U.S. Ends Ban On Arms Sales

PEKING (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. concluded his visit to China today after announcing that the Reagan administration is lifting the 31-year-old ban on the sale of U.S. war weapons to its Korean War foe.

Haig told a news conference Tuesday night his government has decided to remove China from the list of nations — including the Soviet Union and most other communist countries — barred from buying lethal military equipment from the United States.

President Reagan told a news conference in Washington Tuesday removal of restrictions on arms sales to China was "a normal part of the process" of improving relations between the two countries.

A Chinese military delegation is to go weapons shopping in the United States in August. But Haig said each arms request would be considered individually, and that China might ask for weapons which "it would be imprudent to provide at this juncture."

The secretary of state described an expanded military relationship — but not a military alliance — between the two governments that became foes after the Communists defeated President Chiang Kai-shek's U.S.-backed Nationalists in 1949.

He said Reasgan, long a supporter of the Nationalist regime on Taiwan, "intends to treat China as a friendly nation with whom the United States is non-allied but with whom it shares many interests."

Chief among those interests is mutual opposition to the Soviet Union. Haig said both the United States and China agreed on the need to oppose Soviet expansionism.

China recently slashed its budget for military spending, but Haig said it could purchase American military equipment and technology with $2 billion in credits promised by the Carter administration.

Carter's defense secretary, Harold Brown, visited China in January 1980 and said the United States would make available certain technology and such non-lethal, defense-related equipment as trucks, helicopters and radar. But China made no such purchases.

Haig said said his three days of talks in Peking were "not only unusually significant but unusually successful." The Chinese reaction was more measured. In a farewell banquet toast Tuesday night, Foreign Minister Huang Hua said the U.S. and Chinese governments "do not entirely share the same views," and the United States must prove with its actions that it wants sound bilateral relations.

Haig told his news conference the United States would continue its unofficial relations with Taiwan, and "this was understood" by the Chinese in Peking.

Con Games Rob People Of Needed Life Savings

By LOIS GLEASON

Emma McDonald (not her real name) was concerned when she received a call from a man telling her he was a state auditor and informing her that one of the tellers at the bank was stealing money from the accounts of older people.

At 76, she knew she couldn't afford to lose her savings. She felt duty call when the man on the phone told her he needed her to catch the dishonest teller. She was told she would receive another phone call from someone who would verify who the first caller was.

Emma waited for the next call which came a short time later. The man identified himself as Robert L. Markovich and asked her how much she had in her savings account. He then told her to withdraw $4,800.

She obediently withdrew the money and took it to a town library as she was told. Another man met her there, who, she had been told, would "fingerprint" the money then return it to her.

She was reassured the man she was to meet, "Captain Walton," was an honest man when he flashed a badge and said something into a walkie talkie he was carrying.

She handed him the money in $100 bills. He put it in his briefcase and told her the money had to be taken to the police lab to be fingerprinted.

Now Emma wasn't so sure the whole business was legal. She started to reach for the money and the briefcase lid was slammed on her hand. She was then told the money was state evidence and would be returned to her later. The "captain" walked away and that was the last Emma ever saw of him.

Emma had been conned.

The incident described above occurred in a South Texas town a few months ago. But more recent con games, similar to that one, have been played in Sweetwater, Brownwood and several other towns.

The game is always the same but it has several variations Counting the victim, there are usually three players. One Scurry County deputy remarked "The bottom line is, they try to get an elderly person convinced they need to draw their money out of savings."

Sometimes, as in a case in Scurry County about ten years ago, someone is just asked to take the money out of the bank and hold on to it. The con artists help package the money, then switch packages. The victim usually doesn't discover the switch till several days later. By that time, their money is long gone.

People say they would never fall for an old game like that — but they do. Victims are often reluctant to admit they've been swindled. They wait a while before contacting authorities and by then it's too late.

Snyder sheriff's department officials say the con is spreading and all they can do is hope no one falls for the game, or if they do, that they contact legitimate authorities — immediately.

Stenholm Due Here July 4th

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm will be in Snyder for the annual Independence Day celebration, chamber of commerce officials have announced, Stenholm, who represents the 17th District of Texas in the U. S. House of Representatives, is due to be here in time to speak prior to the big fireworks display on the evening of July 4.

Meanwhile, entries were being sought for various events scheduled for July 4 event.

Entries are now being accepted for the Independence Day Queen's contest. The queen will be determined on the basis of ticket sales to the July 4 tractor pull. Contest money must be turned in by 5 p. m. on Friday, July 3, and the queen will ride in the parade in the park following the flag-raising ceremonies at 9 a. m. on July 4. She will be crowned following the address by Congressman Stenholm that evening.

Entries also are being accepted for the annual July 4 Tennis Tournament, which usually attracts players from throughout the area.

Another event added to the July 4 weekend attractions is a street dance on the Varsity Square parking lot. It will be held on the night of July 3.

It was inevitable.

Within hours after some of the experts declared that spring had ended and that the country---especially this part of it---might be embarking on another string of super-hot days, the elements did an about-face.

Fifty-one degrees in the morning is not exactly a summertime custom in these parts. Also, a reading of 100 degrees or more now and then does not necessarily mean that a prolonged heat wave is in the making. Thank goodness.

This year, water seems to be the problem rather than the thermometer. The floods in Central and South Texas prove again that the elements do not necessarily follow a rigid pattern.

★ ★ ★

Incidentally, Snyder will mark the anniversary of one of its big floods this week. The flood of 1939, still considered the biggest of them all by some old-timers, occurred on June 19. It's closest rival and, in the opinion of some its superior, happened on Aug. 13, 1972.

★ ★ ★

But, getting back to the temperatures, many of those who should know about such things tend to jump at conclusions. A streak of hot weather brings predictions that the Earth is warming up---that it is only a matter of years before the arctic ice cap will begin to melt and cause the biggest flood of all.

Then, a couple of extra cold winters in a row usually bring words of caution that we may be gradually heading into another ice age.

Jack Cypert, who made a recent trip to some of his old stomping grounds at Tulsa, says you can hardly turn on a television set there without coming face-to-face with Nolan Richardson. The Tulsa U. basketball coach, who moved last year from WTC, apparently is the top personality there for local commercial spots on the tube.

And, Cypert says if you tell someone in Tulsa that you live in Snyder, chances are he will thank you for sending Richardson up there.

Hearings Open

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is turning to the domestic side of the infant formula controversy following approval of a House resolution denouncing the Reagan administration's opposition to an international code on marketing the product.

A House subcommittee on investigations and oversight called public hearings today to explore the need for tighter controls over domestic use of infant formula.

A coalition of consumer and health groups said it would petition the administration for new rules that would limit promotional activities by baby formula producers. They charge that at least 5,000 infant deaths each year are caused by misuse of infant formula and bottle feeding among poorer families.

Undo Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on the House Education and Labor Committee who reluctantly approved $12 billion in budget cuts in social programs are trying now to undo some of them.

The Democrats, in an all-day session Tuesday, considered restoring some funds to such programs as student loans, special impact aid for school districts with federal installations, Head Start classes for preschoolers and meals for the elderly.

One plan was to switch some $1 billion previously retained for public service jobs to the popular education and nutrition programs.

Aid To Veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Free medical care for Vietnam veterans whose illnesses were caused by the defoliant Agent Orange is heading toward final congressional approval.

The Senate passed a $232 million, four-year package of veterans' benefits Tuesday after adopting an amendment extending eligibility for care to victims of the defoliating chemical.

Veterans exposed to nuclear weapons tests would also be covered for any illnesses arising out of radiation.

The House version of the bill, passed June 2, would cover veterans exposed to Agent Orange and other defoliants but not those affected by nuclear weapons tests.

Ask Us

Q.—What would be the result of the repeal of ad valorem taxes, especially to our school system?

A.—Funds would have to come from other sources. Proposals to abolish ad valorem, or property taxes, also propose other methods for financing services now provided by ad valorem taxes. In most cases they propose sales taxes to replace the ad valorem taxes, and some have even proposed a state income tax.

Trustees Okay Minor Salary Adjustments

Snyder school trustees Tuesday night spent four hours in budget study and gave tentative approval to minor changes in the salary regulations.

Trustees first met with eight school secretaries who had requested an adjustment in salary to bring them in line with other educational secretaries in the system.

Following their presentation, the board began the budget study and at the end of the session took action with regard to the request.

All secretaries are now permitted to advance to Pay Grade III if they meet the necessary requirements which includes 60 semester hours of college credit. In addition, the administration agreed to notify clerical personnel of any secretarial opening in the system. Pay schedules were left the same.

In other salary regulation changes, salaries of principals were set at 20 percent above the state schedule, an increase of five percent.

In special positions, raises totaling $3,300 were given tentative approval. All positions are based on state salary schedule plus 20 percent plus a dollar amount for the special assignment.

Amounts set above the local salary schedule include head football, $5,500; head basketball, $3,000; girls basketball, $2,400; head volleyball, $2,400; first football assistant, $2,900; other varsity football assistants, $2,600; other football coaches $2,200; tennis, golf and girls track, $2,000 each; and high school trainer,$2,400.

As in the past, personnel who coach a third sport receive an additional $400. An adjustment to $3,000 above the local salary schedule was also made for the drama coach.

Pay for substitute teachers was increased from $24 a day to $30 a day for non-degreed personnel. Substitutes pay for teachers with a degree was increased from $30 to $36.

Although the state legislature has approved a state increase for all school personnel, salary schedules have not been received by the local school district.

The board agreed to meet again at 8:30 p.m. July 1 to continue their budget study. Last year's total budget was $7.5 million with approximately 85 percent of that figure going for payroll costs.

The board will have a noon meeting Friday at Kbob's to open bids on a repair project at the high school cafeteria.

Snyderite To Leave For Turkey

Nettie Moss, daughter of Alfreida Moss of Snyder, is very excited these days, and with good reason. The recent high school graduate is packing for her trip to Ankara, Turkey where she will spend several weeks visiting with a Turkish family.

Nettie was selected for this trip through the American Field Service program. In exchange for all of her travel expenses being taken care of, Nettie will take numerous slides and upon her return will be available to show the slides and tell of her Turkish experience.

Nettie will leave for New York City this Friday where she will attend a one-day orientation session at C. W. Post College. Upon arriving in Turkey she will stay in Instanbul for a three-day orientation session.

Then she will proceed to Ankara for the first meeting with her Turkish family which consists of a father, Bahri Oral, a Turlish official; a mother, Naciye Oral; a sister, Fersun Oral who is 21 years old and a brother, Namik Kemal Oral, 19. They are all Moslems. Fersun and Namik are the only ones who speak any English, but Nettie says they will do fine communicating even if she has to point a lot.

Nettie will end her 10-week stay in Turkey in August, returning home the last week.

"I'm kind of scared," Nettie said, "But I think it is neat and something I will always remember."

Those wishing to write to the Snyder girl during her Turkish sojourn may do so in care of Bahri Oral; Y. Ayranci Hosdere Cad 1154; Cankaya, Ankara; Turkey.

PACKS FOR TURKEY--Nettie Moss, daughter of Alfreida Moss of Snyder, is packing for her trip to Ankara, Turkey where she will spend several weeks living with a Turkish family. Nettie was selected for this journey through the American Field Service program which is sponsored by Snyder High School Student Council, civic clubs and local businesses. Even though she cannot speak the language, Nettie is looking forward to her experience.(SDN Staff Photo)

POKE SALAD ANYONE?--James and Ethel Herrington were quite surprised when this poke salad stalk grew to six feet proportions in their back year this spring. The plant first appeared last year, but was very short. While the poke stalk is not very common in this area it is quite familiar in East Texas and is reputed to make quite a could salad. # Police Probe Possible Thefts

Two possible auto thefts were reported to Snyder police Tuesday evening, but one was later discovered to have been a misunderstanding.

The owner of Patterson's Used Cars reported the theft of a 1972 pickup at 8 p.m. Later he told police it was not stolen but involved a misunderstanding with a customer.

Larry Burns reported the other possible auto theft to police at 5:19 p.m. He said the car, a 1978 Ford Fairmont, had possibly been taken from 4104 Ave. U sometime between June 8 and June 16. The owner of the vehicle, William F. Wicke, lives in Riverton, Wyoming.

Two minor accidents were also worked by city police Tuesday. The first, at 12:56 p.m., happened on the Western Texas College Round Top Road and involved a 1975 Oldsmobile driven by Juan Rodriguez and a 1975 Mercury driven by Russell Johnson. Working the wreck was officer Buddy Kinney.

The next mishap occurred at 3900 College Ave. and involved a 1975 Ford driven by Carlos Jerrald Bowen and a 1980 Chevrolet driven by Ricky Lee Hopper. The Ford had moderate damage and had to be removed by a wrecker. The Chevrolet had only minor damage. Taking the report was officer Don Whittenburg.

Early this morning, officer Keith Ward took a 17 year-old male into custody in the alley at 1901 Coleman for public intoxication and unlawfully carrying a weapon.

At 5:20 this morning, Sgt. Ed Neeley arrested a 16 year-old male in connection with the December, 1980 burglary of Hoyt's Furniture Store. The juvenile was taken before Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway then placed in Scurry County Jail.

U.S. Aid To Israel Not In Jeopardy; In Spite Of Raid

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. aid to Israel is not in jeopardy despite Israel's use of American-made fighter planes to bomb an Iraqi nuclear reactor, say the chairmen of two congressional panels opening hearings on the raid.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, chairman of the House Middle East subcommittee, said an unconditional finding by either President Reagan or Congress that Israel violated U.S. law by using the planes for aggression would force a cutoff of U.S. aid "and we're not going to do that."

Reagan administration officials were called before Hamilton's committee today for public questioning on the bombing and whether Iraq was really developing atomic weapons, as Israel claims.

"I do not expect Congress to take action against Israel," Hamilton said Tuesday.

The Indiana Democrat said lesser action, such as strengthening the U.S. law, is possible later. But he said the subcommittee's only plan for the present is to gather information on Iraq's nuclear program, the Israeli raid and its effects in the Middle East.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which begins hearings on the raid Thursday, agreed today that Congress will not cut off U.S. aid to Israel.

"I don't think Congress would ever cut Israel off and leave it to the tender mercies of its adversaries in the Middle East," Percy said on the NBC-TV "Today" show.

But Percy said he thinks Israel will have to make some concessions to get the four F-16 jet fighters sold to it by the United States but held up by Reagan following the raid.

The senator did not specify what such concessions might entail but said he expects "what Congress would do, just as the president has done, is send a message to Israel that taking percipitous action of this kind, which vitally affects American policy, cannot be unilaterally done."

At his press conference Tuesday, Reagan indicated he expects some sort of advice from Congress, saying, "I have not heard back yet from the Congress and that review is not yet complete."

But Hamilton said he believes Congress will simply accept Reagan's ruling that it "may" have been a violation because going further would force a cutoff of U.S. aid to Israel.

The president said at his news conference that regardless of whether Israel's raid was aggressive or defensive, "Israel might have sincerely believed it was a defensive move."

College Rodeo Team Runs Into Hard Times At National Finals

The Western Texas College rodeo team has run into tough times at the College National Finals Rodeo, Bob Doty, coach, said.

Twenty of the nation's top college rodeo teams are competing in the rodeo, being held in the University of Montana field house in Bozeman. The rodeo opened Tuesday and will end with the finals on Sunday.

WTC Roper Troy Reynolds broke the barrier on his first calf to get a time of 21.9, then got a 10.9 the second go-round. This will probably not be good enough in the second go, Doty said.

In team roping, Reynolds and Wesley Williams from Tarleton had 9.2 in the first go, which tied them for fifth and sixth, but they missed their second steer so they are out of the average.

Gary Hickox had 14.9 in his first calf and gets his second calf Friday night. He stands a pretty good chance of getting into the finals.

Dave Appleton had 68 points in the first go in bareback riding, putting him in the top 20, and gets his second ride Thursday night.

In saddle bronc riding, Appleton marked 64 in the first go and 73 in the second, putting him second in the second go and third in the average.

Appleton bucked off his bull in the first go and gets his second bull tonight.

Tim Gradous got 54 in bronc riding in the first go, but bucked off last night in the second time out.

Chris Welch, competing as an individual rather than as a team member, had 62 on his first bull and will get his second bull Thursday.

Jay Cochrane had 61 on his first bull. Then last night he drew a bull named 777, which had been named Bucking Bull of the PRCA for the last two years, and bucked off after only six seconds, two seconds short of a qualifying ride. 777 has been ridden only one time this year, Doty said, and Cochrane made an outstanding try.

James Garlic was 69 on his first bull, good enough for fifth, but he bucked off last night in the second go-round.

Garlic was 67 in bareback riding and gets his second ride Thursday night.

There is no clear cut leader in team competition at this time, Doty said, but the WTC team has as yet made no points since points are given only for places one through four in each event.

"We appreciate all the support we've received," Doty said.

The weather has been cool in Bozeman with some light snow, Doty said, but since the rodeo is in the field house weather is not a factor.

Porter Pleads Guilty Tuesday

Here is another of Tony Friday's 1945 hands. You are rather disappointed with the dummy. It would have been nice to see five trumps and maybe a singleton in one of the black suits, but you have to play with what you have.

You see two trump entries to dummy and can finesse in both black suits, but West's double suggests that he will hold back black kings and probably four trumps as well. You think about setting up dummy's diamonds but abandon that play. It won't get you your 12 tricks.

You win the first trick in dummy and decide to try a black suit finesse. "Uter," which one of two? Obviously the spade to take advantage of that 10 spot. You lead it. West takes his king and leads a second trump.

Now you win in your hand, cash your ace-jack of spades to discard a club from dummy and lead ace and queen of clubs for a ruffing finesse against West. He plays his king. You ruff, return with the king of diamonds and make the last three tricks with your two trumps and the jack of clubs.

You have played well, but you give mental thanks to West for his rather silly double.

How To BuySandals

When shopping for a pair of summer sandals, choose flats. Pick a neutral color so that you can wear them with everything — shorts, slacks, even skirts. Woven straps and ankle ties look very feminine. Or try a ballet slipper; they come in both canvas and leather, in a wide variety of pretty colors. The newest looks are metallics, golds and bronzes. Of course, the best thing about flats is their comfort. Unlike high heels, they're great for a summer stroll.

Omit Demand For Sanctions...

Arabs Ask For Condemnation Of Israeli Raid

By O. C. DOELLING
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Arabs are asking the Security Council to condemn the Israeli destruction of Iraq's nuclear reactor and call for Israel to pay compensation. But they apparently are omitting a specific demand for sanctions because the United States would veto it.

In a statement read to the council Tuesday by Iraqi Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammadi, the 40-nation Islamic Group "strongly condemns the premeditated and unprovoked aggression as an act of state terrorism" and demands that Israel "pay prompt and adequate compensation for damages suffered by Iraq."

The statement made no mention of the sanctions the Arabs had been expected to ask the council to vote against the Jewish state. Instead it asked that "the international community take the measures envisaged in the (U.N.) Charter to prevent Israel from pursuing such action in the future."

The Arab League's U.N. observer, Clovis Maksoud, told reporters the statement embodied the "thrust" of a resolution that would be presented to the 15-nation council. A vote on the resolution is not expected before Thursday.

It takes nine votes to adopt a resolution, but a negative vote by any of the five permanent members — the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and China — constitutes a veto that kills the rsolution.

American officials have said privately that the United States might support a resolution condemning the raid and calling for compensation but certainly would veto sanctions or reparations.

Israel says its attack on the nuclear reactor in Baghdad was an act of self-defense prompted by solid information that Iraq, which still is technically at war with Israel, was planning to use the reactor to build atomic bombs to be dropped on the Jewish nation.

Speaking in the council debate Tuesday, Israeli Ambassador Yehuda Blum said a French proposal that reparations be demanded of Israel was bizarre.

"Did the Allies pay reparations for the Nazis' atomic plants at Peenemuende and elsewhere which they destroyed in World War II?" Blum asked. Peenemuende was Nazi Germany's research and missile center on the Baltic Coast.

Ismat T. Kittani, an undersecretary in Iraq's Foreign Ministry, refused to answer Blum's questions, saying, "One would think that it was Iraq that was brought to account before this council."

In Washington, President Reagan softened his earlier condemnation of the Israeli attack, telling a news conference Israel "might have sincerely believed" its raid was a defensive attack and "had a reason for concern" because Iraq has never signed an armistice with Israel or recognized Israel as a nation.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin told a campaign rally in Israel Reagan's comments were "words of great importance" that justified the attack.

The Arab League's U.N. observer said the president's statement "tends to justify (Israel's) naked and blatant aggression on Iraq."

BOUNTIFUL PLUM TREE--Mrs. A. D. Reeves of Snyder is very proud of her Santa Rosa plum tree which has produced so many plums that some of the branches have to be propped up. The four-year-old tree has never sprouted like this, according to Mrs. Reeves. She said that the plums are in the jelly stage now and that several people have stopped to admire her bountiful plum tree. The tree, approximately eight feet tall, is the only plum tree Mrs. Reeves has growing in her yard. (SDN Staff Photo)

Congress To Get Plan...

Ag. Dept. Plan Will Supply Farmers With Fuel

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department energy officials say they will send Congress a plan within three months to ensure that farm interests have needed fuel in times of severe supply disruptions.

The plan, just being developed jointly by the Agriculture and Energy departments, would replace special farm-fuel allocation provisions set to expire this fall, Martin Fitzpatrick, head of the Agriculture Department's transportation office, said Tuesday.

"We will have a proposal that will address the problems of farms in a severe situation," Fitzpatrick said. He said it will be aimed at ensuring both adequate fuel supplies and fair prices.

Earle Gavett, acting chief of the department's energy staff, also told the Senate Agriculture subcommittee on rural development, oversight and investigations that without the special allocation regulations about to expire, farmers would not have been able to harvest winter wheat or plant spring crops two years ago.

Officials of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Farmers Union and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives strongly supported retention of some emergency allocation plan.

Sen. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., subcommittee chairman, was critical of what he said was the Energy Department's "abysmally indifferent attitude" toward fuel priority for farmers because no Energy Department representative appeared at the hearing.

And Andrews charged that the special fuel allocation regulations were not invoked in the spring of 1979 until "the situation got so bad that the president and the secretary of agriculture got together and told DOE to stop dragging its heels."

He called the problems farmers faced in 1979 "an example of what can happen even when we had in law the type of emergency allocation requirements we are about to see expire."

In recalling President Reagan's pledge during last year's campaign that he would do all he could to ensure farm fuel supplies, Fitzpatrick said the administration remains committed to a "free market" approach to energy prices.

"In most cases of disruptions, we clearly need to rely on markets and avoid controls and allocations," he told the subcommittee.

But, he added, "In the unlikely event that a very severe disruption of fuel supplies does occur, it is in the national interest for agriculture and its related industries to be protected appropriately by high-priority allocation of fuel and we will consider that alternative."

Corn planting in the major production states was about 69 percent completed as of mid-June, compared with 88 percent last year and the normal rate of 85 percent, says the government's Joint Agricultural Weather Facility.

In the eastern Corn Belt, heavy rains and saturated soils continued to delay planting of corn and soybeans, the facility said Tuesday.

"The soil moisture supplies were adequate to surplus in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississipi and Tennessee," the report said. "Elsewhere, supplies were short to mostly adequate."

Looking at winter wheat, the report said the crop was in fair to good condition and about 94 percent headed, up from 93 percent a year ago.

Soybean planting in the major states was 69 percent complete, lagging behind last year's rate of 88 percent.

Striking Miners Withdraw Pickets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking mine construction workers are withdrawing pickets after gaining a tentative contract that would allow full-scale coal production in the East and Midwest for the first time in almost three months.

Three hours after negotiators returned to the bargaining table here Tuesday, they announced settlement on a 40-month contract likely to end the 83-day strike by 11,500 construction workers, whose picket lines delayed the return to work by as many as 60,000 miners in seven states.

Willard Esselstyn, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, said the pickets would be withdrawn, meaning that some 160,000 miners who approved a 40-month contract of their own on June 6 will be free to dig the coal. He said he didn't expect any problem in winning approval of the contract in the coalfields.

In Alabama, miners began returning to work at the 11 p.m. shift change Tuesday after the pickets were taken down.

The UMW called a meeting of the 39-member bargaining council today, beginning the 10-day ratification process. Some union officials said they thought the process could be completed sooner.

The miners and the construction workers have separate contracts with industry. The UMW miners ratified by a better than 2-1 margin an accord with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, but the construction workers, also members of the union, had not been able to agree on a separate pact with the Association of Bituminous Contractors, representing some 350 contracting companies.

Intensive weekend bargaining failed to produce an agreement that Esselstyn had said on Saturday seemed "pretty close."

The two sides broke off talks late Sunday and spent the next day assessing their positions. Esselstyn accused the industry bargaining team of walking out on the negotiations, and spokesmen for the ABC refused to comment.

Bargainers for both sides were smiling broadly and congratulating one another, however, when they emerged from a downtown Washington hotel suite Tuesday night.

"I feel as though it is the best contract that can be reached at the time," Esselstyn said. "I think we got a fine pension deal, a fine dental plan."

"We got an agreement," he said. "I don't see any benefit to our picket lines at this time."

Elmo Hurst, chief bargainer for the ABC, said, "I think it is a good contract for the construction workers."

Could Dash Reagan's Hopes...

Democrats Draft Alternative Plan For Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Reagan calls for a tax cut now, "not somewhere down in a misty future," House Democrats are drafting alternatives in a move that could dash Reagan's hope of delivering the first installment on Oct. 1.

At a news conference Tuesday, Reagan challenged the lawmakers to live up to a commitment to have the tax bill, along with a budget, on his desk before starting their August vacation.

"Only then can we say as elected representatives that we truly deserve a rest," he said.

But there were growing concerns that final action will not be taken on the bill until perhaps early October.

The House Ways and Means Committee now plans not only to dump the president's proposed 25 percent across-the-board cut in personal tax rates but to rewrite his business tax-cut plan as well. And whatever plan is passed by the House must be reconciled with the Senate version, which likely will be much more to Reagan's liking.

Reagan said the public and the calendar are calling for quick action.

"Just to take care of the paperwork associated with the tax changes that would be effective on Oct. 1, we must quickly have the legislation on the books," the president said.

"More important, and let us never forget, the mandate of November," he added. "The people of this nation have asked for action, and they deserve it now, not somewhere down in a misty future."

A Democratic task force from the Ways and Means Committee is putting the finishing touches on a substitute personal tax cut that would deliver considerably more relief than Reagan proposed for those making less than $50,000 a year.

A second task force, working on the business tax reduction, is presenting the committee several alternatives, none of which includes the president's proposal. Reagan wants to allow businesses a faster tax write-off for money spent on buildings and machinery. Democrats are concerned that such changes would do little for companies whose biggest investment is for labor; they want to concentrate more on cutting the corporate tax rate.

Reagan wants high-income Americans to get a full 25 percent cut in tax rates, just as low-income earners would, on grounds the well-off are more likely to invest their tax reduction in ways that would benefit the economy.

Democrats are upset that the Reagan plan targets only 17 percent of its tax relief to the 63 percent of couples and individuals who earn less than $20,000 a year. That group pays 16.2 percent of current taxes.

Several Democrats on the Ways and Means Committee began sounding the theme Tuesday that Reagan's plan would worsen a dramatic shift in the tax burden from corporations to individuals. A few years ago, they noted, corporations paid 20 percent of federal income taxes; today, they pay 12 percent; within five years, they would pay 8 percent.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. sharply criticized Reagan's plan several days ago as too generous to the rich. The president used his news conference for a reply:

"I think it is sheer demogoguery to pretend that this economic program which we submitted is not aimed at helping the great cross-section of people who have been burdened for too long by big government and high taxes."

Reagan said the $10,000 to $50,000-$60,000 income bracket "certainly covers all of the middle class. They pay 72 percent of our taxes and 73 percent of our tax relief or more is going to that bracket of workers."

Later, O'Neill told reporters: "I would never personally attack the president of the United States or the office of the president of the United States. I trust he will hold the same respect for the speakership."

Reagan claimed growing support in Congress for his tax-cut bill and called for quick action. Democratic leaders said that's just what they want, too.

"We don't have the luxury of writing a bill in the basement of the White House," said Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill. "We've got to be educated" on the complex provisions in the president's program, he added.

Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y., a member of the Ways and Means task force working on personal tax reductions, said the panel started its deliberations with the assumption that low- and middle-income Americans must be given enough of a tax cut to at least partially offset rising Social Security taxes and the increased tax burden caused by inflation.

Instead of simply cutting tax rates, as Reagan wants, Democrats will be asked to increase the zero-bracket amount — formerly called the standard deduction — focusing more relief on those with incomes under $20,000, and to raise the earned-income credit, which now benefits working families with incomes up to $10,000.

Scholarship To Snyderite

STEPHENVILLE—Pam Blankenship, a 1979 graduate of Snyder High School, has been awarded a Dick Smith Scholarship to Tarleton State University for the coming semester. She is the daughter of J. D. Blankenship, Route 1, Snyder, and will be a junior social work major this fall.

She is a member of the gymnastics team at Tarleton and was selected most valuable gymnast of the year for 1980-81.

The Dick Smith Scholarships are awarded to oustanding students in academics and are made possible through a bequest by the late Dr. Dick Smith, who served as head of the department of social sciences at Tarleton for many years.

Pilot Held On Charges Of Smuggling

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A California pilot was being held on $5 million bond today on charges of smuggling a shipment of high-grade cocaine that would be worth $140 million on the street, officials said.

Bond was set Tuesday for Donald Kramer Peterson, 50, of Irvine, Calif., who was arrested last weekend after an air-and-ground chase. Authorities said the 559-pound seizure of the cocaine was the second largest in the history of the U.S. Customs Service.

Peterson's lawyer said he expected to file a motion within 10 days to have bond reduced.

Two other men sought in the case still were at large Tuesday.

Cuban Slain In Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — A third Cuban detainee has been slain at the Atlanta federal prison, home to more than 1,700 refugees who arrived aboard last year's boatlift from Cuba, authorities said.

Warden Jack Hanberry said the latest victim was Victor Robaina-Valdivia, 34, who was fatally stabbed Tuesday afternoon.

Another Cuban was stabbed to death at the institution in May, and a detainee died last September from wounds he suffered in a scuffle.

The Cubans, among the 125,000 who arrived aboard the "Freedom Flotilla," are being held because they allegedly admitted committing crimes in their homeland.

King Tutankhamen's tomb was discovered in 1922 by Howard Carter, member of an expedition maintained by Lord Carnarvon. Tutankhamen was a young Egyptian pharaoh for about six years during the middle of the 14th century B.C. His tomb, containing magnificent treasures, took eight years to excavate.

Owners, Players Talking More, But...

Kuhn Refuses Involvement In Strike

by The Associated Press

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he won't get involved. Three owners of major league teams would like to and five of the striking players did.

And, as the negotiations aimed at ending the baseball strike continued to show no progress, the ballparks remained empty.

On Tuesday, negotiators for management and the players met for the first time since major league baseball was struck by the players last Friday over the issue of free agent compensation. Another meeting was set for today.

Representing the owners in the talks - as he has throughout these negotiations - was Ray Grebey. Kuhn, George Steinbrenner, owner of the New York Yankees, Edward Bennett Williams, owner of the Baltimore Orioles, and Eddie Chiles, owner of the Texas Rangers, were not.

The three owners met with Kuhn and American League President Lee MacPhail Tuesday morning, apparently in hopes of getting more input into the negotiations. Williams and Steinbrenner were among the owners instrumental in averting a strike in May 1980.

They also may have been trying to get Kuhn to use his influence on Grebey and the Player Relations Committee, the owners' bargaining unit, to get them to change their approach in negotiations.

Grebey said, "I'm always in contact with all the owners" and Kuhn reiterated that he was "not a spokesman for any bargaining group."

"The emphasis should be on the two bargaining teams," said Kuhn. "That is where the solution should be found."

Meanwhile, five players joined Donald Fehr, counsel to the Major League Players Association, in the two-hour negotiating session. Marvin Miller, the union's executive director, took himself out of the talks when the strike began.

The five players - Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies, who is the National League player representative; Rusty Staub of the New York Mets; Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos; Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds, and Mark Belanger of the Baltimore Orioles - were brought up to date on the bogged down talks.

The only issue is the degree of compensation to teams losing free agents through the re-entry draft. The owners' compensation plan provides that a major league roster player as well as the amateur draft choice be awarded to any team losing a "ranking" free agent. The players say such a plan forces them to give up freedom to move from team to team won in previous negotiations and in court.

So the major leagues entered its sixth day of non-activity and the owners drew closer to collecting on their $50 millions strike insurance policy - after 153 games are cancelled, the owners begin collecting $100,000 per date. The 26 teams already are sharing in a mutual assistance fund estimated at $15 million.

Baseball fans throughout the United States have been frustrated by the first midseason strike it the sport's history.

About 200 fans demonstrated outside Memorial Stadium in Baltimore Tuesday night to protest the strike. At the rally, a petition was passed among the fans, demanding that Kuhn "take the reins away from the bumbling idiots and return a sense of sanity to the negotiations before irreparable harm is done to our national pastime."

Four Contenders Suffer Ailments Into US Open

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) - At least four potential leading contenders - including defending champion Jack Nicklaus - are suffering from a variety of ills and ailments on the eve of the first round of golf's 81st United States Open Championship.

Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller and David Graham join Nicklaus on a list of the walking wounded that would be more appropriate to a National Football League training camp than a golf course.

Nicklaus, who is gunning for a record fifth American national championship, has been troubled by a stomach ailment for three months. He checked himself into a clinic for diagnosis and treatment last week and has been given a clean bill of health.

Trevino, who beat Nicklaus in a playoff for this title in 1971, the last time the Open was played at the historic Merion Golf Club, hasn't played competitively in a month and had a brief hospital stay for treatment of a chronic back ailment.

Miller, a former Open champion and a two-time winner this season, has been troubled by a shoulder injury that, at one time, threatened to knock him out of the 156-man field. He took cortisone shots early this week and said "I'll play if I have to crawl around."

Graham, a former PGA champion and winner at Phoenix early this year, declines to discuss his physical problem but has sought medical help in the last couple of weeks.

Nicklaus, greatly relieved that his problem was of a relatively minor nature, shot a 65 in his first practice round at Merion and appears to be near the peak of his game.

He has not won this season but, at age 41, he plays a light schedule and concentrates solely on golf's majors, the U.S. and British Opens, the Masters and PGA.

His chief rivals are Ray Floyd, Tom Watson and Tom Kite, all of whom are healthy.

Floyd, enjoying the best season of his 19-year career, scored his third victory of the season last week. A former Masters and PGA champion, he has finished lower than 12th only once since January.

Junior Tour Underway

A second round will be held Thursday at Snyder Country Club. Registration will be held from 8 to 8:15 a.m. Players will tee off at 9.

The events are open to all junior golfers age 12 through 18. Entry fee is $4 per entry.

Borg Favored At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON (AP) - Bjorn Borg has been selected as a 4-5 favorite to win the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

After the Swedish superstar on Tuesday drew bearded Californian Peter Rennert in the first round of next week's tournament, bookies made Borg the odds-on favorite to win his sixth straight championship.

Other odds quoted by the bookies were 7-4 against John McEnroe, 12-1 against Jimmy Connors, and 20-1 against both Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl and American Roscoe Tanner.

As defending champion, Borg will open the tournament on the famed Center Court of the All-England Club next Monday.

McEnroe, seeded No. 2, plays American left-hander Tom Gullikson in the first round, while Connors, the No. 3 seed, starts his first-round match against fellow American Dick Stockton.

Meanwhile, the Women's Tennis Association sent an official protest to Wimbledon about the women's seeding list. It was Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia, the Australian and French Open champion, in second place behind Chris Evert Lloyd.

The top women players were upset because Tracy Austin, Martina Navratilova and Andrea Jaeger, seeded third, fourth and fifth, respectively, are all above Mandlikova in the world computer standings.

Scramble Set June 27-28 At WTC Course

Western Texas College Golf Course will host a two-man scramble June 27-28, it has been announced.

Entries are limited to the first 60 teams. Deadline to enter is June 24. Fee is $80 per team.

Shotgun starts will open the tourney each day at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

In addition, a free barbecue will be held June 27 at 7 p.m. in the college cafeteria. Guests may attend at $5 each.

Contestants may also take one free practice round between June 20 and 24.

For reservations or further information, contact Bob O'Day or Dave Foster at the Western Texas College Golf Shop, or call (915) 573-9291.

Wrigley Sells Cubs For $20.5 Million

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago Cubs, charter members of the National League who have not won a pennant in 36 years, have been sold for $20.5 million by William Wrigley to the parent firm of the Chicago Tribune.

Wrigley, a chewing gum magnate and head of the William Wrigley Jr. Co. whose father and grandfather before him owned the club, agreed Tuesday to the sale of the team to the Tribune Co., a privately owned firm with newspapers, radio and television stations and cable TV operations.

The sale was quickly approved by the club's board of directors and now needs the approval of the National League and the club's stockholders.

In announcing the sale, Wrigley said he is turning the club over to a stable and well established entity committed to keeping the Cubs in Chicago and that the Tribune Co. is financially able to meet its commitments to the shareholders of the club and the National League. Wrigley controlled 81 percent of the stock.

The Cubs are one of eight original charter members of the National League along with New York, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Hartford, Louisville and Cincinnati. The Cubs are the only team of that group to remain in the same city where they started in 1876.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported the club faces a possible $3 million loss this year. Attendance is down more than 220,000 compared to the same number of home dates last year.

A Jolting Journey In Refurbished Elegance

ABOARD THE BANDEIRANTE, Brazil (AP) — Not far into the 695-mile train trip from Brazil's gleaming capital to the industrial center of Sao Paulo, a passenger may be pardoned for thinking the journey is the closest thing to riding on the back of a Brazilian armadillo.

The Bandeirante train — named for the bold Portuguese explorers who carried flags, or "bandeiras," as they settled the Brazilian interior 200 years ago — bounces along a single pair of rails at the less-than-breathless average speed of 30.8 mph.

The journey traverses flat plains, dotted with solitary trees and huge termite mounds inhabited by wild parrots, giant snakes and, indeed, armadillos. The train passes the ramshackle houses of subsistence farmers, where faces appear in roughhewn windows along the way.

Further south, farm houses are surrounded by banana trees full of purple, unripened fruit. Cotton and coffee plantations along the way give a sense of what the American South of colonial days might have looked like.

There is an attempt at elegance on the Bandeirante train, refurbished since it last made this trip 10 years ago. There are comfortable recliner bed-seats in the first class car, and each passenger gets an individual pillow and blanket. The restaurant car serves inexpensive drinks, and the steak is reasonable.

But the reality of the trip sometimes seems like a Peter Sellers spoof.

The train has a sleeper car. But ticket sellers have warned that couples must produce their marriage certificates before paying the special passage of the equivalent of $30 dollars each. Other fares run between $15 and $20. The Federal Railway Authority later overruled the marriage requirement, but admonished that "libidinous acts" on its trains would be punished.

In the dining car, nicely dressed people are trying to sip their breakfast coffee just as the train lurches. A woman pours a drink down her decolletage. A waiter smiles sheepishly.

One traveler, a Harvard University graduate student, laughs at the mishap — until a fat man with a cane passing by loses his balance and tumbles into the student's lap.

Despite the glitches, the Bandeirante has become an instant hit. The platform of the modern train station in Brasilia is filled with passengers and curiosity-seekers. Entire families come to the station to look.

"Most of these people have never seen a passenger train before, except in the movies," said one young Brazilian rancher-owner as we gazed at children pressing their noses against the windows to get a look at the lucky passengers.

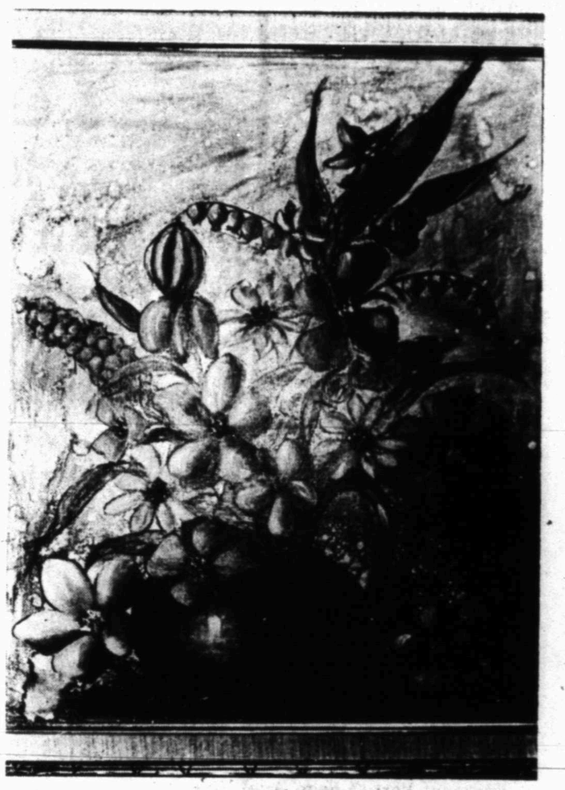

Motor vehicles have been the preferred mode of travel in this vast country, with a population of 120 million and a land mass larger than the contiguous 48 United States. A car can travel between Brasilia and Sao Paulo in about 12 hours. As the train plods along for 22½ hours, no fewer than 30 modern jetliners fly between the cities, in 85-minute flights.

The rancher said it was more convenient for him to take the train than either a bus or a plane from Brasilia to his home in Ribeirao Preto, 200 miles closer than Sao Paulo. "This trip takes two hours longer than the bus (which makes local stops), but I get a good night's sleep on the train," he said.

The Federal Transportation Ministry projects spending several billion dollars in the next decade to upgrade the nation's subpar rail lines. Despite its size, the nation has only 20,500 miles of railroads, one tenth the number of lines in the United States.

Tot's Parents To Face Trailer Park Eviction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The parents of a 6-month-old girl face eviction hearings next week because a court has upheld an "adults only" policy at their mobile home park.

Steven and Barbara Zipp lost their fight Tuesday to prevent the owner of the park from filing an eviction action against them.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Robert Weil noted that there is a specific state law giving mobile home parks the right to restrict residents to adults.

Weil said he would not "get into the constitutional arguments" and that the couple would have an opportunity to raise their objections at a regular eviction hearing in Municipal Court.

"We're not just trying to stop their eviction. We're trying to get rid of these laws that allow discrimination against children," said the Zipps' attorney, Gloria Allred.

She contends the case is the first such test of the legality of an adults-only policy in a mobile home park.

Policies banning children in apartment buildings already have been ruled legal by the state Court of Appeals in a decision to be argued before the California Supreme Court this fall.

Walter Talley, the attorney for the owners of Pt. Dume Mobile Home park and the management company, said eviction proceedings against the Zipps would begin sometime next week unless the couple decides to leave.

Talley said that after the Zipps' baby, Shifra, was born in December, 150 residents of the park signed a petition asking that the ban on children be enforced.

John Phillips of the J.R. Phillips management company said, "We've tried to cooperate with Mr. Zipp all along. He'll probably make $25,000 to $30,000 on his home when he tries to sell it. We still want to cooperate so there's no hardship to anybody."

Retirement Plan Okayed

The Scurry County Appraisal District Board of Directors last night approved a retirement plan offered by Kemper Insurance Co., to be administered through Plan Data Co. of Austin.

Board members also discussed the district's budget, but took no further action at the meeting.

Board members present for the session were Pete Hester, Ross Blanchard and Bill Hairston.

Quilters To Join Group

Quilters from the Senior Center and other senior citizens are invited to join a group tour to the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College next Monay.

Senior citizens interested in the trip are asked to contact Jean Smith, activities director, so she can arrange transportation for all who would like to go.

Few Live In Two Egg, Fla.

TWO EGG, Fla. (AP) — There's nothing rotten in the town of Two Egg, say the handful of residents who live here.

'We enjoy it," says Luther Pittman, a resident of this Florida Panhandle outpost. "People care about each other."

The town only has about 30 people, but two of them are over 100.

The town's best-known resident is 110-year-old Susie Hartfield, who lives in Two Egg with her 108-year-old sister, Tommie Faison.

According to grocery store owner Carey Lawrence, the town was given its name by traveling salesmen. During the Depression, one resident's little boys would come into town with two eggs to trade the salesmen for candy.

The first time this occurred, the salesman dubbed the place "Two Egg," and the name stuck, Lawrence says.

OBITUARIES

William Lee

Services have been scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday at Elliot-Hamil Chapel of Memories in Abilene for William E. Lee, 75, of 2125 Lillius, a former Snyder resident. He died at 7:43 p.m. Monday at Hendrick Medical Center after a long illness.

Dr. Chris Deibel of the First Christian Church of Abilene will officiate. Burial is to be in Snyder Cemetery with graveside services at 3 p.m.

Born March 2, 1906, in Nacogdoches, he moved to Abilene in 1956 from Snyder. He married Viola Sweat, June 16, 1951 in Corpus Christi.

Survivors include his wife; one son, Donald of Harlingen; five daughters; Helen Plant and Nell Thompson, both of Houston, Nona Whitworth of Waco, Oma Huckleberry of Salem, Ind., and Peggy Blair of Abilene; four sisters, Essie Harris and Clydia Johnson of Abilene, Elsie Campbell of Rotan, Maudi Mae Damoiseaux of Austin; and 13 grandchildren.

Julio Rivera

Graveside rites were held at 10 a. m. today in the Snyder Cemetery for Julio Rivera, 53, of Dallas. He died at 4 a. m. Saturday in Parkland Hospital in Dallas after suffering gunshot wounds Friday night. It was reported that his death has been ruled a homicide.

Father Thomas Jordan of our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church officiated at the rites and burial was under direction of Bell-Seale Funral Home.

Surviving are two daughters, Christina Rodriguez of Snyder and Maria Martinez of Dallas, and two sons, John Lujan and David Lujan, both of Snyder.

Officials Are Investigating Theft In Ira

The Scurry County Sheriff's Department is investigating a theft at Sweetwater Pump and Supply in Ira that officials say probably occurred Friday night.

Taken were about 30 valves: two inch plug valves and several ball valves. Value was set at $1,900. Entry to the building was initially gained by breaking out a window.

Charles Is Given Warm Welcome

NEW YORK (AP) — Royalty rubbernecks, Irish-American protesters and $300,000 worth of security were on hand to greet Prince Charles as Britain's No. 1 son flew to New York today for a 24-hour visit.

Charles was to spend his day in America on a yacht cruise with first lady Nancy Reagan and as guest of honor at a gala 50th anniversary performance of the Royal Ballet.

Charles' fiancee, Lady Diana Spencer, and Mrs. Reagan's husband, the president, were staying at home.

A level of security usually reserved for heads of state was to be in force, and even reporters were to be limited in number and kept at a distance. No interviews were to be allowed.

At least one major Irish-American demonstration was planned — at a park across the street from Lincoln Center.

Organizers said relatives of several Northern Ireland hunger-strike victims would be among thousands on hand.

While calling for moderation and restraint, New York Lt. Gov. Mario Cuomo said Tuesday that the prince's visit should not be viewed with "unalloyed pleasure."

Cuomo said Prince Charles "is a symbol of Britain's policy of maintaining and enforcing by military might an oppressive system in the northern part of Ireland."

"We should serve notice on Prince Charles and Her Majesty's government that the people of this country will not be silent before a centuries-old policy denying basic civil rights to the inhabitants of a nation conquered and colonized many years ago," Cuomo said.

His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, was in for a busy day, arriving at Kennedy International Airport shortly after 10 a.m. EDT and immediately hopping on a helicopter for a flight to the Wall Street Heliport, where official greeting ceremonies were to be held.

The chopper ride brought a worried New Yorker to Queens Superior Court on Tuesday. Michael Skeehan argued that if the crown prince's horsemanship is any guide, Charles should be kept away from the helicopter controls because he might create a hazard.

Justice Sidney Leviss denied the request for a temporary restraining order, saying he had no jurisdiction over whether Charles takes to the skies.

However, the airline's lawyer assured that the prince will "neither pilot nor co-pilot" the British Airways whirlybird.

The 32-year-old prince then was to be driven to the South Street Seaport Museum, where he and Mrs. Reagan were expected to join 60 other guests for a 90-minute cruise around Manhattan aboard publisher Malcolm Forbes' 126-foot yacht "Highlander."

After resting at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, the prince was to attend a reception at Avery Fisher Hall, then view the Royal Ballet's performance of "The Sleeping Beauty" from the state box at the Metropolitan Opera House. A grand ball was to follow at nearby Damrosch Park.

Loan Situation Changes Fast

(Editor's Note: Today's mortgages are a far cry from the loans of the past. Here, in the second of a four-part series, is a look at what's happening.)

By Louise Cook
AP Writer

The familiar mortgage with a fixed monthly income payment is becoming harder to find.

Today's loans have changing interest rates and flexible payments. They are expensive and potentially risky. You can wind up paying thousands of dollars more for your house than you ever expected. You could also wind up paying less.

The conventional mortgages have been around since the middle of the last decade, but they were unpopular with homebuyers and they generally had so many restrictions that lenders often were reluctant to offer them.

Now, however, many of the restrictions have been removed. And homebuyers find that they may have no choice; in general, lenders are no longer required to offer conventional mortgages along with the alternatives. The U.S. League of Savings Associations says only half of the mortgages being written today follow the traditional pattern.

The newest and broadest of the unconventional mortgages is the ARM--for adjustable rate mortgage, also known as AML--for adjustable mortgage loan.

"I think we're going to see the adjustable rate mortgage probably as the predominant mortgage in the future," said David Treadway, chief economist for the Federal National Mortgage Association.

The idea is simple: the interest rate on the loan is tied to one of several common economic indexes such as the interest rate on

drugs in service

What happens to national security while half the Navy's young enlisted personnel are blowing their minds with marijuana and hashish?

This is the sobering question posed by the disclosure that a random check of 1,050 sailors and airmen in San Diego, Calif., and 1,017 in Norfolk, Va., last December found more than 48 percent of them were using drugs. The numbers are not exactly new: the Defense Department reported last year that 48 percent of Navy and Marine Corps personnel had used drugs during a 30-day period, compared with 41 percent of the army, and 21 percent of the Air Force. But new or not, the figures are a cause for real concern, for they mean that a significant proportion of armed forces might be impaired or even incapacitated at any given moment of supreme national emergency.

There is documented evidence for instance, that aircraft maintenance personnel have used dope while working on jets flying from Navy bases and carriers. The Air Force has found airmen guarding SAC bombers to be high on drugs. The Army conducted a crackdown on dope use by troops in Germany last year and arrested 8,875 soldiers — half a division.

Shocking as these incidents are, they should not surprise us. A National Institute on Drug Abuse study found a year ago that 65 percent of high school seniors reported using drugs. These, of course, are the very youngsters who are recruited into the armed forces, bringing with them an acceptance of drug abuse.

Although it has been slow to acknowledge publicly the extent of the problem, the Navy has long been aware of drug abuse and has taken some steps to deal with it. Appropriately, the Navy expects to maintain higher disciplinary standards in its ranks than that prevailing on the outside. Just so.

And even though there is little hope of stamping out drug abuse in the armed services so long as it flourishes in civilian society, still the effort must be redoubled. The fight against the drug problem deserves as high a priority and as firm a commitment as the national decision to rebuild our defenses. Billions for new weapons will be spent in vain if the minds that direct them are to be spaced out on drugs.

For a nation that has the most sophisticated form of communication ever devised, it is ironic that people still don't know what to say on an elevator.

No one is denying it's tough. The subject matter has to be concise, have universal appeal, subject to interruption, and hold everyone's attention. You are also playing to a unique audience that faces in the same direction and stares spellbound at the ceiling while little red lights flick on and off. It's not your basic New Year's eve revelers.

Most elevators have the excitement of a recovery room. They're sterile little cubicles of silence where people talk in whispers (if they talk at all) and attract attention if they so much as clear their throats.

To relieve the awkwardness, music was added a few years ago, but does anyone dance? Hum? Sing along? Nope. They just stand there like prisoners awaiting liberation.

Conversational Elevator is rather new, but their are some innovators in the medium. I saw one man employ the name-dropping theory. He got on the elevator wearing a ribbon marked HOSPITALITY and a convention button, "NATIONAL PAPER CLIP ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA," and said, "Do I have this straight? Reagan draws the ticket for the winning car and THEN I introduce the keynoter."

The mystery approach is becoming quite effective. Just before a woman is to get off the elevator, she turns to her companion and says, "Are you saying I'm just another one-night stand? (I've seen the entire elevator empty out on that one.)

A little ice-breaker that never fails to get a rise out of the passengers is the Decadence Diet where the man or woman announces, "I ate everything, I drank everything and didn't move a muscle. Lost 38 pounds in four days. I know I look terrific. Three people asked me if I was sick!"

Other elevator teasers are still in the experimental stage: The E. F. Hutton Approach, where someone announces they know where you can get gas for 78 cents a gallon, and the Confidence Trick, where you whisper just loud enough for everyone to hear that you just heard the U.S. is being sold to a group of Canadians for summer condos.

I don't speak Elevator well at all. All I want to do is get on and off without my stomach growling or suffering an attack of hiccups. I honestly tried. The other day I was coming from the 28th floor to the lobby. There were two of us on the elevator. I turned to him and said, "You come here often."

He got off on the 27th floor.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (NEA)—Veteran observers of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters noticed some extraordinary changes at the union's recent quinquennnial convention here.

To be sure, it was business as usual as delegates quickly rubberstamped a long list of organizational changes proposed by their leaders and just as quickly reelected those leaders to new five-year terms. But the delegates did not act without debate or dissent as in years past.

The Teamsters — unlike all but two of the country's other 44 major unions — choose only about 10 percent of their convention delegates by direct vote at the local level. The rest attend by virtue of their positions on local or regional councils; this insures that 90 percent of the delegates represent the union's power structure.

Within the union is a small but vocal reform group called Teamsters for a Democratic Union. These rebels, though they number only a few hundred of the union's 2 million members, are making themselves a thorn in the side of the leadership through their access to the media.

A number of TDU members — including the group's president, Pete Camarata of Detroit — got themselves elected as delegates and then tried to force the convention into embarrassing public votes on controversial issues.

The few dissidents who attended past conventions complained that they could not be heard. This year the leadership under President Roy Williams made a great show of allowing all delegates to speak. The proceedings were even videotaped so that no one could later claim to have been silenced.

But although the dissidents were allowed to criticize leadership proposals and to present counterproposals of their own, they were viciously attacked by other delegates whenever they did so.

The sharpest exchange occurred on the second morning of the convention when the dissidents proposed the formation of an ethics committee to investigate charges of leadership wrongdoing. This followed a long, heated debate over a TDU proposal for direct election of union officials by the membership.

As soon as the ethics proposal was introduced, the microphone was siezed by Ed Lawson, head of the Canadian Teamsters and a TDU target in Vancouver. His denunciation of the dissidents won a thunderous reception.

A number of delegates joined in the attack. Last to speak was 72-year-old William Presser, who for many years headed the Ohio union. In the spirit of the good old days of Teamster conventions, Presser shouted into the microphone: "I'm sick of all this talk. Let's vote the goddamned thing down."

Shortly thereafter the convention recessed for lunch. Camarata was holding an impromptu news conference when he was set upon by a group of Teamsters shouting "liar" and "commie, go home." There was some pushing and shoving before convention sergeants-at-arms arrived.

Those who challenged Camarata — he called them "goons" — identified themselves later as members of the new organization Brotherhood of Teamsters and Strong Americans. Their leader, Jim Reese of Youngstown, Ohio, said the group was established to "expose the TDU for the commies they are." He added that he and seven fellow members were guests at the convention.

Reese described the group as "an educational project" of Jackie Presser, son of William Presser and head of the union in Ohio. The younger Presser is considered one of the union's most powerful leaders.

So, the 1981 convention will go down as one in which dissent was heard but not well accepted by the union power structure. It was clear that the gathering was manipulated to show the dissidents' lack of rank-and-file support. It was also clear that the leadership remained in firm control and that rebels would not soon see their reforms adopted.

To many observers, a small incident on the convention's second day exemplified how Teamsters run a convention.

The leadership made a motion to delete a section of the union's constitution. Then a delegate moved — in the form of an amendment to the deletion — to, in effect, retain the section.

This caused mass confusion on the convention floor. When Williams called for the vote, the yeas and nays seemed evenly divided. He then looked up in surprise and said: "You obviously were confused... That vote was too close."

So, the issue was again explained and voted on — and the leadership position was accepted in a roar of approval.

GROWING OLDER

Double-up on housing?

By Lou Cottin

We grew older. The kids married and moved away.

For a year or so we gloried in the privacy of our six- or seven-room houses. We enjoyed the freedom. We lived it up.

Most us us weren't rich. But we were comfortable.

A private house is not forever. Came inflation. Came the need for home repairs. Came the need for a paint job in several rooms. Came a busted heating system or a leaking roof.

We dug into our already dwindling savings. We considered the possibility of acceptable boarders.

Then we had another thought: Why not turn our one-family house into a two-family house?

Here we ran into trouble. The zoning laws in most suburban neighborhoods do not permit such a change.

We discovered that there was only one way to amend the zoning laws: to fight. We would have to join forces to demand a zoning change limited to senior citizens.

The proposal might be something like this:

1. We would turn our house into a comfortable two-family unit, perhaps with the new apartment on the second floor.

(In many cases, this would require only the addition of kitchen facilities and possibly a bathroom. The rest of the three or four rooms would be general living space.)

2. We would agree to rent the apartment only to senior citizens and to limit the amount of rent. The charge would be based on the type of dwelling and on typical housing costs in our neighborhood.

3. In our presentation to the zoning board, we could establish the advantages to the community of accepting a special variance in zoning rules for seniors only.

We might note that our doubling-up would cost the community little in extra services. For example, we don't have children whose schooling would have to be financed by the taxpayers.

The benefits of splitting our homes and renting to other seniors would go beyond the taking of rent.

It would bring to our neighborhoods people with the time to make friends and to participate in our social and religious activities.

We ourselves would select the new neighbors. Why would any of us want to rent our new apartments to people with whom we couldn't live comfortably and happily?

There would be others in the house to help if tenant or landlord lost a spouse or suffered some other tragedy. We could comfort each other. Who understands better than we, the aged, what the loss of a spouse can mean?

Furthermore, we and our renters are the kinds of people who have lived in our communities for a long time. We are the ones who paid to build the schools. We are the ones who love our towns.

We made our towns what they are today. We would like to stay in them for the rest of our lives.

There is nothing sacred about restrictive zoning laws. If more elderly people could stay in the town, they would support each other and the town itself.

Your Birthday

June 18, 1981

This coming year you should be able to make certain changes which you have been unable to make thus far. One could be quite beneficial where your work or career is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There are possibilities for gains today from joint ventures. However, what you reap may not be too large, nor is it apt to come too easily. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Companions today will reflect your treatment of them. To win their cooperation you must first show a willingness to be cooperative yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even though you've been working a bit harder than usual lately, there are still some tasks which you've failed to handle and should take care of today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When participating in fun activities today, relax and enjoy yourself. If you worry about things you feel you should be doing, you'll spoil a good time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A slow start is likely today, but your determination grows as you become more involved, especially if there is something you want completed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the ability today to determine that which is practical and that which is wishful thinking. Adhere to your logical assessments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your material prospects are encouraging today, but you could be disappointed if you expect more than you're entitled to. Strive to be grateful, not greedy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your chances for success are greater today if you are able to operate independently. Free yourself from things or persons who encumber you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sometimes it's helpful to get off alone so that one can sort things out privately. Today a little solitude will help you collect your thoughts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is a good day to spend some time with friends of long standing, especially if you haven't seen much of them lately. Let them know you still care.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Beware of tendencies today to make that which you hope to accomplish more difficult than necessary. You won't sail to success over choppy seas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Some of the choices you may have to make today may not be easy ones. Nevertheless, do what is best, not merely what is most expedient.

Chicago Couple Finds Dream Town In Ozarks

EUREKA SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Ross Sackett can see himself in this picturesque Ozarks town.

The plush Madison Avenue office is behind him. So is the sprawling home in suburban Chicago. Ahead, at age 51, is retirement in this idyllic little community.

"I've always had a peculiar approach to life," he says. "I wanted to experience as many things as I could."

The tanned face, framed by graying hair that winds around his ears and over his collar, turns to the window — and the oak and sugar maples.

"I'm sure no one could ever move here without learning a great deal more about themselves," Sackett says, puffing on the cigarettes that haven't been as easy to abandon as his lifestyle.

"I've confirmed permanently that quality in people is where you find it," he says. "People who are raised and live their lives in the affluent suburbs are permanently cursed. They never learn how people put food on the table."

Such cerebral musings are forgiven in Eureka Springs, a town of some 2,500 diverse souls separated from its nearest neighbor by 12 miles of two-lane road and a world away from other lifestyles.

Most folks here talk of beauty: the sea of green trees that turns a mountain range into rolling prairie and the sunshine that floats down from a sky the color of the blue jay.

They talk of recreation: fishing in the cool, clear streams teeming with fat trout and water skiing on the expansive, placid lakes.

Ross Sackett and his wife, Skip, like to talk about the people.

"We've never lived in a more cosmopolitan and heterogeneous town," Sackett says. "There's so much stimulation here, so many interesting people."

Scenery predates the people here. "I never tire of the beauty of this place — it's very sustaining," Sackett says.

It wasn't so long ago that Sackett was a heavyweight in the publishing world. He became president of Holt, Rinehart & Winston Inc. at age 36, added the presidency of CBS Education & Publishing Group at 37, becoming a director of CBS, and quit to take over Encyclopedia Britannica Educational Corp. in Chicago at 42.

The Sacketts fell in love with Eureka Springs during a Christmas vacation a decade ago and began buying Victorian houses here. When he was 48, Sackett shrugged off the three-piece suit that fit so well and pulled on a pair of corduroy pants, plaid shirt and hiking boots.

Then Ross, Skip, son Stuart and dogs Eloise and Schnapps moved into a graceful Victorian home, filling it with their antiques and oriental rugs. A daughter now attends college in Missouri, and two of their three older children have moved into the area as well.

The other houses they own here — a "baker's dozen," Sackett says — have become their pension. But retirement still is just another word for work. They still own a California firm that makes toys for institutions, and they've opened a small publishing firm here.

King Louis XIV revoked the Edict of Nantes and ended the partial toleration of Protestantism in France in 1658 after 91 years.

Agriculture Official Is Literally Making Hay

BOSTON (AP) — Frederic Winthrop is certainly the only top Massachusetts official who has literally made hay in the last two state administrations.

He's also the only one who can claim a governor in the family — albeit from 350 years ago, when John Winthrop was chief executive of the Massachusetts Bay Colony from 1629-34.

That makes him Frederic's great-grandfather, 14 generations removed.

The distinguished Winthrops have been Harvard professors, scientists, bankers, lawyers and farmers. Frederic, a boyish 40, is commissioner of agriculture — and the man generally credited with halting the blacktopping of Massachusetts' rich farmland.

"Land is important to me," says Winthrop in his Boston office. "I farmed all my life, and, clearly, I didn't have to. I wanted to."

Massachusetts farmers like their jobs, too, and they have an ally in the gentleman from Ipswich, whose family still owns 500 acres.

A Republican, Winthrop was sought out for his job in 1975 by Democratic Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

Democratic Gov. Edward J. King swept out Dukakis' appointees, but Winthrop is a notable holdover, one of the very few.

A Harvard graduate who majored in government, then served in the Marines, Winthrop was brought up on Turner Hill Farm, where the family raises beef cattle and pigs, and sells hay, corn, Christmas trees and firewood.

Frederic has managed the property since 1969 on behalf of his brothers and sisters — while running a state agency that regulates food quality, farm sanitation, animal health and pest control.

He occasionally hops on one of his farm tractors "just to keep my sanity" and lives in a town his ancestors founded, careful to note the Winthrops have had their farm "only" 80 years — "We moved from one end of Ipswich to the other."

What Frederic Winthrop does best is promote farming.

In 1945, Massachusetts had 2 million acres in agricultural production; by 1974, that total had slipped to 700,000 acres. Since then, the decline has been only about 100,000 acres.

What's left, Winthrop says, are the very best farmers and some of the richest, naturally irrigated land in the United States.

"People in Massachusetts have come to the gradual realization that agriculture is important," says Winthrop. "It's been our job to show them."

One problem, says Winthrop, is that "land is sometimes 'too valuable' to farm." Dirt-poor farmers suddenly realize they are sitting on land worth millions, and they sell to developers. The farmland is then lost forever.

In addition, until Massachusetts permitted relatively lenient taxing of farm land in the 1970s, many farmers were forced out by real estate levies.

And when farmers died, their families had to sell out to pay federal inheritance taxes on the land.

The high cost of farming, competition from other regions with year-round growing, and the lack of young people interested in the work also have taken a toll. In 1975, the average age of a Massachusetts farmer was 58.

Suburbanites moved to rural areas to be near farms, Winthrop says, then decided they didn't like the smell of manure.

Winthrop says they passed dozens of laws, such as banning pesticides, hindering farmers.

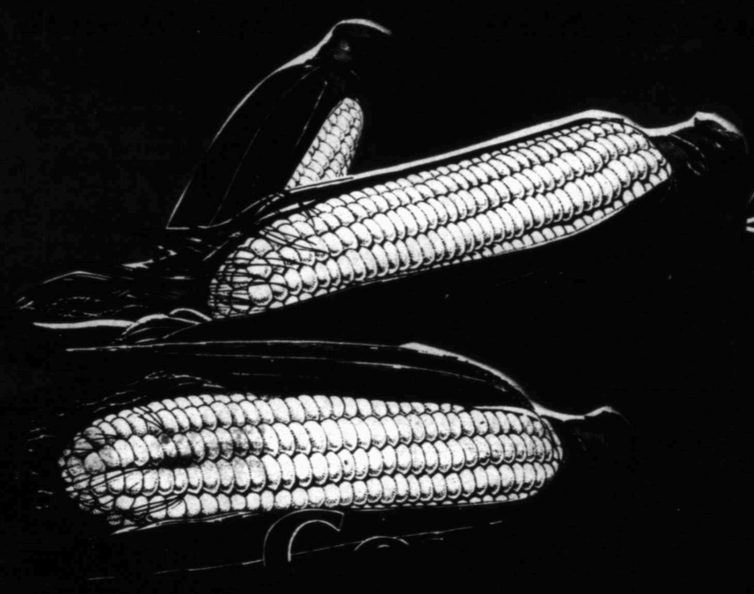

Fortunately, in Winthrop's opinion, the building boom has tapered off. The state's agriculture schools are full. And Massachusetts, under Winthrop, stemmed the tide of attrition by setting up a program enabling government to buy farmland and retain it for agriculture.

But the Winthrops' farm — five times bigger than the average Massachusetts spread — will stay in the family.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I work in the baggage department for Eastern Airlines. Today I am sending an unclaimed piece of luggage to our tracing center in Miami because there is no identification in or on it. It is filled with small antiques and personal items. I'm sure the emotional loss to the owner will be enormous. I completely unpacked the case, hoping to find a clue that would lead me to the owner. There was none. This case will join thousands of other unidentified pieces of luggage in our warehouse to be auctioned off eventually.

Abby, please tell your readers to put ID tags on their luggage (outside and in), and also on their carry-on items — cameras, eyeglasses, raincoats, books and company documents! So many beautiful unidentified items are left on airplanes and not even missed until the plane is 1500 miles away.

Travelers spare no expense to buy nice clothes, costly souvenirs and gifts on vacation trips, pack them into expensive luggage, and don't bother to label anything! I hope you will think this is important enough for your column. It's heartbreaking to see so much valuable property lost forever.

DONNA T. IN SEATTLE

DEAR DONNA: Thanks for a timely contribution to this column. (Now, where did I put my nametags!)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old, reasonably attractive girl. I live at home and work in a large office.

How can I refuse a date without hurting the man's feelings, and at the same time keep him from asking me again? If I say I am busy, he asks me again, or worse yet he'll ask for my first free evening, and then I am really stuck.

You see, I don't want to date anyone outside my own religion. I'm not that hung up on religion, but my parents are so much against it, I decided it would just eliminate lots of arguments at home if I just dated men of my own faith. My parents have been wonderful to me and I don't consider it too big a sacrifice if it will make them happy.

So, how can I politely turn down a date without appearing rude, and at the same time discourage that fellow from asking me again?

THERESA

DEAR THERESA: What's wrong with telling him the truth?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: You told ANONYMOUS in a recent column to resolve her anger, and then you quoted a line from a poem that was written by George Roemisch, a former schoolmate of mine. The quote: "Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet on the heel of the one who crushed it." That is only part of his poem titled "Forgiveness," which I am enclosing in its entirety.

Thank you, Abby, for using that particular quote, for it reacquainted me with George's poem.

And thank you, George, wherever you are.

DONNA SMITH IN THE BRONX

DEAR DONNA: Unfortunately, space does not permit printing the entire poem, but the following portion merits quoting, and I thank you for it:

"Forgiveness is the broken dream which hides itself within the corner of the mind, oft called forgetfulness so that it will not bring pain to the dreamer.

"Forgiveness is a God who will not leave us after all we've done."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Why is it considered questionable taste for a woman, other than the bride, to wear a white gown at a wedding?

TILLAMOOK, ORE.

DEAR TILLAMOOK: Because it might appear that the white-gowned woman was attempting to compete with the bride.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Sexual Harassment Ritual Filmed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The stare that lasts too long, the playful pat on the posterior, the proposition that sounds like a joke — it's all part of a ritualistic on-the-job dance that two San Francisco filmmakers call "The Workplace Hustle."

In an award-winning, 33-minute documentary that makes some men squirm and women cheer, co-producers Woody Clark and Al Brito have captured the rite of sexual harassment as it is performed in offices, factories and universities from coast to coast: a pervasive exercise in degradation that many men can't seem to take seriously and women can't take at all.

The film, narrated by Ed Asner, star of the "Lou Grant" television series, features actors in situations all too common to American workplaces, from the boss who lets a woman know she can buy a promotion with sexual favors to the waitress whose leering customer wants something "that isn't on the menu."

"We did a film about the prevalent problem, the one that's been historical, the one that's really at the guts of our society in terms of working," said Clark, an anthropologist who left academia three years ago to start Clark Communications Inc.

"From the male point of view — there's a line in the film — 'the office is the hunting grounds, the promotion becomes the bait,'" he said.

"The Workplace Hustle" also tells the story of Helen Young, a former Oregon bank executive who lost her job after refusing the advances of her boss. She sued and won.

More and more, Clark said, companies are being forced to pay damages to women who take legal action after being fired or demoted for refusing to bed down with their bosses. And corporations realize that employees who are fooling around can't be getting much done.

"The bottom line is profit. When you have sexual harassment on the job, you're interfering with work performance and people's economic productivity," he said.

And because of this growing corporate awareness, "The Workplace Hustle" — which won awards at the San Francisco Film Festival and the New York Film Festival — has found its way into training sessions of several Fortune 500 companies, among them Xerox and Hewlett-Packard, and of government agencies, including the Coast Guard and Army.

The average film of its type sells 500 copies total — Clark has sold almost that many in 10 months, at $520 a copy.

So far, no television network has chosen to air the film. Clark said broadcast executives have complained "Hustle" is too one-sided.

Clark maintains his film addresses a problem that touches many lives. "The office is where people traditionally have met and married, and that's what often happens. But sexual harassment isn't love and marriage. It's clearly something else."

That something else ranges from stares and crude jokes to physical assault, Lyn Farley, author of "The Sexual Shakedown," says in the film.

"A stare becomes sexual harassment when it begins to make the woman feel uncomfortable," Clark said. "The point we make in the film is, it's not up to (women) to draw the line. (Men) should know that it's inappropriate behavior."

Seventy percent of all women have experienced sexual harassment at least once, according to studies conducted by Redbook magazine, by the Department of Housing and Urban Development and by Ms. Farley at Cornell University. More than half of all women have left a job — or been fired — because of it, the studies indicate.

While few people deny that sexual harassment exists, there is disagreement about why and how often it occurs.

Phyllis Schlafly, for instance, told a Senate subcommittee in April that no "virtuous woman" would be subject to sexual harassment. The testimony by the outspoken opponent to the proposed Equal Rights Amendment and other feminist goals was contrary to that of most other witnesses, who agreed that sexual harassment on the job is a serious national problem.

Father Of Groom Afterthought Of 'Great American Betrothal'

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The merry, nuptial month of June 'tis the season to discard outworn artifacts: the Christmas wreath, the snowblower that never would start anyway, and the father of the groom.

The last mentioned is the afterthought of The Great American Betrothal, as out of place as a third horn on a Viking's helmet. He is at best a gofer: for ice cubes downtown or a tottering great aunt at the airport.

His counterpart, the father of the bride, gets to give her away while everyone sniffles at his sacrifice. The respective mothers splurge on new dresses, never looked lovelier and make all the ceremonial photographs. The flower girl is adorable.

The father of the groom is lucky to get the last, limp carnation for his button hole provided he still has one, the groom having stripped his closet bare.

We have mother-in-law jokes ad tedium. Father-in-law jokes? The very idea is to laugh.

He is a spear carrier without a point.

He is expected to be at the church. To hand his wife Kleenex.

His shoes may not match because the groom is standing at the altar in his dress pair.

He may attend the reception but will be banished at its climax to stand guard over the wedding presents.

Back in the prudish days of yore when a live-in meant an upstairs maid, the groom's father discreetly made himself available for consultation in the nuptial arts. In honor of the occasion he might even have offered his son his first martini as they talked it over man, finally, to man. This was a tribal, but necessary, rite.

Consider a lady I recently met at a party who confided that her parents had passed their wedding night in complete ignorance of what was expected of them. They spent the next day at the library reading up on conjugality. Their first child was born nine months plus a day after the wedding.

This, however, is 1981. Today Dad could probably learn more from Junior about the mysteries of life.

If he is a Swell Dad and the IRS didn't get there first, the groom's father might chip in for the obligatory jewelry. But he is apt to find himself walking for two weeks because his car is on a honeymoon.

In 1872 Susan B. Anthony of Rochester, N.Y., became the first American woman to vote in a presidential election, but was convicted of illegal voting and fined $100.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Plagued by hiatal hernia

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 43-year-old male. Four years ago I quit smoking and have gained 38 pounds. I'm 6 feet tall and weigh 168 pounds. For the past three years I have been bothered by a hiatal hernia and constantly burn after eating.

Should I have an operation to repair the hernia, or does the hernia repair itself with a proper diet and medications? Would losing the weight I gained relieve the hernia? I have followed all the directions of my doctor but nothing has helped much.

DEAR READER — I'm sure you understand that your hernia is through an enlarged hole in your diaphragm. We all must have a hole for the esophagus to pass through and join the stomach. A portion of the stomach slides through the hole into your chest and that is the hernia.

The pain you have is probably related to a reflux of acid digestive substances in your stomach backward into your lower esophagus. That area is not protected with a thick mucus cover, as is the stomach, and the acid causes the burning. Now, you can have a reflux and not have any hernia at all. The reflux may be related to a faulty closure mechanism at the junction of the stomach and esophagus.

You also can have a hiatal hernia and not have any reflux. Many people have such hernias and have no symptoms from them. It follows that if you have surgery and correct the hernia you may still have the reflux and the burning. No one can promise you that the surgery will solve your problem. In some cases it does help but usually conservative measures are best.

The things you should do are discussed in The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the things you can do is lose weight if you have any excess abdominal fat. Fat inside the abdomen will help push the stomach through the enlarged hole, so if you have accumulated abdominal fat, losing weight will help.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do facial exercises really help a person look younger? I have been trying to exercise the temporal muscle by joining my teeth in a firm bite, flexing my jaw and temporal muscles hard. Then I place my fingertips on the temple on each side of my face and force my temporal muscles to move in a circular motion. Instead of helping me look more youthful, could they actually make me look worse? The results have not been very satisfactory for me.

DEAR READER — About the most you can hope for is to maintain the size and strength of the muscles of the face. That does help some. The skin will stretch with age anyway, but if you let your muscles deteriorate the loose skin will look even more like an empty sack.

I doubt your routine is the best. Try to raise your eyebrows against the pressure of your fingertips. Clench your jaw and open and close while those large jaw muscles are under tension. Try to work your muscles over your cheeks and under your eyes. Whatever you find that enables you to work facial muscles against resistance is the way to do it for what good you will get. No, they will not make your face worse and may help some.

Service Academy Applications Due

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm has reminded young persons that he is now receiving applications from those interested in competing for nominations to the service academies for the class entering in July, 1982.

Stenholm advised that he will use the competitive method of selection so that all young persons meeting the necessary requirements may be considered.

The service academies are the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.; the Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.; the Air Force Academy at Colorado Sprngs, Colo.; The Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. Y.; and the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn.

To be considered, an applicant must be a U. S. citizen, must be over 17 and under 22 years of age on July 1, 1982, must be a legal resident of the 17th Congressional District, must never have been married, must be physically fit, including excellent eyesight, and must have a good overall high school record.

Stenholm stressed that political influence is not a factor in his nominations to the academies. He said he is looking for bright, active, well-rounded individuals to offer as nominees.

Intersted young persons who meet the requirements should write to Congressman Charles W. Stenholm, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. 20515, by Aug. 31. Upon receipt of a letter of interest, Stenholm will provide informations as to further steps which should be taken. Those interested should make arrangements on their own to take ACT or SAT tests.

Competition for the nominations is keen, but Stenholm assured that all young persons interested in a military career will be given an equal opportunity to compete for nomination.

This Is a House You'll Like

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

Its attractive exterior and its well designed interior plan make this three bedroom, two bath model the kid of house you will like the moment you see it.

See what a lovely welcoming appearance it has with those beautifully long, low ranch house lines, tastefully accented by the sheltered covered front porch. Inside the "goodies" continue throughout every one of its 1,597 square feet of thoughtfully planned living area.

The pleasant formal entry opens on its right to a delightful sunken living room—the entrance graced by a built-in planter and the theme of welcome established by the big, raised hearth fireplace at its far end. The wide entrance to the dining room at the back, and the view through its sliding glass doors add to the spaciousness. A handy door just inside the dining room leads conveniently to the big attached garage.

Homemakers all like the kitchen of this plan with its double pantries, U-shaped work area and pleasant dining counter bar, dividing it and the adjoining dining room. And right next to the kitchen an oversized laundry room provides welcome additional storage shelf area as well as a handy passage to the back yard.

Across the hall the main bath has a double vanity and an elegant tub in the master bedroom's personal bath. This suite, in fact, provides in all respects, a delightful retreat for the owners. Note the lovely dressing room with that built-in makeup and vanity and the big walk-in closet. And, see the sliding glass exterior doors at the back of the master bedroom. The two bedrooms at the front of the house are also strong on comfort for their occupants.

Monkeynaut To Have Birthday

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A spin in space and a climate-controlled home have done wonders for the aging Miss Baker, who is already about twice as old as her life expectancy. She'll be 24 today.

More than 500 kindergarten youngsters are to be on hand for the birthday celebration for the tiny squirrel monkey who was the first creature to survive an American space flight.

The life expectancy for squirrel monkeys is only 10 to 15 years.

Monkeynaut Baker etched her name in history on May 28, 1959, when she and a Rhesus monkey named Able journeyed to the lower edges of space.

They made the 1,500-mile, 15-minute suborbital flight in the nose of a Jupiter rocket built in Huntsville, where Miss Baker has lived at the Alabama Space and Rocket Center since 1971.

She lives in a climate-controlled chamber with her mate, Norman. The couple greets some 300,000 visitors a year, and Miss Baker gets an average of 100 letters a week. Each one is answered, with the help of a secretary.

Loan Picture Changes

U.S. Treasury Bills. When the index goes up, the interest on the mortgage does up.

An increase of one percentage point in the interest rate on a 20-year, $60,000 mortgage that started out at 14 per cent could boost the monthly payment by almost $50; a one point drop, would cut the monthly payment by the same amount.

Adjustments are made according to a fixed schedule, agreed on in advance. The interest rate might be changed as often as onec every month, for example, or as seldom as once every five or 10 years.

Different lenders have different rules covering the amount by which the interest rate on an adjustable mortgage can change. National banks, which are regulated by the Comptroller of the Currency, cannot increase or decrease the interest rate by more than two percentage points a year, Federally chartered savings and loan institutions, regulated by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, have no limit on interest rate changes. And state chartered banks and S&Ls are governed by state law.

An increase in the interest rate on an adjustable mortgage can be passed on to the borrower in one of three ways:

–The monthly payment can be increased.

–The term of the loan can be extended to a maximum of 40 years.

–The amount of the outstanding principal can be increased; when the home is sold, the owner's equity is less than it otherwise would be. The process is called negative amortization.

Suppose you take out a 30-year mortgage for $60,000 at an interest rate of 14 per cent. The monthly payment is $710.93. Total payments for 360 months, equal just under $255,935.

Assume that your index and therefore your interest rate goes up one point during the first year you hold the mortgage. A one-point increase in the interest rate in the example given would boost the monthly payment to $758.33. If your interest rate never goes up again your total payments will be $272,430–one year at $710.93 and 29 years at $758.33.

Now assume that the interest rate goes up another one point in the second year you hold the mortgage. That would boost the monthly payment to $807.26. Total payments based on a 14 per cent rate the first year, a 15 per cent rate the second year and a 16 per cent rate for the final 28 years, would be $288,870. That's over $30,000 more than you would pay if the interest rate had stayed the same as the way it does with a conventional mortgage.

Indian Dispute Finally Over

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A year-long dispute over a leaderless tribe of Comanche Indians is over after a dissident group of Indians lost its suit challenging the authority of a federally created Indian court.

Phoebe Heath and four security guards had maintained the Court of Indian Offenses had no jurisdiction over the tribe and that their illegitimate court should hear disputes and misdemeanor cases.

U.S. District Judge Lee West denied their habeas corpus motion May 29 in an action that "has legitimized our jurisdiction," Phil Lujan, prosecutor for the Court of Indian Offenses, said Friday.

"THERE'S ONE NEAR YOU"

Why gas is plentiful:

Two New Sources

There's enough natural gas in proven and existing reserves to heat America's homes and run its factories for many years. And now gas is flowing in enormous volumes from two new sources: the tight basins and the deep basins right here in Texas and Oklahoma. Experts believe each of these sources could double the nation's proven supply. And our pipeline system will let us deliver your share of this gas efficiently and economically. It's another reason to be glad you're served by the Lone Star system.

Gas. It's plentiful, efficient and right for the times.
