DEFENSE AT ITS BEST FOR THE MULES--Because of tough Mule defense, such as this shot of A. J. Liles, No. 46, in the air as he tackles a Greenwood Ranger, and Michael Dunham, No. 44, coming in from the back to help, Greenwood was held to only 21 points in the game. In the background, John Orozco, No. 30, who was the Mules' workhorse during the game carrying the ball, the Mules managed to hold the Rangers to less than 200 offensive yards in the game. At the same time, the Rangers effectively held the Mules to low yardage, and six points in the game. (Journal Photo)

Greenwood Spoils Muleshoe Homecoming In 21-6 Loss

Homecoming for the Muleshoe High School graduates and football fans was spoiled Friday night with a 21-6 loss to Midland-Greenwood. Coming off multiple tragedies and trauma for the Muleshoe team, the Mules faced a team with an identical record going into the game. Each team showed a record of 1-2 going into action on Friday night.

A. J. Liles, who had to take over, virtually unprepared last Friday night at Denver City when QB Jeff Hicks received a broken leg, was ready for action Friday night, but the loss of Hicks.

Olivas and several other players failed to overcome a stronger Greenwood team.

Prior to the 8 p.m. kickoff, the 1988 homecoming queen was crowned.

Michelle Cox, the daughter of Butch and Judy Cox, was crowned the queen. She was escorted by Chris Young, son of Jim and Teri Young.

Other candidates included Krystal Angeley, daughter of R. D. 'Tub' Angeley, escorted by Michael Dunham, son of Jack and Bobbie Nell Dunham.

Debbie Brown, the 1987 queen, and daughter of James and Diane Brown, escorted by Jeff Hicks, son of Jerry Hicks and Shirley Hicks; and Amber Green, daughter of Corky and Donna Green, escorted by Jaime Olivarez, son of Guadalupe Olivarez.

At the Friday afternoon pep rally at Muleshoe High School, the homecoming game was dedicated to the memory of Lee Palmer, Mule defensive/offensive tackle, who died Tuesday after being involved in a vehicle accident last Sunday evening.

The game ball was to be presented his parents, Bob and Doris Palmer, following the game.

Mule quarterback Jeff Hicks watched the game from the sidelines. He received a broken leg in the game with the Denver City Mustangs last Friday night, and spent several days in the hospital in Lubbock. Also sidelined was Daniel Olivas, who also received an injury in the Denver City game.

By the third quarter, three sub-quarterback had seen action in the game between the Muleshoe Mules and the Midland-Greenwood Rangers. First to see action was A. J. Liles, who took over at Denver City last week. Following him for a few plays was Estevan Sandoval. In the third quarter, Larry Gonzales saw some QB action.

The Mules made a good showing in the first half of the game, although they failed to post any points, while the Rangers scored seven points in the first quarter and six more points in the second.

Just as the clock ran out at the end of the first, the Rangers

Sorghum Pest Hitting Fields In Local Area

Over the last few weeks a sorghum pest has appeared in many fields south of Muleshoe. This pest is the yellow sugarcane aphid and normally is only a concern in seedling grain sorghum.

This aphid is lemon-yellow in color and is covered with small spines. It also has two double rows of dark spots down its back. The biology of this insect is much like that of the greenbug in several ways.

First of all, each aphid is female and produces living young. Secondly, the period of time between birth and maturity is relatively short. Finally, a single aphid may produce up to two or three young per day. Obviously, a large population can build in a relatively short time.

While feeding this aphid injects a very strong toxin into the plant. This toxin causes stunting and yellowing of leaves which can ultimately kill the leaf. Unlike greenbugs, it is thought that as few as two yellow sugarcane aphids can kill a leaf. No economic thresholds have been established for this pest in maturing grain sorghum.

A guideline to follow for sorghum in the heading-to-hard-dough stage is to consider control measures before the aphids cause the death of two leaves. After hard-dough, the major concern with this pest is the loss of grain due to lodging of plants.

Although ladybugs, lacewing larvae, and other beneficials feed on these aphids, there are no known parasites. Biological control, therefore, is not dependable. For information concerning suggested insecticides for controlling yellow sugarcane aphids, contact the Texas Agricultural Extension Service office located in the courthouse.

Poultry Products, Nutritious: Low In Calories And Fat

Poultry products are nutritious, yet low in calories, fat and saturated fat when compared to other animal products.

"Poultry fits well into today's dietary needs and the emphasis on reduced consumption of total fat, saturated fat and caloric intake," said Dr. James H. Denton, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "At the same time, poultry offers appropriate levels of essential nutrients. By providing high protein levels with low caloric content, poultry products are excellent choices as nutrient dense foods."

Denton said that 1987 data from the USDA's Human Nutrition Information Service showed that poultry products provide a more desirable ratio of nutrients to fats than other animal products.

Each day the average person consumes 36 percent, said Denton. Poultry products provide only 3.5 percent of these calories. Red meat provides 15.5 percent; milk and milk products, 10 percent; eggs, 1.6 percent; and fish and shellfish, 0.9 percent.

At the same time, animal products provide almost 57 percent of the total fat in daily diets. Poultry products account for only 5 percent of this total, with red meat accounting for 32.8 percent; milk and milk products, 20.5 percent; eggs, 2 percent; and fish and shellfish, 0.5 percent.

More than 75 percent of all saturated fatty acids consumed daily come from animal products. Poultry products contribute only 4 percent of this total while red meat accounts for about 33 percent; milk and milk products, 20.5 percent; eggs, 2 percent, and fish and shellfish, .5 percent.

"Despite much publicity to the contrary, poultry products continue to provide a greater share of many of the desirable nutrients than other animal products," said Denton.

According to the USDA data, poultry provided more than 11 percent of the 68.5 percent protein provided by animal products in daily diets, with red meat providing 27.6 percent; milk and milk products, 20.9 percent; eggs, 4 percent; and fish and shellfish, 4.6 percent.

"Poultry meat products account for about 25 percent of the total meat protein consumed per capita daily while providing only 17 percent of the calories, 14 percent of the fat 11 percent of the saturated fat in animal products," Denton said.

"Not only are poultry products nutrient-dense dietary choices," he said, "but they are good tasting, versatile and inexpensive."

Vitamin A Supplements Could Cause Toxicity

People over 60 who would rather take vitamin supplements than eat their vegetables, may run the risk of low-level vitamin A toxicity.

The vitamin A that's plentiful in green and yellow vegetables isn't the same thing you get in a vitamin supplement, according to Dr. Alie Hunt, a nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University.

"Vitamin supplements contain a pure form of vitamin A called retinyl esters," she said. "Although the esters themselves are not toxic, once in the body they can be converted into free retinol, which is toxic."

"Chronic vitamin A toxicity can cause liver damage, bone and joint pain and scaly dermatitis. A large overdose can cause headaches," said the specialist.

Recent research conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists indicated that high levels of retinyl esters are more likely among older people who take vitamin supplements.

The researchers surveyed 562 healthy Boston residents over age 60, half of whom reported taking vitamin supplements, usually in the form of multi-vitamin preparations. Those who used the supplements the longest had the highest blood levels of retinyl esters.

The five people in the study who had the highest levels of retinyl esters had taken supplements daily for more than five years. Four of them had signs of liver damage.

"The liver has a tremendous capacity to store vitamin A, but once it is too full, toxicity may occur. Whether older people absorb vitamin A more efficiently or simply can't store as much in the liver is unclear," said Hunt.

With 8:23 left to play in the second the Rangers scored their second TD, this time from five yards out.

Near the end of the third, Greenwood scored another 10-yarder.

In the fourth, Ranger defense trapped Michael Dunham in the end zone for a two point safety, but with just four minutes left to play, had not managed to get into the end zone again.

At 3:23 of the fourth, Chris Young blocked a Ranger punt, and recovered the ball on the Ranger eight-yard line.

John Orozco moved the ball five yards to the three; and Michael Dunham moved it two more yards to the one.

Fireman Trio

Talk Training

For Kiwanis

By: R. A. Bradley

Fifteen Kiwanians and four guests met Friday morning at the Old Corral, with President Keith Turner conducting the meeting. Merlyn Neel led the club in the pledge to the flag and James Roy Jones gave the invocation.

Nick Bamert gave the friendship coin to the traveling Kiwanian, Merlyn Neel, since it has been quite awhile since we have seen Merlyn.

Guests were Jack Lemons, guest of Kevin Harris. Other guests were Larry Rasco, Charles Lorange and Ralph Sanchez.

Those three, along with J. O. Parker and two other firemen have been to A&M to fire school. Each fireman gave a short talk on the part of school they attended.

Ralph reported since this was his first school at A&M, he took Firefighting II -- all the different kinds of fires and how to fight them. He reported that the fires got HOT!!

Charles reported that he went to pump maintenance school. How to tear down and repair the pumps on the fire engines.

Larry reported that he went to the rescue school. They trained on how to remove people from houses, buildings, elevators, cars, buses, airplanes, etc.

The Muleshoe Fire Department -- the EMS department and our Law enforcement department need to be commended on their dedication and training they have. This was shown in our recent wreck of 6 young people.

THANKS to all departments on your dedication and commitments. This writer hopes to never need any of you, but thankful if he should.

student's individual needs.

Included among the handicapping conditions are speech handicapped, learning disabled, emotionally disturbed, autistic, mentally retarded, orthopedically handicapped, and/or other health impaired.

Students with severe dyslexia may be learning disabled, and special education teachers in the Muleshoe Independent School District have been trained to work with these students using Alphabetic Phonics, the program originally developed by Samuel Orion and Anna Gillingham and further developed and refined by Aylett Cox and Dr. Lucius Waites, neurologist. It is the program used by the Texas Scottish Rite Hospital in Dallas and the Scottish Rite Learning Center in Lubbock.

Early diagnosis and attention are crucial in helping handicapped children become as independent and self-sufficient as possible. When begun early, medical care, therapy, education, and training may prevent the disabilities from becoming more severe.

Educators work with these children by teaching the children through their best learning modality, whether it be visual, auditory, and/or kinesthetic or a combination, and helping them achieve success, thus preserving the students' pride and self-esteem.

Children who are three years of age or older on September 1 may be eligible for these services, and visually impaired and hearing impaired children may be eligible from birth. The three and four year old eligible handicapped children are served in the Early Childhood program.

The first step in the process is that of a referral. Referrals can come from any source: from parents, school personnel, neighbors, doctors, civic agencies, human resource agencies, and others. The referral may be directed to the principal of the school or directly to the office of Special Education located in the high school building.

After the referral is received in the Special Education office, each child receives a comprehensive assessment to aid in determining the needs of that child. Upon completion of the assessment, a committee meets to review the data collected and to determine a student's eligibility for special education services.

This committee is the Admission, Review, and Dismissal

Community Development

Grant Public Hearing

Scheduled By County

Bailey County is planning to file an application with the Texas Department of Commerce (TDOC) for a Texas Community Development Program (TDCP) grant under the Community Development Fund. This application will be submitted to TDOC on or before October 27, 1988.

A public hearing concerning the proposed grant application will be held at 12:00 noon on Friday, September 30, 1988 in the Commissioner's Court Room, Bailey County Courthouse, Muleshoe, Texas. The purpose of this public hearing will be to discuss the range of eligible activities, the amount of TDCP funds available for projects in the South Plains State Planning Region and the grant application process.

All citizens are encouraged to attend this public hearing and present their views on the County's community development project needs. Written comments will be accepted by the County up until the time that the County's application is submitted to TDOC.

A second public hearing will be held at 10:00 a.m., Monday, October 10, 1988, in the Commissioner's Court Room, Bailey County Courthouse, Muleshoe, Texas, to discuss the specific details of the application which the County will be submitting to TDOC.

For further information about the TDCP application process, contact Gordon Green, County Judge, Bailey County Courthouse at (806) 272-3077. Handicapped individuals who might have difficulty in attending this public hearing should contact Courthouse to arrange for special assistance.

Committee (ARD Committee), and the meeting is attended by the child's parents, teachers, counselor and/or principal, and the appraisal staff. This committee will then develop the child's Individual Educational Plan (IEP) if they determine he is eligible for Special Education services. At this meeting the student's annual goals are established, as well as short-term instructional objectives.

Muleshoe Independent School District is in compliance with Public Law 94-142, as well as the State Board of Education and Texas Education Agency. Implementation of the student's educational plan attempts to provide an appropriate blend of educational and related services in a learning environment which is the least restrictive alternative for the student.

Chapter 75 is the school reform bill that prescribes the curriculum in twelve basic subject areas and also the scope and sequence for the essential elements in each subject area. The purpose of this law is to have a uniform and systematic mandated public curriculum for every child in every public school in Texas. This curriculum applies to children in the special education program as well as children in the regular program unless the ARD Committee deems otherwise.

With an appropriate blend of educational and related services and with placement of the student in the least restrictive environment, the student's program is implemented according to the prescribed essential elements, the individual needs of the student, and at the student's own learning rate. Modifications may need to be made in the essential elements in certain individual cases, as well as in pacing, methods, and materials used. These modifications are developed at the ARD Committee meeting by the members in attendance.

Additional elements considered by the committee to develop an educational program appropriate to the needs of the eligible handicapped student are individualized instruction, special methods, materials, and equipment, service coordination, daily planning, task analysis, and progress reviews the third week of each six weeks period. The special education teachers work very closely with the regular education teachers, thus assuming a joint responsibility for teaching the essential elements.

With Muleshoe Independent School District demonstrating its commitment for providing handicapped students will have the maximum opportunity to develop to their fullest potentials and that they will be able to graduate from high school with the necessary skills and social competencies for successful living.

Additional information in regard to the Special Education program is available in the Special Education Office located in Muleshoe High School. Brochures are available at no charge explaining the different types of handicapping conditions and specific indicators of each. For further information, you may come by the office to pick up one of the brochures and obtain additional information, or call Betty Jennings, Director of Special Education, at 272-5239.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS GENERAL ELECTION NOVEMBER 8, 1988

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 8 proposes a constitutional amendment providing that when the federal government reimburses the state for expenditures of state funds dedicated to acquiring rights-of-way and for constructing, maintaining, and policing public roadways, such federal funds must also be used for those purposes.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment and/or clarification providing that federal reimbursement of state highway dedicated funds are themselves dedicated for the purpose of acquiring rights-of-way and constructing, maintaining, and policing public roadways."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 2 proposes a constitutional amendment to establish an economic stabilization fund in the state treasury. The fund would consist of one half of the unencumbered balance of general revenues at the end of a biennium and three fourths of the difference between the net oil and gas production taxes received in a fiscal year and the net oil and gas production taxes received in the 1987 fiscal year. During any fiscal biennium, the amount in the economic stabilization fund could not exceed 10% of the total deposited in general revenue in the preceding biennium.

The state comptroller and the state treasurer could decide to transfer monies from the fund into the general revenue fund to alleviate a temporary cash shortage in general revenue. The legislature could make appropriations from the fund on approval by a three fifths vote of each house to make up the difference between anticipated general revenue and appropriations. On approval of two thirds of the members of each house of the legislature, the legislature could appropriate monies from the fund for any purpose.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment establishing an economic stabilization fund in the state treasury to be used to offset unforeseen shortfalls in revenue."

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 5 proposes a constitutional amendment that establishes the Texas growth fund. All investments of the Texas growth fund must be directly related to furthering economic growth and employment opportunities in Texas. At least 50 percent of the fund must be invested in equity and/or debt security for the initial construction, expansion, or modernization of business or industrial facilities in Texas. Not more than ten percent of the fund may be invested in venture capital investments. Of the funds available for venture capital investments, not more than 25 percent may be invested unilaterally, and the remaining investments must be matched at least equally by funds from other sources. water, and an upcoming conference will focus on water issues.

"Managing Texas' Waters: Stewardship in a Regulatory Environment" will be the theme of the 22nd Water for Texas Conference set for October 19-21 in League City, just south of Houston. Conference site is the South Shore Harbour Resort and Conference Center on the shore of Clear Lake.

The conference is a joint effort of the Texas Water Resources Institute, a unit of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station; Texas A&M University at Galveston; Texas A&M's Sea Grant Program; and the Harris-Galveston Coastal Subsidence District.

"It is the responsibility of every resident to help assure that adequate supplies of clean, safe water will continue to be available to support the continued prosperity of our state," said Dr. Wayne Jordan, director of the Texas Water Resources Institute and conference chairman. "But before we can exercise this responsibility, we must be informed on the major water issues facing Texas. This conference will highlight these issues and will illustrate the roles for private citizens and local, federal and state governments in each area.

"We have an outstanding program of more than 50 national and state experts to discuss both short and long term water problems facing Texas," Jordan said. "For example, Dr. William Kellogg of the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colo., will point out the likely problems Texans will face as a result of an expected global climate change during the next three decades. Dr. Julian Andelman of the University of Pittsburgh will discuss human exposure to and risk from water contaminants, a topic that continues to receive national attention in the press and one that may be the subject of new federal legislation."

Jordan said that a substantial portion of the conference program will deal with agricultural water issues. In Texas agriculture consumes the largest quantity of water, and the industry is accused of being a major contributor to surface and groundwater contamination, he said.

Dr. West Oneth, state conservationist with the USDA's Soil Conservation Service, will describe beneficial impacts of the 1985 Food Security Act on reducing erosion and sediment loads in surface waters. Nancy Cox with the Texas Department of Agriculture will discuss groundwater and agricultural chemicals and will present data from recent well surveys. Texas Agricultural Experiment Station soil scientist Dr. Kirk Brown will discuss environmental dangers associated with pesticides used in rice production, and TAES weed researcher Dr. John Abernathy will describe what is currently known about the fate and movement of agricultural chemicals through soils. Minimum standards for groundwater districts and management of both surface and groundwater in the Edwards Aquifer will also be discussed.

Other discussions will deal with managing in-stream flows and freshwater inflows to maintain the attractiveness and productivity of bays and estuaries, current status and plans for wetlands protection, groundwater management and protection, opportunities to get more surface water from current watershed and reservoir systems, the Texas Water Plan, and water research needs, Jordan said. Also, a panel of Texas legislators will discuss possible legislative action to implement needed changes in the way Texas develops, protects and manages its water resources.

"This is the state's major water conference of the year," Jordan said, "and it's timed to bring these issues and problems before the public prior to the next legislative session. Thus it enables us to express our feelings to elected officials at a time when they can make a difference."

Conference preregistration will continue until October 1. For more information contact the Texas Water Resources Institute, 301 Scoates Hall, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843-2118; telephone (409)-845-1851.

'88 4-H Week Theme 4-H Youth For America

No one can question the fact that young people are the future of America, and the 4-H program is continuing to play a vital role in preparing youth for the future by providing training in leadership, citizenship and coping skills.

Thus the theme of the upcoming National 4-H Week Oct. 2-8, "4-H for Youth for America," points to this country's richest resource, its young people.

"Through 4-H we try to provide youth with opportunities to learn and experience what life has to offer," said H. T. 'Tom' Davison, assistant director for 4-H and youth programs with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Extension Service is the parent organization of the 4-H program, an informal, out-of-school educational program for youth from the third grade to 19 years of age.

"We also lay the groundwork to help 4-H members explore opportunities for personal growth and to gain skills that will be useful in later life," Davison said. "In addition, 4-H helps youth to deal with stress and self-esteem and to learn to help others. We like to say that 4-H takes up where school leaves off. We offer experiential education."

Texas boasts some 388,000 4-H members; nationwide, 4-H is more than 4.5 million members strong and is the nation's largest youth organization. More 4-H members today live in suburbs and cities of more than 50,000 population.

Recent research shows that former 4-H'ers are more likely to assume community leadership, political and other citizenship roles than people who participated in other youth organizations. "4-H membership teaches youth that the community and giving to the community are important," said Davison.

Vital to the 4-H program are volunteer leaders.

"Volunteer leaders are the backbone of the 4-H program as they provide the organizational leadership for local 4-H clubs as well as training and resources in a host of subject-matter areas," said the 4-H official.

Almost 620,000 volunteer leaders support the 4-H program nationwide, with more than 30,000 of those in Texas. The time, travel and support contributed by these volunteer leaders across the U. S. is estimated to have a value of more than $1 billion a year.

Looking at the 4-H program in Texas, Davison said that the most popular project area is foods and nutrition. Other projects that attract large numbers of 4-H'ers include energy, embryology, health (eye care) and safety.

The number of 4-H clubs and special interest groups in the state totals more than 3,300.

A matter of principle is often a cloak to conceal an exhibition of selfishness.

It really was a surprise to see a picture of myself and my late husband, Ed Myers on Page 11, Section B. I remember the day very well seeing this freight train derailment. Didn't know we got our picture made tho.

If it is possible may I ask for the original picture as it is so good of Ed. He passed away in 1963 here in Mesa.

Would you help me find a few good men by publishing this letter in your paper? The few good men mentioned are WWII Veterans and were assigned to the 351st Heavy Bombardment Group at Polebrook, England between 1943 and 1945. There are about 5,000 lost souls and some of them may be in your area.

We have formed a 351st Association of flying and ground crews and have annual reunions.

Mammography Machine Set Up At South Plains

According to the American Cancer Society, breast cancer currently strikes more than 112,000 American women annually. One out of 11 women will get breast cancer during her lifetime. At present the disease kills over 37,000 women annually. It is the major cancer killer of women and its main target is women over 35. Early detection is the key to overcoming breast cancer.

South Plains Hospital-Clinic, Amherst, has just added a dedicated mammography machine to the Radiology Department.

During the month of October they will be offering breast screening at a reduced cost of $50

(due to the low cost this will be cash only - no Medicare, Medicaid or Insurance will be accepted, and the fee includes the Radiologist fee).

The hospital suggests that breast cancer can be present without any symptoms in the early stages, and that you take advantage of this offer in October.

For more information and/or to make an appointment, call: 246-3536, ext. 479.

This tiny child looking with trust into his mother's loving face and cradled in the safety of her arms feels that her care will be eternal and everlasting. When one matures, one very quickly finds that the securities provided by the transient helps of this world do not offer everlasting security. No matter how much of this world's goods we accumulate, they cannot make life secure against the hazards of it. There is only one place where eternal security is available, and that is within the bounds of a trusting relationship with God who extends to man in love the everlasting arms. Go seek Word of His love in the Church.
