed by the 1977 Legislature. The first state aid payments to local probation departments are scheduled for September.

During fiscal 1979, the state will pay $17 million to judicial districts to fund local programs on a per capita basis.

Probation officers would have a minimum $13,500 salary.

The proposed rules call for an average caseload per probation officer of not more than 200 cases as of January 1, 1979. The caseload would taper off to 150 cases by June 1, 1979, and 100 cases by January 1, 1980.

Several probation officers from rural areas said the proposed guidelines on separating funds for adult and juvenile probation would create a hardship on smaller departments.

'Numbers' Funnel Billions To Mafia

By STEPHEN LONGSTREET

NEW YORK (NEA) — Most authorities on gambling and crime agree that the gambling lottery called numbers is bet on more than any other and amounts to the richest gambling setup in the nation. More people play it and more money is put into it than into the horse racing, cards, dice or roulette. Numbers is illegal almost everywhere in the nation, yet it is estimated that 20 million people a day play it.

In its simplest form, a player puts down anything from a dime to five dollars on any three numbers he chooses. To make the game foolproof and insure that it is not rigged, the winning number is usually taken from the last three digits of the final sum of the daily trading of a stock exchange.

Numbers supports a small army. Thosands of people in New York City are full-time numbers runners. They write out numbers and take money from anyone — child or adult, white or black — from the five burroughs. The runner is expendable. He rarely knows the men he's working for; he knows only the man above him, never the policy boss in his section. Payoffs, too, are made by people who don't know the real boss in their sector. It is almost a foolproof system of staying clear of the law.

Arresting runners is futile. Eager replacements wait by the hundreds in every ghetto and rundown district to be picked for the honor of being runners. To the player it seems little worse than playing checkers or doing a crossword puzzle. Most players begin with a daily bet of a small coin, and dream big. But soon it's a compulsive action and the player can go to a dollar or more a day on a number.

The money bet on numbers adds up. Some put it as $10 billion a year. Is it really gambling? The take is so huge for the syndicates, and the payoffs so scant, that it's really just a racket to skin the players. It also gives the Mafia and the syndicates they control billions of dollars to buy hotels, trucking companies, laundries, construction firms and other businesses while financing the smuggling of heroin and other drugs. It shows the worst side of the American interest in gambling.

Social workers involved in welfare and health have estimated that 60 to 65 percent of the people in Harlem and Brownsville bet on a daily number. The runner gets 25 percent commission on every sale. The agent to whom he passes his scores and cash gets 10 percent. What is paid in "grease" (police protection) hasn't been figured out. The odds aginst a player winning on a number are 1,000 to one. Sometimes no payoff occurs. The ordinary "banker" who works for the mob can make $200,000 to $300,000 a year. The mob, of course, makes millions.

After long years of effort, bingo games (very much like Las Vegas keno and other forms of lottery that resemble it) are now legal in more than a dozen states. The bingo amendment of New York in 1957 passed by about 650,000 votes.

Some $2.5 billion a year is spent buying bingo cards. In the most popular form of the game, a player buys a card, usually for two dollars. The card has boxes numbered 1 to 75 in five rows, with five numbers in each row. Every card, therefore, holds 25 numbers and the combinations on the cards are all different. Numbers are drawn from a bowl or a cage; as the number is called out, the player covers or marks on his or her card each number that is called. (Generally, it's a woman's game in many churches.) The winner is the first player in the room to cover five numbers in a row: vertically, horizontally or diagonally.

In Illinois, bingo has been legalized since 1971. "Bingo in Illinois is big business," admitted Illinois Revenue Director Robert H. Allphin. The state gets 10 percent of the take from bingo games. That produced $7.2 million during 1975, 25 percent more than in the previous year. Money spent on bingo in Illinois is more than $70 million annually, and it keeps increasing. "We're not aware of infiltration by criminal elements," said Allphin. "Investigators, it is hoped, are keeping ther game clean and seeing that the state gets 10 percent off the top."

There is no commercial bingo. Games are run only by state licensed religious, charitable, fraternal, veterans', educational or labor groups. Only unpaid volunteers are used to run games.

In 1976 California proposed that bingo be legalized statewide, with the proceeds to go to charitable causes, and neither the state, counties or cities collecting any revenue. The cities and counties would charge a license fee for playing. The proposition was passed by a huge majority.

Benefits Seen In Cloning Of Asparagus

PROSSER, Wash. (AP) — Agricultural researchers say they have successfully cloned asparagus, a process not new for plant life but one which they say could be beneficial for asparagus growers.

Washington state ranks second in the nation in asparagus production, but the vegetable must be picked by hand because the spears are delicate and not uniform in size.

Researchers Ray Dyck and Hsu-Jen Yangits say machine harvest of cloned asparagus would be possible.

Cloning is the reproduction of genetically identical plants or animals by replacing the nucleus of a mature, unfertilized cell with the nucleus of a cell from another organism.

Orchard experts for years have used a cloning-like technique to reproduce fruit trees, Dyck and Yang said.

The asparagus is a dioecious plant, meaning there are "male" and "female" plants, which "mate" to produce seed. They also tend to "mate" with plants which have a different genetic makeup, thus producing a hodgepodge of long, short, fat and skinny stalks.

The cloning program — a three-year, $100,000 effort — is in its second year at the federal agriculture experiment station here. The Washington Asparagus Growers Association is financing most of the project.

Dyck said it costs about $10 to produce a cloned asparagus plant, and that it has taken researchers almost two years to produce enough hybrid seeds to plant just two acres.

U.S. Urges Chilean Democracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department expressed hope Friday that recent developments in Chile will accelerate a trend toward restoration of democratic rule in that country.

The department "noted with interest" a speech Wednesday by Chilean President Augusto Pinochet announcing his government's intention to release a significant number of political prisoners and to speed up plans for a return to constitutional rule.

"It is our hope," said State Department spokesman Hodding Carter, "that these developments, along with the reduction in the state of emergency, the easing of the curfew and restrictions on the return of political exiles, will lead to an accelerating trend toward re-establishment of full civil liberties and the restoration of democracy in Chile."

According to officials, Wednesday's announcement will benefit about 120 prisoners and is expected to hasten by about five years the Chilean government's original plan to install an elected congress by 1985.

Police Seek Kidnap Victim, Suspect

INDEPENDENCE, Va. (AP) — The grandfather of 12-year-old Elizabeth Ann Wingate has received a telephone call in which her kidnapper demanded a ransom and the girl said she was unharmed, Virginia State Police said Friday.

But police said the caller kept his voice so low the grandfather could not tell if it was $500 or $5,000 he was demanding.

Since Wednesday, police in Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida and Indiana have been hunting for Miss Wingate and for Michael Deliaria, 25, of Gibsonia, Pa., who is named in a warrant as the man who abducted her.

He is also being sought by Pennsylvania authorities on robbery, auto theft and rape charges.

Miss Wingate, a seventh grader, was taken from her home near this western Virginia town Wednesday after her parents were tied up. Her abductor rode away with her in the Wingate family car.

Virginia State Police Sgt. D. L. Biggs said a man, speaking in a low voice, called the girl's grandfather, Letcher Wingate, shortly before midnight Thursday night, demanding a ransom. The girl told her grandfather she had not been harmed but did not know where she was.

"There's some confusion about what the amount of money was," Biggs said, because the caller kept his voice low.

Indiana State Police said the call may have been made from a telephone booth at a motel in Seymour, Ind., but FBI agent Bill Blackketter in Indianapolis said that was supposition.

Authorities in Grayson County issued warrants charging Deliaria with abduction, armed robbery, automobile theft and use of a firearm in commission of a felony. Police said Deliaria also is wanted in Pennsylvania in connection with rape, robbery and auto theft.

The kidnapping took place Wednesday at the home of Curtis and Edna Wingate. A man gained entrance by asking for a drink of water, tied up the parents and made off with the young girl.

A station wagon believed stolen in Beaver Falls was found outside the home. Police said they believed the suspect had arrived in it and left it behind when he left in Wingate's white Plymouth Duster.

A neighbor described Wingate as a disabled veteran in "very modest" circumstances.

Sparkplug Firm Announces Deal

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Champion Spark Plug Co. said Thursday that it had entered into a conditional agreement to buy Anderson Co., of Gary, Ind., a maker of windshield wipers.

The terms call for Champion to buy more than 94 percent of the outstanding Anderson stock now held by the John W. Anderson Foundation, and make a tender offer at the same price for all other Anderson stock, according to R.A. Stranahan, Champion president.

Anderson shares are not traded publicly. Champion declined to disclose the amount of its offer.

This is the second venture of its kind recently for Champion. The firm bought the Arman Co., of Turin, Italy, a windshield wiper maker, about a year ago.

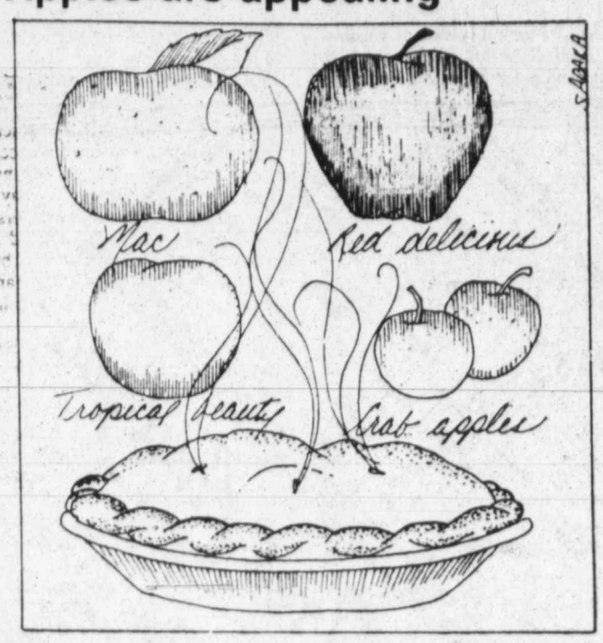
The Gardener's Notebook

Apples are appealing



Backyard-Grown Apples Popular

By ALLAN and SHEILA SWENSON
NEA Garden Columnists

Apples are as American as apple pie, thanks to Johnny Appleseed. Unfortunately the requirements of fast, efficient farm production have eliminated many of the sweetest, old-time favorites from supermarket shelves. Although light red, yellow and green colored apples may have better flavor, they don't have the eye appeal shoppers seem to want.

Fortunately, you know better. You can enjoy juicier sun-ripened apples few will ever taste when you grow them in your own backyard. You have a choice of standard, or space-saving dwarf and semi-dwarf trees that yield full size fruit.

As millions of new gardeners grow vegetables to fight inflation, they began to realize that home-grown varieties may not be suitable for commercial shipping to market, but they are far tastier. The same holds true with apples and other fruits.

Northern Spy, Arkansas Black, Winter Banana are no longer known in many homes but they offer supurb taste treats. Our "Landscape You Can Eat" book lists many more. Here are some of the best as you go shopping for tastier living from apple trees. Stark, Burpee, Park's and other reliable mail order plant firms offer wider choices than you may find locally.

Quinte is very early and hardy. Fruit is medium size, red with yellow streaks. Its flesh is soft, aromatic and tender. Prima ripens early midseason, bearing medium large fruit with dark red color on bright yellow back ground. The crisp, fine-grained flesh is excellent for fresh or cooking use, and this variety resists apple scab disease.

Macoun is a midseason variety. Trees are upright, hardy and bear red-stripped fruit with crisp, white flesh.

Starkspur Golden yields especially flavorful fruit, bears more heavily than others because of the many fruiting spurs produced by each tree. It is available as semi-or full-dwarf types. Starkrimson Red Delicious, has been acclaimed for its supurb flavor. These bright, glossy red apples grow extra large and have excellent keeping qualities.

If you like apples, but live in warmer climates where apples don't usually thrive, Tropical Beauty is worth a try. it was discovered in South Africa and proved successful and Australia, Florida and Hawaii. This variety produces medium larger, carmine-red fruit with mild flavor, and grows well in horticultural zones 7 to 9, the warmer parts of the United States.

For early eating, Lodi, Summer Rambo, Grines Golden are good. These are usually attacked less by insects and disease than varieties that ripen later.

For more exotic eating, the Geneva (N.Y.) Fruit Testing Cooperative offers old-fashioned types, including Winter Banana will its unique taste, Rhode Island Greening, Red Seek-N-Further or Hubbardston Non Such.

The list seems endless. If apples are appealing to you, dig in this year and get them growing.

Desalinization Projects Viewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration official said Friday it was a mistake to issue guidelines telling states to help pay the cost of water desalinization projects after Congress passed a law requiring the federal government to pay it all.

Guy R. Martin, assistant secretary of interior for land and water resources, made the statement under questioning by Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M. The testimony came during a hearing by the water resources subcommittee of the Senate Public Works Committee.

Martin said the guidelines were not intended to say how the law passed last year should be carried out, but to indicate the direction that should be taken in the future. The administration has since introduced legislation calling for the states and federal goverment to share the cost.

The 1977 law called for the federal government to construct water desalinization demonstration plants at no cost to the states and to pay all costs for two to five years.

Martin said the guidelines, which specify 50-50 cost sharing as an objective, were designed to encourage states to be "working, dedicated partners" in the projects. He also said the cost-sharing arrangement would make it easier to get approval of federal budget officials for the funds.

"What you have in mind is nothing more than what you would like to do," Domenici retorted. "What Congress says is what the law is."

"They were not intended as guidelines to carry out the law," Martin said. "It was a mistake and probably inappropriate to send them out in a letter."

He told Domenici he still believes cost-sharing is the best approach to take, but will abide by whatever law Congress passes.

University Women Show No Real Post Progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — For women in higher education there has been some change on campus but no real progress since 1973, the president of the American Association of University Women said Friday.

Marjorie Bell Chambers said the proportion of women in top-level administrative posts has increased slightly, but women still are underrepresented in these positions.

And on university faculties, women still are clustered at the bottom of the pile as instructors and lecturers, she said.

Mrs. Chambers based her comments on a study made by the AAUW in 1977, with the analysis released Friday. The survey covered 600 of some 1,900 four-year accredited higher education institutions in the United States.

The study, a follow-up to one in 1970, was made to determine the progress made by women on campus since the advent of federal equal opportunity and affirmative action laws.

It said that despite the fact the laws have been on the books for six years, women in higher education are far from achieving equal status with men.

The study also said that among college students, men continue to predominate in positions of power and influence.

"Occasionally a woman is elected president of the student body but this is a rarity," Mrs. Chambers said at a news conference.

She said the study found that attitudes toward women were most accountable for the lack of progress.

Among the changes mentioned by the study were child care centers on campuses to help older women attending school and more women's studies.

Mrs. Chambers said the AAUW will appoint a blue-ribbon task force for women's equity to work with colleges and universities to carry out its recommendations growing out of the study.

One of these is that the 959 colleges and universities holding corporate membership in the AAUW establish a committee on the status of women responsible for monitoring, evaluating and reporting progress in achieving equity for women.

The AAUW is a membership organization of some 190,000 women who hold at least a bachelor's degree.

The study's statistics showed that 6 percent of college and university presidents were women, the same as in 1973. Among other top posts, 12 percent of the chief academic officers were women, a gain of 3 percent; 5 percent of the chief business officers were women, the same as in 1973; and 8 percent of the chief development officers were women, an increase of 2 percent.

Mayor Post Filled Without Runoff

PADUCAH (Special) — Former mayor V.L. Hutchinson has been declared the new mayor of Paducah, cancelling a scheduled runoff with retired Methodist minister Wes Polk.

Hutchinson failed to obtain a majority vote in the April 1 election, receiving 234 votes to Polk's 170, and 156 for Jim Carraway, owner of the city's newspaper.

However, according to City Attorney Bill Heatley, state election codes do not provide for runoffs in cities under 200,000 population, and the city charter makes no provisions for such circumstances, so Hutchinson was declared the plurality vote winner.

Scented Plants Enhance Atmosphere Of Homes

By ELVIN McDONALD

Late one afternoon last winter, I was visiting with Renaldo Maia, in his New York Flower and Fragrance Shop. Shortly after closing time, a lithe woman, who appeared to have just come from playing tennis, knocked on the door and, when she was admitted, said, "Oh, Renaldo, I'm sorry to bother you, but could you please send over a gallon of your potpourri? We've been away for a month and the apartment smells musty."

Only days before, I heard a similar conversation at The Apothecary in Laguna Beach, Calif., where several potpourris are sold, or you can select the components and mix your own, maybe adding homegrown rose petals and leaves from scented geraniums.

These two occurences suggest yet another way we can bring more of nature into our lives and get rid of another spray can or two. I'd be the first to admit that commercial room deodorizers have their place — but how much nicer when the good smell comes from running your fingers through a bowl of potpourri or brushing a scented plant as you pass.

There is in fact one plant available in varieties that give off the fragrances allspice, apple, apricot, cocount, filbert, ginger, lemon, lime, nutmeg, orange, pepperming, pine, rose or strawberry — plus less specific but no less tantalizing scents known as "pungent" and "old spice." That plant is the scented-leaf geranium, technically a Pelargonium, the same genus to which the common bedding geranium belongs. It has been beloved for centuries by herbalists but only recently by plant people in general.

Rose and peppermint geranium leaves are sometimes used in jellies and those of the lemon in finger bowls, a genteel practice brought to the White House dining tables by Jacqueline Onassis during her years there as Mrs. John F. Kennedy. All the other scented-leaved geraniums, of which there are at least four dozen different varieties, offer the same potentials, not to mention the fragrances given off as they grow and, when dried, to potpourri.

As if all these attributes were not enough, scented geraniums make highly successful potted plants to grow outdoors in half sun of non during frost-free weather or indoors in as near-perfection in a flourescent light garden by starting with a compact young plant and keeping every branch pinched back after it grows an inch or two.

I recommend two or three tubes per fixture; they come in 20-, 30-, 40-, and 72-watt sizes, those being 24, 36, 48, and 96 inches long respectively. In temperatures on the cool side, say mostly below 65F., burn the tubes 12 hours out of every 24 will give better results. Position geraniums so that the topmost leaves are three or four inches directly beneath the tubes.

Besides light and warmth, scented geraniums need care to grow well — low to high humidity with fresh air that circulates freely; a growing medium kept between evenly moist and on the dry side; and regular applications of a well-balanced fertilzer, except little or none in fall and early winter. I grow them in a mixture of two parts packaged all-purpose potting soil to one each of clean, sharp sand and sphanum peat moss; to each quart I add a tablespoon of bonemeal.

While these geraniums are grown primarily for their scented leaves, most of them also bloom in season, which tends to be from late winter to early summer, following a period of semi-dormancy, induced by witholding fertilzier, keeping the soil on the dry side, and providing temperatures generally cool, say below 65F. Some of my favorite for flowers are apricot, (Pelargonium scabrum); dark rose; filbert (Pelargonium concolor); crimson; ginger (Pelargonium torento); lavender; orange (Pelargonium citriodorum); white, lavender and maroon; and upright cocount (Pelargonium petulum); yellow, an unusual color for geraniums flowers. In addition, these are the snowy blooms of the pungent Clorinda (rose pink with common markings); Mrs. Taylor (scarlet); old Scarlet Unique (brilliant red); and Pretty Polly (pink).

I see rooted cuttings of rose, lemon and pepperming geraniums in plant shops, nurseries and garden centers all over the country, but you may have to obtain the others from specialists who ship. Two of my favorite catlog sources are Sunnybrook Farms Nursery, 9448 Mayfield Rd., Chesterland, Ohio 44026 (catalog 50 cents); and Logee's Greenhouses, 55 North Street, Danielson Conn. 06239 (catlalog $2.00)

Besides growing scented geraniums from cuttings of half-ripened wood each about five inches long. Remove the leaves from the bottom two inches of stem and isert this in a small pot of moist moss. Place in bright light but no direct sun; when old leaves stand erect and new ones show at the tip; you'll know roots have formed at which time transplanting to a regular soil mixture is in order. If you'd like to experiment, packets of scented geranium seeds are available fromt he George W. Park Seed Co. Inc., Greenwood, S.C. 29647 (catalog free).

HOUSE CALL

Q. What could cause an apparently healthy croton to suddenly drop most of its leaves? I have it in a sunny window.

A. Letting the soil become bone dry, leaving the pot standing for long periods of time in a saucer of water, or an attack of red spider mites.

Environmentalists Hit Carter Plans For Energy Needs

WASHINGTON (AP) —Environmentalist Barry Commoner and a group of other energy specialists said Friday the country should dramatically expand its reliance on natural gas as a short-term solution to the energy crisis.

At a news conference sponsored by an orgranization called Scientists Institute for Public Information, Commoner said President Carter's heavy emphasis on coal and nuclear energy is wrong.

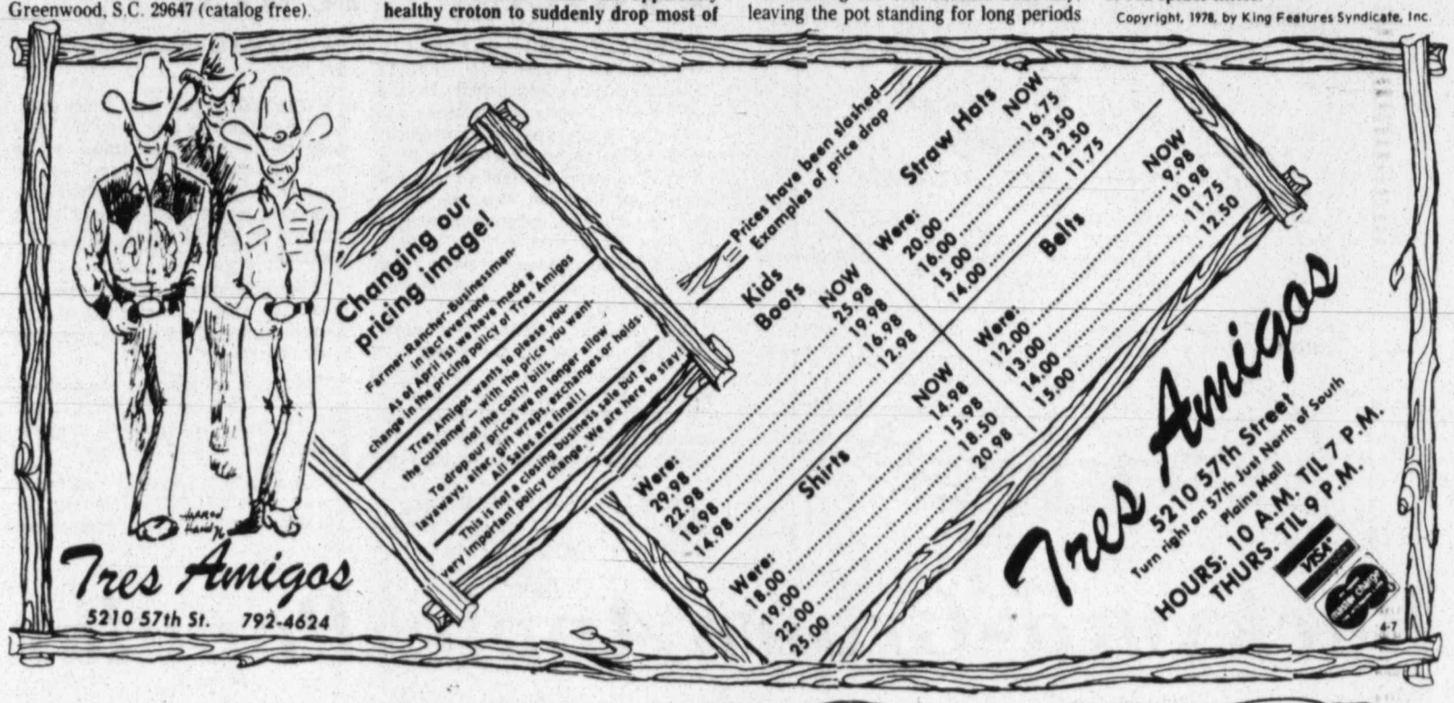
He disputed contentions by Carter's energy advisers that natural gas reserves are running short. He said the government should encourage exploration of natural gas wells in oceans and on public lands in the West.

Meanwhile, he said, methane gas generation plants using coal, manure, peat and other sources should be built around the country.

Ultimately, he said, much of the nation's energy should be supplied by a combination of solar energy and methane gas, with kelp and other vegetation grown on large farms, permitted to decay and producing methane gas.

Commoner said coal should not become the major industriai fuel because of the high cost of conversion and mining as well existing problems in delivering it to users.

Nuclear energy should be abandoned as too dangerous, Commoner said.



DERAILMENT — A 27-car derailment on the Santa Fe railway near Somerville in Burleson County forced the evaculation of about 45 families Friday morning when a tank car containing proponol gas began leaking. The leaking car is shown at far right. Dept. of Public Safety officials cordoned off the area about three miles east of Somerville after the 8:00 a.m. derailment.(AP Laserphoto)

Somerville Families Return To Homes

SOMERVILLE (AP) — Authorities told 25 rural families they could return to their homes Friday after workers plugged a chemical leak in a rail car caused by a 27-car derailment earlier in the day.

The families had been asked to evacuate an area three miles downwind of the accident scene when one of the derailed cars containing propionaldehyde began to leak.

Santa Fe Railroad officials could not specifically describe the chemical, but termed it a "hazardous" material. An explosives expert was dispatched to the scene.

Burleson County Sheriff Alfred Wilhelm blocked highways in the area, and firefighters kept a constant spray of water on the chemical car.

A Santa Fe official in Dallas said two cars containing hazardous materials were involved in the derailment, but an overturned car carrying xylene was not leaking.

The train was headed for Somerville from Silsbee in southeast Texas.
No injuries were reported.
Railroad officials are investigating the cause of the derailment.

Diabetic Children's Summer Camp Set

West Texas and Eastern New Mexico children with diabetes will have the opportunity to attend a local summer camp June 5 through 9. The camp will offer all the fun and activities of traditional summer camps plus special preparations designed for children with diabetes.

The camp will be free for all children thanks to the Southwest Rotary Club of Lubbock. With the help of other Rotary Clubs, Southwest Rotary will underwrite the expenses of every child attending, regardless of ability to pay.

Children ages 6-15 may be recommended for the camp by physicians, school nurses, Rotarians, members of the American Diabetes Association and other interested adults. Reservations for the camp must be made by May 1 through the department of pediatrics, Texas Tech University School of Medicine, at (806) 743-2310.

The camp will be help at the Plains Baptist Encampment near Floydada.

The camp is being designed and will be directed by the Texas Tech University School of Medicine department of nutrition and social services and the Texas Tech University department of health, physical education and recreation.

Tech physical education majors will serve as counselors, providing a variety of sports, crafts and games appropriate to the children's ages and skill levels.

TTUSM nutritionists will plan and supervise all meals and snacks. A member of the pediatrics faculty will be in residence to supervise each child's medical needs. Faculty and members of the social work staff will work with children and their parents and will provide brief sessions on diabetes management.

The Rotary camp is the first camp offered in West Texas for children with diabetes. A pilot project, it has been modeled after similar successful camps in Central and South Texas. If successful, the camp may be expanded in future years.

FORD IN 1980?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford, saying "the longer we are out, the better we look," called himself a potential 1980 presidential candidate Thursday night. It was the first time that Ford publicly put himself in the field for potential contenders for the 1980 nomination. He has said previously that he is keeping his options open.

Costly Medical Fees Studied

By LARRY FREDERICK

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — If you believe doctors' fees are too high, you've got important company.

The government's inflation watchdog agency, the Council on Wages and Price Stability, says that since 1950 doctors' incomes have been rising faster than everyone else's and that doctors now make more than is economically justified.

In 1976, the median income of physicians reached $63,000, the Council reports. Yet in 1977 doctors hiked their fees 9.3 percent — nearly 50 percent more than prices went up in general.

The Council found that some doctors set high "target incomes" for themselves and that if they don't have enough patients to meet the target they raise their fees instead.

Doctors say they deserve to make lots of money because their training was costly and arduous and because their services are of a vital, complicated nature. Economists point out, however, that the training of physicians while long, is paid for largely by society — not the trainees themselves. Indeed, today's interns and residents are actually paid — and paid well. A recent survey showed they make more than the average American worker.

It would be mistaken to conclude, however, that physicians are greedier than anyone else. It is the unique way medicine is practiced that encourages high fees. If architecture or education or journalism were practiced the way medicine is, then members of these professions, too, would probably use the system to swell their incomes. It's human nature.

As medicine is practiced, doctors do not compete. They do not advertise low fees to attract patients. They do not offer more services for less money. Furthermore, it is they who tell patient what kind of care they need and how much.

The patient is not totally powerless, however. There are a variety of ways consumers can reduce the amount they spend for physicians' services and yet not risk ill-health.

1. Consider skipping the annual physical. Research shows that if people go to a doctor only when they suspect illness, their health is protected just as well as when they go for regular yearly exams — with the possible exception of older men. Otherwise the annual physical can be a costly indulgence that does little to insure health.

2. Consider skipping the annual Pap smear. If the first two smears turn up no abnormalities, chances are extremely slim a woman will ever develop cancer of the cervix, which the Pap smear can detect in its earliest stages. After the first two smears, a test every three to five years is adequate.

3. Get a second opinion before undergoing elective surgery. An operation recommended by your physician or surgeon may not really be necessary. To find out if it is, get another surgeon's opinion first.

4. Treat colds and the flu yourself. Most respiratory infections are caused by viruses, so there's nothing a doctor can do about them. Stay at home, take care of yourself, and the illness will pass in a few days.

5. Don't go to the doctor for nonmedical help. If you want advice about sexual, emotion or marital problems, see a psychotherapist, who's much better trained to deal with such matters than a physician.

6. Use free medical services whenever possible. Many employers, colleges and schools maintain medical department, which are especially handy for periodic tests for such conditions as hypertension and diabetes.

7. Avoid unhealthy habits. Adults tend to eat, drink, smoke, sit, and worry too much and exercise too little. You don't have to live dully — just be temperate. If you must smoke, hold it to 10 low-tar cigaretts a day. And a cocktail or two a day is okay. You don't have to be an O.J. Simpson either. Just take part in some reasonably active sport three times a week. Swimming, jogging, bicycling and jumping rope are the best but tennis, badminton, volleyball, basketball, soccer and sking are fine. Even walking is better than nothing.

CAB Approves Air Fare Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board authorized U.S. domestic scheduled airlines Thursday to increase their basic fares 3 percent effective May 1.

The board had said last fall it would it would permit increases twice a year when necessary to take into account inflationary cost pressures.

The CAB estimated that the increase would mean about $140 million in additional revenues for the 10 trunkline carriers over a year. For a consumer it would mean that a $100 air ticket would cost $103.

The permitted increase would apply to basic fares. The discount rates now being offered would be applied to the new basic fares.

The CAB said the airlines realized an unadjusted return on investment of 9 percent in 1977. The boost would produce a return of 11.6 percent, within the 12 percent which the CAB says is reasonable.

Paris Prepares For Parade Of Latest Fashions

PARIS (AP) — Spring burst into Paris along with hordes of buyers and press for the semi-annual "pret-a-porter," a week-long fair that is the world's biggest rag trade event for next fall and winter fashions.

French officials like to say the hotels are swelled by up to 50,000 potential customers, believable when the pushing and shoving begins.

The big, official bash at the Porte de Versailles with over 1,200 exhibitors from around the world does not open until Saturday. But it's chic to do your own thing, and many small houses are jumping the gun by giving early, crowded shows. By the time the harrowing week is over, the courageous buyer could see well over fifty shows.

The clothes so far look suspiciously like versions of what young girls are already wearing on the Champs-Elysees: lots of lean trouser or jodphur pants, tunics over pants, long, full skirts. Volume and fabric are still evident, though the silhouette is somewhat modified.

Pants were the news in the last haute couture collections, but the girl on the street didn't have to know about that. She hardly stopped wearing them, though designers showed them reluctantly.

Among the younger earlybird designers showing was Anne-Marie Beretta, whose huge-shouldered, voluminously-clad girls looked either military or out of the court of Henry VIII.

Some of the strict coats were in olive, tobacco or slate blue wool, with cadets' collars, full tucked bodices, firmly belted waists. Belts were big here, crossed like antique soldiers' on the chest and then the waist, or around waist and hips medieval-style. Huge black matte cire capes over button-down shirtwaist dresses were worn with gaitored boots for a sinister tone.

The hats with these were flapped sheepskin-lined trapper hats or flapped larged visored golf caps.

The real Renaissance look came on with bulky piped suede jackets with huge full sleeves and a rolled detail outlining the shoulder. Pants here were generally floppy but nipped at the ankle, colors were black or subdued burgundies, greens or tobacco.

In spite of severity, this was a generous collection, especially those huge tops, that came up in plush-lined flowered jackets, all sorts of wild black or shimmery gold-lace or rhinestone-ornamented evening dresses, with extravagant earrings and coifs, parading along to Russian music. Miss Beretta was given a big accolade.

Foreigners are big in the ready-to-wear shows, especially the Japanese. A new name this time was Ichiro Kimijima, well known in Tokyo, whose elegant fabrics were used with a bow to Saint Laurent.

There was a ruffled petticoat-overskirt look, nice in varied black and white checks, Peter Pan and Pierrot collars (called the Gigi or collegiate look), plus some bulky layered clothes — sleeveless tops over full-sleeved coats, teamed with blousy tops nipped by tied cummberbunds, for a Mongolian look. These came in golds, slate, burnt umber and other fall colors.

The audience applauded for some stunning brocade evening tops over turkish pants, but gasps came for the finale: a hard-fought sword battle of two samurai with a steam machine to cool them down.
