General election set across U.S. Tuesday

County voters eye 3 contested local races

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Deaf Smith County residents will go to the polls Tuesday to cast their ballots in the general election for national, state and county offices.

Early voting ended here Friday with a total of 2,001 persons taking advantage of that option, plus 173 mail ballots, reported County Clerk David Ruland. The early vote was the second largest recorded here, with a record 2,600 being cast in 1992.

Polls will open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday at the regular polling places in the county.

While the national presidential race is in the spotlight, other important state and county office holders will be decided in the general election. Texans will elect a U.S. Senator and the area 19th Congressional District will elect a U.S. Representative.

The offices of state railroad commissioner, state representative, and justices for the Texas Supreme Court and the Court of Criminal Appeals are also on the ballot.

Deaf Smith County residents will be asked to pick candidates in three contested races -- Sheriff, Precinct 1 County Commission and Precinct 3 County Commission -- as well as select their state representative, U.S. Representative, U.S. Senator and President and other officeholders.

In the sheriff's race, incumbent Democrat Joe C. Brown Jr. is opposed by Republican Mike Morrison and write-in hopeful Robin Ruland.

Incumbent Precinct 1 Commissioner Tony Castillo, a Democrat, is running against Republican challenger Wayne Betzen.

Incumbent Precinct 3 Commissioner Troy Don Moore, a Democrat, is running for re-election against Republican challenger Dan Hall.

In the only other county race, Margaret Del Toro, a Democrat, is running unopposed for re-election as County Tax Assessor-Collector.

Pct. 1--Aikman School
Pct. 2--Courthouse, Room 200
Pct. 3--Hereford Junior High
Pct. 4--Hereford Community Center
Pct. 5- Palo Duro Baptist Church
Pct. 6--Ford Community building
Pct. 7--Dawn Community building
Pct. 8--Walcott School
Pct. 9--Simms Community House

Hereford businesses to hold Open Houses

More than 20 Hereford merchants and businesses will hold Holiday Open Houses today(Sunday) to mark the beginning of the pre-Christmas season. Here, Georgia Sparks applies final touches on decorations at Terry's Floral & Designs. City defends sales tax law for economic development

By WILLIAM SEELEY
Staff Writer

In 1989 voters across Texas gained the option to impose a local sales and use tax on their communities to finance economic development.

This economic development sales tax, as it is better known, was almost immediately put to the people of Hereford. It was defeated.

However, city leaders saw a real possibility for local improvement and kept the idea alive. And, in 1994 residents again cast their votes to make Hereford a "half-cent" sales tax town.

Under the Development Corporation Act there are two statutes of eligibility: 4A and 4B.

"A city in a county with a population of less than 500,000 may impose the tax under (section) 4A if the new combined local sales tax rate would not exceed 2-percent and the city is not part of a rapid transit authority," according to a report by John Sharp, Comptroller of Public Accounts.

A city with 4A eligibility located in a county with a population of 750,000 or more is eligible for the tax under section 4B, but there is an additional requirement, Sharp reported.

"The current combined sales tax rate cannot exceed 7.25-percent at the time of the election. A city with a population of 400,000 or more that is located in more than one county and has a combined sales tax rate that does not exceed 8.25-may also enact the 4B tax."

As a 4A city, the Hereford Economic Development Corp. -- the municipal corporation set up to administer the use of tax proceeds -- has collected checks since March, 1995 and now has assets exceeding $350,000, according to Mike Hatley, HEDC Executive Director.

HEDC is limited by law in spending the money. "The 4A tax is primarily intended for manufacturing and industrial development ," the Sharp report states.

Four-A cities may use the money raised by this sales tax to acquire land, buildings, equipment facilities and improvements in four areas:

- manufacturing and industrial facilities, recycling facilities, distribution centers, small warehouse facilities;
-commercial development and expansion in blighted or economically depressed areas;
-a general aviation business service airport that is an integral part of an industrial park; and
- port-related facilities to support waterborne commerce.

(See SALES TAX, Page 2A)

Hereford to consider 4A sales tax support resolution

The City of Hereford, like more than 300 others across the state, charges an economic development sales tax. The Hereford Economic Development Corp. since March, 1995 has collected more than $350,000, one-half-cent at a time. Some cities have proposed eliminating the tax. On Monday, the City Commission will consider passing a resolution in favor of maintaining the economic development tax.

Open houses, style show, Fun Breakfast scheduled

The annual pre-Christmas season gets underway today(Sunday) as many local businesses hold "Holiday Open Houses" to offer gift ideas, and The Brand publishes its annual "Home for the Holidays" pre-Christmas shopper section.

The special section also includes information on events of the season -from the "Eat-Your-Heart-Out-Neiman-Marcus Preview Night and Fun Breakfast on Wednesday and Thursday, to the special style show Thursday night, and the Senior Citizen's Festival of Trees.

The annual Holiday Fun Breakfast will be held Thursday beginning at 6:30 a.m. with co-emcees Charlie Bell and John Stagner directing the activities, including games, drawings for prizes, local community announcements, introduction of new Chamber members, and the presentation of a Bull Chip award.

Local merchants will sponsor the event and display gift ideas in the old ballroom at Hereford Community Center before and after the breakfast.

Since there is so short a time for residents to browse at the breakfast, the Chamber will again hold a Preview Night Wednesday from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Entertainment and door prizes will be offered and Santa Claus will make a special appearance.

The special Christmas lighting and decorations for the downtown area will not be turned on at the Preview Night event as in the past. The lighting and decorations are not in place, so this event will take place Dec. 2 when the City of Hereford holds a special tree lighting ceremony at Mother's Park.

The Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a Winter Fashion and Christmas Style Show Thursday night, beginning at 6:30 at Hereford Country Club.

Local merchants and models will be displaying the latest styles for Christmas lists. Dinner is included in the $8 ticket, which can be purchased at the C of C office.

All the special Chamber events are open to the public.

Plans discussed to bring small universities into Tech system

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - A variety of plans are being discussed to bring several small state universities into a new Texas Tech University System, the San Angelo Standard-Times has reported.

The subject of a new state university system has been circulating through the hallways of the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board and the administrative offices of many state campuses, the newspaper reported in a copyright story in its Friday editions.

Texas Tech Chancellor John Montford confirmed this week that his school's board is pushing the discussion but cautioned that Tech is not ready to take any proposals to the Texas Legislature.

"Texas Tech wants to be a big player in higher-education initiatives for the future," Montford said. "We want parity for West Texas. We will enter into discussions with anyone who is interested. But we haven't done so yet."

James Hindman, president of Angelo State University, one of the schools said to be a likely part of the Tech system, said he has heard of several different scenarios but has not been approached by anyone from Tech.

"At this point, I don't have an opinion about it," he said. "Whatever the Legislature does, obviously we'll make it work.

The newspaper quoted sources it didn't identify as describing the following scenarios:

- Tech would form a West Texas university system encompassing some schools from the Texas State University System and others outside the system, such as Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls, the University of Texas-Permian Basin in Odessa and the University of Texas-El Paso.

- Tech would form a system to include Angelo State in San Angelo and Sul Ross State University campuses in Alpine and Uvalde.

- Creating a Tech system to include all Texas State University System schools, including Lamar University campuses in Beaumont, Orange and Port Arthur; Sam Houston State University in Huntsville; and Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos.

Similar proposals arose in the early 1990s, prompted by a Higher Education Coordinating Board report listing several options for changing the way universities are governed.

Among those options was grouping universities into systems by region. None of the options match proposals currently being circulated.

Not everyone likes the ideas.

"I'm not sure why it would be

Developer killed in car bomb blast

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - A prominent real estate developer was killed when a bomb planted in his car exploded in a country club parking lot, scattering debris for hundreds of yards, authorities said.

"We had an assassination in the parking lot," Pima County Sheriff Clarence Dupnik said.

Gary Lee Triano of Tucson died instantly Friday night when his 1989 Lincoln Town Car exploded moments after a witness saw him talking with another man near the vehicle.

The explosion tore off the roof of the car, scattered debris up to 200 yards, and sent the windshield into a swimming pool behind the country club, Dupnik said.

The bomb exploded beneath the car's right, front passenger area, the sheriff said. No motive was known.

Family members had gathered at the country club for a surprise birthday party for Triano, who had been playing golf and would have turned 53 on Wednesday, Dupnik said.

The car was not registered to Triano, but his family said he had been driving it, sheriff's Sgt. Michael G. O'Connor said.

A man who was sitting in a car next to Triano's was treated at a hospital for a neck injury and cuts and released. Keisho Kudo, 25, said he noticed two men dressed in golf clothes approach Triano's car. The men, who appeared to be in their 50s, greeted each other warmly and talked for a few minutes, he said.

"They looked like golf buddies who hadn't seen each other in a long time," Kudo said.

Kudo said Triano got in the car, turned the key and it blew up.

The FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were called in along with the Violence Task Force of the U.S. attorney's office. A dozen federal agents were at the scene Friday night.

Triano, whose developments included industrial parks and strip malls, also had ties to local gambling operations and was reportedly trying to launch casinos abroad at the time of his death.

In 1993, Triano was a partner in Bingo Partners Inc., which oversaw management of Papago Bingo in exchange for 40 percent of the net profits. He filed for personal bankruptcy the next year, listing $40 million in debts stemming from a failed venture with Papago Bingo and court judgments against him.

Mayor proclaims Key Club Week

Mayor Robert Josserand on Friday proclaimed the week of November 3-10 as Key Club week, recognizing the value of Key Clubs in molding young men into community leaders through its emphasis on community service, leadership development and organizational skills training. SPS requests rate increase Southwestern Public Service Company filed a request Friday with the Public Utility Commission of Texas for increases in the "fuel-cost recovery" portion of electricity bills.

Escalating prices of natural gas used to generate electricity are the primary cause of the request, according to a company official.

The average Texas residential customer of SPS, using 800 kilowatt hours of electricity a month, would see a bill increase of about $1.96 on the monthly bill from January through June 1997, said Gerald Diller, SPS vice president. However, beginning in July, the increase would drop to 79 cents monthly.

"Even with this fuel cost increase," Diller said, "SPS residential rates will continue to be the lowest among all the investor-owned utilities in Texas."

The requested increase consists of two components, he explained. One component is an under-recovery of actual fuel costs over the past nine months, which would be recovered in the January-June period.

The second component is the expected ongoing increase in prices of natural gas. The trend in prices for natural gas has been "significantly upward during the past year, and is expected to continue upward," Diller said. "We negotiate the lowest fuel costs we can."

Diller emphasized, "Despite fuel-cost changes, we are determined to keep our rates low, and we have been successful. We have dropped our prices 20 percent in the past 11 years. SPS rates are 20 percent below the national average."

Lotto winner claims $30M

AUSTIN (AP) - The final game of the World Series proved lucky for more than just the New York Yankees last week.

Doyle Mitchell, of Wylie, got to celebrate the Yankees' victory and the Texas Lottery's fourth birthday by winning the $30 million jackpot drawn on Oct. 26.

"Doyle was watching the Yankees beating the (Atlanta) Braves on the World Series ... but we made sure to switch to Channel 8 for just a minute to get the numbers," said Mitchell's wife, Nancy.

Mitchell had bought 30 Quick Pick tickets for the $30 million drawing to help honor the lotto's birthday.

While her husband watched the Yankees celebrate their win, Ms. Mitchell went through the tickets.

"I told him, 'Doyle, you got all six numbers,' and just like nothing, he told me 'I know it,' " Ms. Mitchell said.

But the couple had to wait until the morning to confirm the numbers with the local newspaper. That is when they found out they had the lone winning ticket for the jackpot.

"We plan to take care of our obligations, help our family members and do good with the money," Ms. Mitchell said. "And I don't think we'll be playing anymore. We've had our big break, now it's someone else's turn."

Fruit drinks pulled from shelves after E. coli outbreak hits victims

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Forty-nine people were confirmed or suspected sickened by E. coli in three states as Odwalla Inc. finished pulling some of its natural fruit drinks from shelves throughout the West.

Federal investigators combing grounds at an Odwalla production facility in Visalia, Calif., about 200 miles southeast of San Francisco, had no word Friday on the exact cause of the E. coli outbreak, the company said.

The victims were sickened by the bacteria found in the feces of animals that can cause diarrhea, dehydration and even kidney failure.

Most of the cases were in Washington; a smaller number were in California and Colorado.

None of the victims were gravely ill, although one young California girl was listed in critical but stable condition Friday night.

Odwalla Inc., based in Half Moon Bay, recalled all of its apple-based juices in seven Western states and Canada after it was linked to 17 E. coli cases in Washington state.

Carrot juice products were recalled also because they were made at the same plant as the apple juice products.

Odwalla has always emphasized its natural approach to foods, and the outbreak stunned the company.

"There are no words to describe how concerned we are, how shaken we are by it," said D. Stephen Williamson, the company's chief executive officer.

The source of the contamination may be feces from cows or deer that frequent apple orchards used by Odwalla.

Odwalla said it uses only tree-picked apples, rejecting those that have fallen on the ground. The fruit is washed and scrubbed extensively at the plant before processing, said Sydney Fisher, an Odwalla spokeswoman.

Another possible source of contamination could have come from a fruit picker coming into contact with fecal material and spreading it to apples.

Pasteurization, a heating process, kills the bacteria, but Odwalla claims it also diminishes the taste and nutrients of its products.

The benefits of having a natural drink exact a high price, warns Dean Cliver, professor of food safety at the University of California-Davis.

"Drinking unpasteurized milk is like playing Russian roulette - and drinking unpasteurized cider is like bungee jumping," Cliver said.

Juices that have been recalled include Odwalla Apple Juice, Blackberry Fruit Shake, Mango Tango, Super Protein, Strawberry Banana Smoothie, Raspberry Smoothie, C-Monster, Strawberry C-Monster, Mo' Beta, Femme Vitale, Superfood, Serious Ginseng, Deep in Peach, Carrot Juice, Organic Carrot Juice and Vegetable Cocktail.

Man charged for holding teenager at gunpoint near home, bus stop

HOUSTON (AP) - A white man accused of holding a 16-year-old black student at gunpoint has been charged, authorities said Friday.

Leon Denina Jr., 53, remained free on $500 bond after being charged with deadly conduct, a Class A misdemeanor.

He surrendered Thursday in connection with the Oct. 25 episode, which occurred in front of his home in a Lake Conroe subdivision northwest of Willis.

The teen-ager's mother says the youth apparently was confronted only because he is black.

"He (Denina) had a sawed-off shotgun and made him lie down in the street," said the mother, who asked to remain unnamed.

Michael A. Hatcher, chief deputy constable in Precinct 1, said the teen is an A student and "a very nice kid from a very nice family."

Denina could not be reached for comment by the Associated Press Friday.

He faces a fine of up to $4,000 and a year in jail.

The teen told investigators he was waiting at a bus stop in front of Denina's residence about 6:30 a.m. when he saw Denina drive down his driveway and put out trash.

The youth, who was holding his books in a plastic bag because of the rain, said Denina then drove into the street and put his car lights on him for several minutes before driving back to his house.

Moments later, Denina came out with a shotgun and ordered him to hold up his hands, the teen said. Ordering him to lie down, Denina asked him why he was there and asked him to name some neighbors.

After naming some people he knew in the subdivision, the teen told Denina he had to get on the school bus that was approaching.

"You ain't going nowhere, boy," he quoted Denina as replying. Denina eventually let the boy get on the bus.

Small rock to blame in fighter jet crash that killed 4-year-old boy

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) - A small rock or piece of concrete got sucked into a fighter jet's engine before it took off, causing a crash in a residential neighborhood that killed a 4-year-old boy, the Air Force said.

Inadequate pilot training, however, also contributed to the July 11 crash that also left the boy's mother severely burned, Col. Mark A. Welsh II said at a news conference Friday.

The pilot ejected safely.

The single-engine F-16 Fighting Falcon had fled Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., to avoid Hurricane Bertha, and developed engine problems two hours later as it approached a base in Florida.

"The root cause of that engine failure and of this accident was damage to an engine fan blade caused when a piece of rock or concrete entered the engine inlet and hit the leading edge of the blade, probably on the ground prior to takeoff," said Welsh, who headed the investigation.

The plane, trying for an emergency landing at Pensacola Regional Airport, instead skidded across a street and slammed into a home more than a mile away. Sean Cannon died and his mother, Robbin Cannon, 31, was injured.

The pilot, Maj. Frederik Hartwig of St. Paul, Minn., ejected when the plane was only about 200 feet from the ground and escaped serious injury.

Crash investigators discovered an engine fan blade had broken, and three sheared-off pieces were recovered from the wreckage. A laboratory analysis found sand-like particles embedded in the area where a nick was found in the blade, indicating it had been struck by a rock or piece of concrete.

The object must have been very small because it caused no further damage and the blade did not break immediately, Welsh said.

Community meeting set to discuss road conditions

El Hormiguero Project will hold a meeting Sunday for persons interested in discussing issues dealing with road conditions in the surrounding area.

The meeting will be held at San Jose Community Center at 3 p.m. Sunday(today).

El Hormiguero Project is made up of a group of communities who work together on issues concerning road conditions, water supplies, sewage problems, and adequate housing conditions, according to Lydia Villanueva of Hereford.

Most of the residents live in colonias surrounding Hereford and Dimmitt and own 5 to 10 acres of land, but some also live in Hereford.

Villanueva said several city and county officials will attend, as well as representatives from the Panhandle Regional Planning Committee, and a representative from Campaign for Human Development(CHD) from Washington, D.C.

CHD is a sponsoring organization that has been in existence for 25 years in helping build community-based organizations.

SALES TAX

principal or interest on debts that existed before the corporation was created.

So far HEDC has been patient and watched its holdings grow, without making any major capitol expenditures. According to Hatley, $150,000 is invested in certificates of deposit at the local bank and $150,000 is invested in CDs at the local branch of an Amarillo bank.

Mayor Robert Josserand recently commended Hatley for his prudence.

"You haven't brought a thousand jobs, or even 10 jobs to Hereford," Josserand said at a recent HEDC board meeting. "But, by the same token you haven't blown a hundred thousand dollars either."

More than 300 cities and towns across Texas now have the 4A and 4B taxes.

A number of cities that adopted the half-cent sales tax have been belittled by non-4A cities for using the tax money to lure in-state companies from one town to another .

Cities like Dallas and Richardson have made complaints about the practice, sometimes called "scavenging," or "metro-plex raiding." Those cities say the practice is not in the spirit of the tax, and 4A cities should place their recruiting focus on out-of-state business.

A group of eight economic development corporations in the Dallas area have formed a coalition to protect their interests where the tax is concerned, and to actively oppose proposed legislation that would limit the use of the tax or do away with it altogether.

Four-A cities claim that the tax was created to give them a source of revenue for economic development. They point to the fact that larger cities have the financial might to further economic development through funds generated from existing tax bases.

Proposed legislation is a long way from actual law.

And as Hatley points out, more than 300 Texas towns, including Hereford, are not going to be taken lightly by lawmakers.

No matter what happens in Austin in January, 1997, Hereford city l eaders are still strong supporters of the tax.

On Monday the City Commission will consider passing a resolution "supporting the creation and participation in a coalition of cities to support and defend the 4A and 4B sales tax."

The resolution states "that the City of Hereford supports the creation of and authorizes participation in a coalition of sales tax and sales tax eligible cities to work cooperatively to defend the sales tax and other measures utilized by Texas cities to encourage economic development."

The resolution lists three purposes and goals:

- actively oppose legislation that reduces local control of the 4A and 4B sales tax receipts;
- monitor tax abatement legislation and oppose any further restriction upon municipal sales tax authority; and
- identify and promote "best practices" resulting from economic development experiences.

TECH

good for Tech or good for Angelo State," said state Rep. Rob Junell, D-San Angelo and a Texas Tech graduate. Creating a new system "just detracts from taking care of your own campus."

He predicted that if a merger did happen, it wouldn't come for a few years, and he would only support it if university administrators and the two Texas State University System regents from San Angelo do.

One of the regents, Ray Zapata, said he hadn't heard anything about the idea and didn't know whether he would support it. But colleague Pollyanna Stephens said she would oppose it.

"Texas Tech doesn't even have a system right now, and for them to mess with a system of eight schools that's so strong seems a little strange to me," she said.

Angry man slugs police horse, gets arrested

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) _ Avery Fernando Gray Jr. was so angry over the arrest of a teen-age drug suspect that he allegedly slugged the nearest law-enforcement figure _ Otis the police horse.

Gray, 21, was charged with assaulting a police animal and obstructing justice. The teen-ager was charged with possession of cocaine with intent to distribute. His name was not released because of his age.

Police said a mounted patrol officer spotted the 16-year-old and another person approaching cars and suspected they were selling drugs. The officer and Otis went after the pair, who fled. The boy was captured after a brief chase.

For 100 years candidates have remembered the Alamo, still do

By CINDY TUMIEL
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO - The Alamo is the stuff of which legends and presidential campaigns are made.

President Clinton won't be breaking new ground Saturday morning when he campaigns in front of Texas' most famous historical monument with a troupe of Hollywood celebrities and political bigwigs.

The Shrine of Texas Liberty, where outnumbered and outgunned Texans gave their lives in a battle for independence, has been a beacon for presidents and presidential wannabes almost since the battle ashes cooled in 1836.

Benjamin Harrison was the first president to make a stop during the early 1890s, according to historical accounts at the Alamo library maintained by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas.

Calvin Coolidge, whose 1923 presidency apparently preceded advance men and spin doctors, stood some hairs on end during his visit to the Alamo by asking, "What is it for?"

John Kennedy, campaigning there in 1960, reportedly asked if he could leave through the back door to escape the throng out front, setting himself up for that oft-told story of how there is no back door at the Alamo and that's why so many died there during the 1836 battle.

Since the advent of television, especially, the familiar facade of the chapel has been a backdrop for those who are trying to connect with history, folklore and voters' hearts in one fell swoop.

"If you want to touch Davy Crockett and John Wayne, you do something in front of Alamo," said Jim Lunz, a longtime Republican political operative who remembers Dwight Eisenhower riding into town on a train a few weeks before his 1952 election. "It's better than a balloon drop. It looks great in front of a TV set."

Just about every president and presidential contender since Eisenhower has made a campaign swing through San Antonio for a photo op in front of the Alamo, Lunz said.

"When you see it in the national press or on television, you instantly know it's Texas," said Richard Gambitta, a University of Texas at San Antonio political science professor. "It's got all this symbolism throughout the United States of liberty and freedom and courage."

The Alamo often is used as a symbolic rallying point, Gambitta noted; symbolism Clinton likely will use as he tries to become the first Democrat since Jimmy Carter in 1976 to win Texas' electoral votes.

"The success of the event really determines how Texas will go," Gambitta said. "If South Texas turns out, Clinton could win the state."

But invoking the heroes of the Alamo hasn't always brought political success.

Pat Buchanan posed first in a Stetson, then switched to a coonskin cap, and still lost the GOP presidential nomination in 1992. His visit closely followed one by Democrat Paul Tsongas, who skipped the headgear but didn't do any better in winning his party's nod.

Besides Clinton, the only other presidential contender to remember the Alamo in 1996 was Steve Forbes, who appeared at the sacred battleground in March for a failed attempt to revive his sagging GOP primary run. Less than a week later, he ended his presidential bid after a lackluster showing in the Super Tuesday primaries.

But an Alamo visit by Clinton, who avoided the military draft during the Vietnam War, is raising some hackles among Republicans who question his character and integrity.

"I'm sure that there have been lots of people who stood in front of it that wouldn't have stood behind the walls in 1836," Lunz said. "But it's a prop, and if there's one person who knows how to use a prop, it's Bill Clinton."

Gambitta said the Alamo is an appropriate symbol for Clinton to use in remembering the personal freedoms the nation enjoys.

"Clinton really is using it as a symbol of the freedom of the country and that's fair," he said. "He is for various freedoms this country has fought very hard for."

Where deposits get reinvested into local loans.

But to whom? And where? To us, these are very important questions because the dollar you deposit at Hereford State Bank is loaned to a person or business right here in the area. Not to someone halfway across the country.

That loan could be the seed money for a business that employs the person -- who buys the vacant house on your street -- which boosts the value of your house and makes your street safer.

The response to my "what if" Ross Perot won the presidential race didn't go over very good with several readers. Okay, I was just dreaming and I realize a vote for Perot probably helps Bill Clinton.

Character may not mean much in California or in the big metropolitan areas, but I can't help but think it makes a difference in conservative rural communities all across the nation.

The question voters face on election day is not just between the Democrat or Republican parties, but a moral course for our future as a nation. Are Americans willing to return a President to office who has repeatedly betrayed both his public and private trust?

The list of betrayals begins in Arkansas. The Whitewater land scheme, defrauding federal loan programs, evading campaign finance laws, using public employees for personal business, sexually harassing female employees, and pardoning convicted drug dealers are but a few of Clinton's violations of public trust.

The pattern continued in Washington, D.C. Public power was misused in purging the White House travel office, over 900 FBI files were illegally used, Congressional subpoenas have been ignored, laundered money from overseas was used to finance the re-election campaign, and more than 30 of his close friends, advisors and staff currently are in jail, on trial or under indictment.

By all measures, the Presidency of Bill Clinton is morally bankrupt. We, as a people, should not accept these moral failings on election day.

A reader from out of town wrote to protest our policy of not publishing letters to the editor which endorse or support specific candidates. "You play partisan politics," she declared, after claiming her letter was "not political, it's just the facts!"

Our primary reason for this policy is that we're in the business of selling advertising. Candidates and their supporters could simply write a free letter to the editor if we did not have such a policy.

Another reason is that too many "form letters" show up with people's names signed to them. There's no way we could print all of them. We've also looked over some of these political letters in other papers, and they just mirror the propaganda that the national political parties are putting out--much of it over the FAX machine.

Letters to the editor are an important part of our paper. How many TV or radio stations quote from letters? And even if they did, what sense of permanence is there?

Letters from our readers let us know what they think about local issues, how they feel about their community, and what's important to them. The cornerstone of a community newspaper is local news. That's what most of our letters to the editor are about. We try to be open and accommodating with our letters' policy.

An AP news analysis

Perot takes harder line on Clinton

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Bob Dole's campaigners are trying to get people to tune Ross Perot in when he denounces President Clinton - and tune him out when he asks for their votes.

Those mixed messages are their last option for dealing with the Perot factor, after the third man in the race snubbed as inconsequential a bid by Dole for his endorsement.

By seeking it, the Dole campaign may have boosted Perot's flat ratings at Republican risk. The episode certainly helped him reclaim a featured spot on the political stage near the end of a campaign in which his standing lags far behind his showing four years ago.

Since spurning Dole's overture, he's been using that role for an ethics attack against Clinton, a tougher version of what the Republican nominee has been saying. Obviously, that is to Republican liking.

What's not is Perot's vow to campaign intensively to the bitter end to get votes for his Reform Party candidacy. Dole has figured from the outset that Perot votes could only hurt his cause. That is why he insisted that Perot be excluded from the presidential campaign debates. Perot said at the time that would poison the attitudes of independent voters against the whole GOP ticket.

So it was an unlikely, and awkward move for the Dole camp to seek Perot's withdrawal and endorsement less than a month later. And what was to have been a secret overture by campaign manager Scott Reed leaked publicly even before it was made, and rejected, last Wednesday.

Democrats called it a desperate move, and there were Republicans who thought so, although they wouldn't say so openly. The Dole campaign defended the move, chairman Donald Rumsfeld saying it wasn't embarrassing, it was just politics.

Reed said in an NBC interview that he'd discussed the question of Clinton ethics with Perot; he avoided talking about the endorsement request. Perot wouldn't discuss it, saying the Dole people are the ones who talk.

He said he is in the race to stay, and intends to campaign to the bitter end.

So much for Dole. But since that rebuff, Perot has been on Clinton's case, saying that a second term would head the nation to a second Watergate.

"How could you even consider voting for a candidate that has huge moral, ethical and criminal problems facing him, as our country has problems to solve," he said at the National Press Club Thursday, the same appearance at which he said the Dole overture was weird and totally inconsequential.

Perot says Clinton "may be forced out of office" if he is re-elected.

That's a harder line than Dole has taken, so the Republican nominee now quotes the Reform Party candidate against Clinton.

Perot said on NBC Sunday that if Clinton and Dole were the only choices, he thinks Americans would pick the Republican. A president must have a strong moral-ethical base, Perot said, because as commander-in--chief he can order U.S. forces into combat.

"I don't comment on the other candidates," he said as he did, "but certainly Senator Dole understands combat. He has certainly paid a terrible price and if you were limited to those two, you'd certainly, I think every American would pick him because he understands what he's doing. The other candidate has no experience in military or in combat."

Dole called that very positive.

But Perot says he's not tacitly endorsing Dole.

"I am not endorsing Senator Dole. I am not withdrawing for Senator Dole," Perot said Monday on CNN.

Clinton, comfortably ahead in the public opinion polls to the frustration of both Dole and Perot, leaves it to his aides to talk about his rivals.

Mike McCurry, his press secretary, said the voters have watched Clinton as commander-in-chief and "from everything we know they are satisfied with his performance."

While Dole welcomed what he said was Perot's judgment that "I'm the better choice." That's half the message. The other half is not to heed Perot when he asks for votes for himself. It wastes a vote, the Dole people say, a line that angers Perot. He was excluded from the debates on grounds he has no realistic chance of winning. The Perot campaign then argued that on that basis, Dole should have been excluded, too.

Dole told CNN that he had talked to Perot a couple times in the past week, and still wishes the Reform candidate would endorse him. "Without Perot in it, in some of the key states we do much better," he said.

A vote for Perot is a vote for Clinton, Dole said Friday in Dallas. "If he doesn't want Clinton he ought to say vote for Bob Dole."

He isn't. He's still saying vote for Ross Perot.

Buddy Poppy Day

Is the sick and disabled Vietnam veteran the forgotten man? The war that he fought in has been dubbed "America's most unpopular war," but he fought and today he is still fighting. Fighting to regain his health, his strength and some of his earning power. And, he seems to have lost some of his confidence in his fellow citizens.

Have Americans grown so callous that they can turn their backs on these men who have given so much? The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States don't think so. The VFW is pledged to serve the disable and needy veteran and to aid and comfort his family.

Combat veterans themselves, the members of the VFW and their wives, mothers, sisters and daughters who make up its Ladies Auxiliary, have met the challenge by lending a helping hand in the battle against doubt, boredom, bitterness and despair. In Veterans Hospitals, at the seats of government and in the community, you will find VFW volunteers and trained staff members at work in behalf of all veterans.

A grateful government has provided hospitalization where needed and disability compensation to those with impaired earning power, but no governmental action, regardless of how well meaning, can provide the personal touch and the individual understanding that eases fears and eliminates despair.

The VFW and its Ladies Auxiliary have such a program, but funding is needed. While the VFW raises most of its money from its own members, the public is afforded the opportunity to help through the purchase of a "Buddy Poppy.

This year the Buddy Poppy Sale will be held Friday, Nov. 8. When a VFW volunteer offers you a poppy, please contribute generously and wear your Poppy proudly.

Memories of 'first freeze' linger

For weeks, everyone I know prayed for a freeze, one that would put to rest all of the allergens that cause red eyes, runny nose, sneezing and general discomfort. Then, our prayers were answered - the frost came. But with it were snow, freezing rain, high winds and other discomforts of the cold weather.

It all reminds me of the olden days when it seemed we went from summer to winter overnight. We looked forward to the snows. Sometimes it even snowed so much that school was canceled a day or more because buses couldn't negotiate muddy country roads.

One year, the snows started in earnest before Thanksgiving and continued all the way into the next year. The first snow found all of us unprepared. My mother was taking her daughters and some neighbor children to school that morning, not thinking that the drifts already had created some real hazards.

She found one of the problems, and into the ditch we went. The blizzard conditions were beyond description. We were able to get out of the car and walk about 50 feet to a home. We were welcomed enthusiastically. Their only child grown and off at war, the couple seemed delighted to have some young folks in their living room.

The man of the house was a piano player whose skills and talents were usually displayed on Sunday mornings in the Methodist Church, just across the street. He enjoyed teasing and for years he had pinned an assortment of names of states on me, always carefully omitting the correct one. He was as adept with honky-tonk music as he was with church hymns. All day long, he entertained us with his piano-playing, from "Beer Barrel Polka" to "Onward Christian Soldiers."

My mother and the woman of the house prepared lunch. For the couple, an extra five or six people probably meant a serious depletion of their larder, especially since food rationing was in effect for the duration of World War II. Just remember this was a time when neighbors shared whatever they had. My mother knew how to stretch the food at her command and it's my recollection that she did that day.

Why, you may ask, didn't we just eat our school lunches? The answer is, the school only recently had installed a cafeteria and it was so new that everyone wanted to eat there, not from a paper bag, so none of us had lunches with us.

As the day wore on, my mother became concerned that on one knew where we were. The telephone lines were in a mess and she couldn't get hold of my grandmother or the family of the extra children. She had to just suppose that everyone would know that she would take care of the kids. On top of that worry, though, she had to be wondering about my father, who had left early that morning to drive 15 miles to his job at a war plant.

Late in the afternoon, the storm seemed to abate, enough that one of the other kids, a teenaged boy, announced that he was going to walk home and tell the family where the other children were. Over my mother's protests, he left the house, after being swathed in all the warm clothing our hosts could muster. With great trepidation, my mother watched him leave the house, duck his head to the wind and trudge forward.

To be honest, I don't remember how long we stayed in the friendly household, but I'm thinking that sometime before bedtime my mother go through on the phone to tell my grandmother where we were and my grandfather was able to get his car through the snow and take us home. We learned then that the adventurous lad had made it home.

But, it was two days before we knew the whereabouts of my father. He appeared at my grandparents' house, located a block from the railroad, early one morning. The Santa Fe had pushed a train through the snow to the work site and the employees of the construction company were loaded on the train for transport back to town.

Ever devoted to his duties, my father got back on the train later in the day to return to the plant site. As a supervisor of construction, he felt it his responsibility to be certain that the weather didn't cause more damage than had occurred to that time. He made the trip back and forth by train for several days before the highway was cleared enough for traffic. The Santa Fe was not able to provide passenger cars for these trips so the workers rode freight cars.

The snow that year was the biggest I can remember. School was dismissed early for Thanksgiving because blizzards had screamed across the Panhandle, one right after another. When we finally got back to school before Christmas, even we were glad to get out of the house. But, here came another and school closed for about three weeks, including the holidays.

Nowadays, I sympathize with, even echo, the plaintive calls by friends and family for a good freeze. Maybe it does relieve the hay fever-like symptoms we experience. I think, though, that it brings some bad with the good.

A head cold, for example.

Editor discusses rumor control

BY JIM HUDSON
The Perryton Herald

Over the years in the newspaper business, I have always found that information from anonymous sources is incorrect at best and vicious gossip at worst.

That is why we have a policy at the Herald of not printing anonymous letters to the editor. If a person is not willing to put his name in print, then I am not willing to put his words in print, either.

A number of years ago, my father, Harold Hudson, told me a story about rumors, and it has stuck with me. It is set in a mythical kingdom in another time and place.

A man was brought before the king on the charge of spreading malicious gossip about his neighbor. The gossip maintained that he did nothing wrong.

After listening to the victims of the gossip, the king ordered the man to place a feather on every doorstep in the kingdom and return the next morning.

The next day the gossip appeared before the king and asked if that was the end of his punishment. The king then told the man to go and pick up every one of the feathers he had placed the night before.

"That is impossible," said the gossip. "They have blown to the four corners of the kingdom."

The king told the gossip that is the same with his vicious words. Once they are spoken, they take a life of their own and can never be taken back.

Think about that tale the next time you hear rumors about your neighbors.

New research challenges earlier personality study

By MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Earlier this year scientists thought they'd found a gene that might influence how impulsive, excitable and quick-tempered a person is. Now they say they can find no evidence that's the case.

That still doesn't mean the initial finding was wrong, says Dr. Anil Malhotra of the National Institute of Mental Health, an author of the new study. It does mean it's time to take another look at the earlier work, he said.

Two reports published in January gave evidence that the so-called DRD4 gene influenced a trait called novelty-seeking. People scoring high in this trait are impulsive, fickle, excitable, quick-tempered and extravagant. Those scoring low tend to be reflective, rigid, loyal, stoic, slow to anger and frugal.

The studies were the first confirmed association between a particular gene and a normal personality trait. The main study, done on Israelis, was conducted by a team led by Richard Ebstein of the Sarah Herzog Memorial Hospital in Jerusalem. Similar results came from a second study done at the National Institutes of Health.

The evidence for the gene's effect was statistical. The studies found that, on average, people with a particular variant of the gene scored about 10 percent higher for novelty-seeking on personality tests than people who lacked that version.

But Malhotra and colleagues found no evidence for that effect in 193 Finns who were free of mental illness, nor in 138 Finnish alcoholics.

There are several possibilities for that, Malhotra said. The gene variant was defined as containing seven repeats of a particular section of the gene, and this section itself comes in a number of variants.

Ebstein said he continues to believe t his finding is genuine.

Scenic by-way program dropped

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Transportation Commission has voted to drop consideration of a scenic byways program for the state because of concerns from property owners.

The program would have allowed state designation of roadways with significant scenic, historical or recreational features.

The Texas Department of Transportation recommended that the commission not pursue the program after worries were voiced by citizens at public meetings around the state.

Texans said they were concerned about possible negative regulatory effects on property owners along roads designated as scenic byways. Tourism interests favored the program.

An agency study found 43 states have scenic byways programs, but only 19 byways have been designated. One problem has been developing a corridor management plan acceptable to property owners, according to the department.

Depression common in LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Down and out in L.A. doesn't just mean full-blown clinical depression. One out of nine residents studied are also mildly depressed, according to a survey in Friday's American Journal of Psychiatry.

Those who were mildly depressed reported more household strain, more financial pressure and more days spent sick in bed than did people without depression. The study also found that even mild depression seemed to affect a person's daily life almost as much as clinical depression.

"People who have some depression symptoms have nearly as much disability at work and home as do people with major depression," said Dr. Kenneth Wells, a psychiatrist at the University of California Medical School in Los Angeles and a coauthor of the study.

Critics say the research is an example of a trend to classify all bad habits as addictions and all forms of misery as depression.

"This seems to be part of the of medical conditions," said Stanton Peele, a social psychologist in Morristown, N.J., and author of "The Diseasing of America."

Psychiatrists diagnose depression if a person has not recently faced an obvious trauma, such as the death of a loved one, and still experiences at least five of nine general symptoms for two weeks: deep sadness, apathy, fatigue, agitation, sleep disturbances, weight or appetite change, lack of concentration, feelings of worthlessness and morbid thoughts.

The milder form - called subsyndromal depression, or SSD - is marked by the appearance of two to four of those symptoms for two weeks.

Wells said research is under way to determine whether counseling or drug therapy might help people with SSD.

The survey of 2,393 adults is part of an ongoing national study.

For the Los Angeles survey, mental health workers interviewed randomly selected Hispanic and non-Hispanic whites. About 11.2 percent of those interviewed, or 270 continuing effort by the psychiatric establishment to expand into everyday life and define it in terms people, had SSD while 4.3 percent, or 102, suffered from major depression.

CD-ROM offers help for Texas gardeners

By LISA MILLER
Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO, Texas - Elm Mott resident Mike Barrington has been digging in the dirt since he was a kid, so it was a natural step for him to produce a CD-ROM that focuses on Texas gardening.

Barrington, a mechanical engineer by trade, said the idea for "Grow It Texas Style" came about on a visit to his parents, who have seemingly always owned a nursery. His mother was digging around for some information for a client, and Barrington told her she needed a database for all the plants.

That was the seed of an idea that eventually bloomed into "Grow It Texas Style."

Barrington set about creating a database and moved into the CD-ROM phase. Now he has a third of 5,000 plants cataloged on the CD-ROM.

He said there were a few things he could nitpick about but said it's "very good" overall.

David Nealy, owner and master nurseryman at Town and Country Gardens, said he purchased the CD-ROM at the Texas Association of Nurseryman show several weeks ago.

"If I see there's a market for it, I'll start selling it," Nealy said.

Of special importance is the section on how to remedy insect infestations and diseases. Barrington has identified the pests and diseases but emphasizes mechanical methods rather than chemicals to eradicate the insects.

"Chemical methods are fairly standardized," he said.

A companion Web site to "Grow It Texas Style" is available only in a professional version now, but amateur gardeners can buy the CD-ROM.

Barrington said using the Web site in conjunction with the CD-ROM will give an updated version of the latest information available. Landscapers can download new plants that growers are providing.

The public section of the Web site is opening this month, he said. Barrington added there will be 25,000 records with no passwords or forms to fill out. The Web site also has feature articles from several magazines - "Texas Nurseryman, Texas Gardener, Greenhouse Business."

"We're just building the roots of this thing," he said.

Barrington said they've produced a little more than 6,000 CD-ROMs so far.

He said growers send information about their plants in to be cataloged.

"Growers like to promo their plants," Barrington said. "That's how we're getting our plant material right now."

Plants on "Grow It Texas Style" are indexed on 176 criteria, from soil types to heights, leaf color to texture, he said.

The CD-ROM is getting good reviews from local people in the industry.

Barry Houck, vice president and general manager of Westview Nursery, said he likes it.

"I think it's very good," he said. "It tells a lot about a lot of the plants around here that people don't know much about."

But Houck said he is not selling the CD-ROM right now.

Lewis said the CD-ROM has been selling "fairly well" at his store.

Internet surfers find Texas gardening news

WACO, Texas - With some 200 Web sites devoted to gardening of one type or another, the Internet can provide a wealth of information to browsers with dirt under their nails.

Of course when it comes to Web sites specifically about Texas gardening, the number drops - drastically. Using the Yahoo! search engine, I looked up the topic "Texas Gardening." The search yielded five Web sites, some of which were not easy to get through to.

Neil Sperry is now on the web with a graphics-heavy introduction. His Web site advertises his book, has gardening resources, other gardening links, a virtual garden tour and GARDENS Magazine.

Mike Barrington, creator of the "Grow It Texas Style" CD-ROM and his own Web site, likes Sperry's Web site.

"He carries his column in his Web site and is doing some fancy things, using Java, cutting-edge stuff," Barrington said.

AGropolis is Texas A&M's agricultural Web site. It is also graphics-heavy in the beginning menu.

Many online users say they like the idea of using their computers to share questions, problems and even give solutions. It's akin to having thousands of virtual neighbors.

Prosecutors charge suicide doctor in string of deaths

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson put Dr. Jack Kevorkian on trial twice and lost both times.

Now, two months before he leaves office - partly because of his attempts to prosecute the assisted-suicide advocate - Thompson has taken a final stab at trying to convict Kevorkian.

Thompson on Thursday charged Kevorkian with 19 counts stemming from 10 deaths between June 20 and Sept. 7, including three felony charges of assisting in suicide. Kevorkian, 68, has acknowledged assisting in 44 suicides since 1990.

Kevorkian, ordered by Magistrate Judith Gracey not to assist in more suicides, pleaded innocent to each charge. He raised his right arm in a mock Nazi salute and exclaimed "Heil" as he was led from the courtroom. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Dec. 12.

Assistant prosecutor Neil Rockind was upset by Kevorkian's outburst.

"I find that absolutely atrocious. That is so outrageous," he said in court. He said he had relatives who died in the Holocaust.

Despite past prosecution failures, Thompson said that this time "we think we can present sufficient evidence to convict him."

Thompson's term ends Dec. 31. He was defeated in the Republican primary by David Gorcyca, who has accused Thompson of wasting tax dollars by pursuing Kevorkian.

Gorcyca said it would be "irresponsible" to comment on whether the case would be pursued by Thompson's successor but told the Detroit Free Press: "What if it's one of the strongest cases, factually, brought to date?"

Steve Kaplan, Gorcyca's Democratic opponent, said he would dismiss the charges if he wins.

"In my view, it's a monumental and colossal waste of resources to prosecute Dr. Kevorkian again," Kaplan told The Detroit News.

Thompson said he expects his successor to carry out the case.

"You do not have a right under the law in the state of Michigan to assist in a suicide," he said.

Kevorkian said he was tired of Thompson's legal maneuvering.

"This is the end of it," Kevorkian said outside court. "Either Thompson dies or I die. And I mean by that, really, we've got to get out of this for good and this has got to die as a legal issue. Or I die, one of the two."

Three previous attempts to convict Kevorkian of assisted-suicide charges have failed. Thompson prosecuted Kevorkian once under a law enacted specifically to stop him, and then under unwritten common law. Kevorkian also was acquitted in 1994 in neighboring Wayne County.

The Market Is Neither Democratic or Republican

Are you trying to decide whom to vote for in this year's presidential election? If you want the stock market to perform well, vote Democrat — at least that's what a recent study might make you believe. However, a closer look at the statistics shows that stock market performance really has little to do with which party is in the White House.

The study, published by Kemper Financial Services in its shareholder newsletter, reviewed how the Standard & Poor's Index of 500 stocks (S&P 500) performed during each presidential term since 1929. The S&P 500 is generally considered representative of the U.S. stock market as a whole. The study found that when a Republican was in office, the market averaged a 5.9 percent gain. Under Democratic presidents, on the other hand, the market gained an average of 14.2 percent.

However, when you look beyond political parties and consider specific economic and political events that occurred during this period, you will gain a more realistic view.

For example, at first glance, it looks like Herbert Hoover's Republican administration was disastrous for the stock market, resulting in a 27.2 percent decline. But consider the period: 1929-33 was the height of the Great Depression. The Depression was sparked by the stock market crash of 1929, which occurred eight months after Hoover took office. While Hoover may have contributed to the problem, the world economy and the stock market were poised for disaster well before election time.

The second-worst stock market decline during the period studied, a loss of 19.1 percent, occurred during Republican Richard Nixon's second term, from 1973-74. However, this was not only a period of political firsts — with the Watergate scandal and Nixon's subsequent resignation — it was also a time of spiraling inflation and an energy crisis. As Gerald Ford completed Nixon's term, the market rebounded 15.8 percent, resulting in a more reasonable 3.3 percent market loss for the four-year period, even after the Nixon debacle.

The third-worst presidential term for the stock market was that of a Democrat — Franklin Roosevelt. The market's loss of 8.4 percent during his second term occurred during a worldwide depression and the prelude and beginning of World War II — hardly normal times, either political or economic.

These are the only three stock market declines since 1929. Most agree that the severity and uniqueness of other events — depression, inflation, war — would have triggered declines regardless of the party in power.

In fact, when these periods are removed, the market has performed about the same with either party — gaining an average 16.7 percent during Democratic administrations and 14.2 percent during Republican administrations.

The lesson here is that you shouldn't take everything at face value. Be aware that statistics can be interpreted to support a specific viewpoint. Look beyond the surface, and consider all the facts — especially in an election year.

In addition, keep in mind that over the past 65 years, stocks have performed better than all other types of investments. There are many factors to consider when making investment choices — but presidential party is not one of them.

Corpus Christi Naval hospital pioneering new technology

By VIVIENNE HEINES
Corpus Christi Caller-Times

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas - With the click of a computer key, a cardiologist in San Antonio can hear the heartbeat of a patient at Corpus Christi Naval Hospital. Another patient's reflexes can be observed by a neurologist more than 100 miles away.

This is telemedicine, the nation's newest and most technologically advanced form of medical care. The new technology, which marries medicine to the latest developments in video technology, is being pioneered at Corpus Christi's Naval Hospital.

The hospital was chosen as a pilot site for the Defense Department's initiative on long-distance health-care delivery. In February, the Corpus Christi hospital was linked - via high-performance telephone lines - with Wilford Hall Medical Center at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio.

"It's a great technology," said Lt. Cmdr. Dale A. Golgart, director of administration at the Naval Hospital. "It's right on the cutting edge of the way business is going to be done in the future. And we are one of the first hospitals to be using this."

Telemedicine uses high-speed communication lines and complex computer systems to link two or more hospitals. Through telemedicine, patients can be treated by physicians hundreds of miles away.

The Defense Department has authorized $6 million to set up a telemedicine network in Texas, hospital officials said. The aim is to provide better care at each base and reduce the number of trips that military personnel and their families have to make for specialized treatment. In addition, the technology provides for teleconferencing at the hospital.

Eventually, the military network would provide a base for expanding the service to non-military clinics in rural areas. Navy officials also have begun using telemedicine in the fleet, to enhance available medical care and better determine when patients need to be evacuated to shore hospitals for medical care.

The Corpus Christi Naval Hospital serves military personnel from Corpus Christi, Kingsville, Ingleside and the surrounding area. It operates three branch clinics - in Kingsville, Ingleside and the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

For specialized care, patients are sent to the larger medical facilities, such as Wilford Hall or Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, or to civilian hospitals in Corpus Christi, officials said.

Retired Navy Capt. Buddy T. Sparks was able to see the new technology firsthand soon after the hospital began using telemedicine. Sparks, former commanding officer of the hospital, suffered a severe migraine headache or a small stroke that had no residual effects.

In February, he was examined by a neurologist in San Antonio via telemedicine.

"The physician here just turned the camera on and turned it toward me," Sparks said. "They had the computer and cameras on, whirling, and the doctor in San Antonio was asking questions of the doctors here. They would do an exam and discuss it, then do another exam and discuss it. It was very quick and very complete. I found it very exciting because neurologists' and general physicians' time is very valuable."

So far, officials at the Naval Hospital have conducted more than 56 consultations in this manner. Most commonly, the video technology is used for neurology or cardiology patients, but it also has been used with specialties including gastroenterology, endocrinology, rheumatology and ophthalmology, said Petty Officer Bryan Schmidt, regional telemedicine system administrator.

Hospital officials transformed a regular examination room into a telemedicine headquarters, equipping it with two 32-inch color monitors, a videocassette recorder, cameras, speakers, computers and a variety of other electronic equipment. The clarity of the video transmission - both picture and sound - is far superior to that offered by an ordinary video camera, Schmidt said.

"We can put the stethoscope on a patient here and the cardiologist in San Antonio can hear the heartbeat," Schmidt said. "The clarity is just remarkable."

There are two ways that the technology can be used - to conduct a live, interactive video session between the patient and doctor in Corpus Christi and a specialist in San Antonio; and to transmit medical photos or other medical information, such as the results of an electrocardiogram, via computer.

John Beauchamp, physician's assistant, said direct contact with a specialist can be a training tool.

"It's great. Basically, what it does is it gives me a chance to converse directly with a specialist while he's seeing a patient," Beauchamp said. "The patient gets the benefit of having the provider and the specialist in the same room, so we can talk.

"And the specialist can't do the physical exam, so I can get to learn new techniques and hone my skills."

The hospital is using telemedicine once a week, but officials say they hope to offer it on a daily basis soon.

"We have some patients who don't really care for it. They don't like the idea of being on TV," Schmidt said. "But most patients think it's absolutely wonderful."

Dr. Amy Belford, general medical officer in primary care, said the best use for the technology is in cases where patients and doctors are trying to decide if a patient needs more intensive follow-up than can be given locally.

HHS graduates swell state's coaching ranks

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford High School seems to have produced an incredible number of coaches for just one school.

Consultation with several long-time observers of Herd athletics produced a list of 40 graduates of Hereford High who are currently in the coaching profession, and there may be even more.

The Class of 1973 alone produced three men who are head football coaches: Alan Cornelius at Randall, Keith Kitchens at Shallowater and Joe Sheffy at Mayde Creek, outside of Houston.

Other classes have sent three men to varied head coaching jobs in football: Jim Loerwald at Class 5A Round Rock; Johnny Cornelius at Wellman, which plays the six-man game; and Mike Mason at Rockwall Christian Academy, a private school near Dallas.

At least one coach went beyond high school to coach at the college level - Alan Wartes is the offensive coordinator at Hardin-Simmons University.

Head coaches and top assistants from Hereford cover just about every sport played by the Herd - and some not played by the Herd: Susan (Bell) Patterson is the junior varsity softball coach at Burleson, and Robert Gamboa was the head soccer coach at Caprock before moving on to Amarillo's Bowie Middle School to coach the traditional football, basketball and track.

Is Hereford's bounty of coaching exports unusual? It's difficult to have the perspective to know if Hereford has produced more coaches than other towns like Dumas, Pampa or Borger. But it seems that way to many...

"Lots of people talk about how many coaches either grew up in Hereford or came through Hereford," Alan Cornelius said. "I would say Hereford is well-represented in the coaching profession."

Apparently, a big reason there are so many coaches from Hereford is the good influence of coaches in Hereford.

"We had some great coaches in Hereford that inspired us - coaches like Cuby Kitchens, Larry Dippel, Don Cumpton," Alan Cornelius said.

"I can't remember a bad coach," he said. "The whole time I was at Hereford, I don't remember one bad coach. They all seemed like they cared - not just for the kids that were good, but also for those that weren't that good."

"In Hereford, the teachers, faculty and sports staff are intrumental in leading people into the profession," said Mike Wartes, a 1971 HHS graduate. He's now the athletic director for the Canyon Independent School District after holding head football coaching jobs at four schools.

Wartes thought back about the head coaches and assistants from the late 1960s and early '70's who influenced him.

"David Bornstein, Don Cumpton, Larry Dippel. Obviously my dad (Larry Wartes) - that was one reason I wanted to get into coaching," he said. "Ron Mayberry, Barry Arnwine - great guys - Mike Mitchell, Joe Tubb.

"I moved into Hereford as a freshman, and I didn't have a bad experience," Mike Wartes said. "I played for Cuby Kitchens, Alex Glass - I hate to name guys, because I'm going to leave one out.

"I feel fortunate, because I run into people that didn't have that kind of experience in their high school career," Wartes said. "I feel fortunate to have had an environment that was healthy and uplifting."

Some coaches have chosen to come back home. Six men and women who are currently coaching in Hereford are HHS graduates.

Joe Cabezuela gets a shot at being head boys' track coach this year after several years as an assistant, and he's also an assistant football coach.

Charlie Garza, Kristi Lytal and Jason Culpepper came back to Hereford a few years ago, while Carmen Brockman and Brenda (Martinez) Bice are in their first years of coaching at Hereford.

"It's really great to be coaching kids of people I've known," Lytal said. "Kids I remember being little babies, now I have in freshman volleyball.

"I like coaching in Hereford - not because it's my hometown," she said, "but because of the hometown atmosphere. People really get into sports."

Garza kept up with Herd sports while he was in college at West Texas State. He thought about other career paths, but was kept coming back to thinking

Taekwondo champs

Students at Lupe Crox' Taekwondo school in Hereford competed in the 16th Annual Fort Worth Invitational Taekwondo Championships Oct. 26 and finished third, earning this trophy which stands taller than six feet. Representing Hereford were: (front) Brock Miller, second in sparring and second in forms; (second row, left to right) Jacob Murray, second in sparring and third in forms; Joseph Murray, second in sparring; Ruben Lancon, first in sparring; (back, left to right) Beau Miller, third in sparring; and Daniel Villarreal, first in sparring and third in forms. Not pictured is Josh Sturgeon, first in sparring and third in forms.

Spikers trounce Tascosa

In a tune-up match Friday in Amarillo, the Lady Whitefaces dispatched Tascosa - the No. 7 team in Class 5A - like any common opponent, 15-8, 15-6.

Hereford will face the winner of a bi-district match between Andrews and El Paso Riverside, probably Tuesday.

It was a good warm-up for Hereford - the No. 1 team in Class 4A, according to the Texas Volleyball Coaches Association.

"We're pretty happy coming out of this one with scores of eight and six," Herd coach Brenda Reeh said. "This will raise our confidence. We've had a couple of tough practices. It makes you feel good when you go out and play well against a team the caliber of Tascosa."

Hereford improved to 28-1.

"I felt like we cleaned up some of our errors from Tuesday night (against Dumas)," Reeh said. "Our service receive was better. We got a hand on the block pretty often. (Tascosa) didn't swing at much that we didn't at least soft block."

It wasn't perfect: Hereford had seven service errors, which also plagued the Lady Whitefaces against Dumas.

Hereford cagers to host Sandies

The Hereford boys' basketball team will scrimmage Amarillo High at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in Whiteface Gym.

It is one of two scrimmages planned for the boys' team. The other will be at River Road at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Also, there will be a meeting for parents of all high school boys who play basketball - on varsity or sub-varsity teams - at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the gym at Hereford High School.

Bulls edge Celtics in NBA opener

Lessons from NBA night No. 1:

The Bulls can still turn it on when they need to. The Lakers will sell a lot of No. 34 jerseys. Clyde Drexler showed he still is multi-talented. The Magic aren't magic at home anymore.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers beat Phoenix 96-82, Houston beat Sacramento 96-85, Washington beat Orlando 96-92, Utah beat Seattle 99-91, New York beat Toronto 107-99, Minnesota beat San Antonio 82-78, Dallas beat Denver 92-91, Cleveland beat New Jersey 90-77, Milwaukee beat Philadelphia 111-103, Miami beat Atlanta 94-81, Detroit beat Indiana 94-89, the Los Angeles Clippers beat Golden State 97-85 and Vancouver beat Portland 114-85.

Lakers 96, Suns 82

At Inglewood, Calif., a sellout crowd of 17,505 was on hand for Shaquille O'Neal's debut with the Lakers. He scored Los Angeles' first two points of the game on a monster dunk and finished with 23 points and 14 rebounds despite playing with foul trouble.

Rockets 96, Kings 85

At Houston, Drexler came within one assist of a rare quadruple-double with 25 points, nine assists, 10 rebounds and 10 steals.

He left the game with 3:04 to play and the Rockets leading 91-75, then returned with 2:25 left to try to become the fourth player to accomplish the feat.

"I had no idea until someone came over with about three minutes left in the game," Drexler said. "Everyone wanted me to try for it so I did. You've got to give the coach an 'E' for effort for allowing me to try."

COACHES

about coaching.

"I tried to fight it," he said. "I tried to get into business and computers...but I always thought I'd come back to (coaching).

The story goes full circle. It seems that Garza wants to have the same kind of influence that Cornelius and Wartes got from their coaches more than two decades ago.

"When I was in high school, athletics was a big part of my life," he said. "It was fun and it kept me out of trouble. It kept me focused on school. Now, more than ever, I think kids need that."

Hereford's strong football tradition has produced several head coaches in football, but other sports are well-represented by head coaches from Hereford.

Cabezuela heads the Herd track program. Mason also coaches baseball as well as football at Rockwall Christian, and Richard Olson is the head baseball coach at Childress.

Cathy Lane coaches girls' track and cross country in Nazareth. Whitney Drake is in charge of girls' golf at Borger, and Kelly Kitchens - son of Cuby, brother of Keith - is the golf coach at Lamar Consolidated, near Houston.

Ruben "Pudgy" Vargas heads a powerful tennis program at Vernon, where he won a state championship in 1993.

Vargas headed the Hereford program until 1988, then took over in Vernon, which had won the Class 3A Texas Tennis Coaches Association state championship the year before he got there.

What followed was something that has to be gratifying for any coach: the players that were freshmen in his first year won state when they were seniors.

In Vargas' eight years at Vernon, his teams have one state championship, four second-place finishes and three third-place finishes.

"That's a pretty good accomplishment for the kids," he said, showing typical coaches' behavior: Give the credit to the kids.

Like many coaches, it was kids that got Vargas interested in coaching.

"I played a lot of tennis in high school and college (at West Texas State)," he said. "I did a lot of tennis camps, and I decided I liked teaching kids to play."

Apparently, the coaching pipeline from Hereford isn't about to stop.

Brek Binder went from standout volleyball player at Hereford to standout volleyball player at Angelo State University. She graduated from ASU this year and went straight into coaching volleyball at Andrews, where she's the top assistant.

"I wanted to keep my volleyball career going, and this was a way to do it," she said. "I enjoy working with the girls, and they like me because I'm young."

Binder may soon be in the emotion-mixing predicament of facing her alma mater and her old coach, Brenda Reeh. Andrews was to play El Paso Riverside Saturday in a bi-district playoff match. If Andrews wins, it gets to face Hereford.

She's not shy about where her loyalties lie.

"I hope we beat ya'll," she said. "Ya'll are ranked No. 1 in the state. Beating No. 1 in the state is a big deal.

"I'm going to be tempted to say 'Go, Herd," she said, "but for the most part, I'll be a true Andrews Mustang."

Windbreak seedlings on sale at local SWCD

The Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District is now taking orders for windbreak tree seedlings.

The district is cooperating with the Texas Forest Service and to provide landowners with the opportunity to establish windbreaks at a minimal cost.

The district offers these facts about landscaping and windbreaks:

-- Reduce cooling bills as much as 50 percent.

-- Landscaping can speed the sale of a home by five to six weeks.

-- A single urban tree can provide up to $273 a year in air conditioning, pollution fighting, erosion control, storm water control and wildlife shelter benefits.

-- Each tree removes 26 pounds of carbon dioxide from the air yearly and releases about 13 pounds of oxygen.

In order to ensure developing an effective windbreak, careful planning should be done before ordering trees.

One of the first considerations is the location of the windbreak. A decision has to be made as to which sides of the homestead the trees should be planted, in order to receive the maximum benefit.

A dependable source of water is essential to the survival of young trees and water lines should be installed prior to planting. Young trees need approximately 8 to ten gallons of water per week.

The best and most expensive water method would be the use of a drip irrigation system. The district can design customers do their initial windbreak planting.

Tree customers can order drip irrigation from the district at a significant savings.

The customer must consider the number of rows needed for an effective windbreak. For a single row windbreak, one of the evergreen species will make an attractive planting and provide maximum protection all year long. If you choose a multi-row windbreak, a combination of small shrubs, evergreens and faster growing deciduous trees should be used.

The success or failure of the windbreak can come at planting time. The thing to remember is that the roots of the planting stock must be kept moist. Exposure to air or sunlight for only a brief period can lead to plant death.

To order trees, come by 315 W. Third Street or call (806) 354-6995. Trees will be delivered in mid-March. To ensure your choice of trees, order early.

SWCD gains new responsibilities

"As a result of the 1996 Farm Bill, the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) with headquarters in Hereford, along with 3,000 other SWCD's in the nation, has given the charge to lead the way in developing programs and initiatives to improve soil and water resources at the local level," SWCD chairman Jerry Homfeld said.

"After years of applying top-down program management approaches in federal conservation programs, the new 1996 Farm Bill establishes a locally driven process, coordinated by conservation districts, to guide the state and nation's agricultural conservation efforts. It provides tremendous opportunities for local people to become involved in assessing local resource needs and identifying possible solutions to resource problems," Homfeld said.

According to Homfeld, the process deals with developing a list of priority areas and concerns for the long range Farm Bill program for fiscal year 1998 and beyond.

To enact the Farm Bill on the local level, the Tierra Blanca SWCD, in partnership with the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, will conduct a work group meeting with its conservation partners and interested persons or organizations at 9 a.m. on Thursday, Nov. 7, in the Hereford Community Center.

The purpose of the meeting is to conduct a local conservation needs assessment and make program recommendations on what problems the SWCD should address in future years. Local recommendations will then flow to the state level where the district's various technical issues, resource priority areas and program policies will be reviewed and integrated into a state, regional and national program.

"We are really excited about the opportunities the new Farm Bill offers because Congress is seeking our leadership to assist our community in carrying out a cooperative, locally driven conservation assessment of county that invests public resources to protect local natural resources," Homfeld said.

Olson wins at PALE show

Sy Olson of Hereford exhibited the Grand Champion Angus Female at the Pan American Livestock Exposition Angus Show in Dallas.

Dr. Randy Perry of Fresno, Calif. judged the show.

Brockmann joins Holly Sugar staff in Hereford

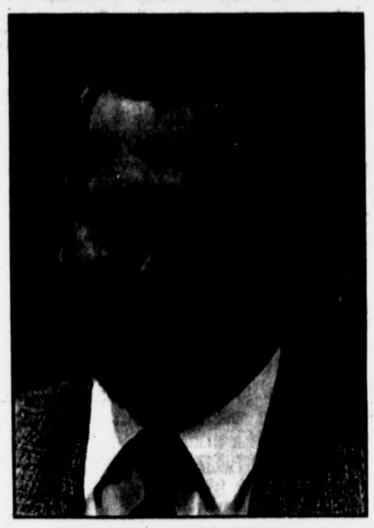

SUGAR LAND -- Holly Sugar Corp., a subsidiary of Imperial Holly Corp., announced that Thomas Brockmann has joined the corporation as an agriculturist at its sugar beet processing factory in Hereford.

Brockmann, a native of Sidney, Mont., is the son of JoAnn and Lester Brockmann of Ponca City, Okla. He has a bachelor of science degree in agronomy from Texas A&M University.

Prior to joining Holly Sugar in Hereford, he was employed as an environmentalist specialist with the Navasota Mining Company in Carlos, Texas. Brockmann's background also includes an assignment as territory manager for Barefoot Grass Lawn Service.

He is a member of the Agronomy Society and the Professional Soil Scientists of Texas.

Brockmann and his wife, Sharon, have three children. They have twin newborns, Brice and Carol, and a two-year-old son, Charles. The Brockmanns reside in Hereford.

Experts urge men to see doctor more often

By MICHAEL PRECKER
The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS - Take it like a man, they told us. Shake it off. Play with pain. Don't let anybody catch you crying or sweating.

Is that mind-set sending men to an early grave?

"I always tell men, 'If you've got a problem, don't put it off because it's certainly not going to improve by itself,'" says Howard Jones, 73, who had prostate surgery five years ago and now works as an educator at the Male Health Center in Dallas.

"Women know more about their bodies, and they know where to go if they have a problem," he says. "We've been left out in the cold, or we've left ourselves out in the cold."

A new high-profile case reinforces the quandary. Earlier this month, champion cyclist Lance Armstrong revealed that he had testicular cancer, which had spread to his lungs and abdomen. The testicle was removed, and Armstrong, who grew up in suburban Plano and now lives in Austin, Texas, is being treated with chemotherapy.

The cyclist said he noticed an enlarged testicle - a warning sign for the disease - a long time ago but did not go to the doctor. "Men don't talk about testicular cancer," he said in a recent telephone news conference. "It's a private part of the body. But I'm here to tell you, if I had (consulted a doctor) five years ago, I wouldn't be in this position."

Beyond his vow to resume competitive cycling, Armstrong has made another promise: to help men to learn from his example.

"It's all about awareness," he said.

He will join a growing list of male celebrities - from Bob Dole and Norman Schwarzkopf to Buffalo Bills' Coach Marv Levy and former baseball star John Kruk - who use their own battles against disease to encourage men to take better care of themselves.

"The goals are to get men into the health care system, get them involved in their health care and help them live longer," says Dr. Kenneth Goldberg, a Dallas urologist, founder of the Male Health Center and a self-styled crusader on the subject. "And the hardest step is just getting them to come in."

The stereotype is backed up by statistics. Steve Perrine, deputy editor of "Men's Health," says his magazine's research shows that women visit the doctor roughly 2 times more often than men. Various studies estimate that men make as many as 150 million fewer visits to the doctor than women each year.

"Men like to be in control," says Perrine. "We're brought up to run our own lives. When you go to the doctor, you sacrifice that. You can't fly the plane - you're trusting the pilots.

"You've got someone who's going to be talking all kinds of words you've never heard before and who'll probably be telling you you shouldn't be eating so many cheeseburgers. Guys are afraid of being admonished. You feel like a kid again."

There are plenty more roadblocks imbedded in the male psyche. Dr. Goldberg, whose books include "How Men Can Live As Long As Women," thinks it all starts with lack of education.

Menstruation prompts girls to begin learning about their bodies, he says, while many middle-aged men have little idea what a prostate is or what it does.

"Books and magazines are filled with instructions on how to do a breast self-examination," he says. "When did you see a diagram on how to examine your testicles?"

And don't get him started on the messages that pop culture sends out. Little boys aren't supposed to admit that it hurts. Athletes are praised for ignoring their injuries.

"When's the last Hollywood movie that dealt sympathetically with a man's sexual dysfunction?" he wonders.

The fear of bad news - which no doctor can tell you if you don't go - may not be gender-specific, but it's certainly a guy thing much of the time.

"You see the defense of denial in both sexes, but men's pride may influence them to use it more," says Dr. Kenneth Altshuler, chairman of the Psychiatry Department at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas. "People would rather wish something (to be) unimportant. I've actually heard people say they'll wait to feel better before they go to the doctor."

When we're young, we feel invulnerable. Dr. Goldberg says he lectures to men's groups about prostate, testicular and colon cancers, high cholesterol, diabetes, heart disease and other dangers that men ignore at their peril.

"I can feel them out there thinking, 'It won't happen to me,'" he says.

Then we get older, and men's health involves matters such as rectal exams, incontinence and impotence. And other topics that make men wince.

"These have been taboo for a lot of people," says Dr. Claus Roehrborn, a professor at UT Southwestern and head of urology at the Dallas VA Medical Center. "It's that whole concept of manhood, the association with their sexual function and their genitals."

Both urologists agree that the fears of pain and embarrassment are exaggerated, but in any case, that's no excuse.

"I don't know of many women who enjoy a mammogram or a pelvic exam, but they do it anyway because they know it's important," says Dr. Goldberg.

But enough from the experts. Let's survey the corridors of the Male Health Center, where many of the patients were not always as conscientious about their health as they are now.

Leonard didn't see a doctor for years, although he was overweight and smoked two cartons of cigarettes a week.

"I was just rocking along and enjoying good health," he says. "My wife kept telling me, 'We're at an age when things start to break down. You need to have a physical.' I said, 'There's nothing wrong with me. Why do I need it?'"

Then at age 47, he had three heart aacks in nine months. Three years later, he still needed to be prodded to see a doctor for sexual problems brought on by his heart condition.

"I don't have a fear of doctors," he says. "I might have ignored it if my wife hadn't called and made an appointment. It's probably more laziness than anything."

A 54-year-old man who won't even give his first name says he avoided doctors for years "even though I knew I was probably working up to a heart attack. The biggest problem I had was I really didn't have time to take off the job."

Now he sees friends making the same excuses. "They all complain about their health, but they don't do anything to help themselves," he says.

Tom, who's 59, says he used to repair aircraft.

"You had routine inspections, or a warning light would go off so you'd know what to check," he says. "It should be the same way for us and our bodies. But as long as I felt okay, you figure if it's not broke, don't fix it."

Dr. Roehrborn says doctors "don't completely understand" what motivates patients to come in.

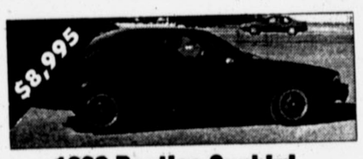

"It's getting more clear that what drives men to seek help is not the symptoms," he says. "It's the bother the symptom exerts and the type of interference it causes with daily activities, and how much they worry about whether this will be serious."

JOE BROWN
"A Sheriff Who Stands On His Record"

★ 25 years law enforcement experience, 13 years as your Sheriff.
★ 13 years operating under budget, with budget approved annually by the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court.
★ Through a cooperative effort amongst local entities, felony referrals committed by juvenile offenders have decreased by almost 50% since 1994!
★ Current Board Member of the Panhandle Narcotics Task Force. For the past six years we have had a full-time Narcotics Officer in Deaf Smith County and will continue "tough" policy on narcotics!
★ We will continue to provide citizens with 24 hour patrol throughout Deaf Smith County.
★ We will continue to have a good working relationship with local and area law enforcement agencies!

Dear Citizens;

I want to thank you for the opportunity you have given me in serving as your Sheriff for the past 13 years. I wish to ask for your vote and continued support. I won't use "fear tactics" or make you promises of bringing new industry to Deaf Smith County, but as your Sheriff, I will continue to operate an efficient and effective Sheriff's Department, with Honesty, Integrity and Professionalism!

Respectfully,
Joe C. Brown, Jr.

Clinic provides care for women, children

The Hereford Women and Children's Health Clinic was created to prevent illnesses and disease, according to Nancy Griego, RN, BSN, administrative manager.

The clinic, a service of Hereford Regional Medical Center, has taken over many of the healthcare responsibilities once performed by the Texas Department of Health clinic, Ms. Griego said.

"When the state cut back funding for the clinics across the state, many people were left without valuable health care services," Ms. Griego said. "This clinic is Hereford's response to that gap in service."

The clinic is not someplace for a sick woman and child to go. "We have other excellent health care providers to handle regular illnesses," Ms. Griego said. "Our primary objective is to offer care during pregnancy, family planning, breast exams and sexually-transmitted disease physicals for men and women. For children, we will give well-baby check-ups and immunizations."

The clinic is partially funded by a Title 5 grant that was awarded to the Provider Coalition of Health Services, Inc., a group that covers 26 counties and 18 hospitals. The grant of $1.2 million covers the time period from Sept. 1, 1996 to Aug. 31, 1997, with the possibility of further funding at that time.

Ms. Griego explained that the grant covers women up to age 45 and children up to the age of 21.

She said that all services at the clinic are bilingual. The clinic will also accept Medicaid, private insurance and self-pay patients.

Peace Santa

Bettie Dickson, right, offers Betty Wolle a chance on the Peace Santa created by the Fun Bunch Craft Circle of First United Methodist Church. A $1 donation buys one chance on the Santa. The figurine will be on display during the all-church bazaar in FUMC Fellowship Hall on Nov. 9.

First Methodist sets all-church bazaar

Early morning shoppers will be greeted with a hot cup of coffee and warm homemade goodies to eat with it when they come to the all-church bazaar to be held at the First United Methodist Church's Fellowship Hall on Saturday, No. 9 beginning at 8 a.m.

The crafts booth will feature wreaths, floral/lace hangers, calligraphy, gift baskets with coffees and teas along with crocheted angels and bells. Martha Layman is in charge of the craft assortment.

Shirley Carlson is the chairman of the candy booth which will sell fudge, peanut brittle, date loaf, divinity and other special homemade candies.

The food booth will be the place to boy all kinds of baked items along with frozen casseroles, jams and jellies. Mary Jones directs this booth.

Children are invited to create many items at the special children's activity booth, including nail cross necklaces, picture frames and shell angels. Shelly Moss will be in charge of this activity, designed to please children while their parents are shopping at the bazaar.

Men of the church have created a wide variety of items for sale, including stained glass, food, bird houses and puzzles. Bill Lyles has been responsible for collecting the items for the men's booth.

A luncheon, featuring the famous King Ranch Chicken Casserole, will be served from 12 noon to 2 p.m. Green beans, orange-pineapple-carrot congealed salad, rolls, dessert and drink will complete the manu. Adult tickets for lunch will cost $5 and children 12 and under will eat for $2.50. Judy Minchew is in charge of arrangements for this noontime meal.

An unusual "Peace Santa" has been created by the Fun Bunch Craft Circle, and donations of $1 each will be taken for chances to win the beautiful figurine. The Santa is holding a dove with a lamb and a lion sitting at his feet. Bettie Dickson, Yvonne Simpson, Joyce Skelton and Joy Bunch are members of the Fun Bunch who shared in creating the Peace Santa.

The community is cordially invited to do some early shopping at the bazaar, looking for gifts as well as food for the upcoming holiday season.

Williams will be guest speaker for fellowship

Virginia Williams of Wichita, Kan., will be guest speaker for Hereford Flame Fellowship at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Community Center.

Williams and her husband, Charles, have been in the ministry 47 years and are currently pastoring Victory Life Fellowship in Dodge City, K[illegible].

[illegible]ams organized the first Wom[illegible]'s Aglow and Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship Chapters in Dodge City. She and her husband opened the first Christian school in Dodge City and were co-principals for 13 years.

They have been married for 49 years and are the parents of two married children.

Everyone is invited to attend. Please note the time change.

We are never present with, but always beyond ourselves: fear, desire, hope, still push us on towards the future.

New Arrivals

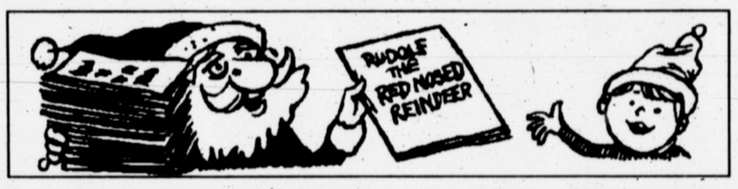

Jason and Kristi Culpepper of Hereford proudly announce the birth of their daughter, Kati Lynne, on Oct. 29 in Hereford Regional Medical Center.

She weighed 8 pounds, 2 ounces and was 22-1/2 inches long.

Great-grandmothers are Nell Culpepper, Coy Tice, Beulah Powell and Patty Atchley, also of Hereford.

In 1939, the Montgomery Ward department store in Chicago sought something novel for its Santa Claus to distribute to parents and children. Robert May, an advertising copywriter for the store, suggested an illustrated poem, printed in a booklet, that families would want to save and reread each holiday season. May conceived the idea of a shiny-nosed reindeer, Rudolf the Red-Nosed reindeer. That Christmas of 1939, 2.4 million copies of the "Rudolf" booklet were handed out in Montgomery Ward stores across the country.

Welcome to Hereford

The merchants of Hereford wish to give a "Hustlin' Hereford" welcome to these newcomers who have recently moved into our city:

"And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew, that one small head could carry all they knew." Oliver Goldsmith, Irish poet, 1728

"Over the river and through the woods to grandmother's house we go..." If you can find the prepositional phrases, you can work with Mrs. Allen's English classes. Her advanced classes are reading the novel, A Wrinkle in Time.

Yellow Team science classes are continuing their Texas ecology unit and will have conservation essays ready, hopefully, by Thanksgiving.

Students of the Week, Yellow Team, are Jennifer Almarez, Mindy Ybarra, Chance Wade and Rafael Ramirez.

Mrs. Sims' category students are making paper mache items that represent cultural groups that helped settle the United States.

The "Oobleck" project, that students seem to always enjoy, is underway in Purple Team science classes. Students will discover the properties of a mysterious substance, design a spaceship that can land on the planet, Oobleck, and will also write a creative story about how Oobleck could be used on earth.

School nurse, June Rudd, is busy with the annual "check" of seventh graders which includes height, weight, teeth, hair, blood pressure, eyes, ears and any health problem the student may have. Regular medication that a student may take is also discussed and recorded.

Winners for Red Ribbon Week activities include: Paul Kilpatrick and Randy Evers, T-Shirt winners; pizza and coke winners: Brandy Jesko, Vanessa Orozco, Armando Montano, Tanner Dearing, Crystal Garcia and Alice Pacheco. Starburst candy winners include Monica Grajeda, Aaron Lovett, Leticia Flores, Analisa Enriquez, Brandy Jesko, Sarah Gonzales, Zac Davis, Diego Hernandez, Tyler Nelson, Elizabeth Guerra, Michael Lara, Erica Marquez, Lacee Rowe, Aaron Brock, Lino Ochoa, Marlena Vasquez, Carlo Gonzales, Karla Varela, Eva Mendoza, Kara Landrum, Cara Linker, Celia Barrera, Melissa Morales, Renee Hernandez, Landen Nolan, Raul Garcia, Flint Dollar, Mary Blanco, Arion Decker, Maria Rivera, Colby Posey, Jeremy Henning, Bryan Shows, Rafael Flores and Libby Brockman.

Activities to make students eligible for the drawing for prizes included wearing Drug Free Red Ribbons, tie day, funny socks day, inside out day and maroon and white day.

In case you missed it, the swallows departed from Capistrano on the twenty-third of October, which was also National Mole Day.

Special thanks to our readers who sent recipes for favorite holiday foods and who shared the stories behind the recipes.

These can be found in the "Home for the Holidays" section of today's paper. I hope you enjoy them as much as I did.

Since turkey and dressing are traditionally the most popular main dish for holiday dinners, I would like to pass along some tips I have "discovered" over the years.

The main thing I do to simplify the preparation of that special dinner is cook the turkey in a browning bag. (The instructions are included in the package with the bags.)

This method reduces the cooking time, keeps the turkey moist, browns it beautifully and the bag holds the broth so it is all available for use in the dressing.

As for the dressing, the "recipe" I use is not written. It's mostly a matter of combining the ingredients and tasting, until the flavor is satisfactory.

One idea I learned from a co-worker several years ago reduces the baking time for the dressing.

She prepared the cornbread a day or two ahead and mixed the chopped onion and celery in the batter for the bread. This allows the vegetables to cook along with the bread so they are already tender when crumbled into the dressing.

This reduces the baking time since the dressing only has to cook long enough to heat thoroughly and set.

If you are like so many of us in this busy time, preparation short cuts are a necessity. But the secret is how to cut preparation time without sacrificing old-fashioned flavor.

"Our traditional Thanksgiving dinner is pretty simple.

I started this simplicity while I was still teaching. The time factor, a large crowd and some holidays having to travel over 200 miles to be with loved ones.

Menu:

Turkey and cornbread dressing

Gravy (my children didn't care for giblet gravy, so I used cream of chicken soup diluted with milk)

*Grits and cheese

*Cranberry Relish

Sweet potatoes (or mashed potatoes or both)

Corn

*Berry Pizzay

Hot rolls (brown and serve or frozen)

*Strawberry Cake or

Red Cross Update

Red Cross will have a Garage Sale Nov. 8-9!

The items and articles have been accumulating for more than a year, and the Red Cross storage side is full to the top and spilling over into the office. It looks like a "garage salers" dream scape, possibly ranked up there with the Super Bowl of Garage Sales!

Before you scoff and dismiss this opportunity, saying you don't need any more junk I'd like you to consider what you might be turning down.

Not only is this a good opportunity to get some great new clothes and work clothes and things, but you will save money in the bargain. And that only scratches the surface of the possibilities.

If you have been making quilts for every one and you've run out of scraps, buy some of our used clothes and cut them up. If you've been buying boxes of rags to use in your shop and paying too much, you can get rags by the grocery sack full at our garage sale.

If you need a new electric chord for that lamp, you can buy an electric gadget and use the chord off of it. Maybe you are a landlord, fixing up a rent house. You would do well here.

Maybe you are a crafter or an artist looking for bits of leather or fabric for collage or decoupage, or some turned wood or other found objects for that sculpture. You can do some "one-stop" shopping here.

All of the funds raised from the Garage Sale will go toward the National Disaster Relief Fund.

Red Cross assists at natural and man made disaster of all kinds, both domestic and international. We also teach first aid and swimming and keep American troops in touch with home.

But we are not funded by the government. All our funding comes from the private sector. To contribute, call 806-364-3761 or one of the two national numbers, 800-435-7669 or 800-257-7575 (Spanish), or online to Red Cross Internet at <http://www.-redcross.org> on the web.

The American Red Cross is a United Way affiliate.

Rollins speaks at 4-H meeting

Dr. Clay Rollins of Hereford Veterinary Clinic was the guest speaker at the Showmanship 4-H Club meeting held at the Community Center.

Rollins presented an informative program on animal health. He explained how to recognize a sick animal, treat the animal and how to prevent illnesses. He also reminded 4-H'ers to call a veterinarian, county extension agent or ag teacher for advise on sick animals.

Erin Auckerman, club president, handed out the Young Farmers Junior Livestock Show coming up in January.

— YOUR EYES —
What Is Macular Degeneration
The macular is a tiny area in the retina composed of millions of light receptor cells. This is the key to central vision, what we use for reading, recognizing faces, even watching TV. As we age, these light receptor cells weaken. By age 60, nearly one third of adults have some signs of macular degeneration and nearly nine percent have lost some central vision.
For most people, the changes are slow, painless and largely untreatable. But not always, which is why it's important to see your eye doctor promptly after any vision change.
One form of macular degeneration, the so-called "wet" form, moves faster as fluid leaks from blood vessels in a membrane in the retina. Prompt treatment is needed to save the patient's vision, though the condition may recur.
Can macular degeneration be prevented? Doctors recommend wearing sunglasses outdoors and avoiding smoking.

Between the Covers

By REBECCA WALLS

Isn't it great to have some new titles to read?!! Among the new book selections this week we feature three best-selling authors and one award-winning author.

The award-winning author is Terry C. Johnston who wrote Dance on Wind and Dream Catcher.

Johnston's new title is Buffalo Palace which features the mountain man moving westward following the great buffalo herds. In 1825 St. Louis marks the edge of civilization and the beginning point for the young Titus Bass.

Traveling alone into the thick forest on his way to the High Plains Bass learns how to survive on what nature provides. Arriving on the plains, Bass is awed by the magnificent herds of buffalo that cover the land as far as the eye can see.

Traveling through the land of the Blackfoot and Arapacho, every bend in the river may offer new hope or sudden violence, just as each campfire will introduce a new friend or new fight. Bass is determined to claim this land as his own and finds no challenge too great.

Anne Perry, author of the best-seller Pentecost Alley has a new book entitled Weighted in the Balance. Twenty years earlier, Prince Friedrich abdicated the throne to marry the woman he loved. Because Gisela was unacceptable as queen, she and Friedrich lived in exile as the world's most famous lovers. Now Prince Friedrich is dead and according to private investigator William Monk and nurse Hester Latterly, he has been murdered. Without evidence to support her claim, Countess Zorah Rostova accuses Princes Gisela of the murder.

As a result of the accusations made, Countess Zorah finds herself being sued for slander and in need of legal council. Barrister, Sir Oliver Rathbone surprises himself by accepting the case, and then fears his career may end badly as further events, and evidence indicates his client may be the murderer.

Best-selling author, Stephen W. Frey's new book The Vulture Fund features Mace McLain, the most promising young man at a Wall Street investment banking firm. McLain's career advance makes him co-manager of a multi billion-dollar "vulture fund." His job is to pick up undervalued real estate and stocks into a faltering economy and sell them at inflated prices as the economy recovers. Kathleen Hunt comes from the West Coast branch to work with McLain at the recommendation of the senior partner.

Rachel Sommers, a graduate student, alerts McLain to the irregular buying patterns and the unusual connections that seem to extend to the jungles of South America, Washington and the secret, secret councils of the CIA. Convinced there is more than just a few irregularities McLain begins to collect evidence, but having the proof will not insure he will be free of danger.

Cheater is the new title available by the best-selling author Ken Goddard. Retired CIA surveillance expert Henry Culver is now employed as a police officer in Fairfax, Va. The current case that occupies most of the time involve sa psychopath called "John Doe Thirty-three." The few clues that sadistic killer goes after the victims through the crawl spaces in their homes. John Doe takes the time to install secret entrances in the floor using small hinges and cutting through the carpet with a razor sharp edge. Then he waits for the victim to fall through the door. Dubbed "Digger" the killer is also a surveillance agent for another branch of the CIA; and Culver doesn't know why the French Interpol office is suddenly interested in the his welfare.

The Deep End of the Ocean by Jacquelyn Mitchard is the horror story each mother fears when a child is missing. Beth Cappadora leaves 7-year-old Vincent to watch his 3-year-old brother Ben, while she registers for her high school reunion. Five minutes later, Beth asks, "Where's Ben?" Noone can find him. Despite a police search, that turns nationwide, Ben has vanished without a trace. For nine years, Beth is obsessed with Ben. Husband Pat tries everything, but fears their is no hope for their marriage , and their son Vincent riddled with guilt becomes a dilinguent that thrive son danger. Then something unexpected happens and once again Beth feels there is a reason to live, love and hold the family together. The family emerges intact, but none of them the same as they were.

Elmore Leonard's Out of Sight begins with Deputy U.S. Marshall Karen Sisco entering the Florida Glades Prison to serve a summons. As she pulls into the parking lot the prison break begins. Armed with a pump action shotgun Karen is totally unprepared for Jack Foley. The celebrity con disarms her and invites her to join him in the trunk of her car, while Buddy drives the blue Caprice to freedom. Foley is the perfect gentleman and they share a common passion for movies. Karen manages to escape and become a member of the Federal Task Force assigned to recapture the escapees. This time she is sitting in a bar when Foley finds her and they take a "time out" in Karen's suite. The next morning Foley is gone and Karen is out to get him while Buddy and Maurice construct the biggest heist of their careers and a double cross that will leave one man holding the bag.

Don't forget the Tutor training workshop. It will be on Nov. 8 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.; Nov. 15 from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.; and Nov. 16 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. We need tutors so be sure and plan to attend.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My sister-in-law, who lives in London, is visiting me. Yesterday, she asked a question I was unable to answer. Maybe you can help.

What kind of country, she asked, suspends a 6-year-old first-grader from school and forces him to miss an ice cream party because he kissed a little girl on the cheek? The child was accused of sexual harassment. Does a 6-year-old know what sexual harassment is? I certainly doubt it.

Immediately after that incident, there was a story about a baseball player for the Baltimore Orioles who spat in the face of the umpire who called him out. His "punishment" was put off until the start of next season. Obviously, he was a good player, and the team needed him to win games.

My sister-in-law asked if this is "justice American-style." I told her I didn't know but I would ask you. -- Saddle Brook, N.J.

Dear N.J.: Tell your sister-in-law that both incidents were, in my opinion, handled poorly.

That 6-year-old, Johnathan Prevette, should have been "spoken to" but not punished. Six-year-olds don't know what sexual harassment is. I recently read that the superintendent of schools in Johnathan's district is taking steps to revise the sexual harassment code to take age into account.

Roberto Alomar, the ballplayer for the Baltimore Orioles who spat in umpire John Hirschbeck's face, should have been taken out of the game immediately. He was suspended for five games, but it appears he was able to select which five. I guess in some places, winning IS everything.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm confused and hurt. My husband and I have been married for 25 years. Some years ago, a family moved close to us. The wife (I'll call her "Judy") did not work and began spending several hours a day "visiting" in my husband's workshop.

Judy's husband divorced her five years ago and my husband gave her a job in our small business. Since then, my husband has insisted on taking Judy practically everywhere we go -- eating out, Sunday drives, to church and so on. Any trip concerning the business means she must go "so she can learn." When Judy mentioned going shopping recently, my husband asked if she had enough money. He said, "You know, as a single mother, her salary doesn't go very far."

I realize the necessity of helping others, but I believe my husband has gone over the line. Whenever I try to tell him how I feel about this "friendship," he gets upset. Even the slightest criticism of Judy makes him angry.

Am I being unfair, as he claims? I love my husband dearly and hate to think of ending my marriage, but he acts as if he has two wives. I feel threatened and have developed an active dislike for Judy. What's worse, I don't feel that I can trust my judgment any longer. Please help me sort this out. -- Confused in Kentucky

Dear Kentucky: There's nothing wrong with your judgment. You have every reason to resent your husband's closeness to Judy.

Stop playing the role of "wounded wife." Don't nag, threaten or kick him out. Be sweet and adorable to Judy. She won't know what to make of it. I predict that a complete change in tactics will throw them both for a loop and put you in the winner's circle.

Confidential to The Big Q in Melville, N.Y.: Apparently, when you have more than two drinks, your mouth goes on active duty and your brain goes on furlough. Do yourself a favor and stay off the sauce totally.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Nuggets and Doozies," has everything from the outrageously funny to the poignantly insightful. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Nuggets, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. To Your Good Health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What can I do about recurring urinary tract infections? My doctor calls my problem "cystitis," whatever that is, and his answer is always the same — antibiotics. It works while I am taking the medicine, but then a few weeks later, I've got it again. I thought you might have run into something like this. — Mrs. L.L.

ANSWER: Urinary tract infections afflict one of seven women.

Cystitis is inflammation of the urinary bladder due to an infection. The structure becomes a focal point of many stubborn urinary tract infections.

Several factors make the female urinary tract easy prey for infecting organisms. The bladder outlet, the urethra, is much shorter in the female than in the male. That alone makes the female bladder more accessible to outside germs. A second female disadvantage is the easy stirring of infecting organisms through sexual activity.

The accepted approach to such infections begins with an examination of the patient's urine to identify the specific germ involved. Then you find the antibiotic best matched to it.

If that fails, the doctor might turn to long-term low-dose antibiotic treatment. For many patients, that is the only real answer.

Some women can use antibiotics preventively as needed — prior to intercourse, say.

I should add a reminder concerning toilet hygiene: Hygienic lapses go far to permit easy germ migration from the alien rectal area to the nearby urinary tract.

And I should mention the oldest advice of all: to take the full prescribed antibiotic course each time, each infection — even after symptoms have subsided.

For more information on urinary tract infections, see my recently published report on the subject. Readers can order a copy by writing to: Dr. Donohue — No. 48, Box 5539, Riverton, NJ 08077-5539. Enclose $3 and a self-addressed, stamped (55 cents) No. 10 envelope.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

The Customer-Centered Culture

Growing a small business isn't getting any easier. Hypercompetition, exploding technology, fickle customers and regulatory encroachment are facts of life for every small-business owner. However, even under these difficult circumstances some businesses are growing and prospering.

One common link that identifies the successful companies is their customer-centered culture. The word culture is defined as the improvement, refinement or development of a process through training, study and design. It also describes the end result: The concepts, skills and habits of those companies involved in the process.

Let's look at this another way. Customers are the only reason any business exists. In addition, no business can be profitable long-term without satisfied customers. Therefore, successful business owners must continually redefine and improve their customer service culture to ensure high levels of customer satisfaction.

Of course, you will only satisfy your customers at this level until a competitor offers them a better choice. Hence, the improvement can never stop.

Those businessmen and women who struggle with the concept that satisfied customers are the most important element in any business are destined to face the consequences. They are the most vulnerable to competition. They can expect little, if any, customer loyalty and price will play an increasingly important role in their competitive strategy.

On the other hand, companies with a strong customer-care culture are least affected by price-driven competition. You competitors cannot easily lure your satisfied customers away with cheap prices alone. Your customers fully understand the value of the special attention they receive.

Creating the culture

To create a customer-centered culture you need to accept several customer truths: First, customers must trust you before they buy your quality. No one wants great quality if it comes packaged with lousy service. If the customer is confident that you will back up the purchase of quality with superior service, they will pay your asking price.

Second, quality is important. To compete successfully today you need quality products, quality service, quality people and a quality image. These elements add value that allows you to charge a reasonable price and make a fair profit.

Third, customers do not just buy products or services. They buy expectations and purchase end results. We buy a book because if promises information or enjoyment. We purchase a new car because we desire dependable, economical transportation and the purchase makes us feel good.

Fourth, customers are not dependent on you. They can and will seek other options if your offering are not satisfactory to them. However, you are dependent on them. When they honor you by allowing you to serve the, remember that you are not doing them a favor by serving them well. You are only meeting their expectations.

Fifth, all customers have inherent desires that include: To receive respectful treatment, to feel important and to be secure in their dealings. They want to build a relationship with those they do business with. A regular customer desires recognition. They love to hear their names and they want to receive special treatment. They are aware of the difference between real customer service and lip service.

Sixth, both you and your staff must also want to build a relationship with your customers. Because customers do know the difference, they will know if your efforts are sincere. If you employees have no interest in building warm relationships with all of your customers, perhaps they should find another place to work.

Finally, customers are your future. Satisfied customers are repeat customers. Not only do they bring you their business, but they also refer others to you. When you achieve a customer-centered culture, you secure your future earning power. The system doesn't change. Give others what they want and they'll help you get what you want.

Military Muster

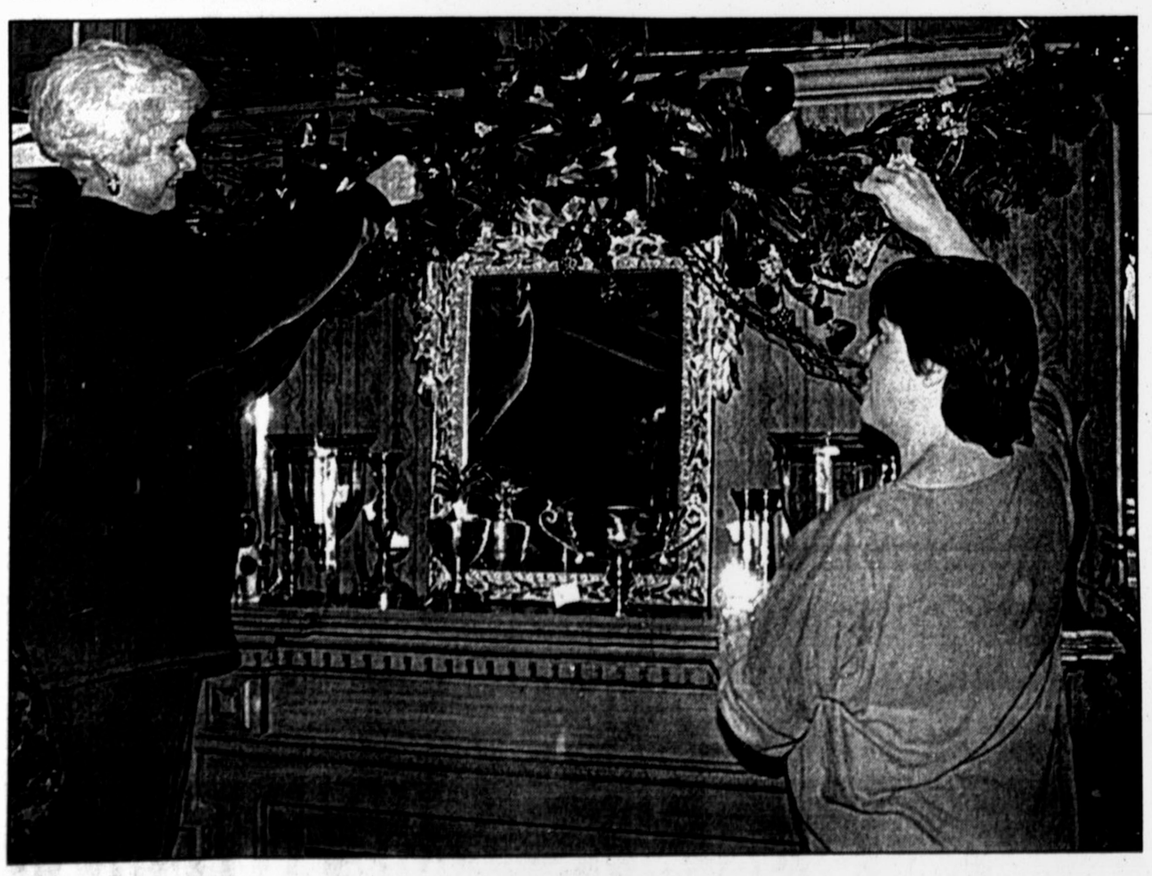

Marine Lance Cpl. Kevin T. Kelso, son of Newton D. and Mary L. Kelso of Hereford, is currently halfway through a six-month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea with the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU), embarked aboard the ships of the USS Saipan Amphibious Ready Group (ARG).

Kelso, along with more than 2,000 Marines of the 24th MEU, departed their home base of Camp Lejeune, N.C., in June.

Mary Beth White, left, and Kay Williams of West Park Drug reach to put up decorations on a mantle in the West Park Avenue store in anticipation of the Christmas season. With Christmas less than two months away, decorations and holiday merchandise are showing up all over the city.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise: Would you know the ingredient that goes into a bottle to make the mixture that contains rose petals and cinnamon sticks?

My daughter seems to think it is lamp oil. Do you put all flowers in first, then the oil?

They are used for decoration in the bathroom, living room or kitchen. — Lorraine Wells, Granville, N.Y.

You may be thinking of the old-time rose-jar recipe that calls for rose petals, rose oil, glycerin, nutmeg, cinnamon and allspice.

If you are using fresh flowers, you should dry the petals first. All you have to do is spread a thin layer of the rose petals on a cookie sheet. Place in a cool, dry spot away from direct sunlight for several days to allow them to dry. When they look brittle and crumble easily, they are perfect.

Next, put the dried petals in a container and add five drops of rose oil (found in craft stores) and five drops of glycerin (found in drug-stores). Keep filling the jar with dried petals until it is full.

Be sure to keep the lid on tightly. Shake the jar every day for 10 to 14 days. Then add ¼ ounce each of cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice.

To keep the fragrance fresh, keep the lid tightly closed so it will last as long as possible. Enjoy! — Heloise

CAST COVER

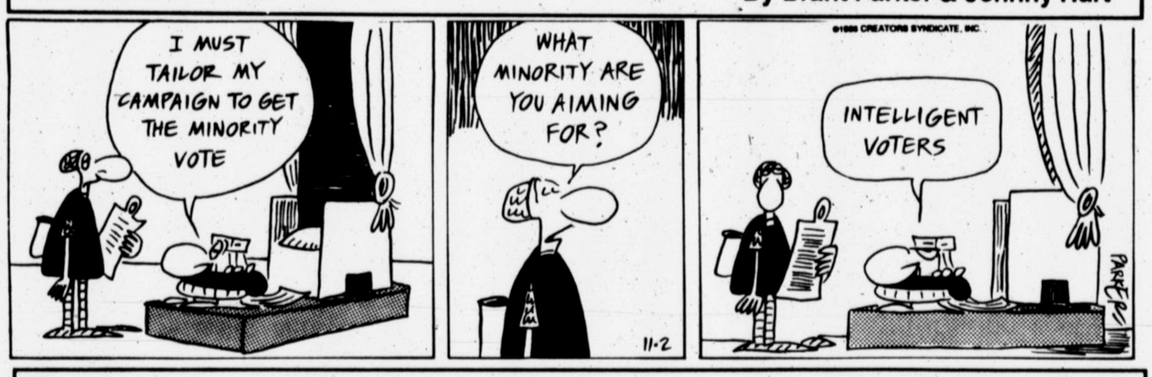

Dear Heloise: The plastic sleeve that your newspaper comes in will fit over your arm if it is in a cast.

It keeps the cast dry when you are showering or doing other chores that require putting your hands in water. — A reader, Elsberry, Mo.

Farmhouse Has Appeal

A RAILED FRONT PORCH gives a country feel to this farmhouse design. Unusual window arrangements and shingle siding over the garage make this home even more distinctive.

By BRUCE A. NATHAN
AP Newsfeatures

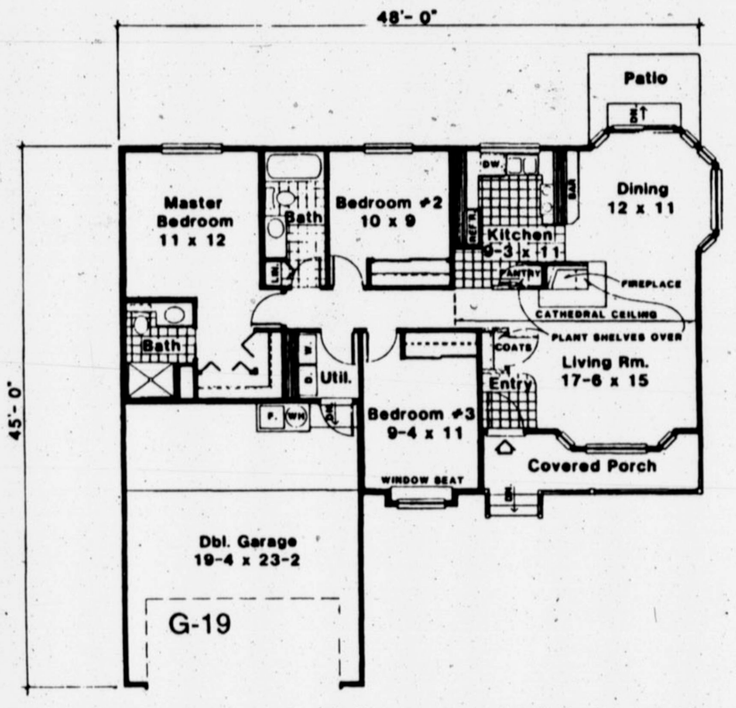

Plan G-19, by HomeStyles Designers Network, is an appealing farmhouse design that features an inviting front porch with decorative railings.

Inside, 14-foot vaulted ceilings grace the living and dining rooms. This large area is brightened by bay windows and warmed by an unusual two-way fireplace. Sliding glass doors lead to a backyard patio.

The kitchen has a pantry closet, plenty of cabinet space and a serving bar to the dining room.

The master bedroom features a mirrored dressing area, a private bath and abundant closet space.

Two additional bedrooms share another full bath. The third bedroom has a cozy window seat.

THE ENTRY opens to the living room, which in turn is open to the dining room. From the dining room, sliding glass doors open to a backyard patio. The kitchen is just a step from the dining room. A hallway leads to the two secondary bedrooms, a utility room, a full bath and the master bedroom with a private bath.

HINTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Paintbrush Primer: Try this tip to prevent the bristles on your old paint brushes from getting all twisted. After cleaning a brush, wrap a sheet of heavy paper around the bristles, and secure it with a rubber band. Your brushes will last a lot longer.

Carefree Freezer: Hate the labor involved in hacking off ice chunks every time you defrost? When your freezer's clean and defrosted, coat the surface that becomes icy with a nonstick cooking spray. Defrosting will be a lot easier next time.

Safety Tips For Fireplace

Pre-Season Checkup

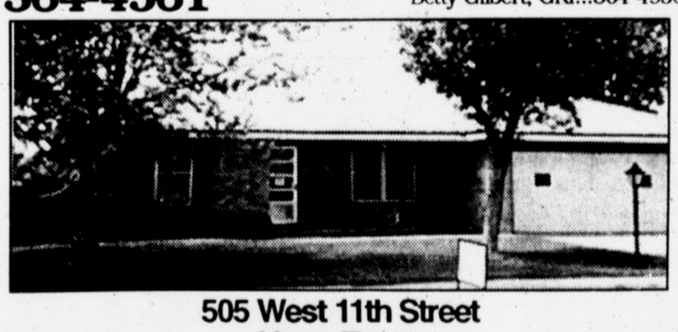

- Inspect the inside of your fireplace with a flashlight for loose bricks or gaps in the mortar. Check the outside of the chimney also. If it passes through the house, inspect it wherever it's visible - usually in the attic. Repair any defects.
- With the damper open, you should be able to look up the chimney and see daylight. If you can't, there may be an obstruction such as a birds' nest that needs to be removed.
- Have the chimney cleaned once a year - more often if you use it frequently or if you burn softwood. Creosote, a sticky black residue created by burning wood, is carried by the smoke and deposited in the chimney. It reduces the ability of the flue to draw off smoke. Because it is flammable, it can also cause a chimney fire. Call a professional chimney sweep to clean your chimney.
- Make sure a fireplace is equipped with end irons or a grate to permit air to flow beneath the blaze, and a screen or glass doors to contain sparks.
- Check the damper. This is the movable plate in the top of the fireplace that's kept open when a fire is burning; it's kept closed when there is no fire to minimize loss of room heat. If it's stiff, spray its hinge or pivot points with a silicone lubricant and work the handle until it moves freely. If it doesn't close completely, use a putty knife to remove deposits around it. If there are still gaps when it's shut, fill the spaces with furnace cement.

Keep It Clean

- Before you start the first fire of the season, clean the walls of the firebox with a dry bristle brush or the dusting attachment of the vacuum cleaner.
- Remove ashes as soon as they're cold to prevent them from being spread throughout the rest of the house. One way to keep dust from rising is to sprinkle moist, tea leaves over the ashes. Then, with the damper closed, gently sweep up as much as possible into a dustpan. To make the job easier, spread aluminum foil beneath the grate; when the ashes are cold, gather up the foil and discard it.
- Clean the fireplace and hearth at least once a week during the months that you use it. Vacuum or brush up ashes, then wipe down the hearth with a damp cloth or sponge. To make your slate hearth gleam, wash and dry it and then coat it with lemon oil every six weeks or so.

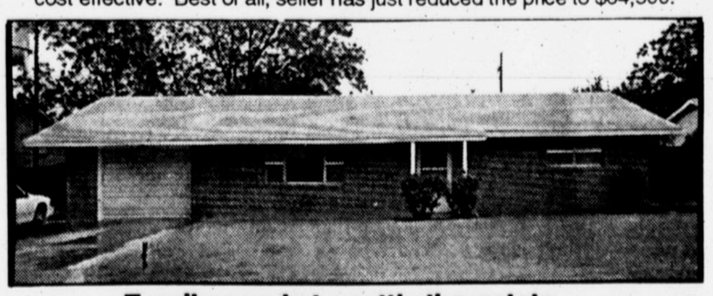

Oak firewood burns longer and cleaner with less ash to carry out.

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the word, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Extension News

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-FCS

Eight weeks remain in this year. These are weeks filled with back to school and holiday expenses on top of the usual budget crunching challenges. What can you do to reduce the stress and feel you are in control of your finances?

People who manage emergency situations that seem bigger than the resources can first "size up the situation." That is exactly what families can do about financial matters.

Work together and size up your financial situation. How much money will your family have? How much are the bills you have to pay? What does each family member need and want to buy or do? What expenses can you adjust by the way you shop and live?

A calendar is a good "size up" tool. Write the amount of money you have coming in each week from gift, things you will sell, and ways family members can earn money other than salaries and pay checks. List only the money you know you can count on receiving.

Next list the bills that have to be paid. Figure out how much is left? Now, how can you use this information, use your resources, keep the situation under control and have a successful year's end?

First and most important, by working together you will find out what is really important to each family member. Too often families get into the habit of buying and doing things they have outgrown or no longer enjoy. Keep a list of things you have been or would have been using your money to buy if you had not taken time to talk. Talk can be both cheap and valuable!

When you know everyone's priorities, think of as many ways as possible to get what your family wants and needs. For example, children can save coupons and help shop for the best buy when you're shopping. Money they save the family can become their "gift fund."

Each family member could decide on the most important things they want to buy or do, and suggest how they might pay for it. Help children plan to do things that are reasonable for their age and ability.

Parents need to model the process of identifying and planning to meet individual needs rather than denying their needs "for the children's sake."

Make an envelope for each person's goal and each type of expense the family has. Write the amount that needs to go into the envelope each week until that goal is reached. If each child's gift envelope needs $80 and it's eight weeks until the holiday, write $10 on the envelope eight times. After essential bills are paid from each pay check or when individuals ear or receive money, put the amount needed into each envelope. Mark the $10 goal reached for the week.

When shopping for gifts, use only money from the gift envelope. You can take advantage of sales without wrecking the rest of your budget.

The key to feeling in control in times of financial crunch is to have planned ahead as much as possible. your family can always reconsider your goals and make changes to meet new opportunities or needs. Making decisions as a family builds the family teams, lets everyone feel their needs and ideas count and avoids surprises.

Challenges to plans are not a sign of failure, they are a sign of the reality of living within our means. Success is defined by being in control of your decisions versus getting everything you want now.

When traveling, take twice the money and half the clothes you think you will need.

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) - The man who made a career out of not speaking had something to say when he got one of Venezuela's top achievement awards.

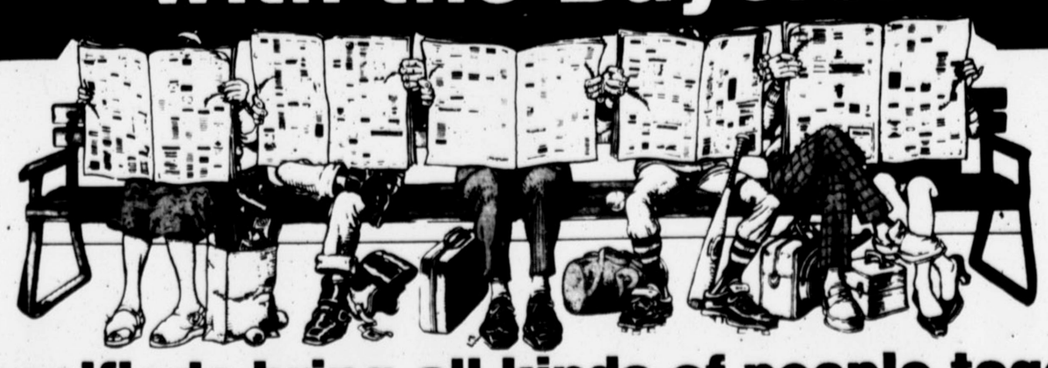

French mime Marcel Marceau thanked President Rafael Caldera out loud Monday when Caldera gave him the Francisco de Miranda award at the presidential palace.

"In the 30 years I've been coming to South America this is the first time I've been received by a president," Marceau said.

The award, named after a hero in Venezuela's 19th-century independence war against Spain, is given to people who have excelled in their fields.

Festival of Trees helps usher in holiday season

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

The seventh annual Festival will be held Nov. 20-24 in the Senior Center, 426 Ranger.

This year the Festival will begin on Wednesday with the addition of an extra day of activities.

"Festival Activities start at 8:30 a.m. on Nov. 20 and Children's Programs begin at that time, also," said Margie Daniels, executive director.

A Preview of Trees is scheduled for 5 p.m.-8 p.m. on Wednesday, providing extra viewing time for anyone interested in bidding on one of the 27 beautifully decorated trees.

This year, as in the past, there will be 26 artificial trees -- including a Super Tree -- and one Living Tree.

The trees are sponsored by area companies for $500 per tree. Some are sponsored by one company, while others have two firms splitting the gift.

The regular 6-1/2 to 7 feet tall artificial trees are provided by the Senior Center. Decorations for the trees are provided by individuals, businesses, school groups and service clubs.

Decorators also determine what theme will be used for their tree.

The trees will be auctioned during the second night of the Festival, at the conclusion of the Festival Gala.

This year, the Gala will be from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 21. The auction will start at 8 p.m.

In addition to the trees, a special item will be auctioned this year -- a handmade porcelain doll dressed in an Eskimo costume. The doll was made by members of Senior Citizens who participate in the weekly doll classes.

Last year, the tree auction netted the center $21,775, the second-highest auction total in the Festival's six-year history.

The Super Tree, sponsored by Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile and decorated by Terry's Floral and Design, sold for $1,550 and was purchased by Dr. and Mrs. Kent Walker. The tree was donated back to the Hereford Senior Citizens Association.

The Memorial Tree debuted in the Festival in 1994 as Homer's Tree, a wooden Christmas tree mounted on one wall and lit with bright lights to recognize donations.

"Now the Memorial Tree serves as a place for people to honor loved ones through financial donations," said Daniels.

Names of honorees and donors will be posted next to the tree and the list will be updated daily, according to Daniels.

--Red light, $250-$499.
--Gold light, $500 to $1,000.

In 1995, approximately 5,000 people attended the Festival to view the trees and take part in other activities.

One of the continuing Festival activities is the Holiday Bazaar. Visitors can browse through the bazaar and shop for Christmas gifts.

A unique gift idea is the holiday baskets which are assembled, filled and wrapped by members of Senior Citizens. Each basket contains an assortment of items built around a central theme and no two baskets are identical.

Other continuous festival activities include the Herd Restaurant, Bake Shop, Children's Shopping, Children's Crafts and Children's Programs.

City of Hereford puts on Christmas program

By WILLIAM SEELEY
Staff Writer

This year, the City of Hereford will put on its first Christmas program.

Mayor Robert Josserand, who a year ago proposed the idea, says he hopes it will become a tradition that builds on itself year after year.

The idea comes from his childhood.

Growing up in Pratt, Kan., Josserand said, "we took a major park and filled it with fairly elaborate displays every Christmas."

It was a tradition that not only gathered the entire community, he said, but also drew families from the surrounding area.

That is Josserand's vision for Hereford.

The inaugural program will be in Mother's Park.

"We talked about bringing in a tree from Colorado or New Mexico and planting it somewhere," Josserand said.

But members of the Hereford Garden Club and the Hereford Beautification Alliance pointed out the perfect tree was already here.

Josserand said the hope is to start small and build a tradition.

"This year we're going to light up the tree (in Mother's Park)," he said, "And, hopefully, as it grows move across the street."

Josserand said he hopes to see the day when Dameron Park is brilliantly lit and decorated, and attracts visitors from the surrounding towns and communities.

"It would be a time to get the people of the community together celebrating the true nature of Christmas, surrounded by family and friends."

The tree lighting ceremony will be at 7 p.m. on Dec. 2. The streets surrounding Mother's park will be blocked off, and the City intends to provide refreshments. The Bell Choir of First Baptist Church will perform.

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce this year will coordinate its city lights program with the lighting of the City tree.

CSF will aid needy families in Hereford

The annual Christmas Stocking Fund campaign will get underway soon in Hereford. CSF is a charity intended to help the less fortunate of the community during the Christmas holidays.

The program operates on contributions. Thanks to the generous support of local residents, the campaign collected $18,435 for CSF last year. Assistance is provided in various forms, including food and vouchers for clothing, utilities and medical expenses.

CSF is administered by an anonymous committee of volunteers, enlisted to represent a broad cross-section of the community. The group is gearing up for another campaign, and a few slots are open for new volunteers.

To protect the identity of the anonymous committee, persons interested in working with the committee may contact Speedy Nieman at the Hereford Brand. He will pass along the names to CSF. The newspaper handles the fund-raising drive and publicity.

CSF volunteers screen applications and arrange for distribution of food and vouchers. CSF is not affiliated with any other organization. The non-profit program serve's the community's less fortunate regardless of race, color, age, religion, handicap, or national origin.

CSF applications will be taken one week only, Nov. 18-22, at the Community Center. More details about making applications will be released next week. This schedule allows time to process forms and arrange for distributions before Christmas. This also allows volunteers to complete the campaign and still have time to enjoy the holidays with their families.

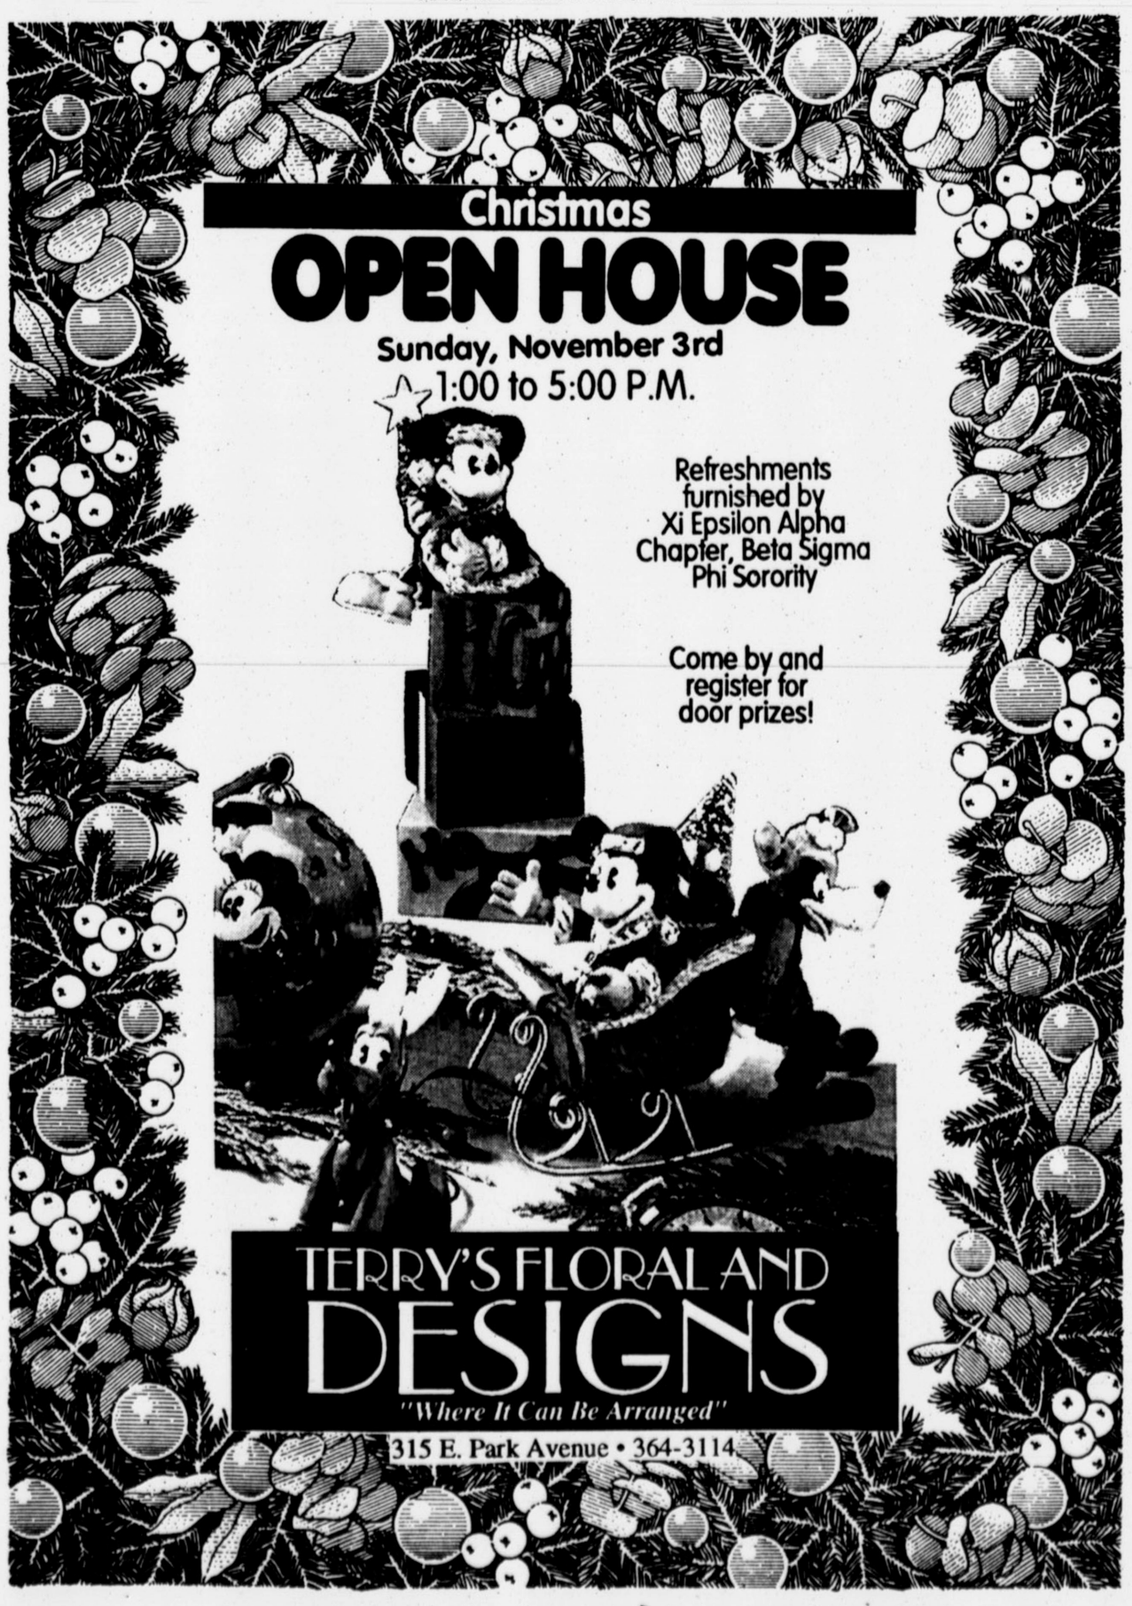

The Brand serves as the collection agency for cash donations to CSF, and the newspaper publishes a list of contributors and funding totals as the campaign progresses.

The CSF program started in 1980 as the project of a men's Sunday School class, which enlisted The Brand to help with funding and publicity. The men gave up the administration of the program in 1986, and several interested citizens formed a new CSF committee.

The program drew $4,800 in cash donations the first year. The total ranged from approximately $7,000 to $8,000 for several years. Generous residents have provided from $17,000 to more than $20,000 since 1990. The record is $21,451, given in 1993.

Local Christmas bazaars, gift shows are scheduled

Handmade items make a welcome gift for nearly anyone on your Christmas list. Annual arts and crafts bazaars are an excellent source for such items.

If you are an artist or craftsman, the bazaars offer opportunities to display your handiwork and perhaps increase your income as well.

Several bazaars are scheduled in Hereford and surrounding towns, some with booth space still available.

Westway Country Christmas Bazaar is scheduled for Nov. 9 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center.

For more information, call Carolyn Evers at 364-4739 and leave a message.

First United Methodist Church Bazaar is set for 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Nov. 9.

There will be booths for food including baked goods, casseroles and canned goods; homemade candy; children's activities; men's craft items; general crafts including needlework; coffee and rolls, doughnuts and muffins.

A luncheon, featuring King Ranch chicken casserole, will be open for business.

Wesley United Methodist Church will host its 16 annual Festival of Arts and Crafts from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on Dec. 7 in the Community Center.

A limited number of booths are available, with applications being screened.

For an application, write Ellen Collins, 801 Miles St., Hereford, Texas 79045 or call 806-364-0774.

Christ's Church Fellowship will hold the Gift and Goodies Holiday Fair on Dec. 7.

There will be Christmas gift items, baked goods of all kinds and lunch of chili and cornbread.

Moonlight Extension Club will hold its 18th annual Christmas Bazaar Dec. 6-7 in the Bailey County Civic Center and Coliseum in Muleshoe.

To request an application, contact Linda Huckaby, 902 West 8th Street, Muleshoe, Texas 79347.

The Holiday Arts and Craft Bazaar, sponsored by Nazareth Art Club, will be held from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Nov. 24 in the Nazareth School Cafeteria.

The greatest seasonal snowfall was during the winter of 1955-1956 when over 1,000 inches of snow fell on Paradise Ranger Station in the state of Washington.

Winter fashions

Dee Hamilton models a winter outfit from Peddlers Cove. Styles for winter and the upcoming holiday season will be shown at the Winter and Christmas Style Show at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford Country Club. The show is hosted by the Retail Merchants and Women's Divisions of the Chamber of Commerce.

Style show, dinner will feature winter fashions

Fashions for the coming holiday season and throughout the winter, that are available in Hereford, will be featured in the Winter and Christmas Style Show hosted by the Retail Merchants Division and Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

The dinner and show will take place at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford Country Club.

Local retailers who will present the latest looks for winter and the holidays are Pants Cage, Etcetera, Peddlers Cove, Kid's Alley, Anthony's, Renee's Repeat Boutique, Inkahoots, 20/20 Eye Wear, Merle Norman Cosmetics and Caryn's Hallmark Shop.

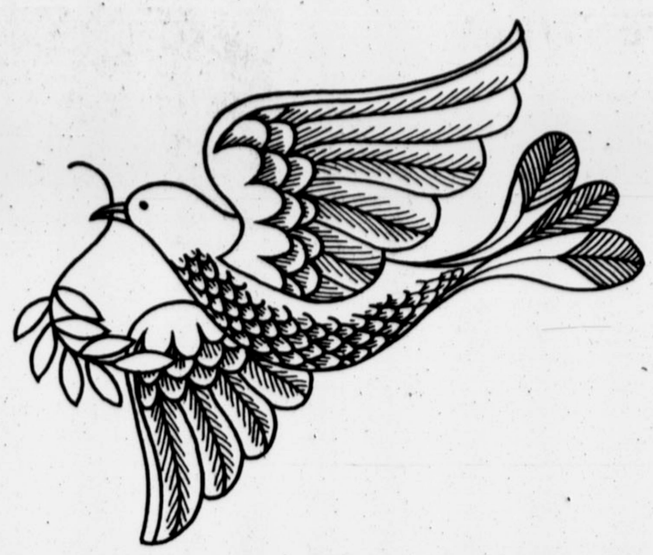

Other local merchants who are members of the Chamber are helping sponsor and providing numerous door prizes for the event.

They are Hereford Hustlers, Charlie Bell Insurance, Hereford State Bank, Agri-Pro Seed, Inc., Hereford Brand, Stagner-Carr Motors, Oswalt Livestock Products, Keeling Cattle Feeders, Southwestern Public Service, Hereford Janitor Supply, W.T. Services and West Texas Rural Telephone.

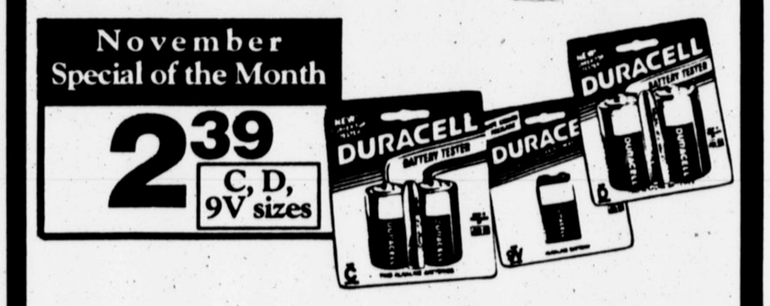

Others include Cotten-Warrick, Plains Insurance, Deaf Smith Rural Electric, FirstBank Southwest, Anderson Studio, Boots and Saddle, Custom Cleaners, West Park Drug, K-Bob's, Daniel Catalog Sales and Wishes.

Mary Thomas will be the emcee.

Tickets are $8 each and may be obtained from any of the participating retailers, members of the Women's Division or the Chamber office at 701 N. Main.

Readers offer favorite family holiday recipes

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Holidays are steeped in traditions -- traditional decorations, traditional visits to grandma's house or that special aunt's and traditional foods.

In Hereford, as elsewhere, food is apparently an integral part of Thanksgiving and Christmas tradition as indicated by our readers responded to a request for favorite family holiday recipes. They sent not only recipes, but often included comments about the origin of the recipes and the tradition behind them.

Perhaps one of these will appeal to you and become a part of your family's holiday tradition.

MAIN DISH

Even though turkey and dressing are most frequently served as the main dish on the holiday itself, tradition often extends to the dinner on the eve of that holiday when a large number of family members have already arrived.

If the hostess doesn't want to spend long hours alone in the kitchen cooking for a crowd, the following recipe could be the perfect solution.

Granny Tyler's Goulash
Marn Tyler

1 lb. ground beef (browned)
1 small onion chopped
1 tsp. salt
4 potatoes (peel and cut in bite size)
4 carrots (peel and cut in bite size)

Add 2 cups water to potatoes and carrots and cook 20 minutes, then add remaining ingredients.

1 can green beans and juice
2 cans tomato sauce

Add all ingredients to meat mixture and cook until vegetables are done.

As for the traditional main dish of turkey and dressing, Darlene McManigal wrote, "This is my mother's traditional dressing recipe, which is simple and basic, but Oh-So-Good! She is Gladys Hromas of Farwell. She usually makes this recipe for all our Thanksgiving and Christmas celebrations, but in a larger quantity than this recipe makes because we like the leftovers, too."

Traditional Dressing
Darlene McManigal

1-1/2 quart biscuits, crumbled
1-1/2 quart cornbread, crumbled
1/4 teaspoon (or more) black pepper
2 teaspoons salt
3/4 cup finely chopped celery
2 small onions, chopped
1 teaspoon sage
3 beaten eggs
broth from turkey or canned broth

Mix all ingredients together and pour enough broth in crumb mixture until soupy. Let set for 15 minutes. If it is not soupy enough at this point, add more broth -- because it will dry out as it bakes. Pour into a greased roasting pan. Cover and bake for 1-1/2 hours in 350 degree oven.

If everyone in your family doesn't eat dressing, there are some appropriate substitutes. Prepare both and let them choose.

The note from Kee Ruland about Baked Rice said, "My grandmother, Mary Skypala, served Baked Rice at every holiday meal for as long as I can remember. It was served with fried chicken or pork roast or turkey and it was a wonderful side dish with all of them. I celebrated my 19th birthday at West Texas State and she sent two pans over to me. Needless to say, it didn't last long. Everyone loved it."

Baked Rice
Kee Ruland

2 cups rice (regular rice is best but you can use Minute rice)

Prepare according to package directions and let cool.

1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs (lightly beaten)
1 8 oz. can crushed pineapple

Butter two metal pie pans (rice browns better in metal.)

Combine all ingredients and pour into pie pans.

Bake in 350 degree oven for 30-40 minutes, until lightly brown. After you've taken it from the oven, sprinkle a little sugar on top. Good hot or cold.

If the holiday dinner isn't being served at your house, but you are taking a dish somewhere else, then try Margaret Lomenick's Grits and Cheese.

"This makes a good dish for carry out dinners, and it is easily divided in half," she said.

Grits and Cheese
Margaret Lomenick

Bring to boil:
6 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
Add: 1 cup grits
Cook: 10 minutes
Stir in:
1-1/2 sticks margarine
4 well beaten eggs
1 pound Velveeta cheese
dash Worcestershire sauce
Bake: 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

APPETIZER

Special dishes aren't always served with the main holiday meal. These appetizers would be great for a party or to put out at home before dinner to satisfy those (and there are always some) who say, "Is it ready yet?"

This recipe, submitted by Nell Culpepper, was given to her by Mrs. Ralph McCullough 35 or 40 years ago.

Chili Cheese Roll
Nell Culpepper

3/4 lb. American cheese, shredded
1 cup nuts, chopped
8 oz. pkg cream cheese
3/4 teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon chili powder

Work with hands until blended. Form into 2 rolls or roll into small balls. Roll in paprika. May be kept in refrigerator for weeks.

Sharing a good recipe is a tradition in itself. Ruth Allison wrote, "This recipe was given to me by Mrs. Jimmie Gillentine." (Gillentine was publisher of The Brand from 1939 through 1971.)

Cheese Roll
Ruth Allison

1 lb. Old English cheese
1 3 oz. package cream cheese
1 cup pecans, ground
1 teaspoon garlic salt
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce

Divide into 3 parts and roll in chili powder on waxed paper. Store in refrigerator.

According to Chris Hartley, the following cheese ball recipe "came out of a Betty Crocker cookbook. I started taking it to my in-laws house at Christmas before we were married. Now it is a tradition."

Party Cheese Ball
Chris Hartley

2 packages (8 oz. each) cream cheese

3/4 cup crumbled blue cheese (about 4 ounces)
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese (about 4 ounces)
1/4 cup minced onion
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
Finely snipped parsley

Place cheeses in small mixing bowl; let stand at room temperature until softened. Add onion and Worcestershire sauce; blend on low speed. Beat on medium speed until fluffy, scraping side and bottom of bowl. Cover; chill at least 8 hours.

Shape mixture into 1 large ball or into 30-36 1-inch balls. Roll in parsley; place on serving plate. Cover; chill 2 hours or until firm.

Arrange small crisp crackers around large ball and serve as a spread. To serve small balls, insert a pick in each and serve with crackers.

Variations:

Holiday Cheese Ball: Shape mixture into 1 large ball; do not roll in parsley. Decorate ball as desired with cuts of pimento, green pepper and sliced pimento-stuffed olives. Trim base of ball with tiny cocktail onions or pimento-stuffed olives. For Christmas, top ball with green pepper star or a ribbon bow.

Christmas Tree: Do not shape mixture into ball(s). Cover chill only until mixture is firm enough to mold. Mound on inverted flat-bottomed bowl, about 5 inches in diameter. With 2 spatulas or knives, shape mixture to form peaked Christmas three. Cover and chill.

When ready to serve, place tree and bowl in center of large tray; sprinkle tree with snipped parsley. Arrange crackers and snacks around bowl. If desired, use strips of green pepper and pimento to form candles (or cut with canape cutter to form other ornamental shapes); press gently into tree. Cut 2 star shapes from green pepper; arrange back to back at the top of the tree.

(Recipe from Betty Crocker Cookbook)

VEGETABLES/ SALADS

Cranberry sauce, canned or homemade, is a traditional side dish with turkey and dressing. But there are other ways to include the taste of cranberries.

Cranberry Salad
Nell Culpepper

1 pkg. cherry flavored gelatin
1 cup cranberries
1 orange
1 cup celery
1 cup crushed pineapple
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
3/4 cup sugar

Dissolve gelatin in 1 cup boiling water. Grind orange and cranberries. Add other ingredients to cranberries and orange, then to chilled gelatin. Better the second or third day, being kept in refrigerator.

In the note accompanying this relish recipe, McManigal wrote, "This recipe was given to me by my mother-in-law, Audie McManigal. It is a wonderful recipe with the aroma and taste of the holidays."

Cranberry Relish
Darlene McManigal

2 - 12 oz. packages fresh (frozen) cranberries, ground
2 apples - unpeeled, ground
2 oranges with rind from 1/2 orange, ground
1-1/2 to 2 cups sugar
1 package (3 oz.) raspberry gelatin
1 cup very hot water
1 cup crushed pineapple
1/2 cup (or more) white seedless grapes, halved
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Grind first three ingredients. mix together and add sugar. Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cool slightly while you add pineapple, grapes and pecans to fruit mixture. Then mix in gelatin and refrigerate for at least 3 hours or until ready to serve.

Lomenick submitted two similar recipes because, "Cranberry-Orange Relish is my children's favorite, but the Cranberry Relish was always made by my mother at Thanksgiving and Christmas."

Cranberry-Orange Relish
Margaret Lomenick

Grind:
4 cups raw cranberries
2 oranges, seeds removed, peeling left on oranges.

Mix thoroughly:
2 cups sugar with the ground mixture.

Store in refrigerator several hours before serving.

Cranberry Relish
Margaret Lomenick

Wash thoroughly:
1 pound fresh cranberries
1 naval orange
2 large red apples

Then grind in blender or food processor.

Add:
2 cups sugar
1 cup chopped nuts

Store in refrigerator. Serve with

Co-chairpersons for La Madre Mia Study Club annual Tour of Homes, from left, Judy Williams, Susan Hicks and Glenda Marcum, carefully observe this doll house, just as everyone will observe the homes included on this year's tour. Featured will be the homes of Ralph and Judy Detten, Ernest and Carmen Food, Frank and Diana Griffin, and R.C. and Diane Hoelscher. The tour will be from 1 p.m.-4 p.m. on Dec. 8. Tickets are $5 and are available from any member of La Madre Mia Study Club or at the homes on the day of the tour.

Tour of Homes planned again by La Madre Mia Study Club

By BECKY CAMP
Lifestyles Editor

Since 1968, La Madre Mia Study Club has helped usher in the spirit of the holidays with its annual Tour of Homes.

Once again this year the tour will highlight the onset of the Christmas season, taking place from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Dec. 8.

Featured will be the homes of Ralph and Judy Detten, 147 N. Texas; Ernest and Carmen Flood, 4-1/4 miles west on the Harrison Highway from the intersection of Park and Highway 385; Frank and Diana Griffin, 114 Juniper; and R.C. and Diane Hoelscher, 207 N. Texas.

Tickets for the tour are $5 per person. They may be purchased in advance from any la Madre Mia Club member or at any of the featured homes the day of the tour.

Co-chairmen for this year's tour are Judy Williams, Susan Hicks and Glenda Marcum.

The annual tour is the principle fund-raiser for the Club. Money raised stays within the community for scholarships and other worthy causes.

In the past, La Madre Mia has contributed to Hereford Aquatic Center, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Hereford Satellite Center, Hereford High School Scholarship, United Way, Christmas Stocking Fund and Christmas Lighting Fund.

Others receiving contributions have been Deaf Smith County Library, Child Welfare Board, Opportunity Plan, Golden Spread Foster Parents, Life Line, Friends of the Library, Special Olympics, Girlstown and Ronald McDonald House.

They have also assisted Special Education Program, Early Childhood Development Program, Rape Crisis Center, E.B. Black House Gazebo Fund, Family Services, Cancer Society, Muscular Dystrophy, Day Care Center, Problem Pregnancy Center and Compassionate Friends.

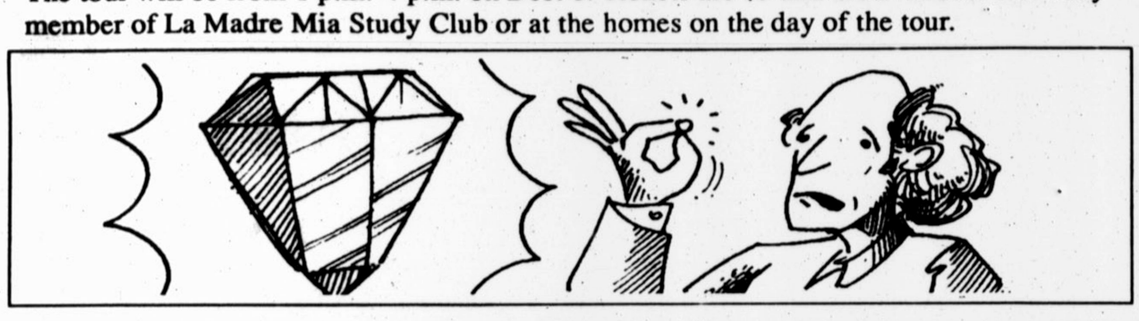

The club has also made special donations to families in need at a particular time.

These contributions have been made possible due to good attendance during the annual tours.

Those attending the tour this year will see antiques and unique Christmas decorations as well as numerous decorating and remodeling ideas.

They will also have a chance of winning the door prize that will be given away.

Ready for the toy drive

The Tri-County Chapter of the American Red Cross will soon begin collecting toys for the needy at Christmas. Clean, usable toys are needed to provide gifts for children who might otherwise not have any presents for Christmas. Here, chapter manager Johnnie Meeks, right, and volunteer Genevieve Miller look over some toys that have already been donated. Toys will be collected between Nov. 15 and Dec. 15 for delivery on Dec. 20.

Toys provided local children by Red Cross, CSF campaign

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Each year, children who might not otherwise receive toys for Christmas get a helping hand from the American Red Cross and the Christmas Stocking Fund.

The Tri-County Chapter of the American Red Cross will soon begin collecting good, clean used toys -- and new toys as well -- that will be given to youngsters this holiday season.

Betty Henson of the Red Cross said the toy distribution is done in connection with the Christmas Stocking Fund, which helps needy residents during the holidays.

Individuals needing assistance from the CSF will apply for that help Nov. 18-23 in the Community Center lounge. Applications will be taken daily from 120:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The Red Cross uses the names of children in those families to form the basis of its toy program.

In addition, she said, "we also accept names from other organizations and from people who are concerned (that) a neighbor is not going to have toys for their children."

The Red Cross accepts donations any time, but Mrs. Henson said the toy drive will begin on Nov. 15, which is after the Red Cross garage sale on Nov. 9 and 10, which raises funds to be used in time of disaster.

The toys donated to the Red Cross must be usable, clean and in working condition.

"Volunteers select toys for individuals kids" based on the ages of children included in the CSF applications.

The number of toys given to each child depends on the number of items donated by the public.

In addition, Mrs. Henson said, the Red Cross likes to try and put some small clothing items such as socks in each package.

Last year, she went on, Gibson's donated enough socks so every one of the more than 600 children served were able to have a new pair of socks to begin 1996.

The Red Cross does not give used socks or underwear to clients, so Mrs. Henson asked that any donations of those items for Christmas be new.

The Red Cross also accepts cash donations for the purchase of new toys as necessary.

Once the toys are gathered, cleaned and divided into individuals packages, they are delivered by anonymous volunteers on Dec. 20, just in time for Christmas.

In addition to accepting donations of toys and small clothing, the Red Cross also is seeking any clean, used clothing items and coats.

"We've been real short on children's coats this year," Mrs. Henson said, noting that an early cold snap this year highlighted the problem.

She said the Red Cross urgently needs boys coats in sizes 10 and under and girls coats in all sizes.

All coats need to be clean and in good conditions.

Anyone interested in making a donation to the Red Cross in any of these areas may drop them by the office, 224 S. Main, during business hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., or may call 364-3761 to arrange a pickup or drop-off time.

Sourpuss granny on greeting cards

NEW YORK (AP) - Buzz off, Garfield. Roll over, Snoopy. Hallmark's stalwarts are being elbowed aside on the greeting card racks by a sourpuss granny who is turning merchandising on its head.

Warm and fuzzy, she ain't.

With her trademark dark glasses and bunny slippers, the blue-rinsed grandmother with the acerbic wit known as Maxine has carved herself such a loyal following that she is quipping her way into a golden-aged media empire.

"There are easier things than meeting a good man," she quips on the cover of a Hallmark card, between puffs of a cigarette. "Nailing Jell-o to a tree, for instance."

So what's a geriatric, acid-tongued character like Maxine doing at a respectable place like Hallmark?

Most cartoon characters end up on greeting cards only after proving themselves on the funny pages, but Maxine made the opposite leap and now appears in "Crabby Road," a strip published in more than 100 newspapers nationwide. Her likeness also graces pins, hats, playing cards and even a foot-tall doll.

Hallmark, the nation's largest greeting card seller with $3.4 billion in sales last year, was surprised by the success of Maxine, a product which emerged from its irreverent Shoebox line.

The feisty greeting card character has captured 8 percent of Shoebox's sales and is such a hit that people flood her creator with fan mail and suggestions.

"It's kind of humbled me," says Maxine's creator, artist John Wagner, who based part of the character's tell-it-like-it-is persona on his grandmother and mother. "She's been a voice for a silent group of women that are glad that this cranky old woman is finally saying what she wants."

Maxine first emerged on card racks in the fall of 1986 and was an instant hit with consumers sick of soppy sentimentality.

"When she first came out, we were so worried that older people might be offended," Hallmark spokeswoman Rachel Bolton said. "It turns out to be just the opposite. People loved her."

When Elizabeth W. Markson unwrapped a Maxine T-shirt and card given to her by her adolescent son on a recent birthday, she was somewhat put off.

"I think that she feeds into both negative stereotypes about aging and about women," said Markson, the associate director of Boston University's Gerontology Center. "I mean, saying 'Old age is just a state of behind' does not thrill me as a middle-aged woman."

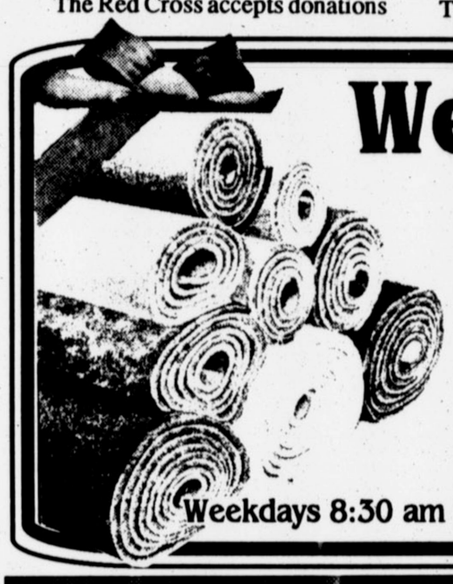

"But I was polite and I gave the T-shirt away," she said. "I think it reinforces a kind of bitterness."

"To me she's just a savvy lady who's earned the right to be grouchy and doesn't mind speaking her mind," said Linda Gilbert, 47, of Rocky Mount, N.C. "I think it's funny. It strikes a center in me, I guess."

Hallmark says consumers have voted in favor of the witty senior by plunking down $16 million last year in Maxine-related merchandising.

Her 48-year-old artist said Shoebox is catering to a niche audience.

"She's not going to appeal to everybody and that's OK," said John Wagner, a 26-year veteran card artist. "It's really interesting that this character appeals to a group of people across gender and age who say that this woman says what I want to say."

Project Christmas Card set again

The annual Project Christmas Card donations will be accepted again this year by L'Allegra Study Club. The club places a page ad in The Brand with names of donors who send Christmas greetings instead of cards. Proceeds are used to buy needed equipment for Hereford Regional Medical Center.

Project Christmas Card serves busy greeters, benefits hospital

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

In all the hustle-bustle of the holiday season, many people are too busy to send Christmas greetings.

And even too busy to read the greetings that they receive.

For those people, L'Allegra Study Club sponsors Project Christmas Card.

Instead of sending local greetings, L'Allegra Study Club President Sylvia Khuri said, people can make monetary contributions to the club in the amount of what they would normally spend on Christmas cards and postage stamps.

Contribution canisters will be placed at several locations in the community such as banks, grocery stores, merchants, Hereford Regional Medical Center and The Brand in late November.

The club provides envelopes on which contributors are asked to write their name as they would like it to appear in the newspaper.

The names of contributors will be printed in the Christmas Greetings edition of The Brand.

"It's a greeting. Anybody who is listed there is greeting the whole community," Mrs. Khuri said.

Project Christmas Card is the major fund-raiser for the L'Allegra Study Club.

The proceeds benefit Hereford Regional Medical Center.

"It stays in Hereford, for sure," Mrs. Khuri said.

The project was started by the Medical and Dental Auxiliary, a group of doctors and dentists' spouses as a community service project in 1956.

L'Allegra has sponsored the project since 1986.

"We took it over with the understanding that it will always benefit the hospital," she said.

Throughout the years, $120,000 has been raised from the project. L'Allegra club members, alone, have raised $60,000.

The L'Allegra Study Club has purchased a colposcope, a gazebo, a mammogram grid, an oxygen monitor for obstetrics, a fetal monitor, a blood pressure monitor, a cardiac enzyme monitor and lab equipment with past proceeds from Project Christmas Card.

Also, Mrs. Khuri said, the club has donated money to the Deaf Smith Health Care Foundation endowment fund.

"And we're hoping this year to raise even more," she said.

As she has walked through the hospital, Mrs. Khuri said, she has seen how the hospital benefits from the project.

"It's good in that sense. I often see a piece of equipment being used and I know we're doing something good," she said.

The local hospital is extremely important to the community, she said.

"So if we want it in the future, we have to support it now," Mrs. Khuri said.

With support from the community on Project Christmas Card, she said, L'Allegra can contribute something back to the whole community.

"It's been a very successful project since the auxiliary had it. It continues to be a successful one," she said.

To tip or not to tip?

Numerous workers cash in on tip cup trend

By MARIA PANARITIS
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Standing smack on top of the cash register between Seman Fedil and his customers is a battered plastic foam cup he personalized with his name and a hopeful hint: "Tips."

While a common sight in trendy coffee shops, the tip cup seems somewhat out of place in this downtown Dunkin' Donuts, part of an age-old chain whose uniformed workers have been dishing out doughnuts and java to take-out customers for 50 years.

"I was surprised to see the tip cups," said Toni Ogle, reluctantly tossing a quarter into an empty cup before leaving with her coffee. "What do they do to get a tip? They're waiting on you. They're getting paid for it."

With Pavlovian reflex, customers are dumping money into tip containers left and right these days, leaving coffee shops, ice cream parlors and greasy sandwich joints to cash in on a growing trend that preys on pity.

"It doesn't take a genius to figure out that if you put a cup out someone will put a tip in it. It's begging," said Christopher Muller, an assistant professor in Cornell University's School of Hotel Administration.

"Why do we tip people for doing their job well?" Muller asked. "Do you leave $10 in an envelope for the garbage guys at Christmas? Does it mean that they'll toss the garbage on the lawn if you don't?"

Tip cups seem to be popping up in minimum-wage retail establishments that seldom solicited gratuities until recently.

"I have noticed that as a new phenomenon in the last five years - I saw it in the West Coast and here in the Rocky Mountain region - coffee houses and other kinds of delis, small outlets that don't have table service, have these tipping jars," said Kim Long, who documents annual trends in The American Forecaster Almanac, published in Denver.

"If this is spreading, it ought to spread outside of coffee shops, and therefore at some movie theater somewhere in the U.S., someone's going to put a tip jar on the counter next to the popcorn machine," Long said.

Long speculates that the tip cup phenomenon is rooted in the growth of gourmet coffee shops, which invite tips by showering customers with smiles and specializing in hard-to--make coffee concoctions.

Seattle-based Starbucks is at the forefront of the coffee shop phenomenon, boasting more than 960 stores nationwide and aiming for 2,000 worldwide by the end of the millennium, said spokeswoman Jeanne McKay.

Unlike many retail food and beverage establishments, Starbucks pays part- and full-time workers starting wages of $6 to $7 an hour and offers them generous benefits and stock packages.

The company allows workers to display 4-by-4-inch, unmarked Plexiglas cups by its registers.

"We try to be subtle," she said. "We don't want to shove it down customers' throats and make them feel like they have to tip."

At Dunkin' Donuts, individual store owners decide whether employees can display tip cups as a way of boosting morale, said Jennifer Rosenberg, spokeswoman for the Randolph, Mass., company.

"It's an intimidation strategy. You put a cup out and people feel like they have to put money in it, and they don't know why," said Cornell's Muller.

Take Marie Raggio. Moments after being handed change for a cup of hazelnut-flavored coffee, Raggio flipped her right wrist over the Starbucks tip cup, opened her hand and let loose a fistful of coins.

"I should have a reason for giving my money away - especially as an accountant for a law firm," Raggio said. "Maybe it's because I see the cup there."

Jamie Rubin, 20, knows the benefits of a well-placed tip cup. As a part-time worker at Ashley's Ice Cream in New Haven, Conn., the college student has taken home as much as $30 in tips on a good night.

"It's real important, because we only get paid $5 an hour," said Rubin, who attends Southern Connecticut University. "It really makes a difference."

At Everything On A Bagel, a sandwich shop in one of Philadelphia's fanciest indoor food courts, the tip cup has been around virtually since it opened last September, said co-owner Barbara Cahill.

Two young women who worked there got the idea from another sandwich shop and Cahill, 48, who describes herself as a good tipper, had no problem with it.

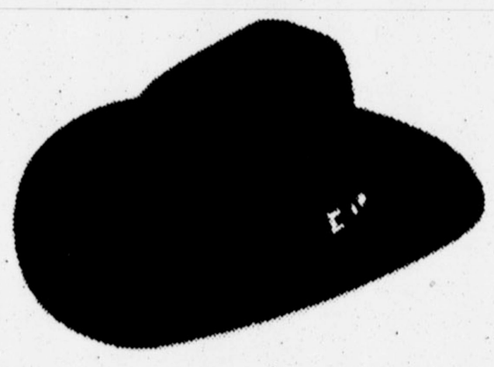

"A tip is a tip is a tip," she said.

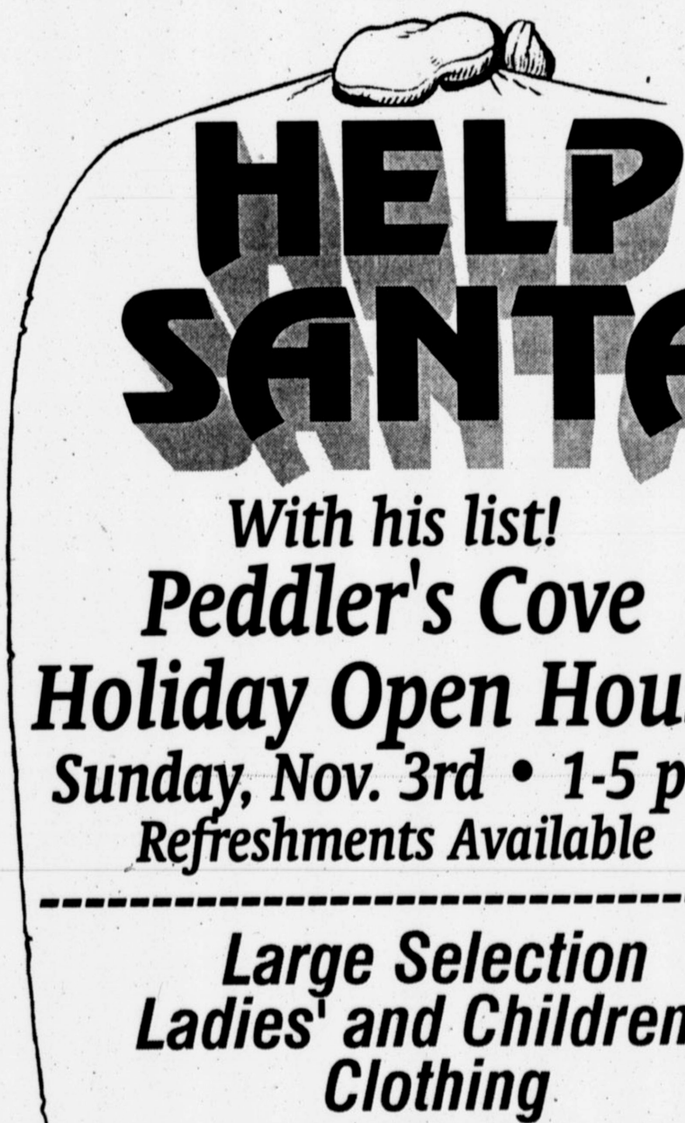

For workers like Fedil, a few extra bucks a day is better than none.

"If you are lucky, some people are kind - they leave 50 or 75 cents. But some," he said, shaking the empty cup and smiling, "they leave pennies."

Musical Christmas arrangement

Sharon Bodner, member of Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, holds a Christmas arrangement that the chapter is selling chances on for $1 each. The arrangement, designed by Terry Sparks of Terry's Floral and Design, will be on display in the shop during the Open House this Sunday. The name of the winner will be drawn at the close of the Westway Christmas Bazaar on Nov. 9.

Golden gals still giving

By SARAH CHRISTIAN
Associated Press Writer

Allison, 82, is not a patient or an employee at the Bronx hospital, but one of a special group of women affectionately called the Golden Gals. They are all at least 80 years old, and they have been volunteers for years.

"The patients keep me young and alive," Allison said. "I love being here."

Norma Gindes, director of volunteer services, said the work of the six Gals and the rest of the hospital's volunteers is irreplaceable. She figured that her approximately 200 volunteers give about 2,000 days a year.

"They really provide incredible services. Without their help, we'd be in a lot of trouble," she said of the volunteers.

Nearly 32 million older people bolster volunteer rolls across the country, and they work slightly longer hours per week than most other age groups, according to statistics from Independent Sector, a coalition of nonprofit groups that surveys volunteers nationwide every two years.

The coalition's most recent survey, taken in 1994, shows 45 percent of people age 60 to 75 volunteer 5 hours per week, and 36 percent of those over 75 volunteer 4.4 hours per week.

The volunteers at Beth Abraham often operate programs that would not otherwise exist, Gindes said, giving as an example 82-year-old Jasmine Toumayan's arts and crafts group.

"It's very important," said 75-year-old patient Maria Fuentes, who looks forward to Toumayan's classes. "If we aren't doing this, we would sit there in our rooms doing nothing and the day is longer."

As useful and appreciated as they are, the Golden Gals may be a unique phenomenon. Younger volunteers tend to give their time more in spurts than in years of sustained service like that of the Golden Gals.

Gindes said many younger volunteers come to fulfill an obligation, such as a school requirement, then leave. They are young and energetic, but not long-lasting.

"Not that it (volunteering) is not growing, just that it's becoming episodic. It's not like there are a lot who have been here for years," she said, with a nod toward 85-year-old Gladys Benjamin, who has worked at Beth Abraham for 13 years assisting staff with birthday parties, weekly gardening groups and other chores.

That trend toward the episodic is being seen throughout industries that use volunteers, said John Thomas, a spokesman for Independent Sector.

"For one reason, people are busier. They don't always have large blocks of time and not in the middle of the day." Thomas said. "Also people are more specific about what they want to do. They are more task-oriented and want to see a start and a finish."

Senior volunteers differ from the younger generations because they were more often raised with the tradition and their lifestyles are more conducive to it, said Tom Otwell, a spokesman for the American Association of Retired Persons.

Long before she had her own children, Josephine Gemelli - who at 92 is the oldest of the Golden Gals - helped raise her 11 brothers and sisters.

"My mother had 12 kids. She needed help, so she kept me home," Gemelli said. "The principal came over and saw all of us and said 'It's OK for Josephine to stay home.'

"Oh, but I loved it. I love it now. I love taking care of people."

By SHERRI MARTIN
Staff Writer

If you're trying to plan some activities for the holidays, you won't have to travel very far.

DEAF SMITH COUNTY LIBRARY

Also, Services Coordinator Sue Cherry is teaching a needlework class from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursdays.

For all your baking, decorating and craft needs, the librarians will have recipe and craft books on a special display.

A literacy training will be held Nov. 8, Nov. 15 and Nov. 16.

The library is open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday and Thursday; 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday; and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.

The library will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 29, Nov. 30, Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

DEAF SMITH COUNTY HISTORICAL MUSEUM

The E.B. Black House, located at 508 West Third, was built in 1909.

A nine-foot-tall tree will be decorated in an "Old-Fashioned Christmas" theme. The tree will be adorned with such things as home-made gingerbread men and peppermint candies.

The E.B. Black House will be decorated in a "Victorian Christmas" theme. A color scheme of burgundy, mauve and white will be carried out throughout the house.

It will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

HEREFORD AQUATIC CENTER

An afternoon open swim will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Nov. 27 and Nov. 29.

From Dec. 3- Jan. 3, the aquatic center will host a winter recreation camp from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Also, an afternoon open swim will be held from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The aquatic center will be closed Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

HEREFORD AND VICINITY YMCA

The YMCA gives visitors several options for sporting activities.

According to General Director YMCA Weldon Knabe, the YMCA will have an open gym throughout the holidays. A daily fee of $2 will be charged for youth. The youth can play basketball, volleyball, racquetball and more.

The YMCA will host the annual "Make a Child Smile" volleyball tournament Nov. 14-16. There will be three divisions: Co-ed quads, open power, Amarillo rules; Co-ed A, six person teams, modified rules; Co-ed B, six person teams, recreational rules. The entry fee is $30 and a toy valued at $10. The deadline is Nov. 12. Proceeds from the tournament will benefit the YMCA and Big Brothers/Big Sisters.

The AAU wrestling program for boys and girls, ages 6-16 meets from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The program will run through Feb. 7. The wrestling coach is Rip Evers.

The Hereford YMCA wrestling team will sponsor an AAU wrestling tournament at 9 a.m. on Dec. 21 at Hereford Junior High. Texas and New Mexico teams will be competing in the tournament. Spectators are welcome.

The Elementary Boys and Girls Basketball Leagues will start in January. Registration is under way with a cost of $18. Each will have three divisions: 8 and under, 10 and under and 13 and under.

The YMCA is open from 5:30 a.m. to 10 p.m on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday; from 5:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Wednesday and Friday; 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday; and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m on Sunday.

Contact YMCA for membership rates and policies.

RECIPES

ham and turkey. The longer this sits the better. It also freezes well.

Berry Pizzay
Margaret Lomenick

Add 1 can (20 oz.) crushed pineapple, drained, and 1 can (20 oz.) blueberry pie filling.

Mix together 1 cup sour cream, 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese and 1/2 cup sugar. Cream until smooth.

Billie Kelley included an historical note about this recipe which said, "At a garage sale last summer, I bought several books. One of them was a cookbook titled 'The Household Searchlight Recipe Book' dated 1934. The book was given to Mildred Elizabeth Channer Allen in 1934 by her mother. She is the sister of Dr. John Channer and is now living in a nursing home in Hereford.

"It is a beautiful book with a sound cover and all the pages are in excellent condition. One of the most interesting recipes is a salad made as follows:"

Cabbage Apple Salad
Billie Kelley

1 large head cabbage
1 red apple
1 stalk celery
1 tomato, chopped
1 cup diced celery
2 cups diced apple
1 diced green pepper
1/2 cup chopped nuts
Russian dressing:
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup chili sauce
1/4 cup chopped green pickle

Remove coarse outer layer leaves from cabbage. Cut slice from top. Remove most of the inner portion of cabbage with a sharp knife, leaving a shell. Pink top with scissors. Prepare 2 cups shredded cabbage. Combine with diced apple, celery, pepper, nuts and tomato. Add Russian dressing. Mix lightly with two forks. Pile lightly into the cabbage shell. Decorate the top with a wreath made from sections of the unpared red apple, and celery curl made from the stalk of celery. Place on a large plate. Garnish with hearts of lettuce.

(From The Household Searchlight Recipe Book, 1934)

Original Green Bean Casserole
Margaret Lomenick

In 1-1/2 qt. casserole, mix 1 can (10-3/4 oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup, 1/2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon soy sauce (optional), dash of pepper, 1/2 can French fried real onions (2.8 oz. can), and 4 cups cut green beans.

Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Stir, then sprinkle remaining onions over bean mixture. Bake until onions are golden.

Serves 6.

Fresh Apple Cake
Della Stagner

4 cups diced fresh apples
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 cup oil or butter
1 scant teaspoon soda
3 cups flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups chopped pecans

Mix diced apples and sugar. Let stand 20 minutes.

"This recipe was originally submitted by Jerry Bainum in the 1964 Beta Sigma Phi Cookbook, compiled by the City Council, Hereford, Texas," according to a note from Virginia Easley.

Uncooked Fruit Cake
Virginia Easley

3 small cans condensed milk
1 large pkg. marshmallows, melted in milk (10 oz.)

Add:

2 lbs. vanilla wafers rolled into fine crumbs
1 lb. white raisins
1-1/2 lb. candied cherries, chopped
2 lb. dates, chopped
1-1/2 lb. candied pineapple, chopped
3 lbs. pecans, chopped

Mix and place in refrigerator or freezer; the longer it sits the better the taste.

Easley also submitted this Pecan Pie recipe which she said "is very good and a must for my family through the holidays. The recipe was given to me by the late Mrs. Bernice Cope of Water Valley in 1962."

Pecan Pie
Virginia Easley

Add rest of ingredients in order listed, mixing just until well blended.

1 cup sugar
1 cup white corn syrup
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 teaspoon nutmeg (3/4 in pie, 1/4 on top)
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup pecans

Pour into a 9-inch unbaked pie shell and bake at 300 degrees until done (when it doesn't shake in the middle), about 1 hour.

Banana Pudding for a Crowd
Margaret Lomenick

Mix together 3 packages (3 oz. each) instant vanilla pudding and 5 cups of milk, Mix until it thickens.

In a 13-by-9-inch dish, layer half a box (12-1/2 oz.) vanilla wafers, half of 3 medium size bananas and half the pudding mixture.

RECIPES

Strawberry Jell-O Cake
Margaret Lomenick

1 box white cake mix
1 pkg. (3 oz.) strawberry Jell-O
3 tablespoons flour
2/3 cup oil
1/2 cup water
4 eggs
3/4 cup frozen strawberries

Mix ingredients and bake at 350 degrees for about 60 minutes. Bundt pan or 13-by-9-inch pan can be used.

Icing:
1/4 pound butter
1/4 pkg. strawberries

Pumpkin pie is considered a must for some during the holidays, but if pie isn't your favorite, try the following.

Shelli Hernandez said, "This recipe was found along with a coupon for Bisquick in the Sunday paper a few years ago. I love it because you can get the taste of pumpkin pie, but in a cake. Everywhere I take it, none ever comes home."

Pumpkin Ring
Shelli Hernandez

3 cups Bisquick
1 cup sugar
1 can (16 oz.) pumpkin
1/4 cup milk
4 eggs
1 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup butter, soft
2-1/2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice

Heat oven to 350 degrees and four 12-cup bundt pan. Beat all ingredients on low speed for 3 minutes. Spread in pan. Bake about 50 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, remove from pan. Drizzle with Glaze (beat 1 cup powdered sugar, 1 tablespoon milk and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla).

Other newspapers have also been a source of traditional recipes. Pat Scott's note read, "I clipped this recipe from The Dallas Morning News a few years ago and tried the recipe. It is one of the best pecan pies I have tasted.

"Threadgill's is a restaurant in Austin, famous for its southern cooking. I have seen this recipe published in other articles featuring Texas and/or southern cooking."

Beulah Wilson's Pecan Pie
Pat Scott

As served at Threadgill's in Austin
1-1/2 cups brown sugar
1/4 cup butter, melted
2-1/2 tablespoons flour
5 large eggs
1-1/3 cups light corn syrup
1/4 cup molasses
1-1/2 teaspoons vanilla
2-1/2 to 3 cups pecan pieces
1 unbaked 10-inch pie shell

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix sugar, butter, flour and eggs on low speed of mixer. Add syrup, molasses and vanilla; mix well.

Put pecans into one unbaked pie shell and pour mixture over the nuts. (They'll rise to the top when baking.)

Bake for at least 45 minutes, or until the pecans are dark enough for, as Beulah's boy Eddie says, "one out of 10 people to frown slightly and express concern that the pie is a bit too dark, perhaps lightly scorched."

Let cool for about an hour before serving. Makes eight servings.

(Recipe originally printed in The Dallas Morning News)

CANDIES/ COOKIES

Even men can get into the act. Nancy Josserand wrote, "My maternal grandfather, Clifford E. Dana, lived with my family for 16 years in Loveland, Colo. My two brothers and I were always eager for the holidays to arrive for that meant that Grandfather Dana would make his delicious Sea Foam (divinity) for family and friends to enjoy. We three were the official 'tasters,' and I don't recall there ever being a 'failure.'

Sea Foam
Nancy Josserand

3 cups sugar
1/2 cup corn syrup
1/2 cup water
1 cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 egg whites

Combine sugar, syrup and water and cook in a large sauce pan over low heat stirring until sugar is dissolved. Cover for a few minutes after it begins to boil.

Beat egg whites in a large bowl at high speed for 3 or 4 minutes until stiff. After the syrup has boiled 1 minute, pour 1/2 cup of syrup into the egg white beating at high speed.

Cook the remaining syrup until it is brittle when dropped in cold water. Pour gradually into the egg whites and beat at high speed until stiff enough to hold its shape when dropped from a spoon.

Pecan Squares
Della Stagner

2 eggs
1 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup pecans
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup oil or melted margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon honey

Pour into 9-inch square pan and bake at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes. Cut in squares.

Microwave cooking has reduced preparation time for many traditional favorites and made it possible for us to fit them into today's busy lifestyle.

This recipe was submitted by Donnie Owen, but prepared by Bobby Owen.

Microwave Peanut Brittle
Donnie Owen

1 cup sugar
1 cup raw peanuts
1/2 cup white corn syrup

Put the above in a 2-quart Pyrex container. Stir and cook on high power for 4-1/2 minutes.

Date-Nut Pinwheel Cookies
Virginia Easley

1 (8 oz.) package dates, chopped
1 cup sugar
1 cup hot water
1 cup chopped pecans (walnuts may be used if desired)
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup butter, softened
2 large eggs
3-1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine dates, sugar and hot water in a medium saucepan; cook over medium heat until thickened (about 6-8 minutes), stirring constantly. Remove from heat and stir in pecans; set aside to cool.

Combine brown sugar and butter, creaming until light and fluffy; beat in eggs. Combine flour, soda, cream of tartar and salt; stir into creamed mixture. Add vanilla and mix well.

Divide dough into thirds. Roll each portion into a 12-inch square on waxed paper; spread with one-third of date mixture. Lifting up edge of waxed paper, gently peel off dough and roll jelly-roll fashion. Wrap rolls in waxed paper and chill over night.

Cut dough into 1/4-inch slices and place 2 inches apart on greased cookie sheets. Bake at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes. Cool cookies on wire racks. Yield: about 6 dozen.

Also submitted by Easley was this recipe for Fudge given to her by her mother.

Fudge
Virginia Easley

3 cups sugar
1/2 cup white corn syrup
1 cup Pet milk or cream
3 squares unsweetened chocolate
4 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup pecans

Mix sugar, syrup, milk and chocolate. Cook until mixture forms a soft ball in water. Remove from heat and add butter. Let stand until butter is melted. When mixture is lukewarm, add the vanilla and beat until thick and heavy. Beat pecans in when it is nearly ready to pour. Pour into well-buttered platter and let cool.

Scott sent a Sand Tarts recipe and noted, "This recipe was given to me when I was 12 years old by my aunt. I have made them every Christmas since that time."

Sand Tarts
Pat Scott

1 pound margarine (room temperature)
1 cup powdered sugar
4 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup chopped pecans

Mix sugar with margarine, add vanilla and nuts. Work flour into mixture with clean hands. When mixed thoroughly, shape into crescent shapes. Bake on cookie sheet until golden brown at 350 degrees. While Sand Tarts are still hot, coat with powdered sugar.

Mrs. Harold Rudd's recipe for Date Loaf makes an encore appearance in The Brand as she noted that "This recipe was published in The Hereford Brand in the early 1950's. That is when I clipped it and have been using it each year."

Date Loaf
Mrs. Harold Rudd

3 cups sugar
1 cup milk
1/4 cup white corn syrup
1/2 pound pitted dates
1 cup chopped nuts

Cook sugar, milk, corn syrup and dates to soft ball stage (235-240 degrees). Remove from fire and cool to lukewarm, then beat until mixture loses its gloss and begins to harden. Add nuts and turn onto a camp cloth and shape into a roll. Yield, about 30 slices 1/4-inch thick.

(Originally published in The Hereford Brand in the 1950s)

Rudd also submitted the following which was handed down by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Paul Rudd.

Divinity
Mrs. Harold Rudd

2-1/3 cups sugar
2/3 cup white corn syrup
1/2 cup water
1/4 teaspoon salt
Whites of 2 eggs
1 teaspoon flavoring
1 cup chopped nuts

Beat the egg whites until they stand in stiff peaks. Cook sugar, corn syrup, salt and water to the thread stage. Pour one-half of the syrup over the egg whites gradually while beating the mixture. Cook the remainder of the syrup to the hard ball stage and pour over the first mixture, beating well. Add flavoring and nuts. Continue beating until mixture loses its shine and is stiff. Drop by teaspoon onto waxed paper.

Option: Since my family likes coconut in their candy, I usually add 1/2 cup coconut.

"In 1979, I went to work at Terrell Middle School in Terrell while my husband, Stan, was in dental school. The first woman I met there, Charlotte Blessing, was a talented cook. She gave me this sugar cookie recipe. It was a wonderful tasting cookie and so easy to make.

"I decided that my Food Service class should enter this recipe along with others in the Texas State Fair, but first I decided to find out where the recipe came from. Charlotte told me that she got the recipe from the Terrell High School Home Economics Department. Some of the teachers there had been in that department for many years so I thought for sure that they would know where the recipe came from.

"But according to them the recipe had always been in the Home Ec department for as long as they had been there. Even a couple more leads led me right back to Terrell High School, so we named the recipe Terrell High School Sugar Cookies.

"And, by the way, we won first place at the Texas State Fair that year in the sugar cookie category."

Terrell High School Sugar Cookies
Beckie Fry

1 cup cooking oil
1 cup margarine
2 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream together on high until white and fluffy.

5 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons cream of tartar

Bake at 350 degrees until the edges are slightly brown.

I like to refrigerate the dough for at least an hour before I use it. This dough rolls out very easily, but you can also spoon it out for round cookies. This is also an easy recipe to multiply.

Biography paints tasteful portraits of our presidents

A&E's Biography series will profile a different American president every day during election week, Sunday through Friday, Nov. 3-8. John F. Kennedy (pictured with his wife Jacqueline and daughter Caroline) will be the focus of JFK: A Personal Story, airing Sunday, Nov. 3.

One November during the next millennium, voters may be able to stroll down a computer-generated gallery, passing portraits of the nation's presidents, toward a virtual polling place to mark an electronic ballot.

New profiles of John F. Kennedy and Abraham Lincoln will be unveiled during the week and put on display with existing sketches of Richard Nixon (Monday, Nov. 4), Harry Truman (Thursday, Nov. 7) and Ronald Reagan (Friday, Nov. 8).

The Wednesday, Nov. 6, selection is winkingly listed as "The Winner of the Election." Not only can A&E pull either Bill Clinton or Bob Dole out of its vault once the results are in, the channel even is prepared for a third-party victory with a Ross Perot Biography first aired two years ago.

"Right at the conclusion of the seemingly endless race for the presidency," series executive producer Michael Cascio observes, "(it) appears to be the right time to remember some of the giants who have held that great office."

But Biography had its work cut out in choosing to profile a man who won a Pulitzer Prize for biography.

JFK: A Personal Story, premiering Sunday, Nov. 3, approaches Kennedy as a figure of exceptional talent and privilege, molded by adversity, who could see history in the moment.

The viewpoint explains how in 1955, while recuperating from back surgery, Kennedy decided to write Profiles in Courage, the book that earned him the Pulitzer Prize.

"Biography handles each character differently, depending on the level of public knowledge," Cascio says, conceding that in Kennedy it may have found its best-known subject.

For a fresh perspective, interviews include Kennedy classmates, speechwriters, an old flame and the man who arranged for JFK to meet Jacqueline Bouvier.

The two-hour documentary achieves a balance that is honest without being sordid, and inspiring without being maudlin.

For those who know Kennedy only through conspiracy theorists and fictionalized movie accounts, JFK: A Personal Story depicts a man worth knowing and a president who helped build a bridge to the 21st century.

On Election Day, Tuesday, Nov. 5, Biography presents another two-hour premiere: Abraham Lincoln: Preserving the Union, in which Lincoln, the first Republican president, rises above partisan allegiance, personifying the American dream and embodying all that his countrymen admire in a leader.

Beginning with Lincoln's backwoods boyhood, when he lived with a frontier-hardy stepmother and a father who, by today's definition, would be described as abusive, Biography examines Lincoln's improbable success as a scholar, lawyer and suitor, as he traveled a road from Springfield, Ill., to the White House.

With little military experience, the commander in chief fought a war for the soul of the nation. Lincoln sent his own son to the front and saw his wife suffer from worry and damaging rumors.

Under the supreme test, Lincoln was humorous, eloquent, faithful and strong as no president before or since.

HOROSCOPES

November 3-9

ARIES – March 21/April 20
Think before you speak, Aries. Before you have to pry your foot out of your mouth, keep in mind who you're talking to and what you're talking about. A lesson learned too late could put you in a sticky situation on Thursday. Romance highlights the weekend. Scorpio is involved.

TAURUS – April 21/May 21
Simple pleasures give you the greatest joy this week. Time spent with family puts you in the right frame of mind. News of a breakup may come suddenly but it won't surprise you. Leo is involved. Change in the workplace means new opportunity for you. Watch your temper on Friday.

GEMINI – May 22/June 21
A Leo's decision will have a positive impact on your week. A small — but significant — part of your life will become much easier. Virgo's ideas provide food for thought. This weekend, cancelled plans leave you with free time to do whatever you please. Enjoy! Good news comes Thursday.

CANCER – June 22/July 22
A difficult choice hits you like a ton of bricks on Tuesday. Whether you spend seconds or days deciding, you'll come to the same conclusion if you follow your heart. A second meeting with Aries will change a bad first impression. Perhaps you misjudged the enigmatic Ram.

LEO – July 23/August 23
A strange coincidence early in the week will renew your belief in fate. Been feeling down in the dumps lately? It may be time for a change of scene. A weekend getaway should charge your batteries. Gemini keeps you on your toes towards the week's end. Patience will be required.

VIRGO – Aug 24/Sept 22
A sense of humor will come in handy early in the week. Your quick wit will be welcomed. Unexpected red tape will complicate a simple project. A romantic relationship needs some nurturing. Make the effort to do something special. Leo and Libra add fun to the weekend.

LIBRA – Sept 23/Oct 23
An opportunity for advancement will seem to come out of nowhere. Before you decide to make a change, take a look at your long-term goals. Use your insight to better understand a friend's behavior. You'll see that everything is not as it seems on the surface. Family get-togethers highlight the weekend

SCORPIO – Oct 24/Nov 22
An unfair situation will be the topic of discussion this week. Don't be afraid to voice your opinion or even offer a solution. You could make a difference. A restless mood could interfere with your productivity at work later in the week. You may as well give in and take a break.

SAGITTARIUS – Nov 23/Dec 21

CAPRICORN – Dec 22/Jan 20
It's time to step in and involve yourself with a problem at work. Take a stand and let others know your feelings. A strange dream early in the week may provide clues into something that's been troubling you. Meditation helps you focus. Artistic endeavors run with success.

AQUARIUS – Jan 21/Feb 18
An ongoing battle with a family member could be ironed out with some patience and understanding. Keep an open mind. If you've been putting off an important project, now's the time to dive in. You may find that it's not as hard as you thought it would be.

PISCES – Feb 19/March 20
Creative thinking helps you figure out a way to streamline your workflow. Don't be afraid to share your ideas with higher-ups. You may have to bid farewell to someone close to you. A bittersweet exit will put you in a melancholy mood. Positive thinking lifts your spirits.

IN FOCUS

Cameron Bancroft braves the outdoors as a miner in a life-threatening situation in To Brave Alaska. This ABC movie based on a true story premieres Sunday, Nov. 3.

Roger Lewis (Bancroft) and Denise Harris (Alyssa Milano) take jobs at a desolate Alaskan gold mine to raise money to buy a boat and sail the South Seas.

When treacherous weather hits their camp, they decide to find a way back to civilization, facing starvation and subzero temperatures along the way.

The Discovery Channel examines the two-term presidency of Ronald Reagan and how it still affects politics today in The Reagan Legacy, airing Sunday and Monday, Nov. 3 and 4.

Narrated by ABC News chief foreign correspondent Garrick Utley, the special also includes interviews with Mikhail Gorbachev and former Secretary of State George Shultz.

TV PIPELINE

Q: Can you tell me what English manor house was used as Pemberley in A&E's Pride and Prejudice? I think Colin Firth would make a great Mr. Rochester in Jane Eyre. –M.C. Defiance, Ohio.

Q: I was watching Pride and Prejudice for the third time recently and thought the woman who played Elizabeth's aunt, Mrs. Gardner, looked familiar. Is this the same actress who played Jane Banks in Mary Poppins? –Chris Gonzales via Internet.

A: Exteriors of Mr. Darcy's family estate were filmed at Lyme Park on the Cheshire-Derbyshire border in southwest England. Interiors were filmed at nearby Sudbury Hall.

Firth would run the serious risk of becoming typecast by taking on another role such as Rochester. You can catch the actor later this season in a PBS adaptation of Joseph Conrad's Nostromo.

A&E will be giving Jane Eyre its miniseries treatment next season, but Ciaran Hinds, who starred in the feature version of Jane Austen's Persuasion, will play Mr. Rochester. Samantha Morton, who has a featured role in A&E's upcoming Emma, will take the title role in that production.

Finally, actress Joanna David, not Karen Dotrice of Mary Poppins, played Mrs. Gardner.

Q: My sister says that Lane on Savannah is played by the same actress who played the daughter on Picket Fences. I say no. –Catherine and Sondra C., Long Beach, Calif.

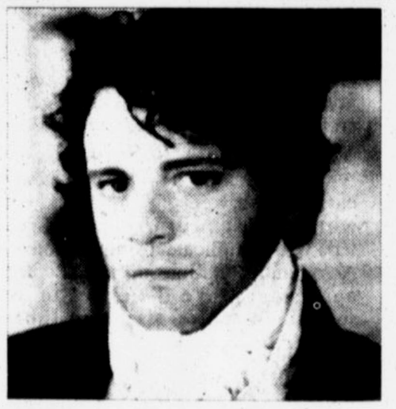

A: You are right. Robyn Lively plays Lane. Holly Marie Combs played Kimberly Brock on Picket Fences.

Q: I read with interest the recent question about the town and state the Clampetts of The Beverly Hillbillies came from. By accident I caught the end of a recent episode in which Granny said she was from Tennessee. Hope this is helpful. –George Micewicz, Stamford, Conn.

A: Thanks, but since Granny was the mother of Jed's late wife, there's no guarantee that's where the Clampetts lived. Reference books seem split between whether they were from Appalachia or the Ozarks. I always got the impression it was Appalachia, which would include Tennessee.

Q: I say a different actor played Jack, the professor, on the premiere episode of Boston Common. My sisters say no. Who is right? –Jennifer Weinlaeder, Plainview, Wis.

A: You are. Patrick Fabian played Jack on the pilot, but Vincent Ventresca, who made a splash as Monica's alcoholic boyfriend, "Fun Bobby," on Friends, has played the role ever since. Apparently Fabian decided he didn't want to be tied to a TV series.

Colin Firth

HIGHLIGHTS

Eight-time Academy Award nominee Jack Lemmon's portrayal of Ensign Pulver in Mister Roberts (1955) won him the first of his two Oscars.

PBS profiles lasting legend in Jack Lemmon

By Roberta C. Nelson
©TVData Features Syndicate

His roles have ranged from the irrepressible Daphne in Some Like It Hot to David Mamet's despairing salesman in Glengarry Glen Ross.

Jack Lemmon, whose stage and film career spans the past four decades, is profiled in Jack Lemmon, a one-hour special airing Wednesday, Nov. 6, on PBS (check local listings). Friend and co-star Shirley MacLaine (The Apartment) narrates.

Jack Lemmon is the portrait of a man with admirable qualities in both his personal and professional lives. He is a gifted actor and pianist, and a man who maintains longtime friendships. At 71, when a man wears his character on his face, Lemmon's warm brown eyes are framed by laugh wrinkles and deep smile lines.

The son of a successful businessman in suburban Boston, Lemmon attended Phillips Academy in Andover, Mass., and Harvard University. His father hoped his son would prepare for a career in business, but gave Jack his blessing to pursue acting.

Lemmon's third film role, Ensign Pulver in Mister Roberts, won him an Oscar in 1955. He was later nominated for best actor two years in a row for Some Like It Hot (1959) and The Apartment (1960), both directed by Billy Wilder, who is interviewed in Jack Lemmon.

Lemmon matched his great comedic successes with a dramatic role in Days of Wine and Roses (1962). Blake Edwards, who appears in the PBS program, directed Lemmon and co-star Lee Remick, who were both nominated for Oscars.

Along with film clips of interviews with Lemmon, Jack Lemmon includes remarks by his friend of 30 years, Walter Matthau. The two have costarred together often, including this year in The Grass Harp.

SOAP WORLD

Aniston just taking time off from Days

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: My friend and coworkers are avid fans of Days of Our Lives. We like to keep up with the comings and goings of the different stars.

We haven't heard anything about Victor Kiriakis (John Aniston). He isn't on the show anymore. Will he be back? Has he left the show for good? –Calva Jones, West Plains, Mo.

Dear Reader: Aniston has been enjoying his time off by taking his family on various vacations. He has not left the show. There is a good chance you will see him soon.

In the story, Victor had a serious stroke and was in a coma. And you must remember comas for characters are very handy tools for actors and writers.

Dear Candace: Didn't Robert Kelker-Kelly, who now plays Bobby Reno on Another World, play Sam on the same soap? He was married to Amanda Corey.

I don't like how they change the characters on soaps. I prefer the old Billie (Lisa Rinna) on Days. They could at least find characters that look and sound alike. –N. Bright, Terrace, British Columbia, Canada.

Dear Reader: Kelker-Kelly did play Sam Fowler at one time. Rinna chose not to return to Days, so the producers were forced to find someone to replace her.

Dear Candace: Why did the guy who used to play Alan-Michael Spaulding on Guiding Light leave? We hate the new guy. He is such a wimp. Lucy would be better off with someone else. Will the original Alan-Michael ever come back? We hope so.

Also, what are your credentials for responding to all these soap questions? –Two GL fans in Texas.

Dear Reader: Rick Hearst, who played Alan-Michael, left the show to pursue other interests. He felt he had done all he could as Alan-Michael.

As for my credentials, I've been covering daytime for more than nine years. I visit the soaps on a regular basis to interview the stars.

John Adams and John Quincy Adams are the only father and son who have both been elected president.

Thomas Dewey, who lost the presidency to Harry S. Truman in 1948, was offered the post of Chief Justice by President Richard Nixon in 1968.

CHITTER CHATTER

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Paula Abdul and entrepreneur Brad Beckerman - who met on a blind date - were married in front of a celebrity-filled crowd.

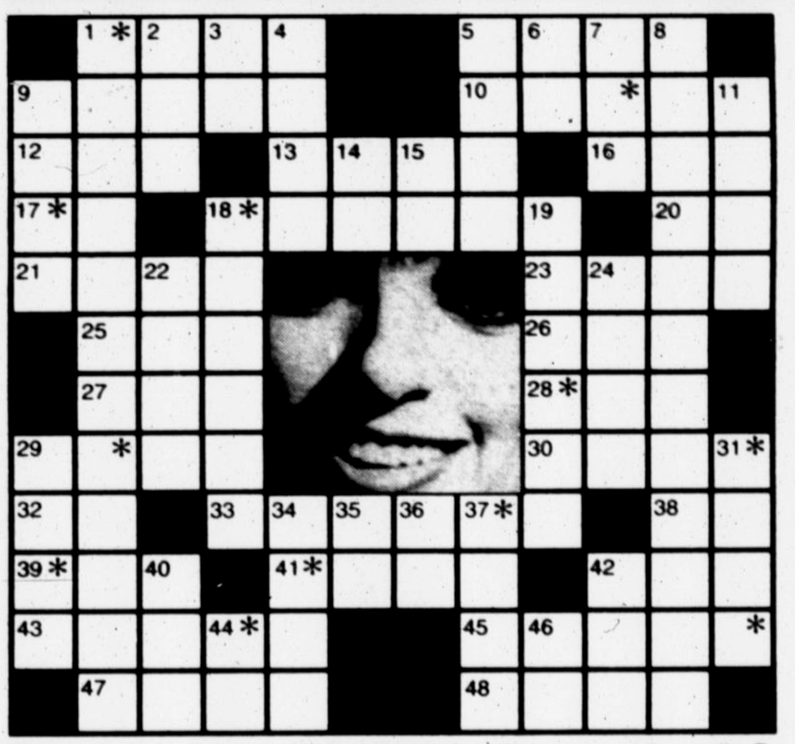

The couple exchanged wedding vows Friday at the Four Seasons, where the 160 guests included Rod Stewart, Rachel Hunter, Rosie O'Donnell, Magic Johnson, Sugar Ray Leonard, Brandy and the group Boyz II Men, publicist Susan Dubrow said Monday.

It was the second marriage for Abdul, 34, who divorced actor Emilio Estevez in 1994, and the first for Beckerman, a sportswear manufacturer, Dubrow said.

The couple, who were honeymooning at an undisclosed location outside the country, met on a blind date set up by mutual friends and became engaged on the Fourth of July in Hawaii.

A recent Harris Poll names Frank Sinatra as America's most popular musical star. The Statler Bros. are No. 2, followed by Reba McEntire.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS

Now newly revised and better than ever!

Shearer Publishing is pleased to announce its new edition of THE ROADS OF TEXAS. We have added dozens of country roads, lanes, cowtrails, and put new names or numbers on hundreds of others, names like Good Luck Road (Guadalupe County), Seven Sisters Drive (Kendall County), and Lone Star Alley (Menard County). Altogether, the new edition identifies more than 25,000 state and county highways and byways, and the bright new cover features current scenic photographs from around the state. THE ROADS OF TEXAS is different from any other road atlas, with more detail, more historical travel information, more heart. It has proven especially popular with the curious traveler inclined toward a little adventure, who doesn't mind getting to Aunt Martha's house just a bit late.
