Reagan balances fraud, U. S. bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is walking a tightrope between opposing sides in the Philippine presidential election, saying he is disturbed by reports of voting fraud and violence but mindful of U.S. strategic interest in maintaining its military bases on the islands.

In a written statement after hearing his observers report on the irregularities they had witnessed in the still-undecided race, Reagan said, "It is a disturbing fact that the election has been flawed by reports of fraud, which we take seriously, and by violence."

But he said, "We need to remind ourselves that this is a Philippine election, not an American election." And he told a news conference Tuesday night, "One can't minimize the importance" of U.S. Navy and Air Force bases on the Pacific islands.

"I don't know of any that's more important than the bases on the Philippines," Reagan told reporters in a nationally broadcast news conference.

'Troubleshooter' on way...

Election undecided

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Officials investigating the slaying of a key opposition figure held a national police officer under "technical arrest" today, and the National Assembly scheduled another attempt to determine the winner of last Friday's presidential vote.

The candidates, President Ferdinand E. Marcos and opposition leader Corazon Aquino, were studying President Reagan's plan to send veteran diplomatic troubleshooter Philip Habib to help reconcile the bitterness created by a vote process flawed by fraud and violence.

The National Assembly, which is dominated by Marcos' supporters, failed Tuesday to begin canvassing the votes due to a lack of quorum.

Opposition party members walked out to protest what they said was election-rigging by Marcos' supporters, and many members of Marcos' New Society Movement left early or did not show up, leaving only 78 of 190 deputies present.

Assembly members were scheduled to make another effort to begin the official vote canvass today.

A spokesman at military headquarters in Manila said Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, commander of the national police, had ordered the "technical arrest" of Capt. John Paloy, in connection with the death of former Gov. Evelio Javier, a prominent supporter of Mrs. Aquino.

Technical arrest means that a person is confined to barracks or otherwise restricted, but not actually jailed or charged with a crime.

Javier, chairman of Mrs. Aquino's campaign in the central province of Antique, was shot dead Tuesday outside the provincial capital building. Witnesses said a group of men chased Javier in an alley and fired at least 50 shots.

In Brief

Bomb blast

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A bomb exploded today in front of a movie theater located near an office of President Amin Gemayel's Phalange Party in Christian east Beirut, killing two women and injuring 10 other people, police said.

The midmorning explosion badly damaged a row of ground-floor shops adjacent to the theater in the poor Ein Rummaneh residential district and damaged seven cars.

The theater, empty at the time of the blast, is located in a seven-story apartment building. An office of Gemayel's Phalange Party is about 30 yards from the site of the blast.

Mr.-Miss due

Mr. and Miss SHS for 1985-86 will be named in coronation ceremonies Thursday afternoon in Worsham Auditorium at Snyder High School.

Nominees for the title of Mr. SHS include Robert Patterson, Kyle Hawes, Mike McWilliams, Patrick Malone and Justin Webb.

Nominated for Miss SHS are Mandy Johnson, Kima McLarty, Missy McIntire, Karlene Thompson and Lesa Barkowsky.

The winners were picked by a vote of the SHS student body Monday but results will be kept secret until Thursday.

The sweethearts of the various clubs and organizations at the high school will be introduced Thursday also. The ceremonies will begin at 2:30 p.m.

Hobby group

A meeting of the remote control airplane club is scheduled Thursday at 7 p.m.

Club members will gather at Snyder Hobby on the east side of the downtown square. For more information, individuals may call 573-2554 or 573-9549.

Snyder Temperatures: High Tuesday, 32 degrees; low, 15 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Wednesday, 23 degrees; no precipitation; total precipitation for 1986 to date, .54 of an inch.

Snyder Area Forecast: Tonight: partly cloudy and cold with lows in mid 20s. Southeast wind 5 to 10 mph. Thursday: breezy and warmer with highs in lower 60s. Southwest wind increasing 15 to 25 mph and gusty during the afternoon. Lake wind advisories will be required.

Comic choices revealed

The perennial five-year old with an untamed cowlick seems to be holding his own, while the world's longest running caveman may have lost his appeal.

And if readers have their say, a cat who loves lasagna and "Good Old Charlie Brown" would be new additions to the pages of the Snyder Daily News.

These were just some of the indications as the first round of reader responses to the SDN's Comic Poll were screened.

By mid-week, some 105 comic polls had been returned.

We feel like it's a good response so far. If we got 105 letters to the editor on the same subject, we'd definitely pick up our ears," noted Donny Brown, SDN editor.

He said the preliminary results were to be reported "to let the readers know how it's going and to encourage those who haven't completed a poll to do so."

A copy of the comic poll — the fourth time it has run — will be included in Thursday's SDN and again Sunday.

Of the polls returned to date, "Dennis The Menace" topped the category for "favorite comic" in the SDN and was listed most often in the "regularly read" category.

Twenty two readers said "Dennis" was their favorite comic while 92 out of the 105 responses said they read the long-running strip every day.

In the "favorite" categories, others strips mentioned often

ALSO AN OPTION — If the mother chooses, she may have her baby delivered in the room where she will be staying. The birthing room facility features this special birthing bed. Birthing 'package' initiated

By VICKI BROWN
SDN Staff Writer

A "birthing package" — to include discounted prices, a couple's candlelight dinner after the birth and a "Birth-Day" celebration for the newborn's brothers and sisters — is to be offered at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Called "Lullaby Lane," the new program will be implemented Friday.

"The package will be tailored to suit individual needs by asking a series of questions about the patient's desires," said Linda Mize, head nurse in the OB department and program coordinator. "Our number one priority is the health of mother and baby."

Under the new program, average cost for a one-day stay (entailing 36 hours at Cogdell) for mother and baby will be about $500.

By comparison, a birthing package for a one-day stay (based on 24 hours) at four area hospitals ranges from $100 to $400 more.

These averages include $600 at Hendrick Medical Center in Abilene; $800 at both Malone and Hogan Hospital in Big Spring and South Park Hospital in Lubbock; and $900 at Lubbock General Hospital.

Both West Texas Hospital and Methodist Hospital in Lubbock offer no birthing package. West Texas estimates a 24-hour stay at $650, while Methodist quotes a $1,200 figure for 48 hours.

Services offered under "Lullaby Lane" include prepared childbirth classes taught by trained obstetric nurses. "Classes have been offered through Western Texas College, but we have not offered them through the hospital before.

ANNIVERSARY LUNCHEON — Some 15 couples married 62 years or longer were honored with a luncheon at the Senior Citizens' Center Tuesday. Murray Anne Ray and Ralph Williamson (standing) provided special music including "The Anniversary Waltz." Lynn Bethel accompanied the duo. SDN publisher Roy McQueen presented corsages to each couple. Honorees pictured include Bertha and Houston Cotton (at top) and Willie and E.E. Ford. A packed house honored the group with a standing ovation at the program's conclusion. (SDN Staff Photo)

Probation revoked for 4 here

Four men on felony probation out of Scurry County now face prison terms in the Texas Department of Corrections after having their probation revoked in 132nd District Court Tuesday.

Now facing a seven-year prison term is Scott Allen Maynard of Snyder. He was granted probation in September of 1985 in exchange for a guilty plea to charges of possession of a prohibited weapon.

Probation officers sought revocation of his probation in light of a January arrest for misdemeaor possession of marijuana.

Antonio DeLeon — placed on probation for seven years in October of 1982 in exchange for a guilty plea to a burglary charge — had his probation revoked in light of an arrest for driving while intoxicated.

His sentence was reduced to five years in the revocation order.

Also having probation revoked in light of a January DWI arrest was Lorenzo Rodriquez Martinez.

He was granted probation in August of 1985 in exchange for a guilty plea entered to an aggravated assault charge. He now faces a full five-year term in TDC.

Jimmy Martinez — placed on probation for five years in April, 1983 in exchange for a guilty plea to a burglary charge — also faces a full term in the state prison.

His probation was revoked for failure to pay fees and make monthly reports to the county probation office.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "One reason for marriage problems is men can't fool their wives like they did their mothers."

At noon Tuesday, the Snyder Daily News recognized 15 Scurry County couples who have been married 62 years or more. Valentine week was chosen as the time to honor these long-term marriages with a luncheon at the Scurry County Senior Citizens Center.

Staff writer Vicki Brown has interviewed each of the 15 couples and plans a story that will be published Sunday. We think you'll find it interesting.

They're a great group of folks who have enjoyed both quantity and quality in their living.

Times have changed since these folks were married back in the 1920s.

Now you can usually tell right from the start if a marriage is going to work out. Beware, if about halfway down the aisle, the bride stops and asked if anyone in the audience has an aspirin.

One woman told us she knew her marriage had fallen onto hard times when her husband won an all-expense paid vacation for two to Hawaii.

He went twice.

We were looking at some Valentine cards in one of the local stores. One bright red card caught our attention and it read: "To my one and only true love."

There was one interesting thing about this card, however. It was sold only in a packet of 12.

U.S. Steel merger approved

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United States Steel Corp. shareholders looked past Wall Street's skepticism and handily approved a $3 billion merger with Texas Oil & Gas Corp.

An abundance of natural gas, lowered prices for the fuel and an accounting change at the Dallas-based natural gas producer and distributor led analysts to question the merger. The prices of both companies' stocks fell nearly 20 percent since the deal was announced Oct. 30.

U.S. Steel Chairman David M. Roderick assured shareholders Tuesday that Texas Oil & Gas would report "record earnings when this (oversupply) bubble comes to an end."

At a U.S. Steel shareholders meeting where the merger was approved by a 4-to-1 margin, Roderick was questioned by a retired steel mill worker who said he hoped the stocks would recover soon because "I don't want to be the richest corpse in the graveyard."

"Retirees don't buy green bananas," Roderick replied. "I'm sure this banana will ripen within a few years."

Texas Oil and Gas said it would write down its assets by more than $600 million this year to account for U.S. Steel's methods of accounting for the costs of drilling dry holes.

U.S. Steel will remain the nation's leading steel producer, but steel and related activities will shrink to less than one-third of the company's business. Meanwhile, the Pittsburgh-based corporation will become the 13th largest among the Fortune 500 industrial companies, with annual sales of about $21 billion and assets of $22 billion, Roderick said.

Roderick said that finding a third business, possibly outside steel and petroleum, would be relegated to a lower priority now that the company has swapped stock to acquire Texas Oil & Gas. It paid $6.5 billion in cash for Marathon Oil Corp. in 1982.

A name change for the parent, however, could be in the works.

"With the changing nature of the company, we have to keep an open mind about the name of the parent company," Roderick said. "We would never give up the name U.S. Steel" for the steel segment, he said.

Its steps into the oil patch have helped U.S. Steel lessen its dependence on the cyclical steel industry, troubled by overcapacity, low prices and relatively high labor costs.

Operating income at Marathon, the nation's 14th-largest oil producer, reached $1.27 billion on sales of $10.5 billion in 1985, accounting for virtually all of U.S. Steel's profit last year and more than half its sales.

"We're the only major steelmaker today that is paying a dividend," Roderick said.

More than 79.8 million shares, or 81.8 percent of U.S. Steel shares voted, were cast in favor of the merger. Nearly 17.7 million, or 18.1 percent of those voted, were cast against it.

Eighty-one percent of U.S. Steel's 123 million shares outstanding were represented at the special meeting in Pittsburgh, said Secretary Richard M. Hays.

At a meeting in Dallas, where Texas Oil & Gas is headquartered, 83 percent of the company's 210 million shares outstanding were voted in favor of the merger, officials said.

U.S. Steel needed a simple majority of shares voted. Texas Oil & Gas needed a simple majority of shares outstanding.

Roderick said he envisioned no personnel changes at Texas Oil and Gas, a leading independent natural gas producer.

The Texas Oil & Gas merger is being financed entirely through a stock swap, avoiding additional debt for U.S. Steel.

Ivie picked 'best'

BIG SPRING--Owen H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, was named Saturday as Big Spring's Outstanding Man of the Year.

The award, conferred at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet audience of more than 300, noted particularly the successful culmination of a 7½ year effort to get a permit to construct the district's third lake on the Colorado River at Stacy.

A native of Corsicana, he joined Freece and Nichols as an inspector during construction of Lake Thomas and joined the district as director of operations and maintenance in 1953. He became district manager in 1959 and general manager in 1965 when Col. E. V. Spence died during quest of the Lake Spence permit.

Floral design course slated

Floral design will be taught in a Continuing Education course scheduled by Western Texas College.

Classes will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Mondays from Feb. 17-March 24. Fees are $35 per person and students will also purchase their own supplies. All arrangements they make are theirs to keep.

Sue Travis will be the instructor for the 18-hour course. Classes will meet at Travis Flowers at 1906 37th Street. Registration will be held there at 6:15 p.m. on Feb. 17. However, persons wishing to take the course are to pre-register by calling the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, ext. 240.

Dear Abby

Couple Hope Their Love Will Take Them Higher and Higher

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with this gentleman for eight years now, and we want to marry. Neither of us wants to get married in a church. My question: Can the captain of an airliner perform a marriage ceremony? I've heard that captains of ships can marry people, so why not airline captains?

We'd like to be married by an airline pilot in a very short, simple exchange of vows. A flight from Los Angeles to Hawaii, ending in a Hawaiian honeymoon, would be perfect.

If this is possible, whom should we contact?

FLYING HIGH IN IOWA CITY

DEAR FLYING: I hate to clip your wings, but an airline captain is not authorized to perform marriage ceremonies. However, with air travel competition so keen these days, perhaps one innovative airline will offer a St. Valentine's Day Sweethearts Special for couples who want to wed with their heads in the clouds. And a qualified person could be provided to do the honors. The friendly skies would then attain a new high in togetherness, and couples could truly fly "united."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 70-year-old retired male who has been reading your column since you started it 30 years ago, but I never thought I would ever write to you. I do so now to register my surprise regarding a letter you printed. It had to do with the churchgoing person who was irritated by another church member who created a minor disturbance by unwrapping peppermints during the sermon.

With all the serious problems in this world that should be addressed, I was flabbergasted that you would select something so frivolous to print. If the old biddy couldn't stand all that noise, why didn't she change her seat where she wouldn't be so distracted, poor dear?

You're allowed one mistake, Abby. Don't let it happen again.

PERTURBED
IN PETALUMA, CALIF.

DEAR PERTURBED: I admit to my share of mistakes, but this wasn't one of them. I think it's rather fascinating for my readers to know what other readers find sufficiently irritating to complain about. And occasionally a reader will write in with a solution, like this one:

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with that poor woman who unwraps peppermints in church. I also carry them to suck on during concerts, at the theater and in church as well. It may be psychological, but I always get the urge to cough at times when there should be silence, and a peppermint prevents my coughing. However, I remove the cellophane wrappings at home and carry my peppermints in clean white tissues.

PEPPERMINT PATTY

DEAR ABBY: I am hard of hearing, which is the reason I am writing this. What on earth is the matter with that lady who complained about another lady making noise while unwrapping her peppermint candy in church?

Shame on her! Doesn't she realize how blessed she is to have perfect hearing? Believe me, if she were in my shoes for two weeks, she would be glad to get back into her own.

I'm sure the lady with the peppermints was trying to prevent herself from coughing in church—which would be far more disturbing to others. She was being considerate—thinking of others. Bless her!

Teacher report issued

NEW YORK (AP) — Educators could learn a few lessons from companies like Walt Disney and Mary Kay Cosmetics when it comes to training beginning teachers, a new study argues.

A draft of the report, "Mirrors of Excellence: Reflections for Teacher Education from Training Programs in Ten Corporations and Agencies," says principals, superintendents and other administrators too often stand idly by as fledgling teachers flounder in the classroom.

By contrast, Motorola Inc. has trainers right on the assembly line, Mary Kay Cosmetics closely monitors the way new employees deal with potential customers, Walt Disney Enterprises carefully prepares new "hosts" for their positions, and the accounting firm Arthur Andersen & Co. makes sure new employees know company procedures and follows them.

A recent Carnegie Foundation report estimated that big businesses like these spend a staggering $100 billion a year to train its workers.

But this latest study concludes that the education field does not seem to share that commitment when it comes to training teachers.

The final version of the report is due to be released Feb. 20 at the annual meeting of the Association of Teacher Educators in Atlanta. It studied training programs at Arthur Andersen, M.D. Anderson Hospital Division of Nursing in Houston, Boeing Co., the Border Patrol, Disney, General Motors Corp., Harris-Lanier, Mary Kay, Motorola, and Southern Company Services.

The study criticized schools which too often take a "sink or swim" attitude toward new teachers who are left to fend for themselves in the first few weeks of class.

It called on school superintendents and other administrators, as well as university-level teacher educators, to put aside their paperwork and devote more time to helping novice teachers get their footing.

Many businesses work hard to orient new employees, and make sure they feel comfortable and welcome. Mary Kay, for example, "makes new employees feel welcome through devices such as a 'warm fuzzy' that is attached to one's jacket, and which signals to all that this person is new and should be included in the circle of those in the company," said the study.

Opening lead ♠ 8

Although North and South have a 4-4 heart fit, three no-trump is the better game contract for a change, but it is not a laydown. After winning the opening spade lead with the 10, declarer can count only eight tricks. He must develop the ninth trick without allowing East to get on lead to send a spade back through his K-J. How can it be done?

He can get his ninth trick in either red suit. First diamonds. Let him lead a diamond right away. If West plays low, South goes up with dummy's king, returns to his hand with the club ace and leads another diamond. If West plays the 10, he rises with dummy's ace and plays another. Since West has the queen, West will win the lead and be unable to run his spade suit. Of course if West goes up with the queen earlier, declarer simply lets him hold that trick with the same result.

Hearts are easier. Declarer enters dummy with either a diamond or a club and leads a low heart. If East plays the two, declarer also plays low. West will win the nine, but now the ninth trick can come from the heart suit, since the A-K will drop East's queen. If East puts up the 10 when hearts are first led, declarer wins the ace or king, returns to dummy and leads still another low heart, with the same intent as before.

Don't even give a thought to making 10 tricks in a heart contract. Your only chance is if the queen of hearts drops doubleton, and today it does not.

Philippines...

Reagan's comments underscore dilemma

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's obvious discomfort when questioned about the Philippines elections highlights the irony of a situation in which the United States is deeply involved but powerless to act decisively.

"The determination of the government in the Philippines is going to be the business of the Philippine people," Reagan told a news conference Tuesday night.

But the team of election observers headed by Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, returned from the island nation and concurred with reports that the votes of the Philippine people may be diluted by widespread fraud.

After meeting with Reagan prior to the president's news conference, Lugar told reporters, "We saw incidents of violence. One could say that was fraud. We don't know precisely who it helped, one way or another."

The senator said he felt the vote count had been aborted "by the government officials."

The fraud allegations clouded the still-uncertain outcome of the contest between President Ferdinand Marcos and his challenger, Corazon Aquino.

AP analysis

It also was clear from Reagan's responses Tuesday night that the fraud allegations placed the United States in a difficult and delicate situation. What role can the United States play in that troubled country?

If Marcos is declared the winner after a count that may have been rigged in his favor, what options does the United States have?

Reagan's responses indicated that the answer is: not many.

As a first step in this turbulent, post-election period, Reagan assigned Philip Habib, a veteran U.S. diplomat, to go to Manila to "help nurture the hopes and possibilities of democracy."

Habib will meet with political leaders, church and government officials and representatives of private sector groups.

It was not known what messages, if any, he might carry to Marcos and Mrs. Aquino. Open to question is what leverage the United States has at this point with Marcos. In the budget Reagan sent to Congress last week he asked for an increase in aid to the Philippines. One message Habib might carry is that the aid request would be in deep trouble in Congress unless he can satisfy questions about the legitimacy of the election.

At the same time, Marcos has some leverage because of the importance the United States gives to its two huge military bases in the Philippines: Subic Bay and Clark Field.

"One cannot minimize the importance of those bases," Reagan told reporters.

Equally uncertain is what influence the administration could have with Mrs. Aquino. She appears publicly unwilling to accept a result which declares Marcos the winner, and she has a large enough following to disrupt the country with demonstrations.

The United States has a unique relationship with its former colony, and American influence in the island nation remains strong. Both in Congress and in the administration, Marcos had been under pressure to hold elections, a step he finally took.

2 more teens plead

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A state judge said he will wait several weeks and look at background investigations of seven teen-agers before deciding their punishment for participating in vigilante-style action purportedly aimed at ridding their high school from drug use.

The seven and one other — all students at Fort Worth Paschal High School — were indicted on graduation day last May on 33 charges that stem from a series of crimes between Jan. 9 and March 24, 1985. The incidents included a car bombing, firing of shots at a house, and passing notes signed with Swastikas.

"I'm going to look at all the evidence. I don't know which of the seven is the most culpable or anything like that," State District Judge Don Leonard said Tuesday.

Police said the students, including honor students, athletes and sons of prominent members of the community, were part of an organization they called the "Legion of Doom."

Paschal has about 2,100 students.

Leonard allowed the defendants to remain free on bond, but he warned them to "behave yourself," or he would raise their bail "until even your mothers and fathers can't pay it."

NEW MACHINE FINDS EYE PROBLEMS EARLY

The Eye Associates, Inc. of Big Spring, TX are proud to announce the installation of their new Humphrey Field Analyzer. The Field Analyzer is a computerized diagnostic instrument that can detect eye problems much earlier than other techniques and represents the most sophisticated technology on the market today. Under the direction of Dr. John Marshall, a Big Spring optometrist, the instrument will be used to help detect tumors, glaucoma and retinal changes allowing treatment to be started at the earliest possible time. The field analyzer provides a printed copy of its findings that could be likened to a neurological map of the back of the eye, pointing out blind spots, and other abnormalities. The analyzer's highly advanced computer programming allows each test to be specifically tailored to an individual's needs greatly increasing the accuracy of the tests.

In a world of rapidly advancing technologies, The Eye Associates of Big Spring have consistently demonstrated a desire to bring their patients the most up to date equipment available. To participate in the advancing world of progressive eye care, call the optometric office of Dr. John H. Marshall at (915) 263-2501 in Big Spring or if you would enjoy seeing this exciting new instrument simply drop by their office at 106 W. 3rd Street in Big Spring.

See specialist about prostate

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 69, and in the past year have had some trouble urinating. I no longer have a free flow; it is released in spurts. Could this be a warning of coming prostate problems?

DEAR READER — It's more than a warning of coming problems; your problem has arrived. Your trouble probably is due to an enlarged prostate. However, there may be other sources of obstruction within your lower urinary tract, so check with a urologist for an accurate diagnosis.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on THE PROSTATE GLAND. Other readers who would like a copy should send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this newspaper to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I suffer from pain in my knees down, especially when I go to bed. My doctor said it was caused by poor circulation, but the medicine he gave me didn't help. It's worse when I wear high heels. What causes this?

DEAR READER — Circulatory problems in the legs can be most troublesome at night or during exercise. I suspect that in your case, the high heels are a factor because you are on your feet when you wear them. Sometimes women's high heels can result in back ailments that cause leg pains.

However, if your doctor believes your pain is due to poor circulation, you may need to have further testing to determine where the blood flow to your legs is blocked. When such an obstruction is present, less blood reaches your leg muscles; cramps and spasms can be produced. In severe cases, unresponsive to medicine, surgery may be necessary to re-establish bloodflow by removing the obstruction.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have a shoulder injury, a severe tear in the rotator cuff. The surgeon wants to operate. What is your opinion?

DEAR READER — If you have pain due to a torn rotator cuff — the capsule of gristle that surrounds the shoulder joint — surgery may help you. If your surgeon is qualified to perform this operation, let him or her do it.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband has plantar warts on his heel. These have been cut out three times and are back again. Are there any folk remedies that might help? Even if they don't work, at least they won't hurt, which is more than can be said for the surgery.

DEAR READER — I am not aware of consistent successes from folk remedies for plantar warts. I've had better results from Vergo, an over-the-counter cream, applied as directed to the wart. Make sure your husband uses sandpaper or an emery board to remove all of the callus over the wart before he applies the cream.

Plane dangles in power lines

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Two men dangled upside-down inside a small plane that was snarled in high-voltage lines 80 feet in the air for four hours, but apparently escaped serious injury, officials said today.

The pilot and his passenger inched their way to safety across the underside of the plane's wing and into the arms of firefighters late Tuesday and early today.

The single-engine plane came in too low while landing at Ontario International Airport, about 40 miles east of Los Angeles, at 7:40 a.m., said a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman.

It was snared by one of two power lines, flipped, and came to an unsteady stop.

Study has found AIDS antibodies

BOSTON (AP) — The discovery of AIDS antibodies in victims' saliva may explain why the disease isn't transmitted by kissing and could give doctors a new way to check for exposure to the AIDS virus, scientists say.

The researchers found that most people who carry AIDS antibodies in their blood also have the substances in their saliva.

Experts believe AIDS is spread only through sexual intercourse or the injection of tainted blood. The disease is not spread through kissing or other contact with saliva, even though the AIDS virus has sometimes been found in saliva of victims of the disease.

"Saliva seems to be very uninfectious," said Dr. David W. Archibald of the Harvard School of Public Health. "There has to be some reason for that."

The discovery of antibodies in saliva could help explain why saliva isn't dangerous. The researchers speculate that the antibodies deactivate AIDS viruses in saliva so they don't infect others.

Archibald's research conducted on 93 people is being published in the March issue of the journal Blood.

The presence of AIDS antibodies in the body reveals past exposure to the AIDS virus but does not necessarily mean the fatal disease will develop. Blood banks routinely screen donations for the presence of antibodies to keep AIDS-tainted blood from being passed on.

Archibald said new screening tests could be developed that would sample saliva rather than blood. Such tests might be cheaper and easier to perform, especially in poor parts of the world.

Even a home AIDS test could someday be possible, he said. But with current technology, such a test would be too difficult to perform outside a lab.

Researchers disagree on how often AIDS victims' saliva contains the virus. A co-author of the journal report, Dr. Jerome E. Groopman of New England Deaconess Hospital, has found the virus in the saliva of 44 percent of victims of a pre-AIDS syndrome called AIDS-related complex, or ARC.

However, more recent work by Dr. Martin S. Hirsch and others at Massachusetts General Hospital found the virus in the saliva of only 1 percent of homosexual men who carried AIDS antibodies in their blood.

Archibald said the presence of antibodies in saliva may mean that saliva contains the virus as well. But the germs are not detected because they are bound to antibodies. However, he said this is speculation that cannot be proven by the latest research.

Shcharansky vows to continue fight

JERUSALEM (AP) — Soviet human rights activist Anatoly Shcharansky, freed after nine years in jails and labor camps, vowed to resume his struggle on behalf of those still imprisoned in the Soviet Union or denied permission to emigrate.

But first, he told a reporter he wants to begin "a normal family life" with his wife, Avital. The couple was separated a day after their marriage 12 years ago, but since then she has conducted a worldwide campaign for his release.

Shcharansky beamed and held his wife's hand as he received a tumultuous welcome Tuesday from government leaders and thousands of joyous supporters in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem.

He had been freed earlier in the day on a snowy bridge connecting East and West Germany and then flown to Israel.

In Jerusalem, where his wife based her campaign for his freedom, thousands of well-wishers danced, sang, and carried him on their shoulders to the Wailing Wall, a remnant of the biblical Jewish Temple. Wearing a blue-and-white yamulka, or skullcap, Shcharansky kissed the ancient stones and read from the Book of Psalms.

The Shcharanskys then returned to the Jerusalem apartment where Avital has been living for the past few years. Seminary students stood guard outside the apartment to allow the couple privacy and fend off hundreds of well-wishers who gathered outside.

The 38-year-old human rights activist, sentenced in 1978 to 13 years in prison and hard labor on a charge of spying for the United States, was released by the Soviets in an East-West prisoner swap with eight other people at the Glienicke Bridge near Berlin.

The balding, diminutive computer scientist had become a symbol of the movement for Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union and a worldwide human rights symbol.

Fraternity adds 45 new members

Forty-five new members were inducted into the Psi Zeta chapter of Phi Theta Kappa in ceremonies held Sunday at Western Texas College. Danny Hunter, former PTK president and former Psi Zeta president, was guest speaker for the program.

Phi Theta Kappa is the nationally recognized honor fraternity for students in junior/-community colleges. Founded in 1918, the fraternity was officially recognized by the American Association of Junior Colleges was organized in WTC in January, 1972.

Members inducted at WTC were Dalila Carrasco of Big Lake; Tonya Tompkins of Big Spring; Heath Blassingame, Teresa Browne, Carrie Daniel, Christy Elaine Dockrey and Sandra Ross of Colorado City; Charles Alderman of Girard; Stephanie Payne of Hamlin; Emily Thornhill of Haskell; Philip Carter and Barry Ezra of Ira; Bobby Mendez of Lubbock; Steph Reed of McCaulley; and Todd Danley of Mesilla Park, N. M.

Also Tammy Sorrells of Old Glory; Carmen Thielen of Port Lavaca; Ellen Walker of Roby; Clayton Sorrells and Paul Sorrells of Rule; Terry McKenzie and Kelly Mosley of Seagraves; Ken Livington of Seminole and Janyne Gravell of Slaton.

Snyder students included were Rebecca Alsup, Anita Bradford, Dana Collins, Dedra Crawford, Tracey Davis, Mary Ezell, Virgil Feinsod, Shellie Ford, Richard Garcia, Trissa Green, Kathy Mitchell Greer, Wendy Lunsford, Michael McCravey, Denise Merritt, Rosa Nell Richburg, Michael Rodriguez, Susan Tully and Phyllis Whitfill.

Completing the list are Dottie Shifflet and Juanita Villa of Sweetwater and Joel Marr of Tularosa, N. M.

Tot's kidnapping really only hoax

ROUND ROCK, Texas (AP) — A woman who told police her baby was kidnapped by three people and later returned has been charged with filing a false police report after admitting she made up the story.

"The whole thing was a hoax," Round Rock Police Chief Wesley Wolff said. "She said she gave the baby to a sitter for the weekend. The baby sitter notified us."

Denise Buck, 24, of Round Rock, the mother of Justin Buck, said Tuesday during a polygraph examination that the kidnapping never took place, Wolff said.

She was placed in the Williamson County Jail in lieu of $3,000 bond, and her son was placed in the temporary custody of the Department of Human Resources, Wolff said.

Wolff speculated that Mrs. Buck may have made up the story because she and her husband have been having marital problems. "She may have done it to get even with him or to convince him to come back to her."

A statewide alert was issued Friday when Mrs. Buck reported her 10-month-old son was kidnapped by two men posing as plainclothes police officers and a woman posing as a Department of Human Services social worker.

Mrs. Buck said she found her son Sunday after a woman called her and told her the infant was in her car.

Wolff said that authorities doubted the validity of the story from the beginning, since Mrs. Buck contacted local media before notifying police.

Gov. White sought for debate

By The Associated Press

If Gov. Mark White won't debate before the Democratic primary, challenger A. Don Crowder says he'll track White down at a public appearance and confront him there.

"If we cannot debate in a formal atmosphere, I will be left no choice but to follow you around this state at your various campaign functions in order to engage in meaningful dialogue concerning the issues," Crowder said in a letter to White.

Meanwhile, Republican Party Chairman George Strake isn't satisfied with the First Civil Court of Appeals ruling that Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, can run for attorney general.

The GOP chairman said the Supreme Court should uphold the ruling so the issue does not come back to haunt the party after the primaries.

One of the places Crowder said he might try to face White was at the governor's regular weekly news conference, held in the reception room of White's Capitol office.

Crowder, former law partner of Attorney General Jim Mattox, has publicly called White a "nerd" and a "scumball."

But Crowder said Tuesday he is willing to put his money where his mouth is in assuring White he won't engage in name-calling during a debate.

"As a show of good faith, I would be willing to place in escrow $5,000, which would constitute a contribution from me to your re-election campaign in the event a panel of three judges ... determines, by a majority vote, that I made any remark that might be deemed personally offensive to you," Crowder said.

White campaign spokesman Mark McKinnon said the governor remains willing to debate his Democratic opponents before the May 3 primary.

"The governor has indicated that he would like to debate all the primary opponents. The governor was disturbed by Mr. Crowder's remarks; he didn't feel that was dealing with issues that are of concern to the people," McKinnon said.

As for the $5,000 bond, McKinnon said, "We would expect everybody to conduct themselves in a mature, adult fashion. We don't need any collateral."

In a separate letter to Lois Carpenter, president of the Texas League of Women Voters, Crowder encouraged the league to hold a Democratic debate regardless of whether White participates.

"These debates are far too important for the governor to tuck tail and slink off," Crowder told a news conference.

"If he's not going to debate, he ought to tell us all...But to do nothing I think indicates the same indecisiveness he's demonstrateed in office."

Saying he received only three negative responses to the names he called White, Crowder said he had no regrets about his campaign so far.

"I'm not sorry for anything I've done in this campaign," Crowder said.

In the attorney general's race:

— Brown said the 1st Court of Appeals decision Monday "declaring me eligible is clear, logical and proper."

Brown's eligibility had been challenged because he was in the Senate when the Legislature raised the attorney general's salary.

But Strake said he would appeal to the supreme court.

In a telephone interview late Tuesday, Strake said he and Brown had a "friendly understanding" about the appeal to the Texas Supreme Court.

Welder bringing Old West alive in art

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Guy Brown flips his welding mask up, rubbing a work-roughened hand over the steel creases in the jeans of his lifesize statue.

"If it doesn't look like he's going to walk off, then nobody will probably ever see him," Brown says of the Texas Ranger he's been constructing from the floor up for more than two years.

When it comes to his artwork, the 33-year-old welder and steel art worker is a perfectionist.

More than 1,500 hours of work, in Brown's spare time, already have gone into the creation of the ranger. So far only the body has been sculpted — the face, head and hat are still only envisioned in his mind's eye.

"I'm anxious to get started on his face," Brown says with a strong Texas drawl. "I'll do the head in layers, starting with the chin of three-inch plate and coming up about three inches at a time."

When done, the lawman will stand 7 feet tall, holding a Winchester in one hand, wearing a Colt .45 and a Bowie knife. And you can bet he'll be authentic, down to the last wrinkle in his shirt sleeve and the curl in his mustache.

He's borrowed a Colt .45 to study and get the proper dimensions for the one he's making for his ranger.

"I got several photos I've collected of Texas Rangers. I wrote Levi Strauss on how the pants were designed in that time period, and they sent me some old photographs," Brown says. "I like to listen to the old-timers talk about those days. You listen and learn a lot from them."

Brown says he began work on the statue after years of being interested in western art and law.

"I've always been interested in law enforcement," the soft-spoken Georgia native says, noting that he got an associate's degree in law enforcement before he opened his own business.

The self-taught artist found his resources readily at hand in oil field steel.

"I woke up one morning and just started out making a stick figure using 2⅜ oil-field pipe. I wrapped ⅜-inch bar steel around it and made a skeleton."

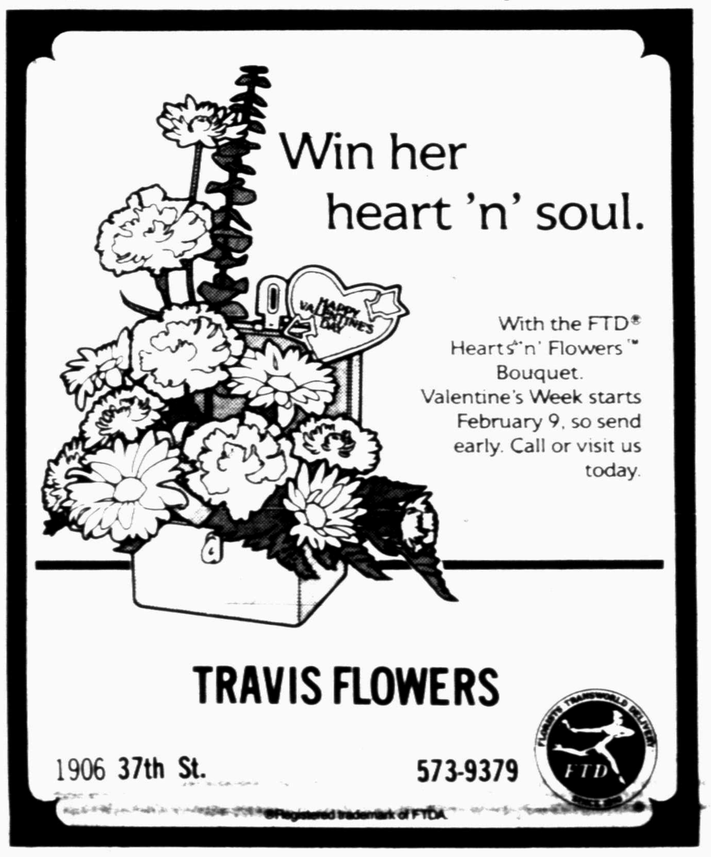
The solidly-built 6-foot-5 Brown, who has lived in Abilene since he was a year old, breaks into a grin as he says: "I've got to call it a hobby, 'cause I'm sure not making a living from it."

He talks in short sentences, frequently punctuated with a polite "ma'am," elaborating on the historical background of his tall, lean lawmen.

"Most of 'em were smaller men. There were a few tall ones," he says. "Most of those rangers dressed real sharp. They had good boots and good hats. He's going to have suspenders under his vest. He'll have a watch fob and chain."

Brown had assumed the jeans had belt loops and spent 20 hours carefully tooling them on the jeans. Then he discovered that "belt loops didn't come out until 1922."

"I sure do hate that," he says ruefully, pointing to the burnished spots on the statue where he's just removed all loops. Now he'll add suspenders.



Witnesses damaging Billig trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even witnesses for the defense in the military court-martial of Dr. Donal Billig are favoring the prosecution by suggesting the Navy surgeon was in over his head while performing heart operations.

Billig was taking the stand in his own defense today in an effort to counter government charges that he was an incompetent and weak-sighted surgeon responsible for the deaths of five patients at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Billig, former head of heart surgery at the Navy's premier hospital, planned to describe his version of events in the five heart surgery cases in which the patients died in the operating room or soon after leaving it, defense attorney Denver Graham said Tuesday.

By taking the stand, however, Billig would open himself to grilling by government attorneys, including questions about testimony that he had virtually no vision in one eye.

Billig is charged with five counts of involuntary manslaughter in the deaths of the five heart patients. He also faces 24 counts of dereliction of duty.

Six minutes after final buzzer...

Mustangs take controversial win here, 51-50

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

They say it ain't over 'til the fat lady sings. That held true here Tuesday night, although it was a pair of basketball referees that determined the final aria in this affair.

But then, this script read more like a soap opera than the real thing anyway.

Six minutes after the final buzzer here Tuesday night, Andrews' Doodle Wood stepped to the line and sank a pair of free throws. Along with them, he sank Snyder's playoff hopes as the 10th-ranked Mustangs took a controversial 51-50 victory out of Scurry County Coliseum.

The win clinched second place in District 2-4A for the Mustangs and put Snyder out of the running. To say it was an emotional ending would be an understatement.

The final seconds were set up when Louis Clay picked off a Bobby Scott pass with time running out and got the ball to Woods underneath the basket. The 6-2 senior went up, but Trey Tippens rejected his shot as the buzzer sounded. An official whistled a foul on the play but the question arose when trying to determine which came first - the foul or the final buzzer.

The referees - Mike Barnett and Norman Hemphell out of Lubbock - conferred under the basket for a time, then walked to the scorer's table where the discussion continued. Meanwhile, Snyder and Andrews fans alike were voicing their opinions in no uncertain terms.

"The officials didn't want to decide, they wanted to put it off on somebody else. They wanted the time keeper to decide. That's not what we pay the time keeper for," said a dejected Snyder Coach Larry Scott, afterwards. "Really," he said later, "if they don't know which happened first they are supposed to consult the time keeper."

After further discussion, Woods was allowed to shoot the free throws.

Give him credit. He planted the ball through the hoop twice, despite a lot of pressure.

Snyder had gone ahead by as many as 10 points in the contest and had fallen behind by 8, but it was all meaningless in the fourth quarter when Tippens aced a pair of free shots with 5:50 left to give the Tigers a 42-41 advantage.

Danny Neighbors put the Mustangs back on top seconds later, but teammate Damon Clay couldn't hit a pair of free throws that would have extended the lead at the 5:25 mark.

Neighbors and Tippens traded points before Andrews went to the charity stripe again. This time it was Neighbors, and like Damon Clay, he missed too.

It wasn't until after Woods scored to give the visitors another three-point lead that Snyder answered again. Tippens got the bucket, and on a rebound.

Though the Tigers missed consecutive opportunities to go ahead, McWilliams finally staked Snyder to the lead on an 18-footer with 1:37 to play, 48-47.

Andrews quickly retaliated when Bernard Williams put up a field goal. The 6-0 junior transfer from Big Spring was sent to the line moments later, but like Damon Clay and Neighbors before him, he couldn't hit from the stripe. Jacky Anderson rebounded for Snyder and Bobby Scott scored on a 15-footer to put the hosts on top once more, 50-49.

This one was a long way from being over, however. Louis Clay was given another shot at the freebie line with 40 seconds to play. Sure enough, like his brother Damon, Neighbors and Williams before him, he missed. Chris Garrett rebounded for Snyder.

Again, though, the Tigers gave the Mustangs another chance. It wasn't a free throw this time, but a walking violation that put the ball in Andrews' hands with 25 seconds left.

Once more, the Tigers overcame it. Williams' shot ricocheted from the rim and Tippens rebounded.

This time, it appeared Snyder had the game wrapped up. It wasn't to be, however. Louis Clay leaped high to intercept a pass as Bobby Scott tried to get the ball down court. As the seconds ticked off, he dribbled 20 feet and managed to get it inside to Woods to set up the unconventional ending.

"I told the kids that there's no reason for them to hang their heads about this," said Coach Scott. "They don't have anything to be ashamed of. I hope the people of Snyder, when they see them, will tell them how much they appreciate them playing basketball for Snyder this season."

Snyder's inside play set the theme for the game early on. The Tigers went underneath to Tippens and Garrett to fashion an 18-12 lead in the first quarter. The margin reached 10 on back-to-back buckets by McWilliams at the start of the second period, 22-12.

Andrews rallied behind Williams, who scored 14 points in the quarter. The 'Stangs took the lead on a field goal by Woods during a span in which Snyder turned the ball over four consecutive times. Andrews led at halftime, 30-24.

Snyder went back to basics in the third quarter and got the ball inside to Garrett, who tallied 8 points. The Tigers continued to

WHAT HAPPENED? – Referees talk with clock keeper Rick Howard about which came first - the buzzer or the foul - during a scene which transposed here after Tuesday's ballgame between Snyder and Andrews. They eventually allowed the Mustangs two foul shots which meant the difference in the ballgame. See related article. (SDN Staff Photo by Noble Young)

Snyder JV takes 12th 2-4A game in 13 tries

Snyder held off a furious rally to defeat Andrews in junior varsity basketball action here Tuesday evening, 48-43.

It was Snyder's 12th district win in 13 outings this season. They finish up the 1985-86 campaign Friday in Pecos.

Snyder broke the game open in the second quarter to lead 28-18 at halftime. The Cats outscored the visitors 8-6 in the third, but had to fight off a rally in the fourth to pull the game out.

Terry Garza scored 14 points for Snyder while Tom Marvin had 8. Scott Lanier, Daniel Chasteen and Earl Ware added a half-dozen points apiece.

Chasteen led on the boards with 17 rebounds. Marvin came away with 13.

Western looking to solidify position in WJCAC standings

Western Texas College's Westerners hope to solidify their third place position in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference standings Thursday when they take on the New Mexico Junior College Thunderbirds at Hobbs, N.M.

Western is 7-4 in WJCAC play and has the same number of conference losses as New Mexico JC, 5-4, and Odessa, 6-4.

The Westerners would also like to atone for an 83-81 loss to the Thunderbirds earlier in the season.

Thursday's outing is the second game of a double header, scheduled to start at 6 p.m. CST when Coach Kelly Chadwick's Dusters encounter the Lady Thunderbirds.

The men play at 8.

Western's men are 16-8 overall while NMJC is 17-7.

In women's action, the Dusters take a 20-7 season record, 6-2 in the conference to Hobbs. New Mexico is struggling at 1-5 in WJCAC play, yet is still in the conference race for the all-important fourth place bid to the upcoming region tournament.

The top four teams qualify for the tournament.

Odessa leads at 8-0, followed by Western Texas and South Plains, which is 5-2. Howard is 3-6 and Clarendon and Frank Phillips are both 2-6.

The WTC-NMJC game is the only women's game on tap Thursday. New Mexico is scheduled to play Frank Phillips in Borger in a makeup game Friday, however.

In men's action Thursday, Howard (2-9) is at Midland (11-0) and NMMI (3-8) is at Odessa. NMJC men also play at Borger in a makeup game Friday.

Texas Aggies early winners in schoolboy recruiting race

by The Associated Press

The Texas Aggies or Louisiana State Tigers hope Hempstead's Harvey Williams will be as elusive on the football field as he is in the intriguing recruiting game.

The Aggies, already big winners in the recruiting sweepstakes, and Tigers hoped to add Williams' name to their list of signees today, the first day colleges can sign schoolboy stars to scholarship agreements.

Williams, a key member of the Dallas Times Herald's blue chip list, called a news conference Monday to announce his choice of colleges, but instead only narrowed it down to the Aggies and Tigers.

The Aggies already had obtained verbal commitments from Tomball quarterback Lance Pavlas; Columbus receiver Percy Waddle, who established four state records and one Class 3A record in his high school career; and Spring Woods center Mike Authur.

Williams surpassed former Texas schoolboy Eric Dickerson in Class 3A career rushing and said he'd make the final decision today.

Signing Williams would give the Aggies at least four of the 15 players on The Dallas Times Herald Blue Chip list, determined from voting by Southwest Conference head coaches.

Several other members of the Times Herald list were still considering A&M.

Williams says the past two months had been the toughest of his life and that he has agonized over his final decision.

"It's hard to say no to a coach who recruited you for a whole year," Williams said. "You've grown attached to them."

Williams gained 5,883 career yards at Hempstead, and moved into sixth place among all-time Class 3A rushers. Dickerson, a former Sealy all-stater now with the Los Angeles Rams, is seventh with 5,877 career yards.

Waddle set state records for 3,224 career yards and 56 career touchdown catches and single-season records of 1,471 yards and 26 touchdowns. His 158 career catches is a Class 3A record.

Pavlas, 6-2, 190, passed for 1,636 yards last season and led Tomball to two state Class 4A championship runnerup finishes. He completed 46 touchdown passes and 3,410 yards in two seasons as Tomball posted a 28-2 record.

Pavlas said the entire recruiting process was a positive experience and that he he chose the Aggies because of Coach Jackie Sherrill's sincerity, the school's academic programs and the Aggie offense.

Pavlas also saw the presence of quarterback Kevin Murray as a positive, he said.

"I only feel that situation can help me to improve my skills," Pavlas said.

Murray has two years remaining at A&M.

Linebacker Melvin Foster of Class 5A state champion Houston Yates, the top vote-getter in the Times Herald poll, was considering Oklahoma State, Oklahoma, Iowa and Texas going into the signing date.

UCLA plucked two Texas blue chippers - landing commitments from Willowridge tight end Charles Arbuckle and Lubbock Dunbar linebacker Brian Jones.

struggle from the peremiter, but good defensive play kept them close until Tippens' fourth-quarter free throws put the hosts ahead.

Tippens had 14 points and 14 rebounds to lead the Tigers, who fall to 18-7 for the season and 9-4 in 2-4A play. Garrett, a 6-4 junior, tallied a dozen points and paced the board game with 15 rebounds. Jackie Anderson scored 9 points, McWilliams 8 and Bobby Scott 7.

Andrews, 28-2 now and 11-2 in loop action, got 20 from Williams, 14 from Woods and 13 from Neighbors.

Ironically, the Mustangs won the game from the free throw line despite hitting only 7 of 17 shots. Snyder was 10 of 13.

Snyder closes out the 1985-86 season Friday in Pecos. Andrews will host Sweetwater.

Manges rejects bid to buy Gunslingers

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - San Antonio Gunslingers owner Clinton Manges says he has rejected a $3 million offer by a group of investors to buy his United States Football League franchise.

"I want you to quote me on this. They are not for sale, period," Manges told The San Antonio Light Tuesday.

The investors include San Antonio home builder John Schaefer and airplane broker Gus Cuello of Dallas, said Harry Lander, a consultant to the group and former part-time coach for the Gunslingers.

Lander said the original offer to Manges "was in the neighborhood of $3 million, to cover the team's debts."

Had the offer been accepted, Lander said, it would have given the group control of "the USFL franchise, the (Alamo Stadium) lease and the team's equipment."

Lander said the Gunslingers countered with a different proposal of $2.5 million "for the franchise and equipment only." He did not say what response the investors made to the proposal.

Manges said he is awaiting a USFL owners meeting next Wednesday in New York City.

"I'm waiting to see how it comes out next week in New York. I've sweated it out this long. I want to see if I've either got something that is worth a lot or something that is not worth two cents," he told the newspaper.

Manges confirmed Gunslingers president M.W. Haun talked with Jim Young, a representative of Lander's group.

Schaefer confirmed the group is interested in keeping professional football in San Antonio.

"I have expressed an interest in it. But I (have not made) a commitment at this time," he said.

The Gunslingers released their players last June after Manges failed to meet two payrolls.

Cards suing

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The St. Louis Cardinals filed suit against the National Football League and Commissioner Pete Rozelle, claiming that league rules covering the transfer of franchises violate antitrust laws.

Richardson tested for drug use again

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - The often brilliant and sometimes drug-plagued NBA career of Micheal Ray Richardson hinges on the results of a drug-screening test which will determine whether the New Jersey Nets guard has missed his last shot in a battle with a cocaine addiction.

"The truth is not in his word," said Lewis Schaffel, the Nets' executive vice president. "It's in the test."

The results of the test are expected to be released by the National Basketball Association today, said Nets spokesman Jim Lampariello.

Schaffel on Tuesday suspended Richardson for one game, fined him an undisclosed amount of money and ordered him to undergo a urinalysis test at University Hospital in Newark. The action came one day after Richardson missed a team practice and an appointment with team physician Dr. Dennis Quinlan.

The absence and subsequent missed appointment sparked speculation that Richardson had once again succumbed to his drug problem, one that has placed his career in jeopardy.

Federal Appeals Court ponders bond ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal appeals court is considering the future of a ruling that sharply reduced the amount of bond Texaco Inc. had to post while appealing the multibillion-dollar judgement a jury awarded Pennzoil Co., after Texaco interfered in Pennzoil's attempt to acquire Getty Oil Co.

In a hearing Tuesday, attorneys for Pennzoil told a three-judge panel that Judge Charles L. Brieant Jr. of the U.S. District Court in suburban White Plains, had no jurisdiction in the case, when he issued orders preventing Pennzoil from seizing Texaco assets pending the appeal.

In his decision last month, Brieant also lowered to $1 billion a Texas requirement that Texaco post a $12 billion bond to protect its assets during an appeal.

Texaco argued that Brieant's interference was necessary to keep it from bankruptcy while it pursues its appeal of the richest jury award in U.S. history, an $11.1 billion judgment imposed by a Texas court for interferring in a merger agreement between Pennzoil and Getty.

A decision by the three-judge panel might not come for several weeks. The losing party could then ask for a review by the full, 11-member 2nd U.S. Court of Appeals or it could go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court.

In 1984, Texaco bought Getty for $10.1 billion, after Getty had tentatively agreed to accept a lower offer to merge.

Last year, a Houston jury ruled Texaco wrongfully interfered and must pay $7.53 billion in damages and $3 billion in punitive damages to Pennzoil. A judge later added $600 million in interest and said the interest would continue to accrue.

The White Plains-based Texaco went to federal court, claiming that it could not afford to post the $12 billion bond required under Texas law, and thus would be denied its constitutional right to appeal the adverse verdict. The $12 billion represents the damages plus two years interest.

Last month Brieant sided with Texaco, ruling that the Texas requirement was "so absurd, so impractical and so expensive that it hardly bears discussion.

He reduced that bond to $1 billion.

The Texas rule is designed to ensure that a party that loses a judgment and appeals unsuccssfully still has enough money to pay off the creditor by the time the appeals are complete. Texaco put up stock in its partially owned Texaco Canada subsidiary last week to meet the $1 billion bond.

"We maintain the District Court asserted jurisdiction it did not have and that only the U.S. Supreme Court has," said Pennzoil attorney Arthur Liman, in asking the three-judge panel to throw out the preliminary injunction. "... You cannot find a case with more officious interference."

"Judge Brieant said, 'This is the most you could get in damages, so this is the most you could get in the form of a bond,' and then he imposed it," Liman said.

Lawrence H. Tribe, a constitutional scholar from Harvard Law School, also arguing Pennzoil's side, maintained that Brieant was improper in reducing the bond for Texaco, a big company, when the law would still be applicable to smaller companies and individuals hit by judgements.

"The most serious guarantee for freedom and equality is the rule of law, and if you bend that rule for Texaco, you must bend it for all of us," he said.

On hand for Texaco were Paul Curran, a former U.S. attorney, and David Boies, the New York lawyer who defended International Business Machines Corp. against anti-trust charges and CBS Inc. against retired Gen. William Westmoreland's libel suit.

Curran said Brieant's injunction "doesn't interfere with any proceeding. "It enhances it. It enables Texaco to appeal effectively in the Texas courts (and) does not violate any principles of federalism."

13 petroleum companies' credit reviewed

NEW YORK (AP) — A top debt-rating agency says it is scrutinizing the creditworthiness of 13 petroleum-industry companies because of concern about their financial future in the declining oil market.

Standard & Poor's Corp. said in a statement Tuesday that it had placed the companies on "creditwatch with negative implications," meaning it might downgrade their credit ratings. Companies with lower ratings often must pay higher interest rates when they borrow money.

The companies were identified as Diamond Shamrock Corp., Forest Oil Corp., Phillips Petroleum Co., Freeport-McMorRan Inc., Kerr-McGee Corp., Gearhart Industries Inc., McDermott Inc., Noble Affiliates Inc., NRM Energy Co., Smith International Inc., Templeton Energy Inc., Tidewater Inc. and Zapata Corp.

In other developments, four U.S. oil companies announced cuts Tuesday in the amount they pay for domestic crudes. But the spot and futures markets were relatively stable compared with the sharp declines of recent sessions.

Texaco Inc., the country's third largest oil company, said it reduced its postings, the contract prices paid to producers, by between $1 and $2 per 42-gallon barrel of various grades of crude, retroactive to Monday.

Atlantic Richfield Co. said it cut postings $1.50 retroactive to Friday; Diamond Shamrock said it cut postings 50 cents-$1.50 effective Tuesday; and Marathon Petroleum Co. said it cut postings $1-$1.50 effective Monday.

For Texaco and Arco it was the second such reduction this month, and followed similar cuts by other major U.S. oil companies. An Arco statement said the step was taken because of "competitive pricing and market pressures."

The postings remain several dollars above the spot and futures prices and are now in the $20-$23 per barrel range, compared with about $29 per barrel at the beginning of this year.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the price for March delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the best-known U.S. blend, closed Tuesday at $16.55 a barrel, down 23 cents from Monday but above the 7-year low of $15.44 set a week earlier. In the open market, Britain's Brent crude traded for $16.30-$16.50 a barrel, off about 50 cents.

Prices on the open market have dropped by half since November because of a struggle for market share between the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and non-OPEC producers, notably Britain, Norway and Mexico.

Richer OPEC countries, led by Saudi Arabia, have flooded the market with cheap oil in attempts to force non-OPEC competitors to scale back their production levels, so far unsuccessfully.

Carter against Contra aid

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter, here on the last leg of a five-nation Latin American tour, scheduled meetings today with Salvadoran rebel leaders in exile and President Miguel de la Madrid.

The former president arrived in Mexico on Tuesday afternoon with his wife, Rosalynn, after stops in Venezuela, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and El Salvador.

Hector Oqueli, spokesman for El Salvador's Democratic Revolutionary Front, told The Associated Press that Carter planned to speak with Guillermo Ungo, the group's leader, and other opposition rebels living outside El Salvador.

The front is the political arm of the Farabundi Marti National Liberation Front, an umbrella organization of the five rebel armies fighting to overthrow the Salvadoran government.

On Tuesday, Carter spoke out against human rights violations in El Salvador and said he was against renewed military aid for the Nicaraguan rebels fighting to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government.

"I have not supported continued aid to the Contras," Carter said at a news conference in El Salvador. "I don't think that this should be approved until after every opportunity for a peaceful solution is exhausted. In my opinion these opportunities for negotiations toward peace have not been exhausted."

Carter said funds provided to the Nicaraguan rebels in recent years "can be beneficial — enforcing or encouraging peaceful negotiations. But to escalate the aid and have a further involvement of military aid now I think would mean it would be much more difficult for any special resolution to be accomplished."

The Reagan administration has said it will ask Congress to approve up to $100 million in military and non-lethal aid for the Contras. Last year Congress approved $27 million, but restricted the funds to humanitarian aid.

Carter, who met with President Jose Napoleon Duarte on Monday and also had talks with Roman Catholic church leaders, said human rights violations continue in El Salvador.

"There are still some very serious violations of human rights in El Salvador, from the remaining death squads that are operating to long imprisonment of people without trial," he said.

"There are some allegations — I have no proof of this — that there has been indiscriminate bombing that has killed or injured innocent civilians. But I think it's obvious there has been great progress in El Salvador on the human rights question in recent months."

Human rights groups say many of the 60,000 people killed in the six-year-old civil war between leftist guerrillas and the U.S.-backed government were civilians.

Carter said the Contadora group's effort to achieve peace in Central America was "admirable," but, "I don't see much chance in the immediate future for consumating or concluding this effort."

Tylenol related death treated as homicide

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The death of a woman who took a cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol capsule probably was an isolated incident and is being investigated as a homicide, authorities say.

The death of Diana Elsroth, 23, of Peekskill, has spurred a withdrawal of the painkiller from stores around the nation.

Ms. Elsroth was found dead Saturday in her boyfriend's home in this New York suburb.

"Everyone involved believes that this is a local situation," William Griggs, a U.S. Food and Drug Administration spokesman, said Tuesday.

Because the bottle was among a 200,000-unit lot shipped in August, most probably would have been sold within a month, he said. If other bottles in the lot were tainted, officials probably would have known before this week.

The cyanide would eat through a gelatin capsule in eight to 10 days, meaning it had been added since the Tylenol left the plant, added Dr. Millard Hyland, Westchester County's chief medical examiner.

"We are dealing with a case of murder," County Executive Andrew O'Rourke told a news conference.

Although police have no suspects, "we are not ruling anybody out," said Bruce Bendish, of the county prosecutor's office.

The bottle was purchased sometime last week, police said, declining to say who bought it. Three other capsules in the bottle used by Ms. Elsroth were found to contain cyanide, Hyland said.

Comics survey results noted

were "The Born Loser," "Kit 'N' Carlyle," "Blondie," "Barney Google," and "Frank & Ernest."

As for comics that the readers said they regularly read, just behind "Dennis" with 88 responses was "Blondie."

Other comics which more than 70 percent of those responding said they read regularly were "Barney Google," "The Born Loser" and "Kit 'N' Carlyle."

On the negative side, such adventure-type strips as "Alley Oop," "Flash Gordon," and "Captain Easy" were singled out by readers as infrequently read and their least favorites.

In the least favorite category, the caveman strip "Oop" was the most often cited. It was also the third most often voted strip for "almost never read."

Other strips noted in the least favorite category were "Flash Gordon" and "Mr. Men-Little Miss." Regarding which strips readers "almost never read," those drawing a response from more than 70 percent of those responding were "Flash Gordon," "Captain Easy" and "Alley Oop."

When readers were asked which comics they would like to see added to the SDN, the two strips most often cited (almost 40 percent of those responding) voted for either "Garfield," the overweight lasagna-eating cat; or the long running "Peanuts" strip.

Twenty said they would like to see "Garfield" added and 17 voted for "Peanuts."

Regarding new strips, there were 21 others mentioned, but six votes was the largest noted for any other single one as "Family Circus" was requested.

"Dick Tracy" received five votes; "Gasoline Alley" four votes; and "Doonesbury" three votes.

Two votes each were placed for such strips as "Mary Worth," "Shoe," "Spiderman," "Superman," "Cathy" and "Marvin."

Other strips receiving single votes were "Little Abner," "Bloom County," "The Better Half," "Fred Bassett," "Heathcliff," "Tumbleweeds," "Andy Capp," "B.C.," "Nancy," "Marmaduke," "Mutt and Jeff," "Steve Canyon," "Tank McNamara," "The Lockhorns" and "Major Hoople."

In addition to comics, readers were asked to rate the other features included in the newspaper — "Dear Abby," "Dr. Gott," "Astro-Graph," "Berry's World" plus the crossword puzzle included on the comics page and the bridge column included in the women's news section.

"The two most striking results we found were that 'Dear Abby' is a high readership item while practically no one seems to be reading the bridge column," Brown noted.

The advice column "Abby" was noted by 76 of the 105 responding as "regularly" read. On the other end of the list was the bridge column with only five readers saying they regularly read it and only three saying they occasionally read it.

Readers pointing to the feature they "almost never" read cited the bridge column 94 times. By comparison, "Abby" was cited only four times.

The crossword puzzle also drew a low reader response. Some 71 readers rated it in the "almost never read" category.

The second most popular feature pointed to was "Berry's World," followed by "Dr. Gott" and "Astro-Graph," which drew a medium reader response for popularity.

"No decisions have been made yet," Brown noted regarding possible changes in the comics pages. "Now we'd like to hear from more readers."

Births

Born to Richard and Tracie Lavender of Snyder was a baby boy weighing four pounds and 13 ounces. John Warren was born on Feb. 5 in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lavender of Odessa and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Zeck of Snyder.

Glenn and Junanne Winters of Aurora, Colo. are parents of a daughter, Ashley Elizabeth. Weighing seven pounds and one-half ounce, she was born on Feb. 11 at 8 p.m. in Rose Memorial Hospital in Denver, Colo.

Grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Ben Brock of Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Winters of Hisdale, Ill.

Birthing plan to be offered

"The advantage of having classes at the hospital is that the couple will get to know the nursing staff in advance," Mize added.

Under the plan, couples may choose to use a delivery room or the hospital's new birthing room facility. The birthing room — with its home-like atmosphere — allows each woman to stay in the same room for both labor and delivery.

The new mother may opt for the hospital's "rooming in" plan, which allows mother and baby to remain in the same room for the duration of their hospital stay. "Rooming in" allows the new mother to develop infant care skills immediately, Mize said.

For the new baby's older brothers and sisters, nursing staffers will provide sibling classes also.

"We're going to talk a little about what a new baby looks like and what he might need. We want to lessen their anxiety for Mom by showing them what her room will look like and by showing them through the OB unit," Mize said.

The day following the baby's delivery, siblings will enjoy the "Birth-Day Party" complete with cupcakes and badges that proclaim their relationship to the new infant.

For the parents, the hospital's dietary staff will treat them to a candlelight dinner. To create a more romantic atmosphere, crystal dinnerware and table settings donated by Special Moments Gift Shop will be used.

A variety of personal gifts complete the package including the couple's choice of a Century 300 infant car seat or a $50 savings bond, a diaper bag and a "Made in Heaven" T-shirt. The local Kmart store will also give a T-shirt to each infant.

A "Lullaby Lane" information telephone line has been established to answer non-emergency questions about motherhood.

To qualify for the program, the couple must prepay the hospital's estimated charges 30 days prior to the mother's expected delivery date. With prepayment, couples receive a discount on the total bill.

Insured individuals must prepay the estimated balance remaining based upon their insurance coverage.

Hospital officials developed the discount program after analyzing similar programs offered by area hospitals to "make ours substantially less costly by comparison."

NASA considered booster seals safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA engineers have been concerned about the performance of rubber sealing rings on the space shuttle's rocket boosters for more than a year, but concluded that while the seals needed to be improved, they were "safe and adequate" for flight, space agency officials said.

Although the cause of the Jan. 28 explosion of the Challenger space shuttle has yet to be determined, the investigation has focused increasingly on a possible leak where sections of the solid-fuel rocket boosters are joined.

The seals — a primary one and a secondary backup — create a gasket that keeps the fiery exhaust fumes inside the boosters from escaping through the seams. Photographs of the Challenger seconds before the explosion showed a plume of fire apparently emerging from near one of the rocket joints.

The space agency was scheduled to release additional documents concerning the past performance of the so-called "O" ring seals at a news conference today.

Top officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on Tuesday told a presidential commission investigating the Challenger explosion that the rocket booster seals were deemed safe, although there had been a number of cases in which the seals partially eroded during shuttle launches.

"Was it safe to fly?" former astronaut and commission member Neil Armstrong asked.

"It was," replied David Winterhalter, who heads NASA's shuttle propulsion group.

But testimony by NASA officials as well as internal memos made public by the agency showed the performance of the rubber seals had been the subject of extensive testing for most of 1985 after concern was raised about their performance.

In a memo to Winterhalter last July, a supervisor in the shuttle propulsion group, Russell Bardos, shared the concern of other engineers as well as the rockets' manufacturer, Morton-Thiokol, and said he agreed some design changes were needed.

Your Birthday

Feb. 13, 1986

In the year ahead, you are likely to become deeply immersed in two unique projects. These involvements will provide you with excitement, profit and new friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Conditions in general look extremely hopeful today pertaining to something which is now of concern to you. Breaks could come thick and fast. Trying to patch up a busted romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't procrastinate today if you are aiming for an important goal. Luck is in your corner now, but she may shift her attention elsewhere shortly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Involvements with others will work out satisfactorily today. In fact, you might even have a chance to rectify a past misunderstanding with a pal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are going after an important objective today, pull out all of the stops. Don't hold your aces to your vest; play them now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually it's not too wise to use intermediaries, but today you could be rather lucky in having an associate contact someone you can't reach.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There are new material opportunities around you today where your career is concerned. Actually, there will be more than one way to increase your earnings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Advantageous situations that appear to have no relationship to one another can now, in reality, be linked. Conceive a way to fit them together.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, if you are asked to manage something for another, treat the matter as conscientiously as if it were your own. This way you'll gain in the end.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Quick thinking on your behalf will give you advantages over competitors today. Swing into action when you get a bright idea.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.22) You're now on the track to bettering your material lot in life. However, you can't afford to sit still on any moneymaking conceptions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something of substance is going to develop from your social involvements today. In conversations with friends, don't hesitate to talk business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Give free reign to your imagination today because you could conceive a rather ingenious idea for making more money.
