

Kim's Korner By Kim Pease

WHY: Why is it that when you're in a hurry - the tooth paste always falls off the brush? Why is it that McDonald's 'drive-up windows' never break down and the coffee is always good? Why is it that American's let the following be celebrated in June - and do they have anything in common? - National Gay & Lesbian History Month, National Fresh Fruit & Vegetable Month and National Zoo & Aquarium Month? This month we'll also celebrate National Shampoo Week, National Aphasia Awareness Week (I need education on that one), National Safety Week and Blind Awareness Week. In July we'll pause for National Baked Bean Month, National Anti-Boredom Month, National Hot Dog Month, National Picnic Month and National Read An Almanac Month.

WOULD NOT HAVE THOUGHT: California leads the pack as the state in first place that provides visitors to Texas. According to figures released by the Texas Department of Commerce, California provided 35.1 million person days to Texas in 1991. Other states in order are Oklahoma 34.1; Louisiana 25.5; New Mexico 15.9; Colorado 12.8; Illinois 12.8; Florida 12.8 followed by Michigan and New York.

1947 BUDGET FOR ROTAN CHAMBER: Bonnie Duke House shared the below information. She ran across these figures in a 1947 Rotan Chamber of Commerce Budget (Projected Expenditures) Salaries $960; Telephone and Telegraph $100; Office supplies, printing and postage $125; Travel expenses $100; Dues and subscriptions $50; Advertising $100; Committee expenses $100; Clerical Help $100; Miscellaneous $115; Emergency & Reserve $250. Total budgeted expenses $2,000.00.

Income as follows - Membership dues individuals $12.50; businesses houses $37.50 minimum. The following business concerns paid a minimum of $60 for dues. Rotan Cotton Oil Mill, National Gypsum Co., Lone Star Gas Co., Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., West Texas Utility Co., Farmers Gin Co., Foster Miller Gin Co., Rotan Gin Co., West Side Gin Co. COLLECTS NEWSPAPERS: O. B. Blevens, Fisher County native, now living near Oklahoma City, had a relative he knew was coming to Rotan pick up a copy of the local paper for him. Nothing unusual about that. Blevens gets folks going anywhere to agree to bring him back newspapers. One time, according to legend, someone went to Israel and carried him a paper printed in Jewish and he read it - every page.

PLEASE PAY: Former Rotan Methodist Minister Ron Dunaway gave this to me several months ago. I waited until our wedding event took place involving my youngest daughter, before printing.

He shared the following article - "My husband and I own a small business. With the wedding of our daughter, Cindy, just months away, money was tight. One weekend, Cindy prepared and sent out invoices to our customers. Almost at once, checks started pouring in. Even delinquent accounts seemed to be paying up.

We were happy but mystified. Then we took a close look at one of the invoices. At the

HOW CAN I THANK YOU ENOUGH?

I just bought a gift for a friend who is being graduated from college. I know him well enough to guess that when I give it to him he'll say something like, "you didn't have to do that." So why did I? For the same reason we all do - because we want to show our love, we want to demonstrate how we feel about someone by doing something selfless for them. But when someone gives us a gift, especially when it is an extravagant gift, it is sometimes difficult to show them how much we appreciate it.

It makes me think of the greatest gift ever given to me - or for that matter the greatest gift ever given to any of us. For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoever believes in Him should not perish, but have eternal life. John 3:16 (NASB) Certainly God did not have to give His Son. He was not forced to send Jesus to the earth to die for us. So why did He? It does not make sense to many people. They can't understand why God would allow such a thing.

It does not make sense....without the first part of the verse to explain it. For God to give His only begotten Son so that sinful man who had hated God and rejected His will, might have the opportunity to turn back and come into a relationship with God once again is hard to explain UNLESS God had a great, unbounded love for all the world - for every man, woman, boy, and girl. Because He does, God gave -- gave the very best - the most - His all.

How do we thank Him? We accept the gift. It has already been purchased; the price already paid. He holds it out to us free of charge. The way we thank Him is not to reject it and say, "it is too much, I am unworthy." The way we thank Him is by saying, "I will accept your gift and always remember in everything I do what it cost you, God, to let me come back to you." Tell God thank-you for the greatest gift anyone has ever given - accept it - believe (put your trust) in Jesus so that you will "not perish, but have eternal life."

SUNDAY IN THE PARK: Following the morning services on Sunday, June 13th, the members of the Rotan Church of Christ will meet at the park for an afternoon of food, fun and fellowship. They invited members to bring their lunch or plan to cook hot dogs. Baseball will be played. After food and games the afternoon will dismiss with a devotional. No evening service that day only.

CONGRATULATIONS: To All the employees of Rotan Nursing Center for being awarded the 1992 - E - Award (Award of Excellence).

CONGRATULATIONS: To Rotan Primary Principal David Hargrove. For being willing to go 'above and beyond' in seeing to it that your students get recognition. He takes the photographs and identified the students in the finished pictures. His latest comment, "I think I ought to be on staff." My answer, "You will be as soon as they make me a teacher or when pigs fly whichever comes first." We do appreciate his willingness to assist.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK: "Children have more need of models than of critics." - Joubert.

ROUGH CREEK POINT OF VIEW: Kids at Rough Creek grow up learning how to play by themselves. Some have imaginary friends, some talk to themselves, some are naive but all are loving, kind, polite, don't cry, don't throw fits in public and aren't cruel to other kids. Says a lot about growing up in Rough Creek doesn't it? FINALLY: Ol' Whistle Britches is looking for more information. He was told by an old friend from Snyder that Eagles are the only bird that can fly and look directly into the sun without hurting their eyes. Confirmation can't be found in any local source, anyone know if that is true or an old wives tale?

DISAGREEMENTS: The safest way to disagree with your wife is very quietly.

FACTS: Give a politician some facts and he'll draw his own conclusion.

Rose Lessons

I work with people and raise roses. Both fascinate me. And both are so similar. Roses require tremendous attention. They must be cared for, talked to, fed and watered regularly, and protected from foreign matter that would harm. All of which must be done with extreme care.

You never hold a rose too tightly or its thorns will give painful notice of your indiscretion. You move about rose bushes with careful caution lest they snag you. They demand room to grow and fulfill their purpose in life.

And each rose bush has its own nature. You can perform all the proper acts of care and love, but the rose will be what its inward nature (its God-purpose) determines: a red rose will be a red rose; a yellow rose, a yellow rose. You have absolutely no control over its nature (color).

In working with people that's the hardest lesson to learn. We can apply influence, give guidance, exert persuasion, but each person's individuality must be respected. His or her nature (God-purpose) must be allowed fulfillment. Refusing such freedom stunts people and kills roses.

Roby Street Signs

Congratulations to the City of Roby.
When the new 9-1-1 emergency notification system went into effect, last summer, the City of Roby decided to 'get with the program' and comply with directives stating that they would have street signs in place as part of the emergency program notification agreement.
Counties were also mandated to erect county road number signs as part of the plan.
The City of Roby spent about $3,500, virtually completely outfitting all of Roby with new street signs, new stop sign poles where needed and either new stop and yield signs or re-facing existing signs.
The money was well spent in my opinion. The addition of street name signs has improved the appearance of the city and says a lot about how Roby feels about the way Roby looks to residents and visitors.
Roby tends to do things right when they do them.
Congratulations to the Mayor, city council and residents.

Albany Fort Griffin Fandangle Ticket Sales Have Been Brisk

Ticket sales have been brisk for the 55th production of the Fort Griffin Fandangle, with opening night set for Thursday, June 17.

Soldiers and the forts they established in the 1800s will be featured in this year's Fandangle, according to Director Marge Bray. Performances are scheduled for Thursday through Saturday, June 17-19 and June 24-26 at the Prairie Theater located just west of Albany. Show time is approximately 8:45 p.m.

Each year, visitors come from across the country to relive the settling of the Clear Fork of the Brazos area. The unique production features Albany residents as they tell the story of the beginnings of this area through music, song, dance and narration.

Tickets are in short supply for several of the performances, according to Fandangle office personnel, and people are urged to order tickets in advance. However, they emphasize that there are plenty of good seats left for several of the performances.

Ticket prices range from $10 for box seats to $3. Group discounts are also available.

Tickets may be purchased at the Fandangle office on Main Street, or by calling 915/762-3642. Mail orders may be sent to P.O. Box 155, Albany, Texas 76430. Cash and personal checks are accepted, as well as MasterCard, Visa and Discover cards.

State Capital Highlights

By Lyndell Williams
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN - One day following adjournment of the Texas Legislature, State District Judge Scott McCown said public schools will remain open — at least for the coming year — under a new plan aimed at equalizing wealth between property-rich and property-poor school districts.

But Gov. Ann Richards' signature on the multiple-choice plan was barely dry before its legality was thrown into doubt when lawyers for property-poor districts announced they would challenge its constitutionality.

"There are still inequities in the system," said Al Kauffman, an attorney for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund that represents the plaintiffs in the long-running school finance lawsuit.

Three Reasons Plan Unfair

Kauffman listed three reasons the current system is unfair and should be declared unconstitutional:

- It doesn't provide property-poor school districts equal access to school revenue at similar tax rates.

- It doesn't address inequities in classrooms and facilities.

- It leaves a gap of $600 to $1,000 in per-student funding between property-poor and property-rich school districts.

Since 1989, the Texas Supreme Court has struck down the state's school finance system three times. The court's last order said school funds would be halted June 1 unless lawmakers had devised a constitutional plan.

Without judging the new plan, Judge McCown declined to strike down the funding measure.

"The court presumes that an act of the Legislature signed into law by the governor is constitutionally sufficient," said McCown.

Even if challenges are filed, McCown indicated that schools likely would remain open through the coming year.

Utilities Lose Tax Break

In the final hours of the session, the House and Senate discarded the 86-page Public Utility Commission sunset bill and passed a one-page measure extending the life of the agency for two more years.

Disagreements over allowing telephone and electric utilities to keep $800 million in "phantom taxes" prompted lawmakers to merely leave the PUC unchanged while a study is done.

In the eyes of newspaper publishers and consumers across the state, the issue was favorably resolved.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said he would authorize a study of Texas' telecommunications industry to be conducted during the legislative interim. A $400,000 appropriation already has been set aside for the study.

House Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center said a thorough study could help any future utility bill that includes regulatory changes by preventing such a measure from becoming bogged down by special-interest groups.

Leaders Praise Session

Lt. Gov. Bullock and House Speaker Laney said they were pleased with the accomplishments of the 73rd legislative session.

Bullock said he had set out to have "one of the most productive sessions in the history of the Texas Senate. I think we did."

Laney said he considered the school finance bill the "biggest success" of the session, his first as speaker.

Session highlights include:

- A $70.1 billion two-year budget that holds the line on taxes and makes no major cuts in services.

- Lawmakers voted to create a system of 22,000 "state jail" beds for non-violent criminals.

- Overhaul of the state's penal code, doubling the prison time for violent criminals.

- The governor has already signed bills revamping products liability laws and making it harder for foreigners to sue in Texas courts.

- Passed legislation to make health insurance more available and affordable for small businesses employing three to 50 people.

- Passed a bill to immunize children against preventable diseases.

- Voted to build 10,000 prison beds and fund 7,000 prison beds for substance abuse treatment.

Hunters, Speeders Aided

two bills about two things Texans are known for — hunting and speeding. Under the legislation:

- Motorists ticketed for driving 70 mph in a 65-mile zone on interstate highways would not see the ticket reflected in their auto insurance rates.

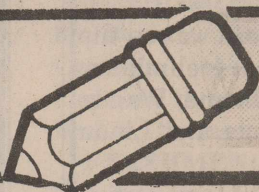

- People who interfere with or harass hunters would face up to six months in jail and a $1,500 fine.

Other Highlights

- In less than three months, the Governor's Fugitive Squad has captured eight of Texas' most wanted parole violators. "We have sent a message to the parolees in this state that they had better not mess up, or they'll be going back to prison," Gov. Richards said.

- Senators elected John Whitmire, D-Houston, as president pro tempore. Members praised the Houston Democrat for directing the overhaul of the state penal code.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Kim,

On Monday afternoon, June 7, Chris, Daniel, and I were returning from Sweetwater and just outside of town had a "blowout" in one of my tires. Chris nor I had ever actually changed a tire and decided between ourselves that surely we could do it and that it really would be a good time to learn! After a few adjustments of the jack we finally figured out what we were doing and were pretty much on our way to taking off the blown tire. A man in a white pickup pulled up behind us and asked if he could be of assistance. Seeing Chris had the situation basically under control, he stood there quietly as if to supervise and to probably make sure no one came up on us from behind.

I asked if he traveled this road often and he said "yes". I asked if he lived nearby and he said "Roby". I asked his name and he said "Arnwine". Then not being real familiar with all the people in the area, it registered with me who the tall good Samaritan was! I told him how much we appreciated him stopping and he quietly reached over and took the heavy blown tire off and easily laid it in the trunk as Chris continued to put the donut on.

Chris finished like a pro and "Mr. Arnwine" said he wanted to make sure the donut had air in it and would follow us to Roby.

I realize this man was obviously on his day off and to stop and offer help and follow behind for almost 20 miles at 45 m.p.h. was really a nice gesture and I just want everyone to know how appreciative we are of him to have been so considerate.

Sincerely,
Jan Markham, Chris and Daniel

Preventing Household Accidents

Provided by Methodist Hospital

Although there's no place like home, more accidents occur in the home each year than anywhere else. In 1991, approximately 20 million Americans sustained injuries in the home that required medical attention.

"Most home accidents can be avoided by taking common sense precautions," said Chuck Barton, M.D., medical director of Methodist Hospital's Adult Emergency Center.

Following is a list of the most common type of home injuries and accident prevention techniques.

 Knife cuts- Injuries from kitchen knives are the most common type of injury in this country. To prevent this type of injury keep knives sharp to prevent them from slipping off the item being sliced. Keep hands and knife handles dry. Store knives where they can be seen (in a wooden block) not a kitchen drawer.

 Household chemical exposure- Accidental exposure to chemicals can occur through inhalation of vapors and sprays, ingestion and skin contact. Exposure to chemicals can cause eye, nose and throat irritation or corrosion, skin burns and damage to the kidneys, liver and nervous system. To prevent this type of injury only use chemicals in well-ventilated areas and wear protective gloves and safety goggles. Store household chemicals and cleansers out of reach of children.

 Falls from ladders- Ladders and stools are the cause of more than 150,000 accidents each year. These mishaps can be avoided by planting a ladder's feet one foot out from the supporting wall for every four feet up, and allowing three feet of overlap at the top. Never stand on the top two rungs of a ladder, and make sure it's adequately secured, ideally with someone holding the base.

 Fires- Approximately one-half million home fires were reported in this country in 1991. The No. 1 cause of these fires was space heaters. Other culprits include faulty wiring, Christmas lights, overloaded electrical circuits and electric blankets. Fire prevention techniques include installing a smoke detector on each floor of the home (check the batteries at least once per month,) keeping a dry-chemical fire extinguisher handy and if you must use a space heater, turning it off before leaving the house or going to bed.

 Burns- Cooking ranges and stoves are the cause of more than 40,000 injuries each year. To prevent burns make sure there is adequate lighting over the stove and wear short or tight-fitting sleeves while cooking.

 Hot water burns- Although this type of burn is less common, thousands occur each year, some of which are fatal. To prevent hot water burns, set the hot water thermostat at 120 degrees. Protect children from accidental scalds by using cool mist vaporizers instead of steam.

 Electrocution- Generated electricity causes more than 1,000 deaths annually, usually due to cardiac or upper respiratory arrest. To prevent electrocution, eliminate such hazards as open sockets, exposed connections and worn insulation on electrical cords. Also, never use electrical appliances around a bathtub or shower.

Zero Percent Acreage Reduction For Wheat

Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy today announced a required zero percent acreage reduction program for the 1994 wheat crop. This level was chosen from the statutory range of 0 to 15 percent and is unchanged from 1993. "Letting wheat growers produce is important in keeping U.S. wheat moving in the world market place," Espy said. "We are committed to being competitive on the domestic production side and on the export sales side through the use of the Export Enhancement Program and other available export promotion programs. "Let there be no doubt that the United States will continue to be a reliable supplier of wheat to both our domestic and foreign consumers."

Espy also announced other provisions for the 1994 wheat program:

* The established target price is $4.00 per bushel, unchanged from 1993.

* A paid land diversion will not be implemented. Other 1994 wheat program provisions will be announced later.

The world's grain acreage has shrunk steadily since 1950, according to the Worldwatch Institute. In 1991, farmers harvested 1,712 million acres, down from 1,717 million acres the year before. During the same one-year period, world population increased by 92 million persons. The area of harvested grain has slipped to about a third of an acre per person, the lowest in recorded history.

In recent years, all expansion of grain output has come from increasing the amount of grain produced per acre.

Methane gas from belching bison probably has contributed more to global warming than cattle have. North America's present cattle population numbers only about 33 million. For centuries, perhaps twice that many bison roamed the continent.

Cattle are responsible for just 0.2 to 0.5 percent of greenhouse gases now produced. Termites and other wood-digesting insects contribute about the same amount. The fastest growing source of environmental methane is rotting garbage in landfills.

Oregon State University researchers have found that cultivating at night can reduce germination of certain weed seeds by up to 70 percent.

The researchers point out that buried seeds of some species become ultrasensitive to light. Exposure to sunlight for only a split second triggers germination of these seeds. With cultivation in the dark, many weed seeds are reburied and don't have a chance to get the exposure to sunlight required for breaking dormancy.

Juicy ripe peaches, fresh green beans, corn on the cob, fresh fish...do these things make your mouth water especially when they are not easy to find? Why not save these foods and many more to enjoy later when they are out of season?

Why preserve? There are several reasons to preserve. Unless, food is preserved in some manner, it begins to spoil. Microorganisms such as molds, yeasts and bacteria begin to multiply and cause foods to be contaminated.

Physical changes also cause foods to spoil. Bruising and punctures cause foods to become soft and create an atmosphere conducive to growing microorganisms, water loss and wilting are also signs of physical changes.

Enzymes help foods grow and mature. If the enzymes in fruits and vegetables are inactivated, they continue to work after harvest, causing flavor and texture changes.

There are, however, certain guidelines that need to be followed when preserving foods to ensure that the foods remain safe to eat later and you remain safe when using canning equipment. Some food items can be preserved safely using only a water bath canner. These foods are high acid foods (ph value of 1.0 - 4.6). Examples include tomatoes, pickles and most fruits. Low acid foods (ph value of 4.6 - 7.0) must be preserved in a pressure canner. Examples of low acid foods include vegetables, meats, beans, and seafood.

You may respond to this article by saying "I don't have the time or money to preserve foods." You do have to take several things into consideration before you decide whether or not to preserve foods. One thing to consider is the food cost. Do you have a garden, purchase from a farmers market, or from the grocery store? Other things to consider include what equipment you have (or don't have) for preservation and costs such as electricity, water, gas, etc.

Food preservation can be as easy or as difficult as you make it. It is not as common to see homemakers practicing preservation today as it was 50 years ago or even 10 years ago!

If you are interested in finding out some of the recent changes in food preservation, keep an eye out in the Rotan Advance for future articles on canning, freezing, drying, and pickling. Publications are also available from the Extension office.

The latest in food safety research will be the topic of an Extension program on Tuesday, June 15 at 7:00 p.m. in the Fisher County Courthouse Annex in Roby. The program designed for people who handle and serve food for the public, will be presented by Dr. Peggy Gentry - Van Laanen, Extension Nutrition Specialist.

The event is sponsored by the Fisher County Extension Home Economics Committee and is free to the public.

Fires Can Help Improve Range Land

Many thousand rangeland acres in South Texas have burned to the ground in the past 20 years, and ranchers there are glad.

Charred brush clears the way for nutritional grass and controlled habitat, making the ranches more profitable and ecological for livestock and wildlife.

"Fire is one tool that can reduce the cost of applying chemicals and mechanical treatments to remove excessive woody plants from ranch land," said Wayne Hamilton, a resource management researcher for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and co-author of the new book, Prescribed Burning For Brushland Management: The South Texas Example.

Hamilton and Charles J. Scifres, co-author and associate director of the Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station, began studying how to use controlled fires to remove unwanted plants in South Texas about 20 years ago. That's when range managers began reconsidering the long-held view that fire was not good for the land.

Historically, fire was thought of as a natural occurrence that benefited the land. But by the late 1800s, people in the United States had become more settled and were building fences around property. Burnings after that time became dreaded disasters that caused heavy losses of livestock, fences and homes.

"So people entered an all-out fire control era," Hamilton said. "Fire became bad."

In the early 1970s, however, rangeland experts re-ignited the idea of burning land to enhance its productivity but added control measures to protect livestock, wildlife and property. "We had to learn how to burn," Hamilton said.

South Texas ranches are unique to much of the rest of the state, he noted, because of the variety of shrubs and woody plants that grow there. In other areas, he said, only one type of tree -- mesquite or juniper, for example -- usually is the sole or dominant woody species. He said the techniques learned in the South Texas experiments can be applied to many other parts of the world, such as Mexico, South America, Africa and Australia.

On multiple-shrub pastures, however, burning is a secondary control tool used after chemical or mechanical measures have been applied. Hamilton explained that on land that is thick with various varieties of shrubs and trees, grass usually is not present in large enough or continuous amounts. Grass is the "fuel" for controlled burns.

After the shrubs have been mechanically knocked down or chemically killed, he said, grass will grow. But the woody plants try for a comeback, too.

"They are re-sprouters, so they aren't eradicated even with a highly successful herbicide or mechanical method," Hamilton said. "When that regrowth begins to occur, fire can be used. It's like Hamburger Helper. It stretches the initial treatment."

He said once the pasture has been cleared of the problem plants, fire can be used in three-year intervals to keep the shrubs in check.

Fire offers a big incentive for ranchers, Hamilton said, because chemical and mechanical control -- especially if repeated applications are required -- are too costly to maintain.

"Fire fits the bill because it is low cost and reduces the need for reapplications of the more expensive methods," he said.

Hamilton and Scifres estimate that a prescribed burning program for 640 acres over a 10-year period averages about 84 cents an acre. The first year of the program is most costly at almost $1,700 because of planning, fire-line construction and deferment costs (to place livestock elsewhere to feed). But in some years, the cost is little more than $100 to maintain the plan. The researchers estimate spending about $5,300 for a decade of burn control on the 640 acres.

Taking the time to prepare is the key. "This is not something that can be done in two weeks," Hamilton said.

When the Lights Go Out, We Won't Leave You in the Dark

Power outages sometimes happen during this time of year due to problems caused by thunderstorms, lightening, high winds or tornados. When the lights go out, WTU will do whatever it takes to get your power restored as quickly as possible.

If your lights do go out, we need your help!
Here's what you can do:

- First, check with your neighbors to see how widespread the outage is.
- If you're the only house in your area with the light outs or if you don't have any close neighbors, check your breaker or fuse box to see if the trouble is there.
- If the trouble isn't on your side of the meter (such as a tripped circuit breaker or a blown fuse), call your area WTU office. Keep trying if the lines are busy. It's important that we hear from you — and we appreciate your patience.
- As soon as we learn of an outage, we call out as many crews as needed and work as long as necessary to make sure your power is restored.

Hustling Around Hobbs

by Joy Walker.....

We finally had two or three much cooler days, but although it was cloudy, we still haven't got any rain. It was so windy last Tuesday, and so hot and windy on Wednesday. They reported 102 degrees which is really hot for so early in June.

Leslie and Mary Anderson from Tenaha and Mary's aunt, Mrs. Hardison from Dallas, have all been here visiting with the Clarence Andersons. They came last Sunday and left for home Wednesday.

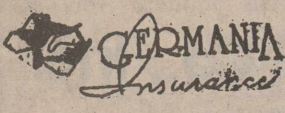

James Ratliff is doing so well, and of course is really eager to be up and around, but he will have to take things easy for a while. He really looks good, and is enjoying being free from so much pain.

Thursday I went with Evette and Carol Ann Gruben to Midland and we picked up Tess and Tatum Williams there. We met their mother, Shawna, there and then we brought the girls home with us. Evette is here for two days from Dallas but has to go back

GERMANIA Insurance

You may have seen TV ads for Life Insurance for only $1.00 a week. Have you wondered just how good a deal this might be?

The maximum coverage offered is $7.00 a week for a male, age 49, that buys $12,383.00 of term coverage.

The same $30.00 a month could buy $25,000.00 of permanent coverage for a male, age 49, non-smoker.

Don't be mislead by TV ads. Talk to a professional Life Insurance person at Germania.

Occasionally this column will not apply to the coverages in Texas. For more information contact your local agent.

before the wedding on Saturday.

Mark and Melody and little Kassie came late Thursday and Carol and Evette and the little girls came over to visit. Kassie has grown so and talks so well, you can hold a long conversation with her.

Friday we were busy, practicing with the little ones in the wedding, and they all did so well. That night we all went to the rehearsal supper which was held at Sheila and Donnie's outside by the pool. We sure had lots to eat and there was a big crowd there. It was a nice evening, except the wind was blowing pretty high as usual. Everyone swam that evening, but said it was really cool and you needed to stay in the water.

The wedding was just beautiful and Kassie did walk down the aisle, somewhat tearfully, I might add, but anyway everything went off just fine, and we all had a wonderful time. Well not too much news this week, it's clouding up today so maybe we will get that much needed rain. See you next Thursday.

Question Of The Week.....

QUESTION: "Up in the Northeast section of Rotan the fire whistle just blows in long blasts of 2-3 minutes. We never know, if we can't see a bad cloud, if it's a fire or tornado and the only way to know is call the Dispatcher?"

ANSWER: "I apologize a thousand times for coming down hard on people calling the Dispatcher. I was not given all the information. I was of the impression that the fire whistle was blown in short blasts and long blasts for both Rotan and Roby indicating a fire or tornado. Not so said the Patti Thompson, Fisher County Sheriff's Department Dispatcher. She said she has no control over the Rotan whistle - can only activate it. Rotan Fire Department can sound pulsating blasts. I called Fisher County Sheriff Pack, Fisher County Judge Marshall Bennett and Rotan Fire Chief Archie Neeley and requested that the malfunctioning alarm in Northeast Rotan be fixed. We will check back on this." - Kimball G. Pease, Editor, Rotan Advance - Roby Star-Record.
