GAME WARDEN ASKS HUNTER'S CO-OPERATION

With the opening of the hunting season, local Game Warden S. O. Durst, who has supervision of Kimble, Menard, Schleicher, Sutton and Edwards counties, asks that an appeal be made to all hunters thru this paper and to all who allow hunting on their lands, to observe the game laws that are to be strictly enforced this year.

Warden Durst, on behalf of the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, desires to thank the public for aid in conserving game in the past and calls attention to the fact that the shooting preserve regulation will be rigidly enforced during the coming season. Wardens were lenient last year regarding this new measure, but the deputies have all been requested to "bear down" this season.

This new regulation requires property owners and club managers who lease land for hunting purposes to procure a license and keep a record of all game killed on their property. The shooting preserve license, costing $5, may be secured from the sporting goods department of the Chas. Schreiner Co. Arrangements will be made for their issuance in other counties.

Hunting license can be secured in this county at the following places:

Junction Hardware Company, Junction Chamber of Commerce, Ben F. Simon at Roosevelt and Amon and Sans at London or from Game Warden Durst.

The new license have not been received yet but are expected some time this week.

The open season on doves started Wednesday, Sept. 1st, and closes October 31. The bag limit is 15 per day and shooting from automobiles is prohibited.

In closing his appeal for co-operation Warden Durst says: "The State is spending money to make hunting better. We ask the hunter to do his part by observing the game laws in a spirit of good sportsmanship by leaving does and turkey hens alone and by staying within the bag limit on all game."

Open Season

Doves—September 1 to October 31, both days inclusive.

Ducks—October 16 to January 31, both days inclusive.

Deer and Turkey—November 16 to December 31, both days inclusive.

Quail—November 16 to January 1, both days inclusive.

Squirrels—Open at all times.

Bag Limit

Deer—Two bucks in one year must have three or more points Turkey—Three gobbles in one year.

Quail—Twelve in one day, 36 in one week.

Doves—Fifteen in one day.

Ducks—Twenty-five in one day, 50 in one week.

Squirrels—Ten in one day.

Unlawful to have in one's possession more than 50 game birds of all kinds at one time.

You must not kill, catch, possess or ship at any time during the year any song bird, pheasant, turkey hen, doe deer or spotted fawn.

You must not buy or sell any game bird or animal, or part thereof.

You may kill at any time in any numbers English sparrows, ricebirds, blackbirds, sizzards, crows, owls, hawks, road runners and rabbits.

The law forbids the hunting of migratory birds between sunset and one-half hour before sunrise. It is also unlawful to shoot any protected

GOOD CROWD ATTENDS WATER CARNIVAL TUES.

The Water Carnival at Price's Camp swimming pool Tuesday was attended by a large crowd, many out of town visitors being among the crowd.

This entertainment, which was arranged by the ladies of the local Presbyterian Church organization, and directed by Mrs. John Hankins, was well planned and the large number of young people taking part in the various water stunts showed exceptional skill in handling themselves in the water.

Dick Booner's high dive of some 25 feet from a large pecan tree; Roland Johnson's volplaning, and a demonstration of swimming strokes by Louis Domingues, of Kerrville, were among the outstanding events, while the pageant, crew races and ribbon tangle, were also greatly enjoyed as well as the other minor stunts. Judge Linden's "floating, standing up" was an extra on the program.

Sandwiches and cold drinks were served throughout the afternoon, and the receipts from the sale of the tickets, together with the gate receipts, amounted to about $55.00, which will go into the Presbyterian Church building fund.

On account of the fact that business men and those working in the business houses were unable to attend, the ladies have decided to give a complimentary entertainment, similar to the one of Tuesday afternoon at the same place, Sunday afternoon. The public is cordially invited and the admission will be free.

Mrs. R. J. Motley, proprietress of the Hodges Hotel, has recently made some extensive improvements on the interior of her hotel. The guest rooms have been repapered, new furniture added, and facings repainted. She is also putting some trellis work on the attractive lawn and contemplates the addition of several rooms at an early date, as business the past year has been such that the present number of rooms has been inadequate.

John S. Goodman was in town Monday from his farm near London and dropped into the Eagle office for an appreciated visit. Mr. Goodman came to this county in 1891 from Bosque county. He has just returned from an old settler reunion near Clifton where he met many of his old time Bosque county friends of pioneer days. Mr. Goodman is 82 years old but is in the best of health and very active and would pass easily for a younger man than many others who are no older than his eldest son, who is now 62.

DISTRICT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AT LLANO.

H. O. Tatum, Convention District Manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was in Junction Tuesday in the interest of a District Convention that will be held at Llano on Friday, September 10th.

Mr. Tatum was urging the local business men to attend as there is promised a very interesting and constructive program at this meeting, which will of course, be of particular interest to the business interests of this section of the State.

A number of local business men are planning to attend, leaving here Thursday afternoon or early Friday morning.

SCHOOL OPENS HERE MONDAY, SEPT 13th

Supt. Cowles asks that announcement be repeated that the local public school will open Monday the 13th.

While there will be no formal opening, all patrons are invited to be present at nine o'clock on the opening day for short exercises in the auditorium.

Mr. Cowles states the custom of accepting children under the scholastic age will be changed this year and that no child, who was not six before the first day of September will be accepted.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH NOTES

There will be services next Sunday at 11 a. m., at Trinity Episcopal Church. The minister in charge, the Rev. Frederick W. Jones, will preach on the Beatitudes: "Blessed are they who hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." The public is cordially invited to attend.

E. V. Sellers was here Wednesday and Thursday and reports heavy rains along the route from Abilene here. Good rains have also fallen in the west and northwest part of the county, in some places as much as two inches, but in other parts of the county only showers have fallen the past few days.

FALL TERM DISTRICT COURT OPENED MONDAY

Hon. J. H. McLean, District Judge of the 33rd Judicial District, and District Attorney F. H. Hammond, arrived here Sunday from their homes at Llano and Burnett, respectively, to be ready for the opening of Court Monday morning. This is the first court to convene on this year's judicial calendar.

Court opened at 9 o'clock Monday morning with an invocation by Rev. J. Virgil Davis, pastor of the Methodist Church. Business was taken up immediately and the Grand Jury list was called and the following were selected to serve for this term: Chris Schraub, Foreman; A. L. Mudge, Felix Watson, Clay Holland, E. R. Brown, Seth Whetstone, L. B. Kirkpatrick, W. L. Bierschwald, H. F. Grobe, Nath Walker, Ernest Amon, and Roscoe Stevenson.

Up to Thursday, one indictment had been returned, this being against a Mexican, Juan Gonzales, for criminal assault.

The Jury Civil Docket was continued Monday, until next term of court. A number of civil non-jury cases were disposed of Tuesday and Wednesday, including one divorce case, Mrs. Omega Wagoner being granted a divorce and custody of her little daughter.

The case of the State vs. Worley and others of Coleman County, was called and trial taken up Wednesday morning. The juryman for the first week were excused Monday by the Court until this case was called.

JUNCTION BOYS LINE UP FOR HOWARD PAYNE.

Brownwood, Sept. 7.—Junction was well represented as usual on the opening day of football practice at Howard Payne College here Monday. Fifty men reported for training to Coaches "Bud" Amis and Joe Bailey Cheney, and Captain Horace Caldwell.

The following Junction players signed up: Shelby "Whisky Pete" Jobs, two-year letter man; Murr Hodges, who has garnered three; Bill Wright, who got one last year; "Vic" Urban, best weight man in the Texas track field, and Dennis Wallace, freshman.

Prospects for a championship team are slim this year, however, according to Amis. Only a few veterans are back in the harness, the remainder being rookies, badly in need of training.

A number of boys, comprising the football team for the coming school term, are camping on the W. G. Moos ranch on Joy Creek, and besides getting a lot of camping experience are also practicing hard under the direction of Coach Howard Blackburn, and will be in trim for games with nearby towns shortly after school opens on the 13th. Those in the party are: Ned Maddox, Gay Munn, Frank Hubbell, Marvin Taylor, Dillard Motley, Orville Taylor, Con Neal, Clarence Deckert, Bill Foley, Joe Goodman, Albert Becker, Perry Deckert, Robert Davis and Jack King.

Places often remain in our minds synonymous with a color specifically their own. Green could therefore be indelibly linked with Cherbourg—the English Channel's first busy port. Here the lapis-lazuli of the Atlantic changes to a green as clear and brilliant as a piece of Venetian crystal. The town itself, from a ship-board perspective, is also green making a vivid background for its many little houses of brilliant white. "A city set upon a hill," not morally but geographically and it presents itself, in the early morning, as a small boy with his face all freshly scrubbed and bright.

A trans-Atlantic voyage on board the S. S. "Leviathan" the flag-ship of the United States magnificent fleet, means six glorious days whose swiftly-winged hours are filled with a joyous exuberance that goes hand-in-hand with calm sailing, harmonious surroundings, luxurious appointments and a program of well-planned entertainment throughout the day.

On ship-board one rises early and after breakfast a brisk game of shuffle-board is entered into, or perhaps one goes in for a set of tennis or two or even a sprightly swim in the pool. A mid-ocean golf tournament is also arranged during each crossing for those energetic souls who would suffer from six days abstinence from their favorite sport.

In the evening one has their choice of dancing to a splendid jazz orchestra, playing bridge, or relaxing to a program of fine music played softly on a concert-grand whose richly melowed tones give a new interpretation to Beethoven and Chopin.

It would have been impossible to remain depressed or worried on such a voyage and in spite of the story Curtiss had told me of losing his fortune and having to start all over again in new surroundings, I could not help but respond to the tang of the salt sea breeze and the happy-go-lucky feeling that comes with an unquenchable sailing desire.

As for the old bugaboo, seasickness, (made-mer as the French call it) on the larger liners it is positively unheard of. "Aunt Jessie" who had come all the way from Goose Bend, Indiana, was determined to experience this malady on this, her return voyage. On the first we were informed that she had no luck. Being a firm believer in preparedness she was strongly fortified with bottles, pills and pellets of every well known variety but she was compelled to admit her disappointment at the end of the trip. "And I'd promised to tell them all about it being so upsettin'" she complained as she grumblingly packed away her apothecary shop—unopened and intact.

On the sixth morning we glimpsed the Statue of Liberty through a gossamer mist as delicately blue as April rain.

"It's pretty good to see her again after all?" asked Curtiss who was happier than he had apparently been during the entire voyage.

"That's the nicest part about going to Europe. The returning." I agreed with him as we thrillingly viewed the picturesque diversified sky-line of New York.

"Well, what do you think of Birmingham?"

know a few days after our arrival in that very busy industrial center of the South.

"It's dirty!" My reply was most laconic and reflected the way I felt about leaving my beloved Florida whose sunshine and cleanliness I had always taken as a matter of course.

"Listen, Sallie," Curtiss interrupted, a slight frown appearing on his face, "I want to tell you a little story."

He faced me as we sat in the Tutwiller Hotel. Through the window I could see, what seemed to me, a countless number of smoky stacks, from the sooty throats of which dense spirals of black seemed continually to pour.

"You know yesterday when Salsby Crawford and his wife took us out for a drive?"

He paused. "Uh-huh," I nodded, unable to anticipate his leading thought.

"Well, you remember the beautiful blue clouds that hung over Shades Mountain yesterday afternoon and how pretty you thought it all was, as we climbed right to the top?"

"Yes, it was lovely," I admitted as he paused.

"All right. Now I want to tell you my story. Its about two prisoners who looked from their window one night and what they saw as they peered outside. One of them saw nothing but the mud as it gleamed under an arc light below. He mentioned the fact to his buddy who was staring straight up into the sky. He was astonished when his fellow prisoner replied: 'I have not seen the mud. I was too busy looking at those glorious stars!' In other words, Sallie, each saw the thing he sought. One looked for sordidness and found it in the mud—the other longed for beauty, and, from the same window, found it in the stars. Now, what I want to know, Sallie, is just this," he leaned forward and quickened his tone of voice, "are you going to see the smoke of those furnaces of Birmingham, which, incidentally are giving a livelihood to thousands of men, or are you going to see those mountains reaching up to touch the sky?"

Tears gleamed in my eyes. I reached out and touched his hand. "I'm sorry for being such a pig," I said, "and I'm going to try hard to see the mountains, you bet. It's all in the viewpoint, as you've said, and I realize that it lies within one's self to like a place or loath it. So much depends on your attitude from the very first. Remember dearest, I'm going to try."

But in spite of Curtiss' fine philosophy, I was to find out that the days which followed were none too easy to bear.

It was the beginning of a new phase in my life. I had never accepted responsibility before. Curtiss had begun his work. He was making plans for a large mining sub-division which included individual houses for the men. We had been staying at the hotel but I knew it was my duty to find a house.

"I can't possibly live in an apartment," I confided to Curtiss. "I'd smother, dearest, and besides I'd hate hearing the neighbors spanking their babies and knowing, when the south wind blows what they are going to have for dinner that night."

He smiled sympathetically. "It would be hard for you at first, but I'll help you."

say that apartment-living is the most economical, perhaps you can find a small house—of the bungalow type."

"Oh, Curtiss, I couldn't possibly live in a one story house"

"And besides, I hate bungalows! They remind me of those horrible aprons you see advertised, and women in boudoir caps." There were tears in my voice.

"My little Sallie's got an awful lot to learn of Life." Was all Curtiss said and then he left me without another word.

I looked glumly out of the window and already I found it impractical to look for the mountains for once again I was focusing my attention on those abominable stacks.

DESIGNATION OF NEW HIGHWAY TO BE ASKED

A delegation of good roads boosters, headed by W. N. Ellis, vice-president for McCulloch county, and which included A. H. Broad, B. Simpson, H. S. Searley, A. B. Reagan and Curtis Norman, went to Brownwood Monday to attend the meeting of the executive committee of Highway No. 10 association. They report a great meeting and the great-est of enthusiasm developed. This was particularly the case because of the good work done by the McCulloch boosters in interesting the citizens of Edwards, Kimble and Val Verde counties in the project, and as a result of which Junction, Rockspring and Del Rio all had delegates at the meeting.

Representatives were there also from all counties along the highway to the north as far as Hood county, while the other counties at the northern end sent letters assuring their interest and co-operation.

The following very complete report of the meeting is reprinted from the Brownwood Bulletin:

Sixty enthusiastic delegates from towns along State Highway No. 10, from Sherman to Del Rio, met in the local Chamber of Commerce rooms at 3 p. m. Monday. This was the third meeting for the purpose of completing the organization of the State Highway No. 10 Association.

F. S. Abney of Brownwood, chairman of the association, presided. The minutes of the last meeting were read by G. D. Crabtree, secretary of the association. At the former meeting each county was requested to elect one member of the executive committee of the association. All the counties were represented, except Tarrant, Grayson and Denton counties. The secretary read letters from A. B. Spencer, manager of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce; G. R. Warren, secretary of Denton Chamber of Commerce, and Lee Simmons, secretary of Sherman Chamber of Commerce. These men expressed their regrets to the association that they could not attend the meeting, and assured those present that Tarrant, Denton and Grayson counties were strongly in favor of the proposed highway extension program.

Chairman Abney was instructed to appoint these men as members of the executive committee from their respective counties. Mr. Merrill, secretary of the Tolar Chamber of Commerce, asked that the association elect Frank Curl of Tolar as Hood county's member of the executive committee.

Judge W. F. Littleton of Del Rio, county judge of Val Verde county, made an enthusiastic talk, giving every assurance that his county was backing the proposed movement with all its resources.

Judge C. H. Gilmer of Rock-springs, county judge of Edwards county, stated that the people of Edwards county are anxious to see State Highway No. 10 become a reality.

Commissioner A. B. Hodges, Kimble county; C. P. St. Clair, Comanche county; and O. L. Talley, Erath county, pledged full support of their counties.

Chairman Abney introduced to the association Hilton Burks of Comanche, locating engineer for the State Highway Department of Texas. Mr. Burks outlined to the association some of the obstacles in the way of building the proposed highway. He cited the condition around Cresson, where four counties adjoin within a radius of two miles, and where the highway will of necessity pass through one disinterested county. Another similar case exists on the southern end of the route. Mr.

VITAL FACTS ON WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES

(By Thos. E. Pickerell)
At the end of the first year comes the cotton wedding anniversary. The wife realizes that her silk hose won't jibe with her husband's income, she gets some cotton hose. But does she

The second year is paper wedding. Husband's paper is overdue at the bank, so he pays off by giving more paper.

The third year is the leather anniversary. Father gets a nice leather strap (any old belt or razor strap will do) with which to impress Junior that he is to mind. Father starts early.

The tenth year is the tin wedding. They trade in their tin lizzie for a new one.

The fifteenth year is the crystal wedding, so they get a crystal radio set with four sets of ear phones.

The twentieth year is china wedding, so they see China. Mother declares that she never wants to miss any of those travelogue films.

The twenty-fifth year is the silver wedding. Along with silver in their hair, they realize that they have more silverware than silver.

The thirtieth year is the pearl wedding. Pearl spends Thanksgiving at home, and brings along a string of little Pearls.

The fortieth year is the ruby wedding. Ruby manages to get back to the old home from fer-off Honolulu. Ruby has always been considered a jewel.

The fiftieth year is the golden wedding. Ruby and Pearl, and Junior, now the oldest, begin to scheme to get father's gold and what silverware he mother have left. They find out that all is not gold that titters. This anniversary is also known as the gold-rush.

The seventy-fifth year is the diamond wedding. But who wants a diamond after waiting that long Crabtree read a letter from the attorney's general department stating that the Cresson difficulties had been overcome. The men along the southern route assured the association that the condition in their section could be easily met. Mr. Burks emphatically stressed the importance of building a real, first class, hard surfaced road, 80 feet wide all the way from Sherman to Del Rio. He said that the cost of such a road would be met by the notional, state and county governments. The Federal government would pay 50 per cent of the cost, the state 25 per cent, and the counties would pay the balance.

The secretary of the Del Rio Chamber of Commerce proposed that the association enlist the support of Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. This they will do, and several assured the association that Mr. Wade would do everything in his power to aid any move for the development of West Texas. After the regular meeting had adjourned, the executive committee met.

After a spirited discussion, the following motion was presented and carried: "The Executive committee go in a body before the State Highway commission and ask that the highway from Sherman to Del Rio, via Denton, Fort Worth, Granbury, Stephenville, Comanche, Brownwood, Brady, London, Junction and Rockspring be designated by the commission as State Highway No. 10."

It was decided that the name "Sherman-Del Rio International Highway No. 10."

The executive committee will go before the State Highway commission at its next regular meeting in Austin, September 13th.—Brady Standard.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By E. R. Waite)

Woodson Dixon, advertising
director of the Long Beach, (Calif.), Morning Sun, says:

That even in this age of radios, newspapers are more essential than ever before, as the public demands the news of today in print, not only for their own community, but the entire world as well, and no other source of information will ever be able to supplant their newspapers.

In every walk of life, daily happenings are discussed by old and young alike, and the arrival of the newspaper is the most important event in the majority of American homes. A newspaper can make or break an individual, and while it is impossible for any one paper to wreck
a city, they either build or retard the progress of the community they represent.

They mold public opinion and the prime motive of every newspaper should be to serve the community it represents.

Newspaper advertising is the Master Key which opens the purses of both the masses and class alike. It is the quickest and least expensive method to get your message to the public.
When an advertiser buys space in his daily newspaper, he is merely buying a frame for his picture. The business and Good Will created from that space is the deciding factor as to whether his advertising is an investment or an expense.

Illustrations are of vital importance for they will catch the eye and tell your story far better than printed words. Glance through your local newspaper and notice the methods your successful merchants use in their advertisements and you will have the "importance" of illustrations answered in a concrete form.

Some men claim they do not need newspaper advertisements.
They seem satisfied to drift along and allow their competitors to increase their business by advertising. Neither did Henry Ford need to advertise, but he took advantage of the opportunities advertising afforded and is continually building new factories to cash in on his investment in newspaper advertising.

Over sixty people at the

every available room, including sleeping porches, was filled. The other hotels are doing an excellent business too, and the tourist business is in its infancy,
if we are going to pull together and keep things going. We need more and better hotel facilities and more tourist camps,
and more camping facilities,
more farming, more poultry raisers, more vegetables and fruits, and we'll build a town twice the size of Junction two to five years from now.

Great Personages of the Bible

By
REV. LEONARD A. BARRETT

Mary

THE home life of Mary, Martha and Lazarus was ideal. A remarkable bond of affection knit their hearts together. Each lived and worked for the happiness and comfort of the other. The true spirit of "home" is possible only upon the basis of mutual sharefulness. When that spirit is absent one may possess a beautiful home in which he lives
but it is not likely to be a home.

In this wonderful home of the two sisters and their brother, Jesus is entertained. Martha taxes her ingenuity to the utmost in preparing a banquet in honor of their guest. It was Mary's way of expressing her love and loyalty. Mary expressed the same spirit of love and loyalty in a very different way. She sat at the feet of Jesus and talked with him very sympathetically regarding those interests in which Jesus was most concerned. When Martha complained that she had been left alone in her task of preparing the banquet, Jesus reminded her that Mary had chosen the better way of service. This was a commendation of Mary but not necessarily a rebuke to Martha. The explanation of this incident has been the subject of much controversy. Perhaps one way of arriving at a satisfactory explanation is to understand the different points of view of these two sisters. Martha felt that what Jesus needed most was that which would satisfy the physical, for he doubtless was very tired and hungry.
Mary, on the other hand, felt that what Jesus needed most was satisfaction and sympathy for the outreachings and sufferings of the heart.

At another banquet which occurred later in the career of Mary this same trait of her character is seen. The little home circle had been broken by the death of her brother Lazarus.
After his restoration to life, Jesus is again entertained in this same home.
The occasion is a celebration of Lazarus' return and an expression of the great gratitude of the two sisters.
After the banquet Mary took a box of very precious ointment, which she doubtless purchased out of savings which it took her a long time to accumulate, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair.

A study of the biography of Mary convinces one that she understood the Master. She knew what he needed most. It is the matter of being understood that eases one's pathway through many a difficult struggle.
Much of the pain and heartache of the world comes through misunderstandings. The following poem is significant:

If I knew you and you knew me,
If both of us could plainly see
With an inner sight divine
The meaning of your heart and mine,
I'm sure that we would differ less
And clasp our hands in friendliness,
Our thought would pleasantly agree,
If I knew you and you knew me.

If I knew you and you knew me
As each one knows his own self, for
"Could look each other" in the face
And see therein a truer grace,
Life has so many hidden woes,
So many thorns for every rose;
The "why" of things our hearts would see.

If I knew you and you knew me.

IMMORTALITY

The stars go down but to rise on a shore where the shadows never fall. They grow pale and disappear from earth,
but from the crown of immortality no ray of light can fade.
And so it is with all that is beautiful, pure and true. Flowers that fall at the approach of winter will bloom again in a brighter atmosphere. God rules the universe. He watches over time and space. Nothing that is good in His sight can pass into nothingness and be no more. Human aspiration and human disappointments ebb and flow like the tides of the sea.
Today we ride upon the crested wave and reach for the brightest bubbles that ambition holds to our yearning clasp.
Tomorrow on a desert shore we lie a stranded wreck and all is lost—unless it be that better part that God hath given us.
This can never die. Words may pass away, systems fall and suns flare in an endless night.
But no true heart—no pure deed can ever die. Every good thought ever uttered hath been written down by angel hands;
every noble impulse, every thrill of love that goes out to the poor and true is caught by seraphs watching over human hopes and fears. It may be dark along the thorny way of the desert gloom and all ambition's fondest dreams become skeletons that mock our emptiness in life. But gloom and doubt and sorrow cannot last. It won't be long until the signal light will shine out yonder through the dreary mists.
It won't be long until we shall pass from life's decline along that Jordan, where the storms shall cease to beat and dreary wrecks no longer float through shadows from forbidden ground upon a sea without a shore.
Yet no true heart, no pure soul shall pass that dark and dismay away alone. He who walked the waves of Galilee, who healed the sick and made the blind to see, who raised the dead to life, and conquered death and hell to save a lost and fallen world, will lend a helping hand.—Exchange.

"The Place Where You'll Always do Better"

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

"No more hell!" Hell is done away with; banished; snuffed out; never did exist; God is too good a God to send any one to hell. He would not be a just God to send to a place of punishment. There is another chance for a thousand years after you die to escape that place.

These are as false as hell itself. Yet these are common, every day expression that one hears. The reason for such expressions are that the ones that write and say such things are deep in sin; they want to get around the truth because their deeds are evil.

One can go to so-called religious meetings and hear that the hell of the Bible never was and neither did Christ teach a hell. Peculiar as it may seem, there are people who are seeking for every thing but the truth; even witness deaths that speak for the lives of those that have lived in sin and die in sin, and go to hell while in sin, and yet believe not the word of God in its teaching of some 234 verses of God's word, the New Testament alone, which warns, instructs, persuades and exhorts men about hell and eternal death. Much more is said in God's word about hell, eternal death and everlasting punishment, than is said about Heaven and everlasting life. The one who tries to deceive you about hell is the enemy of your soul and your soul enemy is your very worst enemy. Jesus said, "If you are not for me you are against me." "If you are not for my word you are against me." You had far better take His word about it than follow what you think or any man says, and thus risk yourself spending eternity in a lake of fire and brimstone, which is prepared for the devil and the unbelievers, whose-mung-e-r-s, liars, etc., shall have their part. You will spend it there, friend, without Jesus Christ as your personal Savior. Believe His word and ye shall be happy. J. A. Dekle.

More Miles per Gallon

Mean greater economy when we are thinking of automobiles. An engine may be economical or not, depending on how it is used and how it is cared for. This is equally true of your refrigerator. More refrigeration per pound of ice is obtained when the ice chamber is not less than two-thirds full of ice. In a good refrigerator this will produce a temperature of 40 to 50 degrees—the correct range for food preservation. It is more economical to maintain an even temperature and absolutely essential for your family's safety to keep the ice chamber well filled with ice.

He Brooks No Loss

If this be all, what wanton waste Of wares and worth and wage Has been the price of this poor show Upon life's changing stage! If this, the play, be for a day, And then the curtain fall, What grotesque jokes the jester, Hoax, Has played upon us all!

The scene is laid, and Birth and Death March hand in hand always; A fee is asked of Man and Maid, While Pay, the piper, plays; The aged go; the lights burn low, There is no curtain call; And in the aisle without a smile They pass the usher, Pall.

If this be all, what farce the plot, The price, the pain, the play! Why such a plan for mortal man For just a single day? Oh, list ye well: God brooks no loss In his eternal scheme: He'll lose no note of what He wrote In life's majestic theme.

Wants Sanitary Survey

New Braunfels is becoming an industrial center, but wants its industries so managed that they may not become a menace to public health. To avoid any such contingency that city is asking for a state sanitary survey. It would have observations made as to waste from industrial establishments reaching adjoining water courses, with a view to controlling stream pollution. It would also study the effect of having general recreation grounds in and around its water sources. In short New Braunfels welcomes industries and pleasures, but wants the mto conform to rules of public health determined from an authoritative source. New Braunfels seems to be doing the sensible thing for the protection of its citizens.

Abandons Free Tourist Camp

Wellington has tried the free tourist camp and finds it unsanitary. The park will, on that account, be abandoned. A few years ago almost every town established free camps to tempt tourists to stay awhile. Nearly all of these have found that tourists prefer protection and are willing to pay reasonably for it. Conditions around the free camps are seldom conducive to comfort or convenience. Such camps draw so many flivver hoboes that they are undesirable camping spots for the more desirable class of tourists. So, the insatiable free tourist park is fast giving place to the municipal or privately owned camp where reasonable prices are charged and some degree of comfort and protection is assured.

Touring Other States

The ereford Brand says that everybody and the family cat are taking vacations in Colorado, New Mexico or Yellowstone Park, and the Brand gives names to prove it. The Aust Chamber of Commerce finds that tourist travel from this part of Texas has turned largely to the mountain section of Texas—out beyond Kerrville and around Alpine and Fort Davis. Texans are becoming more and more interested in seeing Texas and they are learning that Texas affords scenery equal to that of the Rocky Mountain states. Another thing that is making West Texas more attractive is that the people out there are not yet depending on the tourist crop for their support, and outings may be taken at about half the cost of the Colorado-Yellowstone variety.

Pharr Votes Paving Bonds

Pharr doesn't seem to be much of a town when it comes to voting, but in public improvement matters it votes about solidly. Recently there were 29 votes cast on a proposal to issue $125,000 worth of bonds for street paving, with only one vote cast against the bonds. With the bond money 40 blocks of street paving will be done, which the Pharrites say will be more paving in proportion to population than any other Rio Grande Valley town will have. That proves that Pharr's population is progressive.

Too Many Watermelons

Evidently Texas produced too many watermelons this year, for the market was glutted everywhere and melons have been selling at much less than the cost of production. Better marketing organization would have resulted in some better prices, but there were just more melons grown than the people wanted to eat. Parker county, the most famous melon growing county in the State, especially suffered from the low prices. Crops that must be sold as soon as ready for market are hazardous as money crops, although often they are the most profitable crops to be grown. The only lesson that can be drawn from this is the old one, so often repeated, that in farming it does not pay to put all the eggs into one basket, which is not much consolation after the eggs are broken.

Election Predictions

For those who like human pre-election statements make good reading after the returns are all in. They interest one because of their apparent sincerity, despite the conflicting predictions. One candidate for Governor in the first primary assured the public that she at least would be in the run-off, but when the votes were counted she did not have one in five hundred. Another withdrew two days before the election because her health would not allow her to make a campaign. It is difficult for any candidate to win even though it may be evident to every one else. The crudity of the candidate is one of the most surprising things in politics.

Texas School Buildings

Regardless of the $11.50 per capita for public schools, many Texas schools, beginning this month, will be conducted in better buildings than before. These buildings have nearly all been provided through bond issues voted by the people, and in nearly every case the new buildings combine all the latest improvements known to school architecture. It has gotten so in Texas that communities almost everywhere are ashamed to have their schools conducted in uncomfortable and unsightly shacks.

Alto Wants Canning Factory

Alto, in Cherokee county, is making plans to build a canning factory of sufficient capacity to handle the excess vegetable and fruit crop. The tomato crop was largely lost this year because of the overcrowded market and lack of canning facilities. By another year that enterprising community hopes to be able to can any surplus that may be produced above the market demands. Texts is slowly learning that provision must be made for taking care of perishable products, and canneries are helping to solve the problem.

Editor Takes Vacation

Editor John E. Cooke of the Rockdale Reporter, in what he always pleased to call "matchless Milam" county, recently took two weeks vacation, which was typical of the vacation of most editors. That is, he wrote more copy and better copy while away from home on vacation than he usually writes when "at the job." The writing habit gets such a strong hold on editors like Cooke that they are not happy anywhere unless they can sit down and express opinions on the things about them. Editor Cooke has opinions, and they must find expression somehow.

Llano Granite Industry

The granite industry in Llano county has reached such proportions that W. B. Collins is using a page in the Llano News to tell about it. In doing so he is helping both the industry and the News. The best way to help a local industry grow is to boost it constantly, and the paper that does this is certain to boost itself. The newspaper that isn't ready to lend a helping hand in any worthy community enterprise doesn't deserve support, and such papers seldom receive it.

Press Reflects Community

There is no better evidence of the prosperity of a place than the improvement of the local paper. This statement was evoked by seeing the Dalhart Texan increased from a six column to a seven column paper. I knew at once that Dalhart is no longer a six column town, and the business announcements in the paper prove it conclusively.

Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hokekamp of Junction, Pete Crawford, Big Bend guide and one of the organizers of the hunting preserve recently established on Fowkes ranch in the Davis mountains, was present with two guests who are visiting in that section. Mr. Hokekamp made a few remarks, stating that he had always been under the impression that the country in which he lived was the prettiest part of Texas but since coming here he had changed his opinion. Several members of the chamber of commerce were called on by President Perkins for "short, snappy talks." Among those responding were Dr. Berkeley and President Morelock of Sul Ross.—Alpine Avalanche.

FOUR CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS

The Brownwood Bulletin gives the following very understandable explanation of the purpose of the four constitutional amendments to be voted on at the November election:

Texas people have established the precedent of defeating constitutional amendments as fast as they are submitted by the Legislature, but the Legislature, apparently, has not been discouraged. Four new amendments have been submitted for approval, and the people will pass judgment in the November election. Like most of the amendments that have been submitted and defeated in the past, the four before the electorate are worthy, although none of them is of unusual importance.

One amendment provides that school land owned by one county in another may be taxed by the county in which it is located. Not many counties would be affected by this amendment, but the few ought to have relief. In some of the West Texas counties there are large bodies of school lands the title to which is held by other counties, and these are exempt from taxation, although in some instances they represent a considerable portion of the actual wealth of the counties. This amendment ought to be adopted, for the relief of the few counties involved.

Another amendment provides that the Board of Prison Commissioners be abolished and a single executive substituted as the responsible head of the entire prison system. One commentator observes that nothing the people can do to the management of the prison system can make it much worse, and that, therefore, this amendment ought to be adopted. It seems to us that the management of the system is in an important sense a business problem, and it ought to be considered as such. A single responsible executive of the right kind should be able to handle the task better than a commission such as that now employed, because there would be less opportunity for a shifting of responsibilities—"passing the buck," not people call it—and more opportunity for the exercise of good business judgment without the restraint of political influences. This amendment ought to be adopted.

A third amendment provides that counties shall be given the power to create independent school districts, a power that is now held by the Legislature. This amendment ought to be adopted in order that counties may have a larger measure of control over their school affairs. It is not especially difficult to induce the Legislature to create special school districts, or to pass any other local measures, but it is inconvenient to have to secure such action and sometimes legislation of this sort may be secured or defeated by the efforts of a small minority of the citizenship who do not represent the true sentiments of the districts involved. The people of each district ought to exercise full control over their schools and this cannot be done so long as they are powerless to create independent districts as they may be needed.

The fourth amendment is for the benefit of the members of the National Guard. The proposal is to enable officers and enlisted men of the National Guard, and members of the Officers Reserve Corps, to hold public while not actually engaged in the performance of military duties. This amendment is designed to correct a provision that was absolutely necessary at the time the state constitution was written. Then Texas was overrun by federal army officers and enlisted men, many of whom sought control of governmental affairs and were able to secure it by reason of the support of the federal government. To keep negro bling up all the offices, the Constitution barred all of them. Now the provision is unfair to thousands of patriotic men who belong to the Guards and the Reserve corps, and it ought to be removed.

So it is seen that all four amendments are worthy of approval although none are of vital importance; and in all likelihood they will meet defeat as have most of the worthy amendments offered in recent years, including a few that were of great importance to the state and its people. Texas people do not seriously object to the election of a scalawag as a high state official, but they have an idea that the constitution is a sacred sort of instrument; and they guard it jealously with their votes.

"The Mildest Manner'd Man That Ever Cut a Throat"

WHEN in 1896 William Kidd set forth from England with a royal warrant to hunt down certain "wicked and ill-disposed pirates," one of those specifically mentioned was a certain Capt. Thomas Tew or Too, a native of Rhode Island whose headquarters were on Madagascar. Captain Tew had originally sailed from the Barbados with Captain Dew under a privateering commission, but Tew and his men turned pirate and sailed to the Red sea.

Here he met a ship engaged in the Indian trade and found her a rich prize so that each of his men received 3,000 pounds sterling as his share of the loot. Then they returned to Madagascar, the lair of pirates in the Orient, and Captain Tew's position with these gentry was firmly established. At one time he joined with the famous French pirate, Misson, originator of "piracy-without-tears" at his Utopian city of Libertatia, but a quarrel between the French and English pirates threatened to wreck that peaceful republic.

A duel was arranged between the two leaders but it was averted by another pirate leader, an Italian, and the trouble was settled by Tew being appointed admiral and the diplomatic Italian, secretary of state.

Misson's Utopian colony finally broke up and the French leader and Captain Tew went their separate ways. Tew returned to Rhode Island, where he settled down for awhile and engaged in honest shipping enterprises. But the call of the sea and the lure of "going on account" was too much for him to resist and in a short time he consented to take a pirate ship to the Red sea.

Arriving there, Tew attacked a big ship belonging to the Great Mogul and in the desperate battle which followed he was mortally wounded. An old historian tells with gruesome detail of the wounding of the pirate leader and how, almost disemboweled, he kept up the fight as long as he was able to stand. Then, when he dropped, his men surrendered forthwith.

Thus did this famous pirate cheat the gallows in Execution dock, but he left behind him a name for courage and a certain degree of decency which is strongly in contrast to the careers of so many pirates of his day. To him might well have been applied Byron's famous characterization, "He was the mildest manner'd man that ever sullied ship or cut a throat."

Congratulations to the War Veteran Who Drove a Star

Some stunt it was for H. C. Wright, a World War veteran, with both legs off, just below the knees, to drive a STAR Car 14,000 miles across the country from New York to San Francisco, over every kind of road condition, in a car purchased in July.

This man's trip is unusual, because he was compelled to make the entire trip in high gear, as he was unable to shift gears. He crossed mountains, plains and desert sands with equal ease—over burning desert sands, through snow-drifts automobile high, and through mud axle deep, without a leg to shift gears—that's the stunt Wright pulled in a STAR FOUR.

Mr. Wright says: "The STAR Car is the only car with the high gear power which my legless condition demands," after being congratulated by officials of Durant Motors, makers of STAR Cars.

MORE POWER IS ONE REASON FOR THE GROWING POPULARITY OF THE STAR CARS. ASK US ABOUT OTHER REASONS

Quality Speaks for Itself

AND SAYS:—

One of the compensations of doing good work is that you get more work to do. It's really a thrill to spend our last ounce of energy to serve and please you. If we fail, it's our own weakness; but we are not attempting the impossible; our high quality products assures you satisfaction; the art of our display excites your appetite; the sanitary methods of our dispensing protect and safe-guard your health; the cultivation of the habit of thrift, saves us from the poor house; don't buy more than your needs require; save the difference. Our "neat as a pin" market, combined with our quality and snappy service, with a smile, and our guarantee of satisfaction, makes serving you a real pleasure.

GUEST HONORED

Mrs. E. Holekamp entertained Friday afternoon at home with a bridge party of attractive appointment, given in compliment to her daughter, Mrs. S. L. Chamberlain, of Galveston.

A color scheme of white and lavender was featured in decorations and game accessories.

Those who were awarded prizes for success in score were Mesdames C. R. Stevenon, Sayers Farmer, Watt Turner, Pierce Hoggett and Miss Tottie Martin. Mrs. Nancy Patterson was consoled with a little trophy, while the guest of honor was presented a pretty ivory tray.

Ice cream and cake was served to four tables of players.

EVERYBODY IS GOING TO BE INTERESTED.

An extra-ordinary announcement will be made by the Hamner Store next week. Watch for it; prepare yourself.

Uncle John Kountz presented The Eagle force with some fine roasting ears last week, which were raised on his farm just south of town. This June corn was planted after the first of June and will mature well.

When you think of cleaning, pressing, altering or repairing, think of Boyett's Quick Service Tailor Shop. Clothes called for and delivered, and work done right.

CARD OF THANKS

It is my desire to sincerely thank all those who so faithfully and unselfishly supported me in the recent run-off primary for Treasurer. While I was not successful in securing the nomination, I feel well repaid for the effort made, and know that I made many friends, both among those who supported me and those who did not, and have no regrets and no ill will towards anyone.

Again thanking you, and assuring you of my deep appreciation and my desire to serve you at any opportunity in the future, I am

Very truly,
Guthrie Williams.

If ideas of health and triumphant achievement are brought into consciousness, we at the same time experience a state of energy, a feeling of courage and capability and joy and a stimulation of all the bodily processes.—Warren Hill-ton.

FINE CAKES

As soon as eggs are reasonably plentiful we will enjoy a sponge cake occasionally.

Golden Sponge Cake.

Beat seven egg yolks with a Dover egg beater until very light. Add one cupful of sugar a little at a time, still continuing to beat (use a wire beater), add one-half cupful of boiling water alternately with one cupful of pastry flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt—sift three times. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla, pour into a greased and floured tube pan. Bake for fifty minutes in a slow oven.

Maple Nut Cake.—Cream one-half cupful of butter, add one-half cupful of sugar gradually, then add two egg yolks well beaten, and one cupful of maple syrup. Add the dry ingredients which have been sifted together twice, two and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour, four of a teaspoonful of cinnamon, two and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. All sifted twice. Beat thoroughly and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a well-greased and floured tube pan and bake for forty-five minutes. Cover the cake with maple icing and decorate with halves of walnut or pecan nuts over the top and sides.

Pecan Cake.—Cream three-fourths of a cupful, add one cupful of sugar gradually; beat three egg yolks and add to the cream; sugar and butter, then add one-half cupful of molasses. Sift two cupfuls of pastry flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt; add to the above mixture alternately with one-half cupful of grape-nuts. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Chop slightly one pound each of seeded raisins and pecans, add one-half cupful of candied orange peel cut fine. Do not beat, pour into a tube pan lined with greased paper and bake for three hours in a slow oven.

FORMER KIMBLE WOMAN DIES IN PARKER CANYON.

Mrs. Mary A. Jones, former Kimble County citizen, died at her home in Parker Canyon, Arizona, August 12, 1926.

She was the wife of Jim Ike Jones, and she has crossed the stream which intervenes between this life and that which is to come.

She had been in ill health for several months, yet she bore all suffering with uncompromising patience.

She was born in Arkansas in 1857; came to Bandera, Texas at an early age, and was wedded to J. I. Jones of that place.

Five children blessed this union; three daughters and two sons. The daughters passed on before the mother, to the Great Beyond.

While leaving loved ones on earth, she is being welcomed there by dear ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones moved to Kimble County in 1877, and with other pioneers, labored for the establishment of law and order and the advancement of every interest of the county. They moved from here to New Mexico, and from there to Arizona, where they have made their home for several years.

Mrs. Jones was a sister to the late F. A. and S. H. Weaver of Rocksprings.

Her remains were placed in the cemetery at Patagonia, Arizona.

How to Get There

An Englishman, who was far off his course and confused about his next directions, asked an Irishman, cutting short in the wilds of Connemara, how to get to Letterfrack. The Irishman labored over the directions, so intricate and roundabout were the roads, until, having done his best, he added this: "If it was meself that was going to Letterfrack, faith, I wouldn't start from here."—New Outlook.

Hot Lead Experiment

A hand, if moist, can be safely dipped into molten lead at a temperature of 400 degrees above that of boiling water. The vapor surrounding the hand will protect it if it is not held in the lead too long.

Seed Requires Care

All commercial seed used in sugar-beet cultivation for the production of sugar is grown from "mother seed," which is carefully propagated from year to year at seed-producing stations under the control of scientists trained in this special branch of the work.

Rivers Divide States

The Missouri river in South Dakota; Columbia in Oregon; Snake in Idaho; Rio Grande in New Mexico; Platte in Nebraska; Arkansas river in Arkansas; Missouri river in Missouri; Des Moines in Iowa, and Red river in Louisiana run completely through their states, dividing them.

"Wild" Indians Passing

There are not today in North America any wild tribes of Indians. In parts of South America, notably the forest regions of the Amazon, there are tribes of Indians which have not yet reached any degree of civilization.

The Ford car is a better car today, in both workmanship and materials, than ever before in its history. Here are a few of the reasons why:

For 22 years the Ford car has been constantly improved in workmanship and materials. For 22 years it has been a leader in the automobile world in price, design and quality, and it is today (and the greatest industrial organization on earth will continue to make it) the most economically operated and altogether and by far the best value—a car supreme in its class.

BUY A FORD AND SAVE THE DIFFERENCE!

Fordor Sedan — Tudor — Coupe — Tourer — Roadster
$635.87 — $584.67 — $574.43 — $460.73 — $440.25

In this country where cars are put to the supreme test over all kinds of roads, steep hills, river crossings and where they are used for every conceivable purpose, Fords stand the test, day in and day out. Fords are given the hardest treatment, yet those who have them know their value, the low upkeep and low depreciation, and half the new cars sold are Fords.

Give your Ford the same consideration and care that you would give any other car and you will get many more years of service.
