Schleicher County voters choose Clark and Doyle

Bill Clark defeated Joe C. Christian 226 to 60 in the Schleicher County Commissioner Pct. 2 race Tuesday night as local citizens joined voters nationwide in deciding, local, state and national races. Schleicher County Justice of the Peace James C. Doyle won easy re-election 720 to 111 over challenger Marie E. Barrera who had mounted a write-in campaign to unseat him.

"From my heart I want to say that I really appreciate the show of support from the people in Precinct 2," Bill Clark told the Success after the results were announced. "I see this as a mandate for progress and I'm ready to get to work,"

Justice of the Peace James C. Doyle was also appreciative of the voters. "I truly appreciate the voters continued support," Doyle stated.

County Judge Johnny F. Griffin, District and County Clerk Peggy Williams, County Treasurer Karen Henderson and County Commissioner, Pct. 4, Ross Whitten were also re-elected. None of them had drawn an opponent in the March Primary or the General Election.

Statewide, Republican Governor George W. Bush won re-election in a landslide over Democratic Land Commissioner Garry Mauro. Bush received 2,567,898 votes to Mauro's 1,156,727.

A real live hero — SCISD Supt. Hal Porter congratulates Albert Martinez on his selection as a "Hero for Children" by the State Board of Education.

State Board of Education: Martinez is Hero for Children

Albert Martinez of Eldorado was notified this week that he was selected as one of fourteen "Heroes for Children" by the State Board of Education. A certificate and resolution proclaiming Martinez's hero status will be presented to him at a ceremony in Austin on Friday, November 13th at the William B. Travis building.

Martinez, who was nominated for the honor by Eldorado Middle School Principal Julie Griffin, will be joined at the ceremony by family members and representatives of Schleicher County I.S.D.

The "Hero for Children" designation is in recognition of Martinez's extensive volunteer work at the school.

Martinez did not complete high school himself, leaving in the 12th grade to work and support his family. That experience has reinforced his belief in the importance of education.

"In today's world everything is automated," Martinez says. "If students are going to be successful

Eagles stamepe Buffaloes 28-0, clinch 5th straight playoff berth

by Randy Mankin and David Hill

The Eldorado Eagles clinched a playoff berth for the 5th consecutive year Friday night with a 28-0 win over the Forsan Buffaloes in Forsan. Coach Fryar commenting on the game said, " this was a total team effort with the Eagles dominating every facet of the ball game. We are so proud of these kids and what they've accomplished in the last several weeks. This is something we've been stressing the last three years and that's never give up".

The victory sets up a showdown this week for the District 2-2A championship between Eldorado and the Sonora Broncos. The "experts" had predicted a lopsided win for the Buffaloes. Their only loss of the season had come the week before when they fell 7-9 to Sonora. Eldorado had struggled early in the season, winning only one of its first six games. Back to back victories over Junction and Ozona hadn't been enough to persuade most sportswriters that the 3-5 Eagles were ready for 7-1 Forsan.

The Buffaloes won the opening coin toss and deferred their choice until the second half, giving Eldorado the ball. The Eagles served notice on the opening kickoff that they had come to play when Louis Santellano fielded the ball, found a seam in the Forsan kick coverage and sprinted 83 yards for an apparent TD. The play was called back, however, on an illegal block penalty and the Eagles offense set up shop on the Forsan 49 yard line.

An offsides penalty against Forsan kept the offensive series alive for the Eagles as they drove to the Buffaloes' 25 yard line. It was from there that quarterback Joey Bullard lofted a pass to Casey Poynor in right corner of the endzone. Poynor hauled in the pass and managed to keep his feet in bounds to give the Eagles a 6-0 lead. Jess Martin booted through the extra point and the Eagles had a 7-0 margin before Forsan's offense had touched the football.

Forsan's first series on offense was short-lived. A pass completion moved the ball to midfield for the Buffaloes on their first play from scrimmage. But, a powerful surge from the Eagles defensive line

ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

Demon Chili

In the Hall of Fame of ranch cooks there's a name you'll never hear.
We had him at the Bar V for a while.
In truth, I guess, he could have made the Ten Most Wanted list
'Cause poisonin' cowboys really was his style.

I remember one October, we were at the Tanner camp.
He cooked a pot of chili . . . Make ya sweat!
It was really pretty tasty but then later on that night
We sounded like a bull frog bass quartet.

That next mornin' somethin' happened that had put him in a funk.
I think he thought we'd eaten his sardines.
We were hopin' for some biscuits, maybe even sourdough
But he heated up that mess of chili beans.

It was just a little thicker and by lunch that afternoon
It had a crust just like a cherry pie,
Only crunchier and gritty, like an asphalt shingle is.
We ate it, but it made young Miltie cry.

And for supper he served chili. "That's all you get," he said
Then wiped a tar-like substance from his beard.
An image of La Brea came to mind as I dug in,
My spoon broke off and slowly disappeared.

But that evenin' in the bunkhouse it was like a battlefield.
Blankets billowed with each unexpected round,
Huge explosions, whistling tracers, not to mention S.B.D.s
But nowhere was a gas mask to be found.

Breakfast came. We had more chili. He reheated it again.
It concentrated down like toxic waste.
Our ol' bellies were rebelling as he chipped us out a chunk.
It left a sort of diesel aftertaste.

Gus had found a box of ear tags, so that's what we had for lunch.
But supper brought no edible release
'Cause he served a chili cinder block. It was standing on all fours.
He hack-sawed off each one of us a piece.

So that night in desperation we convened to make a plan,
Shoot the cook - drag his entrails through the fire.
But we realized that wouldn't work, the chili would live on,
Complete destruction was what we'd require.

That next mornin' found us gathered at the east side cookhouse door
With pitchforks, shotguns, bayonets and spears.
Bob had found a propane burner and a couple carbine guns,
We charged the kitchen like the grenadiers.

Total chaos! Immolation! Not a pan or plate survived!
The walls caved in, the trusses all were bared!
But still standing in the ruins like Godzilla with the gout,
The chili demon growled at us and glared.

"I can't take it!" cried ol' Jimbo, his machete o'er his head,
He hacked it into little greasy specks.
The cook watched the execution, then Jim turned to him and said,
"You fix us somethin' good, or Bud, yer next!"

We had two more days of cow work and we ate like we were kings
But that cook's concoction still gives me the shakes.
It's come back to haunt me daily, been recycled don't you see...
I smell chili every time I hit the brakes.

Over The Back Fence

by Randy Mankin

What do you get when you mix one dead bird, a few gallons of paint and a little ink in a couple of local newspapers? Well, in the case of Eldorado and Sonora you get a rekindled football rivalry second to none. While I didn't go to school here I do understand quite well what a rivalry means to the communities involved.

You see, I attended high school in Anson, a mere 18 miles away from the hated Stamford Bulldogs and the same distance removed from the equally hated Hamlin Pied Pipers. For decades the three schools have formed the nucleus of a district to which other unsuspecting schools from time to time had the misfortune of being assigned.

There was always a prank of some type going on between the three schools. There were mascots which were "borrowed" and outhouses which were "relocated". Of course there were school initials burned into one another's football fields and bonfires which mysteriously ignited a day or two ahead of schedule. And, once, a set of stands, you know...bleachers, were burned to the ground.

But the games and the bragging rights were always decided on the field.

The rivalry between the Eldorado Eagles and the Sonora Broncos also goes back a long, long way. Twenty five years ago the two teams met in Eagle Stadium to decide the District 9-A championship. The Eagles won (see story on Page 4) and the rivalry grew even bigger.

But, Sonora's enrollment grew faster than Eldorado's during the oil & gas boom of the 70's & 80's and the Broncos were moved up into 3A. The two teams still met one another for non-district games but it wasn't the same. Soon, the Wall Hawks replaced the Broncos as Eldorado's arch rival.

All that changed this year when Sonora was moved back down to 2A and placed back in the district with Eldorado. And, the game between the two teams was set for the last game of the season.

Many, including myself, looked at the schedule and predicted a 10th week championship game at Eagle Stadium. But when the Eldorado boys got off to a slow start, some lost faith.

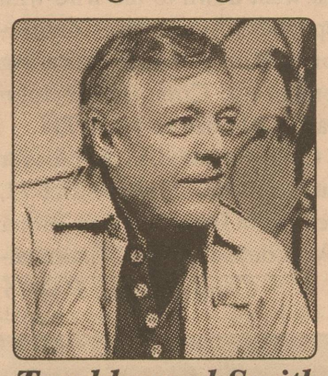

One even asked how much longer the Success was going to continue printing the "Road to the Playoffs" banner on the Eagles football schedule we print on Page 4 each week. Oh, ye of little faith.

The Eagles are back and in the hunt for their second straight district championship. They've already assured themselves of a playoff berth, their 5th in a row...and I believe that's an Eldorado record.

The long dormant rivalry with Sonora is back, too. It sparked to life suddenly and seems to be burning hotter than ever. Forget the dead bird, forget all the other pranks, there's a big game scheduled for Friday night and it's going to be decided on the field...and that's as it should be.

25 Years of Loblolly

Rolling Along With

Tumbleweed Smith

Gary, Texas is a small community in Panola County. I mean small. Less than 300 people live there. But the high school at Gary has done something that few other schools of any size have done. It has produced a little publication called Loblolly for a quarter of a century. It is time to celebrate.

Loblolly, named for a type of pine tree that grows in the forests of East Texas, is dedicated to the collection and preservation of Panola County history, culture and folklore. It has received state and national recognition.

In 1972, Lincoln King, a teacher in Gary High School, heard about Foxfire, a book by high school students in Rabun Gap, Georgia, containing oral histories of people in Appalachia. Lincoln was impressed with these words in the beginning of the book: "Daily our grandparents are moving out of our lives, taking with them the magnificent hunting tales, ghost stories and their experiences of suffering and sharing and building and healing and planting and harvesting. If this information is to be saved, it must be saved now; and the logical researchers are the grandchildren, not university researchers from the outside. In the process, these grandchildren (and we) gain an invaluable unique knowledge about their own roots, heritage and culture."

Lincoln King took those words as a challenge. He thought, "Why can't we do that here in Panola County, Texas?" He had a group of enthusiastic freshmen and mentioned the idea to them. They jumped at the chance to produce a little magazine. By selling ads and subscriptions, the students raised enough money to buy a tape recorder and make the down payment on a typewriter.

Soon small groups of students began going out daily, recorders and cameras under their arms, to work on interviews with old people. After their initial nervousness, they discovered the people were glad to share their stories and that the generation gap was just a myth.

During class time, students transcribed the tapes. Working from handwritten transcriptions, the students selected the best portions to he included in the articles.

When the first issue came out in April of 1973, community response surpassed all expectations. The first printing of 500 copies sold out almost immediately and Lincoln ordered a second printing. To date, fifty-six issues of the six-by-nine inch magazine have been published. The students have also produced five books: Loblolly Book I & II, The Loblolly Cookbook, The Loblolly Book of Baseball and the latest one, marking the silver anniversary, Loblolly Looks At Panola County. The latter is available for $20 at Loblolly, Box 189, Gary, Texas 75643. It reflects some of the best material collected since 1973.

Lincoln says the project has given students opportunities to grow in ways not often seen in traditional learning situations. "It has been exciting for me to see students from a small school like Gary present programs for teachers and others at state level conferences. They have learned to communicate and participate in an adult world successfully. Isn't that the goal of education?"

Congratulations, Loblolly. You've really done something!

Appeals court upholds "Open Meetings Act" conviction

State Capital HIGHLIGHTS
By Ed Sterling

AUSTIN — Ignorance of the Texas Open Meetings Act is no excuse for violating it, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled last week.

"The act places a duty upon members of governmental bodies to hold open meetings and a...duty to find an exception to the general rule if they desire to have a closed meeting," Judge Morris Overstreet wrote in an opinion joined by the entire nine-member court.

"Neglect of this duty will subject a member of a governmental body to criminal sanction," Overstreet said in the case involving the former president of a South Texas school board.

The appeal was brought to the state's highest criminal court by Joseph Louis Tovar, former president of the Somerset Independent School District board, The Associated Press reported.

Tovar was found guilty by a jury of knowingly participating in and knowingly calling a special, closed-door school board meeting in 1994 that violated the Open Meetings Act.

According to court records, subjects discussed at the meeting included whether and where a new high school should be built and a policy for observing a moment of silence during the school day.

Tovar's punishment originally was assessed at six months in jail and a $500 fine on each of the two indictments. That sentence was suspended in the district court. He was instead ordered on community supervision for six months.

The Court of Criminal Appeals agreed to consider whether a lower appeals court was wrong to uphold the convictions based on a conclusion that a public official can be guilty of violating the law even when the official is unaware the meeting isn't permitted.

Tovar argued that jurors should have been instructed that he could be found guilty only if they found he called or participated in the meeting knowing that it wasn't permitted.

Tovar's appeal was supported by groups including the Texas Municipal League, Texas City Attorneys Association and the Texas Association of School Boards Legal Assistance Fund, the AP reported.

Suzy Woodford, executive director of the government watchdog group Common Cause, applauded the ruling. "We hope this will send a message to people that they need to follow...not only the letter but the spirit of the law and realize that the public's business must be done in public."

"The law is available. Public officials need to know what the law is that covers them, and not having read the act and not having a clue is no excuse," she told the AP.

UT Chief Seeks to Reopen Tower

University of Texas President Larry Faulkner last week asked the UT board of regents to allow tours of the observation deck at the top of the 28-floor UT Tower.

The board of regents will decide on Faulkner's request at a Nov. 11-12 meeting in Houston.

The observation deck served as a sniper's nest for rifleman Charles Whitman, who shot and killed 14 people and wounded 32 others on Aug. 1, 1966. The deck was closed in 1975 after several students jumped from it to their deaths.

Faulkner said he believes that reopening the deck to the public will help Texans to heal bad memories associated with the 307-foot-tall landmark.

The Tower "is the strongest image uniting members of the university community," Faulkner said in a report published by the Austin American-Statesman.

Faulkner wants the observation deck open by the May 1999 graduation. "We should actively use this icon of higher education in positive ways," he said.

Other Capital Highlights

• Texas Health Commissioner William R. Archer III last week lifted a requirement that Galveston Bay oysters be removed from their shells and packed in containers labeled "For Cooked Consumption Only." Harvesting in the bay was halted from June 26 to Oct. 3, after a diarrheal illness was linked to oysters from the bay. The shucking and labeling requirements were imposed Oct. 3.

• Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, last week said a $2.6 billion surplus -- not the $6.3 billion surplus candidates have projected for the biennial state budget -- is more realistic when the demands of Texas' growing population are taken into account.

Teen Challenge group to speak at Agape Church

Members of the Dallas Teen Challenge group will be at Agape Assembly of God on November 8, 1998. They will be speaking and singing in the 11:00 a.m. service and also in a special 3:00 p.m. service.

Teen Challenge began in 1958 by Rev. David Wilkerson, an Assembly of God minister. The story of how Teen Challenge was started has been recorded in the book and movie "The Cross and the Switchblade". Since then, Teen Challenge has grown to include more that 120 centers in the United States and 250 centers worldwide. Teen Challenge reaches out to drug users, helping them become drug free and challenging them to embrace the Christian faith. When they do, their lives are transformed and they find true meaning and purpose. The Teen Challenge program has a higher success rate than any other drug program in the world, religious or secular.

The Dallas Teen Challenge program offers a residential program for adults designed to help men and women learn how to live drug-free lives. During their one stay, they do not hold down outside jobs, as all of their attention is focused on the program. Residents and staff members form teams that speak in schools and churches. These are men and women who once had problems with drugs, so they know what they are talking about when they talk to teens . During church services, they also talk about how their lives have been changed by the love of Christ.

Pastor Walter Griggs and the congregation of Agape Assembly of God invited everyone to join us at these services and be blessed by the ministry of these young men.

Eagles headed to post-season play for 5th straight year forced a fumble on the very next play and Armando Villvicencio recovered the ball for Eldorado.

The Eagles second offensive series advanced to the Forsan 38 yard line where they turned the ball over on downs to the Buffaloes. Forsan mounted a serious challenge from there and drove to Eldorado's 30 yard line. That's where the Eagles defense rallied and stopped the Buffaloes on a 4th down play giving the ball back to the offensive unit on their own 25 yard line.

The Eagles offense drove to midfield on strong runs by Lance Mitchel and Austin Nixon. But the Eagles drive stalled as the first quarter expired. After the teams switched ends of the field, Eagles punter Mitch Wilkerson, with the wind at his back, boomed a kick to the Forsan 8 yard line. One play later, Lance Mitchel met a Forsan runner at the line of scrimmage and delivered a punishing blow which forced a fumble. The ball bounced back into the endzone where it was covered by Eagles linebacker Cory Lloyd for a touchdown. Jess Martin added the extra point and the Eagles led 14-0. That score would hold up until late in the third quarter.

After the halftime intermission the Eagles kicked off to Forsan and the Buffaloes mounted a seven play drive to the Eldorado 31 yard line where, on a fourth down play, Forsan tried desperately to reach the first down marker at the Eagles 26. But, the runner was met and driven back by Eagles defenders Dusty Nolen, Casey Poynor and Lance Mitchel. The ball had advanced to the Eagles 29 but no farther and Eldorado took over from there.

The teams traded punts in the third period before the Eagles got the ball at their own 25 yard line. Two plays moved the pigskin out to the Eagles 46. From there, Louis Santellano took a handoff and sprinted the distance for a touchdown. Again, Jess Martin's kick was good and the Eagles led 21-0.

Forsan took the ball on the ensuing kickoff and returned it to their own 35 yard line. But, on the first play from scrimmage Eagles defensive tackle Tony Martinez stripped the football loose and recovered the fumble for the Eagles. One play later, Eldorado's quarterback Joey Bullard connected with Casey Poynor for another TD pass. Martin's kick was good and the Eagles led 28-0 at the end of the third period. That proved to be the final score as Forsan's comeback hopes faded in the fourth quarter.

The Eagles season record now stands at 4-5 with a 3-1 mark in district play. Forsan's record slipped to 7-2 with a 2-2 district record. The Eagles will host the Sonora Broncos here Friday night in a game which will determine the district 2-2A championship. Coach Fryar says of Sonora, "we will need another outstanding effort from our kids tomorrow night. Three weeks ago no one thought we would be here fighting for a Championship but us. We are here and it's exciting to be here."

Regardless of the outcome, both teams are headed to the playoffs. Sonora will move into the 2-A 1st Division (large schools) bracket where they are likely to face Reagan County in the first round of the State 2-A playoffs. The Eagles will be the number one seed in the 2-A 2nd Division (small schools) bracket. At press time it appears Eldorado will likely face either Van Horn or McCamey in the first round of the playoffs. The third place team from district 2-2A will either be Forsan or Wall. That team will meet the Iraan Braves in the opening round of the playoffs.

Eagles Highlights:

Offense - Rushing-L.Mitchel 15/88 yds., A.Nixon 16/39 yds., C.Williams 1/5 yds., L.Santellano 5/64 yds. 1 TD, Receiving-L.Mitchel 1/14 yds., C.Poynor 2/58 yds. 2 TD, Passing-J.Bullard 3/5/0/72 yds.

Remember me? Eagles defensive tackle #55 Armando Villavicencio was almost a permanent fixture in the Forsan backfield last week as he and his teammates stymied the Buffaloes offense throughout the game. Eldorado won 28-0 to guarantee the team's 5th consecutive playoff appearance.

You gotta be a football hero — Mike Manning (L) and Gene Nixon (R) accounted for all 24 of the Eagles points in the 24-22 district championship win over Sonora in 1973.

Deja vu for the Eagles

Remembering the 1973 Championship

by David Hill

If you roll back the clock twenty five years tomorrow to 1973, Sonora and Eldorado played at Eagle Stadium for the District 9-A Championship. Then and now, the game continues one of the fiercest rivalries in West Texas and a District Championship is again on the line tomorrow night. For you younger Eagles and those others who don't remember the '73 game, its was one of the best games ever to be played at the present stadium. The stars of the game as mentioned in the Eldorado Success were Gene Nixon, Mike Manning, Ken Peters and Mort Mertz.

The game was a true see-saw battle between two tough football teams. Eldorado got on the board first with a field goal by Gene Nixon. From that point on the teams traded scores and in the fourth quarter the Eagles went ahead 24 to 16. Sonora drove the ball scoring with less than two minutes remaining and went for the tie with a two point conversion. However, the Eagle defense which played a near flawless game stuffed Paul Browne who went around the right side and was stopped short of the goal line leaving the score EHS 24 SHS 22. Eldorado recovered the ensuing on-side kick and ran out the clock clinching the Championship for the Eagles.

Eldorado & Sonora students meet, discuss friendly rivalry

by Victor Saldivar, E.H.S. Student Council President

Mr. Newman and I recently met with the President of the Sonora High School Student Council and their Athletic Director. The topic our meeting was ways that the two schools can enjoy the competitive rivalry that exists among us, and at the same time curb the vandalism that has taken place of the past few weeks.

The vandalism hurts our schools and ultimately hurts the students; because of the time and money that is required to repair that type of activity. These types of negative actions hurt us all; since, they distract from what will be a clean hard fought game between two great schools for the District 2AA Championship.

We, both Student Councils, invite you to come to help us celebrate the friendly rivalry between the Sonora High School Broncos and the Eldorado High School Eagles. Also, we ask that everyone bring with them their pride in our own home towns, but we hope those actions that would bring dishonor to our communities and degrade the sacrifice of our two football teams be left somewhere else.

You all, adults and students alike, are very important to us, and we truly hope that everyone comes safely to the game, enjoys the competition, that the best team wins (We could not agree on who that would be.), and that everyone returns home safely. Please, help our two schools, the students bodies, and the athletes enjoy a great game without any other negative incidents.

Eagles J.V. upend Forsan Buffaloes 27-0 on Saturday

The Eldorado Eagles JV football team grabbed a 12-0 halftime lead last Saturday and continued to roll in the second half as they defeated the Forsan Buffaloes JV 27-0. John Ray Espinosa scored two TD's, one on a 5 yard run, the second on a 20 yard run. Jason Brock ran for a TD and threw a 30 yard TD pass to Kenny Covarrubiaz. Isaac Saldivar kicked an extra-point to round out the Eagles scoring.

Other offensive production was accounted for by Blake Leggett who caught two passes, Johnny Herrera who completed an 18 yard pass to Benji Gonzalez and Luis Enriquez who had several good runs in the game.

Enriquez also played well on defense, making several tackles in the game. Johnny Herrera intercepted a pass, David Elias batted away a ball in pass coverage and Ben Edmiston had 4 sacks and two tackles behind the line of scrimmage as the Eagles defense dominated the Buffaloes. Michael Ramirez tallied 6 tackles, Wesley Jones and Ramon Barrajas were each in on 7 tackles and Jimmy Rodriguez had 2 tackles behind the line. Andrew Anderson, Rocky Robles and Aaron Fuentes also turned in outstanding defensive efforts.

"Both the offense and defense played well," Coach Alan Gillespie said after the game. "We were able to do a lot of things. The kids played with emotion...they hit and tackled well. This was a good game going into a tough one next week."

The tough game Gillespie was referring to will be at 6:30 p.m. tonight in Sonora as the Eagles JV takes on the Sonora Broncos JV.

Everyone should be ready to play for the Eagles this week as Bryan Sproul and Leonel Medrano are expected to return to the lineup after minor injuries.

All Eagle fans are encouraged to make the trip to Sonora and support the Eagles JV as they take on the Broncos. Remember, wear your Green!

lenger Randy Leifeste of Llano 18,415 to 17,192.

U.S. Representative District 21 Lamar Smith, Republican of San Antonio, won easy re-election over Libertarian challenger Jeffrey Charles Blunt by a 161,971 to 15,338 margin.

The race to replace outgoing Attorney General Dan Morales was won handily by Repblican John Cornyn. He outpolled former Attorney General Democrat Jim Mattox 2,015,228 to 1,626,312.

Republican Carole Keeton Rylander gave up her seat on the Railroad Commission run for State Comptroller's job currently held by John Sharp. At times Tuesday evening that appeared to have been a mistake. However when the final tallies came in Rylander pulled out a razor thin lead over Democrat Paul Hobby and won the race 1,834,336 to 1,795,932.

Republican David Dewhurst received 2,083,844 votes to Democrat Richard Raymond's 1,431,221 to claim the Land Commissioner's office vacated by Garry Mauro.

The Commissioner of Agriculture post now held by Rick Perry was claimed by Republican Susan Combs over Democrat Jimmy T. LaBaume by a 2,037,429 to 1,504,508 vote margin.

Republican Tony Garza defeated Democrat Joe. B. Henderson Railroad Commissioner 2,063,248 to 1,459,654.

For a complete look at how Schleicher County voters decided these races and others see the county election returns below.

Dinner & a Movie was a success!

by Librarian Debbie Griffin

12 Senior Citizens and 15 students participated in the TAFE/Student Council sponsored trip to San Angelo. The Seniors were treated to a movie compliments of the school district and were transported to San Angelo via Eagle Bus #1. The "Seniors" and the "Juniors" were able to choose from seven movies playing at Southwest Theaters. After the movie, everyone was taken to the mall for dinner at Luby's Cafeteria. The ride home was made more interesting by comparing the variety of movies seen. Fun was had by all who attended. SCISD hopes to offer this again in the Spring. So look for the articles and the flyers advertising "Dinner and a Movie" and make your reservations. You don't want to miss this again!

The group enjoyed a ride to San Angelo on the "Eagle 1" bus. Following the movie at Southwest Theaters they all stopped in Luby's Cafeteria for a meal.*

they learn about and use the technologies available to them in the school system. Students must have the skills to compete for the jobs available out in the real world. In order to get these skill, kids must stay in school."

Martinez was born in Littlefield, Texas but was raised in Schleicher County and has called Eldorado home most of his life. After leaving school, he served in the United States Marine Corps, spending 3½ years in Vietnam in the RECON division. Martinez's unit was in charge of mapping and clearing the way for other U.S. troops. While in Vietnam he reached the rank of Gunnery Sergeant.

Martinez returned to Eldorado in 1978 where he worked for Pool Company. He was later disabled in a work-related accident.

Seven years ago, Martinez began going to school during Middle School's lunch break to help monitor students outside after lunch. He also volunteers his time for crosswalk duty for KIDS Kampus in the mornings and other various jobs at the Elementary campus.

SCISD Superintendent Hal Porter said Martinez is highly deserving of the Heroes for Children recognition. "Albert is a remarkable man and we're very proud of him and appreciate very much the contribution he has made for the kids," Porter stated.

Martinez has two sons. David, 21, is a graduate of Eldorado High School and is currently employed by Lynn Alexander's Autoplex in San Angelo. Luis 17, is a senior at Eldorado High School.

One thousand more Border Patrol Agents

Lamar Smith
U.S. Representative, 21st Congressional District of Texas

For the third year in a row, Congress has provided the Border Patrol with a budget increase to hire 1,000 additional agents, continuing an unprecedented buildup of our premier border police force.

Congress has consistently backed the provisions of the 1996 immigration reform law I authored with the money to carry out the new law's goals: to stop drug smugglers at the Southwest border, which is the entry point for 70 percent of illegal drugs entering the U.S., and to catch and deter illegal aliens while at the same time expediting legal border crossings.

We are well on our way to doubling the size of the Border Patrol from about 5,000 agents in 1995, when the immigration bill was being debated in Congress, to more than 10,000 agents who will be in the field by 2002. Currently the Border Patrol stands at almost 8,000 agents nationwide.

We are just beginning to benefit from the impact of this badly needed buildup in South and West Texas. In the past year alone, about 700 new agents have been added in this region. And I expect Texas to receive hundreds of additional agents during the next year as the money Congress earmarked for Border Patrol is put to use to halt the flow of illegal drugs into Texas communities and schools.

No law could change overnight the illegal alien crisis that Texas and other states have been experiencing. The 1996 legislation reflects a long-term commitment to border control with its five-year buildup of resources that includes new technology as well as additional personnel.

Every day, Border Patrol agents who have been hired during the past year in Texas are completing their training and going on full-time shifts at border check points, on patrol, and at interior stations.

The impact has not yet turned the crisis around. But Border Patrol agents have told me that the effects are already clear. Check points that in the past had been closed many hours each day due to a lack of staffing are on their way toward being open around the clock. Having more agents available for patrol has meant a noticeably stronger presence at the border that the Border Patrol believes is already deterring would-be illegal crossers.

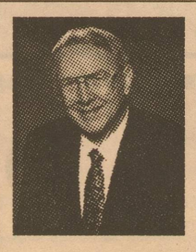

Apprehensions of illegal aliens in McAllen and Laredo are declining as fewer aliens try to cross there, where most of the new Border Patrol agents assigned to Texas are stationed. Apprehensions are up 40 percent in Del Rio due in part to the strengthened deterrence elsewhere that has pushed illegal crossings westward. But the Del Rio Border Patrol now also has more agents to make those arrests.

Even so, under the best circumstances, it will be three more years before Del Rio will have additional agents in similar proportion to those who have been assigned to McAllen and Laredo during the past year. And I am not yet convinced that even this historic increase in the size of the Border Patrol will be enough.

But unlike the faint promises of the past, we are doing something dramatic at the border today. I continue to be impressed with the way the Border Patrol in Texas is managing their new resources and believe that they are making a difference-every day.

Use Structure, Patience With Hyperactive Child

QUESTION: It's no secret that hyperactive children are difficult to handle at times. How, then, is such a child to be managed?

DR. DOBSON: Let me share a list of 18 suggestions that were provided in a book by Dr. Domeena Renshaw entitled "The Hyperactive Child." Though her book is now out of print, Dr. Renshaw's advice on this problem is still valid.

1. Be consistent in rules and disciplines.

2. Keep your own voice quiet and slow. Anger is normal. Anger can be controlled. Anger does not mean you do not love a child.

3. Try hard to keep your emotions cool by bracing for expectable turmoil. Recognize and respond to any positive behavior, however small. If you search for good things, you will find a few.

4. Avoid a ceaselessly negative approach: "Stop"; "Don't"; "No."

5. Separate behavior that you may not like from the child, whom you like; e.g., "I like you. I don't like your tracking mud through the house."

6. Have a very clear routine for this child. Construct a timetable for waking, eating, play, TV, study, chores and bedtime. Follow it flexibly although he disrupts it. Slowly your structure will reassure him until he develops his own.

7. Demonstrate new or difficult tasks, using action accompanied by short, clear, quiet explanations. Repeat the demonstration until learned. This uses audiovisual-sensory perceptions to reinforce the learning. The memory traces of a hyperactive child take longer to form. Be patient and repeat.

8. Designate a separate room or a part of a room that is his own special area. Avoid brilliant colors or complex patterns in decor. Simplicity, solid colors, minimal clutter and a worktable facing a blank wall away from distractions assist concentration. A hyperactive child cannot "filter" out overstimulation himself yet.

9. Do one thing at a time: Give him one toy from a closed box; clear the table of everything else when coloring; turn off the radio/TV when he is doing homework. Multiple stimuli prevent his concentration from focusing on his primary task.

10. Give him responsibility, which is essential for growth. The task should be within his capacity, although the assignment may need much supervision. Acceptance and recognition of his efforts (even when imperfect) should not be forgotten.

11. Read his pre-explosive warning signals. Quietly intervene to avoid explosions by distracting him or discussing the conflict calmly. Removal from the battle zone to the sanctuary of his room for a few minutes is useful.

12. Restrict playmates to one or at most two at one time, because he is so excitable. Your home is more suitable, so you can provide structure and supervision. Explain your rules to the playmate and briefly tell the other parent your reasons.

13. Do not pity, tease, be frightened by or overindulge this child. He has a special condition of the nervous system that is manageable.

14. Know the name and dose of his medication. Give these regularly. Watch and remember the effects to report back to your physician.

15. Openly discuss any fears you have about the use of medications with your physician.

16. Lock up all medications, including these, to avoid accidental misuse.

17. Always supervise the taking of medication, even if it is routine over a long period of years. Responsibility remains with the parents! One day's supply at a time can be put in a regular place and checked routinely as he becomes older and more self-reliant.

18. Share your successful "helps" with his teacher. The outlined ways to help your hyperactive child are as important to him as diet and insulin are to a diabetic child.

QUESTION: Whether it be on dramatic shows or the evening news, TV seems to showcase death more than ever before. What do you think it will do to us to continue watching extreme violence night after night?

DR. DOBSON: Walter Lippmann once wrote that a saturation of this kind of sensationalism can actually destroy a people and a culture. I agree with him completely. We've already come to the point where decent people are afraid to go outdoors at night. We live in terror. No one is safe, not even old people who have so little that criminals really want. Television does have the power to destroy us as a nation. I fear it may already have damaged us beyond repair.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Rheba Elva McMillan wishes to thank the entire staff of the Schleicher County Nursing Home, Dr. Nunnally, Dr. Kingston and all the wonderful nurses and caregivers who so lovingly cared for our mother. In my numerous dealins with nursing homes, I can truly say the facility in Eldorado is by far the very best I have seen. All the caregivers here are unselfish, loving and compassionate people who go above the duties of their job to care for all the elderly loved ones who truly deserve to be given such care. The good Lord will surely bless them all and they will always have our gratitude.

I also want to thank my lifelong friends: Delmer and Barbara Jackson for all they did and have done for me and my family during the last 40+ years, these are the kind of friends everyone should have and I am so happy they are mine. Also, to Flora Hubble and all my Sorority Sisters for the food, flowers, calls, and visits, they mean so much at times of loss. Once again, ourt heartfelt thanks to you all.

Mike Wood it is so nice to have someone as caring as you. Thank you so much for being there and seeing that Catherine and Tommy were given the best of care.

You are a wonderful man and we were truly blessed that you were working that night.

U.I.L. to eye football playoff format

The U.I.L member schools will be surveyed in January to determine whether or not they are satisfied with the current football playoff format.

The U.I.L. Legislative Council voted last month during its annual meeting to survey schools after hearing several proposals to change the current format. If a change is desired by the majority of schools, the U.I.L. staff will present several options from which they can choose.

Those options may include:

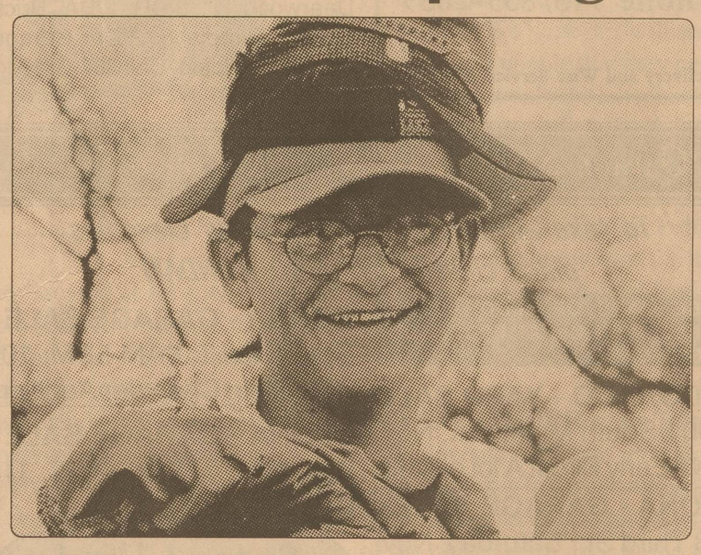

1) retaining the current format;

2) allowing district champions to receive a bye in the first round of the playoffs, resulting in one state champion in each conference; and

3) creating an odd/even plan whereby Division I will consist of district champions in the odd-numbered districts playing the largest enrolled school who is not the district champion in the corresponding even-numbered districts, while Division II will consist of district champions in the even-numbered districts playing the smallest enrolled school who is not the district champion in the corresponding odd-numbered district. Remaining schools from corresponding districts would be matched in other Division II games.
