Five Persons Burned To Death In Texas-Oklahoma Fires And Accidents

TWO AUTOISTS CREMATED IN SAYRE MISHAP

Young Farmer Trapped in Blaze Near Shamrock Loses Life

ARCHER WOMAN HURT

Two Dallas Residents Die And 9 Are Injured in Two Big Fires

Five persons were burned to death in the Southwest Sunday, dispatches to The Record News showed.

Near Sayre, Okla., two men were sprayed with gasoline and lost their lives in an ensuing fire when their automobile overturned.

Near Shamrock, Texas, a farm youth was trapped in his burning home and died in the flames.

An aged woman and a man were burned to death and 10 other persons were injured in two spectacular fires at Dallas.

An Archer City woman was seriously injured when a pail of scalding water was overturned upon her.

BODIES OF SAYRE VICTIMS IDENTIFIED

SAYRE, Okla., Jan. 10. (AP)—Two men, identified as Carl Rogers and Vernon Humphreys, both of Oklahoma City, were burned to death four miles west of here early today when their automobile skidded into a ditch, overturned and caught fire.

The two, about 25 years old, were on their way from Clovis, N. M., where they had been working, to Oklahoma City after Rogers received word his mother was seriously ill.

Officers who examined the wreck said apparently clothing of the men had been sprayed with gasoline as the car overturned and that the gasoline caught fire before they could escape.

A farmer nearby heard Rogers' cries for help, but Humphreys was dead and Rogers dying when he reached them.

Both bodies were badly burned.

Humphreys was married and had one child.

WHEELER COUNTY YOUTH BURNED

Special to The Record News

SHAMROCK, Texas, Jan. 10.—Oval Mahan, 18, son of a Magic City farmer, was burned to death in a fire that early Saturday morning destroyed the home of Jim Storey, near Magic City. Storey narrowly escaped death in the flames when he awoke and escaped from the flaming structure.

The fire was believed to have started when a gasoline stove near the bed on which the men were sleeping exploded. Storey was rushed to a Shamrock hospital where he was released after being treated for minor burns.

WOMAN INJURED AT ARCHER CITY

Special to The Record News

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Joe E. Shelton was severely burned here this morning when a pail of scalding water tipped over on her shoulder and arm as she was preparing dinner.

Mrs. Shelton was dressing a chicken and as she placed it on the floor the bucket overturned, spill-

Refugees Return Home After Flood Subsides

GLENDORA, Miss., Jan. 10. (AP)—Aided by the Red Cross, saddened refugees were returning home this week-end to mop out their dwellings in the wake of this delta cotton country's greatest flood disaster.

No further rise was reported in the valley of the mad Tallahatchie river and its tributaries, a valley which only a month ago was flowering in agriculture but now is buried in mud and water.

Bombing Planes Used On Nicaraguan Bandits

COLON, Panama, Jan. 10. (US)—U. S. marine bombing planes have swung into action against Nicaraguan bandit-rebels mobilizing in the Coco river sector for a raid down the Atlantic seaboard, dispatches from Bluefields, Nicaragua, stated today.

Found Dead

Mrs. Ruth Stewart, left, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Debbie Stanford were found dead in the wreckage of their plane near Newville, Pa., after searching parties had hunted for them in vain for days. They planned a flight to Buenos Aires from New York, to be made in the spring.

DEMO HARMONY WORRIES G. O. P.

Jefferson Party Pleased With Developments

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (US)—Old Miss Democracy hugged herself happily today over the harmonious way in which she solved the vexing prohibition problem for the present at least.

On the other hand, the Republicans were considerably concerned over the failure of the Democrats to have a family fight which would split the party wide open on the liquor issue.

It now remains to be seen whether the Democratic national convention, meeting in Chicago on June 27, will be able to agree on a referendum to allow the people to pass on the prohibition question. For the anti-prohibition elements of the party do not intend to allow the convention to dodge the issue.

Both Sides Satisfied

While the drys contend they came off victorious in the bloodless battle over prohibition, the antis, led by Chairman John J. Raskob of the national committee, profess to be entirely satisfied with the reference of prohibition to the resolutions committee of the convention.

Some of the most ardent foes of prohibition were gratified that the question passed without a show of friction as it leaves them with Raskob, the greatest money raising chairman the party ever had to

Registered Mail Taken In Postoffice Robbery

TRINITY, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—Federal postal inspectors today began an investigation of the robbery of the postoffice here last night of two packages of registered mail.

Laney Sandel, postoffice clerk, found mail scattered over the floor of the postoffice when he opened the office to distribute early morning mail.

Entry to the postoffice was gained by prying open the front door of the building, officers said.

Rites Held for Boy Killed in Rainstorm

TRINITY, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—Funeral services for Dempsey Graham, 16, who was struck by an automobile on the outskirts of town here last Monday and died yesterday in a Huntsville hospital, were held here today.

The youth was knocked down by an automobile driven by B. Calvert, operator of a filling station, who said he did not see the lad walking down the highway due to a heavy rain which was falling at the time.

PISTOL SHOT ENDS LIFE OF A. H. FOWLER

Wichita Falls Man Found Dead in Bathtub At Home

RESIDENT 26 YEARS

Friends of Widely Known Landowner Unable to Account for Act

A bullet wound through the head, the body of A. H. Fowler, 57, resident of Wichita county for 26 years and a prominent landowner of the section, was found in the bathtub of his home, 1504 Burnett street, about noon Sunday.

The body was found when Mrs. Fowler returned from church with her family. Mr. Fowler, who had not been feeling well, had been left alone in the house during the church hour. The pistol was found in the tub beside the body.

Verdict Returned

Justice of the Peace R. V. Gwinn returned a verdict of death by self-inflicted bullet wound after an inquest held at the home. Contents of a note left to the widow was not revealed and life-long friends could ascribe no motive for the act unless financial worries and ill health had combined to produce despondency.

Mr. Fowler came to Burkburnett from his native Alabama in 1906. A farmer himself, he purchased and operated extensive farm properties over the section. In 1919, the family moved to Wichita Falls. He continued to add to his landholdings, recently purchasing acreage near Floydada to increase his property over the state.

Widely Known in Area

Mr. Fowler had been a member of the Church of Christ for 14 years. He had a wide acquaintance among business men of the section and an extensive circle of friends who were unable to account for his death.

Besides the widow, five sons survive. They are William, 21; Sam, 20, a student in the Oklahoma Agricultural & Mechanical college at Stillwater; Mack, 11; Thomas, 10, and Charlie 7. One brother, W. H. Fowler, lives in Wichita Falls; two brothers, J. G. and S. M. Fowler, live in Ragland, Ala. His only sister is Mrs. Dora Collins of Ola, Ark.

Funeral services will be held from the First Church of Christ at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Rev. L. S. White, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be in the Burkburnett cemetery with Hines mortuary in charge.

Active pallbearers will be R. S. Dunnaway, C. R. Seals, Ray Keith, J. Ralph Schoolfield, E. C. Stirman, and Dean Hudgins.

Honorary pallbearers were chosen from among the closest friends of the family.

Pampa Aviator Killed When Plane Explodes

PAMPA, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—The body of R. W. "Dutch" Bartgis, Pampa aviator, today was placed on a train for Fort Worth. Bartgis was killed yesterday in an explosion at a hangar here. Investigators believed he was trying to dry fresh paint on the wing of an airplane with an electric dryer, and the gasoline in the wing tank exploded.

Plane Crash Kills Army Air Pilot

GALVESTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Private Claude E. Pack, 22, of the third attack group was killed when a small civilian plane he was piloting crashed just west of the city limits here today. Scores of people, many of them playing golf on nearby courses, saw the plane plunge to earth when one of the wings came off.

Helen Fitzgerald Wins Woman's Air Race

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10. (US)—Flying a Gee Bee plane, Miss Helen Fitzgerald, of Binghamton, N. Y., today won the special 15-mile speed race for women pilots, one of the concluding events in the all-American air races here. She averaged 138.932 miles an hour.

Flowers Sent Mother Held In Hawaii City For Native's Slaying

HONOLULU, Jan. 10. (UP)—Cablegrams of sympathy and huge bouquets poured in today upon Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, American social leader under arrest on the old warship Alton on charges of participating in the murder of an Hawaiian who was accused of attacking her daughter.

Mrs. Fortescue, principal figure in the tragedy openly described by one Honolulu official as "a slaying to avenge the honor of the navy," was in the care of physicians, her nerves shattered by a series of dramatic events culminating in her arrest.

From every state in the union where the account of last September's vicious assault upon Mrs. Thomas H. Massie—Mrs. Fortescue's daughter and wife of an American naval officer—has been read, there came by wire and wireless and cable expressions of support and condolence.

Flowers Overflow Ship

Finally, so overwhelming was the floral tribute that officers of the old warship were forced to order that no more flowers be brought aboard. There was no room for them.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Fortescue's attorneys began today to outline the defense of the society woman, her son-in-law, Lieutenant Massie, and two enlisted men, E. J. Lord of Medford, Mass., and Albert O. Jones of New Bedford, accused of shooting to death Joe Hahahawai, one of Mrs. Massie's five alleged assailants.

Frank Thompson, one of Honolulu's best attorneys, will be chief counsel. He declined to make public his plans until Mrs. Fortescue has recovered sufficiently to aid him in presenting the case.

Although it is believed Mrs. Fortescue will be tried in the Hawaiian civil courts, disposition of the cases against the three men has not been determined. They may be turned over to the navy for trial by court-martial. Mrs. Fortescue's arraignment is planned for next week, dependent upon her condition.

Honolulu Sullen

Honolulu's underworld, from whose shadows on the night of Sept. 12, four brown-skinned natives and one Chinese emerged to compound their attack on the 19-year-old lieutenant's wife, was sullen and silent today.

Hell's Half Acre, a combination of closely packed slums and garish dance halls and saloons, were every nationality sends its dregs, was ominously quiet and dark. Dance halls were closed. Saloon lights were dimmed. The houses of prostitution were empty. Over the district hung a pall of fear.

Through this ordinarily wild section tramped the regular military police patrol under the command of Lieut. Thomas Davies. The cadence of their footfalls was all that broke the silence.

In a downtown funeral parlor, unmarked by the customary emotional display of mourning with which the Hawaiians mark death, lay the body of Kahahawai. There were some flowers around the coffin, brought by his friends. But there was none of the mournful chanting, none of the sobs and wailing in which the

Woman's Relatives Seek To Void 'Ouija' Marriage

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. (UP)—A suit to annul the "Ouija board" marriage of Mrs. Kitty Gunn-Jones, who has been dead for more than a year, goes to court tomorrow.

Relatives of the late Mrs. Jones hope to void her marriage to Maj. George W. Jones, thereby invalidating the will in which she left her entire estate to her husband.

The suit charges that the wedding occurred on July 1, 1925, because the major "took advantage of her faith in the Ouija board, hired a spiritualist to advise her to marry him and compelled her to drink huge quantities of liquor."

Mrs. Jones was 69 years old when she died 14 months ago. The bill charges she died "under mysterious circumstances."

Blizzard Imperils Cattle in New Mexico

CLAYTON, N. M., Jan. 10. (AP)—Roads in northeastern New Mexico were impassable tonight as one of the worst blizzards of the winter swept over this part of the state.

Cattlemen throughout the section reported their herds were suffering from the storm and heavy losses were predicted. Train service on the Colorado and Southern railroad was delayed.

The storm covered most of northern New Mexico but appeared to be at its height in the northeast corner of the state. Approximately an inch of snow fell at Albuquerque during the day.

Riots Occur in Bombay In Defiance of Orders

BOMBAY, Jan. 10. (AP)—Two disturbances, in one of which a crowd estimated at 12,000 persons rescued three prisoners from a police station, were reported today in India's forbidden struggle against British authority.

Police charged a crowd at Karachi with staves after a public meeting which had been declared unlawful and 28 persons were injured. The other occurrence was at Sprinigar, where an armed crowd attacked the police station and rescued three prisoners charged with attempted arson.

FIGHT

Bitter Struggle to Mark Fight Over Insanity Of Mrs. Judd

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 10. (US).—When Mrs. Ruth Judd, charged with slaying her two closest friends, Agnes Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose bodies were stuffed into trunks and shipped to Los Angeles, goes on trial Tuesday, Jan. 19, there will be a bitter fight over her sanity, it was revealed today.

Experts will figure prominently in the case.

WICHITAN BUYS STEELE RANCH

Kuehn Acquires 13,400 Acres for $120,000

Purchase of a 13,400-acre tract of land known as the Steele ranch, four miles southeast of Muleshoe, Texas, by A. A. Kuehn of Wichita Falls was announced Sunday in an Associated Press dispatch to The Record News.

The land was bought from Otto Stolley and associates of Austin for a consideration of $120,000, according to the dispatch. It was stated that the new owner plans to irrigate 200 acres during the ensuing year, but to continue for the present to devote much of the remaining acreage to hog and cattle raising. The ranch is located in the Blackwater valley irrigated district.

Mr. Kuehn makes him home at 1909 Lucile street, and is vice president of Biggs & Co., local pump and elevator equipment wholesalers.

Chinese Raiders Use Ambush Tactics on Japs

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Jan. 10. (US)—Fierce night raids executed under cover of darkness to avoid Japanese airplanes appeared today to be the new tactics decided upon by Chinese guerillas operating north of Mukden.

Several hundred of the Chinese irregulars last night ambushed a small Japanese detachment at Tahushau. Two Japanese officers were killed and five soldiers wounded.

Another raiding band tore up the Peiping-Mukden railway seven miles west of Jaoyangho.

Malady of Hiccougher Conquered by Doctors

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, Jan. 10.—T. K. Ketchum, Aspermont, was resting quietly in a Stamford hospital Sunday after physicians had conquered a persistent hiccough which set in a week ago. Ketchum was brought to Stamford for treatment Thursday. The use of a vaccine reduced the spasms to occasional hiccoughs and doctors said the patient would be able to return to his home in a few days.

Second Oil Field Is Likely for Victoria Area

VICTORIA, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—A drillstem test of the Bunte, Inc., and C. R. & M. Drilling company's No. 1 Keran early today indicated possible discovery of a second oil field in Victoria county within a few weeks.

The well was on the Keran ranch in the southeast part of the county. Its depth was 5182 to 5191 feet. The oil was of high gravity similar to that of the Texas company's discovery well on the McFaddin ranch in southern Victoria county. The fields were 25 miles apart.

Kansas City to Fight 'At Home' for Reed

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 10. (US)—Disappointed but not dejected over the failure to obtain the 1932 Democratic national convention, after having it within their grasp, William T. Kemper, national committeeman for Missouri, and his fellow Jeffersonians, home tonight, were determined to "show Jim Reed we can do as much for him at Chicago as we could at Kansas City."

'Fishermen' Flock to Spot Where Rum Boat Sank

EDGEMERE, N. Y., Jan. 10. (US)—Fishing was fine here today, thanks, even though there were too many fishermen.

Ever since the rum boat Patricia was sunk by coast guards, cases of real Canadian liquors have been swept ashore by the surf.

The best "catch" was four cases of scotch.

NEW ELECTORAL LAW

RIO DE JANERIO, Jan. 10. (US)—Brazil's new electoral law is expected to be ready within a month, it was announced today.

EIGHT RELIEF BILLS UP FOR CONGRESS VOTE

Huge Finance Corporation Heads List of Plans Waiting Action

LEGAL BEER ASKED

Democratic Tariff Plan Moves Into Senate For Debate

By KENNETH CLARK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (US)—Congressional efforts to find a magic formula to lead the country quickly out of the economic wilderness go into high gear this week.

All aimed to stimulate business recovery, measures awaiting action include:

1. The $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation, whose passage is expected within a few days.
2. A $5,500,000,000 federal prosperity loan for public works all over the country.
3. The Democratic tariff bill, passed by the house and now before the senate.

Beer Bill Considered

4. Legalization of 4 per cent beer to give cheer to millions, provide work for thousands of jobless and assure a $500,000,000 yearly income to the government.
5. Naval construction to provide adequate national defense while furnishing employment to thousands.
6. Federal assistance to closed banks, by a $150,000,000 corporation.
7. Broadening of the federal reserve system's rediscount powers.
8. Progressives' bill for direct aid for unemployment, declared to be beyond the ability of states and private charities to meet.

Inquiries Up

Several investigations likewise occupy congress. Aroused by revelations of a $415,000 rake-off paid to the son of a former Peruvian president on foreign loans, Senator Johnson, Republican of California will dig deeper in bankers' loans to South America. American investors have lost millions on loans now in default.

Flushed with their passage in the house of a new tariff bill, Democrats are now ready to bring out a new tax measure. Hearings are to start promptly before the house ways and means committee, with indications the measure will be submitted to the house not later than Feb. 1.

Demo Tax Plan

Rejecting the administration's proposal to jack up all income tax rates, with a lowering of the present exemptions, Democrats plan to leave the smaller income levies practically unchanged and to place a heavier tax against the higher income brackets and surtaxes. Estate, and inheritance taxes are likely to be boosted, in line with the Democratic contention that wealth should bear a proportionately higher burden in taxes. Thus Democrats figure they can raise the money necessary to balance the budget without inflicting hardships on any group of taxpayers.

Boats and Airplanes Search Sea for Man

HOUSTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Three coast guard boats and two army airplanes today resumed without success the search for Oliver D. O'Bryan, Houston steamfitter, who was swept out to sea in a small skiff near Freeport a few days ago.

No reason was given for temporary abandoning the search yesterday, but coast guard officials at Freeport said conditions were ideal for the search today.

O'Bryan lost control of his skiff while crossing the Diversion cannel south of Freeport early Thursday morning and was swept into the gulf by a strong flood current of the river.

Searchers have strong reasons to believe the man still is alive, they said.

Odd Job Man

Jay Deiss, University of Texas student from Amarillo, serves as fraternity dietitian, does etchings and paint jobs and corresponds for a newspaper to pay his way through school. Deiss, 19, is a junior.

BANDITS SLUG, ROB WICHITAN

Hijackers Secure $48 In Three Robberies

After slugging one of their victims with a blackjack, hijackers early Sunday morning took $15 from Robert E. Taylor, 1609 Taylor street, and Gene Costley, 1101 Monroe, in the third holdup within a few hours.

Taylor was struck on the head and knocked to the pavement when he stepped from his car at Tenth and Burnett shortly after 1 o'clock. He and Costley had been overtaken and flagged down by the occupants of the bandit car. Taylor lost $11.50; Costley $3.50.

Earlier in the night J. C. Anderson had been held up and robbed of $3 by two men who forced him to accompany them into the alley behind the Panhandle building. Plainclothesmen Carlisle and Warfield investigated.

The first hi-jacking of the evening, staged at the Evans Drug store, Ninth and Broad, cost the owner between $25 and $30 taken from the cash register. Leaving two companions outside in a car, two men entered the store about 10:10 Saturday night, pulled a gun on Miss Mary McWorther, cashier, and forced Roy Sonnamaker, clerk, to assist in opening the cash register. They passed up all checks and $1.05 in small change.

Descendent of Poem Hero Dies at Beaumont

BEAUMONT, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—"Uncle" Hiram Arceneaux, great-great grandson of the hero in real life of Longfellow's "Evangeline," died at his residence here this morning at the age of 78. It was his ancestor, Louis Arceneaux, on whose character and life the Gabriel Lejeunesse of Longfellow's poem was based.

The heroine of the poem, "Evangeline," was Emmeline La Biche, who found Arceneaux after a long search through the Louisiana bayous, but found him betrothed to another.

In Longfellow's poem, Evangeline found Gabriel as he was dying in a hospital in Philadelphia, Pa., but in true life, Louis and Emmeline met in Southern Louisiana, only after Louis was betrothed to another.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Fire early Sunday night destroyed the four-room home of A. L. Cobb, 1804 Truehart. Origin of the flames was not discovered and damage was unestimated.

REPUBLIC TO INSIST THAT DEBTS BE PAID

Pressure on German Credit Standing Planned As Retaliation

PACTS POINTED OUT

Occupation of Ruhr Valley Is Coercion Measure Contemplated

By RALPH HEINZEN

PARIS, Jan. 10. (UP)—France firmly intends to retaliate if Germany ceases reparations payments.

The statement of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening at Berlin, declaring Germany cannot resume payments of political debts, was answered by vigorous statements in the press and in semi-official sources disclosing several possible lines of action by France:

1. Refusal of future financial aid to Germany and pressure in other capitals to render Germany financially helpless. This would be the easiest and probably the most effective method of retaliation.

Treaties Cited

2. Invocation of economic and military sanctions against Germany, as provided by the Versailles treaty, the Young plan and The Hague agreement of Jan. 16, 1930, permitting France to appeal to the world court in event of breach of faith by the Reich.

3. Occupation of the Ruhr valley by France, which is virtually out of the question in the opinion of officials.

The government was intensely aroused by the Bruening declaration, but after study of press dispatches it was pointed out no official action had been taken and that the announcement probably was chiefly a move to improve the German position at the Lausanne conference, which has been postponed to Jan. 25.

If the declaration should be repeated at Lausanne, however, it was declared France would immediately seek to put into operation the various treaties providing machinery of retaliation.

France Given Warning

Government officials made it clear financial pressure was considered the most effective weapon in such a case and it was said France's dominant position would render Germany helpless within six weeks. The fact Bruening made his announcement prior to the conference has given the French warning, and the delegation probably will be fully instructed as how to meet such a move at Lousanne.

The authoritative Pertinax, writing in the Echo de Paris, said an appeal to the world court would merely permit France "to obtain liberty to make war against Germany. There remains another way—to show our displeasure the first time Germany directly or indirectly solicits French aid. Remember the German economic structure hangs only by a single thread."

ATTEMPT TO BLAST CONFERENCE SEEN

BERLIN, Jan. 10. (AP)—Reaction abroad to Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's declaration that Germany could not pay reparations any longer was termed "an attempt to torpedo the Lausanne conference" by a foreign office spokesman today.

The foreign office emphatically insisted the chancellor, in his recent talk with the British ambassador and his published interview later, never spoke of Germans wanting to pay reparations.

"Matters are entirely beyond Germany's will and it is now merely a question of Germany's utter impossibility to pay," the spokesman said.

Foreign office circles professed to see in the London, Paris and Warsaw versions of Bruening's talk with Sir Horace Rumbold, the British envoy, "an attempt to torpedo the Lausanne conference before the conference ever assembled."

Bridge Company's Suit to Collect $165,000 From Texas Starts Today

AUSTIN, Jan. 10. (AP)—The suit of the Red River Bridge company against the state for damages claimed by the bridge company for revenue lost by the opening of a free birdge across the Red river between Denison, Texas, and Durant, Okla., an alleged violation of a contract between the state highway commission and the company, owner of a pay structure, will be called in Travis county district court tomorrow.

No motion for a continuance will be made by the state, James V. Allred, attorney general, stated today.

The bridge company is seeking to collect $165,000 claiming it would have collected that amount in tolls and in the sale of the old bridge to the state had the highway commission abided by the contract.

Controversy over opening the Denison-Durant bridge caused Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma to declare a martial law zone around the bridge head last summer.

Answering the suit, the attorney general contended the highway commission had no authority to agree to pay the bridge company the amount claimed because Texas laws prohibit the commission from contributing more than one-half the amount necessary to acquire, construct or maintain an interstate bridge and that Texas could contribute one-half only in event the adjoining state agreed to contribute a like amount.

Five Cents Will Buy Lunch for One Hungry Child—Send in Your Gift

With $932.50 subscribed, the School Lunch Fund, which was opened to public contributions last week, may reach $1,000 Monday if the rate of gifts for the last two days is maintained. While contributions dropped Friday and Saturday, the two days averaged well over $100.

Public subscriptions were asked by The Record News and Daily Times to aid the city P.-T. A. in its fight to feed nearly 200 hungry children who had been going from eight to 12 hours without food. The response from Wichita Falls was quick and generous. With the donation of milk for the needy children by the Lehrack-Ferguson Dairy Products company, the lunch fund was materially aided, as all monies now collected may go to the purchase of food for the children.

Five cents will buy a warm, nourishing luncheon for a child that may have come to school without breakfast. The Record News will acknowledge contributions for five cents up. Send your gift in or hand it to Lester Jones, treasurer of the fund, at the Wichita State bank.

POLL OF EDITORS BRINGS PREDICTION OF DEMO VICTORY

ROOSEVELT OR BAKER NAMED

Cross-Section of U. S. Press Represented

By G. F. SHEARWOOD

A Democrat, probably Roosevelt or Baker, will be the next occupant of the White House, according to 300 out of a total of 528 daily newspaper editors representing 47 states and the District of Columbia, in a survey made by Publishers' Service Magazine. This return of 582 answers is the result of a questionnaire sent to all daily newspapers in the United States, a total of approximately 1,835.

In definite statements made confidentially to Publishers' Service, only 143 out of the total of 582 daily newspaper editors predicted Republican victory, while 139 declined to venture an opinion. On the other hand, 300 newspapers definitely predicted the election of a Democratic president.

The survey represents a true cross-section of the feeling of newspaper editors through the United States. Embraced in the survey are the votes and exclusive editorial opinions of the largest metropolitan daily newspapers as well as of the smallest country dailies.

Outstanding in the surprising elements brought out by the survey are these facts:

1. That, whereas 205 of the 582 newspapers will definitely support the Republican nominee, only 143 of the 582 newspapers believe that a Republican candidate can be elected.

2. That, whereas the Democratic candidate is assured of the support of only 179, of the 582 newspapers, 300 of the 582 newspapers believe the Democratic candidate will be elected.

3. The strength of Newton D. Baker, and the favor in which he is held by newspapers. A total of 133 newspapers favor Baker for Democratic nominee, a total of only 22 less votes than Roosevelt received.

President Hoover's status in editorial opinions is exceedingly interesting, as the several hundred comments quoted later in this article reveal.

Many newspapers believe he is the weakest man the Republican party can nominate. This view is generally based less on his record in office than on the fact that being at the helm of the nation's affairs, he must be made the scapegoat. Some consider that he lacks the personal appeal necessary to attract the requisite number of votes.

A large portion of opinion sympathizes with the president. Even newspapers that are most bitterly opposed to him and to the Republican party feel that he is being forced to shoulder the blame for conditions over which no one man or one government can fairly be held responsible.

On the other hand, some editors think that the gathering opposition to President Hoover will eventually react in his favor. As one editor says, the president is fast becoming a martyr in the eyes of the public. Martyrdom, apparently, might make him vicious in November.

Emphasis must be laid on the fact that a considerable proportion of the opinions gathered by Publishers' Service are open to revision when the two party conventions have been held, but a large number of newspapers appear to have quite definite views which neither platforms nor nominees will alter.

The survey clearly reveals one other important fact. In the opinion of editors, the South, which the Republicans split wide open in 1928, will once again become the solid South. No matter who is the nominee of the Republican party, there seems little likelihood that the South will again depart from its traditional allegiance to the Democratic party.

Where the Answers Came From

The 582 newspapers are located in 47 states and the District of Columbia. The only state not represented is Wyoming.

Grouping the country into four major geographical divisions, the answers are as follows:

New England and East	138
South	127
Middle West	222
West	95

The groupings and the number of answers from each state are:

New England and East		Middle West

Grouping the Republican and Independent Repuclican newspapers to arrive at the total of newspapers with Republican sympathies shows 208 leaning in that direction.

Adopting the same plan with the Democratic and Independent Democratic shows 149 with Democratic leanings. The ratio between the two groups, therefore, is roughly four Republican newspapers to three inclined to the Democrats, with each group being outnumbered by the 225 declared Independent newspapers.

Analysis of the answers of these three groups of newspapers to the question, "Which party and which nominee do you think will win?" reveals clearly the pessimism in the Republican group and the optimism of the Democrats. A large number merely gave the name of the party they expected to emerge victorious next November and did not name the nominee.

Of the 208 newspapers in the Republican group, 87 expect the Republican party to win, 45 expect the Democrats to win, and 76 made no forecast.

Of the 149 Democratic newspapers, only four expect the Republicans will remain in power, while 125 anticipate a Democratic president. Twenty newspapers in this group were undecided as to the outcome.

The 225 Independent newspapers gave 52 votes for a belief in the continuance of a Republican rule, while 130 foresee a Democratic victory, and 43 would not venture a prediction.

Grouping the figures by which expectations of Democratic triumph outnumber those for four more years of Republican dominance, in convenient form shows:

	Predict Rep. Victory	Predict Dem. Victory	Undecided
208 Rep. papers	87	45	76
149 Dem. papers	4	125	30
225 Ind. papers	52	130	43
Totals 582 papers	143	030	139

Which Party Will They Support?

The newspapers were asked, "Have you decided which party you will support in the coming presidential election?" The answers show that Republican support is comparatively weak when the difference in numbers of Republican and Democratic newspapers is considered.

The Republican party is assured, according to the replies, of the support of 205 of the 582 newspapers answering the question, while the Democrats can count on 179. The remaining 198 are as yet undecided. The figures of those definitely decided is significant when it is seen that 205 of the newspapers are normally Republican and only 149 normally Democratic. The 225 Independent newspapers supply a number already in favor of supporting the Democratic ticket.

The political policies of the 582 newspapers are as follows:

Republican	138
Independent Republican	70
Democratic	99
Independent Democrat	50
Independent	225

A number of newspapers replied with such answers as, "We are ordinarily Republican (or Democratic) but it all depends!" These answers were listed among the 198 which have not yet made a decision.

Prohibition and tariffs were included in the two following questions, which asked whether the Republican, or the Democratic, nominee, regardless of identity and regardless of his stand on prohibition and tariffs, would be supported.

Of the 208 newspapers definitely lined up with the Republican cause only 121 answered this in the affirmative, while of the Democratic alignment 127 said "yes."

Favorites for Party Nominations

Answers to the two questions, "Whom do you favor for the Republican nominee?" and "Whom do you favor for the Democratic nominee?" brings out a number of significant points, particularly when it is remembered that the party conventions are still months away.

President Hoover is shown to be out by himself as the favorite for Republican nomination, a result to be expected. In the Democratic lineup, the strength of the vote for Newton D. Baker is surprising. With 154 specific votes cast for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Baker is almost level in popularity among editors, following closely behind Roosevelt with 123 votes, while 25 newspapers say "Roosevelt or Baker." Nine split Roosevelt with three other names, and nine more split Baker with four others.

Both questions were answered by a large number of newspapers, 399 giving names of favored Republicans and 406 specifically naming Democrats. No choice for Republican nominee was signified by 183 newspapers, and in the Democratic column by 177.

A number of newspapers gave two or more names in order of preference. Where this occurred the first choice only was included in the tabulations.

Thirteen individual names were returned among the choices for the Republican nominations, and 14 among the Democrats. "Favorite sons" accounted for the long string of names in each case, five Republicans and five Democrats receiving one scant vote each.

The Republican Side

In the case of President Hoover, the 320 votes with which he is credited do not altogether represent his real standing in editorial opinion. To many editors answering the questionnaire, the president is "Hobson's choice." Such expressions as "There isn't anybody else," "Doesn't matter," "Hoover will be nominee," "If Hoover doesn't want it, it isn't worth having," "The Republicans cannot possibly nominate any one but Hoover," "Don't know of any one but Hoover," "Immaterial—Hoover will be named anyhow," "It must be Hoover," and "Only one possibility—Hoover," being common.

Some Democratic newspapers, sensing victory ahead, name the president as favorite Republican nominee with the terse comment "easiest to beat."

Fourteen newspapers say "anybody but Hoover." This expression is based on the feeling, shown among the comments which appear later, that if economic conditions do not improve during the coming months, the electorate will be disposed to "take it out on Hoover" as one editor puts it, whereas a new Republican leader who cannot possibly be blamed for the depression may keep the Republicans in power.

A few newspapers, notably in the South and on the Pacific coast, which supported the president in the last election, will oppose him should he run for a second term, though they might support any other Republican nominee. They hold the president responsible for the troubles of the country and the "anybody but Hoover" group, together with a number of other newspapers not of the Democratic faith, feel that the people will, rightly, take the same view, and that therefore Mr. Hoover is not the strongest candidate the party can put forward. Conditions during the next few months, however, are generally expected to determine Mr. Hoover's status in this respect.

Former President Calvin Coolidge follows President Hoover in the list of Republican favorites with 19 votes. In most cases the editors giving Mr. Coolidge the vote do so without any expectation that he will allow his name to be put forward at the party convention. "Coolidge—but of ccurse, it's hopeless," is a typical comment in his case.

Ambassador Dawes and Senator Borah are the only others reaching double figures, each receiving 10 votes.

Undoubtedly, the feeling that President Hoover must be nominated accounts for his overwhelming lead. One or two comments asking "Does it make any difference" in reply to the question seeking the name of a Republican nominee, aptly reflects this viewpoint.

The table following shows the votes cast for the Republican choice divided into the four geographical divisions of the country.

The Democratic Side

In analyzing the Democratic choices, as mentioned previously, Newton D. Baker shows surprising strength in the favor of the nation's editors, with the Middle West, which includes Mr. Baker's native Ohio, giving him 56 votes to 51 for Governor Roosevelt, and New England and the East 31 as compared with 27 for the New York governor.

However, many editors, feeling that Governor Roosevelt is, as one of them puts it, "off to a better start" expect the New York man to be the winning nominee even though they favor Baker as their choice. The fact that Roosevelt is generally regarded as more certain to be a candidate than is Baker influences these answers to some extent, while others feel that of the two men Roosevelt is the "better vote-getter." It would appear that if Baker comes definitely into the race, many of the editors who now favor him as the Democratic choice but give Roosevelt the better chance of winning, will be inclined to editorially support the Ohio statesman.

Doubt as to the outcome of the Democratic national convention and the party plank causes concern among editors who see the chance of a Democratic victory as a natural reaction to the discontent caused by unemployment and the general economic disruption.

The following table shows how the votes were cast for the choice for Democratic nominee:

Newspapers signifying that they have no favorite for either the Republican or the Democratic nomination, and in some cases both questions were marked "no choice," give as their reason either that they are not interested in the nominee of one party or the other, depending on their political point of view, or that it is too early to make a decision. This is especially the case regarding the Democrats, where the party's national convention, it is contended, must be awaited before a decision can properly be reached.

Prohibition and Tariffs

Prohibition and tariffs, two of the major problems of government, figured in direct questions. The first: "Will you support the party most definitely pledged to attempt (a) repeal or (b) revision of the Eighteenth Amendment?" The other was "Will you support a downward revision of tariffs?"

The first of these questions was answered by 441 editors. Of these 138 stated that they favored either repeal or revision. Only 31 specified which they favored, 12 declaring for the former and 19 for the latter. Two hundred and fifty said definitely that they will not support any attempt to modify the Amendment or the Volstead Act, and 53 signified that they would be content to follow the lead of the candidate they found otherwise satisfactory.

The distribution by geographical divisions on this question is as follows:

	Favor Repeal or Revision	Will Not Support
New England, East	41	56
South	30	56
Middle West	52	106
West	15	35

The majority of those declaring they will not support any attempt to alter the existing law state that they do not consider prohibition a major issue, or else that it is beyond politics and a straight moral issue.

Some say that an out and out wet candidate or even one whose position on prohibition is open to doubt will be opposed editorially regardless of ordinary party leanings.

Of these two points of view, however, the one most prominent is that prohibition is "not a campaign issue." Some typical comments are "I do not believe prohibition per se is a vital question," "Consider this incidental," "Not the big issue," "While wet, don't think this primary issue," "Prohibition is a moral issue and has no place in the platform of either party," "Prohibition secondary," "Not decisive problem," "This is already law, should not be included," "Economic conditions more important." This issue has been sidestepped so long we believe it has no place in politics" and "Liquor not an issue."

The dry element of the press answering the question generally is content with a clean-cut refusal to tolerate any candidate favoring alteration of the amendment. Such statements as "I will not," "The law must be enforced," "Will support no candidate for a wet country" and "Cannot even be considered," reflect these views.

Approximately one-quarter of the editors answering the question on prohibition state that they favor a national referendum, many declaring that only by this method will it be possible to ascertain the real feeling of the country on the liquor question.

A downward revision of tariffs finds the nation's editors in much closer agreement.

Out of 465 answering this question, 340 favor a downward revision, the remaining 125 being against any reduction. Apparently believing that high tariffs are preventing the return of prosperity the sentiment is strong for revision.

This desire is qualified, however. Many editors believe the matter should be left to the tariff commission and should not be made a platform plank.

Many others, while favoring revision, consider that it should not be wholesale. Farming districts are definitely against any revision where agricultural products are concerned, for instance. Generally, the tone is that cuts in the tariff should be made on some commodities but by no means on all. In other words, protection appears to be demanded, free trade in its widest sense being quite definitely opposed. As one editor says, "If not too drastic—yes." This comment covers the viewpoint of many.

The international situation plays a large part in the minds of editors on this matter, it would appear. "Dependent on attitude of other nations," being a typical comment. Others say "it depends upon how things go," "Believe in revision that works no hardship on American labor," "Not while every other country in the world has one," and "Yes—with reservations." The latter reflects the attitude of many.

It is apparent that tariff revision is generally considered of far greater importance than is prohibition.

WOMAN HELD IN HAWAII DEATH

Honolulu Underworld Is Sullenly Quiet

relatives of a departed soul express their grief.

Mother at Casket

Through the day, Kahahawai's mother sat at the head of the casket, dry-eyed.

The main streets of Honolulu, usually bright with naval uniforms, were deserted by Americans, and the naval shore patrols, whose duty it is to round-up stray sailors, had no work to do. Out of 1,500 men of the fleet, only six were reported absent without leave.

The slaying of Kahahawai, whether or not it was the navy's vengeance for a series of 40 brazen assaults on women by underworld characters, may bring to a sudden end the operation of a criminal system which, according to navy department charges, has operated with the connivance of public authorities under strange immunity to the Hawaiian law.

Race hatred, brought to a fever pitch by the occurrences of the last six months, has had two distinct effects. It has forced the withdrawal of American sailors from Honolulu, amounting to a boycott of the city. It has driven to cover the bolder underworld characters, many of whom are fleeing under the stimulus of fear.

The women of the underworld—and the men who "manage" them—are in hiding or preparing to fly to new fields.

Many Honolulu ministers today pleaded from their pulpits against additional violence, and two members of the clergy attacked Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, for a statement on the case made in Washington.

Admiral Pratt was quoted in Washington as asserting "American men will not stand for the violation of their women." Other naval officers have charged Honolulu civil officers were not able to protect women from prowling gangs.

Wants Pratt Ousted

The Rev. Galen R. Weaver, pastor of the Church of the Cross-Roads, expressed hope President Hoover would "use every due process of law to see that Admiral Pratt is relieved of his command."

The Rev. Horace Leavitt, who did not name Admiral Pratt but whose remarks were interpreted as directed at the high naval officer, scored what he termed Pratt's justification of the killing of Kahahawai.

As territorial prosecutors planned to ask the death penalty for the quartet accused of killing Kahahawai, men connected with the army and navy offered their assistance to the defense.

Flowers for Slain Man

There were flowers for Kahahawai and tears were shed by those grieving over his death. The chapel where his body lay was banked with blooms and visited by hundreds.

In the flower banked funeral chapel, following Hawaiian custom, Kahahawai's parents stood at the head of his casket and wailed almost constantly.

The four youths who were tried with Kahahawai on the attack charge and held for retrial after the jury had disagreed, visited the chapel and viewed the body of their companion today. The four, Henry Chang, Horace Ida, Ben Ahakuleo and David Takai, were left alone in the room. They wept.

Detectives accompanied the four alleged attackers from the police station, where they are being held for safe keeping, to the chapel and back.

Among the floral offerings was one from the Hui Eleu, barefoot baseball organization of which Kahahawai was a star player.

Enlisted men of both the army and navy were confined to their posts, the action last night resulting in the closing of dance halls frequented by service men. Police said the closing was voluntary because of lack of business.

City Nervous

Nervousness and fear were manifested in some parts of the city because Daniel Lyman, convicted murderer and pal of an alleged woman attacker, remained at large after having escaped from Oahu prison Dec. 31. Naval officers assert 40 women have been attacked in the last year. A Honolulu grand jury report said only three actual cases of assault on white women had been investigated but that 33 sex cases within a year had been called to its attention.

Some women in the residential district have been keeping their doors locked in fear of possible attack. In some instances wives of naval officers were reported to have armed themselves after the jury hearing the case of Mrs. Massie's five alleged attackers, including Kahahawai, disagreed. The five were held for retrial.

Honolulu newspapers, in reporting the trial on Nov. 13, when Mrs. Massie took the stand, kept her name secret throughout. She was described as "a beautiful young woman, cultured and of gentle bearing." He voice broke as she protested:

"I didn't want to report this to the police. My husband reported this. Do you suppose I wanted to go through all this?"

She related the story of the attack on the night of Sept. 12, 1931, as it was contained briefly in the report of Admiral Sterling, made public in Washintgon already. But here, in her own words from the stand, are details not included in the report, published in the United States for the first time:

"I left the dance at Ala Wai because I was bored and tired. I left alone. I walked down where the road turns to go to Fort De Russy."

She told of a car driving up; of two men, Chang and Kahahawai, leaping out and seizing her. They struck her, she said, fracturing her jaw. Then she continued:

"We went to the Ala Moana. I was struck a great many times with a closed fist. We turned off the Ala Moana and drove into some trees and bushes away from the sea. Chang and Kahahawai dragged me out of the car. They dragged me about 30 feet.

"Chang assaulted me."

The prosecutor asked:

"How do you know it was Chang?"

"I know because he was holding me in the car. He helped the others drag me—he never let go of me."

"Did you consent to the assault?"

"Certainly not! I couldn't imagine what was going on. People don't do things like that."

Several Attacks

Another of the group then attacked me,—I don't know which one.

"After him—Kahahawai assaulted me. Then Chang attacked me again. I think I was assaulted from four to six times in all.

"I struggled as much as I could. They hit me so much I was dazed. I heard them talk to each other—sometimes in a foreign tongue. They said a lot of filthy things in English.

"One of them said: "Hurry up: we have to go back out Kalihi way."

"Then what happened?"

"One of them helped me sit up and said that the Ala Moana was over there. I saw the car and the number. I thought the number was 58,805. I saw Ida (Horace Ida, Hawaiian born Japanese) get in. They drove off very fast.

"I was very much dazed and wandered about until I came to the Ala Moana. I asked some people in a car if they would take me home. I didn't tell them what had happened because they were strangers.

"I was driven to my home and when my husband came in, I told him about it."

Seriously Injured

Mrs. Massie was so seriously injured that she was unable to eat solid food in the hospital for six weeks, she said. A green silk afternoon dress, trimmed with narrow bands of fur, a silk slip and other garments were introduced into evidence. The dress was blood-stained at the shoulder.

William H. Heen, a territorial senator, cross-examined Mrs. Massie for the defense.

Mrs. Massie told Heen she had gone to the Ala Wai inn to a dancing party, with five others. Liquor was served, she said, and before going to the inn each member of the group had one drink at the home of the Massies. She said:

"I had one drink at the Ala Wai inn, and drank half of it."

Mrs. Massie declared she had danced, but not every dance, and that she had left the inn at 11:35 p. m.

She testified she did not tell her husband she was leaving the inn, explaining:

"I always leave parties when I am bored by them. He knew I had not wanted to go to the party."

Tires Identified

Alcude Benton, radio patrol officer, testified that tire marks found at the scene of the crime were identical with those on the tires of the car driven by Horace Ida on the night of Sept. 12.

George W. Clark took the stand and told of helping Mrs. Massie home after the assault. He said that when she learned that occupants of Clark's car were white, she exclaimed:

"Thank God!"

Clark said her hair "was hanging down on one side" and that her mouth was cut. Clark declared his son found Mrs. Massie's purse, which was open, later.

The injuries suffered by the naval lieutenant's wife were described by Lieutenant-Commander John E. Porter, U. S. N., M. C., who said:

"She had a fracture of the lower jaw and a fracture of the left side. The right cheek was one mass of bruises. The right eye was closed, the nose swollen and bleeding. There was a tear in the flesh of the right wrist. Her right thigh was bruised. Below the right knee there was a bruise two inches in diameter. She had an abrasion of the left ankle, about six inches long."

He said Mrs. Massie had to be given opiates every night for three weeks after her removal to the hospital, to ease her pain. The jaw fracture necessitated removal of a tooth, an infection set in, and the witness stated he believed "her right jaw will never be normal." In the hospital he testified, Mrs. Massie "appeared dazed."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (UP)—Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams today gave full approval to the action taken by Rear Admiral Yates Stirling Jr., commandant of the 14th naval district, Hawaii, in protecting Mrs. Granville Fortescue, her son in law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and E. J. Lord, an enlisted navy man, pending their trial on charges of murder.

The three were placed aboard an old warship off Pearl harbor for protection against mounting race hatreds.

Railroad Employes and Workers Gather to Discuss Wage Reduction

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. (AP)—Empowered by both parties to reach a binding decision, representatives of the railroads of the nation and their employes will gather around a common council table here this week to settle the vexing problem of wages for 1,250,000 workers.

Though the conference between the nine railroad presidents on one hand and the railway labor executives' association on the other does not open in plenary session until Thursday, the advance guard of brotherhood leaders began arriving today.

They brought with them freely mentioned offers of cooperation in the solution of other important railroad difficulties but were closemouthed regarding the all important question of wage reductions.

The plenary meeting will climax a series of group gatherings begun last month after employes were urged by the roads to accept a voluntary 10 per cent wage reduction for one year to assist the lines in coping with greatly diminished income. The union officials, meeting here early in December, countered the companies' plea with an offer for further negotiation on the wage request and other ills, notably unemployment. The road executives in three meetings finally acceded and appointed representatives for the meeting Thursday.

In the meantime the union officials sought from their own bodies authority to meet the lines' executives on the wage question. The full answer of the rank and file is expected to be made known Wednesday.

Death Claims J. B. Burrows At Age of 84

J. B. Burrows, 84, died at the home of his son, W. G. Burrows, 1707 Sixth street, at 8:30 o'clock Sunday night. The family has lived in Wichita Falls for many years.

Funeral services will be held from the Merkle Funeral home chapel at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Burial will be in Rosemont.

Survivors are three sons and three daughters. The daughters are Mrs. A. S. Oquin, San Angelo; Mrs. E. S. Estep, Seminole, Texas; Mrs. R. H. Murrah, Plainview. Hunter Burrows, H. Burrows and W. G. Burrows, all of Wichita Falls, are the sons.

Fire From Cook Stove Wrecks Graham Home

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Jan. 10.—Fire wrecked the home of A. T. Corbin here shortly before noon Sunday while members of the family were attending church.

A high wind threatened to spread the blaze to adjoining houses in the block, but the timely work of firemen confined the fire to the one structure.

The blaze was believed to have originated with a cook stove in the kitchen of the home. Damage to house and furniture was estimated at $1,000.

Hoover Studies Lists For Diplomatic Posts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—Two lists from which he will select new incumbents for vacancies in the diplomatic and colonial services are before President Hoover.

The most important of all ambassadorial positions—that in London—will be vacant soon with the resignation of Charles G. Dawes. Dawes' resignation also will vacate the position of chairman of the American delegation to the general arms limitation conference.

Another ambassadorial rank, particularly important now because of the Manchurian situation, is to be left open soon by the resignation of W. Cameron Forbes at Tokyo.

Slayer of Officer Caught by Chance

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 10. (US)—A four-day search by 34 deputized citizens ended today with Earnest Shaw, slayer of a Haywood county deputy sheriff, safely in jail here.

Shaw, farmer in Fayette county, fatally shot Deputy John Stoots last Wednesday and seriously wounded Sheriff S. T. Hunter of Brownsville, Tenn., when the officers came to his farm to capture an escaped bootlegger.

TWO DEAD AFTER BLAZE AT DALLAS

DALLAS, Jan. 10. (AP)—Two persons were burned to death and nine others were burned or injured in separate fires which swept a hotel and a residence here today.

J. C. Estell, 42, was burned so seriously on his face and body as he fled from the burning second-floor DeSoto hotel he died several hours later.

Mrs. Louise Ehrhardt, 74, received fatal burns in an explosion and fire at her residence. The explosion was caused by pouring gasoline on a stove.

A daughter, Miss Julia Ehrhardt, 36, was severely burned on her face and upper body as she caught her mother in her arms and ran into the front yard.

Holocaust Threatened

A Holocaust was threatened as flames at the hotel roared up from the kitchen and through the structure with great rapidity.

Mrs. Myrtle Alexander, 38, proprietor, smelling smoke, ran from room to room awakening guests. Some of the 33 persons in the place leaped from windows, while others made their way down firemen's ladders.

Burned and injured in the hotel fire in addition to Estell were the following, all save one residents of Dallas.

T. E. Young, 50, face burned; Arthur Wenger, Brenham, 23, student, hands burned; Ernest Potter, 34, burned on back; H. M. Craddock, 27, blistered face; Mrs. Berbia Blincoe, 23, sprained back; James Clark, 57, body burns; Clyde Ray, 22, cuts on shoulder; Mrs. Alexander, sprained ankle.

Firemen Search Ruins

For a time it was feared there had been considerable loss of life, and firemen searched the ruins for bodies. It was determined, however, none had died in the flames.

The hall of the hotel was turned into a roaring inferno shortly after the fire broke from the kitchen. Through it some guests ran seeking means of exit.

Ernest Potter, who previously had lost his legs, saved himself by leaping from a window, and walking away from the fire on his hands. He was burned on the neck.

Jack Currie, a guest, said he smelled smoke and ran to the kitchen. He flung open the door to be met with a rush of flames. The flames broke through the door almost as he closed it again and ran to awaken the guests.

Aids Children

He helped an aged man to escape down the front stairs and returned to aid several children in flight. The children lived in the hotel with their parents.

One woman leaped from her window and landed on an awning, whence she was rescued by firemen with a ladder. Another woman leaped to the ground.

Mrs. Walter Wright, who was ill, ran from the burning building with her 3-months-old baby in her arms.

Filipino Officials Silent About Roosevelt

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 10. (AP)—In view of the current independence campaign being carried on at Washington, Filipino leaders today guarded comment on President Hoover's nomination of Theodore Roosevelt to be governor-general of the Philippines.

President Manuel Quezon of the insular senate declined to make a statement. Roosevelt is so little known here he has been confused in the minds of the less informed with Nicholas Roosevelt, whose nomination for the vice governor generalship in 1929 proved so unpopular. At that time copies of a book written by Nicholas Roosevelt were burned as an expression of public feeling.

Blood on Snow Leads To Discovery of Murder

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (US)—Blood on the newly fallen snow led today to the discovery of a Brooklyn "ride" murder.

The body of Joseph Stanton, 40, was found in the front seat of an abandoned automobile. He had been shot in the head behind the right ear.

Police believe the murdered man was mixed up in the Brooklyn beer racket.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

A daughter was born Sunday night to Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Franklin at the Wichita General hospital. The baby weighed seven and one-half pounds. The parents live at 1807 Eleventh street.

WICHITA FALLS SOCIETY AND CHURCH NEWS

Prominent Organizations Feature Week's Calendar

Club and church affairs hold prominent places in the calendar of the coming week. The January social feature at the Woman's Forum clubhouse is quite different from any luncheon ever held there, the honor guests being "Who Is It?" Mrs. Bert Bean, chairman of arrangements, has announced a program outline that should attract every forum member.

Musical numbers preceding the contest to be featured will include two piano numbers by Mrs. F. R. Collard and Miss Erma Nala Voss and a group of songs by Mrs. W. M. Priddy with Mrs. Lucile Brooks Huff at the piano.

Then comes the program for which each member and guest is requested to bring pencil and paper. A group of forum members will give sketches of the life and works of outstanding living persons and time will be given at the close of each sketch for the audience to write the name of the person embodied in the word picture. That woman who recognizes the greatest number of people from the word picture, will be presented with a prize.

Luncheon will be served promptly at 12 o'clock at tables that will be demonstrated in a spring motif. Mesdames J. Truman Stevens, 4714, and Rhea Howard, 6178, are taking reservations for luncheon and urge that all reservations be made by Monday evening. The forum social committee will serve as hostesses.

Federated Meeting

The quarterly meeting of the Federated Missionary society will be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Highland Heights Christian church, when Rev. J. E. Montgomery, pastor, will make an address on "Our Record."

Reports given by officers and chairmen will cover fully the financial condition of the society, the work that has been done, the character building that is emphasized in the day nursery work and will particularly stress the fellowship of the churches in their objectives.

Mrs. S. E. Trevathan will preside, and the officers for the coming year will be elected.

Literature Department

A Pulitzer prize book, "Years of Grace," will be interpreted by Mrs. J. A. Kemp when members of the forum meet for the program of the literature department Thursday afternoon.

Miss Eva Weber will tell book news, and following the meeting, tea will be served.

Hostesses will include Mesdames H. B. Patterson, E. B. Gorsline, Ed Howard, C. W. Snider, T. J. Waggoner, Carey Hunter and S. S. McKenney.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

I tried on a hat the other day. Not that I needed a hat particularly, the family already owning one. But advertisements were so glowing, that in an idle moment I wandered into a store.

◇ ◇ ◇

I was merely looking at the hat when the Argus eyed saleswoman saw me and that was the end. It was always hard for me to say no which is the cause of my tottering footsteps now, but at any rate, when she insisted, I sat down and tried it on.

◇ ◇ ◇

It was extremely becoming and the price was only $2.99 or something like that—anyway it cut off a few cents and sounded like a bargain. I cocked my vain head this way and that until the saleswoman ruined everything. "We had a little black model," she said, "just like that. Mrs. Blank (one of the city's wealthiest women) bought it and you have no idea how lovely it was on her."

◇ ◇ ◇

I immediately removed the hat, handed it languidly and indifferently to her and said," I do not like that long line in the back." I did have an idea how it looked on the lady who bought it—but the recommendation given me was too much.

◇ ◇ ◇

The girl who waited on me had no idea what my name was. But that sales method of telling of some rich person who own an article similar to one you admire—and of saying knowingly, "Why that is the latest thing in New York right now," is a flat failure with one stubborn woman.

◇ ◇ ◇

The first is an indication that you wish to pattern after the wealthy and the second most often comes from some person who never saw New York. They are both bad business and merchants should know it.

◇ ◇ ◇

The mixture of goods in different establishments gave me a terrible nightmare the other night. And it was a nightmare not far from truth.

◇ ◇ ◇

I dreamed I went to a beauty parlor and found the operators busy selling lunches. When I entered a drug store, the shelves were almost empty of drugs but they were doing a rushing restaurant business.

◇ ◇ ◇

I could not find the hardware in a hardware store for the fruits and groceries and the soda fountain there was the busiest place.

◇ ◇ ◇

And at last, tired and hungry, when I sought a cafe for a quick lunch, it had been turned into a reading room.

◇ ◇ ◇

In the sciences, this is a day of specialists. Take a modern clinic; no foot man is going to trespass on the nose man's work and if your physician happens to be a baby specialist, he will not care to take care of your tummy ache. Take it to the specialist.

◇ ◇ ◇

In the mercantile business, it seems to have come to a time when specializing is a lost art. It may be good for the customers, but it's rather hard on some of the merchants.

Our Children

FAMILY DISCUSSION

The holidays were rapidly becoming a memory. In the morning John must start for college so the family had a sort of a small reunion. Aunt Caroline and Uncle August had come in for dinner and Grandpa Purdy had just dropped in for a minute to say goodbye. Father was inquiring which piece they liked best when Aunt Caroline upset the apple cart by asking,

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

"What are you going to do with the check Granny gave you for Christmas, John?"

John skilfully speared an olive from his sister's plate and said, "O, I don't know. Guess I'll buy me a fur coat with it."

"What?" The chorus was complete save for mother's voice. She gave John a startled look but said nothing and John kept his eyes on the olives.

"Well, I don't believe your Granny would have given you a check like that if she'd known that you were as extravagant as that with money. Don't you think—" but sister June cut in.

"A fur coat. Think you're Astor's billy-goat, don't you? Think maybe Priss'll like you better in a fur coat, don't you? Take it from me—"

Just what he was going to get from June shall never be known for Grandpa Purdy could contain his wrath no longer, not even for politeness and thundered forth, "Young man, when I was your age we didn't buy fur coats with money that was hard earned. Especially when some one else earned it. We had a sense of responsibility about spending money. Such recklessness as yours will land you into serious trouble or I miss my guess."

Father felt called upon to say something. "Seems to me you might find better use for your money than that, son."

"Oh, I need an overcoat, Dad, and I rather fancy myself in a black fur. I'll cut some figure on the campus this year."

"Undoubtedly you will," said Aunt Caroline fiercely. "But if you'll take a fool's advice you'll attend a little more to your studies and a little less to your social affairs and you'll do better. When all are sacrificing themselves for you the least you can do is to appreciate it."

"Your sacrifice is appreciated, Aunt Caroline. I'll assure you—"

"John, pass your plate and I'll give you more potato," said mother looking squarely at John in a way he understood. John passed his plate and Uncle Augustus took advantage of the lull to say, "Seems to me your grandmother ought to have better use for her money than to waste it on a kid who doesn't know what to do with it."

"'Twould seem so, wouldn't it?" said John cheerfully.

Mother kicked him under cover of the table and he subsided. The grumbling became general and soon the meal was over. On the way to his room John whispered to his mother, "Don't you worry, Mom. I just wanted to get their goats. They make me sick. The check is in your little bureau drawer. Take care of it for me and when I come home next week-end we'll shop for an overcoat."

You see the family dinner table is the last place for a discussion of any sort. Good manners demand that all the conversation shall be impersonal. It is much better so.

Donley Banks Show Good Conditions

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, Jan. 10.—While many of the citizens of Donley county have bemoaned the hard times for over two years their feelings were allevisted this week with a review of the situation as indicated by the bank statements of the county at the call of Dec. 31. While the deposits are not as high as customary the other departments are very much better and offset the little difference in the deposit columns.

In the loans and discounts columns of the three Clarendon banks there shows a total of $624,483.45. This is especially gratifying and shows that in spite of the country's condition the local people have been able to pay off nearly $140,000 indebtedness since the October call. The Hedley bank shows a total of $124,973.69 which brings the county total to $749,457.14. One year ago the total was approximately $937,862.

In the deposits column the three local banks have $737,763.56. In October the amount was $741,279.29. The Hedley bank reports $80,063.10 to boost the total to the $817,189.54.

An substantial increase is found in the cash column of the local banking houses who have reported a total of $283,260.97. Last October found the cash item boasting $175,217.04, $23,127.93 from the Hedley institution raised the county total to $306,388.90.

Pattern 2189

Step-by-step instruction diagrams given with this pattern.

By ANNE ADAMS

The wardrobe of the smart junior is hardly complete without a tailored frock of this type suitable for sheer wool, cotton or silk. The bodice lines simulate a bolero fashionably collared in contrasting fabric and color. The skirt boasts two inverted pleats that are at once graceful and animated. There are cuffs if short sleeves are made.

Pattern 2189 is obtainable only in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16. Size 10 requires 2¼ yards of 36-inch fabric, ⅝ yard contrasting. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Panhandle Oil Income for Year Is $20,000,000, Showing Big Slump

AMARILLO, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—The Panhandle's income from petroleum products in 1931 was $20,000,000, compared with $60,000,000 in the previous year.

Although the income was only one-third that of 1930, production was almost two-thirds of the 1930 total. Oil production dropped from 32,000,000 barrels to 19,700,000. Gasoline production was 252,000,000 gallons compared with 315,000,000 in 1930, and carbon black production dropped from 90,000 tons to 60,000.

The year was marked by curtailed production, lack of new development and the lowest prices known to the industry. Crude sold as low as 16 cents in Hutchinson county and 32 cents in Gray county. Carbon black dropped from 5 cents to 3 cents a pound.

Despite the cut in carbon black production, it was estimated that the Panhandle's 23 plants produced 56 per cent of the world's total for the year.

Gray county led the field in the production of both crude and gasoline, with 13,931,000 barrels of oil and 3,185,000 barrels of gasoline. Hutchinson county was second and Carson third.

Records show 160 completions for the year, 89 for oil and 71 for gas. The total new production for the year was 33,820 barrels of oil daily, and a daily volume of 1,802,700,000 cubic feet of gas. Drilling was confined to such wells as were necessary to hold contracts, or to offset the production of others.

The close of the year found 28 wells in various stages of completion and 18 that had been shut down.

The new Panhandle allowable is 55,000 barrels daily, or about half the potential production. The average recently has been about 50,000 barrels while larger companies are making up for overproduction while potentials were being taken.

South African fields yielded their first gold in 1885.

BUSINESS EYES BUDGET WORK

Government Financial Balance Awaited

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (US)—There is much that is heartening in the developments thus far in the new year. Not that anything concretely constructive has actually taken place.

Rather, that there is no longer any tendency in most quarters to hide essential facts of all overpowering factors in the depression.

There is growing realization that facing the facts hold out the most assured means of overcoming whatever obstacles yet remain in the path of revival.

Surely, there is no reason for doubting the almost unanimous desire to get unsavory facts of all situations, in whatever category they may fall.

Thus, foremost among recent developments is the emphatic intention, judging by public declarations, to balance the national budget. Perhaps no greater contribution to economic stability could be conceived than a return to indisputable sanity and stability in the United States government expenditures and income.

A balanced budget will naturally lead to returning confidence in the essential attraction, the incomparable safety of the nation's obligations.

With United States bonds and, simultaneously of course, the American dollar, accepted as the measuring rod of investments and of the economic world at large, there will be presented to the situation a forceful leadership which to date in the slump has been lacking. Factual evidence that the American government has achieved stability in its financial affairs will proclaim to the world that a new era has dawned.

For, with this precedent, it is but logical to assume that the entire municipal financial problem so distressing to those who have recognized actualities for years, will likewise be forced into necessary re-alignment.

The New York City financial situation has been brought to a head suddenly and while immeasurably better than most other municipal conditions, the leading city's experiences are a warning of what the entire nation must inevitably pass through, if a sane and safe basis is to be reestablished for returning prosperity.

There is great potential encouragement in the public assimilation of actualities, rather than the fear-inspiring gossip which prevailed throughout 1931. No longer are the facts to be feared; they are to be welcomed as starting points of necessary correction.

The year-end and early 1932 has passed without any of the calamitous events so widely prognosticated either here or abroad. Bank statements were read, analyzed and denoted universal disposition to accept the deflation and get back to solid footing on actual price levels.

Events abroad are moving swiftly and a "showdown" or crisis is now widely anticipated. Yet, strange to say, the fear which had dominated such expectations heretofore has been greatly lessened. In some quarters a final clearing-up of all the vast and involved problems involving the United States in European affairs is virtually demanded as an essential commencement-point for genuine and lasting recovery here.

It is too early, of course, to measure the consequences of possible happenings abroad, yet there is growing disposition to give greater weight to our own internal situation regardless of external developments.

In the markets, there are two dominant elements at work influencing more favorable sentiment:

1. Recognition that many bonds, chiefly among the speculative grades, had been swept by panic down to fantastic low levels; a great deal of speculative buying of such issues has been taking place;

2. The stock market has been reflecting attempts to anticipate inflationary tendencies. Greatest part of buying in stocks of late has been for strictly speculative or professional account hoping to "catch the turn."

In a few instances, demand has been for account of interests primarily concerned with the long-term swing. Yet to date the buying of speculative bonds has been more impressive than demand for stocks.

Electra Constable Seeks Re-Election

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 10.—Constable O. E. Whisnand has already thrown his hat "way out into the middle of the ring" to use his own expression, and is asking to be re-elected to the constable's office of precinct 4. Whisnand, a veteran peace officer, came to Electra in 1926 and served on the police force a year. Following that, he was appointed constable to fill the vacancy when the constable resigned. He served more than a year of that term and was then elected constable in the election. He has also been an officer in Oklahoma and in Dallas county.

How Do Women in the Movies Manage?

Filming a picture means weeks of work without a pause. The star can't stop because she is "indisposed!" Monthly sickness does not excuse her. If you know some woman who is in pictures, she will tell you how Hollywood women manage on days they menstruate. Try to find even an "extra" girl who doesn't carry Midol with her!

Midol was a marvelous discovery. It isn't harmful. It isn't a narcotic. But it acts in seven minutes—ends all menstrual pain or discomfort for hours at a stretch! Just ask for Midol at any drug store.

WHEN?

Marriage Ceremony Is Started in 1931 but Ends in 1932

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—It will be hard to determine in after years the exact date of the wedding of Miss Margaret Ragland, Electra, and Wiley Culbertson, Wichita Falls. The ceremony was begun two minutes before midnight Dec. 31 at Walters, Okla. The vows were completed after the bells had begun to ring in the new year.

Tipton Jobless to Give Road Work for Food

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 10.—Tipton's destitute will be given aid with the remainder of the street fund, councilmen decided Wednesday.

The money will be paid out to heads of families at the rate of $1 per day, for work in improving the streets. As there is only a meager sum, only those unable to obtain work of any other kind, and who are wholly without support, need apply for work. Preference will be shown men who have been in Tipton 60 days or longer, and who showed a willingness during the cotton season to pick and help themselves.

Pulchritude Show Planned at Laredo

LAREDO, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—An international pageant of pulchritude, with bewitching senoritas from various cities and towns of Mexico and beautiful young women from many cities and towns of Texas participating, is planned as the climaxing feature of the 1932 Washington birthday celebration in Laredo.

This bathing beauty pageant, sponsored by the Washington Birthday Celebration association, will be one of several features.

It is planned to bring winsome senoritas here from Nuevo Laredo, Sabinas Hidalgo, Lampazos, Linares, Bustamante, Rodriguez, Monterrey, Tampico, Saltillo and possibly a representative from the City of Mexico. From Texas are expected representatives from Catarina, Asherton, Carrizo Springs, Crystal City, Encinal, Cotulla, Pearsall, Dilley, Moore, Devine, Fowlerton and other places between Laredo and Austin, as well as representatives from all points between Laredo and Houston to the northeast, Laredo and Corpus Christ from the east and Laredo and Brownsville from the southeast.

The bathing beauty revue will be held in Liberty park under floodlights that now illuminate that place for football and basket ball at night.

SORE THROAT

There's a world of winter comfort in Bayer Aspirin tablets. If you take them only to break-up colds, you know only half the story. Three tablets crushed in a little water will relieve the sorest throat with one good gargle. That's what the specialists use in cases of sore throat. That's what you ought to use at home—every time you want throat comfort and protection from infection. Remember, every case of tonsilitis began with just a sore throat! Don't neglect any sore throat. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first tickling felt. Take a couple of tablets for that headache that comes with a cold—for neuralgia, neuritis, or similar pain. If it's genuine Bayer, it can't hurt the heart.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick entered a prompt disclaimer of personal feeling when her paper, the Register-Republic, gloomily questioned the wisdom of renominating President Hoover.

That being the case, her own crushing defeat in the 1930 senate race presumably had only an incidental connection with the editorial argument.

Still there would seem to be some connection. Recent elections were cited as evidencing a degree of unenthusiastic support for Mr. Hoover. And Mrs. McCormick said the editorials represented her views.

Fateful Anniversary

This particular editorial also pointed out that the G. O. P. Chicago convention in June would meet at the scene of and virtually on the 20th anniversary of that stormy 1912 session which heralded an eight-year loss of the presidency to the party.

The obvious inference was that the 1932 convention might be about to repeat, due to following of party precedent in renominating one term presidents.

But there was more at stake for Republican regulars in the 1912 convention than the mere question of holding the presidency.

There can be little doubt that had Theodore Roosevelt not been "steam-rollered" out of that nomination the party would have triumphed that year and the Wilson era never would have been.

In sticking to Taft for renomination in the face of a certain progressive bolt, G. O. P. leaders could have had no uncertainty about how disastrous the election itself was going to prove for them.

Now, what was it they sought to preserve in 1912 even at the cost of being cast completely out of power in Washington? What was it that made Elihu Root, a former member of Roosevelt's cabinet, willing to pilot the steam roller that flattened Roosevelt hopes?

No one who watched that struggle intimately or who has read of it could doubt party regularity itself was the stake that such men as Root deemed of far greater importance than even immediate victory at the polls. They were unwilling to turn party mechanisms over to the progressive wing, preferring defeat.

A Comeback

What might have happened had they determined otherwise is just a matter of speculation. What did happen is fact. Four years later that preserved party machine all but put Hughes in the White House. In eight years it had swept the Democrats out of Washintgon.

That 1912 question is not up again for the G. O. P. convention of 1932. There is no Theodore Roosevelt to vitalize the Republican left wing movement as then. Yet the party psychology of 1912 may have dictated the 1932, "I-do-not-choose" declaration of Calvin Coolidge, who well may be the "best man" for the nomination the editorial writer had in mind.

Tipton Lions Will Held Father and Son Banquet

Special to The Record News.

—FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 10.—A father and son banquet will be held by the Tipton Lions club Jan. 19, in the dining hall of the First Baptist church of Tipton.

The affair is community-wide, every man in Tipton and the surrounding country being invited to attend, with his sons, or other lads who may need his help and advice. The banquet is sponsored by the club with the idea of developing in the boys a sense of the respect in which their fathers hold them.

Poultry Show Opens At White Deer Jan. 14

WHITE DEER, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—White Deer's third annual Poultry and Livestock show, sponsored by the Future Farmers' association, will be held Jan. 14, 15 and 16. Six stock judging teams will compete for the loving cup.

1. OIL—Place the Wichita Falls district on a parity with other centers in the marketing of both crude oil and refined products.
2. THE VALLEY—Systematic, vigorous development of the irrigated valley in keeping with its possibilities as Wichita Falls' greatest physical asset.
3. WATER—An ample, assured supply of soft water.
4. EDUCATION—Maintenance of a junior college in Wichita Falls to give opportunity for higher education to our youth—the highest standards in elementary schools.
5. THE LAKES—Full development of the recreational opportunities offered by the three lakes.
6. HIGHWAYS—Early consummation of a highway program covering all the main routes radiating from this city and all the local roads that serve its agricultural community.
7. DRAINAGE—Solution of the drainage problem in all three phases; first, in the irrigated valley; second, with regard to Holliday creek; third, in those portions of the city now inadequately drained.
8. GOVERNMENTAL ECONOMY—The adoption of such means as may be found most feasible to reduce the cost of local government by elimination of unnecessary offices and consolidation of others.

"Jake the Barber" is being extradited to England to face a swindling charge. He could hardly expect to get away with that in these days when England wouldn't even give Gandhi freedom.

Square-Rigger Appeal

ONE of the oddest developments of the winter is the discovery that there are hundreds of boys in the United States and Canada who would give almost anything to be able to go to sea before the mast on a square-rigged sailing vessel.

There are still several square-riggers operating in the grain trade between Australia and England. A. J. Villiers, who owns one of them, has been trying to promote a race among these ships, and would like to get an American ship to take part also.

So far, however, he has had to spend about 75 per cent of his time answering letters from young men who would like to go along as seamen. From all parts of North America they have written to him, begging that they be signed on.

Some offer to pay for the privilege. College graduates have offered to sign on as cooks. Girls have threatened to become stowaways on the ships. All in all, it is obvious that the windjammer has an appeal which the steamship cannot possibly rival.

Now all of this is a bit puzzling, for there is no question that the steady disappearance of the sailing vessel has made life a whole lot easier for the sailors. The sailing ships were beautiful to look at, but life aboard was very often complete hell. The work was hard and the food was poor, dangers were many and living accommodations were, frequently, atrocious.

Discipline ranged all the way from merely strict to downright brutal. Read any of the books written by the sailor-writers, from Dana down through Conrad to Bone and Reisenberg, and you get a picture of a life that was almost unbelievably hard.

Now, after many centuries, that life has been largely relieved of its terrors. Steamship Jack is better paid, better housed, better fed and more decently treated than his predecessors ever were.

But the young men fall over themselves to get a taste of the hard old life and calmly ignore the pleasanter life of the steam-driven merchant marine!

The human race, evidently, does not mind hardship, danger and pain nearly as much as it likes to pretend.

India's Rebellion

IT IS quite evident that the British are approaching a final showdown in India. Gandhi lies in jail, and exceedingly strict repressive measures have been put into force by the English government. New troops are on the way, and the All-Indian National congress and its affiliates have been outlawed.

Apparently, the British have embarked on a kill or cure program. Either they will thoroughly stamp out the fitfully burning independence movement, or they will lose out entirely and Mr. Gandhi's aims will be realized. After years of talk, decisive and violent action is about to begin.

The whole civilized world will await the outcome with keen interest. On the surface, the odds are overwhelmingly in favor of the British. But Gandhi wields a power that cannot accurately be measured in advance. If his foes make the mistake of underestimating it they will have ample reason to regret it.

Bryan's Ghost Stalks

THE ghost of William Jennings Bryan must have stalked restlessly through whatever part of the Elysian Fields are reserved for master politicians when Senator Wheeler arose the other day to propose the coinage of silver on a 16 to 1 ratio.

What memories that proposal stirs! The fiery campaign of 1896, when conservative businessmen quaked in their shoes at the thought of the "boy orator" from the Platte country; Mark Hanna and the first of the great campaign funds; Bryan's amazing "swing around the circle," with cheering crowds and torchlight processions under the prairie moon; William McKinley introducing the nation to the "front porch" campaign; a nation's discontent massing itself behind a man with a golden voice and a radical panacea—was there ever a campaign like it?

The coming campaign will hardly swing on the free silver issue. But the revival of the issues at least arouses long dormant memories.

Wheat As Federal Aid

THERE is a lot of sound good sense in the senate's plan to put 40,000,000 bushels of farm board wheat at the disposal of relief agencies to feed the unemployed.

The government spent good money for this wheat—more money, beyond question, than it would ever be able to get out of it; and so far the presence of all of this wheat in government bins has been more of a curse than a blessing. Meanwhile, there are millions of men who are not going to eat unless someone gives them their food. To give them government wheat is nothing more than ordinary common sense.

Of course, this means that the unemployed will, in a sense, be getting federal aid, which—as practically everybody agrees—is a frightful thing. But it's not quite the same as a direct congressional grant of money, and those 40,000,000 bushels of wheat ought to make a lot of bread. All in all, the plan looks like a very good one.

EXPLANATION OF SATURDAY'S CARTOON

The Tarahumare Mail Carriers—The Tarahumare Indians of Mexico are credited with producing the world's swiftest runners. They derive their very name from a word signifying "footracing" in their own language. About the third quarter of the last century their runners maintained a regular courier service between the city of Chihuahua and the mining town of Batopilas, 275 miles away. The courier, running unceasingly day and night, would cover the distance and return in six days. After a day's rest the performance was regularly repeated. This service was maintained for many years. The courier's route lay over the Sierra Madre mountains, making this running feat even more extraordinary.

Albert Tangora—On a number of occasions Albert Tangora, former world's typewriting champion, has achieved the incredible accomplishment of typing at the rate of 160 words a minute (unfamiliar matter) and adding a column of figures 5 wide and 6 deep, simultaneously. In giving demonstrations Mr. Tangora calls off a total after each number is given, in order to prove conclusively that there is no trick to it.

Mr. Tangora is now in the Chicago offices of the Underwood Typewriter company.

CHAPTER LV

A man, said the district attorney, a man who intends to claim the unwritten law in his defense, must shoot under blinding provocation; he must prove menace, dishonor, and a cause for his motive beyond all question. This he conceived to be a cold-blooded and deliberate killing by a man who had long defied the law and who would not hesitate to use violent measures to satisfy a causeless jealousy.

The district attorney naturally knew nothing of that shadow on the blind and of those two steamer tickets. But he suspected something of the kind, and he waited for Ace Wilfong to speak, for Jan Wilfong to speak. And Ace's gang waited.

But Ace sat tight and refused a word.

"I know what he's driving at," said Booze Jacobs one afternoon. "I know damn well, and so do you if you've got any sense."

Bill Wilfong looked at him silently. Bill had lost weight these days.

"Yeh?"

"Well, what's it all about then?" said Red Sullivan. "There he sits and laughs at us, or just gets white and clams up. I says to him this morning, I says, 'Ace, kidding aside, it's time you picked out a lawyer' and he says, 'Well, Red, I'm sort of waiting to hear from a guy I used to know.'"

"I shouldn't be surprised" said Booze, "if he didn't get any lawyer. That is—he's not going to try to get off." They stared at him, waiting an explanation of this amazing idea. "Because why? Because to do it, what's he got to do? He's got to blacken his wife."

"You been reading novels again," said Jerry Kress briefly.

Booze's hand shook around his glass, but his eyes were still the eyes of the best dealer of stud, blackjack, and faro in San Francisco, and it takes a good man to be that. "Maybe so," said Booze, "but I'm telling you. You'll do well to pay attention to me. Ace has made up his mind. Else why is he keeping his trap shut so tight? He'll hang before he lets her say he killed her lover."

Bill Wilfong swore softly and deeply. "The poor blazing fool," he said. "No woman is worth that. He only did what any guy would have done."

"All right, all right." Booze's teeth chattered in the swift stream of his words. "All right, all right. You know. But you ought to know Ace by now. Has he ever done just like the rest of us? Are any of the rest of us square—like he is?" He cackled with revealing laughter. "You know damn well we aren't. Any of us have the ideals he's always had about shooting straight and giving everybody a fair chance? Last night I was dealing he come over and shoved a handful of nickles and dimes back on a fellow. Any of the rest of us that could have married that girl in the first place but Ace?"

He looked about on them and his eyes never missed a bet. "No. I don't believe in a man marrying out of his class. No. I say let us gamblers stick to our own kind of twists. But—Ace didn't. And now I tell you he's going to keep her out of this just like anything."

They had never spoken thus openly of the thing before and their eyes were batting and blinking as the eyes of a cat will in a sudden light.

"Let her stand up and take her licking like a man," said Bill Wilfong bitterly.

"She would," said Booze over his whisky, "she would. She's all right."

Bill Wilfong went to the telephone and called Gwennie. It was characteristic that they would sit silent, motionless, until she arrived from the house on Pacific avenue.

"That's it," she said bleakly, when Bill had explained to her this fantastic idea of chivalry upon which Ace was perhaps bent. "I had figured that out the same way lately."

"But—she musn't let him! Would she let him hang? She wouldn't let him hang!" said Red Sullivan, wildly. "Can't she say something, anyway?"

"We'll make her when the time comes," said Gwennie. Then she added, "Oh, she's willing enough! She don't talk to me. Don't talk to anybody. Just sits at the window all the time like she was watching for somebody. But I know he made her promise to keep quiet until he told her to talk. Said it was all she could do for him. So, she's doing it."

"I'm going down now and see Ace," said Bill Wilfong.

It was almost dark when he got back.

"He says," said Bill to the silent, motionless circle, "he says he won't plead the unwritten law if he hangs twenty times. 'A man can't die but once, Bill,' he says to me, grinning, 'and though I'm not anxious to hang, there are worse things. You boys sit tight, will you?'"

There was a long silence.

"Well, will we?" said Booze Jacobs.

"I don't know yet," said Jerry Kress, who in Ace's absence was more or less the head of the gang.

From the windows of Ace's room, where she had taken to sitting a good deal these days, Jan had watched Gwennie go. She did not know where Gwennie was going, but she did not particularly care. She liked being alone. There were many things of which she must think, whether she liked them or not. The silence of the empty house—for who could hear Wong and his Chinese boys below stairs?—gave her room to follow them through, to work them out unhampered by confusion and contact. Jan was amazed in those days to find how contact with people had influenced her life, she who had always thought herself so free of them. Hes life had been like a railroad station with hundreds of steel rails going out of it. And the contacts with people were like the switches that shunted her thoughts, her feeling, her actions this way and that.

Now it was quiet. And if one must always, in the end, walk hand in hand with shame, it is better to do it alone.

Mostly, she thought of Ace and of his love for her. She was learning to carry that thought like a cross. His voice was in her ears. Only since she had heard that gentle, expressionless drawl of his day after day in the jail, uttering this and that and saying so little, had she come to realize the quality of the love-voice he kept for her.

Wong came in, slipped in on noiseless feet like a shadow, and put down a tray on the table beside her. He poured a cup of the fragrant, steaming tea and went out, without making a ripple.

Jan did not drink the tea but lighted a cigaret as company for her sadness. She must be sad now. For at the jail she was never sad any more. "They will be calling me the good angel of the jail the first thing I know," said Mrs. Wilfong to old man Mullaly, which was an ancient joke between them about a woman by that title who had turned out to be something quite different. She had carried morphine into the jail in little packages when she came with her small organ to sing. Mrs. Wilfong did not sing, but she was always gay. She wore such bright colors, and she carried such baskets of fruit, and such stacks of magazines, and she was so—natural.

Jan did not drink the tea but lighted a cigaret as company for her sadness.

Q.—How does Goethe rank as a lyric poet?—I. B.

A.—John George Robertson, professor of German language and literature of the University of London, says that "as a lyric poet, Goethe's supremacy is least likely to be challenged; he has given his nation, whose highest literary expression has in all ages been essentially lyric, its greatest songs. No other German poet has succeeded in attuning feeling, sentiment and thought so perfectly to the music of words as he; none has expressed so fully that subtle spirituality in which the strength of German lyrism lies."

Q.—Do the people of the United States speak the English that was in use in England in the time of King George III?—F. McC.

A.—Modern English differs considerably from the English of the 18th century. Further, there is a difference in the language as spoken in the United States and in England. There is a difference in the pronunciation of certain words and even in the significance of certain terms. There are a number of words and phrases peculiar to this country that have been coined at various periods and are known as Americanisms.

Q.—What churches besides St. Paul's in London are the design of Sir Christopher Wren?—J. K.

A.—After the great fire of London, Wren was employed to make designs for rebuilding 50 of the churches which were burnt, but difficulties arising from various ownerships of the ground prevented the accomplishment of this scheme. Among the city churches actually built by Wren are St. Michael's, Cornhill; St. Bride's on Fleet street; and St. Mary-le-Bow, Cheapside, the last remarkable for the beauty and grace of its spire. Also St. Stephen's at Walbrook a plain exterior but a very elaborate and beautifully designed interior.

The Heart Does Not Wear Out

"A good heart is worth gold," said Shakespeare. Certainly the value of a physically strong heart, faithfully beating away every minute of the day and night from the moment of birth until death, is truly inestimable.

The normal rate of the heart beat is 72 times a minute. Figure it up for yourself and you will see that in 24 hours your heart beats more than one hundred thousand times! It is said that in an ordinary minute the heart will pump five quarts of blood. The heart is among the strongest parts of the human body and is well able to continue for a lifetime, if not broken down through neglect or abuse.

The heart has an extraordinary reserve power. You are using only about one-tenth of your heart-power when quietly sitting. Thus the heart has a reserve power of about ten times what it is called upon to do. When violently exercising, for instance when running down a mountain with a bear after you, the heart beats much faster and harder. Another astonishing feature of the heart is the fact that it is able to beat constantly all through life. It is able to do this because in between each beat the heart muscle gains a small moment of rest. The heart cannot wear out during your lifetime, but it can be injured irreparably by subtle chronic poisons.

Heart trouble usually creeps up slowly and many patients are totally unaware that they have it until examined. The main symptoms of heart trouble are weakness, shortness of breath, and poor circulation, and these are often attributed to a general weakness rather than to heart disease. It is tragically true that many of those having heart trouble do not know it, and also true that many of those who think they have heart trouble do not have it at all, but are suffering from indigestion, gas, nervousness and other conditions which produce identical symptoms. The best plan is to have a careful diagnosis made as in this way you will be sure of the exact condition of your heart.

There are several causes of heart trouble; the most important one by far being improper habits of living. Underexercised people suffer from lack of tone in all the muscles of the body, including the heart muscle, and lack of exercise, overeating, poor combinations of food, too much tobacco, not enough sleep, emotional strain, and other poor habits of living are very productive of heart trouble. Heart trouble is also common after rheumatism in children and young people, after influenza, after acute infectious diseases, and in conditions where there are pus pockets in the body producing septic poisons which irritate and inflame the heart.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tied Tongue Operation Not Serious

Question—Miss T. writes: "My tongue is tied all the way to the end. I am 19 years old. Any one would not notice that if affects my speech, but I think I could talk more fluently if my tongue were clipped. Besides, I think it gives a person a complex if she knows her tongue is tied. Is there any danger in having this corrected?"

Answer—The operation to correct a tongue-tied condition is not very serious and you should get a surgeon to examine you and advise you whether or not it should be corrected. After the tongue is released from the adhesions, you may have a little difficulty temporarily in getting accustomed to the new freedom of the tongue; however, this may be quickly overcome and I believe you will feel better for having it done.

Horseradish

Question—I. O. asks: "Do you think horseradish is harmful to the system and how do you class radishes, and are their tops good as greens?"

Answer—Condiments should be avoided as much as possible, but a small amount of horseradish is allowable with a meat meal. I do not recommend radishes except in very limited quantities. The tops should be used only in small amounts with mixtures of spinach or chard.

Spots Before Eyes

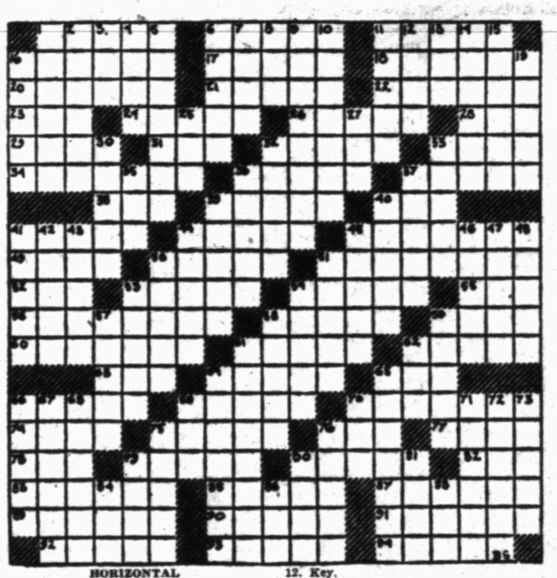

Question—Mr. Dan P. writes: "I have been troubled with floating spots before my eyes for about three years. I have had both kidney and blood tests made and both were negative. Please tell me what might cause this."

Answer—The floating specks before your eyes may be caused by a number of things. This symptom often accompanies biliousness, constipation, or eye strain, as well as kidney trouble. I would suggest that you have a complete physical examination in order that the doctor may discover what is causing the symptoms.

Decatur Officials Start Fire Prevention Drive

DECATUR, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—A fire prevention campaign has been inaugurated in Decatur by the mayor and the chamber of commerce. Fire losses during 1931 were greater than they have been for years, resulting in Decatur's receiving a 15 per cent bad fire record charge.

MUSTANGS DIVE INTO CONFERENCE WARFARE THIS WEEK-END

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

The Road Back

The Rambler's vacation time
Has met its cruel fate.
The Rambler now must get to work,
The Ambler gets the gate.

Somehow, someway I cannot seem
To get the new year started.
I hit the wrong typewriter keys,
My technic has departed.

I get the copy all balled up
I cannot plan the page,
I'm out of touch with everything
And dern near in a rage.

And thus it is with me each year:
I note with melancholy
At each vacation's close I need
Another one, by golly.

And thus, customers, you see that the old Rambler is, indeed an honest bloke. How often do we hear the business man proclaim his joyous pep after two or three weeks of loafing, and how often is he telling the truth?

My experience has been that loafing leads one to really appreciate the languorous joys of that art to such an extent that one ardently desires to loaf the rest of his life.

Nor will I return to the Northwest Texas scene with assertions that during my vacation I kept up with every sporting event that transpired; for such, I assure you, was decidedly not the case. In fact, upon arising each morn the first act in the day's lazy drama was the casual burning of the unread morning newspaper. Four days after the game I learned from a friend that Abilene had defeated somebody or another for the state high school football championship, but that wasn't a surprise at all for we had doped Abilene to beat somebody or another.

Unfortunately, I was forced to listen to the result of the Tulane-Southern California game as somebody about six blocks away had his radio going. But at that distance it wasn't so bad.

Such, friends, is the way vacation time should be whiled away. In the past I did not follow my own teachings due, presumably, to my unrestrained youth; but now, as my hair turns white and my age is unmentionable, I have found the secret. However, there is a "catch" in everything. The old man now must learn the secret of getting back on the job after such an easy existence. The Rambler assures his customers that he will try to learn that secret at least before the next vacation period, and that he will dive into work immediately and round up some dope on the current athletic situation.

The Stainless Longhorns

Down Austin way there is a feeling of great virtue in the matter of the University of Texas football team. The school points with pride to the fact that there is no recruiting, no subsidizing, no scouts to patrol the state seeking football material.

Well, without rationalization in life there would be little hope. Perhaps the University of Texas gets the satisfaction in pointing to this state of affairs that it does not get when it points to the team's record of last season.

Convinced of the school's purity in the matter of athletic methods, officials of the university, we gathered, have surveyed other schools in the Southwest conference with alarm. One high authority told me a sad state of affairs exists at Texas A. & M., at T. C. U., and at S. M. U. These schools, the authority said, have virtually opened bureaus for the hiring of athletes for the football season of 1932.

About the only thing unusual we could see in such charges was that they were made so early in the year. Generally the big universities wait until September before beginning verbal warfare on the other conference members.

Walter Winchell Stuff

We cannot help but tell the story of this little co-ed. She entered the university at Austin and then sought work as a means of living. The only job she could find was in a large girl's dormitory, as a waitress. She took it.

She was honor student in school. The girls at the table at which she presided more than respected her. They grew to love her.

One day she told her friends her mother and father were coming the next day to visit her. When mater and pater arrived, one of the girls at the table, a girl of a rich family, took over the waitresses' job, gave the waitress the seat at the head of the table, and mother and father were not in the least embarrassed during their stay.

Them Was the Days

The football players of other decades claim that it is easier these days for an aspirant to win his letter on the gridiron than it was when they were in school. Whatever the true answer, it took Frank Loftus of Dallas four years to win this honor at the University of Texas, and now his letter means much to him mainly because he had to work so hard for it.

Loftus, now a prominent attorney in Dallas, was quarterback on the undefeated Longhorn team of 1914. He received his letter that year, his fourth on the varsity.

Loftus said in that age, when the huddle system was unknown, quarterbacks used their orbs more than numbers in denoting which backfielder was to lug the ball. And he tells of a time when it was fourth down, two to go. Instead of calling an intricate system of numbers, he merely gave the right halfback a sour look as the team lined up. The right half knew the sour look meant he was to lug the mail. The signals were reeled off as a matter of form, and the ball was snapped on the snap number.

From Tennessee

Ross Edgemon, organizer of the church and Sunday school leagues here last year, writes from Chattanooga, Tenn., wishing his cage mates of this city a happy new year. Edgemon is connected with a Chattanooga independent basket ball team which he claims is the best in the South. Just how he is connected with it he does not say. But from his glowing words we judge he is either a player on the team, or is coaching it.

"I can think of only one team in the world today that can lick us," writes Edgemon, "and that is the world champion 'Celtics' and we play them here in Chattanooga next Wednesday night, Jan. 13. A record crowd is expected. The auditorium holds something like 10,000 people, and we will give them a good game. The team is backed by Joe Engle, who owns the Chattanooga baseball team.

"I am very proud to read in The Record News, which I now take, that your city has a church and Sunday school basket ball league started and with this letter comes my best wishes for their success."

The Crawford county, Ohio, village of New Washington, has 30 hatcheries which produce 10,000,000 chicks annually.

TEAM PLAYS TEXAS FRIDAY

Rice and Texas Christian Play Saturday

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Having unwrapped a couple of surprise packages in Baylor's 32 to 24 victory over the Texas Christian and Texas' 27 to 25 decision over Arkansas, the Southwest conference basket ball race will receive another contender this week when the Southern Methodist quintet goes into action.

Southern Methodist remained idle last week while Baylor made critics blush and Texas Christian appear as just another basket ball team by taking a crucial game from the 1931 champions. Friday night at Austin, the Mustangs who were runners-up last year, will take on Texas. Saturday night at Fort Worth, Rice and Texas Christian will battle.

Bears Prove Contenders

While fandom is waiting for this week's two games, the topic of basket ball gossip will be Baylor's impressive victory, and Texas' comeback to beat Arkansas after losing the first game Friday night.

Touted as a substantial contender for the 1932 crown, Baylor looped the net for an early lead against Texas Christian and held it to finish the first half, 15 to 13. Close guarding with Baylor gaining an edge and fast passing featured the game. The easy manner in which Baylor coasted in over the champions, stamped the Bears as a real ball club.

"Doc" Sumner, Texas Christian all-conference forward, was the leading sharpshooter with five field goals and three gratis shots for 13 points. He was trailed by Alford, Baylor forward, who led his team to victory with four field goals and three free tosses for 11 points. The Frogs' inability to convert free shots cost them 11 points.

After dropping the first game to Arkansas, 24 to 21, the University of Texas Longhorns stopped the Razorbacks in the second combat by taking advantage of charity shots for a 27 to 26 victory.

Longhorns Rally

With five minutes to play, Texas flashed a bewildering passing and scoring attack that swept them to the front. At one time, Arkansas had an eight-point lead. Late in the game, Kubricht scored four charity shots to tie the score and Tullis and Rundell were awarded two more to take the lead. A stalling game in the last minute by Texas aided in the victory.

Although neither is favored to win the championship, the Rice cagers today were tied with Baylor for first place by virtue of taking a 40 to 29 game from Texas A. & M. Saturday night at Houston. While Captain Beard of Texas A. & M. inspired his mates by scoring 18 points, it was not enough to off-set the Jake Hess and Virgil Fixon combination for Rice. These two basketeers showed a great exhibition of goal shooting by looping 16 and 15 points respectively.

Conference standing:

Team—	W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	OP.
Baylor	1	0	1.000	32	24
Rice	1	0	1.000	40	29
Texas	1	1	.500	48	49
Arkansas	1	1	.500	49	48
Texas Christian	0	1	.000	24	32
Texas A. & M.	0	1	.000	29	40
Southern Methodist	0	0	.000	0	0

TWO PLAYERS TIE FOR SCORING LEAD

DALLAS, Jan. 10. (AP)—As a result of four played games in the Southwest conference basket ball race last week, Kubricht, University of Texas forward, and Beard, Texas A. & M. guard, are tied for high scoring honors with 18 points each. The leading conference scorers follow:

Player and School—	G	Fg.	Ft.	Pt.
Kubricht, Texas	2	6	6	18
Beard, Texas A. & M.	1	4	10	18
Sexton, Arkansas	2	6	5	17
Hess, Rice	1	5	6	16
Dixon, Rice	1	6	3	15
Sumner, Texas Christian	1	5	3	13
Alford, Baylor	1	4	3	11
Murphy, Arkansas	2	5	1	11
Price, Texas	2	5	1	11
Elkins, Texas	2	3	3	9
Gibson, Arkansas	2	3	3	9
Dietzel, Texas Christian	1	3	3	9

SMITH RETAINS GOLFING LEAD

Electrans Meet Valley View and Clara This Week

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 10.—The Electra High school Tigers are slated to play two teams in conference tilts this week. Wednesday night they will journey to Valley View. Friday night the Clara Greyhounds will tangle with the Tigers on the local court. Results of the games will count toward the championship of the round robin schedule. Winners of the Wichita county round robin will meet the winners of the basket ball tournament. The tournament will be held in the Electra gymnasium during the early part of February.

Prospects for Coach E. M. Tampke's charges look much brighter since the boys downed the Fairview team, 26-17, in a fast game Friday night. The victory was not nearly so important as was the great improvement shown by the Tigers over previous games of the season. The boys used team work to a greater advantage and the game contained many thrills. James Parr was easily the outstanding player, ringing up 20 of Electra's 26 scores. Parr showed much dexterity in shooting goals from various parts of the court. Foy, who recently moved here from Breckenridge, was given an opportunity to play in the second half and promises to be a valuable player. LeBus held down his old position at forward while McDannald and Cloniger, veteran guards, continued their defensive plays. Charles Lane, placed at center, filled the position well. Givens and Byrd were also used in the game.

Other Tiger candidates are Sid Smith, Bob Jackson, Raymond Curfman, Frank Brouthertin, J. N. Owens, Glenn Minton, Hall Keltz, Edward McCracken and Claude Rodawalt.

Amateur Boxers Perform Tonight

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (UP)—The metropolitan A. A. U. amateur boxing championships will be conducted in Madison Square garden Monday and Wednesday nights with one of the strongest entry lists ever gathered for the annual event.

Twenty-one winners of amateur titles are among the entrants, who will compete for the eight metropolitan titles—from flyweight to heavyweight. Three metropolitan titleholders, Louis Salica, flyweight; Mike Belloise, bantamweight, and Mark Hough, middleweight will defend their crowns.

Matador Cagers Win Two From Afton Teams

Special to The Record News

MATADOR, Texas, Jan. 10.—The Matador basket ball teams won two games from the Afton teams here Thursday night, the girls winning by a score of 19 to 1 and the boys, 38 to 13. Crowell of Matador was high point man with 20. Gates was second with 14. On Friday night the Matador girls won from Paducah, 19 to 9, and the boys won from Crosbyton, 20 to 14. In this game, Crowell was again high point man with 10. Gates following with 7. The Matador teams seem to have hit their stride and the boys are training hard for the tournament to be held here Jan. 22 and 23. More than 20 teams are expected to enter from the surrounding territory.

Hollis Wins Opener With Frederick Team

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 10.—Hollis proved too much for the Frederick High school cage team in the conference contest played at the Harmon county seat Friday night, winning over the Bearcats, 19 to 9. The line-ups:

Frederick—Fondren, Steinbock, E. Billingslea and Graham, forwards; C. Billingslea, center; Addison, Moore and Graham, guards.

Hollis—Vanderford, Warren, Warren and Barefoot, forwards; Chapman and Richardson, center; Burgett, Guest, Spradlin and Ewing, guards.

This was the first conference game of the season.

Loveland Quintet Wins Flashy Tilt

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 10.—What is said to be the best played game in the county cage conference thus far this season took place at Loveland Friday night when that team worsted Manitou High school, 34 to 32. The line-ups:

Manitou—Ball and Loutherback, forwards; Baker, center; Harper and Biggs, guards.

Loveland—Barnett and Bolton, forwards; Thompson, center; Mefford, McCann and Harris, guards.

Manitou's second team defeated the Loveland second, 18 to 12.

California Boxer Charged With Assault

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10. (US)—As the result of a street fight last night, Ace Hudkins, California state heavyweight champion, was in jail today on an assault charge and T. L. Park, a salesman, was in a serious condition at a hospital.

Hudkins said that Park and E. B. Martin, later booked for intoxication, insulted the prize fighter's companion, Ellen Dorsey. Park was semi-conscious today and has a probable skull fracture.

Recently the pugilist was granted probation after a trial on drunk driving charges filed when his automobile crashed into a parked car.

Contract for Walker Bout to Be Signed

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (UP)—Contracts for the 15-round heavyweight championship bout between Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker will be signed tomorrow, Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of Madison Square garden, announced today.

The fight will be held at Miami, Fla., Feb. 25.

NEW YORK PRO TURNS IN 68

Leader's Total for 36 Holes Is 137 Strokes

By GEORGE H. BEALE
United Press Staff Correspondent

HILLCREST COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Jan. 10.—MacDonald Smith, New York pro, kept up his par shattering golf today to take an imposing lead over the field at the end of the second round of the $7,500 Los Angeles open tournament.

With the aid of four birdies he finished his second 18 holes in 68, three under par and that, coupled with his 69 on the first round yesterday, gave him a total of 137.

His nearest competitors were Joe Kirkwood, Chicago; Dallas Jeffers, Long Beach; Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente; Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Olin Dutra, Los Angeles, all of whom will enter the final 36 holes of play tomorrow five strokes behind Smith.

They all took 142s, although Kirkwood might easily have placed second had he not faltered at the close. He needed only to play par golf the last three holes for a 67 and a total of 139, but he took one over par on each for a 70 and a total of 142.

Kirkwood had 33 going out today. The best score turned in for the tournament for the first nine holes.

Hagen had his second 71 in two days to make his 142. Diegel likewise turned in another par 71 for his 142. Dutra's 70 placed him at 142.

Other favorites were bunched closely behind those in second place. Gene Sarazen, former P. G. A. champion; Clarence Clark of Belleville, N. Y., and Ky Laffoon of Denver, were in the 143 bracket.

Next to Smith's 68, the best scores for the day's round was 70 and five men managed to reach that mark, cutting par by one. They were Dutra, Kirkwood, Grant Halstead of Fresno; Archie Hambreck of Zanesvill, Ohio, and A. G. Sato of San Francisco.

Foreign stars found the going tough today and all of them failed to get inside the 149 mark needed to qualify for the final 36-hole flight tomorrow.

Smith's 68 today was the best score of the tournament. His 69 yesterday was next best.

Just as in his first 18 hole test, Smith was driving long and straight today making all his strokes count. He never was in serious trouble and he turned in four birdies and 13 pars over the 18 holes.

Following are some of the 36-hole scores in the annual Los Angeles open tournament:

MacDonald Smith, New York, 69-68—137.
Dallas Jeffers, Los Angeles, 70-72—142.
Gene Sarazen, Newport Richey, Fla., 71-72—143.
Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, 71-72—142.
John Golden, Noroton, Conn., 73-73—146.
Emery Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., 73-73—146.
Frank Nunnally, Los Angeles, 73-73—146.
Johnny Farrell, New York, 73-73—146.
Chet Beer, Bakersfield, 73-73—146.
Mortie Dutra, Long Beach, 74-71—145.
Earl Berryhull, Tulsa, 74-81—155.
Fred Lamprecht, Los Angeles, 74-72—146.
Roland McKenzie, Washington, 76-71—147.
Frank Rodia, Seattle, 72-74—146.
Harry Cooper, Glen Ellyn, Ill., 73-73—146.
Clarence Clark, Belleville, N. Y., 70-73—143.
Walter Hagen, Detroit, 71-71—142.
Charles Daver, Los Angeles, 74-71—145.
Ky Laffoon, Miami, Okla., 70-73—143.
Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., 73-73—146.
Willie Hunter, Montebello, Calif., 73-71—144.
Tony Butler, Corpus Christi, Texas, 80-71—151.
Bill Foley, Coronado, Calif., 74-73—147.
Ben Hogan, Fort Worth, Texas, 71-73—143.
Jack Parrant, Hollywood, 73-73—146.
Abe Espinosa, Chicago, 70-74—144.
Joe Kirkwood, New York, 72-70—142.

Junior Basket Ball League Games Start

The Junior Basket Ball league of the Wichita Falls Boys' club, composed of four teams of boys 14 years of age and under, opened its schedule of 10 games Saturday evening at the Boys' club gym. Boyce McDonald, president and manager of the league, officiated at the games. In the first game the Everreadys defeated The Times, 25 to 6. Thomas with eight points, was high point man for the winners. The Dribblers won the second game, 37 to 3, Moorehead taking high honors with 17 points.

AUTO STRIPPED

Thieves who stole C. B. McDonald's car from the 900 block on Scott avenue Saturday night left it in a pasture off the Windthorst road stripped of tires, lights, battery, generator and even the engine hood. Every removable part was gone. Mr. McDonald lives in Henrietta.

Leaders of Minors Consider Plans to Help Small Loops

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 10. (AP)—Five representatives of minor baseball leagues and a "cooperator" from the majors met in executive session here this afternoon and considered plans to rehabilitate the smaller leagues.

An hour of the session, first of a series to be held in various sections of the country, was devoted to working out a plan for cooperative buying of baseball equipment.

W. G. Bramham, Durham, N. C., president of the Piedmont league, presided and the "cooperator" was Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, did not arrive in time for the afternoon session.

The committee, as appointed, numbered five but Bramham said Evans would serve with the committee in an advisory capacity.

Other members of the committee are:

Warren Giles, president of the Rochester, N. Y., club; J. Alvin Gardner, Wichita Falls, president of the Texas league; Joe Carr, secretary of the committee, and Ross Harriott, president of the Terre Haute, Ind., club.

Half of Abilene Fires Classed as Incendiary

ABILENE, Texas, Jan. 10. (AP)—Fire losses in Abilene during 1931, of which nearly half was reported as incendiary, are shown at $104,000 in the annual report of M. T. Daniel, fire chief. This is greater than in 1928, when the last basic credit rating was computed, and a raise in this rating was considered probable.

Daniel's report showed paid losses of $94,523.37, which with a carry-over from 1930 and small fires probably not reported brought the total. Fires of incendiary origin are shown in the report to have totaled $41,439.20.

Frederick Man Fatally Injured at Boulder Dam

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 10.—Word was received here Saturday of a fatal accident to F. A. McDaniel, 40, former resident of Tillman county, at the Boulder dam site in Colorado Saturday.

Mr. McDaniel, brother of Mrs. E. T. Ayres, northeast of here, was foreman carpenter on the dam project.

The body probably will be returned here for burial in Schofield cemetery beside his wife who died several years ago.

Two small children and the parents, who reside at Asher, survive.

Yeggmen Get $5,000 From San Antonio Safe

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 10. (AP)—Safe crackers took $5,116.63 in cash from the safe in the general offices of the Sommers Drug company last night, George E. Vordenbaum, treasurer of the company, reported to police today.

Entry was made through a skylight. They knocked the knob off the safe.

DAVIDSON LOSES

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 10.—Davidson High school basket ball team lost to Consolidated No. 1 on the latter's court Friday night, 23 to 16. At the end of the first half the Davidson boys led, 13 to 12. High point men were Young, for No. 1 and Thorn for Davidson. The Davidson girls lost to Consolidated No. 1 lassies, 36 to 19.

MAX ACCORDED BOXING HONOR

Ring Magazine Announces 1931 Rankings

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (UP)—Max Schmeling of Germany is accorded boxing's highest honor in the annual ranking of the world boxers for 1931, announced today by The Ring, boxing magazine.

Schmeling is listed as king of the heavyweights as a result of the decisive victory he scored over Young Stribling in defense of the title he won from Jack Sharkey on a foul. Sharkey is ranked as the second best battler in the division.

The publication believes Sharkey is the only man who stands any chance of bringing the heavyweight crown back to America.

Fighters accorded titular recognition in the other divisions by the magazine are:

Light heavyweight, Maxie Rosenbloom.
Middleweight, Dave Shade.
Welterweight, Lou Brouillard.
Junior Welterweight, Jack (Kid) Berg.
Lightweight, Tony Canzoneri.
Junior lightweight, Kid Chocolate.
Featherweight, Bat Battalino.
Bantamweight, Al Brown.
Flyweight, Midget Wolgast.

The Ring's rankings were based on the consensus of the selections of more than 100 sports editors and correspondents.

Ernie Schaaf of Boston is ranked as the fighter who showed the most promise in 1931. He is pictured as "the finest fighter developed among the heavyweights in the last five years."

Schaaf, Canzoneri, Battalino and Tommy Loughran are awarded the palm "for having kept alive the interest in boxing for the year." Loughran's amazing comeback, up to his defeat by King Levinsky, was chosen as one of the highlights of 1931.

Other highlights included Mickey Walker's plucky stand against Sharkey whom he held to a 15-round draw the rapid advance of Levinsky as a heavyweight; the elimination of foul claims in important matches through adoption of the "no-foul rule in most states;" and the knockout of Frankie Genaro, once the monarch of the flyweights, by young Peres of France.

Primo Carnera, who according to The Ring, "has been the biggest money maker of all heavies these past two years," is ranked fifth in the heavyweight division, following Schmeling, Sharkey, Schaaf and Loughran. Walker follows the Italian giant in the ratings.

carry on his campaign to bring in the "victory fund" of $1,500,000.

One Sore Spot

The only real soreness left by the meeting was over the speech of James M. Cox of Ohio, Democratic standard bearer in 1920, who decried sectionalism and demanded that the South should send "back to their pulpits political ecclesiastics" so that the people should have the truth of prohibition.

Strangely enough, the chief resentment against Cox's speech came from Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, the most outspoken foe of Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist church. Bishop Cannon led the fight in the South against Al Smith in 1928, because of his anti-prohibition views.

Glass denounced the Cox speech as a "stupid attempt" to make prohibition a sectional issue, tending to create dissention in the Democratic party and announced he intends to answer it shortly in a speech in the senate.

Dawes Halts "Boom"

One of the factors cheering to Democratic hearts was the short-lived presidential boom for Charles G. Dawes, which the Chicagoan ended with the picturesque phrase that it was "damn nonsense." For the Democrats base their hope of victory chiefly on the fact that their candidate will run against President Hoover, who must carry the handicap of the economic disorders.

Who that Democratic candidate may be will be decided largely by the results in the primary states. The supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, announced they intend to enter him in every primary contest, except in the states of Arkansas, Missouri, Ohio, Maryland and Illinois, all of which have "favorite sons."

This hands off policy of the Roosevelt people may be violated in the case of Texas where Speaker John N. Garner has emerged as one of the most formidable rivals of the New York governor. It is generally conceded the action of the Roosevelt supporters in Texas may be a determining factor in the convention.

If Roosevelt should invade Texas and suffer a defeat in the county and state conventions, it would be a black eye which might have much to do with defeating the ambitions of the New Yorker.

During Orchid Hunt

LONDON.—Capt. F. W. Burdett is probably the most adventuresome orchid hunter in the world, and has missed death by a hair's breadth many times in search of rare blooms. He has combed the Philippine Islands in search of prize orchids and some of the best ones he has found in tree tops, 250 feet above ground. In climbing these trees he has encountered blood-sucking leeches, ants, wild bees and ferocious sand flies. Snakes in the jungles, not to mention wild animals, have made his trips exciting.

Dr. J. S. Fletcher Hurt in Polo Game

Thrown onto the polo field as his pony collapsed in a pileup, Dr. J. S. Fletcher Sunday afternoon suffered a broken shoulder and collar bone.

The accident occurred in the last few minutes of play in a practice game between the Reds and the Blues. Fellow players believed that Dr. Fletcher's foot slipped from the stirrup just before the horse went down, tossing the rider clear of the saddle.

The injured man was taken to the Wichita General hospital for treatment. He was able to return to his home after the broken bones had been set.

$7,000 Paid Stephens Schools After Decision

Special to The Record News.

DUNCAN, Okla., Jan. 10.—Three Stephens county school districts and the cities of Duncan and Marlow are richer by $7,320.97 as the result of a decision handed down by Judge E. L. Richardson of Lawton in five suits involving the distribution of county funds.

The suits involved distribution of interest paid on county deposits and the distribution of tax penalties. The plaintiffs alleged they should have participated in interest payments on a pro rata basis but that the money was apportioned to the county general fund. County officials admitted their error in 1926 and changed the method of distributing the money.

Judgements were given by Judge Richardson as follows: Duncan school district $2,374.40; Marlow school $3,041.18; Comanche school $746.71; Duncan city $1,101.31; Marlow city $57.37.

The suits were pending several years.

Jackson County Schools Receive Apportionment

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Jan. 10.—Jackson county schools have been apportioned $267,677.71 for operation during 1931-32 school year by the county excise board.

Dependent districts in the county have been apportioned $103,529.17 while independent districts including Martha, Duke, Blair, Eldorado have been apportioned $164,148.54.

For the first time in the history of the county every school district voted the maximum tax levy of 15 mills.

No definite information on the amount of state aid which may be received by county schools has been received at the office of the county superintendent. All schools in Jackson county with the exception of Aaron and Altus have made application for state aid.

Electra Schools Prepare For Mid-Term Exams

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 10.—Electra teachers and pupils, especially in the high school departments, have a busy week ahead of them as mid-term examinations are to begin Thursday, Jan. 14. Reviews are slated for the first part of the week. Students also are busy preparing notebooks and term themes which are due before the examinations start. The school system has run smoothly during the first semester and much good work has been accomplished.

Heavyweights Offer Main Show This Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (AP)—Heavyweights accept the nomination in New York, Chicago and Boston this week and provide the national boxing program with its only outstanding features.

At the Chicago stadium Friday night, King Levinsky, recent conqueror of Tommy Loughran, takes on the durable Spaniard, Paulino Uzcudun, at 10 rounds. Supporting this attraction will be four more bouts in the National Boxing association's light heavyweight elimination tournament.

At New York, Loughran, starting all over again, meets the young and hard-hitting Steve Hamas, Passaic, N. J., in a 10 rounder at Madison Square garden, also on Friday.

Ernie Schaaf and Jack Dorval, rival Boston heavyweights, clash over the 12 round route in the Boston garden Friday for the "New England championship."

Petrolia Banker Will Speak at P.-T. A. Meet

Special to The Record News.

PETROLIA, Texas, Jan. 10.—H. W. Perkins, president of the Continental State bank of this city, will feature the program with a talk on "Thrift," Tuesday, at the Parent-Teacher association in the high school auditorium. This will be the regular meeting that was planned for Jan. 5, but due to bad weather was postponed until the above date. Mrs. James E. Dokey, president, will have charge of the meeting.

The program will be opened with a musicale, and will include a group of popular song selections sung by Juanita Tinsley.

The attendance banner will be given to the room having the most mothers present.

Prizes will be awarded the winners of the essay and poster contest on "Thrift" that was recently held by the program committee with Mrs. Dan P. Long as chairman.

DANIEL GIVES BIBLE TALK

Spread of Christianity Due To Personal Contact

"Personal contact is the most powerful agency in the world for the advancement of the cause and kingdom of Jesus Christ," Roy J. Daniel told members of the Kay Bible class of the First Methodist church Sunday morning in reviewing Jesus' selection of the 12 disciples.

Survival of Christianity through the efforts of the chosen 12 followers of Jesus, the speaker said, was due to their readiness to sacrifice personal concern for the greater and higher concern of the kingdom of God.

His address in part was as follows:

"First, I want to call your attention to an interesting event of recent current home history. On last Friday evening at the Memorial auditorium there was awarded the annual Ad club cup for meritorious civic service to a beloved member of the Kay Bible class, to a member of our great Kay Bible class quartet, our own Grover C. Bullington. I rejoice as I know that you rejoice that this signal honor of civic leadership has come to Mr. Bullington (I ought to say Grover), and that the award has been made for merit and hard work done during 1931.

"In the war between the states I had a great-uncle who was too young to go as a soldier but he ran away from home and became a drummer boy in the Confederate service. One day on the eve of the battle of Atlanta, General Hood selected him on account of his youth to carry an important message through the enemies' lines to a place some several hundred miles away. My great-uncle asked the general to grant him one request in connection with the mission. And that request was that he be permitted to select any horse in the regiment to ride. The general granted the request, and my youthful great-uncle selected the splendid horse that the captain of his own company was riding. Dressed in civilian clothes the youth got through the northern lines and delivered the message but the Yanks confiscated his fine horse. To carry out his mission, he was allowed to select his helper—the fine saddle horse—is the point I want you to get.

Select Aides

"When Admiral Byrd was making preparations for his flight by airplane to the South pole and for his exploration of antarctic regions, it was necessary for him to make careful and detailed examinations of all equipment and co-workers in the daring enterprise. Byrd had many applications for every place to be filled, and every applicant was personally interviewed by the admiral himself. The fortunate ones chosen to make the trip were personally oked in every way by Byrd himself before the voyage from New York was begun. Byrd was personally sure that every man selected was able to stand the gaff in every way—every man had to be an asset and no liabilities were allowed. The backers of the enterprise gave Byrd permission to select his own co-workers in the carrying out of the daring mission.

"Perhaps you belong to the chamber or commerce or to some luncheon club. If you do, you know how the head of the group may select you to do some important phase of civic work, and say, Bill, I am appointing you chairman of such-and-such a committee, and I want you to select the members you want to work with you on that committee, and let me have their names.' In a law-making body the usual procedure is that the speaker or president appoints the chairmen of the various committees, and then the chairmen select the members of their committees to serve with them. You old soldiers quite often have heard: 'Sergeant, pick the detail you want, and go do so-and-so.'

"When a president of the United States is elected and goes into office, it is customary for the new executive to appoint a new cabinet to serve with him in the administration of governmental affairs. For him to be able to attempt to carry out his policies or perhaps the platform upon which he was elected it is conceded that the retiring president should not have the right nor power to appoint or have any say concerning the official family of the new president. The civil service law does not apply and should not apply to the members of the president's board of advisers better known as his cabinet.

"The 12 chosen disciples of Jesus constituted His advisory board for the program of Christianity, and today's lesson recounts for us how the first six of the 12 were selected for their all important mission. One day after His return from the 40 days and nights in the wilderness, Jesus was passing near the Jordan when John the Baptist said: 'Behold the Lamb of God.' Two of the followers of John the Baptist were John the Divine and Andrew, a fisherman. They were talking with the Baptist. And when the two disciples heard the words of the Baptist they followed Jesus. Jesus turned, and saw them following, and said, 'Whom are you seeking?' And they answered by saying, 'Master, where do you live?' His reply to them was that they might go with Him and see. It was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and they spent the remainder of the day with Jesus. They became His followers and disciples. Andrew had a brother by the name of Simon Peter. Andrew went to his brother and said, 'We have found the Messiah.' And he brought Simon Peter to Jesus. And when Jesus saw him He said, 'I know that you are Simon the son of Jonas but I am going to call you Cephas which means a stone.' John the Divine had a brother by the name of James. And John brought his brother to Jesus, and James became a follower and a disciple.

Personal Contact

"The next day Jesus was at Cana. There He found Philip who was from the town of Bethsaida, the same town that Andrew and Peter came from. Philip became a disciple in answer to the commanding words: 'Come, follow Me.' Philip had a friend at Cana by the name of Nathanael and he went to Nathanael and told him: 'We have found Him that Moses wrote about in the law. We have found Him that the prophets prophecied concerning. We have found Him in the person of the son of Joseph, and He is known as Jesus of Nazareth.' But Nathanael laughed at Philip and said, 'Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?' All Philip could answer was 'Come and see.' Nathanael went with his friend Philip, and as they were approaching Jesus, Jesus said of Nathanael, 'Behold, an Israelite in whom there is no guile!' Nathanael was pleased and delighted and he asked, 'When did you ever know me?' Jesus answered by saying, 'Why before Philip ever called you I saw you. I saw you when you were under the fig tree. I saw you as you sat there in deep study and thought, thinking about the affairs in Israel.' Now Nathanael had been doing exactly what Jesus told him He had seen, and he was struck by the miraculous, so he said, 'Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel.'

"Thus we see that the first two disciples of Jesus became His followers through John the Baptist, and they were John the Divine and Andrew. Then James was brought to Jesus by his brother John. Andrew brought Simon Peter his brother, and what a great strong rock that Simon Peter finally became after showing the usual human weaknesses. Jesus found and commanded Philip who brought to Jesus his doubting friend Nathanael known also as Bartholomew. So we see that personal contact is the most powerful agency in the world for the advancement of the cause and kingdom of Christ among men. Those six men along with the second group later selected were men who were ready to sacrifice their own concerns for the greater and higher concern of the kingdom. They gave up all but gained in the end a thousand-fold. They died that they might live forever. Jesus offered them none of the inducements that usually attract men. He did not plead nor beg. Those disciples in His cabinet were open-eyed, looking for the better, and had faith it would arrive in spite of many seemingly insurmountable difficulties. As soon as they saw Jesus they knew Him.

"'Some day in some quiet place, You will meet your Savior face to face.'"

True Believers Should Tell Others Of Christ, Martin Says in Talk

"If Jesus is worthy to be followed, then we ought to tell others about it and persuade as many as we can to join with us in following Him," declared Judge P. A. Martin before members of the Men's Bible class at the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning.

"The towering personality of the Son of Man still pervades the world. The bonds of death were burst asunder, and He walks among the sons of men everywhere. Why should they not say, "Behold the Lamb of God?"

Beginning the study of the life of Christ as set forth in the gospel of John, the speaker reviewed the enlistment of the 12 apostles. He spoke in part as follows:

"Thirty years have passed since the birth of Jesus, the child of the Incarnation, of which we studied last Sunday and we are still in the first chapter of John's gospel. His cousin and forerunner, John the Baptist, has been preaching in the wilderness of Judea and the whole country has been awakened by his preaching. Hundreds have been baptized in the waters of Jordan by the Baptist and among them came Jesus and was baptized of John. The young man was caught away by the Spirit for the 40 days' temptation in the wilderness and then, coming back into civilization with the full strength of victorious divinity upon Him, he resorted again to the Jordan to mix and mingle with those to whom the gospel of repentance had already been preached by the Nazarite, John. This strange man had warned them to repent, 'for the kingdom is at hand.' He had told them to 'bring forth fruits meet for repentance' and to 'flee from the wrath to come.' Multitudes were gathered daily to hear his preaching and teaching. A delegation of priests and Levites were sent down from Jerusalem to discover if John the Baptist was the expected Christ or was one of the old prophets returned to earth. They examined him closely but he said 'I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness make straight the way of the Lord' as said by the prophet, Isaiah.

Mystery in Air

"So the disciples of John were in a state of confused expectancy. Mystery was in the air. The kingdom was near by, was 'at hand' he told them. Something was about to happen. And then, there came a young man whom many of them had doubtless seen before; probably many had seen his baptism; probably many had known him as the carpenter's son in Nazareth; probably others had heard of the events surrounding his birth in Bethlehem 30 years ago and had rather expected a life of unusual value to follow. At any rate, Jesus walked along by the river and attracted the attention of his cousin, John the Baptist, and he exclaimed, 'Behold, the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.'

"Two of John's disciples heard the words and immediately left the forerunner and followed Jesus. One of them, Andrew, ran to fetch his brother Simon, who was to become the great preacher of Pentecost and the leader among the apostles. And then comes in rapid succession the call of and of Nathaniel and so 'the Lion of the Tribe of Judah' gathered His first disciples and started on his ministry. The Christian church was thus started upon its ever-widening circle of membership.

"Observe, if you please, the preaching of the gospel of repentance, as a preparation for entrance into the kingdom. Observe, if you please, the witness of the Spirit, seen by the preacher to descend upon his head in the form of a dove, the emblem of peace. Observe the direct and positive statement of the preacher 'Behold the Lamb of God.' Every Jew understood this figure of the lamb. Once a year they sprinkled the blood of the Paschal lamb upon the lintels of their doors in the ceremonies of the Passover as a token of God's blessing upon the house and the race and in memory of the time when the angel of death passed over and saved their first-born in far away Egypt.

Tell Others

"Observe how quickly the two disciples of John understood and how quickly they, having recognized the power that can save from sin ran to tell their two brothers and bring them to the feet of Jesus. Observe, if you please, the human agency in the very beginnings of the kingdom and witness it all the way down the line to the very present time.

"And observe how naturally and how in the most logical sequence the simple steps are taken which lead to the kingdom of God. Repentance, a vision of one who has power to save, a faith to follow, a consecrated life and discipleship. And then, like Andrew, Phillip and John, there comes the desire to introduce others to this attractive personality.

"There is brother Simon, a rough, uncouth fisherman, up there on the lake, probably cursing and swearing over his 'fisherman's luck' and needing salvation worse than anybody. He is what the world would call a good fellow, perhaps, but vacillating, as his name implies, so Andrew did the greatest day's work in his life by calling Simon to Jesus, who at once changed his name from Simon, the vacillating, to Peter, the solid rock. And Philip went and told Nathaniel about Jesus and he came; so grew the company of the apostles.

"And here is a lesson for each of us. If the life of the kingdom is attractive to us, if the captain of our salvation is worthy to be followed, then we ought to tell others about it and persuade as many as we can to join with us in following 'where his white plume wavers.' If his religion is a fraud and a failure, if it has had no saving influence in our own lives, then we can afford to keep quiet about it and fail to recommend it to others. The towering personality of the Son of Man still pervades the world. The tomb of Joseph of Arimathea could not hold Him. The bonds of death and the grave were burst asunder and again He walks among the sons of men everywhere. The kingdom is at hand. The call to repentance rings out from thousands of pulpits all over the land. There are thousands of believers who through the eye of faith can see in the man of Galilee for themselves, as his majestic footsteps lead him among the haunts of sinful men. What is to prevent them from saying 'Behold the Lamb of God.'

"There is a beautiful lesson in the conversion of Nathaniel. When Philip told him he had found the Christ, Nathaniel said 'Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?' Philip said 'Come and see.' He came; he saw and said 'Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the king of Israel.'

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 10.—A stream of family heads, both white men and negroes, flowed in and out of the chamber of commerce offices during last week, to be listed by the community relief committee for help through the hardest winter months.

Several men came in the office wearing women's coats for warmth, and others were scantily clad for the extreme weather.

'APPLE CART' HERE TONIGHT

Stage Company Arrives for Production

Clever comment upon the foibles of society in general and statesmen in particular, voiced in the form of hilarious comedy, will be the diet to be enjoyed by those who attend the showing of George Bernard Shaw's "The Apple Cart" at the Memorial auditorium Monday night.

Great playwrights have become great through their portrayal of universal human traits, working under the familiar play of circumstance. Individual spectators sit spell-bound before the play because they see themselves, their friends, and their enemies thrown in bold relief against a clear screen of reality. Plays have been made mighty instruments for the shaping of social and political thought.

Shaw has admittedly accomplished these purposes in his plays. But his penetrating jibes invariably have been delivered to the accompaniment of laughter. His choicest bits of political and social philosophy are hidden in curt expressions laden with quick and brilliant humor.

Shaw has put the modern English government on the stage in "The Apple Cart." But all of 20th century civilization is under fire in the play. The apple cart kicked over so raucously by the playwright scatters popular convention and smug complacency over the pavement with great abandon. Yet as their own pet ideas are tumbled suddenly to the ground with good natured freedom, patrons of the play find themselves laughing hilariously—at their neighbors.

Carrying a large company of players famous throughout America, and with an impressive cargo of elaborate stage properties, the "Apple Cart" troupe arrived in Wichita Falls Sunday afternoon. They will appear at 8:15 o'clock Monday night in the Memorial auditorium, reported to New York by Ethel Barrymore as one of the finest play-houses in the entire United States.

Tickets will remain on sale at the Renfro Drug store Monday until 6 p. m., when the box office at the auditorium will be opened. Prices arranged for the play here range from $2 for the foremost section of seats downstairs to 50 cents for school children in all of the first and second balconies.

'Sacrament' Subject Of Science Sermon

"Sacrament" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Jan. 10.

Revelation 7:13.14 supplied the golden text. "What are these which are arrayed in white robes?" and whence came they? . . . These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

Included in the passages read from the Bible were these from Psalms 51:2,7: "Wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin . . . wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow."

The service also included citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy; among them being the following from page 241:

"We should strive to reach the Horeb height where God is revealed; and the corner-stone of all spiritual building is purity. The baptism of Spirit, washing the body of all the impurities of flesh, signifies that the pure in heart see God and are approaching spiritual life and its demonstration."

Auto Building Projects Ends Sadly for Youths

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 10.—The attempt of five local boys to build their own motor vehicle proved a failure recently as they were brought before Judge W. H. Coffman of the local justice court, charged with theft of the rear accessories of an automobile belonging to a local man. One of the boys was fined. Two of them were under 17.

KIWANIS LUNCHEON

Kenneth Bebb, installed last week as president of the Kiwanis club, will preside over the first regular meeting of his administration to be held Monday noon at the Wichita club.

An unannounced speaker and musical numbers will comprise the program arranged for Monday's meeting, according to Ro Haynes, secretary.

STRIDES MADE BY KNOX CLUB

Home Demonstration Work Valued at $31,063

Special to The Record News.

MUNDAY, Texas, Jan. 10.—Approximately three times as much foodstuff was preserved in accordance with home demonstration methods in Knox county during 1931 than during the previous year, according to the annual report prepared here by Miss Grace Nelson, county home demonstration agent.

The report shows that foodstuffs canned or cured during the year to have had a value of $31,063 during 1931 as compared with $12,568 in 1930. The gain was recorded despite the fact that individual items were assigned lower valuations in arriving at the 1931 totals than was the case in 1930, Miss Nelson said.

Foodstuffs preserved during the past year included 56,501 cans of fruits, vegetables and meats, and 30,700 pounds of cured meats, the report continues. The totals were compiled from reports from 180 demonstration club members and approximately 500 other women who were assisted at various of the several hundred demonstrations given during the year, Miss Nelson said. Scores of women who attended demonstrations made no reports.

The new year starts with prospects that the amount of food preserved during 1932 will be far greater than during 1931, Miss Nelson said. Many more family gardens will be grown, while during the past year, 60 pressure cookers and 48 sealers have been purchased by cooperators, the report states.

One new demonstration club was organized during the year, increasing the number in the county to eight, while the membership has grown from 114 to 180, the report shows.

Club members made 2,448 garments having an estimated value of $4,802 during the year.
