Officials consider options to protect Marines in Beirut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Reagan administration officials are nearing decisions on steps to lessen the vulnerability of Marines in Lebanon, including one option that would reduce U.S. forces on the ground in Beirut by half.

The options include moving about half the forces to ships off shore, repositioning the troops farther south, increasing U.S. patrols in Beirut, and swapping positions with French or Italian elements of the international peacekeeping force.

"None of them is easy," said one senior administration official, discussing the range of options.

The options have been under study by military staff officers since sniping and mortar attacks on the Marine contingent escalated in October, even before the suicide truck bombing that killed 240 Americans.

A decision on the changes rests with President Reagan and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, and both have said they planned to make moves to reduce the vulnerability of U.S. forces. Just four days before the truck bombing, Reagan said they were looking at "everything that we can do that can leave us in a position to carry out the mission for which they were sent and at the same time make their lives safer."

Officials, who spoke on condition they remain anonymous, said the options available are limited because the U.S. force must retain control of the Beirut international airport for both political and military reasons.

"The airport is the key to the whole multinational force mission," said an official. "It is an escape route, if necessary, and a landing point for supplies, including those for the French and Italian contingents."

From a political point of view, officials said, the deployment of U.S. Marines provides visible evidence of U.S. support for the shaky Lebanese government. And keeping open the airport is regarded as important to the Lebanese economy.

The 1,350 Marines still at the airport are spread out around three sides, with their headquarters in a small complex of buildings near the main terminal. Their lines enclose about .6 square mile, including almost all of the airport property except that on the west, occupied by the Lebanese army.

The airport is on a flat plain along the coast bordered on the east and south by the foothills and ridges of the central Lebanese mountains, held by Druse militiamen backed by the Syrians.

The area is the scene of almost constant fighting. And almost every inch of the airport is within clear view of the Druse-held hills, which provide ideal nests for snipers.

The officials indicated it is unlikely the Marines would be freed to mount ground attacks outside the airport perimeter to remove snipers or to take the nearby high ground from which they have been bombarded by artillery, mortars and rockets.

Such a move "would be fraught with danger" because it would bring the Marines into open battle with Moslem fighters and would mar the intended image of the U.S. force as symbolic "peacekeepers," military officials said.

The officials suggested it might be possible to "reduce by about a half the forces we have ashore" and still allow the Marines to hold the airport perimeter, with reinforcements available aboard amphibious ships offshore if needed.

"That way you could still keep the airport open while reducing need for logistics and support," a senior official said.

However, he said there are disadvantages in drastically reducing the Marine presence on land. "This might show diminished support for the Lebanese government and undercut what we're trying to accomplish, namely the strengthening of that government so it can stand on its own," he said.

Undercover narcotics officers shot

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN

ODESSA — Two undercover narcotics officers were shot in a drug raid here Friday afternoon that left one suspect dead.

Injured were Jim Dickson of the Ector County Sheriff's Department and Phil Harrold of the Odessa Police Department. Both were transported to Odessa Medical Center Hospital where Dickson was treated and released and Harrold was listed in stable condition late Friday evening with an abdominal wound, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Dead is 33-year-old Michael Grant Matheny of Odessa and two other suspects are in custody as a result of the joint investigation conducted by the sheriff's office, the police department and the Department of Public Safety.

Bond on Gerald Leon Hardin, 31, of Odessa was set at $100,000, according to Det. Mike McKnight. At press time bond had not yet been set for Matheny's wife, 22-year-old Jana Denese Matheny. Both she and Hardin were charged with delivery of cocaine.

The shootings took place at the LaQuinta Motor Inn, 5001 E. Highway 80, about 3 p.m. Matheny was shot and killed in Room 157 of the motel. Each officer was shot once, according to police reports.

Hardin escaped injury when he attempted to flee the scene in a red pickup and officers shot out the rear window. He was apprehended near University and Tanglewood.

Witnessing the arrest was Robert McNeill, 25, of Odessa who was working on the roof of Asbury United Methodist Church at the intersection. He noticed the pickup careening around the corner "smoking pretty bad. I thought it was the radiator. All of a sudden eight or 10 cop cars came from all directions. The driver of the pickup stopped and got out of the pickup. A cop threw him to the ground and started searching him."

McNeill and another worker said they heard no shots fired.

Police said they are not searching for any other suspects in the case.

Federal government sues Shell Oil for $1.9 billion

DENVER (AP) — The federal government sued Shell Oil Co. for $1.9 billion on Friday to pay for the cleanup of sections of the Rocky Mountain Arsenal contaminated by now-outlawed pesticides and old chemical warfare agents.

Within hours, the state of Colorado went to federal court with its own suit over arsenal pollution, naming Shell, the Army and the United States of America as defendants.

The state's suit did not specify a figure but asked for $50 million for each release of toxic substance causing injury to or destruction of natural resources.

The state suit said federal officials are responsible for enforcing regulations against pollution by hazardous chemical releases and claimed that officials overseeing the arsenal did not do so.

The federal government's suit was filed under a 1980 law that requires reimbursement of costs to repair environmental damage.

"We reject the allegation that a remedy to contamination problems at the arsenal should cost the Army and Shell anything approaching $1.9 billion," said T.R. Williams, Shell's manufacturing environmental conservation manager.

"Studies conducted and published by the Army itself established that an effective contamination control program should cost only a fraction of that amount."

In a telephone interview from Shell's headquarters in Houston, Williams also said Shell's lease with the Army called for it to dispose of its wastes at the Army's facility there, making the cleanup an Army matter.

Shell will "vigorously oppose" the suit in court, while continuing to negotiate with the federal government on the cleanup costs of the Rocky Mountain Arsenal, he said.

Assistant Attorney General F. Henry Habicht II, head of the Justice Department's land and natural resources division, said in Washington that the suit is the largest by any federal agency seeking damages for natural resources.

Habicht said the civil suit against Shell was filed at the request of the Army, which runs the 27-square-mile arsenal located 10 miles northeast of downtown Denver and just north of Stapleton International Airport.

Since 1952, Shell has leased part of the arsenal land for a small pesticide-producing operation that closed late last year.

The government listed 43 hazardous chemicals manufactured or used by Shell at the leased facility on projects unrelated to military uses.

The Army claims that some chemicals have spilled, leaked or been released into the environment both on and beyond the leased property, damaging not only the leased property but also the arsenal and natural resources at the arsenal.

According to the government, land, air, ground water, surface water, migratory and other birds, fish and wildlife have been damaged or destroyed by the chemicals.

The Justice Department said the chemicals included commercial pesticides hazardous to human, animal and plant life, such as aldrin and dieldrin. Those two chlorinated pesticides are suspected of causing cancer and birth defects, and their production has been banned by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The government said the Army has already spent $50 million to determine the extent of the pollution and to begin to control the

Eight people die in Baltimore fire

BALTIMORE (AP) — A fire that began in a living room roared through the roof of a three-story brick rowhouse early Friday and killed eight people, including a 2-week-old girl and a pregnant teenager.

Three other people were injured, two critically, in the third-worst fire in Baltimore's history.

Four people jumped from the single-family home to escape the flames, but only two survived, said Capt. Patrick Flynn of the fire department.

One eyewitness said she watched in horror as a woman engulfed in flames jumped from a third-floor window screaming for help.

"When she jumped out the window she was in flames," said Arlene Braxton, 18, who lives across the street. "She was just saying, 'Somebody please help me please help me.'

"She just landed there...I was just terrified. I ain't never seen anything like that in my life."

The bodies of two other people were found in a third-floor bedroom closet, Flynn said. They may have sought safety there or become disoriented and thought it led to an escape route, Flynn said.

He said the death toll could have been higher.

"There was supposed to be two more people there, but they stayed at another house last night," Flynn said.

Five of those killed were children aged 12 and under, said Flynn.

"It's the deadliest house fire since May 15, 1982, when 10 people died in a house fire," Flynn said.

The 1982 fire was the worst in city history, surpassing the toll in another house fire about 15 years ago when nine were killed, Flynn said.

Friday's blaze broke out on the first floor near a living room sofa just before 1 a.m. It burned out of control for about an hour and gutted the structure, Flynn said.

"We had at least six telephone calls and a street box was sounded. I would say we were there in a matter of no time," said Flynn. "It was pretty much fully involved when they got there...the fire was through the roof because it vented itself (by a skylight)."

Damage to the building and its contents was estimated at $80,000, he said.

The cause was being investigated, but the spokesman said it did not appear suspicious.

Teen gets 25-year sentence for murder

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Seventeen-year-old Amber "Betsy" Benavidez was sentenced Friday by District Judge Joe Connally to 25 years in the Texas Department of Corrections for the murder of a 69-year-old Odessa woman.

Ms. Benavidez had been convicted Nov. 11 by a jury in the 244th District Court. Connally made his decision after reviewing a pre-sentence investigation and statements by the state and defense on the sentencing.

Since being arrested after the death of Alice Odessa Blackwell in May, Ms. Benavidez, 16 at the time of the incident, has been certified as an adult. Defense attorney Bill Bowden Jr. had argued during the trial that the confessions used to convict his client were obtained in violation of her juvenile rights.

Bowden, appointed by the court, also will represent Ms. Benavidez in the appeals process.

Connally suggested to Ms. Benavidez, mother of two, that she could speed her release by indicating to state officials that she was seeking rehabilitation. Theoretically, Ms. Benavidez's prison term could be cut significantly should she actively pursue her rehabilitation, and she could be freed in eight years or less.

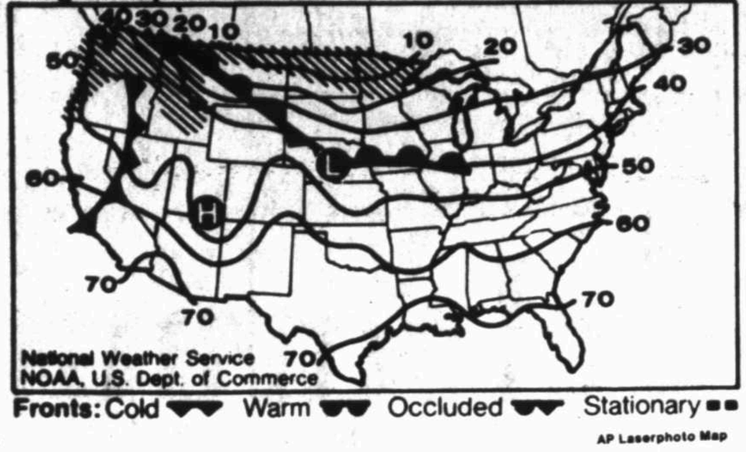
WEATHER SUMMARY



AP Laserphoto Map

Cooler weather approaching

As Christmas nears, so does cooler weather, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

While today will remain relatively warm, with highs in the low 70s, temperatures tonight and Sunday will be more in keeping with winter, and stockings will have to be used for something besides hanging. Lows tonight are expected to be in the mid-30s and highs Sunday in the middle-60s.

Partly cloudy skies today will turn fair tonight and Sunday. Gusty 10 to 20 mph winds from the southwest are predicted.

Friday's sunny skies and mild winds made it seem as if the high was more than the 56 recorded at Midland Regional Airport. It was still 25 degrees below the record 81 set in 1970. The overnight low was 36, 21 degrees above the 15-degree mark set in 1978.

Officials consider options to protect Marines

Planners have been considering repositioning the Marines farther south in the area away from civilian neighborhoods that have been used as bases for sniper and mortar attacks. But that could put them outside the area even nominally controlled by the central Lebanese government, and officials said such a move would not take away the danger of artillery fire on the Marines.

"No matter where we go, the hostile forces will follow," said an official.

Other options which have been considered include:

—Increasing U.S. patroling in what officials described as "lower threat" areas in greater Beirut, where the Lebanese army now patrols. By this reasoning, more Lebanese troops then would be available to operate out into the countryside against Moslem rebels harassing the Americans.

But, these administration officials said, "the opposing forces would probably move with us," and there might be a danger that patrols could be cut off in areas away from the main Marine concentrations.

—Swapping positions with French or Italian forces. Officials, however, said the French and Italians would be reluctant to make that kind of a switch, and it remains an open question whether their positions in urban neighborhoods are tactically more secure than the oe the Marines now hold.

There is already a feeling in the administration that the Italian commitment may be getting shaky, and it is expected the Italians probably will reduce their contingent, even though they have taken a few casualties.

The Marines already have reduced the number of men ashore by about 300 since the truck bombing destroyed a headquarters building at the airport. The Marines announced after the bombing that all "non-essential" staff would move out to naval ships offshore.

Also, the Marines pulled a company of about 200 Marines out of an isolated outpost in early November and withdrew them to ships offshore. That outpost near the Lebanese University School of Science had taken heavy sniper fire.

Although senior U.S. military officers have had deep misgivings about the Marine commitment from the beginning, administration officials apparently were convinced that no American blood would be shed and that Marines would serve a valuable purpose in propping up the government of Lebanese President Amin Gemayel.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger is known to have lined up with senior military officers in their doleful view of the Marine commitment, but he has never shown this publicly.

One of the underlying problems is the administration has never articulated a precise mission for the Marines, except to describe them as "peacekeepers." In the conventional sense, a true peacekeeping mission would have found the Marines placed between the contending forces and stopping the fighting. Instead, the Marines have served essentially a symbolic purpose.

Items auctioned off to finance embassy repairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Persian rugs, fine Chinese vases and delicate silks that once dazzled guests at the Iranian Embassy were auctioned off Friday by the U.S. government to finance repairs of the once-elegant dwelling on Embassy Row so it can be rented.

More than 300 people — dealers, housewives and retirees — filled the auction house in downtown Washington, hoping for a deal on any of the 1,500 items up for bidding.

There were pieces of delicate Rosenthal china, Queen Anne chairs and fine silverware. They all bore the crest of the late shah of Iran whose personage dominated the stately mansion on Embassy Row where, even on informal occasions, champagne and caviar were served by waiters wearing white gloves.

Auction officials said they hope to raise $250,000 from the three-day sale for the State Department to repair, refurbish and rent three abandoned embassy properties of Iran, Cambodia and Vietnam.

In the first fifteen minutes of the auction, 35 small ceramic Asian pieces — rice dishes, platters and bowls — brought in about $5,000. A blue and red Imari punch bowl, its value estimated by auctionees to be $400 to $600, brought $1,000. A Chinese lamp, estimated at about $125 to $175, brought $450.

However, many of the items went for less than their estimated value. For instance, a Chinese hanging scroll valued between $150 and $250 went for $75.

As auctionner Benjamin Weschler rattled off bids to customers who raised their hands — "I got $450, give me $475, do I hear $475" — it became the kind of atmosphere where a scratch of the head could prove very expensive.

"The pre-sale estimates are based on our experience," said William Weschler Sr., president of the capital's famous auction company. "The State Department hopes to raise a quarter of a million dollars but it could bring more." He said only 200 of the items for sale came from the embassy. Of the 150 oriental rugs on display, only 34 came from the embassy. The other items were from other estates the auctioneer was handling.

The sales were made possible by the 1982 Foreign Missions Act that gave the State Department custody over foreign-owned embassy properties. The Iranian embassy was closed when the Carter administration broke off diplomatic relations.

System makes elderly, disabled feel secure

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

It provides security to the elderly and affirmed who live alone. It gives solace to their children who might otherwise worry incessantly. And it's available in the Permian Basin.

It's called the Emergency Response System, a Lutheran Social Service of Texas-sponsored program which links persons with Midland Memorial Hospital and around-the-clock help.

It came under discussion Friday morning at a press conference by Lutheran Social Service in Midland Memorial Hospital.

ERS, explained LSS Permian Basin office director Lael Cordes and program coordinator Zosia Wurtz, consists of a unit placed in the individual's home which is linked with a base station at MMH. Individuals also may have portable units which they can keep on their persons. By the push of a button, MMH can be informed that help is needed, and personnel then will call the home.

"If the person cannot answer the phone," said Ms. Wurtz, "then the hospital will call the responder on the list. The responder will go over there, and when the responder arrives at the home, a red button (on the unit) will be flashing. The respondent will then push a yellow button, which lets the hospital know that someone has arrived at the house."

Ms. Cordes explained that a list of five volunteer respondents is kept, and that if none is available, the police or fire department is called to respond to the call. One such case arose during the past year, she noted.

The press conference marked the one-year mark for the program in the Permian Basin, and the two LSS officials are asking that more persons take advantage of it.

"It makes a person feel more secure," said Alma Meissner, who lives alone and has such a unit in her home. "If I fall, I can't even get up by myself."

"It certainly makes me feel more comfortable," added Mary Rogers, who also has a unit. "I'm very proud I have it."

Units also have an automatic timer which will result in a call for help should it not be re-set daily.

Donations and community funds allowed the purchase of the base station in 1982. A monthly fee of $15 is levied. Should subscribers be unable to afford any or all of that amount, they could be covered by a contract with Texas Department of Human Resources or subsidy monies available through Lutheran Social Service based on need.

ERS is provided in 40 states and in 70 locations in Texas.

Additional information regarding the program can be obtained by contacting the Permian Basin Office of Lutheran Service of Texas at 563-1883.

Federal government sues Shell Oil for $1.9 billion spread of the chemicals in order to prevent exposure of the public.

The Army estimated that it will cost an additional $1.8 billion to end the threat to people and property on and off the site, to clean up the pollution and compensate for the damage to natural resources.

The Army is responsible for trusteeship of natural resources on, over or under any land it manages. The government asserted that the Army is not seeking any money from Shell for any damages to natural resources which were the Army's responsibility.

For many years, the Army used the arsenal as a site for the production of chemical weapons, until the federal government stopped that program in 1969. The Army has said it "recognizes its responsibility...for conditions which have resulted from its disposal of materials at the site."

The government said, "Shell negligently spilled, discharged, dumped, disposed and otherwise released its chemicals into the environment at and around the arsenal" and "failed and continues to fail to contain and prevent the continuing release and migration of its chemicals."

After receiving the claims letter, Shell responded that it was "surprised that the Army would propose a number of this magnitude since Shell believes that realistically the cost-effective remedial measures and damages represent only a small fraction of the Army estimate."

Nine years ago, a plume of pesticide-tainted underground water was detected flowing toward farms near the arsenal, but an Army plan to block the flow won't be funded until next year.

Crane resident killed in accident

ODESSA — A 27-year-old Crane resident was killed Friday afternoon when the car he was riding in was involved in a collision with a pickup truck west of here.

Investigating Department of Public Safety troopers said Jaime Pineda was pinned in the car following the accident at 5:35 p.m. on FM 2020 (University). Pineda was pronounced dead at the scene by Ector County Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford.

Pineda was a passenger in a car driven by Gustavo Sandoval, 24, of Crane. At a point 3.5 miles west of Odessa, Sandoval's westbound vehicle was turning left when it was involved in the collision with a pickup driven by Frederick Keaton of Odessa.

Keaton's vehicle was eastbound on the thoroughfare at the time and was pulling a trailer, according to investigating officers.

After the collision, the Sandoval vehicle rolled one and a half times and Pineda was pinned in the wreckage.

His body was taken to Easterling-Wilson Funeral Home.

Teen sentenced for woman's murder

Evidence indicated the 17-year-old shot Ms. Blackwell several times with the older woman's gun, then left her bleeding on the floor pleading for help. Before leaving, the defendant took two television sets and shut off the lights in the victim's residence.

"This is not a five year case," said Foster, suggesting the defendant's sentence should not be for punishment as much as for deterrence and rehabilitation. "The district attorney's office is not totally without a heart," said Foster.

"If there is any case where the minimum sentence is appropriate, this is it," suggested Bowden in calling for the minimum sentence.

Connally encouraged Ms. Benavidez to seek rehabilitation and said, "I am going to be praying for you."

"The district attorney's position is that the circumstances surrounding the case were rather brutal," said felony prosecutor Anthony Foster, in asking the judge to assess more than the minimum sentence — five years. By going to the judge for sentencing, Ms. Benavidez lost the chance for probation.

Odessan in MMH after cycle crash

A 27-year-old Odessan was in fair condition late Friday in Midland Memorial Hospital suffering from injuries sustained when the motorcycle he was riding was involved in a collision with a car west of Midland about 5 p.m.

George Dallaire was being treated for a spinal fracture and abrasions at Midland Memorial Hospital, according to a Department of Public Safety spokesperson.

Investigating officers said Dallaire was riding his motorcycle west on the north service road of U.S. 80 and was involved in a collision with a car driven by William McDonald, also of Odessa. Officers said McDonald was executing a left turn at the time of the accident.

Manager: Convention will be Reagan 'coronation'

state

DALLAS (AP) — The manager of the Republican National Convention predicted Friday that the party's 1984 nominating meeting next summer will be a "coronation" for President Reagan that will employ a blitze of high-technology to hold the attention of the public.

Ronald Walker, a former advance man for President Nixon who took over the job of planning the GOP convention five weeks ago, said he is planning only for an uncontested convention and hopes to have a crisp, dazzling session in August.

"We are assuming at this point we are going to have a sitting president," Walker said. "It really presents us with a unique opportunity to plan events. I have heard the term 'coronation' used, and I think that would be a good way to describe it."

Reagan has not yet formally announced whether he will seek re-election, although he has filed necessary documents for a candidacy.

REPUBLICANS CAN benefit from the convention by showing "we are the party with a vision and in the mainstream of that technology," according to Walker.

"We want the convention to be a hi-tech showcase," he said. "We are working on it now to see what we can do with computers in the ways that we count the votes, the ways that we keep track of delegates and the ways that we identify where certain delegations are.

"We might go into hotel rooms with a way to give delegates up-to-date information," he said.

But Walker said authorities were also wary of alienating the public with a convention showcasing wealthy Republicans.

"You can overdue it," Walker said. "It is incumbent on me and others that we keep that very much in mind so that we don't overdue it and make the convention too cutesy."

WALKER, WHO helped plan the 1972 convention in Miami as a special assistant to Nixon, said he hoped the Dallas convention would be even better orchestrated than the convention that nominated Nixon for a second term.

"We scripted that convention right down to the second and attempted to run it as a script," Walker said. "I want to employ the same shortness of sessions, the crispness of the convention and the way the chair moved it along."

He said he plans one afternoon session and three evening "prime-time" sessions, each about 2½ hours.

Walker is a Texas native known in political circles for his splashy orchestrations as a Nixon advance man, including presidential trips to China and the Soviet Union.

"I happen to be a big balloon man," said Walker, who "is wearing two hats" while continuing in his job with a Washington, D.C. executive search firm and coordinating the convention.

HE SUCCEEDED Rick Shelby in October when Shelby was appointed Southwest regional coordinator for Reagan's 1984 re-election campaign.

Walker downplayed the possibility of as many as 200,000 demonstrators being in Dallas during the Aug. 20-23 session. "I am not concerned about it," he said. "I think that is so far out of line, I just can't see it."

He said he doesn't fear any snags at the convention.

"I'll tell you this, I'm good at what I do."

He noted that since he was in Dallas he would give equal time to the Cowboys, so he donned a Dallas hat. The Cowboys meet the Redskins Sunday at Texas Stadium.

Gonzalez accuses Reagan of being senile

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, who last month co-sponsored a resolution to impeach President Reagan, accused the president on Friday of showing signs of senility.

Gonzalez said such signs were evident in the refusal of Reagan, who is 72, to abandon a policy of applying military pressure on the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua, which Gonzalez said would lead to a "blood bath" involving American troops.

Gonzalez, 67, a Democrat, said that "the only way he shows his age — because there's no question that physically he's a tremendous specimen — is mental senility.

"One of the aspects of senility is you get hard-headed, unable to modify opinions or decisions," Gonzalez said at a news conference. "And I think that President Reagan is irretrievably committed to a military solution in Nicaragua, to the eradication of the so-called Sandinista government..."

Gonzalez is one of seven House Democrats who in November introduced a resolution for Reagan's impeachment on grounds that he violated the Constitution when he ordered the recent U.S. military intervention in Grenada.

Gonzalez, of San Antonio, has been a persistent critic of Reagan's Central American policies, particularly of U.S. support for guerrillas fighting the Sandinista government in Nicaragua and the dispatch of thousands of U.S. troops for training exercises in neighboring Honduras.

"What I'm trying to say is that he manifests some of the incidences that are usually attributed to the aging process, or senility " said Gonzalez. "And that is obduracy — unwilling to change judgement or decisions..."

Gonzalez said that Reagan "is embarked on what appears to be an irreversible course of conduct that's going to lead to a blood bath involving not just Nicaragua but that entire region.

"There is no question in my mind that the headlines soon will be 'American Soldiers Strafed,' " and that the administration will use this as a reason for military action, Gonzalez said.

He said that as a result of CIA support for the anti-Sandinista guerrillas in Nicaragua, "in the mind of that part of the world, as well as in other parts of the world, we are the terrorists."

Gonzalez also said that "we are occupying Honduras, we're not training in Honduras The people of Honduras don't want us, even the conservative press."

Mother sentenced in death of daughter

PAMPA (AP) — A jury assessed a 10-year prison sentence to Lorenza Valdez Friday after convicting the 31-year-old mother of involuntary manslaughter in the beating death of her 13-month-old daughter.

The jury rejected Mrs. Valdez's contention on the stand that the child, Lisa Marie, was beaten Sept. 12 while in custody of her landlord.

Mrs. Valdez told police that she "spanked" the baby twice and then lost her temper and struck the child several times.

Her landlord, Julian Ontiveros, said he and his son had gone to the home to put in a water cooler and noticed the infant foaming at the mouth.

Man sues Trailways

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston man has sued Trailways bus lines over a wreck that killed his wife and injured his son.

Phillip D. Davis filed suit on behalf of his wife, Maria Recio Davis, and his 12-year-old son, Steven. The action names the bus company and truck driver Richard P. Garcia.

Garcia's truck was struck from behind by the bus about 5:30 a.m. Nov. 30. The bus caromed off the truck and crashed through a bridge railing, smashing into a creekbed below. Six passengers were killed and five injured.

Bus driver Ed Perry also was hospitalized.

Davis is seeking unspecified damages.

Garcia, 43, of Livingston, has asked a federal court in Beaumont to award him $3 million in damages.

His suit claims the bus company owes him $1.5 million for "permanent loss of earning capacity, pain and suffering, necessary medical care for personal injury" and damage to his flat-bed truck.

He also asked for $1.5 million in exemplary damages "because of the gross negligence" of the bus company and Perry.

Jenrette sentenced to two years for role in Abscam nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge sentenced John Jenrette to two years in prison Friday for his Abscam conviction, despite the former South Carolina congressman's plea that he had "no desire to further burden the overcrowded prisons."

Jenrette, who was convicted of bribery and conspiracy on Oct. 7, 1980, was also fined $20,000.

U.S. District Judge John Garrett Penn said he found parts of the government's case against Jenrette "troubling," but added: "I still cannot overlook the fact that...you could have walked out of the room and reported to the FBI or someone else."

Penn told Jenrette, 47, that he had violated his public trust, "not only as it relates to citizens of your district in South Carolina, but everybody, everybody in the country."

Of the seven members of Congress convicted in the Abscam case, only former Rep. Richard Kelly, D-Fla., has yet to be sentenced.

As Penn recalled the case Friday, Jenrette, a Democrat, stood motionless and erect. When Penn pronounced the words "two years" for the first time, Jenrette's head sank onto his chest.

Penn, who once described the Abscam probe of bordering "on the outrageous," said Friday he was disturbed that federal investigators would take "someone out and test him to see if he will commit a crime."

Asking the judge for leniency, Jenrette practically sobbed at some points. But his voice was clear when he said, "I certainly have no desire to further burden the overcrowded prisons I read about."

Jenrette was convicted of accepting a $50,000 bribe from FBI agents posing as Arab sheiks. In exchange, prosecutors said Jenrette agreed to introduce an immigration bill.

Jenrette remains free on bond pending an appeal, which he said his lawyers would file.

Jenrette told reporters outside the coutroom the case had been "just horrible" and a "nightmare." He added: "My first priority now is to try to take care of my children and to be a good citizen."

He said he thought Penn "made some good remarks if he hadn't had to get to the last sentence, I would have enjoyed reading it as comment."

Jenrette left arm-in-arm with two women he would identify only as former members of his congressional staff.

Kenneth Robinson, his lawyer, asked the judge for a sentence of no more than six months. He said Jenrette was unique among the Abscam defendants in that his judgment had been clouded by alcoholism, now overcome.

Probation reports show Jenrette "has walked the straight path...he's done all the things that sentencing is supposed to be about," Robinson said.

Robinson presented two character witnesses. The first, the Rev. Tommy Herter of Springfield, Va., said Jenrette had helped him in two south Florida organizations in which he is involved, the Christ Reconciliation Cnnter and the Christian Attorneys Association.

"I could use him in Springfield," Herter said.

The other character witness, Cleveland Stevens, public defender of Horry County, South Carolina, asked that Jenrette be sentenced to work as a legal assistant in his office. "He has skills his people need," Stevens said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Reid Weingarten said he realized that Jenrette had done important community service, was remorseful and had suffered.

But, the prosecutor added, "These compassionate feelings must be overome by the objective component," which he described as Jenrette's "almost unbelievably gross sellout."

"I don't think it would be fair or accurate to pin Mr. Jenrette's conduct on his alcoholism," Weingarten said.

Weingarten said Jenrette's real offense was that the "American people, far beyond the 6th District of South Carolina, will conclude that's how business is done on Capitol Hill."

The judge imposed a two-year prison term and $10,000 fine on each of the counts of conspiracy and aceptance of a bribe. He permitted the prison terms to run concurrently.

He also imposed a two-year term and $10,000 fine for soliciting a bribe, but suspended that in favor of five years of probation.

Here is a brief recap of the other congressional sentences in the Abscam case:

—Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., three years and a $20,000 fine.

—Rep. Raymond Lederer, D-Pa., originally three years and $20,000. The prison term later was reduced to one year.

—Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., three years and $20,000.

—Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., three years and $40,000.

—Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., three years and $50,000. Williams is supposed to begin serving his sentence this week.

Former South Carolina Rep. John Jenrette, flanked by two woman who identified themselves as former aides, leaves Federal District court in Washington after receiving a two-year sentence for his role in the FBI's Abscam case.

Mondale wants backing of Alabama blacks

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Vice President Walter Mondale said Friday he is trying hard to get the endorsement of Alabama's black political caucus but would not lose ground among Deep South blacks if Jesse Jackson wrests it from him.

The Alabama Democratic Conference, the black wing of the state party, meets today in Mobile to endorse a Democratic presidential candidate, with as many as 1,000 ADC delegates expected to take part.

The conference, which claims as many as 200,000 members throughout the state, appeared divided between Mondale and Jackson as both fought for an endorsement that could boost their chances for black votes in the South.

Jackson was scheduled to speak Friday night to a rally in Mobile.

Mondale visited for about a hlf-hour Friday with Gov. George C. Wallace, both speaking warmly about their association over the years.

But Mondale's campaign focus was on the ADC's endorsement session, and at a news conference in the Alabama Capitol he called it "an important convention. I'm trying hard to get the endorsement."

"I hope to do well," he said, "but I'm not ready to make a prediction."

If Jackson gets the endorsement, he said, he would still expect to make "a strong appeal across the board" among Southern voters black and white. "As with all endorsements," he said, "Americans reserve the right to make their own judgment."

Brothel owner sentenced for bribery

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Brothel owner Joe Conforte, the key witness in a bribery case against a federal judge, pleaded guilty Friday to bribing a former district attorney and was sentenced to 18 months in prison.

Conforte also was fined $10,000 for bribing John Giomi, the former district attorney of neighboring Lyon County, in 1979. The maximum sentence was 10 years.

The brothel owner, who fled to Rio de Janiero, Brazil, three years ago to escape a five-year sentence for income tax evasion, told District Judge James Guinan that he had returned from exile in a "paradise on earth" to testify against U.S. District Judge Harry Claiborne of Las Vegas.

Claiborne was indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on seven counts of bribery, wire fraud, obstruction of justice, and filing false income tax returns and false financial disclosures.

Conforte told Guinan, "I chose to come back here. I'm going to be 58 years old. I can't live much longer. It was a very hard and tough decision for me to make. But I took into consideration my country and my family, and whatever sense I had left in me told me to return."

His attorney, Peter Perry, said federal officials have offered Conforte a reduced 15-month sentence on the tax charge. Conforte will be placed under a witness protection program and sent to a federal penitentiary, said FBI agent Jim Perry, who is not related to the attorney.

According to the indictment, Conforte gave Giomi $1,400 in cash and offered him travel, women, a farm, a Ferrari "and 15 boxes of cigars a month" in exchange for help in obtaining a brothel license.

He also was accused of asking Giomi to shut down all the other brothels in Lyon County so that he could operate without competition.

"Mr. Conforte sincerely is not today the man that you heard detailed in that indictment," Perry said.

Guinan said the state sentence would run concurrent with the federal tax sentence, and suggested that a federal judge in Washington, D.C., might want to increase the federal sentence to 18 months. Conforte faces sentencing Dec. 15 in Washington.

Perry said federal negotiations with Conforte had been under way for 2½ years before the brothel owner's return to the United States on Sunday.

He stressed that federal authorities raced to get Conforte to testify to grand jurors investigating Claiborne before a statute of limitations ran out on one of the charges against the federal judge.

The Justice Department reached oral agreement with Conforte at 10 p.m. Saturday and Conforte was on a plane to Miami at 10:30, Perry said.

The attorney said Conforte returned without a written plea bargain agreement. "That's a man who is sincere," he said.

Perry said the negotiations were approved by U.S. Attorney General William French Smith. The federal judges who will sentence Conforte and try Claibore were chosen by Chief Justice Warren Burger, he said.

Soviet minister accuses NATO of 'preparing for war'

MOSCOW (AP) — Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov accused NATO on Friday of "directly preparing for war" by deploying new medium-range missiles in Western Europe. He said the move "compelled" Moscow to increase its nuclear arsenal.

The official Soviet news agency Tass announced the Moscow meeting, but made no mention of Romanian participation.

Romania, a Warsaw Pact member that frequently takes an independent stand, has been a maverick on the missile issue. President Nicolae Ceausescu has repeatedly called for nuclear disarmament by both superpowers in Europe.

HE MADE THAT plea again after Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov announced Nov. 24 that the Soviets would increase its arsenal of nuclear missiles in retaliation for NATO's plan to deploy 572 medium-range missiles in Western Europe over the next five years. Andropov made that statement the day after the Soviet delegation walked out of the U.S.-Soviet negotiations in Geneva on medium-range missiles in Europe.

That walkout occurred as the first of the new U.S.-made cruise and Pershing 2 missiles, designed to counter Soviet SS-20 missiles already in place, began arriving in Britain and West Germany.

On Thursday, the Soviets also ended their talks in Geneva with the United States on long-range, strategic missiles. But they adjourned those negotiations, without setting a date for a next session, while they abandoned the talks on medium-range missiles in Europe.

Ustinov's claim that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was preparing for war came as the Soviets continued their barrage of criticism of America's allies for accepting the missiles.

Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, warned West European governments of the "consequences" of backing a U.S. foreign policy that it said has "led to a severe cooling of the political climate in the world" and "exerts a destructive effect of the whole system of international relations."

THE ARTICLE was responding to the NATO foreign ministers meeting in Brussels that ended Friday with a call for the Soviets to resume the nuclear arms talks and join a "comprehensive political dialogue" to ease world tensions.

Pravda did not specify what action might be taken against the Western allies, nor did it mention the appeal for a resumption of negotiations, but it said:

"Those who deliberately play up to the militaristic course of Washington...now should think seriously more than ever before what consequences can be brought into the foreign policy course, conducted by the present-day U.S. administration, and what role is assigned by it to 'Atlantic solidarity'."

French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson came under a scathing attack, with the official news agency Tass accusing him of being "a stauncher Reaganite than President Reagan himself" for asserting Moscow wants military superiority over the West.

Tass said that in a speech "clearly intended for simpletons" at the NATO meeting, Cheysson used "grossly doctored up data" to justify France's independent nuclear arsenal and to present an ominous view of the Soviets' armed might.

IN REPORTING Ustinov's Sofia speech, Tass said the defense minister accused the United States of armed interference in the Middle East and said that "enraged" the Soviet leadership. He apparently referred to the U.S. air raids Sunday on Syrian and guerrilla positions in eastern Lebanon.

"Reactionary imperialist circles in the United States and other NATO countries have launched military preparations, unprecedented by their pace and scope, and are directly preparing for war," Ustinov said.

He called deployment of the new U.S. missiles in Europe "the most dangerous development" in a series of events involving U.S. actions in the Middle East and Central America and the October invasion of Grenada.

"Through the fault of the United States, the threat of the present-day regional armed conflicts turning into a broader one grows, which may bring about a war with extremely grave consequences for the peoples," Ustinov said.

He noted Andropov's speech outlining Soviet reprisals for the NATO missiles and said, "We are compelled to start the additional basing" of missiles that "could reach the corresponding countries of Western Europe on whose territory new American missiles are being fielded."

Moynihan meets with junta member

By The Associated Press

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan arrived in Managua Friday after saying the United States should give Nicaragua's Sandinista leaders a chance to show they are sincere about moves toward compromise with their critics.

"We have to see concrete facts before we can pass judgment," the Democrat from New York told reporters in Honduras. "The Sandinistas have a history of not meeting their promises."

He categorically denied Sandinista allegations that the United States plans to invade Nicaragua.

After his stop in Honduras, Moynihan flew to the Nicaraguan capital and met with Sergio Ramirez, a member of the three-man junta that heads the Nicaraguan government, and with Interior Minister Tomas Borge. The content of the discussions was not revealed.

Moynihan, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, will return to New York Saturday, an embassy spokesman in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, said.

Nicaragua in recent weeks has announced a series of reform measures. It offered an amnesty to most anti-government rebels, sent home an estimated 2,000 of the 8,000 Cuban advisers in the country, announced elections will be held in 1985 and eased press censorship.

The moves appeared to be aimed at lowering tensions with the United States and at complying with a peace plan for the region proposed by Mexico, Venezuela, Panama and Colombia.

The Reagan administration welcomed the announcement that elections will be held, but expressed reservations about whether the reforms were token gestures or a sincere move toward democracy.

Opposition party members occupy U.S. embassy in protest

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Members of an opposition political party occupied the U.S. Consulate in Nuevo Laredo on the Texas border for several hours to protest alleged election fraud, but left peacefully after a few hours, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said Friday.

Final results in the elections in 43 towns and cities around Tamaulipas state — including Nuevo Laredo — were expected to be announced late Friday, said Leticia Torres, a spokesman for the state electoral commission.

Twenty-four members of the conservative National Action Party occupied the consulate Thursday to protest what they said was fraudulent handling of the elections, a U.S. embassy spokesman said in Mexico City.

"They said they were trying to publicize their dissatisfaction with elections," the spokesman said.

Eighteen arrested for gambling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Eighteen men with nicknames like "Cupcakes," "Mugs," "Batman," "Shank" and "The Tree," and five women have been arrested on charges of operating a multimillion dollar sports gambling and numbers business.

"Profits were huge, in the tens of millions of dollars," District Attorney Edward Rendell said Thursday. He said Nicodemo "Little Nicky" Scarfo, reputed head of the local mob, "is part and parcel of this enormous, corrupt operation."

Scarfo, serving two years in a federal prison in Texas for possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, wasn't charged, "but that doesn't mean he wasn't part of it," Rendell told reporters.

City found to be discriminatory

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — A judge has found the city of Ansonia practiced sex discrimination by giving more money to boys' baseball than to girls' softball, and by forcing the girls to play slow pitch.

U.S. District Judge T.F. Gilroy Daly on Thursday ordered that equal amounts of money be spent for boys and girls and that the slow-pitch rule be eliminated.

"There's a wonderful message here for the girls," said winning lawyer Susan Meredith. "When the city treats them as second-class citizens, they feel that way and it hurts. The judge did something about it."

Judge: OK to refuse Nativity scene

NEW YORK (AP) — The village of Scarsdale acted properly in refusing to allow a Nativity scene in a public park this Christmas season, a federal judge has ruled.

The creche had been displayed annually from 1957 to 1980, but village trustees denied permission the next two years. The creche was displayed in 1981 on private property across from the park and was not put up at all last year.

U.S. District Judge Charles Stewart ruled Thursday "that the creche does not speak for all the people" and those wanting it on public land were seeking an "imprimatur of state approval" for their religious beliefs.

Neurosurgeon faces rape charges

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — A neurosurgeon facing rape charges involving a 17-year-old patient and a 25-year-old hospital worker has suspended himself from Framingham Union Hospital.

Dr. Murray N. Helfant, 50, "voluntarily suspended his privileges as a member of the medical staff," the hospital said in a statement Friday. Helfant had admitting privileges to the hospital since 1966 and once taught at Harvard.

Helfant pleaded innocent Monday to charges that he drugged and raped a woman on the medical staff of the hospital in September and innocent to charges involving the alleged rape and indecent assault of a 17-year-old female patient several times in 1982 and 1983.

Teen-ager walks into line of fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 14-year-old walked into a gunman's line of fire and a .25-caliber bullet hit him in the head and killed him.

The bullet that hit William Tony Lucious on Thursday night apparently was fired at a youth he was talking with, police said.

The two were on a street corner when a young man in a blue Camaro drove up and twice yelled, "Hey dude, come here," to Lucious' companion, Detective Lionel Robert said. The other youth, unidentified, fled and the gunman fired from the car, he said.

Reagan signs Nicaragua bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan signed a bill Friday that sets a $24 million limit on spending by intelligence agencies for covert operations in Nicaragua.

The bill also authorizes 1984 appropriations for the intelligence agencies, but the amount is classified. And it provides $13.8 million for counter-terrorism activities of the FBI.

The compromise legislation requires the administration to return to Congress if it seeks to spend more than $24 million on covert activities in Nicaragua. That amount is expected to run out sometime in the spring.

Funeral held for driver who was run over

EASTLAKE, Ohio (AP) — Striking Greyhound drivers from across the country packed a small church in this Lake Erie town Friday for the funeral of a fellow driver who was run over while protesting the training of nonunion drivers.

Chartered buses pulled up at the Lutheran Reformation Church carrying Greyhound workers, mostly drivers, from Columbus, Pittsburgh, and Buffalo and Syracuse, N.Y., to attend the funeral of Raymond L. Phillips, 42, who was killed Monday.

Two of the buses bore black-painted evergreen wreaths on the front while another was wrapped in black bunting.

Officials of the Amalgamated Transit Union as well as drivers from Chicago and Los Angeles also attended, said bus driver Dwight Steele.

Bus driver Russ Gettings, of Erie, Pa., said he attended the services because he wanted to "pay my respects to a union brother who I feel gave his life for the cause."

During the half-hour service, the Rev. Delbert Keitto told the 450 people who filled the church that Phillips was "a man who knew the meaning of suffering, a man who was compassionate, a man who was able to affect other people's lives," Keitto said during a brief sermon.

KKK member admits to killing black man, witnesses say

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A Ku Klux Klan member admitted killing a young black man and hanging the battered body in a tree, his ex-wife and former members of the white supremacist organization testified Friday at his murder trial.

But Henry Francis Hays, a member of the United Klans of America, was described by his defense attorney as ready to take the witness stand and swear to his innocence.

Hays, 29, is charged with capital murder, a charge carrying a potential death penalty, in the March 20, 1981, strangling death of 19-year-old Michael Donald of Mobile.

Donald's body was found dangling lynch-style from a small tree on a residential street in this port city.

Hays' ex-wife, Denise Hays, 29, testified Friday that during an August 1982 conversation her former husband told her and a neighbor that "he had done it."

William O'Connor, who described himself as a former Klansman, also testified Friday that Hays admitted killing the young black man. He quoted Hays as saying "We hung that nigger."

Prosecutors contend that Hays and fellow Klansman James "Tiger" Knowles, 20, killed Donald as an act of Klan reprisal after a mistrial was declared in the case of a black man charged with murdering a white policeman.

Knowles, a key prosecution witness against Hays, has pleaded guilty to a federal civil rights charge in Donald's slaying. He has not been sentenced. He testified earlier that he and Hays beat and strangled Donald and then hanged the body in a tree "to show Klan strength in Alabama."

Another former Klansman, Teddy Lamar Kyser of nearby Prichard, testified that on the night of the killing Hays and Knowles entered a house where Klan members were drinking and playing cards and planning to burn a cross on the courthouse lawn.

The house, where Hays lived at the time, is across the street from the tree where Donald's body was placed.

Kyser said Knowles was "drenched in blood, soaked to the skin."

Kyser, who said he quit the Klan about a month and a half after Donald's death, said he told Knowles, "I don't know what y'all been doing, but Tiger you've got blood all over you."

Donald's relatives have been attending the trial this week, sometimes weeping. After Hays' former wife testified Friday, Cynthia Koger, the victim's sister, said "the worst part is over now. We're just waiting for justice to be done."

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Russian-born novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, producer Carlo Ponti, actress Rita Moreno ("9 to 5") and singer Brenda Lee were born on this date. Rethink the current direction of your career. You may come up with a better idea. Use a friend's experience to gain a business advantage. Romantic partner will sit up and take notice when you declare your independence. Art and religion begin to play larger roles in your life. Ask a new associate to help you with a special project. Family members tend to take you for granted. Let them know that you have your own interests to pursue.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A change in routine is particularly welcome today. Drop in to visit someone you know well. Intellectual pursuits are recommended for those who elect to stay home. Romance is somewhat surprising.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be prepared to make sensible compromises. Someone who insists on always having his or her own way could cause you embarrassment. Do not let your friends take advantage of your generosity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A sermon gives your spirits a real lift. Look for opportunities to meet new people. You have much to learn. An act of kindness restores your faith in someone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be wary of those who flatter you. Home life is fulfilling if you relax. Concentrate on preparing for the holidays. The small fry would enjoy baking and decorating cookies.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Consult the newspaper if looking for gift. Shopping by telephone could be the answer to a last-minute rush. Loved one shares a delicious secret! Prove your loyalty by being discreet.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Spend the day with those closest to your heart. A long-distance phone call brings real delight. Plan a small party for dear friends. Avoid all secret alliances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Watch a special holiday TV show with your offspring. It could give you a wonderful new idea. Jot it down for future reference. Intimate relationships demand special tact. Be subtle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Many travel today. Others develop important new relationships. Hobbies are advised for the housebound. A brother or sister needs more of your time. You have to make a major decision.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You receive information from far-flung places. Although travel is very appealing now, it may not be economically feasible. Show greater interest in romantic partner's projects and theories. Romance can be stunning!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your home improvement plans receive a big boost from an older couple. An unexpected change in plans upsets some people while pleasing others. Limit the money you spend on family entertainment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You have a lot to do this month. Learn to delegate more responsibilities to young people. They are eager to help. A family project puts everyone in a festive mood.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A sermon brings new hope. Romance is more rewarding than in the past. Someone finds one of your bright ideas confusing. It might be better not to pursue it. Consult a good friend.

Belushi brother on SNL

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Belushi, determined to make it on his own despite the illustrious surname, admits nonetheless: "I have the hardest time making people laugh off the stage. I'm just not good at telling jokes.

"I'm not saying I'm a bore," the newest member of NBC's "Saturday Night Live" (SNL) cast adds with a chuckle, dismissing any notion to the contrary with an assuring wave.

It's clear he does lots of other things well. He was in Sam Shepard's Off-Broadway hit "True West," and before that, on Broadway in Joe Papp's "The Pirates of Penzance." His motion-picture credits include "Thief" with James Caan and "Trading Places" with Eddie Murphy and Dan Aykroyd.

And he spent three years with the famed Second City comedy troupe in Chicago.

"I love all kinds of comedy," he says, "physical comedy, behavioral, parody and anything else. I don't prefer one over the other. I even like cheap jokes ... the cheaper the better."

BELUSHI joined the "SNL" cast Nov. 19, well aware that comparison with his elder brother, John, a member of the show's original repertory company, was inevitable.

"I'm used to it," he says. "When I do a play, I can just hear them say, 'Oh, he looks like John.' But by the end of the show, it's no problem. They don't see it that way anymore.

"Besides," he says, "I don't mind the comparison. He was a mentor for us all, with Danny (Aykroyd) and Gilda (Radner) and the others. It's the 'barbed-wire philosophy': They held it open so the rest of us could come through."

John Belushi, whose "Samurai Warrior" was among the show's best-known continuing characters, left "SNL" in 1979, after four seasons. He died in March 1982 of a drug overdose.

"Saturday Night Live" was introduced by NBC Oct. 11, 1975, and more than doubled its audience in the first four years — to 12.6 percent of the country's TV homes, on average, for the 1978-79 season.

THE RATINGS for the show dipped a bit the next year, with Belushi and Aykroyd gone, and fell precipitously in the 1980-81 season, after Lorne Michaels, the program's original producer, left.

The audience has increased some in the last couple seasons — a show last Dec. 11, with Eddie Murphy, a regular cast member, as host, attracted 8.6 percent of the audience — though it may never surpass the high-water mark set in '78-79.

In the early days, Jim Belushi says, "SNL" offered running commentary on the times — America, and the world, in the '70s. "Now, I think it's our responsibility," he says, "to talk about what's happening in the '80s."

And Belushi says he's interested in creating characters of his own for "SNL."

"It's the toughest thing to do, to try to find an identifiable character that you can bring back time after time," he says. "There's no easy way to do it, no way to plan for it. I'll just know it when I have it."

HE'S involved, meanwhile, in production of a movie for Home Box Office, the pay-TV network, called "Funeral King," and in running a nightclub in Chicago, The Blues Brothers Bar, "right down the street from Second City."

John Belushi and Aykroyd made a movie called "The Blues Brothers" about two eccentric — weird? — rock musicians.

"It's a place he would dig," Belushi says, referring to his brother. "It's a tribute. Danny says we have the treasures there."

Ads aim to change Egyptians' behavior

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — With a series of TV advertisements, the government is attacking the maddening, deeply ingrained habit of of Egyptians to pass off any inconvenience, inefficiency or other irritation with the Arabic phrase "maalesh."

There is no way to translate maalesh into English, or any other language for that matter. In English, it might be "never mind" or "don't worry," in French it might be "tant pis," in Italian, "pazienza," and in German, "macht nichts."

But in Egypt, maalesh is used in a much wider context than any of these phrases.

For instance, an Egyptian who has just stepped on your toe or spilled a drink on you might console you with "maalesh." It might be heard from someone who has just put a dent in your new car, or the dry cleaner who has just ruined your best silk dress.

Maalesh reflects the belief of many Egyptians in fatalism and in the inevitability of what is "written in the stars." Some blame many of the social and economic ills of Egypt on the maalesh attitude.

"It's the enemy living with us, holding up our progress; as a nation which wants to progress, we have to demolish maalesh," chants a well-known singer in a 30-second TV advertisement, part of the three-month media campaign.

"The word maalesh is an insult in our face," said Samia Sadek, the dynamic director of Egypt's government-controlled television, in an interview. She said President Hosni Mubarak had initiated the campaign, which also focuses public attention on health, cleanliness, family planning, and traffic regulations.

The television has used cartoons, puppets, and well-known actors and put them in funny and sarcastic situations in the 30-60 second advertisements. Six to eight advertisements are shown daily on the two TV channels, around prime time.

One ad criticizes throwing garbage from windows into streets, another explains the necessity to adhere to traffic regulations, still another criticizes deafening honking and noise on the streets.

Sadek said the campaign "concentrated" on the younger generation because it was easier to instill correct behavior in them than to change attitudes of older people.

Schoolchildren seem to enjoy cartoons, including one picturing a stone sculpture of the word maalesh and a small man vainly chipping away at it, and are often heard humming the jingles.

Nearly half of Egypt's 45 million inhabitants watch some 6 million TV sets, and the campaign has raised both praise and criticism among them.

Youths plan to make money selling electricty

NEVADA CITY, Calif. (AP) — Northern California Camp Fire girls and boys plan to light up their finances by supplementing their sales of mints, almonds and candy — with electricity.

Four Northern California councils of the youth group have applied to the state for water rights to build a $3 million hydroelectric plant near this Sierra foothill city.

Consultant Bart O'Keefe said the councils would provide the real estate, a private developer would build the power plant, and the groups would share the profits from sale of the power to Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

O'Keefe said the plant is expected to gross more than half a million dollars a year, which he said would equal a lot of nuts and candy.

Three die when stands collapse

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Three people died and more than 200 were injured when a flimsy, wooden bullring collapsed during a fair in a small town in western Guatemala, police said Friday.

The accident occurred during the annual bull run through the town of Pajapita, 140 miles west of Guatemala City, Thursday night.

Townspeople jammed into improvised wooden stands set up for the event were thrown to the ground when the stands collapsed, police said.

Man dies when cyclone strikes

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (AP) — A cyclone packing winds of 125 mph moved south over the Indian Ocean Friday, lashing isolated islands and churning up stormy seas.

Reports reaching Port Louis indicated one man was killed and most of the 350 thatched-roof homes were damaged on a group of islands off the northern Mauritian coast. Authorities said poor communication made it difficult to determine just which islands suffered damage.

In South Africa, 1,000 miles to the west, radio reports issued storm bulletins to ships passing around the Cape of Good Hope.

Peers may allow TV coverage

LONDON (AP) — The House of Lords, Britain's upper house, has decided to allow television cameras into its chambers for an experimental period.

Peers voted 74-24 late Thursday to instruct the house's Sound Broadcasting Committee to draw up specific plans for television coverage.

Debates in the House of Lords and the 635-member House of Commons are already broadcast on radio. There are 1,181 members of the House of Lords, including nobility, archbishops, hereditary and life peers, but many of them never attend.

Four convicted murderers hanged

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Four convicted murderers were hanged Friday in Harare, a government spokesman said.

Simon Moyo and Danny Ringstone Nkomo were executed in Harare after being sentenced to death for murdering an elderly couple on their farm near the Matabeleland provincial capital of Bulawayo on April 1, 1982.

Marko Ncube and Amon Gumbo, former guerrillas loyal to opposition leader Joshua Nkomo in the seven-year war for independence in Zimbabwe, were hanged for the murder of an army colonel on April 4, 1981.

Minister's wife charged in drug case

LONDON (AP) — The wife of Zambia's defense minister has been charged in a drug case, a British court said Friday. A newspaper said the defense minister himself and an embassy attache were arrested but released.

The Mail said that on Dec. 1 Defense Minister Wilson Chakulya had been arrested along with Lawrence Chimfwembe, financial attache to the Zambian embassy, when they arrived at a north London apartment looking for Mrs. Chakulya. The claimed diplomatic immunity and were released.

The Mail said the minister's wife, Susan Chakulya, has been charged with smuggling about 65 pounds of marijuana into Britain.

Explosion destroys freight cars

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa (AP) — A bomb explosion buckled railroad freight cars and tore up track Friday near a siding outside Bloemfontein, South Africa's judicial capital. No one was injured and no one claimed responsiblity.

Train service was delayed but not interrupted.

On Wednesday night, a mine exploded in a waste bin in Johannesburg, damaging a government office building and slightly wounding a watchman.

Choppers rescue stranded ferryboat passengers

LARNE, Northern Ireland (AP) — Fire knocked out a ferryboat's engines Friday and gale winds nearly blew it into coastal cliffs, but rescue helicopters managed to pluck 139 people from the pitching decks, coast guard officials said.

The captain and 32 crewmen remained aboard the Antrim Princess, which was towed to safety in Belfast by a British Navy tug.

An engine-room fire knocked out the ferry's power shortly after it left Larne, on the County Antrim coast, 24 miles north of Belfast, en route to Stranraer, 38 miles away in Scotland.

A spokesman for the owners, Sealink, said the fire was controlled and there were no injuries, but gales blew the vessel to within about a half mile of the Northern Ireland coast before the captain dropped both anchors.

How To Measure

If installing inside window frame, measure width and length.
If installing outside window frame, add desired overlap, such as molding width, to inside width.
If there is no molding, recommended overlap is 1½" per side.
For example, if you are installing inside a window frame that measures 23½" wide and 56" long, select the package marked 23" to 23⅞" wide x 64" long. Blind lengths can be shortened at home.

Parimutuel betting advocates chomp at bit

DALLAS (AP) — Horsemen's dreams of legalizing parimutuel betting in Texas is at least two years from reality — if at all — but you couldn't tell it in the rolling, wooded hills straddling the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolis.

Horse breeders and trainers from other parts of the country have flocked to North Texas over the past decade, horsemen say, and many more will follow if Texas legalizes parimutuel wagering.

Many of the country's leading horsemen are now here and in Oklahoma.

Rural roads running north of the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport through Denton County toward the Red River and Oklahoma are lined with farms breeding and training cutting and show horses as well as thoroughbreds and racing quarterhorses.

"THIS IS really horse country," said Dan Fick, executive director of the Oklahoma Horse Racing Commission and former president of the American Quarterhorse Association. "Many of your major breeders live in Texas, although they race in other places."

Gail Cooper, who owns the 440 ranch about 35 miles north of Dallas, has 400 horses on two farms totaling 800 acres, the third largest breeding operation in the nation and the biggest outside Kentucky.

"This area has turned into nothing but horse farms," Cooper said.

"I wouldn't relocate the 440 anywhere in the world," he said. "I think we'll see parimutuel betting in Texas. When that happens I want to be sitting right here."

Although figures are not available on how many farms and horses there are in the region, Cooper estimates the number of farms has doubled in the past three years.

"WE HAVE people from the North moving in like crazy," said Kelli Proctor, a spokeswoman for the Texas Quarterhorse Association. "They're all wanting to get where the action is."

Part of the reason for the influx is the number of race tracks and their purses in surrounding states, horsemen say. Another reason is the mild climate. But at least as important, says Cooper, is the amount of money wealthy Dallas-Fort Worth area residents are starting to invest in horses.

Many are just discovering the investment potential, Cooper said.

"There are a lot of people out there that like the depreciation of a horse and the earning potential of a horse," Cooper said. "There are a lot of places with good climates."

North Texas has also drawn a large number of breeders and trainers from the Far West, California aand Arizona in particular, Ms. Proctor said.

"WE HAVE a lot of them from Phoenix and the West Coast," she said. "It couldn't have anything to do with the weather, except they want to be closer to everything.

Racing horse breeder Gail Cooper stands in the middle of one of his two horse farms near Denton. Cooper, who has 400 horses on 800 acres, is one of many horse breeders in Texas who are working hard to legalize parimutuel betting in the state.

The All-America Futurity at Ruidoso, N.M., every Labor Day weekend is the nation's richest quarterhorse race, with a purse of $2.5 million, $1 million of which goes to the winner.

Texas has always had the largest population of quarterhorses in the nation, since the breed gained its dominance on the ranches of the Southwest and Texas.

But the registered population of quarterhorses has nearly doubled in the past decade, from 169,000 in 1973 to 311,000 last year, and has more than quadrupled since 1963 when the state had 72,000.

B.F. Phillips, who owns a farm north of Dallas near Frisco, says the influx in North Texas is continuing.

"THE COST and price of land is still going up," he said. "So apparently they still must be moving in."

A few miles up Interstate 35 in Oklahoma horses are are the state's third largest industry, behind oil and agriculture. And they look to become even more important thanks to prospect of parimutuel wagering.

Oklahoma voters voted 58-42 percent in September 1982 to legalize parimutuel betting. No tracks have opened yet, but horsemen in Oklahoma and Texas say they are looking forward to the day when Texas would join its neighboring states in a Southern horse racing circuit.

"A lot of people who have been sending their horses to Kentucky...will keep them here," Fick said.

PARIMUTUEL WAGERING already was legal in Louisiana, Arkansas and New Mexico before Oklahoma passed its proposal.

Much of the money bet in those states comes from Texans, who would probably keep their cash at home if they have the chance, horsemen say.

Phillips, president of the Texas Horse Racing Association, lobbied the Texas Legislature this spring to put a parimutuel-betting proposal before voters but a constitutional amendment on the issue was narrowly killed in the House of Representatives after passing the Senate.

You'd better have a roster for this one

Lee, Plano nearly identical in semifinal matchup

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — If you suffer from double vision, the place not to be today at 2 p.m. is Ratliff Stadium. A sellout throng of around 20,000 football fanatics may feel like they are looking in a mirror as Midland Lee meets Plano here in a semifinal playoff shootout.

The word is that the Plano and Lee football teams are so much alike that they could pass for brothers and not completions. It's the infantry style all the way for both teams with rugged defensive units that could match as bookends.

To add to the confusion, both squads claim Maroon and White as school colors. Both have fullbacks of All-State caliber.

THIS IS one you could expect to end in a 7-7 tie with one penetration each. It could prove to be a real headache for officials, who would have to decide which one gets to go to the state finals next weekend if the above were to occur.

The only difference is that Plano has a playoff-rich tradition, winning four state championships at three different levels of competition. Lee has never even been in a semifinal game before. Plano has skated through the 1983 season without missing a beat, and owning a perfect 14-0 record. Lee is 12-2, the best record ever recorded in the 23-year history of the school.

Plano coach Tommy Kimbrough feels that the Wildcats' previous playoff history will have little to do with this game, but Lee coach Spike Dykes thinks the Wildcats have a slight advantage in that respect.

"Both teams have won four playoff games at this point, and that's all you can say about this game. Both teams have the same amount of playoff experience this year and those are the only kids you can play with," said Kimbrough.

Dykes said, "Plano has an outstanding team from an outstanding program and they're in the playoffs every year. This is nothing new to them."

THE FACT that the two teams almost offer a mirror image of each other has Dykes worried.

"If people say we are similar, that has to be a compliment to our football team," said Dykes. "We will have to control the football and make very few mistakes. Plano has an outstanding defensive team. They have given up only 79 points this year.

"We can't allow Plano to drive the football and keep it all day. The winning team will have to keep good field position with a good kicking game. It does look like we may have to beat Plano at its own game and you're knee deep in alligators when you're in that position."

Kimbrough agrees with Dykes. "It will take a near error-free game to win this one. Lee just doesn't have any weakeness. Our strength this year is that we have been balanced in all phases of the game, but then again, we haven't been really super in any area either."

On paper, the game may boil down to which team's fullback has the best day. That position has been the strength of both teams. Lee fullback Isaac Garnett has rushed for 1,813 yards through the first 14 games while Plano fullback Scott Huckabay has rushed for 1,469 yards. Garnett has scored 21 touchdowns and Huckabay 19. College coaches will be looking at this matchup.

"GARNETT IS an All-State type of back. I think he compares to Earl Campbell and Craig James at this stage of his development. We played against both of those other backs, and we didn't have too much success with either one," said Kimbrough. "The problem is that Garnett is not all Lee has. They have great speed at the halfback slots in (Walter) Jones and (Tyrone) Thurman. You have to stop the fullback, but you can't ignore the other two."

"Huckabay is a fine back and we will have to find a way to stop him. We just can't let him keep the ball all day," said Dykes. "Plano is not all Huckabay either. They have a fine quarterback (Monty West) and they have speed with (David) Thompson."

While Huckabay has shouldered much of Plano's offensive punch this year, the Wildcats do have other weapons with which to work. Quarterback Monty West has completed 60 of 33 passes for 632 yards and five touchdowns. He has rushed for 199 yards (on 110 carries) and scored 10 times.

Tailback David Thompson has rushed for 811 yards this year, much of that coming in the playoffs. Like Lee, Plano's playoff opponents have geared to stop the fullbacks and Thompson has come to the front. He has scored nine times.

Garnett has had only one game over 100 yards since the playoffs began. Huckabay has had two. But Lee's Tyrone Thurman and Walter Jones have both had 100-yard days in the playoffs and so has Thompson of Plano.

JONES NOW has 821 yards rushing and eight touchdowns while Thurman has 562 yards and 11 touchdowns. Thurman also has nearly 100 yards in receiving yardage on seven catches.

Between 32,000 and 35,000 fans saw Lee defeat Odessa Permian a week ago in Lubbock in the quarterfinals. Lee fans have really taken to the Rebels. This game was a virtual sellout by Wednesday with only standing room tickets left at that date.

"We've had good support all year from loyal fans, but what happened at Lubbock last week and the ticket response we've had this week is simply above and beyond the call of duty," said Dykes. "I've really been proud to be a part of this. It's been special."

The winner of this game will square off next week for the state Class 5A championship against either San Antonio's Converse Judson, the top-ranked team in the state to open the season, and Houston Yates. That game is being played at 3 p.m. today in Alamo Stadium in San Antonio.

One Lee fan said this week, "Yates and Judson may know who they will play next week before their game ever starts. It takes 48 minutes to play a football game, but the way Lee and Plano play, it may only take 45 minutes."

Lee, MHS, Greenwood, San Angelo post victories

Pecos' Patty Acosta (50) deflects the ball away from Midland High's Tina Knight (12) during second quarter girls tournament action at Chaparral Center Friday night. MHS rallied in the game to take a 52-49 decision over Pecos. Tournament action continues today.

Assistant Sports Editor

Midland Lee, Midland High, Greenwood and San Angelo all took opening round victories in the Tall City Girls Invitational basketball tournament at Chaparral Center Friday night and will fight it out for championship honors today.

Lee, Greenwood and San Angelo all had relatively easy opening round wins, but Midland High had to do some quick second half dancing to dispose of Pecos by a 52-49 margin. It was the closest game of the day.

Lee's Rebels waltzed to an 81-36 win over El Paso Bel Air as every member of the Lee squad got in on the scoring act.

Class A Greenwood ended up a comfortable 59-50 winner over Class 5A Big Spring, but did trail by as many as six points in the first period.

San Angelo ripped Del Rio in the tourney opener by a 73-38 margin.

Pecos held a 10-point lead in the second quarter and led 27-21 at the half against Midland High, but the Bulldogs opened the third period with 10 unanswered points to grab a 31-27 lead.

Pecos came back to knot the score at 47 on a Paula Sanders jumper with 2:50 left in the game. Midland High's Terez Robinson hit a long jumper with 1:25 left to give MHS a 49-47 lead, one the Bulldogs never surrendered.

MIDLAND HIGH'S Denise Lanz, who scored 12 points in the big third quarter push, led all scorers with 19 points and Orvetta Johnson had 10. Pecos had 12 points each from Sanders, all in the second half, and Traci Bowers and 10 more from Patty Acosta, who had eight in the first half.

"We changed a lot of things at the half," said MHS coach Jane Young. "We went with a matchup press and a man-to-man defense. We had to do something."

Felicia Farias scored 15 of her game high 19 points in the second half to pace the Lee victory over Bel Air. Faye Oudems had 13 points, Stacy Harmon 11 and Brenda Haven 10. In all, 11 Lee players got in the scoring act. Lee took a 29-12 first quarter lead and never skipped a beat from there.

"Everyone got to play a lot and they all played well," said Lee coach Shirley Stephenson. "This is really the first year where I have been able to send anyone off the bench and have them all contribute. It's really a fun way to play basketball."

Greenwood's Deonna Dean led the Rangerettes to its win over Big Spring. Dean pumped in 16 points. Kay Wallace added 12 and Cindy Lea 10. Big Spring's Paula Spears led all scorers with 19 and Tris Clemons hit for 12.

BIG SPRING owned a 20-12 first period lead, but Greenwood responded with 21 points in the second period to lead at the half 33-28. The Steers knotted the score in the third period at 43-43, but Greenwood raced to a 16-7 fourth quarter advantage to take the win.

San Angelo's Monica Bradley pumped in 16 points while Bambi Lopez and Val Schlaudt each canned 14 for the Bobcats. Del Rio got 10 points from Alice Faith, but were never in the game.

Lee and San Angelo will fight for a finals berth at noon today while Greenwood and Midland High are scheduled for a 1:45 p.m. contest. The two winners will battle at 8:30 p.m. for the championship while the losers will square off at 6:45 p.m. for third place.

Midland High's Denise Lanz (32) poses a problem for Pecos' Patty Acosta Friday night at Chaparral Center. There's no place to throw the ball.

Boyd gives McCamey power lesson

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

SWEETWATER — The McCamey Badgers' playoff push has shown McCamey to be a classic ball control team.

However, Friday night in a state Class 2A semifinal playoff game, the Boyd Yellowjackets gave the Badgers a lesson in power football. Boyd, 14-0-1, wore down the Badgers entirely on the ground and snuffed out every Badger offensive threat.

McCamey was without senior quarterback Ray Zarate for most of the game, and by the time Zarate was inserted in the fourth quarter, the Badgers were down 22-3, the game's final score.

ZARATE, WHO nursed a sore left foot and did not practice this week, couldn't come up with any heroics this time. In fact, the Badger offense was non-existent in the second half. The Badgers ran a total of 15 second half plays, two of which were punts. Boyd, meanwhile, broke open a tight 7-3 game with two long scoring drives and a berth in the state championship game next week.

"We couldn't stop them," said Badger coach Buster Leaf. "Our game plan was the same with Heath Stephens as it would have been with Ray."

Stephens, a 5-10, 163-pound junior, did admirably as Zarate's replacement and his 77 yards total offense was over half of the Badger output. But Stephens and the McCamey attack could generate little for most of the night. On McCamey's opening drive, Stephens hit brother David Stephens with a 39-yard pass that was McCamey's best play of the night. McCamey missed a field goal attempt six plays later.

After holding Boyd, McCamey got another big pass play out of Stephens. On fourth and six at the Boyd 25, Stephens threw a pass up for grabs and 6-7 Badger tight end James Kennedy nabbed the ball at the seven. Ray Zarate kicked a field goal on the first play of the second quarter from 19 yards away for McCamey's only lead and only points.

IF McCAMEY had a bright spot, it was Kennedy, who not only played well on offense, but made several key tackles defensively. Nevertheless, Kennedy couldn't stop Boyd. On Boyd's second possession of the second quarter, senior fullback Allan Fite led Boyd's first scoring drive. Fite got the touchdown on a pitchout to the left when McCamey's Steve Brown and Lionel Baiza both missed Fite. Quarterback Billy Tolliver added the extra point with 1:56 left in the first half.

In the second half, Boyd took the opening kickoff and drove 64 yards in 10 plays. Tolliver got the touchdown with a nice fake on the option right and went 28 yards to paydirt. That made it 14-3 and Boyd's defense went about ending the Badgers at 11-4.

If McCamey had any other chances, they soon ran out. On Boyd's next drive, Fite went 32 yards down the right sideline before Kennedy collared him at the Badger 38. McCamey then started to self-destruct, starting with a fourth and 15 roughing the kicker penalty charged to the Badgers' Hector Martinez. Ten plays later fullback Rodney Scroggins dove over from the one, Fite added the conversion and the Badgers went into the desperation offense.

"I'm proud of these kids," said Leaf. "I hate to get this close and not get a shot at the state championship, but the better team won tonight. It was a frustrating thing. We just couldn't get the football."

Mistakes eliminate Wink, 12-7

State Football Playoffs

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — Wayne Hutchinson rambled 16 yards and broke three tackles to score a touchdown that gave Knox City a 12-7 semifinal win over a sputtering Wink and a spot in the Class A schoolboy football championship game.

Wink coughed up five fumples and an interception during the game and were flagged for 11 penalties, including two that wiped out touchdown runs of 93 and 75 yards by Travis Price.

Steve Oudem scored for Knox City on a four-yard run in the second quarter. But Wink, which finished its season 13-1, took the lead 7-6 in the third quarter on a one-yard punge by fullback Raymond Adams.

Knox City began its winning drive when tackle David Thompson recovered a fumble by Price at the Knox City 23.

The Greyhounds marched 77 yards on 12 plays with Hutchinson breaking three tackles to score the winning touchdown with 6:16 to play.

Hutchinson finished the game with 109 yards, while Oudems led all rushers with 152 yards on 24 carries.

Knox City, 13-1, will play the winner of the Bremond-Celest game Saturday night for the Class A state championship.

Bay City romps, 49-6

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Daniel Hawkins rushed for three touchdowns and passed for 155 yards to lead Bay City to a 49-6 victory over New Braunfels in a Class 4A high school football semifinal contest Friday.

The win for the Black Cats, 14-0, moves them into the state finals against the winner of the Carthage-Lubbock Estacado semifinals meet Saturday in Brownwood.

Bay City, which defeated defending state champion Willowridge earlier, scored on its first five possessions to take a 35-0 halftime lead.

Hawkins, who hit eight of 11 passes, scored three straight times in the first and second quarters on runs of 1, 1 and 3 yards.

Bay City fullback Martin Garcia, the leading rusher with 77 yards, opened scoring on a 16-yard run and finished scoring in the first half with a 1-yard run.

Black Cats backup quarterback Lance Sardelich scored the other two Bay City touchdowns on runs of 3 yards each.

Junior wide receiver Hart Lee Dykes pulled in six of Hawkins' passes for 117 yards.

New Braunfels was held to 48 yards rushing and 44 passing and only crossed midfield once.

Groveton advances

CONROE, Texas — Michael Horace ran for three touchdowns as Groveton beat East Bernard 21-6 Friday night in a Class 2A high school semi-final football game.

Groveton, 15-0, dominated the game from the outset, scoring its first touchdown midway through the first quarter on a four-play, 42-yard series capped by Horace's 1-yard touchdown run.

East Bernard, 14-1, failed to mount a drive until the second half, when the Brahmas drove 90 yards in 19 plays and Jeff Tamborello ran four yards for the touchdown.

Horace, who ran for 125 of Groveton's 237 yards, pushed his career rushing record over the 5,000-yard mark. His two other TD runs were from 17 and 3 yards.

Highland wins six-man

WINTERS, Texas — Tailback Harold Light scored four touchdowns to lead the Highland Hornets to a 67-50 win over Mozelle in a high school six-man championship game Friday night.

The Hornets, now 14-0, won their second state championship in as many years.

Light began scoring with a 17-yard run in the first quarter. Wingback Duane Hyde made a 3-yard touchdown run with four seconds left in the period.

Hyde kicked both 2-point conversions to give the Hornets a 16-0 lead at the end of the first quarter.

Highland increased the lead to 24-0 early in the second quarter with Hyde scoring from 5 yards out, and kicking the conversion.

The Hornets scored again in the same period with a 65-yard pass from Hyde to Courtney Gothard and Hyde converted to make it 32-0.

The Mustangs retaliated 3 minutes before the half when Bryan Griffin scored from 31 yards out, the first of his six touchdowns for the night. Les Matthews kicked the extra points.

Thirty seconds before the end of the half, Griffin scored from 29 yards out to make it 32-14 at the half.

In the third quarter, Hyde ran the ball in from the 3-yard line and Gary Light kicked the conversion. In the same period, Griffin scored from 1 yard out. Hyde countered for Highland by completing a 12-yard pass to Ron Swaringin.

Griffin ran 24-yards for a touchdown with 40 seconds left in the third quarter, and Matthews kicked the conversion. Harold Light made a 57-yard scoring run for Highland, with Hyde making the extra points.

In the fourth quarter, Griffin scored from the 1 yard line.

Navratilova beats Jordan to win Australian

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Martina Navratilova held off a strong second-set battle by Kathy Jordan to win the Australian Open Tennis Championship women's singles with a 6-2, 7-6 victory today.

Navratilova dominated the first set, but Jordan improved her play in the second set and came back to pose a strong challenge to the tournament's No. 1 seed.

Jordan saved two match points to force a tiebreaker, and salvaged another four match points before Navratilova's brilliant serve-and-volley game gave her her second Australian Open in three years as she took the tiebreaker 7-5.

Jordan, seeded ninth, improved her game as she got a bigger percentage of the first serves into play. But she was never able to equal the serving of the world's top women's player, who has lost only one match this year.

Jordan noted after the game that the sun was still shining and, despite her loss, she was not despondent. "I can't feel bad on a day like this," she said.

Navratilova said later of the final set, "I have a way of making it tighter then it needs to be."

"Overall, I played pretty well on my serve, but I didn't return as well as I would have liked," she added.

Navratilova took 78 minutes to add the Australian Open singles title to the U.S. Open and Wimbledon crowns she won earlier this year.

The Czechoslovakian-born lefthander now needs only the French Open title next year to win a $1 million bonus for winning all four Grand Slam tournaments in succession.

Beaten just once in 86 matches this year — that coming on the slow, red clay of the French Open to Kathy Horvath in May — Navratilova quickly used her power and mobility to take a 3-1 lead in the first set. She continued to show power and accuracy and raced through the set in 27 minutes.

Although Jordan broke back once in the first set, she put only 14 out of 24 first serves into play and had trouble attacking navratilova on her second serve.

"I tried mainly to stay with her," Jordan said. "If she gets a break early, she starts rolling — steamrolling."

As her serve improved in the second set, Jordan's confidence increased and she was able to break Navratilova's serve with a backhand return down the sideline to take a 2-1 lead.

Jordan held her serve to lead 3-1, and pressed Navratilova again in the next game, reaching deuce twice.

But the eventual winner, now an American citizen, broke Jordan when the right-hander missed an easy volley at deuce in the sixth game after Navratilova had fallen near the net.

"She had a better chance at 3-1 than 6-6, but I wasn't nervous. I figured I could break her," said Navratilova.

The win was worth $75,000 to Navratilova, raising her tournament winnings so far this year to $1,443,030.

Jordan, of King of Prussia, Pa., won her biggest prize of the year in picking up the $38,000 prize as runner-up.

Rooker sets pace for MHS

SNYDER — Chris Rooker bombed in a season high 27 points here Friday night as the Midland High Bulldogs moved into the semifinals of the Canyon Reef basketball tournament with a 65-59 victory over Lubbock Estacado.

Rooker has scored 47 points in two tournament outings thus far, and the Bulldogs are scheduled to face Lindale, an East Texas team, at 11 a.m. today.

Midland High, now 8-1 on the year, also got 10 points from Kenneth Johnson.

"The kids have played really well in the tournament, but we will have to play another super game Saturday to beat Lindale, a tall and quick team. Lindale beat El Paso Burges by five Friday and Burges has been in a tournament final this year in El Paso," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson.

If MHS can beat Lindale today, the Bulldogs would then face the winner of the Lubbock Monterey-Wichita Falls Rider game at 8 p.m. today in the finals. Losers will meet at 6:15 p.m. for third place.

Estacado got 16 points from Reggie Gibbs, 14 from Dewayne Sheffield and 10 from Kevin Jackson, but the three-pronged attack couldn't offset the hot shooting Rooker, who canned 13 field goals. Rooker's previous high game this year was 26 points.

Nets' second half surge stops Sixers

By The Associated Press

Otis Birdsong and Albert King led a second-half surge that powered the New Jersey Nets to a 100-93 National Basketball Association victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Friday night.

King scored 16 of his 20 points in the third quarter, hitting eight of 11 field goal attempts, as the Nets erased a 51-45 halftime deficit to lead 78-69 at the end of the quarter.

Birdsong added 10 of his 21 points in the final quarter, connecting on two straight jump shots that gave the Nets a 98-93 cushion with 40 seconds left.

Philadelphia closed the deficit to 94-93 on Moses Malone's short jumper with 2:05 left. But Andrew Toney missed a go-ahead attempt after New Jersey lost the ball on a traveling call, and Birdsong scored to make it 96-93.

Darryl Dawkins sparked the Nets to a 26-19 first-quarter lead as the 76ers lost the ball 10 times and connected on only eight of 23 shots.

Dawkins spent most of the second half in foul trouble, however, and fouled out with 6:47 to go after scoring 17 points.

Malone led the 76ers with 21 points, Julius Erving added 19 and Maurice Cheeks 15.

Celtics 119, Nuggets 90

Kevin McHale had 21 points and Larry Bird scored 17 in the first quarter before leaving with an injury to lead the Boston Celtics to a 119-90 victory over the Denver Nuggets.

Denver entered the game as the highest-scoring team in the NBA, averaging 123.8 points a game. But the Nuggets were able to score only 39 points in the second half against the Celtics.

Boston led 38-32 after one period before Bird was forced to leave with a twisted right knee that was later diagnosed as sprained ligaments.

Boston increased its lead to 72-51 after two quarters following a 12-3 run in the final 3:34 of the half. The Celtics extended their lead to 103-72 after three periods.

Also scoring in double figures for Boston were Dennis Johnson and Scott Wedman with 15 each, Gerald Henderson with 14, Cedric Maxwell with 13 and Robert Parish with 11.

The Nuggets were led by Richard Anderson with 16 points and a game-high 12 rebounds. Alex English and Dan Issel also had 12 each.

Issel left the game in the second period with back spasms.

NBA

Pacers 110, Hawks 104

Rookie Steve Stipanovich grabbed a key rebound and sank two crucial free throws and a layup in the final nine seconds, helping the Indiana Pacers hold off the Atlanta Hawks for a 110-104 victory.

The Pacers broke their four-game losing streak and handed Atlanta its 10th consecutive road loss of the season as Herb Williams scored 29 points. Clark Kellogg contributed 26 points and 12 rebounds to the victory.

Indiana led for most of the game, but the Hawks rallied from a seven-point deficit with 7:45 remaining to take the lead briefly at 99-98 on a Tree Rollins hook. Stipanovich, who finished with 16 points and 10 rebounds, scored to give Indiana a 104-101 advantage before Dan Roundfield, who had a season-high 30 points, tied the game with 1:30 left on a three-point play.

Williams, who had scored eight consecutive points late in the second quarter, then hit a layup to put the Pacers ahead to stay with 37 seconds to play.

A Roundfield miss from in close was rebounded by Stipanovich, and he was fouled with nine seconds to play. The 7-foot Stipanovich, who played a season-high 36 minutes, made both free throws to give Indiana a 108-104 lead and then scored again just before the final buzzer.

Johnny Davis also hit a season high for Atlanta, scoring 12 points in each half.

Bucks 96, Cavaliers 83

Sidney Moncrief scored 27 points and Marques Johnson added 26, including six down the stretch, to pace the Milwaukee Bucks to their seventh consecutive victory, a 96-83 decision over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Moncrief tossed in 20 first-half points as the Bucks, 14-6, jumped to a 32-18 first-quarter lead and held on for a 51-45 halftime advantage.

Geoff Huston made a three-point play to pull Cleveland within 58-56 with 7:12 to go in the third quarter, but Alton Lister and Johnson followed with layups to spark a 20-4 Milwaukee spurt and send the Bucks to an 80-66 lead entering the final quarter.

Cleveland, 7-15, managed to cut the Bucks' lead to 88-82 with 2:15 left, but Johnson hit a pair of jump shots and a layup to ensure the Milwaukee victory.

Rockets 115, Bulls 112 (OT)

Caldwell Jones hit a 25-foot three-pointer in the last second of overtime to lift the Houston Rockets to a 115-112 victory over the Chicago Bulls.

Chicago's Ennis Whatley set the stage for Jones when he missed a short jumper with the score tied 112-112. No time showed on the clock, but referees Darrell Garretson and Ronnie Nunn ordered the clock rolled back to one second, and Jones hit from the right corner off Robert Reid's inbounds pass.

Houston's Ralph Sampson scored 28 points to go with his 13 blocked shots, a Chicago Stadium record, while Lewis Lloyd led the Rockets with 31 points. Orlando Woolridge led Chicago with 19 points, while Mitchell Wiggins had 16.

Trades, 'Tar' ruling end baseball meetings

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Baseball's annual winter convention wound down to an end Friday with a change in the rule that spawned the controversial "Tar Wars" incident.

As owners and club executives began to leave this country music capital, general managers still worked to beat the 5 p.m. CST interleague trading deadline.

The Oakland A's continued to strengthen their bullpen Friday, and the World Series champion Baltimore Orioles solved a problem at third base.

The A's, who earlier had traded for Seattle relief ace Bill Caudill, dealt third baseman Wayne Gross to the Orioles for right-handed reliever Tim Stoddard, who in 1980 had 26 saves for Baltimore.

In another deal, Seattle traded left-hander Bryan Clark to Toronto for outfielder Barry Bonnell.

That brought to 16 the number of trades at these meetings, compared to eight at last year's winter meetings in Hawaii.

THE RULES change, announced by playing rules committee chairman Bill Murray, will eliminate the possibility of a repeat of last summer's pine-tar incident.

Although rather complicated, the change, in its essence, clarifies that using an illegally tarred bat cannot be grounds for ejection or nullification of an at-bat. And, a player cannot be called out for using a bat with tar more than 18 inches up the handle.

When detected, however, the bat must be immediately taken out of the game.

On July 24, umpires nullified a home run by George Brett of Kansas City against the New York Yankees. The two-run, two-out homer had given the Royals a 4-3 lead in the top of the ninth. But, after the umps ruling, Brett was called out, the homer was disallowed and New York won 3-2.

The incident set off one of the most celebrated investigations in baseball. Finally, then-American League President Lee MacPhail overturned the ruling, saying it did not conform to the spirit of the rule.

The homer was reinstated, the game was resumed on Aug. 18, and the Yankees lost 4-3.

"We felt that pine tar did not add any distance," Murray said, "and that Lee's approach was a very reasonable one." The rule originally was written to prevent baseballs from being soiled, Murray said, not because it gave hitters an advantage.

THE OAKLAND-BALTIMORE trade will allow Orioles Manager Joe Altobelli to strengthen his world champions at third base while also adding power.

"As you know, Gross is a left-handed hitter," Orioles General Manager Hank Peters said. "His addition will give Joe the opportunity to platoon (with Todd Cruz), and it will give us a long-ball threat at third, which we were lacking last season."

Gross, 32, appeared in 136 games for Oakland last year and hit 12 homers. He hit 22 homers for Oakland in 1977.

Stoddard, 30, was 4-3 with nine saves and a 6.09 ERA last season.

Clark, 27, started 17 games for the Mariners last season with a 7-10 record and 3.94 ERA.

Nutt's late buckets completes TCU rally

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Dennis Nutt sank a 19-footer with five seconds remaining Friday as Texas Christian scored a 53-52 comeback victory over Idaho State in the opening round of the Marshall Memorial Invitational basketball tournament.

Marshall met New Hampshire in the opening round's second game.

Nelson Peterson had given Idaho State a 51-52 lead with 21 seconds remaining on a short jumper. Texas Christian brought the ball down and set up Nutt's winning basket.

Idaho State led by 32-24 at the half. In the first half, Donn Holston's 14 points made the difference as Idaho State connected on 51 percent of its shots from the field.

However, Texas Christian, which got 10 points from Nutt in the first half, put a defensive clamp on Idaho State in the second half, allowing only two baskets in the last seven minutes.

Holston led all scorers with 21 points, as Idaho State dropped to 3-3 on the season.

NBA, refs reach agreement to end lockout

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association and its referees signed a new three-year contract Friday, ending a two-month lockout that sparked widespread criticism and controversy over the performance of substitute officials. Commissioner Larry O'Brien said the regular refs are expected "back on the basketball court where they belong" within a week.

The two sides said the settlement provides for a yearly pay scale of $28,000 for starting referees to $85,000 for those with 16 years experience in the first year of the contract, excluding playoffs. After three years the scale will range from $28,000 to $90,000.

Last season, the lowest-paid referee earned $18,146, including the playoffs, while the highest-paid official earned $76,922, including playoffs. Counting the postseason, the top officials could earn $120,000 by the third year of the contract.

O'BRIEN SAID the officials are expected to resume work by Friday after a week of required physicals and briefings and the arrangement of travel schedules.

"We're very pleased to have reached this agreement, which will get our regular officials back on the basketball court where they belong," O'Brien said.

"This settlement comes following two days and nights of intensive negotiations, during which the union negotiators dropped their demand for back pay to cover the time not worked during the dispute."

But Richie Phillips, the union's executive director, said the referees dropped the retroactive pay demand in return for increased playoff money. He said federal mediator Ed McMahon, who was brought into the negotiations this week, was the key to settlement.

"He played a big role on that issue because both sides were very firm in their stand on back pay," Phillips said.

The union chief said that playoff pay last season ranged from none for six officials who did not work in the postseason to $21,000 for top referees. This season, Phillips said, every referee will get at least $3,000 for the playoffs and the top officials will get $27,000 extra, increasing to $30,000 in the third year.

The two sides' interpretation of the resolution of the back pay issue was typical of their season-long disagreement.

SINCE THE regular season started Oct. 28, the league contended that the substitutes have done a reasonably competent job and improved steadily as the schedule progressed. They cited a dropoff in the number of foul calls and violence.

The union, however, strongly criticized the substitute officials and said they were ruining the flow of the fast-paced professional game. Phillips cited significant increases in technical fouls and victories by home teams as evidence that the substitutes were not in control at games.

On Friday, O'Brien said, "This dispute was settled when the union took a more enlightened approach to the situation."

"We say the NBA became more enlightened and finally realized the importance of the officials to the game," Phillips said. "Each side says the other is wrong and each side says the other became enlightened. That's the way all labor disputes go and that's the way they all get settled."

The new contract was signed at the news conference announcing the settlement. The union membership of 29 referees voted on the pact Friday morning.

Phillips said approval was unanimous among all the referees who were reached. "We have not had a 'nay' and have talked to a majority of them, but not all," he said.

LEAGUE SPOKESMAN Alex Sachare said the union also gave in on demands that chief of officials Darell Garretson, who refereed during the lockout, not work in games since he is an employee of management; that the union have a say in rating officials and have input on hiring and firing.

Phillips said the only demand on which the union made a major concession was the firing of Jess Kersey, one of three officials the union wanted reinstated after the league released them in the offseason.

Under the terms of the settlement, Kersey will get a hearing before O'Brien and may or may not be reinstated. The other two officials, Joe Gushue and Bob Rakel, will receive full pay, although Rakel will not work in the league before next season.

Scotty Stirling, director of operations for the NBA, said the league had retained the right to hire and fire officials on merit, and therefore some of the substitutes could be retained.

When Phillips was asked about the substitutes staying in the NBA, he said, "If those people are hired, and they are hired on the basis of merit alone, we will accept them into the union."

He stopped short, however, of saying they would be "welcomed."

Since the substitute officials have one more week to work, the league admitted it is concerned they would be subject to increased abuse.

"Stirling sent a telex to all the general managers reminding them of rules regarding proper conduct on the court," Sachare said. "We are emphasizing that next week will be a delicate period."

Ford working on revolutinary racing engine

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. announced Friday that it was working with English engineer Keith Duckworth on a revolutionary new engine that was expected to be adaptable for both Formula One and Indy car racing.

Michael Kranefuss, director of motor sports for Ford, said, "We expect the new engine to make its debut in a team doing a race series in 1986.

"But this is by no means a one-engine program. We expect it to provide important long-term benefits in the areas of fuel economy, engine durability and efficiency."

Kranefuss said it is still to be determined by research and development whether the engine will have four, six or eight cylinders. He also said the new engine will be used either in a coneventional or turbocharged mode, depending on the type of racing it is used for.

Ford already has developed an experimental 1.5-liter racing engine for sports car and production car racing.

CBS radio, baseball field terms through '89

NEW YORK (AP) — The CBS Radio Network has extended its rights to broadcast major league baseball through 1989, it was announced Friday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Richard Brescia, senior vice president of CBS Radio.

The five-year agreement is in addition to the network's recently announced one-year extension of radio rights to the All-Star Game, League Championship Series and World Series.

"We're all delighted that we're continuing our partnership with the CBS Radio Network," said Kuhn, who Thursday had his term as commissioner extended through March 1, 1984.

Steelers can clinch playoff berth

By The Associated Press

Terry Bradshaw, the quarterback who guided four Pittsburgh teams to Super Bowl victories, is scheduled to play his first game of the season today when the stumbling Steelers play the Jets at New York.

Bradshaw, who had off-season elbow surgery, will start in place of Cliff Stoudt, who has started every game this season, as the Steelers, 9-5, try to snap a three-game losing streak and clinch at least a wild card playoff spot.

"We needed to do something," said Coach Chuck Noll of the decision to activate and start Bradshaw. "Our offense just hasn't been functioning."

Pittsburgh currently holds first place by one game over the Cleveland Browns in the American Conference Central Division.

The Jets, 7-7, have won three straight games and still have a mathematical chance of making the playoffs.

The game will mark the end of a 20-year stay for the Jets at Shea Stadium. Next season, the team will play its home games at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J.

Bradshaw will be facing a defense that has not yielded a touchdown in nine quarters. Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau leads the NFL with 18 quarterback sacks.

"I try not to think about that," said Bradshaw. "If I did, I wouldn't sleep."

IN ANOTHER game today, the Miami Dolphins, 10-4 and champions of the AFC East, will host the Atlanta Hawks, 6-8, with Don Strock starting at quarterback in place of sensational rookie Dan Marino, who suffered a strained knee in the Miami's 24-17 title-clinching victory over Houston last Sunday. The Falcons are out of the playoff picture.

Sunday's matchups will be the Washington Redskins, 12-2, at the Dallas Cowboys, 12-2; Cleveland, 8-6, at the Houston Oilers, 1-13; the Detroit Lions, 8-6, at the Cincinnati Bengals, 6-8; the Chicago Bears, 6-8, at the Minnesota Vikings, 7-7; the San Francisco 49ers, 8-6, at the Buffalo Bills, 8-6; the Baltmore Colts, 6-8, at the Denver Broncos, 8-6; the New England Patriots, 7-7, at the Los Angeles Rams, 8-6; the New Orleans Saints, 7-7, at the Philadelphia Eagles, 5-9; the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-7-1, at the Los Angeles Raiders, 11-3; the Kansas City Chiefs, 5-9, at the San Diego Padres, 5-9; and the Seattle Seahawks, 7-7, at the New York Giants, 3-10-1.

Monday night, the Green Bay Packers, 7-7, will play at the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 2-12.

NFL

THE REDSKINS and Cowboys will play for the NFC East leadership and for the best record in the NFL. It is a matchup of good defenses and explosive offenses featuring quarterback Joe Theismann and running back John Riggins of Washington and quarterback Danny White and running back Tony Dorsett. Both clubs also are loaded with marvelous receivers.

In the first meeting on Sept. 5, Dallas rallied for a 31-30 victory.

Cleveland can clinch a wild card berth by beating Houston and Pittsburgh in its last two games. The Oilers have been in a spoiler's role all season.

Billy Sims, who has chalked up four straight 100-yard rushing games, will lead Detroit in search of the NFC Central title. A victory against Cincinnati Sunday or Tampa Bay would give the Lions their first division championship since 1957.

Chicago and Minnesota both are fighting for wild card spots, and the Vikings still have an outside chance at winning the NFC Central. The Vikings could muster only three points in losing to Detroit Monday night to fall out of a first-place tie with the Lions.

San Francisco, which rides the passing arm of Joe Montana, will try to at least remain tied with the Los Angeles Rams for the NFC West lead. Buffalo still is in the hunt for a wild card spot.

DENVER, WITH rookie quarterback John Elway coming off a big game in the defeat of Cleveland last week in place of injured Steve DeBerg, can clinch a wild card spot against Baltimore if Buffalo and Seattle lose.

The Rams will try to bounce back from an upset loss to Philadelphia against New England and at least keep pace with San Francisco. A victory would clinch a wild card spot for Los Angeles. The Patriots need to win to stay in playoff contention.

New Orleans will try to remain in the playoff picture by snapping a string of five straight losses to Philadelphia, which will try for a second straight home victory after losing six straight there this season.

The Raiders, already champion of the AFC West, can maintain the conference's best record by beating St. Louis, which remains alive for a wild card spot.

Both Kansas City and San Diego are just playing out the season, as are the New York Giants, who will try to thwart Seattle's playoff hopes.

NCAA reprimands Jackson State

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The NCAA reprimanded Jackson State University for football infractions Friday. The action carries no penalty and will not affect the Mississippi school's post-season opportunities or television appearances.

The NCAA said in a news release that the case primarily involved violations "related to the recruitment of one prospect during the 1982-83 academic year." The NCAA said the prospect, who was not named, did not enroll at Jackson State.

Roswell quarterback top New Mexico All-State pick

By The Associated Press

Roswell quarterback Jim Miller, rated the top college prospect in New Mexico, heads The Associated Press' 1983 Class AAAA All-State football team.

Miller, who led Roswell High School to its best season in nearly 30 years, was the top vote-getter in the balloting by the state's AAAA coaches, sports writers and sportscasters.

Joining Miller in the first team backfield were Roswell halfback Daron Robertson, Albuquerque High's Ronell Brown, Clovis' Fred Baston and Manzano's Daryl Smith.

Miller, a 6-foot-1, 180-pound senior, was the catalyst on a Roswell team that went 11-1-1 and reached the state championship game for the first time since 1955. Roswell's only loss came in the state championship game against Clovis.

A made-to-order option quarterback, Miller ran for 1,193 yards this year for an average of 8.6 yards per carry. He also passed for another 730 yards. He ran for 18 touchdowns and passed for another nine on a Roswell team that averaged 30 points a game.

Miller has drawn considerable attention from college recruiters. The list includes Oklahoma, New Mexico, New Mexico State, Texas Tech, Baylor, Rice and Arizona.

"He is a major college quarterback and I he should be recruited that way," said Roswell Coach Jim Bradley.

New Mexico Coach Joe Lee Dunn, who has made it clear he will try to lure Miller to Albuquerque, calls the Roswell star "a very intelligent football player."

Robertson teamed with Miller to give the Coyotes an explosive combination. At 5-9 and 170-pounds, Robertson rushed for 1,211 yards and scored 100 points this season.

The 6-foot, 170-pound Brown was the player of the year in Albuquerque, rushing for 1,378 yards on an Albuquerque High team that went 5-5. He rushed for over 100 yards eight times this season and Bulldogs Coach Jody Villa calls him, "one of the best we've ever had at Albuquerque High."

Baston was the offensive key to Clovis' march to a third straight state title. Hampered by injuries through the first half of the season, Baston finished on an impressive roll. He rushed for over 100 yards in Clovis' last six games, including an 190-yard effort against Roswell in the championship game.

The smallest of the All-State backs at 5-foot-6 and 138-pounds, Baston gained 996 yards this season despite sitting out three games with injuries.

"There's no doubt we couldn't have gotten there without Fred," said Clovis Coach Eric Roanhaus. "He's 138 pounds of heart."

Smith was a 1,000-yard rusher at Manzano and led the Monarchs to a playoff berth. The 5-11, 190-pound senior was a three-year starter for Coach Dave Brummell.

Clovis also placed center Martel Pool, defensive end Tim Hartley and defensive backs Anthony Stevenson and Dramane Bunton on the first unit.

Stevenson was one of the state's most exciting performers this season. He scored six touchdowns as a defensive back, kickoff and punt returner. He had an 102-yard interception return against Eldorado and an 86-yard punt return for a TD against Roswell in the finals.

Roswell landed five players on the first-team offensive unit and four more on the first-team defense.

Other Coyotes selected on offense were wide receiver Tooter Lara, tight end Mitch White and lineman Otis Aldridge. On defense, lineman Matt Hardin, linebacker Odie Rodriguez and backs Doug Coffman and Eddie Glenny were picked on the first team.

Three Rivers Stadium sinking

PITTSBURGH (AP) — If the Pittsburgh Steelers have experienced a sinking feeling lately while playing at Three Rivers Stadium, it isn't just because of their three-game losing streak.

Part of the stadium's new $1.5 million playing surface is sinking, officials said.

Although the contractor in charge of a recent $17 million renovation at the stadium called the problem minor, Pittsburgh Pirates Treasurer Doug McCormick said he believes 30 percent of the artificial turf in the stadium will have to be torn out and replaced.

"We take it very seriously. It affects our house, so to speak," said Rick Bjorklund, the stadium general manager.

Joseph A. Massaro Jr., president of Massaro Corp., the company hired by the city to oversee the stadium's renovation, said the sinking is confined to a 2-foot-wide path circling first, second and third bases.

Massaro said the field has sunk no more than a half-inch.

But McCormick said the first-and third-base lines and a spot near the pitcher's mound also have settled. The sagging was discovered early this summer and "seems to be getting progressively worse," he said.

Several officials attributed the sinking to inadequate backfilling when concrete beams were removed from the stadium floor during the renovation. The top layer of the old asphalt was scraped off and the entire floor was repaved prior to laying a quarter-inch rubber cushion and AstroTurf.

Leigh's syndrome kills children as they sleep

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP) — For Larry and Colleen Rickard, reading a bedtime story and helping the children say their prayers isn't a casual routine. Unlike most parents, they can't assume the loving ritual will be repeated the next evening.

Sudden death, most often during sleep, has already claimed the lives of four of the couple's children during the past seven years — Sheila died in June 1976 at 26 months; her twin sister, Shelley, died five months later; 1½-year-old Allan died in December 1978 and Samantha, 28 months old, died in June 1983.

Now the Rickards fear they may be deceived by the apparent good health of their remaining 4½-year-old daughter and 20-month-old son.

Medical researchers have identified the problem that haunts the family as Leigh's syndrome. And doctors say the genetic disorder — or perhaps several types of disorders that mimic each other — may be claiming more lives around the nation than previously imagined.

Mrs. Rickard, 27, recently sat in the living room of their home in this south-central Nebraska community of 21,000 people and discussed the horror of not knowing when her next child might suddenly die.

"They kept telling us it wouldn't happen again, it wouldn't happen again," she said, her voice trailing off as she remembered the doctors' words of comfort after each death.

She apologized for the tears that came to her eyes as she pointed out her children's pictures in a photo album.

"It's just that life goes on, and Larry and I just kind of hung onto its hand and went with it," she said.

Mrs. Rickard, whose 28-year-old husband works in the assembly and testing department of a Rockwell International plant here, said she has started a journal to relieve her feelings of fear, anger and guilt. Long talks with her pastor also have helped, she added.

When pressed to put something on the children's death certificates, the Rickards' doctors originally listed such things as sudden infant death syndrome and Reyes syndrome. But they said they really didn't know why the children died.

Later, they referred the Rickards to Dr. Bruce Buehler, head of the genetics department at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha.

Using a test developed only a year ago at Yale, Buehler found that the children died of Leigh's syndrome, a little-understood disorder in which the body is unable to break down lactic acid into usable sugars, allowing toxic levels of the acid to build up in the body.

When a normal person ingests thiamine, Buehler said, it combines with enzymes in the liver which change lactic acid — which can harm the brain — into sugars that can be used by the body.

Documented cases of Leigh's syndrome, first identified in the late 1950s, indicate about one in 25,000 children suffer from it, Buehler said.

"But it may be much more common than that if we could diagnose it," he said. "Many of these children in the past have probably died and the doctors just said they had died for unknown reasons."

Since the affliction seems to kill as its victims sleep, the Rickard children, Arlene and John, are put on monitors whenever they are in bed. If they have irregular heartbeats or stop breathing, an alarm will sound. Mrs. Rickard is also trained in cardio-pulmonary resusitation in case she and her husband can not get their children to the hospital immediately.

Buehler said doctors are still trying to determine how to treat the disorder, which he said may have many causes but appears in the Rickards' case to be "a poisoning of the brain."

He said most children first show signs of the condition, which is nearly always fatal, between the ages of 1 and 8. Lactic acid is produced in the body's muscle tissue, Buehler explained, and the child appears healthy until he grows to the size where he has sufficient muscle tissue to produce a fatal level of lactic acid.

Buehler said his staff is experimenting with a treatment that appears to have brought improvements for two patients.

The treatment involves extremely high doses of the vitamin B compound thiamine, with the large amounts theoretically allowing some of the thiamine to bind with enzymes in the liver, in spite of the genetic inhibition.

Mrs. Rickard said she fears that her two living children will discover they might die like their brother and sisters, and become preoccupied with death.

Paper's editor can whip up more than just good stories

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Can you beat this?

When Don Thornton wants to whip up an omelet, he can choose from dozens of antique eggbeaters hanging from his kitchen wall.

If none of them is right for the job, hundreds more are stacked in drawers and cupboards in the dining room a few feet away.

Thornton collects old eggbeaters. By his count, he has more than 550 now, and the number keeps going up.

"One can never have enough of them, you know," he explains.

Some of the eggbeaters are little more than twisted wires with simple gears. Others are large, elaborate and shiny — made during the era when America had recently discovered its industrial might.

"Man used to express himself — his personality — in designing eggbeaters," says Thornton, reaching for one whose blades resemble those of a helicopter.

The eggbeater hanging next to it looks and works like a child's mechanical top. Its handle is a red, wooden ball attached to a foot-long plunger. Pushing it up and down turns the dashers. A flywheel maintains the momentum between strokes.

"There's an eggbeater for every occasion," says Thornton, turning his attention to a long, skinny model that looks like a unicycle. "This one is used for mixing eggs in tall, narrow glasses."

Why collect eggbeaters?

"What's the point of collecting something that everyone else does? I know of only four other people doing this — and this collection is by far the biggest."

He got the idea several years ago when, as a reporter in California, he was assigned to do a story on a fellow who had 50 eggbeaters.

THE DAY THE COMPUTER FAILED

If you're tired of being treated like a number you'll appreciate this story . . . They asked the computer a simple question it couldn't answer!

"NOT PROGRAMMED FOR THIS FACTOR." Everyone was astounded. Then they discovered that a typist copying the word sole had spelled it S-O-U-L.

Thank the Lord that all of life cannot be programmed like a computer. There are values and realities—precious ones—which defy mathematical expression.

We will be looking for you in Church next week. We are the millions of your neighbors who are seeking and finding spiritual answers to life's problems.

Pope's sermon not just symbolism

By JOHN WINN MILLER

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II's sermon at a Lutheran church this Sunday will be more symbolism than substance, religious leaders say, because Roman Catholics and Lutherans, while moving closer together, remain deeply split over basic issues.

"The real reason for the separation still exists so it is not possible to see a united church in the short run," said Pastor Giorgio Giradet, spokesman for the Italian Federation of Evangelical (Lutheran) Churches. One main reason, he said, is the disagreement over the powers of the pope himself.

The Rev. Aloys Klein, a Roman Catholic priest who is an expert on Protestantism and serves on the Vatican's Secretariat for the Union of Christians, said, "A great number of problems remain unresolved."

But both men agreed in interviews that tremendous strides have been made toward uniting the world's 790 million Roman Catholics and 70 million Lutherans 462 years after Martin Luther launched the Protestant Reformation.

Highlighting the progess is John Paul's letter praising Luther, on the 500th anniversary of his birth last month, for his "profound religiousness" and the pope's agreement to join Lutherans at Sunday's service. It will be the first time a pope has preached at a Protestant church in his own diocese.

GIRADET SAID the letter merely repeated what Roman Catholic theologians have been saying for years. But it was important for the pope to say it because for many Catholics "Luther was equated with the devil...Now we can speak frankly about Luther."

As for the papal visit, Giradet said, "It is important, but not a major breakthrough."

The Vatican's Klein said John Paul "is doing what any bishop or priest would do" in seeking understanding with his neighbors. "It is certainly a strong symbol of sharing, but not so astonishing."

Klein said John Paul would preach on the Gospel and not discuss Luther during the service, which will not include Holy Communion — a sacrament the two churches celebrate differently.

Despite their differences, the two churches have come much closer together since the day in 1517 when Luther nailed his famous 95 theses to a church door in Wittenburg, Germany.

In his theses, Luther objected to the way indulgences, or pardons of punishment for sin, were being sold to finance the building of St. Peter's Basilica in Rome.

What Luther saw as a sincere effort to correct a local abuse, the Vatican took as a dangerous attack against one of its largest sources of income. Luther later broadened his attacks against the church and was excommunicated in 1521, launching the Protestant Reformation that tore Europe apart in often bloody sectarian warfare.

YET, 46 YEARS later Pope Pius V banned the sale of indulgences. But they are still granted for acts of piety, religious belief and similar reasons.

AP Laserphoto

The U.S. Postal Service recently issued this 20-cent stamp commemorating the 500th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther, Nov. 11, 1483.

"Nearly half of the 95 theses are Catholic doctrine today," said Klein. "In fact, the very first thesis, the obligation on doing penance, was reaffirmed by the Second Vatican Council (1962-65)."

The Vatican Council also adopted a number of reforms of Protestantism, including worship in the peoples' languages, an affirmation of religious liberty, greater emphasis on the Bible and more voice for laity in church affairs.

The underlying themes of Luther's theses and his later works were that salvation comes only through faith in God's mercy and not through good works as the Church maintained in its justification of indulgences. He also emphasized the importance of studying Scripture.

A joint U.S. Commission of Lutheran and Roman Catholic theologians issued a historic document this year agreeing that salvation comes only through faith in God's mercy, and not by human good works. But they also concurred that good works are a necessary result of the process.

The two churches also have reached accords on Baptism, Holy Communion, the ministry and church teaching authority.

BUT GIRADET said the churches remain divided on "many, many things about priesthood, confession, celebration of the sacraments."

He said one of the main stumbling blocks to unity is the authority of the pope.

"Some Protestants would be ready to accept the pope as a symbol of unity, something like the queen of England. But the Catholic Church considers the pope as the real ruler and no Protestant could accept that," he said.

Partly because of the growing mutual understanding, talk has been revived of the Roman Catholic Church removing the excommunication of Luther or even making him a saint.

But both Giradet and Klein said it would never do either. Klein pointed to a speech marking Luther's birthday last Nov. 11 by Cardinal Johannes Willebrands, president of the Secretariat for the Union of Christians.

Willebrands made clear in his speech that the excommunication was irrevocable because it was meant to "show unequivocally that there were errors and mistakes" in Luther's behavior and teachings.

Voodoo cults thrive in Brazil

SALVADOR, Brazil (AP) — Voodoo cults thrive in this huge South American country, where on most nights thousands of followers of old African sects lapse into trances, offer animal sacrifices and worship spirits that have been merged with Roman Catholic saints.

Brazil is nominally the world's largest Roman Catholic country, with 90 percent of the nation's 131 million people claiming to be followers, but the church has given tacit consent to the cult worshipers.

The Rev. Timoteo Amoroso of the 401-year-old Sao Bento Benedictine Church said official church policy was against the cults. "But if we had a hard inflexible attitude we would lose them all," he said.

"We are very far from Rome, and the Vatican can send an order that says we have to do this or that about Candomble, but no one will follow it."

Candomble is a sect brought here by West Africans herded onto slave ships. In homes tucked away in the back streets of this northeastern coastal city, adherents of Candomble regularly don colorful traditional garb and to the beat of drums try to invoke its spirits.

Candomble is said to be the purest of the sects because it retains the African language of Yoruba for its chants. It is predominant in the state of Bahia.

More common elsewhere in Brazil are Macumba and Umbanda, which mix their African roots with traits from the Portuguese and Amer-Indians. Tens of thousands of Brazilians take part in these rituals.

Central to all of the cults is the merger of the African deities with Roman Catholic saints.

"Catholicism was imposed on the slaves," said theologist Luiza Marques in an interview at her home here. "There was a saying that it was better to be a baptized slave than a free pagan.

"They saw the saints and incorporated them," she said. "Now they are merged so deeply that you cannot separate them."

The Singing Nelsons

Singing Nelsons to perform at First Church of Nazarene

The Singing Nelsons will be performing at First Church of the Nazarene, Wall Avenue and F Street, Sunday during the 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m. services.

Tommy Nelson started singing at a very young age and traveled as a song evangelist before he married Dorothy. He served as minister of music 11 years. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson appeared on television eight years.

They have three teen-age daughters, JaNa, who has composed music since she was 10 and plays the piano, electronic keyboard and all percussion instruments; Cheryl, clarinet; and Rae Jean, flute. Each member of the family sings solos as well as in combinations with other family members.

The church's minister, the Rev. Harold Quarles, invites the public to hear the Singing Nelsons.

First Baptist to perform 'Messiah'

Handel's "Messiah" will be presented by First Baptist Church, 2104 W. Louisiana Ave., at 7 p.m. Sunday.

Parts I, II and III will be performed by the Sanctuary Choir, orchestra and soloists Dr. Jim Humphreys, Max Black, Charlotte Whitaker, Duke Jimerson, Janice Archer, Viola Campbell, Sharon Hyde and Linda Flynt.

Composed in two weeks in 1741 by George Frederick Handel, the "Messiah" was first performed in Dublin, Ireland, April 13, 1742, with Handel conducting the performance.

The work tells the story of man's redemption by God.

Part I sets forth the promise of the Redeemer, the birth of Jesus Christ the Messiah, and his mission of healing and comfort on Earth. Part II is devoted to Christ's passion and suffering on the cross, his resurrection and ascension from the tomb and the establishment of the Kingdom of God on Earth. Part III deals with the Christian belief in the resurrection of the body and ends with the triumph of the redeemed and the glory of Heaven with Christ reigning forever and ever.

The public is invited to attend the performance.

Church group hopes to replace medicine

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Council of Churches is conducting a $200,000 fund-raising drive to buy medicine for Nicaragua.

The medicine will be used to partially replace 40 tons of medicine that the council says was destroyed by anti-government guerrillas in an October raid at the port of Corinto.

The drive is being conducted by the Church World Service, the relief and development arm of the national council. The Church World Service will buy the medicine and ship it to a colleague agency in Nicaragua, CEPAD.

UMC membership drops 9.8 percent

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Membership in the United Methodist Church dropped by 9.8 percent during the 1970s, according to a study prepared by a church research specialist.

The denomination had 9.53 million members in 1980, a loss of 1.03 million from 1970, according to the study by the Rev. James Miller, who is a staff member at the General Board of Discipleship in Nashville, Tenn.

The highest rate of loss was in the 12-state Western Jursidiction, where membership dropped 18.9 percent.

Midland minister's group chooses officers for 1984

New officers for the Midland Ministerial Association for 1984 are the Rev. Chuck Redger, president; the Rev. Bill Mayne, vice president; and the Rev. Jim Moore, secretary-treasurer.

The Midland Ministerial Association offers fellowship and inspiration for the ministers of Midland. The group meets at the cafeteria of the First Baptist Church the first Thursday of each month at 11:45 a.m.

During the luncheon meetings, special speakers cover a variety of topics of interest to a minister's life and work. Some of the subjects covered last year were "The Pastor and His Family," "Counseling the Unwed Mother" and "Ministering to Families of Remarriage."

All area ministers are invited to the meetings. For more information call 682-3244.

Texan earns respect of town by making do with what he has

BONHAM, Texas (AP) — Jesse Higgs grew up in a hurry. He had no choice. His father had his left arm sheared off by a drunken truck driver. All there was left was a piece of flesh holding on that arm one night near Sherman. Jesse's father clipped the flesh and let the arm go.

Then it was up to the boys in the family. Jesse was 12. He and his brother quit school to work, and let the girls in the family get an education.

Jesse Higgs never complained.

The Great Depression was on. Times were hard. Jesse made do. He had no choice. Later in life, he would come to know a man named Sam Rayburn, another man who made do, who knew the meaning of poverty. They became friends.

Big men were to come to see Sam Rayburn in later years. They all had to meet Sam Rayburn's friend, Jesse Higgs.

He was no poor boy looking for a handout. He was a man who would lend a hand to another who needed one. Higgs earned the respect of the people who knew him.

He went around as a youth and found pieces of old bicycles, took the wheels off an old push type lawnmower, made his own bicycle. He made his own baseball from twine wrapped in a sock. He made his own baseball bat from a willow limb.

Mrs. Ray Peeler Sr. remembers well how her son Ray Jr. was given a Shetland pony to ride. The pony had a lot of spirit, and Jesse and his brother would lead the pony with Peeler on it.

Ray Peeler grew up a lot with Jesse. Jesse got many a meal from the Peelers.

JESSE REMEMBERS the days when Sunday dinner was fried chicken if you could get it, hot biscuits, sweet milk from a cistern, whatever the garden would yield that week.

In the spring he would search along the railroad tracks for dewberries, later it would be blackberries, and you had to chase the snakes away to get those.

Ice cream came when the cow wasn't dry, there were a few pennies for a chunk of ice. To top it off a family could gather hickory nuts and pecans, add some black strap molasses and that was pie.

Hard times was all he knew, all most anyone knew. Jesse and his family did not think the world owed them a living. They made do.

A man was lucky who could get salt pork at 3 cents a pound, soak it overnight, fry some for breakfast, save the drippings for the next day to make gravy with.

Kids who were lucky enough to be able to go to school took fried sausage and biscuits to school for lunch. The lucky ones did.

Jesse remembers it all. But he doesn't complain. He remembers how he was befriended by Rayburn, how Mr. Sam gave him lumber to build a house with, one of his own. Jesse had been raised close to where Fort Inglish stands.

His father was a carpenter, a man who worked where and when he could. Jesse followed him, picked up on the skills of his father. His father was a proud man, proud of his workmanship, and it showed.

After he became disabled it was up to Jesse and his brother to support the family the best they could.

JESSE DID anything he could to get a little money or something in return.

He remembers when cotton was king in Fannin County, but the men and boys who picked it, chopped it, kept the winds out — no kings there.

Good times were getting ½-cent a pound for picking it. Jesse Higgs is a big man. A tall, proud man. His hands can envelop you. His laughter is the best tonic in town. He has the face of a happy man.

But in his younger days those big hands could pull 500 loads of cotton a day. That was a load. He was known to pass out in the fields from the heat, but, never mind. He got up and kept going.

Hard times were all there were around. Welfare did not exist. There were no food stamps, no handouts.

All he had was his two hands and some friends who knew and liked him then, and respect him today.

He came to know Sam Rayburn, and Rayburn was his friend. He was Rayburn's friend. Rayburn would come home to North Texas from Washington and before long he would show up at Jesse's. He was a man at ease there. They would sit on his front porch.

Rayburn was always inquiring about the family, Jesse's needs. When work began in the 1950s on the Sam Rayburn Memorial Library, Jesse had a part in its construction. A part of him is there, always will be.

When the library opened in 1957, Jesse Higgs became a part of it, the maintenance man.

H.G. DULANEY, director of the library, says of Higgs:

"They say there is no indispensable man, but Jesse comes as near to it as anyone I know.

"I don't know what we'd do without him. He can do anything, fix anything. It's just remarkable."

He is still a young man, just 58 years old. He cares for the library and its grounds, for he is a part of it all.

He still remembers the days of swinging a syrup bucket as he would go searching for berries. He knew all there was to know about looking out for snakes, where the wild plums grow, the peaches, the pears.

MacPhelan Reese of the library staff says, "Jesse Higgs is one of the most respected men in this town."

Jesse made do, and then some. He raised three children. One is a scriptwriter for KXAS-TV in Fort Worth. Another is a social worker in Dallas, and the other a star football player at Bonham High School.

He has been described by Mrs. Peeler as "one of the finest human beings I have ever known."

Reese says simply: the way people feel about him, "there is respect in it, and there's more than that."

Resse says that "Jesse learned to weave corn shucks for the bottom of cane chairs. Poverty counts some people out...but not his family...Poverty gave him ingenuity. He can fix anything. He is one of the finest mechanics in town. His father never acceeded to hard luck. He didn't wait for the Lord or the federal government. He provided for his own until tragedy struck. Necessity brought forth ingenuity in Jesse."

Officials confident in Volvos

ADDISON, Texas (AP) — Addison officials are giving their Dallas suburb a European flair by replacing their American-made police cars with Volvos.

After eight months in service, nine European-made Volvos have won a vote of confidence from city officials, who recently authorized the purchase of three more Volvos to replace the remaining Chevrolet Malibus in the department's fleet.

"The Volvo is a good police car. It's engineered for safety. It comes with heavy-duty shocks and gets better gas mileage. It's still early to tell, but so far we're satisfied with what we've seen," said City Manager Ron Whitehead.

Police statistics show that the Volvos average 14.8 miles per gallon of gas and the Chevrolets averaged 9.5 mpg.

The Volvos also outscored the Malibus in the least time lost for repairs, police said.

The Volvos Addison bought cost $11,400 each.

Camouflage clothing has message

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Whether it's politics, patriotism or just the latest fad, Pennsylvania surplus store owners say kids have gone "nuts" over military camouflage clothing this Christmas season.

Warren Sudler, manager of I. Goldberg's, a military surplus store in downtown Philadelphia, said he's even selling tiny, specially made camouflage uniforms for toddlers at $27 each.

"We have a lot of frantic parents looking for camouflage for their kids," he said. "I would call it more than a fad."

Bill Bonn of Army-Navy Surplus in Pittsburgh said he noticed just before Halloween that kids were buying camouflage uniforms, green camouflage face paint and matching hats.

Since then, he said, the demand is so great his store had to start a waiting list.

Bonn speculated that the Oct. 23 terrorist attack that killed 240 U.S. servicemen in Beirut, Lebanon, and the U.S. invasion of Grenada may have boosted the popularity of military garb.

"I think we've finally bounced back from our Vietnam Yippies or hippies or whatever," Bonn observed.

"The kids have gone nuts for camouflage," said Don Keefer of Keefer's Army-Navy in Kingston, in northeastern Luzerne County, as goods flowed steadily past cashiers. "There's no way anyone could have anticipated this demand. It's whacky."

Sudler had no ready explanation, but said he got the feeling that "underneath it seems to be a kind of unity for the United States." Keefer suggested patriotism.

"I would say this whole tough-guy image is part of the Reagan administration and that filters down in lots of ways," said David M. Jacobs, an associate professor of history and popular culture at Temple University in Philadelphia.

Employees of I. Goldberg's , a military surplus store in Philadelphia, wear clothing of the type which Pennsylvania surplus store owners say kids have gone "nuts" over this Christmas season. One store owner said he had no ready explanation for the craze, but added he got the feeling that "underneath it seems to be a kind of unity for the United States."

"In a way it's a kind of bizarre throwback to the 1950s when ... America had power, unbelievable power compared to other countries," he said. "You get a longing for that, a feeling that America should reclaim its rightful place, that America shouldn't be bullied around. This may come out in military clothes. Military clothes do suggest an aggressiveness and toughness, a kind of belligerency."

Whatever the reason, Bobbie Selizker of Ardmore Army-Navy, which has four stores in the Philadelphia suburbs, said, "Camouflage is extremely big these days and we're having difficulty getting the merchandise."

"At one time it was just hunters; now it's kids," said Arlene Ross of the Broad Street Army-Navy Store in Harrisburg. And, she said, some people are also inquiring about buying helicopters, parachutes and anti-tank weapons.

Jacobs noted that during the 1960s and '70s, when the military became unpopular because of the Vietnam war, some youths wore military clothing as a form of protest.

"In a way it's a kind of bizarre throwback to the 1950s when ... America had power, unbelievable power compared to other countries. You get a longing for that, a feeling that America should reclaim its rightful place, that America shouldn't be bullied around. This may come out in military clothes. Military clothes do suggest an aggressiveness and toughness, a kind of belligerency."

Birds 'mother' Carey's chickens

"Mother Carey's chickens" was the name English-speaking sailors gave to several types of sea birds, particularly the stormy petrel. It was an Anglicization of the Latin "mater cara" ("dear mother"), an illusion to the Virgin Mary, traditionally the protectress of seafarers.

Soviet wins contest on 'American Way'

OMAHA, Neb.(AP) — A teen-ager who spent the first 13½ years of his life in the Soviet Union has won an essay contest for a composition on the "American Way."

Greg Kosinovsky, now 17 and a senior at Burke High School, was given a $150 savings bond as first prize in the competition sponsored by the Exchange Club of Omaha.

"The 'American Way,' as I understand it, is a synonym for democracy," he wrote. "While we have no business forcing it on anybody, we should at least see that the most nations get a fair chance at it."

Kosinovsky, who moved here when his family emigrated in 1979, said his childhood in the Soviet Union was "like growing up anywhere."

Samantha, other youths question arms control chief

NEW YORK (AP) — Samantha Smith, the Maine youngster who visited Russia at Soviet leader Yuri Andropov's invitation, fired questions along with two other children at the chief of the U.S. arms control agency on national television Friday.

Samantha, 11, asked Kenneth Adelman why the United States seemed to spend more money on weapons than on trying to help the poor or going ahead with peace talks.

"What we want to do, Samantha, is spend money both for safety, to preserve our freedom, and to help the poor," replied Adelman.

"And the fact is that it is of tremendous value to help people in need but it's also of tremendous value to keep us all free and to keep us all safe and to keep us all out of war."

Lee Iacococa

The arms director, who was in Washington, and Samantha, who was in New York, appeared on NBC's "Today" show with Julia Duchrow, 12, in Frankfurt, West Germany, and Anatol Sleeman, 8, in London.

Samantha, who lives in Manchester, Maine, became a celebrity when she her trip to the Soviet Union after writing to Andropov about her war fears.

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler chief Lee Iacocca says he'll stay in the driver's seat of the No. 3 automaker for at least three more years, putting the brakes on speculation that he might retire or seek political office.

The outside directors of Chrysler, which escaped bankruptcy in 1979 under Iacocca's leadership, announced an agreement Thursday that could net him up to $5.5 million if he stays at the wheel for four years.

"This ought to put an end to the rumors," the 59-year-old executive said.

The agreement calls for Iacocca to stay for three years as chairman and chief executive, with the option to remain a fourth.

"I'm happy about it. I feel honored they want me to stay on the board four or more years," said Iacocca, whose appearances in Chrysler advertisements have helped him become one of the America's most recognized corporate figures.

KETCHUM, Idaho (AP) — Singer-composer Carole King made a guest appearance at the Ernest Hemingway Elementary School's annual Christmas production.

Ms. King, whose hit songs in the 70s included "You've Got a Friend" and "It's Too Late," made a brief speech introducing the Beatles tune "Let It Be" Thursday night. Then, she sang with the children, whose parents were in the audience.

"We must look within ourselves for the ever-present light of love," she said before they sang. "Let it shine. Let it be."

Speaking of the threat of nuclear war and a world she said is moving closer toward that depicted in George Orwell's novel, "1984," Ms. King urged the audience to participate in the quest for peace by loving one another.

The performer, whose central Idaho ranch is about 100 miles east of Ketchum, made hand motions along with the children as they sang the song.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Billy Martin, the fired and rehired manager of the New York Yankees baseball team, will be the keynote speaker at a farm convention here next month.

Martin will address the 27th annual Nebraska Agricultural Exposition. More than 600 exhibitors will display farm supplies and equipment, which opens Jan. 25.

Bob Anderson, president of convention sponsor Association Services Inc., said Friday he wasn't sure what Martin would talk about, but he was certain it would include baseball and motivation.

Martin, who has repeatedly lost and regained his manager's job, will probably attract a full house of 2,000 when he speaks in the Civic Auditorium next month, Anderson said.

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Shipping heiress Christina Onassis has paid off $11.8 million in death duties on her late father's estates in Greece, ending an eight-year tax battle, her attorney said Friday.

Christina Onassis

Ms. Onassis' check for 767 million drachmas — equivalent to $8 million — arrived at the Greek Finance Ministry Thursday, according to attorney Stelios Papadimitriou.

The check was the last payment on the 1.73 billion drachmas, or $11.8 million, the 33-year-old heiress had agreed to pay the government.

Ms. Onassis had tried to prove that she was not liable for taxes on the properties she inherited from her father, Aristotle Onassis, after his death March 15, 1975.

The Finance Ministry claimed she should pay 3.5 billion drachmas, or $35.6 million, in death duties on the private island of Scorpios in the Ionian Sea, several villas near Athens and some undeveloped real estate in western Greece and near the Greek capital.

But in a deal struck last week with the government, Ms. Onassis agreed to pay 1.73 billion drachmas in inheritance taxes. She also promised to fund a $30 million open-heart surgery center, the first in Athens.

Woman wins trip for 42-day stay in treehouse

GLENDALE, Ariz. (AP) — A woman who spent 42 days living in a tiny house 15 feet off the ground climbed down from her cold perch Friday and said she was looking forward to her reward — a week in the Mexican sun.

Gloria Skinner, 27, said she felt fine after the stunt, part of a fund-raising campaign for the Multiple Sclerosis Society. She said she would do it again, "but not right away."

After attending a fund raising luncheon marking the end of her agreement with sponsors, she said, she wanted to "run in a straight line for half a mile."

"Next, I want to soak in a bathtub for about an hour and then start on Christmas shopping."

Ms. Skinner estimated she made about 5,000 calls to area businesses seeking funds while living in the 10-foot-square house atop a pole. She said the solicitations took between six to eight hours on weekdays, leaving the rest of her time free.

In return for the 1,000-hour stay, she received $3,500 in salary and a week's vacation in Mexico.

She starts the vacation Saturday at a resort near Puerto Vallarta, and plans to use the salary to begin work Jan. 16 toward a master's degree in biochemistry at Northern Arizona University.

"It will be a couple weeks, as I understand it, before there is a definite figure on how much was raised, but I'm told it will be more than $10,000," she said. "That's a real good feeling."

The treehouse had a twin bed, shower-bathroom, chair and TV set. There was a space heater for warmth, "but it wasn't safe to keep it on all night, so I bundled up and used the electric blanket" when nighttime temperatures dipped into the 30s.

For food, a neighborhood fast-food restaurant supplied choices from its menu of hamburgers, fried chicken and egg sandwiches.

Doctors OK breast cancer detection report

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An American Medical Association report on breast cancer detection has won approval by delegates despite criticism by doctors who fear its wording may lead to more malpractice suits.

A resolution based on the report was hotly debated before winning narrow approval Wednesday from AMA delegates meeting in Los Angeles.

The report advised women over 50 to undergo X-ray mammograms annually and women over 30 to be examined by a doctor once a year for early signs of a tumor.

The report by the AMA's Council of Scientific Affairs also included a number of specific recommendations about tests that physicians should perform on potentially cancerous cysts as well as the need for physicians to encourage monthly breast self-examination by younger women.

But the recommendations, similar to those made by the American Cancer Society, were criticized by some AMA delegates who wanted the report's language toned down and made less specific.

Opponents claimed doctors who failed to follow the AMA guidelines could be sued for malpractice.

"They don't like anything that a lawyer can get hold of," Dr. Ray Gifford, chairman of the scientific council, said of the report's opponents. "They want it toned down, not as dogmatic."

Possible scandal sending shudders through courts

CHICAGO (AP) — In the nation's largest court system, these are days of high anxiety. Names are about to be named. Secrets are about to be revealed. Scandal is in the air.

Now, three years after it began, Operation Greylord, an Abscam-style probe touted as the most ambitious investigation of judicial corruption in U.S. history, is about to go public.

It promises to be a tale of intrigue and adventure: a "white knight" judge who concealed a tape recorder in his cowboy boots, FBI 'moles' posing as corrupt prosecutors and a "Boy Scout" state's attorney who turned to life in the fast lane to snare crooked defense lawyers.

Reports also have surfaced of deals cut in bars, an FBI agent snapping pictures of a judge counting money and even electronic 'bugs' placed inside the chambers of at least two judges — believed to be the first such court-approved eavesdropping.

As many as 100 phony criminal cases also were created to ferret out Cook County's kinky lawyers, judges and courtroom fixers as part of Greylord, said former Police Superintendent Richard Brzeczek.

Now, some judges, attorneys and police officers accustomed to ajudicating millions of cases each year, including tens of thousands of felonies, will be getting a fresh look at law and order — from a defendant's eye view.

In recent days, scores have been advised by the Justice Department they were overheard in legal wiretaps — sometimes in judges' chambers. Not all are suspected of criminal activity. Some also have been advised they are targets of the Greylord probe.

Part of Greylord, named after the wigs worn by British jurists, reportedly focused on narcotics and traffic courts — just two parts of Cook County's immense judicial system that includes 322 judges and 20,000 licensed attorneys.

One judge — who was relieved of official duties Monday — predicts he will be indicted. By the end of next week, as many as four judges, eight lawyers and four police officers and other court personnel reportedly will be charged with crimes.

"What this has done is intimidate everybody," said Edward Genson, a veteran defense attorney who has confirmed his client, Judge Wayne Olson, is expected to be indicted. "People are afraid to practice law. People are afaid to be judges."

Indeed, some say caution has replaced cordiality since word of Greylord first leaked last summer when Brocton Lockwood, a southern Illinois judge serving a stint in Chicago's Traffic Court, disclosed he was an undercover agent, wearing a microphone under his robe and and carrying a tape recorder in his cowboy boot.

Since then, some say judges are anxious to put more on the record. Attorneys are reluctant to waive juries for fear of being misinterpreted. And every word in private conferences is being weighed carefully.

Though no one has yet been charged with a crime, the Greylord investigation already has created legal tremors — both for its methods and the message it may carry.

Some veteran defense attorneys are outraged, arguing the legal wiretapping of judicial chambers is an invasion of private conversations of hundreds of innocent people.

"There are certain things I say to people that are not crimes but I don't want the FBI to know it," said Sam Adam, a defense attorney who said he's been approached to represent some lawyers who fear they may be indicted in the Greylord case.

Adds Sherman Magidson, another defense attorney: "It's 1984 and the tape recorder has taken over."

Others in the system say Greylord will further tarnish an already tarnished reputation in a town where cops on the take, politicians on the make and wheeling and dealing sometimes have been a way of life.

"It's going to confirm a (mistaken) belief that all lawyers and judges are corrupt everywhere," Adam said. "People in general think lawyers are fixers and all judges are on the take.... Judges are in big trouble come November."

Though some judges say there is no apprehension, Judge James Bailey, who serves in criminal court, said Greylord will hurt jurists who are on the retention ballot this fall and must get a 60 percent approval rate to stay on the bench.

"Nobody likes a crook," Bailey said. "Nobody likes anyone under indictment. Nobody likes anyone with a cloud over his or her head."

And that cloud definitely is hovering over the judicial system, said Judge Kenneth Gillis.

"The public," Gillis said, "could perceive that 50 percent of the judiciary is involved, when it could be only two to three, if any."

The number of indictments expected is a tiny percentage of the lawyers and judges operating in Cook County.

Small city puts on big exhibit

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Harbored in this small Adirondack mountain city, hundreds of miles from the culture centers of the East Coast, is a villa where artworks by Rembrandt, Degas and Botticelli populate the Hyde Collection.

Rubens, Renoir and Matisse are also familiar names within the small public museum begun by Glens Falls residents Louis and Charlotte Hyde.

The collection exists in relative obscurity in upstate New York, almost 200 miles from New York City. But the ambiance of the collection and its location set it apart from larger, more famous museums. Even though the museum is publicly owned, it still holds the intimacy of the Hydes' home and only the 15th-century Nuremberg Chronicles are displayed under glass.

Seventeenth- and 18th-century French and 16th-century Italian furniture still complement the rooms. Art is displayed often just where Charlotte Hyde found it most appealing — such as Picasso's "Boy Holding a Blue Vase," which she kept in her own bedroom, and Rubens' "Head of A Negro," radiant when lit by sun rays filtering though the curtained skylight in the parlor.

"This is a museum about collecting," says museum Director Frederick J. Fisher. "It's (the collection) as important to the history of collecting as it is to art itself."

The Hydes had moved to Glens Falls from Hingham, Mass., in 1907 to take part in the Finch, Pruyn Paper Co., owned by Charlotte's father, Samuel Pruyn. They developed a loyalty to the area that has become incorporated in the museum.

After their 2½-story stucco home was completed in 1913, the Hydes began to travel to Europe, purchasing furniture to accent the Renaissance Florentine-style villa.

But it was not until the 1920s, when their house had been furnished sufficiently to their tastes, that the Hydes began to collect art in earnest.

This lifesize German bisque doll by Armand Marseille is one of the 600 dolls in the Franks Doll Museum in Marshall, Texas.

Museum displays 600 dolls

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — To children, dolls are friends, confidantes and reliable companions. Adults like them, too, but not usually for the same reasons.

In most cases, those childhood friends become the dust catchers of adulthood. If they are not packed away in cardboard boxes with other trinkets of days past, they are haphazardly tossed aside, forgotten and a bit frayed from too much well-meaning love.

When they are retrieved, it is usually to face a new owner, followed by residence in another box in another musty basement.

But dolls face a much brighter future in the hands of collectors, who care for a variety of wooden, china and bisque friends, dressing them in appropriate costumes and sharing them with a community of people attuned to the values of dolls.

The business of collecting dolls has turned into big business. Prices skyrocketed as interest grew, according to East Texas doll collectors Clara and Francis Franks, owners of Franks Doll Museum in Marshall.

"Dolls are the No. 1 collector's item in the United States today," Franks said. "It used to be stamps first, coins second, guns third and then dolls."

And if that isn't enough to attest to a doll's popularity, Franks said, "Thirty-five percent of doll collectors are men."

The Franks converted the garage of their turn-of-the-century home into a doll museum. About 600 dolls, from a series of German bisque dolls to a French wax mannequin, are displayed.

Cases filled with dolls line the small room. Few people can browse through the museum without spotting at least one doll that they are familiar with or that attracts their attention.

The Franks began collecting during World War II and over the years have amassed enough dolls to attract the attention of enthusiasts from all over the country.

The museum is open these days by chance or by appointment, but the Franks still can tell a visitor virtually everything they want to know about every doll they have collected.

Dolls made as early as 1830 had three-dimensional eyes. Franks compared the eyes to a glass eye for humans. And most of the eyes in the early dolls were what he called "sleepy-eyed" — the eyes open and close.

The dolls in the cases are dressed in costumes appropriate to the period in which they were manufactured.

Cincinnati remembers its veterans

CINCINNATI (AP) — Vietnamese natives who have moved to Cincinnati are helping raise money for a Vietnam veterans' memorial to show they haven't forgotten what the soldiers did for the Vietnamese.

Hue Roettele, president of the Vietnamese-American Association of Cincinnati, says her group got involved voluntarily in the fund-raising effort because its members believe that the Vietnam veterans have earned the recognition.

"We all volunteered," she said. "We think we owe them something. We don't want anybody to forget them. They did quite a job to help us."

Earl Corell, a Vietnam veteran who is president of the Cincinnati chapter of the Vietnam Veterans of America, has spent 16 months raising money toward the $75,000 needed to erect and maintain the veterans' memorial in the city's Eden Park. His organization has received help from numerous community supporters, but the aid from Ms. Roettele's group came as a surprise.

Ms. Roettele contacted Corell and said she wanted to do something to help with the veterans' memorial. She arranged a fund-raising dinner dance and concert by a Vietnamese band recently in Cincinnati and invited Corell.

She says her group includes at least 100 dues-paying members, along with others who attend meetings. The members are still tallying how much money they raised for the veterans' memorial.

Corell said Ms. Roettele made it clear that her group wants to recognize the American veterans for their battle to save her native country, even though it fell to communists in the mid-1970s.

Nuclear war survivors may face extinction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Survivors of a nuclear war would struggle for survival in darkness and cold and might face mass extinction much like the dinosaurs that are believed to have died after an immense meteorite struck the Earth, scientists say.

"The effects of nuclear war unfortunately have significant parallels to the effects of a giant meteorite," California Institute of Technology geophysicist Thomas J. Ahrens said Wednesday.

Ahrens and other researchers at the American Geophysical Union's meeting conducted a session entitled "Geophysical and Geochemical Consequences of Nuclear Explosions," which drew a standing-room-only crowd of up to 500 scientists.

The studies presented during the session were developed through crude theoretical "models" in which the researchers used data on the atmospheric effects of nuclear tests and natural disasters such as volcanic eruptions to sketch a picture of what Earth might look like after a nuclear war.

Until about two years ago, scientists and policymakers believed a nuclear war would kill a relatively small percentage of the Earth's population in combat zones and didn't believe that widespread deaths could result from disruption of the climate, said Brian Toon, of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center.

But now scientists are moving closer to the long-held belief of "the average man on the street (who) already thought the world would end," he said.

Smoke and dust sent into the atmosphere from cities and forests ignited by a nuclear exchange "could have a major climatic impact — prolonged darkness and gloom, subfreezing land temperatures and dramatic disturbances in weather and precipitation — a harsh 'nuclear winter' in any season," said Richard Turco, a senior scientist at R&D Associates, a Marina del Rey think-tank.

Sixty five million years ago, the dinosaurs and most other animal life on Earth died in the largest mass extinction in the geologic record. Ahrens said there is "strong evidence" to support the still controversial view that the cause was a massive meteorite smashing into the planet.

Invasion contributes to one-party rule

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The U.S. invasion of Grenada has contributed indirectly to the concentration of unprecedented political power in the hands of one man and one party in Jamaica.

With elections less than two weeks away, Prime Minister Edward Seaga's conservative Jamaican Labor Party is virtually assured winning all 60 seats in parliament following the withdrawal of former Prime Minister Michael Manley's People's National Party, affiliated with the Socialist International.

The prospect of one-party rule has caught everyone by surprise, even Seaga. Some observers are alarmed by the situation.

"The exclusion of the PNP (People's National Party) from the country's parliament is a threat to stable politics in Jamaica," said Carl Stone, a political scientist without ties to either party and whose accurate opinion polls encouraged Seaga's successful power play.

Seaga's decision to hold elections on Dec. 15, two years before they were scheduled, was influenced by a surge of popularity resulting from his support for the Grenada invasion by the United States.

It was Manley's decision not to contest the elections which assured Seaga of a one-party parliament.

SINCE THE JAMAICAN parliamentary system allows unopposed candidates to win elections in their constituencies without any balloting, 54 of Seaga's party candidates were elected automatically on Nomination Day Nov. 29.

Elections will be held in the other six constituencies, but no one doubts the ruling party's candidates will easily defeat their opponents, who are independents or members of tiny parties with negligible support.

Manley says he didn't field candidates because the election will use an outdated voters list which he claims opens the door to fraud.

Although Manley denies it, it is widely believed that he didn't contest the elections because he was not prepared for them. He had been leading Seaga in opinion polls since the fall of 1982, but fell behind when the Grenada crisis began in October.

Stone puts it this way: "The JLP (Seaga's party) wanted an election date that minimized its chances of losing the support built up over Grenada, while the PNP (Manley's party) could not face the starter as its jockey was out of shape and overweight and not ready to ride.

"THE COUNTRY IS BIGGER than both JLP and PNP, and a way has to be found to climb back from the edge of the political precipice we now face," Stone said in a column published in the Daily Gleaner newspaper.

Seaga announced on Nov. 25 that he would dissolve parliament, gave only four days for candidates to be named for the 60 constituencies and limited campaigning to 15 days.

Seaga was elected in October 1980 for a five-year term of office, although under the constitution he can call early elections whenever he wants. His new term of office will be for another five years.

Seaga blames Manley for precipitating the elections by demanding the former's resignation as finance minister — a post he holds in addition to prime minister — after he announced a 77 percent devaluation of the Jamaican currency and disclosed that Jamaica had failed to meet performance criteria established by the International Monetary Fund in exchange for loans.

Seaga said the resignation call undermined his leadership and forced him to seek a new mandate from the people to continue with his economic belt-tightening.

IRONICALLY, MANLEY'S decision not to field candidates kept Seaga from getting a clear expression of public support.

There are signs that Seaga, with a reputation as a champion of representative democracy, is uncomfortable with the voteless victory. He talks vaguely of creating the "mechanism" for giving the Jamaican people full representation without an opposition party in parliament.

Manley says his party's opposition will continue outside parliament and has named 60 party representatives to a shadow parliament which will meet once a month to express opposition positions.

Seaga said one reason he sought early elections was to assure investors of a secure political climate before they committed their dollars to Jamaica, an island nation the size of Maryland with a population of 2.2 million.

Even Seaga's supporters tend to agree with Manley's assessment that investors "will be wary of a government which sidestepped the electoral process, the bedrock of our stable two-party democracy which, up to now, has been regarded as a model in the world."

Manley has offered a way out of the impasse by saying his party will participate in the first elections held after new voter identification cards are issued and the voters list prepared. They are expected to be ready within six months.

In press conferences and political rallies, Manley has challenged Seaga to contest elections then. But by then, however, the question will be whether Seaga will feel obliged to hold new parliamentary elections before 1988, when his new term of office will expire.

Africans turn paper into fuel

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — South Africans are turning waste paper into a coal-like fuel for heating and cooking.

"This sort of thing is very necessary in South Africa," said Gerrit Wium, an engineer involved in the project. "We're an industrialized society creating a lot of waste. In the African townships, they cook and heat with wood, and they're running out of that."

Turning waste paper into a solid cooking and heating fuel is a new endeavor and it has generated some interest abroad.

The innovator is Charles Botha, who describes himself as a "tinkerer." His firm has begun a limited marketing of briquettes made wholly of waste paper and used for outdoor cooking.

He calls the fuel "Umlilo," which means "fire" in several southern African languages.

Botha says his prices compete with those for coal. The process is secret although he says it evolved from his career in developing compressed animal feeds.

"It is along the same lines, breaking down the papers and mixing them, compressing, coming out with a hot-burning, high-density block," he said in an interview.

Botha, an industrial designer, started working on a waste-to-fuel process about four years ago. Two years of development led to a machine that six months ago started turning out Umlilo chunks resembling blocks of papier-mache the size of cigarette packs.

Botha, 55, said he uses only paper for his cooking fuel, but includes waste plastics, like bags and candy wrappers, for his heating fuel, called "domestic blocks."

Biotechnology program may help food supply

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — At first glance, North Carolina State University's new biotechnology program might appear little more than a combination of existing academic courses with a modern title.

But to biochemistry professor Frank Armstrong, a single grim statistic illustrates the program's significance.

"The Earth's population is 4 billion now and by the end of the century it will be 6 billion," said Armstrong. "Experts have concluded that at the very minimum, the world food supply needs to be doubled by then."

In order to prevent a far worse starvation problem than today's, Third World agriculture must improve, he said. That's where the NCSU program comes in.

The program is designed to coordinate biotechnological research in different areas — from biochemistry and engineering to food science and veterinary medicine.

Some 36 scientists now doing such research will be involved in the program, which will have a 15-member faculty and will offer a graduate minor in biotechnology.

Agricultural research is expected to gain most from the program, said Armstrong. Scientists of various specialties and from different departments will work together, and private industry is expected to take a strong interest.

As a result, breakthroughs should come more quickly in such areas as development of crop strains resistant to insects and other environmental factors that have crushed agriculture in many areas.

"There's a tremendous interest in applying biotechnology to agriculture," Armstrong said. "Industry is very aware of potential benefits down the road.

"It's going to take 15 or 20 years to see the tangible results, but once they start showing up, they're going to be a boon to the whole farming industry."

Scientists already are developing crops more resistant to flooding, drought, soil salinity, insects, bacteria and viruses, Armstrong said. Using biological techniques, researchers study plant tissues for their ability to resist disease.

Similar methods are used to study illnesses such as hoof and mouth disease that have plagued livestock in many poor nations, he said.

The new program's benefits aren't limited to improving the Third World economy, Armstrong said.

Batteries injure eyes

About 16,000 Americans a year are treated in hospital emergency rooms for eye injuries related to car-battery accidents.

Program less than successful

SAN LORENZO, El Salvador (AP) — A U.S.-funded program to lure refugees back to their homes and farms has been less of a success than hoped in the rugged, battle-scarred countryside of San Vicente province. Many still prefer the security of refugee camps, squalid though they may be.

The program was started in June and promises those who return the protection of the army from leftist guerrillas. It also provides material help for the rebuilding of homes and communities damaged by the war.

U.S. and Salvadoran officials have called the plan the last hope for El Salvador.

In this bombed-out, bullet-riddled village 37 miles east of San Salvador, the national capital, about 1,500 of the original 11,000 residents have returned.

Telephone scheme swindling credit-card holders out of millions

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A national catalogue-sales scheme which seeks to obtain credit-card numbers by deceit is swindling millions of dollars from cardholders and merchants.

The ruse is invading Midland.

"So far as we know, no one has been ripped off (in Midland)," said Detective Sgt. Johnny Thompson of the Midland Police Department. "It's just a new way to play an old game."

The fraud is carried out over the telephone when the solicitor-salesman tells the consumer that he has won or has been selected for a prize. However, the consumer is told that he must give his credit-card number to verify identification and to be eligible to receive the prize, he said.

"It's a scam," said Thompson, who investigates forgery and bank frauds. "Of course, merchants all over the country are getting ripped off."

Once the scam operator is privy to major credit-card numbers, he can then telephone or mail in orders for merchandise, such as jewelry, clothing, appliances, cameras and entertainment systems, from merchants, get the items delivered to a temporary address and latch onto a new address before the scheme is discovered, Thompson said.

Thompson said several Midlanders have been contacted by solicitors.

In addition to Thompson's efforts, the Better Business Bureau (BBB) of the Permian Basin is trying to combat schemes by making consumers aware of the operation.

The BBB reports that Marathon Marketing, a catalogue sales company, is obtaining numbers of VISA and MasterCard credit cards through its "salesmen" who telephone cardholders. Marathon representatives seek to obtain the numbers by claiming that the company only does business with VISA and MasterCard cardholders in good standing. The number is needed to determine if the consumer is eligible to receive the catalogue and to order from the company.

"In addition," says the BBB, "the company is offering promotional prizes. If you give your credit-card number, you are guaranteed to receive an RCA color television, $2,500 in cash, a six-piece set of luggage, a VCR recorder and camera, or seven days in Hawaii.

"Do not give any credit-card number to a telephone solicitor," the BBB advises. "These numbers can be used to charge merchandise without your permission or even to duplicate the card."

The BBB suggests that any victim of the dupe may notify the credit-card headquarters by telephone and then in writing to minimize losses and may call the BBB at 563-1880 at Midland Regional Airport.

Thompson suggested that anyone who receives the prize offer over the telephone to be mum about his credit-card number and to be inquisitive and suspicious.

"Don't give anybody your credit-card number over the telephone," he said. "Find out who they are, and tell them you'll call them back. Verify who they are." He said one would-be victim did that, got an 800 telephone number, telephoned the solicitor but got no answer.

"This is the time of year you can really pick up those bandits," Thompson said. "They want a nice Christmas, too. They'll flat rip you off."

Party to be held to watch Mondale

A "Mondale Watch" party will be held today at the Carpenter's Union Hall at 2211 W. Florida Street at 7 p.m. as part of a campaign kick-off.

Snacks and refreshments will be served. The public is welcome to view a broadcast message from Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale.

County democrats to meet

A plan of action for the 1984 presidential election year will be discussed when Midland County Democrats meet at 7 p.m. today in Kerr Community Center, 411 S. Tyler St.

The meeting is being organized by Freddie Nelms, who said the Democrats need to plan for the coming months.

In deciding on a plan of action, Nelms suggested including education and leadership.

Nelms said he's noticed people talk of the great leaders of the past while waiting fro someone else to solve the problems. "We expect someone else to do everything for us. We must use the talents God has given us to secure rights that are guaranteed to us by the Constitution."

By using the power of the vote, "We can change many of the deplorable conditions that exist in the U.S. today," he said. "If we do not vote, we must be satisfied with the conditions as they are."

Nelms noted that precinct chairmen should be making plans for the precincts meetings next year.

Residents cleaning property

Residents in the vicinity of Ratliff Park (Edwards and East Maple) are joining together today to clean up their alleys, yards and vacant lots.

Roll-off containers donated by the City of Midland will be placed on the east side of the park for residents to dispose of unwanted items all day today and Sunday. There is no charge.

Clean Midland Inc. is coordinating this effort through its neighborhood volunteer, Marsha Chlumsky. Flyers have been distributed to residents in the area. Clean Midland will assist any neighborhood group in coordinating this type of clean-up.

Sleep aids popular

Over 25 million sleeping-pill prescriptions are written in the United States each year and more than 30 million non-prescription sleep aids are sold. One estimate is that the bill totals $1 billion a year.

"COMPROMISE HAS NEVER BEEN MY STYLE..."

"...So when I moved to Midland, Oakridge Apartments was the only logical choice. As far as I'm concerned, there's not a better community around. Oakridge is brand-new. It's in an ideal location. It's very well-managed. Plus, it has the extras other communities don't. I love the indoor spa and sauna, and the community clubhouse and pool. And the custom kitchens with built-in microwaves, woodburning fireplaces and great storage are features I simply don't want to be without. The quality, of course, is uncompromising. Like me!"

1- and 2- bedroom and 2-bedroom studio apartment homes are available now. Take Loop 250 to N. Holiday Hill Road and look for the giant American flag.

"The quality of the apartment is much better than any others I've seen in Midland."

Mary and Perry Nelson talk about The Clusters:

"The extras included seem like a real bonus. We're former homeowners, so it takes a really nice apartment complex to satisfy us."

"I have a lot more kitchen appliances than I ever did in my own home. Dishwasher, trash compactor, garbage disposal, side-by-side refrigerator, built-in microwave, washer and dryer."

But that's not all. You also get French doors to patios/balconies, mini-blinds, ceiling fans and your choice of wall coverings.

Plus unmatched amenities such as luxurious clubhouse, two pools with Jacuzzis, lighted tennis courts, 4-station jogging trail, aerobics classes and exercise room.

Come and visit and you'll see why the Nelsons' say, "There have been many days we've come home and said, 'They've really done it again, they've gone first class.'"

The Clusters. Midland's finest adult community. Special pricing now available.
