Yanks Enter Tokyo, Unfurl Old Glory

Jap Fanatics Almost Blocked Surrender

General Of Emperor's Guard Slain On Palace Grounds In Futile Drive

By RUSSELL BRINES
Associated Press Staff Writer

TOKYO, Sept. 7—Japanese sources said today the murder of a general near the emperor's palace grounds, the forging of a military order and a wild chase to the radio station climaxed attempts of a group of fanatical Japanese Army officers to prevent the imperial surrender announcement from reaching the people.

The dramatic battle in the closing days of the fight between two factions in Japan—one for peace, the other to continue the war—was revealed by well-informed Japanese sources.

Killed Emperor's General

These sources said that young Japanese officers on Aug. 14 killed the commanding general of Emperor Hirohito's personal guards division, Lt. Gen. Mori and by forging his name to an order sent troops to surround the palace. They hoped to prevent a recording of the emperor's historic surrender rescript from leaving the grounds.

The plan to capture the surrender announcement failed, however, when the forgery was detected.

When other members of the "fight on" faction learned of the failure of the original scheme raced through the streets of Tokyo to the radio station and began a search of the building for the document.

Conspirators Eluded

Their efforts failed when a radio station employee eluded the conspirators and telephoned a nearby Army garrison for help.

All the time, the recording was still at the palace and was delivered to the radio station shortly before it went on the air at noon Aug. 15.

Organized resistance to the emperor's decision to surrender the country apparently ended at the ratio station. Kamikaze pilots (suicide airmen) who were trained to fly their bomb-planes into American ships, took their own lives in spectacular dives into the bay soon after the announcement of surrender was broadcast to the people.

The notorious Black Dragon society—most rabid of the hundreds of super-patriotic organizations—was dissolved in the last week of August, according to Japanese sources.

Wins Cabinet Control

According to other Japanese sources the emperor won control of the Suzuki cabinet from Japanese Army leaders on Aug. 8, after Russia came into the conflict.

Taking his first direct action, the emperor was said to have demanded that the cabinet agree to his surrender proposal. In a stormy executive meeting the Army demanded that the surrender proposal be turned down.

Near the end of the meeting Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo, supported by other cabinet members, acceded to the emperor's wish and it was decided to accept the Potsdam ultimatum, these Japanese sources revealed.

Giant Airliner Explodes And Burns, 22 Die

(By The Associated Press)

FLORENCE, S. C., Sept. 7. — Twenty-two persons—nine of them soldiers—were killed before dawn today when an Eastern Air Lines plane plunged into a dense swamp, exploded and burned.

The pilot apparently was searching for a place to make a forced landing.

All of the bodies were burned badly except one—that of a man who was thrown clear of the wreakage and killed by a blow on the head.

The bodies were brought out of the swamp late today in a tractor-pulled wagon to Army and civilian ambulances. Rescuers had to cut a road three-fourths of a mile through thick vegetation to get the ambulances as near the scene as possible.

Deep In Sypress Swamp

The accident occurred about 2 a. m. (ewt). It was not until nearly 10 hours later that authorities reached the place of the unexplained crash, deep in a watery cypress swamp, when a Navy blimp finally spotted the wreckage and hovered over the spot until rescuers could cut their way through the thick, sub-tropical vegetation.

However, hours before that a 12-year-old boy, Hicks Harwell, who lives on a plantation a few miles away, came upon the wreckage and the mass of burned bodies.

The boy could get across the creeks and wriggle through almost impenetrable undergrowth, but rescuers had to cut a road through the swamp.

Heard Tremendous Blast

About 2 a. m. Mrs. W. L. Rankin, the grandmother of the Harwell boy, said she heard a tremendous explosion, then several lesser ones.

The Rankins immediately notified the authorities and Army planes from Florence, Sumter and Laurinburg-Maxton, N. C., took off to seach for the wreck.

Capt. J. Olin King of Miaml, Fla., was the pilot of the big DC-3 transport on the night run from Miami to New York. A few minutes before the crash he radioed the Florence air base he was "having trouble" and would attempt to land there.

He was apparently circling back toward the Florence base when for some unknown reason the plane plunged into the swamp, plowing a 50-foot wide path through the trees and undergrowth for a distance of 200 feet before exploding and making a funeral pyre of the bodies.

13 Civilians, Nine Soldiers

EAL said there were ten civilians and nine soldiers aboard, as well as a crew of three.

The bodies, which were in a heap and burned beyond recognition, will be brought to Florence. They had not been removed from the scene this afternoon and a large tree lay across one women's body.

In New York City, Edward V. Rickenbacker, president and general manager of Eastern Airlines, in a statement said:

"No cause has as yet been established for the accident, but an investigation has been initiated by company officials to determine, if possible, the cause."

WORLD'S LARGEST LAND PLANE — The DC-7 Douglas 'Globemaster' took to the air at LongBeach, Calif., airport Thursday for a test flight of the world's largest land plane. Carrying 180 passengers, it has a cruising range of 7,800 miles.

Youths Slug Jailer, Escape But Freedom is Short Lived

Two self-admitted hijackers who slugged, bound and gagged Dep. Sheriff Tom Cannon Friday afternoon and escaped by the county jail elevator were back in their cells less than 15 minutes later, Chief Dep. Sheriff Raymond Land announced at 5 o'clock.

They were Hubert O'Pry, 17, of Amarillo, and Jesse Montague, alias Williams, 17, of Bay City.

Cannon, 53-year-old former policeman who became a deputy sheriff Jan. 1, was not seriously injured, Dr. William L. Baugh, county health officer, said after an examination in the jail, but the left side of his face was discolored and bruised.

Recaptured Shortly

O'Pry and Montague were arrested by three members of the Texas rangers and by Land, after a combination car and foot race.

"I'd rather be dead than in jail," was Montague's only explanation.

O'Pry had nothing to say.

Here is the story of what happened, as told by participating officers and prisoners witnesses in the jail:

Cannon was serving as jailer for J. A. Wright, jailer who had gone with Dep. Sheriff Frank Mitchell to Waco and Austin to deliver two insane persons.

He had given prisoners their night meal and, with trusties, had gone back to the jail's third flo to pick up leftover food and utensils.

Hid Behind Curtains

O'Pry and Montague, hidden behind shower curtains, darted past as trusties went into the big cell, slammed shut a heavy door leading to the corridor, and began assaulting Cannon.

Cannon, slight but a veteran officer, threw the 153-pound O'Pry completely over his shoulder to the concrete floor, but was struck down by the flailing fists of the 160-pound Montague.

"Both of them swarmed me when I went down," Cannon told other officers later.

They stuffed a wadded newspaper into his mouth, knotted his wrists together, then his knees. For string, they used twisted strips torn from mattress covers. His necktie was knotted about his throat.

O'Pry and Montague dragged Cannon northward up the corridor and dropped him next a cell where women prisoners were kept.

Girl Pled With Youths

Cannon said that Ruth (Jackie) Wilder, 19, of Monahans — who had been arrested with the two youths and who is charged with them with robbery of Onyx and Lowrimore's East Broadway gasoline stations — begged the youths not to mistreat him.

Cannon said O'Pry and Montague dashed back into the cell from which they had darted and attempted to induce other prisoners to leave with them. The others demurred. They included Gerald Davis, 17, of Lubbock and Amarillo, who had been arrested with O'Pry, Montague and Miss Wilder, and jointly charged with them. (Davis is not the Gerald Davis, 17, who, is known as "Dingy," is a Westerner football player living at 2003 Ave. W.)

O'Pry and Montague inserted a broken spoon handle into a cut-

Trio Eliminated As Raid Suspects

MORTON, Sept. 7 (Special) — Three men who were arrested Thursday at Carlsbad have been eliminated as suspects in the robbery Wednesday of the Morton State bank, it was announced this afternoon by Cochran County Sheriff Mac W. Hancock.

Howeve, the trio had admitted stealing in California the Buick automobile they were driving when arrested, Hancock said. The sheriff added that the men, ranging in age from 22 to 26, were former soldiers.

Hancock said he confronted the men with M. M. Williamson, bank vice president, and Winford Patton and H: L. Coon, farmers, who professed that the suspects were not those sought in the $17,692 robbery.

Good Look At Gunmen

Coon, who lives eight miles south of Morton, had a good look at the gunmen when his tractor inadvertently blocked the road on which they were making their getaway. He said they brandished guns and said, "Get that d...n thing out of the way."

Another suspect, arrested today at Sudan by City Marshal W. R. Wagnon, was eliminated this afternoon, and Hancock expressed belief that the suspect was an escaped German prisoner of war. Efforts are being made to trace his identity.

The sheriff said the man, about 36, was "definitely a German" although he spoke good English. He carried no identification papers of any kind, the officer said.

He did not fit description of any of the holdup men, Hancock said.

Freed Texans Arriving In Home Ports

FIVE Texans back from Jap prison camps arrived at the Oakland, Calif., airport Friday; 12 land, Calif., airport Friday; 12 more were found at Singapore, and from other Pacific points came the names of more than 100 liberated from such prisons.

The five who arrived at Oakland were among the first group of men liberated from prison camps in Japan to arrive in this country. They came in two big naval air transport C-54's.

They were: Pfc. Hillman A. Davis, 24, of Denton; Cpl. Otis King, 24, of Dallas; Cpl. J. W. Richardson, 25, of Mineral Wells; Motor Machinists Mate 2-C Lee Clifford Shaw of San Antonio, and Coxswain Earl King of Bynum.

Cpl. King, a Marine, said he was brutally beaten at Yokohama for taking extra food from garbage boxes. "I was made to hold a heavy bucket of water and heavy hammers at arms length and I was slugged if I tried to relax."

"I'm not dead, mom. I just got out of a hell hole," Davis telephoned his mother, Mrs. Lester Davis of Denton. He was calling from a Navy hospital in Oakland, where all the men were to receive physical checkups.

The call was the first word his mother had received from the soldier in more than four years. He went overseas in April, 1940. He was captured in the fall of Corregidor.

MacArthur Declines Jap Guard On Three-Mile Parade Through City

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

TOKYO, Saturday, Sept. 8—General MacArthur entered Tokyo today—last mile of the long hard road from Australia—with steel-helmeted troops of the First Cavalry division. He ordered unfurled the American flag of victory over the U. S. embassy in the heart of the war-ravaged city.

The First Cavalry band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner" as the flag, which flew over the White House in Washington on Dec. 7, 1941 and later in triumph over Rome and Berlin, caught the breeze over the embassy grounds.

Halsey Also Present

MacArthur, making good on his famed Philippines cry, "On to Tokyo," saluted smartly. Nearby Admiral Halsey, whose Third Fleet drove Japan's Navy from the seas, also stood stiffly at attention.

It was a rigidly simple ceremony, opening at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Friday CWT).

MacArthur's only words, spoken to Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, Eighth Army commander, as the ceremony got under way, were:

"Have our country's flag unfurled, and in Tokyo's sun let it wave in its full glory as a symbol of hope for the oppressed and as a harbinger of victory for the right."

The National Anthem was played. There was a benediction. The ceremony, symbolizing the first entrenchment of a conqueror within Tokyo in Japan's long history, was over.

Advanced Elements

Advanced elements of the mechanized (dismounted) cavalry had entered Tokyo from Yokohama shortly before 7 a. m. At 7:25 a. m. they drew up at the Imperial hotel, overlooking Hibiyap park and posted guards at the entrances. The hotel is to serve as general headquarters.

They were followed by a motor convoy of the First Cavalry, led by the Seventh regiment, which fought under Custer on the Little Big Horn.

By 8:30 a. m., the cavalrymen had thrown a cordon of honor guards around the embassy and chancellery grounds.

There were a few Japanese on the capital streets. Clusters of spectators formed along the route of entry. They stared impassively at the khaki-clad Yanks.

The cavalry did not march, as first planned, from the Imperial Diet building which stands on Kasumigaseki hill adjoining the embassy grounds. Instead they left their trucks in an area which had been devastated by Allied air raids.

Soon after, they were spaced at parade rest in the vicinity of the embassy, with gleaming bayonets fixed, awaiting MacArthur.

Each man of the honor guard wore Asiatic Pacific and Phil-

Adm. Carney Says Closest Pressure Must Be Kept Against Japan For Many Years

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following exclusive interview by veteran United Press war correspondent Richard W. Johnston with Adm. F. Halsey's chief may be considered to reflect the official views of the Third Fleet.

By RICHARD W. JOHNSON
United Press Staff Writer

ABOARD ADM. HALSEY'S FLAGSHIP, Yokohama, Sept. 7—The American people must be prepared to maintain the closest military pressure against Japan for years and perhaps generations to avoid wars in the Pacific, Rear Adm. Robert B. Carney said today.

Carney, chief of staff to Adm. William F. Halsey, commander of the Third Fleet, also believes there is no indication that Japan is undergoing or contemplating any spiritual reform, he told me today.

Must Stay at Rathole

"The terriers have got to stay at the rathole—since we didn't kill the rat," Carney said.

"We must have military pressure close at hand and continually exerted. These people think in terms of their grandchildren. And so must we."

He indicated that "maintenance of military pressure" should take the form either of garrisoning the Japanese mainland with Allied forces for an extended period or a tight air and sea encirclement.

Asked to comment on the "new democracy" now being hailed by the Japanese press, Carney said:

"The people who are going through this new process are exactly the same people who were guilty of atrocities during the last four years. There is no reason to think that under the same circumstances they wouldn't do it again.

Must Show Fitness

"There is no reason to accept them until they have demonstrated over a long period of years their fitness to restore Japan to the community of nations."

Carney said he believed the prosecution of war criminals "should be conducted the same way as in Germany."

He predicted our occupation forces would grow increasingly strict so the Japanese "will not be permitted to forget they have been defeated and are being punished for aggression."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur will need the support of the American public for years to come, he said, not only "to keep the terrier at the rat-hole," but to prevent the throne from again becoming a rallying point for the Nipponese militarists.

Compared to War I

He compared the present Japanese situation with the end of the first World war in Germany, which was never invaded and in which many natives remained unregenerate.

But unlike Germany, residents of some of the Japanese coastal cities must have realized end of the war was near because of Third Fleet bombardments, Carney pointed out.

"The atom may have broken the camel's back, but its belly was dragging on the ground before that," he said.

Carney said he didn't blame the Japanese from trying to rationalize their defeat, especially in a country "where everybody lies to everybody else anyway."

Jap Navy Man Recounts Sneak

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 7. (AP) — Japan used four aircraft carriers in her attack on Pearl Harbo, one of her defeated admirals, Rear Adm. Toshitane Takata, said at a press conference tonight.

Takata also disclosed that the battle of the Basmarck sea, March 2-6, 1943, was the greatest shock of the war to the Japanese Navy and that the Okinawa campaign spelled the certainty of Nipponese loss of the war.

Air power was the single major element bringing about defeat of Japan, Takata said emphatically.

The admiral spoke through an interpreter at the suite of Lt. Gen. Barney M. Giles, deputy commander of the U. S. Strategic Air force, and Maj. Gen. Paul B. Wurthsmith, commander of the 13th Air force.

Bismarck Biggest Shock

"Our biggest shock of the war was the Fifth (U.S.) Air force attack on the Bismarck sea convoy," the Japanese admiral said.

"For the first time, American planes came in large formation and dropped bombs and torpedoes at low level.

"You underestimated when you guessed 22 ships were sunk there. I don't know the exact number, but I think it was between 30 and 40. Not one escaped."

Wurtsmith informed Takata that 135 planes took part in that attack, and no torpedoes were used. The admiral replied that Japanese thought they had been torpedoed.

Destroyer Revealed As Tweed's Rescuer

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 6. (AP) — Today the Navy told a happy story—rare for a ship of this kind—about the USS McCall, a destroyer which went unscathed through 36 Pacific campaigns from the Pearl Harbor attack to the surrender of Japan.

The mighty Mac was the ship that took Navy Radioman George R. (The Ghost) Tweed, off Guam, it was disclosed for the first time. Answering a bonfire signal, the ship crept in under the muzzle of Jap shore batteries and rescued Tweed who had eluded Japs for three years on the island.

North Pacific Fleet Moving In To Occupy Ominato Naval Base On Northern Honshu

By OLEN CLEMENTS
Associated Press Staff Writer

ABOARD USS PANAMINT, Saturday, Sept. 8—Warships of the North Pacific fleet began moving early today (Friday U. S. date) through tricky Tsugaru straits between Honshu and Hokkaido islands to occupy Ominato naval base in Honshu's Mutsu bay.

It marked the first extension of the occupation of Japan to northern Honshu at a point nearly 400 miles beyond Tokyo.

Minesweepers paced the warships through the strait.

First in the line of destroyers was the USS Remy. Behind the destroyers came two old four-stacker cruisers, the Richmond and Concord.

Flagship Next In Line

Behind them moved the Panamint, flagship of Vice Adm. Frank Jack Fletcher., whose warships moved in from the Aleutians for the occupation. Japanese emissaries had completed arrangements aboard her last night for the Americans to take over the base.

Following the Panamint were three heavy cruisers, the Chester, Pensacola and Salt Lake City.

Others of the 60-odd ships in the convoy trailed with the carrier force remaining in the open sea for the time being. Carrier planes provided air cover.

There was a sharp lookout for floating mines. Three such had been destroyed.

Admiral Fletcher previously had ordered immobilization of all Japanese ships above 100 tons in the harbor. Several Japanese frigates and similar craft were in evidence.

When the American warships drop anchor, a 24 hour patrol will be set up around them by small craft to guard against midget submarines or swimmers pushing mines. No chances are to be taken even though the Japanese com-

Auto Rationing Ends December 1

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP) — Rationing of new commercial motor vehicles, including trucks, truck-tractors and trailers, will end December 1, the Office of Defense Transportation announced today.

Rationing of commercial motor vehicles has been in effect since March 9, 1942.

Beginning October 4, the ODT will discontinue the issuance of certificates of transfer covering new commercial vehicles.

During October, dealers are prohibited from transfering new vehicles except to holders of certificates of transfer. ODT urged certificate holders to place orders with dealers before November 1.

During November, dealers are required to give preference in the delivery of vehicles to holders of certificates who place orders with them before October 31. During November, dealers may deliver vehicles to any person not holding a certificate, provided the dealer has not made commitments to a holder of a certificate prior to November 1. All certificates will expire after December 1.

Lubbock Committee Inspects Dual Purpose Building Overlooking Mississippi

Memphis Combines Auditorium And Market

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles being written in connection with the current tour of Southern and Southwestern cities by Lubbock's Civic Center committee.)

By C. W. RATLIFF
Avalanche - Journal Staff Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Twenty-one years ago, Memphis and Shelby county voted $1,750,000 in bonds for the construction of a combination auditirum and farmers' market.

Today, that monument to the desires of citizens of this metropolitan center of 360,000 for a cultural and entertainment gathering place is still considered one of the outstanding buildings of its kind in the nation.

It is one of the two dual-purpose buildings in the South; that is, it has two separate halls with a central stage which may be lowered to floor level so that the entire structure becomes one large arena seating approximately 12,000 persons.

Lubbock's civic center committee members viewed this massive structure here this afternoon and heard W. A McSlravy, its manager since it opened in 1924, point out its advantages and disadvantages and offer us wise counsel on the construction of a building to fit the needs of a town the size of Lubbock.

Impractical For Lubbock

First, we learned, that it isn't very practical to try to construct a building of similar nature for a smaller town. Instead, McElravy said two halls, one smaller than the other and separated by soundproof walls, but both under the same roof is more practical.

The Memphis auditorium's south hall, which is used for road shows and musical comedies, concerts, recitals, lectures and the like, seats only 2,449 persons, which was much of a surprise to members of our committee. And yet those 2,449 seats are ample for most of the events of this type staged in Memphis, McElravy told us.

The north hall seats 6,200 and more than 8,000 when chairs are placed on the floor for such events as wrestling matches, prize fights and the like.

A 90-foot fly loft separates the two halls and backdrops may be lowered on either side of the huge stage so that it is included in one or the other hall. These backdrops are not sound-proof, however, and prevent events from being staged simultaneously in each hall. Hence, McElravy's advice that a sound-proof wall be built between them if a building of similar type is desired.

The building is 300 feet square and is located on Poplar street, between Main and Front street, which runs along the west side of Memphis overooking the broad Mississippi. It is within four blocks of the main retail business section, centering at Madison and Main streets.

Stepping off the stage into the north hall, we learned that it has a concrete floor over which interlocking oak floor sections are laid in approximately two an done-half hours when a basketball game, dance or similar event is scheduled.

An annual charity horse show is staged in the huge structure and approximately 9,000 yards of dirt are placed on the floor for this, McElravy told us. It requires a small steam shovel, several trucks and 100 convicts from the penal farm to remove it, he said.

Riding a hydraulic lift into the huge basement which is beneath most of the building, we got an idea of the tremendous amount of props and equipment required in the operation of such a gigantic structure. All of the portable flooring, chairs, and booth set-ups for the main floor are stored there and have to be moved and removed whenever a new set-up is required on the floor. Also in the basement is a complete workshop where scenery is made and chairs are repaired.

Climbing stairs to the second and third floors of the building around the main auditorium, we learned that in the structure there are 11 rooms of seating capacities ranging from 90 to 450 where

IN THE MAIL

DEAR MARGARET TURNER. As a reader of your column I see that people bring many of their troubles to you. I am distressed about what seems to be a great injustice to our young boys in service. Older men are allowed points for dependency and for each child. I feel that young boys are just as much entitled to a discharge and really more so, as the older one; they are really just children and should be given a chance to continue their education.

I think the draft should continue and it does seem that with those who have served only a short time they would allow discharging all who serve as much as three years, regardless of where they served.

My own son is overseas, but many have been in camp here for three years and more, and had had no choice. I am asking all parents of young boys to write or wire our Congressmen at once. Let's try to help our boys get a fair deal.

A Reader.

DEAR READER: Thanks for your letter which presents a problem we feel sure is being discussed in many homes over the country. We agree with you it would be a wonderful thing if all young men who have served three years could be given discharges but we disagree that parents should flood the mails in urging a Congress that is working overtime on other reconversion measures to take steps in hastening these discharges.

We thing the means of hastening demobilization should be left to the branches in which the men and women are serving. From what we have read and heard, they are being fair and as fast as humanly possible about the discharges. There are 26 Army separation centers and sub centers, for example, taking care of the multitudinous papers that make up the tape that is necessary to be cut before a man or woman can return to civilian ranks. It seems slow, of course, and especially to those who have loved ones who are sitting out the reconversion period in a camp in the United States. But we have heard from young men who are in the occupational army in Europe and they say they are almost "stir happy" from doing nothing all day long. They, too, would like to come home.

It is a trying time for all concerned, Reader, but as The Plainsman wrote in a recent column we must learn a nation's need come first, ahead of personal desires of parents and sons affected.

LAUNDRY BAGS

WHY not eliminate forever the washing chore of sorting clothes? Make half a dozen dozen laundry bags and train the whole family to use the right one for the right things. Perhaps you'll use a hamper for the bulkier bed linens and white towels but have a bag for other whites, such as hankies, cotton undies, table linens; one just for stockings and rayon undies; one for colored things, etc.

BOOSTS MARRIAGES

THE marriage rate which went on the rampage soon after the war began, with war brides and furlough brides increasing each month, promises to continue by leaps and bounds. Peace, which is bringing men home (sooner or later) is boosting the rate still higher, and many's the patient girl who is finally realizing the hopes that have been tucked away in that cedar hope chest these many months.

News Briefs

Mayor L. B. Wooten, County Commissioner Ben Mansker and Dep. Sheriff Ernest Ward, all of Slaton, visited Friday in Lubbock. Only a shower fell Friday morning at Slaton, and many farmers of that section do not expect feed to head, the mayor said, suggesting that many would probably bind stalks for winter fodder.

Offered for the first time at Texas Tech this year will be a one-hour, non-technical course in astronomy open to all students. Dr. R. S. Underwood, faculty member and amateur astronomer, who will instruct the class said this course would provide "at least a minimum of astronomical information expected of an educated person." The class will be held at 9 a. m. each Thursday in room 132 of the engineering building.

The division of agriculture at Texas Tech received two hand painted pictures of prize bulls sold at the National Western Stock show, 1944, by Dan Thornton of Gunnison, Colo., former Tech student. One of the bulls, TT Triumphant 16th of the Thornton Hereford ranch, was judged champion of the show. Both Triumphant and the other bull, WHR Triumph Domina, were sold by Thornton for $50,000 each and were featured in an issue of Life magazine.

Housing Problem Relief Is Sought

Special emissaries may be sent to Washington by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce to appeal to the highest officials in the nation for housing relief, since the local housing shortage is threatening the city's normal growth.

Local firms, seeking to expand their office staffs and sales forces to meet the challenge of peacetime production, are unable to find living accomodations in Lubbock fo rtheir increased personnel.

This was disclosed yesterday as new delays were encountered in the move started by the Chamber recently to obtain allocations from the National Housing Authority to construct a number of six-room residences here under the H-12 program. These houses, which were to rent for not more than $65 a month, were to have a top ceiling of $7,500.

Material Shortage Blamed

A nation-wide shortage of building materials is reported to be the principal reason for the delay in granting the application. Meanwhile lumber dealers and others engaged in the building trades have been besieging Washington with requests that the restriction order "L-41," controlling building materials, be lifted.

The high cost of materials and labor has also proved to be a factor in slowing up the construction of local homes, local builders admit.

Members of the Veterans' Service committee, presided over by Attorney George Berry, chairman, discussed the subject at the committee's Wednesday night meeting, and decided that the housing shortage was a No. 1 problem in Lubbock. No solution, other than working in close cooperation with housing authorities, was proposed.

Haroid Kipp, a member of the faculty at Texas Technological college, has been appointed faculty advisor for veterans at the college, it was announced at the meeting. Both he and J. M Hall, Lubbock county service office at the American Legion hall, were reported to have been kept busy advising veterans as to housing problems.

Fourteen members of the veterans' committee attended the meeting, which was held at the Chamber of Commerce.

Production of baby chicks in Wyoming showed a decrease during April as compared with the same month in 1944.

Tech Sets Course In Child Nutrition

A non-credit 10-hour short short course in child nutrition, to be offered by the department of vocational home economics education at Texas Tech, is scheduled to begin at 9 a. m. Friday in annex G of the home economics building.

Classes will be held each Monday, Wednesday and Friday during September. Monday class hours will be 9 to 11 a. m. and hours will be 9 to 10 a. m., on Wednesdays and Fridays in annex G.

Mrs. Gladys Holden, instructor in home economics education, will teach the class. She stressed the importance of all interested persons enrolling immediately, and all students should be registered by Wednesday, if possible.

No registration fee will be charged, Mrs. Holden said. Nutritional requirements and feeding problems of children from 1 to 15 years of age will be covered in lectures and laboratory work. The course is offered under the Home and Family Life Educational program of the state department of vocational homemaking, in cooperation with the home economics education department at Tech.

Kopp, Discharged By Army, Back At Tech

H. L. Kipp, former Tech faculty member recently discharged from the Army Air Forces, will assume duties Monday at the college as head of the Council of Veterans association, giving advice to discharged veterans enrolling at the college.

His office will be in room 110 of the administration building.

Working in close cooperation with the Veterans administration and college officials, Kipp will hold consultation with veterans desiring information on enrollment, fees, courses, books and personal problems.

Kipp will return to Tech after having served as a specialist with the AAF since 1942. His rank was a major.

Prior to entering the service, Kipp was a professor in Tech's mechanical engineering department.

Col. Estes Goes To San Antonio

Col. and Mrs. Howell M. Estes, Jr., and small sons, Howell III, and Mike, will leave Lubbock today for Randolph Field and San Antonio, respectively. Col. Estes, who has commanded Lubbock Army Air Field for nearly 18 months, will spend several weeks in practice flying of B-29s and Mrs. Estes and the boys will spend the winter in the Alamo City with her mother and sister.

In command at LAAF during Colonel Estes' absence will be Col. Harold N. Holt, who has been at the station west of Lubbock for approximately one month, taking the instrument course and aiding in administrative work. Most highly decorated officer ever to serve here, Colonel Holt flew 157 combat missions in the European Theater of Operations, returning to this country last June 4.

Native of Philadelphia

A native of Philadelphia, Colonel Holt was married in June and he and Mrs. Holt are residing in a house can be secured. Mrs. Holt is a native of up-state New York.

LAAF officers said last night that "Colonel Holt has more decorations than he can get onto his blouse," which is no exaggeration. His battle ribbons have six stars; he has the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with 27 Oak Leaf Clusters; the Silver Star, the Bronze Star; a Presidential unit citation; the French Croix de Guerre with Palms; the Belgian Croix de Guerre and two other Belgian citations, the Foraigaire and the Sounogere. He was overseas a total of more than 28 months.

Ailing Hal Newhouser Cops Shutout Victory Over Yanks

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. (AP)—Lefty Hal Newhouser trotted his sore back muscle out to the mound in Yankee Stadium today—and for the sake of Detroit's American League pennant hopes, it wouldn't be at all bad if all the Tiger twirlers had the same ailment.

The slim southpaw, who has been sidelined since last Saturday came back from the medics' probing to serve a four-hit whitewashing for a 5-0 decision over the Yankees. This stylish job not only left the New oYrkers 6½ games off the Bengals' pennant race, but just about said the last rites for their faded flag dreams as the Tigers clinched the current series with their fourth win in six starts.

Aiding and abetting Lefty Hal as he chalked up his 22nd win, and sixth shutout of the campaign against 8 setbacks was an 11-hit Detroit attack at the expense of Flody Beven's fast ball. Leading this hit-parade was Rudy York with his 15th homer of the campaign, a towering smash well up in the left field stands, and Eddie Mayo, with four-for-four for the day.

AZI CLEANOUT PLEDGED

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 7 (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Spruille Braden said today Foreign Minister Juan I. Cooke had assured him that he would take "effective and prompt action for the extirpation in Argentina of all Nazi influences and activities."

Defense Shines In Tech Drills

Head knocking started at Texas Tech Friday, and found the defense was far ahead of the offense in being able to deal out the potent punishment as Coach Dell Morgan closes out the first full week of practice, with two more to go before the opening game here with Southwestern on Sept. 22.

However, Coach Morgan has most of his more potent atomizers on the sidelines, and most of the ball handling was carried on by newcomers at Tech, with several top line performers taking part in the scrimmage.

Davis Looks Good

In the morning scrimmage session and for awhile in the afternoon, Don Davis of Tulia was romping nicely with the pigskin, and reeling off several nice gains.

But in the afternoon grind, the lad that was breaking away with lots of drive and deceptive running was Tommy Dutton from Bowie Dutton was stealing the show offensively. W. C. Johnson, speed merchant from Hale Center, was also getting away for a few nice runs.

The only veteran backfield man that was working in the scrimmage late Friday was T. M. Cox, the Muleshoe Mauler, who turned in several nice gains.

But these gains were only in spurts, and alert defensive play was smothering the backfield candidates most of the time. Several boys, both newcomers and veterans, were showing up well in the defensive work, but it was a veteran that stole the show.

Big Red Lawhorn, the Temple boy who did a lot of playing last year at center, was in on play after play, and completely spoiled the enjoyment of the backs on the other side of the line.

Teamed with him were two more vterans who were looking great as Clyde Black, letterman tackle, and Russell Birdwell, generaly termed as first string guard, were coming in for a big share of the glory Malcolm Mitchell, a squadman last season from San Angelo, also got his share of the tackles.

R. W. Moyers at end and Bob Haley at center were a pair of Lubbock linemen getting plenty of action. Milton Butler, Lubbock lightweight back, was also seeing action.

Littlefield Eleven Tests Westerners

By EARL SCUDDAY
Avalanche Staff Writer

Lubbock High school's Westerners received their toughest workout of the season Friday afternoon at Chapman field when they met the Littlefield Wildcats in a scrimmage session under semi-game conditions.

The Wildcats, defending champions of District 5-A, provided the first real test of the Westerner grid machine, and were at times more of a test than the Lubbock gridders wanted. No scores were kept during the "game," and there was no punting or kick-offs; but the session provided thrills for a number of spectators and an opportunity for both elevents to smooth out their rough spots.

The Wildcats made a great showing during the afternoon especially when on the offensive. The Cat backs, which included Billy Lyman, an All-District selection last year, and Oscar Arend, second string All-District, showed a great deal of power on line thrusts and end runs. The vaunted Wildcat passing attack was not up to par.

The Westerners, like the Littlefield team, made their best showing when in possession of the ball. The starting backfield of George Brewer, Charles Presley, Arthur Rampy and John Paul Jones chalked up yardage with monotonous regulartiy. George Brewer, veteran tailback, provided most of the thrills of the afternoon, getting loose for three touchdown runs of approximately 65, 50 and 35 yards. Charles Pressley, a former center now running from the fullback slot, crunched through the line time and again for nice gains, and turned in a brilliant defensive game. Other backs, Don (Spec) Austin, Bobby Booker and Stoney Wall also did outstanding work in the ball-carrying department.

On defense, however, the Westerners were extremely spotty, at the first of the session allowing the Wildcat backs to go through the line almost at will. Later in the afternoon the Lubbock line stiffened somewhat, but it was evident that much work is needed before facing the Odessa crew next Friday.

O. C. Foster letterman tackle, and end Gerald Davis provided the brightest spots in the line play.

Seminole Seeks Grid Opener For Sept. 21

SEMINOLE, Sept. 7.—(Special)—Coach John P. Burns of the Seminole Indians sent out an urgent SOS this afternoon, seeking a game for Sept. 21 for the home field.

The Indians, boasting of the strongest prospects since two ago, were left without a season's opening game today when the scheduled bout with Plains was cancelled.

It was not know here how much of its schedule Plains was dropping.

Burns said that he would like to have a game at Seminole on that date, and any team interested in playing is urged to contact school officials here. Burns said he was going to the Southwest Conference district rules meeting in Lubbock Sunday, and would try to contact other schools there for a game on this date.

Double T Club To Reorganize

The year's first meeting of the Double T association of Texas Tech, composed of any college student who has earned a varsity letter in athletics at the college, was held Thursday night in the Tech gym.

The association has been inactive for the past two years due to lack of membership, caused by the rapid turn-over of athletes at the college.

The association, long recognized on the campus and in Lubbock as one of the leading organizations at Tech, voted to stage a traditional "Howdy dance" Wednesday night, Sept. 12, in the Tech gym. Admission will be 25 cents for college students.

All attending will be presented with a card bearing their name, bearing out the theme of the dance.

Members present at the meeting were Arthur Shahan, Cecil Norrfis, T. M. Cox, Floyd Lawhorn, Clyde Black, Otis Turner and Chester Jackson. Coach Polk Robison, also a former Double T member, and Coach Dell Morgan met with the group. Other lettermen on the campus and absent at the session are Walter Schlinkman, holding the oldest membership of any active member, Jack Dillon, Gene Hardey and Jay Kerr.

A second meeting was set for Monday night when final details of the dance will be worked out and officers elected.

Big Turnout Due At Rules Meet Sunday

More than 200 coaches, officials, players and fans are expected to turn out Sunday at the district meeting of the Southwest Football Officials association meeting at the Hilton hotel. The starting time has been set for 9:30 oclock.

Dr. E. L. Larson, commissioner of the Border Conference, will be on hand at the meeting, and will give tests to Border Conference officials along with SFOA tests.

The SFOA will be represented by Abb Curtis and Roscoe Minton, well known Southwest officials, and will conduct the rules interpretation at the meeting.

The meet is sponsored by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. Dinner will be served in the Hilton ball room for $1 per person.

McSpaden Leads At Dallas Open

DALLAS, Sept. 7. (AP)—Harold (Jug) McSpaden, the New England links capitalist who is second money winner of the year but hasn't a tournament championship to his credit took a strong hold on the Dallas Open title today as he laid down a three-under-par 69 while all other first round leaders faltered except Slammin' Sammy Snead.

The bull - shouldered professional from Sanfrom, Me., ran his total to 137 at the half-way mark of the $10,000 war bond tournament, two strokes ahead of Snead, the drawling belter from Hot Springs, Va who equalled McSpaden's round to go with his 70 posted yesterday.

Wee Ben Hogan, who climbed out of a sick bed to shoot a 68 and tie McSpaden for the first round lead, skidded with a two-over-par 74 today. Hogan said he was feeling better but the sulfa drug he has been taking to enable him to play in the tournament had affected his eyes and he couldn't see clearly.

"It must have been that," Ben declared. "I never missed putts by five feet before."

Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., and Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, Ga., were tied for third place, Ghezzi shooting a 71 while Bulla had a 67—the best round of the day—to give each a total of 140.

Tennessee Club Has Hopes Of Good Year

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 7. (AP)—We'll have about the same sort of team we had last year—but don't say it will be a bowl team."

That prediction and admonishment came today from Coach John Barnhill as he surveyed the remnants of his 1945 Rose Bowl team and reflected on Tennessee's football prospects for this season.

The Vols got underway Saturday with some four dozen candidates, about half of them back from last year's unbeaten, oncetied, eleven, and have been going at it in two-a-day sessions.

Disposing Of Surplus

U. S. Facing Major Problem

ONE of the most ticklish problems confronting official Washington is the disposal of the millions of dollars worth of surplus property, no longer needed since the war is ended.

We have a vivid reminder of the problem here: the thousands of bombers now grounded at the South Plains Army Air field. These planes, which cost millions to build and which helped to demolish Hitler's "European Fortress," represent but a fraction of the great stock pile of equipment awaiting disposal.

In Paris recently, the Army-Navy Liquidation commission issued its first two catalogues, offering for sale $11,500,000 worth of everything from aspirin to three-ton Diesel cranes.

The Belgian government was one of the first purchasers. It bought 300 automobiles and 125 tons of steel rods.

But Europe's little business men were disappointed. The Army-Navy Liquidation commission had divided the surpluses into large lots—prohibitive to small buyers.

Auto batteries, valued at $827,808, were offered for sale in one lot. In another lot were offered telephones, radios and medical gadgets, valued at $100,000.

Disappointment with the method of selling was not confined to European business men. In Dallas, veterans were reported to be protesting the fact that the Department of Commerce had placed on sale to dealers a surplus of 2,905 Army trucks, while more than 1,000 applications were on file for trucks. The veterans had filed their applications for trucks with the Smaller War Plants corporation.

The veterans charge that they were not given an opportunity to exercise their legal preference, through the S.W.P.C., to purchase the trucks before they were put on the open market.

With the disposal of surplus property thus confused, President Harry Truman has requested Congress to create a single surplus property administrator to replace the board of three now operating under legislation adopted last year.

Yet in making this request for a single head to handle the disposal of surplus property, President Truman may be kicking a political hornet nest. Congressmen, opposing the President's suggestion, will contend that putting the big job in the hands of one man will open the way to a danger of graft.

Millions are involved!

Lindbergh Stupidity

RECENTLY The Chicago Tribune, which has openly and earnestly championed the lost cause of isolation, quoted the one-time flying idol of America, Charles A. Lindberg, as saying:

"We have not so far accomplished the objectives for which we went to war. We have not established peace or liberty in Europe."

Confused as Lindberg has frequently shown himself to be in trying to discuss world problems, this appears to be one of the most stupid statements accredited to him in many months.

In the first place, we did not go to war to establish peace or liberty in Europe, but to protect ourselves when we were attacked suddenly, and without warning. Lindberg should know this, yet only a few years ago he was advising us that the United States' safety lay in remaining neutral and trying not to displease Germany. He even went on the radio in an attempt to quiet American fears of German intentions, and declared that America was safe from air attack.

Now that the United States has won the war—an accomplishment that Lindberg always seemed to question our ability to do—he tried to tell us that we have not accomplished our objectives.

Few Americans can go along with him on this thin line of reasoning. Our objectives, Col. Lindberg, in case you don't know, were: (1) to beat Japan, (2) to defeat Germany, (3) to whip Italy.

We have done all three.

Send Japs Back Home

WHY not send all Japanese, both alien and American-born, who have refused to take the oath of loyalty to the United States, back to bomb-blasted Japan?

Of course, Harold Ickes, secretary of the Interior and outspoken champion of rights for American Japanese, will probably oppose the idea, but it will meet with the approval of many straight-thinking Americans.

The idea is not entirely novel either. Not long ago the Department of Justice announced that Fritz Kuhn, imprisoned former leader of the German-American Bund, would be deported to Germany as an undesirable alien. At the same time the Department reported that 50,000 German prisoners of war were to be returned to Germany.

These 50,000 home-ward bound Germans will include commissioned and non-commissioned officers, who cannot be forced to work, rabid Nazis and the sick and insane. The remaining 300,000 prisoners are filling necessary jobs and will be kept as long as "it suits American convenience."

About 85,000 of this group have been used in agriculture, 55,000 in industry, and 160,000 doing jobs at Army posts and other military stations.

And since we are cleaning up the country and deporting enemies of the nation, let us dump the America-hating Japs back in their home islands, in spite of Harold Ickes.

"After all, Brock does have something to say," Moya countered coolly.

"Which Brock?" asked Thayer tersely.

Thayer . . ." Brock said.

"Let me finish, Thayer stated flatly. Her dark eyes were clear and burning upon Moya. "I do not want you here,' she said. "I want you to leave this house now and not come in it again while I am here."

"You take a great deal upon yourself, Thayer." Mrs. Kittridge came through the door, her mouth set, her cheeks red with anger.

"I take nothing upon myself that is not my right," said Thayer fiercely.

"This is my house, Thayer."

"At your insistence I am living in it, Mrs. Kittridge. As Brock's wife I have certain rights in the house; one of them is to forbid the coming here of the girl who frankly admits she wants my husband."

"Very dramatic!" said Mrs. Kittridge scathingly. "You are the intruder here."

"Not within the law, I think," Thayer answered. She looked unflinchingly into the eyes of her mother-in-law. "I wouldn't hesitate to call on it."

"Moya, I'm sorry you've been drawn into this—this . . ."

"Was brawl the word you wanted?" Thayer asked. "You see, being a Kittridge only by marriage I have no pride about covering up what might better be brought into the open."

"Look here, Thayer," Brock interrupted, his face flushing darkly.

"Oh . . ." cried Moya snatching up her purse. "Brock, will you or will you not take me home?"

"She handles a car admirably," said Thayer, "but you'd better take her home, Brock. And now. Because—I really am capable of losing my temper."

She did not actually look at them as they went out. Something had fingers at her throat, something was choking the very life out of her, but something else was holding her erect and proud and angry."

"And just what," demanded Mrs. Kittridge almost softly when they were alone, "do you think you are doing, Thayer?"

"I am trying," Thayer said, 'to save my marriage."

"Indeed. A marriage that has no reality.' Clinging to the letter of a thing when the spirit of it is dead. Hurting others because you are too stubborn to admit defeat; that it is, as I told you long ago, a tragic mistake."

"It is you, Mrs. Kittridge, who is determined it shall be a mistake."

'I am determined that my son shall have his chance for happiness."

'You are determined that your son shall be dependent upon you for his chance at happiness."

"This is all ridiculous, Thayer, and most distasteful to me."

"No, it's not ridiculous. You want Moya to have Brock. You know why? Because Moya is pliant in your hands; because through her you can have your way with Brock. He'll be your boy; he'll never be the man who is your son. In his confusion you've taught him to lean, to evade facing things. Because you're happier that way; it makes you feel needed and important. But I won't let you do this to him. There is one thing he shan't turn away from facing . . ."

"Thayer, I speak plainly, you have never been welcome in this house."

"When I leave this house Brock will leave it with me."

The older woman smiled. "Heroics, my dear, will not get you far. It was with Moya that Brock left just now He made his choice, I think This house held happiness until you came," she said with dignity and turning walked indoors.

Thayer found herself by her car, struggling for breath as if she had been running. She got in, began automatically to drive. It was force of habit that led her to Drumhead Hill She came out here often after work to stand where she and Brock had once stood.

She stumbled from the car now and made her way to the spot where she always came. But found nothing of comfort. She felt sick all over and strangely weak. She sank down on the dried grass, then suddenly she flung herself face down, hands clenched into futile fists, crying tearlessly with great hurting sobs.

She hardly noticed that it grew dark and the stars came out, remote and pale. But after a long time she began to be afraid, and still more afraid to admit that fear.

It was then Thayer thought of Hildreth. Though she had been unable today to confide what lay in her heart, yet now in her extremity Hildreth stood forth as a very tower of strength.

Her teeth were chattering as she made her way down to the car; she was shaking all over. She kept saying aloud as if the very words were a panacea, "I go to Aunt Hildreth — Aunt Hildreth . . ."

She was not driving well. She did not see the car ahead stopping and had to set her brakes with terrific force to avoid a collision. But the car behind, having no warning, crashed it to her, and she was thrown against the wheel and badly shaken. Bumpers being sturdy, actual damage was slight and something in her face halted the tirade of the indignant drivers of the cars involved. One of them asked in a curious voice, "Lady, you ain't hurt, are you? You—you look sick."

"No—I'm all right. . ."

She got away somehow. She must drive slowly, carefully. She kept blinking to dispel the fog that seemed to envelop approaching cars. Slowly—that was it. To Hildreth's. . . .

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

ALL of a sudden New York's department stores are emphasizing "courtesy" as one of the basic principles of good business.

Now that the war is over, all sales people are being admonished that "the customer is always right," and one of the managers declared that "from now on new employees will be taught courtesy before even learning how to write a sales slip."

I suppose the same holds true in every other city and town and village of the United States.

Even in Danbury, the nearest city where we do a lot of our shopping, I already notice the change.

Clerks who let me wait while they fixed their hair or their nails are now anxious to please me. There are smiles where there was apathy and grumpiness.

But I don't appreciate it.

I am not naturally vindictive. But I am going to get even with some of those people.

We all realize that there was much of a strain while the war was on. Stores were short of merchandise. Many customers were unreasonable. The decent people suffered from the black marketeers.

But there was so much more reason for patience and forbearance.

There was no need for grocers and hardware men and mechanics and store clerks to sit on their high horse and play hard to get.

It is in times of adversity when true character shows itself.

We were down and they were up. One of the first rules of good sportsmanship is never to kick a man when he is down.

We were kicked plenty. Now we are up again.

There is a drug store where I used to buy my pipe tobacco. The clerk behind the counter was a fresh young thing. She used to let me wait until she finished her lunch at the soda fountain. And how happy she was when she could tell me that none of my favorite brand was to be had.

She can finish her lunch all she wants now. I am going to buy my tobacco somewhere else.

There is the radio man who promised to fix my set three weeks ago and never showed up. But as soon as the peace news came out, there he was the next morning, all ready to go to work. I told him where to go.

I DON'T have to tell you any more. You have had the same experiences. And you, too, probably have a list of people whom you will boycott as soon as things approach their normal state again.

Those very people will kick the loudest when business passes them by and eventually they'll have to close shop.

They'll probably never know why. They'll blame it on everything but themselves.

Or some day they may find out that courtesy is the best and the cheapest investment anyone can make.

But then it will be too late.

The National Whirligig

Lower Interest Rates Promised

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE most permanent and far-reaching reform of the Roosevelt administration — and the war's pressure on the nation's economic structure — may turn out to be the lowering of the cost for the use of money. It is generally admitted by federal and private bankers that the old interest rate of six per cent has vanished forever, and that the figure will hover around three for many years.

As almost the only issuer of large-scale securities during the depression and subsequently during the conflict, Washington rather than Wall Street was in a position to determine the charges on its loans. Now that the public debt approaches three hundred billion dollars, the government cannot permit carrying costs to soar through a return to the prewar levels.

TUCKER

Even at the two per cent rate, the annual burden on the taxpayers for the national debt will amount to six billion dollars, or more than the total of the yearly budget in pre-Hitler periods. It becomes obvious that a higher figure would be almost impossible to handle.

Although the government top will remain around or slightly above this figure, the borrowing public will not reap the full benefit. Lenders must ask one or two per cent more in order to cover their risks and expenses. But it is believed here and in financial circles that the average borrower should not have to pay more than four. There is plenty of cash seeking an outlet for the price.

With continuing high taxes because of the unpaid war costs, the proposed cancellation of the 43-billion-dollar lend-lease investment and demands on the U. S. for world restoration assistance, the reduction in interest rates will not make pleasant news for the coupon clippers.

The so-called "idle wealthy" may become a vanishing race. But the cut will operate to the distinct advantage of large and small business firms seeking new capital, and to the "little fellows" eager to repair or build new homes.

RECONVERSION: Leaders of the nation's key industries have shown a realistic and statesmanlike attitude in their private discussions of reconversion problems with Federal officials in the Reconstruction, the Federal Reserve system and the War Production board. If only for their own selfish sakes, they realize that the nation which has just won the greatest war in history may not submit meekly if treated to another round of breadlines and apple selling.

The people's recognition of the country's might and resources, when mobilized in a life-and-death struggle, is far more vivid than it was after the affair of 20-odd year sago. Then we were a participant for only a short period. The United States did not become the armed camp and "arsenal of democracy" that it was from 1940 to 1945. Besides raising and equipping 12,000,000 men and women for all the Services, and more than 10,000,000 munitions workers in the factories, Washington fed and financed our Allies.

Organized labor's position is vastly stronger. Membership in the great unions did not exceed four or five million in the 1919-1922 era. Now it is estimated to be almost 15,000,000.

The workingmen also sense their political power, as FDR's four victories and the triumph of the Attlee party in Britain have demonstrated. Another period of distress like 1929-1935 might lead them to elect an administration that would stand "slightly to the left of Franklin Roosevelt."

REVOLUTIONARY: A better feeling exists between the men in the front office and the workers in the shops. The war, together with such legislation as the Collective Bargaining act, has made them less standoffish toward each other and more understanding. The labor-management conference summoned by President Truman testifies to that fact ,even though it may not produce the millennium in these relationships.

Many great corporations plan to reduce hours to a 44 level, but with only a small cut in wages. They are expanding their pension plans. They accept of necessity the theory that permanent prosperity, pay rolls and profits can be maintained only on a advertise industry's new products, methods and reconversion gains, the National Association of Manufacturers is arranging for a coast-to-coast inspection trip for political and economic writers. This is almost a revolutionary step for such a hard-crusted and public-be-damned organization as the NAM.

DUEL: Prominent industrialists have asked for time to testify in favor of more advanced legislation before Congressional committees. Although they disagree with some of the details of the proposed measures, they endorse the basic proposition that workers must be tided over any slack period and given further protection against unemployment and old age risks.

This shift in viewpoint has been accelerated by several seemingly unrelated factors. The rumblings of leftist movement in Britain, France, Italy and Russia's satellite nations have re-echoed on this side of the water.

President Truman's sympathetic attitude to their difficulties leads them to believe that the prewar duel between Big Government and Big Business will have a happier ending than they had anticipated.

TEXAS
By Gordon Shearer

AUSTIN.—Possibly the closest and most conscientious inspection ever made of Texas parks is being undertaken by Rep. W. R. Chambers of May.

A member of the Legislative Audit committee, Chambers is touring every one of the parks. As an agent of the committee, the farmer-legislator is going to see how parks are maintained, how they could be improved and if the park system is functioning properly.

Executive Secretary Frank Quinn of the Parks board is taking Chambers on the tour. As soon as they get to a park, Chambers more or less "hits the ground running." Into every nook and cranny he goes. Through not an expert on recreation, Chambers has a wealth of common sense — something which always is welcome and wholesome.

In his preliminary report to the Audit committee, Chambers stressed the importance of state parks. At the same time, he took a shot at ambitious chambers of commerce who want the state to locate something in their community.

"It takes more than a cow pasture or a mesquite-covered hill and an excited chamber of commerce to make a park go," said Chambers.

He says the state should not try to establish too many parks, but should pick those scenic places which people would enjoy. While he believes in the idea of an agency paying its way if possible, Chambers doesn't think parks should be operated for profit — but for public enjoyment.

Quinn is possibly the most energetic and resourceful park secretary the state has had, though some persons in high public trust do not appreciate his full value. He would be of great value as a member of the parks board should he ever leave the secretaryship to return to his business interests.

Insofar as we have been able to determine, no one ever knew or heard of a United States Marine with an inferiority complex.

"Temperance Worker Arrested for Drunkenness." —Headline. He probably took on a little firewater to fight the devil with.

"Men marry women who are their inferiors intellectually," asserts a psychologist. We suppose this accounts for bachelors.

A woman is born with more innate understanding of men than a man can ever acquire about women.

Aw, why worry over having wasted time. There's plenty more where that came from.

Now Is The Time For Us To Show Patience

Congress' Great Responsibility

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The Congress which is settling down rather sluggishly to its work after its interrupted vacation, straggling in slowly from home constitutencies and abroad, faces a responsibility that will tax its stamina to the utmost.

This is intensified by a number of circumstances.

One is that Congress assembles under tremenduous pressures for a quick and what President Harding after the last war call the last war called "Normalcy." There are insistent and conflicting pleas that the boys be brought back home at once and that the draft be suspended despite the need for occupation forces abroad; clamor for dringing prices, wage and other controls that protect against inflation; demands for prompt reduction of taxes.

STOKES

Congress truly is on the hot seat —and primary elections begin only a few months hence.

Its most difficult job—and it will take iron wills—is to resist the let-down tendency, the drag of intertia.

This all the harder because the member of Congress is a human being, too. He, too, has felt the strain of war and would like to relax a little now that the fighting is over. Yet he faces really the toughest part of the job now when he is tired of it all. He is like a man who has worked all day and goes home tired, then is suddenly called back to a job that will take nearly all night.

And there is no excitement in the job now, no urgency of war, only routine and drudgery of day-to-day problems.

AFTER the last war both the administration and Congress did take the easy way and let down. War controls were quickly scuttled. Inflation set in. There was a temporary depression. But what was most dangerous was the insidious psychology of the let-down which infected the whole body politic. Neither recurring administrations nor Congress stopped to take stock at home and abroad as the seemingly easy and prosperous '29s rolled along. They neglected to make necessary adiustments to meet the constant changes of an increasingly complex civilization. Whoop came the big depression 10 years after the war.

Congress cannot afford to let down this time. To fight this tendency will take a stern determination that is not too common in the average politician's makeup. It can be called up in an emergency, and this is an emergency.

Public Should Be Patient

Its task would be much less difficult if the public, itself, would try to control the let-down impulse, would consider the overall problem of Congress rather than private, selfish whims, would not indulge in a letter-writing spree crying for this and that thoughtlessly. Patience is needed. Congress is due some consideration. Its job is hard enough as it is.

Congress is back, too, with its responsibility increased many fold by other circumstances. One is the sudden end of the war which caught us all short. Another is the emergence of the United States from war to a position of acknowledged world leadership which it cannot shirk this time. This will require judgment and less of the demagoguery of careless foreign - baiting which seems to come so easily to some members of Congress.

ANOTHER circumstance is the atomic bomb which overnight brought the world still closer together, made it smaller, made every nation more dependent on every other. At the same time it opened a new era of scientific advance that will require the utmost care to see that its fruits are available all to us. This, of itself, will gradually necessitate new ways of looking at the world, at government and social organization and our obligations to each other.

This not only makes the San Francisco charter imperative. It almost makes that sort of international political organization seem obsolete and insufficient now, only a few months after its creation, based as it is on the organized restraint of selfish national impulses. The co-operation now has got to go even deeper, into the very hearts and souls of human beings all over the world, if we are to survive.

This all imposes a heavy responsibility upon Congress, too, as a part of our system.

And, likewise, upon the people. For Congress represents them and is beholden to them.

Farm Loan Group To Hold Session Today

Annual meeting of stockholders of the Lubbock National Farm Loan association will be held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon on the mezzanine floor of Hilton hotel, it was announced Friday by Frank Ford, secretary-treasurer.

Among officials expected to attend are Lee C. O'Neil, regional representative of the Federal Farm bank for the Lubbock territory.

"Several new features of farm and ranch loans will be discussed," Ford said.

Former Lubbock Resident Dies

Mrs. Charles F. O'Neall, jr., 28, of Washington, D. C., the former Ruth Douglas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Douglas, 2913 Twenty-first, died Friday at Gabriels, N. Y., Lubbock relatives were informed.

Mrs. O'Neall's husband, son of the late Lubbock real estate man, is an attache in the American embassy at Madrid, Spain. He returned to Spain three weeks ago after coming to the states early in June. Mrs. O'Neall had been forced to return to America early this year because of ill health.

Others In Family

Other Lubbock members of the family are a sister, Miss Emmajean Douglas, of 2913 Twenty-first, and a brother Ralph Douglas, of 2511 Twenty-first. Another sister, Mrs. Ben B. Hutchinson, lives at Costa Mesa, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Neall had no children.

Funeral services had not been arranged, it was reported. It was said they probably would be held Sunday or Monday. Local relatives were attempting last night to obtain plane priorities for the trip east.

Her husband was reported returning to the states by air.

Mrs. O'Neall was a graduate of Texas Technological college, where she was a member of the Forum and Las Leales and other campus organizations. She had been away from Lubbock five years, a family member said.

Studied In Mexico City

Before State department rules permitted wives of embassy employes abroad, Mrs. O'Neall studied a semester at the University of Mexico in Mexico City.

Previous to O'Neall's assignment in Madrid, the couple lived in Washington, where they still maintain a home. Mrs. O'Neall spent approximately a year abroad.

He condition took a turn for the worse a month ago, according to Miss Emmajean Douglas, and suddenly became critical in the last several days.

Jail Break Here

out in the elevator door. The door opened and they ran the elevator to the ground floor. Punching a button that cut off power to the elevator, they scrambled out the jail's south door and raced around the corner northward.

Capt. Maney Gault, Raymond Waters, Norvell Redwine, Texas rangers, and Miss Doris Pruitt, Capt. Gault's secretary, were taking statements from a suspect in the southwest corner room of the jail's ground floor.

Redwine ran out the door when he saw the running youths round the jail's corner, the other rangers after him.

Redwine continued the chase afoot. Land, entering the west door of the courthouse, saw Redwine running and joined the chase. Capt. Gault and Waters got in a car and began the pursuit.

The fugitives ran northward, crossing the Main at Ave. H intersection and dodged into the first alley to the right, soon going separate ways. Montague was picked up by Land and Redwine in the vicinity of Ave. G and Tenth, O'Pry by Capt. Gault and Waters at Ninth and Texas.

No Resistance Offered

Neither offered resistance. Cannon had only a pocketknife for a weapon, and the youths did not take it.

The knife was to prove much help to Cannon. Left lying in the corridor, he inched his way up to where girls in their cells could reach him. The girls untied his gag and he told them to get his knife and free him.

When Dep. Sheriff Earl Horton; A .L. Perkins, former jailer who had "happened in," and Bob Bumpass, ex-army man, got upstairs through doors they had difficulty in unlocking from the stairway, they found Cannon leaning against a dumbwaiter door, calling down the shaft that "I'm alright."

Alarm was given by Mrs. Verlie Shearer ,office deputy sheriff, when she saw the prisoners come out of the elevator. Prisoners upstairs also were yelling.

The three youths and the girl, or some of them, are wanted in other places—for admitted hijackings at Norman, Weatherford and Oklahoma City, Okla., and Gatesville, and car thefts at Monahans, Dallas, Bowie and Weatherford, Okla., officers said.

Entry Into Tokyo

ippine liberation ribbons. Not a few had Purple Hearts.

Of Maj. Gen William C. Chase's First Cavalry, these men of the Second squadron, Seventh regiment, and of the 302nd Reconnaissance troop, had proved outstanding in battle. This was their reward. The men appeared to be enjoying it.

Before the troops arrived, a detachment of Japanese sailors, carrying their gear, marched along a street on the way to a demobilization center.

The Japanese government apparently had made every effort to clear out its troops from the immediate area to avoid any possible incident.

At the embassy grounds, the First Cavalry band, made conspicous by their white helmets, white belts and white leggins, beat a ruffle of drums as they entered and took posifions on the lawn alongside a lily pond. There were no lilies and no water.

At the deep end of the garden, the First Cavalry colors and guidons were raised as the men faced the chancellery, which had a 30 foot pole atop the roof.

There the flag was raised at MacArthur's orders. Afterward the chaplain, Lt. Col. Eugene Patrick Walsh, of Richmond, Va., voiced a prayer for a world of peace in his benediction.

The occupation troops will be swollen to 15,000 by Monday.

Their sentiments apparently were expressed by S.-Sgt. Andrew Kordas, of Greenwich, Conn. who said:

"I am glad we are entering Tokyo this way, not fighting our way in.'

In downtown Tokyo, the appearance of jeeps with "GHQ" on their windshields, carrying reconnaissance units, drew some attention from the small crowds.

General MacArthur had refused an offer of the Japanese government to place guards along his route of entry into the city, as it done for the emperor, preferring to make an unostentatious arrival.

MacArthur was accompanied by his chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Richard Sutherland, his ide, Brig. Gen. Bonner Feliers, his physician, Col. Roger Egebert, and Eichelberger.

Auditorium-Market

committee meetings and smaller gatherings are conducted.

The auditorium is in use from 160 to 200 days and nights a year, we were informed, but this year opening date has been moved up from around Oct. 1 to Sept. 15 and McElravy is expecting a busier season.

Memphis papers this afternoon carried a story concerning the opening of the Memphis Symphony Orchestra season which will open on Oct. 30 with Alec Templeton, the first of four guest artists for the four-program series throughout the year, which will feature guest artists of international reputation. Prices for the series of four concerts range from $2.40 to $9.60 with single tickets for the Templeton appearance going at 90 cents to $3.60, including tax.

The auditorium is administered by a commission appointed for a term of years among leading business men. McElravy, managing director, has a staff of 11 to aid him in operation and maintenance.

While equipped with amplifying devices, the excellent acoustic properties of the building have amazed not only engineers but such famous critics as the late John Pilip Sousa, John McCormick, Mary Garden, "Billy" Sunday, Jeritza, and others who have appeared before Memphis audiences.

Back of the Peabody hotel tonight, we continued to talk about the huge structure and came to one decision, at least. Lubbock doesn't need one that large, for awhile at least, even should it grow to a city of 100,000 people within the next 10 years.

Tuesday morning we take off for Chattanooga, where we will visit another excellent auditorium and tomorrow night will find us in Birmingham after a drive through the Old South's cotton country.

Speaking of cotton, the crop this season is also late in the negro shanty section of eastern Arkansas and the Mississippi delta, but at that it appears to be about two months ahead of the South Plains.

New Trace Of Adolf Is Found By British

HAMBURG, Germany, Sept. 7. (AP) — British security police have been investigating for six weeks a rumor too strong to ignore that Adolf Hitler and his deputy party fuehrer Martin Bormann have been in this area.

Operatives traced a mysterious mahogany luxury yacht from Hamburg to the small Elbe estuary port of Glueckstadt, 30 miles from Hamburg.

At Gueckstadt they were told by dockhands that the 90-ton diesel-powered yacht left there one night in early May. For several weeks equipment, including two radio transmitters, had been taken aboard her.

Dozens of inlets and islands up the Schleswig-Holstein coast were combed without result, but the search continues.

SELECTED STOCKS ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—Industrials and scattered utilities touched new eight-year peaks in today's stock market but many leaders suffered as buying turned notably selective.

Transfers totaled 1,330,000 shares compared with 1,380,000 Thursday.

The Associated Press 60-stock average hit its highest mark since early May, 1937, in the forenoon, but ended unchanged at 68.4. The industrial composite advanced .3 of a point to 92, best level since Aug. 31, 1937. The rail group dipped .5 and utilities ended all even.

The nation's securities markets will resume Saturday sessions tomorrow after summer suspensions during July and August.

In the "new high" class were Eastman Kodak, up 4; Du Pont, up 3; Bethlehem, General Motors, Sears Roebuk, Electric Power and Light, American Smelting and Pepsi Cola.

Casualties included U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, Southern Pailic, American Telephone, Goodyear, United Aircraft, Standard Oil (NJ), Radio Corp., and Westinghouse.

Bonds and commodities were irregularly lower.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—The cotton market today after a brisk opening turned quiet. At times prices were off 50 cents a bale on selling attributed to southern dealers who were said to be hedging. Other selling orders which came from commission house were said to represent evening-up of contracts prior to first delivery day on October positions on September 25. At the close prices were unchanged to 40 cents a bale lower with nearby contracts weakest.

The department of agriculture tomorrow will issue a report on cotton crop prospects as of September 1. Traders expect the release to show a small reduction from the government's August 1 prediction of 10,134,000 bales because weather during the past month has not been favorable for crop progress and weevil infestation is reported as heavy.
