Governors query GOP's plan on hill

N.Y. Times News Service

States' Republican leaders assert their independence from Washington, even if that means keeping distance from new leaders in Congress.

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Buoyed by their biggest victory in 25 years, the nation's Republican governors and governors-elect sought Sunday to put some distance between themselves and the Republicans who will control Congress.

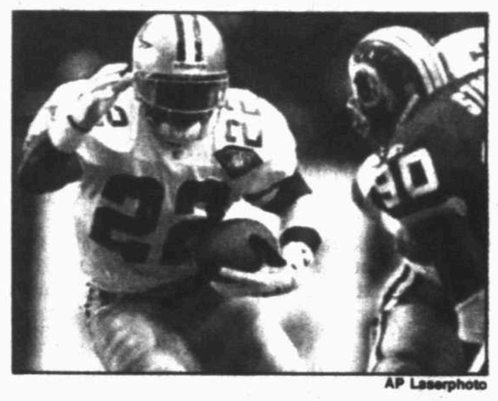

They urged the new ngressional leaders not to be o acted by social issues like school prayer and warned that they did not want the federal budget to be cut at the expense of the states.

Arriving here for the annual conference of the Republican Governors Association, several of the delegates brushed aside two centerpiece issues of Rep. Newt Gingrich, the House speaker-in waiting: his proposals for an overhaul of welfare and for a Constitutional amendment to allow prayer in schools.

They took care not to directly attack Gingrich and some even embraced his call for a balanced-budget amendment, but only on the condition that such an amendment would include language barring the federal government from passing on the increased financial burden to the states.

But at least 20 of the governors and governors-to-be crowding the podium at a news conference Sunday evening asserted their independence from Washington, even if that meant keeping distance from the new Republican leaders.

Concealed gun poll

Texas Gov.-elect George W. Bush said last week that once he takes office in January he will sign into law a bill that would allow qualifying citizens to carry concealed handguns. The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, would allow people 21 or older who have no criminal record or history of mental illness to carry concealed handguns after applying for a license and passing a firearm education and safety course. Would you support such a measure in Texas? Call Cityline's Community Pulse Poll at 560-2400, category 7655. If you think Texans should be allowed to carry concealed handguns, press 1. Writing could become lost art, teachers poll suggests

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

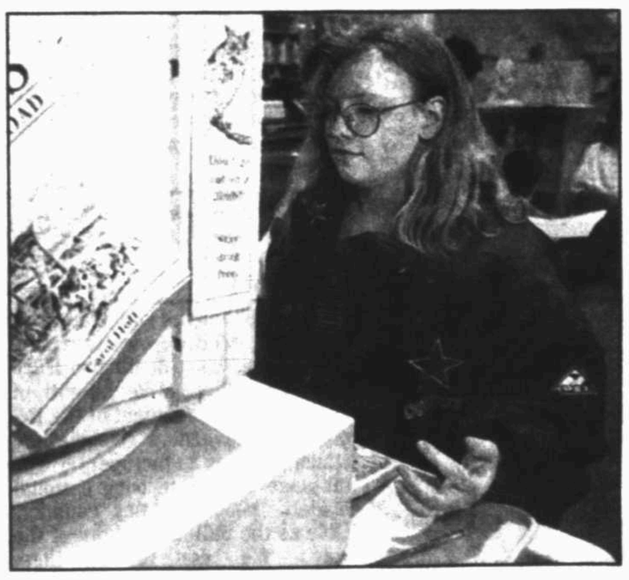

The age of technology is relegating writing to a lost art, according to a recent national survey of 500 teachers.

"In an earlier age, people wrote more letters, sent more postcards and kept journals. Today, parents tell their children to call grandma, leave messages on an answering machine or home voice mail instead of writing notes, and vacations are recorded on video, not in journals," said Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT).

The AFT recently conducted a survey, funded by the Chrysler Corp., that queried educators about writing. About 78 percent of the teachers indicated they want parents and other adults to help children with writing.

A research study included with the survey says Americans have trouble communicating with each other through the written word. "It is less a failure in reading skills than it

Some on earlier leg of fatal flight cited odd noise

Associated Press

CHICAGO — At least three passengers on an earlier leg of USAir Flight 427 complained of strange noises before the jet took off on its final, fatal flight, according to a lawyer representing victims' families.

Philip H. Corboy, a lawyer suing USAir on behalf of some of the families, said reports of complaints were filed Thursday in depositions in federal court.

Chief maintenance foreman was told about report of unusual noise but allowed plane to take off without investigating because the pilot told him the craft was fine, USAir spokesman says.

The three passengers said they had heard an odd noise during the Sept. 8 flight from Charlotte, N.C., to Chicago, he said.

The jet left Chicago for Pittsburgh later that day and crashed a few miles from the Pittsburgh airport, killing all 132 people aboard. Investigators have not determined what caused the crash.

The type of noise the passengers said they heard was not detailed in the depositions, Corboy said, nor was it clear why they thought it was unusual.

USAir's chief maintenance foreman in Chicago, Gerald E. Fox, was told about a report of unusual noise but allowed the plane to take off without investigating because the pilot told him the craft was fine, USAir spokesman Richard Weintraub said Sunday.

Fox is a defendant in the lawsuit filed by Corboy on behalf of some victims' families, along with USAir and Boeing Co.

Weintraub said the jet had two routine pre-flight checks before taking off

Coming up cotton

Dry, hot season sparks an early harvest

COTTON CENTER (AP) — Stout winds were churning up rosy puffs of dust that brought stripping gear to a standstill amid rows of cotton stalks this November morning.

Glenn Kirkland, who already harvested his fields, paused for a cigarette and game of dominoes at Midcot Gin Inc. He and others at the gin chalked up this growing season as dry and expensive.

"Everybody knew going in it was going to be tough," Kirkland said. "Dryland cotton didn't make anything. You had to irrigate to get a yield."

Even so, crop quality and quantity held up better than expected around Cotton Center and other parts of Texas that got little rain, agriculture experts say.

And they predict the nation's top cotton state will yield 5 million bales during a record, 19.45 million-bale year for U.S. growers.

This year's early harvest — 75 percent complete, by some estimates — has been accompanied by a favorable market.

Sun might give way to clouds

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies in the morning with increasing cloudiness in the afternoon. The high should be in the mid-60s and winds will be variable at 5-15 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with a low in the lower 30s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tuesday should be mostly cloudy with a high in the lower 50s.

After an overnight low of 41, Sunday's high reached 64 compared to the record high for that date of 83 set in 1942. The record low was 22 set in 1988.

STATE

A cold front passed through the state Sunday, bringing strong gusty winds to West and North Texas.

A wind advisory was in effect for the western two-thirds of North Texas, as winds swirled at speeds of 20 to 25 mph with gusts of 35 to 45 mph.

In West Texas, winds were at 20 to 30 mph with some gusts in excess of 55 mph. Dust blew over the south plains and low rolling plains, reducing visibility to less than one mile in some areas.

Snow was reported further north. The rest of West Texas had mostly sunny skies. Temperatures ranged from 44 at Amarillo to 73 at Sanderson.

After morning showers in North Texas, skies cleared in the afternoon. Temperatures ranged from 58 degrees at Lufkin to 72 degrees at Waco.

South Texas remained dry and warm, with temperatures in the 70s and 80s in coastal areas.

The forecast for West Texas calls for mostly sunny skies this morning with cloudiness increasing in the afternoon. Highs will range from near 50 in the panhandles to the mid-70s along the Big Bend portions of the Rio Grande. Lows will range from the low 20s to near 40.

NATION

Snow blew through the southern Rockies and the Plains on Sunday, with heavy rain in the central Plains, and still more snow fell in the mountains of the Northwest.

Heavy snow fell in parts of Colorado and northern New Mexico and spread out across the Plains of western Kansas and southwestern Nebraska.

Snow carried by wind gusting to 50 mph in the mountains cut visibility and caused drifting. New Mexico officials closed Interstate 25 for several hours through the 6,600-foot Raton Pass, near the Colorado state line.

Ahead of the snow, a mixture of rain, snow and freezing rain fell over central Kansas and southern Nebraska.

Rain fell elsewhere on the Plains, with heavy downpours from north-central Texas across Oklahoma and eastern Kansas through the Missouri Valley.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Thanksgiving speaker urges spiritual renewal

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil Editor

America must recapture the vision and values of its founding fathers if it is to heal, Peter Marshall a noted Presbyterian minister, historian and lecturer told a crowd of almost 3,000 at a Community Thanksgiving Celebration Sunday night at Chaparral Center.

The featured speaker at the community-wide celebration, sponsored by Golf Course Road Church of Christ and attended by numberous churches, said America must have a spiritual renewal and revival of its Christian traditions and said that the elections of last week were a step in that direction. "The message was crystal-clear that we must have a return to the moral and spiritual values upon which America was founded."

Marshall said is a lie and plain bad history that the Pilgrims came to America for religious freedom. "They had already had religous freedom for 12 years in Holland. They didn't come here for religious freedom, they came here to establish a Christian nation that would be a steppingstone for spreading the gospel throughout the world. The Pilgrims were very clear in that regard."

He said America was the only nation in the world founded by Christians on the principals of Christainity.

"America was meant by God to be a moral example to the rest of the world on how people of many races and differences can live in peace, prosperity and harmony. Any Japanese, Mexican, German or African can come to America, take an oath and instantly become an American. They are no longer Japanese, but American. But it does not work the other way. An American in Japan is not Japanese, he is still American."

Marshall said American was not about race or bloodlines, but about a vision of the founding fathers for a Christian nation where people of all nations and faiths could live together. He said America had deteriorated because it had lost its vision and was no longer the moral example it was meant to be.

"We now have a nation where an unborn baby is killed every 20 seconds. Where 25 percent of the young black males are in prison, and a welfare system that pays unwed teenage girls $25,000 a year to have babies." He said America had become a throwaway nation in which an entire genration had been thrown away.

Marshall, the son of Peter Marshall, the former chaplain of the U.S. Congress, and famed author Catherine Marshall, called America's welfare system degrading and a new form of slavery in which "Masa" had been replaced by Uncle Sam.

He said America was now having a hard time trying to reclaim its vision, because it was laboring against a system that now longer permits the teaching of America's religious heritage.

"It is an outrageous lie that the founding fathers were all deist. Only one was a deist. Of the 300-plus others, they were all devoted Christians, he said. Some of George Washington's speeches were so religious they will no longer print them in text books."

Said Marshall: "Karl Marx once said if you can that if you take away a nation's heritage, it will fall for anything.

"That's true, a nation that doesn't know where it came from, doesn't know where it is going. If a nation doesn't know what it is supposed to be, it's impossible to fix anything."

He called the recent elections a miracle and a first step toward fixing America. He said the door to change had been opened, but the change had not yet been made. He challenged Christians to help make the change.

Mayor Bobby Burns who delivered the opening greeting to the Thanksgiving celebration, said he ran for office because he wanted to help change his city and the nation. "When I was elected to office, I thought it might take a generation to turn the nation around, but after the elections I think it will be much sooner."

Burns said the country now seemed to be focused on God's purpose for the nation, and urged the congregation of Midland church members from all denominations to pray for President Clinton, national and local leaders.

Marshall is scheduled to host a series of seminars at the Golf Course Road Church of Christ, 3500 W. Golf Course Rd., today and Tuesday, 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. There is no admission charge.

WRITING: Survey finds declining abilities

is in many Americans' inability to write coherently," the report said.

It said that the National Assessment of Educational Progresses Writing Report Card indicates that, "many students at each grade level continue to have serious difficulty in producing effective, informative, persuasive or narrative writing.

"The study also documents what many teachers have believed is a growing trend, that parents and students devalue writing, and place more importance on computers and science," said Steve Buck, Lee High School teacher and coach and president of the Midland Federation of Teachers.

Buck said there is a lack of writing role models. "Most young people never see adults write anything other than checks. ... Parents may write on the job, but few write at home," he said.

Leslie Prothro, a third-grade teacher at Greathouse Elementary School who is trained in the New Jersey Writing Project, said she tends to agree that children may not see much writing at home.

"Yet writing and communicating are becoming more important in the business world," she said. "The usage of writing is increasing with fax machines and computer modems."

The teacher said, at least once a year, a parent education program on writing is taught.

Ms. Prothro said teachers try to encourage children to participate in writing activities with parents, "even if it's just making out a grocery list, a 'to do' list or writing in a family album.' Children need to see writing at home."

The results of the survey of educators — from all grade levels — was summed up in four conclusions:

- Teachers believe there is more room for improvement in students' writing ability than in reading, math, science or computers.
- Secondary-school teachers place the highest priority on writing, but feel they have the least amount of time to teach students to write well.
- Teachers believe that good writing and good reading are interwoven, so that writing is best developed in conjunction with good reading habits.
- Parents are not playing the role they should in the development of their children's writing abilities.

However, a majority of the teachers surveyed ranked reading the single most important skill for young people to learn, followed by math with writing coming in third.

Most of the teachers rated their students' writing ability as inadequate.

"The study shows parents need to encourage children to write more frequently," Buck said. "Writing seems to many students to be solely an academic exercise rather than an essential skill. That has to change."

COWBOYS: Dallas fans gather around radio

(From 1A)

Midland's FOX network affiliate, KPEJ-TV, was off the air Sunday after lightning struck the station's 1,100-foot tower located 13 miles north of the Midland Airport Saturday night. A series of violent thunderstorms with wind gusts up to 58 mph left damage in their wake across the city of Midland.

While Cowboys fans wonder about the condition of quarterback Troy Aikman, the status of KPEJ for Thursday's Thanksgiving Day game against Green Bay also remains uncertain.

"We hope to be on the air by (Monday) morning at 6 a.m.," said James Beeghley, KPEJ general manager, "(But) there's always a chance that we could be off on Thursday, but that chance is very, very slim."

According to Beeghley, sections of the tower's transmission line were damaged during the storm and those sections are being replaced in order to get the station back on the air.

Beeghley said calls began pouring into the station Sunday morning.

"Once we saw that we weren't going to be on, we had four people go to the station to answer calls, once they would hang up with one, another call would be right there."

Beeghley said the station taped the feed from FOX and was waiting for approval from the network to run the game tape-delayed later this week.

"I have approval from my company and now we will contact FOX (this) morning to get approval from them. We are looking at running the game during prime time so that Cowboys fans can see that great win.

"This is just one of the things that we have no control over. Once we went off the air we had tower engineers at the site even while the storm was still in the area. We have had engineers working around the clock since the storm. We are having engineers flown in tonight (Sunday) to relieve the engineers that have been there."

The Thanksgiving Day game is traditionally one of the highest rated football games during the NFL season. Last year's Dallas-Miami game had a 70 rating in the Midland area, according to Beeghley.

the International Textile Center at Texas Tech University, said farmers are receiving about 60 cents per pound. Last year, prices varied from 50 cents to 55 cents, Smith said.

"Not only are they making more cotton, but they're getting a better price for it," said Carl Anderson, an economist and cotton specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station. "There's a strong demand and potential for increasing exports."

The 25 counties around Lubbock — a region known as the world's largest cotton patch — look poised to yield from 2.7 million to 2.9 million bales, down from 3.45 million bales on the same acreage last year.

Kater Hake, cotton specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in Lubbock, said irrigated cotton fared much better than fields that weren't watered during the summer's long dry spell.

But that irrigation came at a price: Hake quoted estimates that dryland cotton cost $172 an acre to produce, vs. $270 an acre for irrigated.

The dryland farmer with poor yields and typical chemical expenses will lose an estimated $48 an acre, Hake said.

"This is definitely the 'Land of Next Year,'" he said.

Experts say high temperatures made cotton plants mature earlier, enabling the earliest harvest the farmers at Midcot Gin could remember.

Agriculture runs the economy 40 miles north of Lubbock in Cotton Center — a town of two gins, two grain elevators, three churches, the Last Chance Cafe and the stadium where teen-age Elks play 6-man football.

Some farmers around Hale County are helping strip others' fields to make ends meet, Kirkland said.

"Everyone around here is struggling," he said. "You've got to hope for it to average out (year to year), and usually it does."

Texas' share of the U.S. cotton market, meanwhile, has eroded.

Analysts said states in the Southeast — Alabama, Georgia, Virginia and the Carolinas, in particular — upped their production after gaining control over the pesky boll weevil.

Anderson said Texas accounted for 33 percent of the U.S. cotton production in 1990. That percentage has slipped to about 25 percent, he said.

But the Lone Star State still maintains a solid dominance when it comes to the crop that generated some $5 billion in Texas agribusiness activity last year.

QUERY: GOP governors assert independence

(From 1A)

"We're balancing budgets, we're reforming welfare, we're fixing health care, we're dealing with crime," said Gov. Mike Leavitt of Utah, the new president of the Republican Governors Association, which now has 30 members. "Our message will be to congressional leaders, people of this country: Give us the ball and get out of the way. We can solve these problems."

Gov. Pete Wilson of California said flatly: "We believe the states that we have been privileged to govern are just that. They are sovereign, proud states of the United States. They are not colonies of the federal government."

Echoing his colleagues who argued that Republicans should emphasize economic stability rather than social issues like school prayer, Gov. John Engler of Michigan said, "If we don't deal with the economic issues, we'll need more than prayer to solve our problems."

Several of the governors who flanked him, as well as partisans in the audience, broke out in applause.

The news conference Sunday, the first public lineup of so many newly elected governors, vividly demonstrated their political importance. Though the transition of power in the House and Senate has drawn much attention since the election, not since 1968 have Republicans controlled so many governors' offices.

Republicans became governors in eight of the nation's nine most populous states, states that have the most electoral votes and will be crucial in the 1996 presidential elections. The only big state that rebuffed the Republicans was Florida, where Gov. Lawton Chiles withstood a challenge from Jeb Bush.

Many of the governors who were re-elected earlier this month won in landslides, particularly in the industrial states along the Great Lakes. For that reason, the opinions of these governors, and their proposals for cutting taxes, add to their weight in the party.

In one manifestation of the importance, the meeting Sunday was swarming with lobbyists who were angling to meet the chief executives-to-be and their aides.

Despite their talk of independence, several governors insisted that they could work well with the new Republican leaders in Congress. In an initial effort at keeping smooth relations, Gov. Tommy G. Thompson of Wisconsin and some colleagues met earlier Sunday in Washington with Dole and other senators.

"They're eager to cooperate with us," Thompson said. "And that is such a change of philosophy and common courtesy that we've been asking for for so long. And it is really refreshing to go to Washington and have somebody come in and say, you know, they'll listen to us."

But the comments of the governors Sunday amounted to a preview of the possible intraparty fissures among members of Congress and the governors. Many of the Republican governors said the midterm elections were a referendum on their successes at cutting taxes and bringing other innovations to states, not simply a reflection of approval of Gingrich and his "Contract With America," a list of 10 tax cutting and budget-balancing proposals.

Even Thompson, who has initiated several welfare plans in his state, made plain that he had little tolerance for Gingrich's proposal.

NOISE: Some heard sounds

for Pittsburgh, but no special maintenance.

The USAir mechanic in charge of the plane's departure said in one of the depositions that he was never told of the complaints, the Tribune-Review of Greensburg, Pa., reported Sunday. If he had been, he said, the Boeing 737 would not have left Chicago.

In Washington, telephone messages left with National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Mike Benson Sunday were not immediately returned.

After the depositions were filed, U.S. District Judge Charles R. Norgle Sr. denied USAir's request to move three lawsuits resulting from the crash to federal court from Chicago's Cook County Circuit Court.

The Pittsburgh crash and one in Charlotte, N.C., in July that killed 37 of the 57 people aboard, have raised questions among some travelers about USAir's safety. USAir has had seven accidents, six of them deadly, in the past five years.

Also Sunday, USAir announced it has hired a retired commander of U.S. Air Forces in Europe to become the airline's new vice president of corporate safety.

Robert C. Oaks, 58, left his military post earlier this year, ending a 35-year career. He also is a former chief of the Air Force's training organization, the Air Training Command.

Oaks will start his position Dec. 1. He will oversee all flying and ground safety activities at USAir and report directly to Chairman Seth Schofield.

The airline also said it has asked PRC Aviation, a Tucson, Ariz.-based consulting firm, to conduct an independent audit of safety practices and policies.

DEATHS

Manuela Nunez

Services for Manuela Nunez of Abilene and formerly of Midland will be at 11 a.m. today at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church. Burial will be in Resthaven North Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Nunez died Friday at an Abilene hospital.

She was born June 17, 1921, in Midland, where she was raised and attended school. She married Jose Nunez in 1940 in Midland. She moved to Abilene in 1986. She was a member of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

Survivors include her husband, Jose F. Nunez of Abilene; a son, Arturo Nunez of Midland; three daughters, Linda Ortiz of Midland, Josephine Arnold of DeFuniak Springs, Fla., and Marcelina Salas of San Antonio; a brother, Andy Arredondo of Abilene; and 12 grandchildren.

Connie Posey

Services for Connie Posey are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Posey died Sunday at a local hospital.

Edith Bizzell

Services for Edith Bizzell will be at 1 p.m. today at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. G.A. Magee officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Bizzell died Saturday in San Antonio.

She was born Aug. 29, 1918, in Clarksville, where she attended school. She moved to Martin County in 1934. She married Bennie D. Bizzell in 1936 in Midland. In the 1950s, she was the first woman school bus driver in Midland County. She later was a cosmetology instructor for Childress Beauty School for several years. She was a member of Bellview Baptist Church, a sponsor for the 4-H Club for 10 years and was a leader for Girls Scout Troop No. 13.

Survivors include a son, Billy Ray Bizzell of Austin; two daughters, Jerry Fay Gibson of San Antonio and Vada June Taylor of Fort Worth; four grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers are John Gibson, Ronald Hardaway, Mel McMurray, Lonnie E. Gibson, Denny E. Pointer and Marvin Martin.

Bush's secretary of state-elect is fast mover in Texas political circles

By Josh Lemieux
Associated Press

BROWNSVILLE, Texas — A bearded 28-year-old lawyer named Tony Garza knocked on door after door in 1988, urging Cameron County voters to do the previously unimaginable — elect a Republican county judge.

When Garza prevailed, the eldest son of then-President-elect George Bush flew in to attend his swearing-in.

Now, Texas Gov.-elect George W. Bush has picked the affable and ambitious Cameron County judge as secretary of state and a top adviser in the incoming GOP administration.

Political observers in Garza's traditionally Democratic hometown may have been surprised that he became the first Republican county judge in modern history or that he was re-elected in 1990 with nearly 60 percent of the vote.

But few are surprised now that he's on the verge of becoming a player in statewide politics.

"He studies the problems and he doesn't shoot right off the top," said former state Rep. Henry Sanchez, a Brownsville Democrat. "He's got all of the qualities to be governor, really. He could be one of the finest governors the state has ever had."

Garza brought a noncombative approach to the highly personalized politics of the state's southernmost county. He's credited with improving the county's bond rating, pushing two international bridge projects, and guiding the passage of the first countywide bond issue more than a decade.

And despite his staunch conservatism, Garza gets high marks from Valley Interfaith, a group dedicated to improving conditions and voter participation in "colonias" — poor border communities lacking such basics as pavement, sewerage and clean water.

"He works with us wonderfully," said Rosa Bodden, an executive committee member of the non-partisan group. "We hope great things for him."

Garza, interviewed last week at his office, stressed his current focus of serving Bush and becoming the state's top elections officer. His nomination must be confirmed by the Democratic-controlled state Senate.

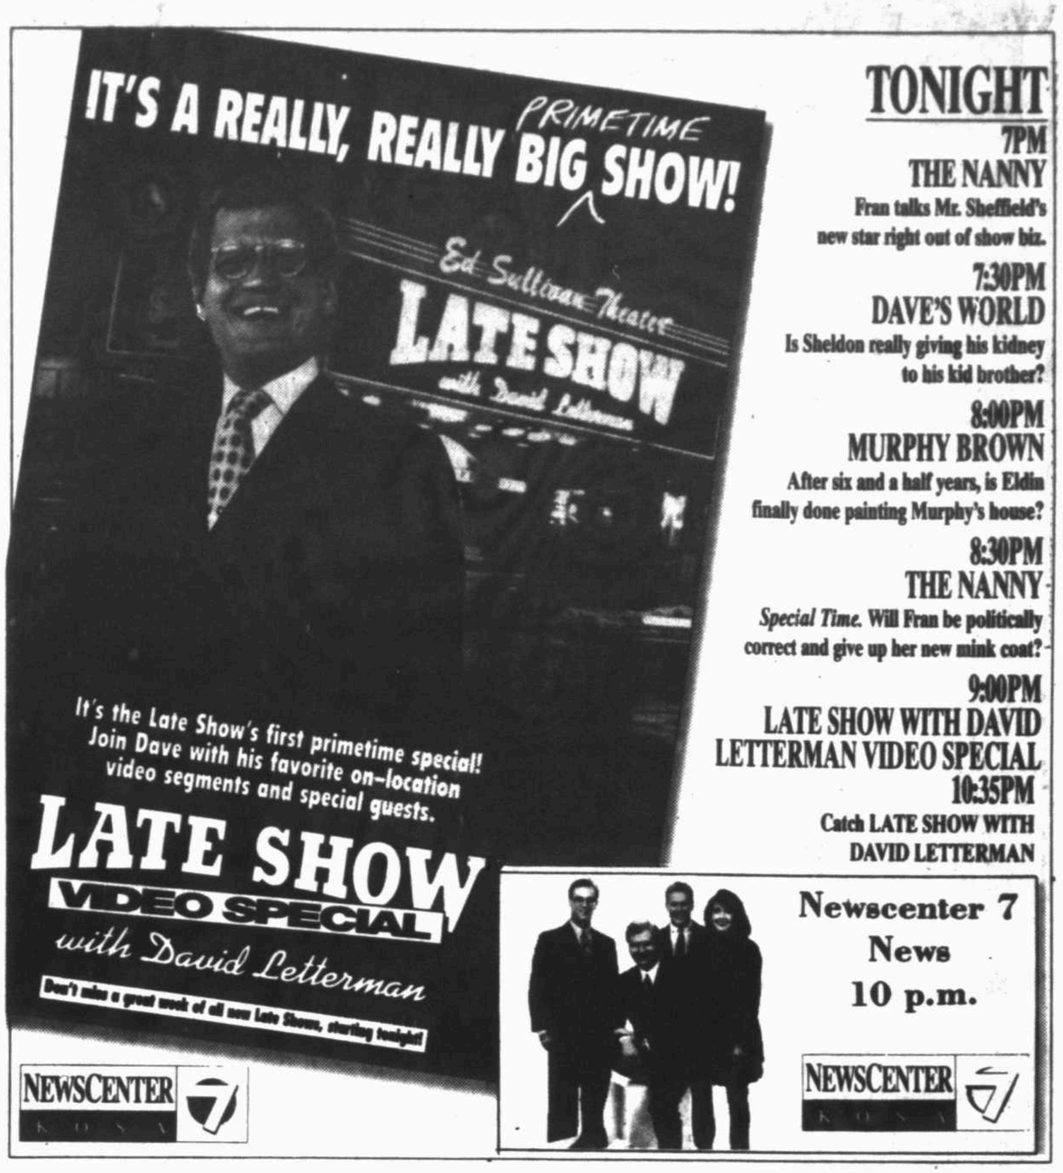

In his often professorial way, Garza said politicians must take a high road to increase voter participation:

"If we don't establish that nexus between those who are making the decisions and those who are affected by them, then what is going to drive people into the process? You can have all the access and registration you want, but if people don't feel that the process is relevant to them, they won't vote.

"I think Bush's commitment to talking about issues was a first step."

Garza admits being a "policy wonk."

He's a jargon-reciting detail man, a numbers cruncher, but also a personable speaker with a self-depreciating sense of humor. ("I wore a beard until I started seeing some gray in it.")

■ Drugs fight best together, study shows

LONDON — A combination of a new AIDS drug, 3TC, and AZT helps fight the virus better than AZT alone, according to two studies presented at an AIDS meeting Sunday in Glasgow.

The studies, involving 352 patients, traced blood chemicals in volunteers. Investigators did not compare symptoms or death rates, which provide more definitive proof.

"These results that we have today show that people (taking 3TC with AZT) should be living longer," said Dr. Francesco Bellini, president and CEO of Biochem Pharma, the Montreal-based biotech company that designed the drug.

AZT, also known Zidovudine, is the standard drug used to attempt to control AIDS.

Bellini added there is no evidence, yet, that 3TC prolongs life.

■ Angolans sign treaty, war continues

LUSAKA, Zambia — Repeating a ritual that has twice failed to end their 19-year-old civil war, Angola's government and rightist rebels signed a peace treaty Sunday as fighting raged on in their devastated homeland.

Onlookers including African heads of state cheered as the treaty was signed by Angolan Foreign Minister Venancio de Moura and UNITA Gen. Eugenio Manuvakola in a hot, crowded conference center the Zambian capital. Dos Santos watched.

Even as they were declaring peace, their war continued. Fighting was reported in central and northern Angola, and aid workers said the rebel-held northern city of Uige was besieged.

The timing of Sunday's signing also made it far from certain the two sides will stick to the treaty. They have in previous years declared a cease-fire in November, when the rainy season makes troop movements and air raids impossible, only to resume fighting when the weather improved.

■ North Korea announces program freeze

TOKYO — North Korea has struck its most conciliatory and cooperative note in years, announcing publicly for the first time that it had frozen its nuclear reactor program, as promised in an agreement with the United States.

It also vowed to carry out its pledge to dismantle the remaining elements in its suspected nuclear weapons sites, and said over the weekend that it had permitted American experts for the first time to visit its nuclear complex at Yongbyon, just north of the capital.

The visit was part of what the North called "useful and constructive" talks on safely storing and then disposing of fuel rods that the United States fears North Korea might turn into weapons-grade material.

Given the long trail of broken agreements in North Korea's relations with the United States, the strikingly upbeat remarks over the last few days did not assure compliance. But coming at a time when the North has taken other steps to reassure Washington and the United Nations, the comments were regarded as promising.

■ Fighting resumes in Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan — Despite a U.N. plea for a truce, rival Islamic factions traded rocket and mortar fire along the front lines Sunday, killing at least six people and wounding 28.

The United Nations sought a one-week cease-fire, beginning Saturday, to allow health workers time to vaccinate children and their mothers. After relative calm on Saturday, the fighting resumed Sunday.

Rockets crashed into a government-controlled residential district in southwestern Kabul, while at least 11 mortar shells fell in a market area held by opposition forces, also in the southwest.

At Karte Se hospital, 20 patients were being treated.

Dr. Shahi Shetik, medical director of Karte Se, said the hospital had been admitting about 15 to 20 civilians a day during the recent fighting in southwestern Kabul.

Serbs renew attacks on government targets

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Renegade Muslim forces and Serbs were attacking government soldiers Sunday in northwest Bosnia, apparently trying to capture the region before the international community could react.

Senior U.N. officials met in Zagreb, Croatia, to consider using NATO warplanes to attack Serb forces, but didn't say whether they would use the expanded powers granted Saturday by the U.N. Security Council.

Government troops in Bihac, in Bosnia's northwestern corner, were under attack by rebel Muslim forces and Serb armor, according to the United Nations and both sides in the fighting. Serb artillery in neighboring Croatia was firing across the border at the government forces.

Serbs captured the waterworks for Bihac, a city of 48,000 people, giving them control of the water supply, said U.N. sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The assaults reflected the determination of the Serbs and of Muslims loyal to warlord Fikret Abdic to cripple the government army, which defeated Abdic in August and broke through Serb lines in a stunning advance last month.

Serbs have recaptured most of their lost land, and appear to be hurrying to finish the job. Abdic is trying to recapture the northern town of Velika Kladusa, his headquarters until his defeat.

A U.N. official in Zagreb reported heavy fighting around Velika Kladusa, where government forces are surrounded. The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Abdic forces appeared to have the upper hand.

The official HINA news agency of Croatia reported that the "whole border between Bosnia and Croatia is on fire ... under joint attack by the Abdic forces and Bosnian Serb forces."

It said they were supported by artillery and tanks firing from Serb-held Croatian territory.

Croatian President Franjo Tudjman, who recently has become an ally of Bosnia's Muslim-led government, invited the United Nations on Friday to bomb rebel Serbs in his country to stop the cross-border attacks.

In Batnoga, Croatia, just across the border from Velika Kladusa, refugees who fled with Abdic in August were waiting on Saturday to return.

Listening to explosions from the fighting, one refugee, Minka Hadzic, said, "Each shell means our return home is closer."

Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic accused the Serbs of using tanks in an assault that captured several villages near Bihac.

Troubles persist between PLO, Islamic groups

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Trying to ease tensions, PLO leader Yasser Arafat released 31 Islamic militants from jail Sunday, and Muslim fundamentalist political leaders vowed to redirect their anger at Israeli soldiers and settlers.

But one armed group of Muslim radicals threatened civil war unless the Palestine Liberation Organization chief expelled top Palestinian police officials and punished others.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin responded to the threats by sending extra troops to the Gaza Strip to protect Jewish settlements and to the West Bank to prevent riots.

The PLO and the Islamic fundamentalist groups of Hamas and Islamic Jihad blame each other for Friday's bloodshed, when Palestinian police opened fire on rioting worshipers, killing 13 people and wounding more than 150.

Only isolated outbreaks of violence occurred Sunday in Gaza, where a shaky truce between the PLO and the militants held.

But Izzedine al-Qassam, Hamas' military wing, said it would attack officials of Arafat's government and start a civil war unless its conditions were met.

In a leaflet distributed in Gaza, the group demanded Arafat fire two senior police officials and Justice Minister Freih Abu Medein. It demanded the release of jailed Islamic activists and said those responsible for Friday's bloodshed must be tried and executed.

Arafat suggested Sunday night that Israel had a role in Friday's violence. He told a delegation from Jerusalem that some people had been shot by plastic and soft-nosed bullets, which he implied are used by Israeli soldiers.

Nabil Shaath, the PLO's top negotiator, said the rioting was the outgrowth of anger over Rabin's banning of Palestinians from jobs in Israel and the failure of international donors to make good on aid pledges.

Rescue team finds German climbers' bodies

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A rescue team found the bodies of 11 members of a German expedition huddled together on a Himalayan mountain Sunday.

The trekkers were lying on a snowfield high on Mount Pisang "like a big ball," said Gottfried Huber, who landed on the range by helicopter. The hikers apparently died Nov. 13, perhaps after falling from a ridge, he said.

The rescue team landed near the bodies and walked up from the spot. They saw the bodies of the climbers along with their backpacks and pieces of colored rope, Huber said.

The ill-fated expedition to the 20,100-foot peak consisted of nine Germans, a Swiss and their Nepalese mountain guide.

Huber, a professional guide from Fridolfing, said the hikers might have slipped on a ridge and fallen about 1,650 feet while descending.

"I think they must have been killed immediately," he said.

■ Carbon monoxide fumes kill 3, injure 2

LOS ANGELES — A garaged van being warmed up for a trip to church Sunday filled a house with exhaust fumes, killing three family members and critically injuring two others.

Firefighters found the victims near dawn, when they responded to an alarm set off by the garage's sprinkler system, which was triggered by the heat buildup, Fire Department spokesman Brian Humphrey said.

Armando Berumen was preparing to take his family to church when he started the van about 5:30 a.m. in the home's attached garage, said Lt. Sergio Robleto.

"He hadn't started the van for a week and he wanted to make sure it would run when he was ready to go to church," Robleto said.

Berumen, 44, and sons Armando Jr., 12, and Noel, 9, were killed by the carbon monoxide fumes. Irma Berumen, 35, and daughter Carolina, 16, were on life-support at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center.

Overnight temperatures fell into low 40s and upper 30s in the Los Angeles area. Police Lt. Georges Gascon believed the house was closed up tight against the cold. The door between the garage and the house was open.

The youngest boy was found in bed. The 12-year-old was found in an upstairs hallway. The woman and daughter were on an upstairs landing, and the man was downstairs.

Robleto said it appeared that the father was trying to get his family out of the house but was overcome by fumes.

■ Bentsen likely to move up, analysts say

WASHINGTON — As most Democrats prepare to lose stature when Republicans take control of Congress next year, Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen could become a more valuable player, say analysts and interest groups.

His moderate political views, congressional experience and good standing with many Republicans could boost his influence, they note.

"Secretary Bentsen was a major force on Capitol Hill for a long time. He has well-developed working relationships on both sides of Capitol Hill," said Carol Cox Wait, president of the bipartisan Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget. "Having acquired that stature and relationship is of tremendous value today."

But the question is how long does Bentsen, now 73, want to stay in the Cabinet? Unlike former Defense Secretary Les Aspin or outgoing Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy, there is no suggestion he would be forced to leave.

But practically since he was picked by President Clinton as a key member of the administration's economic team, it was widely assumed he would not serve the full four-year term.

Speculation about his departure was fueled by reports that his advice on crucial issues was not being heeded. And lately, Bentsen may have helped the rumors by toning down his exuberance when asked how he likes the job.

■ Divers recover tons of Spanish treasure

NEW ORLEANS — Three tons of coins and an 18th century gold spoon designed to clear wax from ears are among the salvaged deep-sea treasures that go on display Monday along a Mississippi River wharf.

The treasures are just part of the early haul from El Cazador, a brig-of-war that sank in a storm in the Gulf of Mexico 210 years ago, laden with nearly 19 tons of newly minted Spanish silver.

Salvage workers made dozens of 300-foot dives recently as the gulf's hurricane season ended and its nasty winter approached, videotaping the wreckage and dredging up as much as possible to thwart modern-day pirates.

The wreckage found more than a year ago still holds tons upon tons of stacked coins sent from Vera Cruz in January 1784 to pay New Orleans' Spanish government and troops. When it went down, El Cazador was carrying 400,000 silver pesos and 50,000 pesos in smaller change — 18¾ tons of silver.

From the display on the wharf, the silver and other finds, some restored to their original luster, will go to a storage vault until a hearing before U.S. District Judge Adrian Duplantier, who will determine the owner.

Among the artifacts are a couple chunks of stained glass; a spoon with a raised, flowerlike design on the handle; rosary beads and a small scale with four weights shaped rather like chess pawns.

There's also a little set of nested measuring cups recently cleaned at the Alabama lab where two more tons of silver were sent. There are about a dozen cups, from thimble-sized to 2 inches high, each with a number stamped into the bottom. A hinged and latched top kept the set together.

Democrats to be Republicans' conscience

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Outnumbered in Congress for the first time in four decades, Democrats are likely to lend significant support to Republican efforts to cut spending and taxes, reduce government and reform welfare.

But they will spend the next two years attempting to hold Republicans accountable for keeping the deficit in check, shielding student loans and other selected programs from the ax and making sure the wealthy aren't the prime beneficiaries of tax cuts.

They'll also try to hold the line on any attempts to enact a conservative social agenda.

"I'll vote for some spending cuts, sure," as well as work with Republicans on welfare, said Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., echoing the views of many Democrats.

At the same time, he said, "I think we (Democrats) have to stand for something. I think we have to have a social conscience. I think we have to be concerned about the working people."

"The Republican contract isn't a complete contract," Rep. Benjamin Cardin, head of a Democratic transition committee, said of the GOP campaign manifesto, "Contract With America." "We don't know how they're going to pay for it."

Republicans won a mandate for change, but "not a mandate for extremism," added Sen. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut, running an uphill race for Democratic leader.

House Democratic Whip David Bonior of Michigan said one of the principal responsibilities next year will be to sustain any vetoes President Clinton casts. With 203 likely seats in the House — more than Republicans ever had during 40 years in the minority — and 47 in the Senate, a united Democratic party could easily prevail in these struggles.

"The American people have to know where the contrasts are between Republicans and Democrats," Bonior said. "They will be the champions of corporate welfare. We will be the champions of working folks."

In numerous interviews, Democrats said their response won't take shape until leadership races are settled, Clinton formulates his own legislative program and they see the fine print on GOP legislation.

"I want to govern and put politics behind us but we are not going to be pushed into making decisions that are not in the best interests of this country," said Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., running against Dodd for Senate minority leader.

Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, favored to retain his post as House Democratic leader, led three days of private meetings last week to begin formulating a message the minority can use.

Americans prepare homes for rough winter weather

By Randolph E. Schmid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — From miners digging road salt under Lake Erie to homeowners buying record numbers of snow-blowers, Americans are gearing up for what they fear could be another tough winter.

Sales of warm outerwear started early, said Catharine Hartnett of L.L. Bean, the Freeport, Maine, catalogue dealer in outdoor gear.

"Our sense is that outerwear items, which are always popular at this time of year, are even more so," she said, adding that parkas and fleece pullovers have been especially strong sellers.

Snowblowers are also a hot item.

Peter Dobbins, vice president of Crandall-Hicks, a wholesale distributor in Westboro, Mass., said sales are up 400 percent over last year at this time.

Sears, Roebuck and Co., based in Chicago, also reports an early rush on snowblowers. Already this year sales have topped the entire 1992 season.

"A lot of people are saying, 'Hey I'm not going to shovel like that again this year,'" said Jet Jackson, co-owner of Jackson's Outdoor Sales in Schenectady, N.Y.

"Snow shovels and blowers are going very well, that's happening across the country. Customers are buying early and often," agreed Bob Butler of Hechinger's hardware stores, based in Landover, Md.

People remember last year's nightmare and they want to be prepared, said Butler. The chain of hardware stores ranging from New York to Virginia has sold 270 times the volume of snow-melting chemicals as at this time a year ago, and six times as many ice scrapers, Butler added.

By early November, a Hechinger's store in the Philadelphia area had already sold two tractor-trailer loads of ice-melt chemicals.

In Cleveland, miners are digging road salt from beneath Lake Erie, boosting production to help make up for the loss of a mine in New York that flooded last summer.

Road salt became scarce last winter when a series of storms hit in rapid succession, but salt distributors report most states have full stockpiles.

The National Weather Service's official winter forecast won't be out until the end of the month. But in the meantime, there are acorns and almanacs, woolly bear caterpillars and onion skins to be consulted.

"Onion skins, very thin,
"Mild winter coming in.
"Onion skins very tough,
"Winter's coming cold and rough," warns a traditional rhyme.

The "Hagerstown Town and Country Almanack" of Hagerstown, Md., which correctly predicted last winter's late-season storm, is calling for a hefty 51 inches of snow this winter, with February the snowiest month.

The famous "Old Farmer's Almanac," based in New Hampshire, expects an extremely variable winter, with record snow possible in the upper Great Plains, Great Lakes, New York and New England.

Many people predict a hard winter by the volume of acorns produced — more nuts, more snow.

Arkansas town cancels dance ban in taverns

TRUMANN, Ark. (AP) — You can drink and shake a leg in Trumann now, but you better keep your fists to yourself.

The City Council lifted a 21-year-old ban on dancing at three taverns where alcohol is served. However, Alderman Donnie Taylor warned that the bars could lose their dancing privileges if patrons throw punches instead of kicking up their heels.

Jerry's Tavern owner Jerry Pillow, who proposed lifting the ban, acknowledged that dancing and drinking years ago created problems, including fights. That's all in the past.

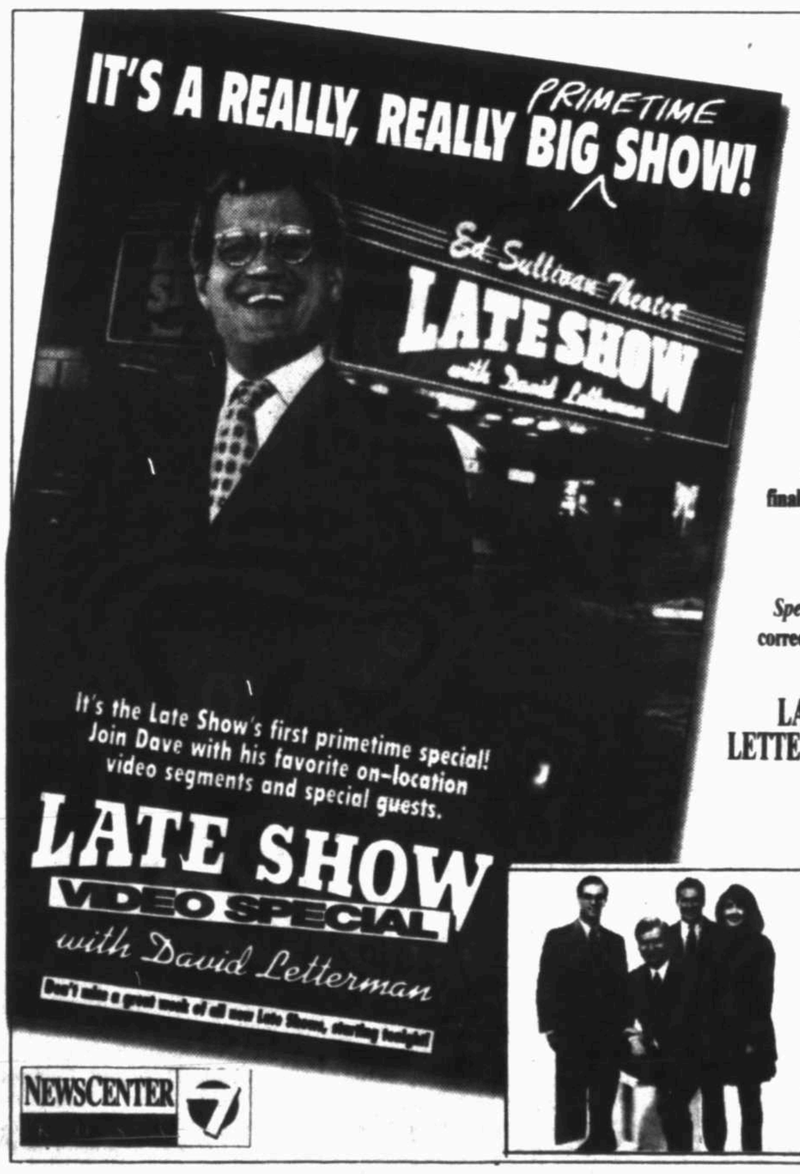

"Dancing should not be against the law, but the police should be allowed to stop it if there is fighting," Pillow said.

The council lifted the ban Nov. 14 in a 9-1 vote. The town has only four taverns; the owner of one wasn't interested in allowing dancing.

Mayor David Gossett said a lot has changed since 1973, when the council passed the ban. Nearby Jonesboro, home of Arkansas State University, was dry and out-of-towners came 10 miles to drink in Trumann, a northeastern Arkansas town of about 6,400.

"We had kind of a bad reputation back then," Gossett said.

Today, Jonesboro has plenty of private clubs that serve alcohol.

Firm's fine action to help youngsters

Kudos and grateful appreciation from the community are certainly in line for a Midland heating and air conditioning firm that responded in the affirmative when approached about installing a new central heating and air conditioning unit in a home for foster children.

Doris Richardson, director of The Freewill Foster Home, had been looking for a way to replace the outdated heating system in the facility on South Adams Street which provides 24 hour a day care for six children. She approached Tim Claire of Claire's Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Inc. who agreed to put in a new unit, plus running ductwork throughout the foster home.

The gesture is a tremendous one, noted Ms. Richardson, and only one of many instances when Claire has offered to help out community service agencies in Midland. It was reminiscent of a similar act about a year ago by The Bosworth Company. This gesture will help ensure that foster children at the facility will be comfortably warm this winter and cool in hotter weather.

It's not even the Christmas season yet, but then we don't think that the spirit of brotherly love and compassion for others was ever intended to be only a once a year happening. Rather, it was an example to guide our actions throughout the year.

Obviously, Claire's gesture is one that numerous Midland businesses would do well to emulate. We salute this outstanding action that benefits the youngsters at The Freewill Foster Home.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered for publication.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations. The briefer the letter, the better its chance of publication.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis. Letters which are difficult to reduce in length will be returned to the writer to be edited before being re-submitted.
- We do not publish 'open' letters, copies of letters sent to others or multiple signatures.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

Today in History

Today is Monday, Nov. 21, the 325th day of 1994. There are 40 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 21, 1877, inventor Thomas A. Edison announced the invention of his phonograph, which he dubbed a "talking machine."

On this date:

In 1789, North Carolina became the 12th state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1922, Rebecca L. Felton of Georgia was sworn in as the first woman to serve as a member of the U.S. Senate.

Washington is town of favors, votes

WASHINGTON — The late Robert F. Kennedy's desk became an unlikely chit last week in Rep. Charlie Rose's, D-N.C., uphill campaign to unseat Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., in the House Minority Leader's race.

Anderson

The North Carolina Democrat is milking his clout as outgoing chairman of the House Administration Committee to collect on all the favors he's doled out to colleagues over the years. One such favor was helping RFK's son, Rep. Joe Kennedy, D-Mass., to retrieve from mothballs the desk that his father had used as Attorney General. (The desk turned out to be too big for Joe Kennedy's current office, but he hopes to use it next year if seniority secures him a larger suite.)

Rose was hoping to secure Kennedy's vote in the Nov. 30 leadership election, but knowledgeable sources say Kennedy called Rose last week to say he was already committed to Gephardt. Kennedy told Rose he regretted making the commitment before knowing Rose was in the race, but now it was too late to renege.

"It deeply hurts me that I can't help you with this because you've been so good to me," Kennedy told Rose, according to a source.

While acknowledging that "this is a town of favors," a Kennedy spokeswoman told us that "a desk isn't going to secure votes." She added the desk acquisition "happened about a year ago when nobody thought (outgoing House Speaker) Tom Foley and Dick Gephardt would be in the straits they are in today."

While Rose's horsetrading didn't get Kennedy's vote, it shows how he's fighting a battle few believe he can win with a hustling door-to-door campaign. Rose is cobbling together a surprising coalition of dispossessed Democrats. He has reached beyond his Southern base to secure private commitments from such disparate sources as prominent liberal Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., and Rep. Kweisi Mfume, D-Md., outgoing chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus. A Schroeder spokeswoman told us the congresswoman is still uncommitted and "hasn't shown her cards around here."

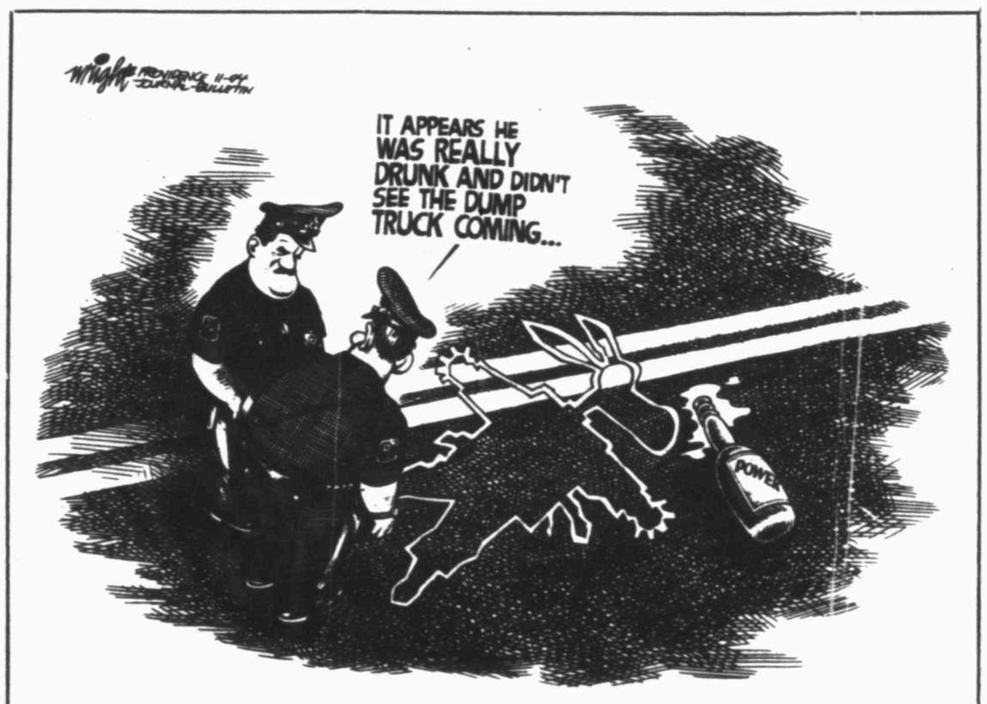

Knowledgeable sources say that several conservative Democrats and members of the black caucus have been holding private, informal talks. Both groups feel left out of the current leadership loop and are allying to support Rose for minority leader and Mfume for Democratic caucus chairman. One source close to the discussions said of the anti-Gephardt sentiment: "It's that old Disraeli saying, 'The enemy of my enemy is my friend.'"

Sources in the Rose camp claim to have more than 85 commitments from colleagues, including the support of over 30 members of the black caucus, for a race that will take 105 votes to win. Rose strategists think they're sneaking up on Gephardt the same way voters shocked Democrats on Election Day.

"Just like Nov. 8 was a surprise, I think Nov. 30 might well be a surprise," one source close to Rose told us. "Members are very, very mad that we've lost the House and they realize that Gephardt and Foley tied us and themselves too closely to the White House."

Sources in the Gephardt camp, however, say that Rose will not get more than 50 votes and are banking on the fact that Rose's perk-dispensing will cut against him. One Gephardt ally called Rose the "concierge" of the House who is "tied to the status quo." As chairman of the administration committee, Rose had authority over the scandal-plagued House bank, post office and restaurant.

Hershey bar brings back great memories

I'm not a big fan of the Industrial Revolution. Don't care for machines all that much. Don't know much about most of them either. But the Hershey chocolate bar justifies the Industrial Revolution.

Reese

Now there is a creation worth creating. I've been eating those since the 1940s. Hardship during World War II for a barefoot kid was not being able to buy a Hershey chocolate bar or, as we used to say, a Hershey bar.

It is the perfect formula for milk chocolate. Swiss chocolates are tasty. So are German brands, but no chocolate has ever crossed my lips, no matter how expensive or in what fancy wrapping it came, that matches the purely delicious flavor of a Hershey bar. Even the simple but elegant wrapping is a great example of high industrial design art.

You can talk about your Fords and Firestones and Bells, but what did they produce besides cars, tires and that second most annoying of inventions, the telephone (the most annoying is the leaf blower)? No, sir, you can have that stuff. The real American hero of the Industrial Revolution is Milton Snavely Hershey.

The great Mr. Hershey was born on Sept. 13, 1857, in Dauphin County, Pa., and in the same place in 1903, after inventing the Hershey bar, he built what would become the largest chocolate manufacturing plant in the world. As you might guess, any man who could invent such a delight would have to be a nice guy. In 1909, the great Mr. Hershey established a school for orphan boys, which he endowed with his great fortune.

Today the place is called Hershey, Pa., and in addition to the factory and the school, there is also an amusement park. I drove a great deal out of my way to visit that park and to pay honor to the Hershey bar. It's a lovely place to visit.

It's kind of mystical, in a way, that my favorite candy bar was invented in one of my favorite states, which is also the state where my first American ancestor settled after fleeing God knows who or what in Wales. If I ever won an Olympic gold medal, I'd tell the TV announcer, "I'm going to Hershey, Pennsylvania!"

But not only is the Hershey bar a great treat and made in a great place, it also played a significant role in my early education. During the war, my cousin Elmo from Chattanooga was in the Army and stationed near McDuffie County. One Sunday when he came over for dinner, he produced a Hershey bar.

Now, this was some time around 1944, and I hadn't been able to get a Hershey bar, because of wartime rationing, since the North African invasion. I wasn't likely to see another until the war was over. My 7-year-old eyes got wide, and my 7-year-old heart yearned intensely to eat that Hershey bar.

"Eat everything on your plate and you can have it," Elmo said. I agreed, but after awhile I decided I just couldn't stomach the last dab of squash. The plate was about 98 percent clean, so I asked for the Hershey bar.

Elmo eyed the squash and said, "You didn't eat your squash." I began with explanation and proceeded to argument, then pleading, then begging. To tell you the truth, I could not believe Elmo would deny me that Hershey bar over a little dab of squash. It seemed to me that was too cruel, and he was not a cruel man.

Elmo, however, taught me a lesson. I had not fulfilled my end of the deal. Finally, I offered to eat the squash. "Too late," Elmo said, and to my horror, he slowly unwrapped the Hershey bar and ate it himself, smacking his lips and remarking to everyone how delicious it was.

I never forgot that lesson. Even now when I bite into a Hershey bar, I often think of Elmo. God rest his soul, I hope there are Hershey bars in heaven.

Capital punishment is right for Texans

At last Texans favor capital punishment, and it is doing the right thing.

I am quoting the Bible — Deuteronomy Chapter XXII.

18: "If a man have a stubborn and rebellious son, which will not obey the voice of his father, or his mother and that when they have chastened him will not harken unto them;"

19: "Then shall his father and his mother lay hold on him and bring him out unto the elders of the city, and unto the gate of his place;"

20: And they shall say unto the elders of his city, this our son is stubborn and rebellious, he will not obey our voice he is a glutton and a drunkard."

21: "And all the men of his city shall stone him with stones, that he die. So shalt those put evil away from among you; and all Israel shall hear and fear."

22: "And if a man have committed a sin worthy of death, and he be to be put to death and thou hang him on a tree."

Enough said — not lethal injection. Show the people as the Bible says.

Volunteer coaches should be heroes

To the board of directors of Tower Little League: It has come to my attention that in a recent meeting the board has found, or has created a bylaw, that states only parents of children in the league are allowed to coach. By enforcing this ridiculous rule, several coaches and assistant coaches will be out of jobs. Being the mother of three sons who have played for Tower for the past four years, this has outraged me to no end!

First of all, if it weren't for the kindness and compassion of volunteers such as Marty and Bruce my son probably would not have had a coach three years ago. These "volunteers" taught my otherwise shy son what it really means to be a part of a team. Both spent countless hours creating not only a winning spirit, but a winning team. Yes, my sons have a father who could coach, but since he barely attends their games I figure it to be near impossible to get him to coach.

You would think that with the increase of crime and gangs in Midland among the youth, volunteers would be hailed as heroes for spending time, effort, and knowledge with these kids, showing them that there is more to life than crime, and encouraging them to pursue their dreams. Instead, volunteers for Tower are being punished for not biologically having a child, or not having a child that plays in the league.

Please reconsider the selfish and dangerous error you have made. Midland needs and wants volunteers.

Lee places tenth in state band contest

After receiving their 25th consecutive Division I in Region and placing first in Area, on Nov. 7 the Robert E. Lee High School Rebel Band performed in Austin for the 10th consecutive time in the U.I.L. State Marching Competition. Placing 10th in a field of the best 18 marching bands from across Texas was a wonderful accomplishment for our students. The performance was (by percentages) the second best placement by Lee at State, by perhaps the best Rebel Band ever to compete.

As talented as these young musicians are and as hard as they and Director Randy Storie worked to attain their goal, their performances would not have been possible without the help and support of so many others. We gratefully acknowledge McClatchy Brothers Trucking for furnishing a driver, tractor and insurance to pull the van loaned by Thompson Van Lines, Hertz Penske Truck Rental, Pinkie's and Rainbow Water for contributing ice and water respectively during the entire marching season, the support staff, all the volunteer work by numerous parents and friends (75-plus to get the show on the field), and last but not least, our principal, Mr. Cooper for his tremendous support of this organization.

All of Midland should be proud of this group of fine, upstanding young people; they are a class act and represented you well.

The State in brief

■ Grand jury investigates horse program

DALLAS — A federal grand jury is investigating claims that wild horses are being sold to slaughter with the help of officials responsible for protecting them.

The grand jury in the Texas border city of Del Rio is looking into reports that officials with the Bureau of Land Management there are allowing people to acquire horses for $125 through the agency's Adopt-A-Horse program to sell to slaughterhouses for up to $1,000.

Current and former bureau employees told The Dallas Morning News in its Sunday editions that agency officials interfered with efforts to uncover wrongdoing in the program.

Some current and former BLM officials said there has been no criminal wrongdoing. They call the investigation a misguided crusade by the bureau's law enforcement officials.

■ Yale disease lab to move to Galveston

GALVESTON, Texas — A Yale University laboratory that researches deadly and exotic diseases transmitted by mosquitoes and ticks is moving to the University of Texas Medical Branch-Galveston.

Dr. Robert Tesch, a senior researcher at the Arbovirus Research Unit, and Dr. Robert Shope, a director, will move the unit from New Haven, Conn., to Galveston this spring, according to a report published Saturday.

The move will help put UTMB on the international map of institutions recognized for scientific research, said Dr. David Walker, the center's director.

■ Exxon unions demand safe conditions

HOUSTON — Four workers' unions at the giant Exxon refinery in Baytown say maintenance cutbacks over the past year have led to an increased risk of deadly fires, explosions and chemical releases.

The unions, which represent all 1,850 refinery employees, made the complaints in an Oct. 6 letter to refinery manager Sherri Stuewer and in interviews with the Houston Chronicle last week.

Union leaders claim that inspection and maintenance of pumps and other important equipment have slipped noticeably.

"Each undone project, patch job and purposely neglected maintenance project puts another nail in the coffin of certainty which brings us closer to a major incident," the unions said in their letter.

Exxon spokesman Bruce Tackett denied the company is cutting corners on safety.

"Our employee safety performance in 1994 is the best we've ever had at the refinery," Tackett told the newspaper. "We're interested in safety."

But Tim Urban, president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers Local 1051, said there has never been a more forceful safety complaint lodged at the plant.

"I think we've all been here long enough to know that we live in a kind of dangerous situation, but this is up to another level," said Urban, a 17-year employee at the refinery. "This is something that's starting to alarm us."

Three manuever for majority whip position

By Anick Jesdanun
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — With House Republicans in charge, the task of making sure GOP initiatives get passed largely will rest upon the winner of a three-way race for majority whip.

The outcome may depend less on who's popular and more on what colleagues feel the job entails. The contenders have three different visions of what is needed to ensure that Republicans keep their majority in 1996.

Rep. Robert Walker of Pennsylvania is a self-proclaimed insider and parliamentary expert. Rep. Tom DeLay of Texas said he'd be willing to extend an olive branch to Democrats. Rep. Bill McCollum of Florida touts his ability to sell the GOP agenda to the public at large.

"It's a pretty tight race," said Walker, who has been chief deputy whip since 1989.

The GOP whip, traditionally the chief vote counter, also has the responsibility for convincing wavering lawmakers to back party initiatives and for developing strategies to overcome opposition from Democrats.

"The whip is the implementor," said DeLay, a congressman from Sugar Land who is deputy whip and GOP conference secretary. "He takes projects and carries them out. He puts it all together and gets things done."

The winner of the race will be the third ranking House Republican behind Speaker-to-be Newt Gingrich of Georgia and incoming Majority Leader Dick Armey of Texas. A secret ballot is scheduled during a Dec. 5 GOP organizational meeting.

With at least 229 Republicans in the House next year, a candidate needs a minimum of 115 votes to win on the first ballot. A second ballot between the top two finishers would be held if no one gets a majority the first try.

Texas colleges' teaching costs dramatically increase

HOUSTON (AP) — Teaching Texas college students the basics of reading, writing and arithmetic is costing nearly four times more than it did six years ago, according to a report by state education officials.

The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board report says the cost of remedial college classes in the three R's exceeded $127 million for the 1994-95 school year. That's up from $35 million in 1988-89.

"This shows taxpayers are having to pay twice to teach kids basic skills," board chairwoman Nancy Atlas told the Houston Chronicle for Sunday editions. "And underfunded colleges are being stretched even thinner."

The skyrocketing remedial course work isn't unique to Texas. Experts say spending has increased dramatically nationwide since the 1980s, though no national statistics are available.

In Texas, the increase is driven largely by the Legislature's 1988 imposition of the Texas Academic Skills Program, a mandatory placement test that identifies incoming college students in need of remedial help. Roughly a third of college freshmen fail the test annually.

Educating students who fall short is shared by large state universities, but about 85 percent of all remedial instruction is taken on by community colleges. The smaller schools now devote about 20 percent of their academic instruction to the cause, up from 5 percent in 1987.

"This isn't a development we've cheered," said Stan Calvert, executive director of the Texas Association of Community Colleges. "Community colleges would like nothing better than to get out of remedial education and teach college-level work."

Remedial courses are considered "developmental" and don't count toward a degree. They can range from math classes on fractions and percentages to basic reading courses and instruction in grammar and punctuation.

Nearly $60 million, or 46.2 percent of the total spent on remedial courses in 1994-95, was spent teaching basic math skills. Writing classes took 32.9 percent of the total, while reading courses took 20.9 percent.

The Coordinating Board report is being touted by some as proof that public schools are failing to do the job.

"Those numbers are a great indication of public schools' failed curriculum," said George Scott, president of the Tax Research Association of Houston. "They show we're spending money the wrong way."

Some public school leaders acknowledge the problem but say progress is being made by phasing out less rigorous courses and implementing college-preparatory classes.

Ed Hines, professor of higher education at Illinois State University, said the issue is more complicated, noting that a larger, more diverse segment of society is now seeking higher education.

Legislators could decide book battle, senator says

AUSTIN (AP) — The fight over school textbook selection could move to the legislative arena next year, when one senator says he'll work to get the often controversial decisions handed back to local school boards.

For the past 10 years, the elected State Board of Education has made the selections.

But state Sen. Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, said he will introduce a bill that would give local boards the freedom to use state funds to buy whatever books they choose.

"I think people need to understand that the decision already is in the hands of local districts," said Ratliff, chairman of the Senate Education Committee. "They have the option of buying whatever they want; they just can't use state money to do that."

In past years, issues such as inclusion of the biblical theory of creation in science books and human sexuality in health books have stirred the most controversy at education board textbook meetings.

Regardless, board member Will Davis of Austin says the selection of books should remain with the state because that allows the board to specify academic content and to correct factual errors in textbooks.

"I think it would be a big mistake to push it to the local level," Davis said.

Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno personally favors no state involvement in selection of textbooks. But the state education board wants to maintain the current state-controlled system with minor changes, and Meno is forwarding those recommendations to the Legislature.

Under Ratliff's proposal, the board would review textbooks and publish a list of those that meet curriculum standards.

Critics say that system could hurt the quality of textbooks and cause textbook prices to soar.

Former Haitian leader leads life of luxury in Panama with other exiles

By Alina Guerrero
Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Former Haitian military chief Raoul Cedras spends his days cloistered inside a high-rise in this capital's most exclusive neighborhood, writing his memoirs in an apartment overlooking Panama Bay.

One month after fleeing his homeland under U.S. military escort, the man who helped overthrow Haiti's first democratically elected president is settling into comfortable, anonymous exile.

There is nothing outside the 17-story building named "The Emperor" to indicate it is the new home of the former military coup leader, his wife and their three children.

There are no police or armed security guards in the lobby. The Panamanian government provided Cedras and his family with security only during their first two weeks in the country, as a courtesy.

Now, there are only a pair of unarmed, casually dressed watchmen in the lobby of the cream-colored building where two- and three-bedroom apartments rent for more than $1,000 a month. Their main job these days seems to be keeping out journalists.

"It makes the people here uncomfortable," one building employee said of reporters who arrive trying to talk to the general, who has refused all interview requests since arriving in Panama on Oct. 13.

None of the residents of the apartment building seems to have talked to their new neighbors. One woman admitted to having seen Cedras' wife, Yannick, returning from a shopping trip, carrying "lots of packages."

Other leaders who found refuge in Panama have included Gen. Juan Peron of Argentina and Shah Mohammed Rezah Pahlavi of Iran.

There are many places where Mrs. Cedras can shop in the exclusive Paitilla neighborhood — luxury department stories, boutiques, supermarkets, the capital's best pharmacies.

As part of the agreement to get Cedras to leave Haiti, the United States agreed to lease three properties he left behind and pay him $5,000 a month. The U.S. also agreed to free up his frozen bank accounts in the United States.

Cedras and Haiti's other top military leaders agreed to step down after the United States sent 20,000 troops to his homeland to make way for the return of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, whom they toppled in a coup three years ago.

The agreement forestalled a U.S. invasion of the Caribbean nation and Aristide returned safely to Haiti on Oct. 15.

Panamanian officials claim to know nothing about what the Cedras family is up to. He is "free to live in Panama, to work, to move around and the Panamanian government doesn't have any obligation to follow his steps," acting Foreign Minister Omar Jaen said this week.

Political exiles are nothing new in Panama, but none has been as secretive as Cedras.

Former Guatemalan President Jorge Serrano Elias now sells real estate in Panama, which granted him political asylum last year when he fled his country following an unsuccessful move to rule that Central American nation by decree.

He is often seen around town, shopping at the local supermarket, taking his wife out to dinner at fancy restaurants.

Other leaders who found refuge in Panama have included Gen. Juan Peron of Argentina and Shah Mohammed Rezah Pahlavi of Iran. Toppled Latin American presidents and rebel leaders alike got asylum here during the 1970s.

Since arriving in Panama, Cedras has appeared in public only twice: when he arrived at the airport on a chartered jet and soon afterward when he went to the Immigration Department to get his asylum application. Both times, he wore a dark suit and tie and avoided even eye contact with reporters.

Trade leader gives rebutal to GOP critics

GENEVA (AP) — Striking back at Republican critics, world trade chief Peter Sutherland said the United States got everything it wanted from a new international trade accord.

Objections by lawmakers who say the planned World Trade Organization will hurt U.S. sovereignty are "misplaced," said Sutherland, head of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The Republican upset in midterm elections has raised the possibility that Congress may not ratify the GATT accord next month. That would effectively kill the 125-nation deal, completed after eight years of tough negotiations.

"The United States wanted a deal on trade in services, substantial reform of farm trade ... an investment pact and, above all, a tougher, faster dispute settlement system," Sutherland said in comments released in Geneva.

"Nobody could reasonably claim the U.S. negotiating objectives were not met," he said. "In some respects, the United States got far more than it could have imagined possible eight years ago."

The so-called Uruguay Round accord provides for sweeping cuts in customs duties on imports, reductions in farm subsidies, freer trade in services like banking, and updated rules in other areas.

The accord is supposed to take effect Jan. 1, subject to ratification by the United States, the European Union and Japan.

A recent GATT report estimated that the deal would boost U.S. income by $120 billion per year within the next decade.

"Ironically there appear to be some in the United States who believe we have been so successful in meeting U.S. objectives that we are threatening U.S. sovereignty," Sutherland said.

He said the World Trade Organization, which would implement the accord, would not have the power to overturn national laws or force governments to accept arbitration.

Russian blames army's problems on budget, media

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's embattled defense minister went on the offensive in a speech to parliament Friday, blaming the armed forces' problems on budget cuts and media reports that he said undermine state authority.

But Pavel Grachev dodged a major controversy by refusing to answer questions about the bombing death of a reporter investigating military corruption.

Grachev spoke on the state of the military before the lower house, the Duma, where several influential members want him removed. Afterward, he repeated that he has no intention of resigning.

The minister assailed cuts in government funding and warned they might make it impossible to carry out planned reforms.

"Shrinking military spending threatens to undermine national security," he said. "It does not even cover the armed forces' minimum requirements."

President Boris Yeltsin has ordered Grachev to cut the armed forces from 2 million troops and create an all-volunteer army of 1.5 million. That will still be close to three times the size of the U.S. military, though less than a third the size of the old Soviet army.

The defense minister told lawmakers it will be impossible to overhaul the military given the economic conditions in post-Soviet Russia, and said next year's proposed budget provides for only a third of the army's real needs.

"The collapse of the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact has been a profound trauma which is yet to be overcome," he said.

Reject slips

It's not just authors of the would-be Great American Novel who meet with a barrage of rejections from publishers. Economists, who make a name for themselves by publishing, have their share of turndowns. Two Stanford University doctoral candidates, George Shepherd and Joshua Gans, surveyed leading economists and found they had plenty of rejection letters. One, Stanford Professor William Sharpe, said he was advised to switch dissertation topics more than 30 years ago. So he did, and later published a paper based on his thesis. Apparently the paper "was of some value," Sharpe dryly noted. It helped him win the Nobel Prize in economics in 1990.

Visions of tax breaks dancing in heads

In aftermath of sweeping elections, savers await changes

By Chet Currier
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — The upheaval about to take place in Congress has stirred visions of tax breaks in the minds of countless American savers and investors.

The sweeping Republican victory in the Nov. 8 election came amid promises of a series of tax changes that would be welcomed by many individual and family money managers.

But financial advisers caution against too much celebration before any of these benefits becomes a reality.

While the impetus behind the proposals seems strong, the experts say, many questions remain about what final form they might take and how they can be put into effect without causing unpleasant side effects.

"A middle class income tax cut and a cut in the capital gains tax are virtual certainties," declared Peter Anderson at IDS Advisory Group, a big investment management firm in Minneapolis. "But if there aren't significant spending cuts, the budget deficit could increase."

Other observers are not so sure about what reductions are likely. "Investors focused mainly on the possibility of a tax cut bidding war. We doubt it will come to that," say analysts at Standard & Poor's Corp. in the firm's weekly advisory The Outlook.

"Two years of gridlock seems far more likely."

All in all, observes David Bostian, economist at the investment firm of Herzog Heine Geduld Inc., "there will be an exceptional level of uncertainty in the months ahead.

"Potential inconsistencies exist in the promises made by the Republicans in their 'contract with Amer-

Fed move is puzzling to millions

By John Cunniff
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Few news events are apt to make less sense to millions of Americans than the Federal Reserve's interest-rate increase, a move made ostensibly to restrain the economy from bursting its seams.

"Who's economy?" may be their first question, since they know it isn't theirs. Their economy, they can tell you with the authority of their thin wallets, hasn't generated enough steam to blow a tin whistle.

They've been telling that story to whoever would listen, and you can't blame them if they feel they haven't been heard. In some exit polls more than 50 percent of voters said they thought the country was still in recession.

The official numbers disagree. Industrial production has been rising. Factory utilization is now near 85 percent of capacity. Business inventories have been building. Housing has been fairly strong. Capital equipment too.

In fact, consumer spending has been strong, jobs are being created and the unemployment rate is falling, all of which are reflected in the data that create such worries among members of the Federal Reserve.

But that's the official economy, one markedly different from the household economies of many workers whose plight is described by the Economic Policy Institute, a think tank, in its upcoming, "The State of Working America."

A few snippets are sufficient to illustrate:

■ Although figures to be released are likely to show a rise in median income in 1994, "incomes will still be at least $1,500 below their 1989 level."

■ "The economic downturn saw the typical family experience an income loss of 4.9 percent between 1989 and 1992 despite the recovery that began in mid-1991."

■ "Families headed by someone age 25-34 in 1989 had incomes $1,715 less than their counterparts did 10 years earlier."

■ "There is strong evidence that most families headed by someone born after 1945 will not achieve the same incomes in middle age as did preceding generations."

In short, while many people have improved their financial situation in recent years, many have not. Some workers — professionals and those with skills in demand — have benefitted enormously, but others not at all.

Millions are worse off, having failed to obtain real wage increases for several years while their taxes have risen, or have lost jobs to corporate downsizing and technology and forced to find lesser paying ones.

This is a global economy: Low-skilled jobs are routinely shipped overseas.

This is the age of technology: While output per man-hour rises, it sometimes does so because fewer workers are required.

This is a time of world competition: If workers fail to restrain wage demands their companies fail and their jobs go to lower-wage foreign nations.

This is increasingly a service economy: While those at the upper levels of services (consultants, attorneys, for example) benefit from this, those with minimal skills find their slot in labor-intensive retail outlets.

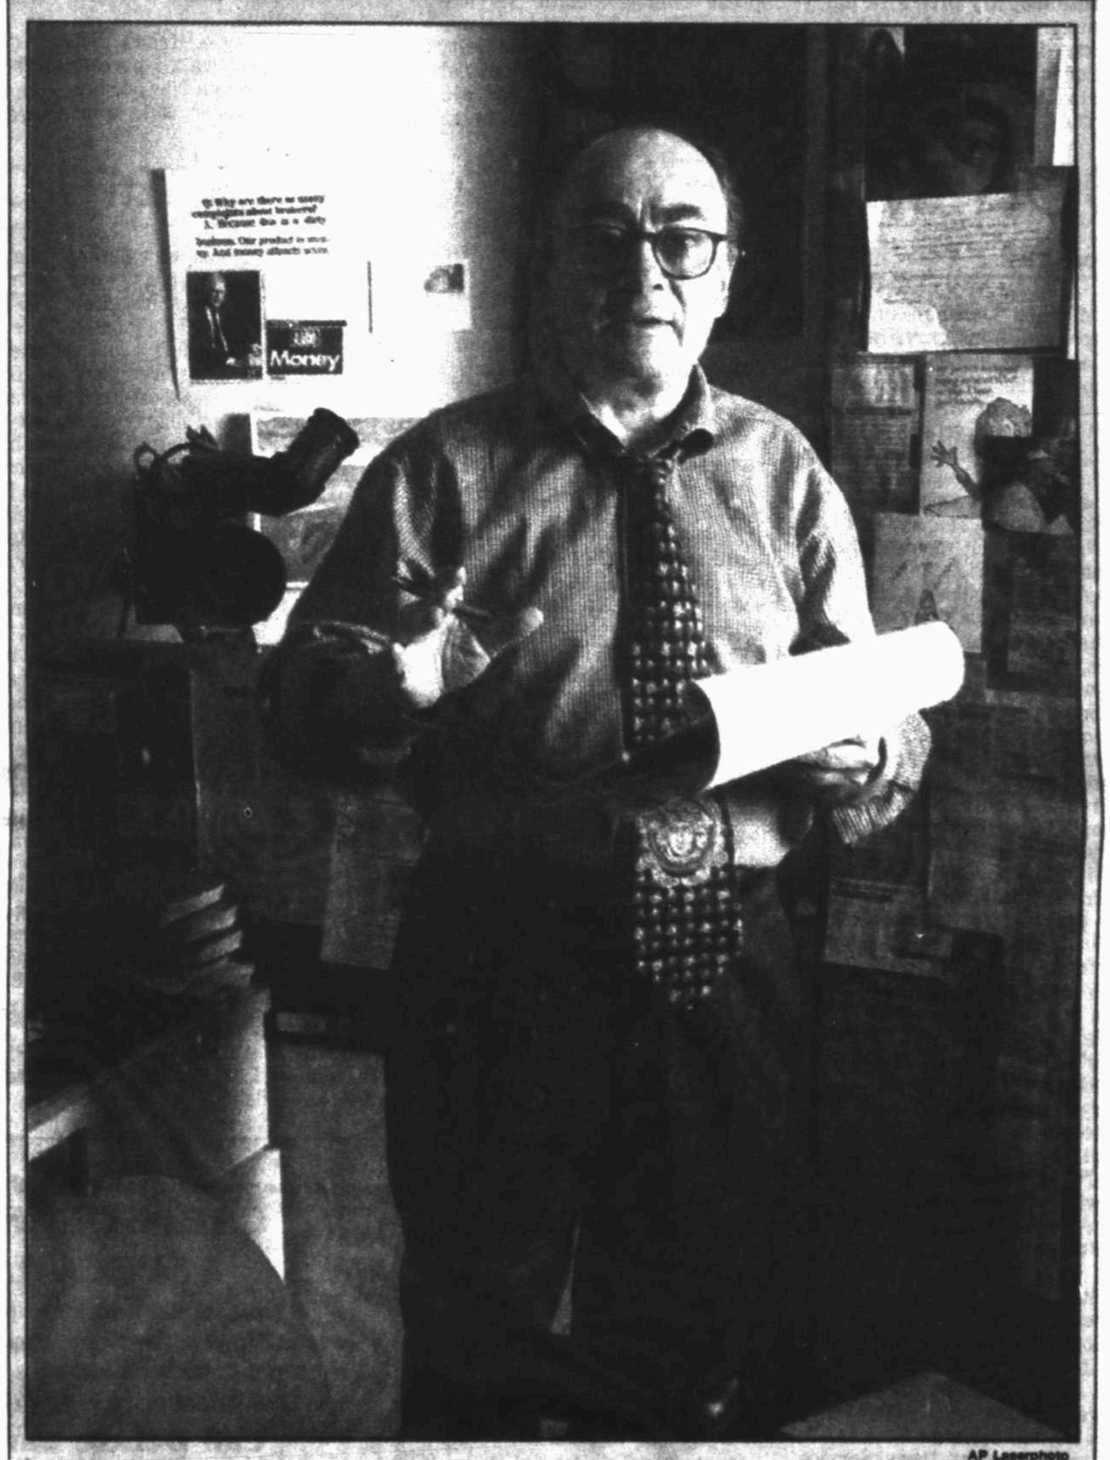

To suggest that there are no other causes would be to ignore more complex and perhaps even more important influences, but these are among the factors that people can easily recognize.

The direct consequences of such factors, known and unknown, is felt if not fully understood. Job insecurity is probably as pronounced as at any time since World War II. And the all-American expectation of progress has dimmed.

The official statistics show consumers remain strong buyers, but maybe the buyers should be questioned.

The Fed has its reasons, legitimate ones for hiking interest rates. But those reasons are very difficult for millions of people to understand.

Rental car insurance

Q: Should I take the liability insurance supplement that car rental companies are now offering for about $7 a day? I don't own a car and don't have any other insurance that covers liability to others when driving a rental car. The credit card I use to pay for car rentals provides insurance to cover damage to the car I'm renting, but I'm more concerned about adequate coverage for liability if I cause an accident. I rent cars six to ten times a year for periods of one or two days to one week for nonbusiness reasons.
— Harvey Blecher, New York N.Y.

A: "I've been asked this question many times," said Stuart Kessler, a lawyer and financial planner in New York. "The $7 a day is cheap when you consider what you might be liable for."

The alternative is to consider an umbrella liability policy that will cover any accident in your home or car up to $1 million. Such coverage might cost $175 a year, Kessler said.

Compare that price with the fees you pay the rental company in the course of one year. If you are renting a car for more than 25 days a year, and paying $7 a day for insurance, the umbrella policy described by Kessler would be less expensive.

Fund criteria

Q: I would like to invest in an asset allocation-style mutual fund, preferably global, that does not invest in any tobacco products. I really want to invest in one and only one fund. My criteria are quite simple: no tobacco to satisfy my absolute minimum ethical concerns and an asset allocation fund, preferably global, to minimize risk and volatility.
— Arline Abdalian, Douglaston, N.Y.

A: There really is not a fund on the market that meets your requirements, according to Eric Becker of Franklin Research and Development, a Boston research and money management firm that specializes in social investing.

There are two global socially responsible funds. Calvert World Values, a global equity growth fund, is about 18 months old. It has a fine short-term record, up 13.4 percent for the year ended Sept. 30, compared with 11 percent for the Lipper global fund average. It does not invest in volatile emerging markets and is, therefore, likely to be more stable.

By Alina Guerrero
Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Former Haitian military chief Raoul Cedras spends his days cloistered inside a high-rise in this capital's most exclusive neighborhood, writing his memoirs in an apartment overlooking Panama Bay.

One month after fleeing his homeland under U.S. military escort, the man who helped overthrow Haiti's first democratically elected president is settling into comfortable, anonymous exile.

There is nothing outside the 17-story building named "The Emperor" to indicate it is the new home of the former military coup leader, his wife and their three children.

There are no police or armed security guards in the lobby. The Panamanian government provided Cedras and his family with security only during their first two weeks in the country, as a courtesy.

Now, there are only a pair of unarmed, casually dressed watchmen in the lobby of the cream-colored building where two- and three-bedroom apartments rent for more than $1,000 a month. Their main job these days seems to be keeping out journalists.

"It makes the people here uncomfortable," one building employee said of reporters who arrive trying to talk to the general, who has refused all interview requests since arriving in Panama on Oct. 13.

None of the residents of the apartment building seems to have talked to their new neighbors. One woman admitted to having seen Cedras' wife, Yannick, returning from a shopping trip, carrying "lots of packages."

Other leaders who found refuge in Panama have included Gen. Juan Peron of Argentina and Shah Mohammed Rezah Pahlavi of Iran.

There are many places where Mrs. Cedras can shop in the exclusive Paitilla neighborhood — luxury department stories, boutiques, supermarkets, the capital's best pharmacies.

As part of the agreement to get Cedras to leave Haiti, the United States agreed to lease three properties he left behind and pay him $5,000 a month. The U.S. also agreed to free up his frozen bank accounts in the United States.

Cedras and Haiti's other top military leaders agreed to step down after the United States sent 20,000 troops to his homeland to make way for the return of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, whom they toppled in a coup three years ago.

The agreement forestalled a U.S. invasion of the Caribbean nation and Aristide returned safely to Haiti on Oct. 15.

Panamanian officials claim to know nothing about what the Cedras family is up to. He is "free to live in Panama, to work, to move around and the Panamanian government doesn't have any obligation to follow his steps," acting Foreign Minister Omar Jaen said this week.

Political exiles are nothing new in Panama, but none has been as secretive as Cedras.

Former Guatemalan President Jorge Serrano Elias now sells real estate in Panama, which granted him political asylum last year when he fled his country following an unsuccessful move to rule that Central American nation by decree.

He is often seen around town, shopping at the local supermarket, taking his wife out to dinner at fancy restaurants.

Other leaders who found refuge in Panama have included Gen. Juan Peron of Argentina and Shah Mohammed Rezah Pahlavi of Iran. Toppled Latin American presidents and rebel leaders alike got asylum here during the 1970s.

Since arriving in Panama, Cedras has appeared in public only twice: when he arrived at the airport on a chartered jet and soon afterward when he went to the Immigration Department to get his asylum application. Both times, he wore a dark suit and tie and avoided even eye contact with reporters.

Trade leader gives rebutal to GOP critics

GENEVA (AP) — Striking back at Republican critics, world trade chief Peter Sutherland said the United States got everything it wanted from a new international trade accord.

Objections by lawmakers who say the planned World Trade Organization will hurt U.S. sovereignty are "misplaced," said Sutherland, head of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The Republican upset in mid-term elections has raised the possibility that Congress may not ratify the GATT accord next month. That would effectively kill the 125-nation deal, completed after eight years of tough negotiations.

"The United States wanted a deal on trade in services, substantial reform of farm trade ... an investment pact and, above all, a tougher, faster dispute settlement system," Sutherland said in comments released in Geneva.

"Nobody could reasonably claim the U.S. negotiating objectives were not met," he said. "In some respects, the United States got far more than it could have imagined possible eight years ago."

The so-called Uruguay Round accord provides for sweeping cuts in customs duties on imports, reductions in farm subsidies, freer trade in services like banking, and updated rules in other areas.

The accord is supposed to take effect Jan. 1, subject to ratification by the United States, the European Union and Japan.

A recent GATT report estimated that the deal would boost U.S. income by $120 billion per year within the next decade.

"Ironically there appear to be some in the United States who believe we have been so successful in meeting U.S. objectives that we are threatening U.S. sovereignty," Sutherland said.

He said the World Trade Organization, which would implement the accord, would not have the power to overturn national laws or force governments to accept arbitration.

A: There really is not a fund on the market that meets your requirements, according to Eric Becker of Franklin Research and Development, a Boston research and money management firm that specializes in social investing.

There are two global socially responsible funds. Calvert World Values, a global equity growth fund, is about 18 months old. It has a fine short-term record, up 13.4 percent for the year ended Sept. 30, compared with 11 percent for the Lipper global fund average. It does not invest in volatile emerging markets and is, therefore, likely to be more stable.

Health care plan out; health stocks in

By Deborah M. Rankin
N.Y. Times News Service

Health care stocks enjoyed an election bounce this week as the Republican victory dashed any hopes of reviving President Clinton's ambitious health care plan.

But the stocks have been gaining momentum for months. In fact, some of the mutual funds that invest in them are having outstanding years, in large part because of a sparkling third quarter.

The leaders, both from Fidelity, are its Medical Delivery fund, up 20.9 percent, and its Health Care fund, up 17.5 percent.

Charles Magnum, portfolio manager of the Health Care fund, is "cautiously optimistic" about the industry's prospects. "We're probably still in the early- to mid-innings of the game," he said.

For the year through Nov. 4, the 15 health care funds tracked by Morningstar Inc. gained an average of 3.28 percent, compared with zero gains for the average equity fund.

After a dismal first half, the funds broke out in the third quarter, soaring 14.03 percent. Along with the demise of health care overhaul, which was expected to squeeze industry profits, a flurry of mergers bolstered health care stocks.

"Funds that had a lot of exposure to HMO's did best," in the latest run-up, said Amy Arnott, a Morningstar analyst who follows health care funds. Such funds included Fidelity Select Medical Delivery, Putnam Health Sciences, and Franklin Global Health Care.

"Laggards this year have been funds that concentrated on biotech stocks," Ms. Arnott said. A striking example is Fidelity Select Biotechnology, down 17.7 percent through Nov. 4. Not only have biotech stocks been hurt by rising interest rates, which makes financing more expensive, but they were tarnished by the recent collapse of David Blech's brokerage firm, which made a market in many of these stocks.

A consistent performer has been Vanguard Specialized Health Care, the only fund in the category to earn Morningstar's five-star designation — for top returns with minimal risk.

"It was basically able to sidestep a lot of problems in the health care area by staying diversified and going for the best values," said Daniel Wiener, editor of the Independent Adviser for Vanguard Investors, a Watertown, Mass., newsletter.

Edward Owens, the manager since the fund's inception in 1984, says he holds about 70 stocks, spread among health services companies, medical products, major pharmaceuticals, specialty pharmaceuticals and international companies. Turnover is low and major changes infrequent, Owens said.

His three biggest holdings are Zeneca Group, a spinoff of a British drug company, Pfizer and Johnson & Johnson. "Most sectors of the health care industry look pretty attractive right now," he said, and are selling at multiples below historic norms. HMOs, he said, are the exception.

An area he calls ripe for growth is therapeutic treatment of disorders like depression, schizophrenia and Alzheimer's disease.

"It's the fastest-growing area in the drug industry," Owens said. Just as antibiotics were the drugs of the '50s and tranquilizers the drugs of the '60s, "antidepressants will be the drugs of the '90s," he said.

The well-known drug Prozac is manufactured by Eli Lilly and Pfizer has a similar drug, Zoloft, "growing just as fast," he said.

Magnum of Fidelity Select Health Care is also light on HMOs.

"My focus has primarily been the drug and product side," he said. "There's been a profound change in the way that major drugmakers run their companies." He said Bristol Myers-Squibb and American Home Products, two major fund components, "are very, very cheap, and will benefit from cost cutting."

Invesco Strategic Health Sciences, which is down 2.1 percent for the year through Nov. 4, has been faltering since 1992, when John Kaweske was portfolio manager. Kaweske left the fund in a flap over unauthorized trades early this year, and his former comanager, Barry Kurokawa, has made some changes.

The fund continues to focus on small- and medium-size companies, but is trying to reduce volatility by avoiding big positions in one-product companies.

The most striking change has been slashing biotech holdings to 8 percent from 19 percent. "Clearly, our exposure to the biotech sector was much, much too large," Kurakowa said.

Investors don't have to own a sector fund to get exposure to health care stocks. Among the diversified funds with large health care positions are Robertson Stephens Emerging Growth (53 percent of its portfolio), Robertson Stephens Value Plus Growth (48 percent) and Smith Barney Shearson Aggressive Growth (36 percent).

Trying to time the volatile health care sector is notoriously difficult.

"A lot of people poured into health care funds in 1991 because of their phenomenal returns," Ms. Arnott of Morningstar said. "They were really shocked at their losses in 1992, and then got out."

Owens takes the long view. "There is still money to be made," he said, "if you take a 10- or 15-year horizon."

NAME DROPPING

Pruitt

DAVID W. PRUITT of Midland has been elected secretary-treasurer of the Association of Texas Electric Cooperatives, a statewide service organization for Texas' 85 electric cooperatives.

Pruitt is president and chief executive officer of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative of Midland, a position he has held since 1987.

Southwestern Bell Telecom has promoted TIM BANNECKER to regional vice president. He will oversee all sales and customer service aspects of the company's operations in the San Antonio, Austin, Corpus Christi and West Texas market areas.

Bannecker joined the company in 1978 and most recently served as regional vice president for Southwestern Bell Telecom's Kansas/Western Missouri market.

DORFMAN: Expert has his share of critics

(From 1B)

Yet when Dorfman anoints a company with his gravelly praise or barks out his qualms, stocks jump. In the game of stock-picking, few others wield such clout.

"When a guy yells 'Dorfman's on!', everybody mans his machines," said Dan Hogan, a senior trader at First Albany Corp. "It's Dorfman time. You shouldn't be off the desk, you shouldn't be off having a sandwich."

Despite his following, Dorfman has more than his share of critics, perhaps because of his scrappy style, perhaps due to the nature of his work.

Companies accuse him of airing rumors. Irate investors stop him on the street to berate him for their losses. Critics also say he's used by profiteers, especially "short sellers" banking on a stock's decline.

"If you do a negative story, you're the tool of the shorts. If you do a positive story, you're a tool of the bulls. You can't win," retorted Dorfman during a recent interview sandwiched between a broadcast and a business dinner.

He said, for the fourth time in an hour's talk, "I'm just a reporter."

Dorfman maintains that, contrary to what many think, he's not a stock picker, but simply reports what "bright minds" tell him.

"They could be right, they could be wrong," said Dorfman, a short, trim man with a pug face. "What I don't want is to have people go out and buy or sell stocks based on what I say."

But they do.

Dorfman is a veteran, having written for The Wall Street Journal, New York magazine and Esquire. For the past eight years, he's written columns for USA Today and Gannett News Service, but will switch to Money magazine in January.

Other journalists also move the market. Yet none do so as frequently as Dorfman, who reportedly earns $500,000 a year.

His clout partly stems from his immediacy. About 500,000 people a day watch his report, first broadcast live at midday and then repeated or redone several times.

"Once upon a time, he was doing pieces on CNN after markets closed in relative obscurity," said Larry Moscow, CNBC's director of news programming. "Now as CNBC has grown, his importance and visibility have grown."

More importantly, people tune in because Dorfman has a reputation for being right. He's had numerous scoops, including the SEC investigation of arbitrageur Ivan F. Boesky.

Day to day, it's hard to judge his accuracy, since many reports involve projections about a company's earnings or a product's success.

Nonetheless, a legion of traders and small investors act on his advice — effectively moving the stock in the direction he indicates it will go.

"Everybody's shooting orders based on what the guy is saying," said Hogan of First Albany. "Nobody sorts out the details, right, wrong or indifferent. ... It's a super, super short-term buck."

A study by The Washington Post found that during an 18-month period, 95 percent of his recommended stocks quickly jumped an average 13 percent. Bloomberg Business News found investors who followed his picks in March 1992 could realize a 21.4 percent profit.

The Chicago Stock Exchange was so disturbed by the avalanche of trading following "The Dorfman Report" that it recently ruled that stock he discusses be traded manually, rather than by computer, to lessen the chaos.

How long his influence lasts is another question.

On a recent segment, Dorfman quoted a medical newsletter as saying federal approval for Summit Technology's laser device to correct nearsightedness will be long in coming, if at all.

"If you own Summit, you've been afflicted with investment blindness," Dorfman shouted into a camera near his overflowing desk at USA Today.

That day, Summit stock fell $1.75 to close at $28.25. But a day later, the stock rose to $30.25, after an analyst upgraded its rating.

Such changes show that stock prices are influenced by a broader picture of figures and reports, experts say.

"There's so much information out there that can correct what (Dorfman) does," said Sam Hayes, a professor of finance at Harvard Business School.

The ire Dorfman inspires, however, is often not so short-lived. His reports anger not only companies and stockholders, but those who say his reports are thin.

"Here's a man who has a wide exposure in the press, one of the widest, and has to come up material daily," said James Melcher, president of Balestra Capital, a $75 million fund in New York. "A lot of it is inevitably not well researched."

Companies also complain he gives them little time to respond.

"Usually Mr. Dorfman will write this story and then call me five minutes before he's going on the air," said Mary Hagan of Epitope, a Beaverton, Ore.-based company that makes an HIV saliva test that Dorfman has criticized.

His response: He does the best he can given his daily deadline.

"I'm on every day. I can't spend two months researching," said Dorfman, who said he normally has no idea what he'll report when he arrives at work.

He also said "99 percent of the time" he calls companies more than 30 minutes before a show to ask for a response.

For Dorfman, the thrill of his life is breaking news. And he doesn't intend to slow down.

Divorced and the father of a 29-year-old daughter who makes jewelry and manages a band, his life is his work. He eats breakfast and dinner most days with sources, and grabs lunch at his desk.

Always on the run, he reaches into a cluttered drawer just before air time to choose among an array of crumpled ties to don for the camera.

"There's this unrelenting drive to prove myself every day of the week to myself," said Dorfman, who says he grew up in foster homes after being abandoned at the age of 1 by his parents.

Outside work, he stays away from stock-picking. He said he last traded a stock three or four years ago and tells his employers about his investments.

For fun, he listens to music or takes people to "restaurants where I know I'll never meet anyone I know."

But escaping from the public eye is proving harder.

"I like getting away from myself," Dorfman said wistfully. "I find it's not that easy to do anymore."

CUTS: Future breaks may be aimed at specific issues

(From 1B)

ica,' especially as regards tax cuts AND deficit reduction. It remains to be seen whether and how well the Clinton White House can work with the conservative 104th Congress."

One area of particular possibilities, in the eyes of many analysts, is an expansion on the concept of tax-favored retirement savings programs such as the individual retirement account.

"In a political sense, the easiest issue to tackle is strengthened incentives for personal savings," says Richard Hokenson, economist at the brokerage firm of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Inc.

"Many members of Congress, not just Republicans, are well aware that personal savings levels are insufficient, particularly when truly factoring in the kinds of changes that need to be made to Social Security."

If there is going to be any broader cut in income taxes, many observers feel, it is likely to be relatively small and targeted at specific "family" issues — for instance, credits for dependents or changes to alleviate the so-called "marriage penalty" that often produces higher taxes for married couples.

The possibility of more favorable treatment of capital gains — profits realized on the sale of assets with fluctuating values — is especially appetizing to investors in stocks and mutual funds.

But even that could well be a two-edged sword, analysts caution.

At present, capital gains on assets held a year or less are taxed as ordinary income, while long-term gains on holdings of more than a year are taxed at a maximum rate of 28 percent.

A lowering of the rate would logically stand to benefit the stock market. But at the outset, it might actually act as a depressant on stock prices by encouraging selling of investments that had been "locked up" by an unwillingness to incur taxes at their present rates.

Says Stephen Bell, Washington analyst at the investment firm of Salomon Bros. Inc.: "We believe that the entire question of tax reform, especially moving to a consumption-based tax system that encourages investment, will occupy center stage for some time in Congress."

Penny Godbold ices a gingerbread Christmas tree to go inside the gingerbread house she was making in a community education class at Midland College.

Godbold and Cindy Wilson, who teaches the class, laugh at their attempt to install a chimney.

Tina Covey trims the windows in red candies. While the basic design of the houses is the same, trims varies depending on students' preferences.

Home, Sweet Home

They all start with the same gingerbread house kit, but what ends up is a variety of unique works of holiday art.

And like most art, beauty is in the eye of the beholder, according to one woman in the continuing education class, in which students learn how to make an original gingerbread house.

The course is taught in two sessions. The first night students learn how to roll out the gingerbread to make the various parts of the house including the walls, roof, doors, chimneys and any other types of decorations desired. The gingerbread is then left out overnight to get hard and by the second class the house building begins.

The house is constructed on a piece of cardboard and the four sides of the house are held together by royal icing. Then the decorating of the houses begin with the windows and doors.

A variety of candies were utilized. Ms. Wilson said the kit contains the patterns for four different designs as well as the icing bags and tips and cookie cutters.

"It gives us a basis to go from there," she said.

All types of food are used for decorations with marshmallows used as snow-covered shrubs and ice cream cones for Christmas trees and church steeples. Fences are made out of twisted pretzels.

The gingerbread house construction was a bonding event for most of the class with two sets of mothers and children and several sets of friends all coming together to encourage, chastise and compliment each other.

Ryan Noormohamed, 4, came with his mother, Kerry, because he likes to help her. Plus, the lure of all those candy decorations didn't hurt.

"Mom said on Thursday we would be putting the candy on the house and I thought that would be fun," Ryan said.

His mother said she always wanted to learn how to make one of these houses and thought this class would be the perfect opportunity.

Penny Godbold brought her teen-age daughter, Emily, along with her for the class.

Ms. Godbold said she had created a gingerbread hosue before, but not from scratch. She said coming up with creative ways to decorate the house was the hardest part; even more so than the actual decorating.

Her daughter said the project was a "bonding thing" for she and her mom, plus when her mother pitched the idea to her she said she thought it would be fun.

As Ms. Wilson makes her way around the room examining her pupils' work she said she enjoyed the different designs each housebuilder would come up with.

"They all start out with the same candy and end up with different things. It's fun to create and each creates their own thing," Ms. Wilson said.

As one of the students in the class added about her design, "Beauty is in the eye of the beholder."

A big grin crossed her face as she tried to find a way to camouflage some royal icing that accidently got on the house and hardened.

"I guess it can be a crawling vine," she said.

DEAR ABBY

One family's loss is another's gain through organ donation

DEAR ABBY: Last May 27, I received a call telling me that my father was finally getting his lung transplant. We flew to Cleveland, and while we were in the hospital waiting room, we met a family who had come for a heart transplant from the same donor.

Van Buren

A nurse came in and told us that the organs would soon be arriving, so my husband and I rushed to the 11th floor to watch the helicopter land. Through the skylight, we saw two people carrying a cooler. I knew they had Dad's life in their hands. I cannot describe the feeling it gave me.

I thought about the family who had lost a loved one (he was 42 years old) that Memorial Day weekend, and the pain they must have felt. But in the midst of their sorrow, they bestowed the most generous gift. (We were told this same donor donated not only his lungs and heart, but also his pancreas, liver, kidneys and bone marrow.)

As the doctor came out afterward to tell us the procedure had been successful, and my father had received a healthy lung, we applauded for each other's loved ones and shed tears of relief.

Dad's birthday was the following Friday — and the heart recipient's birthday was that Tuesday. What a wonderful birthday gift our father received. — K.C. IN MICHIGAN

DEAR K.C.: I appreciate being able to share your family's joy. Not all families are so fortunate. Read on . . .

DEAR ABBY: I have never written before, but I'm a longtime reader and I really enjoy your column.

I lost my son, Charles Wayne Jones, last March 22. He needed a heart transplant and one could not be found in time.

I would like to warn parents with young ones to keep an eye on their children when they are told, "It's only a virus." That's what started my son's problems. It was "only" a virus, but it settled in his heart and, over the years, slowly deteriorated one side until it no longer functioned.

I am also writing to appeal to your readers to donate organs — not only from young children but from older children as well. My son was only 29 years old. You rarely hear about individuals that age getting heart transplants (it's usually the very young or older folks), but in this age group there are also people in need.

I cannot bring my son back, but I can alert others to the need so that other mothers will not have to lose their sons as I did. — SHEILA LEATHERS, ANDERSON, IND.

DEAR SHEILA: Please accept my sympathy on the untimely loss of your beloved son. And thank you for giving me a chance to remind my readers that the need for vital organs is great. Every medically acceptable organ can be utilized, including donated tissues — such as corneas, bone, skin and heart valves — which can be put to use despite advancing age in the donor.

The families or estates of the donors are charged NOTHING. (The recipients pay the costs of obtaining the organs.)

Vietnam Veterans Memorial becomes monument many view as sacred place

By Gustav Niebuhr
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Americans have long revered places that they link to the shaping of their national identity: the bridge at Concord, the Alamo, the hulk of the battleship Arizona at Pearl Harbor. Few pieces of ground are so hallowed as Gettysburg, where the Civil War battle and Lincoln's address paired national unity and purpose in a way that is seen as almost mystical.

But veneration occasionally imparts something more to a hallowed site: a spiritual dimension that transforms it into something like a sacred shrine, where pilgrims come and devotions are paid. For generations, Gettysburg was such a place. The Vietnam Veterans Memorial, several scholars of religion and culture say, is becoming one now.

"It's an altar," said Conrad Cherry, director of the Center for the Study of Religion and American Culture at Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis. "You approach it with reverence and respect and silence. The supreme sacrifice is very much there."

The memorial's appearance is starkly dramatic. A pair of black polished granite walls, devoid of all but rows of names of the 58,196 American men and women who died in Vietnam, are set into the ground of the Washington Mall so that they are invisible from the rear. The walls meet to form a V, its arms embracing a broad, sloping piece of ground to create a thin boundary that narrowly separates the living from the dead.

Controversial for its unconventional design when it was unveiled in 1982, the memorial for years has drawn more visitors than either the Washington Monument or the Lincoln Memorial.

"People make pilgrimages — which is what people do at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial — to be transformed intellectually and spiritually at a place of power," said Edward Linenthal, a professor of religion and American culture at the University of Wisconsin, at Oshkosh, who is the author of "Sacred Ground: Americans and Their Battlefields" (University of Illinois Press).

Visitors often approach the memorial in a reverential hush. Some, park rangers say, are so overcome with emotion that they stop in their tracks, never to come closer. Some touch names inscribed in the walls. Many leave personal items: photographs, stuffed animals, combat boots, or other tokens of a life.

Authorities on religion and culture liken this to people's behavior at sites considered holy in a religious sense: Lourdes, the Western Wall in Jerusalem, major Buddhist shrines.

"The kinds of things people do there," Linenthal said, "are acts of commemoration — touching the names, leaving flowers, photos, flags. Those are the things people do in sacred places."

That is not what the monument's creators envisioned, but they are certainly intrigued by it. "Here's essentially what is designed to be a military memorial commemorating people who took part in a military effort, and it's been transformed into a national shrine, where all these feelings come alive," said Jan C. Scruggs, president of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, the former infantry corporal who led the campaign for a memorial to the Vietnam dead.

Because Nov. 11 was Veterans Day, when attendance at the memorial is particularly heavy, Ron Stufflebean of St. Joseph, Mo., worked there as a Park Service volunteer all that week. He said many people who stand for a while looking at an individual name often say they "can see the reflection of that person in the granite."

His wife, Paula, said the couple had known men whose names are listed there. Last year, she made a Christmas wreath, decorated it with a wedding bouquet and handmade baby booties, and brought it to the memorial. "I typed up a letter," she said, "and framed it and put it in the wreath. It said, 'For all the men and women, for what they missed in life.' "

Such gifts have set the memorial apart from most secular monuments, instead inviting comparisons to religious shrines.

"It's a way to communicate with people who died," said George Mayo, a Washington lawyer who is a director of the memorial fund. And, he said, because many visitors also bring along tracing paper to make impressions of individual names, "you take away part of the memorial with you."

Since the memorial opened 12 years ago, visitors have left more than 30,000 items, said Duery Felton, a Vietnam veteran who serves as curator of these objects for the Park Service, which collects, catalogues, and stores all but the flowers, since they are perishable.

On Nov. 9, objects placed at the memorial included several bouquets; four copies of a poem, each addressed to a different soldier; a photograph of a young girl; and a small stack of metal bracelets engraved with the names of prisoners of war.

Morris Brevard, a ranger at the memorial who served as a Marine in the invasion of Panama and the Persian Gulf war, said that he had come across athletic trophies, military medals, a tomahawk, and a half-empty wine bottle with two glasses. Brevard said that one woman had once brought small cans of fruit cocktail — a favorite of her son, whose name is among the thousands — and that another had brought a birthday cake and lighted a candle.

"It's a place of healing," he said. "It's a place of remembrance."

Purple Cow is key to enjoyment

By Jane McBride
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT — When my friend and co-worker walked into the conference room earlier this week, she carried a mysterious, large black bag.

Because it was her turn to chair our department's weekly staff meeting, and because she is creative, enthusiastic and sometimes downright excitable, we all knew we had a treat in store.

But even I, who has always enjoyed all that makes my friend special and unique — didn't have a clue just how valuable a treat she would hand us. She took her place at the head of the table, leaned in toward us and, with eyes all a'twinkle, relayed a story.

When she picked her daughter up from day school recently, she told us, she walked into a bunch of happy toddlers awaiting a treat. It was Purple Cow Day. For those unfamiliar with the drink — as my friend was — it is a milk/grape juice/banana concoction particularly popular with children.

You know, she told the day school worker who was whipping up the frothy drinks in a blender, that's what we need at work. We don't get to do things like that. I mean, why can't we have Purple Cows at our staff meeting?

"Well, you could if you really wanted to," the worker said in such a offhand, matter-of-fact way my friend was momentarily taken aback. That casual comment, spoken with such certainty and simplicity, gave my friend cause for pause.

Maybe she has a point, she thought. Why not? Why can't we seek out things that bring us pleasure? Maybe even things we've never before experienced but always wanted to.

So, she said to those of us sitting at the table, I want you to think about what experiences you've had as a journalist that brought you pleasure — those experiences that remind you why you went into journalism in the first place.

She then relayed three of her favorite journalism experiences, as the rest of us thought about our own. We've all had them, those perfect days when we get to interview someone truly fascinating or write about a subject of real substance — or wonderful wackiness. When we get to go places and see things most people never have the opportunity to experience.

My friend reached into the big black bag and pulled out a blender. She added a can of frozen grape juice, a carton of milk and a banana, then whipped it into the most glorious, passionately purple Purple Cows ever. The majority of us never had seen a Purple Cow. Never tasted one. But that day, we did.

Even though it was a group tasting, we each experienced — in our own way — a Purple Cow. Just as we do in life.

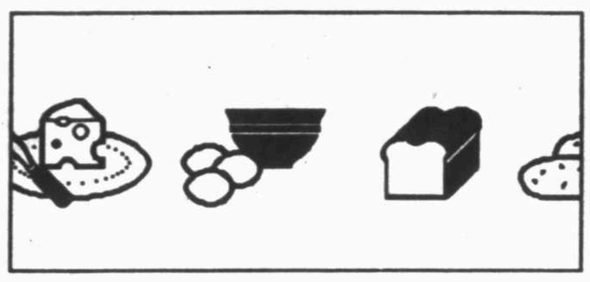

There are numerous Purple Cows all around us, waiting for us to notice. But do we even know them when we see them?

My friend then issued us a challenge, which I paraphrase. I want you to think about just what such experiences still await you...and I want you to seek them out, she said. In your quest to find stories that would interest our readers, I want you to also find stories that interest you.

When it comes to life experiences, my friend and I are worlds apart. We come from vastly different families, different regions of the country, different economic backgrounds and different political climates. But there are so many things we share. Among them is an appreciation for people who bring passion to their work. Who want to make the most of what they have — and what is available to them.

Aikman update

IRVING — Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman sprained his left knee Sunday in the second quarter of the Cowboys' game against the Washington Redskins and probably will be sidelined three to four weeks.

Cowboys Owner Jerry Jones said orthopedic surgeon Dr. Robert Vandermeer told him it could take up to four weeks for Aikman to recover.

"His statement to me was probably three to four weeks," Jones said.

Aikman went down in a tangle with Washington linebacker Ken Harvey. He called timeout and limped to the sidelines. An MRI showed a medial collateral sprain of the left knee.

The last time Aikman had a knee sprain he missed five games in 1991.

"It's real hard for me to say just how much time I'll miss, but it certainly looks like it will be tough for me to play on Thursday," Aikman said, referring to the Cowboys' Thanksgiving Day game against Green Bay.

"Right now I'm targeting Philadelphia (on Dec. 4) for a possible return, but we're going to have to wait and see how things progress," he said.

"We'll know more about Troy in 24 to 36 hours," said trainer Kevin O'Neill. "It should give us a better picture. It's a very small chance he could play (on Thursday)."

Aikman went into the game with a sore thumb on his passing hand and a broken nose, all suffered in the Nov. 13 21-14 loss to San Francisco.

If Aikman's injury wasn't bad enough, backup Rodney Peete sprained the thumb on his passing hand and was replaced by third-stringer Jason Garrett.

Lee finds offense in timely fashion

■ Midland Lee has turned its scoring slump around just in time for the playoffs.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

It seems that Midland Lee has had an offensive fireworks resurrection the last two weeks, and it couldn't have come at a better time. It's in the state football playoffs when you want the offense to click.

Lee entered the state playoffs having lost three of four games and having scored only seven points in its last eight regular season quarters. Since then, against Amarillo High and El Paso Riverside, the Rebels have had a yardage explosion.

Dunson

In a 35-13 area playoff win over El Paso Riverside Saturday in El Paso, Lee fullback Theo Macklin had his second career 100-yard day with 102 yards and three touchdowns.

That was good news, but it got better. Melvin Dunson, who had missed six games and seven weeks with a broken shoulder blade, returned to action with 74 yards rushing on only six carries. He also had a 54-yard TD run called back or he would have had over 100 yards rushing in his return even though he was used sparingly. Lee quarterback Dedrick Adams added 68 yards rushing, including a 30-yard TD run.

Now Lee needs the offense to rise even higher as Arlington Lamar (11-1) comes to town at 2 p.m. Saturday at Memorial Stadium for the region outing.

Dunson admitted that he was especially tired after the Riverside game, but he promises to be ready when the Vikings arrive.

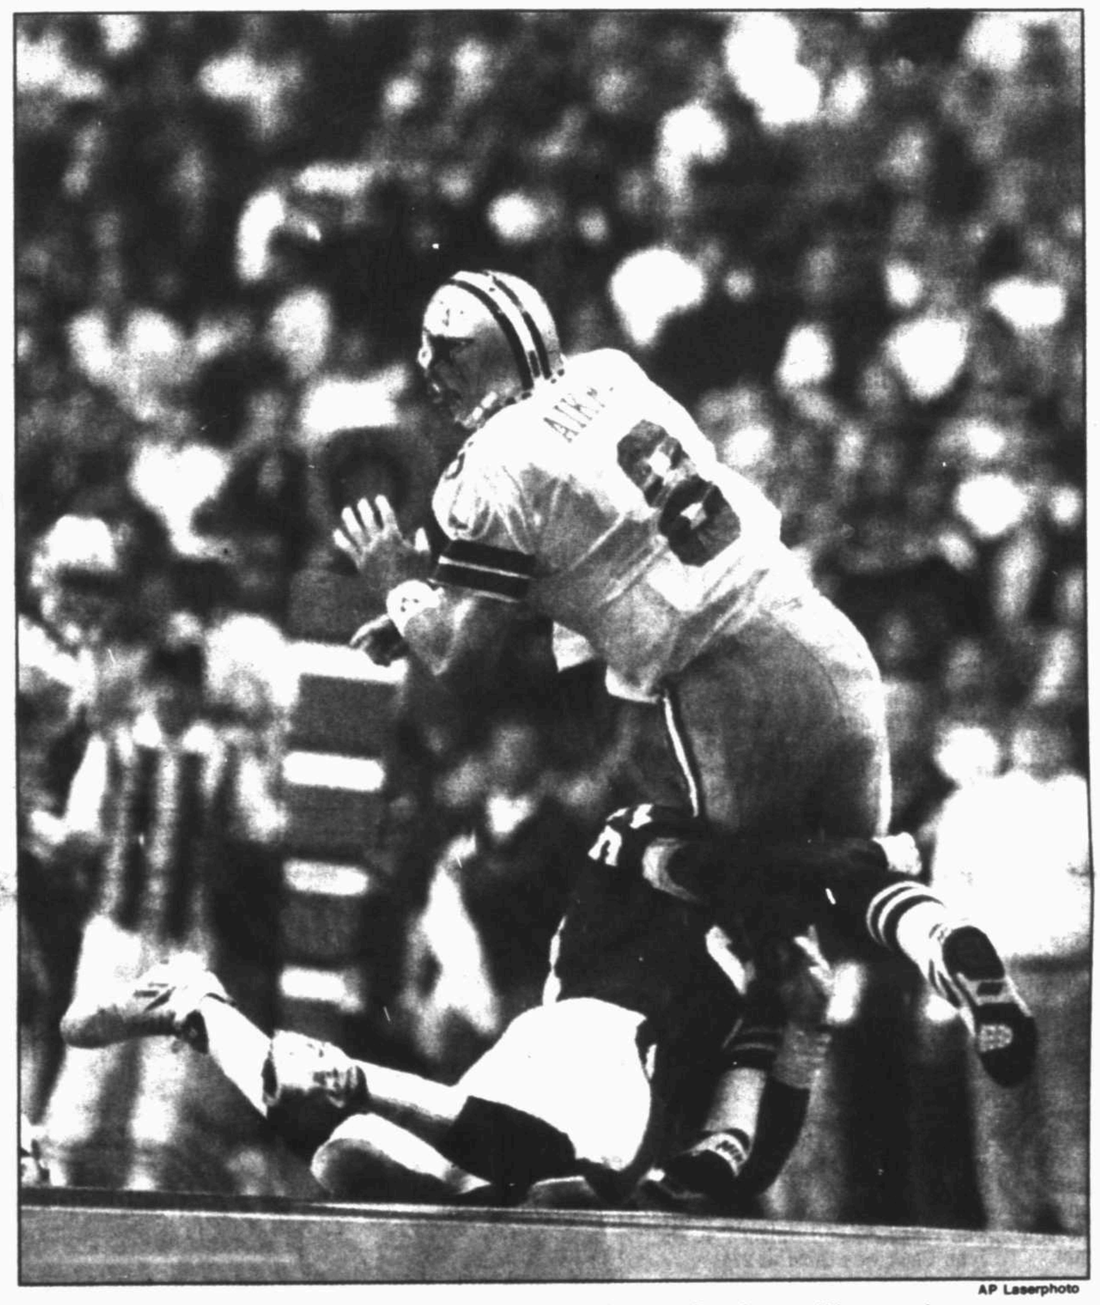

"I was pretty pleased with the 74 yards since I didn't have too many carries, but I was pooped after that touchdown was called back," Dunson said. "I'll be much better next week. There was a couple of runs I had that I should've kept on running instead of going down. I've got to work hard this week."

The last time Lamar came to Midland in 1989, the Vikings scored a 17-3 win over Lee at Memorial Stadium to end Lee's season.

Lee is hoping that won't happen in 1994.

"We're down to the last 16 teams," said Lee defensive back Lee Lauderdale. "This is where we lost out last year. It's all uphill from here on out."

Cowboy QBs hurt in rout

■ Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman is given a "small chance" to play against Green Bay Thursday.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — The NFL champion Dallas Cowboys, hounded by adversity even when they win, lost two quarterbacks in one game Sunday.

Troy Aikman, playing with a sore passing thumb and a broken nose, went down with a sprained knee in Sunday's 31-7 victory over the Washington Redskins. His questionable status puts a severe strain on a team trying to win a record third consecutive Super Bowl.

Aikman was given a "very small" chance to play on Thanksgiving Day against Green Bay by trainer Kevin O'Neill. An MRI showed a medial collateral sprain of the left knee.

If Aikman's injury wasn't bad enough, backup Rodney Peete sprained the thumb on his passing hand and was replaced by third-stringer Jason Garrett.

"We'll know more about Troy in 24 to 36 hours," O'Neill said. "It should give us a better picture. It's a very small chance he could play."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, who mistakenly predicted wide receiver Alvin Harper would miss the season with a knee sprain, said, "It seems unlikely Troy will be back for the next two games."

The last time Aikman had a sprained knee, he missed five games in 1991 and Dallas got knocked out of the playoffs by the Detroit Lions.

Peete responded with a touchdown pass and Emmitt Smith ran for a two TDs as Dallas, smarting from a 21-14 loss to San Francisco last week, notched its 13th consecutive NFC East victory. Smith rushed for 85 yards and went over 1,000 for the fourth consecutive season. He has 1,074.

AFC jumbled as three leaders fall

■ Miami, San Diego and Cleveland find company at the top of the AFC.

Associated Press

It was a bad day to be in first place in the NFL.

Four of the five division leaders who played Sunday afternoon were losers, and most of the teams doing the chasing made up valuable ground.

The losers were Miami in the AFC East, Cleveland in the AFC Central, San Diego in the AFC West and Minnesota in the NFC Central.

■ NFL Roundup

The AFC winners included Buffalo and the New York Jets in the East, Pittsburgh in the Central and Kansas City in the West. Chicago moved into a tie with the Vikings in the NFC Central.

As Vikings safety Vencie Glenn said: "My momma said there would be days like this, but we'll bounce back."

Here's the rundown:

In the NFC, the Vikings' loss, coupled with Chicago's win over Detroit, left the

Auburn win moves Tide to No. 3

By Rick Warner
AP Football Writer

Nebraska and Penn State remained 1-2 in The Associated Press college football poll Sunday, while Alabama moved from fourth to third after defeating previously unbeaten Auburn.

■ AP Top 25

Nebraska (11-0), which can clinch an Orange Bowl berth Friday by beating Oklahoma, received 39 first-place votes and 1,526 points from a nationwide media panel. The Cornhuskers were idle Saturday.

Penn State (10-0) got 22 firsts and 1,507 points after beating Northwestern 45-17 Saturday. The Nittany Lions close their regular season against Michigan State, then play Oregon in the Rose Bowl.

Alabama (11-0) received one first-place vote and 1,411 points after a 21-14 victory over Auburn. The Crimson Tide plays No. 4 Florida in the Southeastern Conference championship game Dec. 3, with the winner going to the Sugar Bowl and the loser to the Citrus.

Nebraska, Penn State and Alabama also were the top three teams in the USA Today-CNN coaches' poll, where the first-place vote totals were identical to the AP poll.

Florida (9-1) dropped one spot in the AP poll after beating Vanderbilt 24-7, while Miami (9-1) remained No. 5 after downing Temple 38-14. Rounding out the Top 10 were Colorado (10-1), Florida State (9-1), Texas A&M (10-0-1), Auburn (9-1-1) and Colorado State (10-1).

Colorado, Florida State and Texas A&M each moved up one place. The Buffaloes beat Iowa State 41-20, the Seminoles defeated North Carolina State 34-3 and the Aggies topped Texas Christian 34-17.

Auburn dropped three notches after its 21-game unbeaten streak was stopped, while Colorado State stayed No. 10 after defeating Fresno State 44-42.

Kansas State was 11th, followed by Oregon, Virginia, Ohio State, Utah, Arizona, Southern California, Virginia Tech, Mississippi State, Michigan, North Carolina, Syracuse, Brigham Young, Washington State and Boston College.

Ohio State jumped eight spots to No. 14 after beating Michigan 22-6. The Wolverines fell five places to No. 20.

With a 21-14 win over Auburn Saturday, Gene Stalling's Alabama team moved from No. 4 to No. 3 in the Associated Press Top 25 college football poll.

NFL: Esiason's three TDs dump Vikings; Steelers beat Miami in OT

teams tied for first in the NFC Central at 7-4. Marcus Turner returned one of his three interceptions of Warren Moon 90 yards for a TD and Boomer Esiason had three touchdown passes to lead the Jets to a 31-21 victory.

But Dallas extended its lead in the East by routing Washington 31-7, despite losing quarterback Troy Aikman. Runner-up Philadelphia lost 12-6 to Arizona.

The AFC is more complicated.

In the Central, Gary Anderson kicked a 39-yard field goal with 4:41 left in overtime and the Steelers beat the Dolphins 16-13, moving Pittsburgh (8-3) into a first-place tie with Clevéland.

In the East, Jim Kelly and Andre Reed hooked up on two TD passes, giving the Bills a 29-20 victory over the Green Bay Packers and moving Buffalo a game behind Miami (7-4) in the East. The Jets are tied with the Bills.

In the West, Kimble Anders scored from the 1 in the fourth quarter as the Chiefs beat the Browns 20-13 and moved within a game of first-place San Diego (8-3) after the Chargers lost to the New England Patriots 23-17.

The New York Giants are at Houston on Monday night.

Jets 31, Vikings 21

Turner's TD came off a deflected pass on the opening possession and Esiason (22-of-29) had scoring passes of 11 yards to Ryan Yarborough, 5 yards to Rob Moore and 14 yards to Art Monk.

Turner got his second interception late in the first half. With New York leading 17-14 and Minnesota (7-4) at the Jets' 25, Turner intercepted a pass intended for Cris Carter in the end zone. Turner's final pickoff came with Minnesota driving again with 2:53 to play.

"This is one of those games you think about as a kid, when you're walking home from school tossing the ball to yourself," Turner said.

Moon finished 33 of 50 for 400 yards and two touchdowns.

Steelers 16, Dolphins 13 (OT)

At Three Rivers Stadium, Pittsburgh (8-3) played its third OT game in its last four and won when Anderson made his 19th straight field goal.

Pittsburgh may have found an offense behind Mike Tomczak, who made his first start in 27 games and was 26 of 42 for 343 yards. Barry Foster ended a Steelers' streak of 13 consecutive quarters without an offensive TD with a 10-yard score midway through the fourth quarter.

Dan Marino (31 of 45 for 312 yards and a TD) led the Dolphins (7-4) to a game-tying, 48-yard field goal by Pete Stoyanovich on the final play of regulation.

"They're playing as well as anybody in the league," Marino said. "But it just seems we can't get enough things going to give our defense the opportunity to make some plays. We're not scoring like we need to."

Bills 29, Packers 20

At Orchard Park, N.Y., Kelly hit Reed for first-half scores of 10 and 15 yards and the receiver finished with a team-record 15 catches for a career-best 191 yards. Kelly's total of 365 yards was his best in 2½ years and the fourth-best of his career.

"We didn't get where we're at by arguing," Reed said of his publicized verbal feud with Kelly during the week. "I think Jim has enough confidence in me ... that when it's put-up or shut-up time, and it's time to get the ball downfield and make the first down, when it's third-and-5 or third-and-6, he's looking to me."

Green Bay (6-5) trailed 24-6, but pulled within 27-20 as Brett Favre hit Sterling Sharpe with two second-half TDs. The Bills (6-5) clinched the win when Green Bay's Joe Sims was called for holding Phil Hansen in the end zone, giving Buffalo a safety with 1:51 to go.

Bruce Smith missed the game for Buffalo with an injured shoulder, while Green Bay lost Reggie White in the third quarter to a sprained left elbow.

Chiefs 20, Browns 13

At Kansas City, Mo., the Chiefs (7-4), playing without seven starters, took advantage of Mark Rypien and Vinny Testaverde's ineffectiveness to beat Cleveland, which was called for 15 penalties for 142 yards.

Browns coach Bill Belichick called it "our worst game of the year."

Anders' 1-yard plunge with 7:46 left capped a 69-yard, fourth-quarter drive. The Browns (8-3) were driving in the final minute when Derrick Thomas sacked Rypien and stripped the ball, which Kansas City recovered.

Patriots 23, Chargers 17

Marion Butts let San Diego (8-3) know he's still a force as he ran for 88 yards and a TD to lead New England (5-6) at home.

Butts, obtained in a draft-day trade to add power and consistency, averaged just 42 yards in his first 10 games. Natrone Means, who replaced Butts for the Chargers, was held to 59 yards, but he's now at 1,006 for the season.

Drew Bledsoe, who set NFL records of 45 completions and 70 attempts last week, was 21-for-36 for 224 yards and one TD, while Stan Humphries was intercepted three times and sacked five times.

Cardinals 12, Eagles 6

At Tempe, Ariz., Greg Davis had four field goals and Arizona (5-6) gave Buddy Ryan a satisfying win over Philadelphia, a team he used to coach.

Ryan's 46 defense held Randall Cunningham (17 of 44 for 151 yards) in check as the Eagles (7-4) managed only two field goals by Eddie Murray. Arizona lost tackle Luis Sharpe and wide receiver Randal Hill with leg injuries.

Broncos 32, Seahawks 28

John Elway engineered the 34th game-saving drive of his career by running 4 yards for a score with 1:56 left after throwing for two second-half TDs, rallying the Broncos (5-6) at Mile High Stadium.

Jeff George had four TD pass and staked Atlanta (5-6) to a 28-17 lead early in the final period. Elway finished 27 of 42 for 382 yards, the third-highest yardage total of his career, while George was 19 of 43 for 254 yards.

With six minutes left, Elway drove the Broncos 57 yards for the winning score.

Raiders 24, Saints 19

Jeff Hostetler was 22 of 28 for 310 yards and three touchdowns — two to Tim Brown — as the Raiders moved over .500 for the first time this season. The game in Los Angeles was played before a crowd of only 41,722.

The Saints (4-7) made it close at the end when Jim Everett threw two TD passes to Torrance Small in the final 3:49 to close within five points.

Bears 20, Lions 10

Chicago (7-4) kept the ball away from Barry Sanders at Soldier Field and the Bears wound up with their third straight win. Lewis Tillman carried 32 times for 126 yards and a TD.

Sanders, coming off a career-best, 237-yard effort against Tampa Bay last week, was held to 42 yards on just 11 carries, his second lowest output of the season. The Lions fell to 5-6.

The Bears ran more than twice as many plays as the Lions — 76-36 — and had a 28-minute advantage in time of possession as Steve Walsh improved his record to 6-0 as a starter.

Colts 17, Bengals 13

Don Majkowski threw an 8-yard TD pass to Sean Dawkins with 1:54 left to end the two-game winning streak of Cincinnati (2-9) and Jeff Blake.

The Colts (5-6) took away Blake's deep passing all game and Ray Buchanan intercepted him in the end zone with 45 seconds left to seal their fifth victory at Riverfront Stadium in the last six years.

Blake, playing on a bruised left ankle, was 21 of 37 for 207 yards. Majkowski finished 14 of 24 for 165 yards.

Seahawks 22, Buccaneers 21

Third-stringer Mack Strong scored on a 7-yard run with 42 seconds left and John Kasay's extra point gave Seattle a victory before the smallest non-strike crowd in the Seahawks' 19-year history. String was playing for Chris Warren, who went out with a hip injury.

Only 37,466 fans showed up — there were 17,234 no-shows — in the Kingdome as Seattle (4-7) ended a six-game losing streak. The Bucs (2-9) lost their sixth straight and clinched Tampa Bay's 12th consecutive losing season.

49ers 31, Rams 27

SAN FRANCISCO — Jerry Rice made up for a fourth-quarter fumble by catching his third touchdown pass from Steve Young, an 18-yarder with 1:56 left, as San Francisco rallied to beat Los Angeles.

Rice had a club-record 16 catches for 165 yards, and the last was the most important, finishing a 67-yard, 10-play drive for a sixth straight win by San Francisco (9-2).

Los Angeles (4-7) reached the San Francisco 38 in the final moments, but could get no further. Chris Miller had four straight incompletions, including a game-saving deflection in the end zone by Deion Sanders of a pass intended for Flipper Anderson.

Sanders earlier had been beaten by Anderson for a score.

Young threw for 325 yards and four touchdowns, completing 30 of 44 passes. Miller nearly pulled the game out for the Rams with a pair of second-half scoring throws, and completed 16 of 33.

Couples, Faxon win shootout

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Fred Couples and Brad Faxon opened with eight straight birdies and finished with a 58.

That's good enough for a runaway victory at most tournaments, but not at the Shark Shootout. With the many of the world's best golfers playing a scramble format, scores in the high 50s and very low 60s were the norm Sunday.

And Couples and Faxon, despite the amazing start, were trailing by one shot heading into the 16th hole.

Then, an eagle "3" put them ahead to stay.

Faxon hit a 4-iron approach within 8 feet on the par-5, 537-yard hole, and Couples made the putt.

"What a great shot he hit," Couples said. "We knew just before we hit our approach shots that someone had taken a one shot lead over us. Brad's shot gave us the chance to take the lead for good and we only needed to finish the tournament with pars to win."

Couples and Faxon finished their round at 14-under-par 58 for a three-day total of 190. They split the $300,000 first prize.

In second place were Curtis Strange and Mark O'Meara, who also closed at 58 for a 192 total. Each earned $85,000. Chip Beck and Jeff Maggert took third place with a final-round 60. Each earned $58,000.

Pebble Beach Invitational

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Robert Gamez, using powerful drives and inexperience to his advantage, shot a 1-under-par 71 on and cruised to a six-stroke victory in the Pebble Beach Invitational.

Gamez, 26, who hasn't won a PGA Tour event since his rookie season four years ago, sank four straight birdies early in the final round at Pebble Beach and built an 11-stroke lead. He bogeyed four of the last seven holes but still finished four rounds at 11-under 277.

Kirk Triplett, a non-winner in five PGA seasons, also shot a 71 and finished at 283 in the non-tour event that featured 72 former and current members of the PGA, Senior PGA and LPGA tours.

Mexican Open

MEXICO CITY — Chris Perry, getting a lift with birdies on three of his first six holes, shot a 6-under-par 66 to win the $600,000 Mexican Open by one stroke.

Perry finished with a 14-under-par 274 and won $100,000, the largest prize of his 11-year professional career.

In second place was Bob Tway, who shot a 69 and finished at 275. John Cook was third at 276.

COWBOYS: Peete throws TD pass

(From 1C)

Aikman was hurt in the second quarter when he was tackled around the knees by linebacker Ken Harvey. Aikman called timeout, limped to the sidelines, then accompanied Cowboys doctors to the locker room. Wearing a knee brace, Aikman was taken to a hospital for an MRI. He hit 8 of 13 passes for 87 yards before he was hurt.

After the injury, Peete threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Alvin Harper to give Dallas a 24-7 halftime lead. Kevin Williams then dashed 83 yards on a punt return for a touchdown as Washington's record dipped to 2-9.

Peete jammed his thumb in the third period when hit by defensive end Dexter Nottage. Peete could barely grip the ball after the injury, but X-rays of the thumb were negative.

"I'll know more about my injury tomorrow," Peete said. "I'm worried about the ligament. I want to play Thursday. I just hope I can."

O'Neill wasn't so sure.

"Rodney could possibly have significant ligament damage," O'Neill said. "We'll have to wait and see. He has an appointment with a thumb specialist in the morning."

The Cowboys (9-2) also lost guard Derek Kennard with a toe injury and linebacker Godfrey Myles with a knee injury during the game.

"It's ugly for the Cowboys right now," said guard Nate Newton, who also was hurt. "It's an epidemic."

Washington trickery backfired after Brian Mitchell returned the opening kickoff 66 yards to the Dallas 23. On second down, Mitchell tried a halfback pass, but cornerback Kevin Smith intercepted in the end zone.

The Cowboys drove 80 yards in 10 plays, with Smith scoring on an 8-yard run on which he carried linebacker Andre Collins the last 2 yards.

After a missed 53-yard field goal, Dallas went 56 yards in four plays, with Smith scoring on a 3-yard run.

Then James Washington intercepted Gus Frerotte's pass and returned it 15 yards to the Washington 20. Chris Boniol kicked a 32-yard field goal for a 17-0 first-quarter lead.

John Friesz, who began the season as Washington's No. 1 quarterback, replaced Frerotte and hit Desmond Howard with a 19-yard touchdown pass.

Heath Shuler also played for the Redskins, meaning six quarterbacks played in the game.

"Who will our quarterback be next week?" said Washington coach Norv Turner. "That's a good question. We'll make a decision next week. We didn't play well today. We were out of it early. Gus didn't have a good day."

It was the first time Dallas swept Washington in their annual two-game series in 10 years. The Cowboys beat Washington 34-7 earlier in the year.

Jones said the Cowboys will launch a search for backup quarterbacks.

"We'll look for quarterbacks throughout the league, but for Thanksgiving will go with what we got," Jones said.

Dallas is only $40,000 under the salary cap, which limits their efforts.

"We've got to find us a quarterback," said Dallas coach Barry Switzer. "There's none at the 7-11. But we have to find somebody.

"We can't rack the table and quit. We still have to play the last five balls. All I know, six quarterbacks in one game has to be an NFL first. It at least ties a record."

REBELS: Miller tenure is tenuous

(From 1C)

Linebacker B.J. Honeyman said, "We have to pick it up another level with each passing week now, but we're going to be playing at home with a lot of people there. It's going to be exciting."

Lee offensive lineman Luis Araujo said, "We have to play harder now. We're going to be at home and you don't want anybody to come into your own backyard and beat you. We're going to have everyone in Midland watching us this time."

And while Lee is back on the offensive track, Rebel coach Earl Miller knows his nine-year coaching era at Lee could end with any outing at this stage of the season. And he also knows that his defense will have to rise to a greater height.

"There are no weak teams left for us to play," Miller said. "It's tough from here on out. I was glad to see our offense pick it up. The additional back with some speed helped a lot, but the one thing I was disappointed with in the Riverside game was giving up too many first downs on third and long situations. That's killed us all year long and we've got to stop that now, or we won't beat the good teams left in the playoffs."

Sabatini takes Slims

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Gabriela Sabatini's 2½-year search for a title ended in triumph Sunday with one of the biggest: the Virginia Slims Championships.

"It's been a long time," Sabatini said. "I've had a lot of frustration, a lot of tough matches that I lost."

The Argentine, playing in her 44th tournament since last winning a final, overcame her own double-faults and a mistake-prone Lindsay Davenport 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 at Madison Square Garden.

"It's good to know my game is not lost, that it's still good enough to win," she said.

The victory was worth $250,000, but even more rewarding was the confidence-building week that saw Sabatini begin by sending Martina Navratilova into early retirement.

ATP Championship

FRANKFURT, Germany — Top-ranked Pete Sampras survived a barrage of aces and beat Boris Becker 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4, winning his second IBM-ATP Tour World Championship title.

Sampras, who also won in 1991, became the first two-time champion since the inception of the tour-ending event in 1990.

"This ends the year on a great note," he said.

Sampras earned $1.225 million for his victory over Becker, who rose two places to No. 3 in the rankings despite the loss. Sampras increased his 1994 winnings to $3,607,812.

Sampras lost his serve only once, in the first set. Once he broke Becker in the second set, he took command of the match.

The critical moment came in the sixth game, when Becker served five double-faults and suffered his first break.

"I can't explain what happened," Becker said. "I lost my touch for five minutes and he took advantage of the opportunity."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Take a long, realistic look at a business or romantic situation. It is time to plant both feet firmly on the ground and concentrate on achieving your career goals. When you tackle things one at a time, productivity rises! Sharpen your powers of observation. Evaluating the competition's methods will help you improve your own performance.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: box office favorite Goldie Hawn, New Yorker editor Tina Brown, baseball slugger Ken Griffey Jr., jockey Barbara Jo Rubin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Taxes and insurance matters may be uppermost in your mind. Advice from your mate or another interested party will contribute to your financial security.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A former employer or co-worker gets in touch. Seize an unexpected opportunity to increase your income. Although creative endeavors are favored, you should resist making large cash outlays. Read or listen to enchanting music tonight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The business pace is strenuous but profitable. An appreciative employer or client may direct extra funds your way. A promotion is possible. Do not get caught in the undertow of an emotional relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Steer clear of any venture that requires you to deplete your financial reserves. Maintaining a good credit rating is very important. Be tolerant of a friend who acts impatient or irritable. Offer a sympathetic ear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Dignified behavior is essential if you want to protect your prestige. Do not draw attention to yourself today if you can possibly avoid it. Take the high road if a disagreement arises with a close associate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Complete old business during the morning. You are not the only person feeling apprehensive about a new trend or development. Be prepared to alter your overall plan. Romance requires finesse. Show your thoughtful side.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Enlisting the backing of strong allies will help you attain your long-range objectives. Do some research. Gathering the latest facts and figures will allow you to present a solid case. Crunch some numbers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An unconventional attachment or speculative venture could prove costly. Cultivate friendlier relations with your co-workers. An enjoyable surprise is possible this evening. Your idea of pleasure may differ from that of your friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Real estate purchases and other sound ventures should be the only investments considered now. Those who advise taking chances are wrong. Balance self-expression with partnership needs. Show more interest in community affairs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take advantage of a golden opportunity for spiritual growth. Express your ideals and dreams with total conviction. Getting involved with a humanitarian project will bring a deep sense of fulfillment. Be patient with loved ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Any projects you tackle today should turn out first-rate. However, it is advisable to finish your work and head home as early as you can. The ability to speak a second language proves very helpful.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You will have less to worry about later if you keep your tax and personal accounts up to date. When shopping, pay as much attention to quality as to price. A romantic dinner buoys your spirits.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q 8 7 ♡9 4 2 ◇Q 10 6 5 3 ♣A 4

The bidding has proceeded:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1♠	Pass	1◇	Pass
1♡	Pass	1NT	Pass
2NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A - Your one-no-trump rebid limited you to a maximum of 9-10 points, yet partner still invited game. Your five-card suit and high honor in partner's suit improve your holding beyond its high-card count, so accept. Bid three no trump.

Q. 2 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K 9 4 ♡Q J 7 ◇A 9 8 6 ♣A K 10

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2◇	Pass	2♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A - This is not clear, by any means. Partner could have six clubs and four diamonds, so we are somewhat in favor of bidding two diamonds now. However, if you chose the rather more conservative raise to three clubs, that could easily be the winning action.

Q. 5 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A Q 10 7 3 ♡A ◇K J 10 6 4 ♣10 9

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2◇	Pass	2♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A - You have a fair two-suiter with reasonable suits, so there is no reason why you should not complete the picture of your distribution. Bid three diamonds.

Q. 6 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q 9 8 5 2 ♡Q 10 6 5 ◇5 2 ♣Q 4

The bidding has proceeded:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1◇	Pass	1♠	Pass
3◇	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A - Partner's jump to three diamonds is invitational, not forcing. You have as little as the law allows for your initial response, and no reason to presume that partner has either four hearts or three spades. Pass.

The bidding has proceeded:

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
1♠	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♣	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A - This is not clear, by any means. Partner could have six clubs and four diamonds, so we are somewhat in favor of bidding two diamonds now. However, if you chose the rather more conservative raise to three clubs, that could easily be the winning action.

Q. 5 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠A Q 10 7 3 ♡A ◇K J 10 6 4 ♣10 9

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass

The bidding has proceeded:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1NT	Pass	2♣	Pass

What action do you take?

A - Partner might have next-to-nothing for the correction to two spades. Since you have only 17 high-card points, a flat hand and just moderate three-card support, it would be presumptuous of you to look for game. Pass.

Q. 3 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠4 ♡K 8 7 5 ◇A Q 9 3 2 ♣8 6 3

Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A - Don't count your spade singleton as worth two points, giving you a total of 11, which would justify a response of two diamonds. A singleton in partner's suit is a flaw, not an asset, and should be discounted. Respond one notrump to deny the values for a two-over-one response.

Q. 4 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

Emma Thompson's stiff-upper-lip image gets tweak in her latest film

NEW YORK — Emma Thompson's image as a right-thinking Englishwoman with a stiff upper lip and a classy accent gets a tweak in her latest film.

Emma Thompson's image gets a tweak in new film.

And how did the epitome of Brit gentility, hit it off with the megastar Austrian body-builder?

Suffice it to say that when they met, she said, "I'm sorry. I have to touch you. Can you lie down on the floor?"

"And she was rolling around with me on the floor," Schwarzenegger says in Sunday's New York Times. "I was laughing my head off over the whole approach. She broke the ice very quickly, so we could get down to work."

LOS ANGELES — Santa Claus? Get real, says Mara Wilson, the 7-year-old scene-stealer in John Hughes' remake of 1947's "Miracle on 34th Street."

Unlike the little girl she plays in the movie, Mara has a hard time believing in Santa. In fact, she's got a decidedly adult slant on the film's true meaning.

"The movie's about having faith in someone that can take care of you, whether that's God or Santa Claus or the Tooth Fairy," she says.

"Miracle on 34th Street" is Mara's second major film in two years. Last year, she played one of Robin Williams' children in the "Mrs. Doubtfire."

PARIS — Brigitte Bardot has a fashion tip: Fur is not sexy.

The actress-turned-activist led about 400 people in a parade past some of France's biggest fur-stocking stores in an animal-rights demonstration Saturday.

Brigitte Bardot has a fashion tip: Fur is not sexy.

Bardot's supporters doffed their bloodstained fur coats at the opera house and set many of them ablaze.

Two hundred fur industry workers held a counter-protest nearby. No clashes were reported.

CABOT, Ark. — President Clinton isn't the only one Paula Jones upset with her claim that he sexually harassed her when he was governor.

"It's turned the family against each other. For her to risk all that for this, I don't understand. She's not the same sister I grew up with," said Charlotte Brown.

"She shouldn't be putting everybody through this," Brown told the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette from the 60-foot mobile home she shares with her husband, Mark.

"We're talking hatred," he said. "Not just between sisters. You've got cousins, uncles, aunts, great-aunts."

DENVER — The house where Golda Meir spent two years crucial to her political and intellectual development will become a museum and conference center.

Golda Meir house to become museum, conference center.

Meir lived in the house while she was in high school here in 1913-14. She went on to lead Israel as prime minister from 1969-74, and died in 1978.

"It was a turning point in my life because it was in Denver that my real education began," Meir once wrote.

In the kitchen of the brick duplex, young men and women shaped the idea of a national Jewish homeland.

"This was the gathering place," said Mary Ferrell, director of the Auraria Foundation. "Some people see this as the birthplace of Israel in the U.S."

The building will house the new Golda Meir Center for Political Leadership.

Maureen Reagan and Dennis Revell, who live in Sacramento, have adopted an 11-year-old girl from Uganda, says Washingtonian magazine. Reagan first encountered the child through a charity that arranges long-distance financial "adoptions."

Martha Stewart, arbiter of good taste and potted plants, tells the latest issue of TV Guide that she doesn't like "Roseanne" or most sitcoms, and David Letterman is "getting extremely silly."

SWIM: Stroman captures two firsts in all-star meet the swim, the meet was more like a gathering of friends for a friendly dip at the swimming hole.

Swimmers from across the state paid their $10 entry fee and made the trek to try and make a respectable showing and cut into their times.

Twelve Midland swimmers were coming off a District 4-5A swim meet. A full day of preliminary qualifying on Friday and the finals on Saturday tested their endurance on Sunday.

Monica Stroman, a junior from Midland High, captured two firsts — the 200 meter butterfly and the 200 meter individual medley.

Stroman started slow, but kicked it into high gear during the breaststroke and freestyle legs of the race to come-from-behind to win with a time of 2 minutes, 10.6 seconds.

"I didn't swim very well during the first half," said Stroman, one of three COM swimmers already qualified of the Junior National Championship West Swim Meet March 21-25.

And when asked if swimming Sunday after two days of events in San Angelo was tough, Stroman and her teammates Stephanie Kimble, Susie Carnett and Candice Apperson gave a resounding "Oh yeah."

Carnett was hoping for a time of 2: 14.0 in the 200 butterfly. She finished with a time 2: 13.17 for a second place finish to Stroman after leading much of the race.

Sunday also was a good measuring stick for the COM meet officials. It served as a good tuneup in preparation for the Junior Nationals.

"The Junior Nationals won't be as stressful as today's meet," said Brad Swendig, COM swim coach. "The numbers will be greater, but we will have all of that stuff inputed into the system before the start of the meet. Today, the coaches are not giving us the name of the entrant until right before the event."

Here are the winners of each individual event and the Midland finishers at the Texas All-Star swim meet Sunday at the Mabee Memorial Aquatic Center.

Gilliam dunks Clippers

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Armon Gilliam took a fast-break pass from Kenny Anderson and dunked over two defenders with 7.7 seconds to play Sunday night, giving the New Jersey Nets a 98-97 victory over the winless Los Angeles Clippers.

The Nets, who won their third in a row at home, rallied from a 15-point third-period deficit and handed the Clippers their ninth straight loss.

Derrick Coleman had 20 points and 14 rebounds, Anderson had 20 points and 10 assists, Chris Morris added 14 points and Gilliam 13.

Pooh Richardson led Los Angeles with 19 points, while Tony Massenburg and Terry Dehere each had 16 while Elmore Spencer added 15.

Kings 96, Cavaliers 88

SACRAMENTO — Rookie Brian Grant scored 12 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter to lead Sacramento to a victory over Cleveland.

Grant scored six of the Kings' last seven points and Michael Smith had six of his 13 points in the fourth quarter.

Grant and Smith helped Sacramento overcame a sub-par performance by Mitch Richmond, who scored 14 points, 11 below his average. The Kings also were without point guard Spud Webb, who has a sprained left ankle.

■ NBA Roundup

Trail Blazers 98, Pistons 96

PORTLAND, Ore. — Clifford Robinson scored 26 points and James Robinson, playing out of position at point guard, scored 24 as Portland overcame a 35-point performance by Joe Dumars and beat Detroit.

Clifford Robinson made two free throws with 15 seconds left to give Portland a 96-94 lead, and he made another with 8.7 seconds left to increase the lead to three.

Texas Tech draws closer to Cotton Bowl

Associated Press

Another week, another step closer to the Cotton Bowl for Texas Tech.

The Red Raiders beat Houston 34-0 on Saturday, meaning they can capture their first Southwest Conference title as soon as Thanksgiving if Texas beats Baylor.

Going into the final week of the regular season, only Texas Tech and Baylor remain as possible hosts for the Cotton Bowl on Jan. 2 in Dallas, since No. 8 Texas A&M (6-0-1) is on probation and ineligible for the title.

Baylor can go to the Cotton Bowl only by beating Texas on Thursday, combined with a Tech loss to Texas Christian on Friday in Fort Worth. If the Bears lose to Texas, the Cotton Bowl berth belongs to the Raiders regardless how they do against TCU.

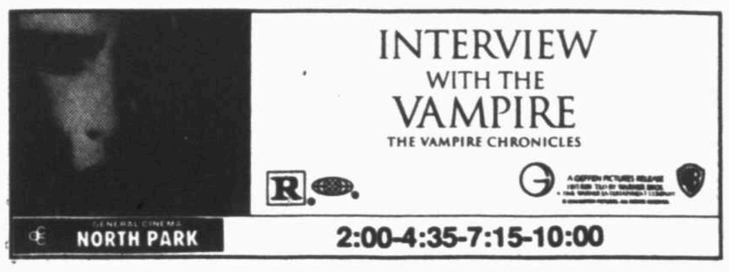

Both Baylor and Tech have 4-2 SWC records, while Texas, Texas Christian and Rice are 3-3.

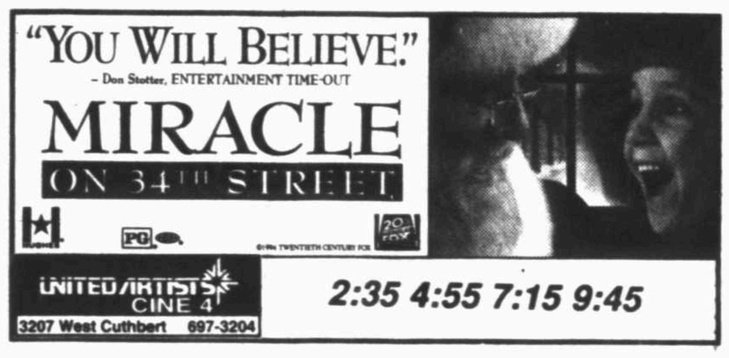

But Tech has the edge on any tie-breaker that would apply. In case of a two-way tie with Baylor, Tech has its 38-7 victory over the Bears in their head-to-head meeting. In case of a multi-team tie, Tech would go via the "last appearance" tie-breaker, since the Red Raiders have never represented the SWC in the Cotton Bowl.

The Red Raiders (6-4, 4-2 Southwest Conference) have known since Saturday a week ago that they were in control of their destiny, and they came out firing against Houston. The victory was their first shutout of the year.

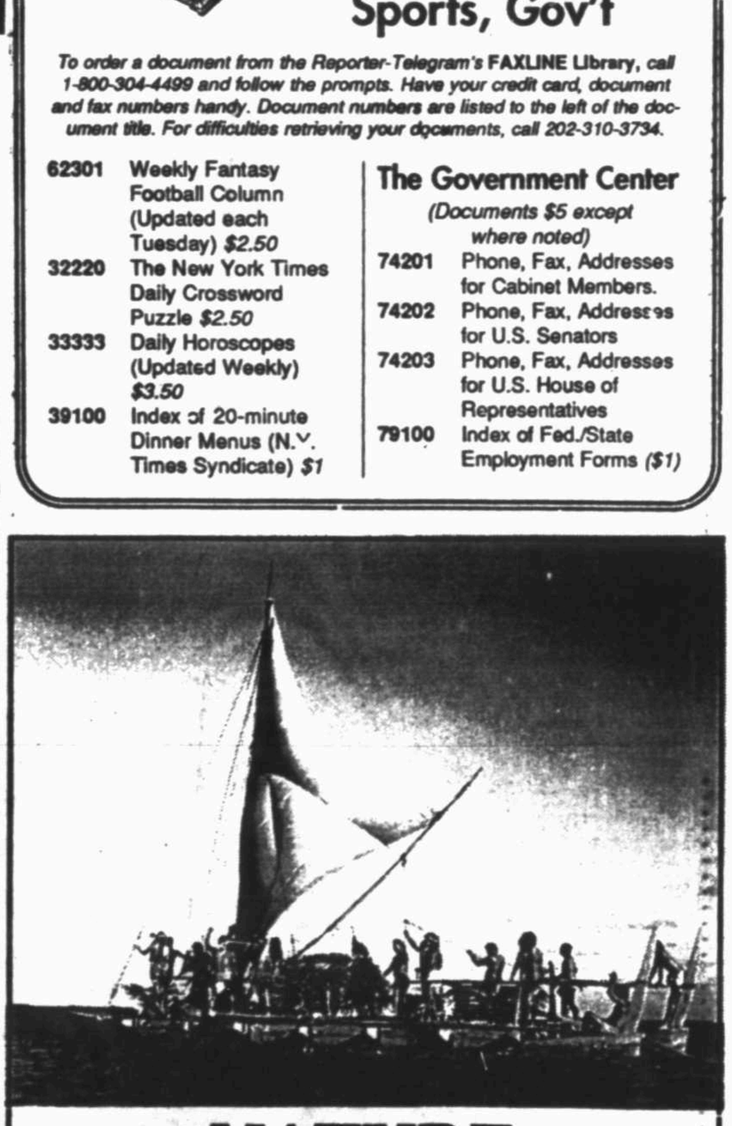

"The kids did a good job considering what they heard all week," Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "Their concentration was excellent. They have done a good job of keeping everything in perspective. This team is very unique.

"This team has a little something that is different. Unselfishness, work ethic and practice hard — all of those things describe them."

HIGH SKY AREA
LOOKING FOR EXTRA INCOME
OR A STEADY PART TIME JOB.....
Does a Weekly and Monthly Income Sound Appealing????

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on one of its "Special Allowance" routes. This route receives a regular income from rack sales, $250 per month gas allowance in addition to the regular monthly route profits.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a P/T, a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work which allows for time to go to your "regular job".

Newspaper distributorships can provide great supplemental income for housewives and/or mothers, senior citizens, college students or any other adult wanting to "moonlight".

Apply in person or contact:

Ronnie Griffith 687-8805

$100 Deposit is required

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on on of its few "Special Allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday in addition to the regular monthly route profits. The route is between Cotton Flat and Rankin Hwy. - also the Downtown Area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for anyone willing to work early morning hours. These routes require a small deposit.
