IRISH RESOLUTIONS CAUSE OF BREACH AT LABOR CONVENTION

ONE RESOLUTION PROPOSES BOYCOTT BRITISH GOODS AND CAPITAL.

OTHER SEEKS RECOGNITION OF IRISH REPUBLIC

Effort Being Made by Third Group to Compromise Differences of Two Factions.

DENVER, June 14. — Warning against any agitation that might disrupt the American labor movement, James H. Thomas, British labor leader, told the American federation of labor convention today that it could not solve the Irish problem.

"For one hundred years we in England have been confronted with the problem of Ireland and if we at home cannot solve that problem let me ask how do you, 3,000 miles away, expect to solve it?" Mr. Thomas addressed the convention as a fraternal delegate from the British trades union congress.

"British labor," he continued, "has always stood and stands now for liberty. We stand for home rule for Ireland.

"For one hundred years the people of Ireland have been deceived. For one hundred years they have been fed upon promises—broken promises, by British statesmen. Now the Irish people are looking to you.

"I warn you against trying to create in their minds the feeling that you can solve their difficulties. You cannot."

Irish sympathizers among the delegates immediately demanded the right to question Mr. Thomas, who answered several questions regarding the acts of the military in Ireland. President Samuel Gompers then stopped further debate.

In answering Timothy Healy of New York, one of the leaders of the Irish sympathizers, Mr. Thomas said that "militarism may go on to doomsday, but it will not solve the Irish problem."

DENVER, June 14.—Efforts to prevent a widening of the breach between the two factions of Irish sympathizers among the delegates was being made today at the opening of the second session of the fifty-first annual convention of the American federation of labor.

Advocates of Irish freedom at a mass meeting last night appointed a committee which was attempting to draft a resolution that would be satisfactory to both the extreme and conservative groups of Irish sympathizers.

When this committee started to work, T. J. Vind of Chicago, secretary of the labor bureau of the Amrbican commission of Irish independence, served notice that two "official resolutions of the Irish republic" must be incorporated in their resolution or he would act independently in presenting the documents to the convention.

Boycott Proposed.

The "official resolutions" called for a boycott, not only on British made goods, but on all products made by English capital, and the boycott of British insurance companies and similar firms.

They also provided that the executive council of the federation shall immediately compile a list of English-made goods and firms backed by British capital and send it to every one of the members of organized labor in the United States. Appointment of a committee of three by the federation to co-operate with the British trades union to bring pressure to bear on the English government to recognize Irish independence and withdraw troops from Holland was also asked.

Mr. Vind declared that the resolutions were drawn by "high officials of the Irish republic," but declined to state whether Eamon de Valera, "president of the Irish republic," had taken part in their drafting.

A large faction of the delegates have announced opposition to the "official resolutions" and have presented to the committee a resolution demanding recognition of the Irish republic by the United States, withdrawal of British troops from Ireland and repayment by England of the $9,000,000,000 loaned to her by the United States. Four other resolutions of similar character have also been submitted.

The delegates opposing the boycott resolution declared that it would be detrimental to the labor movement and an affront to the members of the federation who are connected with local unions in Canada. Any resolution embodying a boycot, they assert, will be defeated on the floor of the convention.

FEDERATED CRAFTS WIN DECISION BY RAIL LABOR BOARD

CHICAGO, June 14.—Union labor won its fight for negotiation of agreements with the railroads by the federated shop crafts acting for all employes comprising these crafts, in a decision handed down by the United States railroad labor board today.

Three test cases recently were brought before the board after a number of railroads had refused to deal with the federation, but maintained their right to conduct negotiations and sign agreements with each craft separately. The board decided that an agreement between the federated shop crafts and a carrier should, if the federation so elected, apply to all employes comprising those crafts.

EL PASO POLICE CAPTAIN KILLED, SERGEANT WOUNDED

EL PASO, TEXAS, June 14.—Police Captain Harry Phoenix was shot and instantly killed and Sergeant S. C. Houston probably fatally wounded late last night by a Mexican whom the officers stopped to question. The Mexican escaped.

BENEDICT CHARGES JEWS IN PALESTINE OPPRESS CHRISTIANS

ROME, June 14.—Three Italian cardinals were added to the sacred college today when Pope Benedict, in a secret consistory, raised to the purple Monsignor Giovanni Tacci Porcelli, the papal major domo; Monsignor Camillo Laurenti, secretary of the congregation of the propaganda, and Monsignor Achile Ratti, papal nuncio to Poland.

The papal allocution expresses deep anxiety over the situation in Palestine owing to the activity of the Jews in the Holy Land, and urges the governments of the Christian nations to appeal to the league of nations to insist upon the definition of the British mandate in Palestine.

The allocution charges that Jews are "taking advantage of the sufferings of the inhabitants due to the war," and deplores "the privileged position enjoyed by the Jews in Palestine, which is dangerous for Christians."

The pope adds that he will not fail to succor the needy, but that his means are limited as he has to respond to calls from many quarters.

Referring to world matters, the pontiff says that almost all civilized states have diplomatic relations with the Holy See, except where bad conditions would hamper the necessary liberty and independence of the pontificate.

FINDING OF SILVERWARE DEVELOPMENT IN MURDER TRIAL OF MRS. KABER

CLEVELAND, June 14.—Silverware declared by Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber to have been stolen on the night her husband, Daniel F. Kaber, was murdered, was today in the possession of County Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton. It was recovered last night from the home of a woman fortune teller, who said it was placed there by Mrs. Kaber three days before Kaber was stabbed to death two years ago by alleged hired assassins. Mrs. Kaber, her mother, Mrs. Mary Brickell; her daughter, Marian McArdle, and Mrs. Erminia Colavito, a mid-wife, are under indictment for first degree murder in connection with Kaber's death.

The finding of the silverware is declared by Prosecutor Stanton to be among the most important developments of the case thus far, as Mrs. Kaber has said it was stolen by the murderers of her husband.

Another important development, in the opinion of Prosecutor Stanton, is an alleged statement by the daughter of the fortune teller that she was in Mrs. Kaber's home when Mrs. Kaber gave a diamond ring and a watch which belong to her husband to a man as part payment of a fee he claimed for committing the murder.

WITNESS UPON WHOM "CAVE MAN" CARVED INITIALS IN JAIL

PARIS, ILL., June 14.—Bessie Simpson Rogers, 20, on whose breast Glenn Forstman, alleged "cave man lover" carved his initials, is in the county jail today in default of $1,000 bonds, apparently to stay until Forstman, against whom six indictments are pending, comes to trial in November.

The girl was found hiding at her mother's home last night and arrested on statutory charges.

She told the sheriff that she left town on advice of an attorney. Finally she decided to kill herself and wrote a farewell letter, she said. On the bank of the Wabash river she changed her mind, and came home to see her mother before dying.

COMMUNIST LEADER IS ARRAIGNED ON GRAVE CHARGES IN BERLIN COURT

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 13.—Max Hoelz, the communist leader, who last year incited a reign of terror in the Plauen region, during which murder and arson were rampant, was arraigned before a special court here today on charges of murder, high treason and disturbing public order.

Hoelz refused to regard himself as a person accused of crime, but asserted that he was a complainant "against that bourgeois society which you represent."

He denied that the rebellion had been headed by persons from Russia but asserted it had been provoked by the authorities.

REVOLVERS AND RIFLES USED IN BELFAST RIOT

BELFAST, June 14.—Rioting accompanied by heavy revolver and rifle firing was renewed in the Clifton street area today. Authorities asserted it was organized by republicans to prevent the visit of King George to Belfast on June 22 for the state opening of the Ulster parliament.

The center of the disorder was adjacent to the Ulster military headquarters. The attackers waited for shipyard workers and opened fire.

One newspaper man had a narrow escape, as a lamp post behind which he had sought shelter was struck by bullets. Stenographers fled, screaming, from the battle zone, and tram cars, with their passengers lying on the floors, dashed past at record speed.

Police were hurried to the square, but the rioting continued for some time.

ARKANSAS RIVER FLOODS MORE TERRITORY

HUTCHINSON, KAN., June 14.—Waters of the Arkansas river which yesterday broke over the Missouri Pacific and Santa Fe tracks two miles northwest of Yaggy and eight miles northwest of Hutchinson are now flooding at and near Yaggy and approaching Cok creek.

Hutchison thus faces the liklihood of facing at least a repetition of the flood of 1903 when a portion of the city had water through her streets from a Cow creek flood.

No damage has been done so far and the overflow that may come into the city is expected to cause little, if any loss.

VICTIM OF DUBLIN REBELLION

One of the seven sinn feiners who set fire to the Dublin custom house was shot down while attempting to elude British soldiers. His body is shown lying outside Liberty Hall. The custom house was completely destroyed, the loss being estimated at $5,000,000.

TEN THOUSAND SHRINERS PASS IN REVIEW BEFORE IMPERIAL POTENTATE AT DES MOINES

DES MOINES, IA., June 14.—Ten thousand Shriners, garbed in all the tints and shades of the color world, passed in review here today before Ellis Lewis Garretson of Tacoma, Wash., imperial potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

The parade was one of the largest in point of numbers which ever has featured a meeting of the Shrine imperial council, which opened its session in Des Moines this morning. Fifty temples were represented by their bands, patrols or drum corps. Medinah Temple of Chicago, the largest of the units of Shrinedom, had one of the largest delegations, with 500 marchers in line.

More than 150,000 persons were packed along the line of march, which was four miles long and completely roped off.

The marchers were led by Za-Ga-Zig Temple of Des Moines, hosts to the imperial council, with Afifi temple of Tacoma, Wash., and Aleo Temple of Savannah, Ga., home temple of Ernest A. Cutts of Savannah, who will be selected imperial potentate of the Shrine at the Des Moines meeting, having places of honor as escorts of the imperial divan.

Shriners from every part of the United States have been pouring into Des Moines since Sunday, and the city is entirely given over to Shrine festivities. Five miles of trackage have been set aside and are being utilized to park the sleeping cars, which are being used as headquarters by many of the temples.

The imperial council was called to order this morning and will be in session for three days. All of the 147 temples of the order are represented, including delegations from Panama, Hawaii and Mexico City.

The chief business before the council is the decision as to what shall be done in regard to the proposed national Shrine hospital.

A great display of fireworks is to conclude the first day's program this evening, and arrangements have been made to accommodate 10,000 couples of dancers in an open air hall on the grounds of the Iowa state capitol.

GRAND RAPIDS MAN CHOSEN NEW HEAD AMERICAN LEGION

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., June 14.—John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, Mich., was unanimously elected national commander of the American Legion at a meeting of the national executive committee today. He succeeds Col. Frederick W. Galbraith Jr., who was killed in an automobile accident here last Thursday.

Following his election, Commander Emery announced he would fill the speaking dates arranged by the late Mr. Galbraith so far as possible. Mr. Galbraith was killed in an automobile accident here last week, while on his way to catch a train to begin a speaking tour in the interest of the Legion.

MAJOR EMERY SAW MUCH FIGHTING IN FRANCE

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., June 14.—Major John Garfield Emery, named commander of American Legion to succeed Col. Frederick W. Galbraith, Jr., saw much of the fighting that the American troops participated in during the world war.

Major Emery was commissioned captain at the second officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan in 1917, and went to France and was assigned to the railway transportation office at Eloia, France. Later, he attended the first corps school at Gondrecourt until March 24, when he took charge of Company F, 18th infantry, first division.

He participated in all the major actions with his regiment in 1918, at Cantigny in April, May and June; at St. Mihiel in September; and the Meuse-Argonne offensive in September and October. He was commissioned a major of infantry Aug. 30, 1918.

On Oct. 9, 1918, during the Meuse-Argonne drive, Major Emery was wounded in the left arm and was invalided home. Soon after his return to Grand Rapids, he was elected to the Grand Rapids city commission, a position he now holds.

Major Emery was born July 4, 1881, in Grand Rapids.

The shutdown was approved by the state corporation commission late yesterday, the announcement said. Present low prices for oil were given as the reason for the move.

CATTLE LOANS BEST IN WORLD HARDING TELLS CATTLE MEN

SAN ANGELO, TEXAS, June 14.—After addressing representative cattlemen, bankers and business men from nearly thirty west Texas counties in which he promised aid to livestock interests, W. P. G. Harding, governor of the federal reserve board, departed late yesterday for San Antonio, where he speaks today. Tomorrow he will be in Dallas to address a statewide meeting of bankers and other business men, and on Thursday he will visit Houston, going thence to New Orleans.

In his address Mr. Harding declared liberal regulations must be adopted in extending aid to livestock interests, whether such assistance be given by a private banking pool or by the War Finance corporation. "Pawnshop methods" cannot be exercised, he declared. Cattle loans to western ranchmen are the best secured in the world, Mr. Harding said in pleading for restoration of "normal relationships."

ALL PARTIES READY TO SIGN AGREEMENT IN SHIPPING STRIKE

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Officials of the shipping board, labor department and the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association were prepared to sign an agreement today bringing one phase of the long drawn out strike of the marine workers to an end. Terms of the agreement, which were read and approved finally last night by representatives of each of the three parties to the controversy, provide for a 15 per cen treduction in wages and elimination of overtime. It is to be effective until April 30, 1922.

After approval of the agreement by the engineers' officials, Secretary Davis requested representatives of the firemen, cooks and radio operators, all of whom were involved in the strike, to meet with him in conferences looking to similar settlements.

CHAIRMAN TASKER APPROVES AGREEMENT

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Details of agreements between the shipping board and the seamen, cooks and stewards, radio operators and firemen and oilers, regarding wages and working conditions on vessels operated by the board, will be handled, Secretary Davis announced today, by Hugh L. Kerwin, director of conciliation of the department of labor. Conferences are expected to begin immediately.

The proposed terms, it was stated, would be based on the agreement between the board and the engineers, approved yesterday by Chairman Lasker, and signed by W. S. Brown, president of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association.

ANOTHER DALLAS MAN HORSEWHIPPED BY MASKED CROWD

DALLAS, June 14.—Ed Engers, 32, oil filling station operator, was seized by masked men, taken to a lonely point south of Dallas, and horsewhipped for alleged cruelty to his wife, according to his story told at Emergency hospital, where he applied for treatment early today.

Twenty lashes were applied to Enger's bare back after he had been tied to a tree, he told the doctors.

According to Enger's story two unmasked men enfered his place of business at 10:20 last night. One man declared he was an officer and told Engers to follow them. As he was placed in an automobile he said he saw three other men seated in the car, all masked. As the machine headed from the city, other automobiles joined the first car. He did not know how many men were in the party because of darkness. After the whip had been applied 20 times Engers said he was carried by a roundabout way to Red Oak, where he was handed a $5 bill and warned not to return to Dallas. Later he called a service car and came to the Emergency hospital. He said he had not reported the incident to the police.

PEACE RESOLUTION PASSED IN HOUSE SENT TO CONFERENCE

SENATE VOTES FORMALLY TO DISAGREE WITH AMENDMENT OF KNOX RESOLUTION.

DEMOCRATS ATTEMPT TO FORCE GENERAL DEBATE

Senators Harrison And Underwood Lead in Assault Upon The Republicans.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Porter peace resolution was sent to conference today by the senate for adjustment of the differences between that measure and the Knox resolution, adopted recently by the senate.

The senate voted formally to disagree with the amendment of the house, which struck out the Knox draft and substituted the Porter draft. Senate conferees named were Lodge, Massachusetts, and Knox of Pennsylvania, republicans, and Hitchcock, Nebraska, democrat.

Senator Underwood, Alabama, the democratic leader, said the amendment of the house was more acceptable to him than the original Knox resolution repealing the war declaration. He added, however, that he would vote against the resolution when it came back from conference as he could not vote to bring about peace in such a manner.

Senate republican leaders predicted that an adjustment would be reached between the house and senate plans without serious difficulties or delays. One republican leader said he believed the administration was ready now for enactment of the peace measure and did not desire further delay.

It was indicated that senate managers would not insist upon final adoption of the Knox resolution to repeal the war declaration.

SENATOR HARRISON BELABORS REPUBLICANS

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Senate democrats today launched at the republican side what was regarded generally as a concerted effort to force a general political debate, but failed to draw a counter- attack.

For more than an hour, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi belabored the republicans for what he characterized as failure to get together, for the refusal of the majority in the house to accept the Knox peace resolution, and with charges of extravagance and failure to keep campaign pledges to reduce taxes.

While Senator Harrison spoke, Senator Underwood and others from the democratic side interrupted with questions by which they sought to emphasize his arguments.

Republican senators listened, but did not reply. Senator Harrison turned to President Harding and attacked the recent appointments of Scott C. Bone, as governor of Alaska and A. D. Lasker, as chairman of the shipping board.

FORT WORTH, June 14.—Mike Tighe, the Texas & Pacific railroad conductor who was shot in an encounter with three men at Tiffin, about 90 miles west of here today, died at a hospital here this afternoon.

Tighe was slain in an attempted holdup, it was thought here, after a dying statement by the victim that a masked negro shot him. Tighe died before making a further statement.

According to witnesses, the conductor was apparently held up by two men a negro, and a white man. Al-Tighe carried considerable jewelry and cash, nothing was missing.

RANGER, TEXAS, June 14.—Mike Tighe, conductor of an eastbound Texas and Pacific passenger train, was shot and seriously wounded early today by two alleged vagrants he attempted to eject from the train at Tiffin. JURY IN CASE OF NEGRO CHARGED WITH AUTO THEFT OUT TUESDAY AFTERNOON

The jury in the case against Willie Davis, negro, charged with the theft of an automobile, was still out at a late hour Tuesday afternoon. The case came to trial Tuesday morning and went to the jury at noon. After an hour and a half of deliberation the jury asked for a written copy of the testimony of the defendant.

The defendant testified that he was at work in Duncan when the Ford car was stolen here in Wichita Falls and that a man by the name of Johnson, who looked like a Mexican, came to him at 2 o'clock in the morning while he was at work and asked him to take care of the car until he returned from Tulsa. He said he had never seen Johnson before then nor after.

PROPAGANDISTS WILL BE SEPARATED FROM UNCLE SAM'S PAYROLL

ADMINISTRATION WILL TAKE DRASTIC ACTION AGAINST ACTIVE OPPONENTS.

DECISION REACHED AT MEETING OF CABINET

Cabinet Members Will Give Opinions On Plans Directly to Organizer Brown.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Government employes who actively oppose the administration's government reorganization plan will be dismissed, the president and his cabinet decided today. The decision was said to have resulted from activities of some employes in spreading propaganda against the reorganization policy.

Specific orders are to be promulgated immediately by deapartment heads. It is understood they will be aimed particularly at bureau chiefs who are said to have been bringing influence to bear on congress to prevent a readjustment of their particular bureaus.

The president and his advisers are said to have agreed that much of this opposition was due to a fear that the reorganization would result in abolishing many high salaried officers. Mr. Harding is understood to have been emphatic in his instructions that anyone using his official position to tighten his hold on his salary envelope should be dismissed immediately. At the same time the president is said to have declared he did not wish this policy to interfere with a free expression of individual opinion.

The suggestion of Walter F. Brown, chairman of the reorganization committee, that cabinet members communicate their opinions on reorganization directly to him, was laid before the cabinet by the executive and each of the secretaries will confer with Mr. Brown in the near future. Meantime, each department head will make a survey of the general situation so that he can recommend what bureaus in his department appear out of place.

There were indications that haste would be counselled by the administration in creating the proposed department of public welfare.

YORKSHIRE POST EXPRESS SYMPATHY FOR ADMIRAL SIMS

LEEDS, ENGLAND, June 13 — The Yorkshire Post today says:

"There will be general sympathy in this country for Admiral Sims, that breezy sailor and inveterate friend of Great Britain, who once more has got into hot water in the United States for his plain speaking about Anglo American relations. * * * It would be unfortunate if the action taken regarding Admiral Sims were construed into evidence of a definite attitude on the part of the American government toward the Irish question.

"The United States authorities may take the view that Admiral Sims as an officer of the American navy, has gone beyond his province in publicly touching on such matters outside his own country. In fact, it is difficult to see on what grounds the admiral has laid himself open to such criticism, seeing that he has said these things before in America and told them with complete candor in his war book 'Victory at Sea.'"

"In speaking as he did," the newspaper continued, "the mass of the British people recognize that Sims had the best interests of the two countries at heart. He has seen the danger with which the Irish-American rancor threatened their friendship and while fighting it openly in America he has endeavored to explain its significance here. The storm his utterance raised in his own country shows the reality of the danger. * * *

"Whatever may be said for Sims with regard to his own interests, he has shown himself a plucky and honest man in daring to speak unpalatable thoughts."

"Doc" Snow, Under 20-Year Sentence Baptized Tuesday

H. C. (Doc) Snow, who has been in the county jail since his arrest last October 4 was taken from his cell Tuesday afternoon and escorted to the Floral Heights Methodist church where he was baptized and professed faith.

The prisoner was in charge of Sheriff Fred Smith who took two deputies with him. Snow was convicted of the charge of murder in connection with the death of W. S. Toney and Marvin Caples in a gambling den in Kemp City last fall. He was sentenced to 20 years in the state penitentiary and after a motion for a new trial was over ruled his case was appealed. He has been awaiting the decision of the higher court.

The jailor reports that "Doc" has made a model prisoner since his trial and has never given any trouble of any nature.

Besides Mr. Christensen, the commission will be composed of William Kohn, Dr. Alcan Hirsh and Rose Schneiderman of New York; C. L. Spiegel, Salt Lake City; Dan Richmond, Kansas City, and I. Martha Kaschub, Los Angeles.

"We hope to arrange for our commission to go over and meet the influential people there who will tell us what the real situation is," Mr. Brown said.

REPUBLICANS AFTER SCALP OF GARNER IN FIFTEENTH DISTRICT

DETERMINED FIGHT TO BE MADE ON CONGRESSMAN NEXT ELECTION.

VOTE ON THE TARIFF TO BE BASIS OF ATTACK

Recognized by Opposition as One of the Ablest Men in the Lower House.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Representative John N. Garner of the Fifteenth Texas district is to be made the object of a determined attack on the part of the republicans when he comes up for re-election next summer. A decision is said to have been reached on this matter following a conference between Dr. Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the republican congressional committee, with Texas republicans.

The fact that Congressman Garner refused to vote for the emergency tariff as passed by congress at this session, despite the fact that he was importuned to do so by many of his constituents, will be the basis of the attack. It has been pointed out that the defeat of Representative Garner, one of the leaders on the democratic side of the house, would be a severe blow from a partisan standpoint, and it is urged that his position on the emergency tariff makes him particularly vulnerable.

When the proposal for an emergency tariff to relieve the situation of near-bankruptcy confronting farmers and stockmen was first submitted during the closing days of the last congress, Mr. Garner was one of its advocates on the democratic side. He voted for that bill, which, however, was vetoed by former President Wilson. The measure was revived with this congress, but was materially changed so as to include many manufactured articles, providing for American valuations and other features which, in Mr. Garner's opinion, stripped it of all power to relieve the distress of farmers and stockmen. Every effort was made, however, to induce Mr. Garner to vote for that measure. He was showered with telegrams from his constituents, who insisted that unless he voted the way they wanted him to do and against his own convictions he would rue the consequences.

Are Not Alarmed.

In point of fact, however, neither Mr. Garner nor his close friends in Washington feel much alarm over the impending attack. In the first place, there is the belief that before next summer, when the contest would have to be staged, many of the southern democrats who have been urging tariff legislation will have had an opportunity to learn that is not the panacea for industrial ills and this, in a measure, will disarm his opponents. When this is done, Mr. Garner's friends are convinced the true purpose of the republicans will be revealed to his constituents.

The opposition to Mr. Garner on the part of the republicans is in no sense personal, for there probably is no man on the democratic side of the house with more true friends among the republicans than the "chapparal cock from the Rio Grande." These very friendships, however, make him a veritable thorn in the side of the republican organization and on more than one occasion he has succeeded in frustrating plans of the organization.

It is related that several days ago, during a caucus of the republican members on the ways and means committee, the power which Mr. Garner exercises, even outside party lines, was made the subject of acrimonious debate. Representative Fordner, republican, of Michigan, chairman of the committee, bitterly assailed some of his colleagues for following the lead of a Texas democrat, demanding to know why. "Because he's got more sense," is said to have been the blunt and not altogether untruthful rejoinder to Mr. Fordney's question. That Mr. Garner's ability is fully recognized by the republican leaders was shown one day this week when Representative Mondell, floor leader for that party, characterized "the gentleman from Texas" in saying "there is no more adroit politician in the land."

In connection with the proposed fight on him, it may now be stated with assurance that Mr. Garner will not be a candidate for the United States senate next summer. "It would take me 20 years to attain a position in the senate such as I have in the house today," declared the congressman, "and I intend to stay where I can do the most good."

BODY OF DENTON YOUTH FOUND ON ROADSIDE

DENTON, TEX., June 14.—The body of Arthur Storme of Denton, 15 years old, was found at 5 o'clock this morning near Garza on the Dallas-Denton pike. It was mangled and bruised and marks on the road indicated the lad had been dragged 50 yards by an automobile. Officers started an immediate investigation.

FLOOD LOSSES RESPONSIBLE FOR BANK'S CLOSING

DENVER, June 14.—Flood losses are believed responsible for the closing yesterday of the Bank of Pueblo at Pueblo. Its assets were placed in the hands of the state bank examiners.

ADOPTION UNIFORM CLASSIFICATION FOR COTTON IS URGED

LIVERPOOL, June 14.—Adoption of uniform classification of cotton for the world was urged today before the world's cotton conference by W. R. Meadows, a delegate from the United States department of agriculture.

"Universal standards would not simplify methods of handling cotton, but would tend to higher standards of ethics in the cotton business," said Mr. Meadows. "Knowing definitely what is expected of him, a shipper would be more likely to make serious effort to meet his obligations on shipments by supplying the grade and staple stipulated in the contract.

"A most important advantage of universal standards would be the reduced number of arbitrations that are necessarily held in the cotton business each season.

"Trading on the future exchange in both Europe and America would be more nearly on the same basis. Future quotations would be more readily comparable and better hedging facilities would result than when material discrepancies exist in the terms of the future contracts."

FARMER DROWNED NEAR SAYRE, OKLAHOMA, MONDAY

SAYRE, OKLA., June 14.—Waters of the Timber and Short creeks, swollen late yesterday by a cloudburst near here, were falling rapidly today and the flooded streams are nearly normal. According to Sheriff C. H. Cope, only one death from the flood has been established. Mack Beeson, a farmer, was drowned near his home in the flats along Timber creek. Reports of the death of six other persons have not been verified and Sheriff Cope expressed the belief that only Beeson died in the flood.

Rescue parties are today scouring the country surrounding here in a search for refugees or bodies of possible victims. None had been found after several hours.

Telephone service to the south is interrupted and the light and power plant is disabled. Railway service to the east is cut off and a number of bridges in Sayre have been washed out.

JOY RIDING WANES IN THIS CITY AFTER HEAVY SENTENCES

A noticeable decrease in the number of automobiles stolen from the city streets for joy riding purposes has been recorded in the last few weeks, Chief Detective Boyd stated Tuesday morning, this highly desirable situation being brought about, he believes, by the conviction and heavy sentences given several young men early in May.

From April 4 to May 7, 21 automobiles were reported stolen and were later found abandoned in the country, according to police records. All of these cars were plainly taken by joy riders. About the first week in May several boys were arrested on charges of stealing machines, were given trial, convicted and heavy sentences imposed. One was sent to the pen for two years, another was given a long term in the reformatory and still other got sentences of six months at hard labor on the county roads.

From May 9 to the present date only six machines have been stolen and listed as joy riding cases.

"There is no doubt but that the heavy penalties imposed by the court had a lot to do with this," Chief Boyd said. "If a young man can steal a car for the evening and escape with only a five or ten dollar fine if he's caught, which some of them did do, of course he'll keep on stealing because it's cheaper than renting a machine for the night. But when penitentiary terms are given out it gives the matter a different angle."

The orgy of car thefts which swept over the country during the early spring seems to have subsided somewhat, Chief of Police Huff says, for the number of long distance telephone calls and records of stolen cars received have greatly diminished since the first of April. Time was when every mail brought a dozen or more cards with descriptions of stolen machines listed thereon, and now less than half a dozen a day come in. But in spite of the improvement, conditions are better in Wichita Falls than in many other cities, the chief believes.

THIEVES FRIGHTENED AWAY FROM W. J. GRISHAM HOME

Thieves who entered the home of W. J. Grisham, 2201 Tenth street, Monday night, were frightened away by a negro servant before they had succeeded in obtaining anything but one suit of clothes. The vest and pants of this were dropped in the flight and recovered, but no trace can be found of the coat. The negro, who was the only one at home, heard the intruders and started an investigation.

OLD WOUND PROVES FATAL MONDAY TO OVERSEAS VETERAN

Paul Henry Cassell, an overseas veteran, died at his home in this city late Monday afternoon after a lingering illness brought about by an accidentally inflicted gun shot wound last October. Cassell was employed at the Wichita theater as a stage electrician and was wounded when a small revolver in the hands of another workman was discharged.

It was feared at first that the wound would prove fatal, but he showed improvement and after an operation here was taken to Mayo Brothers at Rochester, Minn., to undergo treatment. The wound never healed, however, and eventually caused his death.

Cassell enlisted in the naval aviation department January 29, 1918, and was sent from Wichita Falls to the training station at Pensacola, Florida, where, after a course of instruction he was selected as one of thirty from the entire personnel of the station to be given a special period of training in motor mechanics at Columbia University, New York. Following this he was sent overseas and stationed at the naval base near Eastleigh, England, where he served as chief of the repair department and chief mechanics mate until the signing of the armistice. He received his honorable discharge January 29, 1919, just one year after enlisting.

Mr. Cassell was a member of the local chapter of Elks and was also affiliated with the I. A. T. S. E., being active in the work of each of these organizations. He was 27 years of age and is survived by his mother, Mrs. B. A. Moore and two brothers, James R. Cassell and Bert Moore.

Funeral services were held at the family residence, 513 Travis street, at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Burial was in Riverside cemetery.

O. E. FULLER IS RELEASED ON HIS OWN RECOGNIZANCE

O. E. Fuller, the state's star witness in the prosecution of the big oil theft case in the Northwest field, was released Tuesday morning on his own recognizance, recognizing his bond in the sum of $1,000.

Judge Martin of the 89th district court entered the order upon the recommendation of the prosecuting attorney.

Fuller was indicted separately in connection with the oil theft case and in the trial of the case against George Husted, one of the other eight defendants, he gave a detailed account of the theft of the oil.

The subject will be announced later. There will also be some splendid musical numbers.

NEW QUARTERS OF LEGION POST TO BE FORMALLY OPENED

A big attendance of members of the American Legion is expected Tuesday night for the first meeting in the new quarters at 812½ Ohio. The quarters have been put in first-class condition and, while not yet as complete in appointments and equipment as the legionnaires would like, will fill the long-felt need of Pat Carrigan post for a downtown meeting place.

Doughnuts prepared by Ma Burdick herself will be among the good things provided. To scribe has already been permitted to sample said doughnuts and has borrowed the recipe to take home to his wife, with instructions to follow it literally, only make the hole smaller.

The festivities will start at 8 p. m.

NAVY DEPARTMENT ORDERS SEARCH FOR DERELICT

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The navy department has instructed the commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet to institute a search for a derelict reported off the southern coast of California, by the steampship Floridan. It is believed the wreck may be that of the navy tug Conestoga, missing with all on board since early in May.

HAS MANIA FOR OLD HARNESS AND PLOWS

J. W. Dozier is Found Not Guilty of Theft on Account of Insanity.

J. W. Dozier was found not guilty of the charge of theft over $50 by a jury in the 89th district court Tuesday morning. The jury supplemented its verdict by stating that they had arrived at this verdict entertaining the belief that the defendant was insane.

Testimony was introduced before the jury and court in the trial of the case, that the defendant had a mania for old harness and plows and that he had been caught doing the same things in Claude, Texas, that he was accused of here.

The county attorney from Cladde, Texas, stated that he believed, judging from past occurrences, that the man was a kleptomaniac.

The defendant was charged with the theft of horse collars and harness alleged to have been taken from a barn in the city.

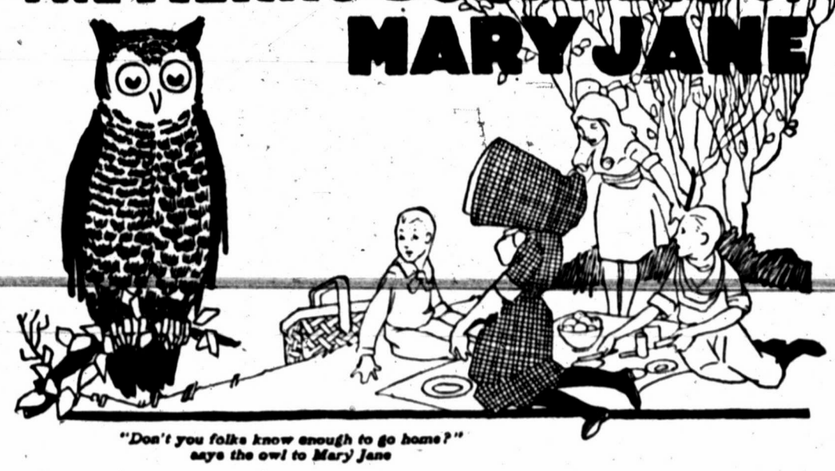
THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE



"Don't you folks know enough to go home?" says the owl to Mary Jane

Mary Jane and the Sunday School Picnic

ONE day in July the Sunday School gave a picnic in the woods. Everybody brought a big basket full of good things to eat, spread them all out on the table cloths on the ground. There was ham and pickles and hard boiled eggs and sandwiches and cake.

But what everybody liked best of all was a big can of Mary Jane Syrup that Mary's mother brought. Everybody said, "Please pass me some Mary Jane Syrup"—until there wasn't a single bit left in the can.

Then they sang songs and played games and told stories until Mr. Google-Eye—the Owl, came around and said, "Say, don't you folks know enough to go home when it's getting dark? You won't get any supper if you don't hurry up."

And everybody went home. But they all said they never did have so much fun, nor so many de-li-cious things to eat before. And they never would be without Mary Jane Syrup in the house again—for waffles, pancakes, and to make most delicious Mary Jane taffy everybody was talking about.

BUSY MAKING DOUGHNUTS FOR LEGION MEET TONIGHT

The members of the Women's Auxiliary of the American legion were keeping warm without effort Tuesday morning. They were down at the citadel—a number of them—frying doughnuts (under Ma Burdick's specific directions) for the legion meeting tonight.

A big attendance was expected at the meeting, and plenty of doughnuts were being prepared. They will be served with coffee.

Meeting This Afternoon.

The auxiliary is meeting at 4 o'clock at the citadel Tuesday afternoon, when the charter, recently received from headquarters, will be presented to the membership, and the charter roll closed. Other matters of business were expected to come up, including the outlining of plans for the immediate work of the auxiliary. Letters from the auxiliary headquarters along this line were specific and specially interesting, and were to be read to the membership by the secretary, Mrs. Thaxton. Mrs. Thaxton recently received a note from Miss Maddox, secretary of the Texas department of the women's auxiliary, thanking the local chapter for the check for $128.17 sent as proceeds from the poppy sale for the hospital fund. Miss Maddox mentioned the fact that the local chapter had done especially good work for so young an organization, the auxiliary at the time of the sale being only nine days old.

GIRLS TO STUDY ECONOMICS FOR BENEFIT OF COMPANIONS

Above: May Valcauda
Center: Rose Nelson
Below: Letta Perkins.

Three young women from the Seattle Garment Workers' union will be given an eight weeks' course in economics at Bryn Mawr college, Philadelphia. They were chosen in accordance with the college's plan for carrying a special course to women in industry, that these in turn may pass the learning on to other workers. The expense of sending the women to college was raised through hiring a motion-picture house for an entire week, selling flowers and candy, and by personal subscriptions. The young women are Miss May Valcauda, Miss Rose Nelson and Miss Letta Perkins.

LATEST STYLE

By LENORE

Veiled in a cloud of filmy tulle, a recent bride, the daughter of a famous designer in Paris, demonstrated the everlasting charm of simplicity in a wedding gown fashioned of white satin, made misty with an overdraping of fine net, open at the sides.

Suitable for an elaborate church ceremony or the quiet wedding at home is this charming gown, with its demure bodice and girdle of orange blossoms. A crown of orange blossoms catches the veil, and little clusters of the flowers are scattered over the rippling train.

As shown adapted in the sketch, this model may be copied within a modest budget.

PATTERN NO. 185

A pattern for the above model (No. 185) can be obtained in sizes 34, 36, 38 or 40, by sending to Lenore, 3 West 40th Street, New York City, your name, address, the number of this pattern and the size required and 25 cents in postage stamps. Be sure to keep this newspaper clipping of the sketch, and description of the garment to use as a working model when the pattern reaches you—which will be within two weeks' time.—The Editor.

Yeomen dance at the Arcadia Friday evening. 23-4tc

Willie has got a cousin that is kinda chunky. Willie will say that anyone can lick him because he don't want to fight. He says that he is going to be a price fighter and he has got to get a cauliflower ear and a crooked nose before he can amount to anything. Willie's mother says that he is a good boy all except the fighting.

When I went out to milk the dummed brutes this morning and looked in the bucket at my rat it sit there and looked at me like it would like to say: "I am a mighty sick rat." I put a little water in the bucket to wash its oats down with and then after breakfast I clumb out of the manure hole and went over to the lot and Willie's cousin was there with the rest of the bunch and they was standing around listening to him telling how many fellas he had licked and that he was going to be a heavy weight when he grew up.

And Nibs had to butt in and ast him if he could lick me, and I said, "No he can't. Him and you together can't." And then Cal, which is the cousin's name said, "You must be some scrapper." I said, "No, I ain't much of a scrapper, but I don't need to be to lick a windy like you." He said, "That's fine. I will try you out one of these days." I said, "What are you so busy about today?" He said then that the bunch had said to him that we could get a fight by going down in Irish Town and he did not want to have all of his good times in one day. He is a funny fella. I believe he really likes to fight. A fella has to fight sometimes to show who he can lick, but I never seen one that liked to before.

When we had got our cows out we got our fishpoles and went through Irish Town like we was going to the breakwater, and we did not see anyone so then we went down another street, and there was a bunch of them playing tops. And Cal picked up the biggest one's top and said, "Lemme look at it, kid," and when he had looked at it he said it was no good, and by that time the Micks had moved around till they was all around us, and then the Mick that belonged to the top said, "Neither are you," and made a pass at Cal's face, and at the same time Cal put one fist so far into his stummick that he must've felt the Mick's backbone, and he hit him right in the front of the neck with the other, then he run for a rock and so did all of us, and we fit with rocks almost all the way back home. The neck is a bad place to hit a fella in.

When I had brung the cows and milked them and went in to eat supper my mother hated me if that was my toe sticking out of my shoe? I told her it was. She said to my father that he must get me a new pair of shoes, and he said to let me go barefooted like other kids.

My rats gets all humped up and I guess his past life is passing before his eyes. Me and Jubilee went to bed early.

(To be continued.)

DEPLORES RUNNING TO LAW FOR CURES OF PRESENT EVILS

JUDGE JOHN C. KAY SPEAKS AT UNIVERSITY CLUB LUNCHEON TUESDAY.

"REMEDY NOT IN LAW, POLITICS OR CONGRESS"

Club Requests Committee to Lay Question of Glaring Headlights Before Council.

Judge John C. Kay scored those who turn to the government and law for a remedy for present day problems, in his address before members of the University club at their weekly luncheon in the Kemp hotel Tuesday. He stated that the remedy lies "in ourselves and ourselves alone," and said in part:

"We have got to quit running to and relying on the government for help. When we ask special privileges and laws it means that our business is down, and shall we pass the burden to our neighbors? We are in bad today because we have been on a joy-ride for seven or eight years and the time is now coming when we must pay the chauffeur.

"When we were prosperous we didn't look to the government or the law. There was no holler when prices were rising. The politicians said that when a new party was elected, conditions would improve, but they haven't. They will improve only so soon as we look to ourselves for a way out.

"Prices are falling now, but not on account of laws or political parties. The reason lies in human hearts and we must go there for all remedies. The hope lies in ourselves. We have got to get commercialism out of our hearts and country.

"Prices have fallen and will continue to fall because the confidence of the world in ability to pay is gone. They say money is scarcer than it ever was. That's not so. Money is really more plentiful, but the disposition to let us have it is scarcer.

"I believe in the future of the United States and think there are just as many good men in the country now as there ever were, but we haven't been doing enough thinking. It is our own fault that we are where we are. The remedy is not in law, politics or in congress, but in you and me.

"Some say that the wheat and cotton gamblers affect the prices of those commodities in this country. Such is not the case. They say that the bears are putting wheat down, but don't forget that it takes two to put a deal through—a bear and a bull."

Miss Ella F. Donaldson, the young lady who was enabled to attend the University of Texas last year through the club's student loan fund, was a guest at the luncheon and expressed her appreciation for the opportunity that was afforded her.

Judge Aiken reported for the committee appointed to investigate the law regarding glaring automobile lights, and stated that he thought the city council would enact a law similar to one passed by the legislature in 1917 if the people wanted it. The committee was then instructed to lay the matter before the council.

Music for the luncheon was furnished by C. A. Kleinman.

FITTS DISCUSSES "INJUNCTION" TALK IN POLICE ELECTION

To the Voters of Wichita Falls:

In view of the fact that friends of Mr. Bralley have raised the question of expense to the city in connection with the forthcoming city election, and intimate that an injunction may be asked as a measure of economy, as indicated in the Record-News of Sunday, I thought it might be well to call attention to the fallacy of such a proposal, especially since injunction proceedings would cost the city considerably more than would the holding of an ordinary city election.

The expense of a city election should not exceed $100; an injunction with costs and attorney's fees would amount to a great deal more, as those who have had business with the courts will readily acknowledge. Besides, it is hardly probable that the courts would grant such a petition, local judges having concurred in the opinion that the recent election was illegal and having issued an order that another be held.

We do not believe that the suggestion was intended to be taken seriously and was perhaps made to "muddy the waters" in the contest between Mr. Bralley and myself, and if possible detract from the real issue in the campaign, that of economy in the administration of the police department.

If I am elected your police commissioner enough money can and will be saved to the city in a very short time to pay, not only for this special election, but for several elections in the future.

Yours for greater economy and a lower tax rate,

J. B. FITTS.

HARDING SENDS DUTCH OIL NOTES TO SENATE

NO OFFICIAL ACTION ON QUARREL LIKELY

Bralley Gives His Side of Altercation With Bentley—Calls Report "Propaganda."

Indications were Tuesday that no official cognisance would be taken of the altercation Saturday night between Police Commissioner Bralley and J. O. Bentley. Reports Monday of contemplated action by both city and county authorities seemed Tuesday afternoon to be groundless, and there was evidence of a desire to let the matter drop.

Commissioner Bralley, who was not only given an opportunity to tell his side of the matter Monday, but who was strongly urged to do so by a Times reporter who was seeking to get both sides of the controversy, is quoted in a morning paper as admitting that he struck at Bentley.

When asked Monday by a representative of The Times for his side of the affair, Mr. Bralley flatly refused to make any statement, and remarked that "the newspapers could print what they pleased." He is quoted Tuesday morning as having referred to The Times' version of the affair as "an artfully colored piece of political propaganda."

The interview published Tuesday morning quotes Mr. Bralley as denying that a knife figured in the quarrel.

"I did have a pocket knife in my hand whittling on a little stick, as I more frequently do than not," Mr. Bralley is quoted as saying. "I did not make any use of this knife when I struck at Bentley, nor did the officers who came on the scene when the difficulty came up, mention it, as I had not made any use of it."

J. O. Bentley made the following statement Tuesday:

"It is not my desire to enter into a newspaper controversy, since I am not a candidate for office. The report in Monday's Times was substantially correct. I regret the occurrence, and would have avoided it if I could have done so. I simply protected myself and made no attempt to injure Mr. Bralley. I have neither said nor done anything that I care to retract or explain. During my thirty years' residence in this county, I have never considered it necessary to explain my conduct."

VICE PRESIDENT OF FRISCO VISITS CITY, PRESIDENT COMING

T. A. Hamilton of St. Louis, operating vice president of the Frisco lines, was in Wichita Falls Tuesday morning, coming on personal business with Mr. Keil.

Mr. Hamilton said he had nothing at all to say for publication as to any plans of the Frisco in this section, and that if anything is to be given out, it will be by J. W. Kurn, president of the road, who will probably visit this city before long.

The Frisco's Mustang creek bridge, the washing out of which interrupted service between Wichita Falls and Oklahoma City, will be repaired by Tuesday night, Mr. Hamilton said.

MAN SHOT AND KILLED BY KANSAS CITY POLICEMAN

KANSAS CITY, MO., June 14.—Joseph Clements was shot and killed on a downtown street corner today and John Williams captured when the two men attempted to flee from a policeman who was seeking to arrest them in connection with the robbery of the Quality Ice company here yesterday. One thousand dollars was taken from the ice company by three bandits. The policemen chased Clements and Williams several blocks through the downtown streets, aided by a crowd which threw bricks at the fleeing men.

Urges Voters Not to Overlook School Tax Question Which Is To Be Submitted Next Saturday

C. W. REID.

"I hope none of our citizens will fail to vote and to vote right in the school tax election to be held next Saturday," said C. W. Reid, vice president of the City National Bank of Commerce, Tuesday. "In my opinion this is one of the most important matters that has been presented for a long time, and while I have heard of no opposition to the plan, it is vitally important that everyone who has the interests of the schools at heart go to the polls and register his approval of the new tax.

"If there is a community in Texas that should adopt the tax without hesitation it is Wichita Falls, for the increase made in our school facilities by reason of the increased population has made it difficult for the finances to keep pace with their needs.

"Under the old law the school board has not been permitted to levy a tax higher than 50 cents on the $100 valuation since that rate was the highest allowed by the constitution. The constitution was amended last year, making it possible for school districts by majority vote of the taxpayers to authorize their school boards to levy a tax up to $1 on the $100 valuation. By reason of the limitation of a 50 cent tax the school board here has had to adopt the plan of taxing higher property values for school purposes than for other taxing purposes, which plan has resulted in an awkward situation.

"Wichita Falls is now at a stage where a great deal depends on the proper development and support of the public school system. I am confident that the school board, if given this authority, will not levy a tax one penny higher than is absolutely necessary for the efficient operation of the schools.

"The future welfare of our race and the prevention of the spread of bolshevism, socialism and other 'isms' depends on the proper education of our boys and girls."

PENITENTIARY AGENT BUD RUSSELL TAKES BENNETT TO PRISON

Bud Russell, penitentiary agent, arrived in the city Tuesday noon and was scheduled to leave later in the evening in charge of J. W. Bennett, the 21-year old man who was arrested last week and who admitted that he had been a fugitive from justice for the past 12 years.

Bennett was convicted and found guilty of the charge of rape in Young county and sentenced to 25 years in the state prison. He made his escape from the county jail there before he was committed to the state institution.

Mr. Russell, who has been the agent for the state prison for the past 13 years, holds the record of having handled over 10,000 prisoners and never having lost one. Mr. Russell is an interesting relator of experiences and kept an audience interested in the sheriff's office during his brief stay here.

CHRISTIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL TO HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC AT LAKE WICHITA WEDNESDAY

The annual picnic of the Sunday school of the First Christian church will be held Wednesday afternoon at Arcadia park at Lake Wichita, and it is expected that 700 to 800 members of the school will attend. All will gather at the church at 2 p. m., and will be conveyed in cars and trucks to the lake, for an afternoon and evening of all sorts of old-fashioned sports, with a big supper at 6 p. m. as the day's crowning glory.

Among the numerous athletic features planned for the day are two baseball games, the first will be between the teams of the J. W. Bradley and J. Lem Keevil Bible classes, and the winner of these will meet the team of the Holmes class.

MRS. L. C. MILLS IS RELEASED FROM JAIL

Mrs. L. C. Mills, who stands charged with indictment with the offense of robbery with firearms, was released from the county jail Tuesday afternoon, where she has been a prisoner since the first of the year. She was arrested with her husband upon complaint of an Austrian peddler, who stated at the preliminary hearing that Mr. and Mrs. Mills and another party entered his room in a rooming house in Newtown and robbed him of his money. The defendant was released on her own recognizance, recognizing bail at $1,000.

PLAINTIFF AGAIN GETS JUDGMENT AGAINST BANK

Lillie Farrington again secured a judgment against the City National Bank of Commerce for $500 in the county court at law Tuesday. This was the third trial in the matter. At the first trial the plaintiff took a nonsuit and the cause was not submitted to the jury. Upon second trial the jury awarded her judgment of $500, but a new trial was granted when the motion was argued. The allegations were that the bank cashed a check for $500 on which her signature had been forged.

RAISES AMOUNTS TO MORE THAN CUTS IN EQUALIZATION WORK

The raises in various tax renditions will outbalance the reductions made in others by the equalization board, which began its week's work Tuesday morning. A careful examination of each individual rendition is being made and the proper changes made.

It is the opinion of the board that they will conclude the work during the week. Each one of the commissioners are inspecting the renditions from their respective precincts and Judge Jones is assisting Commissioner Jackson, who has the biggest task on hand.

The changes made by the commissioners in the rendition blanks are noted and each person so affected will be notified.

BRALLEY'S PETITION IS FILED TUESDAY, FITTS' NOT YET IN

The petition of J. B. Fitts, who is to oppose the present incumbent, had not been filed at noon, but word from the Fitts headquarters indicated that it would be placed in the city clerk's hands some time Tuesday afternoon.

LADIES DAY BRINGS MANY BUYERS FROM NEIGHBORING TOWNS

Fair weather and drying roads Tuesday gave promise that "Ladies' Day" of the Bargain Week inaugurated Monday by local merchants would be fully as successful as was "Dollar Day" on Monday. It was expected that a considerably greater number of out-of-town buyers would be here than was the case on Monday.

Monday's "Dollar Day" was a banner one at all stores where dollar bargains were offered and gave the bargain week an auspicious start.

Wednesday is to be "Five and Ten Dollar Day," and some unusual offerings at these even-change prices are promised.

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST CUT WEEDS, IS OFFICIAL EDICT

Property owners who do not cut the weeds on their vacant lots will have to pay for having the weeds cut by the city, the city council decided. The recent rains have put new life into a weed crop that was not doing nicely, but at the present rate of growth the weeds will soon compare favorably—or unfavorably—with the bumper crop of 1920.

A reasonable time will be allowed for property owners to cut their own weeds; failing to do so, they will be charged for the most of having them cut, and the city will do the work.

CHAIN GANG THREATENED FOR FASHIONABLE WOMEN AT ZION CITY, ILLINOIS

ZION CITY, ILL., June 14.—Zion's road repair chain gang shortly may be augmented by several women if Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva enforces his latest edict against women who expose more of their necks than to the "juncture with the collar bone."

Three women already have been presented with printed notices giving them "a reasonable time to retire from public view."

The police, Voliva said, will arrest any woman in this town that goes around the streets half naked. I will not bail you out either, and neither will your husband. You will have to pay your fine or work it out on the streets."

A few years ago we spoke of Russia as "the sleeping giant." Russia has awakened and that awakening has been followed by such orgies of bloodshed and anarchy as the world has not seen since the French revolution. Mme. Selivanova was born in Russia of noble parents. An uncle was the defender of a great Russian city during the German advance through Poland. Mme. Selivanova served in hospitals and soup kitchens throughout the war until bolshevism raised its bloody head. Then she escaped to America.

Here is the real story of Russia and what happened and is hapening today. Mme. Selivanova is in communication with sources of information that are unquestioned. Her story is intensely interesting and of great educational value to young and old.

WILL TELL CHATAUQUA PATRONS OF GREAT WORK DONE BY LUTHER BURBANK

The name of Luther Burbank is known the world over. It has remained for Henry Adrian to tell America of Burbank's work. The story sounds like one of Hans Anderson's.

Henry Adrian was associated with Luther Burbank for years. The strange story of the desert cactus, avoided even by snakes, turned into a valuable and nourishing food is only one of dozens. This is probably the most interesting speech from the standpoint of the farmer that has ever been delivered. No boy who ever knew a garden but will see new possibilities in the homely potato and backbreaking corn row.

Mr. Adrian makes romance of homely vegetables and witching tales of flowers and trees. The story of new fruits that answer to Burbank's magic touch is as interesting as anything that has been done in the world of science and invention.

Mr. Adrian is on the second night's program with the Musical Grenadiers.

DRESS

:: By ANNE RITTENHOUSE ::

The Dressmakers Have Placed Blue Serge Among the Fabrics to Be Considered Sufficiently Formal for Afternoon Wear and They Have Applied Brilliant Trimming to This Commonplace Type of Frock.

THE woman who likes blue serge and never feels that her wardrobe is complete unless she possesses one gown of it is able to indulge her wishes this season in a new way.

The fashion-makers for some reason of their own let the fabric drop into disuse and emphasis was laid upon the fact that it was better to choose any kind of fabric than serge for the ordinary costume that was the backbone of the wardrobe. Women were discouraged. Those who follow the fashions, willy-nilly, made their purchases of crepe in any of its various weaves.

This spring they are faced with the important fact that blue serge has appeared in a peculiar guise; it is offered for the afternoon frock that is to serve as something out of the ordinary, something expensive and brilliant.

This trick has been tried before and it won out with a small group, but the average woman continued to believe that the durable fabric was better for the purposes of everyday life and she continued to use it for the most informal hours.

Throughout long years the Americans have treated serge as the peasants of Europe for centuries have treated homespun. Such a decision was prompted by good taste, but the new exploitation of dark serge is prompted by a desire for novelty, or probably, by some concealed commercial reason which has to do with the surplus of the fabric in the markets of the world.

Be that as it may, here comes our "bread and butter" frock rigged up as a rich relation. The French have sent a few of these gowns to this country and they have inspired our dressmakers to revive the jetted surface of serge, but that trickery bears a commonplace look, whereas this veiling of serge by silk lace and adding metal to it is novel.

The sketch from Paris shows a most brilliant way to treat the blue fabric. The gown is worn for formal occasions after four o'clock with the kind of hat that was once kept for frocks of Canton crepe and satin. The serge foundation is slender and sharply cut, the bodice like a cuirass. It is embroidered with red, that Indian red that flashes out at one from some of the ancient garments owned by museums. The sleeves which drop to the wrist, also the apron overskirt are of blue silk lace, the latter longer than the foundation skirt, a trick by which the dressmakers show their approval and cognizance of the incoming long skirt.

Possibly the fashion will spread. The economist will think of it, instantly, as a way to improve or use up an old frock. If she does not want to add lace to serge, if her valuation of fabrics will not permit her to do this, at least, she can see the possibilities of the idea.

It is an old fashion to embroider blue serge with bright red and this kind of handiwork will appeal to the majority. Women may think that Indian red is a warm color to attach to oneself in the hot summer time, but fashion is strongly bent on the work. "The vermilion dashes" desired by artists who study Oriental colors are apt to be sprinkled over our clothes.

Something to Think About

Believing and Accomplishing

By F. A. WALKER

ARE you a believer?

That is a question about yourself, not about your creeds or doctrines.

Do you believe in yourself and is that belief sufficiently well founded to be a reliable mainstay in your endeavors?

One of the most interesting miracles that the Messiah performed was that in which He accomplished the healing of the boy who was an epileptic.

It is especially interesting because the first appeal was to the disciples who wholly failed in their efforts. The father of the child was a little weakened in his faith by this failure and when he applied to Jesus for help he did so with some evidence of doubt as to the results.

The reply of the Messiah was "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth." And when his followers asked him why they had not been able to perform the healing they were told that it was their unbelief that hindered them.

Of course this belief was not intended to have been in themselves or in their personal powers but in what Jesus often called to them "The Truth."

It is in the belief in the truth about ourselves that we should, and that the wise man does, find the basic elements of success and advancement.

If we do not have confidence, which is only another name for belief in ourselves, we are not likely to get far in accomplishment. But that belief must be based on fact, on the truth, on the realities which exist in us and upon which we can call with faith and reliance.

Believing in oneself is absolutely necessary to any successful action.

The man who does not believe in himself cannot make a speech worth listening to, he cannot write a book worth reading, he cannot run a winning foot race or even successfully plow a furrow.

He is like a smooth-shod horse on a glare of ice.

If you ever saw one you know how he struggles to gain a footing and shortly lies still, panting from exhaustion and trembling with fright.

His driver scatters sand or puts down bagging upon which he might get a toe hold. But the horse has lost his CONFIDENCE, he believes that he cannot get up and nothing short of punishment with the whip will make him even try.

So long as he had confidence, so long as he believed in himself and his ability to get on his feet he was willing to keep making the attempt.

When the belief was gone, he was unwilling to make further trial. He was done for.

We are all like that horse. So long as we believe in ourselves we have the heart and the courage and the ambition to keep on trying.

The minute we are without the belief we are useless to ourselves and to everybody else.

Believe in yourself. Do not overbelieve. Attempt only what you have good reason to think you can finish.

Do not cease to believe in yourself until you have gone the limit, until you have tried every one of your resources, until you have exhausted every bit of your energy.

Failure, if it is honest failure, is no disgrace.

Giving up while there is still a chance to succeed IS to your discredit.

Fight it out to the end.

Go down with your colors flying.

If you do that you will prove your belief in yourself and establish yourself as a worth-while man.

Lyrics of Life

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

BUT AND STILL AND YET

Oh, do not say that friends are slow
The absent friend to praise;
We often mention those we know
In many pleasant ways.
We tell their qualities of mind,
How well their clothes are cut,
How Kate is good, and John is kind—
And then we add a "but."

"I think she has a lovely voice,"
"He certainly is smart,"
"Their stock is always very choice,"
"He knows a lot of art,"
"Their wedding is a perfect match,"
"He has a model mill"—
And then we add the little catch,
A "but," or maybe "still."

So many say a kindly word
About an absent friend,
And yet how often have we heard
That stinger at the end!
Oh, do not praise me if you doubt,
Applaud me with regret—
Say nothing that you can't without
A but or still or yet.

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS: WHAT THEY MEAN

DID YOU DREAM OF TIGERS?

IF YOU see a tiger in your dreams by all means try to kill it; for, according to the mystics, to dream of killing a tiger means complete success for the dreamer. But if you simply see the dream-tiger and do not kill the beast then beware of implacable and unscrupulous enemies who will work you harm if they can. These enemies will be inspired by envy of your wealth, your social position, your good reputation or your general virtues and will stoop to any underhand scheme to do you injury. The dream is a warning to be on your guard.

While all the mystic oracles agree as to the beneficent signification of a dream of killing a tiger, many of them think it is almost as good an omen to dream of merely injuring the beast or of driving him away. Should you dream that you are suddenly surprised by a tiger the omen is said to be for embarrassments to come, especially if at the time you are so surprised there are several people assembled with you in dreamland. Should you see a tiger in your dream which, after looking fiercely at you, turn and slinks away it is an omen that some enterprise of yours from which you had long ago given up any hope of profit will turn out in a favorable manner. Or else it means that you will be paid an old debt which you had never expected to be able to collect.

To-Day's Lucky Jewel Color Flower

By MILDRED MARSHALL

BERYL

FOR those who fear that the love of husband or wife has waned, today's talismanic stone, the beryl, is especially potent. According to Arnoldus Saxo, it has the power to re-awaken love, and will restore harmony and peace to the home.

Today's natal stone is the aquamarine, one of the most beautiful of the semi-precious stones. It is said to bring its wearer health and prosperity. The ancients believed that those who wore an aquamarine would never need to worry.

Today's color is dark blue, which is symbolic of constancy and serene happiness. However, it is said to signify jealousy in love when worn by a woman.

Today's flower is the white lilac. It is a symbol of domestic happiness, and is said to bring peace to the homes where it is used as a decoration. When used as a decoration for a social function, it is said to prophesy the announcement of an engagement.

An O. HENRY Story

A Mid-Summer's Knight's Dream

By O. HENRY

"The knights are dead;
Their swords are rust,
Except a few who have to hust-
Le all the time
To raise the dust."

DEAR READER: It was summertime. The sun glared down upon the city with pitiless ferocity. It is difficult for the sun to be ferocious and exhibit compunction simultaneously. The heat was — oh, bother thermometers! — who cares for standard measures, anyhow? It was so hot that—

A man stood at Thirty-fourth Street waiting for a downtown car. A man of forty- gray-haired, pink-faced, keen, nervous, plainly dressed, with a harassed look around the eyes. He wiped his forehead and laughed loudly when a fat man with an outing look stopped and spoke with him.

"No, siree," he shouted with defiance and scorn. "None of your old mosquito-haunted swamps and sky-scraper mountains without elevators for me. When I want to get away from hot weather I know how to do it. New York, sir, is the finest summer resort in the country. Keep in the shade and watch your diet, and don't get too far away from an electric fan. Talk about your Adirondacks and your Catskills! There's more solid comfort in the borough of Manhattan than in all the rest of the country together. No, siree! No tramping up perpendicular cliffs and being waked up at 4 in the morning by a million flies, and eating canned goods straight from the city for me. Little old New York will take a few select summer boarders; comforts and conveniences of homes—that's the ad. that I answer every time."

"You need a vacation," said the fat man, looking closely at the other. "You haven't been away from town in years. Better come with me for two weeks, anyhow. The trout in the Beaverkill are jumping at anything now that looks like a fly. Harding writes me that he landed a three-pound brown last week."

"Nonsense!" cried the other man. "Go ahead, if you like, and boggle around in rubber boots wearing yourself out trying to catch fish. When I want one I go to a cool restaurant and order it. I laugh at you fellows whenever I think of you hustling around in the heat in the country thinking you are having a good time. For me Father Knickerbocker's little improved farm with the big shady lane running through the middle of it."

The fat man sighed over his friend and went his way. The man who thought New York was the greatest summer resort in the country boarded a car and went buzzing down to his office. On the way he threw away his newspaper and looked up at a ragged patch of sky above the housetops.

"Three pounds!" he muttered, absently. "And Harding isn't a liar. I believe, if I could—but it's impossible—they've got to have another month—another month at least."

In his office the upholder of urban midsummer joys dived, headforemost, into the swimming pool of business. Adkins, his clerk, came and added a spray of letters, memoranda and telegrams.

At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the busy man leaned back in his office chair, put his feet on the desk and mused aloud:

"I wonder what kind of bait Harding used."

* * * * *

She was all in white that day; and thereby Compton lost a bet to Gaines. Compton had wagered she would wear light blue, for she knew that was his favorite color, and Compton was a millionaire's son, and that almost laid him open to the charge of betting on a sure thing. But white was her choice, and Gaines held up his head with twenty-five's lordly air.

The little summer hotel in the mountains had a lively crowd that year. There were two or three young college men and a couple of artists and a young naval officer on one side. On the other there were enough beauties among the young ladies for the correspondent of a society paper to refer to them as a "bevy." But the moon among the stars was Mary Sewell. Each one of the young men greatly desired to arrange matters so that he could pay her millinery bills, and fix the furnace, and have her do away with the "Sewell" part of her name forever. Those who could stay only a week or two went away hinting at pistols and blighted hearts. But Compton stayed like the mountains themselves, for he could afford it. And Gaines stayed because he was a fighter and wasn't afraid of millionaire's sons, and—well, he adored the country.

"What do you think, Miss Mary?" he said once. "I knew a duffer in New York who claimed to like it in the summertime. Said you could keep cooler there than you could in the woods. Wasn't he an awful silly? I don't think I could breathe on Broadway after the first of June."

"Mamma was thinking of going back week after next," said Miss Mary with a lovely frown.

"But when you think of it," said Gaines, "there are lots of jolly places in town in the summer. The roof gardens, you know, and the—er—the roof gardens."

Deepest blue was the lake that day—the day when they had the mock tournament, and the men rode clumsy ffarm horses around in a glade in the woods and caught curtain rings on the end of a lance. Such fun!

Cool and dry as the finest wine came the breath of the shadowed forest. The valley below was a vision seen through an opal haze. A white mist from hidden falls blurred the green of a hand's breadth of tree tops half-way down the gorge. Youth made merry hand-in-hand with young summer. Nothing on Broadway like that.

The villagers gathered to see the city folks pursue their mad drollery. The woods rang with the laughter of pixies and naiads and sprites. Gaines caught most of the rings. His was the privilege to crown the queen of the tournament. He was the conquering knight—as far as the rings went. On his arm he wore a white scarf. Compton wore light blue. She had declared her preference for blue, but she wore white that day.

Gaines looked about for the queen to crown her. He heard her merry laugh, as if from the clouds. She had slipped away and climbed Chimney Rock, a little granite bluff, and stood there, a white fairy among the laurels, fifty feet above their heads.

Instantly he and Compton accepted the implied challenge. The bluff was easily mounted at the rear, but the front offered small hold to hand or foot. Each man quickly selected his route and began to climb. A crevice, a bush, a slight projection, a vine or tree brench—all of these were aids that counted in the race.

Gaines gave a great tug at the root of a laurel and pulled himself to Miss Mary's feet. On his arm he carried the wreath of roses; and while the villagers and summer boarders screamed and applauded below he placed it on the queen's brow.

"You are a gallant knight," said Miss Mary.

"If I could be your true knight always," began Gaines, but Miss Mary laughed him dumb, for Compton scrambled over the edge of the rock one minute behind time.

What a twilight that was when they drove back to the hotel! The opal of the valley turned slowly to

"I know a duffer in New York who claimed to like it in the summertime."

purple, the dark woods framed the lake as a mirror, the tonic air stirred the very soul in one. The first pale stars came out over the mountain tops where yet a faint glow of—

* * * * *

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Gaines," said Adkins.

The man who believed New York to be the finest summer resort in the world opened his eyes and kicked over the mucilage bottle on his desk.

"I—I believe I was asleep," he said.

"It's the heat," said Adkins. "It's something awful in the city these"—

"Nonsense!" said the other. "The city beats the country ten to one in summer. Fools go out tramping in muddy brooks and wear themselves out trying to catch little fish as long your finger. Stay in town and keep comfortable—that's my idea."

"Some letters just came," said Adkins. "I thought you might like to glance at them before you go."

Let us look over his shoulder and read just a few lines of one of them:

MY DEAR, DEAR HUSBAND: Just received your letter ordering us to stay another month. . . . Rita's cough is almost gone. . . . Johnny has simply gone wild like a little Indian. . . . Will be the making of both children . . . work so hard, and I know that your business can hardly afford to keep us here so long . . . best man that ever . . . you always pretend that you like the city in summer . . . trout fishing that you used to be so fond of . . . and all to keep us well and happy . . . come to you if it were not doing the babies so much good. . . . I stood last evening on Chimney Rock in exactly the same spot where I was when you put the wreath of roses on my head . . . through all the world . . . when you said you would be my true knight . . . fifteen years ago, dear, just think! . . . have always been that to me . . . ever and ever,

MARY.

The man who said he thought New York the finest summer resort in the country dropped into a cafe on his way home and had a glass of beer under an electric fan.

"Wonder what kind of a fly old Harding used," he said to himself.

DOROTHY DIX'S TALKS

By DOROTHY DIX
THE WORLD'S HIGHEST PAID WOMAN WRITER

DON'T WAIT

I HAVE a letter from a girl who writes:

"I am engaged to a man who makes a comfortable living, but he is very proud, and he does not want to marry until he can give me a fine house, and a car, and expensive clothes. I do not want to wait. I love him well enough to work for him and endure poverty with him. I can't ask him to marry me right away, when he wants to put the wedding off. Won't you please do it for me?"

Certainly, my dear.

Haste to the wedding, Mr. Man. The time to sit down to the banquet is when the feast is piping hot, not after everything has grown lukewarm and flabby and has lost its flavor. You do not realize it now, but nothing grows stale sooner than romantic love. Somehow a long engagement loses its pep and ginger, and when it does eventually end in wedding bells, they are not the airy, fairy bells of dreamland, but the prosaic dinner bell.

You may ask how a love that gets its bloom worn off during a few years of a betrothal will endure the long, long years of matrimony. The two things are entirely different. The glory of an engagement is its illusions, but the blessedness of marriage is that it hasn't any illusions, that it knows you for what you are, and, in spite of it, loves you still.

Of course, no man has any right to marry a woman, no matter whether he is young or old, if he hasn't some good, reliable way of providing her with bread and butter and a shelter. It is a criminal thing for a man to establish a family and bring children into the world whom other people have to support, but it is not necessary for him to wait until he can provide his household with cake and limousines before he takes unto himself a wife.

Many men make this mistake. They put off marrying until they accumulate fortunes. Somet mes this is a matter of personal selfishness. Their own individual ease and comfort look better to them than any woman does. They are not willing to give up their good clothes, their Country Club, their theatres, their amusements, as they would have to do if the money that enables one to live in luxury had to be spread over the expenses of a family.

Often, however, a man puts off marrying until he is middle-aged, because he loves a woman too well to ask her to face poverty with him. He is not willing to take her from her father's comfortable home to a humbler one. He cannot bear to think of her going shabby for his sake, or of her soft white hands growing hard and calloused working for him.

So he lets the love time of life go by, for romantic love belongs as exclusively to youth as apple blooms do to spring. A middle-aged man and woman may feel for each other a deep, peaceful, congenial friendship, but that is all. Not for them are the glory, and the thrill, and the circling wings of romance. They are the sole prerogatives of youth, and to miss them is to have missed the one divine draught of life.

The man who puts off marrying until he can give his wife a satin-lined jewel case in which to live is depriving her of the greatest happiness that can ever come to a woman. And that is, helping her husband.

No woman, except of the most contemptible type, wants to be a parasite. No woman who loves her husband, loves him for what he can give her. Real love means service, and every woman who is fit for a man to marry, yearns, above everything else, to be her husband's partner, his comrade, who fights shoulder to shoulder with him in his battle for success.

There are no stories of adventure so exciting, there are no other lives so full of interest as those of the poor and ambitious young people who have struggled, and hoped, and planned, and triumphed together. Nor can there be any bond between a man and woman so strong as that of having sacrificed and endured together.

If you will go to the wife of any of our rich and famous self-made men and ask her what was the happiest time of her life, she will not say that it is now, when she lives in a palace, and wears imported frocks, and has a dozen servants to wait on her.

She will say that her best days were those in which she did her own work, and scrimped every nickel, and saved for weeks to buy her a new pair of shoes, and in which she and John sat up half the night figuring out how they could get the money to enlarge their little grocery, or when John read her the manuscript of his new play, or showed her the model of his new invention.

It is a chivalrous impulse that makes a man feel that he doesn't want to force the woman he loves to work for him, but it is a mistaken impulse, none the less. It is one of the curious facts of human nature that the more we do for people the more we love them, and this is especially true of women.

The woman whose husband's comfort and well-being lies in her hands, the woman whose husband's food must be cooked by her, his clothes washed by her, his money saved by her, has a feeling for him that the rich woman never has for her husband. It is a call upon the eternal motherhood of woman, akin to that which makes a mother have a tenderness for her afflicted child that she does not have for the one that is well, and strong, and self-sufficient.

Nor does any man do a kindness to his wife by keeping her in idleness. The only happy women in the world are those whose hands are full of worth-while work.

It takes a lot of courage, and grit, and self-sacrifice, to make marriage a success. If a girl is as scared of poverty, and having to work to deny herself, that she is afraid to undertake the great adventure with one who has his fortune still to make, she is too poor a thing for a man to bother with. But if she has the high heart to dare Fate with a man on a shoestring, he is an idiot if he doesn't grab her while he can get her.

"What's In a Name?"

EUGENIA

BORN to queenly honors is she who bears the name of Eugenia. Its origin is in the Greek language where it is derived from a word meaning well-born. Its modern adaptation by the French into Eugenie is famous throughout the world since it is borne by one of the most illustrious women of history, the former Empress Eugenia. Its popularity in France is enormous and its anglicized version, Eugenia, has great vogue in England and America.

Its history dates back from Eugenes, a very old Greek writer, but Eugenias was the name most popular in classical times. It was carried on as Eugenius by the Romans. St. Eugenius was confessor and another Eugenius was Bishop of Toledo in 646. Indeed, it has always been a favorite as a masculine name and has been borne by men of power and prominence. Eugenio was the name of that high-spirited Savoy called "le petit Abbe du Roi," who was later the Prince Eugenio, dead to England and Austria, and terrible to France and Turkey, yet curious to relate, foe that he was, his name enjoys greater popularity in France than in his native country.

The first and only Eugenia that history records before the birth of the great Eugenie was a virgin Roman martyr, about whom there is very little known. The Empress Eugenie's history is too well known to need recalling. Her poignant grief over the loss of Alsace and Lorraine has made her one of the world's tragic figures. It was she who said that when she was dead, if her heart could be removed from her body, the names of those two beloved provinces would be found engraved there.

Eugenia's talismanic stone is that regal jewel, the diamond, which denotes victory over enemies, when it is dreamed of. Worn by Eugenia, it is an antidote for poison, since the stone itself was believed by old superstition to be a deadly poison. The stone affords protection from plague and set forth in verse is its prophecy:

"The Evil Eye shall have no power to harm
Him that shall wear the diamond as a charm.
No Monarch shall attempt to thwart
his will,
And e'en the gods his wishes shall fulfill."

Saturday is Eugenia's lucky day and 1 her lucky number. The daisy, signifying innocence, is her flower.

WHERE THE TOYS GO

THE life of a toy is usually shockingly brief. When one sees the gay baubles in toy-shop windows soon to be purchased one might be moved to rather melancholy reflections. For out of ten of those toys it usually happens that one or two will not survive the very day it is placed in its small owner's hands. Perhaps not five will pull through a month and only one of the ten will survive twelve months.

There is something very interesting always about the toy or doll that is hauled out of the attic as the one that mother used to play with, the doll that twenty-year-old Joan played with when she was a child, or the box of blocks that brother John had when he was a lad. You always look with some attention at the doll or the blocks, examining them carefully to see what they were made of. You wonder vaguely if the reason why the toy survived the usual vicissitudes was that it was not especially well liked, that its survival indicates its neglect.

PUBLIC HEARING ON TRACTION FRANCHISE IS SET FOR JULY 5

COUNCIL TO HEAR OBJECTIONS THEN TO NEW ROUTE, AS CHARTER PROVIDES.

SERVICE CAR FACTIONS AIR DISAGREEMENT

Railroad Gives Special Privileges to One Group and Council Orders Investigation.

A public hearing on the traction company franchise was called by the city council Monday night, for July 5, to give property owners and others interested an opportunity to present any objections to the new route. The council passed the franchise ordinance on first reading.

L. L. Albritton, general manager of the traction company, told the council that work would start on the Ninth street line within 15 days after the ordinance was passed finally. The council is required by the charter to have a public hearing and to give 15 days notice through the press.

A disagreement between two factions of service car drivers was brought before the council at its session on Monday night. The council has barred service car drivers from maintaining stands nearer than half a block from the station. However, the railroad company has made a contract with the Clisbee company, permitting it to keep its cars on the railroad right of way and thus giving it an undue advantage, according to other car operators, in getting the patronage of incoming passengers.

Hubert W. Clark represented the protesting drivers, and presented their side of the case to the council. After considerable discussion, City Attorney Mann was instructed to take the matter up with Denver officials, with a view to putting all service car operators on an equal basis. It was indicated that should these negotiations fail, all restrictions on service car parking would be removed.

Several citizens from the 1300 block on Kemp complained to the council of drainage conditions in that block, saying that the street car embankment dams up rain waters and causes their front yards to be flooded. Manager Albritton of the traction company said he was ready to enlarge the drain under the car tracks whenever the city was ready to attend to the rest of the street. The matter was referred to the city engineer for investigation.

John T. Richards of 309 Walnut street presented a blanket grievance about conditions on his street, which he declared was "the most God-forsaken part of Wichita Falls." Lack of lights, drainage, sidewalks and water were a few of the points he enumerated. The several complaints were referred.

Councilman Shepherd brought up the need for a paved street to the baseball park, and said he thought the council should take some action on this as soon as possible.

Members of the council discussed Sunday's accident at Huff-McGregor park, in which a small boy was drowned in the municipal pool. The need of having an attendant was raised by Councilman Curlee. Mayor Pro Tem Bonner thought the construction of a railing around the pool would be in some measure a safeguard against such accidents as that of Sunday.

The council adjourned to 3 p. m. Saturday.

RAIN INTERFERES WITH HARVESTING AROUND HASKELL

HASKELL, TEXAS, June 13.—Another good rain fell in this city and the surrounding country late yesterday evening, amounting to .66 of an inch, which brings the total rainfall up to 5.72 since the rains began. Grain harvest has been at a standstill during the last week in all parts of the county and but very little grain can be cut in many sections before the last of the week should the rain cease. But it is looking quite threatening and we are expecting more rain before the spell breaks. Planting is delayed in many places because of the continued rains and the farmers are needing sunshine now almost as bad as they needed rain during the spring drouth.

HASKELL COUNTY ADOPTS PROVISIONS OF STOCK LAW

HASKELL, TEXAS, June 13.—Complete returns were given out from the official count of the stock law election which was held throughout Haskell county on June 4 to enable the freeholders to determine whether horses, mules, jacks, jennets and cattle should be permitted to run at large, carried by a majority of 495 votes, the opposing vote numbering only 69.

This county has held two other elections of this kind which were held void because of irregularities.

Returns were also given out that the 15 cent maintenance tax for public roads lost by only a few votes. The election was held on the same date. The vote on this occasion was very light.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN RAIL SITUATION

Conditions Better in This Section—Rock Island Has Three Washouts On Its Line.

Although Wichita Falls and the county escaped from rains Monday night, other points south, west and north on railroads were visited. The railroads leading out of the city escaped further damage through the night, but the Rock Island, a connecting line, reported three big washouts on their line.

The North Fork river at mile post 116 on the Katy and the Elm Fork on the same line were rising steadily Tuesday morning to heights which were considered dangerous.

Showers of Monday night struck Henrietta and points south and east. The dispatcher of the Wichita Valley reported from a half to an inch of rain at Abilene, Anson and Hawley and intervening points. There was a heavy rain between Amarillo and Clarendon.

Sayre, Oklahoma, was visited with a cloudburst during the night, it being reported that four inches of water fell within a comparatively short time. The streets of the city are said to have been submerged under two to three feet of water.

The Denver had a washout Monday evening at mile post 234 when a two-bent creek bridge was swept away. Traffic was resumed over this point at 11:15 o'clock Monday night.

Red river passed the crisis Monday evening, and Katy officials stated that no further damage was expected at this point.

The work at the Canadian river where 80 bents were swept away last week is progressing rapidly and it is believed that the bridge will be ready to care for traffic by a week from Thursday.

HIGH SCHOOL SITE DEAL IS CLOSED BY TRUSTEES MONDAY

BOND ELECTION TO BE NEXT STEP, BUT IS NOT PLANNED IN NEAR FUTURE.

TO OPEN NEW STREETS, MAY EXTEND CAR LINE

Average of $800 Per Lot For Total of 64 Lots is Paid For Location.

The deal for the site for the new high school was practically closed Monday afternoon at a meeting of the school board, which pays an average of $800 each for the 64 lots in the four blocks of the Highland Heights tract. The trade was effected largely through the efforts of Jerome T. Stone, who came to the rescue when the deal was about to fall through.

Acquisition of the site is the first definite step for the new high school. The next will be to order an election to vote the necessary bonds, but this will not be done in the immediate future.

In the meantime, steps are to be taken to further prepare the site for the building. The two cross streets will be closed by the city council, which will also be asked to open new streets so as to make the tract more accessible. It is probable that Pearl street will be extended to within a short distance of the tract and that the present paving on Monroe will be extended to the site.

Extension of the Southland car line so as to serve the tract is also a probability. Some talk is heard of another line to give a direct connection with the factory route, but no plans are being formulated for that as yet.

The site chosen comprises about 18 acres and was the most accessible tract of that size that the board could find. While not at present centrally located, it is in the direct line of the city's future growth, which is expected to be to the southward and westward, and to have obtained a tract closer in would have meant to either add much to the cost or to build in a cramped space. The location is on one of the highest points in the city.

As previously stated, present plans of the school board call for something more than a high school. There is every probability that the institution will have the standing of a junior college with a curriculum covering one or more years of college instruction.

LOOK OUT FOR WEEVILS IN THE MEAL BARREL, HEALTH OFFICER ADVISES

From the city health department comes the cheering information that this is the time of year when weevils thrive in corn meal, oat meal, flour and all other kinds of cereals and that the observing housewife had better keep a weather eye peeled for signs of the unwelcome visitors.

No cases have yet been discovered of cereals containing weevils, Dr. A. H. Douglass says, but that does not imply that they are not present. From now on through the hot months they may be found any place and it is best to watch for them.

VON HOEFER'S FORCES REPORTED PREPARING NEW ATTACK ON POLES

LONDON, June 14.—A dispatch to the London Times from Oppeln, Upper Silesia, says there are indications that the force of the German general, Von Hoefer, is preparing to make a new general attack against the Poles.

The political committee heading the German self-defense movement has not yet consented to the inter-allied commission's plan for clearing the area of armed civilians. A new start is to be made tomorrow and four subcommittees are being appointed to control the evacuation.

PORTER RESOLUTION PASSED IN HOUSE AND NOW GOES TO SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 14.—By a vote of 5 to 1 the house last night passed the Porter resolution to terminate the state of war between the United States and the central powers.

As a substitute for the Knox resolution, already passed by the senate, repealing the declaration of war, it was put through, 305 to 61, as a republican measure with the loss of only one republican vote. Forty-nine democrats joined in the landslide.

First throwing out, on a point of order, a motion by Representative Flood, democrat, Virginia, returned the resolution back to the committee with instructions to report a substitute requesting the president to negotiate with the enemy countries for a treaty of peace, the house voted down, 254 to 112, another recommitting proposal relating to disarmament, which provided for an amendment to the pending measure reserving the right under the treaty of Versailles "to enter into an agreement with Germany and her allies and the associated powers with the United States in the war for joint disarmament."

The effort of the democratic leadership to hold the party in line against the resolution failed and the minority crumbled on roll call. The crack of the gavel, ending two solid days of debate which leaders agreed had not changed one vote, brought a sigh of relief to weary members.

Mr. Kelly, who is chairman of the house conferees at work on the naval bill with its disarmament amendment, made a bitter attack on the resolution, declaring congress would live to apologize for its act, which he described as making peace with a mere clasp of the hand, after the fashion of professional wrestlers.

The principal attack on the resolution was based by the democrats on the ground that it did not properly protect American rights and that the United States, in attempting to negotiate a treaty with Germany and her ally, would sit down with feet and hands tied and without being able to demand the rights won by war. Republicans held, however, that all rights were safeguarded.

Representative Garrett, Tennessee, the acting democratic leader; Representative Connally, democrat, Texas, and Mr. Flood made the principal speeches against the resolution, all declaring that the chief argument in support of its adoption was that it would pave the way for greater trade with Germany.

Failure of the senate to accept the house substitute will send the whole question of peace to conference. Most of the republican speakers declared congress ought not to repeal the war declaration itself, holding it would be regarded as a repudiation of the war, but democrats reminded them that a republican house twice had passed a peace resolution with that provision.

GAS HOUSE WORKERS UNION HEAD HELD FOR MAIL ROBBERY

CHICAGO, June 14.—Timothy S. ("Big Tim") Murphy, president of the Gas House Workers' union, was arrested late last night by Postal Inspectors, charged with having planned the $350,000 mail robbery at the Dearborn street railroad station several months ago. A search of the home of his father-in-law, P. Diggs, by the postal inspectors, is said to have disclosed $98,600 in Liberty bonds and $14,300 in cash. Murphy's arrest is said to have been due to a confession obtained from Ralph Teter, a railway mail clerk on the Monon railroad, who is said to have admitted he received $11,000 as his share of the proceeds of the robbery.

Postal inspectors announced later that Murphy had confessed his participation in the mail robbery. Vinsenzo Cosmano, who was indicted with Murphy for the $100,000 Pullman mail robbery, was also arrested at Murphy's office last night and was questioned by the postal authorities.

Murphy admitted acting as receiver for the stolen bonds and currency in the mail robbery, according to the postal authorities. Several men have been indicted for attempting to dispose of bonds identified as part of the loot.

In the Diggs home the inspectors found a trunk full of brand new currency, which it is said was taken in the mail robbery.

The Dearborn station mail robbery occurred April 6. Five men shortly after noon drove up in an automobile and engaged in a game of baseball in a vacant lot near the station until a truck drove up about 4:30 o'clock with the mail for an eastbound Monon train. While four of the men covered the clerk with pistols, the fifth got the mail bags containing the loot.

Murphy and Cosmano were arrested several weeks ago charged with planning a $100,000 mail robbery at Pullman. Both were at liberty under $200,000 bonds in that case when rearrested last night.

A year ago they spent several months in jail awaiting trial for the murder of Mossy Enright, "king of the gunmen," but when the state's principal witnesses disappeared and were never heard from again, the case was dropped.

CHANDLER SIX

$1785

Down to the 1913 Price

1913 Five Passenger $1785

1921 Seven Passenger $1785

Highest Quality at a Price Unequalled

Monday, June 13, new low Chandler prices are effective. This new Chandler price puts the Chandler car right out in front. $1785 for a five-passenger touring car was the price of the Chandler of eight years ago. The big, handsome, powerful Chandler of today, constantly developed, enlarged and refined as the the years passed, would have sold in that earlier day for twice its present price.

Our action in restoring that 1913 price for today's Chandler, is convincing evidence of the constancy of the Chandler Company's long established policy of high quality at low price. The Chandler price has never at any time been advanced because of over-sold trade.

Chandler Offers So Much More For So Much Less

Other cars of many kinds and many motors have come and gone while the Chandler Six lives and grows. There is only one Chandler Six. There is no other car like it. No other car, within hundreds of dollars of the Chandler price, has the features characteristic of the highest type of design and construction for which the Chandler Six is justly famous.

The buyer of a new car will find an extraordinary degree of satisfaction in the Chandler.

Chandler offers all the power and speed and comfort and dependability of service that the discriminating buyer desires, and it provides these qualities in full measure at a price unequalled.

The Men Who Launched the Chandler, Build It Today

Standing back of, and responsible for, the Chandler car is a substantial organization, At the head of this organization today are the same men who conceived the Chandler Six and created it and have spent these eight years in mutiplying its friendships.

A SELFISH LOT WE ARE.

Washington reporters tell us that the greatest trouble any one thing gives Harding is—no, not foreign affairs, not keeping Harvey quiet, not reducing the cost of living nor bringing about the condition described by his misbegotten "normalcy." Serious as all of these problems are they do not constitute his greatest one, which is:

Patronage.

Little did Andrew Jackson, one of our few realy great presidents, realize when he instituted the spoils system that he was laying a possible foundation for such an institution. How his shade would huddle up in grief if he could see the worried, hunted, haunted look this great quadrennial American indoor sport plasters upon Harding.

We may be spending 88 cents out of every dollar the government receives in revenues, for wars, past and present. England and Japan may both unofficially notify him that they would welcome an invitation to a naval holiday conference, "normalcy" (disfigured child of English) may grovel in her efforts to stand alone, and need only the help of his small finger to help her skip and run. But to none of these can he give much thought, and still less constructive effort.

The postmastership at Kokum Center must be filled by a good republican.

As head of the nation he must spend Sunday at church, no matter how pressing the nation's business. That accounts for one day of the seven, and leaves only six days for all his work. And three of these precious days are being spent on job hunters. The pie counters, those long, long counters with uncomfortable seats, are filled with hungry men, and back of them stand lines and lines of still hungrier but fully as determined men.

A pretty pass we have come to when our highest paid and most honored official, the greatest ruler in the world, we proudly proclaim the head of our government, must spend half of his working time taking care of job hunters. And this especially when the world insistently calls for constructive measures.

Two plans have been suggested by which the president may be relieved of all this: The first, that congress make provision for an assistant to the president who shall handle all the patronage. But nothing will likely come of this because congress has many other things to talk about at the present time. The second suggestion is that the national chairman of the party in power take charge of the patronage question, thus taking it entirely out of the hands of the president.

Either might work, but neither will likely be adopted. Although patronage is a president's greatest worry, it is also his greatest asset. In the 1912 primaries Taft received 1240 votes in the North Dakota state primary. There were just exactly that many federal appointees in the state. Had the republican chairman appointed these men and had he later become a Roosevelt man, look at the disgrace that would have been Taft's.

It is because a president has the Indian sign on his appointees that he can fight and win battles.

But when our selected leader is forced to spend exactly half of his working time, and many restless nights on the patronage question we can all be sure that the world's great age is not upon us.

KEEP PATIENT, BOYS.

Senator Penrose recently announced that early disposition would be made of the bonus question.

Since the first cash payment provided for in the bill will not be made until July 1, 1922, there is no need to await the tariff and tax-revision measures. Revenue obtaining features, which must originate in the house, having been eliminated from the measure, the senate will soon have the bill under consideration.

There will be an early enactment of the fighters' adjusted compensation bill even if they do not get anything until a year from now. There are five optional plans for compensating the 4,800,000 men and women who served in the world war, and are as follows:

1. "Adjusted service pay," $1 a day for each day's service in the United States and $1.25 for each day's service abroad.

2. "Adjusted service certificates," insurance on a sum 40 per cent greater than cash compensation, payable in twenty years with interest at 4½ per cent, compounded annually.

3. "Vocational training aid" at government expense at an amount equal to cash compensation plus 40 per cent.

4. "Farm or home aid," adjusted service pay plus 40 per cent for home or farm.

5. "Public land preference," giving veterans first choice of government lands now or hereafter opened.

If all of the veterans should select the cash plan the total outlay would amount to $1,560,166,330, according to the latest estimates.

To the man who was injured, or who might want to complete his education or who would like to buy a home or a farm this relief must seem much slower in coming than did the relief from the turns in the mud and hell of front line trenches.

But Penrose has said that it is on the way—so the boys need only to hold out, because Penrose is first of all a politician and he realizes that there is an election coming in the fall of 1922. And he is getting ready for it.

Editorial Echoes

A Memorable Centennial.
(Houston Chronicle.)

The good year 1921 is a centennial year of profound and solemn significance. It is associated in memory with the purposes, plans and achievements of a man whose name is indissolubly linked in honor and renown with that of Texas, and is woven into the very warp and woof of her history, and perpetuated in the name of the capital of the state, which eventuated from the young republic, for the planning and establishment of which he was in a large measure responsible.

One hundred years have rolled into the remorseless tomb of the centuries, since the great empressario, Stephen F. Austin, led his first rank of colonists into the then primeval and virgin land called Texas; then a part of the Mexican republic. Adventurous explorers had preceded him, but they came as confessed subjects of monarchial government, inspired with the purpose of extending the dominion of their royal masters. Of such explorers Robert Cavalier Sieur De LaSalle was most conspicuous, and when on the January morning of 1685 he landed on the southwestern coast of Texas, he was the romantic and courageous forerunner and herald of a man of the Anglo-Saxon race, who was destined 136 years later to succeed where he failed.

In God's own good time Austin came. He came not to exploit and plunder, but to develop and build up. He did not seek self-aggrandizement, regardless of justice, but his purposes were at once definite, just, noble and practical. He was a man with a far-reaching and luminous vision.

He saw from afar off possibilities which awaited courage, sound judgment, energy, love of liberty and respect for free and honest government in a then well nigh unknown land, and he planned and strove so wisely and so justly as to convert those possibilities into realties, and the Texas of today is the fulfillment of the splendid vision which filled his waking dreams. To him are we of this generation in large measure indebted for the heritage of a state, which in all the elements and incidents which make for material greatness is the most wonderful realm on all the earth.

He bequeathed us, too, more than material riches. His richest bequest was his example of dauntless courage, stainless integrity, unselfish patriotism and a devotion to duty which enabled him to dare great dangers, endure great suffering, and render service of imperishable value.

This is Austin centennial year—a year worthy to be "set apart and consecrate" in the calendar of Texas.

Stephen F. Austin was born a gentleman and a patriot, as such he lived, as such he died, ere the sun of his manhood reached its noon.

He rested 'neath the shade of the giant live oaks on the banks of the Brazos till a grateful state removed his hallowed dust with stately ceremony, and enshrined it on the towering hill which stands nigh by the majestic capitol of Texas, which is the concrete expression of the grandeur and the glory of a great state. The name of Austin will live in history and song and story as long as the waters of the Colorado flow to mingle with the waters of the southern sea.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Panama Canal Costs.

Editor the Times:—

As one who was in the Panama Canal organization throughout canal construction, I wish to correct the error in report of your unusually accurate Washington correspondent in stating that canal employes are given free transportation to the United States in connection with vacations. In other respects the article checked with what were facts, no doubt.

Commenting on it, however, as to remarks about higher compensation than when conditions were unfavorable and yellow fever and malaria was being treated by General Gorgas, I would call attention to the fact that work started in 1904, 17 years ago, when comparative costs in about everything were on a much lower basis. To state to best of recollection facts in connection with the canal in detail as not given in your article from Washington in Sunday's paper, skilled wages first in force were 45 cents per hour for about all mechanical trades with few exceptions.

During 1905, this was raised to 56 cents and in turn to 65 cents, both increases being made as further inducement to workmen to go to Panama, adequate forces being unobtainable at lower rates. This scale for almost all crafts including machinists, boilermakers, carpenters, blacksmiths and many others with slightly higher scale for pattern-makers and bricklayers continued almost throughout canal construction from 1905 to 1915, or until war inflation began. There began about 1910, however, a graduated scale in force for a number of years prior to 1914 when abolished, allowing an extra 3 per cent (I believe) for longevity or continued service to induce workmen to remain. In addition free quarters, amounting to barrack army accommodations and poorest of light housekeeping quarters in part in beginning were provided. There were a number of houses of far better grade, but these almost entirely assigned to the higher officials (many army officers) and others in seniority of service; at many places applications resting on file for even two years before quarters could be had by employe for his family. Later, toward completion of the canal far better quarters were even more easily obtainable.

Without comment on existing canal costs, on account of having left the canal several years ago, and while hearing from many people still on it not keeping up to date in its operation, I offer only the observation that has been repeatedly made to me in letters, that the high cost is largely due to the high overhead. These comments have been made to me in letters received, even since attention of secretary of war to the canal has been made subject of press dispatches, and by not only well informed canal employes and officials, but by other impartial observers residing on the isthmus not employed by the Panama canal.

The recent "economy wave" throughout the country in its application to the canal is reported to me to have resulted in the discharge of a number of the poorer paid West Indian negroes and others receiving smallest salaries, without affecting the excessive force included in the "overhead." It might also be stated with available evidence to support it that the esprit de corps and enthusiasm for work that constructed the canal was eliminated for its operation largely by "special reward" measures passed by congress in 1913, giving large gratuities to all military-naval officers who had spent three years or more in the official positions of the canal by political pull at higher than regular pay, and ignoring all civilians occupying the same and similar positions. This disrupted canal forces.

WHY?—

Is Today Celebrated as "Flag Day"?

(Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

The first recognition of a special day in honor of the American flag occurred on June 14, 1898—the 117th anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes by the Continental congress in 1777—when Prof. George Bolch, head of a free kindergarten for poor children, established the custom which was destined to spread over the entire United States.

Professor Bolch felt that not only his charges know comparatively little about the flag of their country but that they did not have for it the reverence which they should feel. Accordingly, in 1899, he started the ceremony of "explaining the flag"—telling what is represented, how it acquird the various stars and stripes and detailing the manner in which it should be displayed and handed. Little by little the custom spread throughout the schools of New York City until it was finally taken up by the board of education, first of the city and then of the state. The idea was so well designed to foster patriotism and a love of the flag that other states soon adopted it and the movement launched in an obscure kindergarten has now spread over the entire country—practically every school holding appropriate ceremonies, and the flag being displayed by business buildings and private dwellings from ocean to ocean and from the Gulf to the St. Lawrence.

Tomorrow—WHY do we laugh when glad?

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY—1780-1843

O say, can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd, were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there.
O say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

On the shore dimly seen thro' the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering steep,
As it fitfully blows, half conceals, half discloses?
Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected, now shines on the stream:
'Tis the star-spangled banner: O, long may it wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!

O thus be it ever when free-men shall stand
Between their lov'd home and the war's desolation;
Blest with victory and peace, may the heav'n-rescued land
Praise the pow'r that hath made and preserv'd us a nation!
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust."
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

"I have seen the glories of art and architecture and of river and of mountain. I have seen the sunset on the Jungfrau and the moon rise on Mount Blanc. But the fairest vision on which these eyes rested was the flag of my country in a foreign port. Beautiful as a flower to those who love it, terrible as a meteor to those who hate it; the symbol of the power and the glory and the honor of one hundred millions of Americans."—From an address by the late Senator George F. Hoar.

HUMANISMS
Inner Lights on Lives and Whims of Personages in the Public Eye

By WILLIAM ATHERTON DU PUY.

It was threatening rain in Washington and two husky porters at one of the fashionable hotels were busy putting up an awning across the sidewalk to protect the guests who were arriving for a reception.

As they carried their paraphernalia in and out through the narrow door they kept jostling quite unceremoniously a slim, gray, shy gentleman who was standing by and evidently waiting for someone.

In fact, this elderly gentleman found it necessary to dodge quite alertly from one side to the other to avoid being bumped by some of these awning posts.

The porters paid no attention. They little knew that it was Andrew D. Melon, secretary of treasury, one of the richest men in the world, whom they were thus brushing aside.

Assistant Surgeon General C. C. Pierce of the United States public health service was once in the cabin of the captain of a ship far at sea when a sailor came in, said he was sick and asked the captain to give him something for what was ailing him. The captain shook out about a teaspoonful of calomel, told the sailor to take it and to come back in the morning for a dose of salts. It was the stock prescription for all ailments.

When the sailor had gone Dr. Pierce protested to the captain against the size of the dose of calomel he had given.

"It only costs 40 cents a pound," was the captain's response.

So Dr. Pierce reported to the public health service on the methods of captains in prescribing for the members of their crews and the service made up a little book which it called "The Ship's Medicine Chest" which was a very simple doctor book and which told the amounts of medicine that should be given and which for what, and this book is distributed to all vessels that sail under the flag.

Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio was campaigning for governor some years ago and had spoken at Caldwell. After the day's work was over and he was getting into bed at his hotel word was brought that a man who had heckled him that night had been arrested, was unable to get bail and was consequently languishing in jail.

Senator Willis telephoned the mayor, got him out of bed, convened a special sitting of police court and brought the sulprit to trial. He even appeared in the man's defense. The offense was fined for disturbing the meeting. Senator Willis paid the fine.

As the senator's train neared Columbus the next day this man came up to him, admitted that he had been a hired heckler, said that he had sworn off, returned the fine money and the senator had paid out in his behalf and pledged him his vote.

When a cake is nicely frosted and it's put away for tea
And it looks as trim and proper as a chocolate cake should be,
Would it puzzle you at evening as you brought it from the ledge
To find the chocolate missing from its smooth and shiny edge?

As you viewed the cake in sorrow would you look around and say,
"Who's been nibbling in the pantry when he should have been at play?"
And if little eyes look guilty as they hungered for a slice,
Would you take Dad's explanation that it must have been the mice?

Oh, I'm sorry for the household that can keep a frosted cake
Smooth and perfect through the daytime, for the hearts of them must ache—
For it must be very lonely to be living in a house
Where the pantry's never ravaged by a glad ten-fingered mouse.

Though I've traveled far past forty, I confess that I, myself,
Even now will nip a morsel from the good things on the shelf,
And I never blame the youngsters who discover chocolate cake
For the tiny little samples which exultantly they take.

The History of Your Name

O'BRIEN.

Variations—O'Brian, O'Bryan, Brien, Brian, Bryan.
Racial Origin—Irish.
Source—A king's name.

The development of family names in Ireland took place two or three centuries before it did in England and the rest of northern Europe. And even prior to that time the Irish had a well-developed system of clan names which served almost as well as family names for identification.

It was King Brian Boru who, by royal edict, started this custom of nomenclature in the tenth century and spread it broadcast over the land, whereas in other countries it developed only spontaneously and over a period of several centuries.

It had been customary among the Irish up to that time for the descendants of the heads of tribes to take their names from them. But it was merely a custom, and one subject to frequent change in the event of a descendant leader of a clan achieving some notable victory, in which case his followers would drop the old clan name and adopt a new one from his personal name.

King Brian's edict made it compulsory for the members of clans and families to take their names from either their fathers or grandfathers, and made those names "hereditary and fixed forever."

Most of the O'Brien families were those which took their family name from the monarch himself, who was slain at the battle of Clontarf in 1014.

The prefix "O," among the Irish, has approximately the same meaning as the Norman French prefix "Fitz" and the Anglo-Saxon termination "son."

Tomorrow—Myers.

THE ADVENTURE OF THE PRIORY SCHOOL

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Copyright, 1921, by Harper & Bros. Published by special arrangement with The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The story thus far:

Lord Saltire, 10-year-old heir and only child of the late cabinet minister, the Duke of Holdernesse, disappeared from the Priory, a select preparatory school in the north of England one night, and Dr. Thorneycroft Huxtabee, founder and principal of the school, went to Holmes for help. He said that the same night the German master, Heidegger, had also disappeared, and his bicycle was gone. The beds of Lord Saltire and of the German master had both been slept in, but whereas Lord Saltire was evidently fully dressed when he went away, the German master's clothes were most of them in his room. Dr. Huxtabee suggested that the missing bicycle was perhaps only a blind.

PART TWO.

"Quite so, but it seems rather an absurd blind, does it not? Were there other bicycles in this shed?"

"Several."

"Would he not have hidden a couple, had he desired to give the idea that they had gone off upon them?"

"I suppose he would."

"Of course he would. That blind theory won't do. But the incident is an admirable starting-point for an investigation. After all, a bicycle is not an easy thing to conceal or to destroy. One other question. Did any one call to see the boy on the day before he disappeared?"

"No."

"Did he get any letters?"

"Yes, one letter."

"From whom?"

"From his father?"

"Do you open the boys' letters?"

"No."

"How do you know it was from the father?"

"The coat of arms was on the envelope, and it was addressed in the Duke's peculiar stiff hand. Besides, the Duke remembers having written."

"When had he a letter before that?"

"Not for several days."

"Had he ever one from France?"

"No, never."

"You see the point of my questions, of course. Either the boy was carried off by force or he went of his own free-will. In the latter case, you would expect that some prompting from outside would be needed to make as young a lad do such a thing. If he has had no visitors that prompting must have come in letters; hence I try to find out who were his correspondents."

"I fear I cannot help you much. His only correspondent, so far as I know, was his own father."

"Who wrote to him on the very day of his disappearance. Were the relations between father and son very friendly?"

"His Grace is never very friendly with any one. He is completely immersed in large public questions, and is rather inaccessible to all ordinary emotions. But he was always kind to the boy in his own way."

"But the sympathies of the latter were with the mother?"

"Yes."

"Did he say so?"

"No."

"The Duke, then?"

"Good Heavens, no!"

"Then how could you know?"

"I have had some confidential talks with Mr. James Wilder, his Grace's secretary. It was he who gave me the information about Lord Saltire's feelings."

"I see. By the way, that last letter of the Duke's—was it found in the boys' room after he was gone?"

"No, he had taken it with him. I think, Mr. Holmes, it is time that we were leaving for Euston."

"I will order a four-wheeler. In a quarter of an hour, we shall be at your service. If you are telegraphing home, Mr. Huxtable, it would be well to allow the people in your neighborhood to imagine that the inquiry is still going on in Liverpool, or wherever that red herring led your pack. In the meantime I will do a little quiet work at your own doors, and perhaps the scent is not so cold but that two old hounds like Watson and myself may get a sniff of it."

That evening found us in the cold, bracing atmosphere of the Peak country, in which Dr. Huxtable's famous school is situated. It was already dark when we reached it. A card was lying on the hall table, and the butler whispered something to his master, who turned to us with agitation in every heavy feature.

"The Duke is here," said he. "The Duke and Mr. Wilder are in the study. Come, gentlemen, and I will introduce you."

I was, of course, familiar with the pictures of the famous statesman, but the man himself was very different from his representation. He was a tall and stately person, scrupulously dressed, with a drawn, thin, face, and a nose which was grotesquely curved and long. His complexion was of a dead paller, which was more startling by contrast with a long, dwindling beard of vivid red, which flowed down over his white, waistcoat, with his watch-chain gleaming through its fringe. Such was the stately presence who looked stonily at us from the center of Dr. Huxtable's hearthrug. Beside him stood a very young man, whom I understood to be Wilder, the private secretary. He was small, nervous, alert, with intilligent, light-blue, eyes and mobile features. It was he who at once, in an incisive and positive tone, opened the conversation.

"I called this morning, Dr. Huxtable, too late to prevent you from starting for London. I learned that your object was to invite Mr. Sherlock Holmes to undertake the conduct of this case. His Grace is surprised, Dr. Huxtable, that you should have taken such a step without consulting him."

"When I learned that the police had failed—"

"His Grace is by no means convinced that the police have failed."

"But, surely, Mr. Wilder—"

"You are well aware, Dr. Huxtable, that his Grace is particularly anxious to avoid all public scandal. He prefers to take as few people as possible into his confidence."

"The matter can be easily remedied," said the brow-beaten doctor; "Mr. Sherlock Holmes can return to London by the morning train."

"Hardly that, doctor, hardly that," said Holmes, in his blandest voice. "This northern air is invigorating and pleasant, so I propose to spend a few days upon your moors, and to occupy my mind as best I may. Whether I have the shelter of your roof or of the village inn is, of course, for you to decide."

"I could see that the unfortunate doctor was in the last stage of indecision, from which he was rescued by the deep sonorous voice of the red-bearded Duke, which boomed out like a dinner-gong.

"I agree with Mr. Wilder, Dr. Huxtable, that you would have done wisely to consult me. But since Mr. Holmes has already been taken into your confidence, it would indeed be absurd that we should not avail ourselves of his services. Far from going to the inn, Mr. Holmes, I should be pleased if you would come and stay with me at Holdernesse Hall."

"I thank your Grace. For the purposes of my investigation, I think that it would be wiser for me to remain at the scene of the mystery."

"Just as you like, Mr. Holmes. Any information which Mr. Wilder or I can give you is, of course, at your disposal."

"It will probably be necessary for me to see you at the hall," said Holmes. "I would only ask you now, sir, whether you have formed any explanation in your own mind as to the mysterious disappearance of your son?"

"No, sir, I have not."

"Excuse me if I allude to that which is painful to you, but I have no alternative. Do you think that the Duchess had anything to do with the matter?"

The great minister showed perceptible hesitation.

"I do not think so," he said, at last.

"The other most obvious explanation is that the child has been kidnaped for the purpose of levying ransom. You have not had any demand of the sort?"

"No, sir."

"One more question, your Grace. I understand that you wrote to your son upon the day when this incident occurred."

"No, I wrote upon the day before."

"Exactly. But he received it on that day."

"Yes."

"Was there anything in your letter which might have unbalanced him or induced him to take such a step?"

"No, sir; certainly not."

"Did you post that letter yourself?"

The nobleman's reply was interrupted by his secretary, who broke in with some heat.

"His Grace is not in the habit of posting letters himself," said he. "This letter was laid with others upon the study table and I myself put them in the post-bag."

"You are sure this one was among them."

"Yes, I observed it."

"How many letters did your Grace write that day?"

"Twenty or thirty. I have a large correspondence. But surely this is somewhat irrelevant?"

"Not entirely," said Holmes.

"For my own part," the Duke continued, "I have advised the police to turn their attention to the south of France. I have already said that I do not believe that the Duchess would encourage so monstrous an action, but the lad had the most wrong-headed opinions, and it is possible that he may have fled to her, aided and abetted by this German. I think, Dr. Huxtable, that we will now return to the hall."

I could see that there were other questions which Holmes would have wished to put, but the nobleman's abrupt manner showed that the interview was at an end. It was evident that to his intensely aristocratic nature this discussion of his intimate family affairs with a stranger was most abhorrent and that he feared lest every fresh question would throw a fiercer light into the discreetly shadowed corners of his ducal history.

When the nobleman and his secretary had left, my friend flung himself at once with characteristic eagerness into the investigation.

The boy's chamber was carefully examined, and wielded nothing save the absolute conviction that it was only through the window that he could have escaped. The German master's room and effects gave no further clue in his case a trellis of ivy had given way under his weight, and we saw by the light of a lantern the mark on the lawn where his heels had come down. That one dint in the short, green grass was the only material witness left of this inexplicable nocturnal flight.

Sherlock Holmes left the house alone, and only returned after eleven. He had obtained a large ordnance map of the neighborhood, and this he brought into my room, where he laid it out on the bed, and, having balanced the lamp in the middle of it, he began to smoke over it, and occasionally to point out objects of interest with the reeking amber of his pipe.

"This case grows upon me, Watson," said he. "There are decidedly some points of interest in connection with it. In this early stage, I want you to realize those geographical features which may have a good deal to do with our investigation.

"Look at this map. This dark square is the priory school. I'll put a pin in it. Now, this line is the main road. You see that it runs east and west past the school, and you see also that there is no side road for a mile either way. If these two folk passed away by road, it was this road."

"Exactly."

"By a singular and happy chance, we are able to some extent to check what passed along this road during the night in question. At the first cross-road on the east side a county constable was on duty from twelve to six. This man declares that he was not absent from his post for an instant, and he is positive that neither boy nor man could have gone that way unseen. I have spoken with this policeman tonight, and he appears to me to be a perfectly reliable person. That blocks this end. We have now to deal with the other. There is an inn here, the Red Bull, the landlady of which was ill. She had sent to Mackleton for a doctor, but he did not arrive until morning, being absent in another case. The people at the inn were alert all night, awaiting his coming, and one or other of them seems to have continually had an eye upon the road. They declare that no one passed. If their evidence is good, then we are fortunate enough to be able to block the west, and also to be able to say that the fugitives did not use the road at all."

"But the bicycle," I objected.

"Quite so. We will come to the bicycle presently. To continue our reasoning: if these people did not go by the road, they must have traversed the country to the north of the house or to the south of the house. That is certain. Let us weigh the one against the other. On the south of the house is, as you perceive, a large district of arable land, cut up into small fields with stone walls between them. There, I admit, that a bicycle is impossible. We can dismiss the idea. We turn to the country on the north. Here there lies a grove of trees, marked as the 'Ragged Shaw,' and on the farther side stretches a great rolling moor. Lower Gill Moor, extending for ten miles and sloping gradually upwards. Here, at one side of this wilderness, is Holderness Hall, ten miles by road, but only six across the moor. It is a peculiarly desolate plain. A few moor farmers have small holdings, where they rear sheep and cattle. Except these, the plover and the curlew are the only inhabitants until you come to the Chesterfield high road. There is a church there, a few cottages, and an inn. Beyond that the hills become precipitous. Surely it is here to the north that our quest must lie."

"But the bicycle," I persisted.

"Well, well!" said Holmes, impatiently. "A good cyclist does not need a high road. The moor is intersected with paths, and the moon was at the full. Hallo! what is this?"

There was an agitated knock at the door, and an instant afterwards Dr. Huxtable was in the room. In his hand he held a blue cricket-cap, with a white chevron on the peak.

Why are You Waiting?

A message to the retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers of this city.

WHO IS this mysterious "everybody else" that you are waiting for—that your neighbor merchant is waiting for, that your salesmen are waiting for?

This reluctant buyer is your salesman, your neighbor, yourself.

There is plenty of money in the country—all the experts agree on that. There is a willingness to buy—FOLKS are merely waiting to see how badly WE want to sell.

But many salesmen still act as if they had lost faith in their goods—many executives are simply "marking time."

All that business needs is for someone to give it a push and start it going.

The man who shows faith in his business by spending his own money is going to arouse faith in others.

We believe it. We are showing our own faith by buying this space to urge you to join us in starting something in this community—and other Burroughs offices, the country over, are doing the same thing.

Let us all begin today, by buying the things we need, and our business needs, and let us sell with old-fashioned, hearty optimism and enthusiasm.

Let us stop saying, "Wait until everybody else begins to buy, then I will." Why not begin now?

Rabbit Darrough Has Edge On Williams and Spudders Blank Bears

By PAUL W. LARKIN

Altogether, four Bears traveled far enough yesterday afternoon at Athletic Park to whisper in Caddy Works' ear and only two of these were afforded an oportunity to say "howdy" to either Danny Gross or Danny Clark. But if the visitors had any message for McElwee they had to be relayed. Not a visiting plye reached third during the matinee and, as far as that goes, not one should have reached second. This result was attained through the stellar pitching of "Rabbit" Darrough who showed a flash of his 1920 form and was in almost perfect pitching trim. In fact, it was something more than a flash for it extended through nine innings and the invaders were as helpless at the end of the cortest as they were at the beginning. While all this was going on the Spudders tallied and consesuently went into fifth place while the Marines were lying idle.

But, don't think for a moment that "Rabbit" didn't have a battle on his hands. The diminutive hurler was opposed on the rubber by one Mutt Williams, erstwhile Marine hurler, and Mutt turned in a nifty exhibition. Only two runs were earned off him, and one of these was exceedingly lucky. He permitted the Spudders to get gay in only one round, the third, when they garnered three of their five hits and pushed three counters across. In every other chapter he was as impregnable as the Rock of Gibraltar, but the runs chalked up by the Spudders were as good as a million with the way "Rabbit" was traveling.

Three Hits for Santone.

Darrough let the visitors down with three widely scattered hits and issued only one pass. "Chick" Bowen nicked him for two of the blows and Frank Fuller got the other. Both these men purloined second, the former with the help of Danny Clark, who had the ball waiting for him, but failed to tag him, and the latter with the aid of Frank Kitchens, who dropped the pitch after signalling for a pitch-out.

The home boys acquired a cheap tally in the second through the combined efforts of Fuller and Johnny Brock. The first mentioned threw McElwee's roller to the bleachers and put "Mac" on third while Brock dropped Williams' toss to the plate to get Mac on a squeeze play. Rather, the ball was kicked out of his hand by 'Mac," who tore home from third and hit the dirt like so much shrapnel.

The two marked up in the third resulted from clean hitting. Rothfuss, McElwee and Miller slugged out safeties and "Froggy' counted on Jake's belt. When 'Mac' was perched on third, Kitchens poked a short fly to left that Booe speared with one hand, but he was running full tilt at the time and did not have a chance to recover his balance and make a play for "Mac" at the plate.

The following detailed score shows the rare form in which both hurlers were working:

First Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: Fuller went out on a grounder to McElwee; Nee fanned; Henry duplicated. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Brock retired Bescher and Gross, taking their high fouls back of the plate. Rothfuss took four wide ones but was stranded on first when Clark popped to Fuller. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: McElwee threw out Connelly; Booe whiffed; Bowen drove a hard single to left, a nice stop by Bescher saving a double. Bowen immediately stole second, sliding around Clark who had the ball in time to touch him; Brock fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: McElwee hit to Fuller and went clear to third when the Bruin keystoner heaved to the bleachers in attempting to throw him out at first. Works bunted and McElwee scored when Brock dropped Williams throw to the plate. Kitchens walked. Darrough took three swings and sat down. Bescher walked, filling the basek but Danny Gross was unable to deliver, his best being a weak grounder which Fuller took care of. One run, no hits, two errors.

Third Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: E. Gross pasted a liner at his kid brother and was out at first; Clark took Williams' grounder and got him at first. Fuller singled to center and stole second but Nee could not advance him, going out via the Clark to Works route. No runs, one hit, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Rothfuss led off with a single to center; Clark forced him at second with a grounder, Henry to E. Gross. McElwee poked a single to right, sending Clark to second from where he scored on Miller's safe hit to the middle garden; Works stopped one of Williams' slants with his ribs, populating all corners of the lot; Kitchens hit a short fly to left which Booe caught after a hard run, McElwee scoring. Darrough ended the inning by fanning. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: Miller took Henry's fly; Connolly flew out to Bescher; Booe walked and was forced at second when Bowen hit a weak roller to the infield. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Bescher drew a free ticket to first; Danny Gross popped out to Brock and Rothfuss did likewise to E. Gross. Bescher was thrown out stealing. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: It was three up and three down for both sides in this frame. Darrough threw out Brock; Works made a sensational one-handed catch of E. Gross' hard liner; Williams struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Clark filed out to Bowen; Connolly captured McElwee's fly and Williams threw out Miller at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: Works took Fuller's roller and retired him; Nee grounded to Gross and was out at first; Henry popped to Clark. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Works started with a single to center and went to second when Kitchens walked. On an attempted sacrifice Darrough bunted poorly and Works was forced at third, Kitchens taking second; Williams sent Bescher back to the bench on strikes. Gross forced Darrough at second with a roller to the infield. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: McElwee took Connally's pop fly. Booe filed to Works. Bowen singled to center, but Brock forced him at second, Gross to Clark. No runs, one hit, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Williams threw out Rothfuss; Fuller took Clark's pop fly. McElwee singled to center, but was out trying to stretch the hit to two bases, Connally to Fuller. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: Danny Gross threw out his brother at first; Clark took Williams' grounder and got his man at first. Fuller popped to Kitchens. No runs, no hits, no errors.

WICHITA FALLS: Fuller took Miller's pop fly. Works went out on a grounder to E. Gross. Kitchens grounded to Williams. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

SAN ANTONIO: Nee rolled out to Gross; Henry hit a hard liner to right, which Rothfuss captured. McElwee threw out Connally. No runs, no hits, no errors.

DEMPSEY SATISFIED WITH HIS CONDITION

Believes Short Layoff Will Do Him Good—Laughs at Idea of "Secret" Training.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 14.—The "no training" sign probably will remain hung up at Jack Dempsey's camp until Thursday or Friday, according to indications today, when the world's heavyweight champion will swing back into his conditioning grind with the prospects of resuming boxing along with the other gymnasium routine. Until Dempsey takes up the full training program again, the public will be denied admittance to the camp.

Dempsey explained the mystery concerning his layoff by saying that he was so thoroughly satisfied with his condition that he thought a layoff of three or four days would do him good. He appeared to be amused at reports that the camp had been closed to the public so he could engage in secret training.

"I don't know where they get the idea of this secrecy thing," the champion said. "I don't need any training at all this week, much less secret training. I shall start in late this week and keep it up to the finish. I am not trying to put anything over. Look at me. I never felt better in my life and I never was in such good condition three weeks before a match, not excepting my contest with Willard."

Scribes Barred For a Time.

For a time yesterday even newspaper men were barred from the camp because Dempsey suddenly developed a grouch. Two correspondents managed to talk their way past the two attendants at the gate and persuaded the champion to weigh in privately. He scaled exactly 196 pounds, which is six pounds above the figure he hopes to reach when he crawls through the ropes to meet Carpentier.

Manager Jack Kearns is taking Dempsey's cranky streak with a smile. He regards it as a good sign that Dempsey is rapidly getting into his fighting condition. It was recalled that Jim Jeffries acted much the same way when he was getting in shape for an important fight. He was easily irritated and nervous, as was the late Stanley Ketchel, who used to turn on his friends when he reached the peak of his training.

"It does me good to see Dempsey act up a bit," Kearns said. "It convinces me that he is about in shape."

Dempsey did absolutely no work yesterday despite reports of secret training. He loafed around camp, played cards and took a stroll down town in the evening.

SPEARWORT WINS ASCOT STAKE OF 2,000 SOVEREIGNS

ASCOT HEATH, ENGLAND, June 14.—The Ascot stake of 2,000 sovereigns over a course of two miles, run here today, was won by Sir H. Cunliffe-Owen's Spearwort.

J. Shepherd's King Idler was second and W. M. G. Singer's Chat Tor was third. Thirteen horses ran.

CHAMPION WILL DROP IF HE ERRS ONCE

Carpentier Expects to Land First Telling Punch in Championship Bout.

MANHASSET, N. Y., June 14.—Georges Carpentier, when he meets Jack Dempsey July 2, expects to land the first telling punch. In a conversation today with his friend and adviser, Captain Mallett, he said that he would drop Dempsey if the latter made one single mistake.

"The challenger," Captain Mallett said, "is not afraid and thinks that he has better than an even chance to win. If willingness, a clear eye and a deadly right hand coupled with speed and endurance can win, Georges thinks he will be the world's champion.

"He realizes that Dempsey will be the best man he has ever met, but notwithstanding, he is going in determined to do his best. If he loses he will take it like a man. Carpentier always before his big fights has expressed something of the sort I have just quoted and invariably his predictions have come true, although in many cases we have disagreed with him.

'In the fight with Bombardier Wells, I personally thought that Georges would be battered to pulp and advised Descamps not to consent to the match. But Georges settled the whole thing in the very words he had spoken with regard to the Dempsey fight. In fact, Georges went down three times for the count of eight in the second round; the third was neutral and he knocked out Wells in the fourth. When he came to his corner then he said 'I had an even chance and I took it.'"

Today Carpentier will take only a trip to the golf course and then will work on the road for a while. There was no sparring scheduled for today, although Georges intimated he might want some of this work late in the afternoon.

MAJOR LEAGUES SHIP 161 MEN TO MINORS FOR MORE SEASONING

Majority Are Rookies But a Few Veterans Are Numbered Among Them.

CHICAGO, June 14.—The annual tryout of scores of minor league baseball players by major league teams has ended and the youngsters who failed to make good have joined in the yearly pilgrimage back to the minors for further experience, some to return for another chance next year, but many to remain in the bushes.

Every season two or three hundred youngsters are taken on in the spring training trips by managers hopeful of finding at least one Cobb, one Sisler or one Walter Johnson among them, but when May 15, the day the clubs must reduce to 25 players each, comes around the tryouts are ended and most of the youngsters are back in the minors.

This year the 16 major league clubs have sent 161 men back to the lower leagues for seasoning. Most of them are pitchers, for the heavy batting of the past two years has sent managers and scouts scurrying to even the smallest leagues in the hope of finding one or two good hurlers, but there is also a good proportion of outfielders and a fair number of infielders and catchers.

Yankees Lead Both Leagues.

The New York Americans, with 19 recruits sent back, led both leagues in the number of players found wanting. Manager Huggins kept only a few of his youngsters and with the exception of the pitching staff is depending almost entirely on his last year's team.

The Chicago White Sox, crippled by the loss of eight stars through the baseball scandal, took nearly fifty men south, but 19 of the new players have found to be below major league caliber and sent back to the minors. The White Sox, however, probably have kept more youngsters than any other club, Sheely, Falk, Johnson, Mulligan and Mostil being recruits who have earned regular positions in the broken-up club.

The Chicago Cubs were third in youngsters sent back. Seventeen of the men tried out by Manager Evers were found wanting. The Philadelphia Americans came next with 15 turned back.

Washington occupies a position unique among the major leaguers, for not a man has been released. Manager George McBride started the season with a small number of players and is holding all of them.

Few Veterans Turned Back.

Virtually all of the men released were recruits, although there were a few veterans, such as Nick Cullop of the St. Louis Browns, who has played with several major league clubs, only to eventually return to the minors each time. Don Ayers and Bernie Boland were others who might be classed as veterans. Both were released by Detroit, but Boland is getting another tryout with St. Louis.

Many of the youngsters tried out this year were fresh from college and the number of semi-pros given chances in the majors each season seems to be increasing. At least one of the college men has more than made good. He is Stephenson of Cleveland, who came from the University of Alabama to play second base when Bill Wambsganss broke an arm. Stephenson ranks in the first 10 batters in the league and has a good fielding record.

A majority of the players released were sent back to the minors with strings attached and will get another chance in the majors next year. Some of them already have had several chances, but these men are always cheered up by the numerous instances of players who did not make good until they had several tryouts in the senior circuits and then became stars.

Thinks Fighters of Present Age Are As Good As Old Timers

QUINCY, MASS., June 14.—Jake Kilrain, one of the last of the prize ring gladiators of bare-fist days, thinks that the best of the present day boxers are as good as the best of the old school. Discussing the coming battle between Dempsey and Carpentier, he said he is far from regarding it as child's play in comparison with the bruising of his own time.

"The fighters today are as good as they ever were," he said. "This Dempsey is a rugged customer. Carpentier has a head on his shoulders that will help his hands a lot, to my way of thinking. Things have changed, however. In my day we were keeping away from the police all the time. I notice today that the police keep the crowds away from Carpentier.

Kilrain is now a watchman at a building plant here. He regrets that he will not be able to see the Dempsey-Carpentier fight and recalls his bout for the world's championship with Jem Smith, the English champion, before 23 spectators in France 34 years ago. This bout went 106 rounds and was adjudged a draw.

In winning the title Hunter defeated Allan Graham of England, in the final round.

Munroe Never Had A Chance To Take Jim Jeffries' Crown

Sandwiched in between those two famous examples of lopsideness—the David-Goliath and Dempsey-Willard encounters—was another short and uneven battle in which James J. Jeffries whipped Jack Munroe. Munroe aspired to become heavyweight champion in 1904, but when he was pitted against Jeffries the aspiration appeared to be his strongest claim to a chance at the honor.

Early in the second round the referee thought Munroe had learned his lesson and held up Jeffries' palm.

The fighters met in San Francisco on August 26. Munroe defended himself for a few second by raising his gloves above his head. He made several rushes, but fell short of their objective. Jeffries then knocked him down for six counts.

Rising, Munroe's stomach collided with a left-hand punch and again he went down, remaining there for seven counts. As soon as he got up, Jeffries toppled him over a third time. Munroe settled on his haunches, his head wobbly, but arose before the last county. He clinched and the bell saved him.

The second round had no sooner opened than he fell once more with a new sore spot. Even then he could not break himself of the habit of coming back for more. This time Jeffries stabbed his left into Munroe's weary ribs, and the challenger draped himself over the champion's arm. Then the referee called a halt.

SPORT SHOTS by Paul Warkin

Eight out of the last eleven. That's pennant winning ball.

Is it any wonder Sallm does not know where he is at with his twirlers? In his second last start Darrought let the Gassers down with four hits; in his last start he was nicked for 14 blows; while yesterday he turned in as good a game as any twirler in the league this year, allowing only 3 hits and 1 walk. Every hurler in the country—majors and minors both—has been up against the same thing. Their opponents are helpless one day and they are in the game themselves the next.

Tex McDonald had better hurry back if he wants to get in the game again. McElwee's period of bench warming must have done him a world of good. His fielding has been flawless and he has hit the agate better than any of his mates since his return to the lineup.

Danny Gross was finally stopped yesterday, by Mutt Williams, after hitting safely in 14 consecutive games. That's a record for the Spudders thus far this season. Clark and Rothfuss went 13 games before they were stopped.

Johnny Nee's club should cause a lot of trouble for the others in the circuit before this season is over. He hasn't got the worst aggregation in the world by any means. He claims he hasn't been getting the pitching, but his hurlers didn't look so bad here. His outfield compares favorably with any in the league, while Gross, Fuller and Henry are pretty hard to beat at their stations. Two out of three from them is not to be sneered at.

Mutt Williams' indifference has cost him several jobs and one of those was in the big show. Mutt is still as indifferent as ever. It's a cinch he didn't take his work seriously yesterday, yet he pitched a great game. If he would keep hustling all the time the chances are he would soon be be back. Every time Schaeffer missed a strike on him yesterday he would bend over and draw a line in the dirt. If he thought Schaeffer gave him something he would lean over and rub it out. Guess the slate was clear when the game was over.

Schaeffer was sent to Dallas after yesterday's game and Harry Kane will work the rest of the home stay here with Hunter Hill. We've certainly seen some fine umpiring at Athletic park this year. Daly and Irwin looked worse than any of them, yet their work was far superior to a lot of that seen here last year.

Doak Roberts was at the game here Sunday. It was his first visit to Wichita Falls since the season opened. He came to check over Will Gray's reports and found everything in satisfactory condition. We asked him when he was going to send George Miller to Athletic park for a series and he merely smiled. Wonder why?

Miss Stirling still has a chance to bring back a golf title to America. She won her match in the first round of the French open tourney by a wide margin. She was put out of the English tourney before she had a chance to get fairly started, but now has a chance to get revenge on Miss Leitch. The Americans certainly had a tough time on foreign soil, but things may look rosier before the present month is ended. Tilden upheld our honor on the courts and Milburn is looked to do the same on the polo field.

Many fans are laboring under the delusion that Lourcey and McAbee have signed Spudder contracts. They have got, nor do they intend to. Lourcey is satisfied with his job with the Gulf Production company and will confine his baseball activities to doing their backstopping. McAbee intends to do some college hurling in a few days and wants no professional taint on his amateur career.

Just as it was beginning to look as if Babe Ruth would have a tough battle on his hands to equal his last year's record, he goes to work and ties a world's record of five home runs in four days and puts himself 14 days ahead of his 1920 schedule. Should he thump one out of the lot today he'll have another undisputed world's mark—six home runs in five consecutive days.

COUNTY AUDITOR'S TERM ENDS JULY 1, JUDGES TO ELECT

The present term of the county auditor expires July 1, at which time the three district judges will convene and make the appointment.

W. W. Murphy, the incumbent, stated Tuesday that he would accept the position if it were tendered him, but did not intend to make any fight to secure the appointment.

It was reported in official circles that Ed P. Welch, Mr. Murphy's chief deputy, will be a candidate for appointment to the position. Mr. Welsh was formerly county auditor, having tendered his resignation two years ago when the judges appointed Mr. Murphy.

It was also rumored that another party is endeavoring to secure the appointment, but this rumor could not be substantiated.

COTTON MARKET.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The cotton market opened steady at advance of 5 to 10 points in response to better Liverpool cables than expected, and reports of a firmer tone in foreign exchange. There was scattered selling on continued good weather in the south which caused some irregularity after the call, but spot houses were moderate buyers of July and the market held steady during the early trading with October fluctuating between 12.17 and 12.22, compared with 12.12 at the close yesterday. The weather map showed some further precipitation in the west, but it was comparatively light and scattered.

Trading was very quiet during the middle of the afternoon, with prices showing reactions of 6 or 7 points from the best under realizing. October contracts held around 12.20c, or about eight points net higher.

The market turned steadier later on reiterated complaints of dry weather in the eastern belt, apprehensions of boll weevil damage during the summer and reports that a good many contracts liquidated recently had been purchased by the trade. Offerings were light and onl ya moderate demand was necessary to send prices up to 12.28c for October, or about 14 to 19 points net higher on active months.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—Further rains in the western belt and continued complaints of the presence of boll weevils in great numbers especially in Texas put the price of cotton 12 points up on the most active months during the first hour of business today. July rose to 11.98 and October to 12.77. The postponement of census bureau reports on consumption and stocks of tenderable cotton had the effect of restricting business to some extent.

Reports of the first cotton looms at several points in the central belt had the effect of increasing offerings somewhat and the market sagged a little, standing at 11 o'clock at net advances of 7 to 9 points.

The market became much of a waiting affair, especially after the census bureau announced that the statistics due today would be issued tomorrow. Late in the session the trading months were 5 to 7 points higher than the close of yesterday.

Cotton closed steady at net advances of 5 to 7 points.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The trend of prices at the opening of today's market suggested an extension of yesterday's rally, a number of leaders showing gains of one to 1½ points. This was immediately followed, however, by a resumption in large volume of the recent selling movement in rails, oils and equipments. Northern Pacific reversed its initial gain of one point with an abrupt decline of 2 points and Great Northern lost 2½. Mexican Petroleum fell 2 points, Baldwin 1½; Pure Oil 1½ and General Asphalt 1. Steels, motors, sugars, tobaccos and textiles also reacted.

Declaration of the regular dividend on Chicago & Northwestern and a drop in call money to 5½ per cent stimulated further recoveries at mid-day. Northern Pacific made up its loss and Great Northern rallied substantially Oils and motors were the strongest features at gains of 1½ to 4 points.

The closing was irregular. Sales approximated 750,000 shares.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Chicago Grain.

CHICAGO, June 14 — Favorable weather for harvesting had a bearish effect on the wheat market today, and so too did reports of increased country offerings. Misgivings about the outcome of voting on proposed anti-pit legislation at Springfield, Ill., tended also to make prices weaken. Houses with eastern connections led the selling. Initial figures, which ranged from 1¢ to 2¢ lower, with July $1.37¼ to $1.38 and September $1.25¼ to $1.26 were followed by decided setbacks all around.

Subsequently, reports of black rust in South Dakota rallied the market somewhat. It was said also that exporters were exchanging July for cash. The close, nevertheless, was heavy, 11c to 4½c net lower, with July $1.35¼ to $1.35½ and September $1.25¼ to $1.25½.

Corn gave way with wheat. After starting ¢ c to 1¢@1½c down, including July at 62¾ to 64¼c, the market continued to descend.

Reports that the crop outlook on corn was excellent emphasized the downward tendency later. Prices closed weak, 11c to 2¼@2½c net lower, with July 62½c.

Oats were depressed by the action of other grain, opening ¼ to ½@1c lower July 38¾ and then undergoing a further decline.

Provisions reflected a downturn in the value of hogs.

GOHLKE-WALKER TEST ON WILSON RANCH IS NOW BEING WATCHED

Drilling operations in the Archer fields after a period of idleness, are again getting back to normal conditions. Many of the different tests have resumed work after being forced to shut down waiting on material that could not be hauled to the field on account of the heavy roads.

The Rathke Drilling company's test on the Netherton ranch about 1½ miles south of the discovery well, which has been cemented for the last 10 days, will try to drill out the plug Wednesday morning. This is one of the most important tests and is being watched closely by th eoil fraternity, as a producer in this district would open up a new area and extend the original pool 1½ miles south.

On the L. F. Wilson ranch, one mile east, the test of Gohlke-Walker has reached 1618 feet and are now ratholing ahead for the sand. Some developments are expected from this test in the next 48 hours.

EVANGELIST SAYS CHURCH MUST TAKE MORE ACTIVE PART

BURKE CULPEPPER DRAWS LESSON MONDAY NIGHT FROM STORY OF PAUL.

"DANCING" TO BE HIS TOPIC TUESDAY NIGHT

Largely Attended Noon Day Meetings Held at Strand as One Feature Of Revival.

SUBJECT:
TUESDAY NIGHT, "DANCING"

"One ship sails east and another sails west
By the self-same winds that blow;
'Tis the set of the sails and not the gales
That determine the way they go.

"Like the winds of the sea are the ways of fate,
As we journey along through life,
'Tis the set of the soul that determines the goal—
Not the calm or the strife."

The spacious tabernacle at Eleventh and Scott was filled Monday night to again hear Evangelist Burke Culpepper. The evangelist appeared at his best in one of the strongest sermons he has yet preached.

Preceding the sermon Mr. and Mrs. Huckabee sang a duet, "Every Prayer Will Find Its Answer."

Before taking his text Mr. Culpepper took a poll of the audience to see how many of the different churches were represented. Practically every church in the city had representatives there. He said he would give $50 to any one who would hear him say an unkind word about a sister denomination.

The text was taken from 2nd Timothy 4:7-8, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

The sermon was based on the story of the life of Saul of Tarsus. Mr. Culpepper said that Saul was a fighter; he liked a scrapper—one who dares to do and does it. Some men fight well for a season but go down. Sam Jones, Moody and a host of others fought well and kept the faith. The hardest battle Paul had to fight was with himself, said the speaker.

"As Paul looked down the vista of years and saw the guillotine awaiting him we hear him say 'I have fought a good fight!' When you weigh his heart and measure his head it is difficult to tell which is the greatest," said the evangelist.

Mr. Culpepper spoke of the modern day evils, and said that it was time the churches of this country were rising up and putting a stop to some things. He said he did not have a word to say to the sinner—the man or woman outside of the church—about worldliness, except that he wished they would quit it and come into the church; that a sinner who violated God's laws was a burglar, that he broke in from the outside, but that the church member who violated God's laws was worse than a burglar, he was an embezzler—broke the laws from the inside.

"I do not think that girls who wear those suggestive dresses do it through any thought of sex, but wear them simply because it is stylish. A long time ago women wore great long trains and they have kept cutting them off until my one prayer is let me die before 1925!"

He said that the present-day preacher had more to fight than did the preacher of several years back.

The one-piece bathing suit and the suggestive dance were given a rap as he passed along. He said he did not begin to preach plain until about a week, but he intended to do some plain preaching from now on, and that Tuesday night he would preach on the modern dance, and if there were any old maids who were likely to faint they had better stay away.

The noon services are growing in popularity. A larger crowd was in attendance Tuesday than on Monday, several hundred being present to hear the splendid sermon at the Strand theater, where the services will be held each day at noon during the meeting and the night services will be held at Eleventh and Scott, beginning promptly at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Culpepper closed the night service with this beautiful poem:

"When soon or late you reach that coast,
O'er life's rough ocean driven,
May you rejoice no wanderer lost,
Your family in heaven."

WHITLEY AGAIN DRAWS TWO YEARS ON SECOND TRIAL

J. E. Whitley again received a sentence of two years' confinement in the state penitentiary at the hands of a jury in the 89th district court late Monday evening. This was the defendant's second trial, he having been found guilty at a former trial and given the same punishment. A motion for a new trial was granted, however, by the trial court in the previous case.

Whitley is alleged to have secured money from a woman in this city by representing to her that he would give her a mortgage on $20,000 worth of property.

The defendant is the man who was confronted with two wives in the county attorney's office the second day after his arrest last winter.

SOMETHING ABOUT PARTICIPANTS IN CHAUTAUQUA HERE

Miss Helen Johnstone, who takes one of the leading parts in "Broadway Jones" here Saturday night at Chautauqua, has appeared in Al Woods comedies and in moving pictures with Fox, her best part being played in "Bride Thirteen." She also took a leading part in "Breakfast in Bed" in the New York production of that famous comedy.

William Street appeared last season with Margaret Anglin in "The Woman of Bronze." Miss Ethel Cunningham has appeared in such productions as "The Lion and the Mouse," "Little Women" and was in movies with Pearl White. During the last presidential campaign Miss Cunningham accompanied Al Jolson, Blanche Ring and other theatrical stars to Marion, where she made a speech from the famous "front porch," and in the third act of "Broadway Jones" she wears the costume she wore on that occasion.

Dr. Ny Poon Chew, editor of the largest Chinese newspaper in America and known as the Chinese "Mark Twain," is the father of a family of four. His son was the only Chinese first lieutenant to serve in the American army during the war and his oldest daughter has the distinction of being the only Chinese teacher instructing in an American school. She teaches in a high school in San Francisco. The second daughter is the only Chinese music teacher in this country, and the youngest daughter has just been appointed foreign secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in China. Dr. Chew's stories of the manner in which China is trying to imitate America even unto gum chewing have well earned him the title of "China's Mark Twain."

After a recent lecture by Henry Adrien, the "Burbank Man," a florist was heard to remark that he had learned more in the hour that he had listened to Adrien than he had in the 20 years he had been in the business. At Tulsa last winter a special matinee was arranged for all the school children free of charge so that they might listen to this wizard. Mr. Adrien contends that if such wonders as taking the deadly cactus and making it into a palatable food can be accomplished by scientific culture, isn't it worth while to take the "poison plants" of child life and devote the time to cultivating them into useful, happy citizens. It's worth thinking about.
