Whitefaces nip Pampa, 28-20 in state play offs

Booster Club sets showing of bi-district game

A color film of Saturday's bi-district football game against the Pampa Harvesters will be shown at 7 p.m. Monday at the Community Center by the Whiteface Booster Club.

Ted Higgins, spokesman for the club, has issued an invitation to the public to see the film. All fans are invited to the special "Ladies Night" where refreshments will be served.

"We want to invite everyone to come," Higgins said. "They don't have to be parents or mothers of the players, we just want everyone to come out."

The Hereford Whitefaces held off a late game rally by the Pampa Harvesters to take a 28-20 bi-district win Saturday in Amarillo and advance to the state regional encounter for the first time in over 20 years.

The Whitefaces, by defeating the Harvesters, will meet El Paso Coronado at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Sun Bowl at El Paso. The El Paso Coronado coach and officials of the local school system met immediately after Saturday's game and flipped coins on a home-and-home gamble by Hereford that failed.

Hereford officials were hoping to win the toss and play the regional game either in Lubbock or Amarillo as its home site. Coronado won the toss and the right to host the play off game. Coronado was a 17-8 victor over El Paso Bowie in another bi-district encounter.

Hereford outclassed the Harvesters throughout the game, gaining 333 total yards behind the running of six ball carriers. The Whitefaces picked up 19 first downs to Pampa's 14.

Hereford got on the scoreboard first on its first possession of the game when Wesley High went across from 10 yards out. Barry McNutt added the point after and Hereford led, 7-0 with 6:13 remaining in the first period.

Hereford's second score came about midway through the second period when junior quarterback Keith Kitchens hit Bruce Barrett on a 41-yard scoring bomb. The point after kick failed, but the Whitefaces led, 13-0.

Pampa then came back on its next possession and marched 76 yards in six plays with Richard McCampbell going across from the 10. That touchdown was set up when Pampa's Mike Reddell leaped up and one-handed a Dale Ammons pass at the Hereford 10. The pass covered 37 yards.

With the score then standing at 13-6 in favor of the Whitefaces, Hereford got the ball on the following kickoff and marched 64 yards to score another TD.

High, who was the game's leading rusher with 86 yards, got 13. Kitchens kept for five more, Danny Harris got three and High two then Kitchens hit Rudy Gonzales for nine more at the Pampa 32. Barrett then latched on to another Kitchens

Beet harvest slows to crawl

Holly Sugar officials last week slowed down their harvest operations in order to have a sufficient supply of beets on hand Monday when they hope farmers will be able to get back into their fields and begin harvest operations again.

Two days of rain last week that totaled over two inches, put a halt to harvest operations in all of Holly's harvest areas. The rains that came on Tuesday and Wednesday were just enough to keep farmers out of their fields and cause a drastic drop in the tonnage available for processing at the local plant.

Bob Ginn, agricultural manager for Holly, said the plant has dropped from a normal processing day of 6,500 tons to about 5,000 tons. This is being done to spread the beets out longer and give farmers an opportunity to begin harvesting again.

"We have slowed down enough at the factory so what we have will last through part of Monday," he said.

Farmers have harvested some 7,200 acres of the 21,000 acres planted, which is about 34 per cent. Sugar content still is running fairly high at 14.6 des, due the bad weather in recent weeks.

"It is going to be slow getting going again because I'm not sure the fields are drying up fast enough that we will be able to accomplish much on Monday. We hope to get enough in on Monday to keep us going through Tuesday then eventually catch up all together," Ginn said.

Ginn said each of the other areas where Holly has stations available for farmers to ship their beets by rail, also reported heavy moisture. The only exception, he said, was around the Hart area, where they did not receive as much rain.

An earlier completion date for harvest was set for Dec. 5, the agricultural manager said, but now it does not look as if this will be reached.

"It is going to be questionable. More than likely we can't make it even if we let them harvest as much as they can, which is what we intend to do," he said.

The usual "accelerated" harvest, where officials do not set a limit on how much beets they can handle, was started about three weeks ago, several weeks ahead of schedule.

"We haven't had any quotas since along the middle of October," Ginn said. "We just let them dig everything they could and would."

City, county still tops

Deaf Smith County, Texas has a lot going for it and a lot to brag about: if you stop to consider all the elements that make up this county.

According to the Texas Municipal Reports compiled and published by the Municipal Advisory Council of Texas, this county is one of the leaders in the country.

According to the report, Deaf Smith County is a "Texas Panhandle county bordering New Mexico, with an economy based on agriculture."

In 1970, the report said, cash receipts from agriculture amounted to $117.6 million with $74.3 million contributed by livestock and livestock products, leading the state. Also, 2.3 million bushels of wheat were produced in 1970, ranking second in the state and 9.3 million bushels of grain sorghums and 253,000 tons of sugar beets were processed in this county, making it the leader in beet production in the state of Texas.

County: Employees receive 5.5 per cent salary hike

BY MARSHALL DAY
News Editor

The county commissioners, in a short special meeting last week, granted a 5.5 per cent pay raise to all county employees in accordance with the limit set by the President's 15-man labor-industry public Pay Board.

The county had already issued an earlier statement, about 30 days ago, that it would give all county employees a 6 per cent pay hike in order to keep its employees in line with the rising cost of living.

By law the county had to make the notice public at least 30 days prior to the end of the 90-day wage-price freeze that ended Nov. 13. Their earlier statement said the raises for county employees would become effective when the wage-price freeze was lifted by President Nixon.

The commissioners had discussed a possible salary increase for its employees several times during the past few months, but it was not until the Sept. 27 meeting that they took any kind of action. The across-the-board pay raise went into effect Nov. 15.

At first the commissioners and county Judge H.C. Williams discussed whether the raises should include the sheriff's office. The sheriff, unlike other elected county officials, has the authority of the commissioners to raise deputies' salaries up to the ceiling allowed by law, without the consent of the county commissioners' court.

The general practice is for a new deputy to be hired near the minimum salary level and to be raised if after a trial period he is doing a good job.

In their final action in the Sept. 27 meeting, the commissioners kept the sheriff's office in with everyone else on the then-proposed 6 per cent increase.

With the increase, the county granted raises to everyone on the payroll except for four part-time employees who work according to the work load during certain months of the year.

Also, no change was made in the salary of Ray Quillen of Dumas who serves as court reporter for this county and the others of the old judicial district of which Deaf Smith was a member.

Quillen receives a salary of $247 per month from Deaf Smith County, plus a set salary from the other five counties in this district. However, he presently is making the maximum amount allowed by the state and cannot be given a raise.

There was some question as to permitting a 6 per cent raise after the county already had indicated it would. District Attorney Andy Shuval contacted the Internal Revenue Service and the IRS suggested the county stick with the recommendation of the President's Pay Board.

The commissioners did instruct Shuval to write the Internal Revenue Service about possible salary increases above the 5.5 per cent for two particular employees of the county. Those two offices are the District Clerk's, held by Lola Veazey, and the County Treasurer's, held by Vesta Mae Nunley.

The commissioners felt these two jobs demand so much from the two individuals that their present pay is not sufficient for the work.

Both women make $6,612 per year.

The pay hike will involve increases for 75 county employees and will amount to approximately $22,992 in increases over a one-year period. This is the first blanket pay raise given county employees since February of 1970.

The increase will not be made on travel allowances which about seven county employees receive.

Lonidene Edmonson, top teacher

(Editor's note: The following article is taken in part from the State Scrapbook of Lonidene Edmonson who recently was named "Teacher of the Year" by the Deaf Smith County Classroom Teachers Association.)

Lonidene Martin Edmonson, who was born and raised in Hereford and spent her life here in teaching, was named as the "Teacher of the Year" at a recent meeting of the local Classroom Teachers Association. During the time she has been in Hereford and related to the local school system she has distinguished herself through her work, and being named "Teacher of the Year" well reflects her confidence in herself and her profession.

Recipients of the "Teacher of the Year" award must be exceptionally skillful and dedicated classroom teachers selected from the total school system. The nominee must have the respect and admiration of students, parents and co-workers and many times must play an active role in the community in which they live.

Most important of all, however, a teacher must possess the ability to inspire love of learning in students of all backgrounds and abilities—a quality of Lonidene Edmonson.

Mrs. Edmonson is a native of Hereford, having chosen to remain here all her life. In Hereford High School besides being active in Tri-Hi-Y, F. H. A., the National Honor Society, Youth Council, and Pep Club where she held many offices, she also distinguished herself by being elected senior class president and being valedictorian of her graduating class.

Beginning her work in 1955 on her degree, she received her B. S. degree from West Texas State College in 1959; majoring in Elementary Education, and minoring in English and History. Again she graduated with high honors even though she had a husband and two daughters, Cheryl and Jamie, and a part-time job with Cogdell Insurance Agency to help meet the expenses of her education. At West Texas State she distinguished herself by being a Junior, Senior, and Graduate member of Alpha Chi (a National Honor Society for upper classmen). She was also a member of Gamma Theta Upsilon, Kappa Delta Pi, and Phi Alpha Theta.

She has always been active in church and community affairs having attended the First Baptist Church since she was a baby. She has taught a Sunday School Class there for the past 21 years. The first two years she taught a junior high class, and the other 19 years she has taught six and seven year olds, in the primary department.

For several years Mrs. Edmonson served as treasurer of the Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross and See TEACHERS Page Five

Businesses close for Thanksgiving

The majority of businesses in Hereford will close down Thursday in observance of Thanksgiving.

Only a sprinkling of businesses will be open, but the stores at Sugarland Mall and Downtown Variety Park will be closed. Also, the banking establishments will close for the holiday.

Nolan Grady, postmaster, said the windows of the post office will be closed, but post office box service and special delivery will be handled. All rural and city delivery will be halted for the holiday.

Health labor force is becoming scarce

Texas is facing a severe shortage of health workers in almost every health field, and the shortage is expected to mushroom to critical proportions by 1980, Texas State Department of Health officials and private health authorities are voicing increasing concern over the shortage and its effects on the health care available to Texans in the 1970's.

The severe shortage of health workers in Texas is outlined in a recent survey conducted by the Texas Health Careers Program of the Texas Hospital Association in cooperation with the Governor's Office of Comprehensive Health Planning. "The survey leaves little doubt that a critical shortage exists right now in an industry vital to the welfare of every man, woman and child in the State," said Dr. James E. Peavy, Texas Commissioner of Health.

In fact, at a time when Texas unemployment rates are very high, nearly 18,000 jobs in the health fields remain unfilled. The study showed some 136,992 allied health professionals and technicians were at work in Texas in 1970, but jobs were available for an additional 7,364 people. In 1971, that figure jumped to 17,700 unfilled positions.

By 1980, health officials estimate more than 52,000 allied health personnel above and beyond existing requirements will be needed to meet health demands of Texas burgeoning population.

The shortage may be even greater than these figures indicate. The survey called upon employers to list the number of budgeted vacancies in their institutions. But in many cases, employers do not budget for workers who are not available. In addition, these figures do not reflect private industry and private laboratories or lesser employment categories.

In assessing how such gigantic needs are being met, Dr. Peavy noted that 457 allied health education programs throughout the State are turning out increasing numbers of graduates.

But the supply, in all cases, continues to be outdistanced by demand.

Hardest hit by current shortages are the State's hospitals, which accounted for 4,448 needed personnel, or 60 percent of all budgeted vacancies in 1970. Hospital officials estimated 6,501 workers were needed this year.

The greatest need for personnel, the survey disclosed, is in the field of nursing. Some 4,700 jobs for registered nurses, licensed vocational nurses, aides and orderlies went begging last year (two-thirds of all the bud-

Personal stories related in club

Family histories of Farm and Ranch Club members were related as the program for the November luncheon Thursday in Mrs. Julian Perrin's home.

As each told salient details of her background, the fact emerged that all the 10 members present were born in an area just west of Hereford. (Another 6,514 became available in these areas in 1971.)

Plans were completed for the club's Christmas party Dec. 16 in the home of Mrs. J. E. Sor-rells. Names were drawn for a gift exchange.

Mrs. Wheeler Davis was welcomed as a new member. Others present were Mmes. W. W. Thomas, J. B. Odum, Paul Rudd, U. S. Akens, Wayne Bass, G. V. Hall, Sorrells and an associate member, Mrs. Jack Weaver.

After three and a half centuries, the United States whaling fleet will be beached by the end of the year.

Jack D. Watson, Fort Worth, Tex., postmaster, has been named postmaster of the year by the Direct Mail Advertising Association.

aerial that carried the ball to the 13.

Harris got three on a pass and Barrett caught another for nine and a first at the 2-yard line. On the next play, High went up and sailed over the Pampa line and into the end zone for the score.

The point after by McNutt was good and Hereford led, 20-6 when the half ended.

Hereford added another quick touchdown in the early goings of the second half when, after being forced to punt, the Whitefaces' Hector Rodriguez recovered a Pampa fumble on the kickoff at the Pampa 11.

On the first play, Kitchens hit Barrett for an 11-yard touchdown. The PAT was no good, but Hereford had strengthened its lead to 26-6 with 6:19 remaining in the third quarter.

Less than three minutes later the Harvesters pushed across another score.

Pampa got the ball on its own 38 and Ammons hit Reddell for 11. Larry Knutson for 10 then picked up six more himself to the Hereford 34. He then zeroed in on Reddell and found him in the end zone for a 34-yard scoring strike.

The Harvesters went for the two point conversion with Ammons keeping and going right, but Ralph Waits and Danny Charest nailed him before he could reach the end zone.

Hereford, aided by Kitchens' punting as well as his passing, was forced to give the ball up on its next possession. Pampa got the ball at its own 8 with two minutes to play in the third quarter and one play netted no yardage. On the following play, a bad pitchout was fumbled into the end zone and a mad scramble followed before a Pampa player recovered the ball and Hereford was awarded a safety.

Pampa again closed the gap, but not quite enough, in the final period when Harmon Staus recovered a Hereford fumble at the Hereford 34. Pampa took over, and, aided by two offside penalties against the Whitefaces, moved the ball to the 24. From there, Ammons hit Reddell with his second touchdown pass.

Pampa, then trailing by 28-18, elected to go for the two-point conversion and Ammons kept and went in to close the gap to 28-20, at which the game finally ended.

The Hereford defense held the Harvesters to only 70 yards rushing and 123 passing and dropped Ammons for 52 yards in losses throughout the game.

Kitchens hit 11 of 16 passes and punted the ball four times for an average of 46.5.

Vegetables, hay, oats, corn, soybeans and hogs also are produced in this county on some 384,400 acres of irrigated land within the county.

The principal products of manufacturing and commerce added $1.3 million through the principal products of processed meat, irrigation equipment and sugar. The 1970 estimated county retail sales was $55.3 million and the county's two banks held Under the heading of "Population Characteristics," the county has a population of 18,999, which is an increase of 44.1 per cent from the 1960. Of that increase, 70.6 per cent of it was urban. The population is comprised of 98.1 per cent white, 1.9 per cent non-white and 30 per cent of the population is involved in white-collar occupations.

Since 1959, when the medium family income was $4,499 compared with the state medium income of $4,848, the 1970 figures stand at $9,412 for this county and $9,776 for the state. Some 21 per cent of the households in this county had an annual income of less than $3,000 and some 26 per cent had an annual income of $10,000.

The report goes on to say Hereford is the county seat, and it had a population of 13,414 in 1970, which was an increase of 75.3 per cent from the 1960 figure.

Hereford is the principal commercial center for the county and the location of the principal employers, a large meat packing firm, a sugar producer and a manufacturer of clothing.

According to Dun & Bradstreet, Hereford has 440 businesses.

The principal taxpayers in the county are, in order of payments made, Holly Sugar, Wilson and Company, Southwestern Public Service, Pitman-Easley Industries, Pioneer Natural Gas, Panhandle and Santa Fe Railway, Natural Gas Pipeline, Southwestern Bell Telephone, Deaf Smith Electric Co-op and American Telephone and Telegraph.

These top 10 companies combined had a 1971 assessed valuation for taxes of $7,661,030.

A SECOND SCORE — Bruce Barrett, No. 88, gets the signal from the referee that his reception was good for a touchdown in the 28-20 win over Pampa in bi-district. Barrett caught two touchdown passes in the game.

face assists him. Champ carried the ball three times for 20 yards in the bi-district game.

served on its board of directors for many years. She also is a past president of L'Allegria Study Club, which is a women's study club also dedicated to service to the community.

She was the 1970-71 President of the Deaf Smith County Classroom Teachers Association and is an active member in this organization plus the Texas State Teachers Association; E.K.N.E. N.E.A.; and T.A.I.R., having been on the program at West Texas State College this summer for T.A.I.R. for two days speaking on "Teaching Reading in the Non-Graded School."

Having taught in Hereford for the past twelve years Mrs. Edmonson is most enthusiastic about the new non-graded, continuous-progress, team-teaching school—Tierra Blanca Elementary—where she teaches in Learning Center A with three other teachers. She wholeheartedly believes in this type program for all students and hopes Hereford is able to expand it into all the other schools in the system. She believes that Hereford has better rapport between its school board, administrators, and teachers than any other system in Texas, and she is proud to be a member of its faculty.

In recent months Mrs. Edmonson has served on several committees which have been important to the welfare of the Hereford Independent School System and its students some of which are: Steering Committee for the Evaluation and Accreditation of the Hereford Independent School District; Textbook Advisory Committee for the State of Texas for Mr. Robert Holman, who was a member of the State Committee; Local Textbook Committee; Local Committee on the Texas Study of Instructional Resources, a study being conducted by the Texas Education Agency; and Title I teacher.

"You learn so much, and meet so many nice people on these committees. I have enjoyed all of them," she said.

When asked about how she felt about being Teacher of the Year, a proud, happy smile covered her face as she said:

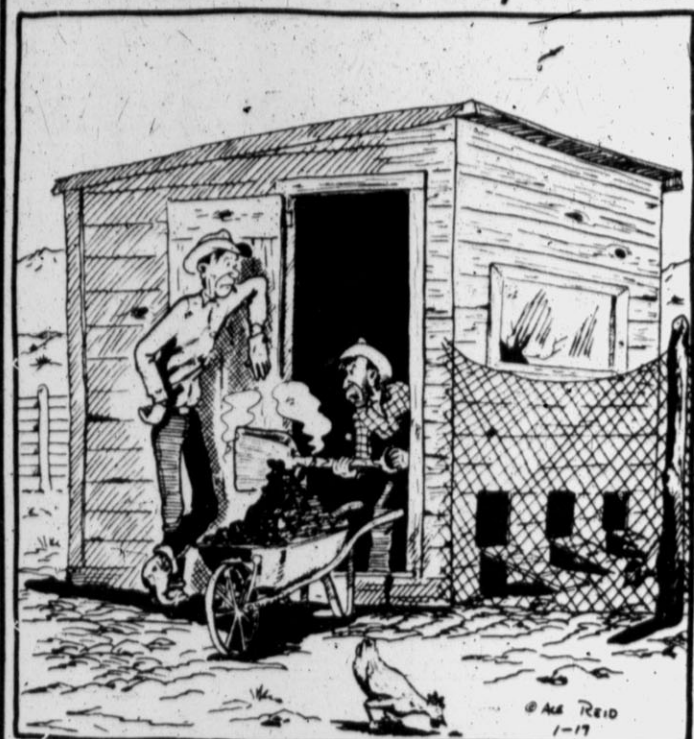

"I wanted to be a teacher all of my life. I love it, but I never expected such a wonderful honor to come to me in my profession—and in my own hometown, too. Everyone is so nice."

The Highway Gobbler

The highway gobbler is the driver who acts like he's the only one on the road. He's always driving a little faster than the speed limit, passing to get a little further ahead, or tailgating when he can't pass. This Thanksgiving weekend, there's no room for the Highway gobbler.

Don't gobble. Just eat turkey.

It's beginning to look like Christmas since they've put up the Christmas trees downtown. And with the temperatures below freezing, it's beginning to feel like Christmas too.

In fact, a lot of merchants tell us that folks are already shopping for Christmas and that business is picking up sharply. Now these are the smart ones. They won't have to fight the crowds on Christmas Eve to finish their shopping.

Right now however, we're looking forward to a big turkey dinner on Thanksgiving Day, and another round of football games. We're especially anxious to see the "Big Shootout" as Darrell Royal would call it, between Nebraska and the University of Oklahoma. That should be a dandy.

And there are a few folks who think Texas might upset the Aggies on Thanksgiving Day...

Highway Safety Patrolman Jim Freeman of the Department of Public Safety allows that he's gotten himself in trouble and needs some help. Jim gave a talk to a study club down at Easter recently and apparently one of his statements was misunderstood and the district offices at Hereford and Plainview have been getting a number of calls concerning the deal. Jim said that "the time will come when everyone will have to take both the eye examination and a written test before their driver's license will be renewed." And even though this will probably come about some time in the future, it is not presently the case. Jim tells us that both offices have been flooded with requests for the little drivers manual put out by the Department. Apparently a lot of people thought they would have to take the test this year, so they were getting prepared.

Actually, the misunderstanding hasn't hurt anyone. It never hurts a person to review some of the things they once knew and certainly, if it will make one person a better driver, then it really has helped some. However, it would have appeared that Patrolman Freeman was misleading them, and that certainly was not intended.

The public is invited to attend the Fourth Annual Carnival and Bazaar at St. Anthony's School today. The event, sponsored by the school's PTO, will feature games for all ages, food, a "Country Auction" and a "Country Store," selling handicrafts and home-baked foods. Proceeds from the event are applied to the needs within the parochial school, which is supported by members of St. Anthony's and St. Joseph's churches.

Already designated for this year for the 200 students of the school are library books, world globes and maps, and sports equipment and uniforms.

Werner Koelzer, president of the PTO, is serving as general chairman, with Alvin "Swede" Schmucker as co-chairman.

In spite of the winds Wednesday and Thursday, the fields are not drying very fast. But with a little luck and a few more days of good weather (even though it's cold), the farmers should be able to get back to work. When the crops are in the barn, it always gives the farmers a little more to be thankful for on Thanksgiving Day.

Only 28 shopping days until Christmas!

And as the headlines read in the Lubbock paper Saturday, Governor Preston Smith has "dropped the other shoe."

And we also note, that by a 6-5 vote, Texas Tech will get the Vet School. The School of Veterinary and Zoological Medicine at Texas Tech was authorized by the State College Coordinating Board at a meeting in San Marcos Friday.

Subject to funding by the Legislature, the school will be developed in conjunction with the School of Medicine.

Tech's proposal, which won out over a competing request by Texas A&M, calls for the construction of facilities costing $5.4 million. Included in this would be a $700,000 large animal clinic and diagnostic center on the campus of West Texas

Social security

Q. What is the average amount of retirement insurance now being paid under social security?

A. The average payment to retired workers throughout the State University in Canyon.

We understand that Wayne Thomas, chairman of the Coordinating Board, broke the tie vote in favor of Tech.

That should be a boon to the Panhandle livestock industry.

nation is now $131 a month. The average monthly amount to disabled workers is $145.

Q. When I called the social security office for some information about my benefits, the lady asked for my claim number. Why was that necessary?

A. Numbers are used to simplify the record keeping. During your working years, a record of your earnings is kept under your social security account number. It is like the page of a book. When a claim for benefits is filed in older years or in case of disability, or death, your social security number, followed by a letter to designate the type of benefit, becomes your claim number. For the best results, always furnish your claim number, including the letter subscript (for example, A, B, B1, B2, C1, D, D4, F1, F2, J1, K1, T, M, etc., following the social security number), when you inquire about your benefits. It facilitates locating your record. Q. I received social security checks until I became 18. If I return to school in September, can I receive benefits again on the record of my deceased father?

A. If you are under age 22, unmarried and a full-time student in an approved school, you

Don Rice receives A&M appointment

Dr. Don A. Rice, son of Betty Rice of 405 Jowell, has been appointed to the graduate faculty of the College of Engineering at Texas A&M University.

As assistant professor of engineering technology and coordinator of industrial distribution, he also will serve on advisory committees of students working for master's and Ph.D.

degrees. Members of the graduate faculty advise students on coursework and participate in students' oral examinations.

To achieve this honor, a faculty member must hold an advanced degree, be a member of the temporary graduate faculty for at least one year, and exhibit professionalism through research.

Dr. Rice holds a doctorate in vocational-technical and industrial education and a master's in industrial education from the University of Missouri. His bachelor of science in industrial education is from West Texas State.

He began work on these degrees when he was 26 years old, after working in industry as an electrician.

Dr. Rice has written several articles for national magazines. One entitled "Why Do Area Vocational-Technical Schools

Have Less Than Optimal Enrollment" has been accepted for publication in the Spring edition of Journal of Industrial Teacher Education.

He is also the author of "Who Says I.D. Grads Don't-and Won't-Go into Distribution" which appeared in Industrial Distributor in July, and "The School Board and the Area Vocational School," printed in the Missouri School Board Journal last April.

Trinity University in San Antonio, Tex., has opened its 43rd major academic building.

DR. DON A. RICE

Recital planned for WT students

Two West Texas State University music students will be featured in a joint senior recital at 4 p.m. Dec. 1 in the Fine Arts Theatre.

They are saxophonist Santos Lujan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Santos L. Lujan of (511 N. Bell) Big Spring; and clarinetist Dolton Walker, son of Mrs. Kate Walker of (908 S. Wells) Pampa. Lujan is a student of Alan Hawkins, instructor of music. Both students are members of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, professional men's fraternity in music.

The program for their recital will include Wanhals' "Sonata for Clarinet and Piano," Bozza's

"Aria," Weber's "First Concerto for Clarinet," Frank's "Piece 1," Guhlau's "First Concerto," and Bach's "Sonata in F." The recital, free to the public, is being presented in partial fulfillment of graduation requirements for the bachelor's degree in music education.

C.C. Nolen already has ideas of what his job requires

'JITTER' NOLEN

When North Texas State University inaugurates C.C. (Jitter) Nolen as its 10th fulltime president Wednesday, Dec. 1, this former college cheerleader and fund raiser will have had four months on the job to decide what it takes to be a college president today.

Nolen is married to the former June Dameron of Hereford. "It takes the patience of Job and an antennae in all directions," Nolen has said.

"I have the trust in God that I'm at the right place at the right time for all things to come together. For 25 years I wondered why college presidents with whom I worked didn't take all my suggestions. It took me only 30 days on the job to see why they couldn't take them all," Nolen said.

Nolen, 47, has been called a new breed of college president because his credentials are a bachelor's degree and 21 years experience in college student activities and fund raising.

Some national guesses indicate that as high as 20 per cent of today's college presidents, like Nolen, do not have the earned doctorate.

Recent figures indicate the number is growing.

The trend is somewhat away from academic know-how to expertise in some other professional experience - raising money, organizing people and so on.

A non-doctorate being president of a major university in Texas is more novel.

Some 3,000 from the general public and invited guests, including Gov. Preston Smith and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, are expected Wednesday, Dec. 1 to honor Nolen as the leader of Texas' fourth largest university with 16,000 students.

The inauguration ceremonies begin at 10 a.m. in the Main Auditorium on campus and move to a noon luncheon in Denton's Civic Center.

It may be Nolen's mode of operation, more than his credentials, that makes him a new breed.

"Development, or fund raising people, just aren't used to living by appointment schedules like many college presidents are," Nolen contends. "So every chance I get I adjust my schedule to include as many different things as I can, including calls on prospective donors."

Nolen believes his background is an advantage because "the chief fund raiser for any organization is the president," he says. "Anytime anyone gives you money, the natural instinct is to want to talk to the head man."

It is not unusual for college presidents, regardless of their backgrounds, to meet often with public officials and politicians, or unexpectedly eat in a dorm cafeteria after students have complained about the food, or to encourage alumni support.

Nolen has done all these since becoming NTSU president Aug. 1.

ors program may cost between $30,000 and $60,000 annually.

"The human problems of dormitory living, recreation and so forth can be resolved if men and women of goodwill are willing to do so. But money is usually involved somewhere."

Alumni - "They can become politically active in support of NTSU. There are 48,000 alumni in Texas outside of Denton County. Just think what effect it would have on the legislature for that many knowledgeable, dedicated, articulate alumni to ask their respective legislators to support NTSU. The difference could mean thousands of dollars in appropriated funds."

"Alumni can locate and recruit good students and build a better climate in their community so good students will be attracted to the school."

disparity between the public and the university."

About the presidency - "It takes about two years to get to know an institution well enough to provide really effective leadership and then you can spend three or four years working as hard as you can to implement some of the things that the institution needs."

"Perhaps you can extend that period a little but at some point you begin coasting and you probably have gone beyond the most useful term. I do not view myself as a long-term president for this university, but circumstances may change and my opinion of this may change."

Call him novel, or new breed or candid, Nolen will become a part of Texas' pictorial history. The Texas State Library Archives in Austin, through legislative appropriations to record events of current public interest in the state, will photograph the inaugural ceremonies for future public use.

Highlights and sidelights from your state capital

BY BILL BOYKIN

AUSTIN, Tex. - Almost 100,000 state employees and 140,000 school teachers will get the pay raises the Legislature voted for them—effective November 14.

President Nixon's Pay Board and the Cost of Living Council notified state officials all wage, salary and other benefit increases provided in the 1971-72 state appropriations act will be permitted on end of Phase I of the president's wage-price freeze.

For most state employees, the 6.8 per cent increase they expected to get September 1 will reach them on a supplemental payroll for the November 14-November 30 period.

Teachers will receive a five per cent per year boost in line with a 1969 long-term compensation plan approved by the Legislature.

State employees and teachers lost about $19 million of their scheduled raises between September 1 (start of the state's fiscal year) and November 14, date of the un-thawing.

They continued to sweat out federal agency rulings as to whether their benefits could be made retroactive because they actually were ordered by state lawmakers before the August freeze order.

State Commissioner of Education J. W. Edgar, notified local school districts that compensation benefits such as travel expenses and supplements for insurance premiums may also be put into effect. State funds will be disbursed to school districts in line with the programmed increases beginning with the December foundation fund payments.

School districts with 1,000 or more employees will have to report raises to the Pay Board. Districts with fewer than 1,000 employees are not required to make the reports, although they must operate within board rules.

ALLOWABLE INCREASES—After seven months of declining oil production allowable the Railroad Commission set the December production figure at 63 per cent of potential—an increase from 62.5 per cent.

Commission Chairman Bryon Tunnell cited declining stocks of crude oil. He said the stocks stood at 99.8 million barrels on November 12, down 11 million from 1970.

The commission's production allowable will permit a maximum output of 3,339,400 barrels a day, 21,341 more than for November. Actual production is estimated at 3,060,346 daily for December, just over what major crude purchasers asked.

Foreign oil stocks are up 8.6 million barrels from 1970, Tunnell reported.

FOOD STAMP PROGRAM ALTERED—Changes in the food stamp program for the needy approved by the Board of Public Welfare last week will double the number of participants and increase cost.

Changes ordered by federal legislation will liberalize eligibility standards based on a scale of maximum income.

Board also adopted these policy changes in event federal court cases are decided against the Welfare Department:

To permit welfare aid to non-citizens lawfully admitted to this country for permanent residence or to those seeking old age assistance who have lived in the U.S. at least 25 years.

Eliminate a provision that criminal charges must be filed against a parent who deserts a child before aid to families with dependent children can be paid.

Wipe out forced establishment of guardianship before aid can be paid to those permanently and totally disabled due to mental impairment.

APPOINTMENTS—Gov. Preston Smith named Robert L. Thornton Jr. of Dallas to the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission, succeeding Alfred Negley of San Antonio.

Smith also appointed Dr. Dan J. Anderson of Fort Worth and Dr. John E. Wilkins Jr. of Greenville to the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners.

Sen. O. H. Harris of Dallas was elected chairman and Lamar Golding of Huntsville vice-chairman of a senate committee studying feasibility of the pari-mutuel horse racing in Texas.

Fritz Lanham of Austin, an aide to Smith, was placed on the Criminal Justice Council executive committee.

AG OPINIONS—A local police and fire civil service commissioner may serve as an assistant postmaster or a city tax board of equalization member at the same time, Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin held.

In other recent opinions Martin concluded:

Taxable property valuation as used in the education code is synonymous with "assessed valuation", and only the last assessed valuation as determined by county government in "the next preceding year" may be used as one of the criteria for establishment of a county junior college district.

Taxes and fees paid, the state comptroller under protest may be refunded on his determination within the period in which he may assess a deficiency for the tax without necessity of a law suit.

Secretary of State Bob Bullock, as chief state election officer, ruled senatorial district political party conventions next May must be held in Senate districts created by the Legislative Redistricting Board.

COURTS SPEAK—A district court retrial was ordered by the Texas Supreme Court of a $470,000 judgment against Sharpstown State Bank of Houston in litigation concerning two surety bonds.

Third Court of Civil Appeals approved shutting St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company stations in Addison and Grapevine—and a business shift to Carrollton.

Supreme Court judges heard oral arguments from the Alcoholic Beverage Commission in a case in which the agency attacks a district court ruling that its suspensions of offending taverns' licenses are appealable.

BANK BIDS STUDIED—The State Banking Board may act next week on a dozen applications for "phantom bank" charters.

Board must decide whether authorizing such procedures for larger banks to absorb smaller ones is a step toward prohibited branch banking.

Charter applications for new state banks in Magnolia, White Oak and Port Neches received board approval. Applications were turned down for other banks in San Antonio, Wimberley and Texas City.

Short Snorts

State Sen. Wayne Connolly of Floresville announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor.

The State Highway Department received permission to excavate the site of its proposed new $20 million headquarters building here.

State Securities Commissioner Truman Holladay stopped stock trading by three Sherman firms promoting a kind of "electronic checkbook."

Former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough says its 10-to-one he will run for governor or U.S. Senator next year.

Bids on more than 600 tracts of oil and gas leases will be opened December 7 by the School Land Board.

Undercover Alcoholic Beverage Commission agents will check private clubs for violations of a new law allowing issue of temporary membership permits for $2.

Hunting license sales are near a record—at more than 290,000 for September and October alone—reports Parks and Wildlife Department.

December 1 is the deadline for new car dealers, distributors, manufacturers and factory representatives to get licenses under the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission act.

The State Bar of Texas has approved a new code of professional responsibility for lawyers.

Rep. Tom Moore Jr. of Waco and Grant Jones of Abilene are candidates for the state senate in the new 24th district.

A major Democratic fund-raising dinner is scheduled here December 6, with Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Congressman Wilbur Mills as drawing cards.

Hunters agree that the leopard is the most dangerous animal in Africa.

CONSUMER TALK about BLANKETS

by J. C. Penney's Home Economists

Beds, like people, come in assorted sizes. There are twin, full, queen, king and western king beds. Each of these should be outfitted with properly fitting blankets.

When selecting blankets, consider whether they will be used by gentle Granny or a rugged teen in a warm room or a barely heated one. What ever your needs, today's blankets are engineered to meet them. Most modern blankets are synthetic, with acrylics leading the market.

Acrylics are soft, light, warm, resilient, moth and allergy proof and machine washable. They closely resemble wool, but cost much less. Unleashed with a finish such as "Supernap," however, they pill and shed.

Although "Vellux" blankets have been on the market for only a few seasons, they are also popular for lightweight warmth and easy care. These nylon-flocked polyurethane foam blankets laminated over a core of nylon mesh are strong, machine washable and will not pill or shed.

The newest development in blankets is the growing importance of ones fitted at the bottom. These provide more foot room, make bedmaking easier and result in a more tailored, less bulky appearance. However, they cannot be rotated for even wear.

Other specially made blankets are those woven in a leno pattern. Called thermal blankets, their open weave makes them effective as light summer covers. They become warm in winter if another blanket is placed on top to "trap" heat.

RED MEATS INCREASE

NEW YORK (AP)—Consumption of red meats is increasing significantly in high income countries where small abattoirs are being displaced by large industrialized packers.

The trend is creating a demand for debairers, cutting machines, rendering systems and process meat formers, according to the Bureau of International Commerce.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

May You Kiss the Driver?

When a passenger is injured in an auto accident, the law naturally considers whether the driver had been guilty of careless driving. But at the same time, it also weighs the conduct of the passenger himself. Had he been guilty of negligence?

Take this case:

A young man was out driving with a girl he had just met when she suddenly leaned over and gave him a kiss. Momentarily discomfited, he lost control of the car and smashed into a telephone pole.

The girl was injured, and later filed suit for damages. However, the jury decided she also was guilty of negligence—for taking the young man's mind off his driving. In fact, a passenger may be held negligent not only for thoughtless acts but even for thoughtless words. For example:

Just as a car was nearing a dangerous curve, a passenger held up a bottle of beer and exclaimed, "How do you get this darned bottle open?"

This, too, was enough to divert the driver and cause a crackup. And it was enough, also, in a courtroom afterward, to pin a "negligent" label on the thirsty passenger.

On the other hand, a rider need not sit in stony silence. He has a right to assume that, despite minor distractions, the driver will show a reasonable amount of good judgment and self-control.

Thus, in another accident case, the court could see no negligence in the fact that a girl passenger had been talking with her companion about where to spend the evening.

Nor was it considered negligence in still another case, for a woman to join the driver in singing a song. As one judge put it:

"It cannot be said as a matter of law that she had any reason to expect the defendant would abandon all care in the operation of his car."

FLAG HAD 45 STARS
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A 45-star American flag? The local branch of Goodwill Industries discovered there was one, dating back to 1896 when Utah was admitted into the union.

When Oklahoma achieved statehood in 1907, the 45-star flag became obsolete. Nonetheless, it had a 11-year run.

The flag was donated to Goodwill by Ralph Lindley, who found it in an old box he bought at an auction. Goodwill employees, with his approval, have offered it to the state of Utah.

India is the eighth largest industrial country in the world.

Marriage announced

The recent marriage of their daughter, Brenda, to Everett Andrew DeGroff, is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Brock, 217 Greenwood. The couple was married in Plainview.

DeGroff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E.A. DeGroff of Tucson, Ariz. He is employed at Holly Sugar Corporation.

The bride is a 1971 graduate Hereford High School.

HE RAISES WORMS
DALLAS (AP) — Joseph T. Scottino, who was only 18 when blinded by shrapnel in World War II combat on Tinian Island, has found a career that suits him at last—he's a worm rancher.

Battenfield-Reinart marriage conducted

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Kaylanette Battenfield and Rick Reinart in a twilight ceremony Saturday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, where the Rev. Aedan Davis conducted the nuptial mass.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Frann Battenfield of 129 Ironwood and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reinart of Route 1. Her brother, Rocky Battenfield, gave the bride in marriage at the altar where paired bouquets of yellow gladiolas and mums with blue cornflowers were set on either side.

Maid of honor was Miss Shan Banks and Sid Urbanczyk served as best man.

Misses Patsy Paetzold and Ginger Goodin were bridesmaids with Willa Bess Lawson as junior bridesmaid. Groomsmen were John Hushman, Wayne Schilling and the junior attendant, Don Lynn Lawson.

Guests were shown to pews by Ralph Loerwald, Brian Goodin Keith Battenfield, the bride's brother, and Joe Reinart, brother of the bridegroom.

Miss Carole Scott, the wedding soloist, sang "A Time for Us, For All We Know and Wedding Prayer." Mrs. William Penn, organist, accompanied her and played traditional marches.

The bride's gown of snow-drift organza was fashioned with fitted lace bodice, its deep-V neckline and cap sleeves edged with scallops. Medallions beaded with seed pearls were sprinkled down the skirt front and merged with a lace border around the toetip hemline.

Similar medallions ornamented the full-circle train which was attached at the back waistline. A Juliet cap overlaid with beaded lace and clusters of organza orange blossoms held the illusion veil which floated the length of the train.

She carried a cascade of white miniature carnations and lemon leaves. For "something old" in her costume she wore her grandmother's wedding ring, and for "something borrowed" her mother's diamond pendant.

Forget-me-not blue crepe made the honor attendant's dress, which was buttoned with blue rhinestones. In the same style, bridesmaids' frocks were in buttercup yellow.

Wide-brimmed hats to match the dresses were banded with velvet ribbon tied at the back in a double bow accented with beaded velvet leaves. Each carried a single carnation the color of her dress, with ribbon streamers of the opposite color.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Battenfield chose a blue chiffon dress, the full sleeves gathered to wide cuffs. Mrs. Reinart wore a gold-sparkled crepe dress with matching jacket trimmed at the neckline with gold braid.

The bride paused in the processional to present her mother a carnation, and in the recessional to make a similar presentation to her husband's mother.

Fellowship hall of First Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding reception. Guests registered at a table where Mrs. Gerald Paetzold was seated.

Miss Dee Dee Walden served the cake while Miss Corky Vargas ladled punch. Denise and Nannette Reinart, sisters of the bridegroom, were also in the house party.

White satin covered the bride's table, with a miramist skirt gathered to satin binding. Single carnations held swags of the miramist to form a border just below the table top. Flanking the table were columns holding the altar bouquets, and the bride's bouquet was the centerpiece.

Four wedding bells were set at the base of the four-tiered colonnade cake with its sugar flowers in blue and yellow and miniature bride couple atop.

For the wedding trip to Galveston, Mrs. Reinart wore an orchid wool skirt and vest with matching blouse. On their return the couple will be at home at Dumas, where the bridegroom farms.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Hereford High School and has been employed by Deaf Smith General Hospital. The bridegroom holds a BS degree in agricultural business from West Texas State University, where he was graduated in 1970.

Miss Janet Ricketts bride of David Owens

Miss Janet Lee Ricketts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Ricketts of 630 Avenue J, and David Stanley Owens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie W. Owens of 541 Westhaven Drive, were married Saturday evening by candlelight at the altar of First Christian Church.

The Rev. Eugene Brink, minister, read the service in which Mr. Ricketts gave his oldest daughter in marriage. Arched candelabra with emerald fern banded at the base formed the background for the bridal party.

A central tall arrangement of white spider mums and gypsophylla was set behind the communion table and on either side was a candelabra where white tapers burned.

Her sister, Miss Sara Ricketts, was the bride's only attendant. David Henslee acted as best man; ushers were the bride's brother, Jeff Ricketts, and David Watts.

As a prelude to the ceremony Albert Ricketts, uncle of the bride, sang "More," accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Ricketts. She played the theme music from "Love Story," then the traditional march from Wagner's "Lohengrin," and continued to play as vows were repeated.

Of candlelight pebbled satin, the bride's gown was in empire style with long fitted sleeves finished with a rolled cuff of the fabric. Bands of lace were stitched in panel effect down the skirt front and around above the floor-length hemline.

Accenting the high oval neckline, she wore a silver cross on a fine silver chain, the bridegroom's gift. Silver earrings belonging to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Ella Ricketts, added "something borrowed" to her costume, and she carried a linen handkerchief edged in handmade lace, made by her great-grandmother, Mrs. Ira Ricketts, and carried by her mother as a bride.

Her candlelight illusion veil, held by a Juliet cap of satin ornamented with rows of pearls, fell over her shoulders. Her bouquet was a cascade of white crystal mums and gypsophylla on a base of glossy lemon leaves.

The maid of honor was dressed in emerald crepe, cut empire fashion with full sleeves caught at the wrist by narrow cuffs ruffled on either side in antique lace. The double lace ruffles appeared again on a band circling the high waist.

Her hair was held high at the back with a jeweled silver clip and she carried a nosegay of flowers like those in the brides bouquet.

The bride's mother wore an aquamarine dress accessorized with black, and Mrs. C. W. Owens chose an ensemble of navy and white. Both had corsages of cymbidium orchids.

Classmates of the bride at West Texas State University were at the refreshment table for the reception in the church fellowship hall. Miss Sherry Bird served the cake, which rose in double tiers above four circles decorated with white roses, and was topped by bride-and-groom figurines. Miss Jacque Gillespie poured green punch and Miss Emaleta Cole was at the coffee service.

The table was covered with bridal illusion banded with satin and caught at each corner with a satin bow. Mrs. W.B. Nunley, Mrs. Benny Cooper of Lubbock, Mrs. Fred Ricketts of Albuquerque, Mrs. Lewis Lea, Mrs. Roy Landers and Mrs. Bob Thurman of Clovis assisted in serving.

Celia Ricketts, younger sister of the bride, asked guests to register at a table centered with a big white candle surrounded by green leaves and pompon mums.

Leaving for a brief trip, the bride had changed into an off-white nubby cotton vest and skirt with burnt orange crepe blouse and accessories in off-white. Her corsage was of crystal mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Owens will be at home at 600 Irving, Apartment 12. She is a student in West Texas State after graduation last spring from Hereford High School. He is also a graduate with the class of 1971 and is employed with an electrical contracting firm here.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for the rehearsal dinner at Dickie's Restaurant Friday evening. Table arrangements of gold carnations and mums with emerald fern leaves were featured.

Wedding guests from other cities included the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Emma Owens of Portales, N.M.; the Sam Bells, W.R. Whites and D. L. Smiths of Amarillo; the Benny Cooper family, Fred Ricketts and Bob Thurman.

Loving squirrel creates novel

The amusing story of how a baby mouse turns out to really be a baby squirrel is told in A Squirrel of One's Own by Douglas Fairbairn. Fairbairn rescues Chipmy and takes her in as one of his family.

Read how loving and affectionate she is but how she, even though the fact tries to be forgotten, is still an untamed squirrel.

This heart-warming story is found at the Deaf Smith County Library. Check it out today.

A SQUIRREL OF ONE'S OWN

By Douglas Fairbairn

One day Douglas Fairbairn glanced out the window of his Florida home and noticed the neighbor's cat toying with a baby mouse. While he watched, the mouse took a leap, fetched up against the cat's belly, and clung for dear life.

This agile mouse was really a tiny squirrel, whom Fairbairn rescued in the nick of time and about whom he has now written the most delightful story of its kind since That Quail, Robert. Chipmy not only won the author's heart but, when she gave up napping all day in his yellow beach bag, took over his home as well.

Fairbairn describes how he learned to interpret her tail-flicking and feet drumming, how it felt to have her run all over him at terrific speeds, how she would board up her sleeping quarters in anticipation of bad weather that was sure to come; and how, suddenly and savagely, for no apparent reason, she started attacking him.

The last chapter describes how both Fairbairn and Chipmy behaved when he tried to give her her freedom. There are many moments of real drama, for Chipmy had a proud squirrelish nature and, although often loving and affectionate, she remained—and still is—essentially wild.

A QUESTION OF TIME

By Helen McCloy

The stillness in the old ballroom was torn apart by a scream. Sophronia ran down the hall to her grandchild Lisa.

"Why did you scream?" "Because I have been here before. All this has happened before..."

Was it déjà vu, the sense of the already seen, the flash of false recognition common to both normal and abnormal as dreams? Is déjà vu, as some believe, a dislocation in the mechanism of Time itself?

These questions came back to Lisa's cousin Susan, ten years later, when she learned that Lisa, no longer a child, was coming home to Boston.

Would Lisa still be beautiful? Would she still love Susan's brother Roly? Would she still be afraid of the old ballroom?

Susan protested when Grandmother Sophronia announced there would be a New Year's Eve dance for Lisa in the ballroom, but Sophronia refused to change her plan.

Nothing prepared the household for the moment when death struck down one of the young people in extraordinary circumstances. Why scream maniacally to be let out of a room when you were locked in as a joke only a moment before, and there was no one else in the room with you?

Duck hunters fare poorly

Duck hunters from across the state are reporting poor shooting, and things aren't expected to get better until some really nasty weather pushes the birds south across the Red River, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

Hunters in Northeast Texas report that the few and scattered ducks are flying high, and generally good weather in the area has kept boaters, water-skiers and fishermen on the lakes. This sort of activity has been spooking most of the ducks out of range.

On the Murphee Wildlife Management Area hunters had fair success on the first day of the public hunt there. The 164 hunters which showed up killed 700 ducks.

Things weren't so ducky down the coast. One 90-member hunter's club in the Rockport Area reported killing only 172 ducks during the first week of hunting.

Hunters are reported to be disappointed in the poor showing since most of them have a season under their belts with which to get the hang of the point system to determine bag limits.

Hunters may have one to 10 ducks in the aggregate based on the following 100 plus system.

100-point ducks -- canvasback ducks and red-head ducks, 90-point ducks -- mallard hens, New Mexican ducks, black ducks, wood ducks and hooded merganser ducks.

20 point ducks -- mallard drakes, mottled ducks, pintails and ring-necked ducks.

10-point ducks -- all other species except black-bellied tree ducks and fulvous tree ducks.

The daily bag limit is reached when the point value of any duck taken is added to the total point value of all ducks already taken that day reaches or exceeds 100 points.

One fully feathered wing must remain attached to dressed ducks while being transported between the place taken and the personal abode of the possessor or between the place taken and a commercial preservation facility.

The Columbus family chapel, filled with mementos of the man who discovered America, is preserved in Boalsburg, Pa.

NEW GUN TEST

HOUSTON (AP)—The paraffin test, one of the oldest scientific crime detection aids to determine if a suspect has fired a gun recently, has been abandoned by Houston police.

The police now are using a technique involving chemicals and ultraviolet rays. Police chemists consider the new test more reliable than the long-used paraffin method.

Hereford, area included in new 500-page book

Early times on the high plains surrounding Hereford are featured in a new, one-volume Texana edition of the Lone Star State's major stories, "Off The Beaten Trail," just released by Texian Press, publisher Robert E. Davis of Waco said today.

Reaching far back, the 500-page book includes a story on the 10,000 year history of the Alibates flint quarries and its quarries and its hunters. More modern hunting of the plains buffalo is recounted, along with a Kiowa legend of the white ghost bull that led the last herd to sanctuary. On the Canadian near Stinnett, Billy Dixon's mile-long rifle shot at the Battle of Adobe Walls is recounted, as is a grim gunfight at old Tascosa in the days of big and little ranch war. A major feature is the story of the Comanche last stand in Palo Duro Canyon.

Written by Hill Country author-historian-columnist Ed Syers, OBT, as it has become popularly known, appeared for many years as a weekly metropolitan feature in most major Texas cities. In book form it proved a consistent best seller through three volumes and seven printings. Davis said, adding the one-volume Texian Press edition combines all previous books with complete indexing and mapping.

"Off The Beaten Trail" demanded assembly into one last book because it is real Texana heritage," Davis said. "It has to be the best-read writing on our state today; it's in a very large number of Texas schools and has been highly praised by critics and heritage groups alike. It covers Texas from border and pre-history to yesterday; it was an immense undertaking and is a big book."

BOREDOM HELPED

NEW YORK (AP)—Allen Swift, a leading voice specialist in radio and tv commercials, believes his gift of mimicry came from boredom as a child.

Swift daydreamed a lot and populated his dreams with interesting people. He would carry on conversations with all of them. "I had been practicing mimicry all my life so when the opportunity came to use it commercially, I was way out ahead," says Swift.

Veteran's affairs

Veterans Administration reminded veterans studying under the GI Bill that they can hire a tutor at VA expense, if needed, and still get the full educational allowance.

About 4,000 veterans received more than 60,000 hours of tutorial help in connection with their GI Bill—educational studies, VA reported today.

VA officials noted that to be eligible for this benefit (established by the Veterans Education and Training Act of 1970), the veteran must be enrolled under the GI Bill above the high school level on a half time or more basis.

If the veteran needs tutoring to pass a required course, VA allows up to $50 monthly for a maximum of nine months to pay for it.

These tutorial fees are in addition to the regular monthly education check the veteran receives, and are not chargeable to his basic entitlement, officials pointed out.

VA urged veterans interested in tutorial assistance or educational benefits to contact their nearest VA office, veterans county service officer, or local veterans service organization representatives.

A smelly issue

The Texas Air Quality Control Board took its first action Wednesday against a feedlot operator because of offensive odors, and at the same time predicted the agency would eventually review operations of Panhandle feedlots. The precedent-setting action was taken against a 10,000 capacity sheep feeding operation near Coleman in West Central Texas.

We have been warned before that this move would come about. Charles Barden, Chairman of the Texas Air Quality Control Board told members of the news media several months ago that the Board would eventually move into the odor control problem, and apparently the action taken Wednesday is just the beginning.

The agency staff members readily admit that there not only is a lack of objective criteria for measuring odor pollution, but also a lack of methods for controlling the problem. But in typical government fashion, the operator of the yard was told that he must "make it where people around there can live." That statement leaves a lot of room for speculation. And it's interesting to note that the company has only 60 days to submit a plan for controlling odors from their yards.

We'll be watching the case with interest, wondering all the time how the operators are going to comply when they're not really sure with what they must comply. The action taken by the Board however, will certainly put the cattle feeding industry on guard and we would assume that future feedlot sites will be picked a little farther from heavily populated areas. In the past, too many firms have made two basic mistakes—building too near the cities, and building on the watersheds.

But then, were our foresight as good as our hindsight, we wouldn't make many mistakes—would we?

Managing money

There lurks in the minds of some of us a suspicion that bankers and economists often make monetary policy seem a more difficult subject than it really is. Such a suspicion apparently is held by Allan H. Meltzer, professor of economics at Carnegie-Mellon University.

At a recent conference sponsored by the University of Rochester's Center for Research in Government Policy and Business, Professor Meltzer recalled that Henry Thornton, in a study of paper money in the Britain of nearly 200 years ago, had come up with a reasonable guide for monetary policy:

"To limit the total of paper issued, and to resort for this purpose, whenever the temptation to borrow is strong, to some effectual principle of restriction; in no case, however, materially to diminish the sum in circulation, but to let it vibrate only within certain limits; to afford slow and cautious extension of it, as the general trade of the kingdom enlarges itself; to allow of some special, though temporary increase in the event of an extraordinary alarm or difficulty, as the best means of preventing a great demand at home."

Mr. Thornton didn't know precisely how changes in the money supply influenced the economy, nor do modern economists. Yet he did see that incessant tinkering with the supply was highly dangerous, a principle that a number of present-day thinkers appear not to have fully grasped.

As chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Arthur Burns has frequently indicated his preference for a steady and moderate growth of the money supply, a course that Mr. Thornton would approve. In practice, though, monetary policy sometimes has seemed quite different.

In the first six months of this year, the Federal Reserve allowed the money supply—currency and bank demand deposits—to balloon at an annual rate of more than 10 per cent, a rate that was steady but hardly moderate or very temporary. The Fed may have been trying once again to slow the up-trend in interest rates, but all it did was to build more inflationary expectations into rate levels.

Since Aug. 15 the money supply has actually decreased, which looks like another example of the Federal Reserve's tendency to swing from one extreme to another. It does, that is, unless you can accept Mr. Burns' assurance that the recent monetary statistics are "sheer noise, having no significance."

The Federal Reserve's unfortunate tendency to wild fluctuations in policy, partly explains why the Fed finds it necessary to be so secretive about its decisions, to talk in public in only the vaguest generalities, which often can be interpreted in any way the listener prefers.

Mr. Burns, for instance, was trying the other day to assure Wall Street executives that all was going to be well with the economy. Some in his audience were fearful that the Fed was starting a severe deflationary squeeze, and for them the board chairman had these cheering words: "The Federal Reserve intends to see that adequate bank reserves are provided to finance a vigorous but sustainable expansion."

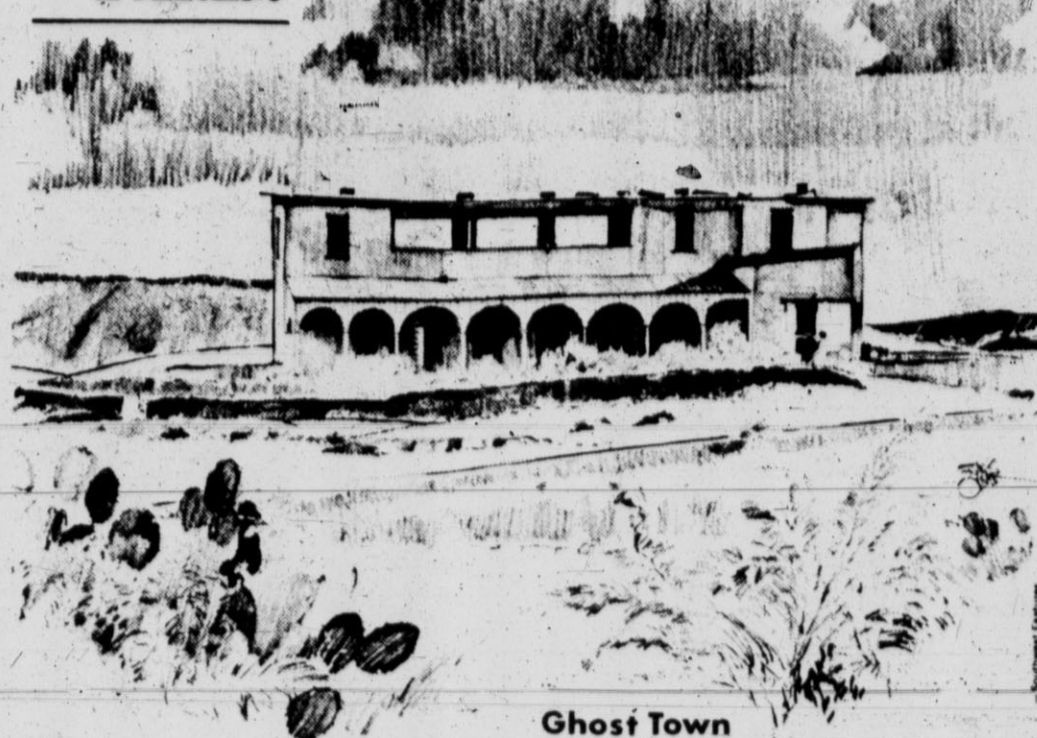

Others in the chairman's audience thought the Fed might feel that wage-price control had taken the System off the hook on inflation, and that it would now try to stimulate the economy with a lot of easy money. To them, Mr. Burns offered this: "The Federal Reserve will not become the architect of a new wave of inflation."

We hope not. Even if wage-price control is a throughgoing success, it will check not inflation but only its visible manifestations. Meanwhile the federal budget deficit grows to the point where it is strongly inflationary, even in the view of those who talk of full-employment budgets. Monetary policy, in short, is about all we have going for us.

The pressures on the Federal Reserve, however, will be heavy—from businessmen eager for a more rapid rate of recovery, from politicians eager for re-election in 1972. For such pressures Britain's Henry Thornton had an answer: "To suffer with their solicitations of the merchants, or the wishes of the government, to determine the measure of the bank issues, is unquestionably to adopt a very false principle of conduct."

Mr. Thornton's language may be a little archaic, but his advice is just as sound now as it was two centuries ago. —Wall Street Journal

Texas!

Ghost Town

Far out on the Trans-Pecos in the deep Texas part of the great Chihuahuan Desert there is an old ghost town whose ectoplasm is showing signs of new life.

Terlingua was a real ghost town. In 1936 its population was about 2000. In 1967 it was zero. Ages ago, the area known as the Big Bend of the Rio Grande was the happy hunting ground for Apaches, Comanches and Shawnees, who swept through on their frequent raids into Mexico. Mexican sheepherders gradually drifted into the land and settled along Terlingua Creek. Then came white settlers around 1860, and in 1890 quicksilver was discovered.

In 1903, a strange little man (El Chapito) from Portland, Maine, accepted some land in the desert as payment of an old debt. Howard E. Perry moved into the frighteningly beautiful country, established and built the entire town of Terlingua and began his secret mining of huge deposits of cinnabar. After smelting the ore, the highly valuable quicksilver was hauled 84 miles to the railroad at Alpine in great covered freighters drawn by 20-mule teams.

Visitors were never permitted in the Chisos Mining Company compound. El Padrone (the Boss) Perry built a large house on the hill where he lived like a hermit for four months out of the year. The other eight he lived as a fashionable gentleman in New York and Portland. The story goes, he once brought his eastern wife to the big house in Terlingua where she stayed one night and died.

The mines in Terlingua are no more. Scarce water above ground was a menace below and in the forties the mines flooded. El Padrone died and so did Terlingua. But in 1967, an ember of life glowed once more in the crumbling adobe ruins. The Chihuahuan Society International held its first annual Championship Cook-off at Terlingua among contestants from across the nation. Resorts and guest ranches, too, have begun enticing the Texan to exciting desert adventure, like Glen Pepper's unique Villa de la Mina, and others. Land developers are also getting on the Terlingua ore wagon, offering beautiful desert property for sale to the city-bound. Moreover, there is a fresh appraisal of the quicksilver business and one or two mines are again in operation in the area.

Before you know it, Terlingua's live population will again outnumber those still in its parched, white little cemetery... and give the ectoplasm a needed rest!

People die of botulism, companies of publicity

BY BERT MILLS

Washington, D.C. — Botulism, a lethal poison that occurs at extremely rare intervals in contaminated food, has become a household word of late. That's unfortunate because only four people have died of botulism in the past 50 years. Botulism ought to be the least of worries for Americans.

Stokely-Van Camp, Inc., of Indianapolis, a 110-year-old firm of high reputation, is the latest victim of a botulism scare. It turned out nobody was even sickened let alone died, but the publicity over one can of Stoke-ly green beans almost forced the company into bankruptcy. Trigger-happy bureaucrats, at both the state and Federal level, caused the completely unnecessary debacle.

The fantastic story of the can of Stokely green beans has yet to be told in full but on the evidence to date it seems to be a case of overreaction by inept officials who fumbled, bungled, and stumbled. They killed a couple of mice and scared an entire nation. And the entire fiasco almost killed a major corporation which appears to have been entirely blameless.

There have been three botulism scares in 1971, and one death. Last summer a New York banker died of botulism poisoning after eating canned soup. The canner, Bon Vivant Soup Co., has gone out of business and is being sued by the government. In September, a producer, Campbell Soup Co., recalled some of its vegetable soup, after its own inspector found traces of botulism contamination. Nobody was poisoned but much publicity resulted.

Stokely Was Innocent Victim
After the Bon Vivant scandal and the Campbell incident, the stage was set for the Stokely-Van Camp case. Two alarms, and a single death, led to the third act in which Stokely-Van Camp was the innocent victim. The Florida Agriculture Department initiated the alarm but the national publicity resulted from the overquick reaction of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

A Marine captain in Florida served the beans to his 4-year-old son, and commented: "They taste like sauerkraut." His wife said the son had hissed when opened, and father and son were hustled off to the naval dispensary for tests. Both felt fine, but they wanted to be sure. After all, botulism can be fatal.

Blood samples of father and son were taken and rushed to Atlanta for testing. Meanwhile the father and son left the hospital, still feeling fine. The beans had also been tested and found uncontaminated. Everything added up to a false alarm until one mouse died after being injected with the child's blood. Then a second mouse, similarly injected, also died.

At that point, officials hit the panic button. Two dead mice meant tentative findings of botulism. FDA then informed Stokely and asked for a recall of that entire batch beans. FDA decided the public health required a public notice. National publicity of the latest botulism scare followed minutes later.

From the moment they heard the story, Stokely officials knew the scare of botulism was false, because the father and son would have been dead if they had been poisoned. Instead they were in perfect health. Nevertheless an expensive campaign to recall every can of beans in the suspected batch was instituted. Within a few days, FDA cancelled its warning but the damage had been done.

THE BOOTLEG —Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm tackles the detergent problem this week in his own peculiar way.

Dear editor:

After following the news recently about detergents I have come to the conclusion that the way of the ecologist is hard.

As you know, housewives, after being convinced that regular detergents coming out of their washing machines were putting too much phosphate into the streams and lakes of the nation, decided, on the advice of the authorities, to switch to non-phosphate brands which quickly appeared on the market.

Now the Surgeon General has reversed the advice and says the new-style detergents have too much caustic in them and are therefore unsafe, particularly for children. In fact, he says the housewives should go back to the phosphate detergents for the time being until something better is found. I don't know what this does to ecology but it sure saves two-thirds of day-time television.

However, I got to thinking. Was everybody's clothes dingy before automatic washing machines were invented? Was everybody ashamed to hang his clothes out to dry where neighbors could sneer at them? You mean every President before the last four was inaugurated with a dirty collar?

Of course not. While the Surgeon General wrings his hands over having to choose between phosphate detergents and caustic detergents, why doesn't somebody tell him how clothes used to be washed?

The answer to the problem is homemade soap, made from hog fat.

If the professional ecologists are on the ball they'll come out with a campaign for a hog in everybody's backyard and four washpots in every block.

This will solve the soap problem.

Of course, it'll give rise to some other problems, particularly in the summer with a strong breeze wafting over the hog pen, but that's not my problem.

Nowadays, all people want is a solution to the immediate problem. The fact that the solution creates more problems than the problem is beside the point and offers a challenge for more solutions. The men who invented the atom bomb all won prizes, but there are even bigger prizes waiting for those who can think up something to do about it.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Talk of Texas

BY JACK MAGUIRE

PARKLAND REMEMBERS—On Monday, November 22, a nurse will walk down a sterile corridor in Dallas' Parkland Hospital and hang a black wreath on the door of Trauma Room 1.

That was the room to which President John F. Kennedy was rushed on November 22, 1963, an assassin's bullet in his brain. And it was outside that room moments later that Lyndon Johnson was told that he was the new President of the United States.

Each year since the tragedy, Trauma Room 1 has been closed early on November 22 and a black wreath placed on the door. It is not used that day unless Parkland's emergency facilities become overcrowded and there is no other place to treat a patient. It is the way the staff of the big emergency hospital pays its own tribute to the memory of JFK.

TRAVELING TEXAS—One of the state's most unique retail stores is far off the beaten track at Jonesville, Harrison County.

A leading item is charred white oak barrels (long-favored by moonshiners for aging their product). White oak wine casks also are available in quantity, along with wood-burning heating and cookstoves and many other items rarely found anywhere else in this modern world.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?—Efforts of a student group to change the name of the University of Texas Longhorns football team to that of Armadillos recalls the fact that Bevo, the Longhorn steer that is the UT mascot, got his name 56 years ago this Thanksgiving.

In the traditional Turkey Day game between Texas and Texas A. & M. in 1915, the Aggies had trounced the Longhorns 13-0. To preserve the record of the victory for posterity, some A & M students located the pasture where the Texas mascot was housed, roped and tied him and burned the 13-0 score into his hide.

University partisans discovered the deed the next day. By skillfully using a branding iron, they were able to transform "13-0" into the word "Bevo"—the name that has been given to each succeeding Longhorn steer mascot. Wonder if the students plan to call their armadillo mascot Bevo, too?

TO TELL THE TRUTH—Businessmen in Doan's Crossing, Wilbarger County trading post that flourished in the 1870's and 1880's to serve cowboys accompanying herds up the trail, believed in telling their customers the truth.

The town's only hotel, for example, was called "The Bat's Cave"—a candid appraisal of the prostitutes who plied their trade there.

THE CHANGING TIMES—When Houston was half its present size of 1.2 million, it took 200 bicycle messengers to deliver telegrams for Western Union. Today there is only one bicycle boy, and his deliveries are limited to the downtown area.

SENSING THE NEWS

By Anthony Harrigan

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

Southern States Industrial Council

WASHINGTON—Welfare funds are being used to support prostitutes and drug addicts and finance hippie communes, according to testimony given at a Pennsylvania House of Representatives investigating committee hearing in Reading, Pa., last month.

That's only a segment of the national scandal involving welfare. In several states, food stamps have been distributed to strikers. In New York State, thousands of employable welfare recipients have resisted efforts to put them to work.

It is no wonder that increasing numbers of informed Americans are indignant in the face of these and other revelations of misuse of the taxpayers' money.

Rep. Adriano Mastrangelo, in a recent report on welfare, abuses in the Keystone State, cited the following situations: "Public welfare funds were paid to a convicted prostitute for eight months because she sprained her ankle."

"Public welfare funds—$132 a month per person—are being collected by a group of hippies who put the money in a common fund. One hippie went to Europe for five months but his relief payments were continued and his checks contributed to the common 'pot' by fellow hippies in his absence."

"Public welfare funds were paid to a woman living with an employed man not her husband."

In New York State, State Rep. John E. Kingston recently noted that there is data that indicates "significant numbers of persons failing to comply with the new work law." He wrote in a letter to "The New York Times" that "8,800 employable recipients (of welfare) have resisted efforts to put them to work."

The Food Stamp Act, Public Law 88-525, also has been used to aid the undeserving. Last year, for example, food stamps were distributed to strikers at General Motors plants. The food stamps served as a subsidy to members of the striking United Auto Workers. Proponents of food stamp legislation are seeking expansion of the program which cost $248 million in 1969 and which now costs more than $2 billion a year. A total of 9.2 million Americans now receive this form of welfare aid.

Food stamps are among the most irritating welfare giveaways. Working citizens only read about welfare checks. But they see the free-loading of the food stamp recipients in neighborhood grocery stores.

Recently, I received several letters regarding food stamp abuses from readers of this column. Mrs. Jams E. Rowland of Chester County, Tenn., wrote:

"I hate to go to the supermarket and buy bologna and the cheapest ground beef and watch the ones that have the stamps, much better-dressed than I am, loading their carts with country ham, steaks, and the most expensive cakes and cookies, and soft drinks by the case... I have worked all my life and I don't want any handouts. But I am tired of working and giving part of what I make to the leeches who are better off than I am. Just what can be done about this?"

Unquestionably, many Americans share Mrs. Rowland's indignation. Their indignation will be all the greater when they learn of efforts by Senate liberals and the White House to obtain quick approval of welfare expansion legislation.

Hunter's boners prove hazardous

You don't have to be absent-minded to get caught poaching, but it helps.

A West Texas deer poacher probably pulled the boner of the year this week when he put the head and hide of an illegally-killed deer in a cardboard box and discarded it in a Reagan County dump.

He might have gotten away with the crime except for a minor flaw -- the box had been used to mail something to the poacher and was inscribed with his name and address.

It didn't take much sleuthing by Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game management officers to catch the violator.

The best boner of 1970 probably was by an archer who illegally shot an alligator while hunting on the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge.

The 'gator's body was recovered later by refuge officials and -- you guessed it -- the man's name and address were right there on the arrow shaft protruding from the carcass.

Livestock research receives boost from irrigation engines

Livestock research on the High Plains Research Foundation's Steinele Research and Demonstration Farm has been given a power boost by three Ford industrial irrigation engines.

The engines were donated to promote farm-size livestock research on the Steinele farm through the courtesy of Ford Industrial and Turbine Operations, Engines and Foundry Division.

Munoz finishes Marine school

Marine Pfc. David M. Munoz son of Mr. and Mrs. Cruz L. Ramirez of 432 Long St., Hereford, has completed Field Artillery Batteryman School at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

vision and Steward Ford Industrial Engines, Inc., Dallas. The engines were installed on the three Steinele irrigation wells by Jack Morris Ford Company of Plainview.

The Steinele Research and Demonstration Farm was acquired by the Foundation in a lease agreement with John G. Steinele, Phoenix, Ariz. and is under the direction of Dr. Tom Longnecker, Foundation Director. The Farm is located 12 miles east of Plainview on FM 2286 in northwest Floyd County.

"We are extremely pleased that Ford Motor Company is interested in the future of agriculture to this extent," Dr. Longnecker said. "These engines are vital to carrying out objectives of this new farm." Longnecker said the new research facility will provide additional acreage for determining the best varieties of wheat and of species of winter grain for livestock grazing, proper winter pasture management in respect to fertilizer, irrigation and grazing and the best livestock conditioning program. An important part of the research to be conducted on the farm includes the economics of annual summer forage crops and supplementing grazing with grain rations.

Longnecker observed that the farm is large enough to permit larger than normal research plots and will allow a study of the economic results of changing a row-crop operation to a livestock operation.

Tech ags award scholarships to 2 from Hereford

Two Hereford youths attending Texas Tech received scholarships Tuesday night during the annual pig roast sponsored by the university's College of Agricultural Sciences' student Agricultural Council.

David Dennis Downey received a $250 scholarship in agricultural engineering given by Conally Implement Supply Co.

Dan C. Lewis received $500 scholarship in park administration, horticulture and etymology from Trans-Mississippi Golf Association.

Having begun as an informal gathering of Texas Tech agricultural students almost half a century ago, the annual pig roast has become a traditional event at which the College of Agricultural Sciences, its students, faculty and administrators honor teams and individual students who have distinguished themselves and the university during the past year.

Approximately 400 persons attended this year's event held in the Livestock Pavilion on campus with Johnny Louder of Station, president of the sponsoring Aggie Council, presiding.

formal presentation of the engines were Wesley Caraway, Lubbock branch manager of Steward Ford Industrial Engines, Inc. and P.R. Figel, Ford representative from Dearborn, Michigan.

Payments for Pain?

Under the federal Social Security Act, even though you have not yet reached the age of 65, you may collect monthly benefits if you are too "disabled" to work.

You can usually qualify for these benefits (after a waiting period) if you have a major illness or physical handicap. As a rule, both of these are considered disabling.

But suppose your only disability is pain. Must you grit your teeth and continue to work, or may you stay at home and expect a government check?

In the first place, since pain is hard to measure, the law takes a close look at the surrounding circumstances to decide just how bad your pain really is. Consider this case:

A telephone operator tried to collect disability benefits on the ground that a pelvic injury had left her in pain. However, in a court hearing, the government pointed out that the pain was not bad enough to keep the woman from doing the usual household chores--without wearing any kind of supporting garments.

Thereupon the court turned down her claim, saying the evidence simply did not add up to a pain that was truly disabling.

Furthermore, pain that would keep you from doing heavy physical labor may not qualify you as disabled if you are trained to do less strenuous work.

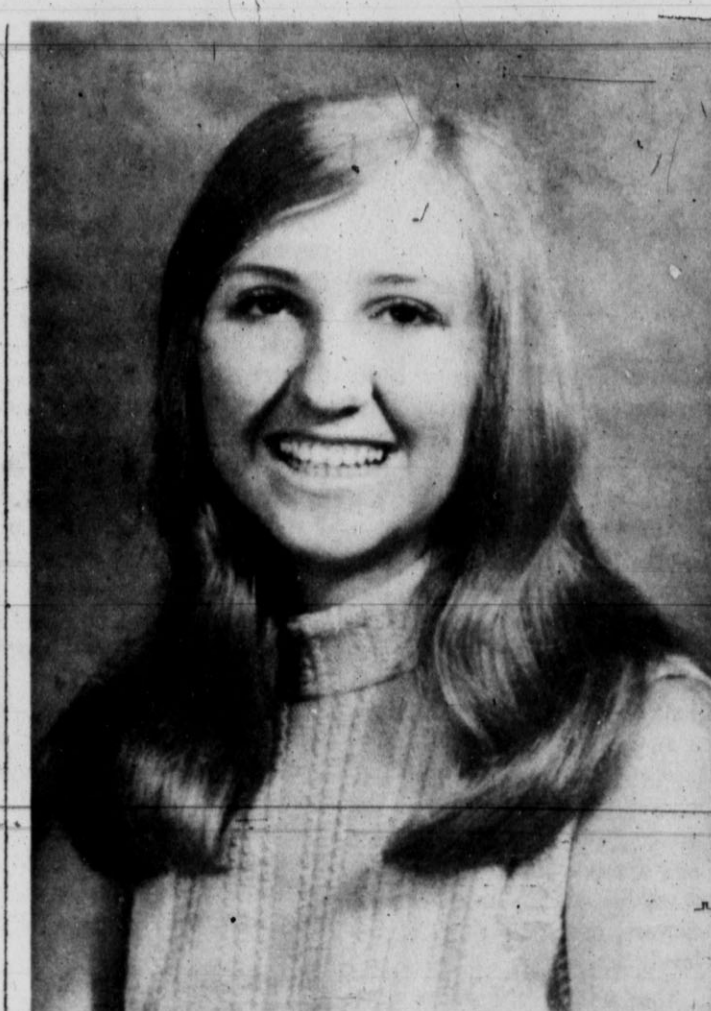

Thus, a market manager was denied disability benefits even though he was having back trouble. The court said his skills in management, being mainly mental, could be put to good use without any great physical distress.

Nonetheless, the law does ordinarily give a claimant the benefit of the doubt. When a manual laborer with tormenting backaches tried to collect as a disabled person, the court upheld his claim even though it was not literally impossible for him to work.

The judge commented: "The notion that pain must be endured, no matter how severe or overpowering, is contrary to disability provisions of the Social Security Act, which were intended to ameliorate some of the rigors that life imposes."

African safari party honors Jordes' guests

A safari to Hereford for a number of guests from other cities ended Saturday evening at dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Jorde on Harrison Highway. Visitors in the Jorde home on the weekend were here in honor of Lou and Dan Ellis of Dallas, who have just returned from an actual safari in Africa.

Jungle growth was suggested in an archway at the entrance to the house, and for another touch of Africa, ceramic elephants and lions prowled the table which was covered in black satin and laid with gold-toned flatware.

The out-of-town guests, who came from several different states, were entertained by other friends while they were in Hereford. Mrs. Dolson Palmer was hostess in her home for brunch Saturday morning, with Mrs. Dick Godwin of Scottsdale, Ariz., a former Hereford resident, as co-hostess.

Mrs. W.R. Thurber and Betty Battey prepared the Mexican supper which they served buffet style to the guests at the Jorde home Friday evening.

In the visiting party were Dr. and Mrs. Ray Pellicore, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Hooper of Chicago; the Dick Godwins from Scottsdale; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bearden from Ft. Worth.

Also from Dallas, in addition to the Ellises were Mr. and Mrs. James W. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. T.B. Arledge, Mrs. G. C. Morton and Mrs. Jeanne Hamilton; from Burnett, Dr. and Mrs. Bill Ozier; from Corsicana, Mr. and Mrs. Don Marrett.

Coming from Minneapolis were Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Whitehill and from Los Angeles, Dean Smith. Several couples from Amarillo were included for the dinner, and a few close friends living here.

The Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission has purchased 12,978 acres of land for conservation purposes.

The first weekend of New York State's hunting season always produces the most deer.

By the Garden Gate with Glad

By Mrs. Art Manjeot

The early mornings are now nippy cold, and darkness comes on much sooner, so there isn't much time to work on the last clean-up relative to the fall preparation of the grounds, trees, lawns, shrubs, and other pertinent garden chores. Yet if one does venture out to do a bit of work it goes rather fast, and to see and enjoy the lovely colors of fall are big pay for the extra moments of work.

Much color has been created by the pear trees, apricot, elms, red-oaks, maples, and the golden-clothed cotton-wood trees. Among the shrubs the red barberry is like a burning bush (Mrs. O. G. Hill Sr. has had some beautiful ones) and another new and interesting plant in autumn colors is the asparagus. The delicate, feathery foliage, now in gold and green, is beautiful. The other morning when I went out to pick up the morning paper, I almost stood at attention when I saw the beautiful waving asparagus, at my neighbors, the Mitchells. Reminded me of the lovely Lady Bird Fountain, in the harbor of the Potomac at Washington, D.C. The fronds of the colorful plant weaving in the early morning breeze with the sunlight lighting it ablaze, was very beautiful.

Late chrysanthemums are singing their last autumn song. Most of them have brilliant hues deep red, russet, gold, bronze and some lovely white daisy type ones are brightening up the fall gardens. I am especially enjoying a lovely red incurved chrysanthemum, not sure of its name but think it is Garnet. It was a gift to me. The color is very lovely and the sturdy stems, deep green full textured foliage makes it a very nice "mum" to grow. Just now have a very pretty arrangement on the antique desk.

Am sure that many preparations for the Thanksgiving holidays are "Brewing" in most all the homes. Make it a festive occasion by having an interesting and pretty arrangement for your dinner.

Creative minds and clever fingers can use many items from the garden to make a table arrangement. Fruits combined with vegetables, fruits with flowers, or one made of the products from the fields can be an eye catcher, and a conversation piece. Grains combine well in such an arrangement. Also be sure and look over the vegetables, dried okra combined with winter squash, corn, maize, turnips, etc. all can be used. In selecting a container for the arrangement, use your imagination. A rough board, a colorful woven mat, an old antique, or a pretty piece of carnival glass, there are many things that can be used. Search out the unused and the unexpected.

One of my favorite containers is an antique coffee grinder. Usually it is placed on a colorful mat, and fruits combined with vegetables. In the small drawer, I place bright colored candies, or nuts. These can be used in the dinner course. If chrysanthemums are used, the small ones are massed in the drawer in such a way that they are the center of interest. The lovely orange colored lantern like balls, which grow along fences, are especially pretty for line effect, and add interest to any arrangement in fall colors.

Make this a family project. It is surprising what the eyes of a small child can see and challenge you with.

A note of interest can be created with a candle in the form of a turkey, pumpkin, or nuts. If however, you want to really have it clever make a turkey or turkeys out of pine cones. These can be done and the children will have great fun assisting with them. The cone, a bit of colored yarn, buttons or like seed for eyes, stems for legs, etc. Use your imagination, and it all will fashion together.

REMEMBER. Are all the bulbs planted for the spring flowers? If not, the holidays would be a good time to get them in the ground. Don't forget to add some phosphate, or bone-meal to each little "house" of the bulb in the deep well prepared soil.

Remember all the fallen leaves on the lawn should not be left to mold and deteriorate there. The weight of the leaves (and there are some lawns in town completely covered with leaves) will flatten the grass and have a tendency to harm it. In some gardens the raking and caring for the leaves will be a continuous project for some time, as there are various trees, and most of them shed their leaves at different times.

The raking, preparing of the flower beds for bulbs, and other chores will help keep the waist-line in shape, as well as other proportions of the physic. Really is better than jogging. I guarantee it will help, and that is a good dosage for "insomnia."

As you read this I will be with a touring group, winging out way across the ocean for Hawaii. We are to fly on a 747 Braniff plane and am expectantly looking forward to seeing the beautiful flowers, and other flora of the lovely islands.

I had a little foretaste of some of the beauty to see before I left, as Mrs. Wilbur Gibson invited me to come over and see her new plant. It is an orchid, and at the time I saw it there were seven beautiful blossoms on it. Lovely flowers, in an intricate blending of lavenders, with golden throats. The ruffled edges with the plicate edge was one of the most interesting features about the blooms. The plant had been well grown, and the textures, and other qualities were good. I may do some comparative studies while seeing the pretty orchids of Hawaii.

Social security

To avoid delay in Medicare payment, patients should file claims promptly after they get their doctor bills, according to Travis Briggs, social security district manager in Amarillo.

"Many people let their medical bills accumulate until the end of the year and then file their claim. This tends to create a clerical backlog that can cause delays in payment," Briggs said.

"Claims are filed on 'Request for Medicare Payment' forms available at most doctors' offices and at the any social security office, Briggs said. Your medicare handbook tells where claims forms should be sent.

In most cases physicians submit claims for their services under Medicare themselves and are paid directly by the Government.

Briggs said December 31, 1971, is the deadline for filing Medicare claims for services rendered October 1, 1969, through September 30, 1970.

"Under the law, Medicare can pay medical insurance claims only within a certain time after treatment or other service," he said. "After December 31, 1971, Medicare cannot pay on bills for services rendered October 1, 1969, through September 30, 1970."

Medical insurance is the voluntary part of Medicare. It is available to almost everyone 65 or over and helps pay for doctor bills and certain other health care services. It is funded by individual premiums that are matched by the Federal Government. It pays 80 percent of reasonable charges above the $50 annual deductible for covered services.

Medicare hospital insurance, funded through regular contributions to social security, requires no premium payments. It helps pay for hospital care and certain related services for people 65 and over.

Medicare is administered for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare by the Social Security Administration.

AAU MEETS

A turkey dinner with a Thanksgiving theme is scheduled at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Calson House for members of the recently-organized chapter of the American Association of University Women. Mrs. Colby Conkwright, president, announces that eligible women interested in membership are invited to telephone Mrs. Wayne Hodgson regarding reservations for the dinner.

WAY TO GO! — Doug Charest and Sharon Dearing, both ninth graders at La Plata Junior High School, show pleasure at receiving the Lions Club

Prince Valiant
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: IT SEEMED CERTAIN THAT ORTHO WOULD COME TO HIS SHIP TO LEARN OF THE SUCCESS OF HIS PLOT, BUT PRINCE VALIANT IS TOO IMPATIENT TO WAIT. "PUT HIM IN CHAINS UNTIL I RETURN," HE ORDERS.

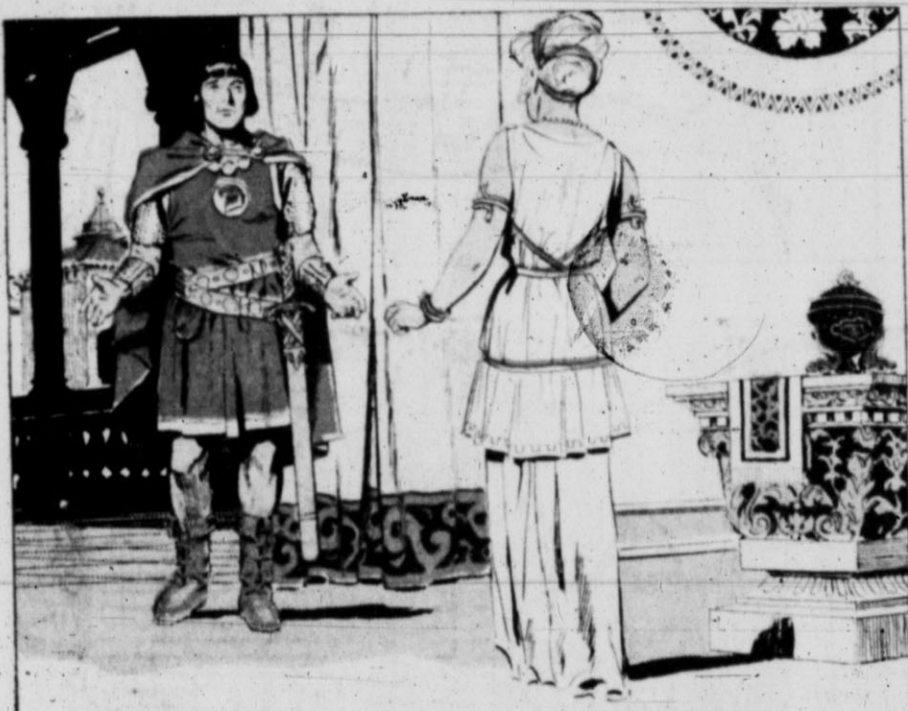

BUT NO CHAINS ARE NECESSARY. ORTHO AND HAMUD, ARE FOUND SIDE BY SIDE IN AN ALLEY, THE VICTIMS OF AMBITION AND REVENGE.

VAL HURRIES THROUGH THE TOWN. MANY RECOGNIZE HIM AND CALL GREETINGS, BUT HIS BRIGHT FACE IS FIXED ON THE DISTANT PALACE. HE BREAKS INTO A RUN.

EVEN AS HE LEAPS UP THE MARBLE STEPS HIS VOICE RINGS OUT: "ALETA!" SHE HEARS AND FOR A BREATHELESS MOMENT CANNOT MOVE. THEN WITH A GLAD CRY RUNS TOWARD THE SOUND OF HIS VOICE.

VAL STOPS, THEN ADVANCES SLOWLY, THE EAGERNESS FADES FROM HIS FACE. THERE IS A GREAT PAIN IN ALETA'S HEART. CAN IT BE THEIR QUARREL IS NOT FORGOTTEN? WITH TEAR-DIMMED EYES SHE WATCHES HIM.

HE SEEMS TONGUE-TIED. TREMBLING HANDS MAKE UNCERTAIN GESTURES TOWARD HER AND IN HIS EYES IS THE LOOK OF A WEARY TRAVELER WHO HAS JUST SEEN PARADISE.

WITH A GLAD CRY SHE FLINGS HERSELF INTO HIS ARMS WITH A FORCE THAT MAKES HIS ARMOR JINGLE.

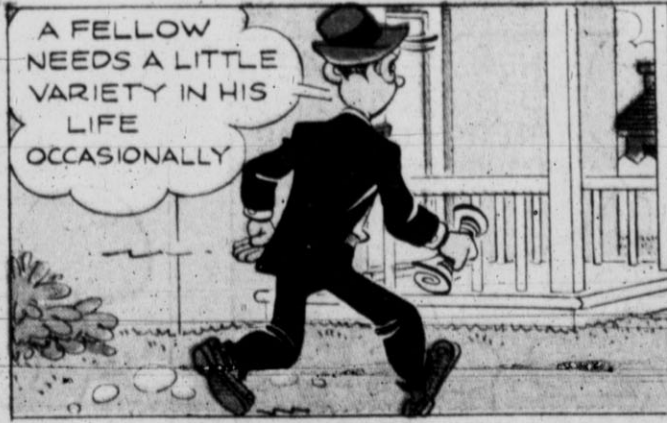

NOW WE DRAW THE CURTAIN ON A MOMENT SACRED TO LOVERS, AFTER ALL, WHO WANTS TO LISTEN TO A LOT OF LOVE TALK?

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's how I decorated an angel food cake for my husband on his birthday to give it that "special" look:

First I covered the cake with white frosting. Then made an oval in the center top of the cake with colored frosting, and a line around

I extended the color line of icing to form a tie, bringing it halfway down the side of the cake. The final touch was three dots below the tie for "buttons."

The finished cake resembled a man's white shirt and tie, and was my husband's ever delighted with his special surprise!

Mrs. Richard Loran

And I'm sure he thought you were the angel for making such a fuss over him. But then husbands are a pretty special breed anyway and deserve all the attention we can lavish on 'em!

So put a smile on his face today and make him feel every bit as BIG as he really is!

MARK THIS WELL

DEAR HELOISE: I was ill in the hospital

all of one month, and as I am an avid reader, a friend brought me a bookmark such as I had never seen before.

It's made of felt in the shape of a mitten. But here's the difference: The mittens are attached to a hair clip.

Two little pieces of felt cut in the shape of a mitten are sewed together with an overcast stitch, leaving the cuff open so that it may be slipped over each prong of the hair clip. Then the actual pincher part is hidden by a ruffle of lace at the edge of the cuff. You just pinch it open and put it on the pages of your book.

Helen

These bookmarks would be a wonderful project for those who like to work with their hands... and would be most welcome by anyone who loves to read.

Thanks, Heloise, for telling us about this cute idea.

SOMETHING'S FISHY!

DEAR HELOISE:

On a recent fishing trip my wife was concerned about how to pack and keep dry such things as sugar and powdered milk, as we were taking our equipment to a campsite by boat.

We had some three-gallon square plastic water containers that were discarded because of small leaks. So we cut the top portion of these containers off—just below the double-thickness point—and packed the large lower portion with "keep-dry" items. With just a little persuasion the upper portion will slip on like putting the lid on a can!

We then ran an old belt or web strapping around the whole thing. The handle of the original container serves as a carrying handle. Short of actually setting it in water so that water could seep into the leaks, all is dry—showers and splashes don't bother it.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

A NUTTY IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

Have you ever had the unfortunate experience of having gum stick to the palate of your upper dentures?

Use two or three applications of peanut butter and rub briskly with tissue. Then after the gum is removed, clean as usual.

It may sound "nutty," but it works!

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a 9-year-old neighbor who had begged me to teach her to make bread. So Saturday we stirred it up. She kneaded it, and I put it in a bowl to rise.

She went home and told her Mom, "Judy showed me how to make bread..." and in a while she's going to show me how to make crust!"

How I laughed. Made me think of 17 years ago when I was nearly as bad!

Judy Rice

ARM YOURSELF

DEAR HELOISE:

There are some sleeveless dresses whose facings cannot be sewed down around the armholes because it would ruin the appearance of the dress. Every time I would put on one of these dresses, the facings would inevitably turn outward and have to be tucked in—which is a difficult thing to do on the back of the armhole once you have the dress on.

One day in exasperation I turned the dress inside out and used a spray starch on the wrong side of the facing, then pressed around the armholes with an iron. Works great! The facings stay firmly in place, held fast by the spray starch.

Now I do this little ritual every time before I iron a dress—hence no more tucking in.

Dee Dee

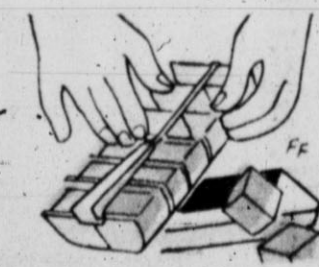

OH, FUDGE!

DEAR HELOISE:

Ever use an ice cube tray for holding fudge?

I line a tray with wax paper, pour in the fudge and insert the divider.

When the fudge has set, I turn the tray upside down and remove the wax paper.

Each square of fudge can be easily pushed out of the divider, with each piece uniform.

Frances Nicholson

The best thing about this hint is that those of you who put nuts in your fudge will find the idea perfect! Nuts are usually so hard to cut through. With this method, the pieces are already divided.

Heloise

NEED A TRANSFER

DEAR HELOISE:

When potting plants, the formula will sometimes call for 1/4 dirt, 1/4 peat moss, etc.

Well, I have found that a three-pound coffee can is perfect for this job. It's divided into four even layers which you can use for measuring (by the layer) before emptying into a larger container to mix.

Orange Aide

ARRANGE two tables about a foot or so apart. On one table, place a small orange and cover it with a fruit jar. Now, invite a friend to move the orange, without touching it, to the adjacent table. One further rule — the mouth of the jar must face downward at all times. That is to say, scooping the orange is not permitted. How is it done?

Answer: Grasping the jar firmly, move the jar to the side of the orange. As it spins, the jar causes the orange to spin. It is found in a circle. The jar firmly, move the jar to the side of the orange. As it spins, the jar causes the orange to spin. It is found in a circle.

Teacher education program being tested at West Texas

An individualized program of teacher education—one based on performance rather than solely academics—is being used experimentally this year in the College of Education at West Texas State University.

The program places the responsibility for learning with the student because there is no scheduled class period, says Dr. Jim L. Kidd, head of the Department of Secondary and Higher Education.

Teacher certification is based on the student's ability to demonstrate certain competencies rather than a series of semester hours, he adds.

This educational revolution is part of the Texas Teacher Center Project (TTCP) being conducted at 11 locations in the state. Dr. Emmitt D. Smith, dean of the College of Education at West Texas State, is the statewide coordinator of the federally funded project.

The individualized learning package, I-Pac as it is called, is the heart of the new program. The student completes each I-Pac at his own rate of speed but he must meet various performance-based objectives.

One of the major differences between the traditional program and the Teacher Center Project is the emphasis on contact with the public schools. There is continual contact throughout the entire program rather than the traditional nine weeks of student teaching.

Eight Amarillo schools, including four elementary and four secondary are participating in the project.

Seminars involving seven to eight students and one professor are held to allow the students a chance to exchange and evaluate experiences.

Students also are required to attend a Human Relations Laboratory. This is a 42-hour program emphasizing group processes, interpersonal relationships and all activities related to the classroom and teaching.

Because the program is directed at minority groups, emphasis is placed on contact with parents of the students and community leaders. The future teacher spends 12 hours in getting acquainted with parents of minority students to better understand the cultural backgrounds of the different ethnic groups.

The ethnic study phase involves visits in the homes and classes, attending community functions, and lectures by ethnic group leaders. This program evolved mainly from the advice and suggestions of parents and leaders of the two ethnic communities in Amarillo, Black and Mexican-American.

Those involved in the Teacher Center Project will be evaluated on performance of the I-Pac proficiency assessments and performance in seminars and small group activities. Performance in meeting stated objectives will be translated into letter grades for transcript purposes.

The program is limited to approximately 60 students. To be eligible, a student must have completed 54 semester hours of classroom instruction and must not have started the professional education sequence.

Kidd says this is an experimental program with the idea in mind that there is a move in Texas to change to a performance-based concept for teacher certification.

Scouts finish work, field trip

Cub Scout Pack 50, sponsored by the noon Lions Club, is having a light bulb sale, beginning this week and continuing through next week.

The boys, some 52 in all, are selling packages of six bulbs for $2 per package. The packages contain two each of 60 watt, 75 watt and 100 watt bulbs.

The boys will conduct a door-to-door sale and will set up various stands around town and in business sections.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for various projects of the pack.

Mrs. Stan Knox read greetings for Thanksgiving sent by Mrs. Donald Spicer, President General of DAR.

Los Ciboleros Chapter will host a Bingo party in December for Veterans in the Amarillo VA Hospital; it was decided in the business session when Mrs. Jess Robinson presided.

Mrs. Ira Ott presented the program on Flag Respect. She said that because of the many places in Hereford which fly the United States flag, everyone should be aware of the rules of etiquette. She gave a number of these rules.

Mrs. Ott went on to say that, "We should all be more conscious of the Flag Code, proud to display our country's flag and each time we see it to pay proper respect to it. As long as our flag flies freely our country stands; so stand a little taller and straighter the next time you pay tribute to our country and our flag."

Others attending were Mmes. H.M. Boozer, Joe Reinauer, V. O. Hennen, J.J. Durham, Ray Carlisle, Alfred Smith, Trent Downing, Sue James and Leroy Williamson.

Hostesses were Mmes. Al Schumacher, Mark Lindeman, Joe Schulte, Sam Mazurek, W. J. Lueb and Frank Perez.

The organization's new president, Mrs. Bill Reinauer, presided over a lengthy business session during which members discussed continuation of the annual food shower for a needy family at Christmastime.

Each member will prepare and fill with candy a Christmas stocking for underprivileged children of the parish and bring the stockings to the December husbands Christmas party.

A committee was appointed to set up trial babysitting services for families attending Sunday 10 a.m. mass.

Date set aside for women of the parish to clean the church is the afternoon of December 2.

Door prize was won by Mrs. Leander Reinart.

Talking devices of future seen

Communication systems of the not-so-distant future, which suggest science fiction but which have already actually been produced, were described to Bay View Study Club Thursday by Mike Patrick, manager here for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

He was guest speaker at the meeting in Mrs. J.R. Allison's home with the subject, Creating Communications Awareness. This continues the year's study series on Creative Awareness, which will be stressed at the next meeting, Dec. 2 in the home of Mrs. Bruce Burney, by an exchange of Christmas gifts created by members.

Showing a film to illustrate, Patrick spoke of computers, the picturephone, cordless phone and other devices he said would be in general use within two years.

"These are not just theories in men's minds," he added. "We already know they can be made."

In addition to the speaker, guests were Mrs. W.K. Golden of Belton, introduced by her daughter, Mrs. Jack Wilcox, and Mrs. Wilber H. Griffin of Houston, guest of Mrs. Keith Simmer.

Other members at the meeting were Mmes. R.W. Eades, Howard Gault, Tom Sawyer, H. L. Benefield, W.S. Kerr, Homer Powell, Colby Conkright, Ansel McDowell, Herman Ford, R.B. Miller, St. G. Darling, Justin McBride and W.J. Gilliland.

Thanksgiving service set

The Hereford Ministerial Association will host its annual community Thanksgiving service at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

Father Boniface Reidmann, host pastor, will give the call to worship and Dr. W.A. Appling, minister of First United Methodist Church will read the first Thanksgiving proclamation issued by William Bradford, governor of Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1623.

Father John Keisling, associate pastor of St. Anthony's, will read the scripture and the pastoral prayer in Spanish and English will be read by Antonio Vala Jr. of San Pablo Methodist Church.

The Rev. Sam Ogan of the Frio Baptist Church will take the offering and benediction will be by the Rev. C.W. Allen of St. Johns Baptist Church.

The Rev. Eugene Brink, pastor of First Christian Church, will preach the sermon.

A glue called lignin binds wood fibers together and is impervious to water and extreme heat or cold.

Former friends gather

A holiday warm-up, to which two former Hereford women invited classmates and some newcomers for a renewal of friendships, was a Saturday morning event with Mrs. Jerry Nichols and Mrs. Tommy Higgins as hostesses.

Formerly Randy Hopson and Denise King respectively, the hostesses entertained in the home of Mrs. Nichols' parents, the E.D. Hopsons of 201 Ranger. Both young matrons are now residents of Amarillo.

Mrs. Hopson and her younger daughter, M'Lynn, assisted in receiving the guests and serving coffee.

Decorative theme of the warm-up was fall oriented, based on holiday activities just beginning. Casual talk was the entertainment as friends of former years no-so-long-age enjoyed being together again.

4-H club plans for Yule party

Merry Maidens 4-H Club met Tuesday to make plans for the county 4-H Christmas party. A committee consisting of Sharlene Powell, chairman, Stephanie Paetzold, Smelda Barrera, Norma Gonzales and Paula Terry, was organized.

Mrs. J.G. Gandy showed the group how to make candles and helped them make a candle for themselves.

Visitors were Debbie Feagly and Jane Hoffman.

Food-fiber week is here

By Mrs. Argen Draper
Home Demonstration Agent

THIS WEEK Texas has celebrated Food and Fiber Week. The production in the state is beyond belief.

Texas Agriculture consists of 188,000 farm and ranchers which contain 140 million acres. To this 282,000 farm workers applied 500 million man-hours of labor.

To operate the agricultural plant, Texas farmers and ranchers spent: $517 million for feed and seed, $387 million for machinery and other capital items, $332 million for repairs, petroleum, etc.

$294 million for livestock, $250 million for hired labor, $127 million for interest on farm mortgage debt, $115 million for fertilizer and lime.

$119 million for real estate taxes, $460 million for interest on operating loans, and a wide variety of other operating inputs.

THINK COTTON! It's very much in the fashion picture, says Becky Dunlap. Extension clothing specialist at Texas A.M. University. Fashions from cotton gingham, velvet, and brushed denims, satens and seersuckers are a must in any wardrobe.

Texas Food and Fiber Week is a good time to remember that Texas leads the nation in total cotton production.

According to the specialists, cotton's natural characteristics are unique among the array of synthetic fibers on the market.

"INTERESTING and individual textured effects can be achieved by special finishing and fabric construction techniques," Miss Dunlap adds. Fabrics made from cotton offer a wide selection of weights and textures—from sheer voiles to heavyweight corduroys and brocades.

The fiber possesses a special affinity for dyes, enabling a tremendous color range. Cotton is also receptive to many chemical finishes which impart ease-of-care properties.

A NEW DURABLE press process has recently been developed and will be launched in the near future, the specialist reports. In the new process, constructed garments are subjected to a 20 minute treatment which impregnates all fibers, including thread, linings, pockets and zippers.

Since cotton fibers retain good abrasion resistance after processing, this technique is expected to add an impressive boost to 100 percent cotton apparel.

"Comfort is another major plus for cotton," Miss Dunlap reminds. Cotton has the ability to "breathe," transmitting moisture away from the body. This cools the body and reduces the sense of clamminess.

Being a successful deer hunter is knowing where to go to be in the right place when the buck comes by.

CAGE COACH SPEAKS — Barry Arnwine, high school junior varsity basketball coach, spoke to the members of the Noon Kiwanis Club Thursday, in the absence of head varsity coach Ron Mayberry. In addition to defining the program for the basketball season which officially began Friday evening with Hereford's playing Borger High School, Arnwine listed each player, his size, position, and abilities.

Holidays given at West Texas

West Texas State University will observe the traditional Thanksgiving holiday starting at noon Wednesday.

Classes will be dismissed at that time until 8 a.m. Monday and all residence halls will be closed, reopening at 1 p.m. Sunday.

The university business offices will close at noon Wednesday and will reopen at 8 a.m. Monday.

Frank M. Blackburn, university librarian, said the library will close at 1 p.m. Wednesday and will open again for student use at 2 p.m. Sunday. It will remain open that day until 10 p.m. for students who need to do research.

Reserve books and current periodicals may be checked out at noon Wednesday for over-holiday use, he said.

Blackburn advised students to check out books early this week if they need to study before the 2 p.m. reopening of the library next Sunday.

The university's fall semester ends Dec. 17. Registration for the spring semester begins Jan. 13, with freshman orientation and counseling on Jan. 11-12.

Small talk

BY SUE COLEMAN
Women's Editor

OUR INDIAN summer weather has turned out to be sort of halfbreed this month, but isn't it glorious between rains and freezes?

Some of us appreciate the rains, too, but I'm not speaking for farmers who are still trying to get crops out. Just for lawn waterers who are spared for a while from dragging the hose around the yard.

Fall is my choice of seasons in any part of Texas that I've seen and it would be nice to have enough time to travel all over the state while the weather is at its best. Last weekend I got down around Ft. Worth and Denton to visit kin, and that wooded country is so pretty I almost forgot how sickeningly hot it can be in summer.

LOIS GILLILAND is down there this weekend visiting her son Bill and his wife at Denton, where he has a job while he goes to school at North Texas State University.

EVEN THOUGH she was sitting in her car at a stop sign, well out of the wind Friday, Mabelle Childers wrinkled her nose in a disgusted look at the dust and dead leaves whipping down the street at noon Friday. But she smiled in greeting as I passed, with my back (the car's back, that is) to the wind.

ROBERTA AND Ted Royal are more than happy these days; their son, Capt. Gary Royal, is back from Vietnam after about a year of military duty as an army helicopter pilot, and with his wife is visiting here. He is on leave until Dec. 14, then will be stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo.

Mrs. Gary Royal has lived in Houston, where she was employed, while he was overseas, and now they will move their furniture from that city to Colorado.

The Hereford couple is pleased that Gary will be a bit nearer home than he has been during his previous army service; he was stationed at Ft. Rucker, Ala., and Ft. Hood, and spent 10 months on Okinawa before he came back for officers' training and then the Vietnam tour.

He made one short visit back to the States during his year in the combat area, and also spent leaves in Australia, and Hawaii so he saw something more of the Pacific zone than just the Vietnam jungles.

Since 1900 about 16 million acres of forestland have been set aside for parks and wilderness areas, reports the American Forest Institute.

Art gallery is program setting

An invitation to L'Allegria Study Club members to remain following the program Thursday afternoon in The Gallery at Carl McCaslin Lumber Company, gave them a chance to work on various arts and crafts projects under supervision of Meredith Wilcox who gave the program.

Mrs. Wilcox demonstrated holiday crafts showing crackle, two-and-three-dimension a l effects and decoupage techniques. Members observed as she showed how to decal a print on canvas and make styrofoam balls to be hung as Christmas ornaments.

Hostess for the day, which excluded a business meeting, was Mrs. Jim Carnahan.

Others present were Mmes. David Gibson, Jerry Weldon, Bobby Veigel, Dale Furr, Danny Martin, Buddy Bloomer, Rudy Metz, John McCrary, Terry Caviness, Bill Warrick, Gerald Payne, Ed Reinauer, Jim Conkright and Dennis Farley.

THEY PASS LAREDO

Starting as a Hunter family reunion with annual gatherings, the event widened to include other ex-residents of Jumbo because, one of the Hunters explains, "more than half the people out here are related in one way or another to the Hunters, and we may as well have the others too!"

LAREDO, Tex. (AP)—This border city has registered its best summer-tourist season yet, the American Automobile Association reports.

Miss Velia Urbe, manager of the office, said 209,824 U.S. tourists crossed here en route to the interior of Mexico during the 1971 summer months.

KIWANIAN AWARDED — Howard Birdwell, left, who recently served as chairman of Kiwanis Pancake Supper, received the "Kiwanian of the Month" award from president Rodney Laubhan at Thursday's noon meeting. An inscribed letter opener is presented each month to a deserving member chosen by the president and past president.

PIANIST TRAVELS FAR

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Voytek Matushevski, a young music student at North Texas State University, claims to be the only pianist in the world who has played for the Nixons, the Brazhnevs and the Kosyguins.

The Polish-born pianist began playing at the age of six and made his debut at 14 while a student at the Warsaw Conservatory.

There are 16.3 million television sets registered in West Germany.

On the telephone committee are Mmes. Gerald Hamby, Don Dawes; Willis Duggan, Doug Crouch and Robert Harris. Mrs. Jake Diel is the teacher.

IMPROPER CONTACT

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Steve Nobles saw a man trying to put a battery in a car.

"Do you have a wrench?" the man asked. In a noble gesture, Nobles got his and helped him finish installing the battery.

The man got in his car and drove away.

Nobles then tried to do the same but couldn't.

His battery was gone.
