FDIC closes Permian Bank of Odessa

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

For the first time in the Permian Basin, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has been unable to find a buyer for a failed local bank.

The FDIC — appointed receiver by Texas Banking Commissioner James Sexton — locked the doors and took control of the Permian Bank in Odessa about 3 p.m. Friday.

The move came after the bank's board of directors declared it insolvent.

Three other banks have failed in the Midland-Odessa area since October 1983 — First National Bank of Midland, Metro Bank of Midland and National Bank of Odessa.

All three were purchased by new investors.

FDIC personnel will begin paying off about 7,000 former depositors Tuesday morning from the bank's $34 million in deposits.

The payments will be made with government checks to account holders up to the $100,000 guaranteed level.

Merchants and others holding Permian Bank checks are urged to be patient until the depositors can receive money next week and make good on checks, said Ken Gorham, FDIC closings supervisor.

Insured depositors — those with deposits $100,000 or less — will receive the full balance of their account.

Uninsured depositors — those with holdings in excess of $100,000 — will get receivership certificates for the uninsured amount.

"Once the liquidation of the bank's assets has been completed, excess proceeds will be distributed to certificate holders on a pro rata basis," Gorham said.

It is likely that those with more than $100,000 in the bank will not receive their full balance, Gorham said.

FDIC auditors Friday began work balancing the books behind locked doors as a steady stream of disgruntled customers poured through the parking lot.

A few ventured to the locked double front doors to read the directors' failure statement placing the bank in the hands of the state commissioner.

In a prepared statement, Sexton wrote:

"Permian Bank has struggled for the last four years with the consequences of liberal lending to energy sector entities during the early 1980s.

"Despite repeated capital injections and managerial and regulatory efforts since that time, the bank could not be rehabilitated."

Sexton also said the recent decline in oil prices contributed further to the bank's problems, adding he was unsure if the legal problems of its former president played a role in the failure.

Rodolphe Vanderstraten-Ponthoze of Midland checks the damage to his 1985 Nissan 300 ZX after he drove it through a window at Bill Wood Pharmacy, 402 W. Andrews Highway, about 11:20 a.m. Friday. There were no injuries in the incident. Midland police officer Richard Candelaria said Vanderstraten-Ponthoze was in the pharmacy parking lot when he backed the car into a light pole and then accelerated through the window.

Painter says terrorist camps operate in Mexico

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

A four-month investigation has revealed "hard" evidence that at least five terrorist training camps are operating in Mexico, Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said Friday night.

But Painter, who traveled to Washington D.C. last month to give the information to federal agencies, said he has received little cooperation from federal authorities.

"It's just very mind-boggling that this credible information is being ignored," Painter said. "No one has contacted us at all to try and reach our sources."

Efforts to contact federal officials Friday night in Washington, El Paso and Midland were unsuccessful.

Painter's comments came Friday night in an interview with reporters.

The investigation revealed Libyans, Columbians and Cubans were being trained for possible future terrorist activities in designated spots in Mexico, including the state of Chihuahua, Painter said.

He said the operations are funded by Colombian drug money.

The sheriff also said information indicated the Midland-Odessa area — because of the oil industry — has been designated as a possible target by terrorists.

Painter said he traveled to the nation's capital June 10 and met with Boyden Gray, chief counsel to Vice President George Bush; John Savercool, legislative aide to Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, and officials with the Central Intelligence Agency, the State Department, and U.S. Customs.

Chamber's new executive vice president resigns

Henry P. Jones III

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Henry P. Jones III has resigned as executive vice president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce only 10 days after being named to the post, president Joan Baskin said Friday.

Jones cited personal reasons for his resignation.

"It is with great regret that he (Jones) will be unable to come to Midland," Mrs. Baskin said. "We thought he was a super guy and he thought Midland was a super place and we're just so sorry that circumstances at home necessitate his remaining there."

Jones, who headed the Greater Jonesboro, Ark., Chamber of Commerce the past six years, was to fill the vacancy left by Grant A. Billingsley.

Jones was named to the post July 9. He was selected from a pool of more than 100 applicants, Mrs. Baskin said.

In a telephone interview from his Jonesboro residence, Jones said "For personal and professional reasons, I have decided to remain here with the Greater Jonesboro Chamber of Commerce.

"I hope I haven't caused any problems or embarrassment to the Midland Chamber of Commerce by resigning after I was appointed last week," he said.

"I found the Midland business community to be unique and an excellent career opportunity, but for those personal and professional reasons I have chosen to remain here."

Jones was graduated in 1960 from Arkansas State University. He began his career as a staff assistant at the Pine Bluff, Ark., Chamber of Commerce later that year and then served as executive officer of chambers in Stuttgart and El Dorado.

He then became the executive director of the East Arkansas Planning and Development District.

Jones has experience in industrial development, governmental affairs and community development.

He also was executive director of the North Little Rock Chamber of Commerce and was instrumental in its merger with the Greater Little Rock Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Baskin said the chamber's search committee will review the remaining applications and will make a recommendation to the board as soon as possible.

She did not know when a replacement would be named.

State senator wants special session to consider tort reform

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — An influential senator has asked Gov. Mark White for permission to open the upcoming special session for a resolution calling for an amendment of the state's Bill of Rights.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, wrote a letter to the governor July 11, saying the Texas Constitution must be amended if the Legislature hopes to pass any meaningful reform in the state's wrongful-act laws, called torts.

Many groups — businesses, cities, doctors and other professionals — want to change tort law, arguing that an explosion of lawsuits and huge jury awards have skyrocketed the cost of liability insurance.

Jones, co-chairman of a special legislative committee studying tort law and liability insurance, said the Texas Supreme Court would void some tort reform efforts because of the Texas Bill of Right's "open courts" provision.

The Supreme Court has misapplied the open-courts provision, Jones said, and has expanded the scope of lawsuits despite objections from lawmakers.

Jones predicted the Supreme Court would strike down or ignore some of the current tort reform proposals — for instance limits on non-economic awards like pain and suffering, mental anguish and punitive damages — under the open courts rule.

"Over the years, the Legislature has made many changes in the tort law," Jones said Friday. "Under the provision in the Constitution we're talking about, they (Supreme Court) have the option of simply ignoring it."

Jones wants the resolution voted on during the special session, scheduled to start August 6, so it can be placed on the ballot for the Nov. 4 election. To have the amendment on the ballot then, two-thirds of the members in the House and Senate must approve.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, said tort and constitutional reforms are too important to decide in a special session, especially one in which a massive budget shortfall is the primary focus.

"I'd be disappointed in Grant if he introduced it," Parker said.

So far, White has not opened the session to anything other than dealing with the state's budget crisis, although many lawmakers want the session expanded to cover other areas, such as a Southern Regional Primary for presidential elections.

White's spokesperson, Ann Arnold, said she did not think the governor had seen Jones' proposal yet.

Rep. Mike Toomey, who along with Jones co-chairs the Special Committee on Tort Reform and Liabilty Insurance and Procedure, supports Jones proposed constitutional amendment.

Conference explains cogeneration advantages

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — About 150 people attended the day-long regional conference on electric power cogeneration here Friday to learn about the industry expected to provide 16 percent of the nation's electric power by the mid-1990s.

David Holland, OIME president, described the Midland County-based company as a diversified manufacturing facility that has positioned itself to enter the cogeneration industry.

OIME, he said, is very well adapted to wholly-integrated manufacturing processes and the homopolar generator project being completed for the University of Texas Research Center in Austin.

Holland said several Permian Basin manufacturing facilities are capable of producing cogeneration equipment.

The production of such equipment would be simply an extension of what the plants have been doing and learning new processes, he said.

But Texas Commerce Bank President Ron Fancher advised that cogeneration may not be for everyone.

Francher said anyone considering utilization of cogeneration technology should explore all aspects of a proposed project to determine if it will be an economic benefit or detriment.

When financing is sought for cogeneration projects, Fancher said bankers will be asking tough questions relating to the efficiency of such projects.

University of Texas of the Permian Basin President Duane Leach described cogeneration as "ideally suited to industry" and said it "can often raise the total efficiency of a plant to between 80 and 90 percent, reducing energy costs substantially."

Leach said "The cogeneration industry in West Texas represents between $85-to-$100 million in estimated revenue per year" and would generate some 1,500 to 2,000 jobs in manufacturing, engineering and services.

BANK

Former president Melvin Max Malone was convicted May 8 of embezzlement, misapplication of funds and three other charges. He was accused of embezzling or misapplying $451,000 through insider loan practices.

Malone was sentenced last month to 24 years in prison and ordered to pay restitution of $317,410. His case is under appeal.

Some Permian depositors said that bank officials' reassurances in recent weeks about the soundness of the bank were enough to convince them to leave their money on deposit.

"I was in this morning and made a small withdrawal and it was an ordinary banking morning," says 15-year Permian Bank customer Laura M. Reed.

"Then, this afternoon — this," she said, pointing to the Odessa police guarding the front entrance. "My life savings are locked up in there."

"This happens to other people, at other banks. You never think it could happen to you," added Maureen Curtis.

FDIC officials admit there is an inconvenience factor, but reassure depositors that all insured deposits will be covered.

Gorham said "there is no need to stand in line Tuesday morning to receive checks" for depositors who can afford to wait.

Former Permian Bank employees, now working for the FDIC, will man the Odessa office for about a month, Gorham said.

Not all customers were caught unprepared.

"I had suspected for some time that the bank may have been less than completely solid, but I maintained one account because of its convenience," said Odessa businessman Griff Griffin.

"I always thought supporting a locally owned bank was better. I'm not so sure any more," Odessan Rex Richardson said.

"Maybe it's time to go back to a coffee can in the back yard," proposed Weldon Brumbellow.

"That way you always know where your money is," said Brumbellow, who is retired and a long-time Permian depositor.

Liquidation of the bank's assets will be administered through the FDIC's Midland office.

Because no bidders for the bank came forward, Gorham expects a sizeable percentage of the bank's better performing loans to be resold into the secondary market in bulk loan sales.

The Permian failure is the 12th this year in Texas — the same as for all of 1985.

FDIC projects that 160 banks will fail nationwide in 1986, compared to 120 last year.

PAINTER

Painter said the State Department checked his information and identified a former Midland resident as a known terrorist traveling with a Lebanese passport and identification papers.

He said at least eight other suspected terrorists, including some Midland College students, visited the man during the two years he lived here.

Painter said the information was received from several Mexican citizens who were friendly with and cooperated with the sheriff's office.

The sheriff said his department has developed informants in Mexico.

Painter said while he was in Washington a State Department official assigned to the agency's anti-terrorist squad told him it was "in the vital interest of our national security" to locate the camps, and he said that agency called his information "most accurate and up-to-date."

But he said that is the extent of the interest federal agencies have shown.

Painter also displayed a map which he said shows the location of the camps and said the map is reliable because it is almost identical to at least two other maps he knows of that were produced independently.

But he said none of the officials he spoke with including the State Department expressed an interest in seeing the map.

"When I left Washington all activity about the information we had provided just stopped," he said. "It seemed that nobody there knew how to handle it. It is a very frustrating thing — to go up there with the information we had, and the assistance we've received is nil."

Painter said FBI officials in Washington referred him to Ron Butler, the agent in charge of the Midland office.

Efforts to reach Butler late Friday were also unsuccessful.

He said he and members of his department, along with three terrorist experts working with the sheriff's office, were interviewed by the FBI here.

He said his office has heard nothing from the FBI except results of their investigation was forwarded to Washington two weeks ago.

POWER

The U.S. Department of Energy predicts that by the year 2000 the country will need an additional 438,000 megawatts of generating capacity, about two-thirds of current capacity, Leach said.

Cogeneration is expected to be a significant power source in meeting that demand, he added.

Leach said the cogeneration afforded participants "an opportunity to acquire information about this growing industry, including the supply of energy resources, the regional market, alternative sources of financing, service companies and the capabilities of expediting projects."

Darrell Bevelhymer, manager of the Cogeneration Division of Texas Utilities Generating Company (parent company of Texas Electric Service Co.), said TUGCO is interested in encouraging companies in cogeneration projects, especially companies that can be consistently counted on as a reliable source of electric power.

Bevelhymer explained that a sufficient supply of cogenerated power to consistently meet increasing demands would, or could, spare TUGCO the capital expense of having to build new generating plants.

Kent Saathoff, an engineer with the Texas Public Utility Commission, said about 3,000 megawatts of cogeneration and small power production currently are in operation in Texas. Another 6,000 may be added in the next four years.

Saathoff said almost all of the existing and half of the possible future cogeneration and small power production capacity is located in the Houston Lighting and Power service area and that it is fueled predominantly by natural gas.

Under current PUC rules, a utility company must interconnect with and purchase energy and capacity from a qualifying facility; however, Saathoff said a utility is not required to purchase capacity if the utility has no capacity needs.

The conference was sponsored by the University of Texas of the Permian Basin Center for Energy and Economic Diversification and cosponsored by the Midland-Odessa chambers of commerce, Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission and the West Texas International Trade Forum.

Father of twins juggles family, gemstone photography, films

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gem photographer Mike Havstad is easy to spot as he walks the halls of the Gemological Institute of America (GIA). He's the one carrying the camera bag on his shoulder and wheeling a stroller containing his twin sons.

In fact, since becoming a father nearly a year ago, Havstad has assumed the role of "Mr. Mom," caring for his sons while balancing a career in gemstone photography for GIA and the American Gem Trade Association (AGTA). Some of his most accomplished works are photographs of the winning pieces of the Spectrum Awards given by the AGTA.

"When our boys were 4 months old, my wife and I decided she should return to work as a dental hygienist and I should care for the children because I can tolerate them for longer periods of time," explains Havstad.

Since then, he has scheduled his shoots and appointments around feeding and nap times, purchased a double stroller and dressed the boys in their finest to meet his clients.

"At the GIA, I take class photos for the graduate gemology program," he says. "Because I visit them three or four times, the students really get to know the boys."

A graduate in Earth Science at the University of California, Santa Cruz, Havstad began his career in photography while working in a tourmaline mine in California.

"During my fourth week at the mine, we hit tourmalines. It was so incredibly exciting that I realized I better buy a camera to document the experience," he recalls.

Thrilled with the shots he was taking, Havstad set out to produce a 16 mm film on mining, from drilling to excavation.

"I shot everything at random, and documented the finest discovery of well-crystallized tourmaline specimens," says Havstad, who studied books on film editing and production methods at night to produce the best film he could.

"Later, I staged sequences of drilling, 'mucking' and general footage," he adds.

When he was finished, Havstad had 60 running minutes of footage which he edited down to a 20-minute documentary. He uses the film and about 80 slides in tourmaline presentations to gem and mineral clubs.

Havstad left the mine and began teaching science at an exclusive high school in Encino, Calif. At night, he attended UCLA. One of his asignments was to interview a person in an adult education program.

"I had heard about the GIA and thought I'd check it out for this assignment," Havstad said.

While wandering the halls of GIA, Havstad came upon Pete Dunn of the Smithsonian Institution. Dunn was lecturing on gems. Havstad thought perhaps he could give his tourmaline presentation at the GIA.

After Richard T. Liddicoat Jr., president of the GIA, saw Havstad's presentation, Havstad not only received an offer to speak, but he had a job.

Anti-communist group to patrol Texas border

DALLAS (AP) — An anti-communist paramilitary group that has patrolled Arizona's border with Mexico for illegal aliens and drug smugglers says it will soon start patrolling in Texas.

Jim Kent, director of public relations for Civilian Material Assistance, said he could not disclose where along the border or when group members would be positioned.

But he said, "We will be there."

"There's a lot of crime coming in by illegal aliens, and it's a big problem in Texas," Kent said in a telephone interview this week with the Dallas Morning News from his office in Memphis, Tenn.

"We understand that the Border Patrol hasn't been authorized the number of people necessary to adequately patrol the border with Mexico."

He said group members will plan the logistics of the Texas operation at a convention next weekend in Memphis.

Kent said the group does not plan to notify authorities when it begins patrolling Texas borders, because "that would only endanger our operation."

Arizona law enforcement officials said Hispanic leaders have strongly criticized the group's presence along that state's border with Mexico. Their criticism intensified after reports July 5 that group members had held about 15 illegal aliens at gunpoint — an action the group denies.

Texas Border Patrol officers and civil rights leaders, fearing the group's presence will lead to violence and inflame members of the Hispanic community, said the group neither is wanted nor needed in the state.

Border Patrol officials say they fear the group's members and border patrol officers could stumble upon each other in the dark.

"In the darkness of night, if we encounter a group of armed men, I would hope for some I.D. on both parties real fast," said James Selbe, El Paso Border Patrol deputy chief.

"If they do come down here and exercise their methods of enforcement, there will be confrontation," said Abdon Ibarra, Texas general counsel of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

"There's no place for them," said Gara LaMarche, executive director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union. "History has shown from the Ku Klux Klan that people's rights are eventually violated when citizens take the law into their own hands."

TV stations say they feel like they were used by White

AUSTIN (AP) — Few things raise more questions for television news producers more than turning over a live microphone to a politician. But many Texas stations did when Gov. Mark White used live television time to call a special legislative session for Aug. 6.

When White's broadcast — and another by his election opponent — ended, several news executives voiced concern over what had happened.

"We feel like our newscast was hijacked," said Mark Antonitis, a producer for KTVV-TV in Austin. The station carried White's speech and the response of former Gov. Bill Clements live and in their entirety.

"It's just a terrible thing to give a politician a live mike and say, 'Go ahead,' " Antonitis said.

White took to the air at 6:01 p.m. Thursday, a minute into the evening newscasts.

In his speech, he gave his view of the state's economic problems and the impact on the government budget. The one really new item — the date for the special session — came near the end.

The speech was offered to TV stations statewide via a live satellite link paid for by White's re-election campaign. The governor's press secretary, Ann Arnold, said 44 stations took it live and six taped it. She said the cost was between $1,500 and $1,600.

Clements put together a similar satellite hookup to offer stations his rebuttal.

STATE

Many Texas broadcasters said Thursday night was the first time they know of when Texas politicians staged such a video event.

All three Austin network affiliates carried all or part of White's message live. Two carried all or part of Clements' response.

Only one network affiliate in the Dallas-Fort Worth area carried the news live. The story of LTV Corp., a large Dallas-based company that filed for bankruptcy reorganization, was considered to be more important, WFAA-TV officials said.

News director Marty Haag said his station decided to tape White's speech and determine its newsworthiness. Together, his station and KXAS-TV gave White only about 15 seconds of their newscasts.

Doug Adams, news director of KXAS, said, "As it turned out, the LTV story made our decision easier.

"But to tell you the truth, I think if the LTV thing hadn't happened, after thinking about it all night and meetings Thursday morning, I still think we would not have carried White live at 6:01 for his entire address."

At KDFW-TV, the only Dallas network affiliate to carry the speech live, news director Wendell Harris said, "We believe we served our viewers best by covering White's statement the way we did."

He said the station decided between the first three and five minutes of White's speech to carry his address in its entirety. The LTV story, he said, had been reported throughout the day by radio, television and newspapers, but at 6 p.m., the state's economy was the top story.

But Tim Gardner, news director for Austin's KTBC-TV, pulled the plug on White after 32 seconds of his speech.

"I made the decision that while it may be important news, it was political in nature," he said. The station taped the remainder of White's speech and Clements' rebuttal and packaged them into a news story that was shown later in the newscast.

"We had other news to get on," he said.

Conan II dies before it reaches its new home

BEAUMONT (AP) — An aged lobster treated to a limousine ride on a silver platter as part of a fund-raising effort died before it had the chance to move to its new home at Sea-Arama Marineworld, a spokeswoman for the water wildlife park said Friday.

Conan II, a 20-pound lobster estimated to be 140 years old, was to be moved to Sea-Arama Friday, said Gini Brown, Marineworld spokeswoman in Galveston.

But when the curator arrived in Beaumont to pick up the crustacean Friday morning, it was dead, Ms. Brown said. It had died either late Thursday or early Friday.

The lobster sold for $827 to a Beaumont doctor Wednesday night at an auction to benefit the juvenile section of the Diabetes Association of Baptist Hospital, said Gary Marcoe, manager of the Beaumont restaurant that had the lobster flown in from Boston.

Conan II was placed on a silver platter and set in a white limousine for a ride to the Wednesday night auction, he said.

"So much activity shocked the animal," Marcoe said. "We were really upset about it."

Ms. Brown said being out of the water tank probably contributed to the lobster's death.

Conan II was to replace Conan, another huge, aged lobster that died last month at Marineworld.

The first Conan, estimated to be 154 years old, also was donated to Sea-Arama by a couple who won the aged crustacean from a Dallas-area restaurant. It died during a molting process last month at Marineworld, Ms. Brown said.

San Antonio man dies of lockjaw

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 94-year-old man who caught lockjaw after slashing his hand while gardening is the first person to die of the disease in San Antonio in five years, officials say.

The man, whose name has not been released, died in mid-June. His death was not publicized until this week, when officials determined the cause was tetanus, popularly known as lockjaw.

The muscle spasms that characterize the disease ravaged the man within five days after he suffered the gash and was infected with the soil-borne bacteria, officials said. He died three days later.

Federal health officials say proper immunization is completely effective in preventing tetanus.

"These deaths and cases of disease are a waste because it's 100 percent preventable," said Dr. Walter Williams of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Nearly 60 percent of the nation's tetanus cases occur in people over 60 years old, Williams said.

The case was the first reported in San Antonio since 1981, when another elderly man contracted tetanus and died after cutting his foot while gardening.

Jail freedom as close as a credit card

By MICHELLE LOCKE

...allows those arrested on misdemeanors to use their credit cards to post bond by tapping into a new electronic funds transfer system.

DALLAS (AP) — People accused of misdemeanor crimes in the suburb of Grand Prairie now have the option of making a charge of their own in order to get out of jail.

The Grand Prairie Police Department now allows those arrested on misdemeanors to use their credit cards to post bond by tapping into a new electronic funds transfer system, said Sgt. Doug Clancey, a city jail supervisor.

The system, Cash Call, is offered by a company called FundsNet Inc., which has its principal operations center in Dallas.

The program is presently in operation in Morris County, N.J., and officials have received inquiries from cities such as Dallas, Los Angeles and Philadelphia, said Suzanne Wojda, corporate marketing coordinator at the company's office in Englewood, N.J.

Grand Prairie is the first Texas city to offer the electronic funds transfer system, Ms. Wojda said.

"Right now it's a brand new market, but it seems to be taking off," she said.

Cash Call differs from other bail credit card systems because it allows municipalities to get instant cash without having to pay the credit card companies for their services, Ms. Wojda said.

A terminal is set up near the booking desk at the Grand Prairie jail, Clancey said. Cards are run through the machine to check credit line availability and the machine then prints up a check for the correct amount, he said.

"It actually crisscrosses the country in about 30 seconds and a check is printed up. That check is as good as cash," Ms. Wojda said.

FundsNet charges a fee to the user for the service. A $500 bond would cost about $20, she said. Although the pilot program is a free trial run of the system, the regular charge to the city would be about $100 per month, she said.

About 15 people have used the service during the month it has been available. Most are pleasantly surprised to find that they can use their own card or call a friend with a card, Clancey said.

"They thought it was great. They're surprised now they have more or less a fifth option to get out of jail," he said. Previously, bonds were made through cash, local checks, an attorney or bail bondsman, he said.

Most of the people booked on misdemeanor charges are accused of traffic violations.

Falcons arrive in reorientation with Michigan

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A fast and ferocious falcon, a rare bird that once patrolled the Upper Peninsula wilderness, is poised for an uncertain future here as a dive-bombing urban predator.

The peregrine, which swoops at speeds up to 200 mph and kills other birds with indiscriminate fervor, will arrived by plane this week for a long-range effort to re-introduce the falcon in Michigan.

Wildlife experts say pedestrians used to avoiding pigeon droppings should see one of nature's best air shows when the five Grand Rapids peregrines move downtown.

"They're very sleek, very streamlined, really the epitome of evolution as far as a flying machine," said Pat Redig, a University of Minnesota veterinarian.

"They live in lofty heights, they fly very fast, and when they pursue things, they fly even faster," Redig said. "They just kind of embody a lot of characteristics that we humans really find desirable."

Redig coordinates an effort to re-introduce the birds into the Midwest. The falcons, now found mostly west of the Rocky Mountains, were transplanted in rural Minnesota in 1982 and last year were released in downtown Minneapolis.

This week, birds are to be released in Chicago and Grand Rapids, and areas in Wisconsin and Iowa are expected to follow next year, Redig said.

The birds, normally cliff dwellers, have been found to be suited to cities, nesting on tall building ledges and preying on pigeons, Redig said. Downtowns also lack the main predators of young peregrines, the great horned owl.

But Michigan officials hope unforseen dangers don't befall the birds, which cost $1,500 each. The state's effort to re-introduce the rare trumpeter swan suffered a setback last month when the first hatchlings apparently were eaten by snapping turtles in Allegan County.

"There's a lot of risk involved," said Robert Hess, a non-game species specialist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. "We're a little bit anxious to have the birds mature and flying free."

Precautions have been taken in the city, Hess said. Some air conditioning vents have been sealed, some guidewires removed, and local pesticide and exterminating companies have been asked not to use poison to control pigeons in the city, he said.

The accumulation of pesticides, such as DDT, is blamed for the demise of the bird east of the Mississippi River, Hess said. The bird is believed to have last nested in Michigan in the Upper Peninsula in the 1960s.

Four peregrines are to arrive from Minnesota. Hess said Grand Rapids was selected among Michigan cities because of its abundance of pigeons and starlings, its easily monitored concentration of relatively tall buildings and its proximity to migration patterns.

The state program involves introducing five peregrines a year for three years in the city, and eventually re-introducing the bird in the Upper Peninsula.

The Grand Rapids peregrines will be temporarily kept in large, caged boxes atop the 20-story McKay Tower downtown. The birds, about 32 days old, aren't expected to be released for flight for several days, Hess said.

Although the great horned owl is not expected to be a problem in Grand Rapids, it would be in the Upper Peninsula, Hess said. Officials are considering killing nearby owls before the first young, vulnerable peregrines are released, he said.

"Most of the other states have trapped and disposed of them," Hess said of the owls. "You're going to have people concerned with that."

The five Grand Rapids falcons will be painted with patches of flourescent colors so they can be better spotted by the teams of volunteers during the first weeks days after the birds' release.

Hess said it is hoped that the peregrines, from the Greek word for "wanderer," ultimately will nest on ledges in the city when they reach maturity in three years.

He said the peregrine is the fastest bird on the wing and kills its prey while airborne.

"They'll feed on any bird. They'll kill each other," he said.

The peregrine is slate-gray, with a white, speckled breast and dark patches on the head that resemble sideburns, Hess said. It can live 20 years, if it's lucky, he said.

95 killed in 1962 crash

All 95 people aboard an airliner were killed in 1962 when it crashed shortly after takeoff from New York's Idlewild airport.

STATE IN BRIEF

Texas AFL-CIO president urges trade bill passage

AUSTIN (AP) — Saying the state's record unemployment is directly related to high levels of U.S. imports, Texas AFL-CIO president Harry Hubbard asked U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen to support the House-passed omnibus trade bill.

"Next month, Texas unemployment is exepcted to reach 12 percent, meaning one out of every eight workers in this state will be off the job," Hubbard said in a letter to Bentsen, D-Texas, and members of the Senate Finance Committee. "The key immediate solution to the state's economic problem is trade restrictions."

Hubbard also urged Bentsen to vote to override President Reagan's veto of the textile trade bill on Aug. 6.

"More than a year ago the Texas AFL-CIO warned that unless trade imports were curtailed Texas would have a serious recession. We are now in it," Hubbard said.

Bentsen is sponsor of a bill in the Senate to impose a 25 percent tariff on imported oil.

Inmate granted stay

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A federal judge Friday granted a stay of execution to convicted killer George Cordova, who was scheduled to die by injection shortly after midnight Monday.

U.S. District Judge Edward Prado granted the 27-year-old San Antonio man a stay as his case had not been heard before a federal court, said a court clerk who declined to give her name.

Cordova's attorney, Donald Killingsworth, said he will argue seven points at the federal level, including that Cordova is innocent of the Aug. 3, 1979, capital murder of Jose Hernandez and that he was not give a fair trial in a state court.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White granted Cordova's previous stay of execution in 1985.

Cordova beat his victim with a tire tool and stabbed him after Hernandez refused to give Cordova gasoline, according to Texas Department of Corrections records. Cordova and two of his companions then raped the 19-year-old's girlfriend who was with him in a car in a San Antonio park, court testimony showed.

Jaycees honors five Texans

AUSTIN (AP) — An international tennis star, a newspaper editor and three others Friday were named outstanding young Texans by the Texas Jaycees.

This is the first year that women have been recognized since they became eligible for the award in 1984, and two were selected, according to Jaycees spokesman James Shelton.

Tennis player Martina Navratilova, who won two Wimbledon titles this year, is one of the two women honored. Also cited was Terry Scott Bertling, editor of the Huntsville Item.

Other recipients were:

— Gamble "Jay" Palmer, a McAllen real estate developer.

— Robert New, president of the Texas Commerce Bank-Clear Lake.

— Marlin Perryman, Baylor University professor.

For 36 years, the Jaycees have recognized Texans between the ages of 21 and 36 who for "their outstanding work in their community and to their fellow man."

MADD changes name

ROSENBERG (AP) — A Fort Bend County chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving — saying the national group has diverted its efforts from fighting drunken driving to raising funds — is starting a new group called Texans Against Drunk Driving.

"We're going to get back to the basics, which is to fight drunk driving, aid victims of DWI crashes, monitor the judicial system, educate the community and work for strong legislaion," said Renee Grubb, one of the three founders of TADD.

"It seemed that MADD's focus changed from one of helping victims and educating the public to more of a push for funds," Ms. Grubb said.

Donald Schaet, executive director at MADD's national headquarters in Hurst, replied, "That's just bunk."

"All of our people are hell-bent committed to stop drunk driving and help the victims," Schaet said.

Reagan scolds media for violating 'journalistic rules'

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan scolded news organizations Friday for "violation of the journalistic rules" and distortion in stories quoting White House chief of staff Donald Regan as saying women would have to give up their diamonds if the United States slapped sanctions on South Africa.

Reagan, leaving a ceremony in the Rose Garden, also said he is "very much opposed to punitive sanctions" against South Africa as a tool to force the white-minority government in Pretoria to abandon its segregationist policy of apartheid.

The White House announced the president will deliver a speech on policy toward South Africa at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the East Room before members of the World Affairs Council-Foreign Policy Association. White House officials have said the speech would defend U.S. ties with South Africa as a way to persuade Pretoria to change its policies.

But, a U.S. official familiar with the contents of Reagan's speech said, "We're going to put increasing pressure on them...but there is no magic bullet." He would not elaborate.

Another official, speaking privately, said "there's not going to be any radical departures" in the speech from current policy, but that Reagan may announce a new U.S. ambassador to South Africa. Robert J. Brown, a black businessman from North Carolina, has been interviewed by administration officials about the job and has said he is willing to serve.

Reagan wants to name Brown, and the South African government — which by diplomatic custom has veto power over the president's emissary — has not raised any objections yet, one White House official said, speaking privately.

The official said an FBI background investigation of Brown, which Reagan ordered to be accelerated, has not been completed yet.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., designated Rep. William Gray of Pennsylvania to give a Democratic response to Reagan's address. Gray was the chief sponsor of House-passed legislation requiring U.S. firms to leave South Africa.

In another development, Britain's foreign secretary, Sir Geoffrey Howe, met with Reagan and said later there was an "urgent and pressing" need for South Africa to move away from apartheid. Howe, preparing to travel to South Africa, said he would take the message that there is "widespread concern felt around the world for that change to come about."

Publicly, the president and his staff refused to confirm that it was Regan who made the remark about women and diamonds, which had triggered a flood of criticism about sexism.

However, one White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed Regan as the source, and said, "He's put his foot in his mouth again. I don't know why he does it."

The controversy began when an unidentified official, in a meeting with several reporters, warned that imposition of sanctions would hurt the United States because it counts on South Africa as a supplier of strategic minerals, such as manganese, platinum, rhodium, chromium and diamonds.

"Are the women of America prepared to give up all their jewelry?" he said. "Are the Israelis, the Belgians, the Netherlands people prepared not to engage in any more diamond trade? Are we telling ourselves that industrial diamonds — things that we need for etching, cutting, shaping of tools and so forth — that we now have to go, if anywhere, to the Soviet Union?"

After the initial account was published in The Baltimore Sun, Regan was identified in subsequent stories elsewhere as the source of the remark.

Immediately, Regan was criticized by the National Organization for Women, the head of the Congressional Black Caucus and others who accused him of insensitivity and sexism.

In the Rose Garden, the president was asked if he believes women "are afraid to give up their diamonds."

"No," he replied. "But I think what you all ought to worry about is the violation of the journalistic rules that led to that story because that story, according to the transcript which I've read, is a complete distortion of the truth. It didn't happen that way."

He did not specify which account he considered a distortion.

Ferry victims reward former police officer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Kansans who were slashed by a man with a sword on the Staten Island Ferry bestowed a $1,000 reward and a kiss Friday on the retired policeman who captured their assailant.

Mayor Edward I. Koch took the opportunity to make the Kansans — who have refused to criticize the city — honorary New Yorkers.

In a ceremony at Bayley Seton Hospital on Staten Island, Richard and Connie Nichols of McPherson, Kan., thanked the retired officer, Edward del Pino, for his heroics on July 7.

"It's a real honor to be here. It's an honor to be anywhere," a smiling Nichols, 60, said from a wheelchair.

Nichols, president of Home State Bank and Trust in McPherson, is recovering from deep wounds to the back which damaged his stomach and spleen, his doctor said.

His wife, an assistant professor of home economics and continuing education at McPherson College, also was injured on the ferry but has recovered from her injuries and was released last week.

They were among the nine people injured July 7, the day after Liberty Weekend, when a deranged man began slashing with the sword as the ferry passed the Statue of Liberty. Two others died of their wounds.

Juan Gonzalez, 43, a homeless Cuban immigrant who claimed to be following God's orders, was apprehended after del Pino pulled out his gun and stopped the bloodbath by firing a warning shot. Gonzalez is being held without bail at Kings County Hospital for 30 days of observation.

Koch arrived at the hospital by helicopter, wheeled Nichols down a hospital corridor and declared the banker and his wife honorary citizens of New York City.

He presented the Nicholses with a piece of Tiffany's crystal and gave del Pino a crystal apple, a symbol of the Big Apple.

"We only give these to heroes and heads of state," the mayor said.

Koch praised del Pino as an example of New York police officers who never forget their responsibility.

"When there is danger, our police officers, retired or on duty, will be there," Koch said.

The $1,000 check for del Pino was a gift from the Kansas Banker's Association, of which Nichols is president. Nichols read a letter to del Pino from the association, which said in part, "You ignored your personal safety and stepped forward to help your fellow passengers."

Mrs. Nichols presented the check to del Pino, kissed him and said, "It's not often you find yourself thanking someone who saved someone you loved with all your heart."

Del Pino, with his 4-year-old granddaughter in his arms, said, "I'm sure anybody, any patrolman in the field, would have done the same thing. Thank God I was in the right place at the right time."

Asked what he planned to do with the reward money, del Pino said, "Build up my tomato patch."

Nichols said he expected to be releasd from the hospital over the weekend, and repeated his praise for New York City and its residents.

Of the slashing, he said, "I do not feel that's part of New York, as I told the mayor. That could happen anywhere."

Since the slashings, the city has assigned two police officers to every ferry.

Nuclear plant worker exposed to radiation

BUCHANAN, N.Y. (AP) — A worker at the Indian Point 2 nuclear power plant was exposed to low-level radiation Friday when he apparently was overcome by heat and sat down in some radioactive water.

Steven Paulson, 33, of Peekskill was treated for radiation exposure at Peekskill Community Hospital at about 4 a.m. and released, said Larry Kleinman, spokesman for Consolidated Edison, the plant's operator.

The temperature was above 95 degrees in the building adjacent to the containment structure where Paulson apparently was overcome while repairing a filter with other workers, Kleinman said.

Paulson received about 1 millirem of radiation, compared to the 30 millirem dosage of a chest X-ray, Kleinman said. Low levels of radiation on pipes and surfaces in the building are not unusual, Kleinman noted.

The accident occurred about three hours after a power failure automatically shut down the reactor, he said.

Videotapes of Titanic show 'giant icicles of rust'

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — Videotapes of the Titanic released Friday evening showed parts of the luxury liner sheathed in icicles of iron and an encrusted crystal chandelier hanging slightly askew inside the dead ship.

The researchers from Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, co-sponsor of the Titanic expedition, also said they had found several safes from the wreck, which rests more than two miles beneath the surface of the sea.

"It's been transformed into another ship," said expedition leader Robert Ballard. "It has the vestiges of the Titanic, but it's now a ship of the deep."

Ballard narrated part of the three minute, 10 second videotape shot by a remote-controlled robot, describing the underwater views of a porthole, and the coral- and rust-encrusted bow and promenade.

"Coming up the side of the ship you can see these iron-sicles that hang down like giant icicles of rust," he said. "I can see the promenade, looking into the promenade windows, and rising up to the deck above, and overhead a lifeboat davit with its block as we disturb these rust-sicles and they fall down like a rain of iron."

Officials at Woods Hole also showed reporters 12 color slides taken by the researchers, including one looking down the opening of the ship's grand staircase.

Other slides, which like the videotape were crisp in clarity, showed the hull of the Titanic buried in sand with a lone porthole above the seabed; a shot of where the stern was ripped from the front of the ship; its surface caked with layers of rust; and an anchor and chain that appeared to be hanging from the side of the ship.

The researchers said they had seen enough of the sunken luxury liner to conclude they would find no remains of the 1,513 victims.

"It's almost like going to a museum. If we were ever going to see any human remains, we would have seen them," said Ballard, adding that he was relieved there were no remains.

Ballard and two crew members in a submersible craft 450 miles off Newfoundland on Friday viewed the debris left when the ship struck bottom and the stern broke into pieces 74 years ago.

The stern was "just a tremendous twisted pile of wreckage," Ballard said.

One of the safes found "had a big handle, bronze or gold...and some British crest," Ballard said. "They (the handles) were polished clean. We went over to one with a big handle but it didn't open."

"I'm very convinced now that no attempt would ever be made to try to salvage the ship itself," Ballard said Friday. "It's buried deep into the bottom. The bow section is 30 to 40 feet into the bottom all the way up to the base of the anchors."

The slides and the three- to five-minute long videotape were flown from the Atlantis II, mother ship for the researchers. The delivery cost was shared by a media pool that included the three major television networks.

Researchers had hoped to look Thursday at the spot where the ship broke apart, but their work was hampered by strong currents that prevented a camera-equipped robot, Jason Jr., which operates on a tether from Alvin, the submersible, from getting close to the site.

Accused killer's sister testifies against him

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Steven Benson, accused of planting car bombs that killed his heiress mother and nephew and injured his sister, didn't try to help them after the bombs exploded, his sister testified Friday.

"I remember seeing...Steven standing on the walk. He was facing the (van) and staring straight ahead. I couldn't understand why he wasn't coming over to help me," said Carol Benson Kendall, the prosecution's star witness in Benson's first-degree murder trial.

She has told investigators she believes Benson feared being cut out of their mother's will because Margaret Benson had become outraged over his apparent squandering of her estate, worth more than $10 million.

Mrs. Benson, 63, heiress to a Pennsylvania tobacco fortune, and her 21-year-old grandson Scott were killed in the blasts July 9, 1985, in the driveway of her home in Naples.

Scott, born to Mrs. Kendall out of wedlock, was adopted by her mother. A tennis player, Scott had been invited to the U.S. Open, said Mrs. Kendall.

Mrs. Kendall, the right side of her face and neck scarred by the explosions, spoke calmly and never looked at her 34-year-old brother at the defense table.

She testified that Steven Benson had asked the family to go to look at real estate that day, calling it an unusual request because Steven had asked Scott to come along.

When Steven pulled into the driveway of the $500,000 family home that morning, she peered through the window of the closed garage door and saw him "doing something with his hands" at the back of his van, Mrs. Kendall testified.

Mrs. Kendall said after the relatives were in their Chevrolet Suburban van, Steven said he forgot something and went back into the house. She testified she was sitting in the back and that she left her door open, a habit during hot weather.

That probably saved her life, she said.

"I felt like I was being pressed back into the seat. I thought I was being electrocuted," she said, describing the first explosion. "I felt as if I was lying in a tunnel...and there was this orange thing all around me. It was just there and it was horrible."

She called out for her mother to help her, Mrs. Kendall said.

"I looked out and I could see the body of my son lying on the ground," she said. "There was blood on his face, and I suddenly thought: 'He's dead.' I saw tongues of flame licking up and around the front seat of the car and that kind of woke me up and I realized that the car was on fire and I had to get out."

Parents end battle to keep Ryan from school

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A group of parents who fought to keep 14-year-old AIDS victim Ryan White out of school has decided to end its battle, the group's attorney said Friday.

Ryan was barred by school officials one year ago from attending classes at Western Middle School in suburban Kokomo because of fears that the disease could be transmitted. He monitored classes during much of the past school year from his home via a telephone hook-up.

The youngster returned to seventh-grade classes on April 10 when Clinton Circuit Judge Jack R. O'Neill dissolved an injunction banning the boy from classes. Ryan finished the school year and was promoted to the eighth grade.

In a three-paragraph order issued Friday, the Indiana Court of Appeals rejected the parents' appeal of the judge's ruling on procedural grounds, saying it should have been filed by May 12.

David Rosselot, attorney for the parents' group, said they asked him Tuesday to drop the action.

"Nobody feels any differently about AIDS in the classroom," he said. "The finances just happened to be the biggest stumbling block."

Ryan was diagnosed in December 1984 as having acquired immune deficiency syndrome from tainted blood products used in the treatment of his hemophilia.

Rosselot's clients obtained a temporary injuction Feb. 21 barring Ryan from classes after a county health officer determined that Ryan posed no health threat to other students or staff. Before the injunction was granted that day, Ryan had attended his first day of classes since his illness was diagnosed.

Rosselot refused to say how much the group had spent on the case.

Young girl typical teen despite needed kidney

CHURCHILL, Texas (AP) — Outside their home near the San Bernard River, Frances Reyes' four younger brothers and sisters are playing croquet.

But sometimes when it's hot, Frances has to stop playing.

Frances needs a new kidney, and her father Joe says if people were aware of his 13-year-old's situation, she might get one.

Although a new kidney is not a matter of life or death for Frances, the dialysis process she uses takes a lot out of her, emotionally and physically.

Reyes wants his daughter to enjoy her adolescence.

Her kidney problems keep her from that.

"The more of a teen-ager you are, the more reckless you are," Joe Reyes said. Frances tries to eat properly and takes her medicine, but like any teen, she occasionally disregards her condition to eat pizza or cheeseburgers.

About three years ago, Frances was diagnosed as having an illness in which her body retained salt and fluids while it flushed out the body-building proteins.

As a result, the pretty, dark-haired girl body became so bloated that doctors decided to remove her kidneys in June 1984.

Two weeks later, her mother Rosa donated one of her kidneys to her daughter in a transplant operation.

But Frances' body rejected the kidney, and two months after having her own kidneys removed, she had to have her new organ taken out in a third operation. Since then, the work of her kidneys has been performed through peritoneal dialysis.

The process involves hooking up for 10 hours every night to a dialysis machine. If her blood levels are not balanced or the machinery itself stops working, a beeping sound wakes Frances and other members of her family.

Before they can go back to sleep, Frances and her mother try to find the problem and correct it. During the school year, the loss of sleep catches up with the teen-ager when the alarm rings at 7 a.m.

Frances can't sleep over at friends' houses like other girls because her dialysis machine is not portable. She has bags of fluid she can administer by hand, but the danger of contamination limits use of this mobile method.

She has a hard time participating in sports because she gets so weak. Monthly blood transfusions also wear her down.

An avid reader and artist, Frances enjoys school. She missed a year when her disorder first developed but she is managing to keep up with her class now.

"She's doing fine on peritoneal, but we want her to get on with her life," Joe Reyes said.

Ama Neel, organ recovery coordinator at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston, said 23,000 kidneys, hearts and other organs could be donated every year nationwide. Yet only 10 percent actually get to people who need the organ.

She said the biggest problem with obtaining kidneys or other organs is that the families of potential donors are not asked if their relative's organs can be used for transplant.

Often doctors and nurses are hesitant to go to a family who has just lost someone to ask about organ donation. But with education, that is changing.

"Now they tell families of brain-dead patients that this is the last option for this person to live on in someone else," Neel said. She reminds people that family members who gave blood or were civic-minded would want their organs donated.

Frances is on the transplant list at Hermann Hospital in Houston. But because other hospitals have their own waiting lists, a kidney may not be available until her number comes up at Hermann.

She also has to be ready for transplant at a moment's notice when a matching kidney is recovered. Her blood levels have to be even and she has to be strong enough.

Committee to improve image of rough fish

BEMIDJI, Minn. (AP) — Rough fish have long been the rejects of society in an area where walleye and other game fish are considered most pleasing to the taste buds. But Leech Lake Reservation Business Committee plans to improve the misfits' image.

Ground was broken recently for an expanded Leech Lake Reservation Fish Management Complex that officials hope will substantially bolster the reservation's marketing of rough fish while enhancing game fishing in the area.

The new portion of the existing tribal fish hatchery just south of Cass Lake will feature Ojibwe Fisheries, a facility to handle, process and market an estimated annual 6 million-pound sustained yield of the six reservation rough fish species: bullheads, white suckers, whitefish, tullibee, eelpout and dogfish.

Reservation officials hope to keep 120 independent, Indian fishermen busy with the rough-fish marketing and to employ about five new workers at the complex.

The hatchery itself also will be expanded to make room for more whitefish and walleye culture facilities. Although whitefish are classified as rough fish, they are the most valued common species and are traditionally a prized resource among Indian people, according to Robert Jackson, fisheries director.

The reservation stocked about 150,000 whitefish in Cass, Leech and Ball Club lakes and Lake Winnibigoshish this year, said Ed Fairbanks, director of Leech Lake RBC's Natural Resources Division.

Jackson told the crowd gathered for the groundbreaking ceremony that the pendulum of game fish and non-game fish populations has shifted, and not in the favor of game fish. The reservation, however, planned a carefully monitored, long-term, program to remove rough fish. The program will be complemented by stocking game fish.

In 1985, the reservation stocked 1 million walleye fry and 350,000 whitefish fingerlings and installed six log structures that help walleye adapt to lakes. This year, in conjunction with rough-fish removal, the reservation stocked 9 million walleye fry and expects to stock 150,000 walleye fingerlings and 100,000 largemouth bass. In addition, it will participate in a log-structure project with the Cass Lake Ranger District.

The Leech Lake rough-fish enterprise is an expansion of last fall's marketing project, during which the fisheries department brokered more than 50,000 pounds of rough fish to Duluth, Chicago and New York markets. All of the fish are for human consumption, Jackson said.

The expansion project will cost about $450,000, Jackson said. A $250,000 Community Development Block Grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development is the largest chunk of funding. Other money is coming from the RBC, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the Minnesota Department of Energy and Economic Development and a private lending institution.

Fair skies in forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Fair skies and warm temperatures are expected to continue today and Sunday, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reports.

Today will be fair with a high in the upper 90s. Winds will be from the south at 5 to 15 mph. Tonight will be fair with a low in the mid 60s.

Sunday calls for fair skies with a high in the upper 90s.

Friday's high of 94 was 10 degrees cooler than the record of 104 degrees set in 1984. The record low of 62 was 1 degree warmer than the record of 61 in 1947.

STATE

Skies were mostly clear over Texas Friday, although some scattered showers dampened Southeast Texas, the Texas-Louisiana border and the middle coastal plain near Palacios.

Winds were south to southeast at 5 to 10 mph across most of the state, but southwesterly in East Texas and northeasterly in Southeast Texas.

In the forecast for North Texas, skies should be mostly fair and hot through Sunday with highs in the 90s to 103 and lows in the 70s.

South Texas should have partly cloudy, hot days and fair, mild nights through Sunday. Lows should be in the 70s and highs mostly in the 90s.

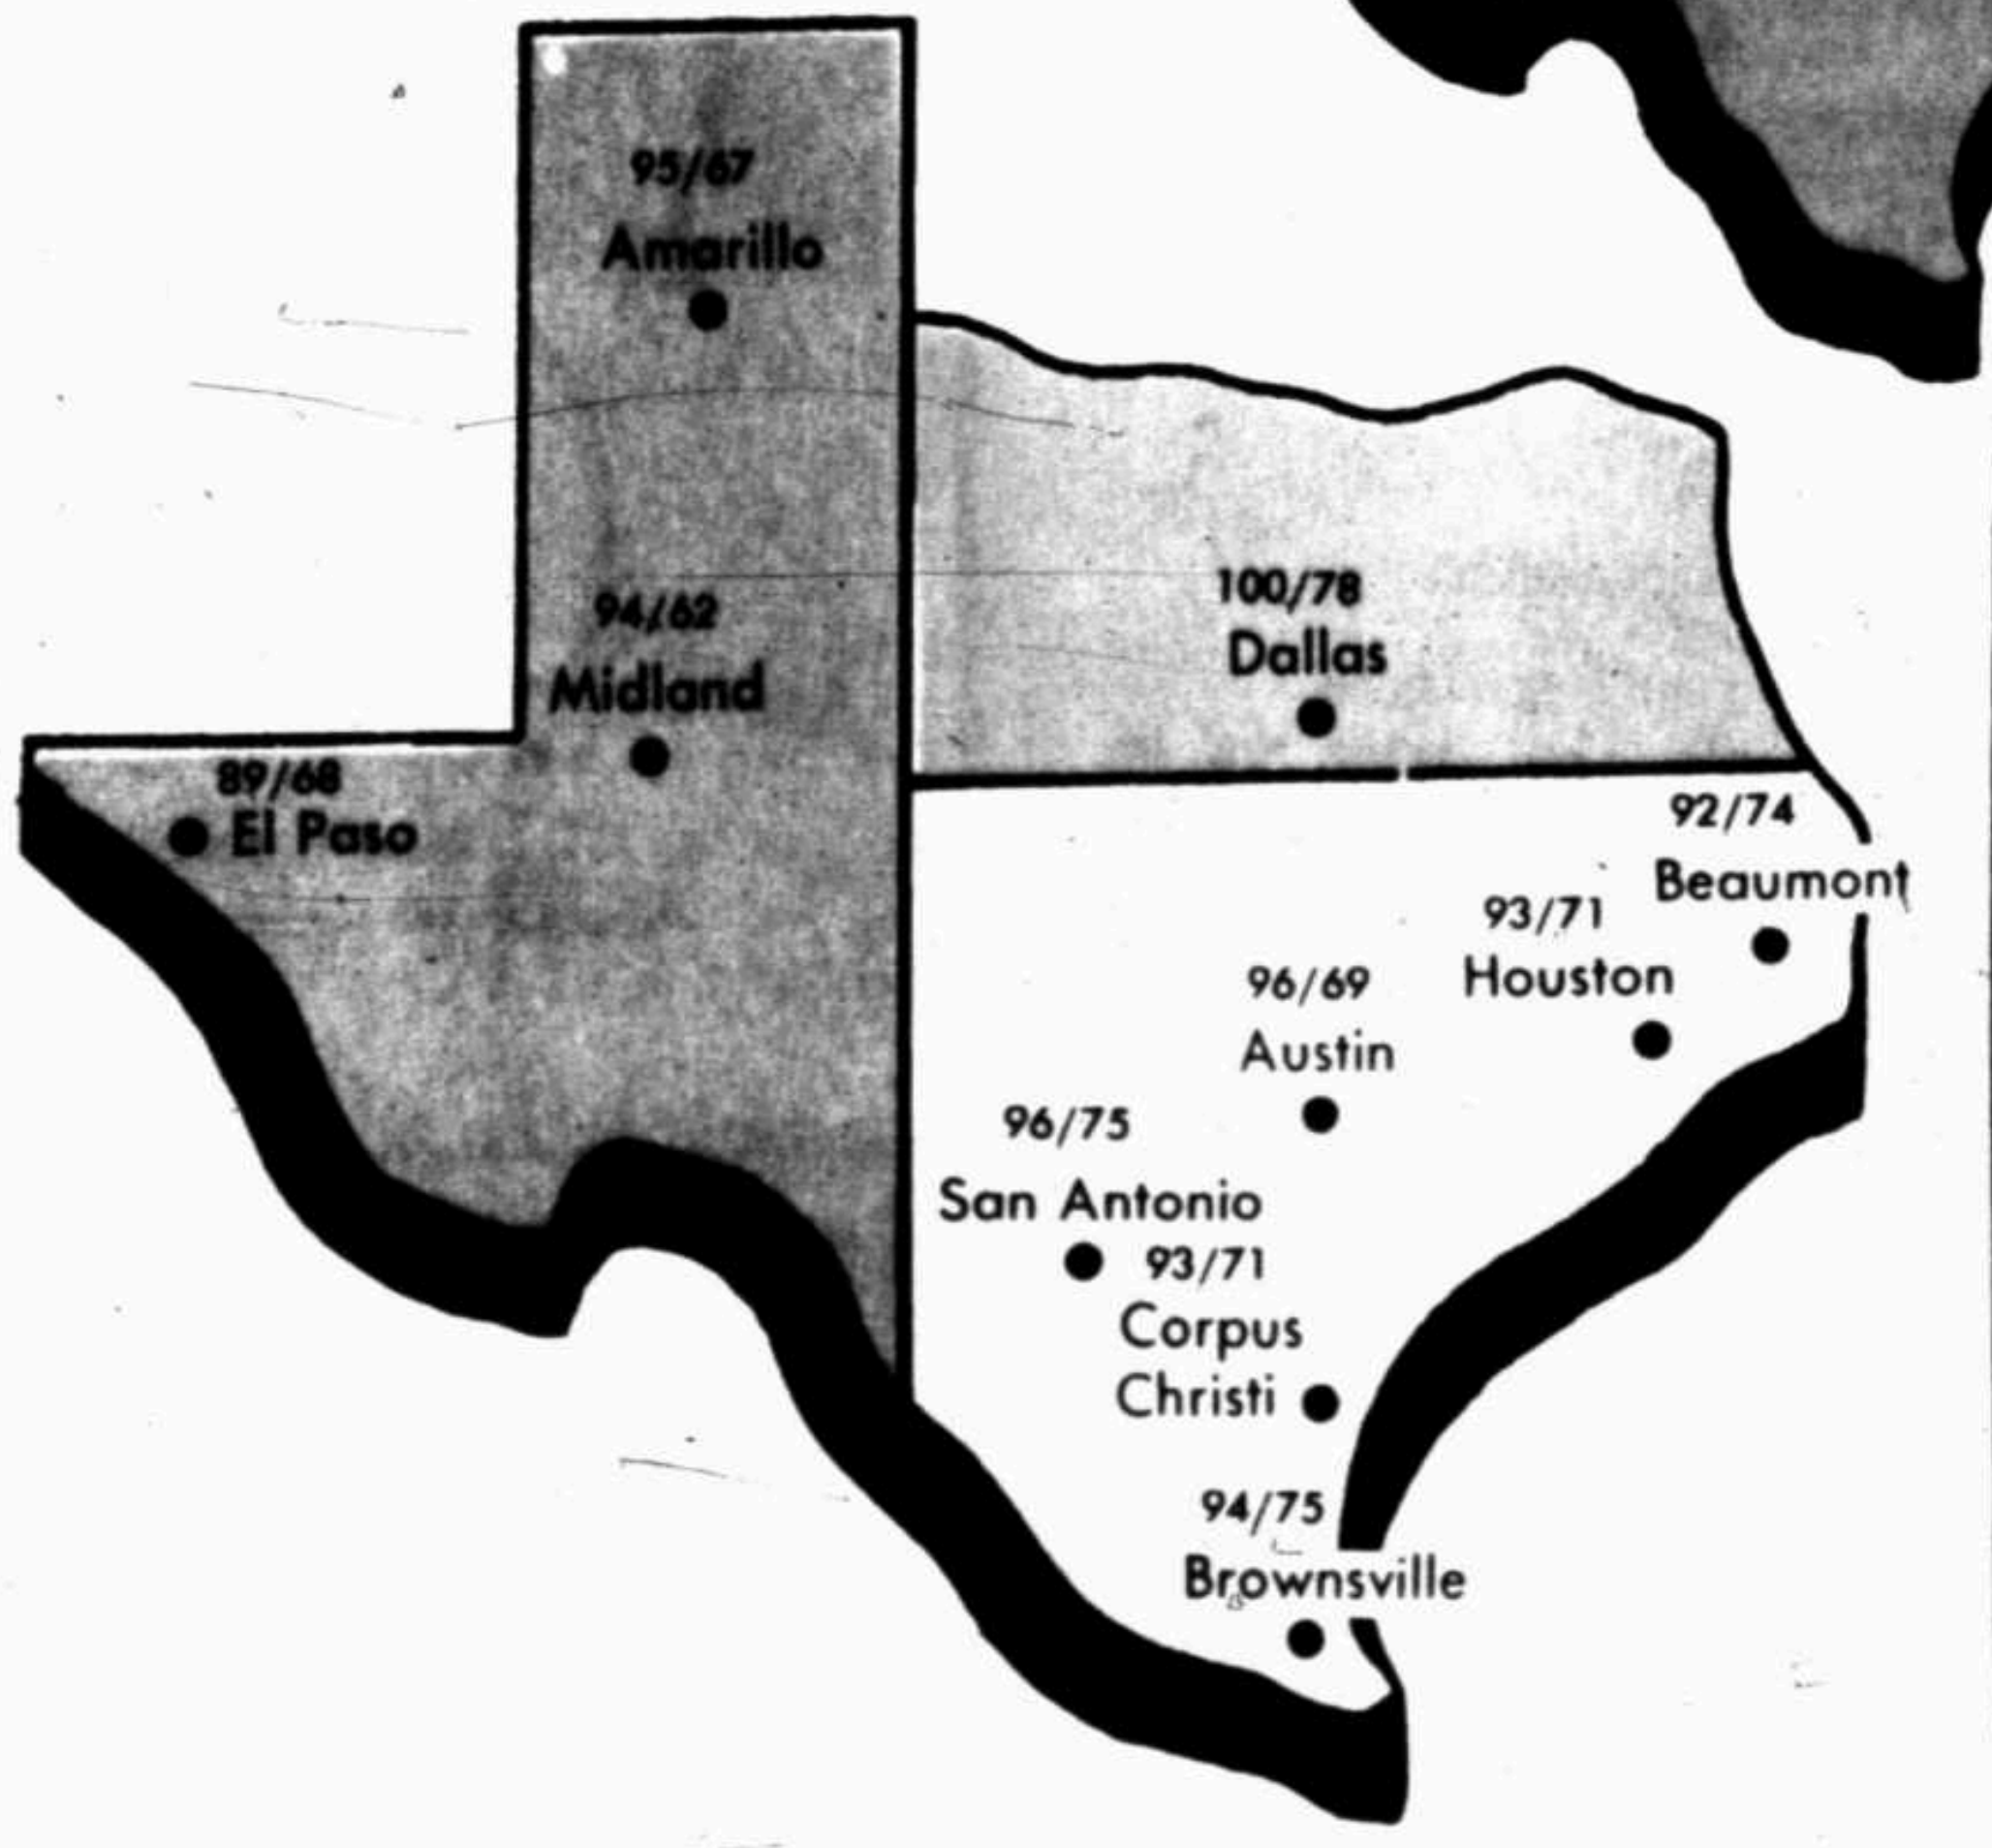
West Texas should be partly cloudy with isolated thunderstorms west of the mountains; otherwise, it should be mostly fair and warm through Sunday. Lows should be mostly in the 60s, with some middle 70s in the Big Bend valleys. Highs should be in the 90s to near 102 in the Big Bend.

NATION

Heavy thunderstorms brought strong winds to the upper Midwest on Friday, as the Southeast again sweltered in record-breaking heat and parts of the West had record low temperatures.

The forecast for today called for scattered showers and thunderstorms from the middle Atlantic Coast across West Virginia, western Pennsylvania, the upper Great Lakes, the upper Mississippi Valley, the central and northern Plains through the central and southern Rockies to eastern Arizona. A few showers and thunderrstorms should also occur from Florida across the lower Gulf Coast region.

Highs in the 70s should extend from coastal sections of California and Oregon into western Washington, and across parts of New England. Temperatures of 100 or higher should reach from the desert Southwest to interior sections of central California, and across sections of South Carolina and Georgia. Much of the remainder of the nation should have highs in the 80s and 90s.



▨	In North Texas, mostly fair west and partly cloudy east through Monday. Lows sunday night 73 to 78. Highs Sunday and Monday 94 to 99.
▨	In West Texas, generally partly cloudy with slowly moderating temperatures through monday along with isolated afternoon and evening thunderstorms, mainly near the southwest mountains and southern Pecos Valley. Lows Sunday night upper 60s to mid 70s. Highs Sunday and Monday lower to mid 90s, to around 102 along Big Bend.
☐	In South Texas, partly cloudy through Monday, with widely cattered thunderstorms over most areas sunday and widely scattered thunderstorms in the lower Rio Grande valley Sunday night. Lows Sunday night in the 70s. Highs Sunday and Monday in the 90s.

Dick Howser
...surgery for brain tumor

Howser resigns

KANSAS CITY, Mo. —Kansas City manager Dick Howser will undergo surgery next week for a brain tumor, which was diagnosed at a Kansas City hospital Thursday, just two days after Howser piloted the American League to a 3-2 victory in the All-Star Game. It will not be known until after surgery if the tumor is malignant... See Page 2B...

Boston Five

DANVERS, Mass. — South Korea's Ok-Hee Ku, a rookie on the U.S. women's golf tour, shot a second straight 4-under-par 68—136 to hold off Pat Bradley (137) and retain the lead after two rounds of the LPGA Boston Five Classic. Bradley, three strokes behind after an opening 71, shot a 6-under 66, finishing an outstanding round with an eagle 3 on the 485-yard 18th hole...

Cochran in front

COAL VALLEY, Ill. — Russ Cochran shot a 3-under-par 67—133 for a one-stroke lead in the Hardee's Classic. While Cochran birdied three holes and shot par on the rest, Bob Lohr, the first-round leader, tripped up on his drives and fell into a five-way tie for second with Curt Byrum; Edwardo Romero, Jeff Sluman and Mark Wiebe. Calvin Peete was two strokes off the pace at 5-under 135, in a five-way tie for seventh...

Bias probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutor Arthur A. Marshall, Jr., the prosecutor conducting the investigation into the circumstances surrounding the cocaine-induced death of Len Bias told ABC News Friday night that he expects to indict a longtime friend, Brian Tribble, of the University of Maryland. "That seems pretty clear to us that he is the person who brought the drugs into the room," Marshall told ABC. "I think that our evidence ... is sufficient to indict Mr. Tribble."

Bias died of cocaine intoxication on June 19 after collapsing in his dormitory room on the College Park, Md. campus, just two days after being drafted by the NBA Boston Celtics....

Sampson anti-drug

SEATTLE — Saying he felt "very strongly about the problem," Ralph Sampson spoke to about 2,000 young people about the dangers of drug abuse. He said he planned to continue to speak out against illegal drugs. "I never have used drugs in my life and I never will," the 7-foot-4 NBA star said in an interview after talking at the National Law Enforcement Explorers Conference.

Norman owns Turnberry

By BOB GREEN

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — On Wednesday, Greg Norman called Turnberry "impossible." On Thursday, in the first round of the 115th British Open Golf Championship, he called the course "humiliating."

On Friday, he called it his own.

Norman matched the course record, the tournament record, the record in all the four major championships, with a 7-under-par 63 and, in the process, took a two-shot lead at the halfway point at 3-under 137.

And still, he said, he found it "disappointing — I was trying to shoot 60."

It was, quite simply, one of the great rounds of golf ever played.

The Australian scattered eight birdies, an eagle and three bogeys across his card for a jaunty journey through chilly breezes and occasional misty rain. Only a bogey on the final hole kept him from having the best round ever played in the British Open, the U.S. Open, the Masters or the PGA.

As the word spread through the gorse and over the dunes lining the Firth of Clyde, thousands and thousands of golf-mad Scots flocked to his side, clicking and burring in excitement.

"By the time we finished, we must have had 15,000 in the gallery," Norman said.

There was not a single American among the top nine.

Gordon Brand, a 30-year-old English touring pro, was the only other man to break par for 36 holes.

He was at 139 after a second-round 68 in weather that improved greatly over Thursday's gales but remained chilly and breezy.

It was two more strokes back to Tommy Nakajima, who now ranks as Japan's best player, and Nick Faldo of England. Nakajima had a second-round 67, Faldo 70.

Bernhard Langer of West Germany, a former Masters champion, matched par 70 and was at 142.

At 144 were first-round leader Ian Woosnam of Wales, Anders Forsbrand of Sweden, Gregory Turner of New Zealand and Jose-Maria Canizares of Spain, who had a 68. Woosnam slipped to 74, Forsbrand had 73 and Turner 71.

Ray Floyd, the current U.S. Open champion, along with Payne Stewart, Bob Tway, Donnie Hammond, Gary Koch and D.A. Weibring were the best U.S. players at 145. Floyd shot 67, Stewart 69, Weibring 70, Tway and Hammond 71 and Koch 72.

The rest of the Americans were scattered out somewhere at the back of the pack, or on the roads leading to international airports.

PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman, making an appearance as a competitor after 12 years as one of golf's top administrators, struggled to a 78 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds at 153.

Former U.S. and British Open champ Johnny Miller (77-152), Tom Kite (74-152) and Larry Nelson, a former U.S. Open and PGA title-holder (75-156) also missed the cut.

Jack Nicklaus, a three-time winner of this title, just made it. He again scored an eagle-3 on the 17th, shot 73 and was at 151, the cutoff figure.

Norman was by far the star of the day.

And even with the mob of followers, there was no undue noise or distraction for the man who went to the gallery ropes to challenge some hecklers a month ago at the U.S. Open at Shinnecock Hills in Southampton, N.Y.

Kevin Brooks, the Dallas Cowboys' first pick in 1985, goes against a tackling sled during workout at Thousand Oaks, Calif. Brooks declares, "I've had a big attitude change since last year."

Dallas' Kevin Brooks admits he was a heel

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

Cowboys

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Kevin Brooks admits it. He was a heel in 1985.

"I didn't like the Kevin Brooks of last year," Brooks said.

Neither did the coaches who felt he played below his potential and at least one roommate who wanted a change of address.

"I've had a big attitude change," said the 6-foot-5, 260-pound defensive tackle from Michigan who was a first round pick and received a hefty signing bonus. "I guess it just took me some time to understand what I wanted to do with my life."

Brooks, who came off cocky and arrogant last year, made more than an attitude change, however. He married a woman he met in Houston.

"It's really settled me down," Brooks said. "Last year I was null and void. I wasn't there.

"As a rookie I came in not knowing what to expect. I expected something to be given to me."

John Dutton is unhappy this year because he feels his starting job might be turned over to the youthful Brooks without a battle.

"He should have to earn the job," said 14-year veteran Dutton. "The way it sounds, some of the coaches are already giving it to him."

Brooks says that's the way he wants it.

"I'm going to give it my best shot and I can handle it if Coach (Tom) Landry decides not to make me the starter," Brooks said. "But my day is coming. It's on the horizon."

Brooks said it dawned on him during Dallas' opening 44-14 rout of the Washington Redskins that the coaches were irritated at him.

"I didn't get to play in that game and I could have played," Brooks said. "That's when I did some soul-searching. Here we routed a team and I didn't get to play a down."

Brooks is rated as one of the most improved players in camp.

In fact, Landry said: "Brooks is the most improved player in training camp so far. He's looked good. We need a big showing from Kevin Brooks this year."

Brooks said gone are the days he is thinking strictly of himself.

"Kevin Brooks is team oriented now," he said. "I'm ready to make a big contribution to this team."

The Cowboys' defensive line is aging with Dutton, Randy White and Ed Jones all in their 30s. Jim Jeffcoat, the right defensive end, is the only starter under 30.

"I'm proud the coaches are happy with me this summer," Brooks said. "I wasn't all that happy with myself the way things went last summer."

10-run first ignites Angel 13-5 win

By BOB BRUNDAGE

Eleven up, 10 around. That's the kind of baseball the Midland Angels played in the bottom of the first inning Friday night en route to a 13-5 Texas League victory over the Jackson Mets at Angels Stadium.

The first nine Angels to come to the plate against starter Wray Bergendahl made the Jackson pitcher wish he was anywhere other than Midland because all nine batters scored.

The Angels, who added a 10th run off reliever Jim Adamczak, scored on a three run homer and sacrifice fly by Al Romero, a grand slam by Pat Keedy and a two-RBI triple by Brian Brady.

The Angels were hitting Bergendahl so hard you could hear the homers going out of the park. When contact was made with the ball, the crack of the bat was nearly ear-splitting.

"We needed to do something like that becasue of the kind of games we've been playing," said Angel manager Joe Maddon, whose Angels have been giving up runs in big numbers lately. Thursday, for example, Midland lost 19-4.

It was also the kind of game Keedy needed. Since coming to Midland from the Class AAA Edmonton Trappers, the Angel third baseman has been struggling at the plate with a .176 average. Against the Mets, Keedy was 2-for-4 and his towering grand slam was his first AA homer.

"He hit the ball better last night and ended up with nothing to show for it," said Maddon. "In the last couple of games he's hit the ball real well. He's capable of hitting the ball. I've seen what he can do. What we're seeing right now is Pat Keedy getting back in the groove again."

WHILE THE Angels held a huge 10-0 lead, there was a time when it looked like things would end up shaky. The Mets picked up their first run in the top of the third on Jeff McKnight's solo homer over the left field fence and added four more in the sixth.

With nobody out and the bases loaded, Randy Milligan and Jason Felice came up with the fourth and fifth straight singles off Angel starter Mike Romanovsky to cut the lead to 10-3.

Terry Clark came on in relief and gave up two more runs. The first came when Shawn Abner beat out a double play ball and the second on Kevin Elster's sacrifice fly to right for a 10-5 score.

The Angels escaped further damage in the inning when Kevin King's throw to the infield got away from James Randall at first. Abner broke for second and was nailed by shortstop Jeff Schaefer on catcher David Heath's back-up throw.

In the bottom of the seventh King, who has been on a hitting terror for the past month, hit a three-run homer over the Little Green Monster in center field for the final scoring of the game.

The homer, like Romero's in the first, was a line drive shot over the fence.

"He really mashed it," said Maddon, who was a little worried about Jackson's rally in the sixth.

"When they got it to 10-3 with the bases loaded and nobody out, I was worried. Anything can happen, especially with the history of this ball park. They scored eight runs in an inning last night and we scored 10 tonight. Terry got us out of the inning and that was bid. I didn't feel safe again until King hit his homer."

If you can pitch in Texas....

One thing and another while wondering whatever became of Duane Gustavson, the old Midland Cub catcher?...

They say if you can pitch in the Texas League, you can pitch anywhere...an old saw borne out, somewhat, by this week's major league all-star game. Fernando Valenzuela, Ted Higuera, Mike Krukow, Dave Rhigetti and Sid Fernandez all cut their curve balls in the Texas League while Roger Clemens pitched San Jacinto JC to a national junior college title. And isn't Charlie Hough an ex-Aggie? The Nationals and American didn't even get around to using such former Texas Leaguers as Ken Schrom, Jeff Reardon and Rick Rhoden....

One of the preseason football magazines likes Michigan as No. 1 in the land. That's about the only time a Big 10 team will be No. 1, before the season. The Pac-10, whether its champion is good, bad or different, invariably brings the Big 10 champion to its knees in the Rose Bowl game. In fact, last season it looked as though Hayden Fry's Iowa team was capable of reversing the trend until UCLA embarrassed the Hawkeyes something awful....

Someone in the press box was saying the other night, "You don't throw at Kevin King" and you don't block the plate on him either, if he's steaming down the third baseline toting a run. If my favorite NFL team had seen what he did to catcher Mackey Sasser in the series with Shreveport, they'd have offered a contract on the spot. They've been looking for a linebacker who can hit like that for several seasons now....

Mike Cubbage, the ex-Texas Ranger, Minnesota Twin, who manages the Jackson Mets, likes the Midland Angels ball park, and after Thursday's 19-run display, why shouldn't he.

"It's a hitter's park, fast infield, goods lights and the ball carries. And unlike Jackson, where it's muggy and hot, its cool and breezy here. You really enjoy getting out and playing here. El Paso? I like it better here. That's a band box with a rough field and I don't like the carnival atmosphere. It's not baseball."...

I guess in terms of what a minor league franchise is created to do, the Midland Angels' season is already a success, although the California farmhands here have fallen on hard times in the last two weeks. The team already has moved four players to a higher level and that, really, is why the club is here. Of course, losing the home run-rbi production of Glen Walker and Billie Merrifield and the on base-stolen base abilities of a Doug McLemore represents a loss that isn't easy to overcome.....

Speaking of farm systems, it used to be that the Dodgers' club at San Antonio was the envy of all in the steady production of major league talent, but now, it appears, the Mets in Jackson and Brewers in El Paso have come to the fore. Still, you look at the Los Angeles lineup and they all seem to have passed through this league. Makes you wonder how they ever let Sid Fernandez get away....

Gustavson? A major league scout had the gun on a Midland pitcher one night and it turned out Duane was clocking a faster speed throwing back to the mount. He left the organization in a huff, but is now managing the Kansas City Royals Fort Myers, Florida State League, club. Last year his team won the FSL pennant...

Ashby, Knepper spark Astro win

Associated Press

HOUSTON (AP) — Alan Ashby hit a two-run single in the seventh and Bob Knepper pitched a three-hitter as the Houston Astros defeated New York 3-0 Friday night and handed the National League East-leading Mets their first shutout this year.

Knepper, 11-7, struck out a season-high nine batters and walked only one as he threw the first shutout against the Mets in 110 games since Sept 11, 1985. The only team to go an entire season without being shut out was the 1932 New York Yankees.

It was Knepper's eighth attempt for his 11th win, his first victory since June 10 and it snapped the Mets' five-game winning streak, during which they had outscored opponents 41-4. It was Knepper's fourth shutout and 11th complete game of the season.

Dodgers 4, Cardinals 3

ST. LOUIS — Franklin Stubbs and Len Matuszek hit two-out homers to key a three-run first inning.

Los Angeles rookie Reggie Williams also homered, his first in the major leagues, off St. Louis right-hander Danny Cox, 3-8, in support of Fernando Valenzuela, 12-6, who struck out eight and walked two in seven-plus innings.

The defeat was the seventh in the last eight home games for the Cardinals, who have been out-homered 67-28 in 88 games.

Reds 6, Phillies 5

CINCINNATI — Dave Parker drove in four runs with a single and a three-run homer Friday night, powering resurgent Tom Browning and the Reds to a 6-5 over the Phillies.

Browning, 8-7, pitched six shutout innings to pull his record above .500 for the first time this season, getting his fifth win in his last six decisions.

Pirates 12, Padres 7

PITTSBURGH — U.L. Washington's bases-loaded triple keyed a five-run Pittsburgh fifth inning and Rick Reuschel ended a seven-game losing streak.

Washington had three hits and drove in four runs as Reuschel, ending a career record-tying losing streak, won for the first time since June 2. Reuschel, 5-11, allowed three runs and nine hits over seven innings before needing relief help.

Cubs 2, Giants 1

CHICAGO — Scott Sanderson limited San Francisco to one hit, a fourth-inning double by Jeffrey Leonard, through seven innings and Lee Smith pitched two perfect innings in relief.

Sanderson, 5-6, retired the first 11 batters before Leonard doubled to right.

The Cubs sealed the fate of Giants starter Mike LaCoss in the first inning when Keith Moreland singled home two runs.

Tigers 5, Rangers 0

DETROIT — Jack Morris pitched a two-hitter for his third consecutive shoutout, while Kirk Gibson went 4-for-4, including an RBI single.

Morris, 10-6, moved into a tie with California's Mike Witt for the American League lead in complete games with nine and matched Milwaukee's Juan Nieves with his third shutout. The only hits he allowed were doubles by Scott Fletcher in the first and Don Slaught in the second.

Morris, who has 31 consecutive scoreless innings and one earned run in his last 41 innings, beat Minnesota 7-0 on July 9 and followed that with a 5-0 triumph over Kansas City on July 13. He became the first Tiger to pitch three straight shutouts since Mickey Lolich in 1967.

Morris struck out 11 Rangers and walked two. He retired 18 straight batters between the second and eighth innings.

Mike Mason, 6-3, who left in the second inning with an arm strain, gave up two runs on three hits and his successor, Jack Russell, yielded three runs on six hits in the four innings he worked.

Yankees 8, White Sox 4

NEW YORK — Mike Pagliarulo went 3-for-3, including a three-run homer and an RBI single, and Don Mattingly homered and drove in two runs.

Joe Niekro, 8-6, activated from the 15-day disabled list on Thursday, pitched five innings for the victory. Niekro, who had been sidelined with a bruised right index finger, gave up seven hits, including Joel Skinner's three-run homer in the second.

Twins 7, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE — Kirby Puckett and Gary Gaetti homered to open the game for Minnesota, and Puckett and Kent Hrbek added homers later.

Indians 3, Royals 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Brett Butler scored on shortstop Buddy Biancalana's 10th-inning throwing error Friday night and the Cleveland Indians snapped a three-game losing streak.

Butler, who scored all three Cleveland runs, singled with one out and went to second when Joe Carter singled for his fourth hit.

The Indians scored in the first when Butler singled and came home on a double by Carter, who has hit in four straight games and 47 of the last 52.

Victim identifies attire

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A woman who claims she was sexually assaulted by three former Minnesota basketball players identifed in court Friday the black tights and purple dress she was wearing before the alleged assault in a Madison hotel room Jan. 24.

"Yes, yes," she replied, when asked by the prosecutor if there were differences in the articles of clothing now from the night she went out dancing on Jan. 23.

The tights had "runs" and a button was missing from the dress, the 18-year-old woman told a Dane County circuit court jury in the sexual assault trial of Mitchell Lee, 21, of Carol City, Fla., Kevin Smith, 21, Lansing, Mich., and George Williams Jr., 20, of Oakland, Calif.

Under questioning, the witness said she was "pushed and pulled" into a darkened hotel room by Lee and Smith. She said she had accompanied the two to the hotel where the team was staying after they told her there was a party in progress.

She said she was grabbed by the neck, arms and waist and forced to submit to various sex acts. She testified Williams entered the room later and joined his teammates.

"I was being manhandled," she said.

The defendants have pleaded innocent to charges of first-degree sexual assault. They contend the woman consented to the acts.

The woman, who had spent more than 10 hours on the witness stand Thursday and Friday, was questioned by defense attorneys, who sought to show inconsistencies between her testimoney and the statements she gave police after the incident.

She said she confused two of the players, Lee and Smith, several times when giving statements to police.

Under questioning, she confirmed her earlier statement that she had considered Lee a "jerk" because he had made sexually suggestive remarks to her before they went to the hotel. She said Smith was "nice" because he was very polite to her.

The three defendants, who are black, have pleaded innocent to a total of 12 counts of first-degree sexual assault. The woman is white.

The witness said she had consumed two mixed drinks and about a half a pitcher of beer with a roommate before deciding to go to with Lee and Smith to a party they said was under way at the hotel

Miami vet Newman forced into retirement

Associated Press

Four-time All-Pro Ed Newman grudgingly retired Friday after he couldn't reach agreement on contract terms with the Miami Dolphins. The 35-year-old guard was trying to come back from knee surgery.

"They have put me in the category of involuntary retirement," Newman said. "I don't agree, but I'm not bitter ... I will not be on the field this year."

Newman didn't play last year after suffering his third serious knee injury. In addition to those surgeries, he fought and won a battle with thyroid cancer early in his career.

"He was a guy that battled adversity but always had a great positive attitude," Dolphins Coach Don Shula said. "He developed from a mechanical player, to an aware player, to one of the best guards in professional football."

DESPITE that praise, the Dolphins didn't offer Newman a contract he felt worthy of his skills this year. "Negotiations ended after an early impasse," Newman said. "In good conscience, I could not accept less. With equal consideration, the Dolphins would not offer more.

"I'm not a slave — I had a choice."

Newman has been attending night classes at the University of Miami law school. He said he will finish the classroom requirements for his law degree in August.

Benny Perrin, the St. Louis Cardinals' veteran defensive back, failed a physical exam on Friday and may be forced to retire because of an injury to his right knee that hasn't healed.

Perrin has undergone three operations on his right knee, two in the past 16 months.

NFL Camps

"I'm not officially retiring but after visiting with the doctor, if that little piece of bone — it's about the size of a dime — hasn't filled or regenerated by now, there's a good chance it's not going to ever regenerate," Perrin said.

Perrin, 26, missed nine games last season after starting at free safety the previous three seasons. He called the defensive signals for St. Louis. He said he didn't want to go through another year like 1985, where at the end of the season he was "hobbling through practices."

CARDINALS spokesman Greg Gladysiewski said no decision had been made on Perrin's status with the team. He said Perrin probably will end up on a reserve list for players physically unable to perform.

The world champion Chicago Bears worked out in 98-degree heat on the second day of their training camp. Two veteran Bears — Al Harris, who missed the championship season because of a contract dispute, and fullback Matt Suhey — appeared Friday for their first practice session.

Harris arrived in camp late Thursday, saying he felt "like a rookie again" after missing 1½ years of football. "I've come back to get my Super Bowl ring," he said.

Veteran safety Gary Fencik agreed to report late Friday after reaching contract terms with the team, said Bears General Manager Jerry Vainisi. Defensive end Richard Dent planned to arrive Saturday while negotiations continued on his new contract.

Larry Bryan moves out of Gee's shadow

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

For a change, it was Larry Bryan's chance to move out from under the shadow of Bobby Gee.

And Bryan did it in fine style with a two-under par 69 at his home Green Tree Country Club Friday in another of a series of West Texas Junior PGA sectional qualifiers.

Bryan's round, which nearly saw him come apart with bogies on two of the last three holes, bettered Gee's 70 by a stroke, and marked his third West Texas Junior PGA sectional victory this season — and one of the few times he has knocked off his Midland Lee teammate.

Gee and Bryan, both seniors-to-be for the Rebel golf team, have gone head-to-head countless times, with Gee normally coming out a stroke or two on top. But Bryan is always in the hunt when they play, and this could be the breakthrough he needs to play consistently with Gee.

"I think I beat him up in Dallas one time, other than that, you have to go back to the Mission Country Club Invitational in February," Bryan said. "It feels pretty good to win one, I guess."

Needless to say, Bryan will play in the West Texas Junior Championship, a two-day affair Aug. 13-14, at the Tascosa Country Club in Amarillo. For his runner-up finish, Gee has also qualified.

"We're friends," said Bryan of his competitive relationship with Gee. "We don't mind if the other one beats us, as long as we don't beat ourselves."

Bryan can add Friday's sectional win at Green Tree to his wins in the McCamey and the Denver City sectionals this season. But don't think he's satisfied to sit back and wait for the championships — he plans on playing in three more next week.

And both he and Gee are gearing for the State Junior Championships at the Woodlands in Houston later this summer.

FRIDAY, DESPITE each having some trouble, it looked like both golfers were fine-tuning their games, and leveling the Green Tree course.

"It was playing pretty easy today, for Green Tree," said Bryan, whose family has a membership there. "Bobby and I usually play off the Blue (championship) tees. Today, they had us going off the White (regular) tees for time purposes."

Even while Bryan was having his bogey trouble on the final three holes, Gee was knocking it around a bit as well. Gee three-putted four greens on the back nine.

Mark Burgen of Andrews, the sectional winner last month at Hogan Park and last week at Ranchland Hills Country Club, ran into trouble early in Friday's round. Burgen went out of bounds on the first hole and skidded to a 76.

J.C. Hernandez won the 14-15 age group with a 74, while John Cantu was the winner in the 13-and-under division with a fine 68. Cantu, playing from the ladies tees, was almost driving the green on several occasions to post the low round of the day.

Cantu, Steven Ward (74) in the 13 and under, and Beau Brown also qualify for the West Texas Junior championship in Amarillo next month.

Howser blamed illness on managerial stress

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dick Howser, diagnosed Friday as having a brain tumor, showed signs of mental confusion even before he managed Tuesday night's All-Star game, say close friends.

"About 4-5 days ago, he started calling guys by the wrong names," said Mike Ferraro, who was named Howser's interim replacement as manager of the Kansas City Royals. "We knew he wasn't feeling good, but we just thought it was stress. Now we know he was sick."

Howser, 50, will undergo surgery next week, team officials said. The tumor — described by doctors as "a large one" — was diagnosed barely 48 hours after Howser guided the American League to a 3-2 victory in Tuesday night's All-Star Game.

Ferraro's voice cracked as he recalled the first signs that Howser was becoming confused. A few days before the All-Star game, he said, Howser got Royals catcher Jim Sundberg confused with pitcher Bret Saberhagen.

"And then on Saturday he told (batting coach) Lee May we weren't going to (have batting practice) on Sunday," Ferraro said. "After the game he came in and told the fellas, 'If you want to hit tomorrow, it will be at 11:30.' Lee said, 'Dick, you said we're not hitting tomorrow.' Dick said, 'Did I say that?' He was forgetting what he was saying."

Ferraro said Howser was unusually quiet during the three-day All-Star Game festivities.

"I know he wasn't thinking right. He's usually jovial and kidding guys. Those three days were supposed to be a good time. But Dick wasn't having a good time. He was real reserved and quiet, like there was a bunch of pressure on his shoulders. The night of the All-Star Game he was totally out of it. Real, real reserved ... not ... with it at all."

"Every now and then, something happens to slap you in the face and remind you that all these little things you've been worried about don't amount to anything," said Hal McRae, designated hitter and unofficial team captain.

Players sat in small knots and talked in low voices. Second baseman Frank White, whose home run provided the winning margin in the All-Star Game, stared at the wall.

"I don't have anything to say. What can you say?" he told reporters.

"We're all shocked," said relief pitcher and player representative Dan Quisenberry.

Are you serious?

Lee Trevino, right, could be saying, "You're asking me to hit out of that stuff?" Tom Watson, left, may be hanging his head in shame for asking.

This Day In Baseball

1904 — Cleveland shortstop Neal Ball pulled off the first unassisted triple play in modern major league history.

1910 — Cy Young registered his 500th career win as the Cleveland Indians beat the Washington Senators 5-4 in 11 innings.

1927 — Ty Cobb of the Philadelphia Athletics doubled off the glove of Harry Heilmann for his 4,000th hit against pitcher Sam Gibson of the Detroit Tigers but the Tigers prevailed 5-3.

1933 — Rick Ferrell of the Boston Red Sox hit a home run off brother Wes, pitching for the Cleveland Indians. Wes also homered in that game, marking the only time the two connected in the same contest.

1960 — Juan Marichal broke in with the San Francisco Giants by pitching a one-hit, 2-0 victory over the Phiiladelpha Phillies.

1964 — In his major league debut, Luis Tiant of the Cleveland Indians blanked the New York Yankees 3-0 on four hits.

1974 — Dick Bosman of the Cleveland Indians pitched a no-hit, 4-0 victory over the World Champion Oakland A's.

9 Parts knuckler, one part prayer

Confidence is supposed to be the name of the game, any game, the old coaches tell you. If you think you can't do it, you can't. You have to visualize the ball going into the hole, over the fence, or through the goal posts or you might as well not tee it up, swing at it or kick it. Self-doubt is for losers.

Which doesn't do anything at all to explain Charles Oliver Hough. Charlie Hough – rhymes with tough – is a right-handed pitcher for the Texas Rangers who is constantly surprised when he gets anyone out, is astounded when the ball gets to the catcher instead of the center-field fence – or beyond.

Charlie is not one of your snarling side-armers a la Don Drysdale, not one of those "Here, hit this if you can, jerk!" throwers.

Hough serves the ball up like a butler pouring tea, not apologetic exactly but fearing the worst. He does everything but close his eyes.

Charlie has been quoted in a magazine as saying that he throws 90 percent knuckleballs and that the other 10 percent are prayers. As in "Oh, my God, I hope he doesn't swing at that one!" He says he throws a knuckleball and a Hail Mary ball.

HOUGH DIDN'T think he was a pitcher when he first came into baseball anyway. He thought he was a third baseman. Only two things were wrong with that image. He couldn't field and he couldn't hit. Apart from that, he was Pie Traynor.

Some hitters have warning-track power. Charlie's was more edge-of-the-infield. "Let's say I didn't need a home run trot," he once said.

It was Tommy Lasorda, of all people, who made Hough a pitcher. Said Tommy, with his characteristic tact: "You might as well pitch. You can't do anything else."

Charlie had a fair fastball and an average curveball but neither was likely to turn him into Dr. K. In fact, he hurt his shoulder in the minor leagues once and was sent to the instructional league where the Dodger coach, Goldie Holt, after watching him throw fastballs, took him aside and said, "Kid, you either need a new pitch or a new profession. You ever throw a knuckleball?"

Hough's best pitch in those days was a gopher ball. It was what the pitchers call a "two-seamer" which is to say, in Charlie's case, that the batter knocked two seams out of it when it got there.

Major league managers don't trust the knuckleball. It's hard to say why. In its purest form, it is unhittable. Unfortunately, it's also uncatchable.

Throwing a knuckleball is like putting a note in a bottle and dropping it over the side. It comes to the plate like a hound dog sniffing a cold trail. You not only can't catch it, you can't net it. Batters hate it, catchers have nightmares about it and umpires curse it.

It's the only pitch that can be a strike and a ball at the same time, that can go through the strike zone and immediately leap two ~~feet to~~ the left. It's not really a knuckleball, it's a nailball. It's gripped with the fingernails. It is not really thrown, it is kind of coughed up, like a guy getting rid of something caught in his throat. It flutters on the way to the plate and then does everything but back up when it gets there.

MANAGERS ALWAYS seem to think that knuckleballers will make ideal relief pitchers – no one has ever been able to figure out why. The worst thing in the world to have on a pitcher's mound with tying and winning runs on base is a guy who has no idea where his pitch is going — and it's usually to the backstop.

But, of the first 340 games he pitched for the Dodgers, Charlie Hough started only one of them.

In the first major league game he ever pitched, Aug. 12, 1970, he struck out Wilver Stargell with the bases loaded. Charlie didn't strut. He turned around to see who'd done it – and for two innings he listened for voices.

There are a lot of critics abroad in press boxes who raise the point that the Dodgers made a dreadful mistake in trading one of the game's leading pitchers to a contender this year. Pressed, they will identify him as Sid Fernandez of the Mets (12-2).

BUT VETERAN Dodger-watchers also noticed that C. Hough of the Texas Rangers won his ninth game of the season, against four defeats, last week, beating the Cleveland Indians 11-6 and keeping the Texans on the heels of the Angels in the American League West. They probably also noticed that he pitched in the All-Star Game the other night.

Knuckleballers are the only athletes in the world who get better in their dotage. For one thing, the knuckleball doesn't put any strain on the elbow or the arm. It wears out catchers, not pitchers. Hoyt Wilhelm threw the knuckler in the big leagues until he was 49.

Even so, knuckleball pitchers now are as rare as aurochs. Only three of them are left in captivity: the Niekro brothers and Hough, and their combined age is 126.

Despite the knuckleballer's traditional relief role, the Rangers eventually concluded that putting one on the mound with no one on base and the game not on the line might be a better idea than putting one where a passed ball could turn out the lights. But even they ~~didn't catch on right~~ away after buying Hough from the Dodgers. Charlie made 21 relief appearances for them in 1981 until September when they made him a starter. He won his last four games, during which he had an earned-run average of 1.81.

Over the last four seasons, Hough has led Texas in games started with 137, games won with 61, complete games with 54, innings pitched and strikeouts.

It's a triumph of underconfidence. Charlie Hough keeps telling himself that major league hitters should be able to contact a ball that comes up there slower than a dog cringing to a bath. But now, at 38, he gives new meaning to the dictum of Willie Keeler that the secret of batting was to "hit 'em where they ain't."

For Charlie, that's the secret of pitching, too – getting batters to hit them where they ain't.

Soviets continue golden march

Goodwill Games

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union continued its relentless march through the inaugural Goodwill Games Friday, collecting six of a possible seven gold medals and widening its lead over the United States in the medal race.

The games, billed as a battle between the two superpowers, has turned into a onesided affair.

After Friday's competition, the Soviets had a total of 79 golds and 178 medals, compared with the United States' 35 golds and 117 medals.

With only two days remaining in the games, the Soviets virtually had clinched the gold medal race. With 51 gold medals yet to be decided, they led the U.S. by 44 golds.

That difference of seven automatically will be erased in Saturday's boxing finals, because seven of the 12 championship bouts will be all-Soviet matches. The Soviets also have fighters in the other five weight classes, and will meet the United States in the final men's volleyball game Saturday.

The Soviets earned two gold medals in weightlifting, and one each in women's gymnastics, men's judo, men's team handball and women's team handball Friday.

The only gold they didn't win was in the snatch category in weightlifting's 100-kilogram (220-pound) class, and they didn't miss that by much.

Soviet Yuri Dandik and Romania's Nick Vlad each lifted 187.5 kilograms (413¼ pounds), but Vlad was given the gold medal, because he weighs less than Dandik.

The Soviet's Ruslan Balaev, third at 185.0 kilograms (407¾ pounds) in the snatch, took the gold medal in the clean-and-jerk category, lifting 227.5 kilograms (501½ pounds), and won the overall title, with a total of 472.5 kilograms (909¼ pounds).

All the weightlifting winners were far off the world records in their respective categories.

In women's gymnastics, Vera Kolesnikova led a 1-2-3 Soviet sweep, collecting 78.55 points for the all-around title. Her teammates, Elena Shushunova and Oksana Omelianchik, who had tied for first place in the last world championships, finished 2-3, with 78.40 and 78.10, respectively.

"I didn't think I could win against Elena and Oksana," Kolesnikova said. "I am very happy that I beat the co-world champions."

She also beat the gymnasts who scored the only perfect 10.0s Friday. Shushunova, who had a 10.0 in the uneven bars in Thursday's preliminaries, collected a 10.0 in the vault, while Omelianchik got a 10.0 in the floor exercises.

Kolesnikova, meanwhile, had scores of 9.90 in the vault, 9.80 in the uneven bars, 9.85 in the floor exercises and 9.90 in the beam for a total of 39.35 Friday, following her score of 39.20 in the preliminaries.

In judo, the Soviet's Vladimir Shestakov won the gold in the 78-kilogram (171½-pound) division, beating Marcel Pietre of France 7-0 in the final bout.

In team handball, both Soviet teams finished with 5-0 records, the men completing their perfect performance with a 26-18 victory over Poland and the women winning their final match, 26-15, over Hungary.

"All those people, thousands of them, and I was standing over a putt on the 17th and I couldn't hear a sound. It was as if there was no other golf shots being played on the course. It was eerie," Norman said.

And it was at that point, looking at an 18-foot eagle putt, that Norman began "thinking about shooting 60. A 3-3 (eagle-birdie) finish would do it," he said.

He missed the eagle putt and tapped in for birdie, then three-putted for the bogey on the 18th, letting slip a 62 that would have been the lowest score ever compiled in any of the four majors, which also include the U.S. Open, the Masters and the PGA.

As it was, Norman tied the British Open record, set by Mark Hayes on this course in 1977 and tied by Japan's Isao Aoki in 1980 at Muirfield. It also equalled the single-round record for the U.S. Open, set by Johnny Miller; the Masters, set by Nick Price; and the PGA, set by Ray Floyd.

It is not an unfamiliar position for Norman, the flambouyant figure who has been on such a rampage on the American PGA Tour this year.

He has had his chances in golf's major championships before. And he has yet to break through.

"Hopefully, I can get it in the right gear and keep it going this time," he said.

He lost an 18-hole playoff to Fuzzy Zoeller for the U.S. Open title in 1984.

He had a chance in both the Masters and U.S. Open earlier this season. An errant iron shot on the 72nd hole cost him a tie with Nicklaus at Augusta, Ga. And he led through the second and third rounds of the American National championship before "coming up flat in the last round."

'48' to take toll in SWC

DALLAS (AP) — At least four basketball recruits may be ineligible to play in the Southwest Conference as college freshmen next season because of Proposition 48, the NCAA rule that requires athletes to meet minimum academic standards, the Dallas Times Herald reported.

Texas Tech, winner of the SWC post-season tournament last winter, is the only league team to have more than one player in jeopardy, the newspaper reported. Texas and Houston have reported they could lose one player each.

Under NCAA legislation passed in January, incoming freshmen must have at least a 1.8 grade point average and test no lower than 660 out of a possible 1,600 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or 13 out of a possible 36 on the American College Testing exam.

Texas Tech's Red Raiders are awaiting the scores of 6-8 Steve Miles of Dallas Samuell and 6-6 James Johnson of Tyler John Tyler.

"We're going to bring them in whether they pass or not," Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers said.

Athletes who have not met the requirements by the start of the fall semester are ineligible to play or practice with the team for a full year, but can remain on scholarship.

Texas could lose Russell Green, a 6-5 guard-forward from Florence, S.C., who has not achieved the minimum scores, and Houston is not expecting to have Michael New, a 6-8 forward from Chicago.

"We're waiting on the kid three or four more weeks," first-year Houston coach Pat Foster said. "He has not passed it three times, so you have to think he's not going to pass it again."

Officials at Southern Methodist, Texas Christian, Baylor, Arkansas and Rice said their freshman recruits have met the academic requirements and will be eligible. Texas A&M said it would not announce who is eligible until after the first day of classes.

The Times Herald said other recruits in danger of being ineligible their freshman seasons include Billy Smith of South Garland, who signed with Tulsa; Rodney Samuel of South Oak Cliff, who signed with Oklahoma; and Ronnie Morgan of South Oak Cliff, who signed with North Texas State.

The 6-6 Samuel, the Times Herald's player of the year in 1985, missed his senior high school season because of a knee injury. Samuel, who signed with Oklahoma last November, told the Times Herald he scored 640 on the SAT. He took the ACT last month and said, "The ACT was a lot easier, and I think I will pass."

North Texas State and Texas-El Paso said they have two athletes each who haven't met the academic requirement, the newspaper said.

Officials at UTEP, the defending Western Athletic Conference champion, said at least three of five recruits will be eligible. Eddie Williams of Baton Rouge, La., and Anthony January of Carson, Calif., are awaiting test results.

Besides Morgan, North Texas State is sweating out the test results of Troy Bell of Everman.

Sweden takes lead over Italy in Davis Cup

Associated Press

Defending champion Sweden got singles victories from Mats Wilander and Joakim Nystrom on Friday to take a 2-0 lead over Italy in quarterfinal play in the Davis Cup tennis eliminations.

Elsewhere in World Group semifinal play on Friday, Australia took a 2-0 lead over Britain and Czechoslovakia built a 2-0 advantage over Yugoslavia.

With one more victory from Saturday's doubles or Sunday's reverse singles, Australia would clinch a home meeting against the Mexico-United States winner.

At Sarajevo, the visiting Czechoslovak team took a lead behind the play of Miloslav Mecir and Milan Srejber.

Czechoslovakia needed just one more victory in either singles or doubles to advance to the semifinals against the Italy-Sweden winner.

In zone group play on Friday, Ma Keqin rallied to beat Eiji Takeuchi 7-9, 10-8, 7-5, 6-3, and give China a 1-1 tie with Japan. Elsewhere, Hungary took a 1-0 lead over Switzerland, France went up 2-0 over Bulgaria, Austria took a 2-0 lead over Romania and Argentina and Peru were tied 1-1.

Chisox owners burned in effigy

CHICAGO (AP) — About 1,300 Chicago White Sox fans chanted and cheered as the baseball team's owners were burned in effigy at a tavern to protest their decision to move the club out of the city.

"This is what you call good White Sox country," said Howie Zelenka, 29, a bartender at Reilly's Daughter in southwest suburban Oak Lawn. "We're hardcore White Sox fans."

The tavern's owners organized the event Thursday night to encourage White Sox co-owners Jerry Reinsdorf and Eddie Einhorn to sell the American League franchise to someone who would keep the club in the city, Zelenka said.

Two dummies dressed in two-piece suits and wearing chest banners identifying them as Reinsdorf and Einhorn were sprayed with kerosene and set on fire in the tavern's parking lot, Zelenka said.

Fans wearing White Sox caps and T-shirts sang "Take Me Out To The Ball Game," and waved signs reading "Goodbye Jerry and Eddie" and "Jerry and Eddie, Sell Now," Zelenka said.

The tavern also collected more than 300 signatures on petitions urging the co-owners to sell the club, he said.

Texas Farm Crisis Hotline provides sympathetic ear

AUSTIN (AP) — Hundreds of Texas farmers facing foreclosure or looking for new job training have called the Texas Farm Crisis Hotline for help and a sympathetic ear.

More than 2,700 calls have been received by the hotline's office in Austin since it opened in January with a $25,000 grant from Farm Aid.

Hot line director Nancille Gallimore said the average caller is 47, with 22 years of farm experience and losing $48,000 a year.

Many of the callers are among the 7,000 Texas farmers who are delinquent with their payments to the Farmers Home Administration.

"They're not getting a good enough price for their products to pay their loans back," Ms. Gallimore said.

More than 90 percent of the callers are sent the hot line's list of volunteer lawyers, who offer 30 minutes of free legal advice.

Professional counselors from across Texas also offer free services to needy farmers. And about a third of the callers are sent pamphlets that explain mental health problems such as depression, stress and pressure.

Ms. Gallimore said about 20 calls have been received from Texas farmers or wives who were considering suicide or were concerned that a spouse would commit suicide, she said.

"Some of the severely stressed-out farmers are crying," Ms. Gallimore said. "You have to convince them that it's not their fault. If they had planted more corn or more cotton, it wouldn't have mattered. Just look at the prices they're getting."

Couple become home to eight strains of inbred rats

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (AP) — Most people with 93 rats next to their kitchen would call an exterminator.

Gordon Harrington, a psychology professor at the University of Northern Iowa, runs his air conditioning and plays a radio around the clock to make sure his rats are comfortable.

"That's why the dishwasher's running," Harrington said. "I'm washing bottles for the rats."

Harrington said it was his wife's idea to bring the specially bred rodents home rather than destroy them after the laboratory breeding program Harrington ran at the university was closed. He's still hoping to place the remaining rats in laboratories.

University officials said they closed the laboratory to save money, saying it had an operating deficit of more than $150,000 during the last fiscal year.

But Harrington contended that he has never gotten a satisfactory answer to why the lab, which he established in 1966 after bringing animals from Coe College in Cedar Rapids, was ordered closed.

"My wife and I are among the few that believe that it was just a thoughtless decision that the university has been trying to back up ever since," he said in a recent interview. "Who knows?

"Nobody really has an answer, which by the way fascinates me. None of my grapevine connections who usually have a pretty good grasp on things has any explanations."

The rats in the house don't make much noise and don't smell, but they take a lot of care.

Their screen-topped, clear plastic cages, arranged in two large metal racks, are dipped daily in large trash cans of disinfectant. The animals are easily startled by noise, so a radio plays 24 hours a day.

"We've got 93 animals in there. Like my wife said, it's like having 93 children in the house. You have to do things for them," Harrington said. "If you go out for an evening, you have to tiptoe in."

The cages were moved to the Harrington home a few at a time. "One person drove and the other person watched the cages," Harrington said.

Eyes Of Faith

Rachel, age six, was spending vacation with her grandparents out on their large farm. Grandad had taken her for a long tour of the farm. They went over the fields of growing corn, beans, and everything else birthed and nurtured by God's great world.

When she returned, Rachel found her grandmother busy in the kitchen. "I wish I had granddaddy's eyes," she said.

"Why so, honey?"

"Well, he saw God in everything out there. He saw God in the corn, the trees, the little spring of water, even in the birdnest we found. Know what, he even saw God in the cows and horses and pigs. I sure wish I had his eyes."

"Ah, honey," grandmother said, putting her arms around her little granddaughter. "It is not your grandaddy's eyes you want. It is his FAITH."

Then she kissed Rachel, knelt down and looked her straight in the eyes. "One day, if you work at it, you will have his faith. Then you will see God in everything. Because this is His world. And He is EVERYWHERE if you have faith to see Him."

Researchers suspect Bible's multiple authorship a myth

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers in Israel say that data gleaned from some special computer analysis of the first five books of the Bible shatter the notion that they were written by different persons at different times.

Such multiple authorship of the so-called books of Moses, called the Torah in Judaism, has long been commonly assumed by most modern biblical scholarship, outside fundamentalist circles.

But Scripture scholar Moshe Katz and computer expert Menachem Wiener of the Israel Institute of Technology say their unusual system of analysis dispels the view that the books are a collection of documents of varied aurthorship.

In fact, they say the statistical evidence strongly suggests that the material couldn't have been put together, in its odd patterns of "hidden" basic words, by a mortal at all.

The particular phenomenon "cannot be explained rationally," says Wiener. "So we need a non-rational explanation. And ours is that the Bible was written by God through the hand of Moses."

A report of the findings was distributed through offices of Israel's Consulate General in New York.

The research was based on a theory mentioned in later rabbinic literature that significant words are concealed in the Hebrew text of the five biblical books, the words spelled by letters separated at fixed intervals.

RELIGION

Exploring that possibility by computer, analyzing the vast amount of material and intervals, the researchers say they did, indeed, find such coded key words distributed through the books.

Katz says statistical possibility that the patterns of words found repeated through the texts by letters at set intervals happening only by chance was remote, sometimes as low as one to 3 million.

For example, he cited the Hebrew word "Torah," found repeated in the Book of Genesis by letters at 50-character intervals, while the word "Elohim" (God) is formed by letters at 26-character intervals.

Wiener says the remarkable aspect is not that words are found in the text by stringing together letters at regular intervals, but that in every instance, the disclosed, decoded words bear direct relevance to the text in which they were concealed.

For instance, he notes that the burial site of Adam and Eve is never mentioned in the texts, but by the letter-skipping method, the names of "Adam" and "Eve" appear in the text describing the burial place of the patriarch Abraham and his wife,Sarah.

Describing their methods of investigation, Wiener says one approach was first to get the text printed out with a set number of letters to the line, scanning to see if any words emerge from the new arrangement of letters.

The number of letters per line "is entirely arbitrary and we constantly expeiment with different arrangements," he says.

"The second method is to give the computer a key word — 'Adam' for example — and command it to find whether the letters A,D,A,M are concealed in a defined body of text, again at arbitrary but regular intervals."

Recognizing that many scholars and skeptics will question the conclusions that the text came only through divine guidance of Moses, Weiner conceded that "we have not scientifically proved this."

But he says the "preponderance of occurrences" of relevant words appearing at regular intervals of letters "certainly points" to such a conclusion by enormous statisical odds.

In any case, he says "it is as reasonable a supposition, if not more so, than the theories claiming" the first five books have several authors.

Latter-Day Saints members to honor ancestors' heritage

Members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints will honor their heritage Thursday in a celebration that commemorates the arrival of their pioneer ancestors to Salt Lake Valley, July 24, 1847.

"It is a time when members worldwide review the pioneers' legacy of faith, motivation and dedication," says a spokesman for the church.

This year marks the 139th year since 138 men, three women and two children entered the Salt Lake Valley.

"It brings to mind solemn scenes as well of pioneers entering a forlorn valley and the death and tragedy en route West," the spokesman said. "It is a time worldwide when members rededicate themselves to living the gospel of Jesus Christ."

Elder Phillip Sonntag of the first Quorum of the Seventy said, "The latter-day heritage is one priceless beyond the world." He urged members and non-members to be examples of integrity, honesty and truth.

Midland primary children remembered their heritage July 15 at the Midland LDS chapel. The children wore pioneer clothes and spent the morning churning butter, baking bread, making quilts and playing pioneer games and singing pioneer songs. Antiques were on display for the children to see.

A ward celebration will be held at Sidwell Park Thursday, beginning with a potluck dinner. Pioneer songs and games will follow and homemade rootbeer will be served.

Concert will benefit aged, misfortunate

From Staff Reports

Gospel singing will be featured in a concert to benefit the City-wide Community Services for the Aged Inc., 8 p.m. Sunday in the downtown Midland Center.

Midland-Odessa area gospel singers, choral groups and the Dallas-based The Mighty Supreme Voices will be featured in the benefit.

Tickets to the concert are $5 each.

City-wide Community Services is a program which specializes in cleaning houses for the poor, the aged, the infirm and the handicapped — free in most cases. Fees may be charged for those who are able to pay for the services.

The service was founded in 1984 by Helen Johnson.

"They are picking up a lot of people who are falling through the cracks of other (welfare) agencies," Jerri McAlpin, communications director for the United Way of Midland, said of the program.

Tickets to the event may be purchased at the concert, or in advance, at Milton's Records and Tom's Pharmacy, and by calling 682-7181 or 683-3086.

First Catholic lay woman picked to share ministry

NORTH BRANFORD, Conn. (AP) — In what is believed to be a first, the Roman Catholic Church has appointed a lay woman to share a ministry of an established parish, said the priest who will work with her.

Elaine Blondin Kriedel, a Yale Divinity School graduate, and the Rev. Daniel F. McSheffery will work together at the 1,100-family St. Augustine's parish in North Branford starting Aug. 1, McSheffery said Thursday.

The two will form the first "designated ministry team" at an established Catholic parish, he said.

The appointment grew out of a program established in 1981 by the Most Rev. John F. Whealon, archbishop of Hartford, McSheffery said.

The designated ministry team is designed "to open parish administration not only to women but to men as well. This is not specifically directed to women," he said.

It may eventually help address a shortage of Catholic priests, McSheffery said. The Catholic Church does not allow women to be priests, nor does it allow its priests to marry.

McSheffery said he will be the pastor of the parish and perform the traditional sacramental rites. Kriedel's major responsibilities will be in education and pastoral counseling.

She will assist in the Mass by performing readings and helping distribute communion, he said.

The archdiocese has had no direct contact with the Vatican over the appointment.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Mini-lecture to address, improve conditions of life

Fran Hillin and Jeanene Johnson are each presenting a mini-lecture series in "Learn Practical Steps on How to Improve Conditions in Your Life."

The free classes begin July 28 and July 30 and run for four weeks. Each class will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Science of Mind Bookstore, Courtyard Shopping Center.

Science of Mind is based on the teachings of Dr. Ernest Holmes. His writings are available at the bookstore.

Bible study, train trip set

The Midland First Baptist Church is sponsoring a Bible study and a train trip from Sept. 29-Oct 6.

The Bible study, conducted by Herschel Hobbs, will be held at Gloreita Baptist Conference Center in Gloreita, N.M., from Sept. 29-Oct. 3. The theme will be Coming of Age.

On October 3, the group will leave by train for Durango and Silverton, Colo. The group will return to Midland Oct. 6.

For more information call 682-7669. The cost is $300 with a $50 deposit due.

Parenting film scheduled

Dr. James Dobson's third film in his new film series, "Power in Parenting: The Adolescent," will be shown 6:30 p.m. Sunday at Midland Bible Church, 2800 N. "A" St.

This film offers practical guides for dealing with adolescents in the home, with primary emphasis on mother-daughter and father-son relationships.

For more information call 684-9722, Monday through thursday.

The public is invited to attend.

Promised Land crusades

The Promised Land has scheduled a Missionary Crusade at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Speakers will be Noel H. DeSouza, Panama; Robert Morales, Mexico; Sid and Betsy Rigell, Israel; Bart Elling, Holland; John Samson, Spain and Algeria; Tony and Vicky Bullard, from Mexico but currently pastoring in Odessa; Larry Owens from Life Unlimited, who will lead the worship; Irene Sanchez from Odessa Gospel Lighthouse, who will lead the music at the piano; and Suzanne Medlin, who will bring special music to the crusade.

The meetings will be held in a tent and those attending are invited to bring sack lunches. A nursery will be provided at all services.

The Promised Land is located 5½ miles south of Odessa on Crane Highway 385. Complete directions include left on Schirra, left on Carpenter, left on Glenn and the Promised Land is located in the 4th house on the left.

For more information call 1-366-2216 or 1-366-1546. A love offering will be taken at each service.

Grace holds Bible school

Family Vacation Bible School begins Sunday and continues through Thursday at Grace Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road.

"Come join us for five evenings of learning about Jesus," said a church spokesman. Evening activities include Bible classes, singing, recreation, crafts and refreshments.

Hours are 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. For more information call 697-3221.

JEANE DIXON'S your horoscope

© 1986 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

By Jeane Dixon
Sunday, July 20, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: You will find something of major importance happening in your life. You will be excited by the level of support you get from family and friends. You will open your heart to someone special and let him/her into your life for eternity. Money comes from self-employment and special projects.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: New Zealand-born mountaineer Sir Edmund Hillary, beautiful, late actress Natalie Wood, California Angels pitcher Mike Witt, Boston politician Elliott Richardson, actress Diana Rigg, Chicago Cubs outfielder Gary Woods.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Confer with experts before making major changes. Shun all forms of gambling or speculation. Remember to keep your promises to loved ones. Beg off from social outings and stay at home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Confidential agreements can be helpful as timing is the secret to your success. Catch up on professional reading. A platonic relationship strengthens, and you begin to see this person in a romantic light.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Financial matters demand special attention especially if friends are involved. Your talent will be appreciated more if you put a fair price on your services.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Financial gains are a direct result of secret negotiations. Be sure to get everything in writing. Be more direct in your attempts to reach your goals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Relationships are particularly sensitive today so watch what you do and say. Short business trips are highly successful. Anyone involved with sales will have a lucky day. Enjoy your privacy tonight; stay at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A friendly ribbing could be mistaken for criticism. Avoid spreading rumors. Use your innate charm in handling difficult personal situations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Agreements worked out with friends today can be mutually beneficial. Be thrifty. Confer with an influential person who holds high cards. Put off making changes until you have more facts and figures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Compromise is the answer to avoiding stress and frustration. Guard against extravagance. Pay cash for purchases whenever possible. Creative pursuits could become real moneymakers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Use caution in all financial dealings. Mutual resources must be handled with care. Listen carefully to recognized authorities; they are the source of vital information. Your mate or partner provides a special treat tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Mention your innovative ideas and those of a colleague to someone who has the ability to earn you more money. It would be in your better interest to have more free time for relaxation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Shrug off the remarks of a competitor who dispenses discouraging advice to you. Build up your investment portfolio. Your friendliness could lead you into a marvelous, new romance.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Have faith and you will soon be free of a financial burden. Dress for success. Superiors are grooming you for something special. Just be yourself and you will win a promotion and increased earnings.

Indian government urged to wear watch with Gandhi's face on dial

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Flying glass from a building demolition missed Liza Minnelli by only a few minutes early Thursday as the actress attended a party at a downtown apartment, the party's host said.

Minnelli

"We thought the building was falling down," said John T. Irish, whose townhouse Ms. Minnelli was visiting for a party following a performance. "There was flying glass. Liza had stood in the room it hit 15 minutes before."

A parking garage next to the townhouse is being demolished to make way for a 28-story office tower, and work was still under way as the party was breaking up about 1:30 a.m., Irish said.

A floor in the Denison Parking garage collapsed and some of the resulting debris shattered windows in the townhouse.

REDLANDS, Calif. (AP) — Singer Andy Williams will face trial Oct. 21 on a misdemeanor drunken driving charge.

Williams

During a hearing Thursday at which Williams did not appear, Muncipal Court Judge John Arden set the trial date for the 55-year-old entertainer, who was arrested Jan. 20 on Interstate 10 east of Los Angeles.

California Highway Patrol officers alleged Williams, a Beverly Hills resident, weaved his Rolls-Royce convertible in and out of traffic at speeds near 70 mph, prosecutors said.

A test of his blood alcohol level found it to be .17 percent, prosecutors said. The legal limit in California is .10 percent.

Williams, a ballad singer and television entertainer, has won 17 gold albums and two Emmy awards.

PEKING (AP) — Danish Crown Prince Frederick is part of a Danish expedition led by a man who is retracing the route taken by his explorer father in the 1920s, the Danish ambassador said Friday.

The seven-member group is led by Haslund Christensen, whose explorer father by the same name made a similar expedition 60 years ago, Ambassador Arne Belling said in an interview.

Belling said the prince, 18, is traveling with the expedition through Inner Mongolia and Xinjiang.

The trip will last until the end of August, Belling said.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Rajiv Gandhi's admirers in his governing Congress party have found a new way to keep up with the prime minister. They wear wristwatches bearing his smiling portrait.

Gandhi's handsome face lights up on the dial whenever the second hand touches the digits three and nine. An internal memo distributed recently urges party officials and members of Parliament to buy the specially designed watch.

According to the Hindustan Times newspaper, the watch costs $40 and comes complete with a guarantee.

Gandhi has not commented on the watch design.

HONOLULU (AP) — Radio's "Prairie Home Companion" will be far from the shores of Lake Wobegon this weekend as Garrison Keillor takes his show to Hawaii.

Keillor will be broadcasting his program on National Public Radio this weekend from the Blaisdell Concert Hall in Honolulu.

Keillor, on his second trip to Hawaii with the program, is spending the week relaxing at a rented home with his wife and children at the Oahu beachside near Honolulu.

He said he and the children have been sailboarding and he said he hopes to introduce the sport to Lake Wobegon, Minn., the mythical setting for the program, when he returns there.

"A Prairie Home Companion" has an estimated audience of 3.5 million listeners.

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Members and friends of the Kennedy clan went sailing Friday in Nantucket Sound as on-lookers snapped photos of the church where President John F. Kennedy's only daughter is to be married this weekend.

Caroline Kennedy and her fiance, Edward Schlossberg, were among the group of about 30 people aboard the chartered 65-foot ketch "Spray," which returned to the private Hyannis Port Pier & Yacht Club to find a crowd of reporters, photographers and curiosity seekers.

The bride's brother, John Kennedy Jr., wearing only black shorts and swim goggles, delighted the crowd when he jumped off the boat and swam to the dock.

The crowd applauded as Ms. Kennedy, 28, and Schlossberg, 41, passed, but the couple did not respond to most of the reporters who shouted questions.

When asked what she will call herself after she is married, Ms. Kennedy responded, "Caroline."

Meanwhile, at Our Lady of Victory Church in nearby Centerville where the couple will wed in a Roman Catholic ceremony Saturday afternoon, gardeners were sprucing up the plush lawn.

Jackie Kennedy Onassis, the mother of the bride, has tried to shield her daughter's wedding from the curious. "We made up our mind not to give out any information," Nancy Tuckerman, Mrs. Onassis' spokeswoman, has said.

Among the scant information gleaned so far:

—After the two-hour champagne reception, waiters brought from New York will serve more than 400 wedding guests with cold pea soup with mint, shrimp and apples, vegetable vinaigrette, roast chicken with rice, cold sirloin of beef, salad, rasberries and a pair of identical white wedding cakes.

—The reception tent at the Kennedy Compound in Hyannis Port was decorated by New York florist Robert Isabell. Working with him was Rachel Lambert Mellon, a close friend of Mrs. Onassis who designed the White House Rose Garden.

—The invitations — on off-white card stock and featuring a watercolor of the church — were the work of designer Keith Godard. He was commissioned by the groom, an artist and businessman whose firm, Edwin Schlossberg Inc. specializes in museum and theme-park design.

—New York fashion designer Willi Smith, a friend of Schlossberg's, disclosed Thursday what he created for the men in the wedding party. "The jackets will be medium blue linen, with white shirts and white pants," he told the The Boston Globe.

"Watch their ties," he said. "They're of traditional shape but will be a very different color."

—The guest list includes lots of Kennedys and old friends of the clan. Among them are Theodore Sorensen, President Kennedy's speech writer, and McGeorge Bundy, the late president's national security adviser.

Nixon, Gorbachev discuss U.S., Soviet relations

MOSCOW (AP) — Richard M. Nixon and Mikhail S. Gorbachev had a long talk about U.S.-Soviet relations Friday near the end of a private visit by the former president that coincides with diplomatic efforts to schedule a new summit.

A senior diplomatic source said the two countries were "looking toward" a September meeting of high-ranking ministers to prepare for the second summit between Soviet leader Gorbachev and President Reagan. They agreed in Geneva last November to meet this year in the United States.

Nixon, who is admired here for his role in forging East-West detente, met with Gorbachev in the Kremlin.

Nixon's spokesman, John Taylor, would not give details. He said the meeting lasted an hour and 40 minutes, centering on U.S.-Soviet relations.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said in a brief report on the meeting, which it said Nixon requested, that the conversation was "detailed and frank."

The former president arrived Saturday for his first visit to the Soviet Union since 1974, when he met with the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

Taylor called the trip a private, fact-finding mission. He said Nixon spoke with Reagan by telephone before coming here, but was not carrying a message.

The diplomatic source, who spoke on condition that his name and nationality not be revealed, also said Reagan had not sent a message with Nixon.

Earlier in the week, Taylor said Nixon was not seeking to meet with Gorbachev. The Friday session was not announced in advance.

There had been speculation that Nixon would see the Soviet leader, perhaps acting as an informal agent in the summit arrangements. His forced resignation over the Watergate scandal has not lessened his stature in the Kremlin.

Nixon also has met with President Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister during his tenure in the White House, and Anatoly F. Dobrynin, who was ambassador to Washington for nearly 25 years and was brought home this spring to serve as the top foreign policy adviser.

Both Tass and Taylor said Dobrynin sat in on the meeting Friday.

Taylor said Nixon, who has declined all requests for interviews, would not meet with reporters before leaving Saturday.

Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George P. Shultz were to have met in May to arrange the second summit, but the Soviets canceled after the U.S. bombing of Libya on April 15.

Soviet officials have said diplomatic contacts were under way to reschedule the meeting, and the diplomatic source said the two nations "are looking now toward sometime around the U.N. session" in September.

Most papers ignoring U.S. action in Bolivia

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Although the sending of American troops to Bolivia to help in the fight against the illegal drug trade is attracting intense interest in the United States, it is causing something less than a sensation in Latin America so far.

The influential Brazilian newspaper O Estado of Sao Paulo was one of the few to publish an editorial Friday.

Under the title, "Correct Action but Full of Risks," the editorial said, "The American action is supported in international law and justified in light of morality." But it cautioned that even so, "it is not impossible for it to come to represent a condition of serious problems for the Brazilian government on its Western frontier."

The Brazilian border police were on alert to prevent the entry of drug traffickers pursued by the operation across the frontier with Bolivia.

U.S. soldiers and Bolivian narcotics officers began raiding cocaine processing dens hidden in the tropical flatlands of northeastern Bolivia on Friday, according to U.S. and Bolivian officials.

O Estado also said President Reagan made the decision to send U.S. troops to Bolivia, "thinking about reducing the number of victims of cocaine in the United States."

El Universal newspaper was one of the few in Mexico City to treat the sending of U.S. troops to Bolivia as front-page news. It carried a photo Friday showing members of "the Leopards," Bolivian police specialized in combating the drug traffic, during an operation in Bolivia.

An editorial in that paper Thursday said the use of U.S. troops in a police operation raised troubling domestic and foreign policy issues for the United States.

"It is speaking about the rupture of a tradition that maintains police removed from the army," El Universal wrote. "But among the many things that the opponents of this action have not mentioned is that it could be the start of intervention abroad, as dangerous as those that have been made in the name of combating communism and the defense of democratic freedoms.

"In our countries, the arrival of agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration and of soldiers in Brazil is a call to attention," the centrist newspaper's editorial said. "The problem of drug trafficking, which concerns all humanity, should not be the coverup for operations that might not remain free of political implications."

The leftist newspaper Uno Mas Uno called on Friday for "combat against drugs without paternalism." It called the arrival of U.S. troops in Bolivia "one of the most delicate measures that has ever taken place in the history of the fight against narcotics trafficking in our continent."

Among the countries where the operation has gone virtually unnoticed, carried on newspapers' inside pages, are Argentina, Honduras and Venezuela.

Hundreds of bagels roll out of the ovens at a new 54,000-square-foot automated bagel bakery in Mattoon, Ill. Lender's Bagel Bakery will hold a giant bagel breakfast for the town this morning to mark the opening of the plant, one of the largest in the world. A company spokesman says more than 1 million bagels will be produced daily.

Illinois bakery to roll out one million bagels each day

MATTOON, Ill. (AP) — Bagels, once identified exclusively with lox, cream cheese and New York City, are rolling out of this prairie town at the rate of a million a day from one of the world's largest bagel bakeries.

The bagel boom is on, and to keep it going Lender's Bagel Bakery has invited all 20,000 residents of this east-central Illinois city to "the world's largest bagel breakfast" this morning.

"We are doing this to explain what bagels are," said Murray Lender, chairman of the New Haven, Conn.-based company. "It's safe to say that many people in Mattoon don't know about them."

That will change when Lender tosses out the first bagel to guests at five downtown blocks of tables, to sample the chewy doughnut-shaped rolls with butter, jelly and cream cheese.

Lox, an expensive smoked salmon, won't be on the menu.

Bagels are boiled and then baked, which gives them a white, chewy center with a smooth, brown, crusty exterior.

Americans are toasting them for breakfast and using them for sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres and garlic bread. Their popularity no longer is limited to big coastal cities.

Despite bagels' growing popularity in the United States, only 18 percent of the population has tried them, Lender said.

"We've got 82 percent of the population yet to tap," he said. "Once they bite into their first bagel, we know they'll be hooked."

Lender's, which bills itself as the world's largest bagel baker, just opened its 54,500-square foot automated bakery on the edge of town. Baking began in May, and reached full production last month.

It's the company's fourth bakery, aimed at markets in the Midwest, West and Southwest, and the only one not in the East. Lender's other bakeries are in Buffalo, N.Y., and in New Haven and West Haven, Conn.

The new plant mixes 2,000-pound batches of dough from flour, water, sugar, salt, yeast and malt in huge stainless steel vats. The dough is rolled into small balls and wrapped around long rods, which create the holes.

The raw bagels — moving on belts in ranks 24 across — are carried to boiling water baths before their 10-minute ride through 160-foot ovens, where they are baked at 500 degrees.

The Lender family brought their recipe for bagels from Poland 58 years ago to New Haven, where Lender's Bagel Bakery was founded.

The family began selling bagels to regional grocery stores in 1955 and seven years later, froze their bagels for national distribution. Lender's is now an independent unit of the Kraft Retail Foods Group, based in suburban Chicago.

Retail bagel sales doubled in the last four years and could reach $500 million in 1986, industry publications say. Today, Americans consume eight million bagels daily.

"It's sort of the Americanization of the bagel," said Wendy Kimbrell, news editor of Bakery Production & Marketing News. "It used to be identified as an ethnic product but now it is considered a specialty baked good — an alternative."

Texas, Alaska impose budget cuts to head off record deficits

Associated Press

Texas and Alaska, whose petroleum-fueled economies have been stunned by slumping oil prices, are imposing sharp budget cuts to head off the threat of record deficits.

"This is the most difficult time in this state's history, at least in this century," Texas Gov. Mark White said Thursday, calling the Legislature to a special session Aug. 6 to cope with a budget deficit that could top $3 billion.

Alaska's latest revenue projection says falling oil prices will cost the state $900 million, or 40 percent of its current budget, and Gov. Bill Sheffield announced immediate, sharp cuts in state spending.

At mid-week, contracts for August delivery of the price of West Texas Intermediate, the best-known U.S. crude, closed at $12.58 per barrel.

North Slope oil prices have hit a third of their 1985 level. That will cost Alaska's economy $41.7 million for fiscal 1986, $857.2 million in the current fiscal year, and $482.4 million in fiscal 1988, revenue officials said.

The situation is mirrored in other oil-dependent states. Oklahoma this year cut overall state appropriations by 13 percent, or $331 million.

In Louisiana, where every $1 fluctuation in oil prices means $50 million gained or lost by the state treasury, lawmakers cut this year's budget by $400 million.

"When oil is at $10 a barrel we are bankrupt," said Jim Porter, Louisiana's secretary of Natural Resources. "When oil is at $15 a barrel we are in liquidation, and at $25 a barrel we are fairly healthy."

White said Texas would have to cut its spending, but promised there would be no state income tax and said he hopes to avoid layoffs of state workers and cuts in education spending.

"If the price were at $20 a barrel, where all the prognosticators said it was going to be just a few months ago, then we wouldn't be here today," White said in a speech televised statewide from his Capitol office.

Alaska's governor also used a statewide telecast to announce the budget crisis after the state Department of Revenue issued its latest revenue projections on Wednesday.

"It will cost Alaskans some services we've come to count on," Sheffield said. "It will cost us jobs in the private economy. It will cost us a lot of jobs in state government. And it will cost us much more than anyone expected."

Sheffield said his spending cuts would make up $550 million of the estimated $900 million shortfall, and further cuts are possible in October.

The reductions immediately planned:

— State offices: 15 percent, across-the-board budget decreases, the bulk in 10 percent wage cuts for all state workers. The governor will cut his own salary 15 percent, from $80,640 to $69,400, and expects his cabinet members to do likewise.

— Schools and municipalities: 10 percent cuts in revenue sharing and all other state support. School bond issues already on the market will go ahead; those districts which haven't issued bond notices will be urged not to do so. Sheffield asked municipalities to avoid local taxing if possible and focus on cutting excesses and reducing services.

— State construction: A capital budget cut of $250 million, of which $50 million is from projects that can be halted. The rest will come in freezing projects that have not been started.

Projects that draw federal money will continue.

Sheffield, who is seeking re-election this year, pledged not to raise taxes or dip into the Alaska Permanent Fund, set aide from the oil wealth for future generations, to meet the shortfall, but said both might be revenue sources for future state budgets.

Jay Hogan, the governor's budget chief, said commissioners and budget managers have spent several weeks putting together the new spending plan.

"There are legal ramifications to everything we're considering, and a lot of our choices are based on what would be least legally offensive," he said.

Putting off some cuts for three months avoids painful reductions that might not be needed if oil prices rebound, he said.

Forecasters said an upturn is possible, but they did not build any large recovery into either the 1987 or 1988 projections.
