LOS ANGELES — Prosecutors showed jurors maps and full color photographs of bloody carnage and crumpled bodies, including one of Nicole Brown Simpson's uncovered corpse, to guide them Tuesday through two murders they contend O.J. Simpson committed after years of obsession and jealousy.

They also linked Simpson to the slayings scientifically, revealing that "a trail of blood" at the crime scene, on his Bronco and within his Brentwood estate linked him to the victims.

The pictures of Ms. Simpson and Ronald Goldman, flashed on a large courtroom screen during prosecutor Marcia Clark's opening statement, brought gasps and sobs from the courtroom.

President admits mistakes, tries to regain initiative

GOP congressmen from city welcome words, doubt action

By Katherine Poteet
Staff Writer

Midland's Republican U.S. representatives welcomed President Clinton's words, but were wary whether those words actually would be translated into action.

Rep. Larry Combest, of the 19th Congressional District, said Clinton's speech could have "easily been made by Ronald Reagan or George Bush." He believed the conservative tone of the speech was caused by the dramatic shift in power during the Nov. 8 elections.

"The American people stated quite clearly in November that they were tired of the Democratic philosophy and I'm sure the White House heard that loud and clear," he said. "He (Clinton) is a master of making speeches that sound good, but he has to back it up this time."

Rep. Henry Bonilla agreed.

"Yes, he (Clinton) wanted to sound like Reagan because Reagan was a very popular president and, according to the November elections, Clinton is not," said Bonilla, 23rd Congressional District. "He was trying to make a good impression, but the proof will come after tonight."

Rep. Lamar Smith, 21st Congressional District, also expressed a hesitancy in believing that Clinton would stand behind Tuesday's speech.

"I welcomed Clinton's smooth words and agree with what he had to say, but

President Clinton prepares to give his State of the Union address Tuesday on Capitol Hill as Vice President Gore, left, and House Speaker Gingrich look on.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a political drama unseen for 40 years, President Clinton went before a distrusting Republican Congress Tuesday night and appealed for common ground to make "dramatic change in our economy, in our government and in ourselves."

The upheaval wrought by the Republican election landslide was visible throughout the president's State of the Union address — from the moment Speaker Newt Gingrich took the gavel to the striking silence that often greeted Clinton from the GOP.

'As we embark on a new course, let us put our country first, remembering that regardless of our party label, we are all Americans.'

— President Clinton

At one point, Republicans even booed. About 20 of them left before Clinton finished talking. Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole said afterwards that while Clinton's message was important, "the more important and most powerful message remains the one the American people delivered in November."

Drawing his own conclusions about the last two elections, Clinton said: "We didn't hear America singing. We heard America shouting.

"Now we must say: We hear you. We will work together to earn your trust."

Clinton was the first Democrat since Harry Truman to face a Republican Congress, and the White House viewed his 80-minute speech as a crucial step in rebuilding his troubled presidency.

Father, son survive nine days in blizzard

By Zeynep Alemdar
Associated Press

ANKARA, Turkey — For six nights after getting lost in a blizzard on a Boy Scout ski trip, father and son huddled in a cave and ate snow to survive.

They heard helicopters overhead, but rescuers couldn't see them.

Finally, the U.S. Air Force officer made the difficult decision to leave his 10-year-old son behind and go for help.

He didn't know he was only three miles from the ski slopes, or that his son would spend two nights alone in the cave, cold, hungry, missing his mother — and afraid of dying.

On Tuesday, Lt. Col. Michael R. Couillard and his son Matthew were rescued, suffering only from mild frostbite.

Couillard, a graduate of an Air Force survival course, decided Sunday the weather had improved enough to try to find help.

He skied for an hour and a half before coming across a vacant state forestry camp, he said in a statement issued by the U.S. Air Force. Woodcutters found the 37-year-old officer there Tuesday in an unheated cottage.

Cap, gown issue goes to wire for 142 who failed TAAS test

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Ordering caps and gowns and graduation announcements are in question for 142 Midland seniors. They have yet to pass the TAAS (Texas Assessment of Academic Skills) test.

In October, 77 students from Lee High School, 77 from Midland High School and 12 from Coleman High School failed the TAAS test. State law requires they pass the test — along with amassing the required number of credits — in order to graduate.

Students will have one more chance to take the test before graduation.

Of the 167 students who failed the test, 25 no longer attend Midland schools, leaving 142 students who need to retake the test.

"About 25 students have left," said Joe Cummins, executive director of administrative services, evaluation and planning for Midland Independent School

Almost 77 percent of the 456 respondents to this week's question regarding Newt Gingrich's lucrative book deal say the newly elected Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives should be able to profit from a book, regardless of whether the publisher of the book has dealings with Congress.

Russian troops advance deep into southern Grozny

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — Slowly but steadily, Russian troops advanced Tuesday on rebel positions in southern Grozny. Artillery rounds and rockets thundered over some neighborhoods every few seconds.

But sniper fire still crackled almost nonstop in the city center, and Chechen President Dzhokhar Dudayev said the Chechen capital remained a no-man's land.

Russian troops "don't control anything — they have just accumulated in various spots and are surrounded everywhere," Dudayev told Echo Moscow radio.

Grozny resembles a "layer cake," with Chechen and Russian forces overlapping, he said in an interview from his ruined city.

The Chechen president also said no Russian prisoners would be returned until Moscow agreed to a cease-fire in the six-week-old war and a withdrawal of all troops from Chechnya.

Russian Defense Minister Pavel Grachev, insisting that most Chechen rebels had been disarmed, said "six or seven" generals who refused to serve in Chechnya "are unworthy of serving in the armed forces" and may face court proceedings.

Grachev singled out the deputy head of ground forces, Col. Gen. Eduard Vorobyov, who reportedly refused to take command over the Chechen operation once it was under way.

Grachev also denied reports that his three dissident deputies, who have criticized the army's performance in Chechnya, have been dismissed. But he indicated that the three, including Afghan war hero Boris Gromov, might be transferred to unimportant posts.

From a hillside overlooking the main roads to the rebel-held south, Russian forces poured shells, mines and rockets into southern Grozny. Targets included the areas around a frozen reservoir where many of the city's remaining residents get water and one of the last few curbside markets.

Two photographers said at least seven residents were killed or gravely wounded by a rocket near a well.

Twins start new life after separation

TORONTO (AP) — Two Pakistani toddlers born joined at the head were being closely monitored Tuesday after doctors successfully separated them.

After about 16 hours of surgery, massive infusions of blood and extensive reconstruction of their skulls Monday, 2-year-old Hira and Nida Jamal were in stable condition at the Hospital for Sick Children.

"Considering the surgery they've gone through and the extent of the procedure, they're doing as well as we can expect," Dr. John Edmonds told a news conference Tuesday.

But doctors were concerned because Nida had a buildup of blood in her brain, said neurosurgeon Dr. Harold Hoffman, who led the team of 20 doctors and nurses through the risky operation.

If she suffered brain damage, her speech, movement and sense of feel could be affected.

The girls were under sedation and on breathing support in the hospital's intensive care unit Tuesday.

Hoffman said Hira is expected to start moving within three to five days. But for Nida, "a lot depends on what happens to her engorged brain."

Procedures to separate children joined at the head — known as cephalopagus twins — have only been performed 30 times. In two-thirds of the operations, one or both of the children died.

In previous such operations, uncontrolled bleeding was the biggest risk. This time, the surgical team had prepared to use eight units of blood — but it ended up needing 27 units.

Their odds are "significantly better" now that the surgery is over, said Hoffman. "They're both surviving and may survive a good long time."

The girls' father, Anwar Jamal, said he was "extremely pleased" after hearing the separation was complete.

"I could not believe this impossible thing had become possible," he said.

Doctors had originally scheduled the surgery for next month, but had to act earlier because Hira's heart was failing.

Tradition wins out in designs for Windsor Castle

WINDSOR, England (AP) — The modernists who wanted the royal family's favorite home rebuilt to reflect the late 20th century have lost out to the traditionalists glorying in Windsor Castle's historic past.

Queen Elizabeth II has given final approval to a plan unveiled Tuesday that will restore all but three of the principal rooms damaged in the November 1992 fire to their original early 19th century splendor.

And new designs for those three rooms — the Queen's Private Chapel where the blaze started when a curtain caught fire and the Holbein and Stuart Rooms — will follow the castle's distinctive Gothic style, but with a "modern reinterpretation."

The Royal Institute of British Architects, which had argued for the monarchy to abandon the past, reiterated Tuesday that "it would have been happy for there to be some contemporary design incorporated."

Prince Charles, whose aversion to most modern architecture has been highly publicized, and his father, Prince Philip, presided over the restoration committee, which considered six submissions by invited architects.

None of the designs matched some of the startling ideas that emerged from two private initiatives in 1993 which the palace never considered: columns shaped like wine glasses, a high-tech tower, a new exterior for damaged St. George's Hall shaped like a giant corkscrew, or leaving it in ruins as a symbol to humiliate the royal family for surrounding themselves "with artifice."

Giles Downes, a partner of London architects Sidell Gibson whose plans were chosen from the shortlist, said the scope for redesign was limited by the necessity of making the three small rooms fit into the whole restoration.

Through Windsor Castle's 900 years of history, he said, successive generations of builders and architects had reinterpreted Gothic architecture in their own distinctive way.

"We have based our design approach on our own modern reinterpretation of Gothic, as a continuation of this tradition at Windsor and as a reflection of the attitudes and interests of the 1990s," he said.

Asked whether he expected criticism from the modernists, he replied: "I think whatever we had done here, we would be criticized."

At the moment, dehumidifiers are still drying out the walls of the castle's damaged northeast section. Pictures, paneling and decorations that survived the blaze have been removed, but large blackened areas remain.

John Tiltman, in charge of the overall reconstruction at the castle less than an hour's drive from Buckingham Palace, said the $64 million project was to be completed by the spring of 1998.

Even heroes need a hand.

Our firefighters.

All of us in Texas are grateful to them. Every day they brave smoke, heat, exhaustion and fire to save our lives, our homes, our property. Every day they risk their lives. For us.

Firefighters have to live with the strains of a uniquely demanding job, one that does not always pay as well as it should. And even though these men and women are heroes to us, they have everyday problems just like we do.

It's time we gave them a hand.

The makers of Copenhagen® and Skoal® would like to help. We have been in Texas for generations. And now, as part of our continuing involvement in communities all across the state, we would like to give a little something back.

That's why we've asked our consumers to join with us to support the Texas Firefighters Emergency Relief Fund. Co-founded by U.S. Tobacco Company and the Texas State Association of Firefighters, this new fund will provide timely aid to firefighters as they cope with their uniquely demanding lives.

To ensure this effort is a success, we will donate a portion of our smokeless tobacco sales over the next three months to help these heroes. This is our way to say thank you to them and all of you.

When the alarm sounds, they are always there. It's time we were there for them.

For more information, write to the Texas Firefighters Emergency Relief Fund, 1000 Brazos Street, Austin, TX 78701.

TRIAL: O.J. Simpson was obsessive, jealous, prosecutors say

(From 1A)

case to jurors, Superior Court Judge Lance Ito pulled the plug on the courtroom's television feed because an alternate juror was briefly shown when she leaned forward in her seat.

"I'm going to terminate the television as a result of that," Ito said.

Defense Attorney Robert Shapiro jumped up and objected, pleading to have the defense's opening statement broadcast to the audience that had just seen the prosecution spend four hours portraying Simpson as an abusive monster.

"We are representing a man whose life is at stake in this trial," Shapiro said.

"In fairness to his mother, his supporters and the (audience) worldwide, it would be tremendously unfair for the world to see TV coverage of the prosecution and not our defense," Shapiro said, turning to Simpson's relatives sitting behind the defense table.

At that point, Ito recessed court for the day and said he would hold a hearing this morning on whether to oust the camera.

Ito asked for the prosecution's position. Clark supported ousting the cameras.

"The important people to hear from both sides are the jury," she said. "They are the ones who will vote on guilt or innocence. ... We are not playing to the world, we are playing to the jury."

Clark followed her graphic display of photos with a calm, methodical recitation of evidence she said scientifically linked Simpson to the murders.

Simpson's blood and that of the two victims was detected on the famous leather glove found on a walkway behind Simpson's mansion as well as in his Bronco, at the crime scene and at his estate, she said.

For the first time, the prosecution mentioned a pair of dark socks found at the foot of Simpson's bed. Those socks, Clark said, contained a mixture of his blood and that of his former wife, Clark said.

Deputy District Attorney Christopher Darden led off the prosecution statement by acknowledging the power of Simpson's celebrity. He told jurors they must realize the man on trial is not the one they admired on the football field, in the movies or in easy-going Hertz rental car commercials.

His dazzling public image, prosecutors contended, obscured a batterer, a stalker and, finally, a murderer.

"The actor is not on trial here," Darden said, speaking deliberately and pausing often to let his words sink in.

He said "many public men" have carefully crafted images but also have a "a private life, a private face."

"That is the face we will expose to you in this trial: the other side of O.J. Simpson, the side you never met before. We will expose in this trial and show to you in this trial that other face, the face he wore behind the locks and the gates and the walls at Rockingham," Darden said, referring to the address of Simpson's Brentwood estate.

As Goldman's and Ms. Simpson's relatives wept quietly, Darden told a tale of possessive love, degradation and control that spun madly out of control the night of June 12, 1994.

He recounted a litany of abuse: Simpson smashing the windshield of Ms. Simpson's white Mercedes, Simpson following his ex-wife on her dates and spying on her making love to another man, Simpson breaking into his ex-wife's house while she pleaded on the phone for police help.

"Her situation was hopeless, and she was helpless," Darden said. "You'll hear that telephone call, and you will hear the defendant, and you will get a true sense of the fear he instilled in her."

Facing the jury, with his back to Simpson, Darden said:

"The man you will see is the face of a wife beater, a batterer, an abuser, a controller. You will see the face of Ron and Nicole's murderer."

Clark followed Darden to the lectern to sketch the crucial time line the prosecution hopes to use to forge a chain of circumstantial evidence tying Simpson to the killings.

She used large, color maps of Simpson's estate and displayed blowups of the gory crime scene and a glove and blue knit cap that were partially obscured under a bush.

At one point, jurors — and, briefly, the TV audience — saw a photo of Ms. Simpson lying in a pool of her own blood, still wearing the black dress she had worn to dinner with her family the night she was killed. It was the first time the public had seen the body without a covering sheet.

Rain chance clouds cold day

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies with a 20 percent chance of rain, a high in the upper 50s and southeast winds at 5-15 mph. Tonight should be mostly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain and a low in the lower 40s, according to the National Weather Service.

Thursday should be mostly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain and a high near 60.

After an overnight low of 30, Tuesday's high reached 49, compared to the record high for that date of 82 set in 1950. The record low was 9 set in 1963.

STATE

An upper-level disturbance moved from Mexico into Texas on Tuesday, triggering showers and thunderstorms along the Rio Grande.

Skies were cloudy across most of the state, and the National Weather Service said much of the rest of Texas could also expect rain today and Thursday.

The showers and thunderstorms were moving farther into the state on Tuesday.

BOOK: 'Give Newt the loot,' respondents say

(From 1A)

frain from accepting what potentially could amount to large royalty checks because of a potential conflict of interest?"

Only 156 callers felt there would be a conflict of interest if Gingrich reaps the benefits of the book's royalties.

"The financial benefits aspect is nothing but a smokescreen," Bob Wacker said. "Liberals want to suppress the book for two reasons. First, Newt is the architect of the Contract With America, which they hate because it ends their big-government, big-spending policies. Second, and probably most important, the publicity surrounding the book assures a large readership and the liberals don't want Newt's vision available for the public unedited by liberal spokesmen and the media."

Several callers who left comments posed the question of why it would be wrong for Gingrich to collect from a book deal after Vice President Al Gore was allowed to collect profits from his book on the environment and President Clinton was permitted to ask for donations for his legal defense fund.

"It's not a matter of whether he should be allowed to do this," Gary DeKoning said. "He's done nothing wrong or nothing illegal. Perhaps a little more attention should be paid to President Clinton's legal defense fund, which is taking donations from the public to pay his attorneys to defend him from sexual harrassment."

"If it is proper for the vice president to benefit from his writings, then why not the speaker?" an anonymous caller asked. "The Democrats are jumping on the situation because they still haven't figured out why they lost. They need to wise up and represent the American people."

"If he makes money from it, it's because a lot of people buy his books," Gerald Bowman said. "It's not some sort of private deal."

One caller said the "austere" position of house speaker has been tarnished and that the office should be "revered and respected," while a handful were against Gingrich gaining monetarily from the deal.

"Given the current trend economically, it is not only inappropriate, it is scandalous. Let us awaken. Let us read history. Let us open a third party."

Another caller brought to mind a controversy of a few years back:

"Let's remember Newt was the one who threw such a fit because (former Democratic speaker) Jim Wright had a book deal."

"The whole idea is ludicrous," said Odessa's Lana Washington. "Newt Gingrich is the Freddie Kreuger of the American dream, preying on a fast-asleep America."

To most callers, though, the scandal smells of partisan politics.

"Once again it's the Democrats' negative spin," an anonymous caller said. "They're driving people from their own party."

"I think it's just sour grapes from the Democrats who are trying to find anything they can to bring him down," said a caller who only identified himself as Mike. "Several of them have done the same thing in terms of writing books."

TEST: 142 seniors have yet to pass TAAS

(From 1A)

District.

School-board trustee Jack Hightower said the fact that in some school districts every student passes, whereas in MISD 167 fail "is a terrible indictment of our school district."

Cummings said about 30 students will not graduate because of failing grades and not earning all of the required credits. This leaves about 112 students hanging in the balance because of the state test.

He said other students have attendance problems.

"Students' ability to pass math is also a problem," said MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr.

He said the district has tried to remedy the situation by "spreading out and slowing down" the algebra courses in order to teach students the higher math skills.

"Some kids take two years to learn algebra," he said.

Baressi said the pressure is sometimes too much for poor test-takers.

"Psychologically, it's hard to pass when failure means you don't get a diploma," he said, likening the stress to telling an adult he or she would lose their job if they don't pass an exam.

Some students who didn't get to graduate last year with their classmates passed the test during the summer and graduated late.

Cummins said the good news is that the rate of passing is increasing among juniors.

In other business:

■ As an information item, school-board trustees discussed having a feasibility study done to see if it would be cost effective to operate a central food production facility.

Currently, the district is looking at renovations for many schools. "A large amount of money is reflected in kitchen renovations," Baressi said.

If food production was centralized, he said it would cut down renovation expenses and would help to keep employee costs down.

"The receiving schools wouldn't cook any food from scratch," he said. "They would warm up large quantities of food and serve it."

He said MISD food service is a self-sufficient operation, paid for by federal funds and meal prices and not taxpayer revenue.

■ MISD language arts coordinator Lucinda Windsor reported on the revised report card that soon will be coming out.

Teachers will list "descriptors" or letters from the alphabet to describe a student's progress. For example, letter "J" would indicate "follows directions;" and letter "Q" would indicate "wastes class time." The letters, and what they represent, will be included in report cards.

SURVIVE: Turks rescue U.S. officer, son

(From 1A)

news agency that Couillard was "very weak," but managed in broken Turkish to describe where he left his son.

Rescuers found the boy and brought him to the cottage.

"Their reunion was a touching scene," Gul said. "Although the colonel had difficulty moving, he struggled to his feet and hugged his son in tears." The survivors' first meal in nine days was a typical Turkish breakfast: tea, bread, butter and jam. "The little boy kept repeating, 'Thank you," Gul said.

Although Couillard had left some of his clothes for his son to keep warm during his absence, it was apparently not sufficient.

"It was cold, I was hungry," Matthew said on private Turkish TV.

Matthew also talked about his fear of death alone in the cave. "My father was gone. It kept snowing. I thought about what would happen if I died. I miss my mother," he told the Anatolia news agency.

The father and son were taken to a hospital in Bolu, near the ski resort 70 miles north of Ankara. They were later flown by U.S. military plane to the Turkish air base at Incirlik, where the United States has a military hospital.

Both were treated for mild frostbite to their feet and toes, but were "in much better condition than was initially expected, considering their exposure," the hospital said in a statement. "The prognosis is good for full recovery."

Couillard and his son were separated from their ski group in a snowstorm Jan. 15 while skiing at Kartalkaya, a resort in the Bolu Mountains.

When they realized they were lost, they found a road and skied down it before taking shelter under some trees for the night. The next day they found the cave.

WORDS: Midland representatives are wary

(From 1A)

those words are in direct conflict with his past actions," Smith said. "He stated he wanted to decrease government spending, while over the past two years, he has increased it by 5 percent a year. He wants a middle-class tax cut, yet he approved the largest tax hike in history during his administration. It's time he followed through on what he has said.

"In many ways, the issues of his speech dealt with values that Republicans have talked about for years," Smith said. "We have heard his words before and now we want to see his actions support those words.

The three lawmakers said they were glad Clinton included smaller government in his speech.

Combest said he hoped the president would not veto Congress' efforts to downsize government.

"There is basically a difference in philosophy," Combest said. "The Democratic philosophy has been that government solves all problems. Our (Republican) philosophy has been that more government creates problems. When he said he favored a smaller government, I hope that was just not talk."

Combest said he was pleased with several items in Clinton's speech, including an increase in national defense, but said he would fight a increase in the minimum wage.

"Republicans oppose this increase because it will not create jobs," Combest said. "It will increase the amount of money that small businesses will have to pay and that will force small businesses to downsize and lay off employees."

Bonilla said he also would oppose the proposed increase.

"I have always fought for small business and will continue to do wage increase is just posturing on so," Bonilla said. "This minimum-wage increase is just posturing on the president's part. It will hurt every small business in America."

Smith said he was disappointed that the president did not mention the country's energy crisis.

"That was a glaring omission in the speech," he said. "The energy crisis is getting worse every month, with over half of our energy needs and oil coming from overseas. He said he is concerned about the economy. Then he should start with this crisis."

CENTER: Clinton tries to rebuild authority, support

(From 1A)

"Mr. President, welcome to the House," said Gingrich, the aggressive Republican leader who has dominated the capital for 11 weeks.

However, Republicans sat on their hands when Clinton boasted that, thanks to his efforts, the country was stronger than it was two years ago. The GOP greeted his call for an increase in the minimum wage with cold silence.

In his most emphatic statement, Clinton said he would not permit Congress to roll back last year's ban on assault weapons. "I will not let that be repealed," he said. It was as close as he came to threatening a veto of GOP legislation.

Acknowledging the failure of his health-reform bill last year, Clinton conceded, "We bit off more than we could chew." But he refused to entirely abandon what was once his top priority.

Instead, he called for a step-by-step approach to insurance reforms to ensure that Americans do not lose coverage when they change jobs or get sick. Specifically, he said he wanted to work with Dole, who, Clinton said, has a long-time commitment to health reform.

New Jersey Gov. Christine Todd Whitman, who has rocketed to political stardom with a tax-cutting plan, gave the Republican response. In a dig at Clinton's lengthy address, Whitman said, "Before I begin, let me assure you I am not going to ask for equal time.

Speaking from the historic legislative chamber in Trenton, Whitman said a revolution is sweeping the country in which "people want less government, lower taxes and less spending from the federal government."

She said it was Republicans who were delivering on those demands, and admonished Clinton: "You must accept it as well."

Whitman said some of the president's ideas sounded "pretty Republican," but she recalled that Clinton raised taxes, increased spending and opposes a balanced-budget amendment. The November elections, she said, "sounded a warning for the president."

In contrast, House Democratic Whip David Bonior praised Clinton for talking about the needs of middle class families and raising wages of "those in the underclass ... so they can be part of this great middle class. I thought that was very moving and inspiring."

Clinton presented his agenda in a low-key, almost folksy way.

Government's opposition denounces quake response

■ Some legislatures call for Prime Minister Murayama to resign.

Associated Press

KOBE, Japan — Faced with 307,000 homeless people, the largest number since World War II, the government announced tax breaks Tuesday and low interest loans to relieve suffering from Japan's catastrophic earthquake.

Opposition legislators, nevertheless, denounced the government's performance in the wake of the Jan. 17 quake and called on Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama to resign.

One week after the quake, the death toll stood at 5,063 and 68 people were missing. Another 26,500 people were injured and more than 56,400 buildings were damaged or destroyed in the magnitude 7.2 quake.

Authorities must also care for more than 307,000 people now homeless in this once vibrant city of 1.4 million. The homeless are living in tents, makeshift shelters, schools and government buildings.

Plans call for building pre-fabricated, temporary housing, but construction will take weeks to complete.

Electricity has been largely restored, but more than 633,000 households still lack water and nearly 856,000 have no natural gas. Water trucks roam the city, stopping periodically to allow people to fill containers.

Still, conditions have been steadily improving. Banks and most supermarkets have reopened. Gasoline stations and about half the schools are operating again. Police were issuing free replacement drivers licenses to those who lost documents in the quake.

Faced with mounting criticism for its handling of the disaster, the government announced a series of measures Tuesday to speed reconstruction and ease the financial burden.

The government formally declared Kobe a disaster area, meaning the government will pay about 90 percent of costs for rebuilding roads, schools and other infrastructure.

Local officials estimated the bill for infrastructure repair at $58 billion, excluding the cost of restoring gas, power and water.

Survivors can receive low interest loans to rebuild homes and businesses as well as credits on their 1994 income taxes. Those whose property losses exceed their annual income after discounting insurance payments will pay no income tax at all.

Those measures, however, did little to stem criticism of the Murayama government's initial laggard response to the crisis.

"What were you thinking of?" opposition delegate Akira Kuroyanagi shouted at the prime minister in an emotional parliament session Tuesday. He demanded Murayama apologize to the nation "for the suffering of the people."

Murayama offered no apology but said his government will spare no effort to improve disaster preparedness.

Rose Kennedy's touching legacy

Rose Elizabeth Fitzgerald Kennedy died Sunday after a long life liberally sprinkled with both the power of political influence and the heartache of personal tragedy. Once, in fact, she noted that her life had been a series of "agonies and ecstacies."

The daughter of a congressman, wife of an ambassador, mother of a president and two U.S. senators, she lived a life in the public eye and leaves behind a legacy of political influence.

Born in Boston, Mass. on July 22, 1890, she was the daughter of John F. "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald — a congressman, mayor of Boston, and Democratic power. Then in 1914, she was married to Joseph P. Kennedy who became wealthy as well as politically powerful. Her's might have been a virtual "fairy tale" life had it stopped at that point.

As fate would have it, however, Rose Kennedy's "agonies and ecstacies" kept her on a roller-coaster between the thrill of political triumph and the tragedy of violent death. Four of her nine children were killed in their prime — two in plane crashes and two by political assassins. A daughter was retarded and a grandson died of a drug overdose. Contributing to her heartache was an incident at Chappaquiddick Island in 1969 when a car driven by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy ran off a bridge and a female aide named Mary Jo Kopechne died.

That much tragedy would be too stressful for many individuals, but through it all Rose Kennedy, kept her head erect and explained her attitude by saying she believed "God never puts more of a burden on us than we can carry."

President Clinton said of Mrs. Kennedy, and appropriately we think, "Very few Americans have endured as much personal sacrifice for their country as Rose Kennedy. She played an extraordinary role in the life of an extraordinary family."

OTHER VIEWS

Opponents of abortion must also battle violence

Everyone, including those who oppose abortion, must condemn the extremists who are killing abortion clinic employees and terrorizing patients. But it would be a costly waste of federal resources to employ massive government intervention to prevent such violence.

Five people have been murdered in less than two years by crazed anti-abortionists. Many others have been threatened, harangued and blocked from entering clinics. ...

Thoughtful men and women disagree about whether abortion should be legal. The debate will continue. The law already has changed some as a result. Scientific advances may force more changes.

Meanwhile, people of good will must encourage debate and discourage violence. ...

Local governments, too, must actively oppose violent demonstrations that trample individual rights. ...

Now, however, President Clinton has asked federal prosecutors to mobilize a task force to recommend ways to make abortion clinics more secure. Already there are too many federal laws that encroach on state and local laws, including a federal statute protecting abortion clinics. Surely we do not need more. Instead, clinics must work with state and local authorities to protect their employees and patients.

Clinton, congressional axes can end corporate welfare

Travel industry leaders are gearing up to keep Congress and the Clinton administration from axing the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration.

It's a small office in the Department of Commerce, spending about $17 million this year on promotional efforts designed to lure overseas travelers to the United States. ...

Why is the federal government funding promotions for a profit-making business? ...

It shouldn't; the industry should pay for its own promotions. Small wonder both Clinton administration and congressional budgeteers are sharpening their axes to go after this baby.

The government's international promotion effort would seem to be a prime example of the kind of corporate welfare that Labor Secretary Robert Reich and others have talked about. Their point: If you're going "to end welfare as we know it" for individuals, you ought to end it as well for corporations.

Vietnam continues to oppress Buddhists

WASHINGTON — Officials of the Vietnamese government are masters at the diplomatic equivalent of sleight-of-hand: They can trample on human rights and terrorize dissidents while showing a kinder, gentler face to the West, in particular the United States, with whom they now want to trade.

Anderson

Hanoi is trying to hoodwink the world again — even as it wages a brutal campaign of persecution against Buddhist dissidents who have dared to defy the government for 20 years. The wrath of the Vietnamese government is focused on the Unified Buddhist Church, which was once the largest religious organization in South Vietnam.

"Vietnamese authorities have demonstrated determination to control this important ethnic and religious minority," a confidential cable from Bangkok has explained. It adds that while "communism is essentially hostile to any religion," the Vietnamese Buddhists are "considered to be especially dangerous... (because of their) history of effective dissidence against... other Vietnamese regimes."

Americans will remember them from pictures of Buddhist monks setting themselves on fire to protest the U.S.-backed regime of Ngo Dinh Diem in South Vietnam in the early 1960s. But soon after the North Vietnamese overtook the south in 1975, the Buddhists would have counted themselves lucky to have Diem back.

Shortly after their takeover, the communists denied the Buddhists official recognition, which was the "first phase in the attempted destruction or control of the Buddhist religion and its sphere of influence," according to the cable. They soon realized the futility of simply ignoring the Buddhist church, so the regime agreed in 1978 "to accord official recognition to the upper levels of the Buddhist hierarchy."

The cable adds that the next phase of the persecution began in 1981 and destroyed the independence and credibility of the Buddhist leadership. It was replaced with a state-supervised Buddhist organization called the Vietnam Buddhist Church.

Since then Buddhists of the old Unified Buddhist Church have been terribly repressed — some have even been killed. Many monks and prominent Buddhists were jailed or sent to re-education camps for indoctrination while on meager rations.

Some were shot outright or locked for months in metal cargo containers left behind by American troops. We learned that some prisoners smuggled messages to Western relief agencies, begging for cyanide capsules to end their misery under the crushing repression of the Vietnamese government.

Aside from outright execution and torture, the Vietnamese government has regularly tried to humiliate Buddhist leaders to break them in these camps. One who later escaped reported he had been forced to break his vow of vegetarianism and eat meat, even though meat rarely was served in the prison camp.

Outside, in southern Vietnam, permission had to be obtained for any religious gathering of more than five persons. Texts and sermons were to be submitted in advance, or the monks were not allowed to teach. For most of the 20 years, they have also been forbidden from teaching children, who must attend government schools.

Many pagodas have had to close over the years because the government confiscated the rice fields owned by the pagodas, and the faithful were forbidden to bring food to the monks.

Meanwhile, Thich Huyen Quang, the 77-year-old supreme patriarch of the church, who was too important to kill and who was not expected to break under torture, was kept confined virtually incommunicado in central Vietnam's Quang Ngai province since 1982.

Whitewater investigators become quiet

WASHINGTON — Why has Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, the tiger of Senate Whitewater hearings, suddenly appeared to turn into a judicious pussycat? Why has Rep. Jim Leach, anguished and frustrated accuser of the Clintons in the farcical House hearings, fallen silent now that he and D'Amato have become chairmen of the House and Senate banking committees?

Safire

Interviews with both men and others suggest this answer: They are satisfied that a serious investigation is under way by Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr, and that each of their committees is getting traction in its own inquiries.

In case you've forgotten, here is the suspicion at the heart of Whitewater: that the Clintons used the influence of the Arkansas statehouse to bilk funds out of a federally insured S&L; unlawfully used a real estate venture as a conduit for that money to their political campaigns, and later — in the White House — were served by aides who blocked investigations by the Justice Department and Congress into the financial dealings that helped them into office.

A serious and current concern, if true; not just noise about a decade-old land deal in which everybody lost money, as the Clintons contend.

The earlier investigation, by Clinton-appointed counsel Robert Fiske, was discredited in the Senate hearings when D'Amato unearthed dozens of improper contacts, overlooked by Fiske, between White House and Treasury officials. That contradictory sworn testimony is now being reviewed by the special prosecutor.

Was justice obstructed as criminal referrals languished and a friendly prosecutor was appointed in Little Rock? If anybody knows, it should be Webster Hubbell, the Clinton intimate at Justice who recently copped a felony plea in exchange for information that might implicate the Clintons.

At the same time, the Senate Committee is seeking the depositions taken of President and Mrs. Clinton in the White House by Fiske. These are in White House hands, and portions about the death of Vincent Foster were shared with the Senate.

"We want the rest of the Clintons' testimony," D'Amato says; he does not consider the deposition, taken in the White House, to be grand jury testimony. If the Clintons say no, I presume the committee will issue a subpoena.

Law enforcement sources say that Starr is expected to complete the study of documents found in Foster's office in three weeks. Senate investigators will want to trace the travels of these Whitewater records through Hillary Clinton's possession after Foster's death. (One witness reported seeing a briefcase on Foster's car in Fort Marcy Park, where the body was found.)

Fiske's "review" of the Park Police's inept Foster investigation was cursory, not brought before a grand jury, and his Clinton-friendly conclusion that Foster's state of mind was unrelated to Whitewater is ludicrous.

Starr is apparently not taking the suicide theory as gospel; Park Police witnesses have been complaining about the severity of their examination by prosecutor Miguel Rodriguez before a grand jury. No bullet or skull fragments were found, suggesting the body may have been moved. The next phase of Senate hearings — on the Foster documents, or what's left of them — is likely to begin in April.

In the House, Leach hopes for a comprehensive hearing in June. "With no publicity," he says, "we had some court action and we are now starting to receive certain documents."

A federal judge, eager to avoid adjudicating a clash between the White House and Congress, suggested the House use a Freedom of Information Act suit to pry tightly held papers out of the Office of Thrift Supervision and the Resolution Trust Corp. Leach is pleased with the result: "We were provided with a 'Vaughan index' and we are now seeking full documentation."

He's going for the truth, not the throat: "The web of entanglement is not necessarily deadly," Leach says. "We're seeking full disclosure and public accountability. Then, and only then, could there be a resolution. It would be credible to deal with the first family with civil law."

Republicans less charitable than Leach agree. They want to get to the bottom of this because the system requires it, but they don't want to strike down Clinton's presidency. They want him right where he is so they can run against him.

ART BUCHWALD

First line is hardest part of book-writing process

OK, Newt — so you want to write a book. Don't just stand there talking to Rush Limbaugh. Stop holding all those press conferences talking about how you had a $4.5 million advance until Bob Dole made you cough it back. You have to get to work.

Buchwald

Believe it or not, books aren't easy to write.

You have to sit in front of a computer and stare at the screen until you come up with the first sentence.

That's the hard part. And if it doesn't come, you had better throw in the towel and join a country music band.

I'll tell you what, I'll help with the opening.

I'm not going to write the whole book for you. I would have done it before Robert Novak warned me that he was not going to let you take the 4.5 mil.

The trick is to grab the reader. How about this:

"It was the worst of times and the worst of times."

Proust would have liked it.

Here's a suggestion for the opening: "The first time I saw her beautiful body and ruby red lips, lobbying a senator to lift the ban on all assault weapons, I knew I had to have her."

You want a winner for your nonfiction book. How does this sound: "When I'm not talking to my mother on the phone, I love to curl up in bed and read Louisa May Alcott stories. The part that turns me on in 'Little Women' is that in spite of a difficult life none of the sisters ever applied for food stamps."

Or what do you think of this: "She came into my room wearing a black negligee and sat on the bed. She began to rub my neck and then she uttered the words I was longing to hear: 'Tell me again about your Contract With America.' Thank God she wasn't a liberal."

Newt, writing a book means you have to introduce characters that the reader cares about. Try this: "If I loved any man in the world it was Father Flanagan. Not because he was close to God, not because he was in favor of school prayer, not because he told his boys to stay away from free school lunches, but because he was an economic supply-sider and wanted to restore fiscal responsibility to the United States — even if it meant selling public television to Rupert Murdoch to do it."

The Book-of-the-Month Club is waiting for you, Newt.

You may have to go on the Larry King show on publication day and heaven knows how many Pat Robertson programs. But just the creation of your book, which will live forever in literary history, is the greatest satisfaction a Speaker of the House can experience.

So stop procrastinating and get on with it. Here's my final suggestion: "'I am not a crook,' the President said to his wife. Unfortunately, the man known as 'Deep Throat,' hidden in the shadows of the White House garage, overheard him.'"

Israeli troops declare 'all-out war' on Muslim militants

EL BIREH, West Bank (AP) — Israeli troops arrested dozens of Palestinian activists Tuesday, ransacked a mosque and welded shut the offices of Islamic extremists following a deadly weekend bombing.

Declaring only separation from the Palestinians could stop the violence, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said his government was working on measures to keep Palestinians out of Israel, including the possibility of erecting a fence.

The hawkish opposition dismissed the idea as impractical and cowardly, and also submitted two no-confidence motions over government plans to curb Jewish settlement construction.

Rabin's narrow coalition on Tuesday defeated the combined motions 61-53 in the 120-seat parliament. But in an additional blow to the government's stability, the ultra-religious Shas Party, which usually abstains or supports Rabin, voted against the coalition.

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat, meanwhile, lashed out at his Islamic militant opponents, saying their attacks on Israelis sabotaged his efforts to take control of the West Bank.

"Those who broke the cease-fire now wanted nothing but to kill the Palestinian dream," Arafat told students at Al-Azhar University in Gaza City. But, he added, Israel's retaliatory measures also retarded peace.

Arafat's security forces briefly detained Sheik Abdallah Shami, spiritual leader of the Islamic Jihad group responsible for the blast Sunday in central Israel that killed 19 Israelis, most of them young soldiers, and two suicide bombers.

However, Shami's detention fell short of Israeli demands that Arafat crack down on Hamas and Islamic Jihad and foil future attacks launched from the PLO-ruled Gaza Strip.

In the Israeli-occupied West Bank, troops carried out arrest raids late Monday and Tuesday morning. More than 80 Hamas and Islamic Jihad members were jailed, most of them mid-level activists, Palestinian reporters and Israel radio said.

"We are waging an all-out war against Hamas," said Maj. Gen. Ilan Biran, the West Bank's military commander.

In the northern West Bank, dozens of troops approached the mountain village of Qubatiyeh at 1 a.m., shot flares to light up the night sky and arrested four Hamas activists.

In the town of Jenin, 17 activists were detained, and soldiers also broke into the offices of the Association of Religious Sages, which is linked to Hamas. Troops hung a sign in Hebrew on the door, saying the office was ordered closed for six months.

Troops searched the association's Hebron branch, welded its doors shut, and confiscated a computer, copy machine and books.

In El Bireh, soldiers ransacked the Ali Bin Abi Taleb Mosque, breaking a cabinet, damaging a door lock and leaving several copies of the Koran, the Muslim holy book, strewn on the floor.

Islamic leader Bassam Jarrar, standing outside the mosque, said Israeli reprisals would backfire. "Israel is making a mistake by imposing collective punishment. They are pouring oil on the fire," he said.

An army statement said the offices of the Islamic Society in Hebron were ordered shut for six months after searches uncovered documents showing it provided religious and legal backing for Hamas.

Clinton strikes economic blow to terrorist groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton struck back at Mideast terrorists Tuesday by freezing their assets in American banks and moving to outlaw raising money in the United States for their operations.

Court-approved wiretaps will be used in the campaign; and one administration official, declaring "the Constitution is not a suicide-pact," vowed to find new means to block contributions and to stop terrorists from entering the country.

One of 18 individuals along with 12 groups whose assets were frozen at midnight Monday was Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman, on trial in New York on charges of conspiring to try to blow up the Lincoln and Holland tunnels and other public facilities.

The long-gathering initiative picked up steam last February when a Jewish extremist opened deadly fire on praying Muslims in Hebron, on the West Bank, and crystallized with an Islamic Jihad suicide-bombing Sunday in central Israel that took 19 Israeli lives.

In all, Muslim terrorists have killed 52 Israelis in the last four months, deepening doubts in the Jewish state that it is wise to keep turning territory over to the Palestine Liberation Organization and pursuing peace with Syria, where some of the groups have havens.

Clinton, in a statement informing Congress of his action, said he was acting in response to "recurrent acts of international terrorism that threaten to disrupt the Middle East peace process."

Clinton's executive order is expected to be followed by legislation and administrative measures to strike at terrorists and narcotics traffickers by drying up their assets in the United States, denying them visas and deporting those who slip through.

Bank transfers from American banks to the 12 groups listed by the Treasury Department will be stopped. Officials, who briefed reporters on condition they would not be identified, were unable to provide any estimates of the amount of money that will be intercepted.

Among the groups targeted was Hezbollah, also known as the Party of God, suspected in the suicide track bombing of the U.S. Embassy and Marine barracks in Beirut, Lebanon, in 1983 and the embassy annex in 1984.

Hezbollah, which is closely allied with Iran and is determined to remove non-Islamic influences in the Middle East, is suspected also in the bombing of the Israeli cultural center in Buenos Aires, Argentina, last July. Nearly 100 people were killed.

Another was the Abu Nidal Organization, which the State Department accuses of carrying out more than 90 terrorist attacks in 10 countries since 1974, killing or injuring some 900 people. Major attacks included those on the Vienna and Rome airports in 1985.

Also on the list was the Democratic front for the Liberation of Palestine, a Marxist group headed by Nayif Hawatmah believed to have carried out the massacre of 27 Israelis at Ma'alot in 1974. The group uses hang gliders and motorized balloons to try to pierce Israel's defenses.

The order also included two Jewish groups, Kach and Kahane Chai, with followers of the late extremist Rabbi Meir Kahane suspected of attacks on Palestinians.

Laser tag links computer age, ancient games

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — It's becoming the next step for teen-agers raised on video games: They are INSIDE the game, stalking an enemy with laser guns on a battlefield jumping with strobe lights and loud music.

And there's no sticky mess, as with Paintball war games.

It's laser tag, a craze that has swept the world linking the computer age with the ancient games of tag and capture the flag, a slightly grown-up version of the Lazer Tag home games of the late 1980s.

"Video games are dead," declared 19-year-old Eric Lentz. He plays nearly every day at Portland's Ultrazone, using the pseudonym "Apocalypse."

"Simulated combat, but well done," he said. "It'll turn into a sport someday, where money is made."

Two teams of players creep through a battlefield of fake rocks, mirrored walls and ramps trying to capture the opponents' home base. They fire laser beams to trigger an opponent's electronic vest, "deactivating" or "stunning" him, while a computer keeps score by the players' pseudonyms.

A game lasts just 15 minutes. Fees are generally around $6, or two games for $9: prices often go up a dollar on weekends.

Laser tag came to the United States by way of Europe and Australia, where the game sprouted in the late 1980s. There now are about 110 versions of the game around the world.

One company, Q-Zar, has about 30 centers in the United States and 200 worldwide. Lazer Quest, a Canadian company, has about 100 centers around the world.

Ultrazone has 10 franchises from Honolulu to Richmond, Va., and caters mostly to the young and male.

Others bill themselves as family entertainment.

Police to apply for federal funds to increase manpower

The Midland Police Department plans to increase officer manpower using dollars provided by the 1994 federal crime bill. The City Council on Tuesday gave police officials the go-ahead to pursue the grant money.

"If we receive the grant it will fund up to 75 percent of the cost of salary and benefits for four officers," said Lt. Jeff Marugg with the administrative services division of the Midland Police Department.

Deadline for the grant application is March 3. Police officials hope to have four police trainees enrolled in the police academy in August.

Measures to slow down traffic for pedestrians near the downtown post office and the implementation of four new stop signs around town were approved by the City Council on Tuesday.

To improve safety conditions for pedestrians crossing Wall Street to get to the federal building and post office, the speed limit will be lowered, in addition to other changes.

For approximately 500 feet on Wall Street at Baird Street, the speed limit will be reduced from 30 mph to 20 mph.

Jurors' finding of innocence in man's death upsets family

By Gary Shanks

Family members were angered Tuesday when a jury acquitted Midlander Bud Eugene Strickland in the death of Roy Sanchez.

Jurors deliberated more than an hour before finding Strickland innocent of the charges of involuntary manslaughter and the lesser charge of criminally negligent homicide.

Some of Sanchez's family members wept openly and expressed anger at the verdict.

"They're upset and I'm stunned," said District Attorney Al Schorre, who prosecuted the case.

"My major concern was that the jury would find him guilty of negligent homicide ... the lesser included offense, rather than the felony. We were very surprised they found him innocent of both charges," Schorre said.

Defense attorneys Ian Cantacuzene and John Cook said they were pleased that Strickland was going to have a chance to learn from his mistake and

There was little change in employment in the month of December, according to figures released Tuesday by the Texas Employment Commission.

In the TEC's Odessa-Midland metropolitan statistical area (MSA), the unemployment rate was 6.3 percent, unchanged from November or from December 1993.

In the city of Midland, the unemployment rate inched up to 5.1 percent, up from 5 percent in November and from 5 percent in December 1993.

TEC's statistics indicate that 200 area residents left the job market during December. There were 100 fewer em-

Doctor responds to negligence lawsuit

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

A local doctor accused of medical negligence in a civil lawsuit responded to those claims by asserting a general denial to the charges, according to court records.

Relatives of James Zachery — a former professional football player who died Jan. 25, 1994 — filed a lawsuit against emergency room physician Dr. J.J. Waller and Memorial Hospital and Medical Center. The lawsuit claims that they were negligent in Zachery's emergency care.

The lawsuit was filed Jan. 3. Midland attorney Max Wright filed an answer to the lawsuit on Waller's behalf on Tuesday. The hospital had not filed a response as of Tuesday.

Zachery died in the early morning hours of Jan. 25, 1994, after he was assaulted. Duann Dewayne Stewart, 18, was convicted of manslaughter in connection with Zachery's death.

However, at his trial, medical experts disagreed over the cause of death. Defense experts argued it was from the amount of cocaine in Zachery's bloodstream, while prosecution experts said the death was caused by blunt trauma to the head.

In the original lawsuit, the Zachery family said Waller and the hospital were directly responsible for the death and claimed his treatment was insufficient as his blood loss was not replaced for several hours and the high acid levels in his blood were not properly treated.

The lawsuit also alleges that a pint of blood given to Zachery was not one of six originally matched pints and caused a rapid, feeble pulse, markedly decreased blood pressure, cardiovascular deterioration and eventually death.

In Waller's response, the answer states: "Although the death of ... James Zachery is regrettable, James

Officials catch man accused in murder after 9-month run

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

A man indicted on murder charges in the shooting of his estranged wife is behind bars once again after he removed a monitoring device and was on the run for approximately nine months.

Rogelio Flores Mireles Jr., 20, was apprehended in Torreon, Coahuila, Mexico, Saturday on a federal warrant for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Mireles is charged with murder and attempted murder in the Dec. 13, 1993, shooting death of 18-year-old Catalina Chavez Mireles.

Mireles and the victim had separated a week earlier and the woman and her 2-year-old daughter were staying with Ms. Mireles' parents, police said.

According to police reports, Mireles showed up at the parents' home and was talking to his estranged wife when family members heard shots fired. Mir-

Deadline looms for payment of ad valorem property taxes

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland property owners who have not yet paid their 1994 ad valorem taxes have seven days left to pay without incurring penalty-and-interest charges.

Property taxes become delinquent Feb. 1.

"Collections are going very well this year," said Kathy Reeves, Midland County tax assessor-collector. "We are about 3 percent ahead of last year," when the collection rate was 91.7 percent by Jan. 31.

"It may be a sign that times are better; Midland does look prosperous."

Ms. Reeves is collecting more than $13 million in taxes for Midland County and Greenwood Independent School District.

Ron Stegall, chief appraiser for the Midland Central Appraisal District, is collecting about $80 million in taxes for the city of Midland, Midland College, Midland public schools and the Midland County Hospital District.

Through Tuesday, Stegall expects to collect about 86 percent or 87 percent of the $80 million in taxes.

"That's been true since I've been doing this (since 1980)," he said.

Most of the taxes will have been collected by mid-year.

The 1994 tax bills were mailed in October to 117,000 accounts throughout Midland County.

Stegall said that more than 30 percent of 1994 tax collections will come this month.

"And most of it will come in the last two days."

But "right now, we don't have a big crunch," Stegall said. "And Monday and Tuesday, we will get a bunch of money."

That likely also will be the case in Ms. Reeves' office.

"There should be a rush in paying taxes (next week)," Ms. Reeves said.

If taxes are paid by mail, the envelope must be postmarked on or before Jan. 31 to avoid the initial 7 per-

FINDING: Jurors acquit man on both charges

said the jury acted correctly in acquitting the young man. Culpability is a major factor in Texas law and Strickland had no intention of causing the death of Sanchez, according to the defense attorneys.

"This isn't a victory for us — there is no reason why Mr. Sanchez had to die," Cantacuzene said.

"We in no way want to demean Mr. Sanchez's death," Cook agreed. "We hope our client has learned a valuable lesson — that it's stupid to engage in a bar fight."

Many people do not think of the possible severe consequences of a fist fight, Cook said. Strickland could easily have been convicted of assault, he said.

In the early hours of Dec. 30, 1993, Strickland was involved in a fist fight with Sanchez outside the nightclub Bojangles, located on West Wall Street, according to testimony in the case.

Witnesses' testimony indicates that Strickland and Sanchez knew each other and they both left the club and became embroiled in an altercation just outside.

A witness testified that she saw Strickland hit Sanchez and left him incapacitated. He went back into the club to get his girlfriend just about the time Sanchez was run over by an automobile, the witness said.

An autopsy showed that Sanchez died of multiple blunt trauma to the head and chest. Death was due to a severed aorta and massive head trauma, a medical expert testified Tuesday.

Some witnesses differed in their statements regarding the exact position of the combatants. One witness said Sanchez was knocked down at the entrance to the parking lot; others said Sanchez was left unconscious in the traffic lanes.

In the end, the racially mixed jury did not believe the prosecution's case had been proven beyond a reasonable doubt, as stated in charges presented to the jury by Judge John Hyde — of the 238th District Court — before deliberation.

The jury consisted of eight women and four men, although it was earlier reported to be nine women and three men. Schorre said he was pleased with the demographic makeup of the jury.

The owner of Bojangles testified that Strickland and Sanchez had been outside only a few minutes before Strickland hurriedly came back in, found his girlfriend and left.

Witnesses indicated that Strickland's girlfriend told him Sanchez had manhandled her in what might have been an attempted rape. Schorre told jurors that there was no proof any incident of that nature ever occurred.

Cantacuzene, however, maintained that his client's mental state should be taken into account and not whether the incident ever took place.

"That's what's important — did Bud Strickland believe it happened," Cantacuzene said.

The nightclub's owner testified that he saw Strickland put his girlfriend's driver's license in his shirt pocket earlier that night. This license was later found by Sanchez's body, according to testimony from police officers.

The only witness called by the defense was David Griffith, who was following the van that hit Sanchez. He said the van driver turned hard in an attempt to miss Sanchez, but the man's body was spun three or more feet into the air and came to rest some distance away from where it had been before the impact.

The driver of the minivan that hit Sanchez, Johnny Holt, testified that he was driving east on West 80 — as Business Interstate 20 was called at the time — when he saw something in the road, hidden by the shadow of a street sign in the right lane.

Holt testified that he swerved but could not miss whatever was lying in the road. Only when he pulled his car over did he see that he had run over a man.

Holt testified that he does not drink and that he was driving about 40 mph.

Jurors were not allowed to know that Strickland had an earlier felony conviction for burglary of a habitation and had later had his probated sentence revoked, Schorre said.

Prior criminal history is presented to jurors only in the punishment phase of a trial and not when determining guilt or innocence.

Strickland declined comment following the trial.

SHOW: Figures changed little for last month

(From 1B)

ployed in the MSA, as total employment dipped to 112,000 from 112,100 in November. Employment, however, is well above the year-ago total of 110,800.

Likewise, total unemployment dropped by 100, to 7,500 from 7,600 in November. Total unemployment in December 1993 was 7,500.

Combined, those dropped from the employment and unemployment rolls lowered the civilian labor force to 119,500 from 119,700 in November. The labor force in December 1993 totaled 118,300.

In Midland, the labor force dipped to 49,513 from 49,540 but is above the 48,940 of a year earlier.

Of those in the labor force, 46,998 were employed, down from 47,044 in November, but up from 46,517 a year earlier. There were 2,515 Midlanders unemployed in December, up from 2,496 in November and from 2,423 a year ago.

Jackie Moseley, manager of the TEC's Midland office, attributed the numbers to holiday hiring. She said January figures will likely reflect an increase in unemployment due to the loss of holiday-related jobs.

She predicted "that may not be as significant as in the past, judging from the claims we've been seeing."

She said the Odessa-Midland area saw a 1,200-person growth in the labor force, which she attributed largely to the new businesses moving into the area, such as Midland's new Wal-Mart Supercenter and Best Buy.

Ms. Moseley expects that trend to continue this year, with the TEC already handling the hiring for Builders Square. TEC is also expected to handle hiring for The Black-Eyed Pea and Olive Garden restaurants.

She said jobs being created don't pay as well as those being lost and the area could benefit from the creation of manufacturing jobs.

"Obviously somebody has confidence in our economy to be opening businesses here. Overall, these jobs have to be a benefit for the economy."

Odessa-Midland ranked 16th among the TEC's 27 MSAs. Bryan-College Station had the lowest rate in the state, 3.2 percent, followed by Austin-San Marcos with 3.3 percent, Lubbock with 3.6 percent, Amarillo with 3.8 percent and San Angelo with 4.1 percent. The highest rate was in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission, 15.4 percent.

FUNDS: Police to apply for grant

addition to other planned police hirings by the city.

The grant also provides that the additional officers be used in community policing projects. Community policing concentrates on greater police-citizen interaction in neighborhoods.

"It will certainly give us the opportunity to try some new programs where we don't have the personnel," Marugg said.

The extra officers may be utilized to man a police substation or create a bike patrol, Marugg said.

Four new officers amount to 3 percent of the Police Department's authorized manpower, Marugg said.

Through the grant program, Midland is eligible for up to $300,000 for the additional officers over a three-year period.

Costs for salary and benefits — for which the grant will pick up 75 percent — will be $413,693. Under the program created by the crime bill, federal dollars would pick up $281,636, and the city's share would amount to $132,057.

Total costs for four officers for three years — with the additional vehicle and equipment costs — amount to $531,845. That would increase the city's share to $250,209.

In comparison, three officers for three years without grant funding would cost $398,705 — $148,496 more than four officers with the grant, police officials pointed out.

OK: Council approves reduction in speed limit

across Wall Street to the post office and federal building.

"Some (drivers) yield and some of them don't," Saunders said. "We're trying to get their attention. We're (also) putting up larger signs and flashing lights" on mast arms, he said.

A similar situation — motorists not yielding to pedestrians at crosswalks — existed on Illinois Avenue by Midland Memorial Hospital a couple of years ago. The city reacted by erecting more signs and flashing lights on mast arms.

"It's working real well right now. You can actually go out there and see motorists stopping," Saunders said.

Councilman Bill Morrow voted against the reduction of the speed limit on Wall Street, citing enforcement of existing law as a more effective means of controlling the dangerous situation.

In other traffic-related business, the council approved putting up stop signs at four locations. They are:

- Stop signs will be erected on McDonald Street at Tanner Drive creating a four-way stop at the intersection.
- Stop signs will be put up on Powell Street at Mariana Avenue making a four-way stop intersection.
- Stop signs will go up at St. Andrews Drive at Norwood Street creating a four-way stop.
- And stop signs will replace yield signs on Maple Avenue at Tyler Street.

Harlem Globetrotters to play at Chaparral Center

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff Writer

The Harlem Globetrotters "Salutes the Family" at 7:30 p.m. today at Midland College's Chaparral Center.

"It's what I would consider solid, family entertainment," said Chap Center director Mike Stevens.

"A lot of comedy, a lot of tremendous basketball skills and a lot of outrageous personality types. (Those who enjoy comedy) can come and enjoy this as well as those who enjoy the art of basketball. That's why it's pure family entertainment."

In the past six decades, the Harlem Globetrotters have entertained more than 100 million people in 113 countries.

"Each game represents a commitment to excellence and wholesome entertainment at the best value in the industry," said owner and chairman Mannie Jackson, a former Globetrotter. "This season we've added to the rich tradition and unbelievable play that is so uniquely Globetrotter. Fans will be amazed by the non-stop action and rewarded with a genuine 'feel good' experience."

The Globetrotters perform at Chap Center every other year, said Stevens, who has seen many of their games.

"I've probably been seeing it . . . for 30 years. It's something you don't get tired of. A lot of the comedy we see in the movies is a little more of an adult nature, where their kind of comedy is a little bit more slapstick and kind of revives you back to Saturday morning cartoons."

Stevens praises the talent displayed by the Globetrotters and their opponents, the Washington Generals.

"They are a tremendously, highly skilled group of athletes. All of the guys are former college basketball players and that in itself speaks pretty highly. Those people are out there touring on an every-other-night basis. And they are highly skilled doing what they are doing as well as adding the comedy to it."

The Globetrotters have "a long string of victories since their last loss," Stevens said. "They've beaten the Generals more than 8,500 times."

Tickets, priced at $10 and 12 for adults and $8 and $10 for children and senior citizens, go on sale at 9 a.m. today at Chap Center.

DOCTOR: Waller denies he treated Zachery negligently

(From 1B)

Zachery's demise was not caused by the negligence of Dr. Waller or any other defendant in this cause.

"James Zachery's own actions in consuming addictive, illegal controlled substances which he knew or should have known were hazardous to his health and in placing himself in danger while attempting to acquire illegal controlled substances, to-wit: cocaine ... were the sole proximate cause of James Zachery's death, or alternatively were a contributing proximate cause of said death," the answer stated.

According to Waller's response, Zachery's death was caused, in whole or in part, by the assault or a combination of the assault and "the illegal drugs ... (he) had consumed on the night of his death and at earlier times."

The answer also states that Waller performed his care in "conformance with generally accepted standards for medical care for physicians practicing in the same field of medicine as Dr. Waller" and that Zachery's death was "caused by complications of the injuries suffered ... prior to the time he was treated by Dr. Waller."

No trial date has been set.

Members of the Zachery family and hospital officials declined comment when the original lawsuit was filed.

Heritage Museum hosts murder-mystery party

Staff Report

A "Who-done-it?", of sorts kicked off the Big Spring Heritage Museum's 1995 special events calendar Saturday evening as it hosted a "Let's Solve a Murder Mystery" benefit.

Approximately 100 guests from the area — including several couples from Midland and Odessa — attended the museum benefit.

"It was almost criminal" how much fun the event was, according to Diane Ragan of the Heritage Museum.

Guests were encouraged to dress as a character from one of three "How to Host a Murder" games.

In "The Duke's Descent," guests tried to unravel a murder at an English country mansion. In "Last Train From Paris," those who participated tried to solve the murder of their mystery train ticket benefactor. And in "Archaeolgically Speaking, It's the Pitts," guests surrounded an archeological dig and were forced to find the murderer amongst them.

The variety of costumes worn by those attending added color and excitement to the games.

The guests were treated to a buffet before dividing into groups of eight and going to many mystery sites in Big Spring. There they played roles, discovered clues, proved their innocence and solved the mystery.

The museum staff said the murder-mystery party was a successful fund-raiser. Proceeds will be used for the museum's operation.

"This event has surpassed our initial expectations, especially with all the guests from the Midland/Odessa area," said Angela Way, museum curator. "Our murder mystery evening has been well received. Each year, people leave asking when we will have the next murder-mystery night, so they can play again."

The museum is planning several special events this year that staff members hope will appeal to a variety of interests.

"Our next event is April 29, called 'Around the World in 80 Bites.' We invite everyone to bring their taste buds and join us for a taste testing party," Ms. Way said.

CATCH: Authorities capture, return Mireles to jail

eles had already left the house when the parents went into the room and found their daughter had been shot.

Ms. Mireles' father, Jose Chavez, told officers he ran after Mireles and a shot was fired at him.

Mireles fled but turned himself in three days later. He was arraigned, and bond was originally set at $100,000 for the murder charge and $50,000 for the attempted murder charge. That bond amount was later reduced to $50,000 and $25,000 with special conditions to be met for release.

Bond was posted and Mireles was allowed to remain free while attached to a home-monitoring device beginning March 7, 1994.

The federal warrant was issued after Mireles fled state boundaries April 7, 1994, removing the monitoring device attached to his leg, and for his failing to comply with special conditions attached to his bond.

The bond had been posted by a Lubbock bail bond company.

Midland FBI Supervisor Tom Kirspel said the FBI investigation led them to Mexico. He declined to explain the details of the arrest. He said the FBI worked with foreign attaches and Mexican law-enforcement officials.

He said Mireles was arrested Saturday by Mexican police and was deported on Sunday.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said in a press release that the victim's father located Mireles in Mexico and spent several weeks working with special agent Tony Henry of the Midland FBI office, the U.S. Embassy in Mexico and Mexican authorities in order to apprehend and return Mireles to the United States.

Mireles was returned to the Midland County Jail Tuesday by Midland County deputies who took custody of him from the El Paso County Sheriff's Department earlier in the day.

Mireles remains in jail.

Judge George "Jody" Gilles of the 142nd District Court denied bond.

Gilles previously granted Mireles the $50,000 bond with the special conditions.

Leaders blast agency's proposal to list minnow on endangered list

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's top leaders Tuesday blasted the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, saying the agency is out of line in proposing to list a West Texas minnow as an endangered species.

The fish, the Arkansas River shiner, is found in the Canadian River.

Gov. George W. Bush, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, House Speaker Pete Laney and Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry all said the minnow is doing just fine and that federal intervention could harm a major agricultural area.

"I say to the federal government, 'Leave us alone. We know what we're doing,'" Bush said. "We're people of good judgment. We care about our land. We care about our waters. And we know how to run our own business."

The Clinton administration first proposed placing the shiner on the federal endangered species list in August.

Teen-age decoys, $25-$500 fines keep tobacco away from minors

WOODRIDGE, Ill. (AP) — Thirteen-year-old Eric Lemons has tried a half-dozen times to buy cigarettes in his home town. No luck.

"They just won't sell them. They ask for your ID," he says.

In this middle-class Chicago suburb, youngsters under 18 have about as much chance of buying a pack of cigarettes as they do of buying a bottle of vodka.

It's a result of one of the nation's toughest tobacco-control ordinances. Enforced with undercover "sting" operations using teen-age decoys and $25 fines for minors caught with tobacco, the law is credited with cutting teen smoking rates to a fraction of national levels.

"It's considered model legislation across the United States," said Diana Hackbarth, a community-health nursing professor at Loyola University of Chicago.

Outlawing the sale of tobacco products to teens isn't unusual; 44 states set a minimum age for purchasing the product. But actually keeping tobacco out of teens' hands is unusual; federal experts estimate that by high school age, one youth in three smokes or uses smokeless tobacco.

The Woodridge ordinance has its roots in a junior high school principal's complaint in 1988 that a student had bought cigarettes at a store just half a block from school.

The complaint went to police Sgt. Bruce "Buzz" Talbot, who came up with the tough anti-tobacco provisions that were enacted in 1989.

Any Woodridge merchant who sells tobacco to the minor can be fined up to $500. Repeat offenders can have their city-issued tobacco sale licenses suspended or revoked.

Government calls for patients' exam

WASHINGTON (AP) — All 25,000 Americans who have a potentially faulty pacemaker wire in their chests should undergo special X-rays to see if their wires are among the 12 percent that may break, the government said Tuesday.

Not every wire that breaks will be dangerous, but at least 1.6 percent of patients are at risk of death or serious injury if the wire pops out of its plastic coating and punctures the heart wall, the Food and Drug Administration said.

This is the first advice to patients since problems with the electrical cable, which delivers impulses to keep the heart beating regularly, were made public two weeks ago.

But neither the FDA nor manufacturer Telectronics Pacing Systems Inc. could tell exactly who should undergo the sometimes-risky operation to replace the wire.

"The frequency of fractures is a lot higher than we had understood earlier," said FDA medical-device chief Dr. Bruce Burlington. "My guess is we're going to have some intense discussions between doctors and patients about what's the best decision for them."

At issue is the Accufix atrial "J" pacemaker lead, models 330-801 and 329-701, made by Telectronics of Englewood, Colo. A third model, 033-812, also is prone to breaking but was distributed solely abroad.

Telectronics' wire was implanted in some 40,500 patients worldwide between 1987 and last fall, when unused wires were recalled from hospitals.

Mourners remember woman of many triumphs, tragedies

BOSTON (AP) — Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, who raised a family that included three U.S. senators, an ambassador and a president, was remembered at her funeral Tuesday as a woman who tempered ambition with affection and love.

"Mother always thought her children should strive for the highest place," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said in his eulogy. "But inside the family, with love and laughter, she knew how to put each of us in our place. She was ambitious not only for our success but for our soul."

Six of her grandchildren served as pallbearers for her wooden casket at the funeral at Old St. Stephen's Church, where she had been baptized in 1890. She died Sunday at age 104.

Hundreds of other mourners crowded the surrounding streets to listen to the service on loudspeakers. Some held bouquets of roses.

"She was the strongest woman who ever lived. She had more triumphs and tragedies than the Queen of England. I just wanted to pay my respects," said 60-year-old Paul Kelly.

Senator Kennedy's eulogy was filled with stories, and many relatives laughed aloud at the lighter moments. Throughout the service, her grandson John F. Kennedy Jr. played and mugged with one of his nieces.

'She sustained us in the saddest time — by her faith in God, which was the greatest gift she gave us — and by the strength of her character, which was a combination of the sweetest gentleness and the most tempered steel.'

—Sen. Edward Kennedy

In more emotional moments, Senator Kennedy broke down during his eulogy, and his sister Patricia Kennedy Lawford passed on a reading she had been expected to make.

Mrs. Lawford's eyes were swollen and she did not speak to guests as she left the church.

A cortege of 100 relatives accompanied Mrs. Kennedy's body to Holyhood Cemetery in suburban Brookline, where she was buried next to her husband, Joseph P. Kennedy.

The procession passed by the Statehouse and the new and old city halls, where her father, John Francis "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald, served two terms as mayor. That's also where her sons began their careers in politics.

"She sustained us in the saddest time — by her faith in God, which was the greatest gift she gave us — and by the strength of her character, which was a combination of the sweetest gentleness and the most tempered steel," Sen. Kennedy said.

He ended his eulogy with a poem, "The Rose Still Grows Beyond the Wall," by Almira L. Frink, and his voice waivered as he read the final lines:

"Shall claim of death cause us to grieve? ... Nay, the rose still grows beyond the wall, scattering fragrance far and wide just as it did in days of yore ... just as it will forevermore."

After his eulogy, the senator walked to the casket, covered with a white shroud decorated with a purple cross, and placed both hands on it for a moment. He kept his head down as he took his seat, needing a moment to compose himself.

Relatives filled several limousines and three buses for a procession that began at the family compound in Hyannis Port on Cape Cod, about 90 minutes south of Boston. Eight hundred people were invited to celebrate the funeral Mass in the brick church, which held huge bouquets of red and pink roses.

Cardinal Bernard Law asked the mourners to share a gesture of peace. The Kennedy family, seated in the first four pews, turned to one another, hugging warmly and exchanging kisses.

Of Mrs. Kennedy's five surviving children, 28 grandchildren and 41 great-grandchildren, the only one who did not attend was daughter Rosemary, who is mentally retarded and has lived in a special home in Wisconsin for 40 years. Senator Kennedy remembered his mother reciting "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere," and playing the piano as the family sang "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," which always drew demands for an encore.

"She has gone to God. She is home," he said, choking back tears. "And at this moment, she is happily presiding at a heavenly table with both of her Joes, with Jack and Kathleen, with Bobby and David."

Officials defend nuclear accord with North Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Appearing before a skeptical Senate committee, senior administration officials defended the nuclear agreement with North Korea on Tuesday, saying a likely alternative was a war costing billions of dollars and involving hundreds of thousands of U.S. troops.

Defense Secretary William Perry said that he rejected the option of a military strike against North Korean nuclear facilities.

"I can tell you flatly that we know how to do that, but on consideration, I did not recommend that course of action to the president," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Perry said even less drastic measures such as increasing the U.S. troop levels in South Korea and pressing for economic sanctions were "both risky and costly," suggesting a military strike would trigger an all-out war on the Korean Peninsula.

Perry and Secretary of State Warren Christopher sat side by side for nearly three hours and responded to senators concerned about whether North Korea could be trusted to keep its end of the bargain and questioning whether the agreement would encourage other nations to seek benefits by pursuing nuclear weapons programs.

It was the first appearance by both Cabinet secretaries since the committee passed to Republican control and the chairmanship of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Whatever fireworks they expected from Helms, a nemesis of the State Department during Republican as well as Democratic administrations, never materialized.

The North Carolina senator was a model of politeness and bipartisanship.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your financial and professional responsibilities become less burdensome, thanks to excellent advice. Rely on experts. Later in 1995, you will share in a loved one's triumph. A new hobby brings extra money as well as considerable pleasure. Let family members know if they should change their spending habits.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singer Anita Baker, football player Mark Duper, actor Dean Jones, actress Leigh Taylor-Young.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make the most of all the things you have going for you! A combination of hard work and good luck will lead to phenomenal financial gains. Protect your good name; be conscientious about paying bills.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Children and friends need extra encouragement today. Business success requires a willingness to adopt new tactics. Discard outmoded methods and seek suggestions on modernizing. Avoid running up difficult-to-pay credit card bills.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Working in harmony with your partner will strengthen your allegiance to each other. Give loved ones the benefit of the doubt. Overseas contacts help you make shrewd investments. A computer brings important records up to date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The financial picture looks brighter. Give free rein to your imagination and creativity. Writing could be a source of extra cash. Take partner's opinions into account if hoping that a new relationship will last.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New job opportunities arise. Do not give up your present employment while researching interesting prospects. Inexpensive recreational activities will boost your spirits. Set a good example for children. Keep your temper in check.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A joint effort at place of employment could benefit your family. Creative financing and innovative thinking play a major role in attaining long-sought-after goals. Welcome another chance at romance. You are wiser now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New honors and prestige are headed your way. Opinionated remarks often have unfortunate repercussions; stay on your toes. Be diplomatic if asked your preference. Solidify weekend plans only after talking with younger family members.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasize your skills as a teacher or talent-spotter. Clear communication is vital in key partnerships. Your financial instincts are right on target. Be firm. Speak with authority instead of letting others call the shots.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Go with the flow today. You cannot expect to always have things your way. If necessary, compromise in order to get the ball rolling. Hard work and patience will bring you what you want.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A talent for interior decorating or bargain-buying receives new attention. A raise or promotion will boost your self-confidence. Have some fun this evening. Get enthusiastic about health foods and exercise. Romance looks awesome!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Try to stay centered throughout the day. Caution is advised in financial and business matters. Call on the expertise of family and close friends to clear up a financial riddle. Study your spending patterns.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A take-charge attitude will work wonders today. Others want to climb aboard your success train. Learn to delegate responsibility to able people, then devise a bonus program for the deserving. Dynamic action dominates!

Opening lead: Ten of ♠

Much of the play of a bridge hand centers around entries. If you can move freely from hand to hand, it is easier to build tricks. When almost all your side's assets are in one hand, you sometimes have to enlist the aid of the enemy if your are to bring home your contract.

The usual range for a standard three-no-trump opening bid is 25-27. However, since the hand cannot quite guarantee game on its own, South elected to tell the littlest of white lies with the opening bid to protect against the possibility of North being broke.

West led the ten of spades and South was more than happy to find three points in dummy. Declarer could count eight fast tricks. Dummy's queen of hearts represented another sure trick but, unfortunately, there was no certain entry to the table.

Since the jack of spades was a positional stopper, declarer captured East's king of spades with the ace, cashed the ace and king of hearts and led a low diamond to the jack. That would have been the winning line had West held the king but, when East produced the monarch, the spade return sealed declarer's fate — the defenders collected four spade tricks to go with the king of diamonds.

As long as spades are no worse than 5-2, the contract cannot be defeated no matter who has the king of diamonds. Declarer should allow East's king of spades to win the first trick. The spade continuation is taken with the ace and, after clearing the ace and king of hearts and enough clubs to exhaust the defenders of cards in that suit, declarer exits with the jack of spades.

West can take three spade tricks to complete the book, but then must lead a red card. Whether it be a heart or a diamond, declarer scores an extra trick in that suit as the fulfilling trick.

Aspiring actress Banks has gripe about boyfriend Singleton on set

LOS ANGELES — Model and aspiring actress Tyra Banks has a gripe about the way boyfriend John Singleton treated her on the set of "Higher Learning." He wasn't affectionate enough.

"I just felt like he should have just rubbed my head after every take — like, 'Are you OK?' — which he didn't do. But he says he felt that would have been showing too much favoritism, and he didn't want to look like a weakling in front of everybody," the 21-year-old Banks said.

In her movie debut, Banks plays Deja, a young track athlete and girlfriend of Omar Epps' character, Malik. Singleton cast her after spotting her photograph on the cover of Essence magazine. They have been dating for about a year.

NEW YORK — Recent "Saturday Night Live" addition Janeane Garofalo has something to tell critics constantly trashing the NBC show: You're right.

"The last two seasons have been unwatchable, and I realize that," Garofalo, who joined the cast this season, says in the February issue of Spin magazine.

"Some people think I've made a bad decision, but I consider it NOT selling out. What am I supposed to do? Wait for scripts that Rosie O'Donnell turned down while breathing in smog?"

The 30-year-old New Jersey native says returning to New York from Los Angeles took some adjustment, but she has settled in. What she can't get comfortable with is getting tagged as a representative of "Generation X."

"Every 10 years, media people need to write something down on a piece of paper," Garofalo says. "Already, they've started Generation Y."

SPOKANE, Wash. — Retired daredevil Evel Knievel is taking his risks in court these days.

Retired daredevil Evel Knievel is taking his risks in court.

He is suing a hotel contending his privacy was invaded Sept. 11, 1989, when a desk clerk gave a spare key to his room to Clarence "Cip" Paulsen III.

Paulsen unlocked the door, saw his ex-girlfriend in Knievel's bed and began throwing punches, according to the lawsuit, which names the Ridpath Hotel and its parent chain, WestCoast Hotels Inc., as defendants.

Knievel contends he suffered a bloody nose and numerous bruises as well as public humiliation, psychological trauma and insomnia. His Superior Court lawsuit seeks unspecified damages.

Opening statements were given Monday. Testimony is expected to last about a week.

Paulsen says there was no fight. He says he had been drinking with Knievel and the woman earlier that night and left the hotel when he unlocked the door to Knievel's room and saw them together.

Knievel, who boasted of breaking bones 400 times during his career performing motorcycle stunts, retired in 1981.

MANCHESTER, N.H. — Adam Sandler, the "Saturday Night Live" comic whose specialty is pretending to be obnoxious, returned to his old high school, where his specialty was being obnoxious.

Many mornings during Sandler's days at Manchester's Central High, the intercom blared: "Adam Sandler, report to detention."

The 29-year-old Sandler, who once threw lettuce out the window during Spanish class, roamed the halls Monday reminiscing and making peace with teachers he drove to distraction until he graduated in 1984.

"I was threatening to stencil your name on your chair in detention," Assistant Principal Isabel Pellerin said. "Now I realize you were just rehearsing."

While talking with former teachers, Sandler was trailed by a camera crew, making promo spots for his upcoming movie, "Billy Madison." The film due out next month is about a man who must repeat kindergarten through 12th grade to receive his inheritance.

LOS ANGELES — Sarah Jessica Parker was thrilled to get a part in the romantic comedy "Miami Rhapsody," saying: "I was so thankful that they didn't go to Meg Ryan."

"Because she's who people think of first and foremost for comedic women's roles, as few and far between as they are," Parker told the syndicated TV show "Entertainment Tonight" in an interview for broadcast Tuesday.

"Miami Rhapsody," co-starring Mia Farrow and Antonio Banderas, opens Friday. Parker, who appeared in Tim Burton's "Ed Wood," hopes the critics like her new film because poor reviews have haunted her in the past.

"For some reason, those are the ones that you end up playing in your brain like on a loop. They just go over and over again, like, 'Sarah Jessica Parker, the weak link in the cast,' that kinda thing," she said.

Study underlines value of prostate test

N.Y. Times News Service

Researchers today reported the first strong evidence that a widely used blood test for prostate cancer accurately detects a significant majority of cancers that will later grow, spread and become deadly. The news should ease nagging doubts about the test that have troubled many doctors and patients.

The test was also found to have a low false-positive rate, cases in which cancer is detected in men who do not have it, leading unnecessarily to further tests and treatment.

The test, known as PSA, for prostate specific antigen, could find 80 percent of aggressive prostate cancers five years before they would otherwise have been detected and could find half of all aggressive prostate tumors 10 years before they would have been noticed.

But the study, published in The Journal of the American Medical Association, did not deal with the pressing question of whether treating prostate cancer early saves lives.

In some cancers, like lung cancer, even early detection and treatment do not make a difference in survival rates. Because the treatment for prostate cancer has many serious side effects, including incontinence and impotence, the debate over the use of the test continues.

For years, medical experts have argued over the value of the PSA test. On the one hand, all agree on the importance of reducing the death rate from prostate cancer, which is the second leading cause of cancer deaths in men, after lung cancer.

On the other hand, many say the test should not be used for widespread screening unless two things can be proved: that the PSA finds cancers that are deadly and that treating those cancers saves lives. The new study addresses the first of these concerns.

Prostate cancer was diagnosed in about 200,000 men in 1994, and in two-thirds of the cases the cancer had already spread beyond the prostate gland by the time it was diagnosed. But the cancer can also be indolent, and it often is, causing no symptoms and never spreading. Autopsy studies show that 30 percent of men have prostate cancer when they die, although most never know it.

The study, by Dr. Charles Hennekens of Harvard Medical School and Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, involved data from a continuing research project, the Physicians' Health Study. It includes 22,071 doctors who were 42 to 84 years old in 1982.

At the start of the study, each man provided blood samples that were stored in liquid nitrogen. Hennekens and his colleagues identified men in whom prostate cancer was diagnosed after enrolling in the study and did PSA tests on their stored blood.

To guard against biases, the laboratories did not know which men had cancer and which did not, and the investigators inserted other blood samples along with those from the test subjects.

Then they could ask whether the PSA tests had detected the disease in men who were later found to have aggressive cancers. For comparison, they did PSA tests on the stored blood of men who did not develop prostate cancer.

Dr. John D. McConnell, chairman of the urology department at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, said the results were persuasive. He said he would recommend routine PSA screening for every man over 50 who had at least a 10-year life expectancy.

"This is probably the key study that demonstrates that the sensitivity and specificity of PSA testing are more than acceptable," McConnell said. "I think, based on this paper, that we can stop bickering about the accuracy and performance of the test."

And, he said, he is willing to take a chance that early detection saves lives. "I don't think that we should say that until all these questions are answered about the value of treatment that we should not try to detect the cancer," he added.

Dr. Joseph E. Oesterling, chairman of the department of urology at the University of Michigan School of Medicine, was similarly enthusiastic. "I think it's going to be a landmark study," he said. 'If we are going to decrease mortality from prostate cancer, we have to diagnose it when it is still confined to the prostate and do so in younger men. I think the data from this study clearly supports the fact that the PSA should be part of every physical exam, starting at age 50."

Commenting in an editorial accompanying Hennekens' paper, Dr. Paul H. Lange of the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis said that the study "may be historically significant."

But Hennekens himself cautioned that his study "by no means answers the really crucial question: does it make a difference" to diagnose a dangerous cancer early.

It could be that the aggressive cancers are so deadly that even when they are diagnosed early — even when they seem to be confined to the prostate — they have in fact silently seeded themselves throughout the body.

So treatment, which usually involves surgically removing the prostate gland or irradiating it, may not make a difference. The National Cancer Institute is addressing that question with a clinical trial, but the results will not be in for more than a decade.

Hennekens also cautioned against jumping to the conclusion that because his results showed that the PSA was as good as or better than any other screening test in finding cancer that it should be routinely used.

"These findings add to the body of evidence that the PSA holds promise," he said, "but they by no means conclusively demonstrate it."

Alcala and company turn table, widen lead

The lockerroom conversations after the game produced shouts of vindication and the dejected look of a team that said it "didn't show up."

Sound familiar ?

After the Midland High Lady Dawgs forced 28 Midland Lee turnovers on their way to defeating the Lady Rebels 59-46 in District 4-5A girls basketball Tuesday night at Chaparral Center, the comments from the players were similar to those made after the Lady Rebels stopped MHS' 19-game district winning streak.

In that first district meeting, Lee's seniors got revenge by beating Midland High for the first time in their careers. The Lady Dawgs said after their performance that they didn't show up.

Tuesday night the tables were turned.

"We showed up," said MHS senior Veronica Poage.

"We can say the same thing they did after the last game," Lee senior Michelle Benson said. "We forgot to show up."

The district championship could have been decided with Tuesday's game. Midland improved to 21-3 overall and 8-1 in league play and sits atop the standings with a 1½-game lead. Lee fell to 15-8 and 6-2 but is still in second place with a ½-game lead over Abilene High.

"First, and most importantly, we won the game," MHS coach Jim Raughton said. "That cross town stuff, it's tough. It's just a real emotional ball with a one-point win, you feel fortunate."

"Turnovers are a factor in every single game," Lee coach Elise Kail said about her team's 28 turnovers. "But we just flat went out there and beat ourselves. We had people bringing the ball up the floor against the press that never do it in practice.

"We had a lot of people doing things that they never do in practice."

Bulldogs even score with Rebs

■ Midland High moves into position to play Abilene Cooper for District 4-5A lead.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Midland High Bulldogs moved into position on Tuesday night at Chaparral Center to play for what could be the District 4-5A championship Friday against Abilene Cooper after shaking the Midland Lee Rebels 78-64 before more than 3,500 fans.

In the process, MHS avenged its only district loss of the season, which came to Lee in the first half. MHS is now a state unranked 20-4 on the season and 6-1 in league play while Lee falls to 10-14 and 4-3.

Even with the loss, Lee maintains a full-game lead over Odessa Permian (3-4), a victor over Odessa High Tuesday. Cooper beat Abilene High to keep pace with the Bulldogs to set up Friday's key contest.

And the verdict of this cross-town matchup came with very oposite results from the first time the two teams played. For instance, MHS put on a wicked pressure defense that hurt Lee and helped spell out 20 Rebel turnovers. Lee was also 11 of 17 from the three-point line in the first game, but dropped to a 5-23 effort this time. MHS also got 27 offensive rebounds, a fact that a smaller Lee team just couldn't live with.

"This win is better than any we've had in a long time because I said at the beginning of the season that this just might be the best team I've ever had," Stephenson said. "I was criticized for saying that, but we are doing some nice things right now and we have moved into a position to play for what could be a district championship at our gym Friday against Cooper."

MHS senior Jumon Hailey, who was held to 13 points against Lee in the first meeting, responded with a game-high 22 points and 10 rebounds.

"I knew this was my last game against Lee, unless we meet again in the playoffs and that's unlikely, so I wanted to go out like a champion," Hailey said. "We came to play this time and Midland High just didn't show up the first time."

Senior Cornelius Mitchell, who had 10 points, added, "Now we're ready to play for the championship. I think the game with Cooper (Friday) will determine that."

John Marc Sanon, another senior, added 15 points while senior Lavius Taylor had 14 in a four-pronged attack. Jonathan Hopkins came off the bench for nine rebounds.

"We put defensive pressure on Lee this time and we didn't do a good job of that the first time," Taylor said.

Stephenson also felt that was a big key to the Bulldog win.

"We were watching the video of the first game and noticed that we were backing off of them when we should be putting on more pressure," Stephenson said. "We felt we could hurt Lee with our pressure and we didn't get that in the first game. Lee has a good team, but we can beat a lot of people when we do the things we need to do."

Sanon said, "We were just more pumped up this time around. I couldn't believe

Bulls' Pippen ejected; Spurs claim road win

By Mike Nadel
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — Scottie Pippen threw a chair across the United Center court after getting ejected in the first half Tuesday night, and David Robinson and the San Antonio Spurs took advantage of his absence to beat the Chicago Bulls 104-102 in overtime.

Robinson made two free throws with six-tenths of a second left in regulation to send the game into overtime at 93-93. He then scored 9 of the Spurs' 11 points in the extra period, capped by his layup with 1.7 seconds to go.

■ NBA Roundup/3C

Robinson, whose 16-foot jumper tied the game with 6.1 seconds left in overtime, scored the winning basket after going around Will Perdue to steal Jud Buechler's inbounds pass. Buechler was playing for Pippen.

Chicago's Toni Kukoc missed a running 3-pointer at the buzzer.

Robinson shook off 2-of-10 first-half shooting to score 30 points. Vinny Del Negro added 20 points and Dennis Rodman grabbed 23 rebounds for the Spurs.

Kukoc scored 28 points, but Chicago's most impressive athletic feat was Pippen's two-handed, overhead, cross-court toss of a chair after referee Joe Crawford ejected him with 2:56 left in the first half.

Crawford said Pippen tried on consecutive San Antonio possessions to get a 3-second violation called against the Spurs.

The second time, Crawford said, "He screamed, 'Three seconds!' I knew he was doing it for my benefit, so I whacked him with a 'T.' He went nuts, so I threw him out of the game."

Rebels even league mark

By Mike Butts

John McCulloch's four-day journey to a first District 5-5A soccer win began with a 5-0 loss in his league coaching debut. It ended shortly after the opposing coach in Tuesday's game with Abilene High asked the referee if he had obtained his officiating license at a Circle K.

In between those events McCulloch celebrated a birthday and overhauled the Midland Lee Rebel lineup, making changes that helped the first-year Lee coach's team to a 4-0 win over Abilene High's Eagles at the Lee soccer field.

"I had an up-and-down weekend," said McCulloch, who turned 28 Sunday after the Rebels (1-1, 3-3) were blown out by Midland High Saturday. "After Saturday I had to make a decision to make our defense as strong as possible and to put

Cougars clamp down on Lady Bulldogs, 4-1

By Stewart Doreen

For three quarters of the Midland High girls soccer game against defending district 5-5A champion Abilene Cooper, the Lady Bulldogs had Cooper playing MHS' game.

But on Tuesday, that would not be enough as the Cooper Lady Cougars defeated MHS 4-1 at the Midland High field.

"We've played the top two teams in the district evenly," MHS head soccer coach Scott Hodkinson said, speaking of Tuesday's match with Cooper and last Saturday's game with Midland Lee. "We can make it to that level. It's a matter of playing a full game."

Midland High came out Tuesday and showed something that was missing in their 4-0 loss to Lee...offensive firepower. The pressure they put on the Lady Cougars culminated with a goal in the tenth minute.

Forward Ann Smith found herself in the right place to put in a rebound of a missed shot, scoring to put MHS up 1-0. Smith said the communication by the MHS players was a key reason for the team's improved showing offensively.

"We're learning to talk to each other," Smith said. "The first half was our best half, we thought we could take them."

The lead however would be a short one as the Lady Cougars, 5-0 and 2-0, came back with a good offensive series of their own. The play resulted in Cooper's first goal of the game as Stacy Metcalf found a hole in the MHS defense.

Now with only the goalie to beat Metcalf, a second-team all-district player last year, lobbed the ball over the charging MHS goalie, Tina Richardson. The ball hit the crossbar and came right back out to Metcalf who put the rebound in the net for the goal and 1-1 tie.

Bulldogs cruise past Cooper, 7-0

ABILENE — Sean Parnell tallied two goals and five other players scored as Midland High's boys stayed in first place in District 5-5A soccer with a 7-0 win over Abilene Cooper here Tuesday. The Bulldogs, 2-0 in league play and 4-1-1 overall, are tied with Odessa High for first place in 5-5A.

Others getting goals for MHS were Dustin Huber, Tyler Berry, Patrick Sample, Kiley Miller and Tyson Yarborough. Miller and J.D. Ramirez each had two assists. Sample also had an assist. The Bulldogs outshot Cooper (0-2, 2-5) 20-8.

"The first 15 minutes I was worried because we missed five shots inside the penalty area," MHS coach Tom Esikhati said. "I thought it would be a much closer game than it was."

The Bulldogs led 3-0 at halftime. They play next at home Saturday versus Odessa Permian at 2 p.m.

Lady Rebels nip AHS in shootout

ABILENE— The Midland Lee girls soccer team found the road a little rough but hung on to beat Abilene High 2-1 in a sudden death shootout on Tuesday.

The Lady Rebels, 5-1 and 2-0 in District 5-5A, took an early lead when Jamie Welch scored her sixth goal of the season in the 30th minute of the game.

Abilene High, 4-3 and 0-2, tied the score at 1-1 in the second half to force the shootout.

In the shootout Lee could only score one time on Jamie Welch's turn. Abilene High did not fare any better as Lee goalkeeper Jamie Calhoun stopped all but one to force it to sudden death. Calhoun's five saves in the shootout and sudden death followed the eight she had during regulation play.

In the sudden death Christy Johnson gave the Lady Rebels the victory converting on her opportunity. Lee next hosts Odessa High at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Rangers hold on for non-district win

GREENWOOD — Greenwood's Rangers were almost caught looking ahead to their key District 8-3A matchup with Crane Friday but got by Class 1A Sterling City 55-48 here Tuesday. The Rangers are 4-0 in district (14-10 overall). Crane was 3-0 in league play going into Tuesday's game.

The Rangers led 32-20 at halftime but let Sterling City back into the game in the third. The score was 41-36 after three periods.

"We just had a letdown in the third period," Greenwood coach Justin Morett said. "We played a little better the third quarter and just kind of held them off the rest of the way."

The Rangers James Settles led all scorers with 17 points. He made two 3-pointers. Daniel Harris (11) and Edward Kennepohl (10) were also in double figures for Greenwood.

Cowboys name Campo coordinator

IRVING (AP) — Dave Campo was hired as defensive coordinator for the Dallas Cowboys Tuesday, the third coach in the position in three years.

The job opened when Butch Davis left to become head coach of the Miami Hurricanes.

The Cowboys' defensive coordinator has become a turnstile position. Dave Wannstedt left to become head coach of the Chicago Bears in 1993, followed by Davis' move.

Campo is coach Barry Switzer's first major personnel selection since he took over the Cowboys in 1994.

Campo, the Cowboys' secondary coach, has extensive experience, including coaching the defense that helped win two Super Bowls.

He was hired by Dallas in 1989 after spending two years at the University of Miami as secondary coach, helping the Hurricanes to a record of 23-1 and a national title in 1987.

Prior to joining Miami, Campo coached at his alma mater, Central Connecticut State from 1971-72, where he was a defensive back; the 1973 season at Albany State; 1974 at Bridgeport; 1975 with the University of Pittsburgh; 1976 with Washington State; 1977-79 at Boise State; 1980 with Oregon State; 1981-82 at Weber State; 1983 at Iowa State, and 1984-86 at Syracuse.

Rankin weathers foul fest in OT

RANKIN — Wink came into its game Tuesday against Rankin with the intention of holding Rankin's running game in check by slowing down the tempo with fouls.

The plan almost worked as the Wildcats committed 39 fouls, but Rankin avoided the upset with an 89-87 overtime win here Tuesday.

"They came in with the idea to hammer us to keep us out of our running game, and it worked," said Rankin coach Shannon Hooker. "We missed eight one-and-ones and barely shot 50 percnt from the foul line with 52 free throw attempts."

Tomas Wrotten scored 18 second-half points to fuel the Rankin offense. In junior varsity action, Rankin defeated Wink 50-47. The Red Devils returns to action on Friday at Garden City.

NBA: Rockets stop Bucks

MILWAUKEE — Hakeem Olajuwon scored 20 of his 31 points in the fourth quarter as the Houston Rockets snapped the Milwaukee Bucks' four-game winning streak with a 115-99 victory Tuesday night.

Olajuwon even joined in Houston's 3-point barrage, hitting from the left wing with 22 seconds left for Houston's 14th 3-pointer of the night and Olajuwon's first of the season. He scored 20 of the Rockets' final 29 points.

Vernon Maxwell added 25 points, 21 after halftime, and Otis Thorpe had 15 points for Houston, which led just 82-81 with 10:38 remaining.

The Rockets, who outshot the Bucks 63 percent to 47 percent, got double-figure scoring from all five starters.

Pistons 116, 76ers 105

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Allan Houston scored a career-high 32 points and Terry Mills added 28 as the Detroit Pistons again beat Philadelphia.

SOCCER: Coach makes moves

(From 1C)

some of our best skilled players back there.

Also I had to make a decision to move Adam (Morris) on the attack because he's one of our best players."

The Rebels four goals were the most they had scored since a 5-1 win over Odessa High Feb. 1 last season. Lee averaged only 1.4 goals in district last year.

"I was worried about scoring this year after the game Saturday," McCulloch said. "(And) I was worried about the changes. But I'd rather sacrifice those first two games and get the lineup right than stick with something that wasn't going to work."

McCulloch made seven changes on his 11-man starting team. He used a new keeper, Mike Loftis, switched Morris from sweeper to midfield, Adrian Castresana from forward to center midfield, Brandon Doty from midfield to defense, Luke Snyder from midfield to defense, Salvador Bombara from stopper to to sweeper and put Ryan Dodd in as stopper.

The combination worked as forward Henrik Madsen scored two goals and had an assist to spearhead the Lee offense. The game was stopped with two minutes to play when Abilene High coach Hugh Menzies was red carded for refusing to return to his bench area after continuing to argue with the referee.

"Terrible officiating, and you can put that in red," said Menzies, whose team fell to 1-1 in district and 3-3 overall. "He (the referee) is very inconsistent with his calls and I have to protect my players."

Abilene High players received a yellow and red card before their coach was red carded. Menzies was upset with a call against Abilene High's Ahman Brooks that resulted in Snyder's penalty kick goal for the game's final score.

"The calls are inconsistent," McCulloch said. "I know it's a tough job and it's something I wouldn't want to do, but the last two games the referee's have lost control of the game. But they're human beings and sometimes it's hard for the players, coaches and fans to understand that."

Unofficially Lee finished with 22 fouls and Abilene High with eight.

But the officiating didn't change the game's outcome. And Midland Lee found a good lineup, found its offense and beat a school that advanced to the Region I tournament last year.

"I thought we played the ball better today and we had more time" Madsen said. "They didn't play us as hard as Midland High."

Madsen, a Denmark foreign exchange student, took a through ball from Roger Balizaire and angled in a shot to put Lee up six minutes into the game. Five minutes into the second half he took an errant Abilene High pass and ran three-quarters of the length of the field. Eagle keeper Issac Munoz tackled him but the ball got through and Madsen poked it in for his sixth goal of the year.

"He came out of a nightmare for having such a tough game against Midland," McCulloch said. "He was totally physically taken out of that game and the Abilene team let him move around and didn't really press him."

It may be the last time Madsen gets to roam free this year. It should be the last time McCulloch makes seven changes in his starting lineup.

BULLDOGS: Cooper pulls away

(From 1C)

MHS fought off the next wave of Cooper attacks, and the teams took the 1-1 tie to halftime.

The second half would start out like the first with MHS controlling the game. But once again, Cooper found a crack in what had been a impermiable MHS defense and exploited it for another goal by Metcalf, this one coming in the third minute in the second half. The opportunity for the goal came from a crossing pass from the left side by Monica Noto.

The game did serve as a measuring stick for MHS to look at their ball club after last year's 1-11 district season.

"They (MHS) looked a lot different than they did last year," Cooper coach Claudia Gonzalez said. "They have improved 100 percent."

The drive was not out of the Lady Bulldogs' squad. On this day, when the offensive pressure would not fail them missed opportunities would. MHS got off 15 shots against Cooper (compared to the seven shots attempted against Lee), but on this day only one would find the back of the net.

The harassment on Cooper's defense would come to a close in the 60th minute when Cooper's Amy Morrison took advantage of an MHS ball-handing error to score the Abilene's third goal. Morrison escaped with a break away after MHS' sure-footed sweeper Sonya Lackey misplayed a ball at midfield. Morrison took the ball and beat Richardson to the lower left.

Hodkinson said it is hard to fault his sweeper because the role she plays to the team is so valuable.

"Everything that she (Lackey) does is magnified because of her position," Hodkinson said. "We hung with a good team for a half. We just need some time and experience."

Cooper would score another goal moments later when all-district midfielder Kim Cheek headed a crossing pass into the net to give the Lady Bulldogs a 4-1 win.

The loss showed improvement for the MHS club that moved to 1-2 (0-2 in district). MHS outshot the Lady Cougars 15-12, a big improvement considering the Lady Bulldogs were outshot by Lee 19-7 on Saturday.

In junior varsity action, the Lady Bulldogs tied Cooper 1-1 to go to 1-1-1 for the season. Tamika Akins scored to give MHS the early lead. Abilene would tie it up on Emily Batko's goal in the second half.

Midland will travel to meet Odessa Permian Saturday at 2 p.m in Odessa.

Sampras pulls out win

■ Australian Open

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Pete Sampras stood still on center court at the Australian Open as if naked, his emotions exposed, his face awash with tears, his chest heaving.

"C'mon, honey, get in there," his girlfriend, Delaina Mulcahy, said gently from the front row.

Across the net, Jim Courier shouted jokingly to his friend and rival, "Are you all right, Pete? We can do this tomorrow." It was a gesture of love by Courier, who knew how much Sampras was hurting inside and wanted to help him stop crying.

Yet, Sampras couldn't stop thinking about his coach, Tim Gullikson, who had left the hospital and flown home earlier in the day after a dizzy spell that may have been related to a heart condition and two recent strokes.

"Do it for your coach," a fan had called to Sampras at the start of the fifth set of a four-hour match Tuesday night that was as much grand theater as it was great tennis between the defending champion, Sampras, and the 1992 and '93 champion, Courier.

Sampras would come back from two sets down for the second straight match and win 6-7 (7-4), 6-7 (7-3), 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 to reach the semifinals. But that remark by the fan triggered Sampras' fragile emotions and started him weeping into a towel on the changeover at 1-0 of the final set.

"He is so emotionally exhausted from this whole thing. He wants to do it for Tim," Mulcahy told Mary Carillo of ESPN during the dramatic fifth set.

Sampras splashed ice water on his face and returned to court, though he looked as if he wanted to hide. Courier won the next game, in the process earning a code violation for cursing, and now it was Sampras' turn to serve.

Somehow, he managed to get to 30-0 with his 19th ace at 118 mph, but as he stood behind the baseline to serve again he couldn't move. The tears poured down his face while 15,000 spectators watched, and he stared blankly at his rackets, fingering the strings.

Maybe it was his girlfriend's words, maybe it was Courier's joke, but after a few moments Sampras pulled himself together enough to serve once more. Through those tears, he smacked his 20th ace and then a service winner to take a 2-1 lead, and it was clear at that moment that neither emotions nor weariness nor pain were going to stop him.

Courier, who had played so brilliantly to take the first two sets, would be the one to weaken first. He never had even a single break point against him in those two opening sets, had slugged with the confidence and control of his championship days, yet he couldn't deny Sampras' will or the signals his own body was giving him.

"I was standing there getting ready to serve, cramping every time ... quads, groin, hamstrings," Courier said of the game he lost at 4-3 in the final set, the game that would cost him the match.

At break point in that game, Courier drove a forehand into the net cord, the ball popping up and falling back on his side. A fraction of an inch and the match was virtually over. Sampras served it out at love with the help of his 23rd ace and a service winner at match point at 1:09 a.m.

As they met at the net and walked off to a long, loud ovation, Sampras wrapped his right around Courier's shoulder, and Courier wrapped his left arm around Sampras' waist.

BOY: MHS gets even with win over Rebels

(From 1C)

how high I was jumping out there."

The crucial blow to Lee was a five-point second quarter on the way to a 17-point overall deficit, 52-35, in the third quarter. The Rebels, who had a cold night shooting with 21 of 56 shots from the field, did make a comeback to 54-50 with a roaring three-minute streak to end the third period.

However, Hailey and Terry Johnson answered the fourth quarter bell with six unanswered points and MHS was rolling toward the finish wire unmolested.

"When you give up 27 offensive rebounds, you are going to get your lungs kicked in," said Lee coach Jon House, who saw his team drop its second consecutive 4-5A outing.

Still, House isn't too concerned with his team.

"We split with the team which is probably going to win the district, so we can live with that," House said. "You have to give them cred it, they have a lot of talent and we didn't play very well. But we are now thinking about winning two ir a row (Abilene High and Odessa High) instead of losing two in a row. We're still in pretty gooc shape to gain a playoff berth."

It is now a solid two-team race down the stretch for the 4-5A title and the dividends of that title are huge since you get a first round bye in the state playoffs. That is one thing that escaped the Final Four Bulldogs a year ago when they finished second in the league and had to go to Austin the hard way.

Lee is probably now in a fight for that third playoff slot, but still has the leg up in that battle. The Rebels must now respond to keep that hold after dropping two in a row.

All in all, the district is marching to the perfect beat of the pre season script writer.

GIRLS: MHS gains measure of revenge

(From 1C)

What the Lady Rebels did so well in gaining their revenge against Midland High the last time the teams met, totally backfired on them Tuesday night.

Lee held the Lady Dawgs to one of their lowest point totals of the season in the 44-42 decision. Poor shooting by the Lady Dawgs contributed to that and MHS was rarely able to set up its deadly full court press without very many made baskets.

This time, the Lady Dawgs didn't shoot that much better — MHS hit for 39.7 percent from the field while Lee shot 40.5 percent. But the timing of the turnovers which Midland forced worked against the Lady Rebels.

Lee took a 5-0 lead to start the game and MHS didn't score until 5:14 to play in the first when Ogonna Merritt drove the lane on a fast break. But that was all it took as the MHS defense forced nine Lee miscues during that span to take a 13-7 first quarter lead which was challenged but never recaptured by the Lady Rebels.

Merritt, who finished with a career-high 20 points, went on to score Midland's first seven points as it took a 7-5 lead and the Lady Dawgs held Lee scoreless until the final 34 seconds of the quarter.

Everytime the Lady Rebels would make a run to get back in it, the Lady Dawgs would score big with the press. Lee pulled within 17-16 with a 12-2 run to open the second quarter but Midland slammed the door shut, answering with a 10-2 run to give them a 27-18 halftime lead.

"We still didn't shoot all that well but it was enough," said senior Amy Alcala, who scored a game-high 23 points and pulled down 11 rebounds.

"The last couple of practices, we didn't practice like we should have," said Woodard, who led her team with 14 points and 11 rebounds.

Midland put the game away with an 18-13 performance in the fourth, with most of the points coming off free throws when the Lady Rebels were forced to foul.

The next contest for the Lady Rebels will be crucial as Friday they host Abilene High, the only other team to beat Lee in league action. Abilene survived a scare from its cross town rival on Tuesday and sits ½-game behind the Lady Rebels in third. Midland travels to Abilene Cooper on Friday.

In junior varsity action, MHS' Talitha Belcher topped off the girls scoring for the entire night with 30 points as the Lady Dawgs ran away from the Lady Rebels 61-33. Belcher scored 13 of her total in a 16-5 MHS run in the fourth quarter which put the game away. Angie Seibold led Lee with 14 points. MHS improved to 16-4 overall and 7-2 in league play while the Lady Rebels fell to 9-14, 3-5.

Baylor interim coach to get job permanently

WACO (AP) — Baylor's interim basketball coach Harry Miller will get the job permanently on today, according to published reports.

The Waco Tribune-Herald and Fort Worth Star-Telegram both quoted unidentified sources as saying that Baylor President Herbert Reynolds would make the official announcement at a news conference today on campus.

Reynolds sent out a news release Tuesday saying the school will make "an announcement regarding athletics" in the morning. He had no further comment.

Miller, 42, took over the program temporarily on Nov. 28 after Darrel Johnson was fired 12 days earlier for alleged NCAA rules violations in his program.

Miller, who is black, will be the first member of an ethnic minority to serve as head coach in any sport in Baylor history.

The Bears are off to a 6-10 start, 1-3 in the Southwest Conference.

Texas' Adams to attend ACC

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas wide receiver Mike Adams has enrolled in a community college after being forced to drop out of the university for the spring semester due to academic problems.

Texas coach John Mackovic said Adams twice talked to him about the prospect of entering the April NFL draft before enrolling at Austin Community College to make up courses and improve his grade-point average.

"He wants to come back to Texas," Mackovic said. "He's got plenty of course work to do (to regain his eligibility)."

Adams has an unlisted phone number and couldn't be reached for comment Tuesday.

Two Texas juniors, wide receiver Lovell Pinkney and offensive tackle Blake Brockermeyer, forfeited their last season of eligibility to enter the draft.

Adams led the Longhorns in receiving and was All-Southwest Conference as a sophomore. He redshirted last season after spraining his left knee against Texas Christian in the third game. He has two more seasons of eligibility.

Adams missed most of the preseason last fall while taking a 60-day leave of absence from the team following his arrest on assault charges in June. A Travis County grand jury later declined to indict him.

He missed the first game of the season while serving a university-imposed suspension for accepting the free use of a rental car.

"That's troubling from the standpoint of timing, that he hasn't been out there on a regular basis," Mackovic said. "He's got ground to make up, but he's talented."

Prices rebound

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasoline prices rose sharply in the futures market Tuesday, rebounding from a three-day slump that reflected concerns about the impact of colder weather on driving.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in March settled at $18.39 per barrel, up 29 cents. The contract had lost 32 cents on Monday.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $17 a barrel.

Prices of other petroleum products also headed higher.

The market closed before the release of the American Petroleum Institute's weekly survey of energy supplies, which showed that gasoline stocks rose to 212.7 million barrels, from 211.5 million barrels last week.

Home heating oil supplies fell to 139.6 million barrels from 141.2 million barrels. Crude oil stocks fell last week to 321.7 million barrels, from 327.9 million last week. Refineries operated at 90.7 percent of capacity, down from 92.8 percent last week.

Dollar steady

NEW YORK — The dollar held steady against most key currencies Tuesday in uneventful dealings, as traders looked to testimony from the Federal Reserve chairman and economic growth data for hints on American interest-rate policy.

By the end of the day in New York, the dollar was down slightly against the German mark and marginally higher vs. the Japanese yen. The British pound, meanwhile, advanced to a 10½-week high against the U.S. currency.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 99.77 yen, up from 99.73 late Monday.

The dollar also was changing hands in New York at 1.5131 marks, down from 1.5146.

Late in New York, the pound was quoted at $1.5970, up from $1.5945 late Monday and the highest level since Nov. 10.

Markets mixed

NEW YORK — Stocks ended mixed Tuesday as investors nervously awaited the Federal Reserve Board's next interest rate move.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 4.71 to 3862.70 in the last minutes of trading after remaining up for most of the day.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 4 to 3, with 1,251 up, 932 down and 742 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 325.18 million shares, down from 325.81 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose 0.23 to 253.70. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.82 to 466.64. The Nasdaq composite index rose 3.69 to 763.20, while at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 0.49 to 437.40.

Shell, Amoco, Exxon look to gulf

Companies join to develop new $1 billion deep-water giant oil platform

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Shell Oil Co. said Tuesday it will team with Amoco Production Co. and Exxon U.S.A. on a $1 billion project to develop a record deep-water oil platform in the Gulf of Mexico.

The 41,000-ton tension leg platform will be installed in 3,218 feet of water — the deepest ever in the Gulf — about 125 miles southeast of New Orleans and 80 miles south of Mobile, Ala., Shell spokeswoman Dee Dee Taylor said.

Estimated gross recovery from the so-called Ram-Powell field, where the platform is to be built, is about 250 million barrels of oil and gas equivalent.

The companies expect to extract 60,000 barrels of oil and 200 million cubic feet of natural gas from the field every day after production starts late in 1997.

While the amount pales in comparison to the 6 billion to 9 billion barrels of recoverable oil in some of the world's largest fields, it's still "a lot of oil," Taylor said.

"This is important for the company," she said.

McDermott International Inc. of Morgan City, La., was contracted to build the rig's 19,500-ton deck, which will be able to accommodate 20 wells. Belleli S.p.A. of Taranto, Italy, will build the 17,000-ton hull. Fabrication is to start next month.

When assembled, the giant platform will measure 3,570 feet from the sea floor to the top of the drilling rig.

The largest oil platform now operating in the Gulf is Shell's Auger rig, which is in 2,860 feet of water. The Mars platform, now under construction by Shell in 2,933 feet of water, will surpass that next year and be surpassed when the Ram-Powell rig is finished.

Shell will provide about $380 million of the investment and operate the Ram-Powell field. Amoco and Exxon each will provide about $310 million.

Taylor said producing the oil estimated to be recoverable from the field was made possible by the relatively recent development of tension leg platforms.

Shell's Auger platforms can be operated in deep Gulf waters because it is anchored by flexible cables rather than rigid legs. While United States production has been declining in recent years, analysts say the best hope for new finds are in areas of the Gulf that have been inaccessible.

"Up until this technology was developed, we couldn't drill in this depth of water," Taylor said.

Shell has announced its intention to increasingly cultivate Gulf oil fields. The company's current Gulf of Mexico production is about 157,000 barrels per day. That figure is expected to double once the new Mars and Ram-Powell rigs are operative.

Bombay stock at 52-week low

N.Y. Times News Service

FORT WORTH — The Bombay Co.'s stock hit a new 52-week low Tuesday as the company reported declining earnings.

The Fort Worth-based specialty retailer reported a $12.5 million net profit for the quarter that ended Jan. 2, down 18 percent from the same period last year. Sales were $142.4 million, up 23 percent.

James Herlihy, Bombay treasurer and chief financial officer, tried to put a positive spin on the numbers.

"The general performance was up slightly, not as bad as Wall Street expected," he said.

The quarterly earnings reflect the $5 million hit that is part of a $50 million write-down announced earlier this month to streamline operations and close its 62-store Alex & Ivy division. On Jan. 13 Bombay announced it would spend $41 million to close the division that sold casual, light wood furniture and accessories. The rest of the write-down will be taken in late January and reported in a seven-month stub-year ending Jan. 28 with results released in mid-March, Herlihy said.

Beginning with the next quarter, the company is shifting to a new fiscal year in line with the calendar year. Bombay President and Chief Executive Robert Nourse said the shift would put in the company in line with most other retailers. He said the old calendar was a throw-back to Bombay's days as a unit of Tandy Corp.

Hearst Corp. launches 'Multimedia Newsstand' service on Internet

Hearst News Service

NEW YORK — The Hearst Corporation on Tuesday launched "The Multimedia Newsstand," an on-line service now available to users of the Internet, the worldwide computer network.

Hearst's Multimedia Newsstand is an interactive shopping and entertainment service available to any user accessing the Internet's World Wide Web. The service principally offers magazine subscriptions, as well as videotapes and audio CDs. The service later will be expanded to include the sale of CD-ROMs and other electronic products.

A chief attraction of the service is entertainment features, including a daily adventure comic strip, a daily trivia quiz and a collectors' trading post. The Multimedia Newsstand is the first distribution initiative from Hearst's New Media & Technology Division and is designed to serve as the newsstand of the future.

"The Multimedia Newsstand is one of many new Internet services, but an important one for us," Frank A. Bennack, Jr., president and chief executive officer of The Hearst Corporation, said. "It is an attempt to merge traditional marketing and distribution services with innovative electronic options. We expect to learn a great deal from it."

The Multimedia Newsstand is a joint project of the Hearst New Media & Technology Division and the Hearst Magazines Division. It was developed in the Hearst New Media Center, a digital training and development facility at the company's New York City headquarters.

"The Multimedia Newsstand is not only a place to buy media products — it is also a place to browse, be entertained, and communicate with others," said Alfred C. Sikes, president of the Hearst New Media & Technology Division. "When users enter The Multimedia Newsstand, they will be inviting a well-stocked newsstand right into their home."

The Multimedia Newsstand allows users to:

— Subscribe to more than 250 magazines, many at a substantial discount from newsstand prices;

— Search and select magazines by category such as "men's," "science & technology," "sports," "automotive" and numerous other categories;

— Trade collectibles such as comic books and baseball cards through The Multimedia Newsstand's "Swap Shoppe" feature;

— Browse through, or preview, selected text, photos and graphics on the "Featured Magazines" page. Appearing on the screen will be current or recent issues of at least two magazines each month. These could include Hearst magazines such as Popular Mechanics, Esquire, SmartMoney, Sports Afield, Cosmopolitan and Good Housekeeping and magazines from other publishers.

Owner Tom Garcia said his store offers men a "real bright look" in sportswear from shirts and sweaters to jeans. Also included in the inventory are slacks, sports coats, dress shirts, ties and belts. Sizes range from small to Extra Large and Garcia said he can get larger sizes as well.

Alterations are available as are gift certificates and a layaway plan and the store takes all major credit cards.

Garcia has 21 years experience in the retail industry, most recently managing a Zales Jewelry store for nine years. Before that, he managed the Sakowitz men's department and, in Hobbs had a young men's and junior sportswear shop for three years before becoming a buyer and manager for two other Hobbs men's stores.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

A trio of women has opened a business office, INCOME TAX AND BUSINESS SERVICES, at 1015-C N. Midkiff Road.

The three, offering tax preparation, bookkeeping, secretarial and other business services, essentially operate three separate businesses from one office.

Jacque Holliman operates All About Business while Mickey Trimble operates A-Plus Business Services and Brenda Terry runs Bokay Professional Business Services.

Recently opened at 1008 Missouri Ave. is THE GLASS COTTAGE.

Owned by Taunja Wilson, the store carries all sorts of supplies for those who make stained glass, from glass to patterns, irons and cutters, zinc, lead and copper foil. Wilson also carries the finished product, be it window pieces, door pieces, night lights or kaleidoscopes. What supplies she doesn't carry she can order, she said.

Wilson said she took up the making of stained glass when she lived in Houston and when she moved to Midland had difficulty finding supplies, so she decided to open her own store.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Veggies and smoking

Agreed, the best way to keep from having lung cancer is to stop smoking. But what if people don't? Or what if they stop after smoking many years? Can food do anything to help save current smokers or ex-smokers from future lung cancer?

Yes, according to a recent study of the diets of about 500 male Japanese smokers, ex-smokers and nonsmokers. Researchers found that current smokers were 660 percent more apt to get lung cancer than nonsmokers. Ex-smokers were 356 percent more vulnerable to lung cancer than nonsmokers.

However, eating fruit, raw vegetables, green vegetables, lettuce and cabbage markedly reduced the risk for smokers and ex-smokers. Indeed, those who ate the most fruits and vegetables were about half as apt to develop lung cancer as smokers who ate the least.

Most powerfully anticancer among current smokers werfruit and raw vegetables, including lettuce and cabbage. Ex-smokers seemed to get the most protection from fruit.

Experts suspect that many different anti-cancer compounds in fruits and vegetables help neutralize cell damage from cigarette smoke that promotes lung cancer.

Olive oil still best

Which is better? Plain old vegetable oils or olive oil? A new study at Stanford University finds corn oil just as good as olive oil in lowering blood cholesterol. Corn oil is primarily a polyunsaturated fat. Olive oil is a monounsaturated fat.

Reportedly, monounsaturated fats, which also include canola oil, lower bad-type LDL cholesterol, but not good-type HDL cholesterol. On the other hand, corn oil is said to lower both good and bad cholesterol. But the new Stanford analysis, based on 14 studies, finds no difference in bad and good cholesterol in the blood of those who eat olive oil or corn oil.

However, much other research shows that simply lowering cholesterol is but one part of the story. Olive and canola oils are still superior in fending off heart disease as well as cancer and inflammatory diseases, many studies indicate. The reason: Olive oil is not as likely as corn oil to be oxidized, a process that leads to clogging of the arteries and pro-cancer and pro-inflammatory activity in cells.

Experts, like Harvard's Walter Willett, say monounsaturated fat, such as olive oil, is the best choice for overall health.

Orange-juice antidote

Drinking orange juice might help save you from cancer. And it's not just the juice's vitamin C, a well-known antioxidant and cancer-blocker.

In tests at Cornell University, groups of rats were first fed either orange-juice extract, devoid of vitamin C, or a dummy oil with no biological activity. Then all the rats were subjected to the powerful carcinogen aflatoxin, a mold responsible for much liver cancer around the world.

Animals getting orange-juice extract had 40 percent fewer precancerous injuries to the liver. "There's something in oranges that makes carcinogens less potent and less likely to cause cancer," said Robert Parker, Cornell associate professor of nutritional sciences who did the study.

The anti-cancer chemicals fed to the animals were extracted from frozen orange-juice concentrate purchased at a supermarket. The strongest anticancer fraction contained carotenoids, chemicals that include beta carotene, vitamin E and terpenes that provide aroma.

Cancer cells

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists say they may have found a way to mark cancer cells for destruction by the "natural killer cells" of the body's immune system.

In the test tube, killer cells were able to destroy cancer cells that normally resist them after the cancer cells were marked by certain chemical flags. A protein on killer cells binds to these flags.

Perhaps in the future, antibodies can be used to deliver a bunch of flags to cancerous cells in the body, setting them up for destruction, researchers wrote.

The work was reported in the Nov. 10 issue of the journal Nature by scientists in England and the Czech Republic.

Tuberculosis a global crisis, officials report

By Brenda C. Coleman

CHICAGO (AP) — Tuberculosis will strike 90 million people this decade and will kill 30 million if worldwide efforts against it don't improve, researchers predict.

"The magnitude of the global tuberculosis problem is enormous," the reseachers wrote in the Jan. 18 issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association.

Ninety-five percent of cases are in developing countries. The disease is gaining fastest in the Western Pacific and Southeast Asia, where two-thirds of infected people live, said the authors, led by Dr. Mario C. Raviglione of the World Health Organization in Geneva.

Tuberculosis cases worldwide can be expected to increase to 8.8 million this year and to 10.2 million by the year 2000. More than 7.5 million cases occurred in 1990.

Assuming that treatment programs remain at their 1990 effectiveness level, 3 million tuberculosis deaths can be expected this year, and 3.5 million deaths can be expected annually by the year 2000, authors said. More than 2.5 million died in 1990.

"Without recognition of the tuberculosis crisis confronting the world and prompt, effective action, the tuberculosis epidemic can be expected to worsen," they said.

TB was on the decline until 1985, when a worldwide resurgence began.

Several factors are to blame, they said. Children born decades ago in areas of high population growth are reaching ages where rates of TB sickness and death are great. Also, famine, war and natural disasters are creating large groups of displaced, malnourished people in crowded conditions that foster the spread of TB. And the AIDS virus is spreading, adding to the vulnerable population.

In 1990, 4.2 percent of all tuberculosis cases were associated with the AIDS virus, HIV. In the year 2000, an estimated 13.8 percent of all TB cases may be HIV-associated, the researchers said.

The WHO in April 1993 declared tuberculosis a global health emergency.

"It hasn't changed a great deal," said Dr. Dixie E. Snider Jr. of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, a co-author of the report.

The researchers culled data from ministries of health in various countries, from WHO questionnaires, from respiratory-disease associations and from published literature.

Tuberculosis is spread when an infected person coughs or sneezes bacteria-laden water droplets into the air, which someone else inhales.

Antibiotics can cure the disease, but they must be taken daily for months, and an incomplete course of treatment can produce drug-resistant disease.

The WHO and CDC recommend a five-pronged approach to treating the epidemic: getting governments to commit themselves to effective programs, testing more people, supervising treatment to ensure that patients take all their medicine, establishing a reliable antibiotic supply and monitoring TB control programs work to be sure they work.

"It doesn't cost a whole lot to deal with the problem, at least to keep people from dying, but it's beyond the investment some of the poorest countries can make," Snider said.

"It would be wise for the United States to ... assist other countries in TB control," he said. "It's not only the humanitarian thing to do, but the economically wise thing to do, because those people will be consumers of American products rather than dead people."

The American Lung Association agreed, for an added reason: "More than one-fourth of tuberculosis cases in the United States occur in foreign-born individuals. If the disease continues to rage elsewhere in the world, its devastating impact eventually will cross our borders."

Computer in cap keeps tabs

By Steve Sakson

NEW YORK (AP) — A tiny computer embedded in the caps of drug bottles is designed to solve one of medicine's most vexing problems — patients who don't take their prescription medication.

The SmartCap, made by Aprex Corp. in California's Silicon Valley, beeps when it's time for a person to take their pills, and counts how many times the cap is removed each day and when. The information is shown by a digital readout on the cap.

The system also includes a computer modem attached to a telephone that would allow the company to keep tabs on when a patient takes the drugs. If a dose is missed, Aprex will call the next day with a reminder.

The system known as Dosing Partners is being unveiled Thursday and will be marketed to insurers and health care plans as a way to cut costs and make patients healthier.

"We're not big brother. We'll only take volunteers. And we're not their mother, we're not going to nag. What we're going to do is empower people to be successful with their medication taking," Janice Wohltmann, Aprex chairwoman and chief executive, said Wednesday.

Pharmaceutical experts were mixed on the idea, balking at its $75 a month average cost and noting that other less sophisticated dosing reminders have failed. Still, they said it had potential.

Numerous medical studies have shown patients' failure to take drugs costs the health care system tens of billions of dollars a year, resulting in unnecessary medical tests, surgeries and deaths.

"The leading cause of kidney transplant rejection in the United States is that patients don't take their immunosuppressant properly," Wohltmann said. "A kidney that's rejected can cost almost a quarter of a million dollars."

The reasons for not taking drugs vary: forgetfulness, disease denial, side effects or cost. Aprex is targeting patients who need to take drugs for long periods, often several times a day.

Of course the SmartCap is only smart enough to know if patients open the bottle — not if they actually take the pills. But Wohltmann doubted many patients would defeat it.

Each evening, the patient places the bottle on top of a small computer modem about the size of a TV remote control. The modem then transmits the daily dosage times over a toll-free telephone line to Aprex. If the drug wasn't taken properly, an Aprex staffer phones the patient.

At the end of the month, Aprex will mail a printout of the dosages to the patient's doctor.

'Eating for one' can be healthy

By Jennifer Stack
Associated Press

For many single, time-pressed working people, dinner for one can be a certified nutritional disaster.

But it doesn't have to be that way. Making a few changes in your food choices and habits can help you prepare a healthy meal without a lot of work.

Many single people arrive home tired and hungry. For them, dinner consists of foods within easy reach, such as cheese and crackers; or snack foods like a bag of chips.

In these cases, the first step to eating a healthy evening meal is having a sustaining and nutritious afternoon snack, such as low fat yogurt and fruit. This afternoon snack can help ensure that you do not arrive home too hungry to prevent you from making wise choices for dinner.

During a shopping trip, the selection of nutritious, easy-to-prepare foods is another essential step to a dinner that is simple, yet healthful.

Low-fat frozen dinners can be part of a healthy meal, especially when paired with fruits and vegetables. Most of these meals are about 300 calories, so look for those containing less than 10 grams of fat. Frozen vegetables are more convenient than fresh vegetables because they are already chopped and can be kept on hand longer than fresh vegetables.

English muffins or French bread, a jar of pizza sauce and shredded part-skim milk or no-fat mozzarella can make for a quick and nutritious basic meal on those nights when little cooking

Plastic surgery procedures 'booming'

Associated Press

A new study shows baby boomers are taking their label seriously, going under the knife in record numbers for facelifts and other cosmetic surgeries.

Baby boomers were patients in 43 percent of the 500,000 cosmetic procedures studied by the Washington-based American Academy of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery between 1988 and 1993. In the past, most patients were over 50.

The number of procedures performed by the academy's 2,800 surgeons swelled by about one-third, with baby boomers showing a 38 percent jump over the five years, the survey found.

The survey didn't include data from some popular operations such as breast implants.

Experts attributed the rise in younger patients to an extension of the 1980s fitness craze, job competitiveness and vanity.

"The thought of saggy breasts, hair loss or wrinkles doesn't sit well with people who have grown up emphasizing fitness and youth," said Karen Seccombe, a University of Florida sociologist.

Dietary trends show few changes

By Suzanne Hamlin
N.Y. Times News Service

The news may be startling to Americans who live in pockets of gastronomic enlightenment, but 1994 may be remembered as the year when beef came back, when sweets and snacks in low-fat versions were consumed in record numbers and when the nation looked at vegetables and collectively said, "I say it's spinach and I say the hell with it."

In the history of the country, there have never been so many food choices, or so much information on the relationship between diet and health. But the bulk of the population is eating larger portions than ever of nutrient-poor food and, consequently, obesity and health problems due to diet are rising.

If one were to create a meal from the nation's favorite foods in various categories, it would look surprisingly like a dinner circa 1960, with a few new twists on old favorites: a steak or a burger on a bun, french fries cooked in saturated fat, iceberg lettuce with artificially thickened low-fat dressing, ice cream, a no-fat Snack Well's cookie, and milk or a Coca-Cola.

The preceeding cocktail hour might include Doritos, Snack Well's no-fat crackers and a color-injected high-fat cheese. Vegetables would be absent, and portions would be about double what they were 30 years ago.

"After years of food market research, I can tell you the only constant is no change," said Harry Balzer, vice president of the NPD Group, a marketing research concern in Park Ridge, Ill., that tracks the eating patterns of 2,000 American households every year. "As a nation we don't start eating new foods; we just take the old ones and rearrange them."

The NPD report this year shows that the favorite lunch and dinner entrees of 1994 are the same ones as 1984, just reorganized in order of popularity. The new low-fat foods, Balzer noted, are the same foods people have always eaten, but in lower-fat versions.

"There are only two ways to really change people's eating habits," Balzer said. "One is to lower the price, which will have an effect immediately.

"The other is to make people's lives easier, to make a food more convenient. For 270 million Americans, the single biggest factor driving long-term change is convenience. Iced tea in a can is a good example; it eliminates that big step of making it."

Price, rather than health, seems to dictate what goes on the table of many Americans. Although people in the United States spend on average about 13 percent of their annual income on food — nearly half in restaurants and less than almost any other nation in the

CONSUMING INTERESTS

Doughboy has 'new friends'

By Linda Anderson

Seen those television commercials lately where the Pillsbury doughboy says he has some "new friends" coming over to help him make cookies, and he opens the door to a pile of little bitty M&Ms? Well, the company is evidently so proud of this new cookie combination — M&M baking bits in Pillsbury refrigerated cookie dough — that they sent us a press kit with a coupon for a free roll of the product so we could check it out for them.

Anderson

Just for fun, we also included a roll refrigerated cookie dough from Nestle — Sugar Cookies with bits of Butterfinger Candy — baked both batches of cookies and brought then to the office for the experts to taste.

A roll of Pillsbury cookies with M&Ms costs $2.79 usually, but the roll I got was on sale, priced two for $5 (or $2.50 each). The Nestle cookies with Butterfinger cost $2.89, so prices for both products were almost the same.

Both rolls made about 30 cookies, but of course when you are in charge of the dough, you can make the cookies as big or as small as you like, not to mention eating dough on the side.

Pillsbury's press release said its M&M cookies "are especially appealing to consumers because they bake up soft and chewy, like cookies made from scratch...

"The spoonable cookie dough is a great way to introduce your family to the art of making cookies — '90s style."

Well, I don't know about that — you can still make cookies from scratch in the '90s.

The Nestle cookie dough didn't come with any press release, though its label advertising claimed it is "New." But both products have toll-free telephone numbers that customers can call if they have any questions or comments. Nestle's number is 1-800-289-7314, 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Pacific time, Monday-Friday; Pillsbury can be reached by calling 1-800-775-4777 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Central time on weekdays.

The taste-test was very interesting. Aside from the fact that the tasters kept coming back for more samples, no one really reached an agreement. Some liked the M&M cookies and hated the Butterfinger cookies, and some felt just the opposite. I don't think anyone really liked both kinds.

I did find out, however, that cookies made from refrigerated cookie dough taste just like cookies made from refrigerated cookie dough — no matter how you slice it, they just don't taste as good as homemade.

DIET: Processed, low-fat foods sell

(From 1D)

Epidemiological studies have repeatedly shown that populations eating five or more servings of fruits and vegetables a day have half the cancer risk of populations eating just two servings a day.

world — a drop in prices can lead to much higher sales.

Beef, which has become cheaper, was at its highest consumption level in five years in 1994. And next year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the country will probably consume almost a pound more than this year's 63.7 pounds a person. Pork consumption is expected to rise as well, to 51.5 pounds a person, two pounds more than this year's figure.

Fish and shellfish, which continue to rise in price, have leveled off in sales. Chicken, still reasonable, continues to rise in consumption.

At the other end of the scale, both literally and figuratively, sales of low-fat products are rising fast. If the nation has heard any health message at all, it is to cut the fat, any fat. But the low-fat foods that sell are packaged, processed food. There has been no run on vegetables, fruits, grains or beans, all or which are naturally low in fat, nutrient rich and filled with fiber.

Instead, there has been a stampede to buy packaged foods emblazoned with a "no-fat" or "low-fat" label. Last year, Snack Well's, a line of 11 no-fat and low-fat crackers and cookies from Nabisco Foods, became the best-selling brand of cookie and cracker in the country. Introduced 18 months ago, Snack Well's had sales of 400 million.

While there is vast advertising for processed low-fat and non-fat foods, there is little for fresh fruits and vegetables. In 1992, Kellogg's spent $1 million to advertise just one cereal, Sugar Frosted Flakes. In the same year, the National Cancer Institute was given $400,000 for its Five-a-Day program, a campaign to encourage Americans to eat five servings of fruits and vegetables every day.

Epidemiological studies have repeatedly shown that populations eating five or more servings of fruits and vegetables a day have half the cancer risk of populations eating just two servings a day.

But this year, Americans had an average daily fruit and vegetable intake of about three and a half servings, "which is not good enough for long-term benefits," said Jerianne Heimendinger, director of the Five-a-Day program.

Three and a half servings would be, for example, a banana on breakfast cereal, a salad at lunch and broccoli for dinner. Five servings would be adding another vegetable at dinner and orange juice to breakfast. Overall national consumption of fruit and vegetables for the past five years has risen only very slightly.

"We haven't made nearly as much progress as we'd hoped," Ms. Heimendinger said. "It's obvious now that we have to rethink our strategy in order to get people to be adventurous, to try foods that some of them have never had before. Somehow we have to convince people to take food seriously, to recreate it as a value, as something worth paying attention to."

ONE: Change diet to be nutritious

(From 1D)

is in order.

These ingredients can quickly be combined and heated in the microwave or oven as a French bread or English muffin pizza.

If carry out pizza is on the agenda, avoid buying a whole pie, instead, buy one or two slices topped with vegetables. Pair it with a side order of fresh or frozen vegetables or salad bought from a salad bar.

Other easy meals include a microwaved potato topped with frozen broccoli and a slice of reduced fat cheese, or opening a can of soup and adding extra vegetables and pasta.

Single portions of dried pasta may seem paltry before they swell during cooking, so many people make and eat more of it than they should. To help control pasta portions, buy fresh pasta because its easier to estimate an appropriate serving size or use a measuring device for pasta portions.

Dinner time does not have to be a traditional hot meal. Many people elect to have a large hot meal at lunch and eat smaller meals in the evening.

Lunch and breakfast foods that can double as an evening meal include cereal with fruit and milk; sandwiches made with lower fat meats such as turkey and reduced fat mayonnaise or mustard; and Western omelets made with predominantly egg whites, vegetables and low-fat cheese.

It is important not to eat too many whole eggs, so keep the weekly number of egg yolks consumed to no more than three per week to help avoid an increase in cholesterol levels.

Having an evening snack is acceptable as long as it has a distinct beginning and end. To limit temptation, bring home treats in single serve packages instead of large bags.

DEAR ABBY: Can you handle one more zipper story?

I am a retired Braniff pilot. Tom Braniff was the founder and CEO of Braniff Airways.

Several years ago, his private secretary was a passenger on my flight, and she told me this story:

One day, she had gone to Mr. Braniff's office to take dictation, when she noticed that his fly was unzipped. She went immediately to her own desk and telephoned Mrs. Braniff at home and explained the situation.

Mrs. Braniff then telephoned Mr. Braniff at his office, and when he answered the phone, she said, "Tom, zip up your pants."

He replied, "Yes, dear." — DON MASSEY, LITTLE ELM, TEXAS

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

OFFICIAL GAME RULES

It's fun and easy! Anyone 18 or older can play the Welcome to the Oil Patch Game, except employees (and family members of employees) of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Associated Publishing Company, Brite Systems, Inc. and their advertising and promotion agencies. The Welcome to the Oil Patch Game is designed for people in Andrews, Crane, Ector, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Midland, Upton, Ward and Winkler counties. No purchase is required to play or win prizes, but you must have a Permian Basin Area Wide Book lucky number to enter and win a prize. Long distance charges may apply in some areas. If you live in the above counties and do not have a Permian Basin Area Wide Phone Book, call 687-1756, 563-5440 or 800-588-1756 to find out where to pick one up without charge.

Here's How to Play

Turn to The Game Page in the Midland Reporter-Telegram or in other area publications and look for this week's question. Then call CityLine, 560-2400. enter category 1111 for the correct answer and to find out if the number on the card following page 256 in your phone book has made you a winner of one of this week's three prizes of a tank full of gasoline (valued at up to $25) and $75 in cash or the grand prize, gasoline for a year (valued up to $1,300) and $1,000 in cash.

Each week three numbers will be selected to win a prize valued at $100 or more. If the number in your phone book is a winner, keep listening. CityLine will tell you how to claim your prize. Keep calling.....new lucky numbers will be added many times in the same week promotion.

You could win one of the unclaimed weekly prizes and enter the drawing for the grand prize. Here's how: Complete the official entry form and mail it so that it arrives before the deadline or hand print your name, address and daytime phone number on a plain 3"x5" piece of paper. Be sure to include your Permian Basin Area Wide Phone Book lucky number and the correct answer to this week's question. The more often you enter, the better your chance of winning. Mail entries - one per envelope to: Welcome to the Oil Patch Game, Associated Publishing Company, 4400 N. Big Spring, Suite 201, Midland, TX 79705. All entries become the property of the sponsors. None will be returned.

Each week for six weeks ending January 15, 1995, the winning numbers will be selected at random and will win one of that weeks prizes. If the winners are not identified by CityLine, they will be drawn from mailed entries. The grand prize,gasoline for a year and $1,000 in cash, will be drawn from weekly winner and all qualified mailed entries. The total value of all prizes to be awarded in the Welcome to the Oil Patch Game is valued at $3,650 or more.

Each game begins at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday and ends at 11:59 p.m. the following Monday. No substitutions of prizes is permitted. Only one weekly prize will be awarded to each winner.

By entering, winners authorize the use of their names, cities or photos for publicity purposes. Winners may be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility and release. Taxes are the responsibility of winners. Void where prohibited.

HONOR ROLL 1995

Our Annual Honor Roll of Businesses will be publishing every Sunday in February. This interesting feature lists area businesses in chronological order by the number of years they have served the Permian Basin or will list them as a "New Business".

This is an excellent opportunity for you to let your customer know that you are a well established business and that you appreciate the support they've given you over the years.

It provides your business with 4" of advertising space in which you can highlight the history of your business, services you provide, merchandise you carry, your business hours, location, phone number, etc. The information listed is up to you!

Fill out this form, mail it to: Classified Supervisor, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, TX 79702, and a friendly Consultant will call you with more information -OR- Call 687-8813 and leave a message, we'll call you right back!
