White Scathingly Rebukes "Wet" Views and Tammany Affiliation of Democratic Nominee.

(By Associated Press.)
ALBANY, N. Y., July 14.—Governor Smith turned today on an old political foe, the Rev. O. B. Miller, superintendent of the New York civil league—and accused him of circulating false information about his legislative record.

He also trained his gaze on William Allen White, the Kansas editor, who in a campaign speech the other night attacked the democratic presidential nominee.

Mainly stirred, Smith declared Mr. White in assailing him had accepted the misleading word of Miller.

For years, Miller, who has been active in advocating social reform, and the governor have been at odds. Today, moved to comment on an inquiry regarding White's attack from a newspaper man, Smith said he was satisfied Miller was back of it all. He declared that an unfair and uncalculated effort was being made to have it appear that he had favored the liquor interests and had turned thumbs down on legislation designed to curb gambling and commercial vice.

"White knows nothing about what has been happening here in Albany," the presidential nominee said.

Should Know Better.
"He's repeating what Miller, who has been thoroughly discredited, has told him. No one places any Democratic Chairman Suggests Scheme To Make Liquor Available For Consumption In Home.

BOSTON, July 14. (AP)—A system which would make intoxicating liquor available for home consumption is advocated in a letter sent to John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, by a committee of democratic party members throughout the country and delegates to the democratic convention at Houston. The letter was made public here today by members of the Massachusetts democratic committee.

The letter which is thought to have been the outcome of a letter from P. H. Callahan, of Louisville.

Building Active Permits For Week Are $103,000

Another unprecedented building boom was set in Lubbock last week.

Nineteen building permits were issued during the week for a total of $103,000 to surpass any previous mid-summer building period. Fifteen of the permits were for residences. Only one other permit this year exceeded the above figure, and that was the week ending May 30 when 25 permits were issued for a total of $114,750.

The week's activities set the July aggregate of 28 permits to a total of $143,100.

The year's total now hovers near the two million dollar mark, the three hundred and ninety-two permits totalling $1,529,328.

Good Will Tour To Hobbs And Nearby Towns Is Set For Friday Of This Week

Intent upon impressing further that the city of Lubbock is co-operating to advance the development of the South Plains and is willing and desirous of serving the section in every way possible a caravan of Lubbock automobiles will leave here at 7 o'clock Friday morning, July 20, on a good-will trip to the new oil field at Hobbs, New Mexico, just beyond Segreaves, according to a statement issued yesterday by officials of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. The trip is being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Avalanche-Journal.

It is the plan, officials said yesterday, to have as many as fifty cars of citizens to make the trip and if possible twice that many. Fifty cars are wanted, at the least they said. Everybody that's interested in the growth and development of the section is especially wanted for the trip, they said.

All towns between here and the field will be visited by the group. Short stops will be made at Brownfield, Segreaves, Seminole, Tatum and Lovington. Lunch will be served in Segreaves and the group will visit Hobbs soon after the noon hour. They will visit the field for about two hours and expect to reach back toward Lubbock about 4 o'clock.

All business men of the city, especially real estate men, wholesale house representatives, bankers and others, are requested to make the trip. Lubbock appears to be the only town in the section that has a regular outlet for the field due to the excellent highway and rail facilities offered here.

Typical officials of the Chamber of Commerce including President B. Sherrill are to work on the trip this week in the hopes of sending out one of the greatest good-will caravans that ever visited the section.

State Wins Large Sum As Judgment From Oil Firms

$617,146 Ordered Returned To State, As Result Of Litigation Over Hutchinson Lands.

(By Associated Press.)
AUSTIN, July 14.—Judgment for cash totaling $617,146 from three oil companies and for 419.3 acres of valuable oil lands in Hutchinson county, was awarded the state late Saturday by District Judge George Calhoun in the state suit for the land, which recently was found by a jury to be vacant of title and consequently owned by the state.

The cash award was in settlement for profits made by oil companies during their operations on the acreage. The state got judgment for $399,969.48 from the Gulf Production company, $218,728.65 from the Phillips Petroleum company and $30,428.43 from the Marland Oil company of Texas.

Claims of Robert E. O'Keefe and Bart E. Hinkley, Jr., to rights in the land were rejected after filing mineral permits application and of J. A. Whitteburg, because of application to purchase it outright, were disallowed and thrown out. Judgment given against Ed N. Trigg, one of the fifty odd defendants in the suit, was for $100,000 and subject to his right to purchase the land from the state under his application of inquiry March 1, 1928.

Judgment was given to the Johnson Ranch Royalty company, DeWitt Oil company, Shelly Oil company and Sophie Wetzel, her husband, William E. Wetzel, quieting their title to the unawarded land described in the state's third amended petition. This acreage is outside the 419 acres which the state recovered.

EARLY RULING

Promise Decision On Cameron County Ballot

SAN ANTONIO, July 14. (AP)—Justice of the fourth court of civil appeals tonight promised litigants in the Cameron county ballot case a decision at the earliest possible moment.

The court today heard representatives of state senator Thomas B. Love contend that the Cameron county Democratic executive committee, under the law, is compelled to print Love's name on the ballot as a candidate for lieutenant governor. Counsel for the committee argued that Love's stand against the presidential candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Smith disqualified him for a place on the Democratic ticket.

Principals In The Dallas Church Row

Rev. Earl Anderson, (top), Baptist pastor in Dallas, was jailed for violating an injunction against the building of his new tabernacle, which did not conform to fire and safety standards. Meanwhile women church members tried to complete the structure. Judge Towne Young (below) ordered work on the building stopped, under penalty of arrest. The city building inspector condemned the tabernacle as unsafe.

Service Stressed As Prime Motive For Farm Bureau

L. R. Campbell of Dallas Association Office Speaks At Regular Meeting Of Organization Here.

Heralding the bettering of agricultural conditions in Texas, L. R. Campbell, secretary of the state Federation Farm Bureau Association, spoke at the regular meeting of the county farm bureau association in the district courtroom at the courthouse yesterday afternoon.

More than 100 members of the bureau attended the meeting and Mr. Campbell was given a rousing reception. He expressed his belief as the predominant motive of the state wide agricultural movement now being staged by the association.

Other members of the program yesterday included an address by R. E. Overstreet, state director of the district 18 of the farm bureau association; report of the delegation that attended the recent meeting at Levelland; and a talk by J. D. Tinsley, agricultural agent of the Santa Fe.

A committee was appointed at the meeting yesterday to select the next location for the convention. Douglas Pound was chairman of meeting.

In cooperation with local authorities of the association and farm work tests will be made with a new discovered chemical. The chemical was introduced here by Mr. Campbell, and with it it is hoped to create a new advanced stage in the agricultural development of the South Plains. The chemical is supposed to kill blue-weed and other troublesome weed growth.

COOLIDGE PRESENTS OFFICIAL SYMPATHY

Every Possible Honor To Be Given By United States And by People of Mexico to Beloved Idol.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, July 14. — Capt. Emilio Carranza tonight lay under the flags of two nations—Mexico and the United States—whose people he had sought to unite more closely.

The Mexican aviator's crumpled body had been brought back from the New Jersey berry patch where he crashed soon after starting a flight by which he hoped to demonstrate anew that distance and frontiers mean little in this airplane age. An inquiry at Mount Holly established that Carranza met death in a descent probably forced by mechanical trouble, and not by a bolt of lightning as was at first thought by some observers.

While plans were evolved to the nations capital for a home-coming, saddened but no less honorable than if he had swept down from the clouds in his monoplane, the public was given an opportunity to pay its tribute to the fallen flier.

The youthful form, clothed in a new uniform of a Mexican captain which rank was the last honor his country had paid him in life, lay in state in a Broadway funeral church under an honorary international guard from the United States army and the Mexican embassy.

Shortly before the "Gold Room" of the funeral church was opened to the public the Mexican consul general announced that plastic surgeons had been unable to rebuild the features satisfactorily and that the Mexican hero's body would be sealed in its coffin and placed on a flag draped catafalque before which New York's mourners might pass.

The Mexican consulate here, where the aviator's father proudly traced his line, expressed the hope that his son's death might further the peaceful project of his life, received hundreds of condolences. This tribute came from many lands and emphasized that while Mexico had lost a leader, she had gained a glorious example for her youth.

Sweetwater Chosen As Next Meeting Place

BIG SPRING, July 14.—Election of officers and selection of the next meeting place of the association constituted the final business of the annual convention of the West Texas Press association which adjourned at noon today after a two-day session.

Sweetwater was unanimously selected as the next meeting place of the association after Abilene, the other applicant for the place, had withdrawn.

Brown Pope, of Hamlin, former secretary-treasurer of the organization, was elected president to succeed Luther M. Watson, O. S. Smith, of Snyder, was elected secretary-treasurer.

James L. Dow, editor of the Lubbock Avalanche, was among the representatives attending the convention here.

WINS FROM BROTHER

Judgment At Dallas For $142,378

DALLAS, July 14. (AP)—Judgment for $142,378 in favor of Charles Pollack against Henry Pollack, his brother, has been signed by Claude McCullum in district court here.

Charles Pollack brought suit against his brother for one half interest in an estate valued at $1,500,000. After a lengthy trial a jury in Judge McCullum's court a few days ago returned a verdict on special issue and the judgment today was based on this verdict. Motion for a new trial has been filed.

Let's Go! An Editorial About A Civic Necessity

On Friday of this week the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and the Morning Avalanche and Daily Journal are sponsoring a Good Will tour to Segreaves and Hobbs, New Mexico, by way of Brownfield, Tatum, and Lovington.

To say that every citizen interested in the upbuilding of this section and in fostering Lubbock's position as the Hub of the Plains, should go, is putting it mildly. Visiting this section, which judging from present indications is likely to become a producing oil field, is more than a civic duty—it is a civic necessity.

Lubbock is interested in Segreaves and Hobbs. The best way to show that interest is to visit those places and assure their citizens of the fact. They should be officially advised that Lubbock is here to help them—here to aid them make the greatest gain and enjoy to the fullest extent their new found prosperity.

It is not necessary to cajole Lubbock citizens into joining the Good Will tour and the Avalanche-Journal realizes it. This is merely a reminder, an announcement of the plans. Lubbock's wide-awake citizens will do the rest.

Let's go to Segreaves and Hobbs on Friday.

Norwegian Ship Rescues Danish Guide, Long Lost

Was One of Party That Started Out To Carry Supplies To Italia Survivors On Arctic Island.

(By Associated Press.)
ROME, July 14.—The Stefani news agency tonight made public a report received by the Noble base ship Clitta Di Milano to the effect that the Danish guide, Varming, had been rescued from the ice near Cape Brun by the Norwegian ice breaker Braganza.

Varming was a member of the party of Alpine Chasseur Captain Sora, which set out some weeks ago to attempt to reach the Italia survivors on Foy Island. He was blinded from the glare of the ice and his two companions were forced to leave him behind with provisions. They were rescued yesterday by Swedish and Finnish airplanes from Foy Island where they had taken refuge.

If the report is true, Varming will have been the tenth person to be rescued from the icefields north of Spitzbergen since the crash of the Italia.

LONDON, July 14. (AP)—Ice floes and fog have no terrors for the Russian ice breaker Krasin, which with seven of the Noble polar expedition aboard—rescued when all hope seemed gone—is searching for other groups of missing men in the Arctic wastes.

Whirlwind Campaign of Co-operative Speaking Planned for Next Two Weeks By Local Aspirants

WHELOCK EXPLAINS PARTY BOLT ISSUE

Final Preparations Being Made for First Democratic Primary, To Be Held In 14 Days.

With only two weeks remaining in which to prepare for the first primary, officials of the democratic party in Lubbock county are speeding their final preparations for the election yesterday.

Frank E. Wheelock, democratic chairman of Lubbock county, opened preparations for the election yesterday by announcing the election officers of the various precincts, authorizing the printing of the official ballots and notifying presiding officers and judges of their duties.

In the meantime, practically all of the can't-votes were on the streets of Lubbock, Slalom and other parts of the county, shaking and lending out cards and putting through various other pre-election maneuvers.

Co-operative Speaking
This week will present another series of co-operative speaking programs for the candidates. Four programs will be given during the week.

On Monday, July 16, they will appear at Shallowater. Wednesday, July 18 will find them at the Union community, Friday at McChing, and Saturday afternoon, July 21, they will speak at Slalom.

Their program in Lubbock will be given on the night of Friday, July 27.

Mr. Wheelock somewhat clarified the party bolting question here yesterday in the presentation of a letter from the office of Attorney General Claude Pollard which stated that the party pledge, "I am a democrat," was not binding.

MARITAL DECISION

Rules Separated Husband Must Pay Wife

FORT WORTH, July 14. (AP)—A far reaching decision affecting marital rights and duties was handed down Saturday by Associate Justice Irvy Dunklin, of the second court of civil appeals in affirming the case of Stokely Martin, appellant, vs. Alameda Martin, appellee, from Tarrant county.

The holding was, in effect, that a husband who leaves his wife must pay his wife half of his wages as long as they remain married. Nor is it necessary that the wife file suit for divorce to gain half of the husband's wages. In the opinion, the wife is given the right to have her half of the wages collected from her husband's employer through a court receiver.

DALLAS, July 14. — His injured knee failing to respond to treatment, Billy Mullen, who several years ago was one of the greatest third basemen in the Texas league, has decided to quit baseball.

Mullen recently received a try-out with the Dallas Stars, but played only a few games until his "knee" knee snapped out of joint. He was the property of the St. Louis Browns.

Hooks and Slides

HEAT BURNS PUPPIES. By Cobb, who should be quite an authority on the subject, says there is nothing but the bunk in the theory that old ball players do their best in the hot weather months.

"As a fact," Cobb said recently, "old players actually suffer in the hot part of the mid-season. It isn't a matter of soupers and legs melting out in the hot sun. It is the effect of hard baked ground on sore legs. Old players can go best in early season when the moisture has not been baked out by the sun and late in the fall. It's not punishment to run on soft ground but it's murder to pound the legs on concrete."

It will be recalled that during his last days with the Tigers the outfielder and Cobb's spot in the outfield was wetted down so thoroughly each night that the club protested about wet grounds.

THE OLD SLICKER

It is obvious even to a casual glance that Cobb is almost in pain when he has to do any walking or running for the ancient Philadelphia Athletics. At least the fans are led to believe that from his actions.

But the ball players say that he is toying and grandstanding. And that he has fooled several clubs this season into thinking that when he gets to first it takes a triple to get him around.

Cobb apparently enjoys the role of being a poor crippled old ball player trying to get along but he has overdone the act so much that he hasn't fooled the smart team.

HUNTER NOT SO GOOD

The time slugging that Frank Hunter took in the Wimbledon championships by a second rater, and the great battle that George Lett gave to Rene Lacoste will make it rather difficult for Mgr. Willie Hiden to slip the Westchester publisher into the Davis Cup matches.

Hunter refused to stay in the United States and play through the early trials and the matches against Mexico, China and Japan. He insisted upon going to Europe as the second ranking American player and preparing over there for late matches.

The tennis association didn't like it and suggested, through an outside spokesman, that Hunter had forfeited his right to a place on the team. And instilling also that Hunter wasn't good enough for the team.

Tilden and Hunter are buddies and Tilden not all hot when he heard about it. He made an emphatic statement that if Hunter did not play he was certain that one other member of the squad would not play. And he obviously was talking about himself.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

George Lett is one of the few free-handed sport authors. He will say his piece about any of the other players. The others are all ethics-bound. A trainer of a racing string was charging his boss for having beaten that wasn't eaten and was caught at it and said, "I'll quit." The Chinese won't let their players have a hotel room with a window on a fire escape. When they check in they have to stay checked. And they thought at one time that the newspaper race says the pro golfers are the nicest pros in sport—as individuals and a group. Most of them are swell fellows and will tell a cub reporter their score no matter how bad they're beaten. Harry Cooper will sit down and talk even if he holds up a match for an hour. He talked to a friend for five minutes during the open before he played a tee shot. One of the officials wearing an arm band at the Olympia course told a lady reporter to "Get down there." And when she showed a press badge he said "To hell with the press!" And the gallery cheered.

Blackerby Takes Texas Loop Lead Off Worthington

Cub's Hard Hitter Made Five Out of Five For Successive Days At Bat During Past Week.

DALLAS, July 14. — George Blackerby of the Cubs, who on successive days last week hammered out five hits in five times at bat, took over the Texas league batting lead for regulars with an average of .313, 10 points better than Worthington of Houston.

He was also the big noise for the week in offensive playing, leading in hits made, runs scored and tying with Jenkins of Wichita Falls in home runs. He has scored 52 runs to 74 for Jenkins and 73 for E. Moore of Fort Worth. He has made 129 hits to 131 for Worthington and 131 for Selph of Houston. He and Jenkins have each knocked 15 homers to 14 for Miller of Dallas and 13 for Roetz of Wichita Falls.

In stolen bases, Flackamer of San Antonio retains his lead with 27 to the 22 of Moore and 19 of Selph of Waco.

The Buifs dropped out of the 300 hitting average, and is the only hurler to win 19 games. Penner of the Buifs was stopped Thursday after a run of 10 straight victories, while Hubbell of Beaumont has an unbroken run of nine.

Hallahan of Houston has run his strike out total to 149. The leading hitters, 100 times or more at bat: Blackerby, Waco, 338; Worthington, Houston, 373; Shimmers, Fort Worth, 362; Bonowitz, Fort Worth, 355; Selph, Houston, 348; Huber, San Antonio, 344; Wilson, Shreveport, 343; Snyder, Houston, 337; Battle, Waco, 339; R. Moore, Waco, 338.

PROTEST LIVELY BALL

Southern Association's Ruling Objected

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 14. — Sports writers and third basemen are complaining about the lively ball being used in the Southern association, race this season. Hot-corner guards are fearful lest their life insurance be cancelled. One or more is "handcuffed" every day by a line drive that travels with the speed of a bullet.

The southern ball is manufactured by an ex-player of the association who had an idea the fans wanted to see more hitting. They saw plenty of it during the first half, when the Birmingham Barons made more base hits than the New York Yankees in an equal number of games.

Tunney Is Worried Over Statement In Newspaper

(By Associated Press.)
SPEARSPRING, N. Y., July 14. — Statement that the New York boxing commission was controlled by "things and politicians" attributed to Otto Tunney by one of the Metropolitan newspapers so affected the champion today that he was unable to display his best form in the training ring.

Tunney was so excited about the truthfulness of the statement that he neglected his roadwork and was unwilling to put on the gloves with Harold Maya and Billy Vidale, his sparring partners.

A brief shower fell here during the afternoon and during the downpour, Tunney said to several members of his camp "I hope the rain continues. I don't feel like working today."

HEENEY BACK AT WORK

FARMINGTON, N. Y., July 14. — With automobile headlights flooding the scene, Tom Heenev was back to his training grind tonight, after loafing for 24 hours. The challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, based in his outdoor ring, under the glare of five 1000 watt lights, and in the presence of residents from nearby communities.

Amarillo Drops Its Franchise In Western League

Owners Declare They Have Put More Than $130,000 Into Club and Are Unwilling to Spend More.

AMARILLO, July 14. — At a meeting here tonight with Dale Gear, president of the Western League, owners of the Amarillo baseball club decided to give up their franchise in that league, giving as reason the fact that they had put in the money they could afford into the club, and were unable to finance it further.

They turned the franchise over to Mr. Gear and authorized him to dispose of it as he wished, in the belief the season was too far advanced to sell it. They declared that they had put in more than $130,000 into the club, and while they had assumed all debts of the organization to date were unwilling to continue operation.

The owners included R. H. Ames, president, J. O. Whittaker and vice president, Cal Fawcett, secretary, and J. H. Cotton, treasurer, and J. H. Witherspoon, directors.

Conference between the owners and Mr. Gear continued late tonight, and no information as to final disposition of the franchise was given out. However, a move to sell the club to business men to underwrite expense of club operation for the rest of the season was under way, and it was believed the club would keep its berth in the Western League for this year at least.

GRID PROSPECT DIES

Meroney Was Groomed for Mann's Place

DALLAS, July 14. — In the death of Jeff Meroney, former fullback of the Waco Tigers, the Southern Methodist University Mustangs lost the brilliant youngster who had been groomed by Coach Morrison to fill the shoes of the immortal Gerald Martin. Meroney was killed near his home in Waco when a truck went under a low bridge, a span striking the youth on the head.

Had he lived there is little doubt that the fleet Waco star would have been at quarterback when the Mustangs met the Army eleven next fall on the plains of West Point. Coach Morrison regarded Meroney as a sterling prospect.

Meroney was one of the few players ever to letter in football four years at SMU. He earned his numbers in 1923 and 1924, when the Tigers were runners up for the state championship, and was a member of the teams which won the title in 1925 and 1926. Few high school teams ever stopped him.

NO SYMPATHY

Those Complaining Of The Weather Rapped

DALLAS, July 14. — Texas league players who complain about the weather get little sympathy from either Bob Tarleton, business manager of the Dallas club, or Jakey Als, pilot of the Fort Worth Panthers.

"These boys amuse me kicking about the heat," Why Als and I used to play together in the snow and think nothing of it.

"I remember up in Rochester when Jake and I were playing shortstop and second. It was such a cold day that our fingers were stiff. We had on three sets of uniforms and mittens on our hands, the fingers cut out."

"I picked up a double play ball, tossed it to Jake and it broke one of his fingers."

Houston Youth Is Winner In Tourney

Joe Greenwood New Texas Junior Golf Association Champion As Result Of Brilliant Victory.

HOUSTON, July 14. — Holding an advantage over his opponent from the first green of the scheduled 36 hole match, Joe Greenwood today dropped a long putt to win the Texas Junior Golf Association championship and runner up honors to Forrest Lee Adams, another Houston youth.

Neither of the 19 year olds had ever won a tournament. Greenwood, who brought them through to the final of the tournament in which 61 other young Texas golfers were entered. In their morning round of 18 holes, Greenwood got an 81 above par, while Adams took 82.

Cardinal's Star
St. Louis players again figure prominently in individual achievement. In addition to ranking second in home runs, Bottomley leads in runs scored with 78 in 100 games with 12. He also is tied with Bonaparte for the greatest number of runs batted in—73. Frank Frisch tops the base hits with a string of 16, and Taylor Dentall still sets the pace with the greatest number of hits—120.

Individual honors in pitching to Cincinnati once more Ted Lunde recovered from a broken wrist suffered some weeks ago when he was hit by a ball in batting practice, fished to the rescue, of the Rhinelanders in a game against the Phillies the other day, and picked up credit for a victory when his team pulled out the decision, 5 to 3, with a rally in the ninth.

Brennan Strikes Snag
That game gave Red a record of nine victories and two defeats, enabling him to oust Larry Benion, of New York, from the pinnacle. Brennan's record came crashing down about his head in the week ending Wednesday. First he was removed from a game in Pittsburgh after he had done two rounds of rescue work, and his record for innings without relief was at an end at 152 2-3. Next he was hammered out of a game of his own in St. Louis when "ardinal home run hitters became unruly in the opening inning, snapping his string of consecutive complete games at seventeen.

In the first of these poundings, "Brennan was charged with defeat. In the other, Bill Walker pitched fine ball to win and save a game lost for the Sorrel-toe. But the die was cast to reduce the Giant to a second place with fourteen victories and four defeats.

Following Hornsby are these regular batters: P. Wanner, Pittsburgh, 342; Grantham, Pittsburgh, 362; Herman, Brooklyn, 358; Bottomley, St. Louis, 350; Slater, Boston, 348; Gouthro, St. Louis, 346; Lindstrom, New York, 344; Callaghan, Cincinnati, 343; and Roettger, St. Louis, 341.

The Pirates are on ion in team batting with a mark of .294, followed by the Cardinals, ten points lower. Cincinnati, league leader in double plays with 102, continues to set the fielding pace at .974 with a .974 margin over Chicago and St. Louis, which follow in order, each at an interval of one point.

Superstition It Plays a Part With Buffs

HOUSTON, July 14.—(AP)—Superstition, paradoxically the bane and blessing of baseball players, had little part in leading the Houston Buffs to a win in the first half of the Texas League split season and in giving them a good start in the second half.

But the Buffs do have some favorite obsessions. One is that Dick Whitworth, himself a pitcher, is a magic charm for other Buff pitchers. The superstition is that when Whitworth warms up a pitcher, hurler is going to win his game. For three consecutive days, Whitworth warmed up the Buffs with moundmen who won. He warmed up Ken Benner Bill Hallahan and Tex Carleton. Then, on the fourth day he taught Jim Lindsey's losses to a few minutes before the game. Big Jim lost, but the Buffs still believe that Whitworth charms the pitchers.

Another is that when the Buffs are winning they must sit in the same bus seat each day. Manager Frank Snyder won't let them take another bus seat until they have won a game. But when they lose, every man must find a new place to ride from the hotel to the ball park and back.

ter weather in the cotton belt. First trades showed losses of 5 to 10 points and prices continued downward after the start on anticipation of a bearish June consumption total. Until December contracts touched 20.67, or 15 points net down. Reports of rains in the eastern belt which, according to private advice, already has received too much moisture, somewhat reassured traders and December rallied to 21.00, the prices ruling when the consumption total was issued.

NEW YORK COTON

NEW YORK, July 14. (AP)—Extreme dullness characterized today's irregular stock market. Prices headed upward at the opening but the rally quickly petered out under week-end realizing sales. Total sales of 477,800 shares, were the smallest of any session since the middle of 1924.

Years that rediscunt rates may again be advanced, with a 4 per cent charge talked of in many quarters, kept trading in check. The weekly trade reviews were generally favorable, and held out hope for better business in the last half of 1924. An increase in the American federal reserve rediscunt rate brought the number of central bank citations charging 5 percent for rediscunts to four, with the other eight expected to follow suit in the near future.

Drilling Of Well On Ellwood Ranch Will Be Resumed

Operations On Test South-west of Town To Be Continued In Near Future, Says Announcement.

Drilling of the oil well on the Ellwood ranch, 17 miles southwest of here, in Hockley county, will be resumed within the next month or month and a half, it was announced last night by officials of the World Oil company of Fort Worth that is drilling the well.

The well was started in August of last year and continued until almost the end of the year when the formations found necessitated a rotary rig. The well was shut down at a depth of 1450 feet.

4000 Foot Depth.

A new Oil-Well Imperial drill has been purchased by the company and is to be installed in the near future. It is now planned to drill the well to 4000 feet and probably more. Officials state that a real test is to be made of the well and that it will be one of the deepest in the section.

Carranza

entertainment suspended. President Coolidge for whom a great celebration had been arranged for his arrival in Mexico City on Sunday telegraphed from Guadalajara directing his supporters to abandon festivities in his honor saying that he felt that Captain Carranza was the only man the Mexicans just now should honor and mourn.

The French colony made a graceful gesture which the Mexicans must appreciate, by calling off an elaborate program celebrating Bastille Day.

Sincere grief shown by Dwight W. Morrow, American Ambassador, has touched the Mexican people deeply. The fact that the ambassador rushed to the foreign office as soon as he heard of the tragedy to present his formal condolence in addition to his clear manifestation of personal sorrow and sympathy has appealed tremendously to people of all classes.

Government Will Pay Is Official Homage.

WASHINGTON, July 14. (AP)—By direction of President Coolidge, the Washington government was preparing tonight to pay homage officially to Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexican air ace, and the high purposes of international amity for which he gave his life.

Both during the time the casket remained in New York before it is placed aboard a special train and when it is turned over to the keepers of his Mexican comrades at Vera Cruz, full military and naval honors will be accorded the air hero by the army and navy of the United States.

The offer from President Coolidge to President Calles of Mexico placing the Florida at the disposal of the Mexican government as a funeral ship, went direct from the Summer White House in Wisconsin to Mexico City.

With it went personal condolence of President Coolidge at the same time Secretary Kellogg and Secretary Davis of the war department made public expressions of sympathy and of admiration for the flier which were telegraphed respectively to the Mexican foreign minister and the minister of war.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 14. (AP)—Bodies of three men were taken this afternoon from the underground tomb, a new mile long sewer tunnel where they were trapped by a flood of water just before last midnight.

Announces Stand

SEN. J. D. PARNELL

Declaring that he has never and probably never will scratch the democratic ticket, promising that if elected he will do his best to see that there will be no increase in taxation and taking a decided stand in favor of strict enforcement of the prohibition laws, Sen. J. D. Parnell, of Wichita Falls, has in the past few days gained strength in his campaign for the office of lieutenant-governor.

The only West Texan in the race, Senator Parnell is showing unexpected strength. His lengthy platform is both practical and needed, his friends say.

Raskob Plan

Ky. regarding Raskob's stand on prohibition, follows:

"Social conditions throughout our country have reached a state of decadence that demands correction."

"My feeling is that a scheme of control of the manufacture, sale, transportation, and consumption of intoxicating liquor, under which it may be had for home consumption, and prevent the return of the saloon, which was the medium through which the use of liquor was abused, in such communities as vote therefor under a local option law, would be welcomed by all."

"All right thinking people are for temperance, law and order, but we must have responsible laws if we expect them to be respected."

"All must agree that there is a wide lack of respect for the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, and so that it behooves all of us to endeavor to secure such modification of existing laws as will result in the restoration of respect for ourselves, our law and our great Constitution."

"I would appreciate having your views on this important question after reading the enclosed copy of letters to Mr. P. H. Callahan."

The ten 4-H club members from this county will represent about 300 members of the various clubs of the county. One delegate from each separate club was presented with a scholarship to the A. and M. short course.

The party from here will leave July 22, returning here a week later. More than 200 from the South Plains will attend the Farmers' Short Course.

Delegates from the clubs were selected on the basis of merit. The candidates were judged from point made in the recent 4-H club competition held at the fair grounds here. Various judging contests were held in connection with the encampment at Tech college.

vessel is under orders from Moscow to keep at her task so long as there remains any possibility of finding the group of six men carried off in the base of the Italia on May 25, when the Gondola of the dirigible crashed, and Capt. Roald Amundsen, Lieutenant Gullbrand and their companions who set out in a French plane from Norway weeks ago and have not been heard from since.

Difficult Task Ahead.

There is no inkling of the whereabouts of Amundsen and there is only a vague idea that the other group, if still alive, is some thirty miles or more from where disaster overtook the dirigible. With unfavorable atmospheric conditions the task of the Krasin is considered a most difficult one.

stock in what Miller says, but White has brains. He ought to know better."

In a speech at Olathe, Kan., Thursday night, White in review Smith's record in the New York legislature, said the governor had voted 10 times against allowing the people to vote on any sort of restriction on the sale of liquor; four times against stopping gambling and prostitution in connection with saloons; three times against repealing the law keeping the saloon open on Sunday; four times in favor of removing zoning restrictions which would keep open saloons from the close vicinity of churches and schools; and three times in favor of laws sponsored by organized gambling.

"I never heard of the man Miller, who, according to Governor Smith, was accused of supporting factory measures and I laid no great stress on that part of Smith's record. My whole contention was that his Tammany connections and his hatred of prohibition made him a menace to American institutions. But just for the sake of argument, let us presume Miller is a liar. Where does that leave Smith?"

LUBBOCK, TEXAS, SUNDAY JULY 15, 1928

Texas Primaries Will Forecast Strength Of Smith

National Issues Are Intertwined With State Rows

Republicans, Aided By The Demos Who Oppose Party Nominee, Work Hard In Hope of Tradition Break

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, July 14.—So closely are state and national politics in Texas intertwined this year that the statewide democratic primaries, July 9 and August 28, should give a clear indication of what the voters will do in the presidential election than anything that has happened thus far.

In past presidential election years, belief that Texas would go republican would gain about as much credence as a prediction that Missouri would be in the democratic column. Texas is one of the back-boned southern states, and it ever has cast its electoral vote for republican nominee for the presidency.

True to Democrats
Even in state politics, Texas has always been true to its democratic heritage. In 1924 when the party was torn asunder by the Ku Klux klan issue and "Fergusonism," Mrs.
A. Ferguson was elected governor by a comfortable majority over her G. O. P. opponent.

But despite their seemingly hopeless task, Texas Republicans are making a supreme effort this year and they are being assisted by no inconsiderable portion of democrats, who have revolted at their party's nomination of Governor Alfred E.
Smith.

Most of the leaders of the party of Jefferson have swung into line, and a few have rebelled against the dict of the Houston convention.
Among these are Thomas B. Love,
Dallas, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Judge William C.
Baskins of Breckenridge, and Mrs.
Edith E. Williams of Dallas, candidate for governor.

Anti-Smoke League Fies
Following a conference of anti-
Smith leaders in Dallas, the Republican Webb, head of the anti-Smoke League in Texas, issued an appeal to democrats to vote for those candidates who had publicly endorsed their institution, not to support the national ticket. In such case these candidates are opposed by persons who will support the party nominees from "president to postmaster."

Political observers are agreed that the primaries will not furnish a conclusive indication of the democratic trend to Herbert Hoover because so many local problems are involved in the contests for governor and lieutenant governor.

Many democrats who plan to vote in November or to vote for Mr. Hoover will cast their ballot for Governor Dan Moody because they approve of his administration, or their trust in his leadership was renewed by his never-ending fight in the national convention against a wet candidate for a "bone-dry" platform.

Lieutenant Governor
Similar conditions will affect the fight for the lieutenant governor-ship, although probably not to such great extent. Political prophets of this race, in which State Senator Love, one of the most outspoken against the New York governor, and Lieutenant Governor Harry Miller are among the leading contestants, as a clearer indication of the way the wind is blowing. But this campaign there are those who will not vote for Miller, a Smith supporter, because he is making a third term.

One other possibility that has been considered by observers is that a pledge to support the nominee will cause a number of Hoover followers to stay away from the polls altogether. The interpretation anti-Smith leaders that the edge is binding only in regard to candidates selected by primary clashes will satisfy the scruples of all of the "Hoover democrats."
It does not vote for the anti-
Smith candidates will not represent Hoover's true strength.

THE widespread public belief that Hupmobile builds a stronger as well as a more finely balanced motor car, has never been more strikingly demonstrated than in the Hupmobile Century Sixes and Eights. Here are modern high compression engines whose power may be utilized to the full without wear or strain. At high speeds, for example, oil is forced at pressure to piston pins through drilled connecting rods. Lanchester dampers eliminate the last trace of engine vibration. Advanced oil, air and crank-case cleaners provide much longer life to the wearing parts of the motor. Throughout from chassis to the sturdy and beautiful coachwork, the Century models reveal the century's greatest advance in car design. You will own a Century Hupmobile as soon as you complete your first test of its remarkable riding and driving qualities.

Mrs. D. P. Peek, of 1906 16th St., is visiting her son, H. E. Peek, of the Texas Pipeline company, at Houston. She will be gone about three or four weeks.

Mrs. Willebrandt, who died of a heart attack, was seen at the home of her son, H. E. Peek, of the Texas Pipeline company, at Houston. She will be gone about three or four weeks.

Mrs. Willebrandt was born in a frontier town in the Texas panhandle, then a part of Kansas. Her father was a country newspaper editor with a roving disposition; her childhood was spent in various parts of Texas, Missouri and Oklahoma, and by the time she was 17 the family had moved to Buckley, Mich. She took to teaching school there, and there fell in love with the high school principal. He was threatened with tuberculosis; so after their marriage, they went to a town in the Arizona desert, where she nursed him back to health.

Her marriage did not prove happy, however, and sometime afterward they separated. Mrs. Willebrandt moved to Los Angeles and plunged into work. She taught school in the day time and in the evening studied law at a night school; and after five yearing years of this she hung out her shingle as an attorney.

Unlike most budding lawyers, she did not accept any and every case that came her way. She hung onto her school teaching job and thus was able to pick and choose among prospective clients. She refused to handle any criminal cases and would not touch any divorce cases.

During the war she became chairman of the Los Angeles legal advisory board that worked in connection with the draft. She also became a member of the Republican state committee, legislative chairman of the largest women's

Broadway's Nemesis May Be First Woman Cabinet Official

Mrs. Willebrandt, Who Dried Up Gay White Way, Seen as Next U. S. Attorney General

WASHINGTON, July 14.—If Herbert Hoover should be elected president next November, it is entirely possible that the cabinet which would take office with him the following March would, for the first time in the country's history, include a woman.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, a lady who takes her job so seriously that she just had upwards of a score of Broadway bars closed, "to show New York that it is not immune to the prohibition law," is named by rumor as a possible choice for attorney general, providing the Republicans win the election.

To begin with, putting a woman in the cabinet wouldn't be a bad move politically. It would tend to make women voters feel that they had a direct interest in the party that did it.

In the second place, Mrs. Willebrandt was one of the first Hoover bootlegs.

Is Real Lawyer

In the third place—and most important of all—she has genuine ability as a lawyer and a prosecutor. For nearly seven years she has served as assistant attorney general, and she has filled her post with marked distinction. Prohibition law cases and income tax litigation have been her province, and she has set a record.

Indeed, she has been so active in liquor law prosecutions that certain wets have paid her the compliment of trying to get her "kicked upstairs." They have repeatedly urged that she be given a federal judgeship.

Mrs. Willebrandt is far from satisfied with the progress that has been made to date in prohibition enforcement. An ardent dry, she wants to see the law enforced right to the hilt, and believes it can be done.

"Give me the authority and let me have my pick of 300 men and I'll make this country as dry as it is humanly possible to get it," she once said. "There's only one way it can be done—get at the sources of supply. I know them, and I know how they could be cut off. I have no patience with this policy of going after hip-pockets, and speaking cases. That's like trying to dry up the Atlantic ocean with a blotter."

Has Made Good

When Mrs. Willebrandt was appointed an assistant attorney general by the late President Harding in 1921, the appointment was taken as a sop to the women voters. It was assumed that Mrs. Willebrandt would be given a nice office with a big mahogany desk, and nothing at all important to do. The women think they were getting recognition.

When it was announced that she would handle prohibition enforcement cases the belief was strengthened. There was at that time a feeling that the administration was not going to make any real effort to enforce the prohibition law; what more natural, then, that the job of looking after it should be given a young, inexperienced woman? Mrs. Willebrandt was then just 32.

Mrs. Willebrandt in a short time proved that, as far as she was concerned, the prohibition law was going to be enforced as strictly as any other law, if not more so. It was she who went to Cincinnati, got the evidence against the notorious George Remus and sent him to Atlanta. Then she went to Savannah and broke up the famous "Big Four" liquor ring, reputed to be the most powerful in America.

Forceful Personality

Mrs. Willebrandt's forceful personality made a marked impression on Washington. She has never been afraid to speak her mind. When the senate was investigating Harry Daugherty's regime as attorney general, and later when Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller were on trial in the alien property scandal, she spiritedly defended Daugherty, although it was hardly popular or polite to do that just then. She has always insisted that Daugherty gave her a perfectly fair trial.

Mrs. Willebrandt was born in a frontier town in the Texas panhandle, then a part of Kansas. Her father was a country newspaper editor with a roving disposition; her childhood was spent in various parts of Texas, Missouri and Oklahoma, and by the time she was 17 the family had moved to Buckley, Mich. She took to teaching school there, and there fell in love with the high school principal. He was threatened with tuberculosis; so after their marriage, they went to a town in the Arizona desert, where she nursed him back to health.

Her marriage did not prove happy, however, and sometime afterward they separated. Mrs. Willebrandt moved to Los Angeles and plunged into work. She taught school in the day time and in the evening studied law at a night school; and after five yearing years of this she hung out her shingle as an attorney.

Unlike most budding lawyers, she did not accept any and every case that came her way. She hung onto her school teaching job and thus was able to pick and choose among prospective clients. She refused to handle any criminal cases and would not touch any divorce cases.

During the war she became chairman of the Los Angeles legal advisory board that worked in connection with the draft. She also became a member of the Republican state committee, legislative chairman of the largest women's club in the city.

The work made her prominent, and her prominence grew each year. So in 1921 her name was proposed to President Harding by Republican leaders in California for an assistant attorney generalship, and she was given the appointment.

Although she is noted for the long hours she puts in at her office, Mrs. Willebrandt a few years ago felt the need of an outside interest. So she adopted the two year old daughter of a former client, who had died, and today this little girl makes her home with her.

And studied law Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt at night.

Local U. D. C. Has Program Hour On Friday Afternoon

Mmes. Fowler and Green Are Afternoon Hostesses To Historical Society In Tatum Home

MESDAMES E. W. Green and L. C. Fowler were hostesses to the U. D. C. Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. C. Tatum, 2119 15th street.

White; our duty to the Japanese in the United States, Mrs. J. K. Miller; closing hymn.

club in the city.

The work made her prominent, and her prominence grew each year. So in 1921 her name was proposed to President Harding by Republican leaders in California for an assistant attorney generalship, and she was given the appointment.

Although she is noted for the long hours she puts in at her office, Mrs. Willebrandt a few years ago felt the need of an outside interest. So she adopted the two year old daughter of a former client, who had died, and today this little girl makes her home with her.

Few Socialities In Plains Cities This Past Week

Weddings Continue Feature Of Week and Few Parties Are Given; New Club House Built At Childress.

South Plains society quieted down considerably this week, with only two weddings and very few parties taking place. Cupid seems to have taken a vacation along with everybody else. A few women are still active, however, and doing things.

The Women's Department Club of Childress opened its beautiful new club house last week, thus culminating a dream of several years.

Hanna-Stiles Wedding At San Saba July 1

Miss Lucile Hanna of San Saba and Mr. Edwin Stiles, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stiles, of Floydada, were married Sunday, July 1, at San Saba.

Mrs. Stiles is the daughter of Mr. John Hanna, recently of San Saba formerly of San Antonio. She is a graduate of West Moorland College of San Antonio and received her degree in music in the class of 27 and last school term taught music in the public schools of Sonora.

The bride's mother was for several years dean of women of the West Moorland College.

Mrs. Stiles is a graduate of the Floydada High school and was for three years a student at Texas University, where he specialized in geology. During the past year he has been in the employ of the Texas Oil company as scout geologist.

Miss Willie Merle Trapp And R. C. Halthcock Wed

Miss Willie Merle Trapp and R. C. Halthcock were married at Lockney last Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Trapp, in the presence of relatives and a few friends.

Miss Lawrence Christian played Schumann's "Traumerei" for the bride and groom to enter and continued to play it softly throughout the ceremony.

The bride's dress was of cream lace and maize Elizabeth crepe, and she carried a bride's bouquet of Colonial rose buds and sweet peas. Miss Carmo Thomas was the bridesmaid, and she was crowned in sapphire blue crepe Elizabeth.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip to Little Rock, and points in Alabama. On their return they will be at home at Lockney, Texas.

Woman's Club House Is Opened At Childress

A dream of several years was realized last week when the Women's Department club of Childress opened its beautiful new club house welcoming several hundred guests during the afternoon.

The house is of ornamental brick, built in Spanish style. On the main floor is the auditorium, library and a completely equipped kitchen. At the rear are the rooms where the caretakers will reside. Upstairs are two studios, bath and kitchenette.

The building is adequate in every respect for the needs of the club. The club house is open to members for parties and other entertainments, and non-members may rent it for that purpose.

FRIDAY NEEDLE CLUB Mrs. J. N. Denman Entertains Club In Home

Mrs. J. N. Denman was hostess to the Friday Needle club at her home, 1923 13th street, Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

After an afternoon of pleasant conversation and sewing the hostess served an ice course to Mesdames Harry Hall, W. E. Twitty, W. A. Childers, E. M. Worthy, J. A. Burrows, F. K. Mitchell, John Long, R. W. Heim and a guest, Mrs. B. L. Wright.

The next meeting is to be with Mrs. E. M. Worthy.

Local Social Club Entertained With Delightful Party

Hour of Bridge Is Enjoyed When Members and In-Home of Miss Watson Guests of Club Meet.

Miss Lillian Watson was hostess to the Kc-Jo-Ral social club of Lubbock high school yesterday afternoon at her home, 2117 15th street.

Funch was served during the progress of the games of bridge, and brick ice cream and cake was served at the close of the afternoon. A color scheme of white and red was carried out in the tables, secret pads and refreshments.

Miss Lois Harkey received high score, a dainty rosebud sashet bag and Miss Margaret Conner won low score and was presented with an orchid handkerchief.

Calculated used to say to one when one tried on a coat or dress or hat, "that's perfectly turning on you!" Now they say, "that does so much for you!" or "I really think madame, that the green does more for you than the tan!" showing how practical psychology is invading every walk of life. Here's a testimonial to its effectiveness. I'm sure if the saleslady hadn't decided that a certain green hat "did so much for you," I'd be $22.50 richer right now, but minus one green chapeau.

Camp Fire Girls Will Attend Annual Camp In August Which Is To Be Held This Year In Beautiful Ceta Canyon

Miss Cecelia Peterson Has Been In City Confering With Sponsor Board And Camp Fire Girls.

The Lubbock Camp Fire girls are to have their annual camp this year at the Baptist Encampment grounds in Ceta Canyon ten miles east of Happy.

Miss Cecelia Peterson, executive guardian of Phoenix, will be camp director this year. Miss Peterson has conducted several camps this summer and it is through the kindness of her directors that the local board is fortunate in securing her services.

The camp is to be held from August 16 to August 24. Capable craft counselors will be present; a swimming teacher; music director, cook, and a trained nurse from the Lubbock sanitarium, who will teach health and first aid. It is planned that one grown person be in attendance to every ten or twelve girls. From sixty to eighty girls are expected to attend the camp.

Schedule Is Given
The daily program is as follows: Reveille; flag raising; setting up exercises; breakfast; preparation for work; games; leisure time; lunch; rest hour; quiet hour; evening of games; newspaper work; plans for evening's stunts; leisure; supper; circle around the bon-fire; bed and tape.

In addition there will be a treasure hunt and pirate party; early pull, a dinner cooked without utensils; hikes; council fire; hand work; first aid; camp craft; nature study dramatization; games; and the printing of a camp newspaper.

Standardized Camp
The camp this year will be organized according to Camp Fire standards all over the world," said Miss Peterson in speaking of her plans. "The girls will be well taken care of by capable counselors, and I am anxiously awaiting time for the opening of the camp."

Sponsor Board Meets
Friday afternoon Miss Peterson consulted with members of the sponsor board of the local Camp Fire organization, and yesterday morning she met the girls and their mothers in an advance discussion of the camp. Miss Peterson is pleased with the reception her plans are receiving here, and the girls are filled with enthusiasm.

Last year the encampment was held at Croyston near Silver Falls lake.

TAKING OUT A NO TRUMP—4
We have emphasized the fact that it is worth one trick more to play the hand in a suit than in a no-trump. When you hold a two-suiter (that is, two suits each of five or more cards) it is usually more advisable to play the hand in a suit. It is worth about three tricks more to play the hand in one of the suits when holding a two-suiter than in a no-trump.

Bearing this in mind, when you hold two five card suits, take, on partner's untested no-trump in a suit if:

1—Both suits are majors.
2—One suit is a major and the other is a minor with some top strength.

3—Both suits are minors with both suits containing some top strength.
Bear in mind that in the last analysis the probability of making game and not the chance possibility should be the determining factor in the take-out. If you take out nothing it may lead to nothing. Your take-out must not be based on whims. If the desire to "show" be present, it must be restrained. The urge to play the hand should not encourage you to make a declaration.

The foregoing is but a guide in taking out a no-trump. It may be emphasized by saying that your take-out should convey clear and definite information. A major take-out should denote strength and a minor take-out general weakness. If your take-out is as changeable as the weather your partner will have to be a mind reader to act intelligently.

A difference of opinion may arise as to the advisability of shading slightly some of the requirements above set forth but this can only be answered by good judgment developed by experience and not by acrimony.

TECH STUDENTS WED

Miss Pauline Newton And Sylvan Sumner Marry

Miss Pauline Newton and Sylvan Sumner, were married last night at 6 o'clock, at the Baptist parsonage, 1811 Broadway, with Dr. W. R. White officiating.

Miss Newton has been a student at Tech college for the past two years and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Newton, of Idaho. Mr. Sumner attended the Tech last year. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Sumner, of Canada.

Attendees at the wedding were Misses Ruth Newton, Etta Mae Brown, and Mary Ann Miller, of Idaho. Mr. and Mrs. Sumner will be at home in a few days in Canada. Here Mr. Sumner has a position in bank.

Twin Chic In Gem Styles

EMERALDS and diamonds are the most authentic collaborators in jeweled chic this summer.

New jewelry has elinky and subtle grace.

For a deeb V town nothing could be more complimentary of a woman than a platinum necklace set with emeralds and diamonds, with a cabochon emerald pendant.

Pendant earrings, of like design and intriguing beauty. New bracelets. A few wide but so delicately designed that they never appear heavy.

Rings are apt to take geometric settings. An emerald is cut sky-scraper motif and a platinum ring has three diamonds.

welfare of those dependent on her. The difficulty with so many modern marriages, as I see it, is the lack of mutual dependence.

So the modern menage has to hang together with much less foundation than the old one had.

It may be better, but I doubt it. There's nothing like the feeling that someone else needs you and is dependent upon you; to keep you from selfishness and flightiness.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Morrison and I went out on a buying expedition. She has definitely decided to open an antique shop, even though I have not decided to go in with her. I shall help her at first, and see how I like it.

We bought some very interesting little mahogany stools which a woman had stored in her attic, and she picked up a very interesting blanket chest in pine. I was surprised at what she had to pay for these things. Apparently anyone with any antique is quite conscious of their value.

She goes about as the details in the most enthusiastic manner, and what she knows about grains, veneers, periods and lines quite amazes me. It seems she has been studying it for years, just for her own amusement, never expecting to do anything with it.

Do write often.

Plans for Meeting Made By Executive Committee At Recent Session In Austin; 1900 Were Enrolled

(Special To The Avalanche)

AUSTIN, July 14.—There will be one unique feature on the program of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations' annual convention in Amarillo, November 12-17, if the plans made by the executive committee at its meeting last week in Austin are carried out. This will be the presentation of certificates to those who have completed the correspondence course in parent-teacher work. According to Mrs. Stephen Channess, who is conducting the course at the present time, there are about a thousand enrolled in this work, some seven hundred having enrolled when Mrs. S. M. W. Marrs, who is now president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and who instituted the work, had charge, and nearly three hundred who have enrolled since Mrs. Channess took charge the latter part of May. Nearly every one of the district presidents, state chairmen and other officers in state and district work, as well as many local workers have desired to become better informed members and have taken the course. It is expected that a large number will be eligible to receive their certificates at the time of the convention.

The opening banquet on Monday evening, November 12th, will be in honor of Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, National President, and she will give the principal address. Dr. H. W. Foght, president of Wichita University, Wichita, Kansas, who will be the speaker for the second evening and will take for his subject "Meeting the Behavior Problems of the Pre-school Child." Dr. Foght has given a great deal of study and experimentation in Kansas to rural problems and is on the program at the morning session on Tuesday for

DAN'S THE MAN

There is not a solitary reason why either Louis Wardlow or W. E. Hawkins should be nominated governor of Texas, but there are a great many reasons why Dan Moody should be renominated.

Let the record speak for itself. And this is the record of a few—only a few—of Governor Moody's accomplishments:

1. Rescue of the public school system with a $15 per capita apportionment, long asked for by school authorities but never before received. That means $1,500,000 more for the schools this year and next.

2. Rescue of the state highway system with the payment of a $6,250,000 inherited debt, appointment of a commission holding the confidence of the people, and an unparalleled record of things done. The entire aspect has completely changed since Governor Moody took office. New construction includes 1,671 miles of hard surface roads of all character, 758 miles of grade and drainage structure, and 64 miles of gravelled highway. Work involving $19,930,145.34 has been inaugurated.

3. Amending of the automobile tax law to give counties a larger division of funds for maintenance and lateral roads.

4. Treasury cash balance as of May 31 of $23,340,108, and announced reduction of the state ad valorem tax to the lowest figure since Campbell's administration.

5. Intelligent and ample support to higher institutions of learning.

6. Rescue of the state prison system, with conversion of $653,703 loss in operation for 1925-26 and accumulated debts of $1,664,799, to a going concern, on a self-supporting basis, actually netting $7,555 in 1927 after liquidating its enormous obligations to the last penny. For the first time the system is operating on a budget basis, and while the penitentiary population has grown since Dan made 'em stay there, the operating cost has decreased.

7. Prompt grappling with the pink bollworm menace in West Texas. A regulated cotton-growing zone was established without fuss or confusion, and farmers are happily in the midst of their labors.

8. Raising of judicial salaries to attract better men, providing for transfers of district judges, abolishing the law of man-slaughter to make all voluntary killings murder, an end to wholesale pardoning of convicts—all a part of Governor Moody's program for the speeding up of justice.

9. Better administration of the state banking laws. Where heretofore it has cost the creditors of insolvent member banks 46 cents out of every dollar collected, it now costs only 23 cents; and there have been only three failures since Governor Moody took office.

Moody has put through remedial laws for disabled ex-service men; a new health code has been written; wives abandoned by their husbands now have control of the community estate; and newspapers at last can print the truth without fear of persecution from unfair juries.

Against this record, what have Mr. Wardlow and Judge Hawkins to offer? Except the die-hard Ferguson and disgruntled "personal reason" vote to the former and a courtesy vote here and there to the latter, where do they expect to muster enough strength to defeat the governor for renomination? And why should they?

CRIMES ALONG THE ROADS?

A highwayman's murderous attack on Dr. O. A. Hill as he drove along a thoroughfare connecting the Vance-Jackson and Fredericksburg Roads, a few miles beyond the San Antonio limits, again painfully calls to public notice the aggravated crime conditions.

Although a capital offense, robbery with firearms has been, and is, all too common hereabouts. And so long as the bandit thinks he can rob, assault and even kill with impunity, of course he will pursue that calling and recruits continually will be had from among subnormal persons, seeking thrills or "easy" money. When a citizen cannot drive a few miles into the country after dark without being robbed and shot, it is time all the county's law officers bestirred themselves. Under such circumstances what person can feel safe on any road at night? Must the rural resident contrive to get home before dusk and stay there until dawn? Shall the city-dweller refrain from driving out on a hot night, for fresh air? Apparently, the situation is coming to that; and recently daylight robberies also have been frequent.

Is this latest crime to fore-run such an epidemic of outrages as were perpetrated along the St. Hedwig Road and other highways during the past two years? Can criminals commit like offenses in almost the identical spot repeatedly, and still escape arrest and punishment? Those questions are pertinent—a challenge to the authorities. To be sure, two bands have been broken up hereabouts—the members sentenced to imprisonment or death; and after reprieves, some have been electrocuted and others still face the chair. However, that example has not proved so effective a deterrent to similar crimes as might have been expected. Doubtless it would have been more impressive had swifter action been recorded in those cases. Why wait until numerous citizens have been victimized before arresting the perpetrators?

The great State of Texas should leave no stones unturned to capture and punish every one of these criminals. Of course there is not much of that kind of stuff out in this great South Plains territory in the more densely settled section and the more wooded sections of the state there seems to be a renewal of the epidemic, and it should not be allowed to continue. Quick, and just punishment should be the fate of every offender.

SUBMIT KELLOGG TREATIES

The United States has called upon the fourteen nations participating in the renunciation of war negotiations to adhere to the original Kellogg treaty proposal, plus one change made as a concession to France.

This change, which is embodied in the preamble, permits an automatic release when one nation violates its pledge. It is believed by some observers to open the treaty to the same difficulty encountered in the Locarno pact—that of defining the aggressor or "violating" nation. The text of the actual treaty, however, remains unchanged.

The identic notes urging adherence to the treaty were dispatched by Secretary of State Kellogg through American diplomatic representatives in each of the capitals. These powers include not only the five powers originally interested, but the British Dominions, India and the other signatories of the Locarno pact—Belgium, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

The note states that "the government of the United States is ready to sign at once a treaty in the form proposed," and expresses "the fervent hope" that the other governments "will be able promptly to indicate their readiness to accept without qualification or reservations."

"The simple procedure" of signing the treaty, the note continues, "will bring mankind's age-long aspirations for universal peace nearer to practical fulfillment than ever before in the history of the world."

London dispatches state that it seems certain now that when the plenipotentiaries meet it will not be to discuss the treaty but to sign. The five powers, while they have made no official pronouncements, have unofficially indicated they are ready to accept the Kellogg pact. The British secretary asserts that "the American note marks a considerable advance and is being most sympathetically considered," and the French governmental leaders have indicated a corresponding sentiment in regard to the pact.

The negotiating of the Kellogg peace pact has been one of the outstanding achievements of the Coolidge administration, and it is now believed that the pact will be in force and effect before the present administration retires from office on March 4, 1929. If this proves true President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg will have left to posterity a monument of achievement in the cause of humanity and world peace without parallel in the history of nations.

What do you do when you are not doing what you must do? To have no hobby, no contrasting interest to the bread and butter problem is to be unfortunate. That way madness lies. As the man who sits at work all day should walk at night, and the postman who walks all day should seek his recreation in an easy chair, so should the man who works with his brain seek recreation in bodily work, and the man who works with his body all day seek his hobby in some matter involving the mind. All work and no play, indeed makes Jill a dull girl. Let it be golf or gadding, saxophone or sailing, cross word puzzles or cross country running, pineapples or psycho-analysis, limousines or lemon drops, matinees or mushrooms, hiking or automobilism! It is no matter what the hobby is, it is essential that you have one. The man with a hobby has the relief which comes from alternating work for cash's sake and work for the love of it. It keeps him from degenerating into the "dumb and driven cattle" class; it lifts him out of himself. Ingrown thoughts, like ingrown nails, are irritating. He who sits around and sadly bewails his lot, with the inturning of his thoughts gets into a deplorable state of self pity which prefaces suicide and sin. No object is so pitiable as a man who is sorry for himself. Have a hobby and ride it every leisure moment. From it get the happiness and the contrast to the daily work which must supply the daily gasoline for the family.

Its Al and Joe vs. Herb and Charlie in the Presidential campaign.

Galluses are coming back into style. We wonder just how they will match up with the Democratic brown derby.

What Every Bride Knows

SO THINK WE

We think that if the colleges are going in for intellectual championship contests, some provision should be made for the lightweight class.

We think that those running for office, having heard the call of the people, must remember that it is the voices of these folks that count in the final.

We think that it is funny that to one ever goes in for a marathon weed cutting contest.

We think that the death of Captain Emilio Carranza, Mexico's hero, will be mourned by thousands of citizens of this country as well as those of his native land. Captain Carranza was attempting to accomplish the non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City when his plane crashed to the ground. He was merited with many laurels of both the United States and Mexico.

We think that women's stockings may not be more durable than men's sex, but they have a longer run.

We think that progressiveness is shown by the faith of the citizens of any city or territory. Early in the year a fire destroyed practically the entire business section of Seagraves, but today the city is being rebuilt with modern brick, business houses and a much improved city is being made of Seagraves than before the destructive fire.

We think that some people get an education when they go to college, while others only get smart.

PRSSS COMMENT

A Maine woman 106 years old having attained her age to the fact that she always has minded her own business. W. H. Graham remarks in the State Line Tribune that "reformers will think she said a terrible price."

Law enforcement editorial by J. G. Grayson in the Portales Valley News: "There has been much said about law enforcement, and whether Al Smith would enforce the eighteenth amendment if elected president. The enforcement of this amendment is largely in the hands of the people. Whenever public sentiment is strong enough for the enforcement of any law, you can rest assured that the law will be enforced. As long as the laymen smile upon violation of the law, the officers will have a hard time enforcing it. Here in Roosevelt county there are many violations. Yet when the violators are hauled into court, it is hard to find a jury that will convict."

"From all the talk," says "High Suthers in the Tucuman American," "the recent political conventions were dry in principle and wet in practice."

"Should Hoover be elected president of the United States and then become incapacitated," says Frank W. Zern in the Glen Rio Tribune. "Senator Curtis, an Indian, would succeed and thus the aborigines would come into possession of his own again."

Something or other has induced Fire Chief H. A. Dean of Farmington, N. M., to make this statement in the Times-Herald: "In answer to criticisms made about the local fire department wish to remind our citizens that the fire department is composed wholly of men who volunteer their services. They do not receive a cent for their services, and do not complain when their clothes are ruined in fighting fires for others. They are glad to render this service but feel they should not be criticized because they do not function like paid firemen who live at fire house in larger towns."

A. J. Stricklin in the Brownfield Herald: "According to a statement in the press this week, Hon. Rev. J. Frank Norris is not only going to vote for Hoover himself, which is a God given privilege, but is going to vote his entire church for him. Looking at the matter from this distance, it seems that J. Frank has as much or more grip on his people than the pope is reputed to have on his."

"The prohibition -- in the United States has accomplished one of its major purposes beyond dispute," says W. J. Wade in the Groom News. "It has almost eliminated the drunkard."

"The weather may be good for the south," says Ezra Egg in the Childress Index. "But it's sure making a wreck out of me."

Lions clubs are springing up all over the plains at this time. Pollett, Miami, McLean, White Deer, Wellington and Wheeler are getting clubs under way and the organizations already established are taking prominent parts by inter-city visiting. While not profound as a door of great deeds, the Lions or other civic club is an important social institution, and it links busy business men in bonds of friendship they will never know otherwise.

YOUR HEALTH

EDITOR'S NOTE: Traffic and other problems of modern life have made eye defects costly liabilities. This article on vision is the second and last of a series by Dr. Fishbein.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine
In the report of the joint committee representing educational and medical interests as well as special organizations for the care of the blind, an analysis of visual defects is made which should be suggestive not only so far as it applies to the child, but also to the adult.
For purposes of school medical examinations, ability to read the line marked 20 at twenty-two feet distance is considered normal vision. Inability to read the lines marked 30 and 40 at twenty-two feet distance is a sign of near sightedness; inability to read the lines above 40 is evidence of serious eye disturbances.

Symptoms of Strain
Far-sightedness is marked not so much by the reading of the chart as by symptoms of eye strain. Usually any child with normal vision may read the 20 line at twenty feet at the age of four, five, six and seven years. After the age of seven, it may do better than 20-20.

If, however, the child complains of headaches, inflammation of the eyelids, fatigue of the eyes, symptoms of nervousness, watering of the eyes, or if it frowns or squints while reading, it should be examined for far-sightedness or hyperopia.

Weaknesses
Such disturbances as cross eyes or weaknesses of the eye muscles so that a special effort is required to keep both eyes directly toward the same point to avoid double vision is easily apparent.

If the teacher observes such symptoms she should refer the child to a properly qualified investigator for study and treatment. Scars on the eyes result from previous infections. Color blindness and severe astigmatism also demand special attention.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that this is one of those years in which every one desires to help the farmer, but he seems to be in a fair way the fellow to help himself with his own efforts and seasonal showers.

It is reported that Tulsa is planning a huge celebration on July 19 and 17 for the annual Swisher county anniversary.

It is reported that in most respects this country is far ahead of others older lands but when it comes to controlling crime we are lacking pitifully. No other civilized country is making as disgraceful showing.

It is reported that the fellow who believes in predestination still jumps just as far as the sound of a honk.

It is reported that again it is declared that the pedestrian has the right of way. Even to the hospital and the cemetery, if it becomes necessary.

It is reported that possibly the reason that Scotland has never declared war on another race of people is for the fact that war costs money.

It is reported that Black Friday was a very unlucky day for farmers. A total of six crashes were reported resulting in the death of eleven people. One was the death of Mexico's "Lindy," Captain Emilio Carranza.

It is reported that this may be the last of the year that indications of depression are most prominent but not so in Lubbock. Consistently the building permits of the city swell, new cars are being purchased, and every indication of prosperity is shown daily.

Mrs. Sandler: "Did you see my husband this afternoon?"
Golf Professional: "Just saw him. He was on the green in two."
Mrs. Sandler: "Terrible! Who cut him up that bad?"

Mrs. Mitchell: "What a clean-looking family you all are."
Hostess' Little Son: "Yes, you see, somebody's got to be taking a bath all the time so the installment man can't take the tub!"—M. W. Fairbrother.

"Therefore the fair committee wishes to urge everyone having good wheat, oats, barley or rye to go out in the field where the heads are longest and best filled and cut down several good bundles. It will not take but a few minutes, and later, when there is time, the best heads can be picked out and made up into bundles at least four inches in diameter in the center when tied up tightly."

Gray county communities should likewise act upon the above suggestion.

Our Sunday Morning Sermon

"THY KINGDOM COME"
A Sermon
By Rev. Charles R. Erdman.
D. D., LL. D.

This petition is also a prophecy and a plea. We recognize it as a part of the prayer which our Lord taught His disciples, and we are persuaded that He would not have bidden them so to pray unless he had meant to predict that at some time their requests would be fulfilled. Then, too, because it is part of a prayer, it is a pledge of action on the part of those who pray, for to ask God to grant what one does not strive to secure would be irrelevant and impotent.

As to the petition, its content is summed up for us in a fine old formula. In the comments upon the Lord's Prayer we read, "In the second petition, which is, 'Thy kingdom come,' we pray that Satan's kingdom may be destroyed, and that the kingdom of grace may be advanced, ourselves and others brought into it, and kept in it, and that the kingdom of glory may be hastened."

As a prophecy, therefore, this petition encourages us to expect increasing victories in the sphere of our moral and spiritual experience, also to look for the advance and enlargement of the cause of Christ, and further to await in confidence the ultimate establishment of the perfected kingdom of God upon earth. Believers who pray "Thy kingdom come" expect some day to be seated with him in heaven saying, "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ."

and he shall reign for ever and ever." It is, however, as a pledge and promise of our own endeavor that we should consider most seriously this familiar, comprehensive, inspiring prayer. "Thy kingdom come" signifies union with reverence and deep yearning of heart we utter this petition we will not fail either to yield ourselves to the service of God day to do all in our power to hasten the coming of that kingdom which is righteousness and peace and joy.

In no sphere will our efforts to advance the cause of Christ be more effective and more fruitful than when we labor among the children and youth of our land and of the nations of the world.

Christianity is truly the religion of childhood. Our Lord who taught His disciples to pray, "Thy kingdom come" was the Lord who took little children in His arms and placed His hands upon them and said, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." That kingdom belongs by right to children; it is naturally theirs, and those who follow Christ should be striving eagerly to bring the children of the world into fellowship with Christ and into the possession of all those blessings which issue from the power and influence of Spirit of Christ.

How pitifully the childhood of our race is in need of such blessings! How many are the children every picture of child life in the

Early Days On The South Plains

BY J. J. DILLARD

EARLY DAYS ON THE SOUTH PLAINS

As the Democratic primary election will be held on Saturday, July 28, it might be interesting to recount some of the incidents that occurred at the general election held in November, 1896.

The national election was one of the interesting events that transpired that year, as the question of free coinage of silver was agitated by one wing of the Democrats, and championed by William Jennings Bryan, of Lincoln, Nebraska, candidate for president of the United States, while another faction of the Democrats had belied the convention and nominated John M. Palmer, former governor of Illinois, candidate for president on the sound money, or gold standard ticket, and Simon B. Buckner was nominated for vice-president on the same ticket.

In the meantime the Republicans had nominated Wm. McKinley of Ohio as their candidate for president. The interest was all absorbing, even in this sparsely settled country. I was invited to vote and eagerly cast my vote for Wm. Jennings Bryan. I remember that on Saturday just before the November election, that our townman Frank E. Wheelock who was an ardent supporter of Bryan and his policies, was engaged in a heated argument with another gentleman who was an adherent of the gold standard policies. The argument waxed warm and finally Frank and his opponent decided the question by physical combat and since Frank was quite a giant physically, he easily defeated his opponent. Several other followers of Bryan went down in defeat as Bryan was defeated by a few votes and McKinley was elected.

tailed, and only Lynn county had to be heard from to decide who was elected. It was generally conceded that Lynn county would only cast nine votes. Immediately after Brown learned the vote in all the counties except Lynn county he knew beyond a possibility that he had lost. He was so crestfallen that he wept more than his opponent and it all nine votes in Lynn were cast for his opponent he would be elected. The judge felt much elated and at once stole out into the darkness, where his one cylinder car burning automobile was parked and cranked his engine by saying "git-up," and applied the gas which was a rawhide buggy whip applied with force by the right hand, instead of the right foot as is now the custom. He went in high gear and was soon making fifteen miles an hour, heading toward his dug-out, near the present site of the Canyon school, seven miles east of town.

Winford Hunt had been out to Frank Wheelock's home, which was one mile south and four miles east from the Canyon school, the original town section, and this road then continued east to Judge Brown's home, in the same place as road is today. However, the road from Wheelock's home intersected the road east at a point some two miles east, heading toward his dug-out, near the present site of the Canyon school, seven miles east of town.

Winford Hunt was returning and as he neared the intersection of the road traveled by Brown, he heard quite a commotion and was under the impression that some accident had occurred. He was a stamped cowboy or a cowboy on the warpath, or celebrating the election with an overdose of "white mule."

He halted and listened and soon discovered that it was Judge Brown on his way home, going at full speed in his backwood, with loose boards in the floor and all four tires loose, together with loose spokes making a noise like unto a fast freight train. At intervals of about each fifty yards distance the judge would apply the fuel to the sore one, and the writer, standing by, standing on his feet in the rickety backwood, and lash his animal on the back and yell with a voice like a Comanche and say "Whoopee."

"Seventeen votes ahead and Lynn county to hear from." Hunt yelled to the writer, he continued in this manner of celebrating his victory, until he had traveled to such a distance that he could not be heard. He knew if every vote in Lynn county was cast against him that he would still be elected.

The contest for county and district clerk was interesting. The candidates being Geo. C. Wolfarth and C. F. Stubbs. Wolfarth was elected.

If my memory serves me correctly, J. Ben LeGriffe, then elected sheriff, and Wm. Tubbs tax assessor, and P. F. Brown county judge.

Today's Poems

THIS IS OUR WORLD

This is the road over which the great ones trod
Before they made their pilgrimage to God.
This is the self-same earth that Shakespeare knew.
The self-same world that cradled Lincoln too.
This was their sunshine, these their clouds of rain.
These are their peoples blossoming again.

How filled with memories is each crowded aisle.
Here in this hall I once saw Roosevelt smile.
Hear his clear voice ring out his heart's appeal.
For righteous dealing and for manhood real.
This was the world he walked not long ago.
These are the song birds which he used to know.

The histories we read sometimes appear
To lift their heroes to some higher sphere.
To deeds of splendor writers turn.
And we forget those leaders once were men.
Once little boys, once neighbors here, as we.
Whose garden knew the self-same flowers we see.

This is the road the great hearts had to fare.
They lived through all that we today must share.
Great men had been on earth before they came.
Great men will follow, finding life the same.
Oh! had he strong and rightly learn to choose.
The world is yours and all it holds, to use.

Sunday Sermon

lands where Christ is not known or obeyed. A book like Dr. Ziemer's "Childhood in the Moslem World" reveals to us the degradation, the misery, the hopelessness which await and threaten and overwhelm the eighty million children of Moslem lands.

Many will remember likewise "Thinking Black" by Dan Crawford, and will recall his picture of child life in pagan Africa. There is one description of a caravan passing along the narrow path through a tropical jungle. It is early morning. The tall grass is wet and heavy with dew and its sharp blades cut like knives. Little children, naked and bleeding, are driven on ahead of the men to open up the way and to make the path less distressing for the travelers who follow. This is a parable. The bitterest woes of the non-Christian world fall upon children. They bear the most grievous burdens of their ignorance and cruelty and pain.

Even in Christian countries and have 40-our own blessed land the children are being neglected. It is estimated that in the United States twenty-seven million young people are receiving no religious instruction whatever, and many millions more are not being invited to become followers of Christ.

Children, however, are the hope of the church. They, of course, are enlisted in the Christian cause much more easily than are adults. The usual age of those joining the church is between fifteen and sixteen years. Twenty-five per cent of church members are received under the age of twenty-two. It is evident, therefore, that the supreme opportunity of the Christian church to exercise its essential mission of winning souls to Christ lies in reaching the youth of our own and other lands.

A superb instrument for accomplishing this end is found in the modern Sunday school. Just at this time we should pause to thank God for this institution, to plan for its perfecting and to pray for its progress. For during the very week of July 11 to 18, 1928, there is in session at Los Angeles, California, the World's Tenth Sunday School convention.

We commonly date the rise of the modern Sunday school from the work of Robert Raikes of Gloucester, England. It is true that the people of God of all ages have not been unmindful of the religious education of the young nor indifferent as to their relationship with Christ. The ancient Hebrews were careful to teach their children the sacred Law, and in the time of Christ synagogue schools in every part of the land supplemented the teaching of godly parents. So, in the early church, new converts and the children of believers were carefully instructed in the doctrines of the Christian faith. In the Middle Ages real Bible schools were established, and classes for the religious instruction of youths have at no time been unknown.

However, as a world-wide movement, the Sunday school enterprise properly may be dated from the editorial which Robert Raikes published November 3, 1783, in the Gloucester Journal, of which he was the proprietor. Raikes was already known as a philanthropist, and had rendered signal service in the sphere of prison reform. In July 1780, he showed his deepening interest in the poorer children of the city by gathering from the street a number of neglected boys and girls, and by providing them with a teacher who, on successive Sundays, taught them to read, instructed them in the Catechism and the Bible, and brought them to the services of the great cathedral. Such a Sunday school was not his own invention nor did the idea of such a school originate with him.

but his historic editorial, written three years later, was the beginning of his successful advocacy of the Sunday school and of Sunday school methods. His distinctive honor lies in the fact that having in common with others perceived the advantages that would result from Sunday school teaching, he did not content himself as did others with establishing schools, but by means of his newspaper and other organs of public opinion he recommended the practice far and wide.

The movement which hitherto had been local and limited was now extended into all parts of the country. From cottager to king all persons learned through Robert Raikes of the possible benefits of the institution. "He raised Sunday school teaching from a fortuitous rarity into a universal system. He found the practice local; he made it national." So wide was his influence that within four years he estimated the number of children in Sunday schools at two hundred and fifty thousand. Before his death in 1811 there were four hundred thousand children in the Sunday schools of Great Britain alone.

When the movement became established in America it was increasingly characterized by features which were novel or features on which new emphasis was being laid. First of all the workers were volunteers and were not paid for their services as were the teachers in the schools of Robert Raikes. In the second place, the Bible was the only text-book employed; and thirdly, the schools were usually connected with churches by which they were directed or supported.

The movement has so rapidly and so widely developed that the present convention, now being held in Los Angeles, represents more than one million Sunday school teachers, at work in many lands, who are engaged in interpreting the Bible to more than thirty million children and young people.

To such a world movement, no one who is eager for the coming of the Kingdom of God can possibly be indifferent. We must seek by personal effort and study and counsel to make the Sabbath schools of our own churches and the schools of our country real educational agencies. We must secure for each school all necessary equipment, and most of all, we must aid in the process of training teachers who, in addition to their knowledge of Christ and His Gospel, will have some knowledge of child psychology, of pedagogy, and of modern methods of education. The Sabbath school must be made from the viewpoint of an educationalist, worthy of the name of "school."

We must endeavor by all possible means to make the Sabbath school more effective evangelistic agency. The statement is made by competent authorities that of all the young people who attend our American Sunday schools not more than one in four is ever won for Christ or becomes a member of the Christian church. This fraction must be increased. However efficient a school may be in its educational program, it is not achieving its true end and purpose unless the members of its classes become enlisted in the service of our Lord.

No one can fail to realize, however, how great the service of Sunday schools has been in this sphere of securing faithful followers of the Master. When Mr. Kimball of Boston came into the boat and shop to ask a boy who belonged to his Sunday school class to accept Christ as his Saviour, he little thought that he was bringing into a Christian experience one whose name would soon be known by all the world as the most famous evangelist of the age, yet it was the invitation of this Sunday school teacher which gave Dwight L. Moody to the Christian church.

John H. Jowett was being educated as a lawyer. It was a sympathetic word from his Sunday school teacher which led him to seriously consider the claims of the Christian ministry, and this word resulted in securing for the Christian world the most gifted preacher of our times. We are but random instances which suggest to us the unlimited possibilities which the Sunday school affords both for securing followers for Christ and enlisting recruits for the public service of the church. What is true in America and in England has proved to be equally true among all the nations of the world. In all the so-called mission fields, the Sunday school has proved to be the most efficient conceivable evangelizing agency.

Thus, at home and abroad, this approved agency of the church is accomplishing its three definite and glorious objectives of winning souls for Christ, of building them up in Christ, and of sending them out to work for Christ.

It is our gratitude to God which should impel us to do all in our power to extend the beneficent work of the Christian Sunday school. In view of the great convention now being held, and remembering the success which this movement has achieved, we who look and labor for the coming of God's Kingdom may do well to unite in the prayer which has been prepared for our use by Dr. F. B. Meyer of London:

"Most gracious Saviour! Thou art worthy to be the Crowned King of the World, for Thou wast slain and hast redeemed us by Thy blood, from all nations and kindreds, peoples and tongues.

"We pray Thee to hasten the time when Thou shalt take to Thyself Thy great power and reign; that all the world may be filled with Thy glory, that all wars may cease; and that all peoples may own and love Thy Saviour."

We especially pray for Thy blessing to rest on the great Sunday school convention, which is now being held at Los Angeles. Shred on the meetings the light and love of Thy Holy Spirit and hasten the happy time when all the children of the world and all the Senior Scholars of our schools, shall love Thee best of all; and when there shall be no more mourning, nor crying, nor pain, because God has made all things new! And this we ask in Thy Most Holy Name! Amen."

Judge Homer L. Pharr of the 72nd district court returned yesterday from an extended vacation trip to Ruidoso and other nearby points.

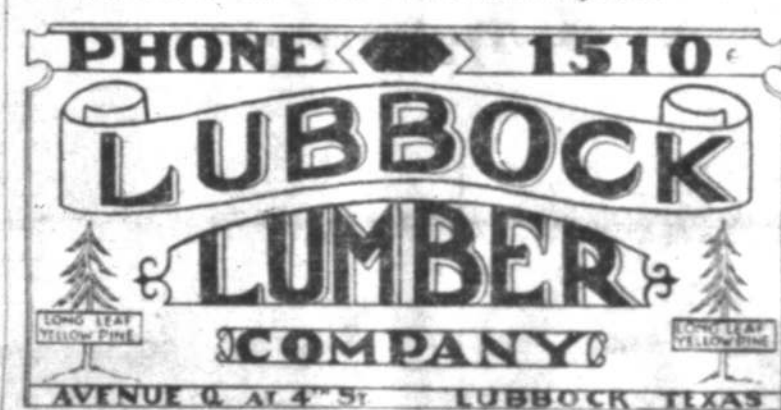

Miss Nell Pearson, of Sparta, Tennessee, left yesterday for home after an extended visit with Miss Dimble Rhea, of 2312 Main Street. Miss Rhea is leaving Monday for Sparta and Chattanooga, Tenn.

F. C. McElendon, of Austin, formerly head of the poultry and stock section here, arrived in Lubbock yesterday for a visit over the week end. He is now connected with the agricultural department of the government.

STRANGE INTERLUDE—For the first time recently commented a noted literary critic. The Pulitzer prize committee have made their awards on the basis of merit alone, without regard to didactic purpose or moral.

One can not but concur in the opinion of this writer, at least as far as it applies to the Pulitzer prize winning drama of the year, "Strange Interlude," a drama which is quite generally conceded to be Eugene O'Neill's finest. And in using the superlative, the critic is bearing in mind that the aforesaid Mr. O'Neill has written some previous plays during the time in which he has been a predominant figure in American letters.

One is aware that he is perusing a masterpiece of the stage from the moment he turns the cover of the beautiful book into which Boni and Liveright, publishers, have made O'Neill's plays. There is a tense atmosphere of pessimism—of depression of foreboding disaster and impending misery—pervading even the first page. Then, there is such a finesse of setting, of stage direction and such a perfect rendition of the lines that the reader instantly is aware of the perfection of the work.

One always feels assured that a Eugene O'Neill play will be both unusual and interesting. And "Strange Interlude" is unusual and interesting. The plot is a very unusual one, and as usual with the author is secondary to character portrayal. In other words, O'Neill is more concerned with developing the principal character than he is with narrating the story, although in this case plot and character are dependent on each other. The O'Neill love for dual personality—exemplified by the masks in "The Great God Brown," is again brought forth in "Strange Interlude." Only this time, interpolated passages—distinguished by varying the type—give the characters' inner thoughts, while large type represents conversation which actually enters into the play.

The story as told before, is unusual. Nina, daughter of a New England pedagogue, has been reared in an atmosphere bounded by the somewhat attenuated perception of the pedant, at his worst. An in-born feeling of rebellion is exaggerated when her father's intervention prevents marriage to Gordon, her fiancé, before Gordon is called to France. Her sweetheart dies on the battlefield and Nina's suffering is transformed into bitterness toward her father. Her quest for happiness forms the story of "Strange Interlude." First, she believes that to be happy she must give herself and she plunges into a life of reckless abandon as a nurse at a soldier's hospital. Friends fearing for her persuade her to marry although she does not love her husband. She believes that a child will give her happiness, but during the maternal period she finds that inherent insanity is the curse of her husband's family. The child is removed by an abortion and Nina again becomes embittered and cynical. The longing for motherhood overcomes her and she decides upon the unconventional proceeding of having a young doctor "give" her a child. This "experiment" started wholly as a scientific problem ends in a love affair between the two. Years of unhappiness for both is the price of this illicit love and in the end, robbed of husband, lover, the affection of her son, as well as charm and beauty, Nina becomes again embittered and cynical, viewing life with contempt and still wondering about this fleeting illusion we know as happiness. "Strange Interlude," bitterly moves Nina, as the last of the play's nine acts draws to a close. "Yes, our lives are merely strange dark interludes in the electrical display of God the Father." "Strange Interlude" is one of the longest of recent plays. Its action covers nine acts and in the book there are 352 pages. Every page, however, is interesting—no, interesting is inadequate—each page is fascinating.

STRANGE INTERLUDE—Boni and Liveright, publishers, 352 pages, $2.50.

UNFORBIDDEN FRUIT—Many a doting parent has spent weary hours trying to decide whether or not to send his Doris, or Elizabeth, or Sarah, to a women's college or a co-educational school. Without recommending anything at all and leaving the moral entirely to the moralists—where it belongs—Warner Fabian has lifted the veil from around the mystery of girls' dormitory life and presented us an unusual picture in Unforbidden Fruit (Boni and Liveright).

The name of Warner Fabian should be familiar to book lovers. He was the author of "Flaming Youth," which caused at least a ripple of sensationalism if not a full grown wave. Then he followed up this daring tale with "Summer Bachelors."

Mr. Fabian, in his preface, lets us know that "Unforbidden Fruit" was not written until the author became thoroughly conversant with his subject. For many weary months did he study life in women's colleges, and study was supplemented by constant heed to the view of others. "Unforbidden Fruit" deals with a phase of femininity, and it pictures the new college girl as being thirst for experience—not vicious or immoral but merely curious to find out just what extremes there are to this experience we term "life."

The book has caused a furor of comment and some staid puritanic souls have raised their hands in horror. Others have rallied to support the virginal morality of their respective almas mater.

To all of this Mr. Fabian replies that he does not claim his book to be typical of all college girls. Deliberately he has taken this phase of their existence and developed it.

In "Unforbidden Fruit" there are no "necking" parties and no and then a girl feast. Sometimes flaming youth becomes a veritable furnace. But is it much worse than the actual conditions?

"I submitted the manuscript to a committee of six college deans in women's schools," the author replied to criticism. "And all of them admitted it was based on fact."

"Unforbidden Fruit" an interesting account of life in women's colleges has 322 pages. Boni and Liveright are publishers. The price is $2.00.

Brother And Sister, Long Apart, Meet Reunion Brings To An End 44 Years That Pair Were Parted; Both Are Texans

RALES, July 14 (Special)—After a separation of almost half a century, S. J. Parker, of Collin county, and his sister, Mrs. Bill Springer, of Sionewall county, met last week in Aspermont.

The meeting was very unusual. When Parker's father died his step-mother re-married and moved away, taking his sister with her, and for 44 years they lost trace of each other. Last week, Mr. Parker was coming to Rales with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Brigham. They stopped in Has-kell to inquire the whereabouts of the Springers, and were fortunate in making the inquiry of someone who knew the family. They came on to Aspermont, then, and Mr. Parker and his sister were re-united.

It seems that fate had a hand in keeping Mr. Parker and Mrs. Springer apart. Thirty-five years ago, Parker was in Haskell, which was at that time the home of the Sorinners. He asked for a place to camp for the night, and a man allowed him to camp in his barn. Since the meeting of last week, the incident has been mentioned and it was learned that he camped in the barn of his brother-in-law. Now knowing where his sister lived or whom she had married, he left without seeing her, after being so near.

Parker is a Confederate veteran, sturdy and well-kip, in spite of his 82 years. He and his wife are now visiting their daughter, Mrs. M. T. Brigham, of this place.

THROUGH LUBBOCK'S SHOPS WITH EVERETTA

"Necessities of today are the luxuries of yesterday in the everyday life of the average American," says a recent writer and this may certainly apply to the family automobile. Only a few years ago people were satisfied with almost any kind of car which would take them some place, now, comfort, speed, quietness and pride of possession are demanded. That is the reason that right here in Lubbock, during the last two months, more than a dozen Packards have been sold by the Super Service Station. Slender and petrician, with long, graceful lines, the Packard stands as a monument to beauty. The Packard owner has a poise which comes with the assurance that he is driving the aristocrat of motor cars—a car which will not only take him anywhere he wants to go but will bring him back

Does your wardrobe include a navy blue georgette? If it does, you should go to Jackman's and see the Mitchell dresses in navy blue which they have just received. They are not only beautiful, but they are the most serviceable dresses on the market. For traveling, for street wear, for bridge luncheons, for "at home" hours, you can find no more appropriate costume than a navy georgette. One dress in Jackman's which particularly caught my fancy, is a size 38, and has medium tucks all over it, with a white of fan pleats on the left side of the front. A fine lace vest and large slanting lace cuffs lend an air of distinction to the dress. A red flower on the left shoulder, and rhinestone buttons down the front, complete the effect. There is a wide choice of these dresses, their plainness relieved only by tucks and a touch of lace.

Had you ever stopped to think what a world of romance there is in such a commonplace thing as a waffle iron? In the Acorn Store, the other day, I saw an aluminum Rogers waffle iron, priced at $5.98, which started me thinking about a lot of things. Although I'm not a huge bride, I can imagine how marvelous it would be for the girl who has been accustomed to a late "beauty sleep," to be able to jump out of bed and, in six minutes, at the most, have ready for friend husband, a plate of sizzling waffles. French toast, or an omelet before he sets out on his daily task of tackling the world. Breakfast is no trouble at all with a waffle iron. Try one from the Acorn Store; also, a coffee percolator, at $2.98, or a hot plate, at $1.98.

Every time I wander into Dr. Swart's office, on the first floor of the Myrick building, and see his display of beautiful white gold-rimmed glasses, I want a pair, although I do not wear them. How some people who really need an extra pair of glasses, will spend their money on clothes which they could do without, instead of buying glasses which they should not go without, is more than I can understand. A noted authority states that a pair of glasses, costing about $25, and lasting approximately two years, will cost only 3 cents a day. Dresses cost 5 cents a day, when they are worn 180 days; silk stockings, costing 15 days, cost 12 cents a day. Ties, dress coats five times as much as the glasses, and hose, four times as much. These are plain facts for you.

I went into Mrs. Abney's Shop, in the Hotel Lubbock, yesterday and she told me that she is just getting ready to go to the New York market. As a consequence, she is having to sell her summer hats at a sacrifice. And what hats! I could not believe that the large evening hat of a silky black lace, covered with tiny black lace and trimmed in wide black ribbons, could be purchased for $5.00. Or that the beautiful medium-brimmed Alpha hat for matrons, in soft white straw, with delicate-vented flowers of crepe-de-chine applied on a white ribbon band, cost only $5.00. Really, they are remarkable values. So are some wash silk dresses, particularly a white one and a shell-pink, at $6.75 and a lovely white georgette at $10.75.

The Hawkins Dry Goods Company will continue this week its featuring of special prices in all departments of the store. When I went in there yesterday, I was particularly interested in the summer hats. An orchid Milan straw, with a floppy brim and a wide velvet band in a deeper lavender shade, is just waiting for some gorgeous blonde or exotic brunette, with a clear, petal complexion, to come and carry it off. Other hats, wide-brimmed or small, are exceptional values in silky straws, horsehair braid, or felts in pastel colors. In Hawkins' also, you may find some very attractive underthings—tailored silk sleepers, crepe de chine slips, and brassiere combinations, and one combination of black georgette which is most fascinating.

Beginning Monday, the Lyric theatre is showing "The Princess from Hoboken," which is the exciting story of a hush house waitress who, overnight, is cast into the role of a Russian princess. What follows is only the realization of every American girl's secret dream—love, adventure, glamour, beautiful clothes, the admiration of men. Russian ballet dancers from Theodore Kosloff's famous Russian Ballet school give this picture a glamorous touch of Oriental life. Blanche Mehaffey, who is masquerading as the Russian princess, is herself a very talented dancer and Lou Telegen, a distinctive figure in filmland, adds considerable interest to the story as a real Russian prince. The acting is well worth seeing.

Colleagues! That's what the new Remington Portable typewriters are which the City Drug Store is featuring this week. In maroon, deep blue, and a chic apple green and navy combination, these typewriters with any room, these typewriters are a challenge to the co-ed who insists on color schemes for everything. And the Remington typewriter is the handiest of all portables. It weighs only 9-12 pounds, writes a standard size, has a combination ribbon of red and black, is standard in every way, and may be obtained by the Remington easy payment plan. "You take it easy, when you write on a Remington Portable," it rests easily on the knees, and is most convenient to take along on a camping trip or journey by train. And, don't be afraid to write your friends on the typewriter. Mrs. Grundy says it is no longer a breach of etiquette; in fact, the typewritten letter is usually preferred.

When you stop at Bowen's Drug Store, you must not fail to get a little booklet telling about Dorothy Gray and her famous beauty treatments. You cannot afford to overlook such an excellent aid to the preservation of your most valuable asset, your complexion. So many women are handicapped by having large skin pores, which soon cause unsightly blackheads, and they seem to be doing nothing whatever about it. Dorothy Gray has spent years of study of skin conditions, and her treatments for blackheads and enlarged pores bring gratifying results. Her Pore Paste, to be used at night, or her Pore Lotion, to be used every day for an unusually oily skin, make the pores normal. Then, she prescribes Orange Flower Skin Tonic which makes the skin more active and refines its texture.

Now, the world's first sailor, says that sailors do not get wrong; they were led astray. At least, that's the sad story of "Why Sailors Go Wrong," a highly entertaining "sex" production which the Palace theatre is showing tomorrow. Barney Cohen and Ted McNamara, two irresistible comedians, are at their funniest as a Jewish taxi chauffeur and an Irish cab driver who undertake to aid two lovers to elope, and find themselves suddenly transported from life in the city to a wild, cannibalistic island. Here, fierce cannibal women make violent love to them, and they step on lions' tails, and do everything else to get out of their way. This is a comedy that you cannot afford to miss. Sally Phipps and Nick Stuart are the eloping lovers.

Paris decrees that the small hat wins this year, a year when high-crowned and shawl collars are prescribed for coats, and the Blue Bonnets Shop, already, a shipment of these latest Parisian models. The planner took me into the stock room and showed them to me the other day. You can't imagine their gorgeous coloring, the exquisite fashioning of them. You'll just have to see them, and I would advise you to go early. Each one of them is handmade, beautiful hand-decorated felts in pastel shades, that are going to be popular all year. Smart creations in velvet and silk combinations; and, most adorable of all, tiny, close-fitting hats of solid, a French corded silk, which are usually plain except for a gauzy little side trim. "Personality" plus should be written all over these fall styles.

At C. E. Stone's this week you will find a complete selection of new fall felts. I looked them over yesterday, and found them very chic and charming. The blacks and navy blues are especially smart looking, with their crushed crowns, and gaily colored bands, gilt-edged. Just to look at them makes one start planning late August's wardrobe. And it's the early bird that gets the worm. What fun to be one of the first co-eds to step out in one of these fetching felts, in dark colors, rose beige, tan, red or pastel shades. Whether it be a vagabond, with careless, floppy brim, or a trim little snug-fitting turban, the felt is the very spirit of autumn, the season of thrills and activity.

To stroll through the Rix Furniture Store is, for me a pleasant occupation. I found there the other day an exquisite end-table. It is of solid walnut, with an Italian marble top, and is richly decorated with a genuine hand-carved design. The top is supported by a graceful bird of paradise, with outstretched wings and slender, arching neck. This table, which rests on three legs, is an elegant, well-balanced piece of furniture that would give an air of antiquity and luxury to any living-room. It is ornate, but not too much so. Its symmetrical lines have the quiet reserve which is so essential to a dignified room, a room which shows personality, but does not shout it to the world.

One of the most interesting things which I find in Hunt's Grocery, a well-established business for sixteen years, is the stand which displays the Battle Creek Health foods. These famous preparations have proved to be remarkable remedies for innumerable health conditions and each article is stamped "Endorsed by the Battle Creek Sanitarium." A certain man in this city, who has been suffering because of an ulcerated stomach, tried a diet of "Zeo" for eighteen months, with complete success. "Zeo," a vitamin breakfast food; melrose sugar; Parafax, an improved mineral oil, natural remedy for constipation; and delicious fruit crackers made of the choicest dried fruits, are some of the most popular of the health foods.

Styles may change and change for better or for worse but one thing remains as consistent as the stars and that is the story of woman's hair. Women realize that their hair is their greatest claim and many are the agonies which they suffer to make it beautiful, if it is not naturally so. In Mildred's Beauty Shop, the process of beautifying the hair is scientific and pleasant. There is a finger wave, given with a finger waving fluid, which does not destroy any of the fine texture of the hair, but, on the contrary, gives it an added luster. You may obtain this wave, or a lovely, natural, water wave for $1.00. Then, there is a soft water shampoo that every woman who has had to contend with the hard water of this city, should appreciate. It costs only 75 cents.

Retailers Believe In Co-Operating

United Front Put Up Against Attacks Of
"Gyp" Advertising Salesmen In City

Unless we stand divided, we will be the motto of the members of the Lubbock Retail Merchants' association on a number of propositions and one of the propositions in which this motto is exemplified is the work of the advertising committee of the association. The support this committee is getting in its work shows that the members believe in co-operation and organization work and incidentally, a number of merchants believe that the committee is saving thousands of dollars for Lubbock merchants annually.

The committee's work is similar to the work of advertising clubs, better business bureau and advertising committees of merchants' organizations in the larger cities over the nation.

They Protect Each Other

All members of the Lubbock Retail Merchants' association have an agreement with the association to refer all out-of-town and especially advertising propositions to the advertising committee of the association for an endorsement before buying. When a proposition is referred to the association the committee is called together to consider the matter. The committee is composed of five Lubbock business men who are considered authorities on advertising matters. The committee considers the proposition the information regarding the proposition and giving the information that the proposition has been referred an endorsement by the committee.

The S. O. S. calling committee is composed of a general captain and ten calling captains. The members of the office force of the association calls each of the ten captains and they in turn call a list of fifteen to twenty members; that they have on their list. In this manner, in a comparatively short time and with very little effort on the part of any of the ten captains, the entire membership is warned about the proposition and are in possession of full information regarding the merits of the "gyp" proposition before the "silver-tongued" promoter salesman comes after their check.

While the committee does have confidence in the judgment of its members and of the committee as a whole, it does not attempt to say to any member that he should or should not buy any proposition. The committee merely recommends. A majority of the Lubbock merchants have shown their confidence in the judgment of the committee by rejecting propositions that have been referred endorsement by the committee.

NEW OLTON SCHOOL

Contract Awarded Recently
On Unit Of Building
OLTON, July 14.—The contract for a new modern high school building was let to Smith and Son of Lubbock. The building is to be the first unit of an extensively planned structure. The contract calls for a building 20x170 feet, eight rooms and a library. The total cost is estimated at $45,000.

HOTEL TO OPEN

Slaton's New Hostelry To Hold Formal Program

Improvements costing $15,000 have just been completed on the building. The structure has been remodeled and modernized throughout. It is a two-story brick building having 25 guest rooms. The total investment now amounts to $50,000. Many of the rooms are now equipped with private baths, and all outside rooms have hot and cold water system. A new heating system and a new lighting arrangement has been installed. The building has been refurnished and refurnished on the inside and a Spanish effect is given by a new stucco finish over the outside brick walls. Wholesale changes were made in the dining room, lobby and front entrance. Hotel men say the hostelry now ranks with the best in this section.

Mrs. Olive Pluke, deputy district clerk and newly appointed federal district clerk, returned yesterday from a several weeks trip through New Mexico. She will open the federal clerk's office tomorrow.

C. H. Smith, court reporter, has returned home after spending his vacation at Corpus Christi and other South Texas places.

Seagraves Ready To Take Place As Oil Center

Discovery Well Starts Hobbs On Way To Prosperity

Historical Trading Post, Burned To Ground Short Time Ago, Presents A New, Modern Front To Newcomers

Closest Town To Hobbs Has New Brick Buildings And Plenty Of Supplies With Which To Serve Public

BY STAFF CORRESPONDENT
SEAGRAVES, July 14. — For years an active thriving young city because of its agricultural surroundings. Seagraves is about to step into the world's spotlight this time in a new role.

As the inevitable outlet to the new Hobbs oil field, forty miles southwest of here, this city is facing a stage of what is thought unparalleled development.

Burned out almost completely by a devastating fire about three months ago, citizens literally put their shoulders to the proverbial wheel, and today, as a result of untiring work and faith in the future, present to the world a model young town. On the main street where formerly stood numerous old frame time-worn buildings, now stand sixteen new brick buildings, constructed to meet the necessary expansion of the future.

Modern—But With History
The city is new and fresh looking, although its history is intermingled with the traditions of early pioneer settlers. For years an outpost for settlers of this section, the city now promises to become the shipping point and supply point for the great potential Hobbs well.

Seagraves is by thirty-five miles closer than any other railroad point to the discovery well just across the line in New Mexico. Roads to the well are in good condition, and it is planned to improve them to take care of the expected heavy traffic to and from the well.

This city boasts of 1,000 population. It is located in the center of a large rich agricultural district, famous for its corn and feed crops. The trade territory extends about seventy-five miles to the west, fifty miles to the south, twenty miles to the north, and about fifteen to the east. In the town there are three grocery stores, two lumber yards, three saloons, two picture shows, and a bank.

Water Bonds Passed
A $45,000 water bond recently passed here by a vote of more than five to one. Although it will be necessary to call the bond election again as the city was originally incorporated under the village act, it is almost assured that it will be passed again. Inadequate water supply is advanced as one of the reasons that fire swept the whole town recently.

Mayor R. P. Simpson is very optimistic over the future possibilities for the town, and all of the citizens are intent upon making it the true gateway to the oil field. The new $75,000 brick school building here is one of the finest in this section. Although the city already had a fine brick school house it was found inadequate for the enrollment of 250 necessitating the calling of a bond election for the new building.

It is planned to secure a paid secretary for the local Chamber of Commerce which was recently organized. The organization is now active and alert, and with a paid

Horned Toad Found In San Antonio Hotel Wall

SAN ANTONIO, July 14 (AP). — Workmen tearing down a wall of the Gunter hotel here claim to have found a rival for the famous Eastland horned toad which is said to have spent 32 years in a court house corner stone.

The toad was found in a wall that had been standing 15 years. D. T. Shepherd, construction superintendent, said that the toad, which has only three legs was flat as a pancake when found and that it was covered with a hard crust of mortar. The toad could barely move and is still unable to open its jaws. But the hotel management is trying to revive it by soaking it in water. Shepherd said that he could see no way in which the toad could have gotten into the wall except by being imprisoned there when the wall was built.

Secretary hopes to put the city on the map in big style.

Lights and power here are supplied by the West Texas Utilities company, which is located in a fine brick building. Semipalm power is used.

It is thought that plans to construct a Masonic Hall will be inaugurated here within the near future.

The First State bank here is located in a good looking, modern, well furnished brick building. Deposits on July 3 were $111,111.54, an official bank statement shows. Capital stock is $10,000 and loans $53,000, with cash and exchange $24,000.

S. J. Redman, editor and owner of the Seagraves Signal is among the leading boosters of the city.

FUGITIVE CAUGHT

Jerked Finger Is Cause Of Convict's Identity

(By Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, July 14.—A slight jerk of a finger hastened the identification of Edley Luckey, alias Henry Woods, 30, as an escaped convict and he was being returned today to the Texas state penitentiary from which he has made two getaways in two years.

The jerk was detected by Carl Stratton, police finger print expert, as he was making an impression of Luckey's digits. Stratton believed Luckey was attempting to smudge the inked impression, an old trick of criminals.

A short search resulted in the finding of a Texas prison card bearing Luckey's photograph, finger prints and record. The prisoner admitted his identity.

Luckey was arrested here yesterday through a bit of amateur detective work by James Roberts, secretary-treasurer of a local printing company. Becoming suspicious when Luckey ordered a small number of checks printed with the name of a local lumber company on them, Roberts conferred with the lumber company manager and learned the checks had not been authorized. Roberts notified police and Luckey stepped into detective's arms when he emerged from the printing office, with the checks.

RIVER OVERFLOWS

ST. CLAIRVILLE, Ohio, July 14 (AP).—One man was drowned, 700 men working at the Webb mine, 18 miles south of here, were out of employment and damage estimated at $500,000 was caused when Wayne creek, laden with waters of heavy rains, overflowed its banks and flooded the valley, last night.

Place Where Steers Grazed Now Abustle As Men Get In To Share In Wealth From Oil Find

BY VESTEL LOTT
Avalanche-Journal Staff
HOBBS, New Mexico, July 14.—Formerly considered "God's country" because no one else would have it, this section overnight turned into one of the most coveted districts in the southwest.

For a month old, the townsite of Hobbs is a prodigy, promising to become another Borger or Burkburnett within the near future. With numerous buildings already constructed and contracts let for many others the youthful city is rapidly developing into an active oil town.

Hobbs is located forty miles southwest of Seagraves and about seventy-five miles directly west of Lamesa. The townsite is about a mile north of Hobbs discovery well, which drilled into pay about a month ago.

Big Scramble Begins
Several hundred people daily visit the townsite of Hobbs, and at present there is a mad scramble for lots, leases, and land.

The Hobbs discovery well belongs to the Midwest Refining company. Although the well has never been turned completely loose, drillers estimate that it will produce about 350 barrels daily. It was turned loose for a short time last week into one of the storage tanks, and although the stream was choked down considerably more than three hundred barrels were put into the tank within several hours.

Four 500-gallon tanks have been completed and arrangements have been made for construction of two more. An 8-inch pipe is being run, which will be turned loose to determine its capacity. The well has now reached a depth of 4,925 feet, which is fifteen feet below the point where oil was first found. Upon drilling deeper the intense pressure sprayed all over the top of the derrick, covering the surrounding country in every direction.

Lots Show Advance
Lots on the main street of Hobbs are still being sold by the townsite company for the original price of $500. Some of the best lots have been resold for as much as $2,500. At the present time several buildings, shacks, and tents dot the townsite. Business houses consist of cafes, ice houses, grocery stores, filling stations, cold drink stands, lumber yards, barber shops, real estate offices and one notary public office.

Location for a bank building has been sold. This will be the only bank in Lea county. No date has been set to begin construction of the building.

A thirty-three room hotel, a dance hall, and a swimming pool are to be constructed soon. Construction of the hotel began Wednesday and it is expected that the others will begin this week.

An application has been granted to move the postoffice which is now

[We Glory In Your Good Fortune

It is our happy privilege to number among the Citizens of the Seagraves section and of Eastern New Mexico many customers. That their present good fortune is shared by this company and others of Lubbock is not to be denied. We are proud for everyone of you!

The finding of oil in the Hobbs, New Mexico field—just across the Texas line, to which Seagraves is the Gateway, means much to everyone in the South Plains territory.

Oil the fore-runner of progress and prosperity—our modern fuel; our most potent agent of power, of heat, of lubrication. Airships, Warships; the mightiest mechanical achievements of Industry have found Oil their greatest ally. The most inspiring promise to posterity is the development of oil production. Surely your community has been endowed by nature. Surely it will further be enriched by man in the development of your territory.

In this you have our best wishes, sincerest hopes for success—and a knowledge that all the South Plains Glory in your Good Fortune!

Finances Don't Worry Seagraves Conditions Show

Leases, Cotton, Cattle, Corn, Poultry, Dairying And Hogs Give Assurance Of Good Money Crop

(Staff Correspondent)
SEAGRAVES, July 14.—The financial situation is not worrying people in the Seagraves territory. That is the information given out here today by various business men and civic leaders of this place.

This year's "money crop" has already yielded the landowners $4,000,000 and they are looking forward to the $1,000,000 more which will be paid in this year for rentals. The coming of the golden fluid is bringing with it more than the usual amount of rewards to the landowners.

With this $5,000,000 "in their hands" there would apparently be no cause for much attention to agriculture yet these sturdy old Philadelphians who have seen the years come and go out here are not forgetting the industry which "pulled them through." One of the bright spots of agricultural development is under way with thousands of acres of pasture lands giving way to the plow.

Crops Look Good
The cotton crop has the bright outlook prospect yet; the corn yield gives promise of being even greater this year than ever before. Three hundred and fifty car loads of corn were shipped from Seagraves last year and grain men are looking for a great increase this year. The drought resisting sandy loam soil around here seems to be just the thing for corn.

With the agricultural development, of course, comes poultry, dairying and hog raising. Through the efforts of the Santa Fe distribution of milk cows and hogs has been going on here for the past several years. Cream men here stated that more than $1,000,000 of cream is being shipped from Seagraves every week.

And then, too, another industry which sweeps away any cause for financial worry is the "ole-standby," the cattle business. Although the ranches in the immediate vicinity of Seagraves are now in cultivation, Seagraves is said to be the largest local livestock shipping point in the United States. The ranches to the west and in the eastern portion of New Mexico ship all their cattle from Seagraves. Last year's shipments of cattle totaled more than 1,500 car loads.

With these factors assuring plenty of returns to the section, the Seagraves farmer is sitting back with his thumbs under his suspenders, grinning contentedly and telling them "to come on out here, it's a great country."

Gulf Bid Taken

WASHINGTON.—The bid of the Gulf Refining company of Pittsburgh to supply 10,000,000 barrels of summer oil per year for the Merchants Fleet corporation at the ports of New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Galveston and Port Arthur for the three year period commencing January 1, 1929, was accepted by the shipping board today.

Big Daddy Of Hobbs Tells His Story

J. J. Carson 'Knew There Was Oil There' So He Went To Hobbs And Started His Town

HOBBS, N. M., July 14.—"It was awfully lonesome out here at first with only prairie dogs and antelope for company," J. J. Carson, promoter of the townsite here, said. Carson said that he knew there was oil out here. That's why he came here. He came here before oil was discovered and started his townsite.

To locate a townsite out in the center of a vast bald prairie with the assurance of oil was considered foolish by most of his acquaintances, but to Mr. Carson his hunch was an assurance. Old time oil men would be hit by the "dodo bug." His partners became shaky at times but he stuck with it and made them stay with him a little longer.

New Mexico Happy Shooting prairie dogs was the only sport for several weeks. Sleeping in a car, waiting expectantly for the oil that it seemed would never be found, Mr. Carson spent many lonely hours on his potential townsite. Today he is reaping the benefits from that hunch. Carson's home is at Perla, N. M. He came here with his two partners, bought the land, and had it surveyed and the streets plowed off. When the townsite office was the sole building in the town, an antelope passed within a few feet of the door of the building. But the wild animals are now being driven farther away with the oncoming march of civilization. And with the finding of oil in the Hobbs discovery well, Carson is reaping results because he "knew there was oil here." The bite of the Dodo bug took effect.

PANGOLAS IS GIVEN FREEDOM IN GREECE

ATHENS, Greece, July 14 (AP).—General Theodoros Pangalos, thrown into prison in August, 1928, after being ousted as dictator, was a free man today. He had been awaiting trial for treason. The new cabinet decided that since Pangalos had been ordered imprisoned by a parliamentary commission and since parliament had been dissolved the commission's existence was ended and Pangalos should be freed.

PLANE KILLS FOUR

Two Women, Two Men Die In Croydon Crash

CROYDON, England, July 14 (AP).—Two women and two men were burned to death in the crash of an airplane at Purley Friday. One of the men was A. Hall, aeronautical inspection director of the Croydon airframe.

The pilot was badly injured and sent to the hospital, while another passenger escaped with slight hurts. The plane was seen to dive and then recover slightly, then dive again and crash in flames. Desperate efforts were made to get the victims free, but the fierceness of the flames prevented this.

CONGRATULATIONS CITIZENS of SEAGRAVES

Your confidence and courage in rebuilding your city after disaster had practically wiped it out, is rewarded by the discovery of the Hobbs field which makes your city the Gateway to what is regarded as the greatest potential oil field in the United States.

It is faith such as yours that has been responsible for the development of West Texas and particularly the Plains of which your community is a part. And this institution which has contributed to the development of this section, congratulates you on your faith and the reward that is yours because of it.

Seagraves Offers Much For Lubbock

R. J. Murray, Santa Fe Land Man Points Out Need Of City's Aid In Making New Field One Of Importance

"Lubbock should be deeply interested in the new oil territory around Seagraves," R. J. Murray, president of the Lubbock Rotary club and general sales agent for Santa Fe lands, said yesterday when approached regarding the future of the territory.

"I look for a very active drilling campaign during the latter part of this year and in 1929," Mr. Murray said. "The trend of oil discovery in the Hobbs field seemed northward and the theory was proved by the discovery of the Midwest number one near Hobbs which is not fully tested but estimated to be a producer anywhere between 200 and 5,000 barrels."

"The discovery has created a tremendous interest in leases in Gaines and Yoakum counties and Lea county, New Mexico," Mr. Murray added. "Cochran is now being actively canvassed by many major companies for leases which gives indications of even greater oil development toward Lubbock."

"Seagraves, 45 miles by air from the discovery well, is naturally the distribution point for the field," he said. "It is the closest rail connection and offers the best highway outlet."

"The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, the retail merchants, the wholesale houses, hotels and other business here should be active in aiding Seagraves in securing facilities necessary for the field," he said, "as the town is in Lubbock's trade territory and will draw all of her business through transactions with local firms."

FIVE EXECUTED FOR PLOT ON PRESIDENT

TIRANA, Albania, July 14 (AP).—Three men convicted of plotting to assassinate President Ahmed Zogu were executed yesterday. They were arrested on July 5. Police declared they planned to waylay the president and shoot him from ambush as he traveled from Tirana to Koritza by automobile. Their design was learned and the trip abandoned. Shortly afterward a time bomb was discovered in Ahmed Zogu's villa at Durazzo, which he had intended to visit.

Extends Congratulations to Citizens of—

SEAGRAVES, TEX.

—and—

HOBBS, NEW MEX.

It is your good fortune to be in the center of what is believed to be the greatest potential oil developing area of the United States.

To the Citizens of Seagraves:

—you deserve to be "The Gateway to the Hobbs Oil Field"—and you have earned that right by the faith you have shown in the building of the many new brick buildings and for the growth of your various businesses. Surely you are most favorably located for great growth and prosperity.

To the People of Hobbs, N. M.:

—the faith you have shown in the oil possibilities of your section were certainly justified by the Midwest Refining Co., Hobbs No. 1. That you will build a city that will serve that field is confidently expected. May success be yours surely and quickly.

We will be glad to have citizens from Seagraves and Hobbs visit our store when in Lubbock. You'll always find a welcome and know that we have a genuine interest in your welfare. If we can serve you call on us.

Come now and see for yourself the Big Hobbs No. 1 oil well! Come quick and see HOBBS—the townsite where a city is being built quickly! Come now while the original prices are effective on Hobbs Townsite lots now owned by the Hobbs Townsite Company. Prices are BOUND to go up—up—soon!

Hobbs—the town—is a beautiful site of 320 acres lying just north of the Hobbs No. 1 oil well. Hundreds of people have come and been convinced of the GREAT OPPORTUNITY offered by the townsite of Hobbs.

Main Street in Hobbs is a 100 foot thoroughfare oiled from the crude produced out of Hobbs No. 1. Main Street runs east and west— all cross streets are 90 feet wide. Lots are 25 feet by 140 feet.

BUY BEFORE PRICES ADVANCE

The developers of Hobbs Townsite wish to give everyone possible a chance to share and help in the growth of this city. The prices on Hobbs Townsite lots ranging from $25 to $200 each—have not been raised since the townsite has been on the market. There are already many instances noted where buyers have doubled and tripled their money on lots bought of the Hobbs Townsite Company. A fair, square deal is promised everyone who comes and wishes to investigate Hobbs.

We will be glad to give any information possible to help you locate.

More than 350 lots have been bought to date—while buyers are flocking in daily—and just as quickly as the outside world knows of the actual situation here of course the demand will be overwhelming, in our belief. There are about 2,000 lots remaining to be sold in the townsite. Should you wish to buy we advise your earliest inspection as we honestly believe prices will go skyward fast now.

BUILDINGS ARE GOING UP FAST WHILE OPPORTUNITIES STILL LAST

Wednesday of the past week ground was broken for the erection of a 33-room hotel. Contract for 3 new business houses were made this week, a bank site has been purchased. The Hobbs postoffice will be in new quarters soon. There are four lumber yards, several filling stations, etc., going in or already located here now.

Hobbs is on daily stage route from Lamesa to Carlsbad. Telephone services are being installed and assurance of electric services have been made.

Hobbs is blessed, too, with the finest of water in an inexhaustible supply at only a depth of 50 feet. Hobbs is located approximately 80 miles east of Carlsbad, New Mexico, and about 50 miles west of Seagraves, Texas. All roads on the South Plains and Eastern New Mexico now bear traffic headed for Hobbs. Most anyone can tell you how to come to Hobbs.

PLEASE KEEP THIS IN MIND

We know that it's hard for people so well acquainted with the Plains country to realize the presence of oil. You must COME ON OUT AND SEE THE WELL AND OIL FOR YOURSELF! You'll also note by County Records that the biggest and wisest of the oil fraternity are grabbing leases throughout this section. Of course everything moves rapidly when oil is found—especially in a Wildcat territory. So if you enjoy the best fruits, the juiciest plums, you should COME TO HOBBS NOW!

We'll welcome you, help you and direct you. Don't buy if you think there's a chance of losing your money in Hobbs! SEE FOR YOURSELF!

The Gateway To Hobbs

Seagraves is a Santa Fe Railroad Terminus - 25 Miles NEARER Hobbs Oil Field Than Any Other Railroad Point!

FACTS!

Seagraves is now only 50 miles from the Midwest Refining Company's Hobbs No. 1 oil well.

Seagraves is connected with Hobbs oil field by GOOD roads. Improvements are now under way and a short cut is being built which will bring Seagraves 7 miles nearer the Hobbs Oil Field.

Seagraves is served by the great Santa Fe railroad with daily freight and passenger trains.

Being now 25 miles NEARER the Hobbs Oil Field than any other railroad town Seagraves is the NATURAL shipping point as well as the LOGICAL headquarters for Supply Houses, etc., which are certain to be located near this great potential oil developing area.

The general trend, according to best information, of the continued development of this field, brings Seagraves nearer the developing area than at present time.

Leasing is active in Gaines county. The future of oil development, though undermined, doubtless will bring the expenditure of millions of dollars in the vicinity now served by Seagraves.

From every logical measure SEAGRAVES is "The Gateway to the Hobbs oil field" said to be the greatest potential oil field in the United States at this time.

GOOD SCHOOLS GOOD CHURCHES

When you come to Seagraves you will find good churches and a $75,000 school building that would do justice to a city of several thousand greater population than now here. You will find a lot of good people who are progressive and believe in their town.

A recent $45,000 bond issue for water works was voted by big majority and in every direction of advancement Seagraves is looking forward optimistically.

Offers Great Investment Possibilities!
Investigate NOW!!*

GREAT AGRICULTURAL AREA SERVED

Seagraves is in the heart of the finest corn raising section of the South Plains—its lands are famed for productivity of all crops grown in Western Texas.

Water is shallow and plentiful—as fine as you ever drank. From a strictly agricultural standpoint the future growth of Seagraves is assured and the safety in investments made today doubly protected.

FACTS!

Notwithstanding the investment possibilities of Seagraves as a point of supply and distribution to the great oil section, Seagraves occupies a unique position in the great section it serves.

Nothing could prove this better than the faith exhibited by Seagraves citizens this year. Arising from ashes of a disastrous fire that cleaned out the entire business section in March of this year, today is a model and modern city of beautiful fireproof brick buildings.

Seagraves now has 2 dry good stores, 2 drug stores, 3 grocery stores, 4 lumber yards, 2 gins, 2 picture shows, one bank, furniture stores, 5 auto agencies, 4 wholesale oil stations, 2 cafes, 2 nice filling stations, 2 hardware stores, a famous hotel, and one newspaper.

Seagraves is also connected by good highway with Lovington, New Mexico.

Townsite properties in Seagraves are very modestly priced . . . and considering the future prospect we believe offer the safest and best investment opportunity to be found anywhere.

Postal Receipts Showing Increase

Seagraves Will Move Uncle Sam's Business Into New Brick Building Soon, Is Postmaster's Word

SEAGRAVES, July 14.—Postal receipts here since the first of the year total $21,433, an official statement given out by Postmaster Marjorie Ware show.

Since the fire of March 27 which almost completely destroyed the entire town of Seagraves the postoffice has been located in temporary quarters. It is now located in an old frame building, but will be moved into a newly constructed brick building with the arrival of postal equipment.

The equipment has been ordered from the factory for some time and is expected to arrive within the next few weeks. The new office will contain about 250 boxes.

Since the date of the fire postal receipts here aggregate $10,433.

ACCEPTS INVITATION

Austin Youth Will Visit Mrs. Woodrow Wilson

AUSTIN, July 14 (AP).—The fortunes of politics may result in a trip to Washington for Sumner Ramsey, 16-year-old son of S. W. Ramsey, state board of control secretary, to visit Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war president.

Young Ramsey was Mrs. Wilson's page at the democratic national convention at Houston. She invited him, after the convention was over, to come to see her. He says he intends to go later in the summer.

He got the job as page by going to Houston and taking a chance of getting in the convention hall by waiting for something to do. He haunted the trail of Governor Moody (for whom he worked as special messenger during the special session of the 40th legislature. Finally the head-haired youngster was asked to take a message from the governor to Josephus Daniels. He did. Then several hours later at 2 a. m. Tuesday of the convention, Ramsey was notified that he had been appointed as page for Mrs. Wilson.

DUAL KINGDOM SEEN
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 14 (AP).—Fravda today said that the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes might be divided into a dual kingdom patterned after the late Austro-Hungarian empire if a suggestion made by the conference of Croatian peasants at Zagreb is carried into effect. Howlers Draw Wrath Of Major Hoople

Philosopher Never In Hobbs But He Believes There Will Be New Field

BY MAJOR HOOPLE McCORKLE

Avalanche-Journal Philosopher

Some people are just natural born howlers, while others just howl for fun. Nothing is quite so bad as it appears, but if we humor trouble and disaster we may rest assured that our troubles will grow until they reach the point of disaster.

For instance a lot of people have been howling hard times in Lubbock. The dry weather was more than they could stand, but as we have said before, and now repeat, it always rains here just a few days before it is too late. In the instance we could have gone several days longer and then been in the "storm" this fall. However, old J. Pluvius saw fit to give a regular old time "chuck floater" Thursday afternoon (only there aren't any chunks on the Plains) and crops now look like those found in some of the more or less famous irrigated districts.

This merely proves that a fellow will go "nuts" if he pays any attention to the "howler." Shun him like a diamond-backed rattler.

New For The Oil.

And just at this time it appears that Lubbock is to be next-door neighbor to a real oil field—the Hobbs, N. M. district. Of course we don't own any oil wells ourselves, but for a long time we have been writing "bull" about them.

We have seen a half dozen Texas fields come and go, and are now holding our breath for the first news of "the great Hobbs gusher."

Of course the "howler" will tell you there is no oil down there. He knows. He also told you that there would never be an oil field north of Amarillo. Even some of them tried to prove by scripture and geography that the Plains section was too high for oil. Personally we don't think they should have brought the "scripture" into the case, but we want to say right here that their education in geography was most sadly neglected. The Panhandle field has proved to be one of the world's greatest.

Got It At Angelo.

Some people argued that the San Angelo section was fine for grazing, constituted a fair cattle range, and furnished excellent fishing. The would tell of the "good old days" when they bought "it" at five cents a glass, but in the same breath swore that they "knew" there would never be any oil found down there. Well, they came very near lying, for there are a 1000 producing oil wells down there and new ones are coming in all the time. Just a matter of howling.

Sometimes we figure that the less he really knows the better howler he makes. He merely capitalizes upon his own ignorance. If he had three ideas above a brick bat, and had the gumption of a road lizard he would know enough to keep quiet until he really had something to say. When a man is "roaring" in an asylum they call him insane—when he "roars" on the streets they call him a "howler."

Believes It's Coming.
But more about the new oil field. We have not been down there and unless the boss or some other capitalist pays our way we will probably never go. (The weather is simply too hot for long hikes—especially when one is carrying about 70 pounds excess avoirdupois.) We want to go, however, and see what the country looks like before it is all "messed up" with oil and rigs. We can't tell just how long this will be, but just taking history as a guide we figure that before snow falls again people in the Hobbs district will be using crude oil and natural gas for fuel.

It generally takes several months to prove a field after one or two test wells come in as producers. It took 10 years at Ranger and almost as long at Amarillo, but in time both prove "payers." When a fellow "hills the sand" he just knows that his geology is good. It may be a mile, five miles or even 10 to the "big pool." At Hobbs the sand and oil, too, have been found, so it stands to reason that in time Hobbs will be in the very center of a big oil producing field. The big companies haven't been buying up leases and royalties down there simply because they felt sorry for the Lea county farmers. No siree! They bought the leases because they felt sure that they would be repaid many times in oil—liquid gold—a mineral that has brought happiness and prosperity to teeming millions in the United States during the past 20 years.

The Major's Opinion.

Just when the big "rush" will start we can not say, but we want to say right here that just as sure as you are living there will be a real field there, and it won't be very long. The sand that drillers and geologists have talked about and looked for has been encountered, and they know, as do many others, that there is oil. Hobbs may not be in the direct center of the field, though at this time it appears that this may be true. Anyway, Hobbs will be in the running.

Our leading geologists have said that the Amarillo pool, and the San Angelo pool are connected by strong veins, and that there is every reason to believe that there are other great pools along the route. So far their statements have been correct. Many people feel that Lubbock is not far off the course of these veins—we do not know. But we have an idea that there will be oil wells drilled in Lubbock and Cochrane counties formations are good. Some drilling has been done, but little if any oil was found. This does not mean, however, that drillers were on a cold train. Far from it, they may have not missed a gusher vein a half mile.

But for the time being we will just watch developments in New Mexico, and it makes mighty little difference what the howlers have to say. If their "sand" would burn as well as it "flows" there would be no excuse for drilling oil wells. But their gas is even worse than helium. It just floats around like monoxide gas and is almost as poisonous.

So let the howler howl. Just keep out of his way, work like the dickens and when the oil "bood" breaks be ready to get in on the "ground floor." This is good advice, whether you take it or not, and will at least give us a little rest from the worries of politics.

PRISONERS BEGIN ON HUNGER STRIKE

SONNENBURG, Germany, July 14 (AP).—Sixty five political prisoners, including Max Hoels, Germany's "Robin Hood," have started a hunger strike, fearing that the Reichstag may again postpone its decision to vote an amnesty bill. The strike began yesterday with 17 communists, but today 48 more, among them five extreme rightists, convicted of murder, joined the strike. In addition forty-one ordinary criminals went into the hunger combination.

C. C. Work Starts Off With A Bang

C. M. Armstrong Is Leading Spirit In Organization's Work; Better Roads Are Being Planned

SEAGRAVES, July 14.—Organization of a chamber of commerce here was perfected recently, as one of the greatest strides taken by local business men toward the future development of the city.

Definite action toward improving roads between here and the newly discovered Hobbs oil field was the first immediate work undertaken by the organization.

Membership of the chamber includes practically all of the business men of the city, and all farmers in this territory have an open invitation to attend any of the meetings. Regular meetings are held each Thursday night.

C. M. Armstrong is president of the civic organization and A. D. Cebby is secretary. Directors are J. K. Hill, S. J. Redman and H. C. Jones.

It is planned to obtain the services of a paid secretary in the future to carry on the work of the organization.

CALIFORNIA WOMAN TO SUPPORT HOOVER

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP).—Mrs. Eva C. Wheeler, Los Angeles, president of the Southern California Women's Christian Temperance Union, today called upon the prohibition party to support Herbert Hoover, republican nominee, for the presidency.

Mrs. Wheeler is a delegate to the party's convention here.

She said it would be futile to organize a third party movement with a dry democrat heading the ticket. "And why a dry democrat rather than a dry republican," she asked.

Citizens of Seagraves, We Are Proud for You

The spirit of the people of West Texas has again been demonstrated by the achievements of the citizens of Seagraves.

In March of this year the entire business section of Seagraves was swept by fire—not a building left standing. Today, less than four months from the disaster, Seagraves presents a modern, model city whose entire business section has been rebuilt with modern, fire-proof brick buildings.

That is the spirit of West Texas! And in the faith expressed the entire South Plains takes pride!

We congratulate the citizenship of Seagraves and shall hope their faith fully justified by future development, as indicated by the opportunities now offered and being developed through the discovery of the Hobbs, New Mexico oil field, of which Seagraves is "The Gateway."

Eastern New Mexico—Congratulations!

Your good fortune in the discovery of oil and in the activity of leasing and apparent era of development is a source of pride to this bank and to all citizens of Lubbock.

We are proud for you and shall welcome the opportunity of being of service whenever possible.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED—Bertie Lou Ward, who receives a dagger-like paper knife from LILA MARSH, who has turned Rod down because he is not healthy. But she courageously lives not to be jealous of Rod's love affair, since his future is her keeping.

Bertie Lou receives a second blow to her pride when she accidentally overhears one bride-to-be ask another if she thought the bride liked the second choice. The pain in her heart is so great that she whispers to her sister with a world of adoration in her eyes.

They spend an ideal honeymoon in a mountain resort, and Bertie Lou almost forgets the shadow cast by the predatory ex-sweetheart until they return and find Lila acting dictator in their apartment on grounds that she knows what Lila's. Both the bride and her sister resent Lila's efforts to annoy, and MRS. WARD advises Bertie Lou to try to avoid meeting her the future.

The newlyweds are given a surprise welcome-home party and her demands on their hospitality are so worry about making the budget balance. But Bertie Lou's finances when Rod tells her they have been invited out to dine with the FRANKS—from New York.

SO GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

Tom Fraser got up to greet Bertie Lou and Rod, but Molly and the third guest remained seated. Molly got up a hand and pulled Bertie Lou down beside them on the wide leather-covered davenport.

"Of course, you know Miss Fraser," she said politely.

Bertie Lou could have laughed, but had she done so it would not have been a pleasant sound. Lila giggled outright. "Why, Molly," she exclaimed, "don't you know that Rod and I are ex-sweethearts?"

Confusion appeared for an instant on Molly Fraser's nondescript features. Her pet horror was a social error. "Why, I," she stammered to a stop.

"Don't mind Lila," Bertie Lou said hurriedly. "That old stuff, Waville's best bromide."

Lila's big blue eyes narrowed lazily. "But still hot," she murmured softly.

Bertie Lou took no notice. And Molly immediately began to explain that they were waiting for the sixth member of the party. "I wonder what's keeping Mr. Stiles, anyway," she added jealously.

Her mind was very troubled over her seating arrangements. She'd intend having Mr. Stiles beside her Bertie Lou as guest of honor beside Mr. Fraser and Lila. Rod's dinner partner, Mr. Fraser had received his order. And she could not get a whispered word to him before Mr. Stiles bore down upon them, beaming apologies for his tardiness. In Waville it was a social crime to be late at dinner.

Molly sought to rearrange the seating order at the last moment but she was not a woman endowed with quick wits or much force, so Lila sat beside Rod.

It was not the first time since his marriage, for Lila had her following in the town and opportunities were sometimes given her by girls who held old grudges against Bertie Lou.

Until she became engaged to Rod, Bertie Lou had been the belle of the town. Naturally this enviable position aroused jealousy.

Bertie Lou knew that there were some of her less friendly friends who enjoyed the rivalry between her and Lila. Enjoyed watching it. Chiefly, she suspected, to see if she would weaken and show signs of being disturbed.

After the night of their surprise party Bertie Lou had assumed a role of amused acceptance of Lila and her pretenses. It had been almost unbearable at times, but she stuck to it. Lila openly discussed her love affair with Rod in Bertie Lou's presence at every opportunity. And Bertie Lou told her she was kidding herself. It was always a matter of surface remarks and deeper feelings.

So far Rod had managed to avoid saying Lila anything that she could use against Bertie Lou. He cleverly evaded being alone with her and when they dined together anyone could see that he had nothing secret to impart to her.

But Bertie Lou knew that Rod was no match for Lila. That sooner or later Lila would be able to report some occurrence, whether true or not, that would not bear the proof of falsehood on the face of it. Rod sometimes or another would be caught off his guard.

Bertie Lou and Rod had never discussed Lila. Rod was not the sort to discuss his affairs with women and Bertie Lou was too sporting to want him to.

She might have warned him that Lila was looking for a chance to catch him, but he hadn't entirely cooled toward her, but Bertie Lou could not do that sort of thing. And a lot of ways to eliminate Lila, but taking flight to another locale had not been one of them. Had not Lila been uppermost in her mind at the moment she'd have reacted to the idea with a different emotion.

But now Bertie Lou knew that the thing she wanted most was to get away from Lila's predatory reach. From all the snarls and slips of tongue she met so often in her home town.

She flashed toward Rod. "Did you hear what Tom said? She cried excitedly. "Rod, he wants you to go to New York!"

Rod turned his head. Lila looked over, too, startled. "Go to New York?" he repeated in bewilderment. "Gosh, Tom, I never thought of it."

"Don't suppose you did," Tom remarked dryly. "or you wouldn't be here. To be frank, I'd have asked you before only I hesitated over a fellow who's satisfied to stay on in a one-horse town."

Almost unconsciously he puffed his chest as though to say, "look at me! I got out."

Everyone waited. "But you've got a smart little wife here," he dug playfully at Bertie Lou's ribs. "Gosh, to give her a chance—look at Molly—see what Fifth Avenue did for her?"

They all looked, of course. Molly was equal to the appraisal. She sat like a queen. A colorful idea. Lila smiled and Bertie Lou felt drabber than ever. She knew Tom hadn't meant to disparage her, but it could be taken that way. Lila surely wouldn't miss it. Too bad Bertie Lou couldn't have seen herself, for there was nothing approaching drabness about her. The thick, rich hair was knotted beautifully on the nape of her neck and her eyes were shining like jewels. There wasn't another girl in Waville with a complexion to match hers. With summer tan upon it there was but one thing to liken it to. The velvet skin of a luscious, ripe peach.

In Tom's estimation, however, she wasn't up to Molly. Molly, with her light marvel, her thin, shaved eyebrows and precisely rouged lips, was Tom's ideal of smartness. Molly wore an abundance of jewelry, too. That meant a lot to Tom.

"Well, what do you say?" he demanded as Rod hesitated to answer. (To Be Continued.)

Moody Shifts To Fiery Campaign

Governor Changes Tactics In Drive For Re-election To Executive's Seat As Opponents Rap Him

(By Associated Press) AUSTIN, July 14.—It is becoming evident here that Governor Moody has abandoned his original idea of a quiet campaign, with only a few speeches, in favor of a more active drive for re-election.

The governor has made six speeches in the last week and is to make two more before returning here Saturday. He is expected to go into north or northeast Texas next week.

An active campaign headquarters has been opened in downtown Austin with a clerical force of half a dozen or so. Hundreds of postal cards carrying a synopsis of administration accomplishments are related in the opening campaign statement are being mailed to voters by the governor's friends with their signatures.

The governor has apparently modified his first intentions to stand on his record alone and ignore the opposition. He is charging that former governor James E. Ferguson is trying to get an influential hand into state affairs again. Last night at Del Rio, Governor Moody said that Ferguson was "governor by proxy once and now he is trying to slip in again under a different banner." Ferguson is supporting L. J. Wardlaw for governor.

The main street of the city of Hobbs is oiled by the oil from the Hobbs well. This street is 100 feet wide, while the cross streets running north and south are seventy-five feet wide. Lots are 25x140 feet and sell from $25 to $200, with a one-sixty-fourth mineral right included. The townsite includes 320 acres, with other acreage which can be added later if found necessary.

Approximately 350 to 400 lots have already been sold, leaving a remainder of about 2000 yet on sale. Optimism reigns in the city, everyone expressing the belief that it is to become a thriving city in the near future. It is claimed that six other locations have been made in this section and that major oil companies are busy buying up all the available leases.

only well on the "ballies" above the cap rock.

That the field is a promising one is indicated by the fact that towns in every direction of the well are fighting for the outlet of the field.

Good water may be found here at a depth of only fifty feet. The city has a large 2000-gallon city tank. The New Mexico Utilities company is building a line here at the present time, and it is expected that the city will be provided with lights and telephones soon.

PNEUMONIA FATAL

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—Alexander R. Peacock, one of Andrew Carnegie's "young men" whom the steel king led to fortune in the midwest, is dead. Pneumonia proved fatal yesterday. He was 66 years old.

LAFOLLETTE'S RACE

POND DU LAC, Wis., July 14 (AP)—Senator Robert M. LaFollette will seek re-election to the United States congress on his own minority platform, and not on the plank adopted by the national republican convention, he said in a speech here.

New Townsite Is Being Organized

New Hobbs Townsite Co. Is Composed Of Littlefield Men; Proposed Site Near Present One

A new townsite, located just east of the present location, will be promoted at Hobbs, New Mexico, scene of the latest oil development. A. C. Chesher of Littlefield, sales manager, reported here yesterday. The organization backing the new site is known as the New Hobbs Townsite company, he said.

Associated in the venture are A. C. Chesher, W. J. Chesher, C. L. Yager and V. A. Volles, all of Littlefield.

MANY REDS KILLED IN CHINESE DRIVE

SHANGHAI, China, July 14 (AP)—Of 107 Reds arrested at Canton since July 9, forty eight have been executed. A similar fate for the others is expected. Ninety student agitators arrested at Shenchung, forty miles from Canton, have been brought to Canton for trial. There are 17 girls among them. The execution of most of the students, perhaps all, is considered likely.

Flies In Big Air Tour

When Mrs. Phoebe Fairgrave Omie says "We," she means "the duck and me." She is the only woman flyer in the 1928 National Air Tour, and the wife of Captain V. C. Omie of Memphis, Tenn. She flies alone—pardon us, with the duck—and carries no parachute.

Landmark Here Is Being Torn Down

Former City Hall Succumbs To March Of Progress As Saws And Hammers Fly In Razing Structure

Lubbock's steady march of progress is claiming another one of its old landmarks.

The old city hall building, the bleak looking two-story structure at 1115 Main street, is giving way before the hammer and pickbar today as workmen dismantle it to make room for a more modern building.

With the tearing down of the old city hall, one of Lubbock's community centers of former days passes on. It was formerly the city fire station and many has been the time when "Old Number One" rolled out to an emergency. It was also the quarters of the city officers for a number of years and here the mayor issued his orders in ruling the municipality. The second floor was also a great gathering place and its narrow floor offered about the only lodge meeting place in the city. The Lubbock boy scouts, in their earlier struggles for existence, met there on Friday nights in answer to the call of bugle which could easily be heard over the city. Various other organizations sought the grey walls a council place. The building is the property of the Parhandle Construction company.

RAINBOW DIVISION

Annual Convention Held In Famous Scrappers

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 14 (AP)—Celebration of the tenth anniversary of Champagne-Marne defense was under way here today. Members of the Rainbow Division (Forty Second) gathered for the annual convention. Practically every state represented in the division had contributed a delegate. General Dennis E. Nolan, commanding officer of the Fifth Corps area, Fort Hayes, Governor A. Donahay, and Major James Thomas of Columbus, were on the program for talks at the inception of the national session today.

WHEAT HARVEST

AMARILLO, July 14.—Wheat harvest is practically finished in the South Plains but just getting into full swing in the upper Plains. More than 4,000,000 bushels already have been harvested, according to grain men. Total crop is expected to be about 17,000,000.

NEGRO IS HANGED

Black, Held In Seclusion Five Months, Dies

MEMPHIS, Miss., July 14 (AP)—After being kept in seclusion for more than five months, Greene Kirk, negro, was brought here yesterday and executed for the slaying of two Simpson county officers last January. The negro dropped through the gallows trap at 10:35 and was pronounced dead 11 minutes later.

Kirk was convicted in the murders of Night Marshal H. W. Hemby, of Masee, and Earl Nunnery, Simpson county deputy sheriff. He had been held in unattended jail since the deaths of the two officers, which resulted from bullet wounds fired from a pistol by Kirk as he fled rather than face arrest.

His location was kept undisclosed for fear of mob violence. The term "turlong" is a shortened form of "furrow-long." The average length of a furrow cut by a plow across a field was about 200 yards. From a rough indication of distance it gradually became fixed at 220 yards.

HOTEL LUBBOCK

the Plains' headquarters for Oil Men

The most inspiring promise to posterity and the future of the South Plains is the discovery of the Hobbs Field, offering as it does, the opportunity to bring widespread activity in an industry of genuine importance to the community, state, and nation.

Too, it is quite natural that Lubbock with her facilities for transportation and strategic location, should be looked upon as the logical headquarters for oil men.

It is quite logical too, that they, like representatives of other industries who come to Lubbock, should seek the comfort of the excellent food and restful atmosphere that the Hotel Lubbock, "The South Plains Center of Hospitality," offers. And these modern facilities offer them the every advantage found in the most metropolitan centers . . . the comforts to which they have long been accustomed . . . the genuine spirit of hospitality that tends to make a guest remember with pleasure, every moment of a visit to Lubbock.
