East Germany eases border laws

Bush vows to promote Democracy in East

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush promised Friday "to seize every chance" to promote democracy in turbulent Eastern Europe but Secretary of State James A. Baker III ruled out substantial Western aid for East Germany until "there is political pluralism across the board."

Bush, traveling in Texas, noted the spectacle of Berliners hacking at the wall that divides their city with hammers and chisels and the opening of 18 crossings in the wall and said he was surprised at the speed of change.

The accelerating torrent of change in previously closed societies "offers us all much hope and deserves our continued encouragement," Bush said in a Dallas speech.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl spoke with Bush by telephone for 18 minutes and gave him a "thorough briefing on the first part of his trip to Poland and on developments in East Germany."

Bush congratulated Kohl on his handling of the East German situation and "promised the full cooperation of the United States."

The two "agreed that these dramatic developments make the Malta meeting (between Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev) even more important and agreed to consult closely between now and the meeting," Fitzwater said. He said they would talk again next week.

Speaking a day after the East German government announced a lifting of all travel restrictions and just before news arrived of a promise of free elections in East Germany, Bush said, "We will seize every opportunity to contribute to lasting peace and to extend democracy."

Bush offered no specifics as to future policy, saying only that he would be guided by "prudence" and "imagination."

But in remarks at a fund-raising dinner for Texas Gov. Bill Clements, the president sounded a note of restraint.

"The best way to keep America and the West free is to keep the United States of America strong," Bush said.

East German citizens are applauded by West Germans as they cross Checkpoint Charlie in their cars Friday afternoon to visit the West. Thousands of East Germans moved to West Berlin after the East German government opened the wall.

Workers cutting new openings into Wall

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany ended all border restrictions Friday and cut a new passage in the Berlin Wall at Bernauer Strasse, where desperate people once leaped from windows and border guards shot down others trying to flee.

Work was reported on many more new openings in the wall that divided the city for 28 years.

More than 100,000 jubilant East Germans climbed over and rushed through borders Friday for the first time since 1961. They chatted amiably with stony-faced guards who no longer have orders to open fire.

Thousands crossed back and forth during the day. West German television showed East German guards helping East Berliners climb over the wall to avoid congested check points. Some border guards were handed roses by beaming girls.

Communist leader Egon Krenz told 150,000 people at a rally in East Berlin that his new reforms "will not be turned back." The party's Central Committee approved a document calling for free elections, more restrictions on its security forces and greater separation of party and state.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany flew to West Berlin hoping to speak with Krenz, who has stunned the world with rapid reforms — and a pledge of free elections — intended to appease pro-democracy protesters and end emigration to the West.

Work began late Friday at the Bernauer Strasse.

East Germans used a hydraulic crane to dismantle the round top of the concrete wall. East German workers could be heard knocking on the wall.

Peter Zeisler, a West German police official at the scene, said: "It will be a pretty hole that will make it possible for people and cars to come through."

The new crossing was scheduled to be opened at 8 a.m. Saturday.

On the Western side, dozens of firemen dismantled observation platforms from which West Berliners used to gaze across the wall. About 400 people watched, occasionally setting off fireworks.

Lujan says U.S. foreign oil dependence 'frightening'

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan Friday told a Midland oil and gas meeting that America's growing dependence on foreign crude oil is frightening.

Speaking to over 300 members and guests at the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, Lujan said America now imports 42 percent of its crude oil needs and that by the year 2000 the amount could be 60 percent.

"We now consume $39 billion in imported oil which accounts for about 20 percent of our trade deficit. We just don't have the luxury of depending on foreign oil," said the former New Mexico congressman, who noted that the amount of imported crude oil was equal to the total amount oil consumed in transportation each year.

"Worse," said Lujan, "Secretary of Energy Watkins says all studies indicate that demand for oil and gas will continue to rise despite the strongest commitment to conservation."

Lujan said he was confident, however, that the trend could be reversed and the dependency on foreign crude oil lessened. He said new technology such as horizontal drilling, broadened tax credits for exploration and exploration of the Outer Continental Shelf offered great promise for domestic production.

"I don't see tax credits for exploration as a subsidy, but as insurance," said the former Albuquerque resident. He said that over one-third of new reserves would come from offshore, and warned that America could not afford to exclude some areas from the potential of exploration."

If offshore drilling "is wrong for offshore Alaska, California or other places, what makes it right anywhere else?" he asked.

DOE official asks for input on energy strategy

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant City Editor

"Never underestimate the ability of the government to make absurd decisions."

Assistant Secretary of Energy for Fossil Fuels Mike McElwrath used those words to encourage members of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association to submit their comments on a National Energy Strategy.

He was one of six members of the PBPA's annual "Energy Panel" discussion Friday afternoon in the Midland Hilton ballroom.

The former Midlander told the group that a draft of the strategy statement is to be issued by the Department of Energy (DOE) in April.

McElwrath shared the dais with U.S. Reps. Lamar Smith of the 21st Congressional District and Larry Combest of of the 19th District; State Reps. Tom Craddick of Midland and Jim McWilliams of East Texas' 9th Legislative District; and New Mexico Rep. Robert Light of the state's 55th District in Eddy County.

Said Smith of the panel: "We all share a desire to revitalize the oil and gas industry.

Court-mandated school finance reforms could cost $10.1 billion

By RICK BROWN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A group of 233 poorer school districts served notice Friday that the cost of satisfying a Supreme Court decision on school finance reform may go as high as $10.1 billion.

"Quality education is not cheap," said Craig Foster, executive director of the Equity Center. "The court has spoken, and we think there is enough in the opinion to support this level of plan."

While some aspects are subject to change, Foster said the organization's proposed package would bring 95 percent equality to state school districts by 1995.

The plan "levels" public education with higher per-student expenditures than most poorer districts have enjoyed and tax rates capped at about $1.12 per $100 of valuation, he said.

However the state's richest districts would do better opting against taxing at the prescribed rate, since they would be likely to lose state aid.

Because the plan aims for less than 100 percent equity, 61 districts would find themselves in that predicament by the end of the fifth year, should their boards decide in favor of the $1.12-cent rate, Foster said.

But generally, districts that go with that rate are guaranteed enough local property taxes and state aid to spend about $5,000 per student.

The state under the Foundation School Program currently provides about $2,800 per student.

Gov. Bill Clements, who has pledged to bring the Legislature back to Austin next spring on the issue, was in Dallas Friday and not available for comment.

On Thursday, Clements interpreted the Supreme Court case in question — Edgewood vs. Kirby — as a call for greater efficiency in public education, as well for equality.

The governor has directed lawmakers to find a solution to the quandry without developing new sources of state revenue.

French village will honor U.S. liberator

By PATRICK McDOWELL

PARIS (AP) — For 45 years, the fate of U.S. Army Sgt. Lloyd Willard Wibben was a mystery to both his family and the residents of Treguier, a coastal village in northwestern France.

The family knew Wibben had died somewhere in France during World War II.

The villagers knew an American soldier fell while liberating their town, but they never knew his name.

A historian's persistence finally led to the name, jotted in the yellowed pages of a diary kept by the commander of Wibben's regiment.

This week, Mervin Wibben of St. Charles, Ill., arrived in Treguier, population 3,400, at the invitation of city elders to join them in honoring his older brother.

Today, Armistice Day in France, Wibben will lay a wreath at a new monument the villagers are dedicating to the man who was once their unknown soldier.

Lloyd Wibben was 24 years old on Aug. 14, 1944, when his 15th Cavalry Reconnaissance Squadron advanced just to the edge of Treguier, a village 250 miles west of Paris.

They found the road blocked by debris, so Wibben and other soldiers left their vehicles to clear the road. Wibben was killed in a barrage of German fire.

The villagers placed a simple granite marker where he died, dedicated "to the unknown American soldier who died during the Liberation 14 August 1944." He was buried in Plot K, Row 7, at the American military cemetery at St. James in Normandy, along with about 4,400 other U.S. soldiers who died in the fighting.

The Americans took the village and eventually stopped the Nazis' counterattack on Avranches.

"All we really knew was that that we got a telegram from the Army that Lloyd was killed in France," Wibben said Wednesday by telephone from Treguier.

"We didn't know too much more of it until Treguier contacted us to help in this ceremony," he said. "He really is some kind of hero to the people here."

Jewish soldier soon may receive delayed Medal of Honor

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A Jewish soldier who says he saved his battalion by singlehandedly shooting to death more than 500 Japanese soldiers may soon receive the Medal of Honor he believes was denied because of his religion.

Marshaling the support of a U.S. senator, an authenticated photograph taken from the body of a Japanese soldier, and affidavits from two former commanders, David S. Rubitsky thinks he has enough evidence to win official recognition 47 years after the deed.

Rubitsky, 72, believes he was nominated for a Medal of Honor during World War II but denied the award because of the actions of an anti-Semitic commander. He has vowed to keep fighting for the award.

"If I give up, I'm beaten, and I'm a fighter," Rubitsky said in an interview last year. "If I lose, the Jewish people lose and then I'm going to let them down."

According to Rubitsky's story, the heroic deed took place Dec. 1-2, 1942, in a New Guinea swamp known as "The Triangle," during an attack by Japanese troops on Rubitsky's 128th Infantry unit.

The former communications sergeant jumped into a machine gun fortification after it was abandoned by other soldiers and fired nearly 3,500 rounds of ammunition on the Japanese during 21 hours.

Officials investigating Rubitsky's complaint said a photograph discovered this spring has brought strong credence to his claim. The officials spoke on condition of anonymity.

Rubitsky came across the photograph in March while visiting an Army companion in Mesa, Ariz. The photograph, reportedly taken from the pocket of dead Japanese soldier, shows a group picture of a Japanese military unit.

A handwritten message in Japanese on the back said the picture's bearer had decided to commit suicide after he and other officers sent men into a battle in which "600 fine Japanese soldiers died because of a solitary American soldier."

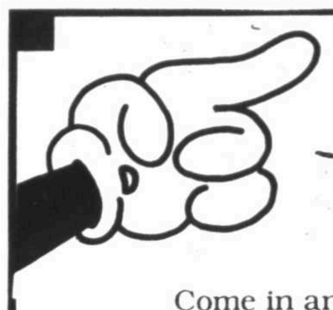

Sen. Herbert Kohl, D-Wis., began working on Rubitsky's behalf in January and had the photograph examined this spring.

The Secret Service confirmed the photo was printed on paper from 1942 and the writing was from ink produced in 1942. The note on the back was interpreted by the Library of Congress.

"Based on my review of the evidence, as well as the contacts my office has had with Mr. Rubitsky, I have concluded that he earned the Medal of Honor," Kohl said.

Maj. Joe Padilla of the Army Awards Branch in Washington, D.C., said a review of Rubitsky's case began in January 1988 and a decision should be issued by the end of the year.

Under Title 10 of the U.S. Code, all recommendations for a medal from World War II had to have been submitted by May 1951.

Ex-IPAA head says industry to be challenged

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

The petroleum industry faces critical challenges in coming years, warned Danny Conklin, immediate past chairman of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Conklin

In town Friday to present a "Capitol Hill Update" at the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, Conklin said the greatest immediate challenge to the industry is the nation's growing concern about the environment.

"The environment will be a real challenge," he said. "We support Bush's Clean Air Act, but we want to be sure the small emissions that come from our generators and pumpjacks aren't included. The cost to make that equipment acceptable is mind-boggling."

Another challenge in the coming year will be gaining tax incentives from Congress to attract outside capital for drilling. Conklin told the audience that President Bush has given industry representatives "a pretty good outline of what incentives he's offering."

And while the incentives may not be all that the industry would like, he advised members to take what they could get. "We need to take every opportunity in this industry, whether it's a full loaf or a partial loaf."

Conklin also finds challenges in the natural gas industry. Among them:

■ Working with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission under a new era of deregulation, learning to deal with FERC members and educate them about the needs of the industry. He congratulated Midlanders for having two citizens on the FERC: Martin Allday, nominee for FERC chairman, and Jerry Langdon, saying their knowledge would benefit the industry.

■ The appeal of the Order 451 remanding to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, which Conklin said the IPAA and other industry groups would be watching closely.

■ Possible trading of natural gas futures on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the decision on which rests in the hands of members of the Commodities Futures Trading Commission. Conklin said IPAA members are watching this development with great concern.

In order to meet these challenges, Conklin said, the oil industry "needs to start speaking with one voice. I know we're independents, and are confident we know how to make decisions better than anyone else, but we need to get our act together, especially with this environment issue. We need to stick close together, and if we disagree, let's disagree in private."

U.S. Secretary of Interior Manuel Lujan, left, discussed energy issues with Midlanders Joanie and Bobby Holt before Friday night's Permian Basin Petroleum Association President's Banquet.

LUJAN

He informed the gathering that the Gulf of Mexico where most offshore oil and gas is produced has also been the waters where the most seafood is harvested.

"We must balance the environment with national resources," he said, adding that his position as Secretary of Interior requires him to do both. "Whenever the environment is really threatened we must come down on the side of environment. At the same time there will always be some environmental impact anywhere you go. If we try to totally eliminate environmental impact, we might as well pull the plug, saddle the horse and ride out — and I do mean saddle the horse."

He expressed confidence that offshore exploration could go forward without a threat to the environment, noting that for more than 30 years the industry had had a safe record on the Outer Continental Shelf, with no blowouts since Santa Barbara.

He remarked: "We are forced to conduct socio-economic impact studies to drill offshore, but not to buy foreign oil."

The 20-year congressional veteran said everyone, including himself, wanted a clean and safe environment for their grandchildren. "But as more and more resources are withdrawn and imports increase, we have to ask where do we draw the line."

He said Permian Basin oilmen need to be concerned about offshore drilling because they need to be concerned with the market forces that determine the price of West Texas Intermediate crude.

In an earlier press conference, Lujan warned that growing imports were a matter of national security.

"We now consume $39 billion in imported oil which accounts for about 20 percent of our trade deficit..."

— Manuel Lujan

He said the Japanese lost World War II for a lack of oil.

He explained, too, that emotional reaction to the Valdez spill would delay opening of Alaskan National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR) to exploration. He said he had no idea when it might be opened, adding there was not enough support in Congress to open it.

Lujan also said he had no idea what was behind the pipe in the secretive exploratory well that had been drilled in ANWR by Chevron.

Also in attendance at the annual PBPA meeting was an entourage of former Midlanders now involved on the energy scene for the Bush administration. Included were: Martin Allday, recently nominated to become chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission; Barry Williamson, director of the Mineral Managment Service of the Department of Interior and Michael R. McElwrath, assistant secretary of fossil energy in the Department of Energy.

In other business at the meeting Joseph I. O'Neill Jr. was honored with the association's Top Hand award for distinguished service to the oil and gas industry.

O'Neill, who came to Midland in 1948, was one of the founders of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association and its first president.

Sharp claims people ignorant to believe oil, gas in Texas dead

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

"Anyone who says oil and gas is dead in Texas is ignorant," said Texas Railroad Commissioner John Sharp, blasting naysayers of the state's leading industry.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at the Midland Hilton Friday, Sharp said those who preach high-tech as the salvation of Texas don't know what they are talking about.

He said the state would have to attract and begin construction on 45 supercolliders to equal the impact of a $5 increase in oil prices over a 10-year period.

Sharp has sponsored legislation to provide severance tax breaks to natural gas producers and conferences around the nation to build new markets for the state's natural gas.

He says Texas will be back in the saddle again riding a new horse. "That horse is natural gas," said Sharp.

The former state senator from Victoria who is expected to run for state comptroller said two recent pieces of state legislation could provide incentives to get the state oil and gas economy rolling again.

They are House Bill 428, his plan to provide severance tax relief for enhanced oil recovery projects and Senate Bill 963, to provide incentive for tight sands gas production.

He recalled going to Washington to seek tax relief for the oil and gas industry and a congressman from a non-producing state asked him what incentives Texas was providing for the ailing industry. "I felt guilt," said Sharp, "because I couldn't think of a single thing."

The two new bills, however, should go along way to rectifying that situation and toward revitalizing the economy, he said.

Sharp's enhanced oil recovery (EOR) bill provides a 10-year window of opportunity for EOR projects. Projects started within that time frame would have four years to demonstrate increased production which would enable operators to claim a 50 percent reduction on the state's 4.6 percent severance tax.

Equally important he noted was Senate Bill 963 which provides a 7.5 percent exemption for tight sand wells drilled after May 1989.

"This bill has already sparked an increase in drilling applications and applications for exemptions," noted Sharp, "and could significantly affect the rig count in 1990."

He said operators drilling tight sand wells now and taking advantage of the full 10 years of exemption could effectively reduce their drilling and completion costs on the project by 40 percent. The exemptions are set to go into effect beginning Jan. 1, 1991 and conclude Dec. 31, 2001.

Sharp noted that 28 applications for tight sand exemptions had already been filed in the Permian Basin. Three were in District 7C, 10 in District 8 and 15 in District 8A. All three in 7C were approved, while 5 in District 8 and 10 in District 8A have been approved.

Sharp said the Texas Railroad Commission would apply its own criteria to classify tight sands, not follow federal dictates. "The best way to learn if a reservoir qualifies for the exemption is to make application with TRC," he informed.

Sharp said he was in the process of organizing a conference with coal producers and coal-burning utilities in the north to perhaps forge another coalition for natural gas markets.

He noted that when 20 percent natural gas is used in the coal-burning process it can effectively clean up the pollution caused by coal. He expects to have the conference in Pittsburgh, sometime in early 1990.

OIL

"We also share the disappointment that we haven't done enough to address an energy policy."

Combest added that representatives from oil-producing areas face a tough job in pushing for an energy policy. "It is looked at as a very parochial issue, even though we all know it's a security issue with national implications."

On the state level, Craddick and McWilliams agreed that runaway workers' compensation rates are a bigger concern that any energy-specific problem today.

Craddick was pessimistic that any reform bill can be pushed through both houses of the legislature during the 30-day special session set to begin Tuesday.

McWilliams picked up on a point made by Combest, saying that the petroleum industry "is going to get to the point where we're fighting to protect what you've got, not worrying about getting more," in terms of tax relief and drilling incentives.

Fighting off efforts to have oilfield was classified for hazardous material handling is typical of battles over "misguided legislation" that the industry keeps winning but issues that will never go away.

Armed with the emotional ammunition of the Exxon Valdez tanker spill, environmental protectionists are more of a "force to be reckoned with" than ever, Combest said.

Light of New Mexico noted that there is no shortage of crude, even in this hemisphere. "It's price that matters," he said.

He recently viewed the Canadian tar sand extraction processing plant at Fort McMurray in northern Alberta where 7 gravity oil is being mined. The government-subsidized project will be economically viable at about $25 per barrel, he said, and reserves in the area could be as much as 1.3 trillion barrels.

■ Related story —10C

McElwrath said President Bush realizes that the package of energy incentives he introduced early this year is "no more than a start," but there are no "quick fixes" for an industry facing a multitude of challenges.

The two most discouraging indicators in a reeling industry are that 40 percent of independent operators have been lost in the last 4-5 years and the phenomenal rate of abandonment of marginal wells, McElwrath said.

While the National Energy Strategy will be "a blueprint for building consensus on energy issues," oilmen should not wait for it to be a savior.

He encouraged producers to submit testimony on industry needs on everything from stripper well legislation to research. He noted DOE is moving to shorter-term research. "If we don't get the technology out to the independents by 1995, we will lose one-third of the prospects."

Tonight will be fair with a low in the mid-40s. Winds will be light and variable.

On Sunday, skies will be sunny with a high near 80 degrees. Winds will be from the west to southwest at 10 to 15 mph.

Friday's high of 77 was eight degrees cooler than the record of 85, set on that date in 1964. The low of 33 was 17 degrees warmer than the record of 16, set on Nov. 10, 1950.

STATE

Scattered low level clouds dotted parts of the lower Coastal Plains and the lower Rio Grande Valley on Friday. Some high clouds were sprinkled about the state yesterday, but sunny skies prevailed over most areas.

Winds were blowing from the east over the Coastal Bend and the lower Valley, but some light northwest winds brushed parts of Southeast Texas. South to southwest winds prevailed over the rest of the state.

Temperatures were unseasonably warm in most locations around the state, with most readings in the 70s and 80s. The late afternoon extremes ranged from 67 degrees at Guadalupe Pass in the western mountain region to 85 degrees at McAllen in the lower Valley.

Warm dry weather is predicted throughout the state today under fair to partly cloudy skies. High temperatures will be in the 70s and 80s.

NATION

Parts of Washington state were flooded Friday from rain and melting snow, and winds kicked up to 100 mph in the Rockies.

Flood warnings remained in effect along the Nooksack River and three other rivers in northwestern Washington, with the National Weather Service predicting warm weather and occasionally heavy rain in the Cascade Mountains.

The worst problems were in Whatcom County, where the loss of a bridge over the Nooksack cut off access to about 10,000 to 11,000 people, although some could be reached overland through Canada, said Gary Myers of the county's Department of Emergency Services.

Two days of warm rain melted snow on 10,775-foot Mount Baker, filling the river's three forks.

Elsewhere around the country, rain showers were scattered across the upper Ohio Valley and the middle Atlantic Coast states, and a few showers were over northern Michigan and southern Florida.

Clouds were over much of the northern half of the country. Sunny skies prevailed across the southern tier. Dense fog was reported along the coasts of Texas, Louisiana and California.

Temperatures dipped below freezing overnight across much of the area from the Dakotas through Minnesota and Iowa to Michigan. Readings also dropped below freezing in the Plateau region and the Rocky Mountains.

The nation's low was 11 degrees at Gunnison, Colo.

BUSH

"This country must not base its foreign policy or its national security on the aspirations of one man inside the Soviet Union or anywhere else."

Bush departed from his text to add: "We're living in exciting times. The rapidity of change is mind-boggling, and I will do my level best to conduct an imaginative foreign policy, but I will be prudent. ... I will do my best to move freedom forward."

He said Kohl "asked me to share with the American people his conviction ... that this remarkable change that's taking place in Easern Europe, most recently in the German Democratic Republic, could never have taken place without the steadfast loyal support of the United States of America."

Baker hinted at a go-slow approach toward East Germany. "There's a long way to go before there is true freedom and true political pluralism in East Germany," Baker said on ABC's "Good Morning America." "That doesn't mean we don't welcome this step."

Baker, while calling the East German decision to open its borders "the most dramatic event in East-West relations" since the end of World War II, said the United States and other allies believe any discussion of an aid program now would be premature.

The allies, he said, will be much more forthcoming about helping East Germany only if there is "political pluralism across the board."

Baker said freedom to travel must be followed by other steps before there can be a serious discussion of a united Germany.

In another television appearance, on "MacNeil-Lehrer NewsHour" on public television, Baker said, "This would never have happened, of course, without the acquiescence and approval of the Soviet Union."

"It is important to demonstrate that we do not seek to take unilateral advantage of these circumstances," Baker said. "That is not in the best interests of the West."

He said people should understand that the liberalization of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe could prove reversible, and for that reason "we must maintain our strength, maintain our resolve and maintain our will, becauswe that's what brought us here."

"I don't think it's going to be reversed, but it may be," said Baker, calling such a backsliding "extremely possible" in the Soviet Union and "not impossible" elsewhere.

Rejecting any suggestion that the administration was being too cautious in its response to what has happened, Baker said, "We are extraordinarily happy about it."

Comments in official Washington all day mixed caution with exaltation.

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Jack Kemp, traveling with the president, captured some of the exaltation in reporting on a conversation with Bush during the flight to Dallas:

"We talked about East Germany and the thrill in our hearts and minds of all people everywhere over what's happening with the crumbling of the Berlin Wall," he said.

"We cannot house the world," said Kemp, "but we can definitely do our best to be compassionate" and help West Germany cope with the flood of refugees from the East.

While some analysts predicted that some possible changes in Europe could mean the breakup of NATO, U.S. officials like Defense Secretary Dick Cheney did not go that far — but conceded there would be changes in the western alliance.

Meanwhile, important senators welcomed the changes in East Germany and called for further liberalization, including free elections.

East Germany's ambassador, Gerhard Herder, said he found President Bush's reaction to the events in Berlin "encouraging" but warned that any miscalculation in the Western reaction could lead to "bigger conflicts."

In a speech at the National Press Club, Herder promised that East Germany would be "a predictable partner" for the West.

He noted that the East German armed forces are only a short distance away from the American, British and French forces stationed in West Berlin.

"By any miscalculation, they could be involved. This could lead to a conflict," he said.

He was asked whether he could foresee a unified Germany.

"In my dreams, yes. But being a politician, I don't see any prospect for a united Germany," Herder said because the two parts of the nation are members of opposing military alliances.

Speaking a day after the East German government announced a lifting of all travel restrictions, Bush said, "We will seize every opportunity to contribute to lasting peace and to extend democracy."

The only action taken by the Bush administration has been an offer of "all possible assistance" to the West German government as it struggles to cope with the flood of refugees. The Pentagon said it was making available housing for 980 people in three off-bas installations.

"Were we surprised by the speed of it?" Baker asked in a separate interview on CBS. "You bet your life, and so was everybody else as far as I can determine."

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said in a statement, "East Germany should also hold truly democratic elections so that its people can have a secure and free future without having to leave their homes."

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., a former committee chairman, said the East German authorities may be intent on getting rid of "the bad eggs" before moving to restore the hardline system.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said, "Just opening the wall (is) a major event but it's important for us to think what comes after that."

Cheney said the "very positive" changes, if they led to non-Communist governments in the East, would mean "less of a threat" and that in turn "might portend some changes on our side."

One change, said retired Gen. Bernard Rogers, a former NATO commander, would be fewer U.S. troops in Europe — there are 340,000 now — and a revision in the "forward strategy" that puts fighting units close to the border.

WALL

"We are speechless," said Helmut Keuchel, 48. "This is a fabulous and overwhelming experience."

Several thousand people celebrated at the Brandenburg Gate, the great monument that, like the wall, was a symbol of Berlin's division. Many danced on the wall, drank champagne, waved sparklers, set off fireworks and chanted: "The wall must go! The wall must go!"

East German border guards watched impassively as some in the crowd used picks and hammers to chip away pieces of the hated barrier for souvenirs.

Thousands of East Berliners poured across the Glienicker Bridge, on which some of the most famous spy trades took place, when it was opened in the early evening.

In West Berlin, thousands more streamed along the elegant Kurfuerstendamm shopping boulevard, some carrying candles, others toasting each other. Crowds of young girls could be seen rushing down the street toward stores. Bars offered free drinks to East Berliners.

Police in West Berlin said they gave up counting Friday when they reached 50,000 visitors.

Krenz told a rally of 150,000 people in East Berlin "the best of our people must be elected to Parliament." He said reforms would make "a new revolution on German soil" that would produce a communist system "economically effective, politically democratic, and morally pure."

"These are not empty promises," he declared, addressing the skepticism of those who have questioned his sincerity.

Communist officials said Thursday that, for the first time since the Berlin Wall was built, citizens could travel freely to the West until a new travel law was drafted. On Friday, they made the open border permanent.

"It is permanent and will be the foundation of a new travel law," Interior Minister Friedrich Dickel said on state television.

Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher of West Germany told 20,000 cheering people outside the West Berlin city hall the East Germans were cutting more holes in the wall and were expanding the Glienicker Bridge crossing. Bells, some called them freedom bells, rang in the background.

Chancellor Kohl said: "The spirit of freedom now reigns all over Europe: Poland, Hungary, and now, East Germany. We claim this right for all people in Europe. ... we claim it for all Germans."

President Bush said he would "seize every chance" to promote democracy in Eastern Europe and his meeting next month in Malta with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev of the Soviet Union will have "even more importance."

Secretary of State James A. Baker III called the lifting of East German travel restrictions "the most dramatic event in East-West relations" since World War II, but added: "There's a long way to go before there is true freedom and true political pluralism in East Germany."

In Moscow, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov said opening East Germany's borders would help stem emigration and end "stereotypes about the Iron Curtain."

East Germans arrived in cars or taxis, on motorcycles, by foot for their first taste of the West. Most apparently planned to return home.

East German roads were clogged with cars heading for the border, but West German border officials said only about one-tenth of the visitors planned to stay. So far this year, more than 200,000 East Germans have gone to West Germany.

People thronged East German police stations, waiting for the travel passes officials said nearly everyone would be given. Thousands went through simply by getting a stamp at a border control point, and many crossed without special documents.

"We've just decided to leave our jobs for a little while, have a look around and then go back over," said a young man who visited Herleshausen with four compatriots. "We don't know what our boss will say about that. Perhaps he's over here too."

A young man drove to Herleshausen with his child for 15 minutes just to buy a West German newspaper.

"I'm going over to pick up some brake pads you can only get in the West," said a motorcyclist who crossed crossed at Helmstedt.

In Berlin, many East Germans just wanted to shop or see the sights. A group of East German workers took turns.

"Everybody wanted to go so we decided to do it in shifts," one said. "We're still fulfilling our quota of work."

Usually dour East German border guards chatted with countrymen filing through border control points.

"You don't have to work today?" one asked a young man at the Invalidenstrasse crossing in Berlin.

"No, I've got the day off," was the reply.

The ruling Politburo fired four more officials and began an investigation of "gross mistakes" made by the leadership under Erich Honecker, the 77-year-old party boss dismissed Oct. 18. Honecker supervised the building of the wall 10 years before becoming party chief.

SCHOOL

However, a unamimous Equity Center board on Thursday approved a means of prodding the state toward its own point of view, said President Charles Benson, superintendent of the Corpus Christi district.

Directors promised to resort to "drastic and draconian" measures should the Legislature adopt a plan not like the one "set forth along these lines," Benson said.

The measures include forced consolidations and other tax base modifications, "leveling down" of existing programs and caps on school district expenditures, said Foster.

In addition, Foster said the center had prepared projections that added no new revenue to the education model.

Should Clements see the projections "and his friends in Dallas learn it would be taking $60 million out of the Dallas Independent School District," said Foster, "he might have a different sense on what needs to be done."

The court has set a May 1 deadline for the Legislature to find a solution to the quandry. Failing that, justices could direct the commissioner of education not to distribute state money for the 1989-90 school year.

Organization projections that estimated tax rates and per-student expenditures for individual districts show that many West Texas school districts would have to make a substantial investement to get a substantial gain under the program.

For the Midland Independent School District, the center estimates a rate hike over a five-year period of a little more than 26 cents would bring MISD an additional $1,013 per student.

At the Ector County ISD, a total five-year rate hike of 21 cents would garner a $1,174-per-student state aid increase, according to center projections.

The organization could not estimate a projection for the Greenwood ISD because its total tax rate contains a large component to retire debt on construction, and the center was unable to determine that amount.

Participation in the program would not be mandatory, Foster said.

Not all 233 Equity Center districts were a party to the the Edgewood vs. Kirby lawsuit, nor was the organization itself.

However, the center provided basic research data and technical advice for the proceedings, Foster said.

Districts that were involved in the lawsuit have pledged not to lobby for any equity plan unless directed by the courts after Legislative action, he said.

Benson said Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, will sponsor the center's plan in the Senate and has told the Legislative Council to start drafting the measure. A House sponsor will be found after the bill is drafted.

WIBBEN

The people of Treguier did not know the soldier's name until local historian Yvon Herve launched a research project about two years ago.

His search eventually led him to retired Col. Robert Dwan, who commanded the 15th Cavalry Regiment and kept a diary listing all the men under his command who had died.

Dwan showed Herve the entry for Aug. 14, 1944, and further investigation confirmed that Wibben was Treguier's unknown soldier.

Herve considered the puzzle fully solved in mid-September, and Treguier officials started planning a ceremony to place a bronze plaque with Wibben's name over the old granite marker.

"Because we have learned his identity, we wanted to invite his brother," said Herve. "For us, this ceremony is a symbol of our freedom."

Mervin Wibben and his wife, Jan, flew to Paris courtesy of Air France on Wednesday before traveling on to Treguier.

"It really broke me up bad when Lloyd died," Mervin Wibben said. "He was five years older than me, but we were really close. He left me his car when he volunteered for the service."

Odessa couple killed in accident

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — An Odessa couple was killed Friday when their 1987 Chevrolet slammed into the rear of a flatbed trailer on Farm-to-Market Road 1882, a Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman said.

The victims, identified as 19-year-old Albert Bustillos and his 18-year-old wife Veronica, sustained massive internal injuries and were pronounced dead on arrival at Medical Center Hospital shortly after 7:30 p.m.

According to DPS reports, the Bustillos' car was traveling north on FM 1882 at a high rate of speed when it collided with the left rear end of a 1974 International tractor-trailer.

A small fire erupted following the collision, but did not contribute to the couple's deaths, the DPS spokesman said.

The driver of the truck, Robert Callahan of Odessa, was not injured in the accident, according to the report.

LULAC to seek federal probe of Colorado City shooting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leader of a Latino rights organization said Friday he would seek congressional oversight hearings into the fatal police shooting of an Hispanic rape suspect, calling the investigation of the West Texas case a "railroad job."

Jose Garcia De Lara, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said the state and local investigation of the Colorado City shooting "seems pretty slanted and biased."

"It looks like a railroad job," De Lara said. "We are going to press for a federal investigation, to press for a federal grand jury."

De Lara said he planned to ask the House and Senate Judiciary committees to conduct investigative hearings into the May 1988 death of Sammy Gomez and into the handling of the case by various agencies, including the Justice Department.

A second grand jury investigating Gomez's death has been empaneled in Colorado City, but has not yet concluded its deliberations. The first grand jury, convened a week after the shooting, took no action in the case.

De Lara said he was "very pessimistic on the outcome by this (current) grand jury" because of the way local and state officials have "been orchestrating the jury, it just looks like a railroad job."

De Lara accused the investigators of acting like "defense lawyers, protecting the police and so forth, and they're coaching the them." Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, said De Lara was "thinking the worst" about the proceedings.

He said state investigators are "outside, independent, objective investigators. ... We have no special interest in that case there."

"The attorney general's office simply wants to make sure whatever happened in Colorado City is going to be cleared up and we're going to get to the bottom of what took place," Dusek said. "That was the only purpose of our investigation. We have no special interest in anybody or anything in Colorado City."

Gomez, who had a history of arrests and of tangling with police in the community of 5,500, was shot three times by Officer Billy Ray Williamson after lunging at the officer with a knife, said Police Chief Bobby Sparks said.

Sparks said he believes state and federal officials have conducted thorough investigations.

Williamson was attempting to arrest Gomez on a warrant in the sexual assault of a woman who was taken from her apartment at knifepoint and raped repeatedly the night before, Sparks said.

The first shot grazed Gomez's chest, the second was to the left shoulder blade, and the third was to the back of the head, severing the spinal cord, said Ruben Sandoval, an attorney working for LULAC and the Gomez family.

Texas attorney named to Commerce post

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Jeffrey Greenblum, formerly of Laredo, has been named director of the office of African affairs in the Commerce Department.

Greenblum's office is the focal point for the International Trade Office's policies on U.S. trade and investment with 47 African nations.

In an interview, Greenblum said commerce with South Africa poses the "thorniest problem" because of severe restrictions imposed on most U.S. trade with that country by the Comprehensive Anti-Apartheid Act of 1986.

The law was intended to pressure the white-ruled South Africa to end its apartheid laws, which mandate separation of the races and forbid most political activity its by black citizens, who comprise a vast majority of the South African population.

"We will carefully handle trade pursuant to that law," he said.

The 37-year-old lawyer said he has never been in Africa, but Greenblum expects that his job will take him to some of the African nations his office will work with.

Before being named director of the office of Africa affairs two weeks ago, Greenblum had been assigned since June to the office of Mexico and the Caribbean Basin where he worked on legislative proposals aimed at reducing by 50 percent existing tariffs on imports from Mexico and the Caribbean countries.

Like many other Texans recruited for federal service by the Bush administration, Greenblum said he was a campaign worker for President Bush's unsuccessful 1980 presidential bid. In that year, he researched issues and collected material for Bush's speeches.

During the 1988 campaign, Greenblum was a volunteer worker for Bush in Texas.

Before coming to Washington, Greenblum practiced law in Houston. He was counsel to an oil and gas subsidiary of the Kidder Peabody Co., Inc.

Bush promises to revive American dream of home ownership

DALLAS (AP) — President Bush promised Friday to "recapture the American dream of home ownership" for all Americans and provide shelter for the poor and homeless with a three-year, $4.2 billion spending package.

"The true measure of success isn't how many families we add to housing assistance rolls. It's how many families move up and out, and into the ranks of homeowners," Bush said without specifying where he would find the money.

The secretary of housing and urban development, Jack Kemp, told reporters he hoped the money would come from a cut in the capital gains tax, a proposal that has encountered vigorous opposition on Capitol Hill.

Kemp said the spending would be new money and that it was not his understanding it would come from other housing programs.

Bush, speaking to the National Association of Realtors, outlined $4.2 billion in federal spending for three years starting in fiscal 1991, which begins Oct. 1, 1990.

In addition to the $4.2 billion in actual spending, Kemp said, the package will cost the government "several billion" dollars in revenue lost due to tax incentives, including low-income housing tax credits and penalty-free IRA withdrawals for home down payments.

The program, unlike congressional housing proposals, does not provide any money for new construction of low-income housing.

The financing levels in the Bush proposal are well below legislation making its way through both the House and Senate, but well above anything proposed in the Reagan administration.

Bush proposed $2.15 billion in grants to help low-income families buy units in public housing buildings, or vacant or foreclosed properties under the program ■ Home Ownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere, or HOPE.

However, Kemp said the grant money would not go directly to home buyers. Most would go to local groups that rehabilitate or buy such properties and make the housing available at below-market prices.

About one-third of the grant money money would be used by such groups to help poor people with mortgages, said Kemp's assistant, Mary Brunette.

"The real centerpiece of our HOPE initiative," Bush said, is "to recapture the American dream for home ownership for those who have been left behind, through resident management and resident ownership."

Bush's plan:

■ Provides $728 million for the homeless — to be equally matched by states, local government or private groups — for housing and support services such as social and mental health programs. That would be above the more than $200 million already envisioned in HUD spending under the McKinney Act to serve the homeless through a variety of federal programs.

■ Allows first-time homebuyers to use their Individual Retirement Accounts for down payments without paying a penalty for withdrawal. However, they would have to pay taxes on the money, Kemp said.

■ Asks Congress to create 50 inner-city Enterprise Zones over four years where investors would be given tax incentives for undertaking development.

■ Includes $1.075 billion for tenants to convert and rehabilitate federally subsidized housing into resident-owned cooperatives. Tenant groups would have the first right to buy buildings whose owners leave the low-income housing programs. About 334,000 units would be affected by that provision in the next 15 years.

■ Provides $210 million for insurance and rental rehabilitation grants in 50 "housing opportunity zones." These areas would be selected on the basis of which localities best removed zoning and other bureaucratic barriers to providing affordable housing.

■ Provides $44 million for a demonstration project to set up "service-supported housing for the frail elderly" that would given them both housing vouchers and assistance to pay for services they need to live independently.

■ Requires public housing authorities and local governments to help welfare and other low-income families with job training, child care, transportation and other assistance.

Medellin cartel member arrested

WORLD

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Authorities said Friday they had arrested a Colombian accused of smuggling 50 tons of cocaine into the United States and Mexican policemen who protected him.

Federal judicial police confiscated a half-ton of cocaine, weapons, vehicles, jet fuel and radio communications gear, Deputy Attorney General Javier Coello Trejo told a news conference.

He said Jorge Humberto Chalarca Cortes, known as El Negro, was the main representative in Mexico of the Medellin cartel, the most notorious Colombian cocaine gang.

Coello said Chalarca was a close associate of alleged Medellin cartel leader Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha. He said the Colombian was arrested Thursday night at his Mexico City apartment along with his Venezuelan wife, Cristina Rosas Rodriguez.

Chalarca's operation moved at least 50 tons of cocaine to the United States through Mexico the past four years, Coello said, most of it via California and Florida.

The other suspects were apprehended in a series of operations by federal drug agents in Mexico City, Mazatlan and northern Tamaulipas and Sonora states, he said.

Dissidents say Deng resigns in disgrace

PARIS (AP) — Chinese who fled their country after the June crackdown on the pro-democracy movement said Friday that international disgrace forced Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping to resign.

Deng, 85, gave up the chairmanship of the Communist Party's Central Military Commission on Thursday and was replaced by his chosen successor and Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin.

"The resignation of Deng appears to us ... as the necessary result of the June 4 massacre," the Paris-based Federation for Democracy in China said in a statement issued Friday.

The federation founded by exiled Chinese dissidents said Deng's resignation proved the government is unstable, though he is believed to retain a dominant political role.

"In the face of criticism from the Chinese people, from the people of the whole world and from democratic governments, Deng Xiaoping understood he could no longer remain head of the military commission," the statement said.

Deng met former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in Beijing on Friday, reinforcing the general feeling that Deng remains a powerful figure.

In Tokyo, Japanese government officials said Deng's resignation will cause little change in China's domestic and international policies.

Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama and Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto said Japan won't change its policy before China's new leaders articulate their positions.

"The important thing is that we should maintain our stand not to isolate China," Chief Cabinet Secretary Mayumi Moriyama told a news conference.

Muneyoshi Date, a China specialist at Takushoku University, told the nationally circulated Asahi Shimbun newspaper that Deng would control Zemin, who is inexperienced in military affairs.

Sandinistas, Contras making progress

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Nicaragua's government and the U.S.-backed Contras made progress during talks Friday on a truce, amnesty and disbanding of the rebels, but an accord is not yet in sight, diplomats said privately Friday.

The Contra military commander and chief negotiator, Enrique Bermudez, said, "We are negotiating now our return to Nicaragua in accord with the Tela agreement, and we are ready to go back once there is a meeting of minds between the Sandinistas and our side."

"There have been certain advances," said a source close to the talks, speaking on condition of anonymity. "There has been some progress."

Bermudez has not rejected the Dec. 5 deadline for disbanding, set by a peace accord signed by the five Central American presidents at Tela, Honduras, on Aug. 7, he said.

The leftist Sandinistas and Contras are close to agreement on a cease-fire, but the government wants the truce to be part of a pact to disband the Contras, said the source.

Despite tough talk, both sides appeared committed to reaching some sort of agreement on ending an 8-year-old war that has cost an estimated 12,000 lives.

The source said that talks late Friday turned to the schedule of the Contra demobilization and the steps involved, the thorniest issue for both sides.

One new element of uncertainty is whether all Contra field commanders will abide by any agreement reached at the United Nations.

This week, a new rebel civilian-military commission was announced, which included only one former Contra director, Aristedes Sanchez. Some of the former directors said they had been ousted in a coup.

The leader of the new commission, Israel Galeano, said in a letter to Vice President Dan Quayle released Friday, "It would be foolish to voluntarily hand over our weapons before free elections are held" Feb. 25.

But the new commission still authorizes Bermudez to negotiate on its behalf. The Nicaraguan negotiators also recognize Bermudez and the new commission.

When the first direct talks in more than a year began Thursday, the U.S.-backed rebels said they would not disband until the Sandinistas granted amnesty and renewed the cease-fire President Daniel Ortega canceled last week.

Government negotiators said Nicaragua would not reinstate the truce nor grant amnesty until the Contras agreed to demobilize.

"We are negotiating now our return to Nicaragua in accord with the Tela agreement..."
— Enrique Bermudez, Contra negotiator

The agreement Ortega and the presidents of Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador signed at Tela requires that the Contras be disbanded by Dec. 5 and Nicaragua hold free elections by Feb. 25.

Asked if an agreement was possible, Bermudez replied: "Anything is possible with political will."

Victor Hugo Tinoco, deputy foreign minister and head of the Nicaraguan delegation, said Ortega was "very confident that the problem can be resolved, that the whole problem of Central America can be solved."

On Thursday, Tinoco called the opening Contra position "impossible" and Bermudez said Sandinista proposals were "not serious."

In Managua, government and rebels accused each other Friday of launching recent attacks.

A rebel radio broadcast said Sandinista troops "continue bombarding the civilian population in Jinotega province" in northern Nicaragua but mentioned nothing about casualties. It said the helicopter attacks occurred Nov. 2.

The Defense Ministry said rebel forces this week attacked trucks carrying soldiers, killing two and injuring seven, in Jinotega and in southeastern Chontales province.

Many Filipinos dissatisfied with Aquino, survey shows

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Americans have lavished praise on President Corazon Aquino during her visit to the United States, but at home she faces declining popularity.

"From Main Street to Wall Street, America loves the Philippines," President Bush told Mrs. Aquino at the White House on Thursday. "And America loves Cory Aquino."

But a recent survey of 300 Manila residents showed that only 35 percent were satisfied with their president. Two years ago, a survey by the same pollster, the Social Weather Stations, indicated a 77 percent approval rating for Mrs. Aquino.

Bush's remarks were typical of the reception Mrs. Aquino has received during her North American tour. She arrived in Canada on Nov. 4 and traveled Tuesday to New York. After Washington, she is to visit Dallas and Los Angeles.

"The attentive observer with an eye constantly cocked for exquisite ironies would not miss this one: of apparent cheers for the president on foreign soil and tears and jeers on her home base," wrote columnist Rosario Garcellano in The Manila Times.

Columnist Luis Beltran, traveling with Mrs. Aquino, noted the enthusiastic welcomes she has received from Filipino expatriates in North America.

"It is as if Filipinos abroad are caught in a time warp," Beltran wrote in The Manila Standard.

National leaders often enjoy a more favorable image abroad than at home, and Mrs. Aquino's aides routinely dismiss criticism as the carpings of opposition groups jealous of power.

But even her supporters acknowledge growing public disaffection because of rising prices, crime, corruption, lack of basic services and a failure to fulfill many of promises of the "people power revolution" that ousted Ferdinand Marcos and brought Mrs. Aquino to power.

Much of the dissatisfaction stems from economic problems. Despite a 6 percent economic growth, inflation has reached more than 13 percent, with the greatest increases in food.

The country's electric power system is in such deplorable condition that the state-run National Power Corp., has begun a system of two-hour rotating brownouts throughout Manila and Luzon island to cope with the shortage.

Public school teachers, Supreme Court staffers and other government employees began a series of strikes this week over pay demands and delays in receiving promised salary differentials.

Crime is widespread, due in part to corruption within the police and armed forces. There have been so many robberies of buses in western areas of Mindanao island that the military has begun providing armed escorts for vehicles.

Police say the crime rate between January and September was 1.4 percent above the figure for all of last year. More than 15 percent of all crimes reported took place in Manila.

Critics also claim Mrs. Aquino tends to make grandiose promises without keeping them. She promised justice to victims of a January 1977 incident in which troops killed 12 protesters. No one was ever charged in the incident after the commission she established to investigate effectively exonerated the troops.

The senior officer at the scene, Brig. Gen. Ramon Montano, was later promoted to major general and placed in command of the national police.

Bulldogs close with big win

By BILL PRICE
Sports Writer

Senior quarterback Patrick Mowles paced red hot Midland High as the Bulldogs trounced Abilene High 49-7 in the District 4-5A football season closer for both teams Friday at Memorial Stadium.

MHS ended the season at 3-7 overall and 2-4 in 4-5A, while the Eagles stumbled to a 1-9, 0-6 finish.

The 'Dogs played off the cue of Mowles, who completed 11-of-20 passing for 225 yards and one touchdown, ran for 106 yards on 15 carries and scored another pair of TDs on the ground.

Adding to MHS' 564-yard offensive performance were 100-yard running games by two more Bulldogs. Senior Albert Ray turned on the after-burners on TD runs of 30 and 38 yards while amassing 109 yards in but eight totes. Brent Noisette, a 165-pound junior halfback, bullied his way for 100 yards in 17 carries.

Moreover, MHS was able to keep its hands on the ball for most of the game as Mowles threw no intercep-

Rebel back crosses 2,000 yard mark

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Editor

ABILENE — Farris Strambler hung the Midland Lee record book out to dry here Friday night with a 313-yard assault against the Abilene Cooper Cougars in a 57-14 Rebel victory that saw the 190-pound ball of fire crack the 2,000-yard barrier for the first time in the school's history.

Strambler needed 310 yards going into the game to become the first Rebel back to ever eclipse the 2,000-yard mark. He had three yards to spare. But it was just the thrilling start of the story he wrote before all was said and done.

He became the first Lee back to ever have over 300 yards rushing in a game, beating his own mark of 284 yards against Odessa High.

He became the first Lee back to ever rush for six touchdowns in a game.

Strambler also became the first Lee back to score 25 touchdowns in a single season and became Lee's all-time single season rushing leader with 2,003 yards in regular season play, beating the school mark of 1,994 yards by Isaac Garnett in 1983. Garnett had his yardage over 16 games.

Dallas Carter fails to get the message — again

From the Haven't We Heard This Before Department: Dallas Carter High School has become embroiled in a battle with the University Interscholastic League over the eligibility of the school's football team for the Texas Class 5A playoffs.

Price

It all started last year after Carter principal Clarence Russeau changed the failing algebra grade of defensive back Gary Edwards to a passing grade and the UIL deemed the Cowboys ineligible for postseason play. However, Dallas Independent School District officials and Carter parents took the matter to court, received a restraining order and watched as Carter marched to the state title.

Of course, well all remember what happened this past spring, when members of the championship Carter team were found guilty of armed robbery. The supposed reason for their antics was that they needed money for the school prom. Boys will be boys, you know.

But that is all ancient history in the ongoing Carter soap opera. Following the first six weeks of this season, tackle Michael Fuller earned a 61 on his report card in, you guessed it, algebra; 61 as in D, D as in failing. But lo and behold, with two days left in the grading period Fuller was transferred to another class (maybe Basket Weaving 101), attended class one day and was given an 85 in place of the 61.

Carter coach Freddie James allowed Fuller to play following the grade change. The UIL discovered the incident and DISD "reassigned" James. But the saga is just beginning folks. James was caught coaching from the press box, via headset, in the first game after his reassignment. His conversation with sideline coaches was even taped by a Dallas radio station.

So here we have Carter once again banned from the playoffs by its district committee, backed by the UIL.

Dallas school board member Thomas G. Jones has made allegations that the committee, which consists of eight white members and one black, made its decision against predominantly black Carter based on racial issues.

When all else fails, holler "prejudice."

John Kincaide, DISD athletic director, was quoted Thursday as saying "I'm not angry, I'm mad." Mad as the proverbial hatter, as a matter of fact.

Now let's see, it seems to me that the "I" in UIL stands for inter "scholastic," as in academic. Kincaide claims Cowboy team members are being treated unfairly because the committee's decision was predetermined.

But the real unfairness of all this seems to be that priorities among Carter parents, students and administrators are woefully out of whack. The Carter athletes are receiving the message from these role models that they can break any rules or laws that they want to, as long as they win on the football field.

What I want to know is where is the academic concern for these kids? Make no mistake about is, 17- and 18-year-olds are still kids, kids that need guidance and direction. What about those failing algebra grades? Did anyone at Carter High or DISD make an attempt to tutor the "students," to try and give the kids a better understanding of algebra, rather than bending the rules?

Of course, Carter officials probably took a cue from college athletics and the National Collegiate Athletic Association, but that's a topic for another time (rest assured I have plenty of ammunition for that subject, also).

We wonder how athletes can make it to and through college, emerging functionally illiterate, ala Dexter Manley. It's no great mystery.

The problem is with the system. As long as instructors keep issuing passing grades to unqualified athletes and administrators keep usurping true teachers by changing failing grades to keep athletes eligible, we are going to produce crop after crop of amoral, bonehead jocks.

As long as he can run a 4.5 40-yard dash or can hit the 20-foot jump shot, who cares if he can't read?

Obviously, that logic has either escaped James, Jones, Kincaide and some Carter parents, or they just don't care that these kids are being cheated out of the education that is rightfully theirs.

DISTRICT 4-5A GIRLS' BASKETBALL

LADY BULLDOGS

Good feelings run rampant at Midland High

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Assistant Sports Editor

With memories of an 0-12 District 4-5A season fresh on her mind, Lady Bulldog head basketball coach Jane Young, oddly enough, can only think optimistic thoughts.

After all, she says, where else can the Lady Dogs go but up?

"I jump out of bed each morning with a real enthusiastic outlook about my coaching," Young says. "It'll be a pleasant experience because of how hard they work."

Young, who says her team will play a more uptempo game than last season, is placing a lot of stock on a talented, working group of sophomores. The group of five youngsters — three or four which are expected to be named to the starting lineup — is expected to see ample playing time, relieving the more experienced returners.

Don't get the wrong idea, though. Aside from Robin Landreth, a senior, there aren't just a whole lot of Lady 'Dogs with varsity experience.

Effie Freeman and Meredith Harris are returning, but neither were regular starters on last year's 5-22 overall team.

Richelle Beck, a starter last year, moved to Grandfalls, and Stephanie Payne, who showed promise on the junior varsity last season, also moved.

Landreth returns with a 5.7 points-per-game average and the experience of a three-year starter.

Young says she will look to Freeman — an expected all-district volleyballer — for team leadership.

"I've watched what she can do on the volleyball team," Young said. "She's such a team player. That's how much of a factor she is."

Freeman, though, has had knee problems, missing five basketball games last year; Freeman still wears the same brace from when she first received the injury.

Joining Harris in rounding out the lineup of seniors on the varsity are Rocshell Fryar, up from the JV, and Keren Corley, who played tennis as a junior.

The Lady Bulldogs open the non-district season Tuesday with an away game at Snyder; district play starts Dec. 15 at Odessa High. As in years past, MHS and LHS will co-host the Tall City tournament, set for Dec. 1-2 this year and, as always, at Chap Center.

If there is a problem with the Lady Bulldogs, it is the lack of fundamentals the girls have shown in practice. That, and experience. Otherwise, Young has had nothing but kind words for the upstart team members.

"I'm so surprised with the group I have this year," Young said. "Coming in from the season we had last year, to find all of this quickness and potential, I feel like I've really been blessed.

"We have a super group of sophomores. Our numbers are down at Midland High, so to have such a super group of sophomores is a coach's dream. And the good thing is that we're going to have these kids three years."

As for goals, there is only one that would suit Young: The district championship. High thinking for the coach of a team which slid as far downhill as a team could get last year.

"I've coached for too long," Young said. "I know the talent when I see it. We've got some kids that look like real athletes. Our goal is to win the district championship and I think we have the physical ability."

Young, like sister Shirley Stephenson, head coach at Midland Lee, favors San Angelo and its load of returning players to win the district championship. If, of course, her Lady Bulldogs don't snatch the title away from defending Abilene Cooper.

"I feel like I'm back," Young said, "as far as having a positive outlook since we won district two years ago.

"It's nice to have some kids to work with."

Other than the seniors, detailed aboved, juniors and sophomores on this year's roster include:

First Year
Varsity Players

Angie Johnson — Johnson fell to a back injury early last season, but has regained enough ability and desire this season that Young would like to look to her for a leadership role.

Sophomores

Ashley Chase — Can be utilized at either point guard or forward; Chase's work habit, Young hinted, will win her ample playing time.

Sally Gibson — Strong at volleyball, it is hoped — and thought — that her success will spill over into hoops. Described by Young as a very good jumper.

Stephanie Spencer — Obviously, size is a strength, but Spencer has quickness in her corner as well.

Tisha Burton — Another Lady Dog sophomore with size and quickness, Burton is expected several minutes on the court each game because of an outstanding vertical leap.

Mich Neatherlin — "Probably one of the best athletes I've seen," was the way Young talked about her before the season. A track and volleyball athlete, Neatherline is expected to run either the point or one of the forward slots.

Trisha Fleet — Strengths include passing and ball handling; knowledge of basketball fundamentals is also a major asset.

Tarshina Belcher — Strengths include speed, jumping ability.

Effie Freeman, Robin Landreth, Tisha Burton, Rocshell Fryar, Sally Gibson, Evelina Montez, Angela Nunez, Tarshina Belcher

Reliable returning starters a key for Lee girls

Lady Rebels open season against tough Lubbock Monterey Lady Plainsmen

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Assistant Sports Editor

One of the toughest teams in West Texas girls basketball is Lubbock Monterey. The Lady Plainsmen (and why don't they call them the Plainsgirls, or something?) of Monterey will usually beat you soundly up, down and all around.

Shirley Stephenson has always known how big and mean the Monterey girls are, but still, she schedules them first thing out of the chute. Stephenson, head coach at Midland Lee, believes in character builders. And if there was ever any such thing as a true test of grit, it could always be taken against the Lady Plainsmen.

This year, the task is even tougher ... Lee will open the season Tuesday on Monterey's home court in Lubbock. And when they will take to the floor, they will have a different look than last year. A smaller look. A Monica-less look.

You can rest assured, however, that the Lady Rebels will do their best to make followers of the team try and forget Ramirez. They will try and make those who watch forget that Ramirez was a dominator underneath. They will try and make people who watch forget that she accounted for 22.5 points per game and 653 total points, or roughly 37.4 percent of last year's offense.

But before they make those who watch forget about Ramirez's importance, they've got to forget about it themselves. The Lady Rebels must enter the 1989-90 campaign knowing that time marches on, and that they must learn to win without Ramirez.

"Other coaches always tell me I look through rose-colored glasses," Stepehenson said when asked about the Lady Rebs' chances. She added that ol' coaches line about "we'll try to be competitive and go from there."

The Lady Rebs begin district play this year on Dec. 15 at home against Odessa Permian; this year's Tall City Tournament at Chap Center is set for Dec. 1-2 and will feature both the Lady Rebs' and Midland High's girls.

Lee's competitive edge will likely come this year from Stephenson's reliable returning starters — seniors Mary Ann Isom and Marcia del Llano.

Marcia del Llano

Mary Ann Isom, Tiffany Grafa, Ann Marie Dodd, Kathryn Wurster, Michelle Stewart, Alicia Furrow, Allison Low, Becky Morales

Dee Schrock, Lachette Crisp, M. Underwood, Tracy Pierce, Sheena Parker, Keyshia Crisp, Amy Hinz, Lesa Cochran

Both described as "team players and hard workers" by Stephenson, Isom, 5-3, brings back her bulls eye shooting from the wing and del Llano returns with a hard work ethic coaches yearn for.

Stephenson hasn't yet decided where to utilize the two, although she hinted that Isom may take over for the graduated Gina Navarette at point guard.

"But I don't want to take away from Mary Ann's shooting," she said. "She's a good passer, a hard worker. She may play some point, some wing. If I see it's not working (at the point) we'll choose one or the other."

Del Llano, 5-6, will likely start at the other guard slot where last year she averaged 4.9 points per game, but more importantly exhibited a strong teamwork attitude and leadership capabilities. Despite her relatively small points-per-game average, del Llano is the second-leading returning scorer for the Rebels, behind Isom's 11.2 average.

"(Del Llano) comes to play every single game," Stephenson said. "She doesn't do anything except as hard as she can. I worry about her sometimes because she has so many irons in the fire. And she keeps her grades way, way up."

Also returning this year are seniors Keyshia Crisp and Sheena Parker. Both have lettered in basketball but saw only limited playing time last season. Crisp did play in 28 of 29 games in '88-'89, but rarely put up a shot, averaging 2.6 per game and 73 total point. Parker, saw action in just three games.

Crisp's quickness is her main attribute. "If she saw somebody 50 feet down the court, she'd chase 'em down, and most of the time catch 'em," Stephenson said.

As for Parker, her rebounding ability will enable Stephenson to start the 5-7 senior at the post position.

"We'd like for all the other schools to think we're going to struggle," Stephenson said, when asked about the competition in District 4-5A. "All the teams are going to be good. San Angelo has everybody back and they were good last year.

"Permian has a bunch back and they're all tall and Odessa High has a bunch of good ones up from the junior varsity. Midland High has good players. Cooper has players who've been there since they were freshmen.

Stephenson summed up not only her team, but the Lady Rebs' chances in district with one old quote: "We may win, we may lose, but we're not going to quit."

First-Year
Varsity Players
Seniors

Dee Schrock — Described by Stephenson as much-improved at the post position; should be a factor on the boards.

Monica Underwood and Kathryn Worster — Both good outside shooters.

Juniors

Ann-Marie Dodd — An increase in self-confidence will give Dodd playing time; quick with the ability to bring the ball upcourt in a pinch.

Alison Low — Strong off the boards.

Amy Hinz — A transfer student from Colorado, Hinz should offer some help underneath the basket with her 5-9 heighth.

Becky Morales — Transfered from Andrews during the summer; good passing ability, penetration and defense.

Tracy Pierce — Moved in to the Lee district from Oklahoma where she has experience playing six-person, half-court basketball. Termed as a "good addition" to the team, she has placed emphasis on her shooting during preseason practices.

Sophomores

Lachette Crisp — Sister of senior Keyshia, comes with above-average attitude and basketball talent.

Alicia Furrow — Tallest girl on the team, Stephenson is impressed with Farrow's shooting and "court sense."

Tiffany Grafa — Best vertical leaper on the team with a "nice-looking" jump shot.

Michelle Stewart — "I've worked with her enough to know she has varsity calibre." Very smooth player.

Lesa Cochran — Good ball handler, defensive-minded.

Chap linksters relinquish lead

Odessa College slipped past Midland College in the team standings Friday at Green Tree Country Club after New Mexico Junior College won the third of five Western Junior College Athletic Conference golf tournaments for the conference title.

Based on points given to each team for their finish in each round, NMJC's total jumped to 10 points for third place behind MC (12) and OC (13) with two WJCAC tournaments remaining to be played in the spring semester.

Despite the 102 shot by NMJC's Shane Bertsch in the 27-hole tourney Friday, MC's Andrew Coltart retained first place in the individual standings by scoring a 107 for a three-round average of 104. Bertsch moved into a second-place tie with Chaparral Dean Robertson, who shot 111. Both players now have averages of 107.

It was the first conference tournament where Coltart did not claim individual medalist honors.

MC's team outing was good for a 436 total, while OC registered a 430 and NMJC a 425. After the Chaps coasted to a record-breaking 411 last month when New Mexico Military Institute hosted its conference tourney, MC coach Delnor Poss said he expected a bit of a let down.

"Naturally, I anticipated that we wouldn't play as well as we did at NMMI. It's real difficult to play that well and come back and do it again. Historically, you just don't do that kind of thing in this conference," he said. "We have four of the top 12 teams in the country right here in our conference.

"It just goes to show that on any given day, especially in this conference, that any team can come out and win. New Mexico Junior College played extremely well and, in the back of my mind, I was afraid they were going to come out and do this eventually."

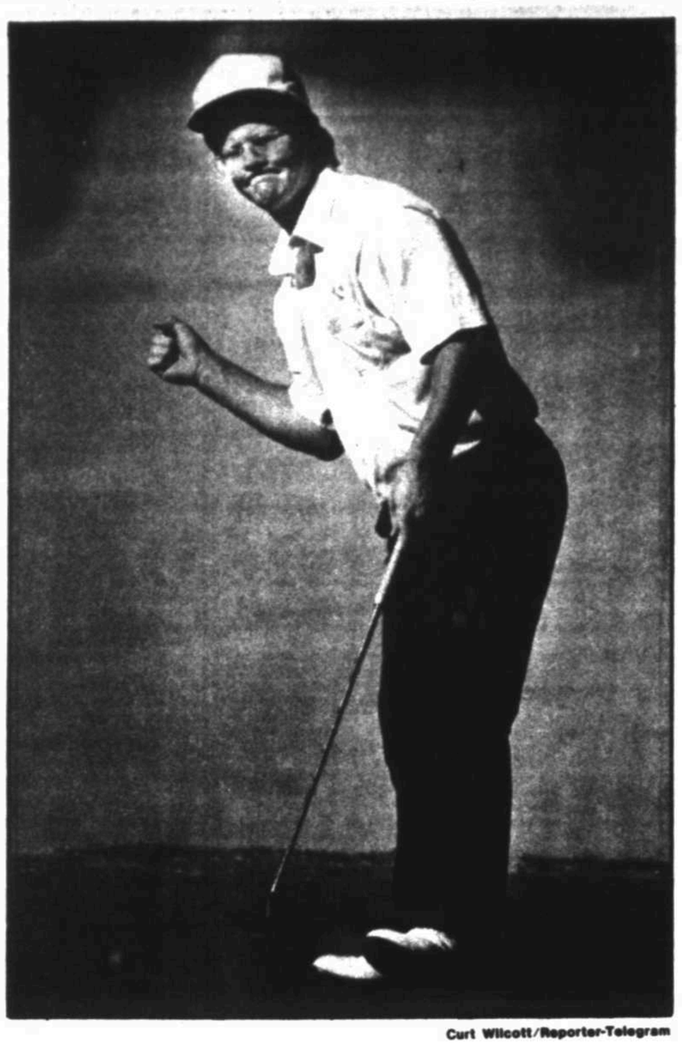

The Chaps began the day slowly, and after the first 18 holes were behind OC by seven strokes and NMJC by 13. Coltart (70) was the only MC played to shoot under par on the par 71 opening 18 holes. Mark Kochan followed for MC with a 74, while Robertson's scored a 75 and Brad Wells a 76.

However, on the final nine holes Wells posted a two-under 34, with Robertson and Midland High product Mike Johnson shooting par 36s. Coltart finished the last nine with a score of 37 and C.J. Ebell fired a 35.

"We finished strong. Our guys have good attitudes. They're a good group and excellent players," Poss said. "On the last nine we played the kind of golf we should have been playing all day. It just wasn't enough to overcome the leaders."

The Chaps finish their fall schedule when they travel to Pensacola, Fla., for the Florida Junior College Invitational Thursday and Friday. MC's first tournament of the spring schedule is at the New Mexico Military Institute Invitational Feb. 20, 1990.

WJCAC Team Golf Standing (After three of five 27-hole tournaments. Points awarded on 5-4-3-2-1 basis): 1. Odessa College, 5-4-4—13; 2. Midland College, 4-5-3—12; 3. New Mexico Junior College, 3-2-5—10; 4. New Mexico Military Institute, 2-3-2—7; 5. Western Texas College, 1-1-1—3.

Midland Christian's victory means trip to six-man championships

By BILL RIGGS
MRT Correspondent

Midland Christian's Kevin Jackson romped 20 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter to the give the Mustangs a come-from-behind, 33-32 win over Bethel Christian in semifinal playoff action.

The win allows the Mustangs a trip to the NewTex Christian Conference six-man championships, next weekend. The Mustangs will play either El Paso Jesus Chapel or Amarillo Alamo Catholic.

Bethel Christian's Butch Ray had scored on a six-yard run earlier in the fourth quartert to put the Mats up 32-37 before Jackson's game-winning trot.

Midland Christian dominated the first quarter with two touchdowns by Kevin Jackson. The Bethel Christian Matadors came back in the second quarter to score with a 19 yard run by Dan Stockton, the Mats' quarterback, and a 20 yard pass to Andy Garcia that put Bethel within reach of the Mustangs in the second quarter.

The Mustangs scored twice more before halftime with TDs from Patrick McAdams and Jackson which put the Mustangs ahead, 27-12.

Eleven plays later, Stockton handed the ball to Andy Garcia to make the score 27-18, MC. Also in third, Garcia scored on a three yard pass from Stockton. An extra point by Butch Ray of the Matadors was good allowing the Matadors to come within one point of the Mustangs.

Midland Christian had played Bethel City the week before losing. That game ended the regular season for the Mustangs though it was not conference competion.

"We didn't show them much passing last week," MC head coach Homer Jackson said.

The Mustangs had just 48 yards rushing in Friday's game while most of their yardage was gained through the pass down the 80-yard field; the Mats had only a 12 yard difference in rushing (138) and passing yardage (150).

"Our plan was to run, sprint, then within the 20-yard line go tight," Jackson said. "The sprint worked fine but our tight offense didn't work as we'd planned."

Andrews closes bad year with a good win

By GEORGE BRZEZINSKI
MRT Correspondent

ANDREWS — If you listened to Andrews Coach W.T. Stapler after his team's game Friday, you would find it hard to believe that his Mustangs had just destroyed Fort Stockton, 48-7.

"It has been a disappointing season, we lost four games by a total of 16 points," he noted. "This was a great win for the team but the season has been frustrating."

The win puts Andrews' record at 4-5, an even 3-3 in District 4-4A while the Panthers of Fort Stockton remain winless on the season.

Andrews made its first possession productive, marching 56 yards in five plays to score a quick six. Eric Lopez hauled in a 33 yard Robert Morris pass to set up Corey Wilson's 3 yard score.

Later in the first quarter Matt Carroll took a Morris handoff straight up the middle and proceded 48 yards into the Panthers end zone for another Mustang score. Carroll gained 125 rushing yards on 16 carries while sitting out most of the second half.

Having been forced to punt on its first five possessions, Ft. Stockton finally engineered a successful drive midway through the second quarter. The drive saw Panther quarterback Shannon Beeles complete his first pass, an 8 yard toss to Enrique Villa. That play and solid rushing enabled the Panthers to pull within 7.

But Carroll took the ensuing kickoff 34 yards and gave the Mustangs great field position. Eight plays later Carroll completed the drive with a 5 yard score.

McCamey shuts down Iraan, 38-7

By DANNY BOBBITT
MRT Correspondent

IRAAN — Needing a win to gain an opportunity to make the playoffs, the McCamey Badgers knew they had to dominate both sides of the line of scrimmage Friday night. The Badgers ground out 266 yards and added 52 more through the air as they knocked off the Iraan Braves 38-7 last night.

"Our defensive line will have to control Iraan's offense for us to have a chance," said McCamey head coach Randy Adair during the pregame warmups. And shut down the Braves it did. Iraan was held to 67 yards rushing for the night and only 68 yards by the pass. The Braves managed only three first downs the entire second half, all through the air.

Badger running backs Jay Lashaway and Billy Lynch scored a pair of touchdowns each and Junior wingback Steven Terry added another as McCamey scored on five consecutive possessions to take control of the game early. Lashaway lead all rushers with 140 yards on 20 carries. Terry added 90 more on only five totes.

Iraan started the scoring marching 68 yards on nine plays on it's first possesion. Sophmore running back Riley Malone dashed in from 21 yards out for the touchdown and the extra point kick by Corby Maurer gave the Braves their only lead of the game, 7-0, with 4:40 left in the first quarter. Malone carried eight times for 65 yards during the drive.

McCamey answered on it's next possesion with a 48-yard, eight-play drive. Lashaway slammed in from one yard out and Jimmy Salinas' true point after attempt tied the score 7-7 with :46 left in the first quarter.

Taking possesion on the 50-yard line three plays later, McCamey scored in five plays when Lashaway darted in from five yards away. Salinas made the score 14-7 with 9:40 left until halftime. A 16-yard run by Lashaway and a 14-yard run by Terry highlighted the drive.

After stopping the Braves on downs at the McCamey 25-yard line, the Badgers went the distance in only three plays for another talley. Lashaway started the drive with a 63-yard gallop to the Iraan 12-yard line, he then carried to the seven-yard line before Lynch capped the drive with his first score. Salinas moved the score to 21-7 with 1:04 left until the break.

Forcing the Braves into a punting situation the Badgers figured to have good field position after the punt, but when Iraan's punter mishandled the snap McCamey set up camp on the Iraan 10-yard line. The Braves' defense stiffened and McCamey settled for a 23-yard field goal by Salinas to lead 24-7 at the intermission.

It looked like the Braves had finally stopped the Badgers midway through the third period, but a 44-yard scamper for a touchdown by Terry on fake punt put the game out of reach.

STEERS

Snyder, 2-7 overall and 2-4 in district play, has lost six games by a combined total of 22 points, but it looked like the Tigers had Lady Luck on their side for a change after junior Damien Haywood blocked a Neal Mayfield punt out of the Steers' end zone for a safety with 57 seconds left in the third period.

The two points cut the Steer lead to 14-9, and Snyder added six more with a 38-yard run by fullback Dewayne Cato on the first play of the fourth quarter — three plays after the free kick that resulted from the safety.

Then, with the Steers down 16-14, it was Rance Thompson time.

The Big Spring quarterback had presided over an ineffective Steer offense in the first half, but the senior went to work after Snyder took the lead, keying a 13-play, 62-yard drive on runs of 12 and 16 yards that set up a one-yard TD run by tailback Otis Riffey with 7:09 left.

Snyder was called offsides on the extra-point try, and Jermaine Miller took advantage to punch across two points for a 21-16 lead.

Not that the Steers would need any more. Just to make sure, Mayfield added his third score of the night and 18th of the season on a nine-yard run with 5:15 left.

Despite what the score would indicate, Big Spring's offense would sputter much of the evening. Snyder outgained the Steers 315-232 behind junior quarterback Ed Rios — in his first start of the season.

Mayfield had a particularly tough time, gaining only 31 yards on 19 carries. The junior wingback had been averaging more than 11 yards a carry.

Mayfield said losing the lead helped motivate the Steers.

"We were all in shock after that blocked punt," he said. "After that, we came out and started playing with emotion."

But Mayfield isn't the first top back to be shackled by the Snyder defense. The Tigers led 4-4A teams in total defense going into Friday's game, but have found new ways to lose games almost every week

After taking turns giving away the ball for most of the first half, both teams got on the board in the final two minutes of the half.

Big Spring drew first blood with a four-play, 59-yard drive that took only 67 seconds off the clock.

After Mayfield dove headlong for the Thompson pass just short of the goal, the junior wingback hurdled the Tiger defenders from the one for his 16th touchdown of the season on the next play. Jason Davis added the extra point

But the hosts struck back with a four-play drive of their own. Rios finally found his passing touch with completions of 15, 18 and 42 yards that set up Cato's three-yard dash around left end with seven seconds left in the half.

The Snyder defense held the Steers to four yards rushing in the first half, while the Tigers gained 150 yards in the first 24 minutes.

Each team lost a fumble and Snyder cornerback Bert Merritt intercepted two Thompson passes in the first half.

But the Steers took charge in the second half with a 12-play, 74-yard drive that ate up more than five minutes after the second-half kickoff.

After Mayfield bulled for four yards on a fourth-and-three deep in Snyder Territory, the junior caught a Thompson pass in the flat for a 14-yard TD.

Thompson completed 10-of-19 passes for 111 yards and one touchdown.

Big Spring coach David Thompson thought the second-half drive was the turning point.

"I think out kids showed character," Thompson said. But the coach isn't sure what they showed in the first half.

"We did not seem ready to play, and that's the coach's fault. I'll take the credit for that," Coach Thompson said.

"We kind of challenged them at halftime."

In addition to his passing skill, Rance Thompson led Steer rushers with 60 yards on seven carries.

Snyder tailback Shelby Bufkin led all rushers with 114 yards on 13 trips. Cato added 96 yards on 11 tries.

But Big Spring free safety Freddie Rodriguez led the Steer defense when it counted. The junior intercepted a pass, recovered a fumble and saved touchdowns with come-from-behind tackles and two long runs.

Cartwright leads Lamesa past Seminole, 30-16

From Staff Reports

LAMESA — Brooch Cartwright tossed three touchdown passes for the Lamesa as the Tornadoes upended Seminole 30-16 Friday.

The Tors rolled up 227 yards rushing and 72 in the air while Seminole completed 8-of-39 passing for 249 yards. Even though Seminole held the first down edge over Lamesa 18-11, the Tors used the big play to score swiftly.

The win gives Lamesa a 6-3-1 final record and a 5-1-1 loop slate. While sending Seminole to 5-5 and 2-5 for the season, the Tors put themselves in a position to earn a playoff berth if their win was coupled with a loss by either Denver City or Post.

Swedes lead in Shockholm

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Swedes have Ivan Lendl surrounded, which of course doesn't mean they have found a way to beat him.

Lendl, losing only four games in smashing his way into today's semifinals of the Stockholm Open, joins Swede's Stefan Edberg, Mats Wilander and Magnus Gustafsson in the chase for the winner's share of the $1 million purse.

Lendl, ranked No. 1 in the world, battered Tim Mayotte 6-2, 6-2 on Friday, punctuating his victory with an ace on match point before 13,064 in the Globe Arena.

Lendl, playing in Stockholm for the first time since 1978, beat No. 7 Mayotte for the 15th consecutive time.

Edberg, seeded third, held off Jim Courier 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 to move into a semifinal match against Lendl.

Edberg beat Lendl in their last meeting for the Japan Open title on hardcourts in April "and I expect another tough match Saturday."

"I mu t improve my game one level and get a good start. That's important against Lendl," Edberg said. "I think I can beat him if I serve as well as I did today."

The other semifinal matches Gustafsson, a wild-card entry who upset No. 4 Andre Agassi 6-2, 7-6.

In the wilderness you can't call 911.

BULLDOGS

tions and the only Bulldog fumble came when the game was out of the Eagles' reach.

"It was just one of those games where everything went right for a change," said Davis Corley, MHS head coach. "We didn't make any mistakes and we didn't turn the ball over. The kids played hard and did what we talked about doing all week.

"We wanted to come out, play hard and make this a win that will be special for our seniors."

The game began with MHS taking the ball at its own 20-yard line, dominating the line of scrimmage and punching the ball to the Eagle 37-yard line before the drive stalled. Shane Barden missed a 33-yard field goal attempt with 8:34 on the first-period clock, but later made up for the miss by converting each of his seven point after touchdown kicks.

The 'Dogs were not kept off the scoreboard for long, though, as Mowles scored his first TD from 1 yard out with 5:08 to play in the first quarter.

The second quarter saw the MHS scoring deluge begin when Ray scampered for both his scores and Mowles connected with Derrick Evans on a 68-yard pass to paydirt.

After AHS opened the second half with a Eddie Shelton touchdown, the 'Dogs got the points back on a two-yard run by Noisette. Mowles ran in another from eight yards out with less than two minutes remaining in the third, then junior Michael Morse added insult to injury and ended the game's scoring by returning a Marcus Kaufmann interception 76 yards for six points.

Offensively, the Eagles were stymied until late in the game when MHS' second unit was on the field. AHS gained 224 total yards and only 83 on the ground. In the passing department, the Eagles were limited to 11 completions in 30 attempts, with Rey Leyba garnering the Bulldog defense's second interception.

"This is a tough league, no matter who you play," said Larry Pullin, AHS coach. "Anybody can get hot and that's exactly what Midland did tonight.

"This is not a sophomore league," said Pullin, whose team has been decimated by injuries, forcing him to start seven sophomores on offense. "But I don't want to take anything away from Midland. You have got to give credit to Davis and his staff.

"After they had a tough loss last week at Odessa High, they came out and really took it to us. Hopefully we can learn something from the experince and get better.

"We are having to learn as we go because we are son young, and they make you pay for that in this district."

"Defensively we played extremely well. Of course, they didn't have the same backs they've have before, so we worked all week on our passing defense," Corley said. "But it was a good overall effort from all of our players.

"All the receivers caught the ball when it was thrown to them. Our offensive line did a good job of both pass and run blocking, and we had tremendous effort from our runners."

Permian finishes season with unblemished 10-0 record

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Chris Comer returned to pre-injury form in Odessa Permian's regular season finale Friday at Ratliff Stadium by carrying the ball 18 times for 149 yards in the Panthers' 37-0 blanking of San Angelo.

Comer, who was felled by a knee injury against Midlanf High earlier in the season before returning to action against Midland Lee, headed up district champ Permian's all-star cast as Mojo frolicked to an undefeated regular season at 10-0, 6-0 in District 4-5A.

Senior Panther quarterback Stoney Case tossed three touchdown passes while wide receiver Lloyd Hill caught four for 34 yards and two TDs.

STRAMBLER

And now he has the playoffs to improve on that mark. Strambler set a goal of 2,000 yards rushing this year, but felt it would take a trip to the playoffs to do the trick. It almost did.

When Lee went ahead of Cooper 51-14 with 7:20 left in the fourth quarter, Strambler was short of the 2,000-yard mark. Lee coaches considered pulling him then.

"The coaches were going to take me out, but my uncle was keeping tabs and knew I was close to the record. Then they let me go for it," said Strambler. "I was really glad to get another chance."

Lee offensive coordinator Van Tom Whatley said, "Normally, we would have taken him out of the game, but we were told that he was five yards short, so we let him go for it."

He got 14 yards in three carries to nail down the final 313.

It was an awesome display of power running as Lee scored on nine of 10 possessions on the night, with Strambler rambling for the school single game record of 36 points. He had five touchdowns two other times this year.

"That is a big accomplishment for our offensive line," said Whatley. "And No. 33 ain't bad either."

Lee's offensive line took great pride in Strambler's heroics.

"It's just great," said 220-pound junior lineman Justin Firkins. "He's a great back and we've worked hard to get him all the yardage we can. We wanted him to get the 2,000. We can take great pride in that."

In the first half alone, Strambler had 197 yards rushing, 101 in the first quarter, and four touchdowns, including a 57-yard scoring romp for Lee's first touchdown of the night. With those kind of numbers, it wasn't surprising to see Lee leading 34-14 when the bands geared up.

Cooper tried stayed close to Lee early matching touchdowns for a 14-14 tie with 10:20 left in the second period as quarterback Lanny Owens had TD passes of 10 yards to tight end John Lewis and 14 yards to running back C.J. Wilson.

But Lee scored on five consecutive possessions after turning the ball over on downs on its first try downfield. Quarterback Vince Henderson got Lee's other first half touchdown on an option play that had the Cooper defense searching for Strambler, leaving Henderson loose for a 27-yard freebie.

Henderson also had 117 yards passing at the half after throwing 11 times, one of the high marks for a first half passing game by Lee this year. He hit John Valles for 51 yards to set up one Lee TD and Greg Rich hauled in another for 43 yards to spur another TD march.

Kicker Arthur Donnelly also added to his school field goal record with his ninth of the season, a 27-yard effort in the third period.

Strambler had two more TDs in the fourth period and Tony White came in to replace Strambler on Lee's last drive and scored from 15 yards out on his only carry of the night.

Cooper's Owens had a great night with 250 yards passing, but was overshadowed by the performance by Strambler that took an eraser to the Lee record books.

It may now be safely said that Strambler is the greatest running back in Lee history. And now the playoffs can give him and his teammates the glory.

Lee head coach Earl Miller, and four members of his coaching staff, left immediately after the game by van for Amarillo where they will learn today who the Rebels will play in the bi-district round of the state playoffs next weekend.

Amarillo Palo Duro faces Amarillo High at 2 p.m. today and the winner earns the right to face Lee. That is a fortunate circumstance for Lee since both teams can be scouted at once.

The Lee coaches left in a happy mood, knowing that the Rebels found a way to overcome the big disappointment of losing to Odessa Permian last week on national TV.

Loving tops Tatum 11-7 for New Mexico A title

HOBBS (AP) — Ricky Fuentes' 5-yard run with less than two minutes left gave Loving its first Class A high school football championship Friday in a 11-7 victory over Tatum.

Loving ended the season at 10-1, Tatum at 8-4.

The Falcons had only the one touchdown, despite amassing 215 total yards. Their other points came on a field goal and a safety as Tatum's defense successfully held during four goal-line stands.

Tatum, on the other hand, managed minus-14 total yards for the game. They also suffered four turnovers. They did notch a touchdown, though, on an 84-yard kickoff return by Scott Green in the third quarter and led, 7-5, with three minutes left.

But a 15-yard loss on an ill-fated pitchout followed by a 13-yard punt was too much straw on the backs of the Coyotes' defense.

The Falcons ground out the yards, and Fuentes crossed the goal line at 1:55.

"I thought we had 'em. We played good enough defense to win, but we couldn't move on offense," Tatum coach Kerry Scott said.

Loving, averaging about 20 pounds more per man, dominated the line of scrimmage.

Despite that weight, Tatum's defense stopped Loving in the first half at the 13, 2, 31 and 20 yard lines, and the Falcons could score only on a field goal.

It had been Tatum's fifth straight championship game, and they were the three-time defending champs.

McCamey added it's final score in the fourth quarter when Lynch slipped in for a six-yard touchdown.

The win by McCamey places the Badgers in a three-way tie with Iraan and Van Horn for second place. The team to advance to the playoffs from these three schools was to be decided at midnight when representatives of each school was to meet in Fort Stockton for the deciding coin toss.

McCamey upped it's record to 6-4, 3-2, while Iraan fell to 6-4, 3-2.

OU's Lewis suspended

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma Coach Gary Gibbs suspended starting tailback Ike Lewis and three other players for the remainder of the season on Friday for violating team rules.

Gibbs wouldn't expand on why the players were suspended, but campus police said the four had been stopped by officers earlier this week. The players were not arrested and no charges have been filed.

Gibbs issued a two-paragraph statement announcing the internal disciplinary action for Lewis of Dallas, defensive back Fred McCline of Forrest City, Ark., running back Reggie Finch of Irving, Texas, and linebacker Corey Mayfield of Tyler, Texas. Finch is a redshirt and Mayfield has been out with an injury. McCline has not been playing.

Kitty Dukakis remains in hospital

BOSTON (AP) — Kitty Dukakis remained hospitalized Friday, recovering from the effects of drinking rubbing alcohol, and there was no word on the date of her release.

Sue Kaplan, a spokeswoman for Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, said only that Mrs. Dukakis would not be released Friday from Brigham and Women's Hospital.

Mrs. Dukakis was taken to the hospital Monday night after drinking what was said to be a small amount of rubbing alcohol.

Dukakis spent two days at his wife's bedside; he was back at work Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. Dukakis was treated for alcoholism earlier this year.

Meanwhile, the governor's mother, Euterpe Dukakis, 88, received a pacemaker Friday at Beth Israel Hospital. She was listed in satisfactory condition after surgery, said Dukakis spokeswoman Mindy Lubber.

This is grandpa's touring car—the last word in luxury. Models have changed a bit since.

That's something people are inclined to forget. Somehow we imagine things will always be about the way they are now. That can be dangerous if we are unprepared when circumstances change.

The strongest force equipping us to meet change is our religion. It provides a stability we need when the wheels of time, progress and history are relentlessly turning. That stability is rooted in the simple fact that God does not change.

To regain your equilibrium in these turbulent times, find your place in the life and work of your church or synagogue. It's teachings are a model for living—unchanged, unchanging.

Militants' push to rebuild Temple sparks tensions with Moslems

JERUSALEM (AP) — Three times a day, observant Jews pray for the restoration "speedily in our days" of the Jewish Temple that was destroyed by the Romans in A.D. 70.

The 35-acre site has long been occupied by some of Islam's most sacred houses of worship, and most Israelis have reconciled themselves to waiting.

Extremists, however, are actively trying to realize the dream of rebuilding the Jewish Temple, and their actions have heightened tensions that could have repercussions throughout the Arab world.

Skirmishes broke out in Jerusalem recently when stone-throwing Arabs protested the first attempt by Israeli Jews to rebuild.

About 80 Jewish militants of the Temple Mount Faithful tried to bring in a three-ton cornerstone for a temple near the sacred Western Wall in Jerusalem's Old City, the last remnant of the temple torn down by the Romans.

Police prevented the cornerstone ceremony, but the attempt ignited riots by Palestinian students in a school just outside the walls of the Old City. Five policemen were injured by stones and 14 Palestinians were wounded by rubber bullets.

"We need to end the Arab occupation of Israel in Jerusalem and especially on the Temple Mount, which is very holy for us," said Gershon Salomon.

Salomon, who founded the Temple Mount Faithful shortly after Israel captured the Temple Mount in the 1967 Six-Day War, vowed in an interview to continue his efforts to lay the cornerstone and start rebuilding.

Another sign of increased movement toward realizing plans for a new temple was the holding of the first conference on temple research. It brought about 350 enthusiasts to the headquarters of the chief rabbinate, where the two top Israeli rabbis of the Ashkenazi and Sephardi branches of Judaism are based.

"If we do not prepare and show God that we want a temple, then God won't give it to us," said Zev Golan, spokesman for the Temple Institute which sponsored the conference.

The institute is using a computer to draw up blueprints for rebuilding the temple as an exact replica of the one destroyed by the Romans.

For the past two years, it has also been making replicas of temple vessels and priestly garments although Golan said his organization has no timetable or no plans to oust the Moslems.

At least one yeshiva seminary is training clergy for priestly rituals in the temple, which was first built by King Solomon and destroyed by the Babylonians in 587 B.C. It was rebuilt by King Herod and torn down again by the Romans.

Orthodox Jews pray daily for a third temple: "May it be thy will Lord God, God of our fathers, that the temple be rebuilt speedily in our days."

The problem for builders is that the site of the temple has been occupied for more than 1,300 years by the golden capped Dome of the Rock, a shrine marking the spot where Moslems believe the Prophet Mohammed ascended to heaven.

Nearby is the Al Aqsa mosque, where Mohammed arrived on his journey from Mecca. It is the holiest Islamic site after Mecca and Medina.

"The temple was built on the ground of the Dome of the Rock. There is almost no debate," said Menahem Ben Yashar, a professor of Old Testament studies at Bar Ilan University near Tel Aviv.

"Why did the Moslems build it there? Because that was the place where the temple was. Maybe that's legitimate, that every conqueror builds his place," he said.

Palestinian leaders say any Israeli move to alter the status quo, under which Jews are forbidden to even pray on the Temple Mount, is certain to provoke bloodshed.

Sari Nusseibeh, who teaches Islamic philosophy at Bir Zeit University in the West Bank, said Islam regards the Dome of the Rock as the fulfillment of the Biblical prophecy that a house of God will rise on that spot.

"If this basic belief is challenged, through for example the setting up of another temple in fulfillment of that same prophecy, this would constitute an affront to the basic foundations of Islamic belief," Nusseibeh said.

"Such an affront would, I think, be a cause for a major explosion."

Most Israelis are aware of Moslem sensitivities, and there is no mass movement supporting a rebuilding effort.

But extremist Jewish groups trying to clear the way for the reconstruction have plotted or attempted to blow up the mosques on the Temple Mount at least five times since 1967.

A Christian Australian, later judged insane and deported, set fire to Al Aqsa in 1969 causing severe damage to the altar. An American Jew who shot and killed two Arabs on the Temple Mount in 1982 is serving a life sentence.

Tribal religions seen akin to biblical faith

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — After an aged Indian woman, Bessie Snake, lost her husband when he and his two mules were killed by lightning while plowing, his younger brother dutifully married the widow.

That obligation is part of the religious traditions of the Delawares and some other tribes, matching a responsibility laid down in the biblical laws of ancient Judaism.

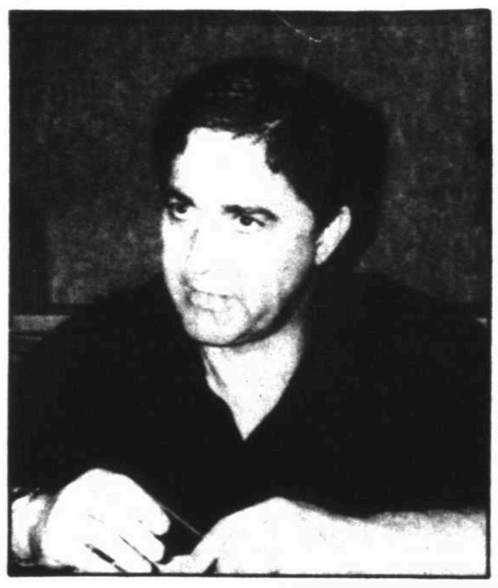

"The similarities of early native American religions and ancient Hebrew religion are astonishing," says historian Duane Hale of the Creek tribe, a researcher of the American Indian Institute at the University of Oklahoma.

He also notes congruent strains with early Christianity, such as Indian expectations of a Christ-like benefactor and emphasis on communal sharing of everything in common and on modesty by not calling attention to oneself.

"All American Indians were — and most are today — deeply religious and devoted to their belief in one supreme being," Hale said in an interview. He discounted past characterizations of some old tribal rites as pagan.

"I don't think it's pagan to go up on a mountain and pray to try to get a vision," he said, describing the "vision quest" of the Sioux and some other tribes. "It's similar to what the biblical prophets did."

Hale, 47, former co-chairman of the Department of Navajo and Indian Studies at Navajo Community College in Arizona and now with the university's institute here, researches and writes tribal histories.

Duane Hale, a researcher of the American Indian Institute at the University of Oklahoma, acknowledges that there are similarities of early native American religions and Ancient Hebrew religions.

AP Laserphoto

Since 1983, he has completed them for six tribes. He also conducts training workshops to help Indians across the country learn how to preserve tribal lore. Participants have come from about 200 of the nation's 300 recognized tribes.

Thirty-seven of them have tribal headquarters in Oklahoma, which remained mostly Indian territory until 1907. The university's Western History Collections library is considered the best existing on the plains tribes.

While Indians generally have depended on handing down their religious traditions orally, "there's a great danger they will be lost," Hale said. "In many cases they have been.

"There are not enough Indian histories. Many of the elders are dying, and I try to teach them to write their histories. Some are beginning to record it and put it in locked files only for the tribe."

While Indian religion sometimes is portrayed as highly distinct from biblical faith, Hale sees definite resemblances, judging on the basis of his advanced biblical studies as well as first-hand inquiries into Indian religion.

"Christianity and early Indian religion have been so interwoven that it is often difficult now to tell which came first for them," Hale said. Of 1.4 million U.S. Indians, most are Christians but many also retain tribal insights, he said.

The Native American Church, which combines both Christianity and native religion, stemmed from the "ghost dance" religion started in the 1890s by a Paiute Indian from Nevada, Wewoka, preaching return of the buffalo and Christ to lift up the downtrodden.

"It spread like wildfire," Hale said, adding that it uses the hallucigenic peyote bean "as a sacrament," which also is used in a "limited way" in some other tribal religions.

He said these also make extensive use of chants, the drum, the four directions, the circle, the smoked pipe and smoke from burning cedar waved about by a feather to ward off evil.

However, religious details vary from tribe to tribe, and often remain obscure, since there were no reliably balanced accounts of Indian concepts for the first 100 years of contacts with Europeans, he said.

Episcopal ministry to gays growing

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — An AIDS victim was led to take Holy Communion for the first time in 15 years. A priest was encouraged to seek reconciliation between his homosexuality and his Christianity.

These are examples of the impact of The Oasis, an unusual, recently opened Episcopal Church ministry to gays, as recounted by its pastor, the Rev. J. Robert Williams.

However, opponents say it surrenders to human weaknesses that are forbidden by the Bible.

"The lifestyle is wrong," said the Rev. Walter Lewis, interim vicar at the Church of The Transfiguration in neighboring North Bergen. "If you accept the Bible as the standard of faith, it's clearly wrong."

The controversial new center opened in June at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Hoboken, a city of 40,000 people on the Hudson River across from New York City.

Williams, 34, who has a mailing list of more than 200 people connected with The Oasis, has spent the last few months on the road spreading his view that Christianity can and should find room for homosexuals.

"If we're made in the image of God, then anything in human nature has its corollary in God," he said

He said he and other homosexuals possess a special understanding of spirituality because so many people silently linger "on the edge — between masculinity and femininity, between respectability and criminality."

His travels have led him to offer Communion to an AIDS-afflicted gay man who had left the Roman Catholic Church 15 years ago. The man adorned his hospital room with flowers and — along with his lover — dressed in his Sunday best for the occasion, Williams said.

The ministry's notoriety has reached as far as Colombia, where a Roman Catholic priest there wrote to Williams seeking guidance on how to reconcile his devotion to the church with his homosexuality.

Williams said he has sought to show the priest and other homosexuals who have "been taught they're going to hell" that they have something to offer by acknowledging their differences and returning to religion.

Williams "came out of the closet" at age 23 after a fundamentalist upbringing in Abilene, Texas. He later lived with his current lover in a Boston suburb along with his lover's former wife and two daughters before accepting the post in Hoboken.

Budget deficit threatening many Massachusetts veterans' programs

CHELSEA, Mass. (AP) — Old soldiers worry about being turned out to the street. A program intended to help homeless veterans allegedly milked them instead. And the state says it has no money to stop the battleship USS Massachusetts from turning into a rust bucket.

This Veterans Day, it's tough being a vet in Massachusetts. The problems relate one way or another to money in a state facing a projected $730 million budget deficit.

"They say Veterans Day is to really honor the veterans and the deceased veterans," said Mark Kelley, 66, who served as an Army staff sergeant in World War II and now lives at the Chelsea Soldiers Home.

But, he added, "what they're doing to us here is not even in the ballpark of the word 'honor.'"

State figures estimate Massachusetts is home to 666,000 military veterans, including 170,000 from the Vietnam War era, 121,000 who served during the Korean War, 259,000 from World War II and about 3,000 who served in World War I.

About 500 of them live at the state home for wartime veterans, which opened in 1882 and is believed to be the first such institution in the country.

Since July, Gov. Michael Dukakis' administration has announced $1,435,000 in cuts from the home's $16.4 million budget, but the Legislature has moved to restore the money.

The budget reduction threatens the home with severe cutbacks Jan. 1 in its medical services, and some residents read this as an omen that it will be shut down altogether, said Kelley, who heads the residents' council.

Kelley moved to the home in 1985 when two heart attacks compelled his retirement at age 62.

"My feeling is the same as practically every other veteran in the place," he said. "We do not have anywhere to go if they close this home."

Similar budget cuts are threatened for the Soldiers Home in Holyoke and its 262 residents.

Another casualty of the money shortage is the USS Massachusetts, berthed in Fall River and operated as a state memorial by a private charitable committee. The World War II battleship was to be towed to Boston this weekend for $6 million in repairs, but the project was aborted last week after state money was withdrawn.

In Boston, something is apparently rotten in the Homeless Veterans Reintegration Project.

Two officials of the federally financed, state-run project were suspended without pay last month while the attorney general's office looks into allegations they charged illegally high rents and accepted finder's fees from landlords.

Thomas Hudner, state deputy commissioner for veterans services, whose agency sponsors the project, acknowledged in an interview this week, "There are a lot of people who are embarrassed about the thing."

In any event, he said, "I feel comfortable that there has been no diminishment of the services."

At the soldiers' home, 101-year-old Alma Bloom explained the need for such services from the perspective of a World War I Navy nurse who joined the home's staff in 1948 and became a resident about 10 years ago.

"Veterans deserve good care," Mrs. Bloom said. While she sympathizes with the need to save money, she said, "veterans should come first."

Body found in wreckage at complex

NATION

SMYRNA, Ga. (AP) — Searchers found a body Friday in the wreckage of suburban apartment complex where Navy investigators continued hunting for clues in the crash of a fighter jet, authorities said.

The young man's body was found in the apartment that absorbed the heaviest damage from the crash, Cobb County Medical Examiner Joseph Burton said.

The pilot, who ejected just before the jet crashed in a fireball into the complex Thursday night, remained in critical condition, as did a pregnant woman and her 5-year-old child who were burned on the ground.

"The worst part was just the sounds — that little girl screaming," said resident Tamara Owens.

Resident Bill Barcus, who still had a reddened face and a singed arm Friday from facing the intense heat in an attempt to reach the burning woman, said, "I got to within 10 feet of the woman but it was too hot and I didn't have any shoes on. All I could hear were her screams, but I had to back off. I went back to get my shoes, but by then somebody had gotten her."

The man whose body found about 3 p.m. Friday was identified only as white and in his 20s. Burton said there was no indication that anyone else was in the apartment, where he said a man lived alone.

Authorities did not immediately identify the resident or the body. Only one person was known to be missing prior to discovery of the body, but the search continued.Four missing people were located earlier Friday.

About 30 people were left homeless by the fire, and about 50 others who lived in undamaged portions of the Pine Lake Village Apartment complex had not been allowed to return to their homes Friday afternoon. Most spent Thursday night at a nearby motel, which offered free lodging.

Reserve Lt. Cmdr. Robert M. Conlyn Jr. of Marietta, the only person aboard the unarmed A-7E Corsair II attack plane, was reported doing better Friday, but remained unconscious after brain surgery, said Kennestone Hospital spokeswoman Laurel Fredlake.

Margie Padovani, 28, and her daughter, Jacquelyn, suffered burns over about half their bodies, said Grady Memorial Hospital spokesman Jim Driscoll. He said Ms. Padovani also had a broken leg.

Troy Kraemer, who said he was Ms. Padovani's fiance, said she was pregnant. He said doctors told him the unborn child might not survive.

A woman hurt while fleeing her apartment was treated for cracked ribs, and a military rescue worker broke an ankle, officials said.

Firefighters extinguished the blaze about two hours after the 6:26 p.m. crash, but hot spots hampered the search Thursday night.

Fire Chief Larry Williams said the search of the apartment of the man believed missing was "a military type operation." Civilian searchers were kept away through much of the day while Navy investigators looked for clues, and Marine Reserve guards helped seal off the crash site.

Police officer Frank Durrance said the Navy jet struck the edge of a building before crashing into a car and coming to rest by a chain link fence about 30 yards away. "You could tell it was a car, but you can't tell that it was a plane," Durrance said.

Kathie Barton, Smyrna's director of community relations, said 12 apartments were destroyed and 20 damaged in two buildings. Three of the 32 units in those buildings were vacant, said Jim Humphrey, maintenance supervisor for the complex.

The jet crashed 2.5 miles short of the runway at Naval Air Station Atlanta, located at Dobbins Air Force Base, 15 miles northwest of Atlanta. The pilot was to land there while on a navigational training mission, the Navy said.

Conlyn, 37, has flown Navy aircraft for 15 years on active duty and in the Reserves. He joined Delta Air Lines in 1980 and is a co-pilot for the Atlanta-based carrier.

He suffered a skull fracture when his ejection seat slammed into a street near the apartment complex. A witness said his parachute deployed only about 100 feet off the ground.

The commander of the Naval Air Station, Capt. Peter Hunt, said the Navy had no leads on the cause of the crash. He added that the pilot did not report any trouble to flight controllers.

"Whatever happened, happened suddenly," Hunt said.

The plane did not carry the "black box" flight recorder required on commercial airliners, Hunt said. He said a Navy review board would study the wreckage and maintenance and pilot records.

Two years ago, an A-7D Corsair, an earlier version of the plane, slammed into the lobby of the Ramada Inn-Airport in Indianapolis, killing 10 people.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1989

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your financial affairs will get a big boost. February looks like a trouble-free time. Why not plan a skiing vacation? Financial speculation brings you good luck in May, June and October. A job opportunity will be sorely tempting in June. Review your options; you might do better to stay put. Travel for pleasure in early September. The world of entertainment holds new appeal for you, either as a spectator or an active participant. Although a close relationship will intensify next November, you may not be ready for marriage. Proceed slowly!

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Justice Harry A. Blackmun, gymnast Nadia Comaneci, actress Kim Hunter, rock star Neil Young, Princess Grace of Monaco.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If possible, postpone travel. A trip will be more rewarding if taken at a later date. Staying close to home can be very productive today. Take stock of your assets and set short-term goals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You are interested in doing something different. Avoid any impulsive moves. Consulting with your mate or partner will bring fresh insights. The misuse of power could cause trouble. Be fair.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make a schedule and set the pace, but know in advance what you are after. An excellent day to clinch a financial deal. Welcome the chance to do things on your own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A romantic episode or creative ideal will make this a memorable day. Keep your options open as you pursue an objective. A young person pays you a meaningful compliment. Disregard rumors.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid taking unnecessary chances in romance or business; impulsive moves may be regretted later on. This is not the day to force issues, no matter how high the stakes. Unwind at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Family draws closer. The more others trust you with their resources, the more secure you feel. Listen to the voice of wisdom as you prepare to make an important decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Just about anything you and mate do as a twosome will be enjoyable today. Set a positive tone for the day by not discussing finances or careers. Use extra charm on relatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keeping your relationships in balance will require a juggling act. You can do it! Attending church proves enjoyable. Know your limit when eating or drinking. A secret desire is fulfilled.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Candid communications and intense longings will dominate the day. Break out of a rut and do something different. You will probably find more enjoyment at home than on a day-trip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Refuse to allow criticism to cause dissension. You can learn new tricks by being observant. The social scene is fascinating; you get a rare opportunity to combine business with pleasure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Even if you dislike appearing opportunistic, keep plugging until you get what you are after. Rely on those close to your heart to help you get through a difficult time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The simplest pleasures are the best. Seek familiar places and special people. Avoid being too critical of your loved ones. They need your loyalty just as you need theirs.

Horowitz buried in Milan chapel

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Dozens of mourners filed past the flower-covered coffin of Vladimir Horowitz in the famed La Scala theater on Friday, and the pianist was buried in the family chapel of the late maestro Arturo Toscanini.

Horowitz, who died Sunday in New York at the age of 85, had hoped to attend the opening of the opera season Dec. 7 at La Scala.

"He had promised me he would come to Milan to attend Vepri Siciliani on the gala night," said Carlo Maria Badini, superintendent of the theater. "On the occasion we could have obtained his promise to perform a concert at La Scala."

Fans slowly filed past the coffin, which was covered with red flowers during a two-hour public exposition in the theater main hall.

The Soviet-born virtuoso was buried near his only daughter, Sonja, who died in 1975.

Horowitz's widow, Wanda, the daughter of Toscanini, had asked that Horowitz be buried in the Toscanini plot in Milan's Monumental Cemetery.

She was among a crowd of 200 who attended the burial.

"The piano became orchestra as Horowitz played it," said Italian maestro Gian Andrea Gavazzeni.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Industrialist Armand Hammer was hospitalized Friday at UCLA Medical Center, near the headquarters of his Occidental Petroleum Corp.

Public affairs officials at the University of California hospital said they could provide no details on the 91-year-old Hammer until they finished preparing a statement, and Occidental officials did not immediately return a telephone call.

Hammer, 91, the chairman of Occidental, is nearly as well-known for his art collecting and philanthropy as for his business acumen. He considers himself a private ambassador for world peace and has met every Soviet leader since V.I. Lenin.

He was pardoned earlier this year by President Bush for a Watergate-era crime, making illegal contributions to President Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972.

Hammer had pleaded guilty to the charges in 1976, was placed on probation for one year and fined $3,000. He had campaigned for a pardon ever since.

VICTORVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Meeting Roy Rogers was a dream come true for a 5-year-old cancer victim who has been a fan of the screen cowboy since he was 2, his mother says.

Dustin Benson, of Smithville, Tenn., met his hero Thursday at the Roy Rogers Museum here and the two exchanged gifts. Rogers gave Dustin a cowboy hat and a belt with horses on it, and in return received a photo album and hand-painted picture of the boy and his pony.

Dale Evans, Rogers' wife and TV sidekick, was given a bracelet made by Dustin's sister, Shacina Glory.

With their belts and cowboy hats, "Dustin and Roy looked like they belonged together," said Dustin's mother, Myla.

The meeting was made possible by DreamMakers, a Nashville-based organization that makes wishes come true for children with life-threatening illnesses.

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Actor Don Johnson says the roof, windows and a bathtub leak in his new home, and that's just part of the reason he's refusing to pay nearly $100,000 to a contractor for work done.

The contractor, Duddy-Viele Construction of Vail, filed a lawsuit last week in Pitkin County District Court, saying although Johnson has paid $508,272 for construction work, he still owes $95,813. Others who have done work on the house have filed liens on the Aspen residence.

Johnson had refused to comment on the matter until Friday, when he issued a statement saying, "Anyone who has ever been on the receiving end of an incompetent contractor should be able to understand my frustration and anger."

The actor said his hardwood flooring is cracked, the floor sags and the beams in the interior of the home also appear to be sagging.

"All of the windows and doors leak and there is evidence of water intrusion throughout the home. The upstairs bathtub ... leaks between the floors onto occupants below," said Robert Showcraft, Johnson's attorney.

The former "Miami Vice" star issued the statement before leaving for Key West, Fla., with his wife, actress Melanie Griffith. He will be competing in a powerboat race there later this month.

NEW YORK (AP) — Ballerina Suzanne Farrell, who made a triumphal return to the stage in January 1988 after a hip operation, will dance her last dance with the New York City Ballet Nov. 26.

The 44-year-old ballerina, who inspired choreographer George Balanchine to create some of his greatest dances for her, will peform in the Der Rosenkavalier section of "Vienna Waltzes" created by Balanchine in 1977.

Farrell, who joined the ballet company in 1961, announced she would retire in 1986, but the company then said she would wait to see how she felt after hip-replacement surgery. She has danced in three ballets since then.

"If my dancing has been able to express even a fraction of what Mr. B. gave me, I will consider myself very fortunate indeed," Farrell said of Balanchine in a statement the company released Thursday. "My last bow will always be to him."

• • •

HONG KONG (AP) — Prince Charles learned the medicinal value of cow gallstones, deer tails and reindeer antlers during a tour of a Chinese pharmacy Friday as he concluded his official visit of Hong Kong.

Chiu Kwong Lee, 79, explained to the smiling prince that the gallstones were good for inflammatory conditions. Chiu then produced a deer antler, which he claimed promotes virility and strengthens heart muscles.

Charles asked the price of the deer tails, which he was told sold for $256 each.

The prince tasted a sliver of red Korean ginseng, which is said to help cure fatigue and hangovers, and sampled an herbal laxative mixture offered by Chiu.

Charles will remain in the British colony until Sunday, although his official visit concluded Friday. His wife, Diana, returned to London late Thursday.

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — The venerable rock group Crosby, Stills & Nash brought music back to this quake-damaged city in a benefit concert that raised more than $21,000 for county relief agencies.

The band performed two shows Thursday night at the Catalyst nightclub, just a half-block from the Pacific Garden Mall, which suffered severe damage in the Oct. 17 quake. Three people were killed when several dozen mall buildings collapsed.

The 400 people at each show were a mix of yuppies and yippies that savored the folky standards by David Crosby, Stephen Stills and Graham Nash.

The three refrained from making benefit speeches, letting their guitars do the talking, but Nash dedicated "Our House" to the Cooper House, a county courthouse dating from the 1890s that was converted to a mixed commercial building. The structure was severely damaged in the quake.

Nash arranged the benefit with longtime tour manager R. Mac Holbert, a Santa Cruz native.

Latest Tyler project doesn't necessarily smell like a rose

TYLER (AP) — When businesses or civic groups sponsor something and have their names put on it, they usually prefer that it's not something trashy.

But Tyler groups soon will have the option of sponsoring a trash-related project thanks to inmates of Texas Department of Corrections.

The City of Tyler Solid Waste Department will be asking business or civic groups to sponsor decorative, durable trash cans to be placed around the city.

The city will install the cans and service them twice a week for $10 a month, and the sponsor's names will be displayed on a decal on the front.

"There are a lot of cities around the country that do this," City Manager Gary Gwyn said. "We've been talking about it for a while, and decided it was such a good idea we took the initiative through the Sanitation Department."

Austin is one of the cities that launched the program, and it was TDC that provided the spark.

"The city of Austin has been trying to come up with a program for several years," said Dennis Hobbs, co-chairman of Keep Austin Beautiful's business committee. "The biggest problem was the cost of the containers and how to fund those projects."

Hobbs solicited designs from Texas manufacturers but none could produce a relatively inexpensive trash can. He said the cheapest model he could find was from an out-of-state manufacturer for $457.

"What really made the whole program click was that the prison system could build them at such a low cost," Hobbs said.

He said a member of Keep Austin Beautiful designed a sturdy, effective container and took the plans to the TDC Industrial Division. That's the same division that makes $43 million worth of park benches, truck chassis and other goods for the state every year.

Inmates can build the trash containers for $150, and Hobbs said it helps give TDC a positive image.

"The project has been so successful that they get a positive public image from this. The TDC is taking so much heat right now, with overcrowding and everything else, it's been a real plus for them," Hobbs said.

Gwyn said the city, under the supervision of Solid Waste Director Dan Brotton, will market the project.

Brotton said the 55-gallon drums weigh 150 pounds and are anchored in place.

He has 10 cans on order from TDC, and six cans are in use now at the downtown Fountain Plaza.

Texans' opinions split on oil spill enforcement law

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — After 14 years of wrangling, the House of Representatives has voted overwhelmingly to preserve the rights of Texas and 27 other states to make and enforce their own laws setting unlimited damages for oil spills.

Texas Land Commissioner Gary Mauro declared the vote "a major victory for Texas." In a Friday telephone interview from Austin, Mauro said the House action on Thursday means that Texas can enforce its own recently strengthened oil spill cleanup laws.

"Texans can be assured if a Valdez-type oil spill happens on the Texas coast, it will be repaired," he said.

But Rep. Jack Fields, R-Houston, a member of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and usually a staunch states' rights advocate, was one of the oil-state House members who pushed for federal pre-emption of the state laws.

Fields, interviewed from Houston Friday, said he believes the federal government should set a single standard, creating one cleanup fund that would take precedence over the states' efforts to collect damages for spills.

"There are anti-oil states — California, Oregon, Washington, for example — who would like to ... soak the oil companies. That's a reason for one unified fund. And if there is a disaster, companies need to be able to deal with one set of laws."

Mauro, a member of the bipartisan Texas Governor's Task Force on Oil Spills, said: "We're well past the days when we look to Washington to solve all our problems."

As president of the 22-state Western States Land Commissioners Association, Mauro had lobbied to stop the federal government from limiting states' abilities to recover expenses of cleaning up oil spills.

On Wednesday the House voted narrowly to impose unlimited liability on any oil polluter found to be guilty of "simple negligence." Then on Thursday, the chamber backtracked, agreeing to impose unlimited damages only on those guilty of "gross negligence," a standard more lenient to spillers.

The Senate last August opted for the tougher "simple negligence" standard. But Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner has warned that if that provision is a part of the final legislation negotiated by a House-Senate conference committee, he would recommend to the president that he veto it.

As approved, the House bill would also:

- Cap federal liability limits for less culpable spillers at $1,200 per gross ton (which would have meant a limit of $114 million for a tanker the size of the Exxon Valdez.)
- Create an industry-financed $1 billion trust fund that would be used to pay state and federal cleanup costs.
- Improve spill prevention, contingency planning and response.
- Promote research on oil spill effects and cleanup technologies.

Four years ago the British tanker Alvenus toppled onto her side in the Gulf of Mexico, spilling 66,000 barrels of Venezuelan crude oil. "It took us six months to figure out who owned it," Mauro recalled. "While we weren't pre-empted then by the federal government, we didn't have any laws in place."

The pre-emption provision — a part of House oil spill bills debate in the house for the past 14 years — was deleted by a 279-143 vote.

Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., who sponsored the amendment with Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., credited public outrage over the massive Exxon Valdez oil spill in Alaska last spring for fueling the lopsided margin of victory.

"It was clear that it was such a national insult to the environment that all the lobbying by the oil companies and special interests couldn't overcome it," said Miller.

The American Petroleum Institute has issued a statement saying it would ask for a presidential veto.

Permitting states to go beyond federal ceilings on the amount a company could be called on to spend for oil spill cleanup would make insurance costs for transporting crude oil and petroleum products prohibitive, API said.
