County Agent Joe Cowan says there is quite a bit of interest among farmers of the county in reopening the cheese plant here.

Since the cheese plant ceased operating farmers have had no market for their milk, except those who produce Grade A.

We do not know whether there is enough milk available at this time to justify reopening the plant but it probably will not be too long before there will be and it behooves the Loraine-Co-operative Association to be ready to buy it when the time comes.

We have no information as to when the annual meeting of stockholders of the association will be held this year but it occurs to us that a questionnaire sent to all stockholders, former producers of milk, inquiring as to the possibility of reopening the plant would be a good idea. The information from them could be reported to the annual meeting so that a clear picture of what the stockholders want may be had.

If you want the cheese plant to reopen how about letting the management know about it, and how much milk you can sell to the plant.

Sportsman Club Organized In County

Colorado City, March 15—At a meeting last Friday night in the county court room some 60 men organized a Mitchell County Sportsman Club.

District Attorney Eldon Mahon presided over the meeting until the group voted to elect officers and get the organization functioning officially. A nominating committee was appointed by Mahon, consisting of A. W. Hubbard, Jeff Taylor and L. J. Taylor. The committee reported back after selecting nominees for a president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer and five directors. Nominated for president was Newby Pratt; vice president Pete Warren; secretary-treasurer, Oren Feaster; and the five directors nominated were Pete Pickens, M. O. Hardegree, Ralph Lee, Leonard Henderson, Dr. R. D. Bridgford. The nominees reported by the committee were accepted and elected by acclamation.

President Pratt took over and began discussions and plans for the necessary eradication of undesirable fish in the creek. A committee was appointed to handle this project and the program was outlined with the Sportsman Club voting to employ Latin Americans to work with the state game warden in destroying these fish. It was decided that the entire eradication program would take approximately four days.

Further business taken up was the program for the organization, with the organization voting to set the first years dues at $5.00, and instituting a county wide membership drive, collecting the dues so that the eradication and necessary legislative programs can be financed.

District Attorney Eldon Mahon is working with the board of directors drawing up sufficient constitutions and by-laws so that the organization may submit requesting legislation to the state legislature during the current session. The principal laws to be requested for the county will protect the fish and game activities within the county and also restrict out-of-county businessmen from taking advantage of a $200,000 minnow industry.

Applications for charter membership will be accepted throughout this week and until 8:00 p. m. Tuesday night, when a chapter membership meeting will take place in the county court room. The membership to date is well over 100, and an attempt is being made to have at least 300 members signed up by 8:00 o'clock Tuesday night, March 22.

Firm to strong livestock and poultry markets partly offset dull to weaker trends on most other southwest farm products during the past week, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration reports.

Most sheep and goats registered net gains of 50 cents to $1 for the week. Good and choice grades with No. 3 pelts made $24 to $24.75 at Fort Worth.

Fort Worth sent stocker cows back to the country at $17 to $20. Hogs recorded only slight up and down variations from a week ago in the southwest. Top hunchers sold Monday at $21 at Fort Worth. Sows ranged generally from $15.50 to $17.50. Good and choice pigs brought $19 at the Texas markets.

Southwest poultry markets strengthened during the past week, and eggs held steady. Heavy hens ranged from 30 to 35 cents a pound in North Texas. Fryers brought 30 to 32 cents at Dallas and Fort Worth.

Wheat showed a net decline for the week of around 7 cents a bushel, white corn 5, yellow corn 4, barley 3, oats 2, and sorghums 2 cents per hundred pounds.

Cotton lost 75 cents to $1 a bale. Spot middling 1516 inch closed Monday at 32.50 cents a pound at Dallas.

Loraine Has Own Cow Story

The recent newspaper story about the cow in the silo which held the interest of readers far and wide, reminds us to quote the following story told in a 1935 copy of The Mitchell County News: "A cow, belonging to William Prescott, that was grazing back of the buildings on Main Street decided to take a look at things inside and sauntered in the back door of the Loraine Mercantile, looked at herself in a large mirror then leisurely walked on through the store and out the front door."

"Tom Bennett, manager of the store, tried to drive her back out the back door but she didn't want to go out that way, so he and the owner of the cow stood holding their breath until she made her way out the front without doing any damage."

Miss Maggie Jeter opened the first beauty shop in Loraine in 1933.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Truman Threatens to Take Battle On Legislative Program to People; MacArthur Sees No Russian Attack

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

TRUMAN: All Aboard!

President Truman, who obviously regards himself as the "man with a mandate," was tossing some not too subtle threats toward congressmen in his legislative proposals.

Keep fooling with me, he said, in effect, and I'll hit the old stump again—and you know what that means.

The President meant that if congress didn't get about soon enacting into law the pledges he made to the people during the November campaign, he'd hit the trail again and take the issue to the people—the way Franklin D. Roosevelt used to do.

MR. TRUMAN apparently felt that by so doing he could whip public sentiment up to such a pitch that congress would be forced to go along with his program, or else face possible defeat in the 1950 elections.

Not having the vocal equipment of his predecessor, who could get desired results with his "fireside chats," Mr. Truman would have to climb aboard a train if he wanted to influence the masses.

Strangely enough, congress didn't seem unduly perturbed at the President's threat. Things went along in congressional procedure about as usual, with Republicans charging that the 81st congress is also a "do nothing" congress, while Democratic members were inviting comparison with the "do nothing" 80th congress.

IT WAS READILY evident that Mr. Truman was needed by lack of congressional action on his program. Reiterating his campaign pledges of last fall, in which he declared the central issue was the "welfare of all the people," Mr. Truman asserted that lobbyists, pressure groups, and controlled editorial pages, columnists and commentators were offering determined opposition to his legislative program.

"All we have on our side," he said, "is the people."

Pointing out that he found on his campaign tour that the people of the nation are concerned about their government, Mr. Truman termed that concern a "fine thing." "I propose to do all I can to help it along," he added. Then he hurled the threat: "In fact, I may even get on the train again and make another tour around the country to tell the people how their government is getting on."

INFLATION: Has Two Faces

Observers purportedly on the "inside" of things in Washington regard approval of the congressional committee on the economic report—Mr. Truman's proposal for controls to ward off inflation—as lip service only and argue that none of the committee expect the proposal to win congressional favor.

It was said the favorable committee report was made only to "save face" for the President as he seeks to implement the pledges he made in his election campaign.

THE COMMITTEE vote, which will send the measure to the floor of congress, was 7 to 4 for approval, and that came only after the proposals of the President had been toned down.

Critics of the Truman plan say it poses the unique theory that the country is in the midst of an inflation and deflation period at the same time—a condition admittedly difficult of comprehension.

They assert, too, that it would give dangerous controls to the President at a time when they actually are not needed.

One commentator observed that if any members of the committee considering the proposal had had any idea it would be enacted by the congress, it would have been killed completely before it ever got to the floor of the house or senate.

JAPAN: Reds Answered

The Russians had an answer to what would happen if they ever moved on Japan.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in a special interview, declared that he did not expect any attack upon Japan by the Russians, but if that occurred, "we," meaning the United States, "should certainly defend her."

THE ENTIRE IDEA of a Russian attack on Japan is a red herring.

DENTURES: Save Life

Inault, St. Marie, Ontario, George Hatfield put the barrel of a .22 calibre rifle in his mouth, and pulled the trigger.

The bullet ran around the inside of his false teeth, came out his mouth.

Dr. J. E. Grimby, who treated Hatfield for a cut tongue, said the man was alive because:

The bullet was 10 years old.

The false teeth were in the way.

IF PRESIDENT FELL THROUGH FLOOR . . .

There'd Be Re-Joisting in the White House

THE WORLD WOULD STAND AGHAST

H. I. PHILLIPS

TRUMAN AND THE TUB

President Truman, in explaining the probable cost of around five million dollars to repair the White House, declared—"My bathroom sagged so that I had begun to fear it would go through the floor."

We can't see why the President was alarmed. He would have been the first president ever to have fallen from one floor to another in his bath; it would have made history.

For a century there might have been signs in the White House: "President Harry S. Truman, 32nd President of the United States, Landed Here" or

"On This Spot Harry S. Truman Made the First Crash Landing Ever Made in a White House Bathtub, Gilder Type."

Had Harry kept his mouth shut, let the building deteriorate and bravely crashed through the floor in his tub, it might have been far from a calamity so far as his fortunes are concerned. People love the dramatic these days. They crave entertainment and action as never before. There on the ground-floor in his second-floor bathtub amid the rubble, his head unbowed, he would have won a new grip on the public. The picture might have taken a place beside Washington and the Delaware in water exploits. We can imagine some painter glorifying it with an oil entitled, "Truman Crossing the Dilapidated Beams."

The accident would have given the people a new appreciation of what a president has to go through. It would have kindled a mood of warm sympathy and understanding. What man has ever stepped into a bathtub without at least a fleeting fear of an accident? And how many have known what it is to take a tumble in one? Can you fancy their feelings for a President who had stepped into a tub . . . powl . . . gone down a flight or two!

This is an era of rumor, gossip and suspicion; the story would have spread that the Republicans had undermined the timbers, and this would have increased pity for the President. From coast to coast, across mountains and valleys, over brooks and rivers, from log cabin to mansion the one cry would have gone up: "How's Harry?" The world would have awaited breathlessly the hourly bulletins from the White House:

10 A.M.—The White House morning statement read: "The President is doing well, but still suffering from his own amazement."

Noon—The President is resting. His face is not so red by 10 degrees as was after the mishap.

1 P.M.—Mrs. Truman was allowed to visit the President this afternoon. She asked him simply, "It seems mighty funny to me that you and the tub went down two flights, but your bathrobe remained on the hook upstairs!"

2 P.M.—President Truman got a telegram from Thomas E. Dewey. It read: "I join the bathtub users of America in my deepest gratitude that you piloted the tub to a safe landing and I sincerely hope you will soon be bathing again in the happiness and security which you have a right to expect from our country."

3 P.M.—Henry Wallace was asked to comment on the President's bathtub accident and replied: "It was too far away for me to know the exact facts. All I know is that you hear of nothing like that happening in Russia."

5 P.M.—The doctors said they would permit the President to be interviewed by radio and television. "I only regret," Mr. Truman said, "that I have but one ceiling to give for my country."

A New Jersey court has ruled that a night watchman sleeping on the premises is entitled to overtime if awake during his sleeping hours. If he sleeps during his waking hours, does the boss get a refund?

We just heard of a fellow who, needing rest and quiet, was ordered by his doctor to spend six months in Wall street.

Wins Film Award

Virginia Wave, Cathedral films' star, receives the annual award as the best actress of religious films from the American association of religious film distributors for her work in the film, "Simon Peter, Fisherman," in which she portrayed Concordia.

an attack on Japan held a bizarre aspect. With the U.S. as chief occupation force, how could the Soviets launch an attack of the Japanese without, in effect, making war on the United States?

But, General MacArthur evidently held the subject serious enough to comment about it.

"In case of another war, we do not want Japan to fight," MacArthur said. "Japan's role is to be the Switzerland of the Pacific," he explained.

THEN HE MADE a telling point in speculation of a Russian attack on Japan:

"Even if the Soviet government had aggressive intentions toward Japan, Russia would be incapable of carrying them out unless she could secure mastery of the air and either had a far Eastern fleet of her own or possessed the means of neutralizing any action by our fleet."

"Russia could not obtain air predominance," he went on. "On Okinawa I had constructed at the end of the war 25 airfields with the capacity to dispatch B-29's, then our largest bombers, on 3,500 missions a day. The whole of eastern Asia from Singapore to Vladivostok would lie within range of those machines."

HE DID NOT point out that with development of the bombing arm of the air force since the war, even farther distances for bombing purposes could be covered by present-day missile carriers.

Of the function of Japan in the American strategy of defense, MacArthur said:

"We never intended to use Japan as an ally. All we want her to do is remain neutral."

UNIVERSE: No Limits?

Since the first man lifted his head and gazed in puzzled awe at a star-studded sky, mankind has been trying to discover the secrets of the universe.

To that end, the huge, 200-inch Palomar mountain telescope was built and put into operation.

But the telescope's first contribution to the sum of man's knowledge of the universe served only to deepen the mystery.

Astronomers using it found that there is no outer edge to the universe of stars, and the look they took was twice as far as man has ever looked before.

The astronomers got some pictures of nebulae a billion light-years distant and spaced about a million light-years apart. Each one is a world of stars, like the Milky Way. The star worlds are about uniformly spread up to the previous limits of sight, about a half-billion light-years.

THE NEXT STUDY will be to find whether there is any thinning of the celestial families as sight is extended outward.

One stunning fact the discovery brought home was that there is more than one star for every human being who ever lived. Nearly every star family, or nebula, contains more than a hundred million individual stars.

Now it is science concurring in the psalm: "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork."

Phone Aid Advances

A house subcommittee has approved a bill to let the government make loans for a vast expansion of telephone service to farm areas.

The unanimous action came after the committee had adopted amendments aimed at protecting existing telephone companies and encouraging the development of rural telephones by private industry.

The bill authorizes REA to make 25-year loans at 3 per cent interest.

The Mosaic by Grace Noll Crowell. A beautiful mosaic, a bouquet of jewels set in gold, an offering to place within God's hands when life is done. Each little priceless jewel, one by one, in a design that life itself has made. And God will note the lovely inset gems. Will mark the glowing rubies that are prayers. The amethysts of patience, the clear gems of jade, where courage has outlived despair. The diamonds that are faith, the opal light of hope that shone across the darkest days. And surely He will take that little bright Mosaic to His heart with words of praise.

STAR DUST Robert Taylor Stars in Western By INEZ GERHARD

ACCORDING to a poll taken among allied exhibitors, there never has been a first class western that has been a box-office failure. Even the cheap quickies make money in some localities. Next on the moneymaking list come outdoor pictures, in which action is more important than dialogue. Those spectacular musicals are fourth on the list. Indicative of what we can expect comes Metro's announcement that they will make three westerns, the first, now under way, being "Devil's Doorway," starring Robert Taylor, just back from Europe. The other two are "The Outriders" and "Ambush." No stars have been announced for them as yet, but no doubt they'll be big ones. Hedy Lamarr also is headed for a western. Paramount has her slated for "Copper Canyon," with Ray Milland and MacDonald Carey. At the same studio Burt Lancaster gets another of those tough roles that he'd like to abandon. He'll be a hard-shelled gambler in "No Escape." But first he plans to make "William Tell" as an independent production, in Italy.

Twenty-five hundred head of cattle were used for the stampeding scene in Allied Artists' "Stampede." Red Cameron, starring, said "When I watched those stamping scenes it seemed there was nothing for miles but howling Texas steers."

George Burns had bitter arguments with his laundry over the disappearance of some of his best shirts—then found that his daughter Sandra was wearing them to school, with the shirt-tails, outside her skirt, dangling ankle-length.

The FICTION Corner

WHILE a vast throng of theatergoers passed through the exits of the Orpheum, the beautiful blonde attraction left quietly by the stage door on the arm of her most ardent admirer, the owner of the theatre and string of others. At the curb stood Max Berber's limousine, and just ahead of it, a taxi. Four maudlin "Collegians" having a sing-song, obstructed the entrance to Berber's car, but made way while the lady stepped in. Then suddenly three of them gave Berber the bum's rush, while the fourth clambered in beside Paula Pauleen, tap dancer extraordinary. Max spluttered and fumed while the three kidded him. A letter was pressed into his clenching fist and his car keys were frisked from him. The taxi jumped forward, and in a moment was followed by the limousine carrying the dancer and four members of the notorious Scarlet Gang in evening clothes and top hats, still simulating drunken collegians, singing to drown out the cries of the distressed dancer. In the Holland Tunnel, the sing-song ceased and one of the gang said to the girl: "This is something new in kidnap, sister. We're all jolly good fellows, members of a theatrical troupe (to the general public). But don't get us wrong. We'd rub you out as quick as any Broadway mug if you failed for a minute to join the spirit of our little game. Your big boy has just read our demands in a note left with him."

3-Minute Fiction

"I'll—I'll pay you," chattered the little dancer. "Please—my contract. I must dance every night."

THE CAR sped along for thirty miles and turned into a narrow road. License plates were switched and another fifty miles sped by. They stopped road village and parked on a side street. They copped for peak caps and entered the railroad station.

"Oh, you're the troupe from the opery house," grinned the operator. "Thought there was two girls in the party."

"One of us is a female impersonator, haw! haw!" laughed the spokesman. The operator laughed too, and began stamping the tickets. "Train's out due for thirty minutes yet," he apologized.

"O.K. brother, we'll put on a little show while we're waiting." He strode over to Paula. "Smile, sister, SMILE," he hissed, and cut loud. "Come on, Sally Band, give the gentleman your best imitation of a fan dance."

Paula was ready to faint but entered into the game by dancing a whirling fan number that had the operator's eyes popping. Some slighting followed and a bottle was

DANCING SHOES By CHARLES DORIAN

"Now, another dance," ordered the master of ceremonies. "Just a slow one," pleaded Paula. "I'm very tired."

"Oh, all right," yawned the fellow. She made a long slow stride straight to the operator and whispered "Listen!" Then she performed a painfully punctuated dance with more body undulations than footwork.

The bottle passed around again and the operator went to his key, took an order, sent one, and in a few minutes the train was in. They boarded it.

Sargo was a small city. A taxi was ready waiting for them and whisked them out into the country where they got out in front of a big house.

"Every shadow exuded a police officer. Eight of them had plinked the four "collegians" before the door opened, and two more seized the servant.

Paula promptly fainted. Two officers carried her to safety.

"This house has been under suspicion for a long time," said an officer to Paula. "When that operator's message mentioned 'Sargo' we posted a squad at the house. Here's the car now which followed their taxi from the depot."

Oh, yes, Paula's dad had been a station agent and had taught her to tap dance the Morse code.

WOMAN'S WORLD

New Window Curtains Give Crisp Look

By Ertia Haley

JUST BEFORE the warmer weather makes its appearance, many a woman is apt to take a good look at her windows. The curtains look very dirty and sleazy after a winter's beating. If you're certain they won't stand another laundering session, then get out the tape measure and sewing machine. It's time to make new window dressings!

Glass curtains are among the easiest items that can be made at home. Most of them require only long stretches of straight seams. There's no fancy stitching or cutting, no elaborate patterns, and hardly ever any ripping if you follow the simplest rules.

Soft, full gathers will make the simplest materials exquisite when they're made into curtains. First, measure the windows as to height and width. The curtain material should be purchased twice as wide as the window. You'll need at least two inches at both top and bottom for seam allowances, and from two to four inches for a shrinkage tuck, so add at least eight inches to window measurements on the length.

Net, marquisette, scrim, sheer rayon or nylon are all used for glass curtains. A good quality, firmly woven material will give you the most satisfaction and most wear and is well worth the few cents more a yard which it costs.

No Purse Problem

You need never again worry about what to do with your purse when dining out, if you have one of these smart purse holderettes. These inexpensive gadgets are small and compact; they fit into your bag when not in use, and will help you avoid uncomfortable juggling of the purse on the lap or trying to find a place on the table or floor for the bag. They may also be used for holding umbrellas or packages.

Use Stiffening At Heading

If you like transparent curtains to hang properly, it's best to use some stiffening at the heading of the curtain. Usually three inches or slightly more is best. Firm crinolene or buckram are fabrics which are best.

In measuring the turning necessary for the heading, decide first on the depth of the pleat, then turn the top edge in two inches more than this measure. Allow a double turn so the buckram will not show.

When measuring the buckram, measure two inches from the edge, because the top stiffening should not extend to the outside hem of French-pleated curtains.

It's also possible to use washable buckram banding made with eyelets to form the French pleats. No rings are needed. The curtain pole is slipped right through the eyelets, thus giving the necessary pleat.

If you are putting in the shrinkage tuck of two to four inches, put this in at the top in a narrow heading above the casing. Or, to avoid the shrinkage tuck, wash the curtain material before sewing, and it will shrink as much as it is going to, and no allowance need be made.

Measure windows carefully...

It's very important to buy good material if you live in a community that's dirty or smoky, because then curtains will have to withstand frequent washing.

Have Edges Straight For Good Appearance

Because curtains are so large, it is best to cut them on the floor where you'll have enough space to spread them out. If you place the curtain material on a rug, the fabric adheres to the rug and you

THE GARDEN SPOT Beware of Over-Cultivation

By Eldred E. Green

"TAKE IT EASY. You'll live longer," is a common saying and in the garden you will enjoy yourself more if you apply that principle. The most pathetic garden is the one that started out early in the spring as a grand affair and then faded out as the hot weather caused the worker to "dune run out of ambition" as one lady put it.

The first factor in soil preparation. A clay, loam or any stiff soil is benefited by a turning to loosen it up. Flaming, spading, or rotary tilling will do the job. In hand spading remember that you do not plant all the garden at once. Dig it as you need it. This will save backaches and keep a crop of weeds from starting on the soil that is turned to long ahead. Sandy or light soils may need only a raking to fit them for planting. The soil needs to be looser; that is all. In planting large perennials as peonies or trees and shrubs, the soil need only be prepared where the plants are to be set. The area in between can be taken care of later. Heavy soils will be aided if rotted humus of some kind is worked in. Leaves, old sawdust, manure, peat, compost are all valuable. This can be mixed in when the soil is prepared. Generally a depth of eight inches is enough for most plants. Trees and large shrubs may need more.

Cultivation in the garden should be limited to one idea: killing weeds. In lawns and around shrubs the new preparations of 2,4-D are fine; in the garden a light hoeing or scuffing of the soil is generally sufficient.

Watering is a chore unless a hose is able to reach. Watering and weeding can be kept to a minimum or eliminated if a good mulch is used. Dried leaves, grass clippings, straw, old manure, sawdust or strips of heavy, weighed paper can be used to cover the soil between plants or around larger ones. The mulch prevents weeds from taking hold and keeps the soil from drying out.

Fertilizing may seem difficult but in the home garden a sack of a complete plant food is the best and cheapest way of adding fertility. Manure is excellent if it can be obtained and worked into the soil. Testing for individual elements may be a pleasant pastime but the amount of special chemicals needed in most can be more easily added in a ready-mixed, balanced formula.

Pests may cause trouble but now there are many preparations that will control all of the garden pests with one spray. These combination products have been supplemented to good advantage by DDT, which most of them contain.

U. S. Filming Old Documents

Microfilm to Preserve Records for Posterity

A campaign to save part of the world's cultural heritage is being carried on by the United States library of congress.

A library of congress laboratory in Mexico City, Mexico, has photographed 20,000 historical documents of northern Mexico. The library operates a second laboratory in Japan. A third project, still in the planning stage, is photographing medieval manuscripts of value in St. Catherine's monastery in Palestine.

George T. Smisor, head of the Mexico laboratory unit, recently returned from Washington where he conferred with library of congress officials.

"Both the state department and the library," said Smisor, "feel a responsibility for cooperating to preserve documents throughout the world, documents that are a part of our heritage and part of our culture."

"The United States is the only country in the world with the experience and the desire to do it."

The desire entails plenty of hard work. Men from Smisor's unit have ridden muleback across Mexico's bleak Sierras to photograph precious manuscripts in old colonial towns. They have, to date, put on film the complete cabildos (records of city councils) for Durango from the 16th century to the time of Benito Juarez, the middle 19th century. Durango was a big operating base for the early church fathers.

Be Smart!

This season silk prints are really back, for the first time, in substantial quality and quantity. You'll see them now as one of the favorites for resort wear: very classic as to lines, extremely brief as to sleeves and pleasing as to pattern. Polka dots will continue their popularity, and prints are innumerable. New and refreshing are the small scale patterns, often so conventionalized or stylized that they are entirely new looking. The lovely hand of silk makes it possible to give these new classics many original collar interpretations, and most of them are low-cut.

MIRROR of your MIND Loving Helps Understanding

Does loving a person help you understand him?

Answer: Being "in love" is more apt to have the opposite effect, for it makes you want so desperately to believe the person whom you love is your "ideal" that you're likely to endow him with whatever qualities that implies, whether he shows any actual traces of them or not. But with someone you have loved a long time and are sure of, you may well see virtues or abilities which no one else has noticed and which might never have been developed but for the encouragement you gave them. Such love makes your ideal come true.

KATHLEEN NORRIS Exaggerated Self-Pity Is Poison

destiny it is to complicate further rather than help straighten out this enigma that is life.

Some 40,000 of us die in auto crashes every year, so that detail didn't particularly distinguish these little sisters. Terrible, but it's the truth. And as for a pretty mother, at 29, taking a second mate, for happy years of motherhood and companionship—was that such a crime never to be forgiven?

"Mother," says another part of Diana's letter, "was always trying to make us like Uncle Roy, as we called her husband. But we saw through her devices." In other words, you and Lily were ungracious little jealous mimics and did all you could to ruin your mother's chances for happiness in her marriage.

I'm all for modern psychological methods when they deal with the problems of the immediate present. Many good doctors and teachers and all good mothers know how to handle those cases that arise in connection with almost every child's development. Their adroitness in analysis and method is amusingly evident to those of us who can remember our own young vagaries, inhibitions and fixations—only under simpler names. As long as the psychologists take today, tell their patients just what's wrong today, then I'm with them.

But when they encourage us to dig into the past, to discover that at four months one's bottle was late in arriving and at three years Mother said she already had kissed us goodnight and was going downstairs now—and that these heinous crimes lived on, and malignantly affected all our later years, then that is sheer nonsense. Silly! You'll find all these instances solemnly portrayed in a recent moving picture that supposedly represents a woman's experience in a madhouse. These are the causes that sent her there.

KEEPING HEALTHY Hearing Aids

By Dr. James W. Barton

IT IS gratifying to meet friends and acquaintances, formerly hard of hearing, who now meet you with a normal, not a questioning, expression on their faces because they are wearing properly-fitted and suitable hearing aids.

Opticists and optometrists not only make sure of prescribing the proper lenses for the patient, but they also insist upon fitting the frames so that the patient obtains the angle necessary to give him the exact or proper vision through the lenses.

Similarly, the otologist or hearing specialist, after making a complete examination of the patient's loss of hearing and the pitch necessary, prescribes the hearing aid best suited to the patient's needs. And just as the oculist or optometrist is most careful in adjusting the frames of glasses, so the otologist wants to make sure that the apparatus attached to the ear must fit the ear

Northern Town Warmed By Drift Currents

Hammerfest, on the island of Kvaloy off the coast of Norway, is regarded as the most northern town of Europe. Its latitude is 70 degrees 40 minutes north—about 10 minutes further north than Point Barrow, Alaska. It is a prosperous city and has a normal population of several thousand.

In spite of its northern latitude, Hammerfest enjoys a comparatively mild climate; the average January temperature is a little below freezing and the harbor is always ice free; this is attributed to mild westerly winds, the drift currents of the Gulf Stream and/or those of the North Atlantic.

HEALTH NOTES

Vertigo (dizziness) occasionally is a symptom of high blood pressure and the prospect for relief is favorable through cutting certain nerves coming from the spinal cord. When dizziness occurs, consult your family physician first; he may locate the cause. If not, he likely will refer you to an ear specialist, as ear disturbances are the commonest cause of dizziness.

One way of reducing weight is to reduce the amount of all liquid—water, tea, coffee, milk, soft and hard drinks—by one half. This is because fat tissue holds water within it—about three pounds of water to every pound of fat. Thus, while water is "good for everybody," it is not good for those who are overweight because they already are water-logged.

PONTIAC NO. 3,000,000 COMES OFF LINE

The three millionth Pontiac, a cream-colored convertible sedan, was produced this week by Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors. Harry J. Klingler, general manager of Pontiac for the last 15 years, drove the history-making model off the production line. With him, standing, is L. W. Ward, general sales manager. The city of Pontiac made the occasion a civic celebration.

"MAID OF COTTON" SPARKS EARLY DUSTING DRIVE
 Texas cotton growers are being urged by a state committee on insect control to begin fighting crop pests early. Since dusting should be started when cotton plants are chopped and plowed, insecticide manufacturers have moved up Texas shipment dates. Production of one Texas-recommended insecticide, toxaphene, which had sales of more than 30,000,000 pounds over the nation last year, has been stepped up to meet all the farmers' needs in 1949, the makers report. This early dusting campaign is being watched with interest throughout the Cotton South. Pretty Sue Howell, 1949 Maid of Cotton, points to one reason why Texas cotton growers should think of "killing 'em before they get started."

Seniors Plan End of Year
 We got back this morning and it seems that everyone is pretty happy.
 Last week the inspector came. He is Mr. Pierce. We enjoyed his visits. He left us in high spirits too. He complimented us highly and we were very proud of that.
 Word was received this morning that the annual publishers appreciate our getting the balance of copy in so soon and in such fine shape. So what a relief. Committees have been appointed to work on the annual class trip, the gift and commencement plans. They are for the trip: Laverne Clifton, Jo Yarbrough and Don Mathis; gift: Willard Pratt, Lora Nell Jean, and Nubs McAdams; commencement: Lila Linder, Joyce Saling, and Weidon McColium.

Junior Gab
 As the Juniors assembled in their class rooms Monday they saw the same dull faces as usual. But some seemed to have combed their hair and applied lip stick more recently than others.
 In Home Ec. 3 some of the girls have finished their suits, while others have only their coats completed. They seem to enjoy gossiping more.
 A few were feeling rich Saturday night, so they bought some wonderful perfume. "Ben Hur" to be exact. At the wee hours of dawn it was rumored that several girls clothes were out airing.
 It seems that several people have been wearing red glasses. Could it be from Donald Gene's loud shirt?

We're very proud of Joy Graham who received the Elgin watch today in assembly for selling the most magazine subscriptions. By the way she sold over half of all subscriptions that were sold. Congratulations Joy.
 There are two junior girls going to the Tennis tournament Saturday, and they are Joy Graham and Faye Narrell. We sure hope they go places. Good luck from the Juniors.

Freshman News
 The Home Ec. girls are really going to have a good time trying to improve the looks of the Home Ec. cottage. We sure hope it looks the way they plan for it.

We are really proud of Joan McAdams. She is running for Home Ec. state office.
 We hope the boys didn't get too much rough treatment Tuesday night at the Father and Son banquet.

Betty went to the show Friday night and she wasn't by herself either.
 Our Math class was rather dull last Monday. I guess it was because we had some lesson to get.
 Lynne sure was sleepy Monday. I wonder why?

Sophomores Tell of Classes
 We thought yesterday that old man winter was hanging around. However, its warm again today.
 In Algebra class we're studying "Integers" and "consecutive integers." We're doing pretty good. Some of us even know what they mean.

4-H Club Awards Stress Farm Woodlot Management

Farm young people everywhere are taking increased interest in forest management. These two youths are receiving a lesson in the use of the increment borer, an instrument used to determine growth rate of trees. Professional forester, right, instructs.
 For the second straight year local farm boys and girls have a chance to compete for state and national awards in a 4-H club forestry project. Three hundred dollar college scholarships plus all-expense paid trips to the 1949 4-H Club Congress in Chicago will go to four national winners in the forestry contest.

Four-H Club members interested in forestry are eligible to compete. In addition to the four top awards, to be distributed on a regional basis, each of the state winners will receive a gold medal.
 The 4-H forestry project emphasizes youth's stake in the woodlands of this state. Farmer owned woodlands today constitute a major portion of the Nation's commercial forest area. They represent also a steady source of wealth to their owners that in many cases is virtually untapped.
 American Forest Products Industries, a national, non-profit association of wood-dependent industries, is sponsor of the 4-H forestry awards. Last year 18 states participated in the national forestry competition. College scholarships went to club members representing Idaho, Georgia, New York and Wisconsin.

 "Opportunities for farmers, who manage their woodlands for continuing forest crops, are greater today than ever before," Charles A. Gillett, managing director of American Forest Products Industries, declared in announcing his organization's sponsorship of the 1949 award. "The importance of good forest management practices on the Nation's farms cannot be over emphasized."

Detailed information about the 4-H forestry project may be obtained from Douglas Smith of McMurry College spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smith.
 The Ag boys returned from Abilene Wednesday afternoon from the Sophomore class, Keith and Lowell placed second and fourth with their capons.
 The Home Ec. 2 girls have finished their clothing construction unit and are now studying mate selection. We find this very interesting!

The Life of Lila Linder
 Lila Linder was born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Linder on August 26, 1932 at Loraine. She has lived here all of her life except for a few months when she lived at Snyder.
 She is a member of the Speech Club and has been a cheer leader for the pep squad for the past three years. She also has been longed to the Home Ec. Club for four years.
 Lila seems to have a few favorites, and here they are: day Friday; dish, chocolate pie; color, pink; actor, Burt Lancaster; actress, Ella Raines; and subject Typing.
 Lila's favorite boyfriend lives at Loraine, and not too far from where she lives. He is about five feet and nine inches tall and has green eyes. (we think). He also drives a black Studebaker.
 This year Lila was chosen as Campus Queen and Senior Favorite. She is also a photographer for the Annual and is Secretary of the Senior class.
 Lila will not reveal what her ambition is but some of us suspect a little, anyway we hope she has what she wishes for her future.

H-M!! KISSES OF HATE

I GET SO DAD-BLAMED SICK O' SUCH MUSH! WHEN ARE YA GONNA GET A GOOD OL' ROOTIN', SHOOTIN' WESTERN, WITH COWBOYS AN' INDIANS?

Spring Dreams of '49
AT THIS TIME last season, the following facts had been rather definitely established: The Red Sox and Yankees were to fight out the American League pennant race with the Tigers and Indians in fairly close pursuit. The Dodgers and Cardinals were to take over the National League race with the Braves always threatening.

This seemed to be logical enough. No one knew anything about a kid pitcher named Gene Bearden and no one could guess that Lou Boudreau and Larry Doby would improve to any such extent as they did. Also, no one could figure the Cardinals would get such little help from their rookie crop, and the Dodgers would be scrambling around last place long after the season opened.

Now at least 10 clubs are indulging in early March dreams of October cash and glory. Here they are: AMERICAN LEAGUE—Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox, New York Yankees, Philadelphia Athletics and the Detroit Tigers. NATIONAL LEAGUE—Boston Braves, Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants and the Pittsburgh Pirates, with Chicago's Cubs hanging around the outskirts.

There has seldom been a time in major league history where so many ball clubs in both leagues could be rated with a healthy chance to win. Something unforeseen can happen to scatter them apart, but they could also come to the wire under two blankets.

The best ball club in the two leagues looks to be Cleveland. The second best club should be the Red Sox. We are leaning heavily on that "should be" adjunct.

THE BEST CLUB in the National League should be the Dodgers with their speed and youth, their quantity of strong arms and stout legs, plus their 1948 experience. But it will probably prove to be the Braves again.

If Billy Southworth could win a flag with Eddie Stanky out of action over two months and Warren Spahn afflicted with an off year (for Spahn), there is no particular reason why he should not win again with a few slight improvements and more help from these two standbys.

Also, I have a fair idea that Billy Southworth's Braves will come north in April the best-conditioned team in the older circuit. Southworth overlooks few bets when it comes to getting the best out of what he has to work with. He wastes less time in his training campaign than any manager I ever knew.

A Dip Into the Dark
With the first day of spring training less than a week away, we hereby climb out on the end of the limb of a palm tree which has no limbs to speak of.

Here are our nominations for the early October roundup that may prevent us from seeing the Army-Michigan football game: AMERICAN LEAGUE—Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox, New York Yankees, Detroit Tigers, Philadelphia Athletics, St. Louis Browns, Chicago White Sox and the Washington Senators. NATIONAL LEAGUE—Boston Braves, Brooklyn Dodgers, St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates, New York Giants, Chicago Cubs, Philadelphia Phillies and the Cincinnati Reds.

You can cut out this prediction, if you care to, and save it for next October.

The two races are the toughest to pick that I can recall in the last two decades. Lou Boudreau's Cleveland Indians are better equipped than anyone else to win the American League pennant.

Indian Ruins

THE HOME TOWN REPORTER

What ECA Means

YOUR HOME TOWN Reporter has been particularly interested in the testimony before the senate foreign relations committee with reference to the new appropriation of more than five billion dollars for the Marshall plan, or the economic cooperation administration, for the next fiscal period. What we were particularly interested in finding out was what this new agency and its expenditure of billions of dollars for European recovery means to the folks back in the home towns and rural communities of the country who are putting up the money for its operation.

As yet we have heard nothing on this phase of the operation of ECA and we believe it to be vitally important to the continuity and success of the plan. The taxpayers generally are in favor of ECA for the reason they have been told it may prevent another war and that it has curbed communism in Europe.

We believe, however, that if we must keep going back to congress for additional billions, since the estimate is that it will take some 16 billion dollars to do the job, the taxpayers in the country should be told just what they are getting for this money, just what it means to them, just what is their stake in this plan and the expenditure of these billions. At this writing, that has not been done.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson told the committee that the situation in Europe from an economic standpoint is "vastly more encouraging than it was two years ago." "Improvement can be noted in almost every phase of the participating countries," Mr. Acheson said. Paul Hoffman, the able administrator of the ECA, told the committee that production in all lines, steel output, factory and mine output, electric power output, freight traffic, crops, earnings and exports in the participating countries all showed a high percentage of gain.

Hoffman said he hoped European countries would balance their budgets, that ECA's economic objective could be attained by 1952, that he would prefer continued high taxes here to a slowing down in the European recovery program, and that he believed definitely that the ECA program would end June 30, 1952.

So far the ECA agency here in Washington has, with the exception of some information which has been given to the country by private sources such as magazines and other mediums for the dissemination of news, given only information good for technical and business magazines and other publications.

It has not attempted to show Joe Donkes out in Keokuk or Kokomo what the ECA plan and the expenditure of this money means to him personally and to the general welfare and well-being of the community in which Joe Donkes lives.

This reporter believes ECA is overlooking a bet and a necessary and important factor in the continued successful operation of the entire program unless it does just that. The folks back in the Home Towns are generous, they believe more or less vaguely that the Marshall plan is a good thing but still they would like to know in a very material and specific way just how they are benefiting, just what they are getting for this money, how it is being spent and how it affects each one of them individually.

Stamp-Lovers, Field Day

The philatelists are having a field day and the postoffice department is hoping the President will veto many of the 22 bills thus far introduced in the congress providing for issuance of special stamps. These bills run the gamut of special events all the way from memorializing the advent of the first Angola goat to anniversaries of cities, towns, prominent men and women, organizations and cotton textile manufacturing. Most of these bills likely will be passed.

A member of the house committee on postoffices and civil service said, "The post office can issue only so many stamps a year, but special stamps mean a lot to the member who introduced them so we usually pass them and then the President vetoes 'em." President Truman last year, however, let some get by him. Usually the postoffice department does not sell enough to pay the cost of lithographing or embossing.

Rankin Hits Back

Congressman John Rankin of Mississippi, obstreperous Dixiecrat who has been charged with being everything a member of congress should not be, kicked off the house so-American activities committee a bigot and a debaser of civil rights, is getting back at the administration. He forced a bill out of his house armed services committee, which he chairmans by virtue of his seniority only, calling for a veterans pension.

Observing Rules Is 'Must' When Home Cooks Make Dishes of Cheese, Eggs

IF YOU'RE BUSY juggling menus for Lent or simply trying to add variety to your meals, then there's concrete help in today's column of recipes. Cheese, eggs and fish are favorite foods right now, and it's a wise idea to know how to bring out the best in each food.

All these foods, cheese, eggs and fish are economical, which may be an incentive for you to give them more than a passing thought. However, they're also foods which are highly nourishing. All three contain high quality protein which you need for building and repairing tissue.

Aside from other vitamins, cheese furnishes calcium and riboflavin. Eggs supply vitamin A and riboflavin as well as iron. For these reasons, both foods should be included in the daily diet.

THERE ARE MANY schools of thought on how omelets should be made, but the main thing is to have them light. A light touch is necessary in putting together an omelet and it should be cooked until just done, then served at once. The omelet

A flavor triumph in this new way with omelet which uses broccolli in the fold and is served with a delightful cheese sauce. There's nourishment aplenty in this cheese, egg and vegetable combination as well as variety for your menu plans.

recipe given here uses one of the season's most delicious green vegetables and is made even more appealing with cheese sauce. Serve it with a vegetable juice cocktail, hot rolls and relishes and a simple fruit dessert, and you have a meal you'll be proud to serve anyone.

Beat the egg yolks until light. Add the milk and salt, then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a skillet in which butter has been melted. Cook slowly until puffed and lightly browned on the under side. Place in a slow (300°) oven for a few minutes to dry the top. Spread half of the omelet with hot, chopped broccolli, fold the other half over it and turn onto a platter.

Melt cheese in top of double boiler. Add the milk, stirring constantly until sauce is smooth. Garnish the omelet with whole heads of hot, cooked broccolli and serve with hot cheese sauce.

YOU'LL FIND THESE supper rolls quick to fix, and an excellent, nourishing way to solve a meal problem:

Lenten Supper Rolls (Serves 4-6)
1 pound grated American cheese
Small bottle of stuffed olives
1/2 cup butter or substitute
1/2 cup finely chopped green pepper
1/2 cup minced onion
1 (8-ounce) can tomato sauce
8 hard rolls
Mix cheese, sliced olives, butter, green pepper and onion. Blend in canned tomato sauce. Cut off ends of rolls and hollow them out. Butter insides of crust and stuff with cheese filling. Replace ends of rolls and wrap each roll in waxed paper, twisting ends to hold paper tight.

LYNN SAYS:

Here are Facts About Yeast Breads
It's important to use all-purpose flour in making bread and rolls with yeast because this contains gluten. Cake flours are short on gluten and do not make good bread with yeast. When the temperature goes higher than 85°, the heat may easily kill the action of the yeast.
Mix finely chopped, hard-cooked eggs with cream cheese and spread on toast. Broil until slightly bubbly and serve with bacon strips.

Here's another quickie for a meatless luncheon or supper dish:

Lenten Broils (Serves 3-4)
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 cup canned tomato sauce
Salt and pepper
1/2 cup grated American cheese
1 cup flaked tuna fish
1/2 teaspoon tabasco sauce
Melt butter, remove from range, stir in flour to make a paste. Add canned tomato sauce gradually, stirring until smooth. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add remaining ingredients and blend. Spread on slices of bread and place under broiler until golden brown and bubbly. Garnish with a sprig of watercress.

CHEESE AND POTATOES are two foods that combine naturally to make a pleasing flavor-scented dish. This soufflé may be baked in individual dishes or in one large casserole. For a meatless meal, serve it with asparagus tips in drawn butter sauce, minted carrots and creamed onions. It may also be served very nicely with a roast leg of lamb in place of au gratin potatoes.

Potato and Cheese Soufflé (Serves 6)
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 cup milk
1 cup grated or shredded cheese
1 tablespoon grated onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2 cups riced potatoes
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites
Melt butter, add flour and blend. Add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Add cheese and seasonings and cook over very low heat until cheese is melted. Add potatoes and well beaten egg yolks. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Turn into a large or into individual casseroles which have been buttered and bake in a moderately (325°) slow oven for 40 to 60 minutes.

BAKED BEANS, prepared as in the following recipe, are tasty and filling, guaranteed to take the edge off sharp appetites.

Lenten Baked Beans (Serves 4-6)
1/2 cup minced onion
1 1/2 cups minced green pepper
4 tablespoons fat or salad oil
4 cups cooked or canned baked beans
1/2 cup chili sauce
1/2 cup grated American cheese
1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs
Sauté onion and green pepper in fat until tender. Add beans and arrange in a greased casserole, alternating layers of the beans with cheese. Top with crumbs. Bake in a hot (400°) oven for 30 minutes.

When you ready the dough for rising, grease the top of it lightly with butter, fat or salad oil, and cover with a clean towel.
Light greasing helps prevent a crust from forming on the dough. The towel prevents dust from coming in contact with the bread.
Bread and rolls should be removed from their pans immediately after baking so they will not steam and become soggy.
If you like a soft crust on rolls, brush them with melted butter as soon as you finish baking.

Leadership School

Lesson for March 20, 1949

IT TAKES more than a call of God to be a Christian leader. It takes study, it takes work. The call is necessary, of course, but it is not all. Jesus set the church an example here as always. He called his Twelve; but he was not so foolish as to think that just because he had called them they were all ready to go out and take the lead. Jesus put them through what

Dr. Foreman may be called the first Leadership Training School in the history of the Christian church.

Who Was Enrolled?

THE TWELVE Apostles were the training class. Not all Jesus' disciples were equal to it; perhaps some of them actually did not have the time. But these Twelve had already been set off from the others, not because they were better men, but in order to do more direct service in Christ's name. There was nothing formal about Jesus' training school.

It met wherever he was at the time—in a house, or by the roadside, or on a hill-top. There were no set hours, no textbooks, credits or diplomas.

What Did They Study?

THERE WAS no printed circular, no bulletin, no prospectus or catalogue. All the "courses" amounted to just one thing: learning to do what Jesus was doing. To this day, that is the aim of all Christian training. Mark and Luke mention at least four things Jesus' training-school students learned from him: preaching, healing the sick, feeding the hungry, and praying. It would not be quite true to say that part of what they learned was spiritual and part practical, for there is nothing more practical than praying as Jesus taught it, and Jesus never ministered to people's physical needs without touching their spirits too.

Many a person now in, some hospital for the insane need not have gone there if he had had the help that a well-trained minister can give.

Ministers today are not taught how to perform miracles like the feeding of the 5,000; but knowing that people's physical well-being has a great deal to do with their spiritual welfare, the alert young Christian minister of today will be keenly interested in Christian social action.

How Did They Learn?

THE TWELVE learned by doing. It is the only way you learn anything of a practical nature. Memorizing a textbook, memorizing rules, is not learning. You have learned how to do a thing only when you can do it. Of course you have to see it done, first. A boy on the farm learns to be a farmer by watching his father and helping him, more than from school courses in agriculture, useful as they are. There is nothing to take the place of apprenticeship under one who knows. So Jesus' Twelve watched him, listened to him, helped him, before they were trusted on their own.

Will It Still Work?

THE METHODS Jesus taught are just as effective today as they ever were. Not all churches nowadays follow his line to the letter; in fact, most churches do not. But the basic principles which Jesus drilled into his first traveling representatives are still good. One is faith.

Missionaries in the 20th Century are required to take a great deal more equipment with them to their fields than one pair of shoes, one case and an empty purse. Yet who can deny that any missionary of any church, in China or in Korea today, must live by faith from day to day?

Another of Jesus' principles was direct contact. People are not won to Christ chiefly by sermons from pulpits, but by in-the-home contacts. Ministers know this, missionaries know it; Sunday school teachers ought to know it too. Getting acquainted with your boys and girls at their homes, and being a friend to them there, is what will give your Sunday-teaching its greatest force and success.

QUESTION: My basement floor was painted some time ago, but the paint has worn off and I would like to fix up the floor so that the youngsters can use it for dancing. Because of the expense involved I would prefer not to lay asphalt tile. As it is now, there is powder about one-quarter-inch deep over the whole floor and the surface is not smooth, but full of small pin-holes.

ANSWER: You can treat the floor and get a good job, depending on how much labor you are willing to put into it. I would suggest that you look forward to laying asphalt tile as soon as you can manage it, for the tile would be much more comfortable underfoot than concrete, if the floor is to be used for dancing. In the meantime, you can paint the floor with an appropriate paint with a rubber base.

Questions and Answers

Q. I was honorably discharged from the Army in 1946, but have not applied for readjustment allowance yet. How long will this benefit remain available to me?

A. Generally, this benefit must be claimed within two years from discharge or release from active service or two years from July 25, 1947, whichever is later.

Q. As an honorably discharged veteran of World War 2, I would like to know what hospitalization I am entitled to.

A. If you have a service-connected disability, you have top priority for VA hospital care. If you suffer with a nonservice-connected disability, you may be hospitalized under existing law if beds are available and you say you cannot afford treatment elsewhere.

Q. I am at present receiving compensation for 30 percent disability. If I take a job carrying rural mail three hours a day, will my compensation be stopped?

A. Compensation is not reduced because of your employment. Reduction in compensation is made only if your disability has lessened in degree.

Q. Early last year I received an adjustment check on my compensation from the Veterans Administration. Do I have to pay income tax on this payment?

A. No. By law, all payments made under laws relating to veterans are exempt from Federal income tax payments.

Q. Last year I got a GI loan on which Veterans Administration made a 4 percent payment. I would like to know if I have to report the payment made by VA as income in my income tax report?

A. No. While this VA payment is not taxable as income of the veteran, the amount of interest thereby paid may be listed by him as a deduction for tax purposes.

Q. What is the deadline for starting a course of institutional on-farm training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act (Public Law 16)?
