DYNAMITE

Spudders And Buffs Await Play-Off Opener Today

Fans From Oklahoma City to Houston on Hand as Texas League Clubs Square Away for Title Series

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Came the dawn today, as happens 365 days in a year. That is, it is reliably reported that the dawn came today, although workers on morning newspapers never see the dawn except in a movie. Anyhow, by the time most of the thousand of readers peruse this piece, the dawn will have come. Then will come noon, which always follows the dawn.

And after noon, afternoon—and THE ball game. And then the dark. And then joy or gloom, whichever fate decrees, will reign in Wichita Falls and Houston.

Forces of the Wichita Falls Spudders and Houston Buffaloes, and thousands of fans await the call of play ball this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Athletic park that sends the contending nine on their way in a five-game playoff for the championship of the Texas league. The Buffs, victors in the first half and the Spudders, winners of the second half, are fighting, superb ball clubs. Not for nothing did they achieve the right to engage in the playoff, which carries with it not only the championship of the Texas league but participation in the Dixie series with the winners of the Southern association.

As far south as Houston and north as Oklahoma City, fandom was gathering here yesterday for the games Wednesday and Thursday in our stadium dedicated to King Clout. With every box and reserved seat sold, it is probable that more than 10,000 enthusiasts of the irrational pastime will view each game here.

Interest over the playoff is about as intense as that feverish excitement preceding the Dixie series last year, in which the Spudders were victors in four straight games. The attendance for the first game of the Dixie series last year was 11,857, and while that figure may not be approached in either game in the playoff, it will not fall far short of that number.

Houstonians Arrive

The Buffaloes and sports editors of the three Houston daily papers arrived yesterday in mid-afternoon. They will be followed by more than 200 fans from the Bayou city, who will arrive this morning on a special train.

Wild Bill Hallahan, star left-hander and leader of the Texas league in strikeouts, looms as the almost certain choice of Manager Frank Snyder to start today's games. Skipper Jim Galloway, however, was undecided last night over his pitching selection for the opener. George Payne and Milt Steengrafe, the newlywed, righthanders and Mike Cvengros, the only Spudder lefthander, were announced by Galloway as likely to go to the hill.

There is only one uncertainty in Snyder's starting lineup. Homer Peel or Rabbit Powell will play left field. Peel is viewed as the better

City council members advance the Wichita Falls tax rate 10 cents on the hundred dollar valuation, and hope by economy and good management to wipe out the city's debts in 1929. It is a wise policy the council follows, although it is likely that the advance in taxes will meet with criticism in some quarters, just as taxes for any purpose are opposed by some citizens.

* * *

Paying its way and living within its revenues, the city follows a business like course common to city manager governments. With accumulated debts wiped out, Wichita Falls can hope for some program of progressive improvement, but can expect little before that time. Advancing the tax rate is far better than allowing debts to accumulate. We have just voted a $280,000 bond issue to cover such accumulations in previous years, and there is yet some $90,000 in overdrafts to be eliminated before Wichita Falls is "out of the red."

* * *

Strict provision for proper sinking funds, urged by City Manager George D. Fairtrace and approved by the council, is the wise course in the long run. Neglect of such funds is sure to affect the credit and efficient operation of the city over a period of time. The Record News feels the council deserves commendation for closing the less

Ogden L. Mills Calls Smith Great Spender

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11. (UP)—Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of treasury, issued a formal statement today, taking exception to remarks Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, made regarding a speech Mills delivered on New York state finances. Mills characterized Smith as the "greatest spender and borrower the state of New York has ever known."

Steamer Fire Loss Estimated at $10,000

BOSTON, Sept. 11. (UP)—A $10,000 cargo in the Savannah line steamer City of Columbus was destroyed today in a fire in two of the ship's holds. Internal combustion was believed the cause. The ship was in dock at the time.

BOSTON, Sept. 11. (UP)—The Democratic and Republican state conventions will be held here simultaneously on Sept. 29, it was announced today.

JOHN REID IN QUINTET WHO LEAVE FARM

Loving Bank Robber at Liberty After Wynne Delivery

2 ARE RE-CAPTURED

Three Still at Large Called Dangerous Men by Officials

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 11. (AP)—Five prisoners, inmates of the tubercular ward, cut a hole in the side of their sleeping quarters at the Wynne state prison farm here today and escaped but two of them were recaptured a short time later. Bloodhounds were trailing the other three tonight.

All of those still at large are serving terms for robbery with firearms and two of them are known as dangerous men. They are Paul Dennison, sentenced to 15-years from Eastland county, John Reid, 28 years from Young county, and Roy Robbins, five years from Harris county. This is Robbins' seventh escape.

W. B. Shirley, serving four years from Johnson county for forgery, was re-captured in Huntsville by a guard and Mardin Azebell, sentenced to five years from Haskell county for bigamy, was run down by the dogs and recaptured. Asebell had escaped once before and was returned to the prison just two days ago.

Robbery at Loving

John Reid, according to James V. Allred, former district attorney of the 30th judicial district, was the only remaining member in the penitentiary of a trio sentenced in Young county for robbery of a bank at Loving in December, 1924.

Lewis Tillman, a companion, was pardoned by Mrs. Miriam Ferguson when she was governor. Billie Keyes, who died from burns at the at the penitentiary a short time ago, was the third man convicted in the Loving robbery.

Reid was also indicted in Archer county with Alvin Ireland for the robbery of the Dundee bank, also in December, 1924. After he accepted a 28 year sentence in the Loving robbery, however, the Archer county charges were not pressed.

Ireland and Reid escaped from the penitentiary a short time after they had been transferred there in 1926, Mr. Allred said, and were recaptured together in Oklahoma.

Ireland escaped again when a number of prisoners broke from the Richmond prison farm several weeks ago. He was recaptured but escaped from a county jail a short time later and is still at liberty.

New Numbers Added To Vaudeville Bill

Three more numbers were announced Tuesday afternoon for the closing free vaudeville program of the season which will be presented in Bellevue park Thursday night.

The announcement was made by C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks, and included the following artists:

The I. B. Thompson string quartet, which will present a program of Hawaiian music.

Olene Poe and Lefty Watson, who will present a comedy tap dance.

George Taylor, who will sing and play his own accompaniments on his guitar.

Equipment Added to Carrigan Playground

The Carrigan school playground has received two additional pieces of equipment from the city park department, it was announced Tuesday by C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

Due to the fact this district has many children seeking a place to play, it was decided to place the two pieces of equipment there during the school year, he explained. A "giant stride" is one piece, and a "tree" is the other.

TO GREET SMITH

All Former Oklahoma Governors to Form Committee

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 11. (UP)—All former Oklahoma governors, every one a Democrat, will greet Governor Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, when he visits here Sept. 20.

Acceptance of Oklahoma's past chief executives, all living, to greet Smith as the official reception committee was announced today by Democratic headquarters here.

They are Charles N. Haskell, Lee Cruce, Robert L. Williams, J. B. A. Robertson, J. C. Walton, and Martin E. Trapp. Gov. Henry S. Johnston also is one the committee.

CANTWELL HAS GRIP ON LEAD

Son of School Head Here First at Yuma

YUMA, Ariz., Sept. 11. (UP)—Edward Ballough, Chicago, was lap leader for the second consecutive day when he led the flyers in the class B transcontinental air race into Yuma from El Paso, Texas, today. He arrived at 10:04 a. m.

John Wood, Wausau, Wis., was second arriving in his Waco biplane exactly 20 minutes after Ballough.

John Livingston, Monmouth, Ill., who was believed to hold the lead in elapsed flying time, followed closely behind Wood.

Charles W. Meyers, Troy, Ohio, and A. Wells, Wichita, Kan., landed at 10:42 and L. F. Schoenhair, Los Angeles, at 10:47.

R. W. Cantwell, Duncan, Okla., was the first class C aviator to arrive. He landed his Lockheed-Vega plane at 11:08.

The Waco plane piloted by Stuart Auer, Milwaukee, was reported to have been demolished in a crash at Wellton, 40 miles from here.

Auer and a passenger, R. C. Herrod, were said to have been injured slightly. Reports stated they struck a high tension wire while flying low.

MINES FIELD, LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11. (UP)—H. S. Myhres, in a Simplex monoplane, led the class A fliers into Los Angeles in the race from San Francisco today.

Myhres' elapsed time was not announced officially but inasmuch as he also finished at Visalia, the only control, he was certain to win the race.

The San Francisco-Los Angeles contest was held as part of the national air race program being staged here. Only class A planes were entered.

Clemency Sought for Seminary Girl Truants

NORTHFIELD, Mass., Sept. 11. (UP)—Friends of the families of Marion Mullen and Mary Shapleigh, truant students of Northfield seminary, today made an attempt to prevail upon school authorities to overlook their youthful escapade. Principal William Duley is said to be considering expelling the girls from the school. The girls disappeared from school for four days and were found near Exeter, N. H., Sunday.

Bale of Cotton Brings $112 at Lamesa Sale

LAMESA, Texas, Sept. 11.—J. A. Dunn, farmer, seven miles southwest of here, sold the first bale of cotton of the season late Monday evening. It weighed 416 pounds and was auctioned at 25 cents and purchased by S. L. Forrest. A premium of $200 was made by the agricultural department of the local chamber of commerce. The total including lint, seed and premium, was $112.00 or 75 cents per pound.

OFFICERS JAIL PAUL HUNTER IN ROBBERY

Wichita Man Held in Sunday Hijacking at Electra

BOND DENIED SUSPECT

Prisoner Faces Charges in Wounding of O. B. Rawlings

Paul Hunter was charged with robbery with firearms before R. V. Gwinn, justice of the peace, late Tuesday afternoon in connection with the holdup and shooting of O. B. Rawlings near Electra Sunday night.

The charges were filed following an investigation by members of the sheriff's department and Dick Kenley, district attorney. Investigators refused to say whether Hunter had been identified by Mr. Rawlings as the man who shot him in the arm and then robbed his filling station just outside of Electra, but Sheriff Bralley declared that sufficient evidence had been obtained against Hunter to justify the filing of charges.

Hunter was arrested as a suspect in connection with the robbery of the filling station by City Officers W. P. Belcher and Ellis Summers Monday afternoon. He is being held in the county jail without bond.

THREE BURGLARIES REPORTED AT ELECTRA

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 11.—Three burglaries in which small sums of money were stolen from residences here were reported to police Tuesday.

Sums of $10 or more were taken from the homes of R. E. Willard, Tom Grisham and B. L. Whitman. No clues had been discovered by police Tuesday.

Fire Destroys Rail Shops at Lincoln, Neb.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 11. (UP)—Fire caused by lightning, destroyed the Missouri Pacific roundhouse here today, causing a loss of $20,000. A gasoline motor car also was damaged beyond repair and other machinery in the roundhouse was damaged. The lightning struck in the midst of a heavy rainstorm that swept the state.

Accident of Italian Races Unexplained

MONZA, Italy, Sept. 11. (UP)—Investigators were unable to explain today the accident which claimed 22 lives during the grand prix auto race here Sunday. Emilio Materassi's machine suddenly leaped the ditch surrounding the track and crashed into the crowd behind a concrete wall. The ditch was eight feet wide and was considered one of the safest in the world for spectators.

Nicholson's Appeal Set For Hearing Friday

FORT WORTH, Sept. 11. (AP)—Arguments in an injunction case appealed from Wichita county and involving status with the Democratic party of anti-Smith partisans will be heard by the second court of civil appeals here Friday.

The case involves the right of a "Hoover Democrat" occupying the position of precinct chairman to sit with the county Democratic executive committee and grew out of refusal of the Wichita county committee to permit J. W. Nicholson, precinct chairman to sit at a meeting of the committee.

Nicholson explained at the meeting that he would not vote for the party nominee for president and said he would vote for Herbert Hoover, the Republican nominee.

District court decided for Nicholson.

Slender Clue Held in Mysterious Deaths of Stephens County Youths

Threat Made by Still Operator Related by Sister of Slain Brothers; Found Near Cabin

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Sept. 11. (AP)—While the mangled bodies of Lucius Shook, 26, and his brother, Leon, 21, lie in an undertaking establishment at Cisco, officers of two counties are endeavoring to solve the mystery of their deaths.

The bodies were discovered Tuesday at Leeray, 18 miles south of here. Officers of both counties after working all day on the case have only a slender clue.

Threat Revealed

The older brother was said to have told a sister, Mrs. Frankie Pierce, Cisco, whom he recently visited, that he had found a whisky still near his cabin at Leeray and that the operator at the point of a gun had ordered him to leave the county. Officers are searching for the man thought have operated the still.

They also are working on the theory that robbery may have been the motive for the double murder. It is said a banjo, clothing and a pistol owned by the younger brother are missing.

An inquest verdict today was that the brothers were murdered.

Lucius Shook was an oil well tender. He lived alone in a cabin in an isolated place. His brother arrived recently to visit him until time for the latter to leave to enter school.

Both Beaten

The bodies were found near the cabin by Les Kelly, who lives on a farm near the Shook cabin. They were about 400 yards from the cabin near the oil well the older brother attended. There was no sign of a struggle. It appeared the young men had been slain elsewhere and their bodies brought there.

The older brother was shot once through the body. Both were so badly beaten that identification was difficult.

Officers belive they had not been dead more than a day for the oil well pump was still working.

The Shook family lives in Stephenville. The brothers are survived by their mother, Mrs. J. M. Shook, and several brothers and sisters.

Adult Home Classes Planned For Altus

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Sept. 11.—Miss Kate North, of the national department of part time schools, from Oklahoma City, is in Altus this week conferring with school officials.

Arrangements are being made for adult classes in home making to be given at night. Mrs. Eileen Harrison will be teacher. School authorities are working with the Parent-Teacher organizations of the city to have a large enrollment in the classes.

City Makes Tests Of All Fire Plugs

Fire plugs of the city are being inspected, flushed and repaired where necessary, according to an announcement made Tuesday by Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the water department.

"This work is being done to insure greater ease of operation in emergency and to be certain that all plugs are in good repair, Dr. Douglass said.

COOKE BONDS GO TO DEFEAT

Majority Fails to Reach Necessary Size

GAINESVILLE, Texas, Sept. 11.—Cooke county's $2,000,000 road bond issue apparently had been defeated, returns from 20 of the 26 boxes here indicated late Tuesday night. The vote in the 20 boxes was 3,191 for and 1,739 against the bond issue. A two-thirds majority is necessary before the issue can carry.

The bonds were to be used in building north-south and east-west concrete highways across Cooke county.

Gainesville boxes went for the bond issue more than four to one, but the boxes from the rural sections cut down the lead. The remaining boxes are in rural sections of the county. Burton rolled up the heaviest vote against the issue, 84 to 4.

New Milk Inspector To Report Saturday

Dr. George W. Ragan of Groesbeck, recently named milk inspector for Wichita Falls, was notified Tuesday of his appointment and will report by Saturday if possible. It was announced at the city hall Tuesday.

George D. Fairtrace, city manager, said Tuesday that Dr. Ragan is a man of considerable experience and has the "qualifications necessary to make a good man for the city."

HOOVER GROUP AND REGULARS IN HOT CLASH

Fists Fly When Bolters Leave Meeting for Rump Convention

AL SMITH ENDORSED

Anti-Smiths Hear Talk by Tom Love After Encounters

DALLAS, Sept. 11. (AP)—Regular Democrats of Texas in convention tonight "cordially endorsed" the national party platform and Governor Smith in their state platform, and in the same document called on "all officers of the government and all members of the party" to rally for the "destruction of the traffic in alcoholic liquors."

The platform was adopted by the convention without a single dissenting vote, but it took eight hours of wrangling in a sub-committee before leaders could reach a satisfactory statement of the party's views on prohibition.

Other planks placed in the platform tonight advocate creation of a government agency in the state to control public utilities; consolidation of various agencies and departments of the state government into fewer independent bodies; a scientific revision of the state system of taxation; abolition of the commission of appeals and creation of a supreme court of nine members; adoption of a uniform system of state accounting; further legislation looking to the establishment of a centralized prison system; tariff reform, lower freight rates on agricultural products and legislation designed to improve agricultural conditions; continuation of the present per capita school appointment; correction of inequalities in educational opportunities; legislation giving equitable protection to both labor and capital; liberal support for the state institutions of higher learning; legislation to stop the appropriation of waters of rivers and streams by private enterprises; the maintenance of highways by charges upon traffic.

The convention also included a resolution presented by Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier of Austin urging that the state purchase the land around the Alamo, which once was a part of the Alamo inclosure.

DALLAS, Sept. 11. (AP)—Amid the wildest scenes that ever marked a Democratic meeting in Texas, delegates refusing to endorse the presidential candidacy of Governor Smith bolted the state Democratic convention here today and organized a separate convention of their own in the blazing sun of the steps of Fair park auditorium.

Many of the state's most prominent political leaders swung their fists in a free-for-all fight that ensued when former Governor Cesar Colquitt, avowed anti-Smithite, sprang to his feet a few minutes after the convention opened and shouted:

"Let all loyal Democrats retire."

Noses Bleed

Eyes were blackened and noses bloodied as the insurgents trooping from the hall amid jeers and shouts of "get out Republicans," attempted to snatch standards from delegations of loyalists. Uniformed officers broke up a half-dozen melees before order finally was restored and the Hooverites repaired to their meeting place on the front steps.

The bolt precipitated when a motion was introduced demanding that only those delegations loyal to Governor Smith be seated. The motion was an anti-climax to the Circulation routes of the Times and Record News are on what is known as an independent basis.

Carriers are independent contractors and are under bond. They purchase their papers from The Times Publishing company and make their own deliveries and collections. They pay the office each day for the papers delivered to subscribers. The difference between what is paid the office for the papers and what is collected from the subscribers represents the carriers' profit.

In making their collections any financial losses sustained are losses directly to the carrier and not to the office. Delays in payment of circulation bills affect the carrier and not the office. Each carrier keeps a complete record of each subscriber on his route and subscribers should pay their carrier directly each week or month so that these records may be accurately maintained.

Final Call Issued for Gifts To Pennant Fund for Spudders

A final appeal was made Tuesday night by W. E. Huff, treasurer, for the fullest immediate support to the Spudder pennant fund. The fund is $1,400 short of the $7,500 goal, and Mr. Huff asked that all who can possibly "strain a point" in favor of the Spudder telephone him at his office, 9021, Wednesday morning and send in the money later.

"This procedure will enable us to tell the boys, just before they enter the series with the Houston team Wednesday afternoon, that we have their pennant fund waiting for them," he explained.

"There are many who have done excellent work in assisting the committee with the fund raising, but we are sure they have not been able to see everyone who would be willing to contribute to the Spudder fund.

Work for Hoover Worth More Than Prayer, Woman Speaker Declares

Women of Henrietta, Iowa Park, Burkburnett and other nearby towns journeyed to Wichita Falls Tuesday to listen to Mrs. Florence T. Griswold, national committeewoman of the Republican party for Texas, tell of the organization work being done in Texas and to hear her suggestions on organization in this district. The meeting was held in the 78th district court room.

Mrs. P. A. Welty of Wichita Falls, Republican candidate for congress, was the chairman and introduced Orville Bullington, state vice chairman of the Republican party.

Fresh from a visit with the Hoovers last week, Mrs. Griswold told of Mrs. Hoover's qualifications to be the first lady of the land.

ST LOUIS GETS RACKET WAR

43 Bombings Follow Chicago Invasion

Editor's Note: This is the sixth of a series of articles on racketeering by James P. Kirby, staff writer for The Record News and NEA Service and tells the story of St. Louis. Tomorrow, Kirby will tell of conditions in Detroit.

By JAMES P. KIRBY
NEA Service Writer

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11.—Racketeers from Chicago have invaded this city and established affiliations with local gangsters and gunmen. This is evidenced by the 43 bombings in St. Louis city and county within the last 16 months, involving dry cleaning and other industries.

It is further evidenced by the declaration recently at a meeting called to "organize" that industry, at which it was pointed out by a speaker that Chicago methods were eminently successful.

"Chicago Talent"

It is further evidenced by the fact that the confession made recently by a prominent St. Louis gangster flatly stated that Chicago talent had been at work in the city, and had been affiliated with one of the more notorious gangs.

Thus appears further evidence of the enterprise of the Chicago racketeer in branching out to other cities where laxity in the criminal prosecuting machinery appears to promise him a foothold.

If evidence were needed of the extent of the operations of the racketeer, it is forthcoming in the declaration of Judge Jerry Mulloy of the circuit court, whose home has been under guard for months because of the virulence of his denunciations of the racketeer.

"At least 75 per cent of the men carrying badges are gangsters robbing our people under the guise of law," the judge declared.

Laxity in the law enforcement machinery has been a commonplace here, according to native St. Louisans. It was this same laxity which, in the recent primary election, caused the bar association to vote 4 to 1 against the present incumbent in the prosecutor's office, but who nevertheless was renominated.

Stories of the conditions in St. Louis have occupied the front pages of the newspapers for weeks. They include the declaration by a member of the board of police commissioners that he was offered $100,000 by a notorious character to act as counsel and procure bond for certain members of the gang; the statement by the same gangster that he paid $15,700 "to get a square deal in the prosecuting attorney's office."

No action followed the charges, however, except a grand jury investigation, initiated by the prosecuting attorney and directed by his principal assistant. No one was indicted.

St. Louis newspapers, editorially and in their news columns, described their city as "a second Chicago."

From Wholesaler Down

The cleaning and dyeing industry in St. Louis, as in other cities, appears to provide the principal point of entrance for what follows in other industries. With the preliminaries of the organization under way, including the wholesaler, the employers and the small retail shop owners, the racketeer began his methods of extortion, followed by bombs for those who were recalcitrant.

An "initiation fee" of $2,000 and 10 per cent of the annual gross receipts was the demand made by the racket upon one wholesaler. He refused and has since suffered bombings, mysterious fires, burned trucks and other outrages.

And, although St. Louis business men have suffered 43 bombings at an estimated damage of $90,000, there have been no convictions. Nor have the bombings been confined to the dry cleaning industry alone. They include shoe stores, drug stores, fruit and vegetable stores, automobile accessories and similar small retail businesses.

It is significant that the principal person involved in the "organizing" activities in the dry cleaning line has been previously arrested 109 times, although never convicted of crime.

During the hearing of an injunction suit brought by one dry cleaning firm in federal court to restrain interference with its business, it developed that one of the organizers who was taken into custody upon his arrival from Chicago, had in his possession the formula for constructing bombs.

In St. Louis, as in Chicago, it has been established that there exist unusual and unaccountable relationships between certain employers and the so-called union, again in contrast with the divisions in the ordinary labor organization between capital and labor.

The Central Trades and Labor Union of St. Louis, through its official publication, St. Louis labor, has carried numerous declarations denouncing racketeering methods. It avers:

"The success and ultimate victory of trade union movements depend upon lawful methods and peaceful means, based on intelligent action.

"It is rather suspicious that most of these dynamite outrages and similar crimes in St. Louis have been committed at a time when the industrial depression and business stagnation have caused rather serious unemployment, and when the so-called open shop employers and enemies of the labor movement have been doing their utmost to create an anti-labor spirit in the minds of the public and thereby discredit and injure the good name of the trade union movement."

'Illuminated' Numbers for Houses Fail to Work

HOUSTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Several housewives in Eastwood, a Houston suburb, bought house numbers represented as "radio light" which, the salesmen said, could be seen in the dark.

Night came and the numbers blended with the darkness. Now the housewives have the house numbers and the peddler has $1 for each set.

Beaumont Ambitious to Become 'Hydranges City'

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 11. (AP) Thousands of hydranges cuttings are being distributed in an effort to make Beaumont the "hydranges city." The hydranges was picked as the official city flower in a contest in which a citywide popular vote was cast.

Hoover Urged to Disavow Klan And Anti-Saloon Fight on Smith

By CHARLES S. HAYDEN
Record News Washington Corrspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Will Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate, yield to demands being made on him by some of his staunchest supporters and take occasion, either at a press conference or in one of his speeches, to disavow his approval of the scurrilous campaign being waged against his opponent, Gov. Alfred E. Smith, by the Ku Klux Klan, politico-preachers and the Anti-Saloon league?

That such pressure is being exerted is pretty generally known and it has been fairly well established that this is one of the chief points of difference between Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee, and Sen. George H. Moses of New Hampshire, who has a sort of roving commission, a lot of titles and few duties. According to those on the inside, Dr. Work is responsible for the close working arrangement between the Republican "high command" and the Ku Klux Klan.

Pact Obvious

That there is such an arrangement is perfectly obvious and it is generally understood that this is one of the duties of Col. Horace Mann, namely to serve as a sort of liaison officer between the Republican committee and the political guerrillas, particularly in the south where their activities have been most effective. Of course if anyone were to make this direct charge to Dr. Work he would indignantly deny it but he has never yet seen fit to reveal just what Colonel Mann's duties are in this campaign and nothing which the colonel himself has said has shed any light on this subject.

Of course in raising the banner of religious intolerance the Republican auxiliaries have succeeded in making rather heavy inroad on normal Democratic strength in some sections, particularly in the rural districts. Hundreds of thousands of copies of the Fellowship Forum, filled with denunciations of Governor Smith, the pope of Rome and the Catholic clergy, are pouring into the south and it is a fair assumption that with Republican control of the post offices first class service is provided for distribution nor is the department over scrupulous in it's enforcement of mailing privilege regulations.

Negroes Irked

All this, however, has had a kick back for so apparent is the connection between the Republican party and the Ku Klux Klan that the negroes, long the docile vassals of the G. O. P., are showing their independence in many northern states. This is the thing which, it is said, has raised the ire of Senator Moses. Not that he would be over squeamish in the use of any agency which would improve Republican success but he has argued that the party cannot afford to make a play for a southern state or so, where the electoral vote is small, even should it be won, only to lose some such state as Illinois or Pennsylvania, and over the latter there is now really considerable alarm.

It is understood here that Senator Moses entered most vigorous protests and, when these were ignored, threatened to quit the campaign and sail for Europe as evidence of his disgust. This last threat, it is said, prompted a hurried telephone call and that Candidate Hoover himself talked with the senator from New Hampshire and induced the latter to come to Washington for a secret conference. The ultimatum which Moses is reputed to have given was that there should be a frank denial by Mr. Hoover that he countenances in any way the raising of the religious and racial issues in his behalf.

While no odds are being quoted the general belief is that Mr. Hoover will continue to maintain his masterly silence on this subject.

Electra Teachers Leave for Work

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 11.—Several Electra teachers will teach in other schools outside the city this year. Several of them have already begun their duties; others leave this week and next. Following is a partial list of those who will teach away from home:

Miss Renna Lee Banta left this week for South Texas, to teach in a school near Houston.

Misses Leona Smith and Elsie Caddell began teaching last week in Enterprise, north of Electra. Reece Stroud is principal, and Mrs. Stroud is a fourth teacher in the school.

Miss Willie Walraven has been employed to teach in the Fowlkes school.

Miss Leona Fender has been assigned a place on the faculty of Waggoner ward school. She taught last year at County Line.

Miss Margie Moore succeeds Miss Fender at the County Line school. J. A. McDonald and wife and Mrs. William Clynch have been re-employed there for this year.

Miss Vera Graham returned this week to Denver, Colo., where she teaches sixth grade work in the public schools.

Miss Alma Chaney will teach in Valley View during the coming term.

Mrs. J. C. Delashaw began work last week in the Oklaunion schools. Mrs. Delashaw will be remembered as Miss Irene Windsor, a teacher in the first ward here.

HORSESHOE PRACTICE

KAUFMAN, Texas, Sept. 11. (AP)—Horseshoe pitchers are practicing for a tournament announced for Sept. 25-29 at the Kaufman county fair. The tourney has been sanctioned by the National Horseshoe Pitchers' Association of America and will be open to all pitchers of this community.

Many good practice matches have been staged and some players claim they are becoming experts.

WELLS WRITES PRISON POEM

Convicted Slayer Lists Things He Neglected

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 11. (UP)—C. C. Wells, convicted of the murder of J. C. Mitchell at Coleman in July, 1926, and sentenced to death from which he has appealed, has turned to writing poetry for solace.

Tired of smoking endless cigarettes, Wells has written a poem in which he mentions God, the law and other things which he said he failed to consider during his days of freedom.

Wells is regarded among peace officers as one of the champion jail breakers of Texas. He has broken out of the prison several times during his present incarceration. He is fleet of foot.

Mitchell was slain during a holdup in his grocery store at Coleman. Wells denies that he was in Coleman that night, alleging that he was robbing a warehouse at Menard at the time of the holdup.

Well's poem follows:

The Perfect Judge
By J. C. WELLS

Far out in the deep blue ether,
Many millions of miles away
There shall be a final judgment
On some wonderful perfect day.

There will be no jury of low morons;
No pusillanimous judge in command.
For the truth shall be available
Before He that fully understands.

There will be no politicians;
No rush for greed and gold.
All of those of truth and virtue
Shall be awarded an everlasting soul.

There will be no false witnesses;
No vendors of hypocrisy and shams.
For all shall have a due accounting
Before He that fully understands.

The client will need no attorneys;
There will be no tricks to be played.
Service will be rendered free gratis
And justice will not be delayed.

No questions will be asked the defendant
For the facts will be at His command.
The judgment will be perfectly rendered
Before He that fully understands.

There shall be a full bill of particulars
For each and every individual soul.
And no need for further explanation,
For the judgment will be foretold.

Before a perfect God in his wisdom
The just shall have no fears.
The unjust shall be duly rewarded
While expressing their sorrows with tears.

It shall be a day of vindication
For those who have stood for right,
And for those who have been faithful
There shall be an everlasting life.

Vernon Cleans Up City During Week

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 11.—Vernon is cleaning up this week. Under the direction of chamber of commerce, civic clubs, and municipal authorities, citizens are cleaning up their premises and wagons employed by the city are hauling off the rubbish. The drive will continue through Friday.

HELD IN POISON PLOT IN MEXICO

NEA Mexico City Bureau

Scratching President Calles of Mexico and President-elect Obregon with a poisoned needle was part of the plot against the officials' lives, it was admitted in confessions to the police following the arrest of Maria Elena Manzano, above, and seven other women. The plot was to have culminated while she danced with the two men at Celaya in April, according to the Mexican police, but failed.

W. M. U. MEETS AT ELECTRA

Mrs. J. M. Tanner Presides Over Session

ELECTRA, Texas, Sept. 11.—Mrs. J. M. Tanner, president of the Wichita Falls district W. M. U. presided over the regular monthly all day meeting of that organization held in the First Baptist church here Monday. Chairmen of the different circles were in charge of the devotional program and Bible lesson during the morning session, with special prayer by Mrs. Tanner, for cooperative work of the Southern Baptist and workers. The morning program was as follows:

Bible study, Mrs. W. R. Skinner; R. A. hymn, "The King's Business," "Family Ties," by Mrs. E. B. Holcomb; Y. W. A. hymn, "Oh Zion, Haste"; "The Graded W. M. U." by Mrs. John Brownlee; the woman's hymn, "Come, Women, Wide Proclaim"; "W. M. U. Specials," by Mrs. J. R. Doyle; G. A. hymn, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nation"; the W. M. U. in action: "Praying," by Mrs. E. T. Groves; 'Studying," by Mrs. C. E. Braeslcke; "Serving," by Mrs. W. J. Brown; "Giving," by Mrs. McCombs; "Enlisting," by Mrs. Lee Scoggins; closing prayer.

Members of the combined east circles served a bounteous plate lunch during the noon hour, in the basement of the church, following which the business session of the day was held. This consisted of reports from different chairmen, and approval of different recommendations were made during the call meeting of the board of directors two weeks ago. Mrs. J. M. Tanner presided over the afternoon session.

Motor Petting Banned

RICHMOND, Va.—"Petting in a vehicle in motion on a highway" is illegal in this state. James Hayes Jr., state motor vehicle director, also has placed one-arm drivers and front seat threesomes under the ban.

Holcombe's Opponent Continues in Race

HOUSTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Despite an early campaign statement that he would withdraw from the mayoralty race if a $2,950,000 bond issue carried, James B. Marmion has announced that he will remain a candidate so he can "carry out promises" made by Mayor Oscar Holcombe, who is running for re-election.

The bond issue carried by a six to one majority. Marmion had said that he would leave the contest to Holcombe and Walter E. Monteith but says his "conscience now compels me to stay in the race to see that the money is spent for what the voters intended it."

Baylor Hospital Admits Patients From 21 States

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 11. (AP)—Twenty-one states were represented in admissions to Baylor hospital here during the last fiscal year, the institutions' annual report shows.

Texas lead with 10,159 persons; Oklahoma sent 116 persons for hospital treatment, Arkansas 13, Louisiana 10, New Mexico nine, Missouri seven, Mississippi seven, Connecticut six, Nevada five, Washington four, California and Massachusetts three each; Kansas and Alabama two each, and Maine, Illinois, Ohio, Virginia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Hawaiian islands, one each. England also sent one.

The new Buick is the New Style

Graceful contours instead of straight lines··the gleam and sparkle of brilliant colors and chrome plating instead of drab effects···the most beautiful bodies ever built··· Buick's masterpiece bodies by Fisher

At a time when motor car beauty was practically standardized—when imitation was the vogue—when there was a glaring lack of originality in body design—Buick has swept far beyond the commonplace and achieved a style which the entire country is acclaiming as the most distinctive and beautiful ever shown!

Fisher, the world's foremost builder of automobile bodies, has cooperated with Buick, the world's foremost builder of fine cars, to create a new mode—a new fashion—and so luminous is the result and so eagerly is the public welcoming it that Buick's great factories have reached new production levels in an effort to keep pace with an ever increasing demand!

Inside and out, the new Buick bodies by Fisher are the most beautiful ever built. Together with the wonderful new standards of performance introduced by the Silver Anniversary Buick, they are winning the greatest demand and the greatest preference ever enjoyed by any fine car!

The new Buick is the new style! And by that is meant, not merely a new type of beauty—not merely a thrilling turning point in body design—but a great countrywide vogue!

TEXAS COTTON BESTS AVERAGE

Two-Thirds of Counties to Make Higher Yield

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—Though the Texas cotton crop is estimated by the United States government at only 61 per cent normal this year, the production of 5,100,000 bales forecast in the government's September 1 report, made public Monday, will exceed that of all other years of the five-year period except 1926. That year's production was 5,628,000 bales.

Two-thirds of the counties of the state promise a larger yield than last year, with the best cotton condition reflected in the central tier of counties extending as far south as DeWitt and to the Red river on the north, across from Erath to Anderson and from Wichita to Lamar.

920,000 in Northwest

The northwest section this year promises only 920,000 bales of cotton, as compared with 1,029,000 last year; but all of the nine areas show increases, some of them almost 100 per cent. The comparative estimates for the two years, given in the Texas cotton report issued through the department of agriculture division of crop and livestock estimates, located at Austin, by H. H. Shutz, statistician, are:

South Texas, 660,000 bales as compared with 519,000 last year.

Southeast Texas, 200,000 bales, to 189,000 produced in 1927.

East Texas, 345,000 bales, as compared with 285,000 last year.

Northeast Texas, 610,000 bales, with 503,000 last year.

Central Texas, 1,280,000 bales, compared with 1,075,000 produced in 1927.

North Texas, 620,000 this year; 572,000 last year.

West Central Texas, 360,000 this year; 298,000 last year.

West Texas, 105,000 this year; 82,000 bales in 1927.

Northwest Texas, 920,000 this year; 1,029,000 bales in 1927.

Texas' crop is to be produced on 17,631,000 acres, a sufficient increase in planting to produce 748,000 more bales this year than last with the present condition factor 5 per cent above the 56 per cent at the same time last year.

A national acreage of 44,916,000 is shown for the crop estimate of 14,439,000 bales, on a national average of 60.3 per cent condition.

Texas Summary

Summarizing the condition of the cotton crop as of September 1 in the various sections of Texas, the crop report says:

East Texas—Prospects falling off; fields have stopped fruiting; weevil and hopper damage heavy; picking under way.

South Texas—Picking rapid; some possible top crop remains; all cotton open in many fields; recent rains beneficial where poison had been applied. Little weevil damage this year; root rot damage heavy in sections.

Southeast Texas — Many fields without fruit on upper third of stalks; drouth and heat damaged many fields; picking active.

Center—Hot, dry August severely deteriorated crop; shedding heavy; weevil, worm and hopper damage heavy in localities; uncertain whether insects will permit any late bolls to mature. Root rot infection very severe, much cotton dying before making bolls.

West and West Center—El Paso valley crop doing well; excess of rain and bollworm have reduced prospects elsewhere; bollworms injurious; weevils heavy; leafworm present; picking delayed by showers.

Northeast—Prospects several counties worst since 1921; rapid deterioration in early August; many bolls faulty; bolls opening before mature; weevils worst in bottom sections ever known; root rot and insects have done local damage.

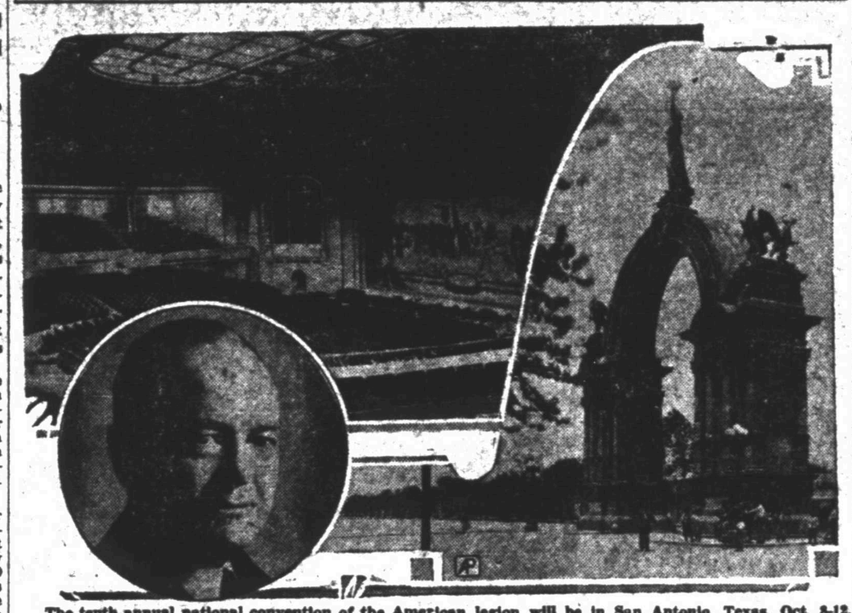

Weevils Increase

North Texas—Weevil damage increased sharply late in season; bollworm and root rot widespread; hot dry weather after mid-August rapidly deteriorating crop; ginning now active; most counties will make more than last year.

Northwest—Bollworms very destructive; rains have checked crop; of the 48 counties, only 11 promise higher production than last year, the contingent on dry weather; crop generally very late, making date of first killing frost unusually important. Number of bolls safe is very small.

Of the state as a whole, the report says there is an unusual amount of late-planted cotton, the outcome of which is largely dependent on what insects will do and the date of the first killing frost.

Alamo City Ready For American Legion Meet

The tenth annual national convention of the American legion will be in San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 8-12. Sessions will be in the city's new $2,000,000 municipal auditorium (above), a war memorial. Edward E. Spafford (lower left) is national commander. Some of the delegates are planning a tour of Mexico after the convention and will see the Monterrey arch (above) and many other points of interest below the border.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11. (AP)—A spectacular display of the American army as it is today will be shown for the men who knew it 10 years ago when the American legion comes here for its national convention, Oct. 8 to 12.

Battle maneuvers, planned and executed by the second division of Fort Houston, and an air circus with more than 100 planes taking part, are to be features of the reunion of the world war veterans 10 years after hostilities ceased.

Among the legionnaires who will watch the second in action will be some who were members of that outfit when it attained distinction during the war.

San Antonio and its accommodations have been given approval by the legion officials, who for the past six months have been completing details of the convention.

Only once before has the legion came below the Mason-Dixon line to hold a reunion. It met in New Orleans, and there a Texan, Alvin C. Owsley, was named national commander. Another Texan, Henry C. Lindsley, also has served as national commander.

The legion's business sessions here will be in a $2,000,000 municipal auditorium erected as a memorial to San Antonio's service men and women. It seats 6,000 persons.

The Texas department of the legion is arranging a series of sightseeing jaunts below the Mexican border during the convention and after it closes a group of the delegates is planning a tour through Mexico. Monterrey will be the first city visited after the border is crossed. Then the party will continue on through Tampico, the states of San Luis Potosi and Guanajuato, to Mexico City. Six days will be spent there, with side trips to other points of interest. The party plans to return to San Antonio Oct. 24.

PECAN SHOW AT BROWNWOOD

Institute in Connection With Exhibits

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Sept. 11. (UP)—The biggest pecan show ever held in Texas is planned for Brownwood, Nov. 15 and 16, according to the convention committee of the West Texas Pecan Growers association.

In addition to the showing of pecans there will be an institute at which several of the most prominent men in Texas have been invited to speak. An auction sale of pecans will be a feature of the convention.

At the show prizes amounting to as much as $200 will be given for the best individual displays of nuts. Twenty counties will have exhibits at the show.

The auction sale is expected to result in prices as high as $1,000 for the crop of a single tree.

Among the speakers invited to attend the show are Tom Connally, Democratic nominee for U. S. senator; Homer D. Wade of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce; Judge Gossett, head of the Federal Loan bank at Houston; D. V. Shuhart of Oklahoma A. & M. college, Stillwater; Dean E. J. Kyle of Texas A. & M. college; C. A. Reed of the bureau of plant industry, Washington; Col. L. P. Downs, banker, Temple; Prof. L. D. Brown, superintendent of schools, Cleburne, and president of the Texas Pecan Growers association; Claude Hudspeth, congressman from El Paso; John P. Lee, banker, San Angelo; W. T. Moore, prominent pecan grower at Bend; J. H. Pelham, Albany, Ga., and G. F. Mozpette, Albany, Ga.

SOVIET WILL GIVE MORE FARM LAND TO THE JEWS

MOSCOW. (AP)—The Soviet government has approved the granting of an additional 200,000 acres in Crimea to Jews seeking agricultural home sites.

Instructions were sent to the Crimean government to investigate and report on the amount of land available for Jewish colonization. It is the purpose of the central executive committee to find land in other regions if conditions in Crimea are not suitable.

Radio Station Boosts Legion Convention

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 11. (UP)—Two radio programs a week will be put on by radio station KTSA in the interest of the 10th annual national convention of the American Legion to be held here October 8 to 12.

The first program was staged tonight. They will be put on on Tuesday and Thursday nights until the convention opens. Tonight's program included a Hawaiian trio; Bill Lambert, the yodeling tenor; the "mysterious duo." The duo sang many of the songs popular during the world war.

FREE SCOTLAND IS AIM OF HIGHLAND PATRIOTS

LONDON. (AP)—The reconstruction of Scottish nationality apart from England and the establishment of a parliament for Scotland was demanded by leaders of the Scottish autonomy movement at Robroyston recently.

It is announced that the autonomists will contest every constituency in the next general election and that 18 candidates have already been found.

HEARING ON DAMS

AUSTIN, Sept. 11. (UP)—Hearing on an application to erect five dams on the Guadalupe river to impound 33,500 acre feet of water annually for power purposes will be held by the state board of water engineers Oct. 29. The Hunt Development company, a Delaware corporation operating in Texas, is applicant for permission to erect the dams.

SAILORS HOLD SUPERSTITIONS

Old Salt Reveals Lingering Maritime Aversions

HOUSTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Men of the sea always will be superstitious, even though the motor and steam ship have largely displaced romantic and colorful sailing vessels, an old salt, in port at Houston for a day, insisted.

"But don't you use my name," he said to the reporters as a parting shot. "If my bosses knew I was superstitulous it would cost me my job."

Most of his superstitions, as well as those of other followers of the sea, deal with the weather. For instance, whistling on board is just as bad as whistling backstage. In the former case, you're due for a storm, and in the latter, something surely will make your act fall flat. To whistle, no matter how softly or for how short a time is enough to bring forth the worst of storms, in a sailor's opinion.

Should a sailor fail to pay a bill before the ship leaves port, some disaster is in store. This is especially true when the "washerwoman" is the creditor.

Another thing that brings bad weather is to predict it. Amateur forecasters have brought disaster to more ships than any other cause, seamen insist.

On the other hand, black cats are permissible, and walking under a ladder is a commonplace affair. But the worst of all is to have a preacher as a passenger. When a minister comes aboard, all sorts of dire things are predicted by the crew.

"Of course," the old salt said, "there are a thousand other superstitions, as each sailor has his own pet omens, but these are generally accepted."

Legion Liaison Group Now Being Organized

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 11. (AP)—Organization of the American Legion national convention liaison committee to function during the convention at San Antonio October 8-12 is going forward rapidly under the direction of J. L. Fitz-Gibbon, chairman.

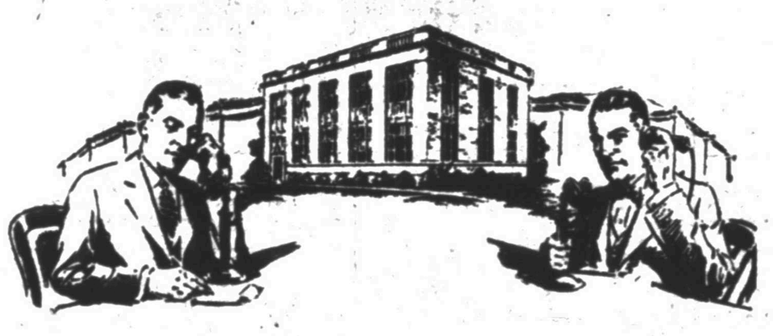

Members of the committee will be assigned in pairs as hosts to each of the 57 departments of the legion, Mr. Fitz-Gibbon said. One committeeman will be on duty as host for his state at all times.

UNIFORM OF NAPOLEON I IS VALUABLE IN FRANCE

COMPIEGNE. (AP)—Napoleon's cast-off clothes are at a premium in any museum. One of his uniforms of general of division and a number of small souvenirs are among the new prize pieces at the national museum housed in the castle of Compiegne. They have just been presented by the Princess Napoleon, former Princess Clementine of Belgium.

There are Three Parties to Every Telephone Call

The party calling and the party called must do their part as well as the Telephone Company if good telephone service is to be had.

We are constantly striving to live up to our responsibility in rendering you the best service possible. We believe that telephone patrons are willing to do what they can to "give themselves better service." Therefore the few suggestions below are passed on to you in the interest of better telephone service.

The Party Calling

The person calling has the responsibility of using the correct telephone number. Obtaining the correct number from the telephone directory will help materially in getting the call started correctly. Then---give the party you are calling ample time to answer after you first hear the bell ringing at the other end of the line. A half minute is not long to wait, but in that time the bell has rung five times, however, a full minute would result in more answered calls.

The Company

Your Telephone Company realizes that service of the best order is based on the reliability, accuracy and promptness of that service. Constant attention to ever phase of telephone activity is necessary to maintain the high standard of service we have set for ourselves.

Science enters into the selection of materials, skill into the building and placement of telephone mechanism and a great deal of money is spent annually in the training and development of efficient personnel. We endeavor to discharge these duties fully.

The Party Called

The party called has the responsibility of answering the telephone promptly. Prompt answering not only conserves the time of the calling party, but frees both telephones more quickly that they may be available for other calls. One of the necessary aids to prompt answering is extention telephones, located conveniently so that a telephone is quickly accessible. Prompt answering is an important requisite of good telephone service.

The fulfillment of their obligations by all parties is necessary to assure good telephone service

Anonymous Letters Could Save Much Woe in Extending Advice

If the Anonymous Letter Could Be Used to Convey Word of Kindly Advice or Criticism, It Would Save Much wear and Tear on Friendship and Would Have an Instant Effect.

The anonymous letter-writer is justly regarded as a cowardly assassin who, under cover of the darkness and the certainty of being undiscovered, stabs his victim in the back. There are no more contemptible creatures than these wielders of the poisoned pen who attack from ambush; who write the scurrilous things to which they are ashamed to sign their names; who disseminate scandals that they are too craven to be responsible for, and make infamous charges that they have not the courage to back up.

The anonymous letter is invariably venomous and designed to wound. It is conceived in envy and born in malignity, and its reason for being is to arouse jealousy and cause suspicion, to break hearts and wreck homes, but I often think what a pity it is that this should be true, and that the anonymous letter cannot be turned from its full purpose and made into an instrument of good instead of evil.

For there are so many people—good, kind, well-meaning people—who need a word of friendly criticism, a whisper of warning, or to have their attention called to some little lapse in manner or taste that puts them at a disadvantage. And such is human vanity that we cannot tell them of their faults without losing their friendship.

Since few of us are conceited enough to believe that we are absolutely perfect, Heaven only knows why we should so bitterly resent being reminded of our weaknesses. But we do. We cannot endure knowing that our acquaintances perceive our shortcomings. Still less can we bear them put their knowledge into words, and we turn instinctively from even the kindliest critic to the palaverer who plasters us over with fulsome flattery.

Most of us, after having lost a valued friend through telling him some unpleasant home truth, learn to keep silence, and to say to those we love only the things they would like to hear. But still the need of criticism or advice or warning is there, and the curious part of it is that we know how glad they would be to have it and how they would profit by it, if only it could be given anonymously so that they would not have to face the fact that some one in their circle does not admire them as much as they think he or she does.

For instance, I know a wonderful self-made man who has risen from office boy to the head of a great firm. He has made a large fortune and his judgment is considered almost infallible. He had little schooling, but he has read and studied and thought until he is a highly cultured man. He is a brilliant conversationalist. He is kindly and generous, as great in heart and soul as he is in mind, but his table manners are those of a savage.

He inhales his food and uses his fork as if it were an agricultural instrument. People hesitate to ask him to dinner, and when they do, they have to explain and apologize for him to the other guests, which would mortify him to death if he suspected it.

Those of us who know this man love him and admire him too much to dare risk his friendship by telling him of the blunders he makes in table etiquette, so he will go on grieving the judicious and being mocked by the scornful. Two anonymous lines calling his attention to his mistakes would make him correct them instantly and no kindly ties would be broken by the criticism.

I know another man, a fine, honest, intelligent, competent and industrious chap, who is making a failure in business because he talks too much about himself. He is a self-centered egotist who takes the center of the stage, turns the spotlight on himself, and monologues about his own virtues and possessions until people flee in terror from him, and walk around the block to avoid meeting him. He can't understand why he can never hold a job, why everything he undertakes somehow goes blooey.

Probably no one will ever tell him the truth because nobody cares to make an enemy of him, but he might be saved if some kind friend would write him an anonymous letter telling him that nobody on earth wants to hear the details of his private life, or cares a rap about the smart things his children said or what a wonderful dog he has or what a perfectly marvelous and gifted being he is and appraising him of the fact that success goes to the listeners, not the ballyhooers.

I know another man who is losing his wife. She is a beautiful and feminine creature, one of the women who can no more live without love and admiration than a flower can without sun. The husband really worships her and won her in a whirlwind courtship that was so ardent and tempestuous that it literally swept her off her feet and into his arms.

But he is one of those men who believe that after a man has married a woman the love-making should end and she should be content to take his devotion for granted. So he never pays his wife any attention. He never tells her that he loves her or that she is beautiful or attractive and she is beginning to hunger and thirst for sentiment, so that it is merely a matter of time until some other man comes along and feeds it to her. Nobody would dare to warn that husband of his danger, but a few friendly lines in an anonymous note might make him get busy, and save him.

I know a woman who is handing her husband over to other women. He is a gay, pleasure-loving young chap who likes pretty women and pretty clothes, who delights in going around to places of amusement and making a joyous good time out of life. But the wife is all mother and no wife. It is too much bother to dress herself up, so she lets herself look frowsy around home. She is never willing to step out with her husband, and when she does she is a killjoy, because she spends her time wondering if they put the cat out and if the baby has got uncovered. And so husband is beginning to leave her at home and find playmates on the outside.

She would scratch the eyes out of any friend who told her that a wife has to keep step with her husband or get left, but an anonymous letter might wake her up to the fact that when a mother is staying at home holding a baby's hand while it sleeps, some other woman is generally holding her husband's hand.

I know another woman who is driving her husband and children away from her by nagging, and other women who are killing their children's love for them by their pretty tyrannies, and other women who are ruining their children's lives by spoiling them, yet no one dares tell them of their faults because no one wants to hurt their feelings or turn them into enemies.

That is why I think that the kindly anonymous letter would fill a long-felt want.

Dina and Emily are going to the theater and if it were necessary to give any reason for that we should offer their evening wraps in evidence. Emily's wrap is black transparent velvet lined with gold satin, notable for its double scarf. Dina's is metal cloth trimmed with fur that maybe is chinchilla and maybe isn't.

Would Cherie mind very much if they didn't go anywhere? Andy wants to talk to her seriously. As a matter of fact, Cherie does mind. Why she has put on her new pale green evening dress (trimmed with ruffles) and its cocktail jacket of silver metal cloth? But, of course, one has always to be polite and agreeable!

What Andy had to say was so very serious that it took him hours to get up to it and then, of course, Emily and Dina were back from the theater. They think it would be nice if everybody went to a night club and danced—you see. Emily has a new cocktail frock and so has Dina. A name that means nothing about one's wet or dry convictions—merely that Emily's crystal-trimmed chiffon has a jacket to match and that Dina's transparent velvet has a jacket of metal lace. So since they will all go to dance together it won't be possible for Andy to know whether Cherie is going to marry him until tomorrow at best.

Ramblin'
with
Marie Theresa

"NOW, if she don't look brutal!" gasped the office philosopher and comedian—they are one and the same, as he watched a bare-legged woman make her way down the street.

The subject of women taking the streets minus hose is by no means a new subject of conversation, but you should have seen the size, that is, the size of the lady in question. No tender flapperish looking doll, that lady. Maybe her size had a lot to do with the general impression she made on the philosopher mentioned. Sad fact, but the ladies of generous proportions are at their best when they are adhering strictly to conventions.

BUT NOW that the subject of nude legs has been brought up, it might be said that Texas is way ahead of Europeans in this matter.

School authorities of Beaumont have set their approval on the hoseless fad by issuing a decree that school girls may attend classes in this particular way, while London receives a telegraph dispatch from Geneva to the effect that women without hose will not be allowed to enter the league building.

"An international incident" was narrowly averted recently in Geneva when three stylishly dressed women sans hosiery strolled toward the diplomatic reserve seats. Then the head usher had to get busy and tell the dames to go home and dress, or words to that effect.

❖ ❖ ❖

WOMEN are determined to copy their masculine competitors in all things, aren't they? Pola Negri, noted film star and ill-starred participant in matrimonial ventures, gets her name in print by falling off a horse. Time was when only His Highness, the Prince of Wales, could achieve that publicity stunt. With all Pola's gifts of talent and beauty, it seems strange that she should have to resort to so primitive a thing to get herself discussed.

❖ ❖ ❖

WICHITA FALLS isn't much a large town. Today Marie Theresa was downtown for her daily bit of window shopping, and stood watching a windor trimmer drape beautiful befurred coats about the phlegmatic forms of the models. A small group of out-of-town shoppers—a few miles out, were attracted by the beauty of the coats, and drew near to shout "How much?" as each new garment found its place in the window. The window trimmer obligingly scanned the tag for prices and smilingly shouted right back at the prospective customers.

❖ ❖ ❖

FROM the trend of conversation the last two days, matters social will soon be in full sway, and this department won't have so much time out to chase around window shopping.

Schools Idle During November In Jackson

ALTUS, Okla., Sept. 11.—Jackson county schools unlike those of most counties of the state will not be in session at the same until some time in November. Twenty-four of the 31 schools are in session now, but a part of them will close at the end of this week for the cotton picking season and will not resume classes again until in November.

Approximately one-half of the schools will be dismissed for a period of from six weeks to two months in order that the pupils may aid in picking cotton and in order to avoid a large number of absences which would otherwise be recorded.

P. O. RECEIPTS GAIN

ALTUS, Sept. 11.—Postal receipts for the past three months have been greater than for the same period last year in Altus. In 1927 the total for May, June and July was $7,741 while for that period in 1928 the total was 8,134.

CLAMMY, COLD HANDS AND FEET

Kentucky Lady Suffered Severely and Felt Miserable. Dizzy Spells Quit Coming After She Took Cardui.

DANVILLE, Ky.—"For a long time, I suffered with severe headaches and pains in my sides and back," says Mrs. Lottie Smallwood, residing at the corner of Sycamore and Beech streets, this city.

"I was very weak, and just not able to go about or do my work. I just felt miserable.

"I was all out of heart. I would have spells when my head would hum, and my feet and hands were clammy and cold.

"I would be so dizzy, I would fall.

"I had read of Cardui and what it had done for others, and so I, too, began taking it. I had been aching and hurting awfully.

"After I took Cardui, I quit having the dizzy spells. I kept on taking Cardui, and saw then that I was being helped. I was not nearly so weak, and from that time I have felt better. I took six bottles in all."

Cardui is a purely vegetable remedy and contains nothing harmful or injurious. It may be safely taken by a delicate young girl as well as by a feeble old lady.

In use by women for over 50 years.

Get a bottle, today, and try it. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Farm Displays Bring Out Fine Conditions

By FRANK O. HALL
Staff Correspondent

MEMPHIS, Texas, Sept. 11.—Depicting the progress of West Texas since the days when the Indians roamed the western prairies to the present, when this great section of the state is dotted with farms and villages, a beautiful and elaborate pageant was presented here tonight to close the first day of the eighth annual Hall county district fair.

Featuring the pageant of progress which was presented by a cast of more than 200 persons, was the coronation of Miss Daisy Pruitt of Estelline, as queen of the fair.

Immediately preceding the pageant was an aerial circus consisting of smoke writing, acrobatic stunts and wing walking by Paul Powell.

Gold Medal Band Plays

Late this afternoon there was a street parade led by Mayor S. T. Harrison and other city officials. Following the city's official family was the fire department, the American Legion, confederate veterans and queen of the fair seated on a beautiful throne.

Music for the parade was furnished by the Memphis Gold Medal band, under the direction of Paul James, Clarendon Municipal band, Estelline Booster band, Harrell Chapel band, Newlin Concert band and the Wellington Municipal band. In addition to the princess of Memphis, there were about 30 princesses representing different communities and towns in this section who participated in the parade. Thirty or more automobiles were included in the line of march. The parade was brought up at the rear by Roy May and his rodeo riders.

The entertainment program for Wednesday, the second day of the big four-day celebration here, will be featured by an airplane circus and rodeo in the afternoon and an elaborate pyrotechnic display at night.

Judges got an early start in their work Tuesday afternoon and already some ribbons have been pinned on the prize winning exhibits.

The judging work is expected to be completed Wednesday.

Crowd of 5,000

A large crowd milled about the fair grounds all day Tuesday and, although a definite check up of ticket sales had not been made, fair officials estimated that the attendance would probably be between 4,000 and 5,000. Efforts are being made to set a new attendance mark at the fair this year and if the weather continues favorable indications are the plans will materialize.

The Lachman-Carson shows were a little late in arriving here but the midway, with its numerous attractions for both the young and the old, took shape this afternoon and by night a number of the shows and concessions were open.

Exhibits at this year's fair are proof of the era of prosperity Hall county and the adjacent territory is experiencing. The weather this summer has been favorable for the growing of crops and farmers who are attending the district celebration report excellent cotton and feed crops.

Merchants Happy

Everywhere there is a feeling of happiness over this condition and business men are jubilant over prospects for a big fall and winter business.

The fair is being held earlier this year than usual and the number of agricultural exhibits are smaller than last, although the quality is considerably better. This also proves true in the poultry, cattle and horse exhibits.

Nine different communities in this section have aided in making the fair the success it is by arranging attractive exhibits in the agricultural building. These communities are Lakeview, Brice, Estelline, Newlin, Weatherly, Elite, Parnell, Harrell Chapel and Indian Creek.

A feature of the fair is the wonderful exhibits in the fine arts and school buildings. Schools which have arranged booths are Baylor, Salisbury, Leslie, Memphis, Gammail, Lakeview, Weatherly, Parnell and Brice.

The school work shown is better than ever before and indicates the wonderful progress being made in the educational institutions of Hall county, according to Odore Swift, county superintendent.

Outstanding among the booths is the cut flower and pot plant exhibit.

One hundred and twenty-four individuals have entries in the fine arts department. The cakes, pies and canned fruit which adorn the shelves of the booths whetted the appetities of fair visitors.

PARSON CHARGES

Admission to Services At El Paso Church Costs $1

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 11. (UP)—Believing that people appreciate something they have to pay to see and hear more than they do something they can attend free of charge, Rev. H. D. Tucker, pastor of Asbury Methodist church, has began selling tickets to his Wednesday night prayer meeting services.

As a result of the admission price, Rev. Tucker reported an increased attendance.

"I've always observed that people value things more if they pay money for them," he explained. "I'm trying this admission charge idea as an experiment."

The pastor sells season tickets to his prayer meetings for $1.

Daily average imports of petroleum at principal ports for the month of August totaled 232,935 barrels, compared with 244,194 for the month of July, and for the week ended Sept. 8 daily average imports were 209,285 barrels, compared with 224,429 for the previous week. Daily average receipts of California oil at Atlantic and Gulf coast ports for the month of August totaled 70,451 barrels, compared with 56,096 for the month of July, and for the week ended September 8, daily average California receipts were 54,429 barrels compared with 20,571 for the previous week.

Frank Norris Libel Suit Is Continued

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 11. (AP)—The $100,000 libel suit of Rev. J. Frank Norris, Fort Worth minister, against the Jackson Daily News and Frederick Sullens has been continued from the September term of the Hinds county court to the March term, it has been learned here.

Both parties are said to have agreed to the continuance. The suit grew out of an allegedly libelous editorial appearing in the Daily News, which the Texas minister said hurt his work as a minister of the gospel and cast reflections on his character.

Chamberlain Recovering Health, Radio Reports

BERMUDA, Sept. 11. (UP)—Radio advices received here late today said Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary who is on a vacation trip to recover his health, has greatly improved. Chamberlain, who could hardly walk when he embarked from England, is now able to walk the decks of the liner Orcoma and is leading a normal shipboard life.

MOVIE HEAD GIVES TALK

Ad Club Hears Address By Federer

The newspaper was named as the greatest advertising medium of all time by H. C. Federer, city manager of the Dent Theaters, Inc., in an address on "Theater Advertising" before the Wichita Falls Advertising club at a luncheon Tuesday noon.

Don Ross, presiding in the absence of A. E. Kelly, president, admonished members of the club to prepare to give the 10th district the best convention it had ever held when the Ad clubs of the district meet here in an annual convention Oct. 21, 22 and 23. W. B. Whatley, secretary, distributed a list of members of all the advertising organizations included in the district and asked members of the local club to write their friends on the list and invite them to the convention.

R. E. Shepherd anounced that the Buff-Spudder games in Houston would be broadcast over radio station KGKO, beginning Saturday, Sept. 15. Mr. Shepherd also announced that the station would give a radio receiving set at the regular luncheon on Tuesday, Oct. 2.

Parkinson Names Issues In Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 11. (UP)—The three big issues of the presidential campaign in Oklahoma are prohibition, agriculture and immigration, Frank Parkinson, Republican state chairman, said today.

Parkinson outlined the issues on request of national campaign headquarters. Herbert Hoover will make a radio address soon, directed toward the issues in Oklahoma, Parkinson said.

Cupid Fails to Score Over Two-Day Period

For the first time during 1928 two consecutive days saw no marriage licenses issued by Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk. In the same period three divorce petitions were filed with Miss Eunice Jackson, district clerk.

Marriage licenses issued during September are slightly in the lead of divorces at present, records show.

Courthouse Closed For Spudder Games

Courthouse departments will close for the Buff-Spudder game at Athletic park Wednesday afternoon, heads of the various departments announced Tuesday.

The sheriff's office, the constable's department and one of the justice of the peace offices will remain open. Other departments close at 3 o'clock.

Cattle Prices Soar On Scarcity of Yearlings

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 11 (UP)—Scarcity of choice to prime grades of fed steers and yearlings boosted the price here to new high levels today. A load of 17 head of mixed yearling steers and heifers sold at $17.50 a hundred pounds, the highest price since the world war on mixed grades.

Florida Dealer in Sea Wonders Appeals to Texas

BEAUMONT, Texas, Sept. 11. (AP)—A hurry call for baby alligators has been received from Tampa, Fla., by the Beaumont Chamber of Commerce. The letter, from the self styled "world's largest dealer in deep sea wonders," points out that the alligator crop in Florida this season is falling down.

Alligator trapping in Jefferson and Orange counties and in adjoining Louisiana parishes is the second largest trapping industry, muskrats coming first. Thousands of alligator hides are shipped from this section annually.

Dallas Woman Prisoner Charges Flowers to Nurse

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 11. (AP)—Dreams of beautiful things occupy minds even in drab gloomy jails.

The cell of a woman prisoner in the Dallas county jail has been brightened by roses, and sweet peas.

Now a day of reckoning. It was found the prisoner, with access to a telephone, had posed as head nurse and ordered the flowers and roses charged to an account. The cell is just an ordinary one again.

FIVE JUDGES AT ALTUS FAIR

Experts Selected to View Exhibits

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Sept. 11.—Five judges have been secured for the Jackson county free fair this week in Altus. P. G. Scruggs of Sayre will judge poultry exhibits; Phil Lowry will judge livestock; L. W. Osborne, extension agronomist from Stillwater, will judge the agricultural exhibit.

Miss Daisy Mae Frazier of the extension division of the Agricultural and Mechanical college will judge Four-H club work and exhibits made by Jackson county Farm Women's club members; while Miss Myrtle Humphreys, head of the home economics department at the Southwestern State Teachers college at Weatherford, will judge the outer classes of sewing and canning.

Rumors Rife on Plane Passengers On Eve of Non-Stop Continent Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. (US)—New York to Los Angeles without a stop!

Seeking greater honors and financial gain, nine of America's most famous airmen tomorrow will be streaking across the skies through Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Kansas and Oklahoma—and on to California.

It will be a gruelling contest from the very start for the nine pilots seeking the first prize of $12,500. With their planes loaded to capacity, ranging from two to three tons, the pilots must face the treacherous Alleghany mountains within an hour after the start from Roosevelt field.

Interest in the great scramble for the $22,500 in gold offered to the first four to reach Los Angeles was heightened today by the report that Mrs. James A. Stillman would ride as a passenger in the plane she purchased for Thea Rasche to fly the Atlantic.

This was promptly denied, however, by "Boots" Lebouitillier, the pilot who will be accompanied by George King, veteran flyer. "Boots" explained:

"Mrs. Stillman has no idea of going along. It will take every ounce of stamina to get through, and I am taking King, who can fly as well as I can. It is not a woman's job, and she will not go."

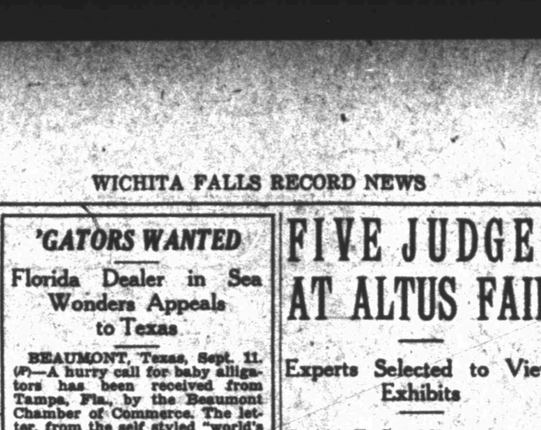

On the other hand, it was believed around Roosevelt field that Charles A. Levine, owner of the famous Columbia, would climb aboard with Roger Williams and Piero Bonnelli at the last minute. Levine would not comment today, but wagers were offered that he would fly with his plane.

List of Entries

Pilots, their passengers or co-pilots, kind of plane and engines, follow:

Arthur Goebel, Harry Tucker, Lockheed Vega, Wasp; Major William Thaw, II, John P. Morris, Lockheed Vega, Hornet; Clifford McMillan, Stinson, J-5; Nick B. Mamer, C. I. Paulsen, Buhl, J-5; Roger Williams, Piero Bonelli, Bellanca, J-5; Oliver Le Boutillier, George King, Bellanca, J-5; Emile Burgin, L. A. "The highest love of life is expressed in the life of love."

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The policeman who stood in the middle of the street was one of those who turned at the sound of the music.

"That's the first German band I've seen in along time," he ejaculated, grinning.

They were gathered, five of them, on lower Fifth avenue, and they were playing "Where the River Shannon Flows." Two were violinists, a third wielded a piccolo, the fourth carried a drum and the fifth a trumpet.

They were earnest, if not artistic. And yet they must have been artistic, too. From a high window a woman dropped a twisted piece of paper. The alert piccolo player left a few notes stranded high in air and picked the paper up. It contained a dime. He salaamed to the woman. A negro tossed a nickel from a basement. One or two passersby dropped coins.

He lives in the suburbs and a trip to the city one night a week for amusement means a whole lot to him. It means much more, however, not to have that long trip in and out again spoiled by things that he cannot help. Consequently he gloated over a piece of news that a friend brought back from Washington.

"The worm is turning," he began. "A bunch of people have got together and formed a club, the sole slogan of which is 'Seats when we pay for seats.' It applies to the movies. They will demand that when they buy a ticket at the box office they be given a seat, and not forced to stand in line in the lobby for half an hour or more before they can get in to scramble for a seat.

"The Washington club has 85 members already, each of them with a big badge labeled 'Seats.' If the theaters would tell you at the box office that there are no seats to be had, you could go on to the next one or save your money. But the idea of coming all the way into town and then having to stand in line for an hour just about ruins my disposition and physique."

The New Yorker who has taken a cottage for the summer down on the south shore of Long Island experienced an unexpected thrill the other evening. He took a spin in his car to East Islip and turned into the road that leads through a magical woodland to Deer Range State park on the great South bay.

He sat for a long while contemplating the broad stretch of water and the horizon. It was dark when he turned his car and started back through the woods. As the car curved around the road its headlights illumined tall trees grouped like sentinels.

Suddenly, as the lights moved from woodland to road, an animal emerged from the trees and bounded across the road. It stood for a moment in the glare of the lights and then, scrambling a bit, vanished. A deer! The New Yorker still is telling his friends about it.

A MODERATELY GOOD WISH

I like very much a sonata,
Or an opera, or any old thing,
In event that it comes from the larynx,
Of someone who knows how to sing.

I have a friend joyous and merry,
Whose song is a buzz-saw at work.
He considers his voice very pretty;
If that guy can sing, I'm a Turk!

He sings if his plans are all working;
He bursts out a tune if they're wrong—
I hope some near day when he's singing,
That the poor sap will BURST in a song!

Christian Church Revival Closes at Iowa Park

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Sept. 11.—The revival at the First Christian church closed Sunday night after 10 days' services. A baptismal service was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Highland Heights Christian church at Wichita Falls, when several new members were baptized. Dr. Randolph Clark, who had charge of the preaching, left Monday for his home in Ranger. In spite of his 84 years he was feeling in the best of health after the meeting was over. A large number of out of town visitors attended the meeting, which was held in the Methodist church on account of the larger auditorium.

91 Miles an Hour by Boat

IT IS rather astounding to read that George Wood of Detroit has succeeded in piloting a speed boat along the water at the amazing speed of 91 miles an hour.

That is about as risky a pastime as one could undertake. To meet an accident at such speed would surely be fatal. A man thrown from a boat would be crushed by his impact with the water just as quickly as he would if he fell from a speeding automobile onto a cement pavement. A floating bit of driftwood could easily cause a tragedy.

To drive speedboats at that rate calls for a high degree of daring. To be sure, it is hard to see how any utilitarian end has been served; but, after all, that may not be important. A man still has a right to risk his life for sport, provided he doesn't imperil anyone else. Mr. Wood deserves plenty of congratulations for his feat.

A Mayor's Pained Surprise

THE Philadelphia mayor's sudden expression of surprise and horror at the grand jury's revelations of booze and vice activities in that city, and his order to the police to clean up the town in 24 hours, do not, somehow, ring quite true.

Mayors are put into office to know what is going on in their cities and to see to it that lawlessness is suppressed. A man who can serve as mayor of America's third largest city for many months without once suspecting that there is any bootlegging, graft or crime in his bailiwick is, perhaps, to be envied for his childlike, unsuspecting trust in a naughty world; but the city that elected him may be pardoned if it fails to believe that he is quite so unsophisticated as his protestations make him appear.

To announce a sweeping investigation, and to promise that the trouble would be eradicated even if it took months of hard work, would not sound so bad; but to express pained surprise and promise to remedy matters overnight—well, as we said, it just doesn't ring true.

Sore Throat and Suppression

AN EPIDEMIC of the mysterious malady known as septic sore throat struck the Berkshire section of Massachusetts this summer. It caused a number of deaths, medical science not yet having found a sure way to master it; and it probably cost that part of Massachusetts $1,000,000 in diminished expenditures by vacationists, who stayed away when news of the disease was broadcast.

A decade or so ago the business leaders who felt this loss would have stormed the newspaper offices demanding that stories about the epidemic be "played down" so that vacationists would not be scared away. Now they are wiser.

Instead of asking a policy of concealment, civic leaders are planning a big medical campaign to eradicate the disease. Strict public health measures will be enforced; next summer, if it is humanly possible, the Berkshires will not have any septic sore throat cases.

How much better than the old-fashioned effort to suppress news! This new method of attacking the problem indicates that we are making progress.

The Infinity Within Us

DR. ROBERT A. MILLIKAN, who is just about America's best known scientist, does not believe that the world is ever going to come to an end.

Far out in the cold darkness of interstellar night the universe, Dr. Millikan believes, is constantly rebuilding itself. One age-long miracle is replacing worn-out stars and rejuvenating fading planets; when our sun burns to a cinder a new sun will replace it, and when the far-flung torches of the milky way burn down in their sockets the heavens will blaze with new lights.

Dr. Millikan, being a scientist and dealing with such things as cosmic rays, is not concerned greatly with the human aspects of this vision. But, although our days are rather strictly limited and numbered, we cannot help being thrilled. Our souls never will be satisfied with anything less than infinity and eternity; if we hear that the earth's life is to end 50 million years from now we are depressed. The word "everlasting" is the greatest word in our vocabulary.

This is odd, when you stop to think about it. We measure our daily affairs by single years, by decades, or at most by centuries. We speak of the "antiquity" of Egyptian pyramids 3000 years old, and to speculate on the civilization of the year 2928 seems like peering into the most remote future. Yet we can switch glibly to the incredibly vast stretches of time in which the scientist deals; and we can shiver when we hear that our sun, aeons hence, will go out.

Yet this may not be so strange, after all. We are, as the psalmist said, as the flower that withereth; but there is something strangely imperishable and unquenchable in our hearts. Limited to a span of three-score and ten years, we have, nevertheless, infinity within us.

This may be irrational, but it is magnificent. It is what has sustained men in all ages, from day of dank caves to the day of skyscrapers. It has heartened uncounted millions of nameless heroes to die for causes they only half understood, on dusty battlefields all the way from Arbela to Chauteau Thierry. It has led other millions to endure lifetimes of slow, unrewarded toil, on tossing ships, in damp mines, on sun-baked farms, in gloomy city slums. It has raised, at intervals, lonely figures to solitary heights from which they could glimpse confused visions of splendor and trace some sort of pattern in humanity's chaos.

The world will never end—the universe does not know what death is! Did we, after all, need Dr. Millikan to tell us? Did we not know it all the time?

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Old Winthrop Martenet, famed but eccentric scientist, who died seven years before the story opens, was survived by

Maxwell Martenet, his rather colorless son, who mysteriously disappeared and has been given up for dead for the last four years by

Julia, his wife, and

Hannan, his son, who inherits his grandfather's strength of character. On his return from abroad, Hannan is given a letter by

Mr. Curry, the family lawyer, written by Old Winthrop himself, warning the young man against

Horace Peters, and finishing with the command, "Don't open the iron door until the clock stops." At Valhalla Notch, Old Winthrop's mountain estate, a strange clock and an iron door guard the secret which Ernest Mallingham endeavors unsuccessfully to discover. His attempts to stop the clock by dynamite finally bury the house, with all its guests, in a landslide.

Viola Lane, pretty but mysterious girl, also tries to unravel the mystery.

John Breck, the caretaker,
Runty Duck, a guest,
Kate Wynne, a maid, and
Dr. Speck, a physician, all try vainly to penetrate the secret of the iron door.

The Basket at the Door

Viola clung close to the wall and waited. In comparison with recent sensational happenings the circumstance of the creaking shoes was a trivial thing, yet she felt a keen excitement. The wearer of the noisy footwear appeared to be following the wall at the opposite side of the room, walking straight toward the hall that led toward the forbidden door. Although it was pitch dark, he moved with a sure and steady gait, as if thoroughly familiar with his surroundings.

Viola waited until her ears told her that the man with the creaking shoes was in the hall. Then, with a very light and agile tread, she crossed over to the other side, the soft Oriental rug deadening her footfalls. One hand resting on the mantel, she leaned against the massive stone fireplace. She was all a-tremble with suspense and excitement. Who was the owner of the creaking shoes? What was his errand?

The footfalls had ceased now, and it was her impression that the prowler had stopped directly in front of the iron door. Did he intend to enter, to follow in the fateful footsteps of Runty Duck and Dr. Speck? As she stood there in the darkness, with recollections of terror thronging her mind and gruesome fancies shooting through her brain her heart beat with dizzy rapidity against her ribs.

There was something oppressive in the stillness that had followed the cessation of the creaky footfalls.

Then, as the suspense grew to be a torment, the prowler started to move again, this time walking away from the iron door. She was at once disappointed and relieved to discover that he did not intend to enter. Perhaps he had changed his mind. Perhaps visions of terrors lurking behind the iron door had been more than his courage could withstand. At any rate, he was coming back, and in a few moments he would pass within a foot of where she stood.

Her courage was rapidly returning now as she saw that nothing of a very tragic nature was to happen. Along with it returned her curiosity concerning the wearer of the creaky shoes. She was determined to learn who he was, and, if possible, what had brought him to the forbidden door. Her hand fumbled lightly over the mantel until she found a match holder. Then, with match ready to strike, she waited until the prowler was almost opposite her.

Scratch! In the flight of the match she saw a tall, lank, slightly stooping figure who recoiled violently at the sudden flaring up of a light. She looked into his long, leathery, startled face, and she felt an impulse to laugh.

"Hello, John," she said pleasantly.

"Lordy, miss!" The caretaker's voice shook. Many strange events of late had unstrung his nerves, and this sudden encounter had come as a shock. "You here?"

"Yes, John." Viola looked down at John Breck's wrinkly and unpolished footwear. "I couldn't sleep, so I thought I'd take a stroll. Let me give you a tip, John. Those shoes aren't the proper kind of prowling around on secret missions at night. They creak."

"Yes, ma'am. Funny thing, too. I've worn 'em a year now, and the creak won't come out of 'em. I've tried my durndest, soakin' the soles in oil and everything else, but no luck."

Viola struck another match and lighted a candle on the mantel. She wondered if John Breck was as simple as he looked.

"There's no one else in the house who wears creaky shoes, is there?" she asked innocently.

John looked as if he resented being spoofed. "I ain't noticed, miss," he declared. "And I don't see as it matters, nohow," he added stiffly.

Viola gave him a conciliatory smile. "Of course, it doesn't, John. I'm only curious. I'm curious about a number of things that happen in this house. Will you tell me something, John?"

"It depends," was the cautious reply.

"Will you tell me what you were doing at the iron door?"

John peered at her a little suspiciously and not too graciously. "Nothin'," he said shortly. "I allus make the rounds at night to see if everything's all right."

"Is that all, John?"

"What else would I be doin'?" the caretaker countered sourly. "I 'tend to my job the best I know how and let others do the worryin'. That might be a good rule for you, miss."

"Thanks, John. I'll take your advice to heart. Just one more question. You heard what happened at dinner?"

"Huggies told me about some funny goings on. Didn't know but what he was kiddin' me. Anyhow, I didn't take much stock in what he said."

"But perhaps it was true. I heard and saw some very strange things myself. That voice, for instance. Ever hear of a voice without a body, John?"

"No-oh. Can't say as I have." John fixed his gloomy eyes on the ceiling. "No tellin', though. I'll be hearin' harps one of these days, and mighty soon, too, if that ceiling keeps cracking."

"Oh, let's hope not. This is serious, John. One or two people at the table thought they recognized the voice."

"Uh-huh," said John, seemingly unimpressed.

Viola yawned. She took the candle from the mantel. "I'm going to bed," she declared. And then she held the candle so the light fell full on John's weather-browned face. "John, do you suppose Maxwell Martenet is still alive?"

The caretaker jerked back his head with a start. For a moment his face had been transformed. "Who?" he rasped out.

"Maxwell Martenet, Hannan's father."

The lines in John's face fell back into their usual tight-knit and passive order. "If Maxwell Martenet is alive I ain't seen him," he stoutly declared, and Viola felt he had spoken the truth, though perhaps not the whole truth.

"John," she tried again, "who is behind the iron door?"

The caretaker's head was in shadow now, so she could not see his expression, but she thought the question startled him. "Nobody," he declared with gruff conviction. "Leastwise, I ain't ever seen anybody there. Maybe I shouldn't say, seein' as I don't know anything about it. The King of England may be behind that door, for all I know—or care."

Again Viola felt that he had told the truth, but also that he could have said a great deal more. She knew there was a kind heart behind his bony frame, and she surmised his gruffness was assumed in order to discourage further questions.

"Thanks, John. I won't keep you any longer. I'm going to bed now." She gave him a smiling glance that ran all the way from his head to his shoes, and then her smile sobered. The creaking shoes! With a light step, but with her brain awhirl, she ran to the little room she had occupied since the upper portions of the house became uninhabitable.

She was in no mood for sleep, however. For a time she lay on her bed, fully dressed. Her eyes were closed, but she was wide awake. After a while she tiptoed to the door, opened it a crack, and listened. There were no sounds of movement anywhere. The house might have been sleeping as quietly as if an avalanche had never disturbed its tranquility, yet she sensed a strain of uneasiness beneath it all. The darkness, the dust in the air, the dull groaning of timbers, the sinister something which seemed to vibrate in the huddled shadows—all had their depressing effect on her mood.

She shook off her uneasiness and hastened lightly back to the library. John's explanations had not quite satisfied her. She wondered if she might not find a clue to what he had been doing at the iron door. Silently she closed the door behind her and stood listening. There was not a sign of life in the darkness. She stole forward, lighted one of the candles on the mantel, and carrying it in her hand hurried down the short hall that led to the iron door.

She was trembling again. The shadows seemed to jeer her as the candle light brushed them aside. It was impossible not to speculate about what had happened behind the door she was now approaching. Runty Duck's awful screams. Dr. Speck's broken sentence that had left such a hideous void in the air. * * * She looked down, and her eyes widened in amazement at a humdrum sight. What she saw was a basket standing on the floor beside the door, heaped full of packages. She stared at it with a sense of incongruity. She had expected, if she should find anything at all, to find something different from this.

She bent over and examined the contents. Bread, sugar, meat, coffee—all sorts of provisions. Evidently John had left the basket there. For whom? Naturally, he expected somebody to come and get it. She fixed a tremulous, speculative gaze on the iron door. It seemed only reasonable to suppose that the basket was intended for some one behind that door. But John had declared he did not know who dwelt inside, and his words had carried the ring of truth. Viola did not like to think she had been deceived. Oh, well, wasn't it possible that the caretaker was merely obeying orders blindly? He impressed her as the type of man who, in calm weather or in rough, avalanche or no avalanche, would go about his daily routine in a stolid and unquestioning way, without inquiring into the nature of his duties. If so, it was possible enough that he had never seen the person for whom the basket was intended, and did not know who that person was, even though he might entertain certain suspicion.

In any event, it was all very strange and the stillness of this little hall, with the candle in her hand slashing the shadows into weirdly shaped segments, gave her a trembly and suffocating sensation. The little yellow flame wavered in a sickly fashion, as if gasping for air. And now she saw that the candle she had taken from the mantel happened to be the same green candle that had behaved so strangely during dinner. She looked at it closely, fascinated. It was just an ordinary candle, about half consumed, with strips of tallow along its sides. In imagination she reconstructed the scene—the disappearing candle, the empty candlestick, the orphaned flame hanging suspended in the air, like a flaming wraith.

It had been uncanny, and it seemed even more so in this sequestered hall, with the magical candle in her hand, the sinister iron door in front of her, and Old Winthrop's clock ticking serenely in the background. There was something chilling, something unwholesome, in the atmosphere.

She wanted to turn and hurry away, but of a sudden her feet seemed rooted to the spot. A fascination stronger than her dread held her in an immovable trance.

When the candle fluttered in her trembling hand, she started at the iron door. Had she heard something, or was she only imagining? There was a stir, a movement somewhere—something that was like the flapping of black, evil wings in the night. Instinctively she drew back a step, then stood still again, incapable of thought or motion. The door was moving, it was swinging outward. A face appeared in the opening, and it was a face awful to behold. A pair of shoulders followed, then an arm reached out and a hand clutched the handle of the basket.

A lump caught in Viola's throat. She was choking. She felt as if every drop of blood in her body had turned to ice. She was not conscious of making a sound, yet she must have done so, for suddenly the hand paused in the act of lifting the basket from the floor. The loathsome face turned upward. A pair of eyes fixed her—dead eyes they seemed to be, yet something live and horrible smoldered in their depths, stirring her frozen sensibilities into a paroxysm of overwhelming dread.

A hand at her throat stifled an outcry. The candle dropped from her hand. Darkness like a huge icy wave swallowed her. A low, malevolent laugh sounded close to her ear. A clock was striking. She was being lifted, carried—carried into the awful darkness beyond the forbidden door.

Hannan woke to the pealing of Old Winthrop's clock in the next room. It was 4 o'clock in the morning. He turned over on his side and reached for his package of cigarets. His shoulder was not aching so badly, although Dr. Speck had not been there to dress the wound for a long time. After several hours' sleep, interwoven with dreams of disembodied voices, vanishing candles, and a brief but heavenly kiss bestowed by the most wonderful girl who ever had the misfortune to find herself in an entombed house, he felt rested and eager for activity.

He lighted the candle and stood up. A little stiffly and with a wince of pain he put on the dressing gown and dropped Viola Lane's little pistol into his pocket. A spell of dizziness came, but it passed quickly. He moved experimentally across the floor. Yes, he felt strong enough to make a little tour of investigation at this early morning hour. There was no clear course of action in his mind, but he could endure no more idleness.

He moved toward the door, and then he paused abruptly. Somebody was coming. He heard footsteps moving straight toward his door, and they impressed him in a most curious way.

Now the door knob rattled gently. Evidently John Breck was taking his duties as bodyguard very lightly, for the caller entered without hindrance.

"Awake, Hannan?" came Horace Peters' voice.

"Come right in," Hannan invited.

He looked down at Peters' neatly polished shoes as the little man entered and took a chair.

"Haven't slept a wink," Peters confessed. "There was a big book under his arm. "Don't see how anybody can sleep in this place. Been awake long?"

"Only a few minutes."

"Then you don't mind if I intrude. I've got to talk to somebody or I'll go plumb cuckoo. Guess what I've been doing to while away the uneasy hours, Hannan? Reading the encyclopedia. Struck something interesting. Lend me your ears."

He opened the book on his knees and lowered his top-heavy head. His mismated features were aglow with interest. "Here we are. It has to do with clocks. Just listen to this."

Peters read while Hannan studied his face with a fixed, alert expression: "'Finally, in the early stages of clockmaking, a mechanism was introduced by which the water, as it fell drop by drop, turned a little wheel which moved the hands on the face of the dial and so marked the hour.' Significant, eh, Hannan?"

"Well, it suggests a theory with regard to Old Winthrop's clock," Hannan admitted guardedly.

"You bet it does. And so beautifully simple! No winding, no trouble of any kind. The water keeps dripping and the clock keeps running, and it goes on that way till hell freezes over and the water turns to ice. The only question is," and Peters rubbed his chin in a thoughtful way, "where does the water come from and what makes it drip?"

"It's a puzzle," said Hannan absently.

"I've heard," Peters remarked, "that in the early days of his experimenting Old Winthrop had an old Swiss clockmaker associated with him. That's suggestive, eh?"

Storey Favors State Law Requiring Drivers' License for All Autoists

Passage of laws regulating the operation of automobile vehicles on the public highway will be advocated at the session of the 41st legislature by Cecil Storey, representative of district 112, the Vernon man announced Monday.

Setting out that it had heretofore been his policy in the legislature to oppose passage of regulatory laws, Mr. Storey said that the large number of accidents on state highways demanded some immediate action.

With a remedy of the situation in view, Mr. Storey said he would offer a bill at the next legislative session which would make a state permit prerequisite to driving on a public highway. These permits, according to Mr. Storey's plans would be revocable and subject to probation.

Mr. Storey also will favor a bill requiring the state highway department to place as much as eight-foot shoulders on the sides of all paved highways that are more than 30-feet wide. With these wide shoulders, the Vernon man pointed out, cars will be provided with a place to stop in case of emergency.

Mr. Storey's statement follows:

"It has been my policy in the Texas legislature to oppose the passage of regulatory laws; for I believe that the attempt to try to regulate every relationship of life with statutory laws, has given rise, in a large measure, to a universal dissatisfaction and disrespect for laws, but the time has come in Texas when measures must be passed regulating the operation of automobiles upon public streets and highways. The reckless disregard for human life is becoming more alarming every day; accidents are bringing about serious injuries to persons and property are appalling.

"In view of this critical situation, something must be done. I believe that I voice the sentiment of the thoughtful and reflecting citizenship of this district, when I say that a law should be passed, carrying with it an emergency provision, requiring permits issued by constituted authority to all drivers of automobiles, which permits shall be subject to revocation and probation, as the facts and circumstances may warrant, and the interest of society for the preservation of human life and property justify. Therefore, it will be my purpose to introduce and pass, if I can, such a bill at the next Texas legislature.

"In this connection, I will also favor a bill requiring the state highway department to place as much as eight-foot shoulders on the sides of all paved highways that are not more than 30 feet wide, so that cars, if they have to stop may stop thereon, and provide that no car shall be permitted to stop, especially at night, on the main paved highway."

Little River Pool Goes to 102,000 Open

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 11.—Little River pool was opened wide for the purpose of gauging the field and therefore jumped to 102,245 barrels Monday, or an increase of 12,598 barrels over the previous day. The greater Seminole field made 309,363 barrels from 1,195 wells, for an increase of 11,404 barrels over Sunday's gauge of 298,159 barrels.

Texas Flier Safe After Mexico Storm

M'ALLEN, Texas, Sept. 11. (INS)—Capt. Ralph Stone, pilot for the International Air Transport company of Brownsville, who was reported lost in a hurricane along the northern coast of Mexico last Friday, is safe at a small Mexican town in the devastated area on the coast, according to information received here today. Six Mexicans lost at the same time as Captain Stone also were reported safe.

Stone's plane is a total wreck from the buffeting of the terrific winds which devastated three fishing villages, the report stated.

Loeb and Leopold Has Secretarial Jobs

JOLIET, Ill., Sept. 11. (AP)—Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, today began the fifth year of their life sentences for the murder of Bobbie Franks.

Both have secretarial jobs in the state penitentiary. Leopold is secretary to the Rev. William Frye, Protestant chaplin, and Loeb is secretary to Deputy Warden William Barrowman. Formerly the youths worked in the prison factories.

KOSHER FOOD LAW IS SOUGHT

Texas Jews Seek Meat Regulations

HOUSTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Texas Jews have launched a campaign intended to assure them of pure kosher food, specified by their church doctrines.

Originating with Dr. Abraham I. Schechter, rabbi of the Adath Yeshurun congregation here, the move has spread to other cities in the state, and will be brought before the legislature the next session.

Dr. Schechter has drawn up a bill which, he says, will be presented at the next legislature. Among other things it provides that the state designate an official to inspect kosher meat, and all kosher food, to ascertain whether it has been prepared in strict conformity with all Jewish religious requirements.

Under Hebraic beliefs, Dr. Schechter said, animals for true kosher foods can be slaughtered only by Jews who have been given diplomas as "slaughterers." These slaughterers first bless the animal, examine it for diseases, cut its throat (no animal for correct kosher foods can be stabbed), butcher it and discard any parts of the animal which might contain the more common disease germs. The ritual must be carried out in the preparation of the meat for food. This includes all classes of animals—beef, chickens, sheep, goats, etc.

Kosher food laws appointing inspectors already are in force in New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and California, Dr. Schechter said.

World History Attached to Canes Collected by Texas Antique Dealer

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 11.—M. G. Mock sells antiques for a livelihood and collects rare canes for a hobby.

"If a school boy could learn the history of every cane I have he could pass an examination in any branch of history," Mr. Mock boasts. "Besides, he would have acquired a lot of other valuable and interesting information."

Mr. Mock has fat canes and slender canes, short canes, long canes, light canes, heavy canes; canes from all parts of the United States and from Africa, India, the Orient, the South Sea Islands and what not. And his especial boast is that each cane has some unusual historical connection.

One of them is made of 109 different pieces of wood and bone and each part has a story—but it's too long to tell. Another was made from a pine board in the Old North church in Boston, from which Paul Revere received the lantern signal which started him on his midnight ride.

He has another stick which every president the United States has had—save Woodrow Wilson and those after him—has trod upon. It was made from one of the planks in the White House floor, which was replaced by a new one shortly before Wilson's inauguration.

And still another, a light bamboo stick, once was the property of Ulysses S. Grant; another was given to General Sam Houston by the president of Mexico.

High Court Insists That Maharajah Defend Himself Against Charges

BOMBAY, Sept. 11. (UP)—The high court insisted today on trial of a suit against the former Maharajah Tukoji Rao of Indore, in which a Hindu woman and her beautiful daughter charge cruelty, persecution and injustice. Tukoji is the husband of the former Nancy Miller of Seattle.

Justices Fawcett and Kemp dismissed the former maharajah's appeal disputing the court's jurisdiction. The justices said the manly thing would be for Tukoji to appear and defend himself.

The court implied that Tukoji had nothing to fear, since the native Indore government appeared to be assisting the defense.

The former maharajah was given until Oct. 10 to decide whether to defend the case.

In the present case, Sowakabi Pandarinath Rajpurkar is suing for 184,000 rupees (approximately $60,000.) She charged that the former maharajah decoyed her and her daughter from Bombay to Indore where they were imprisoned for more than ten years because the girl rejected Tukoji's proposals. The former maharajah also appropriated her property and jewels, the plaintiff charged.

A New Leadership

We told you last week of the new Packard Standard Eight, the latest addition to Packard's line of fine and luxurious motor cars.

Now we announce the improved models of the Packard Custom Eight. These are offered in nine beautiful body types on the new 140" wheelbase chassis. The prices range from $3175 for the fleet and powerful Runabout to $3850 for the distinguished Sedan-Limousine (at the factory).

The original Packard Eight was the first prominent American car to offer the eight-in-line or straight eight motor and four wheel brakes.

Today finds four wheel brakes used almost universally while twenty of this country's makers are producing straight eight motor cars. In Europe the straight eight has displaced all other types of eight-cylinder engines.

We recount this because it is indicative of Packard's engineering leadership and because it impresses that a straight eight motor car is the safest one to buy as far as depreciation is concerned.

And now the new Packard Custom Eight takes over a new engineering leadership for it offers something no other car in all the world possesses—the Packard Shock Absorbing System.

This combination of new inventions is almost magical in its effects. It makes the new Packard Eight not only the easiest riding car in the world but also the safest. This is so true that we would state it even more positively if we could find words to do so.

The new cars are available in all that the world of beautiful colors and fine fabrics affords. Their beauty of line and matchless riding quality are attended by the most luxurious upholstery even Packard can produce.

The new Packard Custom Eight has very definitely assumed a new leadership and especially in everything pertaining to comfort and safety in motor cars. We want to demonstrate this to you—and under any conditions that your ownership would ever call for. May we do so? You will be under no obligation to us in any way.

We cannot conceive of your riding in one of the new cars without wanting to have one. Your used car will help pay for it and then if you prefer to buy out of income you will find our payment plan a most agreeable one.

26 MILLION DUNLOPS

"WHAT OF IT?... What does that mean to my car?"

Simply this: The 26 million Dunlops now running are your guarantee that Dunlops will pay you on your car.

With 45,000 craftsmen . . . 40 years' experience . . . $195,000,000 resources . . . vast rubber plantations . . and great spinning mills, Dunlop should make the world's best tires.

The longer Dunlops have run, the more popular they have become. In Australia, 75% of all tires are Dunlops . . . In Japan, 65% . . . In England, 70%.

The ninth and greatest of all Dunlop plants was built at Buffalo, U. S. A. five years ago. Since then, Dunlop has climbed from 89th place to an undisputed position among America's leading tire-manufacturers. In 1927, American dealers sold 41% more Dunlop tires than in 1926.

Yes . . . the 26 million Dunlops now in service are your guarantee that Dunlops will pay you on your car.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in Regard to Health and Diet Will Be Answered by Dr. McCoy, Who Can Be Addressed in Care of This Paper

The Cure of Constipation

During the first period of the cure of constipation, it is advisable for a patient to use one or two enemas daily for the purpose of clearing out old waste material and lessening the amount of inflammation in the intestinal tract. Each enema should contain one quart of plain warm water, and should be taken through a long rectal tube from an enema bag that is suspended about four or five feet high on the wall, with the patient in the knee-chest position.

The use of enemas does not provide the real cure, but is a helpful course of treatment which tends to lessen inflammation of the intestines, and to increase the flow of secretions. There is no danger of enemas weakening the bowels, as might occur from the continual use of strong laxatives.

It is well to begin the diet with a three or four day fruit fast, using only one kind of acid fruit at a meal, eating as much as desired three times a day. For example, use oranges one day, apples the next and grapes the third, etc. You must be careful not to eat or even taste anything else, such as bread, potatoes, soup or candy, because if you do, you will not have the results you desire.

After the three or four-day fruit fast, you may begin on your regular diet, but it is advisable to avoid starches, sugars and milk for a time. Eat large quantities of greens to provide the intestines with plenty of bulk. This is very important at first until the intestinal muscles have become strengthened through their work of pushing the cellulose of the greens forward. Large salads should be used at least twice a day, and two or three cooked non-starchy vegetables, such as spinach, carrots, summer squash, asparagus, celery, etc.

It is important to cultivate the habit of going to the toilet at a regular time, morning and evening. Do not allow anything to interfere with this habit, which will be one of the best that you have ever cultivated.

Constipation is much more common in civilization than in savagery, and this is partly due to the position assumed at the toilet. The savage squats and in this way the position of the internal organs is entirely changed and the rectum is opened so that the movements are more complete. This position may be imitated by drawing a chair in front of you and placing the feet on top of the chair, drawing the knees to the chest.

You should walk about five miles daily, and a short walk before retiring will enable you to sleep better. You should also take daily exercises while lying on your back in order to strengthen the abdominal muscles.

After about three weeks of the enema regime, stop the use of the enemas and the bowels will usually begin to work normally in about three days. If they do not behave entirely satisfactorily repeat these instructions, and all ordinary cases will be entirely cured.

If you still have difficulty, you should have an X-ray taken. This may disclose a kink in the large colon and perhaps adhesions. If these are present, it will be necessary to have some deep abdominal manipulations. Physicians of any school teaching manipulative therapeutics can give these treatments if they understand deep massage of the abdomen. It is not necessary to have this type of adhesions operated on by the knife.

One who is entirely free from constipation enjoys life and is brimming over with energy. The reward of feeling good and being entirely free from the diseases that result from constipation should certainly encourage one to practice these efforts for self-betterment.

Questions and Answers

Question—O. J. asks: "Is it safe to marry a person who has had consumption in the first stages and is now cured?"

Answer—One who has had tuberculosis can usually get perfectly well, and there is no reason why she should not be married. A woman who has been tubercular must be sure she has completely recovered before she subjects herself to the ordeal of childbirth. I will be glad to send you my articles on this subject if you will send me a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, in care of this newspaper.

Question—M. K. L. asks: "What is the difference between goat's milk and cow's milk?"

Answer—Goat's milk contains more protein and fat but not quite as much of the carbohydrate element as cow's milk. Goat's milk also has a larger proportion of mineral matter and less water. If one lives where he can have his own goat he will be insured a healthful supply of milk, as goats are naturally healthy animals and their milk is as good and often superior to cow's milk. There are very few localities where goat's milk is distributed by delivery system, so most people must be content to use good cow's milk.

Question—U. V. asks: "What am I to do for a stubborn case of St. Vitus dance of 10 years' standing? I am a young man in the twenties."

Answer—You should take a fruit juice fast for at least 10 days which should be followed by a carefully planned diet in order to cure yourself of any tendency to nervousness. Also, take systematic exercises using only those exercises which require slow movements and where it is necessary to use increased strength each day.

Orient Rails to Reach Ojinaga By Week-End

ALPINE, Texas, Sept. 11. (UP)—The rails of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railway will reach Ojinga, Mexico, on the Texas border, by the end of the present week, W. L. Churchill, consulting engineer for the railroad, said during a visit here.

Completion of the line to the border will close the gap between Chihauhau to the Texas border.

Churchill said the purchase of the Orient by the Santa Fe railroad will mean the building of a railway into Mexico capable of serving this section of the country. Mining and industrial development in this section has been retarded in the past by lack of railroad facilities.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (397) Our Presidents

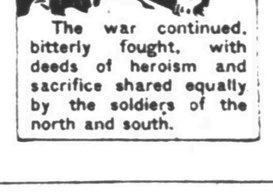

Before Buchanan's term had expired seven states had seceded from the Union because a Republican president had been elected. When Lincoln came into office in 1861 the country was ready for war and action opened with the capture of Fort Sumter, April 14, 1861, by the southerners. Lincoln called for 75,000 volunteers.

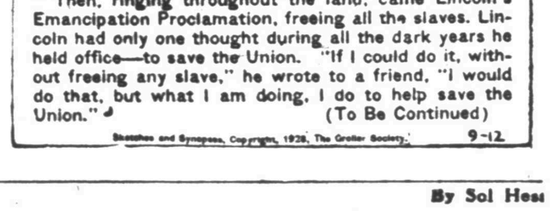

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-28.

The new president did not have the support of all in the north. Doubt was expressed that the awkward man from the west could save the situation.

The war continued, bitterly fought, with deeds of heroism and sacrifice shared equally by the soldiers of the north and south.

" Then, ringing throughout the land, came Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, freeing all the slaves. Lincoln had only one thought during all the dark years he held office—to save the Union. "If I could do it, without freeing any slave," he wrote to a friend, "I would do that, but what I am doing, I do to help save the Union." (To Be Continued)

VOIGHT IS MEDALIST IN NATIONAL AMATEUR GOLF WITH 143

JOHNSTON ONE STROKE BEHIND

Bobby Jones and 5 Former Champions Qualify

By FRANK GETTY
United Press Sports Editor

BRAE BURN COUNTRY CLUB, NEWTON, Mass., Sept. 11. (UP)—They said he didn't belong among champions. They left his name from the list of the country's 10 best amateur golfers. They nearly tried him on charges of professionalism. But George Voigt of North Hills kept his own counsel and today, when his chance came, he showed the way to all the field at Brae Burn and won the qualifying medal of the 32nd amateur championship with an aggregate of 143 strokes.

The gallery at Brae Burn went whooping and scrambling up and down hill at the heels of Bobby Jones. It charged helter skelter through wood and brook to follow George von Elm and the other favorites. It made no difference to the dark-haired, slender young medalist who went trudging along with a handful of friends, spanking his tee shots down the alley, sticking his pitches up to the pin, and putting with an accuracy which would have saved the face of many a more popular golfer.

Close behind Voigt came Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston of the White Bear Yacht club, Minneapolis, who failed by a single stroke to tie for the qualifying medal. Jimmy faltered at the very end of his second round, just enough to have to take second place.

Bobby Jones Fifth

How thoroughly Voigt impressed upon his critics of the U. S. G. A. his superiority over the field in two days of medal play is indicated by the fact that the third player in the final standing, Don K. Moe of Oregon, had an aggregate of 149, six strokes behind the leader.

Behind Moe came C. Ross Somerville, the Canadian champion from London, Ont., with 150, and then the national amateur champion, Robert Tyre Jones Jr., himself, with 151.

After a grimly contested playoff of a seven-cornered tie through the blue haze of twilight, the field was narrowed down to 32 qualifiers who will start match play over the 18-hole route Wednesday.

Five former amateur champions are within the select circle, George von Elm, Francis Ouimet, Max Marston, Jess Sweetser and old Chick Evans. Except for Von Elm, they all were threatened with extinction as a result of indifferent rounds on the opening day, but one and all came back today with improved performances which gave them another chance to challenge for the championship.

Playoff Necessitated

While the golfing test at Brae Burn was no less exacting today, many of the survivors showed marked improvement and when all the cards were in it was found that seven men had tied with scores of 157 only four places vacant in the circle of 32 qualifiers.

Eddie Held of St. Louis, Bon Stein of Seattle, Nicol Thompson Jr., of Canada, T. Suffern Taller Jr., 18-year-old son of the Big G mashie merchant from Newport, Carl Nettlebladt of Worcester, William McPhail of Norfolk, Mass., and Maurice J. McCarthy Jr., of old Flatbush went out to the first hole to play off the tie.

Held sliced his tee shot deep into the woods, McPhail pulled his into a trap at the left, Thompson went into the trees and Nettlebladt was in soft grass at the right of the fairway. The others were safely down the sloping fairway.

Held Eliminated

From a place among some giant pines, Held slapped his second into a woodpile and dropped his third on the edge of the brook, thus eliminating himself as a contender. Thompson exploded out of the trap and chipped on with his third. McPhail played safely to the fairway and was up near the pin with his third, the others reaching the sloping green with their second shots.

One on the green, Bon Stein sent his approach putt past the cup and took 3 to get down. Thompson needed two putts from 10 feet, so he, too, had a 5 and passed from the picture.

The remaining four then qualified, McPhail sinking an eight-footer for a 4, Taller and Nettlebladt getting down in two putts each and McCarthy carding in a 12-foot twister for a birdie 3. The best cards turned in today were as follows:

Voigt—
Out ..... 434 444 425—37
In ..... 443 444 443 35—72

Dr O. F. Willing—
Out ..... 444 443 334—38

J. Wolcott Brown—
Out ..... 445 443 334—36
In ..... 444 355 335 38—74

George von Elm, still regarded as one of the strongest contenders for Jones, crown, had an indifferent round of 79 today, which left him with a tie for sixth place with Brown.

COYOTES TAKE 1ST DRILL HERE

Preps Impress; 3 Vernon Stars Join Indians

Both the junior college and high school football teams were put to hard work Tuesday afternoon and driven through an evening of full practice.

The Coyotes are in excellent condition after their pre-season training camp at Craterville Park, Okla. Yesterday's drill was their first workout this season in Wichita Falls.

The Pack's backfield seems to be the best in several years, with Captain Harvey Black running the team at quarterback, Mills playing at fullback and Hambrick, Powell and Davis alternately at halves.

Mills Looks Great

Mills should reach the peak of his high school career this season. The big fellow has improved in form since last year when he was unanimous choice for all-district fullback and also has picked up considerably in speed.

Jerry Elliott, who has been working at quarterback, seems reasonably sure of running the team in the absence of or injury of Captain Black. He also will get full share of the passing and punting duties if he is worked at half instead of quarter.

Howard Scott, the giant Coyoto who played at guard last year, continues to look like a "find" at end. He is the hardest tackler that has graced a Coyote end for several seasons as well as being fast enough to take care of the position.

Coyote Line Strong

The Coyote line should be a strong one as practically all of the men out for line positions are large and husky youngsters.

Coach E. A. Baggett continued to give the Wichita Falls junior college Indians exercises, playing positions and backfield shifts during the work-out yesterday.

Several new junior college prospects entered the camp yesterday. Among them are Emil Hutto, tackle; Garland Black, guard, and J. T. Castleberry, halfback, stars from Baggett's team last year at Vernon high school; Tommy Hutcheson, letter back from last year's team; Walter Penny and Harvey Martin, both linemen.

State Fish Official Gives Tips On Catching and Cooking Carp

S. G. Garrett Writes Interesting and Beneficial Article for Benefit of Wichita Falls Ikes

(S. G. Garrett, engineer of the Game, Fish and Oyster commission of Texas, in the following article sets forth his ideas in regard to the control of the increasing numbers of carp being found in the lakes around Wichita Falls. His writing of the article was prompted by the request of several sportsmen of this city.—Editor's note.)

By S. G. GARRETT

The Game, Fish and Oyster commission, under the efficient guidance of William J. Tucker as commissioner is doing everything possible in providing the sportsmen with adequate fishing. New hatcheries are being established throughout the state to increase the output of fish, and to facilitate shipment.

Experiments in holding the fish until they are capable of caring for themselves are being tried at present, and it is believed that the percentage of fish to mature will be materially increased.

Constant work is being done in determining the best foods for fish, the adaptability of different species to different waters, the elimination of trash fish from the streams and lakes, and the study of which vegetation is beneficial and which is undesirable and the control of vegetation.

But it is necessary for the sportsmen to give their cooperation in many matters, and with this support we may all look forward to better fishing all the time.

Concern Over Carp

A great deal of concern is being manifest by the sportsmen of Wichita Falls and vicinity at the alarming increase in carp in the Wichita lakes. This increase is most remarked at Lake Kemp, possibly because there are more fishermen there than at Diversion lake or Lake Wichita.

The increase is easy to explain: the carp is a most prolific fish, and there is comparatively nothing preying on him. The bass and crappie have fishermen catching them, bass eating crappie and smaller bass, turtles and other fish eating both; and the carp and other bottom feeders destroying spawn each season. When these facts are considered, it is easy to see that the problem of maintaining good fishing of the game species is difficult, and control of the less desirable species is nearly impossible.

This dissertation is partly in defense of the carp, but mainly for the purpose of showing sportsmen how to better the game fishing situation and at the same time to have fun in doing it.

It is indeed surprising to know how many fish can be taken by pole and line fishing. It has been advocated on the coast to prohibit seining and netting salt water fish and to force all marketing fishermen to resort to pole and line. Statistics have been compiled to show that this is not as absurd as the average layman would suppose. In fact it has been definitely demonstrated that more fish are taken by pole and line in a given period than are taken by seining and netting. It is merely a problem of getting the people to fish.

During the warm months in Texas we consistently hear bass fishermen moan and wail and with a long face say that "fishing ain't what it was a few months ago—such and such a lake or stream is fished out."

While there is some truth to such statements, it is also a recognized fact that the bass do not strike or fight in the warm months. He is taking life easy in the shade of some log in a deep hole and sensibly diminishing his diet during the summer.

How Fishermen Can Aid

Since the bass fisherman will fish, whether fishing is good or not, why can't we interest him in parking his flies and lines safely at home and do some "nigger fishing" with a cane pole? He will catch fish—which is what he wants, and at the same time will aid in the control of the carp and thereby better his bass fishing when the bass is again hungry.

The carp is possibly the most maligned fish we have and to a great extent, unjustly. The majority of people class him as a "trash fish" and believe him unedible. When first introduced into this country, he surpassed all expectations of hardiness, of rapid growth, ease of management and large size. Living in mill ponds, rivers, creeks, lakes and places not suitable for finer species, it has abundantly shown its ability to convert otherwise useless food material into useful meat.

For the first few years after the introduction of the carp, it seemed that it would be popular as a food fish. In this respect, however, it lost in favor. Sentiment went characteristically to an extreme in unreserved condemnation of the carp as a food fish and what might have been indifference became a prejudice.

The adverse opinion of the carp was, perhaps, natural under the circumstances. People had been told that carp would do well in any kind of water. Every farmer was given carp to place in every hog wallow and mud hole on the farm. When these carp were taken, they were found to have a "muddy" taste. Naturally when there were plenty of more desirable fish, people chose the ones which had better taste. But the carp was not to blame. The people who place him in poor surroundings where he was forced to assimilate distasteful foods and then pass that taste on through his meat when he was eaten: these people ought to be blamed and not the carp.

In lakes of clear, clean water, such as the three Wichita lakes, carp does not have a muddy flavor. He is a firmer fish because of better foods and more exercise and altogether a quite wholesome fish.

Experts Will Help

Mr. John Crawford, deputy commissioner at Lake Kemp, has reported having quite a bit of fun catching the carp at that lake. He is familiar with the habits of the fish, what they will bite and where they are. Mr. Crawford will be glad at any time, to give any help possible to those interested in fishing for carp. If you are not acquainted with John, now is a good time to meet him. You will like him and like his ideas about fishing.

Mr. Joe Dickson is hatchery superintendent at the state hatchery below Diversion lake. Joe has possibly more practical knowledge about catching fish than anyone else in the state and he loves to fish. He will be glad to aid the carp fishermen, both from his experience in fishing and his knowledge of the Diversion lake.

Both these men, expert game fishermen, tell of the fun they have in taking the large carp. While it is different from hooking "a big one" on light tackle, there is still a thrill of "hooking a fish" and getting him in. Get out with these two men and enjoy a new "kick." In case you do not have the time to look these men up, you will find listed below the most successful methods of catching carp:

Izaak Walton's advice that, "if you fish for carp, you must put on a very large measure of patience," still holds good, for it is a very wary fish and, when fishing in clear water, every precaution to avoid casting a shadow or being seen must be observed. It is said to be useless to fish from a boat. Carp bite best in warm or hot weather. Probably no better bait for carp than those prescribed by the "Complete Angler," or some modifications of them, can be employed. "Advance baiting" is also advocated by old anglers. This consists of placing in the water, some 6 or 8 feet from the shore, pieces of boiled potatoes, or other cooked vegetable matter, such as kitchen waste, for several successive days before fishing. Then, if possible, a day or two before fishing deposit a small quantity of the same material that is to be used for bait.

Various baits have been recommended. Toasted marshmallows, worms, grubs, grasshoppers and pieces of fresh meat have been successfully used, but the most highly recommended baits are composite pastes. A tough paste may be made of moistened bean, wheat or other flour, thoroughly mixed with a little sugar, or preferably honey. To give the paste a greater tenacity, cotton batting or wool should be stirred in. Ground or mashed white meat, such as veal or pork, or any bleached meat may be added, but this bait must be fresh and kept untainted. Pellets of partly boiled potatoes are said to be good bait, as well as dough balls or corn kernels wrapped in mosquito bar. Some different methods of preparing carp:

Baked Carp

1. Cut the carp into pieces or halves. Clean well, but leave the scales on. Cover with salt, lemon juice, sliced onions, pepper and parsley. After it has lain thus one hour, dry the carp, roll it in eggs and cracker dust, and bake slowly in butter. Serve with lemon and potatoes boiled or baked.

2. Scale and clean the carp; salt and pepper strongly; wrap in paper thickly buttered on the inside; again wrap in several sheets of paper which have been moistened, so as to prevent the ashes from penetrating, bake half an hour in very hot wood ashes, covering the fish thickly with ashes.

3. Scale and clean the carp; wrap the fish in a linen towel; have a large kettle of boiling water. Coil the fish neatly in the kettle and boil 15 minutes, then pour off the water and remove the fish to a baking pan without marring and put in the oven; bake and then baste with butter gravy.

4. Take carp of 1 to 2 pounds; scale and clean well; rub inside and out with plenty of salt; let stand an hour or two. Wipe dry with a towel, roll in well-beaten eggs and bread crumbs or meal, and bake in plenty of butter till nicely brown.

Reds' 175th Sets Loop Record for Double Plays

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 11 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds today established a new National league record for double plays when they completed their one hundred and seventy-fifth this season in the fifth inning of the game with the St. Louis Cardinals. High lined to Critz who threw to Kelley and doubled Douthit off first.

Baptist Treasurer Is Indicted On Embezzlement

ATLANTA, Sept. 11. (AP)—Clinton S. Carnes, missing treasurer of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury today on a charge of embezzling $69,000 of the mission board funds.

A bench warrant for Carnes' arrest was issued in superior court and bond assessed at $50,000 in the event of his apprehension.

hitter while Powell is the faster outfielder.

Galloway's indecision as to his starting pitcher extends to two other positions. Ross "Brick" Eldred, who has been out of the game a few weeks from an injury, may play right field in place of Lyman Lamb. Ed Roetz or Ed Kallina will work at first base, depending upon the enemy chucker. Roetz bats right handed and Kallina swings from the left side. Kallina is a first basman by trade while Roetz was called upon to occupy that station for the first time in his career when Buck Stanton, the starry young first baseman, was injured.

WHAT THE EXPERTS SAY—

Lloyd Gregory, sports editor, Houston Post-Dispach, in Wichita Falls for playoff: "The series is a toss up. The winner of the game today will probably be victorious."

Ned Record, sports editor, Fort Worth Star Telegram: "If Wichita Falls has plugged the hole at first base, it's anybody's series. If not, Houston won't need Hallahan to win."

Andy Anderson, sports editor, Houston Press: "I've arranged to go on a fishing trip Sunday, after the Buffs win three straight."

Stanton is out of the playoff, as is Doc Smith, a catcher.

Galloway even intimated that there is a possibility he will play first base. Jim was a great first baseman and hard hitter in his active playing days, but has been in the game but little in the past two seasons.

Claude Robertson, Beaumont manager, is available for duty for the Spudders, but he will be permitted to play only in the event of a mishap befalling Pete Lapan, grizzled and efficient maskman and dangerous hitter.

While the Spudders generally rule favorites to win the playoff, it is viewed by veteran baseball men as nothing better than a 50-50 matter. The uncertainty over the first baseman and the admitted prowess of Hallahan serve to prevent the Spudders being better than an even choice.

The Spudder first baseman and Hallahan—there you have the nub of the situation. If Roetz or Kallina or Galloway acceptably play that bag and if the Spudders beat Hallahan in his first or second start, their chances of victory loom as better than that of the Buffaloes.

Outside of Hallahan the Spudders are viewed as stronger in pitching. In addition to Payne, Cvengros and Steengrafe, veterans of known worth, the Spudders have four other hurlers who are capable of chucking winning ball, in Bill Shores and Herb Cobb, brilliant youngsters, and Tom Estell and Joe Kiefer, experienced veterans.

Clubs About Even

Except for first base, which is an unknown element in the strength or weakness of the Spudders, the clubs shape up about as even. Seiph and Turgeon are the class of the league at second base, as are Hock and Swenson at third base. Schuble is a classy shortstop, sold recently to the Detroit Tigers for $50,000. But in Rabbit Benton the Spudders have a shortstop who plays his best baseball at critical occasions, and who is a hard and dangerous hitter.

Tom Jenkins and Howard Fitzgerald, aces of the Spudder outfield, match Red Worthington and George "Watty" Watkins in all-around value. All these four players are leading hitters and fast outfielders. In batting they rate about even, though I believe the Spudder pair have the edge in defensive value.

Powell and Peel rate as of more value than Lamb and Eldred. Still, Lamb is the sort of player who rises to his best baseball in such games as these playoff contests, and Eldred for several years has been a leading hitter in the minor leagues.

Pancho Snyder is easily the outstanding catcher in the Texas league. The leadership, skillful receiving and batting of the Buff boss has been of inestimable value in his club's play. But Lapan is a capable catcher and there is no more dependable man on either club at bat in the pinch than the Spudder maskman.

The figures are there to show that the playoff is a tossup. But they don't play baseball with statistics, but out there on the field. And back of the optimism in which the Spudder enthusiasts view the series, is the fact that the Wichita Falls athletes are money ball players. They showed they meet the occasion when they won four straight from the Buffs here, a series that virtually meant the winning of the second half, a couple of months ago.

It is from the results of that series, in which the Spudders coordinated hard and opportune hitting, excellent pitching and brilliant fielding, against an erratic defense and uncertain attack of the Buffaloes, that lends the belief that Jim Galloway's men will emerge victors in the playoff.

But that, as the crooked turfman said when he painted a white nag black, is a horse of a different color. This isn't THAT series; this is THE playoff. The Buffs have been going at their best recently. They will offer a lineup with every player free from injury, in contrast to a crippled Spudder personnel.

Wichita Falls fandom, however, has implicit confidence in its young first baseman. They have seen Roetz and Kallina hit the ball out of the lot, and they are confident that either will play an acceptable game at first base. Indeed, such are the vagaries of baseball, that it wouldn't be surprising if one or both of those young men are among the stars of the playoff.

Gates at Athletic park will be opened at 12 o'clock. Field boxes have been erected in front of the grandstand, extending from the first base wing to the fence in left field. Temporary bleachers in right field will accomodate a few hundred.

Among the war correspondents who will see the series, who were here yesterday include Andy Anderson, sports editor of the Houston Press; Ned Record, sports editor of the Fort Worth Star Telegram; Lloyd Gregory, sports editor of the Houston Post-Dispatch and Kerns Tips, sports editor of the Houston Chronicle. The Associated Press also will be represented by a bureau man from Dallas.

Buffs "Sell" Jonnard To St. Louis Cardinals

HOUSTON, Sept. 11. (AP)—Clarence Jonnard, catcher, has been sold to the St. Louis Cardinals, president of the Houston, Texas, league club announced today.

The price was not divulged.

Jonnard will not report to the Cardinals this season unless one of the Cardinal receivers should be injured.

CARL WILLIAMS

Former Spudder Leader In Wichita Falls For Playoff

Carl Williams, who led the Spudders to Texas league and Dixie championships last season, is in Wichita Falls to attend the playoff games today and tomorrow.

Williams was forced to relinquish the management of the Spudders in mid-season this year because of illness. He helped assemble the team that enters the playoff today and was given a great reception by the players and many fans who greeted him yesterday.

Carl's health is improved and he says he prefers the quiet life of a country farmer living with his family near Santa Anna, than the excitement and travel of a ball player's existence. Still, next spring, he may hear the call of the game again. They do that.

PARELLI WINS FROM KOPECKY

Country Boy Stops Jernigan In Second Round

Meeting in the fastest and most furious match staged in the local wrestling arena in several weeks, Joe Parelli rendered Joe Kopecky upable to finish the match after the second fall in the main event of Promoter Alec B. Ross' wrestling and boxing card Tuesday night at the ball park.

After Kopecky had won the first fall in 21 minutes with a double Japanese toe hold, Parelli hoisted him over the ropes in 10 minutes of the second fall, injuring Kopecky's left shoulder to such an extent that he could not compete further.

They were up to their old form last night, keeping the crowd in an uproar during the greater part of the mixup.

This week's boxing card was a much better one than the average mills. Country Boy Owens stretched Howard Jernigan on the floor for a knockout early in the second round. They were scheduled in a 6-round bout but the Country Boy unlashed an attack that left Jernigan a trance several minutes after the bout.

Johnny Owens outfought Virgil Oden in a fast four-round bout.

Curly Robertson won a judges decision over Tommy Mounds in a five-round paperweight go.

NINE U. S. STARS SURVIVE TENNIS

Allison One of 5 Eliminated by French

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 11. (AP)—A solid wave of Frenchmen swept through the second round of the United States National Tennis championship today, engulfing some of the leading American defenders.

All five strong French players who remained in the tournament at the start of the day's play won their matches. Nine of the 16 survivors were Americans, one Englishman and one Australian.

Allison Loses in Five Sets

Wilmer Allison, Fort Worth, the dashing young Texan seeded third in the American group and counted upon to help hurl back the French, was the main U. S. casualty of the day. After getting away to a two-set lead, he lost to Rene de Buzelet, the French youngster, whose every move recalls Rene Lacoste, by scores of 2-6, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

Christian Boussus, another promising youth whom the French are grooming to replace the present Davis cup "musketeers" when they begin to fade, won from H. H. Hyde of Hartford, Conn., 7-5, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2. Jacques Brugnon downed Samuel B. Gilpin of Philadelphia, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, while the big guns of the tricolor Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra, flashed in defeating Arnold W. Jones, of Providence, former Yale captain, 7-5, 6-3, and the easy, almost lazy, manner in which Cochet downed Young Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3, intensified the threat of an all-French final.

Defenders of U. S.

The Americans who remained to prevent that from coming to pass included stars as George M. Lott, Jr., Johnny Van Ryn, Johnny Doeg, Frances T. Hunter, Frank Shields, Fritz Mercur, Dr. George King Harrin Coggeshall and Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J.

Henry W. Austin, known to his teammates as "Bunny" was the sole surviving Englishman and Jack Crawford alone remained to uphold the banner of Australia.

Ed Roetz (above) and Ed Kallina carry much of the hopes of the Spudders to win the playoff with the Buffs. One or both of them will play first base (at different times of course) in place of the injured Buck Stanton.

Little Spudders To Play Dallas 9 Here

The Little Spudders, Wichita Falls playground champs, will play the Dallas Knothole nine Saturday afternoon at Spudder park, according to an announcement made here Tuesday at the city park department offices.

A message has been received from R. L. Maurice of the Dallas Y. M. C. A., who will come here with the Dallas boys, accepting the game.

Charlie Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks, is now endeavoring to make arrangements for accomodations here for the boys for Saturday night.

Beaumont Sells Petrie To Tigers for $15,000

RUTH'S 49TH HOMER GIVES YANKS THIRD STRAIGHT OVER A'S

BABE'S CLOUT WINS BY 5-3

Champions Increase Lead To Two and Half Games

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Sept. 11. (AP)—Babe Ruth came to bat at the critical moment today, drove his 49th home run of the season over the right field fence, scoring Lou Gehrig ahead of him, thereby the New York Yankees defeated the Philadelphia Athletics by the score of 5 to 3 in the third game of their series for leadership in the American league.

The Yankees have now defeated the Athletics in all three games of this highly important four-game series and tonight are two and a half games in the lead.

To many followers of the game that home run by Babe Ruth this afternoon was the really decisive factor in the American league race for it probably shattered any hopes the ambitious Athletics may have of finishing the season ahead of the world champion Yankees.

The score was tied when Ruth came to bat at the climax of the Yankees' rally in the eighth inning.

Yanks Tie and Win

The Yankees had scored one run in the seventh on two hits and an infield out but they were still trailing, 3 to 1, when the Yankee half of the eighth came around.

First indication of trouble came when Grove couldn't find the corners and walked Combs. Koenig then beat out an infield hit and Combs went to third when Dykes pegged wild to first base trying to catch Koenig. With a man on third and first and none out, Grove let go with a wild pitch and Combs raced across the plate.

In this crisis, Lou Gehrig dropped a single in left field, scoring Koenig, and the score was tied.

As the tying run came across, the spectators which numbered in excess of 55,000 persons—let their 1928 straw hats fly out over the field. It was as much in welcome to Babe Ruth as it was in celebration of the tied score.

Then Babe Ends It

Grove worked hard on Ruth in this emergency but the great Bambino who has been in more or less of a home run slump for 10 days or so, decided it was time to return to form and drove the ball high and far over the right field fence. Gehrig trotted across the plate ahead of Babe and the baseball game—and perhaps the American league pennant race—was over.

It was a hard game for Lefty Grove to lose. He allowed seven hits and but for the one bad inning, the eighth, was never in serious trouble. Grove shares with Herb Pennock, injured Yankee pitcher, the honor of being the best left hander in the game. He has a record of wins for the season that is unequalled in the American league, winning 14 successive games and a total of 22 for the year. He has now suffered seven defeats, six of which were inflicted by the Yankees.

Henry Johnson took the mound duties for the Yankees and made a good job of it.

He allowed seven hits but was a bit unsteady in the opening inning when the Athletics scored two runs. Haas was hit by a pitched ball with one out and Mickey Cochrane, Athletic catcher, tripled to left, scoring Haas. Al Simmons sent up a long sacrifice fly to Earl Combs in center field to score Cochrane. Following this inning, the Athletics were held well in check with the exception of the fourth when one more run was added.

Cochrane Eats Hard

Manager Miller Huggins again started the injured Tony Lazzeri at second base. His arm looked bad at times in the doubleheader Sunday, but he performed today in a creditable fashion, handling two chances without an error.

Lazzeri is one of the few hitters in the American league that has never had any trouble hitting Lefty Grove. Although the Yankee infielder went hitless in today's game, he scored the first run made by the Yankees.

Mickey Cochrane led the Athletic attack, hitting safely three times in four tries at bat, his trip in the opening inning accounting for one of the Athletics' runs.

It is highly probable that the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a single series, with the exception of world series games, will attend the Yankee-Athletic series. A throng of 55,000 was on hand for the game today, the largest week day crowd in the history of the stadium. More than 85,000 attended the Sunday doubleheader when the Yankees won both games. Score:

CUBS TROUNCE PIRATES

CHICAGO, Sept. 11. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs remained very much in the pennant race when they defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 9 to 3 in the final game of the season between the two clubs.

Manager Donie Bush sent five Pirate pitchers to the mound in an effort to stop the Cubs and was in trouble only twice, the first time being the third inning when the Pirates scored their three runs.

Carmen Hill was credited with the defeat, four runs being scored off of him before he was removed

ROBINS, PHILS SPLIT

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11. (AP)—Del Bissonette's 22nd home run of the season with one on base in the ninth inning failed to save the Robins today and they lost the second game of a double header to the Phillies 4 to 3 after winning the first 7 to 2.

Bissonette's homer put the Robins ahead 3 to 2, but Leach came back in the last of the ninth with a homer after Whitney had doubled and gave the Phils the victory. Scores; first game:

Steers Buy Two San Tone Bears

Flaskamper and Boggess Go To Dallas for Mulvey

DALLAS, Sept. 11. (AP)—Purchase by the Dallas Steers of Ray Flaskamper, shortstop, and Lynn Boggess, utility player from the San Antonio Bears, was announced tonight.

Emmett Mulvey, outfielder, loaned by Dallas to the Bears last season, becomes property of San Antonio, as part of the deal. It is understood the transaction also involved a considerable amount of cash.

Walter Newman, pitcher, obtained from San Antonio last season, at the time Dickie Schuman, pitcher, went to the Bears, will be returned to San Antonio, and Schuman will return to Dallas.

Officials of the Dallas club said these shifts were the first step in rebuilding the Steers for next season.

Boston Red Sox Acquire Shortstop From Mobile

BOSTON, Sept. 11. (UP)—The Boston Red Sox have purchased William E. Harkness, shortstop, from the Mobile club of the Southern association, it was announced tonight. He will report to the Sox in the spring of 1929. He is a right handed hitter and thrower and up to date has batted .300 for Mobile.

3 out of 5 buy "used cars"

STAND for a minute on the busiest street and watch the cars go by.

You cannot tell—nor do you ask yourself—whether the driver of any particular car is its first owner—or its second, or its third.

The automobile is essentially transportation, produced not for one purchaser but for as many as may own the car until its mileage is exhausted.

The public has realized this. More than 10,000,000 families today are driving cars of which they are second or third owners. Three out of five of the cars you see have been purchased as "used cars." And this year, more than ever before, there are great opportunities in unused transportation at low cost.

The cars accepted by General Motors dealers in trade offer a wide selection—and for the purchase of these cars General Motors extends the convenient GMAC Plan of credit purchase.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. (AP)—Selling continued in the cotton market today, promoted by relatively easy cables and favorable weather reports. Prices made new low ground for the movement. December selling off to 17.71, or 31 points net lower and 144 points below the high level last Saturday, closing at 17.84. The general market closed steady, at net declines of 7 to 12 points, and soon showed net losses of about 20 to 27 points under southern selling, further liquidation and local selling. Extensive trade buying was reported on the decline, while there was also covering, but demand was supplied on rallies of a few points and the market eased again in the forenoon. October selling off to 17.92 and March 17.73, or 25 to 30 points below yesterday's closing quotations.

Offerings then subsided and a flurry of covering caused rallies of several points from the lowest. Demand failed to broaden on the upturn and the market weakened again the later trading.

The favorable vote of weather conditions seemed to stimulate the selling, while some of the earlier buyers for a rally were reported to be liquidating their cotton on the decline. October sold off from 18.04, the best price touched on the mid-day bulge to 17.83, while March declined to 17.67, net losses of 30 to 37 points. Last prices showed rallies of 8 to 13 points from the lowest on covering.

Private cables reported increased hedging and general liquidation in Liverpool. Exports today 27,033 making 496,263 so far this season. Port receipts 54,166. U. S. port stocks, 584,154.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11. (AP)—Cotton prices made new lows for the present movement today under a continuance of selling on the recent bearish crop estimate and increased hedge selling and liquidation by tired longs. December contracts traded off to 17.18 or 22 points net down, about $1 a bale above the low and the delivery closed at 17.31. The general market closed steady 14 to 17 points net down.

Liverpool also continued to feel the effects of the government estimate and came in 11 points lower than due at the opening here. First trades showed losses of 14 to 15 points on selling in sympathy with the drop in the English market. Local prices continued downward after the start under the impetus of hedging and general liquidation until October traded to 17.17, and December and January to 17.22, or 22 to 23 points below the previous close.

Fair trade buying developed on the scale down and the price rallied 7 points, but a renewal of liquidation by longs and continued hedging supplied the demand and carried prices off 26 to 28 points below yesterday's close. October traded to 17.13, December 17.17 and January 17.21.

After mid-session the decline extended to levels 32 to 33 points under the previous close but it was checked by covering probably induced by uncertainty over what the weekly weather and crop summary due tomorrow will show. October rallied from 17.06 to 17.24 and December from 17.13 to 17.31 and closed at or near the highs.

Stock Market Resumes Advance In Face of Call Rate of 71-2 Per Cent

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Expectation of gold imports caused resumption of the advance in the stock market today. After a weak opening buying came into the favored industrials in a steadily increasing amount until in the final hours the entire list was soaring ahead into new high ground.

The official rate for money was held at 7½ per cent but was entirely ignored as Briggs jumped over 4 points, Union Carbide 11, Loose Wiles 7, Cerro De Pasco more than 4, Steel over 2, and other active industrials gained to a lesser extent. Radio had advanced 7 points when the unfavorable patent decision was announced, and it lost all its gain. Erie common was in good demand but other rails remained rather quiet but firm as did the oil group. Volume again jumped over the 4,000,000 share level.

Outside Money

There was call money available outside of regular channels during the afternoon at as low as 7 per cent. It represented temporary easing which, while belated, enhanced the influence of the expectation that gold would be imported from England soon. Banking opinion is that sterling will slip lower so that a flow of the metal back here is likely. Whether or not the reserve bank will permit such development to affect its control of the money market right away is another matter but just the likelihood of gold imports was sufficient to strengthen the opinion that "nothing serious will be permitted to disturb the market until election." From the amount of funds available toward the close it appeared that a comparatively easy money market would be enjoyed until Friday at least and possibly over the week-end.

Loose Wiles started again with the most activity for the account of the mid-west group that started after control more than 20 points lower as told of here exclusively at that time. Wrigley was under quiet absorption also as the same interests have taken on a block of that stock. Their purchases were influenced by belief that Wrigley will show record earnings this year. Republic Iron and Steel was the outstanding stock in the steel group with operations credited to the Cleveland interests who have obtained control of the company. With its special process for rolling steel tubes Republic's position is compared to that of cast iron pipe in its field some years ago.

Talking Movie Perfected

Radio's early advance was helped by knowledge that its talking movie has been perfected and that private showing thereof was to be given during the week. Warner was in steady demand again coincident with rumor that a deal with Stanley had been closed as the first step in formation of organization to operate in all fields of the theatrical industry. Briggs Body jumped to new high territory following outline of the reasons for group activity therein puolished here yesterday. Nickel also recorded a new top with the group interested continuing to stress the improving earnings. American Can and Continental both broke out of the lethargy of recent sessions as the Continental directors are expected to recommend split up of the shares today. Butterick scored one of the best advances of the day as divided at the rate of $3 a share is talked of.

Cerro de Pasco registered a new high peak while American smelting and Anaconda were both in steady demand. There is reason to expect good news for stockholders of all three companies. Cerro earnings, it is maintained, warrant extra dividend later in the year. American Smelting is expected to split its share in the very near future while a $5 annual dividend rate of Anaconda is confidently forecast. The oils and the rails have been the honest disappointment to the bulls however. Erie's outstanding strength was influenced by report that a new group was being formed to work in the stock in anticipation of announcement of plan for dividend payments on the preferred shares within the next few weeks.

Although there was great interest in sterling it was not active and firmed up somewhat in a generally dull foreign exchange market.

CHICAGO REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Sept. 11. (US)—Nearly all the grain futures closed higher today, with the biggest advance in corn as a result of the government crop reports out in the estimate of that crop. But tomorrow things may have a different aspect. Short covering in corn was heavy and the market looked at the close as if it had been greatly weakened technically.

At the end wheat was ⅛ to ⅝ higher; corn was up 1⅜ to 2⅝; oats were ¼ to ½ higher; rye was ⅛ higher to ⅝ lower.

It was notable that the advance in September corn was the least of any of the corn futures. One might have supposed that if conditions really were bullish the advance in the September would have been the largest.

The action of the corn market during most of the session after the advance through the offers at the start, seemed to indicate that the trade does not believe the government figures represent the true possibilities of the new crop.

Those figures seemed to be accounted for by the possibility that Nebraska has lost practically one-third of its crop prospects within 30 days. Under the conditions that have prevailed this is impossible.

It should be remembered that crop predictions are merely statistics attained by the science of mathematics without the slightest heed to the science of botany or the provisions of nature which are beyond human computation.

Corn appeared to lose its "pep" after heavy covering during the first hour of trading. From then on it looked as if shorts who wanted to cover were in. The fact that after the close offers for today were only ⅝ to ¾ above the market did not give a bullish aspect to the situation.

It is my own opinion that the government figures on corn are likely to be utterly discredited by the trade before tomorrow's session is over and that the market will take the down trend again.

Wheat never showed much strength today that was anything but spasmodic. It got up a cent or so from bottom under the previous close and churned slowly in this narrow range of a weak-looking finish showed only small advances.

With the big movement of our crop and the Canadian crop that lies ahead it is difficult to see how prices can maintain advances for some time yet. Any strength at the start is likely to meet with selling tomorrow, and this may be followed by pressure on any pronounced symptoms of weakness. The Liverpool market may be the indicator.

In the cash market wheat was unchanged; corn was 2 to 2½c higher; oats were steady to ½c higher; rye was ¼ to ½ higher, barley was unchanged.

Cotton Prices Slump Bananas Up; Yams Drop

Cotton continued its slump following the government report issued by the department of agriculture toward the end of last week which predicted a yield of 14,400,000 bales of cotton for 1928. Local market declined 25 points on Tuesday's close.

Bananas, eggplant and cabbage climbed on produce markets, while Texas yams registered a slight decrease.

Women of Wichita County Hear Republican Plea for Hoover

women will talk about," Mrs. Griswold said.

"We had many things in common, including our grandchildren and our farms.

"Mrs. Hoover is a woman admirably fitted to grace the White House with a wholesomeness and loveliness as well as dignity, which America certainly should consider in a presidential election.

"I was so much taken with her marvelous personality that I forgot about politics.

"Mr. Hoover, with his genial smile, expressed a world of thanks to the women of Texas for the splendid work they are doing for the cause. He said that when the women come forward to guard the constitution, the United States is in no danger. He urged them to become more active in politics and to take a stand for the right in this or any other political election.

Hoover and Washington

"Herbert Hoover is the second great engineer who has come to the front in American life, and he is the second who will be president. The first great engineer who became president was George Washington.

"Hubert Work, who has occupied a number of cabinet positions under several presidents, talked with me about Hoover while I was in Washington. Mr. Work said that the women of America will elect Herbert Hoover.

"In closing, I want to say that the way to win this election is by organizing and by getting out the vote. You can pray until you are black in the face, but the way to obtain victory is to work for it."

Mrs. P. Williams of Burkburnett spoke briefly on behalf of the women of that city.

"I have been a Democrat for many years," she said, but as I believed Hoover to be the outstanding American today, I gladly pioneered in the organization of Hoover clubs in this district."

One woman speaker said that any woman in America who had known the curse of drink in the home as she had known it in hers would work and vote only for Herbert Hoover in this election.

Orville Bullington in his introduction of Mrs. Griswold said that prohibition was one of the main reasons for prosperity in the nation for the past eight years during which time savings and building and loan deposits had doubled both in number and amount, and life insurance policies had gained two and a half times.

Mrs. Silk Speaks

Mrs. W. W. Silk of Wichita Falls said she had been a lifelong Democrat, but that she was only too glad to bolt the party to support Hoover as he "is especially qualified by training, mind, heart and record to fulfill well and brilliantly the post of president."

"I think that if the politicians of the Democratic party do not put up a man who is suitable for the presidency, it is the solemn duty of the Democrats to reject him," she declared.

Mrs. Nellie H. Bates of Henrietta told of the organization of the women's Republican Hoover club of Henrietta with 100 members.

Mrs. Mamie Dale of Iowa Park said that the liquor question is the outstanding question the women have to fight, and that as Smith has come out in favor of liquor, there is "only one path for the women of America and that is for Hoover."

Steel Pipe Insurance Penalty Hearing Set

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 11 (INS)—Petition of the city of Dallas for the removal of the 5-cent penalty for the use of steel pipes in the construction of its water project was set for hearing by the insurance commission for Wednesday, Oct. 3, it was learned today. It will be an open hearing.

Dallas city authorities claim that by the use of steel pipe they will save $88,000 in the contract.

BLOWS STRUCK BY DEMOCRATS

Hot Clash Marks Meet of Committee

action of the state executive committee yesterday, when anti-Smith delegations from five counties were notified that they would not be seated in the convention. It has been "open season" on insurgents for two days.

Meeting apart from the regular Democratic group, the Hooverites elected former state senator Thomas B. Love temporary chairman, named committees and listened to several addresses before adjourning the rump convention and leaving their future activities in the hands of an executive committee, headed by Alvin S. Moody of Houston.

Fight Is Urged

Both Love and Colquitt addressed the bolters, telling them to go to their homes and "prepare for the fight." A set of resolutions adopted by the Hooverites branded the nomination of Governor Smith as an "unfortunate error" and condemned the "highhanded and lawless methods of the regular convention."

MOODY'S STAND

DALLAS, Sept. 11. (AP)—Governor Moody placed himself on record tonight as unequivocally in favor of the presidential candidacy of Governor Smith and the Democratic party's national and state tickets.

"I never intend to backstep on prohibition," Moody said. "I opposed the nomination of Smith before the national convention, but I accept the decision of the majority and feel it my duty to vote for Smith."

Voluntary retirement of the delegates opposed to the Democratic nominee left loyal forces free to elect officers, frame their platform and attend to routine business without prospect of further interruptions. Before adjourning for noon recess the regulars heard an address by Myron Blalock, temporary chairman, and appointed committees on resolutions and platform.

Barring a possible conflict between Governor Dan Moody and certain members of the platform committee over the inclusion of a prohibition plank in the platform, the wind-up of the regular convention promised to be tranquil.

Dan Wants Plank

Governor Moody announced that he would seek to incorporate a plank endorsing the principles of prohibition, and it was known that several members of the committee who believe that any indorsement of prohibition by the convention would be looked upon as a reflection upon the candidacy of Governor Smith planned to fight such a plank.

Acting on recommendations of the permanent organization committee, the convention unanimously sanctioned appointment of W. A. Tarver of Corsicana as permanent chairman and approved also the following officers: Mrs. Lee J. Rountree, Bryan, vice chairman; Margie Neal, Carthage, secretary; C. C. Renfro, Dallas, and Ernest May, assistant secretaries, and Ranger Captain Tom Hickman, Fort Worth, and John Davis and Pat O'Keefe, Dallas, sergeants-at-arms.

Escorted to the speakers' platform while a band in the convention hall struck up "The Sidewalks of New York," Tarver stepped before the loud speaker and launched into tribute to "two of the outstanding personalities in the Democratic party." Governor Dan Moody of Texas and the party's standard bearer, Smith.

Speech Cheered

A burst of cheering punctuated his speech as the giant Texas lauded the New York executive for his rise in life from a newsboy on New York's east side to the leadership of the Democratic party.

"Governor Smith has taken a place beside Bryan and Wilson as champions of the American people," Tarver's deep-toned voice boomed through the auditorium. "With this sterling Democrat as our candidate, and following the leadership of Senator Morris Sheppard and Governor Moody, let us roll up a tremendous majority in Texas this year in order that victory may again perch on the banners of the Democracy."

While a platform committee was engaged in drafting the planks on which the convention was to take action in a session tonight, another group canvassed the returns of the primary election and announced nominations for United States senator and principal state officers.

Nominees Told

Congressman Tom Connally, nominated United States senator, and Governor Moody, Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller and Attorney General Claude Pollard, who were named to succeed themselves at the primary, were notified of the results of the canvass by committees.

With the exception of Governor Moody, who was to acknowledge his nomination at the night session, all of the candidates were escorted to the stage, where they spoke.

All flayed the Republican party for its purported corruption and failure to aid farmers of the country, and pleaded that Texas Democrats marshal their forces for a clear-cut victory in November.

Former Congressman R. L. Henry of Houston and Helen B. Moore, flotorial representative, also spoke.

Small Meetings

Late in the afternoon many of the 500 delegates remaining in the building when bolters retired shortly after the convention opened and held a rump session on the steps of the convention hall left their seats weary of the day's ordeal. Still others gathered in small knots in the corridors to discuss the day's events, a precedent in Texas Democratic political gatherings.

New Telephone Directories Due

Fall Books Have Numbers In Four Cities

The new telephone directory is now due in the city, it was learned from C. C. Kirby, manager of the telephone company, Tuesday night.

The new directory will show an increase of 310 listings for Wichita Falls over the last directory, Mr. Kirby said. The total for Wichita Falls will be about 11,000.

Henrietta's telephone directory will be consolidated with that of Wichita Falls' book in this issue. The last directory saw Iowa Park and Burkburnett listings for the first time placed between the same covers as Wichita Falls, and both of these cities are retained in the new book which will be by far the largest ever issued to Wichita Falls.

Police Arrest Negro After Street Chase

Edgar Menefee, negro, arrested Monday night after a four-block chase, by Jim Glenn, night chief of police, and L. N. McKelvey, city detective, was charged with burglary Tuesday morning in connection with theft of pistols, a camera and a fountain pen from a residence on Van Buren last Friday night. Charges were filed before O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, following an investigation by Dick Kenley, district attorney.

Chief Glenn sighted the negro on Bonner street Monday night and immediately gave chase. McKelvey saw the racers speeding down the street and fell in behind Chief Glenn. The race ended with the officers victors. All of the stolen property was recovered.

Wichita Falls Boasts Five Mayors Of City in Single Year

Wichita Falls has had five mayors this year, it was revealed Tuesday at the city auditorium.

R. E. Shepherd, the singing mayor of Wichita Falls, started out the year. Then J. W. Akin was elected. Then he went away, and by the unwritten rule of the city council, Oral Jones, senior member of the city council, served as commander-in-chief.

Mayor Akin resumed his office and then went away on another trip. This time Alderman A. W. King served as mayor. And Mayor Akin came back again.

Monday night John Hunt, another alderman, served as mayor when Mayor Akin left the council in his charge to make an address over radio station KGKO at the station's formal opening.

City officials say this is a record of mayors which they doubt is equaled in any city in Texas this year.

Services for Dr. Richardson Tentatively Set for Saturday

Funeral services for Dr. J. R. E. Richardson, 48, who died at a local hospital Tuesday morning, probably will be held Saturday. Arrangements will be completed upon arrival of relatives from Alabama, who are driving through in an automobile.

Dr. Richardson, owner of the Small Animal hospital and clinic at 106 Galveston street, had lived in Wichita Falls for the past 10 years. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias and was a Spanish war veteran.

The body was taken in charge by the Hines mortuary.

Survivors are his widow, one daughter, Mrs. W. H. Curtin of 800 Grace street; three sons, Lee Roy, Robert and Thelbert Richardson, all of whom live in Wichita Falls; his mother, Mrs. M. C. Hughes of Valley Head, Ala.; six brothers, C. A. Richardson of Chattanooga, Tenn., J. O. Richardson of Albany, Ala., Dr. W. A. Richardson of Fort Payne, Ala., and J. E. Richardson, J. O. Richardson and B. F. Richardson of Birmingham; and four sisters, Mrs. E. W. Irvine of Wichita Falls, Mrs. J. E. Vestrow of Birmingham, and Mrs. R. E. Cash and Mrs. M. B. Ott of Valley Head.

Burns Urges Wichitans to Leave Space at Ball Park

Wichita Falls citizens going to the baseball games at Athletic park Wednesday and Thursday are requested by Chief of Police Frank Burns to leave their cars downtown, in order to assist the traffic department in caring for the out-of-town motorists who will attend the game.

"An unusual number of visitors will come to Wichita Falls for the game Wednesday," Chief Burns pointed out, "and if local people insist upon driving their cars to the ground and parking them, visitors will be crowded out and the highways will be congested.

"The police department will appreciate the cooperation of Wichita Falls people in caring for our visitors on these two days."

G. O. P. Joyful On Maine Vote

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 11 (US)—"Hold on to Hoover."

It was regarded as a fitting national slogan today as the Republican chieftains contemplated the tremendous, record-breaking majority of 80,000 by which they won Maine's famous barometer election.

Maine is well satisfied with the national Republican regime, captained by Coolidge and represented in the presidential contest by Hoover. Her people found no need to rebuke or reprove it, but rather were determined to approve it.

Such was the interpretation placed upon the astounding outcome, even by the Democrats, as they surveyed the wreckage of their astonishing defeat.

Joseph W. Simpson, the Republican national committeeman, epitomized the belief in the minds of Maine's politicians when he said to universal service:
