Jack Made Show Of Carnera In First Few Rounds; Went Into Sixth With No Hint Of The Impending Disaster

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN BOWL, New York, June 29.—With one sweep of a paw that must have felt like a cobblestone wrapped in a leather sack, huge Primo Carnera, once a freak in a circus sideshow, knocked out Jack Sharkey in six rounds tonight to win the heavyweight championship of the world after being belted all over the premises for the greater part of five rounds.

It was a stunning ending to a savage fight that tore through the battle pit of the Garden's big arena on Long Island, an ending as amazing to the scant crowd of 40,000 as was the knockout Max Baer scored over Max Schmeling in the first of the season's heavyweight extravaganzas.

Sneers At Weight

Sneering at Carnera's 260 1-2 pounds, his awesome height and tremendous reach, Sharkey forced the issue from the start.

He wove forward, hands close to his body, feinting the mammoth Italian into pawing lefts the champion bobbed under, came up inside with two fists flailing to the body, or crossing with rights that started the man mountain trembling as if the earth were quaking under him.

After the first round, in which Carnera might have had a slight edge due to his punching in close, Sharkey made a show until the sixth of the man he gave a terrific beating only two years ago in Ebbets Field.

No Hint Of Disaster

Even in the sixth, with the round almost ended, there was no hint of impending disaster for the champion. Sharkey bobbed up and down as he had been doing from the start, found his opening, then flung a

Arrest Of Pair Believed To Be Implicated In Negro Abduction Expected Within Next 24 Hours

Two Men Are Charged With Going Into Negro's Home While Masked And Transferring Him From Farm; Seventeen Men Voluntarily Appear At Sheriff's Office Here Thursday

ARREST of two of twelve men believed implicated in adbuction of Bill Duty, his wife, and daughter, all negroes, from the J. C. Erwin farm near Becton June 9, is anticipated within 24 hours, County Attorney Vaughn E. Wilson said yesterday.

The pair, one of whom is a New Mexico resident, was charged with going into the Duty's home while masked and transferring him from the farm on which he lived. It was believed to have been the first case alleging violation of the anti-mask law in Lubbock county.

Filing of the charge, in Justice of the Peace J. S. Connell's court late yesterday, followed the voluntary appearance of 17 men of the Becton community at the office of Sheriff Tom Abel yesterday. The men sought to absolve themselves of suspicion in the case. They were questioned from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. yesterday.

One of the men sought has been identified by a Lubbock negro as the driver of a car which brought Duty and his family to Lubbock. Description of the second man sought coincides with information given by

New Taxes To Start As New Year Arrives

Fiscal Year For Government Ends Today And Corporations And Individuals Are To Feel Weight Of Levies

No Loss Deduction

Excess-Profits Tax Imposed; President Roosevelt To Be Allowed To Cut Levies When Budget Is Balanced

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 29 — With the close of June and the end of the fiscal year tomorrow, corporations of the nation begin a new year that brings them many new taxes.

Some of the changes carried in the industrial recovery law affect individuals, too.

The individual is denied the privilege formerly granted of carrying over and deducting from his income for the taxable year a net loss he had in the preceding year.

Denied Right Of Losses

He also is denied the right to carry over losses from sale or exchange of stocks and bonds, which are not capital assets, to apply these losses toward reducing his tax on gains from similar transactions in the next taxable year.

Another change requires that no part of any loss disallowed to a partnership as a deduction under the section which permitted partners to reduce their individual net incomes by their distributive share of net loss incurred by the partnership shall be allowed to a partner in computing net income. The section prohibits a partnership from deducting a net loss that is attributable to a loss from the sale or exchange of stocks or bonds which are not capital assets and to this extent would be denied the individual.

Corporation Levies New

Much of the new corporation levy is new or a revival of similar laws of years ago.

The act levies a tax, of $1 for each $1,000 of adjusted declared value of the corporation's stock. Returns covering the stock tax and

Carry-Over Is To Set Record For A Century

Recent Rise In Wheat Prices Is Attributed To Falling Of Dollar; World Price Is Still Very Low

Surplus Is Large

New Record For Carry-Over Is Expected; Weather Damage Has Reduced Wheat To Below Domestic Needs

BY ROY F. HENRICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 29—In the first official appraisal of recent crop damage, the bureau of agricultural economics today forecast the smallest crop of small grains—wheat, oats, rye, barley and flaxseed—that has been harvested in this country "in a generation."

In another announcement, it attributed the recent rise in wheat prices largely to dollar depreciation in foreign exchanges, asserting that despite crop damage in this country "the domestic market is still burdened by a very large carry-over and the world market price is still at a very low level."

New Record Carry-Over

It estimated that the world carry-over as of July would be approximately 50,000,000 bushels larger than last year, which would be a new record. It set the domestic carry-over at approximately the same figure as last year, 363,000,000 bushels.

The bureau said drouth and other weather damage had reduced the wheat crop to be harvested this year below estimated domestic needs which ordinarily are from 600,000,000 bushels to 650,000,000 bushels, including human food, livestock and poultry feed and about 75,000,000 bushels for seed.

Rises Are Watched

Meanwhile, administrators of the farm act watched the rises in both grain and cotton prices in an attempt to measure the reduction they might cause in the processing taxes that will finance the acreage reduction programs.

The wheat levy has been fixed at 30 cents a bushel effective at midnight, July 8, based on that margin of difference in the current average farm price and the pre-war average farm price for the period May 15

Favored List Of Investors Is Announced

Prominent Persons Are Listed As Having Shared In Favors Of Banking House; Probe Is To Recess Today

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 29—Turning suddenly from its investigation of why Otto H. Kahn did not pay income taxes for the last three years, the senate banking committee today produced a long list of prominent persons and corporations which it was told were invited to share in Kuhn, Loeb and company securities in return for their advice and without putting up any cash.

Charles E. Mitchell, Percy A. Rockefeller, L. F. Loree, Albert H. Wiggin, F. H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, and members of the Kuhn, Loeb banking house, which Kahn heads, were on the list.

Similar To Morgan List

While similar in some respects to the selected client lists of J. P. Morgan and company, the plan operated differently, said Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, who placed the list in the record. He said the beneficiaries were asked to participate as a syndicate in one or more of 30 issues and sell them to a retailing group at a higher price.

Pecora asked if it were not true that those on the list were not required to put up any money.

Kahn agreed this was true in some cases but said it was "not always" the case.

Another Probe Hinted

Prior to this development, Pecora told newspapermen some other government agency might inquire into the reasons why an internal revenue bureau field agent held in 1931 that an income reducing stock sale

Search For Flier Will Start Today

Four-Place Plane Is To Take Off; Base To Be In Alaska

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 29. — Four men plan to set out early tomorrow in an airplane in search of Jimmie Mattern, whose attempted round-the-world flight ended more than two weeks ago when he took off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, for Nome, Alaska. No word has been heard from the San Angelo, Texas, flier since he left the Siberian town.

The "Mattern rescue expedition," which will be made in a four-place monoplane, expects to take off from Floyd Bennett field at 4 a. m., eastern standard time. The searchers expect to reach Winnipeg by nightfall, with intervening stops at Dayton and Akron, where they will obtain additional landing gear equipment.

Base At Nome

From Winnipeg they will fly to Edmonton, Alberta, thence to White Horse and from there to Nome, where they will make their base.

William Alexander is chief pilot of the expedition. He will be accompanied by Fred Fetterman, a mechanic who prepared Mattern's plane for his flight, Harold Persons, and Thomas Abbey, a Brooklyn motorcycle policeman, who has been given a leave of absence to take part in the hunt.

Rumors Of Typhoid Epidemic In City Spiked By Doctors

Rumors that Lubbock had a large number of typhoid cases were spiked last night by Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer.

The doctor said that only four cases in Lubbock had been reported to him. Another physician said that two patients he had treated for the disease had recovered.

Suit Is Filed Against Stand

Property Owners Claim That Calf Stand Is A Place Of "Nuisance" And Complain At Loud Noises

After ten Lubbock property owners had filed suit in 99th district court yesterday, Judge Clark M. Mullican issued a temporary injunction restraining Dewey Cravens of the Calf stand "from carrying on any kind of business attended with loud noises of any kind."

The plaintiffs were P. D. McKinnon, O. W. Crittenden, G. E. Damewood, W. E. Stimson, W. H. Meador, E. B. Green, N. H. Wright, Glenn D. Chase, F. M. Maddox, and C. W. Tinney. Representing themselves as owners of property near the Calf Stand, at Main street and Avenue Q, they alleged in part:

Nuisance Is Charged

". . . that the defendant has made said premises a place of nuisance by employing persons to work on said premises, especially at night, and engage in making loud noises by screaming, singing songs, jazz music and dancing, some of which is done by negro men and women, and also runs a radio with loud speaker, that defendant's employes generally engage in a kind of conduct that is loud and disturbing."

The petition set out that the noise "prevents plaintiffs and other residents nearby from resting or sleeping, or enjoying the quiet and peace in their homes." It also was alleged that "that such conduct x x x

Plains Representatives Are To Confer With Sec. Wallace

Three South Plains representatives left last night to confer Monday with Secretary Wallace and C. A. Cobb of the department of agriculture.

Members of the committee, C. T. Watson of Big Spring, A. B. Davis of Lubbock, and Senator Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield, will ask that South Plains cotton farmers be allowed to participate in the acreage reduction plan, although they have planted no cotton.

The delegates were named Tuesday at Lamesa by representatives of eleven counties. At the Lamesa meeting it was pointed out that cotton had been planted as late as July 15 on the Plains, and still make good crops.

Man Is Shot To Death During Raid On Still; Agents State He Opened Fire On Barricade

Former Newspaper Publisher Is Victim Of Guns; Raiders Declare That Counterfeiting Equipment Was Seized

(By The Associated Press)

JOPLIN, Mo., June 29. — Federal agents late today shot and killed Homer Weese, about 45, at a farm house near here in which they were seeking a whisky still.

Harold Lane, leader of the agents, said Weese emerged from the house and opened fire on the barricade behind which the officers had been watching movements at the house since yesterday. The officers returned the fire.

Former Publisher

Weese once published a weekly newspaper here. He served a short term in the state penitentiary about two years ago after being convicted of conspiracy to violate the counterfeiting laws.

The four agents, all from Kansas City, and E. E. Fisher, deputy sheriff from Greene county, said they learned there was counterfeiting equipment in a barn on the farm and this knowledge caused them to increase their vigilance.

Equipment Seized

After the gun fight, the officers reported seizing the equipment and also placed two men under arrest who drove up to the farm in a motor car. Those arrested, suspected by the officers of counterfeiting, gave the names of W. J. Romans, Shidler, Okla., and W. E. Lauener, Jennings, Okla.

The shooting occurred in Newton county and Weese's body was taken to Neosho. His widow is ill in a hospital here.

Lane said that when Weese left the house and approached the bar-

Carnera Brags And Offers To Whip Anybody

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 29. — A secret right uppercut, practiced in utmost privacy — the punch everybody said he didn't have—was the blow that—tonight brought the heavyweight championship of the world to Primo Carnera.

"Nobody thought Primo had uppercut. I show 'em, hah?

"I felt better every round"—he illustrated with a flourish of his huge fists. "I just feeling good when he went down. He never hurt me once," and the great fellow pounded his chest and grinned with an expanse that looked like the grand canyon.

"I fight anybody now—Baer, Schmeling, anybody. I whip anybody they say. Primo's champion of the whole world".

But didn't Sharkey really hurt him?

"He hurt me? Haw, haw, haw! I hardly know when he hit me. But when I hit him, you see what happens."

AND JACK WONDERS

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—Slowly and painfully, Jack Sharkey made his way tonight from the site that was both the scene of his coronation and downfall, and, after shaking off the effects of Primo Carnera's paralyzing right uppercut, he declared he would fight again.

"Will I hang up my gloves?" he asked as soon as his fuddled head cleared. "No," he said, "I won't hang them up. I'm going to fight again, maybe in a couple of weeks, when I am not so rusty. That's what is wrong with me now."

"How did it happen? What round was it? How was I doing?" He asked in one breath. "Well, an ex-champion. Perhaps it would have been better if it happened the first time (evidently meaning his first bout with Carnera two years ago). He'll have headaches now.

"I suppose a lot of people are happy that I was knocked out. It's been a long time since that happened to me. Well, it's all right with me," he talked as if to himself.

Dick Captured In East Texas

Escaped Tahoka Prisoner Now Being Held At Kilgore For Lynn Officers; Charged In Kidnaping Case

(Special To The Avalanche)

TAHOKA, June 29—Selmer D. Dick, one of seven prisoners who forced their way from the Lynn county jail, is being held in Kilgore, local authorities were informed today.

Dick is charged with robbery with firearms and kidnaping in connection with the robbery of a Santa Fe agent at Wilson.

Vowell Also Charged

S. D. Vowell, who also is charged in connection with the Wilson holdup, is one of the escaping prisoners.

Offciers have sought to connect Vowell and Dick with at least one hijacking since their escape. Harry W. Maston of Big Spring identified photographs of the desperadoes as the men who robbed him at gun point, tied him to a tree, and escaped in his car June 16.

Early Completion Of Three Bexar Highways Now Sought

SAN ANTONIO, June 29 (AP) — The state highway department is impressed with the need for early completion of at least three major projects in Bexar county, the estimated cost of which would be in the neighborhood of $3,500,000.

D. K. Martin, member of the state highway commission, said at a conference today with officials of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce and city and county officials.

The three projects are highways numbers 2, north and south, No. 9, and No. 66, north and south. Highway number 2 is the Austin road, which would be straightened, widened and paved. Highway number 9 is the Fredericksburg road, while number 66 would be a connecting link in the proposed new road from the lower Rio Grande valley to North Texas.

Morton Voters Will Decide If Town Is To Incorporate

MORTON, June 29 (Special) — Voters of this town will decide tomorrow on whether or not the town will be incorporated.

A petition was presented to the commissioner's court, signed by nearly 30 citizens here, asking for the election. The proposed form of government is the city commission type.

O. H. Tabor is presiding judge; Gordon F. Morrow, a judge and J. C. Fowler and S. L. Pierce, clerks. A mayor and two commissioners will be selected.

New And Rugged Statement Of Naval Policy Is Made

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—A new and rugged statement of naval policy, laying emphasis upon fleet efficiency to support national policies and national interests, was made public today by the navy department.

The new document, couched in strong and concise terms, was drafted by the general naval board and approved by Secretary Swanson on May 10 to replace that issued in 1931 following the London arms conference.

Veterans Demand Ouster Of Hines

CINCINNATI, June 29 (AP)—Immediate removal of General Frank Hines as director-general of the veterans' bureau was demanded by the disabled American veterans of the world war today in a turbulent session.

Bitter because the government's economy program reduced allowances given disabled ex-soldiers, the veterans' convention demanded that Hines be dismissed without a pension; booed Congressman Byron Harlan of Dayton, Ohio, when he attempted a defense of the program; and "condemned" Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, "for his hostile attitue toward the disabled veteran and repudiation of promises."

Harlan's defense of the administration's policy almost was drowned out by the jeers that swept the auditorium. The gavel of National Commander William Onley rang a tattoo as he struggled to keep order amid cries of "sit down, sit down." Once he peremptorily ordered the sergeant at arms to "get busy" with little avail.

WELL IGNITED

CORPUS CHRISTI, June 29 (AP)—The George E. Smith No. 2 well on the O'Brien tract in the Greta field ten miles north of Refugio, which went wild last week and caught fire Sunday, choked itself out at 2 o'clock this afternoon but ignited again by friction at 4 o'clock.

Aged Canyon Resident Dies At Home Of Son On Thursday

W. S. McCoy, 80, died in the residence of a son, W. W. McCoy, in the Canyon community at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Funeral arrangements for the aged man were incomplete last night, Bynum-Stahler Funeral home said. Rites probably will be said this afternoon, with burial in Lubbock cemetery.

Three other sons, Quest McCoy of Johnson county, Tex., and Arthur and Harmon McCoy of Canyon community, and two daughters, Mrs. J. L. Busby of Fort Worth and Mrs. Louis Herschey of Spokane, Wash., also survive.

Fatty Arbuckle's Progress Along A Comeback Trail Cut Short By Death

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 29—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle's progress along the "comeback trail" after he had plunged more than a decade ago from the height of stardom as a screen comedian was cut short by death early today.

The plump, jolly "Fatty," who became an exile from the movie after his acquittal in the mysterious death of Virginia Rappe, screen actress, died in his sleep of a heart attack. He was 45 years old.

Only a few hours earlier he had signed a contract with Warner Brothers that meant his permanent return to the screen.

He had finished yesterday afternoon the sixth of a series of short comedies designed to test whether he could regain the favor of the millions who once laughed at his contagious chuckle, his tiny derby, and his voluminous, ill-fitting trousers.

Then he and his third wife, formerly Addie McPhail, attended a party in honor of their first wedding anniversary. His manager, Joseph Riskin; Johnny Dundee, ex-boxer, and John-

Country Gasps As A Relentless Sun Sends Down Rays That Are Stifling

(By The Associated Press)

A BLISTERING sun and rain clouds vied for supremacy yesterday as the nation's heat wave was broken in several sections and farmers looked over their parched fields in hopes that crop damage was halted.

Much of the country however, still gasped for breath as a relentless sun shot down stifling rays. The Kansas plains were baked. It was 116 at Junction City; 110 at Emporia and Salina, and the rest of the state was in the grip of 100 degrees.

Near Winfield, Kas., farmers baled wheat and oats straw to feed livestock because of the hay shortage. The Kansas plains have been without rain of consequence since May 5.

Heat was still king in portions of Missouri—Columbia reporting 98 and St. Louis 100 readings, highest of the season. Elsewhere in the state, rain drenched down in cloudburst proportions to break the heat wave. Northeast Oklahoma had temperatures above 100.

At Hammond, Ind., and in the south part of Chicago, winds of high velocity accompanied by rains toppled temperature and caused property damage. A new-

Reporter Goes Crazy With Heat And Dreams Of Icy Blasts And Freezing

FEATHERY snow lazily covered the South Plains as the mercury dipped far below the freezing point—

Ach, but we're crazy with the heat, and yesterday was just another reason why Lubbock residents, for the time, preferred wintry blasts. Instead—

Unleashed by a scorching sun, the mercury climbed dizzily, reached 102 degrees, the season's high mark. Sweltering Lubbockites sought comfort before whirring fans, in swimming pools, at soda fountains.

Relief came slowly last night. In late afternoon, a rain cloud in the west raised hopes of cooler weather—and ended by lifting only a little dust.

The official reading came from the experiment substation, where Don L. Jones, the superintendent, said that increased humidity brought additional discomfort.

Mr. Jones' thermometer said 102 degrees, but the mercury you watched may have gone so much higher that only a traditionally cool South Plains night could induce it to seek its bulbous home.

Municipal airport reported a maximum of 104 degrees. In

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE BEAN WILSON
Avalanche Woman's Editor

OVER in Italy the government is furnishing ten thousand brides with $10 dowries this year in a campaign to increase interest in marriage and check a falling birth rate. Of course, Mussolini's word is law but one wonders how much incentive these dowries would be to American girls—or if they would do any good at all.

Ten dollars looks like so little to an American girl. They might get married, to be sure, in a campaign seeking to encourage marriage for healthy young women, but it is doubtful if the dowry would have much to do with it. The fact that bachelor's were being taxed to supply the money might not increase marriage here, either, since American young men have such a flair for independence that they might resent such efforts to get them married.

One wonders if Italian ways would work in America.

EVERY woman who is interested in style—and who isn't?—may read with interest the opinions of Miss Wilhela Cushman, fashion director of Bonwit Teller in New York, who has the reputation here and in Europe of being a "fashion expert."

"The woman who influences fashions most is not a conformist," Miss Cushman believes. "Dramatizing some distinctive characteristic of her own makes her outstanding. Though clothes may be her great enthusiasm, she must somehow convey the impression of casualness.

"Conscious effort is fatal. Nor must she look as if she had just come out of a smart dress shop, newly fitted from head to toe. She herself, must always be more important than her clothes."

Miss Cushman has hit upon "that something" that distinguishes women most in their dress. We all know women who follow the dictates of fashion to the letter and yet never seem to have any individuality. We know women, too, who are casual about their dress and yet always smart. Her definition is the best concerning the well-dressed woman—"She herself, must always be more important than her clothes."

IT'S DISGUSTING

TO those who consider religion a sacred thing and who like to think that their church leaders are men and women worthy of respect and confidence, there is nothing more disgusting than the Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton flair for publicity.

As a pleasing contrast, there is the dignity that is attached to whatever the Charles Lindberghs, do—the fellowship that the public must see in their trips together.

Some people must pay the price of having the public watch them because they are famous. Other people must make repugnant appearances in print in an effort to keep their names before the public, and often they accomplish their aims because of the public habit of making heroes of anyone whose name appears on the front page of the paper often enough.

KINGS AND FATHERS

KINGS being only human often do the things that make us admire them more for being men than for being kings.

When kings' sons marry commoners it is usually a matter of great sorrow to the kings. Frequently, however, the young men are later forgiven, for kings are just ordinary fathers down under their royal robes.

The latest instance of this is of former King Alfonso of Spain who has sent a message to his oldest son expressing parental affection and forgiving him for having married a Cuban commoner. One may be a king or queen but that makes one no less a father or a mother with ordinary affection for sons and daughters.

Panhandle Is Holding Grain

Panhandle Wheat Farmers Are Storing Crop In Bins And Holding Out For A Price In Excess Of $1

AMARILLO, June 29 (AP)—Panhandle wheat farmers are not selling their grain, regardless of the big advance in price the last few days.

Walter Barlow, head of the Great West Mill & Elevator company, one of the biggest buyers of wheat in this territory, said today that the movement to market was light throughout the area. He said the farmers were storing wheat in home bins and country elevators and holding for a still better price.

He said the present market would mean a profit to farmers whose yield is six bushels or more to the acre. This increased revenue will enable those who have wheat to prepare their land better for another crop.

To a majority of Panhandle farmers, who abandoned their wheat acreage because of the drouth, dollar wheat will mean a hardship because they will have to buy seed. The cost of preparing the land and seeding likewise will be double that of a year ago.

Action Asking $250,000 Damages For Heart Balm Is Filed By Californian

LOS ANGELES, June 29 (AP)—On the heels of a suit for separate maintenance, filed against him by Ann H. Cusack, an action asking damages of $250,000 for heart balm, was filed in superior court today by Charles E. Cusack, Beverly Hills, mining executive against his parents in law.

Cusack alleged that Thornton Hamilton, Cuero, Tex., cattleman, and his wife and Mary A. Carruthers, sister in law, had induced Mrs. Cusack to leave him and file the separate maintenance action. The husband claimed the Hamiltons moved here recently from Texas and lived in his home, interfering in his affairs.

Once, he claimed, they threatened to alienate his wife's affections if a trust fund in his favor was not deposited in Texas when it terminated.

In her suit Mrs. Cusack asked for $600 a month for herself and $250 for three minor children, saying her husband had inherited $600,000 but wasted his fortune until only $200,000 was left. She charged he drank to excess.

Cusack claimed the depreciation of his fortune was caused by business conditions.

Almost half of the world's wheat surplus is in the United States.

Outlaw likely will be transferred to the Huntsville penitentiary for safekeeping.

John Grayson Is To Face Charges

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—John Cooke Grayson, brother of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, was one of four men indicted today by a District of Columbia grand jury in connection with a shortage in the funds of the Park Savings bank of Washington, now closed.

A charge against Grayson, former clerk in the chief national bank examiner's office of the treasury department, is that he informed the late Robert S. Stuns, former vice president of the bank, of pending visits to the institution by federal bank examiners.

In return, it was charged that Stuns accepted overdrafts from Grayson and credited the latter's account with approximately $4,000 he never deposited.

Stuns killed himself last March. He left a note, taking the blame for a shortage in the Park bank's funds estimated at $1,700,000.

Dr. T. D. Gunter, county health officer, says Palm Beach county, Fla., has never had a case of typhoid, according to records of his office.

Beautiful Blond Movie Actress Claims Kinship To Pope Pius; Becomes One Of The Leading Stars Of All Italy

BY ANDRUE BERDING

ROME (AP)—A beautiful blond actress who claims kinship with Pope Pius has become one of the leading movie stars in Italy, after preliminary training in Hollywood.

Sandra Ravel, 22, with large, dark, flashing eyes and a gorgeous smile, is taking the chief role in a series of pictures produced by the Cines, principal motion picture company in Italy.

Third Cousin Of Pontiff

As Sandra explained it, she is a third cousin of the pontiff. She was born Sandra Winckelman, her father having been a German from whom her mother separated. The mother and daughter used the former's maiden name of Ratti, which was the surname of the pope, he having been Achille Ratti before his elevation. Sandra's maternal grandfather, she said, was Giuseppe Ratti, an attorney and cousin of Achille Ratti.

"I changed my name," Sandra said, "while I was in America, because of the way people pronounced it there. They made it sound like 'ratty.'

Sandra began studying dancing at the age of 11 with the ballet school of the famous Scala opera house in Milan.

"We were rich then," she smiled, "but my father lost his money."

Heeds Broadway's Call

At 16 she danced a solo before 30,000 spectators in the old Roman arena at Verona. Gabriele D'Annunzio, who was one of the spectators, christened her "The Soul Dancer," and later she danced for him at his Littoriale estate.

Not long after that she had two offers, one in Italy, the other with the old Manhattan opera house, New York. She chose New York, but while she was on the high seas the Manhattan closed. She landed in the metropolis without a job.

Shubert took her for "Sunny Days", which failed, and again she was out of a job. She then did minor film work and went to Hollywood, where her salary grew to a respectable figure.

After a few years, however, she left and came back to Rome. "My accent," she said, "was too strong for the talkies."

It was not long before she had a year's contract in Rome with the Cines company. She has made the following pictures: "Al Buio Insieme" (Into the Dark Together); "Paradiso" (Pardise); "Sette Giorni, Sento Lire" (Seven Days, Five Dollars), and "Voce Lontant" (Distant Voice). None of these has gone to America, but one has been done into French.

Sandra became accustomed to American methods while in Hollywood and she finds it hard to understand the Italian movie methods.

"They waste so much time and effort," she grieved, "and so much film. It would pay them to get a good American camera man to instruct them in taking pictures. And there's so much overhead cost that a picture can scarcely make any money."

Sandra's chief grief is that the scenarios do not make more use of her dancing ability. "In my four pictures," she sorrowed, "there is only one bit of dancing."

She prides herself on her toe-dancing particularly. The strength of her toes enables her to jump from a piano to the floor and land on her digits.

Sandra would like to go back to America after next year, she confessed, but only to take leading roles. She will not go there for minor parts. "I feel that I am always getting better," she said. "I study hard."

Sandra Ravel, 22-year-old star of Italian films, who claims relationship, through her mother's father, with Pope Pius, once played minor parts in Hollywood. She now has leading roles in a series of movies.

MARRIED IN CLOVIS

HALE CENTER, (Special)—Miss Edra Cure and Mr. Melvin Bridges were married June 17 in Clovis, N. M., at the First M. E. church. Both graduated from the Hale Center high school. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Bridges and the bride the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Cure.

The Southern Baptist convention has adopted a budget of $605,000 for foreign missions for the current year but estimates its income will not exceed $500,000.

Scenes At First Camp For Jobless Women

With the opening of the first camp for unemployed women at Peekskill, N. Y., a new life has begun for many girls whose hopeless search for employment ended with their signing up in the feminine equivalent of the reforestation army. Above (left) are two members of the camp, doing "K. P." At right is Miss Marion Tinker, camp director, with some of her charges, and below, a general view of the camp.

Demo Collections Are Reported Low

"Dime-a-Democrat" collections in Lubbock county to eliminate the national Democratic deficit have totaled only about $75, said J. K. Wester, party chairman in this county. The quota for the county is $533.

"With every activity of the new deal going forward at a rapid pace and evidence of its success being seen on every hand, it appears that loyal Democrats should be looking to the future," Mr. Wester said. He said the national committee wanted the debt cleared before the next campaign. It totals approximately $500,000.

"The national committee could go out in a single call and get the money from the big boys," Mr. Wester said, "but they want it to come from the people as they feel the party belongs to the people."

He said he would receive contributions at any time and expected to make a concerted effort to close the county campaign this fall.

His barking aroused many citizens who saw two men running and summoned officers. The dog was leading six others in a chase for the men in a small car when the police arrived.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—That gallant little French lady, Renee Adoree, is trying a comeback in the talkies, and tinsel-hearted Hollywood is forgetting for the moment its troubles, jealousies and penny scandals to root for a happy ending.

For Renee Adoree, struggling anew in the film capital, is not just another forgotten star of yesterday making the tough uphill fight tried futilely from year to year by so many ex-kings and queens of screenland.

Some time ago Renee from France, Renee, the vivacious little trouper, who passed her childhood swinging from tent-top trapezes and riding horses bareback, and who made cinema history as the unforgettable Charmaine in "The Big Parade", returned to Hollywood after two long years in the shadow of death.

To understand how Renee fought off the dread malady of tuberculosis, to realize why a host of old friends helped her financially and with their love all through the lengthy battle with death, one must remember that strange childhood lost in the sawdust rings of the continent.

From almost the beginning, it was all work and no play for the baby trouper born to circus show folks in Lille, France. At an age when other children were making mud pies and learning the three "r's", little Renee was flaunting death in thrilling circus leaps and toe dancing from a precarious perch on the back of a galloping horse.

As a young girl she hopped freight trains to London, where she made her legitimate stage debut. New York came next and then Hollywood. There was a big place for the French actress here and she found it.

She worked before the Klieg lights as only a born trouper can, and nights she played hard and furiously. She seemed to be trying to cram into her life all the fun she had missed as a little girl. And everybody who knew her loved her.

She was wildly happy, despite two marriages that ended on the rocks of the Hollywood divorce courts. And when the inevitable breakdown came, she was in the midst of a picture.

A Trouper's Courage

Her doctor was on the set at the time and he ordered her to stop working. The director pleaded that Renee be allowed to continue working for one more half hour. Reluctantly, the physician agreed.

The French girl went through with it, but when the order of "cut" came, she fainted. It was found that she had suffered a hemorrhage. After a few weeks in a California hospital, the specialists decided that only Renee's removal to a Prescott, Ariz., sanitarium could save her life. And they were dubious even about that.

She protested she had no money, that she had spent all of her large salary. With dollars she had been as carefree as with her health.

There followed a striking demonstration of the affection in which Renee was held by directors, writers and her fellow players. Several of them said they would pay all expenses, no matter how long the curing process took.

On a stretcher Renee was taken to Prescott. Few believed she would ever come back. Renee doubted it herself. And for 22 months she waited in the white hospital room for death to come.

Victory!

Instead of that, she recovered. No little factor in her fight for health was the kindness of those friends who had sent her there. They never forgot the wan, pale-faced little French girl, dispatched her flowers and gifts each Christmas and birthday, visited and wrote her whenever their work made it possible.

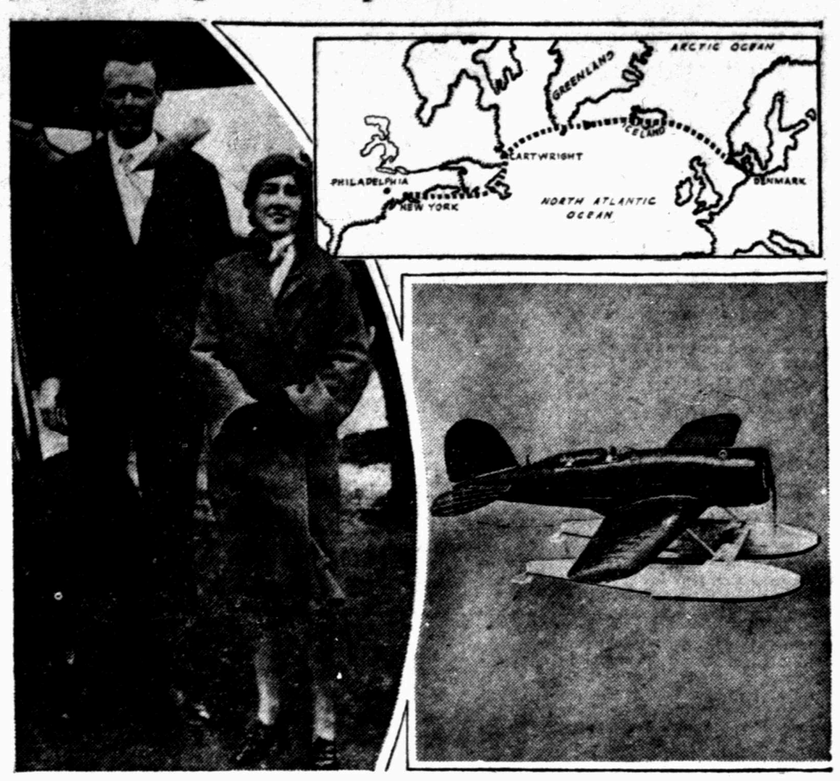

Renee discovered when she was first permitted to walk again that she had to learn even that. In the 22 months her legs had forgotten how to move. And now, she says, "I have to learn to live again!"

A large crowd of stars greeted Renee when she stepped from the train at Hollywood. She embraced them all, kissed them all, seemed like the old Renee. "I feel as if I had come back from the grave," she told them, "but all that is behind me. I want to act again."

For months now Renee Adoree has been trying to regain her old position. She hasn't had much luck so far, but she has defeated death, so she is confident of triumphing in life.

Her friends watch her—and hope. But the Hollywood merry-go-round whirls fast, and the memory of the public is, as always, very short.

Lindberghs To Map North Atlantic Air Route

Early in July Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh plan a flight to Greenland to determine the feasibility of a northern air route to Europe. The flight will probably be extended across the Atlantic to Iceland and possibly to Denmark. They will fly the same airplane they used on their trip to the Orient.

Rotarians Boost World Conference

BOSTON, June 29 (AP)—The 24th annual convention of Rotary International today by unanimous vote directed its officers to cable the world economic conference now sitting in London its "sincere hope and anxious concern" for success.

The 24th convention in session here since Monday has concerned itself to a large degree with programs calculated to foster international good will, promote better understanding between business men of the world and inculcate in individual Rotarians a greater concern for amity among all races.

By overwhelming vote the convention rejected two resolutions proposed by the Oklahoma City Rotary club looking toward decentralization of Rotary government.

The first resolution would have empowered directors to appoint a committee to examine the entire question of decentralization.

Another would have allowed districts to elect their own officers.

BILL TILDEN says: "Tournament play in tennis imposes a terrific strain upon the nervous system. Healthy nerves are essential if a player is going to be successful in maintaining his speed, endurance, and the psychology of victory. As a steady smoker, I find that cigarettes vary a lot in their effect upon the nerves. I have tried all the other popular brands, but for years I have smoked Camels. Because of their extraordinary mildness I know that I can smoke Camels as freely as I wish and still have healthy nerves."

Death Of Fatty Arbuckle Removes A Figure Which Bulked Large In The Field Of Comedy And On The Screen

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 29 (AP)—The death of Fatty Arbuckle, whose given name of Roscoe remained without the descriptive appendage only until he was six years old, removes from moviedom a figure which bulked large both on the screen and in the comedy field before the pictures found voice.

One of the greatest box office attractions of the earlier flicker days, Arbuckle ran afoul of adverse public sentiment after a series of trials in San Francisco on a manslaughter charge and withdrew from activity as an actor. That was in 1921. For a time he tried directing pictures, and later turned back to his first love, the stage.

Tried Acting Again

Recently, after a lapse of 12 years, he tried acting again, producing a comedy for Warner Brothers pictures which was heralded as his attempt at a comeback in the comedy field. It showed the Arbuckle character of old—the country boy with a vacant stare and rare smile—but reviewers received his effort with only lukewarm appreciation.

Arbuckle was definitely launched on his stage career in a Seattle theater in 1904 by Alexander Pantages, the famous showman and chain vaudeville house owner. The rotund comedian's first entertainment attempts was as a blackface character in a monologue act. He depended as much on a fine tenor voice as on his acting to put himself across with his audiences.

Felt Lure of Money

Then the films began to outgrow their swaddling clothes and graduate to regular downtown showhouses, and Arbuckle felt the lure of the money in acting before the cameras. From that moment he was destined to become a world wide figure on the screen.

His retirement from the movie spotlight in 1921, was, his friends insisted, purely voluntary, although Paramount pictures, which had him under contract, announced that films featuring him and costing $500,000 had been scrapped.

The scandal which erased him as a comedian-star, when his popularity was vast and had showed no signs of waning, was occasioned by the death of Virginia Rappe, a movie actress, after a drinking party at a San Francisco hotel. He and several other movie celebrities were at the party.

Murder Charge Filed

A murder charge was filed against him, and later the grand jury returned an indictment acussing him of manslaughter. He was tried three times on this charge, the first two trials resulting in disagreements, the last in acquittal.

At the outset Arbuckle admitted he had been intoxicated during the course of a party at a hotel where Virginia Rappe received fatal injuries. His initial good-humored acceptance of the trend of events, even the filing of a murder charge and incarceration in "felony row" at jail, gave way gradually to worry, and it was a harrased and worn man who came out of the ordeal in court.

A lavish spender, Arbuckle at the time was believed to have used up his last resource in efforts at vindication before the bar of public opinion.

Is Cast Aside

No sooner had the courtroom been cleared than the process of casting him out, insofar as his public life was concerned, was begun. Ministers of the Gospel, civic bodies, even the persons with whom he worked in Hollywood, formally and informally denounced him for what was characterized as an affront to American morals and the motion picture industry. The Motion Picture Directors' association resolved that no persons "who by their actions have proven a menace to the well-being of our industry be tolerated or excused."

Carl Laemmle, head of one of the biggest movie producing units on the coast, championed the cause of the waddling comedian in vain. Nor did it matter that Will Hays, head of the then recently formed association of producers and distributors of motion pictures, saw fit to rescind the general ban on Arbuckle as an actor.

There were some who could not believe the comedian had undergone such a complete about-face in public favor, notably $1,000,000 for three finished comedies featuring Arbuckle which were lying unused on Paramount's shelves.

But Ban Remains

But the ban remained, and in token of it "Fatty" was even hissed off a screen in far-off Paris, France.

In later years he managed to recoup, in small part, some of his one-time fortune. In 1925 his income was figured at some $50,000 a year.

But misfortune continued to dog his trail, and as late as three years ago a roadhouse he established near Culver City was put under fire as a public nuisance. From time to time after Hays lifted the ban on Arbuckle's pictures and the exhibitors were free to show the shuffling fellow in the ill-fitting trousers on their screens, word filtered out that the comedian would try for a comeback before the cameras. But the rumors came to naught until last year when he was formally signed for pictures.

His first effort was generally supposed in the film colony to have been in the nature of a "feeler" on public sentiment, and in the absence of any sharp disapproval, other short films were scheduled.

Child Is Badly Injured As He Falls From Moving Train

DALLAS, June 29 (AP) — Ned Draughan, 6, was injured critically today when he apparently fell from the window of an inbound passenger train just north of Dallas.

Railroad searching parties found him and he was transferred to a hospital in an ambulance.

The child, traveling with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Draughan of Muskogee, Okla., was first missed as the train approached the station. With the train crew, the parents searched each coach without success. Employes of the line then manned a motor car and started north, locating him near the right-of-way.

Florida, with 10,196 miles, has more hard-surfaced roads than any other state in the south.

Railways in France are expected to reduce passenger rates.

Eastus Takes Attorney Post

Fort Worth Man Will Take The Oath Of Office In This City Saturday; He Is Expected to Arrive Today

Carl Eastus, Fort Worth, recently named United States district attorney for the Northern District of Texas, is to take the oath of office here on Saturday before Judge James C. Wilson, who is holding court in the Lubbock division this week. He succeeds C. W. Johnson, resigned.

Mr. Eastus is expected here late Friday, Judge Wilson said. Reports that he had taken the oath here were declared unfounded by Judge Wilson, who said Mr. Eastus told him he would arrive in Lubbock late Friday.

The new district attorney is said to be prepared to announce his assistants soon after he assumes the office. Report is that Joe Jones of Eastland will be one of the appointees, but no confirmation is had.

Alfred Cresger, who has been assistant to Mr. Johnson and who resigned following his chief, has been asked by Mr. Eastus to stay until July 15 to assist in reorganization of the office. He then will become partner of Arnold Davis, a former assistant, and Charles Tucker, a former naturalization inspector.

Four Passengers Escape From Blazing Plane Which Later Was Destroyed; Pilot Lands In Corn Field

GOODLAND, Kas., June 29 (AP)—A 29-year-old native of Little Rock, Ark., saved the lives of four passengers here yesterday by bringing a blazing airplane to a safe landing a few moments before it was destroyed by the explosion of a gasoline tank.

He is Gordon Darnell, at present a resident of Kansas City, who coolly landed a passenger plane of the United States Airways in a corn field, hurried his passengers out and saved his cargo of mail and express a second or two before flames enveloped and destroyed the craft.

The plane was one in which Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace had flown from Kansas City to Salina a short time before.

Darnell and his wife have lived in Kansas City two years. Before his graduation from the army air corps school at Kelly and Brooks Fields, San Antonio, Tex., in 1928, Darnell had been a member of an observation squadron of the Arkansas national gaurd. He has been employed as an air line flier by Braniff Airways and as pilot and operator manager of the Cromwell air service, operating out of San Angelo, Tex.

The passengers aboard the flaming plane were R. I. Olsen, Salina; Miss Helen Fling, Kansas City; Mrs. L. V. Sams, Denver, and Robert Barr of Chicago who continued into Denver by motor car.

Testimony In Mabry Case Is To Be Continued Here Today

Owing to a large number of witnesses to be heard, testimony in the case of J. D. Mabry vs. Mrs. Sinda Mabry was not completed Thursday in federal district court. It is expected to be finished Friday morning.

Next case on the docket is that of the Canal Bank and Trust company of New Orleans vs. Hotel Lubbock Co.

New Protection Service Is Offered By Western Union

A new service in protecting hotel clerks and managers in accepting checks is being used here.

With the co-operation of banks in which the hotel guests keep their accounts, Western Union Telegraph company is able to send a special message to determine in a few minutes whether guests asking to cash checks have bank accounts sufficient to cover the amount of the check.

Preference is given to this type of information, and the messages are received soon after filing.

Condition Of Young Woman Is Unchanged Here Thursday

Condition of Miss Bernice Casey, 25, critically injured in an automobile-bicycle accident in the 1800-block of Main street Wednesday night, virtually was unchanged last night, it was said at Lubbock sanitarium.

Miss Casey suffered a skull fracture, a broken left wrist, and a broken left leg and other injuries when the bicycle she was riding either collided with or was hit by an automobile driven by Bill Slatery of Lubbock.

Gus Moreland In Semi-Final

Trans-Miss Champion Reaches Semi-Final Round After An Extra-Hole Match To Beat Dawson Of Chicago

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 29 (AP)—Exhibiting the finesse apparently limited to champions, Gus Moreland of Dallas, defending titleholder, became a four to one favorite to retain his Trans-Mississippi golf championship today by disposing of Johnny Dawson, Chicago par-smasher to progress to tomorrow's semi-finals of the mid-west's annual links classic.

Engaging in his second extra hole match of the meet, Moreland displayed the steel of a champion to record a birdie three on the thirty-seventh hole to down his classy challenger, one up, in the feature battle of today's quarter-finals.

Moreland is paired against Ben Cowdery of Omaha, in tomorrow's semi-finals, and is expected to meet Lawson Little, San Francisco, tourney darkhorse, in the finals. Little advanced to the semi-finals by eliminating Frank English of Denver, 7-6.

Little, however, has a consistent par breaker to subdue in tomorrow's semi-finals in Zell Eaton, tourney medalist, to get a crack at the title. Eaton drubbed L. B. Maytag, of Newton, Iowa, twice winner of the Broadmoore invitational, 6-5, to take a long stride toward the title.

Cowdery, showing the same steady golf which has characterized his performances throughout the meet, defeated Howard Creel, of Pueblo, former Colorado champion, 6 and 4 to qualify as Moreland's semi-final foe.

Texas U. Star Beaten In National College Tourney

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 29 (AP)—Rated no better than an outside chance, a flashy young netman from the South broke into the semi-finals for the National Intercollegiate tennis championship today by eliminating one of the tournament's top-heavy favorites in the greatest upset of the week's play.

Seeded eighth, Wilmer Hines, North Carolina ace, had been forecast as a more or less easy victim for Texas' wiry star, Martin Buxby. Instead, he outsteadied the Longhorn netman, and came through with a 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 surprise victory.

Round-By-Round And Blow-By-Blow Record Of Sharkey-Carnera Scrap

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

ROUND ONE

The huge Carnera moved majestically out of his corner like an ancient broad beamed whaler under full sail. Sharkey dove for him but Primo caught his left hook on his big right paw.

As they came together Carnera bounced his pounderous right fist twice off Sharkey's side but took a hard left hook to the head.

Sharkey ripped back in with both hands to the body but as he pulled away Carnera's left hook caught him off balance, hurled him across the ring, and nearly drove him through the ropes.

Incensed, the blazing champion flailed back in again with both hands, landing a left and right to Carnera's head but again the tremendous Italian heaved him across the ring as though he were a child, and into the far ropes. Sharkey took Carnera's right to the body and banged a beautiful right off the Italian's long chin, the best punch of the round as the bell sounded.

ROUND TWO

Boxing carefully Carnera led with his long left and smothered Sharkey as the champion drove to close quarters. Sharkey bounced his right off Primo's broad chest and grunted so he could be heard all over the ringside as he flung a long right that missed.

Another terrific right to the jaw didn't miss and Carnera bounced back into the ropes as Sharkey followed hi mwith a hard left hook to the head. Lunging in after feinting like a fox darting in on its prey, Sharkey lunged again and his right cracked on Carnera's chin. Primo enveloped the champion in his huge arms as Sharkey tried to get a punch at his body. Sharkey was sneering at the tremendous Italian as he feinted, searching for an opening with Carnera pinned against the ropes as the gong sounded.

ROUND THREE

Sharkey was fighting a very careful, very heady fight, moving constantly around, feinting for openings. He got Carnera set but his right bounced from the Italian's defending left arm as though it had he was counted out.

hit a lamp post. Again Sharkey flung himself in and as Carnera's arms flailed about, missing him with a dozen punches, the champion drove a furious right to the head and a hard left hook to the body. Carnera was flailing back more and more on the defensive as Sharkey looped over a left to the head, feinted to bring Carnera's arms up, and smashed his left into the huge Italian's side. Sharkey wove in with a hard right to the body but Carnera roughed him with both hands about the head as he pushed him along the ropes. The bell caught Sharkey tearing back for more.

ROUND FOUR

Carnera stuck out his long left hand but Sharkey slipped under it, pulled away from three more stabs, and shot inside for quick volleys into the Italian's body. The champion was away again before Carnera could swing his huge hands into action. Standing back now with his left poised, waiting constantly for Sharkey to come to him and missing often, Carnera took two hard lefts to the head and a right to the body before he managed to rough in close to draw a warning from Referee Donovan.

They paced around the ring, matching left jabs and Carnera suddenly swung a hard right to the head. Carnera grabbed Sharkey's left hand, pulled him in, and belted his head with both hands, drawing a warning for holding and hitting then another for backhanding. He threw Sharkey into the ropes again as though he were tossing a volley ball as the bell rang.

ROUND FIVE

Sharkey poked at Carnera's body with a left until he drew the Giant's fists down but Primo put his hands up in time to block a hard shot to the chin.

As Sharkey banged a left to the body Carnera grabbed him, held him with his free hand, drawing another warning from the referee, but Sharkey merely sneered and smashed his left to the Italian's ribs again.

Carnera hooked two lefts to Sharkey's jaw, but the champion followed him around the ring, feinted his hands down and smashed a terrific right to the giant's temple.

Carnera wobbled like a brick chimney that is starting to come down but he held and recovered quickly as Sharkey failed to fight clear of his tremendous arms.

But Sharkey was right back on him, swinging left hooks at the head, his right cocked for a finisher. He chased Carnera to a corner, but the bell rang before he could do more than fire a long left to the jaw.

ROUND SIX

Bending low, keeping his head down around Carnera's waist, Sharkey stabbed up into the Italian's face, then hooked two lefts to the body. Carnera drove in with both hands, catching Sharkey off balance, and as he thumped the champion around the ring Sharkey slipped to the floor. He was caught off balance and came up without a count to weave in on the Italian. Carnera held the champion off with his left and ripped four ponderous rights to Sharkey's body. A right uppercut floored Sharkey and

Texas Utilities And Quicksall-Pryor Win Soft Ball League Games Thursday

In the American league, Quicksall-Pryor defeated A. W. McKee company, 11 to 9, in a hard fought contest. Pitcher Yancy Price for the winners was backed up by a hustling infield and Cooper likewise was supported by the McKee fielders. Cooper tossed nice ball for the losers.

Tight infield play by the Utilities team made it double tough on the efforts of the Reporters, who showed vast improvement over previous games at the plate.

BRACE LEFT SIDE TO STOP SLICING

The fault with which the average golfer is most bothered is slicing. The most common causes are: falling back with the weight on the right foot, and lifting the head too soon, thus cutting across the ball. The remedy is to brace the left side and follow well through on the line of flight.

If the club approaches the ball from the inside, and a good follow through is made, few shots will be sliced, though some will be hooked. The hook is termed a "good fault."

American Net Aces In Wins

Vines And Moody Push On Toward Wimbledon Championship Goal; Gledhill Loses To Bunny Austin

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 29 (AP)—The two American favorites and defending singles titleholders, Helen Wills Moody and H. Ellsworth Vines, jr., moved toward their major objectives today in the British tennis championships, but another stalwart of the invading contingent, Keith Gledhill, passed out of the men's tournament picture.

After his defeat the day before with Vines in the doubles, before the brisk attack of a youthful Australian team, Gledhill met his master in England's brilliant Henry W. (Bunny) Austin, who scored for the home forces by 6-3, 10-8, 6-1.

Vines did not appear bothered by his sprained ankle as he swept through three sets, applying the pressure easily whenever he needed it, to eliminate R. Miki of Japan, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. The American ace has not yet opened up the full blast of his strokes and appears to be "rating" his pace. He probably will have to apply the pressure against his next singles opponent, Dr. Daniel Prenn of Germany, who scored a straight set victory today over Don Turnbull of Australia, 7-5, 6-0, 6-2.

Meanwhile Cliff Sutter, third ranking American, and the tall Californian, Lester Stoefen, impressed the galleries with third round conquests over first-rate opposition. Sutter's stylish game was especially effective as he outplayed and outfought the top-ranking German, Gottfried Von Cramm, 6-3, 6-4, 9-7, in a beautiful stroking duel. Stoefen came through against W. H. Powell, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2, baffling the Englishman with his blinding service and having command of the match at nearly every stage.

Mrs. Moody's shotmaking resources and her tournament experience proved vastly too much for the young ranking English girl player, Mary Heeley, and the American won easily, 6-1, 6-1.

Texas Neighborhood Athletic Club Wins Junior A.A.U. Meet

CHICAGO, June 29. (AP) — Jesse Owens, the latest sprinting sensation, met a master today, the field event men monopolized the record breaking, and the Texas Neighborhood A. C., won the National A. A. U. junior track and field championship at Soldier Field.

The only other double winner was John Simmons of Abilene Christian college, who gave the Texas Neighborhood club ten of its points. He won the 1,500 meters in the fast time of 3 minutes, 58.6 seconds, and added the 800 meters title with a performance of 1 minute, 56.1 seconds.

The Texas club, drawing members from the whole of the huge state, scored 27 3-8 points. Michigan State normal of Ypsilanti, Mich., was second with 14 3-8, and Illinois Normal had 13. The Denver A. C., chiefly due to the work of Chester Cruickshank, who placed in the 56 pound weight, discus and hammer, was next with 11 3-8 points.

Lubbock Hubbers And Lorenzo Play At College Avenue Park At 5 O'Clock This Afternoon

Sled Allen To Take Team To Amarillo Sunday For Game With All-Stars; Lorenzo Promises Stiff Fight

Sled Allen's Lubbock Hubbers will meet the Lorenzo ball club in a regulation game this afternoon at the College Avenue park. The contest is carded to start at 5 o'clock.

Considerable baseball strength reputedly is wrapped beneath the Lorenzo colors, and the Hubbers anticipate a busy afternoon. Lorenzo's club, which at one time considered making a bid for membership in the South Plains League, is embellished by the presence of the Surratt brothers, nifty fielders and hitters who have played for two seasons in this territory, and of Hershel "Big" Galey, catcher who wore the mask for Lubbock a couple of seasons ago.

New Starting Time

Time of starting the game has been set at a late hour in the hopes that the customers will turn out in larger numbers. It is an experiment which, proven successful, may become a regular starting hour for local games.

The Hubbers will forego another South Plains league game Sunday and journey to Amarillo, where they meet a team of all-stars, Amarillo's leading ball club. According to the Amarillo press, considerable preparations are being made for the visit by the Hubber nine. The game will be played at Metro Park.

Lubbock is scheduled to play Enochs Sunday at Enochs, but the Hubbers will forfeit the contest, since it would have no bearing on the first half pennant race.

Today's game, which promises to be more than fairly interesting, should see the Hubbers in top notch condition, with a lineup which, save for one catcher and a pitcher, may carry the burden throughout the second half of the league season. Red Gaither, speedy outfielder who has played some neat games at third base, returned to Lubbock yesterday after a siege of baseball at Hobbs, N. M. He may play third this afternoon. The lineup should see Cowboy Kyle or Satch Hill on first, Winfield Breedlove or Ed Hambright at second, Chuck Webster at short, Gaither or Waller at third, Harold Crites in left field, Lefty Jones in center, and Ray Marshall or Ray Waller in right. R. V. Galey will catch and Red Howell or Ed Hambright will pitch.

BASEBALL'S BIG 8

(By The Associated Press)

Chuck Klein broke his tie with Spud Davis for the National League batting lead in a decisive way yesterday to gain second place in the Big Six, only a point behind the idle leader, Al Simmons.

While Davis was having a day off, Klein hit two homers and two singles in four times up and shot his average up to .371. Chick Fullis regained third in the National League, holding his mark at .334 with one hit in three times up while Jimmy Collins of St. Louis failed to connect and lost seven points. The Washington aces, Joe Cronin and Fred Schulte, both lost ground, Schulte getting one hit in five tries and Cronin none in two official times up. The standing.

Millions For West Texans

More Than $15,000,000 Being Paid To Texas Ranchers For Wool Crop; Angelo Section Gets Big Amount

SAN ANGELO, June 29 (AP)—More than $15,000,000, twice the sum expected when the season opened, is flowing into the pockets of Texas ranchmen from their spring wool and mohair crops. Most of this comes directly to San Angelo's trade territory.

About 35,000,000 pounds of wool have been sold in Texas at prices ranging from a low of 12 to a high of 28 1-2 cents a pound. The bulk sold at prices of 20 to 26 cents. It is expected that the remaining 5,000,000 unsold in the state will go at prices of 25 to 27 cents a pound or higher. A conservative estimate of the average price of the 40,000,000 pounds of wool sold in Texas this season is 22 cents a pound, or a total of $8,800,000.

Millions Consigned

In addition, there are from 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 pounds of government-mortgaged Texas wools consigned to Boston dealers. These consignments were ordered by the farm credit administration for wool upon which ranchmen owed loans received from various U. S. agencies. A small part of it has been sold at prices on a par with the highs received in Texas.

The mohair clip is sold out with the exception of a few scattered holdings. Most of the spring clip went at prices of 13 cents for the grown and 25 cents for the kid hair when the Texas Warehouse association sold its pool of 4,500,000 pounds. Since then, 800,000 pounds were sold by Frank Montague of Bandera at prices of 20 cents for the adult and 35 cents for the kid hair. As only 12 to 15 per cent was kid hair, the average price obtained for the mohair is figured at 15 cents for the 6,000,000 pounds, or a total of $900,000.

Sells In Upper Brackets

San Angelo wool warehouses handled this year around 21,000,000 pounds of wool and mohair which brought and is bringing in a total of about $5,000,000. Most of this wool sold in the upper price brackets.

Several million pounds remain to be sold in this immediate section.

It is estimated by wool leaders that the fall shearing of 8-months, or short wool, will run 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 because of the heavy demand for this class in recent days. The high, paid recently, has been 26 cents on this type wool which sold at 8 cents last year, when it could be disposed of at all.

It is estimated that Texas will have 7,500,000 pounds of mohair this fall, of which 15 per cent will be kid. Many expect this crop to go at prices better than the 20 cent top on adult and 35 cent on kid which is being paid now.

Hale County Man Has Unique Plan

HALE CENTER, June 29 (AP)—W. J. Williams, Hale County surveyor and farmer, has worked out an economical plan to make the strong Panhandle wind work for him.

Williams has improvised a home power plant which depends entirely on the wind to generate its current. His expenditure was about $6.

Most of the expense was for rewinding a generator taken from a worn-out automobile, a 2x10 inch pine board from which the propellor was made, and a set of 32 volt batteries. Williams did all of the work except rewinding the generator. It has operated several months without additional expense, supplying his home with electrical current.

Only a slight breeze at intervals is all that is needed to keep the batteries charged, Williams said.

Three-fourths of the nation's forest area is east of the Rockies.

Carnera Wins By A Knockout

One Sweep Of Italian's Huge Paw Is Enough And Champ Is Down For Count Without A Move To Rise

long, crashing right to Carnera's temple.

The massive Italian pulled back, his lips drawn back from his white mouthpiece in a kind of foolish grin. He mumbled something like "good, good," as Sharkey tore back. Then he lifted his tremendous right fist to the champion's jaw as they came to grips. The punch was a short uppercut inside as they were on the ropes.

Sharkey crumpled to the floor by the ropes, stretched flat on his face, as the crowd came to its feet with one long, amazed roar. As Referee Arthur Donovan picked up the count Sharkey never stirred. He was just beginning to move, his face buried in the canvas, hands to his head, as the final ten was tolled, two minutes, 27 seconds after the start of the sixth. Then his seconds leaped in and dragged the beaten champion to his corner, still apparently in a daze.

Picture To Be Last

If Sharkey lives up to his prebattle statements the picture of him slumped in his chair, water from the bottle of his frantic seconds cascading over his hair, his closed eyes, his body, will be the last the faithful will get out for the man who has flared so spectacularly through the heavyweights for the past eight years. Right up to the last punch tonight he was fighting one of the greatest battles of his career.

Bobbing, feinting, his lips in a thin snarl, eyes flashing between narrowed lids, the Boston sailor ripped into battle in flashes. He moved the giant Italian around, found his openings, then lashed his punches—long rights to the head—left hooks to the body, straight to the mark.

Italian Is Hurt

Three times in the second round, Sharkey's right cracked on Carnera's chin, hurting him obviously. The third was close as Carnera, grabbing the champion in his great arms, heaved him about the ring.

So rough did the Italian become in the fourth that he was twice warned by Referee Donovan, once for holding and hitting, again for backhanding, but Sharkey's expression never changed. He stalked his man carefully, making him miss, giving him his only chances in the clinches, where Carnera's tremendous power held all the advantage.

Breaks Through Guard

A swarming attack in the fifth broke through Carnera's arms and for a moment it seemed as if the Italian's course was run. He reeled as Sharkey chased him savagely, relentlessly, thudding left hooks to the body, winging every ounce of power he had behind his right to the head. Near the end of the round the right landed full and clean again. Carnera's legs spread wide, his eyes stared a second and his hands started down. But before Sharkey could set him for another clean smash, the huge natural guard of Carnera's arms was up again, he held tight, and the bell rang.

Sharkey had all the better of the sixth and had Carnera in even graver danger when the final blow crushed him down. The Associated Press score card gave Sharkey four of the first five rounds, crediting Carnera only with the first.

Strain Is Obvious

Sharkey, at 201 pounds, conceded Carnera almost sixty pounds in weight, and the strain was obvious. A far better boxer than the last time they met, improved in his hitting, Carnera still was no match for Sharkey in ring generalship and clean punching. But one hefty belt, with all weight behind it, offset all that in the final exchange.

Carnera's victory gave him several firsts in the book of heavyweight records. He is the biggest man ever to win the greatest of boxing's crowns, and was the first challenger ever to enter a ring with a heavyweight champion favored in the betting. At ring time Carnera was a 6 to 5 favorite.

Once Circus Strong Man

Originally a circus strong man discovered in a carnival in France, scarcely taken seriously as a fighter after his first barnstorming tour of the United States in which he piled up a string of questionable knockouts, Carnera became the second foreigner to win the title. Max Schmeling, the German, who beat Sharkey on a foul three years ago, then lost the championship to him on a fifteen-round decision last summer, was the first invader to win the crown.

It was Sharkey's third knockout defeat, the first since Jack Dempsey, who sat at the ringside tonight, blasted him down in seven rounds in 1927.

It imposes an additional tax of one-fourth per cent on corporations which file consolidated net tax returns for 1934 and 1935, making the rate 14 3-4 per cent.

It imposes a tax on accumulation of earnings held to avoid payment of excise tax on dividends.

Stocks

WALL STREET REPORT
By JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP) — Financial markets were disposed to move cautiously today as the big international debate on currency stabilization continued at full tilt.

Stocks behaved about as they did yesterday, which meant a selective market in which specialties did most of the advancing. Selling gained the upper hand during the late raiding and the average net change was again a moderate loss. Wheat more than recovered early losses, responding to further information on the extent of hot-weather damage. Corn and cotton both were losers, the latter being affected by exchange uncertainties.

Sterling swung excitedly and was lower nearly all day, traveling a range of around 15 cents. The foreign currency market found it extremely difficult to appraise stabilization prospects in view of the crop of reports on that point available during trading hours, but it was apparent that gold standard countries were still determined to maintain their fight.

Share traders combined the list for possible laggards and available candidates for an advance, settling on several stocks which recently have been prominent, settling on several stocks which recently have been prominent Commercial Colvents, American Ice, Standard Brands, Drug, Inc. Eastman Kodak and a few others rallied a fairm receipt at its "big board" debut—it was moved over from the curb—rising more than 5 in comparison with Wednesday's closing on the other market. Part of the gain was surrendered.

Bear representative issues were much less excited, thus conforming to recent habits. Sales totaled 4,592,720 shares.

Cotton

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP)—Cotton fluctuated irregularly today reflecting uncertainty over the international currency situation which overshadowed crop advices and other factors usually affecting the market. Early moderate advances on foreign and domestic trade buying attracted liquidation and southern selling with the volume of business restricted. October sold off from 10.45 to 10.21 and closed at 10.29 with the general market closing 4 to 9 points net lower.

The market failed to respond to relatively firm Liverpool cables at the opening and aside from July which was 5 points higher, initial prices were unchanged to 2 points lower with the tone barely steady. Offerings were not heavy and Liverpool brokers were fairly good buyers early in the day owing to the wider differences prevailing between the two markets. There was also considerable trade price fixing with the result that prices rallied to net gains of 2 to 10 points with July selling up to 10.12 and December to 9.61. All markets were nervous and when stocks and grains turned easier during the morning, cotton also eased to net losses of 10 to 12 points with July selling off to 9.25 and December to 10.38. During the remainder of the day fluctuations were narrow and irregular influenced by moderate orders either way. Exports today 37,150 making 7,821,299 so far this season. Port receipts 9,356. U. S. port stocks 3,497,796.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, June 29 (AP)—Cotton was again nervous and erratic today but much less active than recently. Price fluctuations were influenced largely by the erratic course of wheat and stocks and also by prospects of rain for the western belt and the tendency was reactionary in spite of sporadic rallies. The close was 7 to 8 points net lower.

The opening was easier, although Liverpool cables came in rather better than due. October dropped to 10.29 and December to 10.48, downs points from yesterday's close. The market rallied towards the end of the first hour on covering and October advanced to 10.40 and December to 10.58 or 10 to 11 points above the early lows and 5 to 6 points above the previous close.

Later prices reacted with wheat to 10.20 for October and 10.34 for December down 20 to 21 points from the highs and 14 to 16 points under yesterday's close.

The market ruled nervous all afternoon and fluctuated within the earlier range, influenced by the erratic movement in wheat and stocks. The tone was steadier near the end and October closed at 10.27 down 7 points net and December at 10.42 down 8 points net.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 3 to 4 penny points down.

Port receipts 9,784, for week, 54,398 for season 8,394,537, last season, 7,966,515. Exports 30,185, for week 113,966 for season 7,688,727, last season 8,181,968. Port stock 3,462,227, last year 2,606,416. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 140,055, last year 76,416. Spot sales at southern markets 18,110, last year 3,106.

Livestock

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, June 29 (AP)—Hogs 1,300; packer top 4.25, packer sows 3.25-3.50.

Cattle 2,000, one lot well-finished yearlings 6.00; good fat cows 2.00, butcher sorts 2.00.

Sheep 2,500; better grades lambs 5.00-5.25, good shorn fat yearlings 4.50, aged fat wethers 1.75.

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, June 29 (AP)—Trading in beef steers and yearlings around the eleven market circuit carried a steady to 25 lower trend even though receipts were moderate at most points. Dressed beef prices at eastern points were generally recorded as weak to 50 lower. Most fed steers and yearlings were of quality to sell around 4.75@5.75 with several loads at 6.00@6.75. A few loads of common to medium grass steers in Kansas City cleared within a spread of 3.40@4.25. A shipment at the latter price weighed 1171 pounds. Trade in stockers and feeders was slow, some markets reporting replacement steers almost unsalable. Accumulated receipts for the week to date at eleven markets numbered 185,900 as compared with 139,970 last week and 132,860 the same period a year ago.

Hogs met an unevenly lower outlet with prices ranging 5@20 lower. Prices on the close showed mostly a 10@15 decline with yesterday's average business. Chicago had an early top of 4.60 paid sparingly.

Selling levels on lambs were uneven, some markets listing prices steady to 25 higher while others were steady to 25 lower. The majority of fat lambs cleared within a spread of 6.50@7.25.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, June 29 (AP)—Big crop damage reported in the northwest turned wheat prices rapidly upward late today and dollar-a-bushel formed the rule anew at the close.

At one stage the wheat market rose to $1.01 1-4. Authoritative unofficial advices said prolonged high temperatures and hot and drought had taken heavy toll of spring wheat crops northwest, with unnumbered stools of wheat plants destroyed, and that as a result the production would be severely restricted, indicating virtually a one-stem crop.

Indications of general rains over the northwest with the moisture extending into the corn belt, were construed in some quarters as meaning the end of the drought and the heat wave. This led to sharp temporary setbacks in wheat values, the market going to 9 cents below Tuesday's high point, but swift advances later more than overcame losses.

Wheat closed nervous, 1-4@7-8 above yesterday's finish, corn 7-8@1- 3-4 down, oats 1-2@1 5-8 advanced, and provisions unchanged to 12 cents down.

Toward the last belief became widely prevalent among wheat traders that rains which fell both sides of the Canadian border arrived too late to afford much help to stricken crops.

Corn failed to rally with wheat, being handicapped by large receipts and by corn belt rains. Oats displayed independent strength owing to reports that crop damage to oats was irreparable.

Provisions reflected hog market downturns.

Closing indemnities Wheat—July 84, bids: Sept. 87 7-8@88, 96 3-4@97; Dec. 90 3-4@ 7-8, 99@99 1-8; May 95, 1.04. Corn— July 47 7-8, bids: Sept. 52 3-4@53, 57 3-4@ 7-8; Dec. 56 1-4, 61 1-2@5-8.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, June 29 (AP)—Demand was good for all grains and especially active for wheat on the Fort Worth market today. Estimated receipts included: Wheat 84 cars, corn 4, oats 9, barley 2 and sorghums 1.

Prices ranged as follows, basis car loads on track at Fort Worth, freight paid to destination. Delivered Texas gulf ports, export rate or Texas common points, wheat No. 1 hard 1.61 3-4@1.62 3-4. Barley: No. 2 nominally 60@62; No. 3 nominally 59@61. Sorghums No. 2 milo per 100 pounds 1.60@65, No. 3 milo 1.57@1.62. No. 2 kafir per 100 pounds 1.52@55; No. 3 kafir 1.50@53. ### Judge Declares Counties Cannot Bear Vote Expense

PARIS, June 29 (AP) — County Judge C. A. Martin today expressed doubt whether Texas counties can pay the expenses incidental to the special election ordered for August 26 when beer and repeal vote will be had.

He pointed out that the uniform budget law provides that all expenditures by Lamar county must be included in the budget and that county budgets do not provide for the expense of the special election.

Judge Martin has asked County Attorney J. M. Braswell for a written opinion on the matter.

Favored List

by Kahn to his daughter, Mrs. Maud E. Marriott, on December 30, 1930, was a "wash sale" and later reported it was an "ordinary transaction" on the stock exchange.

Just before the hearing recessed for the day, Pecora switched to the formation of the Pennroad corporation in 1929 by the Pennsylvania railroad to protect itself against other roads buying up properties in its territory.

Pecora said voting trusts instead of stock were sold to the public at $15 a share, that they were now listed at 3 1-2, and the investors had no say in the management of the corporation.

Inventions Of Devil

Kahn said "voting trusts might be inventions of the devil" and should be eliminated "unless good reason is shown why continuity of management should be secured."

Developments came rapidly as the hearing swept through its third day in the hot senate office building caucus room.

Kahn, senior partner of the New York private banking house, testified that while he paid no income tax in this country for 1930, 1931 and 1932, he did pay a tax of $4,480 abroad in 1930 and said he assumed it was for securities owned in England.

Between the morning and afternoon sessions, Chairman Fletcher told newspapermen the committee might make some inquiry into the Roosevelt boom market, but not at this time.

Based On Anticipation

"I think it is simply based on anticipation of what prices may be under the new governmental program," Fletcher said in discussing the present price rise. He added that no definite plans had been made but that Pecora would watch developments.

The committee will end its investigation tomorrow for the summer and when it resumes in the fall will finish the Kuhn, Loeb and other private banking inquiries before taking up practices of the stock exchange.

Smallest Crop

to June 15. Since the latter date, wheat has increased sharply in price and administrators decided to ignore this rise in order to levy the 30 cent tax which their plans called for.

Would Force Deduction

However, while they disapprove of changing the tax rate frequently or reducing it below 30 cents, a continuation of high prices would ultimately force them to reduce the rate under provisions of the act.

In its report on damage, the bureau said crops and pastures were seriously hurt by drouth throughout June "in virtually the entire area east of the Rocky mountains."

Despite the outlook for a crop of wheat below domestic needs—which would be the first this century—the bureau asserted that the new crop together with the domestic carry-over "will probably provide a surplus for export."

Dollar Drop Blamed

"There is little prospect of selling this surplus abroad so long as United States prices remain far above an export parity with the world market," it said. "The rise in wheat prices here is attributed largely to dollar depreciation in foreign exchanges since the domestic market is still burdened by a very large carry-over and the world market price is still at a very low level."

Last year the world carry-over for the chief wheat producing countries, the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina, together with United Kingdom port stocks and stocks of wheat afloat, was estimated at 665,000,000 bushels.

The bureau's estimate for an increase of 50,000,000 bushels in this figure would bring the carry-over to 715,000,000 bushels.

Rise Is Spectacular

At the same time Oscar Johnston, finance administrator under the farm act, in a statement called the recent rise of more than four cents a pound in cotton "spectacular."

He said farmers should not "be deluded with the thought that the present price of cotton is sound or economically justifiable in the face of the crop which would be harvested, assuming normal conditions, from the acreage now planted to cotton."

Johnston, Secretary Wallace, George N. Peek, chief administrator, and Charles J. Brand, co-administrator, all have attributed part of the rise in the price of both commodities to anticipation of a smaller supply as a result of their acreage reduction campaigns.

There was no answer. She summoned the house physician, who said Arbuckle had been dead a half hour.

Last Of A Series Of Meetings On Cotton Plan Set For Today

County Agent Believes That Lubbock Farmers Will Exceed Quota Of Acres To Be Taken From Production

Last of a series of community meetings of instruction on the government cotton reduction plan will be conducted today by County Agent O. G. Tumlinson and his assistant, R. N. McClain.

The meetings will be as follows: 10 a. m., Canyon; 1 p. m., McClung; 4 p. m., Slaton; 8:30 p. m., Posey.

Mr. Tumlinson, at the close of 20 meetings, yesterday said that he believed Lubbock county farmers will exceed the quota of acres to be taken out of cotton production this year.

"In my opinion, based on what I have heard at 20 meetings, this county will exceed its 56,000-acre reduction quota," he said. "There is no doubt about the plan being accepted by farmers and landlords.

Cooperation Reported

"By Friday night we will have reached every community and then we will be in a position to know what to expect. I had not anticipated such a ready response. We had splendid cooperation from the community workers and also the county control committee.

"Committees now are working on contracts and by Saturday we should have a report on the number signed."

Groups and individuals continue to call at the county agent's office with questions about acreage problems.

Thursday's meetings were: 10 a. m. Foster; 1 p. m., Wolfforth; 4 p. m., Hurlwood; 8:30 p. m., Carlisle.

Several community groups and committees were formed Wednesday. They included:

Acuff: temporary community organization, Douglas Pounds, chairman; Earl Davis, vice-chairman; M. L. Brashear, secretary; cotton committee, same as the officers.

Southwest ward: community committee, W. M. Ross, chairman; J. T. Kerr, vice-chairman; Ernest Barton, secretary; Arthur Dean, Ross and D. M. Key, cotton committee.

Farmers of the Northeast ward school district organized at a meeting conducted Wednesday by R. N. McClain, assistant county agent. About 60 farmers attended and more than two thirds said they would sign. Manuel Styles was named chairman of the community organization; Jerry Burns, vice-chairman, and J. H. Beard, secretary. The cotton committee is composed of W. L. Ford, L. C. Boyd, jr., and J. R. Thompson.

At Southeast ward school about 20 farmers selected the following committee: R. C. Richardson, H. M. Markham and R. C. Henard.

H. H. Williamson, assistant director of cotton acreage reduction, sent O. G. Tumlinson, county agent, the following information Thursday:

"Acreage estimate in contracts must be kept in line or campaign will be waged in vain."

Early county reports showed cotton yield way out of line with county average as estimated by the state department of agriculture.

Family Row Over Throne And Plotting To Obtain Republic Beset Royalty

By RICHARD MASSOCK

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Monaco's royal family, beset by difficulties political and private, is seeking to work out the destiny of the Grimaldi dynasty with the princely throne at stake.

A movement to transform the roulette-supported principality into a republic under French supervision has arisen, along with a dispute over the succession to the crown.

Pretender Renews Claim

Count Aynard de Chabrillon, pretender to the throne of Prince Louis II, renewed his claim when Princess Charlotte, daughter of Louis, renounced her right of succession.

There also have been side-problems for the royal family following the recent divorce of Princess Charlotte and her husband, Prince Pierre de Grimaldi, formerly the Count de Polignac.

Children Made Pawns

Disagreement regarding the custody of the children, Prince Rainier and Princess Antoinette, has just been terminated by an arrangement whereby they will be with their father during the summer months. They are to winter with Prince Louis.

Prince Rainier, who was 10 years old on May 31, is the crown prince since his mother abdicated her rights.

The 64-year-old Count de Chabrillon, however, in a note to the French foreign office, claims that he inherited the right of succession from the family branch headed by the German Duke of Urach.

Assembly Backs Louis

The Count de Chabrillon, who claims descent from Honore III of Monaco, ancestor of Louis, lives in France.

Meanwhile there has been political agitation for a republic. At the same time, however, the Monegasque assembly and the communal delegation, both appointed by Louis after he suspended the constitution several years ago, have proclaimed their loyalty to the reigning prince and to Prince Rainier.

Princess Charlotte, 34-year-old daughter of a morganatic marriage of Prince Louis, was legitimatized in 1919, making her eligible to the throne. But recently she expressed a desire to "live a free life."

She said she had done her duty by giving two children to the dynasty and she had no desire to reign over the 1,600 subjects and 23,000 other inhabitants of the ledge of rock, eight miles square, which embraces the principality.

It has been rumored that Princess Charlotte intends to marry a commoner and live in France or Italy.

Prince Louis II, 62-year-old ruler of Monaco, the tiny domain which long has been a magnet for high-stake gamblers, is trying to settle family disputes and overcome republican plots.

After asking whether or not this "reversal" is "a reflection of our religious convictions," a report by a committee on the state of religion, asserts:

The Wrong Attitude

REPORTS to several committees securing signers of the government's cotton acreage reduction plan in Lubbock county tell of refusal of landlords to let tenants sign up for the cash benefit and option without first agreeing to let the landlord have at least forty and in some cases fifty per cent of the payments.

Now the usual rent agreement on cotton calls for one-fourth to the landlord. Is it right that he now be demanding more than his share under the government's plan?

The argument has been put forth that the farmer hasn't had to put out much effort to get the cash due him from the government's contract and therefore he isn't entitled to the same ratio as if a regular crop was made.

Hasn't the farmer spent time and money putting in his crop and hasn't he as much right to demand the same rent ratio under the plan now as he would if the crop were gathered. Won't he have to plow up the landlord's cotton when he plows his up and shouldn't he get paid for this work?

The Morning Avalanche can see no justice in a landlord demanding more than his rightful share under the cash payment plan.

The legislation calling for the cotton acreage reduction is a recovery measure and must have the wholehearted support of all concerned in order to bring about recovery. Failure to attain the goal set for the plan means failure of the entire project and possible serious consequences to the cotton market.

What if every landlord over the entire South took the same attitude as some Lubbock men have taken? The government's plan would be an absolute failure, for after all it was inaugurated to aid the farmer and not the landlord. The landlord usually has other income besides the revenue from his land while the farmer has to depend entirely upon his work on the farm for his livelihood.

A large number of farmers are signing the reduction contracts, knowing that they could realize more money from a full crop but their signing has been more of a patriotic duty than anything else. Of course they realize that they will benefit more if the plan is successful.

Why can't the landlords assume the same attitude!

THE PROSPERITY SHOTGUN

The gun with which Uncle Sam has gone pot-hunting for prosperity is high-powered and double-barreled. Nearly everyone has realized the high power; but most people, abroad and at home, are just waking up to the fact of two barrels.

One of these barrels is national, the other international. As the government's policies become clear, showing in the reconstruction measures, the primary program is seen to be domestic. The New Deal is regarded as essentially an American deal for America, to be accomplished either with or without the rest of the world. The administrative program for it is now being launched, with government and private business co-operating on many fronts.

This policy alone would mean isolation. It recognizes that the United States, while not seeking to withdraw into a narrow nationalism, i s probably better equipped to live alone, by its vast and varied resources, than any other nation, and that it might be obliged to do so. This is preparedness.

Next comes the supplementary foreign program. Our human and business interests are broad. We would like to co-operate with the rest of the world as we co-operate among ourselves. Reasonable and effective co-operation would benefit us greatly, along with the other nations. We invite communication. We will play with them if they will play with us, in a game with fair rules and with right good will.

We are now engaged, through the world economic conference and by other diplomatic devices, in seeing whether genuine co-operation for mutual progress is possible. If not—we shall be sorry, but we can fall back upon our own resources.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread.—Psalms, 37:25.

The National Whirligig

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Paul Mallon

PROGRAM: Mr. Roosevelt has his mind fixed on the next three steps. You will probably see them work out in the following order:

1—Delay of currency stabilization, tariff reform and other international panaceas.

2—Concentration on a two-point test program at home, the two points being the Industrial Control setup and the Farm Control bill.

3—Withholding such inflationary moves as dollar revaluation for at least two months to see how the No. 2 step works out.

This is the definite program now being passed around the inner circle. It is meeting with acclaim.

The boys at the top privately believe there is a very good chance that the Industrial Control plan will work out well. They are doubtful about the Farm program. They will not say so publicly because they do not want to embarrass the setup but that is their firm private conviction.

They see the Industrial regime redistributing the national income. That sounds like something Huey Long advocates, but it is not. It means only that the short hour day and work week with limited profits and trade agreements will spread the purchasing power to larger numbers.

Some of Mr. Roosevelt's trusted economists privately believe we may pull out without using the present program to its fullest. Business generates new business. The economic snowball gets larger going uphill as well as it did going down. Every man going back to work helps put five other men to work when he spends his new salary.

That is probably an optimistic view. The general inner supposition is that something like revaluation of the dollar will be needed later. You will know in about two months.

There is no guarantee against Mr. Roosevelt changing his mind. He does it frequently. He will do it again if he sees commodity prices falling off.

You can follow the inner barometer of this administration by watching the commodity markets. The stock market is not of prime importance. The foodstuffs, textile and raw material markets are. Everything will sail smoothly along existing lines as long as those markets are in good shape.

You will see things starting to happen when they fall off.

DEFTS: Our officials still comment off the record about what a cheap trick it was for England to take advantage of the silver loophole in her partial debt payment.

They expected something like that from some other nations, but not proud England.

It saved her around two million of dollars but it cost her more than that in prestige with those who count in the administration.

You will never know what pressure France exerted in Europe to make other nations default on their war debts.

She did not try to influence Great Britain or Italy but she bore down hard on the inside with the smaller countries. Her game obviously was to get as many in the defaulting boat with her as she could. One of those which felt such pressure was Finland. She paid no attention to it. She paid.

Our officials have heard confidentially about the matter. It has not diminished their ill-feeling against France.

FRONT: There was nothing sudden about State Secretary Hull deciding to return to Washington. Or about Prof. Moley going abroad. That switch had been planned for weeks on the inside, as forecast in this column.

When it came, the rumors naturally started that Hull was to retire.

There will be nothing to them until Hull has decided he is fed up. The situation has not changed except that the public knows more about it. Hull continues to be the international front man; Moley the nationalist background.

NOTES: J. P. Morgan's personal hero is Lindbergh. . . . He has been taking care of Lindbergh's personal affairs since the day the aviator landed in Paris. . . . That may be one reason why Lindbergh is financially able to donate his home as a child welfare center. . . . Woodin's friends are denying the rumors that he will retire, because he has leased a house here. . . . That is an old stunt. . . . The last time it was worked was when Mr. Hoover's secretary George Akerson stopped rumors about his retirement with a lease. . . . He jumped into the movie game six weeks later. . . . The trick is, nearly all leases in Washington carry what is known as the Army-Navy clause. . . . It authorizes cancellation if the business of the lessee takes him out of town.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

REPUBLICANS: The Republicans took the first step on their comeback last week.

Chairman Everett Sanders called an important meeting of leaders in New York. The old guard was in the saddle. Such grizzled political veterans as Hilles of New York and Roraback of Connecticut were more than among those present.

The meeting decided that industrial control was the most likely Democratic Achilles' heel. Every move will be watched for signs of chinks in the armor.

The plan is to rally conservatives to the old battle-cry that the government is interfering with private initiative. The boys are too wise to start anything yet. But they will be busy from now on gathering ammunition to shoot in next year's Congressional campaign. They rate these tactics the best hope of rising from the ashes.

SPRAGUE: Prof. O. H. W. Sprague comes mighty close to being a dictator of national policy on credit and currency matters. New York understands that he has been given extraordinary authority over treasury and Federal Reserve decisions.

FEDERAL RESERVE: There is another reason for the recall of Governor Harrison of the New York Federal Reserve bank beyond the report that he exceeded his instructions at London. The Glass bill—which was signed while he was over there—provides that a Federal Reserve officer must submit a detailed written report to the Reserve Board of any negotiations he carries on with foreign banks. This part of the measure was a slap at the New York bank—which has been accustomed to going its own sweet way in dealing with London and Paris.

But the point in the present case is that a written report on confidential negotiations — placed where some obstreperous senator might demand a look at it—would not be a good thing to have lying around.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARRETT COLVIN, 35, returns to New York after four years' absence. He is rich and has made a name for himself as an archeologist. The first to greet him is his half-sister, MARCIA RADNOR, younger, selfish and spoiled. Marcia is happily married now. Years before Barrett shielded her when a youthful flirtation ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. She is worried because the boy's tutor has threatened her with blackmail and declares her husband will never forgive her if he learns the truth. Barrett agrees to deal with the tutor, HAROLD DEXTER.

As Marcia is leaving she sees ELINOR STAFFORD across the street and offers to drive her home. Elinor, 20, has been calling on her wealthy aunt, MISS ELLA SEXTON. All Miss Sexton's relatives (with the exception of Elinor) are eagerly awaiting her death, hoping to inherit a share of the Sexton fortune.

Marcia and Elinor depart. The girl, instead of going home, goes to visit her cousin, PHILIP SEXTON, and loans him $20. Philip has been disowned by his aunt. Elinor is the only one of the family who remains friendly with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

Two days later Barrett Colvin, in Connecticut, stepped into his low roadster. His ward, who at nine years was beginning to stretch to the famed Colvin height, stood near by, looking at Barrett wistfully. "I do wish you could stay longer!" he said. Then, with an effort, he forced a smile, adding, "It was nice of you to come. I'm glad you came!"

Barrett leaned from the car to take the boy's hand. "I'm coming back!" he promised, "and we're going to have some good times!"

He was tremendously attracted to Gerald who was clever without being too serious, who was, in short, the reassuringly normal, healthy-minded fabric for a man. Gerald would turn out well, Barrett knew, if he had his chance; and the visit had strengthened the intensity of Barrett's vow to give Gerald that chance.

"It was fine of you to come, Mr. Barry, and to send me all those cards when you were away. I'd pretty nearly forgotten what you looked like. You see it was a long time ago that you went away."

"That's true," Barrett agreed, contritely.

"Are you going to stay here a while now?" the boy asked. He tried, without success, to make his question casual.

"I will, I promise, Gerald, until it's easy for you to let me go—"

"Gee whiz, I don't see how you can ever go then!" Jerry commented, smiling.

"We all freckle that way," Barrett thought. He tightened his hand on the boy's. Nice youngster! Deserving of everything square and good! Odd how it made you feel to see family traits intensify . . . rather melted a heart and made you humble . . . made you want to make up for the things you hadn't had, to be certain there would be no gaps in the unfolding life.

"I wish I could take you back with me, Jerry," said Barrett without knowing that he had meant to say it.

"Gee whiz, wouldn't that be great!" Gerald answered. His eyes brightened.

"I will—some day!" Barrett stated, and his chin squared. "And I keep my word," he thought, looking down on Jerry; "I wonder whether you know that?"

Mrs. Cook, in whose house Gerald made his home, appeared at the doorway. "You'll catch cold without your hat, Gerald!" she called sharply. Gerald's face changed; Barret frowned, pulling on his thick gloves. He was not at all satisfied about the situation. Gerald had admitted that he would like a new tutor, that he had not "exactly liked" Mr. Dexter. Playing checkers with Barrett he had said, "This is fine. I like to play checkers but, you see, nobody ever has time to play with me."

Rolling toward New York Barrett wondered perplexedly where he was to find the new, right home for Gerald, a home ruled by some comfortably portly soul who would know that a small boy's needs are not entirely answered by a full dinner plate and who would see to it that he was fed in all ways.

Marcia had been a criminal—and so had Barrett himself! But he had felt that his success might be made by a trip to the Gobi, and in that belief time had proved him right. He hated rich men's idle sons; he could not be one. Archeology was not his hobby but his work and a work to which he devoted his entire energy. It was absurd he realized, to reproach himself with the fact that he had not stayed at home to play nursemaid to his sister's child. Yet he had known his sister, and his compunction persisted.

Marcia had promised that through old Annie, a maid who knew of the affair, she would watch over the boy. So far as Barrett could discover Annie had not made even one trip to Mrs. Cooke's farm home. He felt increasing resentment, reminding himself that he was a fool to have placed the slightest trust in any of Marcia's easy promises. If he reproached her (as he would not, kept by common sense from making futile motions) Marcia would probably murmur, "But I thought, Barry—I really thought Annie had gone. I told her to go—I'm certain, dear!" And, this murmur made, she would be done with the matter. Barrett shook his head. There was no understanding now anyone could shake responsibility as Marcia did.

The boy was appealing too. Engagingly unspoiled, obviously a truth-teller and softened so easily by kindness. It was all too evident that kindnesses were not common for him.

"Damn!" said Barrett, half-aloud but feelingly. He could not remember being more shamed and irritated. Shamed at having had part in an arrangement so patently unsatisfactory and irritated by Marcia's running true, as she always did, to her selfish type.

Civilization? The devil with it! Allowing such tangles to be hidden, making them things to hide! Barrett was weary of lies, evasions, unfairness to those who could not declare their rights. He mused unhappily for some time on these and other dark facts. Then the feeling of the open quieted him a little, a feeling that is never found by those who must have company and "something going on!"

The sting of the first hard frost was in the air. A few neglected pumpinks, puckered and shrunken by the bitter night, gleamed between shocks of corn. Wind rattled eerily through these, making, beside the purr of motor, the only other sound in the stillness.

A head in a hollow which was severed by the twisting, silvered macadam road was a wood where modest oaks, clinging tenaciously to summer garb, made brown patches in the gray of blended boughs and tree trunks.

Yes, it was good to be alive and to have a go at the old world in spite of everything, Barrett decided. Suddenly again he saw Elinor Stafford's young face raised to his. The vision disconcerted him. He had never had the least use for "old fools hovering around spring flowers"—men with thinned locks, thick waist lines and shortened breath who danced attendance on pretty young girls.

It was true that he was not in that class physically. He had kept remarkably fit. A man can not wield a pick under a desert sun without some return in hardness! Still he was 35 years old and Elinor Stafford could not be more than 20 at the most, he decided—perhaps for the fiftieth time.

He tried to visualize her as she had looked four years ago but the new vision covered and dimmed the old. He remembered suddenly that Elinor's mother had been called at that time the most beautiful woman in New York and that everyone, seeing her with her daughter, had wondered at the daughter's lack of grace, of arresting loveliness or languid, wistful appeal.

When Barrett reached home he found Higgins waiting with several messages. Mrs. Radnor had telephoned and asked Mr. Barrett to telephone her between six and seven. A young gentleman named Dexter had called. He had not been willing to explain his mission to Higgins but had promised to call another time. Barrett's square chin became dangerously set. He did not know what Garold's erstwhile tutor, Dexter, could want of him but he knew exactly what he wanted from Dexter if he intruded—or tried to intrude. Barrett would enjoy the solace of pitching him out and he had not seen the man he could not deal with in this way if he wished to.

Higgins waited. Quite obviously he had something else to say.

"Well?" Barrett prompted a little shortly. He had been put out by Dexter's daring to call. The matter was closed; he had dismissed Dexter.

"Miss Ella Sexton sent you a note at noon, sir," Higgins said. "I went over to tell her you were gone from town and she sent back word through Craven that she would like you to read her note as soon as you returned."

Capitol Chatter

By Charles E. Simons

Associated Press Staff Writer

Charles E. Simons

AUSTIN, June 29 (AP)—The early drawing of political lines preliminary to the next gubernatorial campaign has conceived predictions that it will be a protracted affair.

Three men have been placed in the running already by their friends and well-wishers. They are James V. Allred, serving his second term as attorney general, Edgar E. Witt, lieutenant governor, and Coke R. Stevenson, speaker of the 43rd Texas house of representatives.

A fourth candidate has been in the field since the first primary campaign of 1932 when he ran third to Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and Former Governor R. S. Sterling. He is Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls who recently was quoted as saying he had never stopped running for the 1934 nomination.

Stevenson was presented with an elaborate riding outfit and was urged to rope a horse and ride it into the governor's office.

Witt was wished "godspeed" in any future political undertaking at a farewell party at the close of the regular session.

Allred recently was presented with a surcingle by South Texas friends and urged to ride bareback into the gubernatorial chair.

Should Allred and Hunter run it would be a contest between two home town boys as far as Wichita Falls was concerned.

With Stevenson, Allred and Hunter in the race, the West Texas vote would probably be widely split.

Witt, Allred and Stevenson have not indicated their intentions, but are believed to have their ears to the ground to catch the political rumblings.

Edwina Booth Faces Death After African Movie Trip

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—An adventurous year in Africa, a better than average chance at movie fame and a few thousand dollars may cost Edwina Booth her life.

The blond heroine of the jungle-made picture, "Trader Horn," has been ill virtually all of the time since she returned three years ago. She has been confined to her bed for the last 16 months. Recently her condition became critical and her mother says her recovery is extremely doubtful.

"Our doctors say the tropical sun burned up certain nerve cells in Edwina's body," her mother, Mrs. James L. Woodruff, who is nursing her, explains. "They say these cells never can be regrown.

Condition Varies

"Frequently Edwina seems to be improving, and our hopes are raised, but then she fails rapidly again and we become almost despondent. We try so hard not to realize that there is little hope of her ever getting well."

Although her body is wasting away, the young actress' mind is alert and active much of the time. When she is able to be propped up in bed, she reads, writes and models in clay. Some of her modeling has a professional touch, although she never has taken lessons.

She has written several score of clever verses for a child's book, which her younger sister has illustrated—Edwina, who is 23, is the oldest of five children.

Future Looked Bright

"The opportunity to be in 'Trader Horn' seemed to Edwina and us the grandest thing in the world," her mother says. "The studio promised her that if she made good in it she would be kept under contract and put in other pictures.

"After she came back Edwina played in two serials for other studios, and she had just started a good part in another picture when she collapsed on the set. That was 16 months ago and she hasn't been near a studio since.

"All of her money is gone now—she was paid only $100 a week on the trip to Africa—and that knowledge adds to her discouragement. Sometimes we've been in actual need, not only for food but also for medicine and other things Edwina needed.

In Court Case

"The damage suit hurt her terribly and caused a nervous breakdown."

Soon after the "Trader Horn" party came back, Mrs. Duncan Renaldo, wife of the actor who played the hero in the film, sued Miss Booth for alienation of affections. The case failed to reach trial when Mrs. Renaldo's attorney said his client had insufficient evidence to proceed.

An extra girl when she was picked to portray the character of Nina T., Miss Booth is regarded in many parts of the world as a reigning star. Her mother showed a pile of many hundred letters that had come from fans in every country. The most recent was from Palestine, where "Trader Horn" played not long ago, more than two years after its release.

Brilliant Film Career Is Ended

Promised a continuance of her Hollywood contract if she made good in "Trader Horn," Edwina Booth had visions of a glorious success in the films. But the year spent in Africa making the picture wrecked her health, says her mother, and she is in a critical condition. Here are two photographs of Miss Booth, the one at the right showing her as she arrived in this country from the expedition.

Washington Expected To Aid In Checking Dollar Gyration

Action From America Believed Necessary To Prevent Break In Parley; Salvation Hopes Being Expressed

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—The expectation prevailed in some world economic conference quarters tonight that the Washington government would cooperate in checking the gyrations of the dollar and thus save the parley from the threat of a breakdown over the vexing stabilization issue.

The belief was that America would take this action while still holding fast against immediate pegging of the currency.

The hopes that the conference had been saved were voiced at the end of a strenuous day in which countries forming the European gold bloc fought tirelessly behind the scenes for protection of their currencies, threatening to quit the conference if Great Britain and the United States refuse to cooperate.

Climax Comes

The climax came in a meeting of Prime Minister MacDonald, chairman of the assembly, with Raymond Moley, President Roosevelt's special envoy, in which Mr. MacDonald, holding an ultimatum from the gold bloc was understood to have asserted further progress was impossible as long as abnormal dollar movements threatened the gold currencies.

Just what took place at this encounter of the British premier and President's adviser remained a deep secret, but well informed delegates expressed belief that the British had cast their lot with the United States rather than with the gold group.

The British financial authorities endeavored during the day to pacify spokesmen for the gold countries with a statement to which the principal powers could adhere indicating the desire of non-gold countries to protect the gold group.

Look For Statements

But this plan eventually was torn up and important conference quarters looked for issuance of two separate statements on the stabilization question, probably tomorrow.

The statement by the non-gold group, constituted principally of the United States and Great Britain, is expected to set forth the impossibility of stabilizing currencies until internal economic conditions permit, but to state that a return to gold is the ultimate objective and that the prevention of unnecessary fluctuations meantime is desirable.

It was made clear that this would not constitute de facto stabilization of currencies but merely a move to cooperate to prevent speculation and the needless sudden shifting of funds.

STORE YOUR WHEAT

Wheat is too high to store on the ground or in out houses. We will advance the money to pay threshing and hauling if the wheat is not mortgaged and you store with us.

A rain now would damage wheat and the loss would be greater than storage charges for several months.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 23

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan of the Apes lived on in his wild jungle existence with little change for several years, growing stronger and wiser. With Tantor the Elephant he made friends. On many moonlit nights Tarzan and Tantor walked together. All else of the jungle were his enemies, except his own tribe.

At eighteen, Tarzan had never seen a human being other than himself. But as he sat one day in a tall tree, trying to solve the mystery of the cabin, the ancient security of his jungle was broken forever. A strange cavalcade strung in single file over a low hill.

In advance were fifty black warriors armed with wooden spears, long bows, and poisoned arrows. Then came several hundred women and children followed by more warriors. They were fleeing from the white man's soldiers, having massacred a white officer. They set to work to build a new village. Tarzan wondered.

A month later it was complete, and they had taken up their old life in their new home. Several moons passed before they ventured far from their safety, for many had fallen prey to the jungle animals. But one day Kulonga, son of their old king, wandered far toward the west.

Warily he stepped — his long shield grasped close to his sleek, ebony body. Night found him far from his father's village. He climbed into the fork of a great tree, fashioned a rude platform, and curled himself for sleep. Three miles to the west of him slept the tribe of Kerchak.

Youth Is Sought In Range Country

McCALL, Ida., June 29 (AP)—Lost in the rainy range country, 165 miles north of here, the seven-year-old son of Frank Lobears was the object of a search today.

Foresters at the Big Creek ranger station, the one nearest to the place of the search, said the lad had been missing since Sunday when he left one of his father's mining claims to journey four miles on snowshoes to his mother at another camp.

Not until Tuesday did his father and mother learn the lad was missing. Then Lobears returned to the camp and communicated with his wife to discover the boy had not arrived.

No Change Is Contemplated In East Texas Oil Allowable

DALLAS, June 29 (AP)—Lon A Smith, chairman of the state railroad commission, said today that the commission did not contemplate at this time any change in the 549,695 barrel daily allowable in the East Texas oil field.

Smith explained that the order banning back allowable, issued yesterday, would not be effective for longer than the month of July.

"We had to forbid the running of back allowable for that month," he said, "because it was causing a drain that was too heavy on the entire field."

He said that tests showed that bottom-hole pressure in East Texas had risen since the allowable was reduced from more than 800,000 barrels and the commission desired to raise it still higher.

A steam railroad line operating between Marysville and Oreville, Cal., reported a total passenger service net income of $3.70 for April of this year.

Officers Abandon Theory In Search For Armed Terrorist

DALLAS, June 29 (AP)—The sheriff's office today abandoned the theory that Carl Deininger, 20, escaped inmate from the Wichita Falls asylum, was the armed man who spread terror in a negro settlement near Wilmer last night.

Instead, their efforts were turned to the capture of a Kaufman county man said to have retreated to the bottom land near the Kaufman-Dallas county line.

The man fired wildly at negroes and threatened to kill all negroes in the county.

Four daily air services are now operated between London and Paris.

Two Are Dead In Car Crash

Three Trucks Run Together On Highway Wednesday Night In California; Two Other Men Believed Dying

RIVERSIDE, Calif., June 29 (AP)—A crash of three trucks on the highway between Banning and Indio last night, believed to have been caused when the driver of one of the machines fell asleep at the wheel, cost the lives of two men and injured two others so seriously that they may die.

The dead are:

Ealus Tabet, Mountainair, N. M., burned to death.

Gabin Bacca, also of Mountainair, died of injuries.

The injured are Mike Tabet and Ishmael Guzman, both of Mountainair, and Ernest De La O, and Joe Munalo, both of Los Angeles. Mike Tabet and Guzman were given little chance for recovery.

Clarence Bailey of Los Angeles, saved his life by jumping from his truck. He was injured.

Two of the trucks crashed head-on at a reported high rate of speed, and the third truck, unable to stop in time, crashed into the wreckage of the other two.

Richmond county, Ga., is being "dried up" as 2,000 workmen drain lakes and pools that are breeding places for malaria mosquitoes.

Mountain Climb Receives Delay

LONDON, June 20 (AP)—The chairman of the Houston Mount Everest expedition, C. G. Bruce, announced today that as a consequence of continued bad weather the expedition will be withdrawn.

"That does not mean," he said, "that we have given up hope of finally getting there. The struggle still goes on, but for the moment the mountain has won against man and his machine."

Two expeditions were financed by Lady Robert Houston to conquer the world's loftiest peak, which towers 29,141 feet. One, the air expedition, flew over Mount Everest early in April.

The other, headed by Hugh Ruttledge, a retired officer in the Indian civil service, sought to conquer the peak by land. It had expected to reach the base camp north of Everest in April with two months to go before the monsoon.

Unsuccessful attempts to scale the Himalaya monarch also were made in 1921, 1922, and 1924.
