Miners Called Obstructionists In Talk By FDR

Mines Are Under Stars And Stripes As 15-Day Mediation Period Is Effected; Some Miners To Act On Lewis' Request

(By The Associated Press)

The coal crisis averted, miners started back to work today in a trickle that promised to grow into a stream by nightfall and to have the mines running fully by tomorrow morning.

Their new employer was the United States government, whose commander in chief, President Roosevelt, called on the men to get back to digging the coal so necessary for war production. The stars and stripes waved over the shafts, symbolic of the government which stepped in when John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers stopped work last week.

Most Are Waiting

A symbolic flag of truce, too, accompanied the return. For Lewis and other UMW officials asked the miners to resume work tomorrow morning on a 15-day temporary basis.

Most of those who have been on strike appeared delaying their return until Lewis' date of tomorrow, and in some instances today where men showed up there were not enough of them to open the mine.

Three hundred and fifty men at Gallatzin, Pa., led the return, entering their shaft at 5 a. m. central war time. About half those in the beehive coal industry of Fayette, Co., Penn., came in an hour later and officials said they expected full crews by tonight.

Eight major mines in Ohio reported a nearly normal complement and a district vice president of the UMW predicted that the afternoon shift would be normal.

Ickes Is Boss

Several hundred miners went back in the Harlan County, Ky., field, where union spokesmen indicated that all the field's mines would be turning out coal tomorrow.

In Illinois, whistles blown for work were largely ignored by the 25,000 UMW members there, but most of the 18,000 AFL coal miners were on hand.

Uncle Sam's new boss of the mines is Fuels Coordinator Harold Ickes. He will seek to settle the wage contract dispute between the miners and operators during the next 15 days.

Ickes reported in a routine bureau of mines paper today that coal on hand amounted, on the average, to a 33-day supply. Describing the position of steel mills and railroads as "particularly precarious," Ickes said some steel plants in Ohio had an average of only 24 days supply.

The White House still had an-

Connally Bill Meets Disfavor

WASHINGTON, May 3. (AP) — Some administration opposition developed today to the bill of Senator Connally (D-Tex) for government seizure of struck plants but he went ahead with his plans, proposing to make it a criminal offense for any person to interfere with war production by inducing a worker to leave his job.

"I want to put some teeth into this bill," Connally told reporters in announcing that he also had drafted an amendment which would clothe the War Labor board, now operating under an executive order, with statutory powers.

Previously, Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he saw little advantage in the Senate's passing the bill, because President Roosevelt already has taken over the soft coal mines.

No Stabilization Upset

When Connally offered the WLB amendment, Barkley asked and received the Texan's assurance that it would not interfere in any way

Passage Of Tax Bill Foreseen In 'Showdown'

Withholding Levy Appears Certain In House Action

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 3 —Four months of bitter party strife culminate today in a showdown on pay-as-you-go income taxation, and the House appeared bound to pass, by tomorrow night, a bill wiping out half or more of the $10,000,000,000 tax assets against 1942 individual incomes.

Any measure enacted is virtually certain to impose a 20 per cent withholding levy against the taxable parts of wages and salaries, effective July 1.

Third Plan Looms

The climactic debate began with Republicans again arrayed behind the Ruml plan to skip a complete tax year, while Democrats countered with a proposition to erase about 50 per cent or $5,000,000,000 of the liabilities

Workers Strike At Ford Plant

DETROIT, May 3 (AP) — War production again was halted in a section of the Ford Motor company's huge River Rouge plant today when 4,784 employes went on strike as a result of an argument over operation of a "swing shift."

The dispute began at 10 p. m. last night when 812 employes refused to work in the production foundry. The stoppage was continued by 3,972 employes who reported for the 6 a. m. shift today. The foundry produces tank and motor parts.

A company spokesman said 340 of 581 employes in the magnesium foundry walked out today in sympathy with workers in the production foundry, forcing the company to close the building.

Machine Shop Affected

The stoppage also affected the foundry machine shop where the company said it sent home between 600 and 700 employes. Operation of this unit, a Ford spokesman said, depends upon continuous output by the production and

Dudley Lewis Proposed As Welfare Head

Senate Approval Is Asked; Power Bill Approved

(By The United Press)

AUSTIN, May 3.—The state welfare board today asked the senate for confirmation of the appointment of Dudley L. Lewis of Fort Worth to be executive director of the state welfare department.

If the appointment is confirmed Lewis will succeed J. S. Murchison, former mayor of Corsicana, who recently tendered his resignation.

The communication to the senate was signed by board chairman J. M. Leonard of Fort Worth and board member Thomas H. Taylor of Brownwood. Board member Frank Roberts of Breckenridge did not sign it though he was in Austin last week with the other board members when a successor to Director Murchison was discussed.

Ex-Official Of Fort Worth

Lewis will be fifth man to attempt to administer old age pensions in Texas. The post has been held successfully by Orville Carpenter, Jack Little, Adam Johnson and Murchison through stormy periods.

Lewis, who is now in Arizona supervising construction of an aluminum plant, was formerly city manager and city engineer of the city of Fort Worth.

Endorsements Claimed

A power fight that came into the Texas legislature like a lion went out like a lamb today with unfought passage of a bill which all sides are said to have endorsed.

Principal regulations are: river authorities may not fix resale price for power sold to municipalities; they may not pay fees nor commissions for buying or leasing properties; they may not hire attorneys without a written contract specifying a definite fee; one river authority may not lend money to another; cities whose properties are bought by river authorities have the right to buy them back within a year.

Legislators had started their final full week of a four-month session. Passage of any bills later

Diseased Meat Probe Slated

AUSTIN, May 3. (AP) — Creation of a five-member committee to investigate black market slaughtering of diseased animals and selling the meat for human consumption was authorized in a resolution adopted today by the Texas house. Adoption vote was 100 ayes to 13 noes.

Rep. Roger Evans of Denison, speaking for the resolution by Rep. Paul Donald of Bowie, said he had affidavits showing that meat from diseased cattle has been sold to persons in Dallas, Fort Worth, Denison and Paris. He said that one conviction had been obtained for selling diseased meat in San Antonio.

Rotten Eggs Said Used

Rep. Dan Kirby of El Paso said in San Antonio yesterday he saw rotten eggs being used in making candy. He said he saw "rotten cows and horses being cut up for supposed making of dog food."

Kirby said syrup was being shipped to Texas from Mexico to be used in making cattle feed, but instead is being relabeled and sold for human consumption. Kirby

Strong Jap Aerial Attack Hits Darwin

Allied Fighters Dealt Hard Blow In Fierce Fight

(By The Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, May 3— A powerful fleet of Japanese warplanes—21 bombers and 30 fighters—struck savagely at the Allied airdrome near Darwin, Australia, yesterday and inflicted heavy losses on Allied fighters in a fierce air battle.

Spitfires, manned by Australian and British pilots, rose in force to intercept. The ensuing battle raged over the Darwin area and the Arafura sea to the north. Thirteen enemy planes were destroyed or damaged, the noon communique said.

"Our own losses were heavy," it added.

There was no elaboration. It was the first time, however, in a year of aerial warfare in the southwest Pacific that a communique had referred to Allied air losses as heavy.

Three Fighters Destroyed

Three enemy fighters were destroyed; one bomber and nine fighters were damaged.

Even as the Japanese appeared above Darwin airdrome, Allied airmen ranged over enemy targets. The Mubo area, 15 miles south of the Japanese base of Salamaua, New Guinea, came in for a particularly concentrated attack. A medium force of Boston attack bombers made 42 bombing

Avila Camacho, in his message of "warmest greetings" to Stalin, said that "the splendid fight that the Red army is carrying on against the forces of the totalitarian powers backed with determination by all the people of the Soviet union has developed in Mexico and all over the world a passionate enthusiasm."

In his reply, Stalin assured Avila Camacho of his "highest consideration" and asked him to "convey to the friendly people of Mexico the best wishes of the people of the Soviet union."

Garner Doesn't Want Office

WASHINGTON, May 3. (AP) — Former Vice President John Nance Garner not only doesn't want any office but wouldn't accept any that might come his way.

He said so in a letter to a close personal friend and fellow Texan, Roy Miller of Corpus Christi and Washington, who made a portion of it public today.

Expresses Appreciation

From his South Texas farm at Uvalde, Mr. Garner wrote to express appreciation of the laudatory remarks Miller and others had made at the recent unveiling in the Senate wing of the capitol of a marble bust of the former vice president. Included in his letter was this paragraph:

"There is no office on the face of the earth now that I want or would accept. I desire to spend the balance of my life as a private citizen and the more private the better it will suit me, except that I will always contribute when necessary to the welfare of my friends and country."

Supreme Court Voids Decision On Literature

Municipal Tax On Religious Writings Unconstitutional

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 3.— The Supreme court in effect overruled today a decision it delivered last June 8 and declared unconstitutional ordinances imposing a license tax upon the sale of religious literature.

This action was taken in a five to four opinion read by Chief Justice Stone. It said that the Supreme court decision delivered June 8 was vacated and judgment of state courts sustaining the ordinances were reversed.

Sect Challenged Ordinance

Justices Reed, Roberts, Frankfurter and Jackson dissented.

Those voting against constitutionality of the ordinances were Stone, and Justices Black, Douglas, Murphy and Rutledge.

A similar decision, delivered by Justice Douglas and with the same four dissenting, declared unconstitutional a Jeannette (Pennsylvania) ordinance also challenged by a group of "Jehovah's Witnesses."

Explaining that the judgment in the case decided last June 8 had been vacated by the high tribunal, the opinion by Douglas added:

"Freed from that controlling precedent, we can restore to their high constitutional position the liberties of itinerant evangelists who disseminate their religious beliefs and the tenets of their faith through distribution of literature."

The opinion read by Stone contained only one paragraph and explained that the reasoning of the court in that case was given by Douglas in the Jeannette case. It was the Stone opinion, however, which reversed the tribunal's action taken last June and overturned ordinances of Opelika, Ala.; Fort Smith, Ark.; and Casa Grande, Arizona.

Douglas said:

"The first amendment, which the 14th makes applicable to the states, declares that 'Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press.'

"It could hardly be denied that a tax laid specifically on the exercise of those freedoms would be unconstitutional. Yet the license tax imposed by this ordinance is in substance just that."

The petition for reconsidera-

Frenchmen Drive Ahead Within 15 Miles Of Bizerte

Axis Troops Abandoning North Tunisian Positions In Face Of Renewed Allied Offensive; Enemy Forces May Be Split

(By The Associated Press)

Col. Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim's northern Axis forces fell back to within 15 miles of Bizerte and American forces have captured the key highway and railroad center of Mateur, threatening to split the Axis forces in Tunisia, Allied headquarters dispatches announced today.

The Germans and Italians were reported abandoning their positions in north Tunisia with great rapidity as the French swept forward to within 15 miles of the naval base of Bizerte along a coastal strip north of Lake Achkel.

(The Algiers radio in a broadcast recorded in London by the Associated Press said Allied headquarters in north Africa announced Mateur had fallen).

Advices from the front this afternoon told of the American entry into Mateur, 18 miles southwest of Bizerte and 34 miles northwest of Tunis.

A French communique announced French troops and Moroccan Goums made a further advance in the coastal area, bringing their forward elements only 15 miles from Bizerte, and rounded up more than 500 prisoners.

Advances also were made in other sectors.

The fortnight campaign, in which the U. S. Second Army corps had played an important part, exhausted both sides, but after a day of comparative rest yesterday the Allies struck forward again and the enemy defense collapsed in many places.

U. S. French units cooperated yesterday in the occupation of Kef Rdjal Touila, a group of hills 12 miles northwest of Mateur.

In the first phase of their Tunisian all-front offensive, the Allies had cut the front down from 140 miles to 125, and had driven to within 20 miles of Bizerte in the north and about 20 miles from Tunis in the central Medjez-El-Bab sector.

Fierce Moroccan Goumiers digging into the hills which extend to the Mediterranean's edge in the north, had driven to the region of Marsa Douiba, routing Germans

Russians Halt Nazi Drive In Kuban Sector

Six-Day Attack Costs Germans 7,000 Casualties

(By The Associated Press)

MOSCOW, May 3 — Red army artillery raked German positions in the Kuban sector of the western Caucasus throughout the night although the Soviet midnight communique announced that German effort to expand their bridgehead in that region had been abandoned after a six day drive in which the Nazis lost 7,000 men.

The mid-day communique said the Russian shellfire killed 200 more of the enemy, and that 16 mortar and artillery batteries were silenced and ten German blockhouses were destroyed.

(The German high command communique, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, said the Russians failed yesterday in fresh attacks on the Kuban bridgehead.

Dutch City Is Blasted By RAF

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, May 3 — Royal Air force bombers and fighters fought their way through German fighter plane opposition to attack industrial targets in the Dutch coastal city of Ijmuiden yesterday and follow up a heavy attack Saturday by big American bombers on the German submarine base at St. Nazaire, France.

The British raiders shot down six of the enemy planes, but lost four of their own fighters.

Mosquito bombers sped across France virtually without opposition late yesterday and unloaded delayed action bombs from rooftop level upon railroad shops at Thionville, a center of the Lorraine iron ore and coal transport network and junction of the main Rhine valley-Paris line and the Brussels-Saarbruecken line. Pilots said their cargoes crashed through the main shop buildings.

7 U. S. Bombers Lost

Seven of the American bombers were lost in the smash at St. Nazaire, which was carried out in heavy weather and against determined resistance by squadrons of German Focke-Wulf planes.

The weather forced the American aircraft to separate on the return flight and made it difficult to determine immediately the number of German planes destroyed.

The German radio claimed that 11 four-engined bombers were destroyed. It was the first announced raid by U. S. bombers based in England since the attack on Bremen April 17, in which 16 planes were lost.

'By God, If That's How It Is, We'll Be Back Diggin' Coal,' Miner Says After FDR's Appeal

BY STEVEN WILLIAMS
Associated Press Staff Writer

PITTSBURGH, May 3—As the lights blinked off last night in the little "patch" homes that dot western Pennsylvania's hills, the men who dig war-vital coal chalked off another big strike and went to bed content.

Content because there had been word—the word they had hoped for—from a man in New York and another in Washington.

The man in New York, John L. Lewis, had announced that they could go back to work Tuesday—for 15 days anyway.

Miner's Talk

And the one in Washington, Franklin D. Roosevelt, had told them in a broadcast from Washington how badly the nation needed the fuel they produced; and what hardship continued striking would bring their sons and brothers at war.

But more important, the nation's chief executive had made them feel he was talking to every miner on a man-to-man basis—the kind of talk a miner gives and likes to get.

We sat round the radio in the tiny wood house of one miner in Library, Pa., while Mr. Roosevelt talked. When he referred to the men overseas, a tear slipped down the cheek of the miner's wife, and when he addressed his remarks to every coal digger, the miner looked proud.

"Wonderful President"

When the president finished, the miner, still staring at the radio, said:

"By God, if that's how it is, we'll be back diggin' coal harder than ever. We'll be doin' it for

Save Victory Garden From Insect Blitz By Spraying

MRS. WES A. IZZARD

Save your Victory gardens from insect pests says Mrs. Mona K. Hildreth, assistant county home demonstration agent. Here are twelve important tips she lists:

1. Look for insects as soon as plants are in sight. An early start is half the fight.

2. The equipment for applying is usually as important as the poison itself.

3. Either a plunger, rotary, or bellows-type duster is satisfactory if it has a long delivery tube.

4. Many kinds of sprayers are suitable. The smallest suitable for garden use is the compressed air sprayer.

Cover Leaves Thoroughly

5. Sucking insects are killed only when hit with poison. Both sides of leaves must be covered.

6. In general repeated applications are necessary at five to seven day intervals as long as needed.

7. No material containing sulphur can be safely used on squash, cucumbers, melons, etc.

8. Deep winter plowing or spading destroys many insects in the soil.

9. Destroy weeds in and around the garden. Many insects breed and hide in weeds.

10. Destroy old plants as soon as crop is harvested. Leave nothing to feed and shelter insects.

To Make Sulphate Dust

11. To make three per cent nicotine sulfate dust: Secure a gallon can with tight fitting lid. Fill the can not more than half full with hydrated lime and put in four or five small stones for a breaker. For each quart of lime add two tablespoonsful nicotine sulfate (Black Leaf 40). Shake vigorously for five minutes. Dust should be used within 24 hours. Dust should be applied when the plants are dry, no wind, and the temperature above 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

12. To make cutworm bait: Thoroughly mix five pounds wheat bran, one tablespoonful Paris green or cryolite dry. Mix one-half pint cheap molasses and one-half gallon water. Slowly add water to bran and stir thoroughly until well mixed. Spread in late afternoon.

Sinking Of Allied Warships Claimed

(By The United Press)

A German communique said today that 14 Allied warships, including an aircraft carrier, a cruiser, five destroyers and six submarines, had been sunk during April along with 63 merchant ships totaling 423,000 tons.

U-boats were credited with sinking most of them, including the aircraft carrier. This appeared a renewal of the German claim, denied officially by the American Navy, of sinking the U. S. carrier Ranger.

Seven speedboats also were sunk, the communique broadcast by Berlin radio said. All except two destroyers and three submarines were said to have been accounted for by U-boats in raids on "British and American supply lines."

DRAFTED!—Staff Sergt. John R. Brown, an Army veteran of 30 years, is slightly perplexed to receive a notice to appear at Draft Board No. 1 in Evergreen, Ala. He's at Bainbridge Field, Ga.

Storm Trooper Chief Dies After Accident

LONDON, May 3. (AP)—The Berlin radio reported today that Victor Lutze, chief of the staff of the Nazi S. A. (Storm Troops) and an old-time follower of Adolf Hitler, died in a hospital at Potsdam from injuries received in an automobile accident.

Lutze succeeded Col. Ernst Roehm as chief of staff of the Storm Troopers after the death of Roehm in the ruthless purge of Nazi leaders by Hitler in June, 1934.

Cleanup Forms To Be Put Out

Approximately 8,500 report blanks will be distributed among school students of Lubbock today as the first step in the annual citywide cleanup campaign which will continue through May 15, according to J. E. Maisen, chairman of the drive.

Upon these blanks, which are detailed, parents will be asked to indicate the various types of improvements they plan on their premises as a contribution to this campaign. These improvements may include anything from minor repairs to a window screen to work of major nature.

Various items of activities are listed on the printed form, so it will not be difficult to fill out. The chairman asked that all parents read it carefully, follow the simple directions and then see to it that it is returned to the schools.

Maisen emphasized that, although these items may seem insignificant when considered individually, they amount to a great deal in the aggregate. Campaign officials are agreed that, of all the activities that have been included in Lubbock's highly successful cleanup efforts, this is perhaps the most important.

Officials also reminded that, during the campaign, city garbage trucks will be used to haul away the rubbish cleaned from individual premises. They emphasized that this service will be provided only during the campaign. At other times, people must arrange for the hauling of such trash.

Giraud's Prediction Termed Reasonable

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

General Henri Honore Giraud's prediction that "this month of May will see the complete defeat of the Boche in Tunisia", seems like reasonable speculation as things now stand.

The Allied forces—American, British and French—have done a workmanlike job in driving wedges into vital sectors of the mountain arc of Axis defenses.

Reports indicate a slackening off in the fighting but this doesn't indicate any weakening of our attack. It means that the Allies have reached that point at which any force inevitably must arrive in a furious, all-out drive—a period of consolidation of gains and preparation for further assaults.

No Doubt Of Outcome

There is no longer any doubt as to the ultimate outcome of the battle of Tunisia.

By the first of June weather and ground will be prime for invasion. If by any chance that invasion should be across the English channel, then it should be got under way in early summer in order really to put the screws on Hitler before the rains and mud of fall arrive to save him.

That would be equally true if the Allied assault should be made through the Balkans, for the bad autumn weather starts early there. Invasion of Italy, however, isn't so dependent on the weather.

Any Delay Bad

Any delay is bad for the Allies, for it gives the Axis just so much more time to prepare for the onslaught.

General Giraud also predicted that "the thirty years war which began in 1914 will be ended victoriously in 1944." It could be, all right. Maybe he has a lot of inside information. However, it looks from here as though the duration of the Hitlerian war depends largely on when the Allies are able to invade western Europe from Britain. We must wait and see.

Flashes Of Life

(By The Associated Press)

WALKING PAPERS

CAMP WHEELER, Ga.—A newly commissioned second lieutenant got his Army career off to a good walking start.

Ordered to the 18th battalion, he erroneously reported to the 16th, just in time to accompany a platoon on a 19-mile hike. Returning from the hike, he discovered his error, and promptly the next day was transferred to his correct outfit. He arrived just in time to get in on a 15-mile hike.

PROBLEM CHILD

KANSAS CITY — Officers picked up a stray monkey, they report with sorrow . . .

While they debated sending the little animal to the unclaimed property office, or possibly to the missing persons bureau, he:

Scampered across an ink pad and left footprints on important papers; climbed to the ceiling when pursued; chewed the end off the clerk's fountain pen; and manhandled a typewriter with glee.

They put him in a pet store to await his owner.

WEEDY SENTENCE

AURORA, Ill.—Nine boys who dug up 15 rows of potatoes in Ira Stakesbury's garden for a potato roast will think twice before repeating the episode.

Hailed before Police Magistrate Lambert M. Ochenschlager, each of the boys was ordered to spend two hours weeding Stakesbury's garden at such times when his services would be needed.

VERDICT FOR MARS

LOS ANGELES — Superior Judge Jess E. Stephens adjourned court early so Attorney William C. Bartlett wouldn't be late for his part-time job in a war plant.

"We have to turn out war materials," the judge decided, "whether we turn out anything in court or not."

MEN KICK MULES

DENVER — Police—rode—literally—two unwanted residents out of town, speeding them with well-placed, parting kicks. They were mules which had dined in victory gardens.

UNDERSTATEMENT

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — A Russian-born resident is asking superior court to make his name Vasili S. Drake. It's too hard to spell and pronounce his present name — Vasili Stephan Vladimirtzeff.

ORCHESTRA SEATS

PHILADELPHIA—The stage at the Philadelphia naval hospital was too small for the full Philadelphia orchestra, so Eugene Ormandy and his musicians performed from the floor of the auditorium while patients occupied the stage at a concert.

5-CENT CRIME

OGDEN, Utah—Officer C. S. Beckett, writing an overparking ticket, heard a tinkle and turned to see Miss Lucile Bingham, 18, dropping a coin in the meter.

"Now it doesn't show violation," she offered, brightly.

He charged her with obstructing an officer.

It was just an impulse, she told the court—and oh, no! It wasn't her car! She just wanted to help the unknown owner . . . .

The court threw out the charge and warned her to restrain her impulses.

TO REMOVE BODY

WATERBURY, Conn.—Armed guards of a factory engaged in war production, who recently completed an Army course in plant protection, were being inspected by an Army officer.

"What would you do if you spotted an intruder on the grounds?" asked the officer.

"I would immediately notify the main office," was the quick reply on one guard.

Rescuing People Is Merely A Routine To 'Miracle Pilot'

By JOHN CORLETT
United Press Staff Writer

CASCADE, Ida., May 3.(U.P.)—The U. S. Army commended him for "great determination and courage" for discovering and rescuing from an isolated snow-bound tiny lake in the primitive area five members of a wrecked bomber crew, but saving people is old stuff to "miracle pilot" Penn Stohr.

Stohr, 40, modest and unassuming, has become the indispensable man of the almost inaccessible Idaho primitive area, largest in the United States.

He is the one man who can fly the area in a blinding snowstorm and come out alive.

In the wintertime the lives of no one knows how many persons depend upon the flying skill of this civilian pilot. The two seven-place planes of the flying service that employs him offer the only means of getting supplies and mail to miners, prospectors and ranchers of the vast mountainous area of Central Idaho.

Knew Sick Can Be Removed

The isolated inhabitants of the primitive area lead their solitary lives secure in the knowledge that their sick and their maimed can be moved to modern hospitals in a matter of hours. All are in communication with the outside world through forest service telephone lines and radio.

Stohr would put to shame the much-publicized "bush pilots" of Canada. Those pilots land on lakes, generally. Stohr lands and takes off on "postage stamp" fields in deep canyons, where he must know the vagaries of every air current. He uses both skis and wheels.

One Field Is Short

One such field is so short that in taking off the pilot must do a half loop to keep from crashing into the canyon wall.

Canadian bush pilots use maps. Stohr wouldn't know what to do with one.

"I know every creek and canyon in Idaho, Montana and parts of Oregon and Washington," said Stohr, not in a manner of boasting but to stress a fact. "I have to, because when the weather comes down I have to get into those canyons and find my way to the nearest landing fields."

Takes Off In Snowstorm

Stohr has headquartered out of Cascade, principal town of mile-high Long Valley, which borders the primitive area, for 10 years. Before that time he barnstormed and flew for the forest service. He became a pilot 20 years ago.

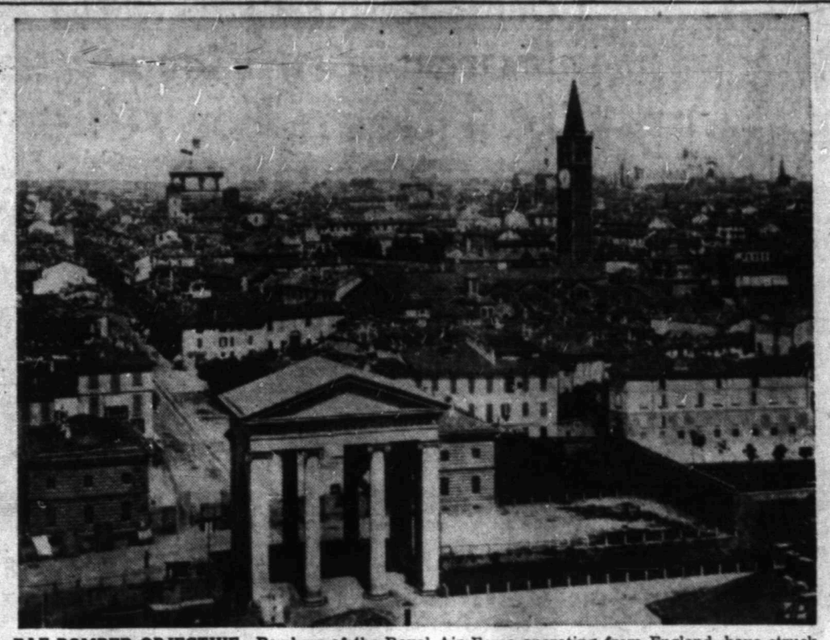

Seldom a day goes by that he is not called to bring a sick or injured person from some isolated mining camp or ranch to the hospital at Cascade. He hasn't even tried to keep track of the "mercy flights" he's made. This reporter flew with him one day when he made two such flights. The day before he had taken off from a tiny field in a snowstorm to bring a seriously ill woman from deep in the primitive area to civilization.

Have Complete Confidence

Long Valley folks have complete confidence in Stohr, who has never had a crash landing since he started flying.

Mrs. Charles Owens, wife of a mine owner, whose property is located in the center of the high-pinnacled Sawtooth mountains, told of the time a storm closed in on them when flying to the mine. Stohr dropped into a canyon at treetop level and, by skipping from one canyon to another finally found the road to Yellowpine, where he set the plane down for a three-day stay until the storm had subsided.

Stohr told of the time he sat down on a meadow near Landmark, coldest spot in Idaho in the wintertime, and spent three days under his plane until the storm blew over. Another time, a storm broke fast, accompanied by a 90-mile-an-hour wind and Stohr's plane was flung about the sky. After three hours fighting, he finally made the 15 miles to the Yellowpine field.

A Bunk's A Bunk, Even A Skeleton's

HEADQUARTERS ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND (U.P.) —Cpl. Clyde A. Peterson of Sitka, Alaska, a member of "Castner's Cutthroats," the platoon of combat scouts organized by Col. L. V. Castner for service in the Aleutians, has added his bit to the growing legend of his outfit.

Seeking shelter recently in the outer Aleutians where they were doing reconnaissance work for Army intelligence, Corporal Peterson and an Eskimo private named Apodruk found a "barabara," or Aleut sod hut, still standing at the rim of an ancient village. Peterson says that since they were cold, tired and hungry and a bitter, snow-laden wind was howling in from Bering sea, they unhestitatingly crawled into the old dwelling and prepared to spend the night.

But the first thing they saw on making a light, Peterson says, was a time-yellowed skeleton lying on a bunk, wrapped in rotted tatters of sealskin and with a great whale harpoon clutched in its fleshless hands.

"Gosh, what'll we do?" asked Apodruk.

"In a case like this, chum, there's only one thing to do," Peterson replied grimly. "We need the bunk more than he does. So out he goes."

Peterson states that inasmuch as the bunk was wide enough for two, he and Apodruk spent a fairly comfortable night after they had dispossessed its skeleton occupant.

CLOTH MAKING INCREASES

Although textile fabric production was 30 per cent greater in 1942 than in 1939, the amount for civilian use was less. The figures, released by the government: 10,200,000,000 linear yards in 1939, 9,930,000,000 for civilian use; 13,500,000,000 linear yards in 1942, 8,876,000,000 for civilian use.

The first successful air-cooling device for railroad cars was inaugurated in 1906.

Nazi 'Captive' Army Is Sought

STOCKHOLM, May 3 (AP)—The German high command, according to reports from usually trustworthy sources, is so pressed for men that it is now trying to raise an army of 300,000 to 500,000 among captured Russian soldiers and civilians in the occupied Baltic states under a former Soviet general now in Nazi hands.

The proposed force, it was said, would include only those "thought to be reliable from the Nazi point of view."

The Frankfurter Zeitung said the closing of stores, business houses, small workshops and restaurants in Germany "did not free as many workers for the armament industry as was at first thought possible."

The captured Russian general, Andreia A. Vlasov, who was taken prisoner by the Germans at Kiev early in the war, was said by reports reaching here to have "shown an inclination to talk business" after two interviews with Adolf Hitler, who persuaded him that the sole aim of the Nazis was to "free Russia of Stalin."

General Just, former military attache at Kaunas, was reported to have asked for Lithuanian volunteers for the German army, but it was said that only a few had responded thus far to the appeal.

British, Japs Swap Blows

NEW DELHI, May 3 (AP) — Sharp ground encounters were reported by a British communique today to have taken place on the east side of the Mayu ridge and British and Japanese planes exchanged fresh blows yesterday in the Battle of Burma.

A British patrol in the Mayu ridge zone ambushed an enemy party and killed seven without loss to themselves, while another enemy detachment was shelled by artillery.

RAF Blenheims shattered buildings and cut an oil pipe line in an attack on Indaw, an oil town on a tributary of the Chindwin river, raising smoke visible for 30 miles, and Hurricanes shot up enemy objectives south of Buthidaung.

About 20 Japanese bombers, escorted by fighters, caused some damage and injured a few persons in a raid on an air field of southeast Bengal. RAF fighters shot down one bomber in flames and damaged others. One British aircraft was lost during the day.

JAP ISLAND POSITIONS RAIDED BY U. S. AIRMEN

NEW DELHI, May 3 (AP) — Liberator bombers of the Tenth United States Air force scored probable hits on military establishments on Diamond island, 140 miles southwest of Rangoon and about 725 miles southeast of Calcutta, in a raid last Tuesday, it was announced officially today.

A Tenth United States Air force communique said Japanese signal installations were hit, but detailed observation was precluded by haze.

American formations on Friday, the war bulletin said, reported heavy damage to buildings and warehouses in an attack on the Sule pagoda wharf area while a 200-foot vessel was believed sunk by hits and near hits.

From these operations one American plane was missing while one Japanese fighter was claimed as probably destroyed and a second damaged in the air.

sian front.

While announcing that there were "no significant changes" on the front, the Russian noon communique did report that a battalion of German infantry attempted to storm the Soviet defense line south of Chuguev on the Donets river front, southeast of Kharkov.

Nazis Thrown Back

A skirmish was reported on the northwestern front, where Soviet troops were said to have thrown back numerically superior forces, killing several scores of Germans. Otherwise, however, little action was reported.

On the home front, the Communist party newspaper Pravda echoed Premier Joseph Stalin's laudatory words on the part being played by United States and Great Britain in the United Nations' war on Germany, asserting that "recently the enemy has felt on his own skin the force of the Soviet union, Britain and the United States."

Discussing the possibility of a second front in Europe, Pravda said "the Hitlerite command fears active operations of our Allies on the European continent like it would fear fire."

Facing the United States embassy in front of the Kremlin there is now hanging a sign which reads: "Long live the gallant Anglo-Americans defeating the German-Italian fascists in north Africa."

Together with a new spirit of co-operation between Russian officials and American military and economic representatives in Moscow, these evidences seemed to indicate that relations between Russia and her Allies were at their best since the Germans invaded the Soviet union.

TRUCE PEPS MARKET

NEW YORK, May 3 (AP) — Buoyed by the coal labor truce, stocks generally pushed up fractions to a point or so in today's market despite considerable profit cashing on the good news.

Heavy dealings in low-priced issues helped put the 5-hour turnover at around 2,000,000 shares, best since April 9. Blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares were numerous.

At peak levels for 1943 were American Telephone, International Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio, Standard Oil (NJ), U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, Radio Corp., R-K-O, United Aircraft and Budd Mfg. Prominent on the swing were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Graham-Paige, Kennecott and Dupont.

Wrecked Plane Found; 3 Dead

SAN MARCOS, May 3 (U.P.) — Army officials today were investigating the crash of an Army plane which resulted in the death of three aviation cadets.

The plane was found 25 miles west of Blanco, Tex.

Search for the plane, missing for more than a week from the San Marcos Army navigation school, ended yesterday after Lt. Robert A. Gibson of Junction City, Kan., the 19-year-old pilot, had wandered into a ranchhouse Saturday and told the story of the crash.

Wandered Eight Days

Gibson, with a broken leg, had wandered in the wild central Texas hill country for eight days, looking for help.

When the plane was found yesterday, the bodies of the following were found:

Cadet Charles A. Taylor, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Taylor of Oil City, Pa.; Cadet Frederick Swift, 25, of Philadelphia; and Cadet John R. Zaic, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zaic of Cleveland, Ohio.

Lt. Gibson had not yet recovered sufficiently to relate the exact details of the crash.

Miners Going Back To Work

nounced no official recognizance of Lewis' truce plan. Late last night, after the president's call for resumption of work, a secretary said "nothing official" had been heard from the union leader.

The UMW called a meeting of its national policy committee for 3 p. m. (CWT) today in New York City, apparently to discuss the next move. Lewis went to the UMW office in the Hotel Roosevelt in New York, where he is staying, but could not be reached for comment. A spokesman said there was some uncertainty whether future negotiations would take place in New York or in Washington.

The president appealed to the miners last night to go back to work for their country—literally, with the government operating more than 3,850 mines—and cease "obstructing our war effort."

Obstructing War Effort

"I want to make it clear," he said, "that every American miner who has stopped mining coal—no matter how sincere his motives, no matter how legitimate he may believe his grievances to be—every idle miner directly and individually is obstructing our war effort."

Mr. Roosevelt did not mention Lewis by name, but his appeal to the miners came just 20 minutes after the UMW chieftain had announced the truce in New York.

Lewis said the union's policy committee had voted unanimously "to restore all mines to immediate operation for a period of 15 days beginning Tuesday." He said the truce time will be spent in seeking to work out new contracts to replace those which have expired in the hard and soft coal industries.

Conferences Set

Labor Secretary Frances Perkins said Fuel Administrator Ickes, picked by the president to direct operation of the mines for the government, would confer with the disputants during the 15-day period and try to bring them together.

The decision was made after Lewis and other leaders had conferred with Ickes during a sudden Sunday trip to Washington from New York, where the contract negotiations had been in progress. While in Washington, Lewis talked with Dr. John Steelman, director of the U. S. Conciliation service and the latter said that "I strongly advised the union to reach an understanding with their new employer, Mr. Ickes, and go along with him 100 per cent."

Speculation On WLB

The president's speech—apparently unchanged by so much as a comma by the last-minute news from New York—left no doubt that he considered striking the same as deserting the ranks of the military services. He pictured the miners as fighting beside the men at the war fronts, appealed to their patriotism and said he believed "they will answer promptly this call to perform this essential war service."

Announcement of Ickes in the role of referee, as well as manager of the government-operated mines, spurred speculation concerning the future of the War Labor board whose jurisdiction was challenged by the mine leaders.

Six-Day Week Mentioned

Ickes' assignment caused observers to wonder if this meant the board had been bypassed.

The immediate test of Mr. Roosevelt's wartime powers seemed to have been sidetracked, pending clarification of Ickes' conciliation duties.

There was speculation in labor circles early today that the most likely compromise ground would be found in discussions of a universal six-day week for the coal mining industry. It was recalled that Ickes has been one of the principal proponents of the six-day week.

The principal issues in both the hard and soft coal controversies are for $2-a-day wage increases, underground travel pay and unionization of minor bosses.

Response Is Good

Prior to the truce announcement by the UMW chieftain in New York, there had been no definite indication of how the miners would react to the president's previous call for a return to their jobs.

When the word came from New York, cheers echoed generally from the coal fields at the back-to-work call and reports from union meetings said both cheers and tears were noted when the president said:

"I believe the coal miners will not continue the strike against the government. I believe that the coal miners themselves as Americans will not fail to heed the clear call to duty. Like all good Americans they will march shoulder to shoulder with their armed forces to victory."

Meanwhile, Ickes swung swiftly into the mammoth job of putting Uncle Sam's latest business acquisition into operation. Through a busy week-end he and his staff set up regional offices for managing the new properties and accepted telegraphed oaths of office from the operators—now public servants.

OKLAHOMA, ARKANSAS MINERS BACK ON JOB

HENRYETTA, Okla., May 3 (U.P.) —Oklahoma's 2,700 coal miners were back on the job today after a week-end strike that had only minor effect on coal production.

End of the stoppage was ordered by David Fowler, Oklahoma-Arkansas district director of the United Mine Workers, who is in New York conferring with union President John L. Lewis and other district leaders.

Most of the miners are off work Saturdays and Sundays anyway, and UMW officials here weren't "sure" whether there was a strike or not. However, it was revealed that the few hundreds who normally work one shift on Saturdays had walked off the job Friday midnight.

The Oklahoma-Arkansas miners reportedly were going back to work under a clause in their contract requiring a five-day notice of work stoppage. Operators said they had not been notified five days before the walkout Saturday.

Arkansas mines, employing nearly 4,000 men, were reported reopening today and would be back in full production tomorrow.

European Victory In '44 Seen For Allies

News Brief

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret B. Johnson, 76, of 2101 Eighth street, who died at 9:45 o'clock Saturday night at her residence, were conducted at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Bryan McDonald & Son Funeral home, with Rev. Alsie Carleton, pastor of St. John's Methodist church, officiating. Another service will be conducted at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Thurlow Weed Funeral home in Austin, with interment following in Austin cemetery.

Bob Riddlehoover of near Lubbock informed police this afternoon a tire and wheel had been removed from his car, in the 1800-block Avenue H. Maurice Shaw of 1912 Dixie Drive said his bike had been stolen near Broadway at Avenue M.

Firemen up to 2 o'clock this afternoon had made only one run since Saturday. A negro's shack burned in 1700-block Avenue B late Sunday afternoon.

W. R. Crane, prison transfer agent, was here this afternoon to accept custody of Oscar Beachem, 41-year-old negro who must serve 45 years in the penitentiary for robbery by assault, the sheriff's department announced.

B. J. Patterson, a member of the Texas Highway patrol, left Sunday for his new station in Waco. Mrs. Patterson, a teacher in a Lubbock school, and the Pattersons' 2-year-old daughter will remain in Lubbock until the scholastic term is over. They live at 2306 Sixth street. Patterson served here, went to Beaumont, joined the drivers license bureau, was transferred to Spur and, Sept. 1, was sent to Lubbock again.

"Imagine the President of the United States comin' right out sayin' he is talkin' to every one of us.

"Why, he must have meant me!" His wife said:

"He's a wonderful president, he is."

News Is Hailed

This family group had been cheered earlier when Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, had announced a truce was called for 15 days.

One miner was certain he express the view of all his friends when he said:

"Damn glad of it. We was feelin' bad about not workin' while our boys are gettin' killed. But we had to. We hope we get that contract now and don't have to have more trouble. If it wasn't for bein' at war, it would be different."

Hike In Shipments Of Food Predicted

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP) — Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, jr., estimated today that 1943 food shipments abroad would exceed the six per cent total of this country's supplies that were sent last year to Allied nations.

In the first three months of this year alone, lend-lease figures showed, meat shipments to the Allies totaled approximately one-tenth the available supply; lamb and mutton 18 percent; pork 13 per cent; and beef and veal one per cent.

Stettinius said that although the year's estimated lend-lease shipments were expected to exceed last year's six per cent, Agriculture department estimates indicated a three per cent output increase over last year's total.

(By The United Press)

LONDON, May 3.—Allied observers here in a position to know agreed today with Gen. Henri Honore Giraud that the European war will end in an Allied victory in 1944.

They were willing to concede that there is a possibility of the European campaign reaching a climax by autumn, but almost universally believed that there is not a chance that it can be concluded this year.

In Algiers, Gen. Giraud told French labor leaders in an informal speech that "we have every reason to hope that the war will end next year."

Few Know Plans

Obviously, only a handful of men know what is in store for Hitler, but a respectable canvass of opinion finds a pretty general agreement that the schedule of events should follow a pattern something like this:

1. The Tunisian campaign should be cleared up in another month of hard fighting.

2. By late May or early June, it is likely that new, heavy battles will begin on the Russian front with the Germans and Soviets both racing to gain the strategic initiative.

"Underbelly" Attacks Seen

3. As soon as the Tunisian fighting is completed, the Allies presumably will launch attacks at the Axis underbelly with speculation centering on Sicily, Sardinia, Crete, Italy and the Balkans.

4. The next six weeks should, unless bad weather intervenes, show a constant increase in the pressure of attacks by the Anglo-American air forces.

The Royal Air force has demonstrated that its strength is now sufficient to carry out several pulverizing attacks weekly and probably could launch almost a nightly schedule if the weather is right.

Air Strength Mounting

The United States Air force's strength is mounting steadily. The rate of increase is a closely guarded military secret, but it is no secret that military authorities will be most disappointed if the attacks do not double both in strength and frequency by July.

The biggest mystery of all in the Allies' timetable is the date of the Anglo-American attack on western Europe.

Military timetables are subject to constant changes due to varying factors, especially of a global character. The submarine warfare in the Atlahtic and the Japanese threat to the Pacific probably are the chief influences on the timetable for the Allies' European operations.

Delays Probable

However, as a general rule, you are seldom wrong when you estimate that it will take an army longer than anticipated to clean up a particular operation or to mount a new offensive.

From this timetable, you can see that the Allied attack on Germany should grow in intensity steadily through the summer weeks.

So far as is known, it is most likely that the initial European landings will come in the Mediterranean theater. It is pointed out that these necessarily need not await the cleaning-up of Tunisia, though it is probable they will.

The likelihood is, therefore, that Germany by autumn will find herself engaged not on one second front, but on two or three, or even four. At the same time, she will be subjected to a shattering day-and-night air bombardment and presumably heavy operations on the eastern front.

Income Tax

against last year's incomes.

A third plan, looming as a possible compromise, would cancel the 6 per cent normal and 13 per cent first bracket surtax on the 1942 incomes of all taxpayers, the "forgiveness" amounting to about $7,500,000,000.

"No Holiday"

Enactment of any one of the three plans would provide that henceforward taxpayers would remit in one year on the basis of income earned the same year. The long disagreement has been on whether all, part or any of the tax liabilities against 1942 income should be cancelled to facilitate the transition to pay-as-you-go. Under any plan adopted, there would be no taxpayers' holiday in 1943.

House members will argue the various proposals today, and vote tomorrow.

Meat Probe Set

said one San Antonio official told him he was afraid to enforce laws because he feared the effect of some "powerful politicians' influence."

The resolution requires the committee to check present laws governing slaughtering and selling of meat, to investigate meat killing conditions and to report to the next session of the legislature, with recommendations for corrective legislation.

Silver Star Is Given Chaplain

GREENSBORO, N. C., May 2. (AP)—Capt. William C. Taggart, West Texas Southern Baptist air force chaplain, was awarded the Silver Star here yesterday for gallantry in action in Java during February 1942.

A crowd of 6,000 watched him receive the decoration from Brig. Gen. J. W. Jones, commanding officer of the first district Army air technical training command.

Former Rotan Resident

He is a former resident of Wichita Falls, El Paso, Abilene, Big Spring, Fort Worth and Rotan. He graduated from Hardin-Simmons university in 1938.

Taggart's citation read:

"For gallantry in action between Djockjackarta and Djilajap, Java, on February 27, 1942 . . . This officer helped to care for sailors wounded in the Macassar straits battle. His disregard for personal safety and his determination to help our personnel on all occasions is in accord with the finest traditions of the service."

Plane Gasoline Shortage Seen

WASHINGTON, May 3. (AP)—Taking issue with WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson told the Senate's Truman committee today the nation's armed forces are faced with "a serious shortage of 100 octane gasoline."

Nelson, Patterson testified, "was mistaken" when he told the committee last week that the grounding of planes for operational training in this country was the "result of faulty distribution" rather than "over-all shortage" and that the gasoline might be "at the wrong points."

No Ill Feeling, He Says

"Inasmuch as we have been unable to maintain any reserves in this country, Mr. Nelson's remarks on maldistribution were undoubtedly directed at our working supplies or operation reserves at overseas bases," Patterson asserted.

Surprisingly, the undersecretary told the committee he had "no personal quarrel" with Rubber Director William Jeffers whose program for construction of synthetic rubber plants was given preference over aviation gasoline in a January directive.

It was Patterson's recent criticism of that directive and a subsequent exchange of statements with Jeffers that brought about the Truman committee's investigation.

Jeffers To Testify

Chairman Truman (D-Mo) explained that Patterson, himself, had asked to appear before the committee today instead of tomorrow because, Truman said, he "did not want to crowd Jeffers out of last place." Jeffers will testify tomorrow.

Patterson said he held Jeffers personally "in high esteem" and respected "his character and patriotism," adding:

"I deeply regret that my recent remarks should have been interpreted as reflecting on either."

Mrs. Benson was born Aug. 13, 1878, in Madisonville, Tenn. She was Mary Corrie Brakebille before her marriage July 13, 1898, in Mineral Wells to W. D. Benson. She moved to Lubbock May 17, 1902.

In addition to her membership in the First Methodist church, Mrs. Benson was a member of the Wesley Sunday school class, Friendship club and 1916 Needle club.

She had suffered arthritis about five years. Immediate cause of death was a heart attack.

A lone Flying Fortress on reconnaissance over New Britain, drove off seven intercepting Zeros after damaging two.

The raid on Darwin was the 54th on that area. The last previous one was March 15 when the Japanese sent in 25 medium bombers and 24 fighters.

The company estimated that 18,577 man hours already have been lost by the stoppages.

Thomas L. Biggs Jr. In Jap Prison Camp

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Biggs, 2215 Ninth St., today received the first official word from the War Department their son, Pfc. Thomas L. Biggs, jr., is alive, in a Japanese prison camp. Location of the camp is not given, and the telegraphic message said a letter will follow. Biggs, along with numerous other West Texans, was reported missing in action soon after the Island of Java and other South Pacific strongholds had been captured, early in 1941. The father said he telephoned a number of other parents who are known to have sons missing in the same action, but none had heard officially from the War department.

Most Tech Teachers Live In Own Homes

Dr. Clifford B. Jones, president of Texas Technological college, said today there are 186 men and women members of Tech faculty residing in Lubbock, and 112 of these own their homes here.

Of the 74 men and women who do not own a home in Lubbock, 33 members of the faculty are unmarried and without families, leaving but 41 families among the regularly employed college leaders who have not bought or built places of residence in the city.

Virtually all of the homes owned by college faculty members were constructed before the current war, but the most conservative estimates made by tax assessors, chamber of commerce officials, and others in position to know, give the homes an average worth of $6,000 or more, which in the aggregate would place a tangible wealth of about $750,000 brought to Lubbock by the teaching faculty of Tech.

Dr. Jones said he had no way of knowing the persentage of home-owning teachers in other college cities, but he believes the percentage in Lubbock is well towards the top.

Capt. Treadaway Is Jaycee Speaker

Capt. Gordon Treadaway, Army Intelligence officer at Lubbock Army Flying school, said in a talk before the Junior Chamber of Commerce membership in Hilton hotel today there is a critical situation regarding the failure so far to safeguard vital military information, not only by civilians but also by military personnel. "We all talk too much," he said, "just as we like to boast, we like to tell things we think no one else knows quite as much about." He employed two recent breaches of confidence in Lubbock, both he said he believed were not circulated to be harmful, but both could have been damaging. He blamed the military personnel first for allowing the information to "come to town," and then also the civilian population for circulating the information.

An entertainment feature was added to the Jaycee luncheon today, for the first time. Mrs. F. C. Stanley sang two numbers, each as a solo, being accompanied by Miss Imogene Webster at the piano and Miss Barbara Griggs as flutist.

Connally Bill

with President Roosevelt's "hold the line" stabilization policy or the maintenance of the "Little Steel" formula in settling wage disputes.

A burial ground for nearly two years of restrictive labor measures passed by the House, the Senate gave signs of having been stirred by the coal mining excitement into a determination to take drastic action against labor leaders who induce workers to leave their jobs in the mines or war factories.

Swift Passage Seen

Senators had a bill before them by Senator Connally (D-Tex) authorizing government seizure of struck mines and plants. Connally himself may offer an amendment dealing with labor leaders.

Senator Hill (D-Ala), the majority whip, told reporters he told reporters he thought the Connally bill would pass speedily.

There remained a possibility that action on the measure would be delayed by last night's truce in the soft coal dispute, or by a fight over a proposal of Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) to ban further inductions into the armed forces this year of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

Dog Is Blamed For Boy's Suffocation

CHICAGO, May 3. (U.P.)—Leroy Barton, 6, died of suffocation in an old fashioned ice box no longer used for refrigeration, and police believed today that his little dog had caused his death in a game of hide and seek.

Leroy's widowed mother, a waitress in a nightclub, told police the child often played hide and seek with "Baby," his six-month-old mongrel pup, and that he frequently hid in the refrigerator.

Leroy's body was found last night by roomers in the Barton home. The child had stripped off his clothing, apparently while trying to get air.

Police believed the puppy had brushed against the fastener on the refrigerator door, clicking it shut.

Yanks Mopping Up

The Second U. S. Army corps of Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, jr., fighting through hills so steep they had to be supplied with food and ammunition dropped from planes, had mopped up hill 609—Djebel Tahent—east of Sidi N'Sir and placed the important supply junction of Mateur, 16 miles away, under the fire of their long-range artillery.

The British First army of Lt.-Gen. K. A. N. Anderson was still held at bay by the last Axis mountain position defending the plains at Djebel Bou Aoukaz, 20 miles west of Tunis.

Meanwhile the Allied air and sea blockade of the bridgehead drew tighter as British motor torpedo boat flotillas were disclosed to have swept 100 miles of the enemy-held coast around Cap Bon, penetrating inlets and coves and even to the mouth of Tunis harbor itself. A merchant ship was sunk in one daylight foray, two minesweepers made useless, a big R-boat, or large motor torpedo boat, set on fire and aircraft blasted on the beaches by gunfire from the sea raiders, the Allied communique announced Sunday. One of the British boats was lost.

In the air war the Americans lost seven of their big bombers smashing at St. Nazaire Saturday because of a combination of bad weather which caused the formations to become separated and fierce German fighter opposition over one of the best-defended Nazi targets. It was the first American raid from British bases since April 17 when 16 planes were lost over Bremen.

Ruling Laid Down On 'Objectors'

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP) — The Supreme court ruled today that a draft registrant claiming exemption from military service as a conscientious objector must report for induction if his claim has been denied by a draft board, and by the President on appeal.

Chief Justice Stone delivered the 7 to 2 opinion, specifically involving Whitney Bowles of Newfoundland, New Jersey. Justices Jackson and Reed dissented.

Bowles said that, before he was born, his father was killed in the first World war and that this had implanted within him a strong aversion to everything military.

This was the first conscientious objector's case to reach the Supreme court during the present World war.

Bowles was sentenced to three years' imprisonment by the federal district court for New Jersey for failure to appear for induction.

Killing Of Rumors Asked

Davis told the committee it could perform a useful service by "dispelling the belief that appears to prevail in some quarters that men in government service, deferred by their draft boards for reasons which appear sound to the members of those boards, are draft dodgers, while their critics, deferred for the same reasons in some cases by the same draft boards, are performing a patriotic service by denouncing men who are doing jobs that somebody has to do in promotion of the war effort."

"If anybody in our office wanted to escape the draft," he added, "he would have had a much better chance of doing so by staying with the newspaper or the radio station he used to work for, instead of going into OWI."

than noon next Monday is forbidden by joint rules of the house and senate and adjournment has been set for noon May 11.

The house will have no set calendar for the remainder of the session. A suspension period became effective today and bills can be taken up only by vote of the members. A previous rule of taking up a bill on a suspension day by majority vote stiffened today to a requirement for two-thirds vote to consider a measure.

Long speeches in the house were cut off as the end of the session neared. No member can speak longer than 10 minutes on any proposition and the time cannot be extended.

The closely contested chiropractic bill was due to come up in the senate Wednesday for final vote. It has been amended so it will have to go back to the house after final senate action, if favorable.

Final touches will be put on the session's expenditures during the week. All major appropriation bills have been passed by both branches and conferees are trying to work out compromises.

China Sees Postwar Industrialization

WASHINGTON, May 3. (AP)—China, for centuries a land of unmechanized, unhurried living, of artisans, poets and peasants, is planning now for a postwar industrialization.

Recently arrived or on their way here, 35 young Chinese engineers have been assigned to United States plants to learn American engineering methods, the board of economic warfare announced today.

Pilot Desires New Calendar

HONOLULU, May 3. (U.P.)—Williard E. Edwards, who has been working on the project since the end of the first world war, hopes the end of this one will see peace provisions for a perpetual calendar on which all nations would agree.

Edwards, formerly a lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve, is a pilot for Hawaiian Air Lines. His calendar contains no Friday the 13th and provides that New Year's Day would be an international holiday considered apart from any month or week. Thus, Jan. 1, 1945, would be "New Year's Day, 1945."

Easter Sunday, which this year occured on April 25, the latest possible date under the Gregorian calendar, would fall invariably on the same date under the Edwards Calendar. He suggests April 14 as a permanent date for Easter.

Four Equal Quarters

His calendar, he said, has the advantage of being divided into four equal quarters of 91 days each.

The present calendar begins the week on Sunday, but Edwards would begin it on Monday, making Sunday a true sabbath.

The first two months of each 91-day quarter would have 30 days and the third months would have 31 days. First months of each quarter would start on Monday, second months on Wednesday and third months on Friday.

Calendar dates, such as birthdays and other anniversaries, would always occur on the same week day, Edwards explained.

As in the case of New Year's Day, each Leap Year would be provided with a second "day apart" to take care of that year's extra day.

Give Girls A Chance

"This may conveniently follow June 31," he said, "not only to separate it by six months from New Year's Day, but to provide an opportunity for a day of merriment and to give all girls who 'missed out' on June weddings a chance to make up on this one extraordinary day in each four years.

"With Labor Day and Christmas day always falling on a Monday and with New Year's Day following Sunday, Dec. 31, each year, we will have three regular three-day week ends which will be eagerly anticipated."

Poultry Regulations Broken In 15 States

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP) — Poultry ceilings have been violated in 15 states, representing "every important growing area in the nation," Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown declared today.

In the past 15 days, OPA has begun 88 new court actions against violators—72 of them injunctions and 16, criminal prosecutions, he said.

"This is but one step in a series to bring the chiseler, the racketeer, the black market operator to justice," Brown commented.

The 15 states in which ceilings have been violated he said are: Delaware, New Jersey, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, California, Illinois, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Alabama, Ohio and West Virginia.

Simplified Rules Set For Canning Sugar

DALLAS, May 3. (AP)—Urging consumers not to apply for more than they need, the Office of Price administration has announced new simplified regulations for liberalized rationing of sugar for home canning.

The new regulations, which apply only to the Dallas and Atlanta OPA regions because of their climatic conditions and early crops, provide that each consumer may get one pound of sugar per four quarts of finished canned fruit, but that the maximum must not exceed 25 pounds.

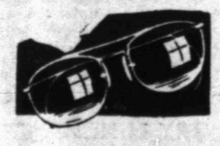

States in the Dallas region are Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas and Missouri.

YEAR FOR GROCERY THEFT

PORTLAND, Ore. (U.P.)—Stealing rationed foods comes close to being sabotage, Municipal Judge John T. Quillin said in sentencing Milton Rausch to a year in jail for theft of 540 ration points of canned goods from a grocery.

Baylor May Move Medical School

WACO, May 3 (AP) — Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor university, has called a "special and extraordinary meeting" of the full board of trustees here next Saturday to consider the removal of Baylor's school of medicine, dentistry and nursing from Dallas.

"The trustees at this special meeting will give consideration to all matters pertaining to the schools of medicine, dentistry and nursing," President Neff stated.

"They will give consideration and take action as to the removal from Dallas, if deemed wise, to some other place in Texas."

The session will begin at 3 p. m.

The trustees last Tuesday cancelled Baylor's previous agreement to enter the Southwestern Medical foundation at Dallas under which the foundation operated the schools at Dallas.

At Dallas, trustees of the medical foundation said they would meet Tuesday to discuss further plans for starting a medical school as a part of the projected southwestern medical center there.

Background Explained In UMW Grievances Over Wage Rates

BY JAMES MARLOW AND GEORGE ZIELKE
Associated Press Staff Writers

WASHINGTON, May 3—What price miners?

What do John L. Lewis' United Mine workers get, and how did they get it, how much do they want to keep on digging coal to stoke the nation's war furnaces?

Lewis says their wages are still substandard.

The bureau of labor statistics here says the average weekly earnings of bituminous (soft coal) miners climbed from $23.84 in 1937 to $35.02 in 1942 and to $41.49 in February, 1943, nearly a 100 per cent increase.

Not "Take Home" Pay

Such figures, Lewis' organization claims, show gross earnings only and do not constitute "take-home" pay.

Lewis says the cost of food in mining communities has gone up 124.6 per cent between August, 1939 and now.

In 1935 the rate for day work inside the mines was $5.50 and went up to $7 a day in the agreement just ended, with the miners working a regular 7-hour day, 5-day week.

Lewis now is demanding a $2 a-day increase, with an $8 minimum, pay for all time spent in the mines—from the time a man enters a mine and gets to his job and back from his job to the mouth of the mine—and unionization of all supervisory employes.

Some Time Lost

(Miners now do not get paid for the time it takes them to get to and from the job inside the mine, the UMW, calling this unfair, says that in one West Virginia field miners approximate 52 hours underground but receive only 35-hours' pay, the regular time.)

The mine owners say:

"The basis rate for inside work is $7 per day, on a few jobs less than this rate is paid, but on all others the rate is higher, averaging $7.16 to $9 per day."

Must Buy Equipment

The UMW says:

"Is everything the miner gets 'take-home' pay? Not by a long shot. He must pay for his tools, blasting powder, caps and fuse. He pays for the upkeep of his pit light and must buy special working clothes, including three to five pairs of expensive rubber boots a year."

That $2-a-day wage increase and minimum of $8 a day sought by Lewis would be in excess of the 15 per cent wage increase which the War Labor board set up as a formula last fall to compensate for increased living costs between Jan. 1, 1941 and May, 1942.

FARM LABORERS MIGRATE

NEWBERG, Ore. (U.P.) — More than 400 farm laborers from Oklahoma have arrived in Yamhill county under farm security administration auspices. Single men and family heads, they are part of 41 families to be employed on farms in Yamhill, Polk and Washington counties.

Government To Buy Dairy Items Early

WASHINGTON, May 3 (AP) — The war food administration, seeking to avoid a drain on civilian supplies of butter and cheese next winter, arranged today to obtain the bulk of government military and lend-lease requirements for the winter season during the spring and summer peak production period.

Manufacturers were ordered to set aside 50 per cent of their output of creamery butter and 70 per cent of their cheddar cheese during May, June and July for present and future government requirements. Since February, manufacturers had been required to set aside 30 per cent of their butter and 50 per cent of their cheese for the government.

The WFA said that by taking a larger portion of the output during the season of heavy production, the government would be in a position to make most of the production during the low season available for civilians.

Cow Gives Birth To 2 Sets Of Triplets

TURLOCK, Cal., May 3 (U.P.)—Driven to supreme effort by the constant war demands of "more production," a purebred Holstein owned by L. M. Fosberg gave birth to two sets of triplets in one year, and during the lactation period following the birth of the first set of triplets produced 475 pounds of butterfat. The cow is awaiting a medal from Secretary of Agriculture Wickard. The double birth of triplets is a rare occurrence in dairy annals.

Stephens CHIROPRACTIC CLINIC

CONSTIPATION
Article No. 14

What has the brain to do with constipation? A great deal, says the Chiropractor, because it is the brain which supplies the motive power for each and all processes of elimination.

You become constipated when the muscles of the intestines fail to function. Between these muscles and the brain there is a "line of communication" which is composed of nerve fibre.

This nerve fibre travels from the brain down the spine. It branches out between the bony segments of the spine and connects with the intestinal muscles. Over this "communication system" the brain sends impulses or "messages." As a result, the muscles function and elimination takes place punctually and regularly.

When there is interference with the "communication system" between brain and the intestinal muscles, constipation is the inevitable result. As long as that interference exists you will be constipated and nothing you can take inwardly can do anything to remove the condition.

There is but one thing capable of causing this interference. It is what Chiropractors know as a Vertebral Subluxation. That simply means that one of the bony segments of the spine has become displaced.

Where the "So-Called" Hopeless Do Get Well

It presses upon nearby nerves, and, bone being hard and nerve tissue soft and sensitive, the result is obvious. The nerve is unable to do its normal work, the brain impulses fail to reach the intestines and the intestines fail to function.

Clearly, the way to relieve constipation is to adjust the vertebral subluration and release the pinched nerve. This the trained Chiropractor is able to do by skilful use of his hands only. Scientifically, he adjusts the displaced spinal segment back to its normal position and full communication between brain and intestines is restored.

The reason that Chiropractic is of inestimable value in cases of constipation is that the effects are lasting, and the effects are lasting because the root cause of the condition is eliminated.

SPAFS Dumps Fliers, 7-6; Litwhiler Hailed By Phils

Fliers Held To Six Hits

By CHOC HUTCHESON
Journal Sports Writer

Before a first day crowd of more than a thousand fans, South Plains Army Flying school's baseball nine made it two in a row over Lubbock Army Flying school yesterday at Hubber park, pushing across a ninth-inning run for a 7-6 triumph.

The Winged Commandos' victory, however, was a far cry from the 29-9 walkaway they scored over LAFS in Saturday afternoon's preview on the SPAFS post diamond, because yesterday's battle was close all the way, with the score tied twice.

Mayor Throws Strike

Soon after Mayor C. E. Slaton formally opened festivities by tossing the first ball (and it was a chest-high strike, incidentally), the SPAFS crew jumped into an early lead with a four-run first inning burst, but LAFS came back in the fifth inning to knot the count and from that point it was anyone's ball game.

The winning run came in the first half of the ninth, when, with two men out and two on, Second Baseman Philip Sansone of LAFS juggled Guy Anderson's grounder to let the deciding tally slip across.

Strikes Out Nine

In addition to batting across the winning marker, Anderson pitched a magnificent game for the powerful SPAFS aggregation. He gave up only six hits, five of which were singles, while striking out nine and walking only three batters.

For LAFS, W. G. Hardwick, hefty righthander, not only pitched good ball, but also figured in most of the Fliers' scoring. He got a double and single to knock across two runs himself. On the mound, he was touched for 11 well-scattered blows, struck out five and walked the same number.

The unexpectedly large crowd was on hand for the "formal" opening day ceremonies, which featured the music of the LAFS band, directed by Warrant Officer George P. Attridge, and also for the home debut of Sam West, ex-big leaguer who now manages the LAFS team. West played five innings at first base for his team, and in two times at bat filed out to center field and walked before relinquishing his position.

The box score:

Sooner Robbed Of $6,000 Derby Take

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3 (U.P.)—Harry Dusenberry, 31, Muskogee, Okla., pulled $6,000 out of the feedbox at Churchill Downs, but someone else pulled the same $6,000 out of Dusenberry's mattress.

Dusenberry's wife also reported the theft of her diamond rings, which she valued at $2,500.

Dusenberry had a good thing in the fifth on derby day. He collected $6,000 when longshot Busyridge romped home a winner, paying $54.60 on a $2 ticket.

Yesterday, three men bound and gagged the Dusenberrys in their hotel room, found the money in the mattress, took the rings and departed.

Mrs. Stahl originally had intended knitting her collection into a rug, but now she'd "much rather see parachutes for boys at the front than the rugs."

Pirates Blank Chisox Twice

BY PAUL SCHEFFELS
(By The United Press)

NEW YORK, May 3 — Rejoicing is the exception rather than the rule for the Philadelphia Phillies, but Danny Litwhiler today furnished the perennial National league tail-enders with plenty of cause for elation.

The young gent who tossed away a job as a school-teacher to become one of the best outfielders in the loop during three years with the Phillies has a lifetime batting average of .294. But currently he is wielding such a potent bat he may furnish the spark needed to lift the circuit doormats out of last place.

Has Three Homers

Litwhiler has a world of power at the plate, batting a cool .444 for seven games while leading the majors with three homers. He has slammed out eight hits and driven six runs home in 18 tries.

The Phillies divided with the Braves yesterday and Litwhiler figured heavily in both games. His homer tallied the Phillies' lone run as the Braves took the opener, 3-1, and his double with loaded bases pushed over the winning run in the 12th as the Phillies took the nightcap, 6-5. Schoolboy Rowe hit a four-run homer for the Phillies.

Wally Hebert and Bob Klinger of the Pirates turned in the best one day pitching job of the season by blanking the Cubs, 3-0 and 1-0.

Dodgers Split With Giants

Brooklyn divided with the Giants. Johnny Allen's two hits helped him win the opener, 3-2, after he relieved Whit Wyatt. He punched out a double to figure in the Dodgers' first two runs in the fifth and his single drove home the winner in the next frame. Rookie Ken Trinkle spaced eight hits to give the Giants a 2-1 decision in the second game.

The Cardinals whipped the Reds, 7-6 and 6-3, to climb into a tie for second with the Pirates.

New York's Yankees maintained a slim half-game American league lead over the Indians by dividing with the Senators as Cleveland won over Detroit.

Indians Best Tigers

Ernie Bonham chalked up his second win as the Yankees pounded three pitchers for an 11-3 opening game decision. He allowed nine hits. Ewald Pyle set the Yankees down with six safeties to give Washington a 4-1 triumph in the nightcap.

The Indians garnered 11 hits off three moundsmen to defeat the Tigers, 5-2, Detroit dropping to fourth behind Washington. Ray Mack's homer, his first hit of the year, put the Tribe in front to stay in the fifth.

The Browns rocketed into fifth and dumped Chicago into the cellar by beating the White Sox, 3-2 (11 innings) and 5-1. Chet Laabs homered in the 11th to win the first game for the Browns. Steve Sundra allowed the Sox seven hits in the nightcap and breezed home after the Browns hung up four runs in the first two innings.

Philadelphia divided with Boston to climb into seventh as the Red Sox fell to sixth.

Is Count Fleet A Freak? . . .

Derby Winner Looms As Sixth Horse To Grab 'Triple Crown'

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3 (AP)—The two trainers sat in the club car on the way back from the Kentucky Derby, talking about racing "freaks," and naturally they got around to Count Fleet, who is supposed to be whatever a freak is.

They had just seen the Count pick up $60,725 so easy it was like finding it in an old pair of pants hanging up in a closet. He had romped in with the 69th Kentucky Derby by three lengths over second place Blue Swords and by 36 lengths over the battered Burnt Cork, kicking along in the rear of the field of ten.

Legs Said Too Long

"So" said one trainer, "he's a freak? Well, what is a race-horse supposed to be if not a good runner?"

"Well," the other explained, "the Count's legs are too long and he runs with his head too high in the air for a real good racer. And while he's thick enough through the middle, he's very thin behind and his quarters tail off. That's not the way fine race-horses are supposed to be built."

Whether the Count is a "freak" or just a four-legged job whose parts have been put together differently, he now looms capable of becoming the sixth horse in all racing history to grab off the highly prized "triple crown" of Derby, Preakness and Belmont. That is, he's a shoo-in unless Ocean Wave, withdrawn from the Derby and Preakness because of a wrenched joint between the foot and the ankle of his left foreleg, gets back in time to tangle with him in the third — and longest — jewel in the crown — the mile-and-a-half Belmont, next month.

Henry, Montgomery Prepare For Jack

NEW YORK, May 3 (AP)—Bob Montgomery and Henry Armstrong continue their preparations for bouts with Beau Jack, New York recognized lightweight champion, by taking on lightly regarded opponents in the feature bouts on this week's boxing program.

Montgomery, who has a title engagement with Jack at Madison Square garden May 21, takes on Henry Vasquez of Spain in a 10-rounder at Holyoke, Mass., tomorrow night.

Armstrong, who like Montgomery came through last week, tunes up for a June match with Jack by meeting Tommy Jessup in Boston Friday. It also is scheduled for 10 rounds.

New Mile Record Appears Sure As Porter And Thompson Meet At Houston Carnival Saturday

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON, May 3 (AP)—A couple of mighty-striding youngsters who have been fighting each other to the tape for four years are due to write a new mile record into the books at the Southwest conference track and field meet here Saturday.

They have done it already, although unofficially, because last week-end at Austin Bob Porter of Rice roared home with a 4:17.2—the fastest mile in conference history—and Jerry Thompson of Texas was just a bare stride behind. That clipped 4.6 seconds off the mark set in 1927 by Winston Hooper of Southern Methodist, and equalled in 1928 by Emmett Brunson of Rice.

Not Fastest Mile

But Porter's mark was made in the annual triangular meet between Rice, Texas and Texas A. and M. and will not go into the books unless the Owl star repeats his feat here.

Back in high school Thompson always beat Porter, but as freshmen, Porter turned the tables and since then has taken the measure of little Jerry three times in a row. Regardless of which may win the showdown race Saturday, a new record appears certain.

Porter's mile at Austin was not the fastest ever run in Texas. The Rideout twins—Wayne and Blaine—did it around 4:12 at North Texas state several years ago. North Texas state is not a member of the Southwest conference.

Jump Record In Danger

Still another record appears ready for hanging here Saturday. Pete Watkins of A. and M. twice has surpassed the high jump mark set in 1941 by Henry Coffman of Rice at 6 feet 7 3-4 inches.

Thompson probably would set a two-mile record if he didn't have that terrific mile to run first. Jerry ran the longer distance in 9:31.4 at the Drake relays and that's a full second better than the conference mark held by Sandi Esquivel of Texas. Esquivel set that record in 1925—oldest mark on the conference books.

Vajdos Is Threat

The 880-yard run and mile relay also may produce new records. The Texas quartet last Saturday ran the mile relay in 3:19.6 and that's less than three seconds over the record of 3:16.7 set by Texas in 1938. Joe Vajdos of Texas A. and M. may crack the half-mile mark of 1:58.8, made in 1941 by Mac Umstaddt of Texas. Vajdos has been consistently under 1:56 all season.

As for the meet itself, Texas appears destined to repeat with the championship—the fifteenth in 23 years under Coach Clyde Littlefield. Rice will match Texas in the first places but the Owls do not pack the manpower of Texas and A. and M., Southern Methodist and Arkansas will have entries in the meet and should pick up some points, probably in the weight events.

This shouldn't hurt Texas' chances much because the Longhorns are extra weak in the field anyway.

HERE it is the Merry Month of May and 1943 one-third gone. It seems like just yesterday when all of us were running around wishing each other a Happy New Year. Time fugits, all right. It shore (and we DO mean s-h-o-r-e) does.

Most people are prone to think of May as merely a flowers-that-bloom-in-the-spring, tra-la, period on the calendar. It is that, of course. But it also has played quite a considerable part in history. In addition to being the month in which our Yankee cousins wriggle outen their long-handles, May, in American history, has found highly practical men busy.

May saw the first patent issued on an ice-making machine (1851), and the first patent on a machine for making nails (1824), a contribution for which many frustrated persons, who ordinarily would grab anything not nailed down, must be eternally grateful.

In May, of 1602, Cape Cod was discovered, an event which has later proven to be of stupendous importance to the nation's artists, including those who think they can paint, as well as those who really can. And it was in May of 1792 that the Columbia river was first found, something which before the war was highly appreciated by lovers of salmon, if not by the salmon, themselves.

The Postoffice department has had a lot of bright ideas in May. In this month of 1864 it started the postal money order dodge, so that easy-going people could send money cheaply to improvident friends and relations. In May, 1873, the penny postal plan was inaugurated, which furnished a still cheaper way for improvident friends and relatives to ask how come the requested money order wasn't forthcoming.

May 1st is an important day in American history. It saw the Battle of Manila Bay in 1898; the Battle of Chancellorsville, Va., in 1863; the opening of the Columbian exposition in Chicago in 1893 and the opening of the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo in 1901.

Walt Whitman and Ralph Waldo Emerson, two brilliant American poets were born in May. So was John Brown, whose body, we presume, still lies moldering in its grave. Columbus, the well known travelingman of an earlier era and who must be credited with finding America in a very nice geographical setting, died in May.

May also has seen other and more serious historic events, including the accidental shooting of Stonewall Jackson by his own men; the founding of the first medical school in the U. S.; the meeting of the convention which drafted the Constitution, and the awful Johnstown flood.

All in all, May has been quite a month and the fact that it is the traditional time for weird dances around multi-colored poles by people who should know better mustn't be held against it!

IF the President wanted to make a nonentity out of his chief political challenger, Wendell Willkie, he could do so easily. All FDR would have to do would be make WW secretary of labor!

With reference to that Utopian post-war world, about the only thing any of us can be fairly certain of is that the U. S. will be expected to finance it!

SINCE you are helping to "pay the freight," you may be interested to know that even with a 200-billion dollar war on our hands the federal government is spending a total of four billions of dollars per year on all sorts of "social security." This is true, even though unemployment reimbursement is dormant because there are very few jobless, and old age assistance is costing little because so many oldsters have gone back to work.

If the President's "cradle-to-the-grave" project goes into effect — and it covers everything imaginable in the way of dole from the federal tax chest — "social security" expenditures will run annually into 10 billions, perhaps 20.

Every wage-earner has a decided personal stake in the plan, conceived by Mr. Roosevelt's Uncle Fred Delano, because the 2 per cent payroll deduction for social security today will have to be hiked to 20, or even 30 per cent, according to insurance actuaries who know how to figure such things.

Add a 20 or 30 per cent deduction for "cradle-to-the-grave" federal paternalism to war and post-war rehabilitation taxes and you get an idea of what the Utopia-on-earth plan will mean to you.

Maybe some congressmen should be assigned to the forthcoming hush-hush food conference. Their experience at the pie counter would stand 'em in good stead!

THERE is considerable conversation going around and about in local music circles concerning whether 1st Lt. Charles E. Prescott has the best baritone voice ever heard here, or whether it is equaled, or perhaps surpassed, by those of several former singing luminaries such as Dorrance Roderick, now publisher of the El Paso Times, and Gordon Gaines, now a soldier on the Eastern seaboard.

Not being a competent critic, The Plainsman aims to take no part in the debate. However, we will say that never have we had here a more agreeable or a more generous person of talent than Lt. Prescott. For more than a year now, he has been besieged on all sides to lend his voice to all sorts of public gatherings. If he has ever refused any group seeking his co-operation, it must have been because of a previous engagement with his flying machine.

A great many talented and sought-after musicians, being human, often exhibit symptoms of swell-head and even if they do accept invitations to help out they play "hard-to-get." Therefore, those who remain unaffected by popularity and acclaim are all the more refreshing and all the more appreciated by others.

We have no idea how much longer Lt. Prescott will be in Lubbock. Perhaps it will not be long before he gets transfer orders and it's a cinch that he won't be here forever. But when he goes, the former Santa Monica resident will leave an appreciable void in church, civic and other organizational circles.

A 21-gun salute to a fine singer and a gracious gentleman.

If, as alleged, a new sulfa drug stops a common cold, a lot of people are going to be robbed of a highly useful topic of conversation.

After listening, quite by accident, to one of those quiz programs, we consoled ourself with the thought that, anyway, we know the answers to a lot of questions which weren't asked!

IN his ramblings around West Texas, K. L. Riggs frequently runs into interesting things and, for which we are thankful, he often passes his findings on to us.

The other day, Mr. Riggs was in the Floydada-Silverton country, and returned with this report:

Lakes in that area are lower than they have been for years. Some are drying up and practically all are "full of fish."

Taking advantage of the situation to bulwark their ration points, people living near the lakes are really catching the fish and putting them away in refrigerators. In shallow portions of the lakes, people wade in, watch for especially large and fat fish and then "corner" them by placing the rim of a bottomless washtub around their prey. Then they grab the fish with their hands.

Mr. Riggs says the fish are as fat as can be, are largely cats of the channel, yellow and bullhead varieties.

In some places where lakes have dried up, scores and scores of the fish have died and their perfume permeates the air for a considerable distance, according to the information Mr. Riggs picked up in the affected areas.

Dark Jungles

By John C. Fleming & Lois Eby
(Copyright, 1943, For The Journal)

THE STORY: Barry Fielding has come to Guatemala in search of a quicksilver mine operated by the Quiche Indian tribe. He and his Mexican guide, Jose, finally reach Quiche territory. The chief's council listen to Barry's plea that America needs quicksilver and promise to give him an answer the following morning. When an Indian girl is attacked, Barry is accused and held prisoner. Jose manages to steal two mules for their escape. On the trail again, Barry is suddenly stricken with malaria. He chafes when the faithful Jose insists they find their way back to Allison Hopping's plantation and delay the Quiche Indian venture until he is completely well.

LILA IS WORRIED

CHAPTER XIV

Jose and Barry had broken camp a little after midnight. A yellow dish of moon floated in a cloudless sky. "It will be cooler traveling at night," Jose had said. "And with a full moon we can make good time. We will reach the jungle about daybreak."

Barry rode ahead and Jose trailed closely behind. Jose insisted on frequent stops and made Barry stretch out on the sweet-smelling grass and rest a while. Barry's arms and legs felt like sticks of wood with the strength drained out of them. His fever had gone, but it had burned the energy out of him and left only a listless husk.

Barry got slowly to his feet, his legs wobbling under him.

"I feel much better," he insisted. "I'm sure I can make it now."

"One more hitch now and we will reach the jungle," Jose said. "We should make it to the plantation before noon. I will take the lead now. The path through the jungle is treacherous. If you feel faint, call out and we'll stop again."

On they plodded, their sure-footed little beasts picking their way cautiously over rocks that projected themselves abruptly from the earth. With a trained eye, Jose picked the narrow opening in the solid wall of trees and they started down the jungle trail. The light of the moon was shut out, and they were moving more slowly through the inky blackness.

It seemed to Barry that years had passed when he saw ahead the thin fingers of sunlight where they broke through a clearing. It was like finding the reassuring beacon of a lighthouse in a world of black uncharted water. He knew they were approaching the plantation. Next, men's voices came to him. Clear, deep, chesty voices that rang through the stillness. Me knew the native chicleros were at work slashing their zig-zag pattern in the trunks of the zapote trees. Jose, riding ahead, looked fuzzy and distant. He could again feel burning fever on his brow. Jose pulled his mule to a stop.

"Hurrah! We have made it!" he shouted triumphantly.

Barry turned his eyes then to the chicleros perched like monkeys high up in the towering trees swinging their machetes, the bright blades glistening in the sun. Then his eyes followed the trees down to the ground where he heard the sharp, efficient commands of a woman's voice as she directed the bleeding of the trees.

At the instant the owner of the voice stepped out from behind a tree—it was Allison. A new Allison, a vital, commanding Allison. Her golden hair was cropped close like a man's, she wore a white man's shirt open at the throat, her leather boots were splattered with gray mud. Barry looked for a moment and then the light faded and he slumped from the mule's back to the ground — he had fainted.

Jose heard the dull thud as Barry fell to the soft ground. He slid from his mule quickly and picked Barry up in his powerful arms. Allison came running across the clearing.

"What's happened to him!" she cried as she looked at the chalky, drawn face, the wasted thin body.

"He's been very sick," Jose said quietly. "For over a week now I have nursed him for malaria."

"Bring him to my estancia," Allison commanded. "I'll go ahead to get the bed ready." Jose carried the sick man in his arms as if he had been a baby.

Slowly Barry opened his eyes and then closed them again against the strong light. When again he opened them objects in the room took on a dim, ghostly shape.

"Where am I? What has happened?" he asked thickly.

Allison was standing in front of the dresser stirring some medicine in a glass. She turned and came to the side of the bed. Her hand closed over Barry's.

"You're going to be all right now," she said quietly. "You've been very sick. It was just a week ago today that you and Jose arrived here at the plantation."

Strange wonderment filled Barry's eyes as gradually full realization dawned on him. He smiled very faintly.

"I remember now—you—chicleros—then all went black."

Allison gave Barry his medicine and left the room. When she returned, his eyes were brighter and color had crept back in his cheeks. Allison had a letter for Barry.

"A letter from Lila," she said. "The chicleros brought it in from

A BLUFF WHICH SHOULD BE CALLED

A Berlin broadcast the other day to the effect that certain Rome newspapers are urging the execution of captured Allied air raiders doubtless intensified the headache of those sharing in responsibility for the Tokyo attacks in April, 1942.

The Berlin report suggested a possibility which might as well be faced squarely. If the Axis believes that raids can be prevented by executing captured raiders, then the executions are strongly probable. Similarly situated, the United Nations might do the same. The law of self preservation would operate to demand them.

Of course, that sort of barbarism won't stop raiding. It merely would intensify it. But this may be a fact of which the Axis cannot be convinced except by experience. It may be that the European Axis is attributing the fact that there have been no more American raids upon Japan to the fear inspired by the executions of some of the pilots in the previous attack. If this is the belief in Italy and/or Germany, then similar executions there may be an early development.

The only answer to such threats is to intensify the raids to the utmost possible degree. Perhaps the most convincing answer of all would be raids upon Japan. Only in that manner can the murderers be convinced completely that their bluff has been called. And the possibility is obvious that the Berlin broadcast may hasten the calling of the bluff.

ON BROADWAY
(Copyright, 1943, For The Journal)

THE EDITORS and publishers in town for their annual convention, were talking shop. . . . One recalled the time when Heywood Broun was a cub and he was instructed to come in very early one Christmas morn . . . When Broun arrived — the empty city room depressed him. The desks were littered with remnants of the previous night's stale clippings, bare spikes, curled up cheese sandwiches and beer containers . . . . Suddenly, off in a corner, a telegraph instrument started to click . . . Tobacco tins were jammed against the telegraph "bugs" to make them louder . . . One after the other joined in the monotonous chorus — all chirping the same message. . . He could tell, he said later, that they were trying to report something important happening somewhere, but he couldn't understand a word they were tapping. . . . Finally, in came a sleepy telegrapher . . . Broun said: "Please tell me what is happening. They are all clicking madly. Maybe a liner has been sunk or a king assassinated or an earthquake! I'm sure it's a big story, and our paper is being scooped!"

The veteran listened — to one after the other — and then smiled . . . "This is Christmas, son," said the old-timer, "they are all saying the same thing. A Child is born—a Child is born—a Child is born!"

* * *

In the days when most of the papers were on Park Row, a certain editor was nicknamed Simon Legree because of the way he kicked around some of the staff. . . . One night, and this is journalistic history, a staffer couldn't stand the abuse any longer . . . He threw the editor down a flight of stairs. . . . The next night when he came in—the staff presented the reporter with a gold watch inscribed: "For the Best Journalism in 1928."

* * *

SOME of us were privileged to meet Sgt. Al Schmid, the Philadelphia boy who was decorated at Guadalcanal for erasing over 200 Japs until one of their grenades blinded him . . . Al, who is Dutch - Irish, has a different slant on the war. . . . He talked a lot about two of his buddies, one Rivers, a Protestant, who died there, and one lad named Diamond from Brooklyn, a Jewish chap. . . . "They say," said Al, "that I killed 200 Japs. I don't know how true that is. I never said that. I was told so by people who read it in the papers". . . . And he kept talking about the others—or wishing hard that he could do something about "waking up the people back home!"

WINCHELL

In another corner of the Stork Club was Cecil Brown, the war correspondent, who survived two torpedoings and was expelled by the authorities because he tried to wake up the people back home.

He is doing a life term over in the Trenton prison. . . He's already served 16 years . . . A prolific chap. . . Has written several plays, over a dozen songs, but every time one of the men there asks him why he doesn't try his hand at writing short stories, he winces. . . . The fact is—he had several short stories published when his budding literary career was interrupted by his arrest. . . . It seems that he was accused of being the cause of the sudden demise of several Jersey citizens . . . The chief clue to the assassin was a hat that was left behind at the scene of the crimes. . . . When the prosecutor asked him to try on a hat, he merely smiled confidently . . . He had tried the same hat on several times for the arresting detectives, and he knew it was two sizes too large. . . . He laughed with the jury every time he put on the hat, which fell over his ears. . . . Then came the clincher which convinced the jury that he was the killer. . . . The prosecutor produced a copy of a magazine containing one of his articles. . . . It told of a clever murderer, who was so smart—he always left a hat two sizes too large at the scene of his slayings. . . He now wishes he could fight in the war and writes friends: "But they don't want amateurs!"

WHEN the G-Men collared the last big bunch of Nazi spies (just before we entered the war) some of the prisoners revealed the following. . . That after the advance men had been smuggled in and had made all the most elaborate preparations (laying the ground work with secret radio stations and all the other standbys) the Nazis sent over their best agent. . . . He was a man who had worked all over the world, and he had never failed on any assignment . . . There was just nothing this bloke didn't know about the noble art of espionage. . . . And he was sent here to take charge of matters. . . On his first day in New York the other Nazi spies gathered to meet him—where he planned to give them their instructions. . . . On his way to the rendezvous, however, something went wrong with the script. . . . Even the higher-ups in Berlin never figured to coach him in a most important detail. . . . How to cross the street at Times Square.

The great spy was killed trying to get out of the way of a cab driven by a Jewish hackie.

By PETER EDSON
Journal Washington Correspondent

HOW to get full or even just post-war use of the northwest's new aluminum productive capacity is now being surveyed in a study undertaken by Dr. N. H. Engle and staff for the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Washington, collaborating with the U. S. Department of Commerce and the aluminum industry.

EDSON

This research project isn't of interest to the aluminum industry alone. It is important to every industry as a specific example of what can be done with all the war emergency productive capacity, after the war is over. It is a perfect case history to determine how any industry, over-expanded by war requirements, can keep going in normal times.

It involves not only a realistic approach to the costs of cutthroat business competition. It involves also finding new peace time markets for war surpluses. Most important of all, it involves the problem of keeping these plants going without government aid, to maintain full employment.

NEW INDUSTRY

IN LESS than two years, this Washington State aluminum industry has been built up from nothing to produce 25 to 30 per cent of all U. S. aluminum. There are four producing plants, operated by Alcoa at Vancouver and Spokane, Reynolds at Longview, Olin at Tacoma, and one Alcoa at Troutdale, Ore. There is one aluminum rolling mill at Spokane, with capacity to use about half of the four producing plants' output. The entire setup represents an investment of $100 to $115 million of U. S. government, Defense Plant corporation money in addition to Alcoa and Reynolds investments.

The government owns the plants and may therefore shut them down after the war if there isn't a market for the 500 million pounds of aluminum they can produce. But is that good business? If they are shut down, from 6000 to 7000 employes are thrown out of jobs and there is no market for from 75 to 85 per cent of the electric power developed in the Bonneville-Coulee system. It is good sense to keep the plants going, if possible.

But the northwest isn't exactly the perfect location in which to produce aluminum. The 11 western states have only 11 per cent of the U. S. population and 12 per cent of the purchasing power, so it isn't a good market area for 30 per cent of the country's aluminum. The northwest today has only one big aluminum consumer — the Boeing plant at Seattle. The California aircraft industry provides a major market, but such is the aluminum processing and fabricating setup of the country that the raw materials going into aluminum, the aluminum ingots, and the finished aluminum products must be constantly shuttled back and forth in a double trans-continental joy ride that takes time, costs money and is decidedly uneconomic if the business is to break even.

MATERIAL PROBLEMS

IN FACT, the northwest has just one of the ingredients going into aluminum — electric power. The mountains of electric power can't be transported to where the Mohamets of raw materials are, so the Mohamets have to be hauled over the Rockies at a cost of $8 a ton in train lots, $11 a ton in carload lots. Then back again east to be fabricated into parts. Then back again west to the plane plants.

If cheap water transportation were open, via the Panama canal, the northwest aluminum might compete in an open market, but opening up of the sea lanes isn't the only thing that northwest aluminum will need to survive. As the University of Washington research shows, what this gigantic infant industry may need to survive will be the development of still other industries and facilities. At a minimum, this might do it:

1. Develop a western aluminum industry, to process aluminum-bearing clays known to exist in Washington, Idaho, and Oregon. It would probably be necessary to build two alumina plants, one near Spokane, the other in southwest Washington, to process these clays — two million tons of which would be needed as against only one million tons of Bauxite from South America —to make 500 million pounds of aluminum annually. No one knows what it would cost to develop this new subsidiary industry.

2. Build another aluminum rolling mill at tidewater. Cost $50 to $75 million.

3. Move some aluminum forging, casting and extrusion plants to the west, to finish the aluminum for west coast industries.

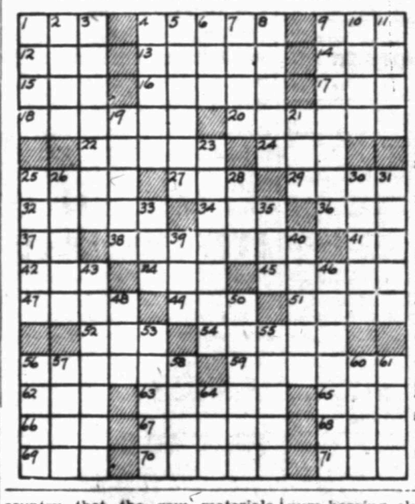

4. Then find or make some new markets.

This thumbnail sketch of the situation is presented here to give just one quick look at some of the problems of reconversion ahead.

Kemgas treated-tested seed is $10.65 per 100 pounds.

HALF & HALF PEDIGREED SEED FROM SEED FARM NEAR VERNON, CERESAN TREATED, GERMINATION 94%
This is the thin rind, light burr, high linting, early strain of Half & Half kept pure by a prominent seed grower who commenced working with Half & Half when its originators switched to Hybred.
An average of 1,400 pounds of snapped cotton made 500 pound bales. It is not unusual to get a strict middling 500-pound bale from 1,500 pounds of snaps.
This is short cotton 13/16 and ⅞ inch staple but it went in the Government Loan at better prices than staple cotton because it made higher grades.
Recleaned and graded fuzzy seed in new 3 bushel cotton bags at $6.80 per bag.
Kemgas treated-tested seed at $11 per 100 pounds.

WASHINGTON, May 3 — Beware of that Black Market Wedgie!

Whether they do it knowingly, or with malice aforethought, shoe stores are often selling dressy, patent leather, open heel-and-toe borderline shoes and wedgies without demanding the No. 17 coupon, and OPA is having a hard time enforcing the 1 5/8-inch heel regulation. Some of the shoes are smart enough for work or party wear, but dealers label them play shoes.

Meanwhile, play shoes manufactured from now on will be rationed. Date of manufacture will be stamped in the shoe. Stocks of play shoes and wedgies made before April 15 will continue to be unrationed until the supply disappears. OPA experts expect that the supply will last through the summer if women buy only the amount that they actually need.

Nylon Screen Test

Nylon window screens, rolled up and down on tracks like shades, will be another post-war item worth thinking about. The screens have been found non-corrosive, durable, and they require no painting. The chemically-made screens will be widely tested this summer and will be available after the war for use in the American home.

Those four tin cans a month you're asked to salvage may wind up thusly: enclosing individual morphine hypodermic syringes carried by soldiers at the front; containers for emergency sulfa ointment for powder burns and eye injuries incurred in battle; safeguarding blood plasma.

Odds 'N Ends

To release their workers to defense jobs, large jewelry manufacturers will produce only about 60 per cent of their 1941 output . . . War model bib overalls, with dollars-and-cents ceiling prices attached, will soon be available to consumers . . . Due to weather conditions, spring lamb will be late on the market this year . . . Ice cream shortages may develop this summer unless production quotas are increased . . . Whether homemade or purchased from a manufacturer, pork sausage has a specified point price per pound. . . A delivery boy may collect points for the grocer when he delivers the order.

Full Employment In Post-War Period Is Basis For Planning; Great Demand For Goods Seen

BY JAMES MARLOW AND GEORGE ZIELKE
Associated Press Staff Writers

WASHINGTON, May 3, (AP) — It is only 16 months since Pearl Harbor and already the phrase—post-war planning—is becoming an old refrain with much of it still in the thinky-talkie stage.

But a lot of work is being done on it quietly.

Behind any talk of post-war prosperity, of course is this basic theory:

There can be no prosperity unless people are employed. Working, they have money with which to buy; not working, they lack purchasing power.

Study Being Published

The Commerce department now publishes a study —"markets after the war" — to assist marketing analysts in aiming toward a common goal of post-war business opportunities.

"In large part," the study says, "the planning requires the aggregate effort of thousands of businessmen, each of whom has a detailed knowledge of the problems and possibilities of a particular enterprise."

This is what the study is shooting at:

Business men now should start figuring how they can keep people working when peace comes, what kind of markets they will have, what the demand for their product will be, and even how to create more jobs.

Individuals Can Start

This doesn't mean only that a business man should wait for his trade association to set up a post-war planning committee to do his thinking for him. He can start doing his own thinking now about his problems and prospects and attempts to find a solution.

The study points out:

Because so much civilian output has been curtailed — automobiles and refrigerators are a good example of items which won't be made again till peace comes—Americans are storing up billions of dollars which can't be spent. This creates a tremendous pent-up demand for goods after the war.

Great Demand Seen

As an illustration of what that pent-up demand may want after the war, in terms of automobiles alone and jobs that must be filled to fill the demand:

There were 28,800,000 passenger cars on the road at the end of 1941. If the war lasts another 18 months we will not produce cars in any quantity before 1945.

There would be an estimated demand for almost 34 million cars in 1945. To build up to that level while taking care of current replacements would require an output of over 6 million cars a year for about 4 years.

Housing Boom Indicated

"For other items of about the same durability the accumulated demand at the end of the war will be of the same order of magnitude," the study says. "In semi-durable goods it is likely to be satisfied more quickly. In housing, the resulting boom might last a full decade."

This picture is based on the assumption that employment is good, people are making money and digging for spending money into the cash they had saved in wartime when goods were few.

Other Side Pictured

The study also gives a grim picture showing what could be expected if America in 1946 produced no more goods than it did in 1940—or, what could be expected if America had not planned to use its greatly increased capacity to produce.

The total unemployed, according to the study's estimates, would reach 19 million. That figure includes the number unemployed in 1940, those arriving at wage-earning age, and those who would be displaced by improvements in efficiency over the six years.

Smashing Of U-Boat By Cutter Revealed; 33 Nazis Captured

MIAMI, Fla., May 3. (AP)—Lt. Comdr. Maurice D. Jester, veteran of 28 years of life-saving with the United States Coast Guard, told today of how the cutter Icarus under his command brought destruction of a marauding German submarine, capture of 33 of its crew and death to others.

The action flamed for 30 swift minutes off the Carolina coast several months ago, with depth charges smashing at the undersea raider, a torpedo streaking at the cutter, and gunfire giving the coup de grace to the German naval craft.

One Dies Of Wounds

One of the captured Nazis died of wounds after being rescued from the water. The remaining 32, including the submarine's commanding officer, were placed under guard in the Icarus' forecastle and were landed at Charleston, S. C.

It was the first time the capture of prisoners from a German submarine has been made public.

Commander Jester, now assistant Coast guard operations officer in the Seventh Naval district, with headquarters at Miami, told his story on authority from Washington.

He was awarded the Navy Cross for his action, the first coast guard officer to receive the medal in the present war.

The Icarus, said Commander Jester, was on a customary patrol when the submarine was detected.

Maneuvers For Attack

"We maneuvered into position for the attack," said the commander. "We located the target, dropped a pattern of depth charges and placed ourselves in position for a second attack which was made.

"A torpedo was fired by the submarine at a range of 500 yards but it missed its mark.

"It was apparent then that the submarine had been damaged. It attempted to surface, as was plainly discernible by air bubbles coming to the surface.

"Knowing we had made a kill, we maneuvered to finish off the submarine."

The commander then gave this vivid description of the last minutes of a Nazi submarine's death struggle:

"We dropped two single charges to finish her off. She broke the surface swiftly, depth-charged to the top. There was a swirl in the water, and her bow came up at a 45 degree angle.

"At this point the gunfire began. The submarine's crew attempted to man their guns. The Icarus, steaming toward the submarine at full speed, put all guns into action. Our aim was so accurate that the enemy abandoned the attempt to man their guns and jumped into the sea.

"The sub then sank slowly and disappeared from the surface.

"We rescued all the enemy seamen who came to the surface. All wore rescue lungs and inflated life jackets. Two were wounded, apparently by gunfire. One died before we reached Charleston. We brought his body in for burial."

Fruits, Vegetables To Move By Plane

WATSONVILLE, Cal., May 3 (AP)—With the release of thousands of airplanes after the war, California vegetable and fruit growers plan to handle all their products by air to the Eastern markets. Growers in the nation's "lettuce bowl" here state that lettuce picked one day will be on the table of New York consumers the next day.

Dark Jungles

Puerto Barrios a week ago, right after you blacked out on us. I didn't open it for three days — then I thought it might be something important—something that should be answered, so I read it!"

"Was it important?" Barry asked.

"She was worried because she hadn't heard from you."

"I suppose I'd better try to answer it."

Allison said coolly, "I didn't know how long you'd be unconscious so I answered it for you."

Barry frowned.

"Let me see the letter."

* * *

Allison handed it to him and left the room. He read it slowly and then read it again. It was so typical of Lila. She was frantic that he hadn't written. A plane arrived from Puerto Barrios that carried no letter from him. Didn't he know how impatient she was to hear? She would never let him get out of her sight again. After this trip she was going to insist on a desk job for Barry, right there in New York; no more of these trips into places so remote, so dangerous. Barry released the letter and it fluttered to the floor. He lay there quietly for a while staring at the ceiling.

Later Allison came back with some fruit juice in a glass and bent over the bed. Barry drank it slowly.

"Sit down," he said. "I want to talk to you."

Allison brushed a hand across her forehead after she had drawn up a chair.

"This heat," she said. "I wonder if anyone ever gets used to it?"

"They tell me they do," Barry said. "But it wasn't the heat that I wanted to talk about."

"I know it's that letter!" Allison said gayly.

"Just what did you say?"

"Oh, not much, really. Just a short, friendly note to tell her that you had been sick, but that you would come along all right."

"You told her, of course, that I was staying here, with you?"

"What else could I tell her?" Allison said a little sharply.

"Oh, I know I'm an ungrateful cad, after all you've been through for me—but—well, I just wish you hadn't written her—thats all."

A light twinkled mischievously in Allison's blue eyes as she said, "I'm sorry, Barry. For once I really thought I was doing the right thing."

Would-Be Women Sailors Numerous

RICHMOND, Cal., May 3 (U.P.)—One of the wartime troubles of shipping circles on the Pacific coast is the large number of women who try to sign up as stewards for service in the war zone, and the possibly even larger number who try to get aboard the outgoing ships without even the formality of signing up. They are invariably left at the dock at sailing time in varying states of resentment and language expressing the same.

New Machine Speeds Aircraft Devices

MINNEAPOLIS, May 3 (U.P.)—A "Rube Goldberg" coil winder which spins fine electric wire around a circular base has been invented by an engineer of a war plant and has broken a bottleneck in the manufacture of vitally needed electronic control devices for military aircraft, it was revealed here.

Design of the control device developed and being made by the Minneapolis - Honeywell Regulator Co. requires a toroid potentiometer or doughnut-shaped electric resistance coil. In the past, coils of this type were either wound by hand, which was an expensive and tedious method, it was stated, or were wound on a straight bar which was later bent to shape.

The latter method as said to be partially ineffective because it left a dead spot at the joint of the coil and increased the difficulty in mounting the winding.

Overcoming this problem the company, peacetime maker of automatic heating controls, is now using the new machine, which by means of a revolving spindle and gear mechanism, wraps wire about the coil base in much the same manner as paper is wound around newly manufactured automobile tires.

Demand For Higher Priced Homes Seen

NEW YORK, May 3. (AP)—The F. W. Dodge Corp., business research organization, predicted today that after the war the demand for homes costing $5,000 or more—not counting land—would be greater than before the conflict.

"There may be in the post-war period somewhat less emphasis on houses of the lowest cost-classification than there was in the poverty decade," commented Thomas S. Holden, president of the concern.
