Oilmen have known for a long time that Alaska has a lot of petroleum, but getting it out was such an expensive process that it took the current "energy crisis" to get a substantial effort going to bring oil down south from that source.

You get an idea of just how expensive it is from figures mentioned Thursday at the Snyder Rotary Club's luncheon. The celebrated Alaska Pipe Line now under construction is costing around $4 million a day. And the construction work, of course is only one segment of the cost.

For example, statistics compiled by the independent Petroleum Association of America (IPAA) show that in 1973 it cost over $1.3 million to drill and equip the average oilwell in Alaska. The average cost per well in Texas that same year was $108,272.

Thus, the oil in Alaska didn't look nearly so attractive when the market price was less than $3 a barrel as it became when the price went above $10 a barrel.

There's been some confusion about Veterans Day this year, especially in Texas. You probably noticed that the federal Veterans Day holiday was observed last Monday, Oct. 27, although Congress has enacted legislation restoring this holiday to its traditional date of Nov. 11. The latest change on the federal calendar will not become effective, however, until 1977.

Nevertheless, so far as Texas is concerned, Veterans Day has already returned to Nov. 11. The Texas Legislature took care of this last spring and the new state legsilation already has gone into effect.

The confusuon started a few years ago when Congress decided to shuffle a few holidays around in an effort to provide more long holiday weekends for Americans. It never did tamper with Christmas, New Years Day and July 4, and probably recalling some experiences during the Roosevelt administration, it left Thanksgiving Day unchanged. But some of the others, including Veterans Day, were changed to fall on Mondays each year. Labor Day escaped the shuffle because it already was a Monday holiday rather than one on a specific calendar date.

Anyway, the same confusion may continue another year, since the federal law switching back to Nov. 11 will not apply until 1977.

All of this shuffling hasn't caused any confusion among American Legion members here however. They have continued to observe Nov. 11 as Veterans Day, or, to be more specific "Armistice Day," which was its title when it was first designated. And this Nov. 11, as in those past, the Legion Post here will have it's breakfast for all veterans of the area.

"We've always had it on Nov. 11," said Sam Tibbets, who called to remind that the veterans breakfast is coming up. "And we always will."—WACIL McNAIR.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, November 2, the 306th day of 1975. There are 59 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1962, President Kennedy announced that Soviet missile bases in Cuba were being dismantled.

On this date-

In 1782, General George Washington delivered his farewell address to the Army near Princeton, New Jersey.

In 1889, North Dakota and South Dakota became the 39th and 40th states to the Union.

In 1920, radio station KDKA in Pittsburgh began the first regular schedule of broadcasting as it reported election returns in which Warren Harding was elected president.

In 1930, Haile Selassie was crowned emperor of Ethiopia.

In 1942, German troops under Field Marshall Erwin Rommel began a retreat from El Alamein in the African desert.

In 1948, President Harry Truman was re-elected against heavy odds.

Ten years ago: John Lindsay was elected Mayor of New York, defeating Abraham Beame by a narrow margin.

Five years ago: The United States and the Soviet Union resumed talks on limitations of strategic arms. The atmosphere was cordial as the negotiators met in Helsinki, Finland.

One year ago: Former President Richard Nixon was improved but still oin the critical list at a Long Beach, Calif. hospital four days after undergoing surgery for a blood clot.

GOAL EXCEEDED—Leaders in the Public Employe Division of the Scurry County United Way campaign submitted reports Friday which put their division "over the top." That division has accounted for $1,588.64, which is 113 per cent of its $1,400 goal. Division workers shown here are, from left, Don Sealy, Peggy Hardin, Beverly Ainsworth and Leighton (Doc) Griffin. The United Way campaign now has received contributions and pledges totalling $41,698.81, almost 93 per cent of its $45,000 goal.

President Ford Tapes Historic Trial Testimony

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associate Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It took less than 19 minutes today for President Ford to give historic court-ordered videotape testimony on what he saw and heard during the alleged assassination attempt by Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme against him in Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 5.

U.S. District Judge Thomas MacBride of California, presiding in his judicial robes, supervised the sworn testimony of Ford, the first president in office to give testimony at a criminal trial.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the proceedings were conducted before two television mini-cameras, with the President answering the questions of defense attorney John E. Virga in a "dry, legal, businesslike and very low-key" manner.

Ford arrived for the taping session at 10:04 a.m. and left at 10:23 a.m. The actual questioning time was not disclosed.

Nessen said that MacBride opened the proceedings by reading a preliminary legal statement.

The session was conducted in a third-floor conference room of the Executive Office Building next door to the White House. The proceedings were conducted in privacy, with no press coverage permitted.

No president has ever testified in person at a criminal trial while in office and the videotape procedure never has been used to obtain presidential testimony.

The taping session here is the result of a request by Miss Fromme's attorney, John E. Virga. MacBride ruled that Ford could give a videotaped deposition as an alternative to appearing in person at the Fromme trial, scheduled to begin in Sacramento next Tuesday.

Virga has described Ford as "maybe our most important witness" and said he mainly wants to know if the President heard a click that would indicate Miss Fromme had pulled the trigger of the gun. Investigators have said the gun was loaded with an ammunition clip but had no cartridge in the firing chamber.

The Justice Department, acting on behalf of the President, had expressed concern that a subpoena of Ford would set a precedent. But a spokesman said there would not be any appeal after MacBride made his decision for videotaping Ford's statement.

The Navy Photo Center in Washington provided the videotaping equipment and technicians to operate it.

Representing the prosecution at the taping session were U.S. Atty. Dwayne Keyes from Sacramento and Richard Thornburg, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division.

Ford's testimony was to remain private until the trial. The White House, in a brief statement about the deposition, said "court rules, preclude press converage."

Two Museums Open Today

Both the Scurry County Museum and the Diamond M Museum will be open for visitors this afternoon.

The Scurry County Museum, located on the campus of Western Texas College, is currently featuring an exhibit of the works of Bill D. Brooks. Brooks will be at the museum from 1-5 p.m. to meet visitors.

Included in the display are wood carvings, wood sculpture and pen and ink sketches. Some of the works are for sale. The display is to remain in the museum through Nov. 15 and may be seen without charge any week day during regular museum hours.

Brooks was graduated from Ira High School and North Texas State University. He now makes his home in Big Spring.

Visitors to the museum are also invited to see a show in the Western Texas College planetarium starting at 2 o'clock.

The Diamond M Museum, located in the Diamond M Building on 25th Street, is to be open from 2-5 p.m.

Charter Defeat Is Seen With Large Voter Turnout

By The Associated Press

The head of a statewide organization campaigning against the proposed new consitution says a large voter turnout in Tuesday's election will assure the document's defeat.

"The proponents admit they are hoping that most voters will stay away from the polls," Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, said Friday. He is head of Citizens to Preserve the Texas Consitution. "They feel that is their only chance for success and I think they are probably right about that."

With only three days left until the election, supporters and opponents have included each other in their criticism, in addition to the advantages and disadvantages of the constitution.

In a speech before the Houston League of Women Voters, former State Supreme Court Judge Robert H. Calvert chided Gov. Dolph Briscoe for his role in the constitution controversy.

"The people have a right and good reason to wonder if the governor's earlier statements (before he came out against the constitution on Oct.14) were all a meaningless playing of games," Calvert said.

"I boldly predict that the people of Texas are going to the ballot box and say by their votes 'We have had enough of playing games.'"

Meanwhile, McKnight said supporters of the document haye tried "to sell the idea that only a few greedy, selfish people with special interests are opposed to this attempted power-grab by the legislature."

McKnight said the proponents "look pretty silly when you realize people with such diverse political views as Gov. Briscoe, Sissy Farenthold, former Govs. Shivers and Smith, State Comptroller Bob Bullock, the Texas Manufacturers Association, Texas AFL-CIO and the Texas Civil Liberties Union all oppose at least part of this proposed revision."

Rites Here For Plane Crash Victim

Funeral service has been set for 4 p.m. today at the First United Methodist Church in Snyder for Jimmy Lynn Thompson, 29, who died in a plane crash Wednesday in Culiacan, Mexico.

The Rev. David Robertson, pastor of the church, will officiate, and assisting will be the Rev. Jesse Dea of Clyde. Burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

A native of Snyder, Mr. Thompson was a graduate of Snyder High School. He owned and managed an apartment complex in Austin.

Surviving are his wife, Chayita Ramos Thompson of Culiacan, Mex.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thompson Jr. of Snyder; three brothers, Bobby Thompson of Austin, Larry Thompson of Arlington and Richie Thompson of Sunray; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Maybelle Hickman of San Antonio, and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Lois Thompson of Ira.

Pallbearers will be Bill Curry, Craig Bell, Phillip Presse, Benny Garrett, Johnnny McKinney, Sam Chaney, Charlie Vernon and Tommy Kimmel.

HELP FOR THE CHILD—Child development is a special focus of the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Texas, another agency supported by your United Way contribution.

Cerebral Palsy Takes Big Toll

In Texas, approximately 32,000 persons are afflicted by cerebral palsy. United Cerebral Palsy of Texas' main concern is the individual with cerebral palsy and his family. A lifetime partnership is established from the time United Cerebral Palsy Association and the family of a cerebral palsied individual come together. United Cerebral Palsy of Texas, a United Way Agency provides treatment, special education, vocational rehabilitation, counseling, wheelchairs, braces, corrective shoes, crutches, and a summer camping experience--all for children with cerebral palsy. In addition to the individual services, United Cerebral Palsy sponsors symposiums, workshops, seminars, and other educational services to better inform the professionals in the treatment and care of the cerebral palsied.

Of children and adults whose motor control centers are damaged by cerebral palsy, seventy percent will need a lifetime of special care; another twenty percent will get along pretty well if they can obtain treatment early emough.

Through your United Way dollars, they can be helped to see, to hear, to walk and talk, to learn, and to play.

Cerebral palsy cripples individuals. It cripples families, too. United Cerebral Palsy of Texas helps families by providing the care, treatment, and training services handicapped children require.

Cerebral palsy can be eradicated by continuing the research attack on its causes. The cerebral palsied can find a place in society--but only as long as communities support the work of organizations such as United Cerebral Palsy of Texas, and through agencies such as United Way.

TUESDAY ON NEW TEXAS CHARTER

Few To Use Once-In-A-Lifetime Vote

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

Texans get a once-in-a-lifetime chance Tuesday to vote on a complete new state constitution.

However, it is doubtful if more than 25 per cent of Texas' approximately five million eligible voters will bother to go to the polls, according to Secretary of State Mark White.

The Texas Election Bureau, which will gather unofficial returns on the voting, estimated a turnout of about one million voters.

Most polling places open at 7 a.m. and all must close at 7 p.m.

The statewide ballot will carry only the eight propositions that make up the proposed new constitutions. Voters will mark "for" or "against" each of the eight issues.

There is no advance indication of the outcome. Last-minute controversy has been hot.

Some proponents say privately that some of the propositions are likely to fail. Some opponents, who have pushed hard for a turndown of the entire ballot, admit that at least a couple propositons may pass.

Voting on local issues will spark turnouts in several places, particularly in the Houston area where there is a mayor's race—incumbent Fred Hofheinz versus two challengers, Dick Gottleib and Frank Briscoe.

An expected 40 to 50 per cent turnout of Houston's 771,000 eligible voters could produce up to 40 per cent of the entire state total, election officials predict.

Despite the fact that the eight-proposition ballot was authorized by the legislature last April, there has been widespread apathy and no statewide campaigning pro or con until mid-September.

Public interest noticeably picked up after Gov. Dolph Briscoe made his long-awaited recommendations to voters on Oct. 14. He advocated rejecting all eight propositions.

Joining with Briscoe in the fight against the new constitution have been Comptroller Bob Bullock, and former Govs. Allan Shivers and Preston Smith. Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, heads a statewide opposition organization, Citizens to Preserve the Texas Constitution.

Leading the fight for a new constitution have been Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Atty. Gen. John Hill, Speaker Bill Clayton and former Gov. Price Daniel Sr., now associate justice of the Texas Supreme Court. Former Chief Justice Robert Calvert of the Supreme Court, heads the statewide support organization, Citizens for the Texas Constitution. Other prominent speakers for the new policy document are Leon Jaworski, former Watergate prosecutor, and State Republican Chairman Ray Hutchison who, as a Dallas state representative, played an important part in getting it through the legislature.

Easily the most controversial of the eight propositions has been No. 1, that includes the legislative article with its proposal that the Texas legislature meet annually, instead of every two years. Also lumped in the same proposition are provisions that would give the governor more power in overseeing agency operations and budgets.

Shivers said the executive article changes were needed, but he would vote against them because of his opposition to annual sessions. Briscoe made annual sessions his chief reason for recommending defeat of the entire constitution.

Proposition No. 1 is considered the most likely to fail.

Other highly controversial propositions are No. 4, Education, with its guarantee of financial support for "equal educational opportunity," sand No. 5, Finance, which calls for uniform property tax appraisals and separate property tax valuations for farm, ranch and timber land.

The propositions on a revised judiciary system, No. 2, and on local government, No. 6, are considered the most likely to pass. No. 2, which is supported by many Texas lawyers and judges, would merge the state's highest appeals courts to handle both criminal and civil cases. Under the Local Government article, voters would be allowed to create, combine or eliminate county offices and would let voters give county commissioners the right to make and enforce ordinances, like city councils do now.

Other highlights of the proposed new constitution that have surfaced in the campaign include:

—A requirement that state agencies must be renewed each 10 years by the legislature. Proponents said this would keep agency heads from becoming too powerful. Opponents said the 10-year "self-destruct" provision would jam legislative halls with agency loboyists trying to preserve their jobs.

—A provision that would allow ex-felons to vote and would let the legislature make property ownership a qualification for bond elections.

—Continuation of the 10-cent state ad valorem tax for permanent improvements at state senior colleges not in the University of Texas or Texas A&M systems.

—A requirement that all cities, counties and schools districts give a $3,000 exemption from local property taxes. Some units already do this after popular vote.

—A prohibition against garnishing wages, branch banking, lotteries, and discrimination in hiring handicapped workers.

—A requirement that the legislature must protect the environment.

—A requirement that Texas voters must be given a chance at least every 30 years to call a constitutional convention to revise their constitution.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

Robert Blake, the diminutive but always outspoken star of ABC's top-rated "Baretta" series is one actor who really believes in what he says—on and off the screen. He was born in Nutley, New Jersey (real name Robert Kubitosi), and started in show biz at the delicate age of two in a song-and-dance act with his father, brother and sister. By the age of five, he was in movies, featured member of "Our Gang" cast with Spanky McFarland. He worked steadily for the next 10 years, and then it all closed in on him.

MAURICE: As a kid, what was your family life like?

BLAKE: My father was a frustrated show nut. He'd sit around the house all day long and play Caruso records and sing to them. My mother was just neurotic, which made for a very crazy house.

MAURICE: You were considered a child star.....

BLAKE: I was never a child star. I was a child worker. Forcing a kid to become performer is one of the worst things that can happen to a child. It's turning them into adults while they're still youngsters. Even now, when I see a kid working on a set, I think of my own childhood and it depresses me.

MAURICE: Lately there has been a lot of talk about the violence on your television program.

BLAKE: Complaining about violence is what everybody's usin' as a device to salve their guilty conscience. Like goin' out in the park and pickin' up beer cans on the weekend instead of trying to solve pollution. Everybody says we gotta get rid of the violence on TV and when we finally do, our children will be happy ever after. I think that's a lotta bull!

MAURICE: Don't you think parents have a little right to be concerned about violence on television?

BLAKE: The easiest thing to do is say let's get violence off TV and out of the living room. And while the kids are watching these terrible shows, their parents are in the kitchen popping pills, boozing and screaming at each other. People yell about violence on TV, but nobody screams about the radiation from television sets that causes cancer.

MAURICE: Do you have a philosophy about acting?

BLAKE: The only way you get anywhere in this business is by trying as hard as you can. If you try, everybody tries with you. If you don't try, nobody gives a damn. They let you lie out there and croak.

MAURICE: What is the reaction of your children to you being an actor?

BLAKE: I hope my kids will be more impressed with my acting on the show than with the limousine that picks me up in the morning. I want to give them what I didn't get-a father who can do something.

MAURICE: Do you put any restrictions on your children?

BLAKE: I don't restrict my kids from watching TV. I don't even restrict my kids from punching each other. If my kids went into anything compulsively and heavily at an early age, I'd figure something's wrong with them. If I see a five year old kid doing Mozart twelve hours a day, I'd figure the kid's nuts, or his parents are. So I might put a few restrictions on the kids' lives.

MAURICE: When you were 15, you didn't place any restrictions on your life!

BLAKE: Well let's put it this way. I checked out of life for a considerable length of time. A little booze and dope. I needed something to handle my insecurities and my nutsiness.

MAURICE: If you had one wish, what would you wish for?

BLAKE: I'd wish that I'd be able to give half as much love to my wife that she is giving me.

CONNALLY ADDRESSES CONFERENCE

Western States Urged To Develop Political Clout

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — If Western state don't develop political clout in Washington, the federal government will dictate the development of their vast energy resources, says former Treasury Secretary John Connally.

Connally, also a former governor of Texas, told delegates to a conference on financing Western energy development they must work together "so you'll have the political muscle to have input into national energy policy.

"Having the resources without that political muscle leaves you extremely vulnerable."

Connally delivered the final address as the three-day conference sponsored by the Western Governors' Regional Energy Police Office concluded in Albuquerque Friday.

He said the states west of the Mississippi River produce 96 per cent of the nation's oil, 97 per cent of its gas, 100 per cent of its uranium and contain about three-fourths of the recoverable coal supplies.

"Those of us in the western states are becoming more aware that the future energy resources of the nation are essentially ours," he said. "They're under our lands and waters.

"The consuming states of the East may not fully appreciate what amounts to Western domination of these resources," Connally said. But "with these vast resources, the western states have every right to fairness in their development and distribution."

Past experience, however, indicates the energy producing states may not be treated equitably unless they forces concessions through political power, he said.

"I urge you not to forget that Texas, New Mexico, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Mississippi — the great natural gas producers — have suffered 20 years of punishment at the hands of the Federal Power Commission" which has kept low ceilings on gas prices.

The FPC action has been "aided and abetted by Congressional determination to solve an economic problem by blatantly political methods," Connally said.

He said he is amazed at the sudden national concern over providing federal aid to save New York City from bankruptcy since "we in the West have been subsidizing New York City for 20 years" through federally deflated natural gas prices.

The disparity between producing and consuming states, Connally said, suggests a power struggle between eastern and western states may be in the offing.

He said Americans must develop "a sane, rational policy of national scope which is fair to all of us."

If that fails, he warned, there are two dangerous alteratives:

—"The second conquest of the West by the power of the East;"

-Or "the marshalling of forces by the West to become the OPEC of the North American continent — to hold the East hostage, in effect, through the power of its fuel supplies."

Man Hurt In Road Mishap

Highway Patrolmen investigated two mishaps on area roads Friday.

Early Friday morning, at 1 a.m., a 1972 Ford Pick-up driven by Terry Don Thompson of Midland ran off the road and struck a culvert 17 miles north of Snyder on U. S. 84.

He was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by private vehicle, and admitted for observation.

There was heavy damage to the pick-up.

Friday night at 10:10 p.m. Highway Patrolmen investigated another one-car mishap at the intersection of FM Road 1611 and West Thirtieth Street. A 1968 Oldsmobile driven by William Clyde Bass of 2802 Forty-sixth Street, Snyder, and owned by the Snyder Daily News, failed to stop and ran into an embankment.

There was minor damage to the Oldsmobile.

Mild Earthquake Hits Samar Island

MANILA, The Philippines (AP) — The Philippine weather bureau's seismological division reported a mild earthquake today at Samar Island, about 300 miles southeast of Manila.

There were no immediate reports of damage.

A spokesman said the quake registered an intensity of 2 on the Rossi-Forel scale.

Earthquakes with intensities of 2 to 6 hit scattered areas in the Philippines Friday. Slight cracks in the walls of concrete buildings were reported in Catbalogan, Samar, where the quake registered 6. No injuries were reported.

The spokesman said a quake with an intensity of 4 on the Rossi-Forel scale would be a "feeble shock felt generally indoors," while an intensity of 6 would be a fairly strong shock.

Butter Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Butter production continued to decline in September, dropping to 57 million pounds, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

That was down 3 per cent from August and 11 per cent below September of last year. Cheese production also was smaller, reflecting a decline in total milk output since early this year.

Panel Is Split Over Kissinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says that during his term as presidential national security adviser every covert U.S. intelligence operation received final personal approval from the president.

Kissinger, faced by intensive questioning from members of the House intelligence committee on Friday, denied that he was the one with the final say on covert operations.

"Every operation is personally approved by the president," Kissinger told the committee.

The House committee has been trying to determine for months who ordered such clandestine CIA programs as proposed assassination attempts, wiretappings and opening of U.S. citizens' private mail.

The secretary appeared before the intelligence panel to explain his defiance of a committee subpoena for a memorandum dealing with the Cyprus crisis. After the session, committee members appeared to be split over what to do about Kissinger's refusal to supply the document, but the panel's chairman said he wants to begin steps toward a possible contempt citation against Kissinger.

Committee members questioned Kissinger in detail about his authority in authorizing covert intelligence oprations, with some members of the panel expressing concern that he may have personally had the last word on starting too many secret and often questionable projects.

But Kissinger, saying that during his tenure presidents always had given final approval for such projects, appeared to discredit claims of "plausible deniability" that have insulated former presidents from the responsibility for questionable operations.

Kissinger said that since he came to Washington in 1969 at the start of the Nixon administration, all clandestine operations had received presidential approval. He said he felt this was the case in earlier administrations as well.

The committee had been told Thursday by former State Department intelligence expert James R. Gardner that nearly 40 covert CIA operations had been authorized between 1972 and 1974, largely on Kissinger's authority and without any meetings of a White House panel charged with responsibility for approving such activities.

3 Mishaps Are Reported

City Police investigated three traffic mishaps here Friday.

The first occurred at 12:59 p.m. in the 1800 block of Nineteenth Street. A 1971 Chevrolet driven by Gladys Wright Boyd struck a gas meter. There was moderate damage to the vehicle.

At 7:20 p.m. at the intersection of College Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street, two vehicles were in collision. A 1972 Chevrolet driven by Billy James Cantrell, 3214 Forty-second Street, and a 1968 Pontiac operated by Anita Davis Biggers, 601 Thirty-fifth Street, were involved. Minor damage resulted to both vehicles.

At 9:39 p.m. police investigated a mishap at Twenty-fifth Street and Avenue X. Involved were a 1973 Ford pulling a boat and trailer, and driven by Larry Crutcher of Brownfield, and a 1966 Chevrolet operated by David Leon Frazier of 1811 Avenue T, Snyder. The boat had a hole knocked in the left rear, and the motor had an estimated $200 damage. Damage to the trailer was moderate. The Chevrolet also had moderate damage.

Calendar Topic At Planetarium

The development of our present calendar will be traced in a show in the Western Texas College planetarium this afternoon.

The show is to begin at 2 o'clock and tickets are to be purchased at the planetarium in advance of the show. Admission prices are $1 for adults, 50 cents for students or $2 for family groups. WTC students are admitted free of charge upon presentation of ID cards.

The planetarium is located on the northeast corner of the WTC campus. Persons wishing directions to the planetarium may ask at the information desk in the Museum Building. The museum is to be open from 1-5 p.m. Sunday for a special showing of the works of Bill D. Brooks.

Hay Destroyed In Friday Fire

The Snyder Fire Department was called out Friday night at 10:07 p.m. to a reported hay fire on west Thirty-seventh street behind the water reservoir.

The hay, stacked in a field, was a total loss. It was owned by Aubrey Wilson.

Youth Found Dead In Cell

LITTLE VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — Anthony Barabaro, the 18-year-old youth on trial here for last year's sniper killings of three persons at Olean High School, was found hanged in his jail cell early today, the county coroner reported.

Dr. Harry C. Law, Cattaraugus County coroner, pronounced the youth dead at the jail shortly after 6 a.m. Law later said that young Barbaro had died of strangulation by hanging.

Law said that Barbaro was found hanging by a bedsheet knotted tightly around the youth's neck and attached to the bars of the cell.

He said young Barbaro had left three suicide notes. One was addressed to his family, one to a girl with whom he had corresponded but never met, and one "to whom it may concern."

Law said that an autopsy was being conducted, but it was routine.

Opening arguments were heard Friday in young Barbaro's trial for a Dec. 30, 1974 sniper incident in which three persons were killed and 11 others injured. Barbaro allegedly killed a custodian at the school where he was a student, then gunned down the others from a school window.

Band Parents Meet Monday

The Snyder High School Band Parents Club will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in the High School Band Hall.

All band parents are urged to attend as the club will be planning the annual turkey dinner which will be held Friday, Nov. 14, prior to the Snyder-Brownfield game.

Wayne Monroney, president of the club, urged all parents to attend this meeting to show their support for the Black and Gold Band and to help with functions the remainder of the year.

Theft Cases Investigated

The Snyder Police Department is investigating two thefts.

Neely Thomas Wright reported to police that two coats and a camera were taken from his car Friday while it was parked in the north parking lot at the high school.

Mrs. Nick Timora of 1904 Coleman reported Friday that a small ice chest valued at $28 was taken from her residence between midnight and 8 a.m. Friday morning.

Ropers Invited To Enter Event

Calf ropers are invited to enter the jackpot roping to be sponsored by the Western Texas College Rodeo Club at 7:30 Tuesday night.

The roping will be held in the agricultural building adjacent to the Scurry County Coliseum. Books will open at 6:30 p.m., with entry fees $37 for two head. Persons wishing further information may contact Van Rigby, Rodeo Club sponsor, at WTC by calling 573-8511, extension 216 Monday morning.

The public is invited to attend the roping and there will be no admission charge. Ropings are also scheduled on Nov. 11 and 18.

MEET JOE SENTELL

On the subject of Joe Sentell, he's not a famous baseball slugger like Cobb or Ruth. He's not a .400 hitter, not even a .300 hitter. In fact, he's what's known as a James Bond slugger....007! When this boy comes to the plate, he expects to eat.

Still, if you're fouling out yourself in matters of insurance, why not have a session with Joe Sentell? He'll show you how the ideal coverage can be tailored to your exact need with no fat, no waste. So, if you're in a mood to improve your coverage while cutting costs, have that talk with Joe Sentell. His home plate is 2615 College, Phone 573-3791.

Ted Armstrong Named In Suit

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A $5 million lawsuit has been brought against evangelist Garner Ted Armstrong, whose lawyer has asked the case be heard in U.S. District Court here.

Attorney H. Francis Stewart, Nashville, filed a petition Wednesday asking that a federal judge preside at the hearing of the suit brought by William B. Hinson of Hendersonville, Tenn.

The suit was orginally filed in state court, but Stewart is asking for the change because Armstrong's residence is in Pasadena, Calif.

The complaint Hinson filed contains only one paragraph, alleging Hinson had been wronged because Armstrong "made certain statements and by means of such statements extorted funds and other things of value from the plaintiff."

Niven's Latest "Delicious"

BRING ON THE EMPTY HORSES. By David Niven. Putnam. 369 Pages. $9.95.

Entertainer David Frost often used to use the world "delicious" to describe certain guests on his show. That's the perfect word to describe actor-author David Niven's latest book.

It is truly a deliciously entertaining book, guaranteed to bring plenty of enjoyment to the reader.

Niven has an excellent vocabulary and the talent to blend it into smooth phrases. He also has the memories of moments in his career that obviously were fun to have lived through and just as much fun to have chronicled.

Niven's literary memories of people and events in Hollywood from his days as an extra to those when he became a star have an added flavor that sets "Bring on the Empty Horses" apart from similar books.

There is no "kiss and tell" here. He is writing about long-time friendships and they were friendships with screen legends who also happened to be very interesting human beings — Gable, Garbo, Fairbanks, Bogart and many others.

Niven also writes about other friends — he had no caste system for his intimates — who weren't all actors or stars but were interesting and sometimes intriguing.

Be prepared to laugh at the most unexpected moments as you read through this book. The author has a subtle sense of humor that is sometimes brought to its peak with a flash-flood punchline.

There can be only one criticism: that readers have had to wait so long to discover and enjoy David Niven's delightful literary gifts, in addition to his acting talent.

Skip Internship

CHICAGO (AP) — Today after a medical student gets his MD degree, he often goes directly into residency instead of being an intern, then a resident. Internship is not required today in some medical specialties.

However, says Joseph Ceithaml, dean of students at the University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine, it's a matter of semantics.

"The first post-doctoral clinical appointment year is just that — an apprenticeship in postgraduate medicine, by any name."

This year there are two house staff positions open in the United States for every U.S. medical graduate.

Ceithaml says that the Pritzker School this year offers only one internship program — in internal medicine. He said that the emphasis at the school is on turning out specialists and research physicians. However, the tendency is generally away from the traditional rotating internships in which the new doctor rotates through various hospital medical services, doing a little obstetrics, a little surgery, a little pediatrics, etc.

SURPRISE PARTY—L.T. Mauldin of Route 2, Snyder, celebtated his 85th birthday Oct. 26. A surprise birthday dinner was held in his honor at the Towle Park Barn. Four of his five sons, Gene of Snyder; Raymond of Abilene; and Nolan and Robert of Fort Worth attended, as well as numerous other relatives. Morris, of Roswell, New Mexico, was unable to attend. Hosting the event were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Mauldin and Mr. and Mrs. William Masters, all of Snyder.

Dog Digs Up Man's Wallet

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Trent Luttrell, Bakersfield printer, was plowing his yard when his billfold, containing his driver's license and other valuable papers, fell out of his back pocket and was buried in the dirt.

"I dug in the yard three or four days trying to find it, but never could," Luttrell said. "I thought I would never see it again.

"I hated the idea of having to go into Bakersfield to renew all the papers lost with the wallet. But just before I was ready to take off," Luttrell said, "my part Australian Shepherd went on a digging spree and of course you know what happened. He dug up the wallet. It was a little dirty, but otherwise in good shape."

The driver should frequently check the level of water and oil in his car and he should check the battery fluid as part of the same ritual.

Scotch Eggs Make Tasty Lunch Treat

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Most egg dishes have an elegance that makes them unique. And that, of course, does not include such mundane dishes as eggs fried over with bacon or poached on buttered toast, delicious though they may be.

Eggs in their own right or such allied dishes as cream and bacon quiches make an ideal first course or even main dish for lunch or light supper. And bear in mind that eggs, especially those mixed with cheese, cream or sausage meat can be very filling and often quite rich.

The Chinese have a fondness for eggs and treat them with more ingenuity than we do. One of their specialties is the "thousand-year-old" egg, aged in much the same manner that we age cheese. It is not a thousand years old, of course, but closer to seven weeks. These strange eggs with their white turned black and yolks of greenish-orange can be bought in many Chinese food stores.

But Americans are not devoid of imagination in the egg field. A dish that has won wide favor in this country is Eggs Benedict, a delectable combination of poached eggs and fried Virginia ham atop English muffins and covered with hollandaise sauce. It should be kept in mind that freshness is important in poaching eggs, because once past their prime, they develop watery whites that float free of the yolks when they touch hot water. This can be avoided if you steam the eggs in a poacher, since white and yolk are trapped in the same receptacle.

This accent on freshness does not apply to all egg dishes. Hard-boiled eggs should not be attempted if the eggs are less than four or five days old. Otherwise, even if you plunge them in water when done, the odds are that fresh eggs will be impossible to peel.

Speaking of hard cooked eggs, British pub owners feature a delightful dish known as Scotch eggs, in which hard-boiled eggs are peeled, dusted with flour, coated with country sausage meat and fried in hot oil. Here is a recipe.

6 hard-cooked eggs
2 tablespoons flour
1 pound bulk sausage meat
1½ tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 egg lightly beaten
¾ cup fine dry bread crumbs
¼ cup salad oil

Peel eggs and dust with flour. Mix sausage with Worcestershire sauce, and divide into 6 equal parts. Flatten each portion into a thin oval patty and mould around one egg, making sure there are no cracks in sausage meat. Dip each hard-cooked egg into beaten egg, roll in bread crumbs, patting into place. Heat oil in large skillet. Add eggs, 3 at a time, saute till sausage is cooked; about 7 minutes, turning occasionally. Drain on paper towels and serve hot or cold. Good with tomato sauce. Serve with chilled beer or ale. Serves three persons.

B&PW Told Of Festival

Faye McCollum was hostess for the B & PW dinner meeting at Martha Ann Woman's Club Oct. 28.

Tables were decorated in red, white and blue streamers with miniature flags in mint and nut cups. Carnations of matching colors were the centerpiece.

Members brought miscellaneous gifts for the Big Spring Hospital.

Mrs. Vera McSpadden explained the commemorative coins, medallions, key chains, medals, necklaces and jewelry available for the 1976 Festival. Only 18 of one hundred sets are still avaliable. She read Laverta Lovell's "Tribute to the United States" and idisplayed the coins.

Kate Adams distributed the year books and noted that Florence Leftwich is the only charter member in the club.

Mrs. F. W. Beavers, first acting president, observed that the club will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary this year.

Mrs. Jesse Everett, Pioneer Festival Chairperson, discussed the Pioneer Skills Festival which is to be held in the coliseum next July. She explained that all clubs and organizations are encouraged to have a part in the fun, booths, and displays.

She distributed printed forms for the handwork exhibit and explained that the Festival Committee hoped all groups would sponsor a float and a queen in the rodeo parade next July.

Millionaire Belly Dancer Writes Huge Biography

By DOUG BAILEY
Associated Press Writer

BRADFORD, Pa. (AP) — Tullah Hanley, the millionaire belly dancer who likes to shock people with her frankness about sex, has written a huge biography.

"My love life in a nutshell — 500 pages," she joked during an interview at her storefront home on the main street in Bradford, where she lives surrounded by a million dollars worth of art.

It is a conversational account of the daughter of a former harem girl in Hungary, who found a millionaire husband in the United States and, after living quietly for many years, decided to court celebrity by capitalizing on her well-preserved body and her husband's remarkable art collection. Included are tips on how to improve your sex life and a lot of the one-liners she has been collecting since her birth 49 years ago.

Some samples:

"If you have nothing to hide, then show it. If you have nothing to show, then hide it."

"A rich woman cannot make love to an indigent. At first he wants your body, then he wants your money."

The center piece — and the incident she will be promoting during a national tour this fall — is her account of how she refused a mastectomy after a cancer was discovered on the edge of her breast in 1970. She says the tumor was accidentally found, and removed, in the office of a Hungarian doctor friend in New York. She says she had gone there after being attacked and cut on the street near her apartment.

Subsequently, she says, a team of doctors in Buffalo — Bradford is on the New York state line south of Buffalo — insisted on a mastectomy as a precaution against a secondary tumor and warned her chances of surviving were small if she did not have the surgery.

"My body is my life and I was not convinced the danger was so great," she says. She refused and says all tests since then have been negative. Tullah admits the story is hard to believe. But she argues: "My entire life is unbelievable. No one could invent such stories as have happened to me."

Her publisher, Piper Publishers of Minneapolis, says no effort has been made to verify the story. Paul Piper, who is overseeing the project, said he had known Tullah for several years and never found one of her stories to be wrong.

"Tullah is a genuine eccentric," he said. "She marches to a different drummer. We have to look at her differently than the rest of the world."

Piper said the book would run around 500 pages, depending on how many pictures are included. Tullah has submitted dozens, including some full nudes of herself and a back-view nude of one of the two lovers she says she provided her husband after he stopped making love to her.

Publication is planned this fall. Tullah says she wrote every word herself and Piper backs her up on that. The book's title is to be "Love of Art and Art of Love."

Tullah, a nonstop talker with a voluptuous body kept firm by strict diet and daily exercise, says she wrote the book "because I aspire to inspire before I expire." That's typical Tullahism that isn't supposed to mean much but perhaps provoke a laugh. She has written another book, about the love life of George Bernard Shaw. It was not a best seller.

Since she probably doesn't need the money — she could sell her art, she has gas and oil holdings and some stock in the Hanley family brick factory — the reason probably is her love of publicity. In her book she puts it this way:

"I have a birth defect, a strange malady: chronic, incurable spotlightitis, an itch to stand out."

Tullah lived quietly for almost 20 years after she married her American millionaire, Edward T. Hanley. She was 24 and a belly dancer working in Buffalo. He was 55 and already well on his way to putting together one of the great private art collections in this country.

The paintings, and thousands of rare books and manuscripts, were kept in their modest home here, and Tullah studied art until she became knowledgeable.

In the 1360s, she talked him into exhibiting the paintings and she began her second career as a social shocker, giving tours of the collection dressed in sexy outfits and lots of advice on how to find happiness in bed. After he died in 1969, she gave away substantial portions of the collection and staged some spectacular parties she called "Tullah Happenings." The biggest was in San Francisco where 9,000 attended and Tullah danced with art students decorated only with paint.

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The entire water supply system in your house is placed under heavy strain when there is a pounding or hammering sound as a faucet is shut off. If this condition is permitted to persist over a period of time, severe damage can result, not the least of which is the bursting of a pipe.

Sometimes it is difficult to take immediate action to solve the problem, in which case every member of the family should be instructed to shut off the offending faucet very slowly each time it is used. This will eliminate or minimize the noise, but it should by no means be used as an excuse to avoid a solution indefinitely.

The condition is known as water hammer. It occurs when there are insufficient air chambers or when one or more of them has become filled with water instead of air. An air chamber is roughly a piece of pipe or coil which absorbs the shock when rushing water is quickly halted by the closing of a valve. Occasionally, when water hammer occurs, it can be stopped by shutting off the main water valve to the house, draining the entire system and allowing all the faucets to remain open for a short time. The faucets are then closed and the main valve turned on again. This method sometimes works by releasing the water from the air chambers and permitting air to re-enter them.

In some cases of water hammer, a pipe that is not secured well to a beam or other support will vibrate violently. So, when water hammer is present, you should immediately track as much of the water line as possible and see whether any portion of it is loose. Even a half-inch of play between a pipe and a beam is sufficient to cause noise as the vibrating pipe slams into the wood. See whether a supporting strap or bracket has worked loose and requires readjustment or replacement.

If you can stop the hammer yourself, all well and good. If you can't, you'll need the services of a plumber, who will decide whether to install a new air chamber, shock absorber, pressure reducing valve or one of the various noise-eliminating devices on the market. If you have the know-how, you can handle the job yourself but you'd first better be sure your local regulations permit such an installation.

When the noise coming from the faucet is more of a chatter or squeal rather than a hammer, it could be caused by a defective washer. In that case, turn off the water to the fixture and remove the faucet stem just as you would if changing a worn washer. See whether a piece of the washer has come loose. If so, it may be bouncing around inside the faucet and might be retrieved with a tweezers or something similar. A new washer is, of course, necessary. Select one that fits firmly yet is not too large. No household should be without a box of assorted washers.

Another plumbing noise — a kind of rumble — occurs when the hot water faucet is turned on. It often means the water is too hot. Check the tank heat indicator. If it is set at more than 140 degrees, push it back to that figure and see whether the noise continues. Also, as in the case of water hammer previously mentioned, check to be sure the hot water pipes are solidly attached.

South knew that his four-spade call was a slight overbid. When he saw dummy, the overbid became really apparent. There were two sure diamond losers, one probable club loser and an adverse ace of trumps as the clincher against him.

Still, while there's life there's hope. South gave no indication that he had any problems at all. He won the heart in his own hand and led a small spade.

West thought a while, hopped up with his ace and led the suit back. South won in dummy, cashed dummy's king of hearts and led the deuce of diamonds. South's 10 lost to West's queen. West decided that South held the king of diamonds and that a club shift was imperative. He led the 10 of that suit.

Now it was South's time to think but he solved his problem by playing dummy's jack of clubs to make his impossible game.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know if we ever have occasion to open a two-card diamond suit, when playing five-card majors.

We suppose that the hand he is thinking of is something like:

♠ K J 3 2 ♥ K 9 6 5 ♦ A K ♣ 4 3 2.

With 14 high-card point we are going to open the bidding. We do so with a rather unhappy club, but would not quarrel with an unhappy spade or heart but we would NOT open one diamond.

More Vitamin Users On West Coast

NEW YORK (AP) — According to a recent survey of American vitamin buying habits, households in the three West Coast states of Washington, Oregon and California consume more vitamins than in any other region in the country.

Research conducted by the Metropolitan Research Corporation of American showed that while the West Coast states represented only 13 per cent of U.S. households, they accounted for 26 per cent of the nation's major vitamin users.

The research also indicated that households headed by individuals with 13 or more years of education accounted for 48 per cent of major vitamin users although this group only accounted for 37 per cent of the number of nation's households.

Watch Big B For Happy Marriage

CHICAGO (AP) — Face up to financial reality if you want a happy marriage.

This is the observation of the financial services division of Esmark Inc.

They recommend that young couples especially should heed this advice. "Newlyweds are often more romantic than factual about such matters as money and budgets — but too often they find they cannot live on love alone."

They hasten to point out that budgeting need not be depressing. "It doesn't even mean that a young couple has to pinch pennies and painstakingly mark down every cent spent."

To the contrary, it can be a "togetherness" endeavor for two.

Esmark offers a few tips for playing the game:

Set up good, honest ground rules — and stick to them.

Put aside a certain time each week — or at least twice a month — for the Big B — "Bank Balance and Bills."

Agree not to disagree. Consider each other's wishes and requests — and respect them.

Problems belong on paper — then evaluate, negotiate and meditate.

Laugh a lot — working out minor problems with a sense of humor is healthy.

Esmark says good mental and marriage health can evolve from facing monetary situations together. If the Big B is not on an even keel — some reductions are in order:

Eliminate some spending items — at least for the time being.

Spend less — there are always some things that can be cut back cost-wise.

A big money saver — do-it-yourself home repairs.

Be knowledgeable in the use of credit.

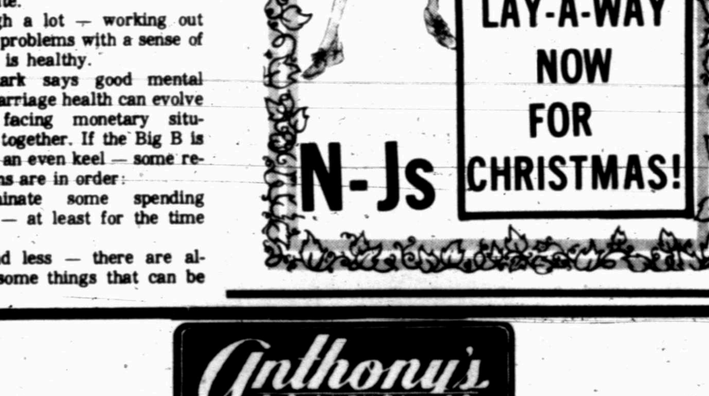

Take advantage of special sales on essentials.

Plan — plan ahead — plan now — but plan.

Don't let money problems break up an otherwise happy home.

A Little About One Or Two Hundred Things

By JEAN EVERETT

INA FARGASON, with a copy of her book of Haiku poetry, "Ghostwood."

By JEAN EVERETT

Ina May Fargason doesn't believe in the saying: "You can't teach an old dog new tricks." She is fully convinced that one is never too old to learn; and she proves it by her interest and involvement in life.

Ina's actions belie the fact that she was 76 years of age this June. "I want to live a long time, but I don't ever want to grow old," Ina states.

There is very little danger that Ina's spirit will ever be "old" as she is too busy for her life to become stale. In addition to being an Abilene Reporter News correspondent, Mrs. Fargason writes poetry, collects historical data, paints, does volunteer work, is an accomplished seamstress, and keeps house for husband Warren.

Mrs. Fargason also inspires younger and less energetic women to follow her example in living. Her husband once said of her (referring to their courtships days and the playing of their favorite game "Snap"): "She was the fastest thing on foot. I just couldn't catch her," She is still in a hurry to do all that she can while she can.

In November of 1970 the Naylor Company of San Antonio released Ina's first book, "Ghostwood," a collection of Haiku poetry. Ina became interested in the Japanese form of verse in 1967 after reading that it always deals with nature themes. She had been writing nature poems since childhood. She began to study the three-line Haiku verse form and found that she could adapt her thoughts to it. After submitting her verses to poetry publications and finding them readily accepted, she began composing them for a book. Sixty-two publications have accepted Ina's poetry; this is in addition to the 58 Haiku verses in her book. This work has all come since Ina retired from the Post Office (she gave 30 years of service there) in 1965.

Honors have come her way, too. In 1969 she received the International Who's Who in Poetry Certificate of Merit from London, England; in 1970 she won 1st place in the World Poetry Day contest (Haiku); in 1971 she received the "Purely Personal" award in Modern Haiku. She is listed in the International Who's Who in Poetry, 1970-71 1972-73; is a current member of the Centro Studi E Scambi Internazionali, Rome, Italy (membership is by invitation only, based on quality of works); and she will have her poem "No Words Needed" published in the 20th Anniversary of that international, well-known poetry collection. She belongs to the Poetry Society of Texas; the Haiku Society of America, the American Poets Fellowship Society; and has received a certificate of lifetime membership in the International Clover Poetry Association, Society of Literary Designates, Washington, D.C.

Most recently, Ina has verse published in the International Spring Anthology (London), 1973; the Clover Collection of Verse by International Poetry Association, Washington, D.C., 1974; and a Galaxy of Verse, New Poetry Magazine, Ft. Worth, 1975. She has also been informed that one of the booklets of poetry celebrating the 20th Anniversary is being dedicated to her.

With such accomplishemnts to her credit, Ina might be expected to rest on her laurels. But no, she is still eager to learn and give of herself. At her insistence, Western Texas College offered a Community Service course in Creative Writing. Out of that class came the Snyder Writer's Guild, a group of people actively engaged in study and submitting their works for publication.

A year or so ago, Ina decided to take up painting, so she joined the Snyder Palette Club. She says she just wanted to see if she could do it—and she could.

Mrs. Fargason also contributed articles to the Scurry County Historical Survey Committee newsletter, Scurryly Speaking. As active members ot that committee she and her husband planned the dedication celebration of the Hermleigh Calaboose and the former townsite of Wheat Historical Markers.

At present, Ina is considering publishing a volume of her religious poetry. A visit with Ina and her poetry gives one an insight as to where she gets her "go." She is deeply dedicated to serving the Lord in all that she does. From her poem "Contrition," we catch a glimpse of her creed:

. . .If there be ego, remove it
lest I lift my head high above the multitude,
forgetting it was the love of God that entitled me to become a child of the King."
and again" fill (me) with pure compassion for all mankind. . ."
Help me to make it beautiful
chalice
filled with love and peace and joy
that is ever overflowing to enrich the lives of all I meet.

Ina has been enriching the lives of all she meets since she was born in Collin County in 1899. She was only three, but she remembers moving to West Texas with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Callis. She remembers, too, "the family altars led by Papa and the love they all had for one another. Mr. Callis made a practice of reading to his daughters from his library. Ina particularly remembers the poetry of Bryant, Longfellow and Ripley. Mr. Callis lived to be 96 years old. While keeping vigil at his bedside, Ina penned a poem about his illness.

Ina's schooling began in a one room building at Camp Springs. She also attended at Bell and Snyder, later taking the county examination for a teacher's certificate; and still later a summer at West Texas State Teachers College. She taught school at Pyron, then took a correspondence course in millinery. She went to Dallas to work as a hat trimmer, thus fulfilling a childhood dream of being a milliner. Ina worked for L.O. Daniels-Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan wholesalers for awhile then went to Colorado City to make hats for a Miss Mills. During that two-year period, W.C. Fargason was making the trip from Hermleigh every week to visit her. He finally persuaded her and they were married on Jan. 8, 1927. They made their home in Hermleigh where Warren was in the grocery business. Mr. Fargason became to Hermleigh postmaster in 1934, a position he held for 25 years. Ina worked as a clerk in the post office and became acting postmaster when her husband retired.

They have three daughters: Mrs. A.D. Groseclose (Frances), a teacher in the Snyder public schools; Mrs. Hope McCarty, a counselor in the Amarillo Schools; and Mrs. Johnye Robertson of Paris, Tex. also a teacher.

Aside from writing poetry, Ina writes historical articles, being a charter member of the Snyder Writer's Guild; she is an active member of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, the Scurry County Historical Commission, the B&PW Club, the Colorado City Chapter of the Poetry Society of Texas and the Hermleigh Baptist Church.

Texas Residential BuildingUp

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Recent rises in residential building activity brought encouragement to the Texas building industry, the Bureau of Business Research says.

A report by Barbara D. Terrell in the Texas Business Review says there was a 25 per cent gain from August to September in residential building activity, which set the highest level for homebuilding since April 1974.

The value of one-family dwelling permits for the first nine months of 1975 was estimated at 14 per cent above a year earlier.

There was a 17 per cent rise in permits last month for multiple-family dwelling, the report said, but on a year-to-year basis values for multiple-family dwellings were still far behind last year's totals.

Thirteen of Texas' largest cities showed increases in the value of nonresidential building for September but only six—Abilene, Amarillo, Brownsville-Harlingen-San Benito, Houston, McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg and Wichita—showed increases for the first nine months of the year.

Nine cities reported month-to-month increases in one-family dwellings for September, and nine—Abilene, Amarillo, Beaumont-Port Arthur-Orange, Killeen-Temple, Laredo, Midland, Odessa, San Angelo and Wichita Falls—had at least a 40 per cent increase on the year-to-year basis.

Merrill's Marauders, sometimes called Merrill's Raiders, were tough U.S. Infantrymen who fought in World War II in the China-Burma-India theater under command of Brig. Gen. Frank Merill.

Remove Radiator Caps With Care

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There is a trick to safely removing the radiator cap from an overheated engine. After the engine has cooled off, protect your hands with rags, avert your face and turn the cap just until the steam escapes. When hissing stops, advises the National Automobile Club, you can remove the cap completely, start the engine and very slowly add water.

84 Year Old Thinks It's Never Too Late

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 84 and my wife is 77. We've been married for six years. It's the second marriage for both of us. First, let me tell you that we're both in excellent health.

My problem is my wife. She makes me feel like a dirty old man every time I approach her for sex. She keeps saying, "We're too old for that stuff. You're a sex maniac and ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

Abby, my first wife and I were married for over 40 years, and we enjoyed a fulfilling, active sexual relationship right up until the time she died. She was in her 70s.

At what age are people supposed to quit having sexual relations?

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: There is no reason why normal, healthy people should not be sexually active as long as they live.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to a military man for 12 years. I started snooping through his things when he was home last and found some love letters from three different women. One lives in the Canal Zone, one lives in Virginia and the other lives in Florida.

All three women are under the impression that he is married but separated from me, which is a lie.

Their letters contain some sickening descriptions of their sexual encounters. The woman in the Canal Zone keeps referring to the "day we can be together forever."

Abby, my husband has told me repeatedly that he loves me, and he has never indicated that he wants out of this marriage.

Some of those letters were written within the last three months. I can't understand how a grown man would continue to keep three women on the string while still married.

Right now he is overseas, but when he gets home I am going to let him have it.

I neither love nor trust him anymore, but I have three children who need a father. What do you advise?

FED UP

DEAR FED: I agree, children do need a father, but a woman needs a husband she can trust and depend upon. Confront your husband with the evidence and ask him for an explanation.

It will take a lot of forgiving and forgetting to restore your marriage. If that's what you want, I hope you're up to it.

DEAR ABBY: We recently attended a beautiful outdoor wedding in a park.

The bride and groom made up their own vows and spoke them aloud to each other, but there was no minister present to pronounce them man and wife.

Is it legal in California for a couple to marry themselves?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: No. And it's not legal anywhere else, either.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is with overly protective parents who aren't mine. Joey and I have been going together for a long time, and we are deeply in love. But because neither of us is of legal age, we're both under our parents' domination.

His parents moved to another city, and even though Joey had a full college scholarship in the city in which I live, his parents refused to let him accept it because they didn't want us living in the same city.

Joey will be 18 the month after school starts. What can he or I do about it?

LOST WITHOUT HIM

DEAR LOST: Nothing until Joey is of age and able to do as he pleases.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Jamaica Program Most Successful

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — One of the most successful programs sponsored by the Jamaica Tourist Board is called "Meet the People."

The year-round operation affords visitors the opportunity of meeting Jamaicans from all strata of society in an atmosphere of informal "family togetherness." Visitors wishing to participate in the program inform their hotels on their arrival on the island, or write or telephone the Jamaica Tourist Board in advance.

Visitors and the Jamaican volunteer hosts are teamed up on the basis of mutual interests such as a career or hobby, and the Jamaicans entertain guests at home with their families taking them driving and sightseeing, golfing, playing tennis, to the beach or for a day in the country.

Marks New State Conservationist

GEORGE C. MARKS

George C. Marks will succeed Edward E. Thomas as state conservationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service effective today, Nov. 2.

Marks, a native of Heidenheimer, is currently state conservationist for Arizona. He began his career with SCS at Rusk in 1950 as a soil scientist and later worked as a soil conservationist and district conservationist at Sulphur Springs, Winnsboro, Jefferson, New Boston, and Corsicana.

From 1964, Marks was area conservationist at Temple. He then moved to Arkansas as an assistant state conservationist. In 1972, he was appointed state conservationist for Arizona. He received awards for outstanding work in 1967 and 1975.

A 1944 graduate of Temple High School, Marks received a bachelor's degree from Texas A&M University in 1950. He served in the U. S. Air Force from February 1945 to August 1946.

Thomas, state conservationist for Texas since 1972, is being promoted to the position of assistant administrator for SCS in Washington, D. C. He entered SCS in 1954 as a soil conservationist at Lubbock and later served as district conservationist and area conservationist at various locations in Texas. In 1968, he was promoted to assistant state conservationist at Temple and to deputy state conservationist at Nashville, Tennessee in 1971. He was assigned to his present position one year later.

Thomas is a 1954 graduate of Texas A&M University where he was a member of the track team. He served as an army officer in Korea from 1954 to 1956.

The first state agricultural college to be chartered was the Farmers' High School of Pennsylvania, incorporated April 13, 1854.

Crop Demonstration

As usual several cotton variety demonstrations are being conducted in Scurry County this year. We would encourage you to visit some of these demonstrations if you are in the area. These will be harvested later and the results made available in our result demonstration handbook. Samples of each variety are collected and sent to Lubbock for analysis and grade. Location of these domonstrations are as follows:

Martin Murphy Farm, 3 miles north and ¾ mile east of China Grove. Varieties included in this demonstration are: GSA-71, Tamcot 37, D&PL-SR-2, Western Stormproof, Lockett BXL and Western 44.

Ford Spikes, 2 miles north of Snyder Cemetery, has a narrow row cotton variety demonstration with Paymaster Dwarf, Tamcot 21, Lockett 4789A, Paymaster 18, and Earlycot 32. A somewhat new concept in cotton production, narrow row cotton has produced well and economical in some areas.

Carl Williams Farm, 4 miles north of Camp Springs has these varieties, Tamcot 788, Tamcot 37, D&PL-SR-1, D&PL-SR1-D & PL-SR-4, Paymaster 202, Paymaster 302, and Lockett 2789A.

Rex Pylant Farm, 3 miles southwest of Fluvanna, has a demonstration with these varieties; Earlycot 31, D&PL-SR-1, D&PL-SR-2, Paymaster 18, Lockett 4789A, Tamcot 21, and Western 44.

Joe Landrum Farm, 2 miles west of Fluvanna has verticillium wilt variety demonstration which has 12 varieties, both experimental and commercial cotton varieties. This demonstration was planted May 9, 1975. Varieties included are: Lockett 77, Paymaster 909, C.A. 1073, Acola 1517-70, Northern Star VR-3, Western 44, CA 614, Paymaster 303, Tamcot 37, Paymaster 303-D-3, Dunn 118, and Tamcot 21.

Per cent infestation of wilt was taken on September 1 and the production will also be taken at a later date.

SCREWWORMS

There has been several cases of screwworms confirmed in Scurry County. This has been a very bad year for screwworms and sterile fly production at Mission has been in full production. Due to the many cases reported, sterile fly drops are being made by air only and as time, available sterile flies, and planes permit.

Producers are encouraged to postpone any surgical operations, if possible, treat all wounds and treat navels of newborn calves.

We have plenty of the mailing cartons for worms and if you have a case of worms we hope you will send in specimens. The more cases we get officially confirmed the more likely we are to receive sterile fly drops.

NEAREST GALAXY TO MILKY WAY

Astronomer Discovers 'Snickers' By Accident

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — A University of Maryland astronomer has discovered by accident what appears to be the nearest galaxy to our own Milky Way — a cluster of about 200 million stars some 55,000 light years from the sun.

Dr. S. Christian Simonson III announced his discovery today in the Astrophysical Journal Letters. He said the galaxy, dubbed Snickers, had previously gone unnoticed because it is hidden from view by dense star fields and cosmic dust clouds.

The galaxy is about one-tenth of 1 per cent the size of the Milky Way, which contains 200 billion stars. It is about 55,000 light years from the sun, a light year being the distance light travels in a year at a speed of 186,000 miles per second.

Simonson said he discovered the body purely by accident.

"As part of a course I was teaching in the spring, we were looking at maps of hydrogen gas in the sky," he explained.

"For six years, I had been noticing this funny looking thing on the maps. After attending a conference on galaxies in Paris last fall, it occured to me it must be from a galaxy."

Last Easter, Simonson set out to determine where the strange gas clouds were coming from.

"I found hydrogen gas was coming from a small galaxy that was being disrupted by the gravitational field of the Milky Way," he said.

Until Simonson's find, the nearest galaxies to the earth were thought to be the Magellanic Clouds, twin galaxies about 205,000 light years away. These galaxies can be seen by the naked eye from the Southern Hemisphere. Snickers, however, is three times closer.

Why was the galaxy named Snickers?

Simonson said several of his colleagues joked that the newly found heavenly body was "like the Milky Way, only peanuts."

Simons said the exact distance from earth to Snickers will be found by finding stars that belong to it.

"This may take a few years," he said.

The astronomer said that knowing the distance to Snickers will also enable scientists to better determine the mass of the Milky Way — "Right now we know it only within 20 per cent."

Simonson said in another 80 million years Snickers will make its closest approach to the Milky Way, but will still be several thousand light years away from the larger body. The passage, however, will result in stars on Snickers' outskirts being torn away. Simonson said when the galaxy again sweeps out into intergalactic space, it will be about 20 per cent smaller than before.

He said an outright collision will be avoided because the Milky Way actually sits on an angle parallel to Snickers, "almost like it was intended that the smaller galaxy would pass virtually unmolested underneath."

In the 1950's scientists discovered six such dwarf galaxies like Snickers near more distant, larger galaxies, but none of those contained hydrogen gas. Simonson said Snickers appears to be the first galaxy located purely through radio telescopic observations of hydrogen gas.

Discussion Set On Boll Weevils

Scurry County cotton producers will have an opportunity to begin an organized effort to control the boll weevil and its damage at a meeting to be held Thursday, Nov. 6, in south meeting room of the Scurry County Coliseum beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Emory Boring, Entomologist with the Texas Agri. Extension Service, will discuss the control programs presently recommended, especially the diapause or fall spray program.

Charles Holt, Texas Dept. of Agriculture, will explain State participation in an organized control program.

Following these two discussions producers will have an opportunity to express their opinions on a control program. If the majority of the cotton producers attending favor an organized control program, representatives from over Scurry County will be elected to form a board of directors to make plans for an organized effort to control the pest.

Billy Roach, local County Extension Agent, urges all cotton producers to attend this meeting. Results of the fall spray program under the direction of the High Plains Cotton Growers in the Fluvanna Area can readily be seen this year by the excellent crop and minimal damage from the boll weevil. An organized weevil control program for the county can drastically reduce the damage caused by this pest. An effective control program will require a 100 per cent participation by producers.

'Manson' Film Could Have Effect On Squeaky's Trial

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The documentary film "Manson," banned by a judge as prejudicial to the case of Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, takes a superficial look at the so-called Manson family, but nonetheless contains scenes that could affect an individual's opinion of the murderous clan.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride called it "extremely prejudicial" and ordered "Manson" not be shown in 26 counties of Northern California until a jury is selected and sequestered in the trial which begins next Tuesday in Sacramento. The American Civil Liberties Union is appealing the decision.

A viewing of the 5-year-old documentary, filmed during and just after the notorious Charles Manson mass murder trial, shows the judge has a point.

Manson and three women codefendants were sentenced to prison on their convictions for the murder of actress Sharon Tate and six others in the Los Angeles area in 1968.

Potential jurors could easily be influenced by the film which shows the defendant fondling guns and knives and living in the Manson commune which spawned the Tate killers.

Miss Fromme, 27, is charged with attempting to assassinate President Ford when she allegedly threatened him with a loaded .45-caliber pistol as Ford was shaking hands Sept. 5 in a park area outside the California state capitol. The gun did not discharge, and police said no cartridge was found in the chamber.

She has pleaded innocent, and an issue at her trial is likely to be whether she knew how to handle the gun she carried.

Thus, the most significant scene in the film "Manson" is one in which Miss Fromme strokes a rifle and says, "You have to make love to it. You have to know it ... know it so you can pick it up any second and shoot."

But it is not only her own words which might impress a jury. Miss Fromme's longtime roommate Sandra Good, also a Manson follower, looks into the camera and says, "You kill whoever gets in your way. This is us."

Such a statement would not be admitted as testimony in a court of law, at least not without cross-examination of the witness.

The movie audience is not told whether the participants were paid for appearing, whether they worked from a script and how much they were reacting to being filmed. Some scenes — such as one in which the camera follows the women on a "garbage run" to fetch food from trash cans — were apparently prearranged.

The film will be distributed in other areas by its producer Robert Hendrickson.

The movie provides a fascinating if superficial record of the offbeat clan which became a symbol of evil in California.

Manson, imprisoned under several life sentences, is seen in film clips taken before, during and after his trial, his appearance shockingly altered from bearded, shaggy-haired clan leader to a pale, emaciated figure in baggy prison blues, his head shaved bald and a swastika carved on his forehead.

He is also described through the words of followers who talk of him as a Christ-like figure and recount their devotion to him.

"We gave up our thoughts, our whole lives," says one former follower.

"I'm ready to die for Charlie," says Miss Fromme at one point. "He's died for me ... anybody can die anytime."

There is a brief recounting of Manson's life, his rejection by a prostitute mother, years in reform schools and prisons and finally his evolution into a leader of a roving "family" of youngsters collected on the fringes of the hippie culture.

But throughout the film, his three women codefendants in the Tate slayings are only vaguely explained. The viewer is told that Leslie Van Houten was a homecoming queen, Patricia Krenwinkel a Sunday school teacher and Susan Atkins a shy teen-ager. But what strange combination of events changed them into murderers? The movie does not say.

This absence of explanation is the film's chief flaw. The Manson trial provided ample evidence of and testimony about the factors which transformed these average American young women. The key factor, so many witnesses said, was the use of hallucinogenic drugs.

In the movie, drugs are mentioned, with the use of special effects to try to simulate their mind-altering effects. But the drug "trips" are seen only as a kinky facet of life with Manson. There is no mention of the women's own testimony that they killed while under the influence of drugs.

The viewer is not told about the special traumas of each girl's adolescence and Manson's con-wise ability to exploit their immaturity and psychological wounds.

Ironically, Miss Fromme is only a supporting player. Her origins are barely touched.

The Manson family story, as the movie clearly shows, was the story of the '60s "flower power" movement gone sour, the story of runaways and the drug culture. It terrified a nation which saw that these could be the kids next door.

Why, everyone asked, did it happen?

The movie, "Manson," documents the Manson family life style — foraging for garbage, bathing under waterfalls at the Spahn Ranch and singing Manson-composed songs. And it shows kids who became killers.

But it ignores some known answers to the most enduring question of the Manson saga — why?

Encephalitis Confirmed

HOUSTON (AP) — Health authorities say one additional confirmed case and seven more suspected cases of encephalitis have been reported.

Since the 1975 outbreak of the disease in Harris County Aug. 27, there have been 23 confirmed cases, including one known death, and 49 suspected cases.

Authorities said Friday the latest confirmed case of the mosquito-borne disease is a 23-year-old California woman who is believed to have contracted the disease while attending a religious meeting here in late August.

Texas Skies Are Cloudy

By The Associated Press

November dawned cloudy over most of Texas today, and forecasters expected rain over the central and eastern portions.

Temperatures were unseasonably warm for November. Corpus Christi registered 75 in the early morning hours.

A cold front nudged its way into Texas through the back door this morning and sent temperatures in Northwest and Far West Texas into the low 40s. Forecasters said the front will be moving toward the southeast today.

Welcome Slayton

SPARTA, Wis. (AP) — A crowd of 10,000 persons turned out to welcome astronaut Donald "Deke" Slayton back home officially.

Slayton, one of the original seven U.S. astronauts, finally got into space as a member of the Apollo-Soyuz mission last summer. His official welcoming home had been delayed while he underwent surgery for a lung tumor.

"I have no major pronouncements, but it's good to be back home," Slayton, 51, said at a news conference prior to the parade. "It's always good to be back in Sparta."

Police Chief David Kemp called the welcoming crowd Sparta's largest since the city's centennial celebration in 1951.

At the news conference, Slayton recalled viewing Wisconsin while orbiting the earth with two other astronauts and two cosmonauts in the joint U.S.-Russian mission last summer.

Jack Dempsey Out Of Hospital

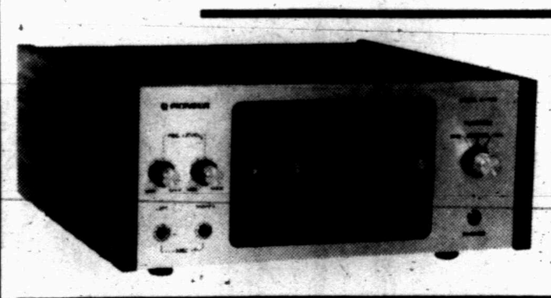

NEW YORK (AP) — Former world heavyweight boxing champ Jack Dempsey has been released from New York University Hospital after a week's stay for a mild stroke.

The "Manassa Mauler," who held the title from 1919 to 1926, had entered the hospital early last Saturday.

WTC COACH OPTIMISTIC

Dusters Look Strong Again

Dr. Sid Simpson, athletic director at Western Texas College and head basketball coach of the Dusters, the women's basketball team, is unusually optimistic.

In times past, the veteran coach has been pessimistic when asked about his teams, but this year he was all smiles and downright enthusiastic when he described the eandidates for the Dusters' this season.

In fact, Dr. Simpson went so far as to say they could repeat as Western Conference champions. Last year's squad posted a 16-5 record and also was runnersup in the Region V Tournament.

Simpson admits the Western Conference will be stronger this year, but he says the Dusters should be greatly improved.

They have three returning lettermen off last year's squad, including Theresa Beal, 5-10 soph from Coahoma; Marilyn Payton, 5-11 soph from Lubbock; and, Dale Mitchel, 5-7 soph from Coahoma.

Mitchel was a starting guard last season and could be in the starting alignment when the Dusters meet Angelo State there Nov. 10 in the season opener. Beal, a starting post last season, has been moved to forward. She's perhaps the best inside defender on the team and also can play post. Payton was a starting forward last year. In fact, Payton and Beal both made All-Conference last season and will be candidates for national honors this year. They are co-captains.

"We've got good depth this year, and the girls' attitude is good," declared Coach Simpson.

"This is the most unselfish group of players I've ever coached in about 25 years of coaching," he said.

Continuing in the optimistic vein, Simpson said 13 or possibly 14 of the 16 girls on this year's squad could have won a starting berth last year.

Simpson said his main concern is the fact that only the three lettermen have varsity experience. The others are all freshmen playing full court basketball for the first time. Also, the post position appears to have less depth than the other berths.

"We're also playing a much tougher schedule this year," said Simpson. He pointed out the Westerners will play Panola, Tyler Junior College, Navarro JC and the nationally-famous Wayland Flying Queens.

The other teams in the Western Conference also should be improved. Simpson expects the Dusters' toughest opposition to come from South Plains, although Clarendon also will be improved. Howard College also could be improved.

But, getting back to Simpson's optimism. There are several other reasons for it. Nine of the Freshmen made All-District or higher in high school last year.

Rosemary Scott, 5-8 guard from Slaton, made the Class AA All-State team two years in succession. She may be the best shooter on the team.

Tootie Stevenson, 5-8 guard from Seagraves, was All-District three times and Class B All-State. She has exceptionally good moves to the basket.

Patty Hulme, 5-7 forward from Coahoma, made the Class AA All-State team. Temi Baker, 5-8 forward from Knox City, was named to the All-State Class A team. Karen Arp, 5-9 forward from Ropesville, was named to the second team All-State of Class B.

Becki Cranford, 5-5 guard from Greenwood, was All-District three times, and Brenda Jurecek, 6-2 post from Eola, was All-District. Debbie Young, 5-6 guard from Haskell, and Barbara Denman, 5-9 post from Hobbs, also made All-District. Debbie is perhaps the best outside defensive player on the team.

Some girls with good natural ability round out the squad. They include Annie Tillman, 5-10 post from Lubbock; Cindy Cowart, 5-8 forward from Shallowater; Marilyn Martin, 5-6 forward from Matador; and, Tonya Crenshaw, 5-5 guard from Merkel.

Simpson said he plans to run a single post offense to make use of depth and ability at forwards. Defensively, the Dusters will use a basic man-to-man pressure defense, but sometimes shift into a full court zone press or a half-court 1-3-1 trap.

The three lettermen probably will be joined in the opening alignment by Rosemary Scott at guard and Annie Tillman at post. However, Coach Simpson said it's too early to definitely name a starting alignment since competition is close and all of the girls are being considered.

"I'm looking forward to the start of the season," said Coach Simpson. "The attitude of these girls is great."

Simpson will be assisted again this year by Mickey Porter. Student manager of the team is Vickie Berryman.

'The Juice' Closing In On 1,000 Yards

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"I enjoy football and I'm enjoying it this year," says O.J. Simpson, "and if I play next year, it will be because I enjoy playing football."

The magnificent running back of the Buffalo Bills plays it like nobody else. No other runner in the National Football League is even close to gaining 600 yards this season—but Simpson is on the threshold of hitting 1,000.

He needs only 89 yards Sunday against the New York Jets to hit it at the halfway mark of the season. If he does, the speculation will begin anew that he'll be on his way to another 2,000-yard season.

And it appears likely he'll get the 100. He had an even 200 against New York on the final day of the 1973 season when he hit 2,003. And he has had three other 100-yard-plus games against them.

In Sunday's other games, it's Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Houston at Kansas City, Cleveland at Baltimore, Dallas at Washington, New England at St. Louis, Minnesota at Green Bay, Miami at Chicago, Atlanta at New Orleans, Oakland at Denver and Detroit at San Francisco. On Monday night it's Los Angeles at Philadelphia.

San Diego played the Giants in New York on Saturday.

To look at the statistics of this season and recent years, you'd think Simpson's future could be measured in miles rather than yards. But hearing him leaves the impression that there might not be too many yards left.

"I can't go on much longer," he says. "I'm 28 now and I look around at the other backs who came in with me and they're all limping around. I think about Gale Sayers and I see Calvin Hill and Larry Brown and I realize what can happen."

What O.J. would like to happen would be to see his name on a long-term motion picture contract. "There are movie deals that you sign for a certain number of pictures over a certain number of years and that's what I'm looking for," he says. Something else he's looking for is membership on a championship team. "Winning a Super Bowl would just make it easier to leave."

Simpson has amassed 7,217 yards in his career. With another 100 Sunday, he would would move past Leroy Kelly into fourth place among all-time NFL rushers behind only Jim Brown, Jim Taylor and Joe Perry.

Finishing this year the way he started it and playing another good full season could move him past Taylor and Perry—but Brown's 12,312 career yards seems unattainable unless he does an about-face and plays perhaps four or five more years.

But don't expect it. "I've never thought about records, even in college," he observes. "I never thought I'd play this long. I looked for five good years—and this will be my fifth good year."

Air Force junior defensive end Rod Staponski of Kansas City is the younger brother of Virgil Staponski, cocaptain of the Falcons' 1970 Sugar Bowl team.

Cardinals Fall, 47-19

HERMLEIGH—The hosts had their hands full here Friday night as McCaulley ran past the Cardinals 47-19.

End Joe Don Williamson scored two touchdowns for Hermleigh, with TD receptions of 60 and 20 yards from quarterback Wesley Kruger.

Carroldon Burleson added Hermleigh's other touchdown on an end sweep which covered 40 yards. Larry Bridges caught a pass in the end zone for the extra point.

Alton Hawthorne led McCaulley with four touchdowns on runs, and Robert Morales passed to Max Kemp for three others.

With the loss, the Cardinals fall to 1-2 in District 4-B six-man play, and are now 2-6 on the year.

Next week they entertain Ira.

Talbert-Staubach Feud Is Reignited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diron Talbert, defensive co-captain of the Washington Redskins who comes from Texas, doesn't particularly care for the Dallas Cowboys. He cares less for quarterback Roger Staubach.

The six-year Talbert-Staubach fued is being reignited as the Cowboys come to the nation's capital for a game Sunday with the Redskins in a matchup of National Football Conference East Division contenders.

Talbert, who always plays like a whirlwind against Dallas, has his sights set on Staubach—Roger the Dodger.

"That's about it," said Talbert. "He's still running around with the ball. He still hasn't learned how to read coverages and he still has to scramble. If he runs, we'll take shots at him and bring him down just like we would any running back.

"We welcome the shotgun," Talbert said. "We know he's going to pass the ball. There's no play-action. There are very few runs off it. We know he's back there to throw the ball, so we can just take off.

"The only reason they put in the shotgun is to give him time to read the defenses," he continued, echoing the comments of Washington Coach George Allen. "He's been in the league seven years and he still doesn't know how to read very well.

"They do everything they can to help him. They call the plays for him and now they've gone to the shotgun so it'll be easier for him to read the defenses. They're trying to help him every year."

The Talbert-Staubach rivalry goes back at least to the championship game of 1972. Staubach was injured late in the year but started anyway against the Redskins. After the Washington 26-3 victory, Talbert said he thought Craig Morton would have done a better job.

Staubach never forgot Talbert's comments. He replayed that loss to Washington more than any game of his career.

"Next time they'll have to kill me," said Staubach. "I'm not one to mix words with anybody, but I saw what they said and next time they'll have to kill me."

Last season, the matter surfaced again when Staubach went out with a concussion early in the third quarter, with the Redskins leading 16-3 at Dallas. Talbert had said before the game that the idea in any war was to knock out the general.

Rookie quarterback Clint Longley, making his NFL debut, came in dramatically to riddle the Redskins with 203 yards passing, including the game winning 50-yard touchdown pass to Drew Pearson with 28 seconds left. Dallas won 24-23.

"I had to eat a lot of crow pie after that one," said Talbert, "but if it happens again I hope we play a hell of a lot better. The kid came in and did a good job. You've got to give him credit. He may be the best quarterback they've got. He looked pretty poised to me, sitting back there in the pocket. He didn't scramble. The guys blocked for him pretty good. Guys don't mind blocking for him since they know he's going to be sitting back in the pocket."

Corbell Leads Ira Past Hobbs, 35-6

HOBBS—Ira's Royce Corbell scored three touchdowns on runs, and passed and kicked extra points here last Friday night to lead the Bulldogs past the host Panthers, 35-6 in 4-B six-man action.

Ira tallied first in the game on an eight-yard run by Corbell. The speedy halfback then passed to end Keith Clements for the bonus point. End Myron Calley scored six points on an end-around that covered 20 yards. The Bulldogs final points in the first quarter came when Corbell and defensive end Joe Sanchez tackled a Panther running back in the end zone for a safety.

Hobbs tallied first in the second period, on a pass from quarterback Mike Martin to Mark Anderly coming out of the backfield which span 29 yards for a touchdown.

The Bulldogs came back with Corbell going over for the touchdown from the one-foot line. The TD capped a lengthy drive that started back at the visitors 22. Corbell came back shortly after, and scored a touchdown on a five-yard sweep, to give the Bulldogs a 27-6 halftime margin. The only score in the second half came in the fourth frame, when Ira's quarterback, Joe Hall, scored on a three-yard keeper play to cap a 35-yard drive. Corbell added the bonus points from placement.

Ira coach Patrick Sadler singled out Sanchez as outstanding defensively, and Calley offensively.

"It was a spotty performance, but they did a fair job," the coach explained. "It was a lot better than the past four ball games we have had."

With the win, the Bulldogs picked up their first district victory, and stand now at 1-2. On the year, they evened their record at 4-4.

Next week, the Bulldogs will journey over the Hermleigh to play the Cardinals in another District 4-B six-man contest.

'Cats Nudge Gail, 24-22

GAIL—The Wellman Wildcats scored in the fourth quarter here last Friday night to give them a 24-22 victory and Borden County its third district loss.

The Wildcat scores came on touchdown passes from Hector Munez, and a two-yard run in the final period by Larry Newsom.

The Coyotes are now 1-3 in District 1-B eight-man play, and 5-3 on the year. Wellman upped their record to 3-1 in district play.

Seventh-ranked Gorman played Blanket Saturday night and No. 9 Charlotte was idle.

Vol Linebacker Is Suspended

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Steve Poole, a middle linebacker, has been suspended indefinitely from Tennessee's football squad for violation of training rules, Coach Bill Battle said Friday.

"He will not play against Colorado State Saturday and will be on the 'B' team next week," Battle said. "After next week, I will reconsider his return to varsity status." Battle would not elaborate on reasons for Poole's suspension.

Poole, a senior from Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga., will be replaced by Greg Jones, 222-pound sophomore from Bristol, Tenn.

Bum Phillips Has Those Houston Boys Revved Up

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — As Oail Andrew "Bum" Phillips walks down the sidelines wearing his western cut suit and powder blue cowboy boots, he could easily be mistaken for a guy who missed the last pickup truck back to the ranch after a Saturday night in town.

But take another look.

Underneath that country boy exterior—complete with Texas twang and a wad of chewing tobacco swelling one jaw—lies the mastermind of the Houston Oilers' three-man front defense that has been the backbone of the Oilers en route to their 5-1 record.

Furthermore, this galoot is the head coach and general manager of the surprising Oilers, who are shamelessly battling unbeaten Cincinnati and defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh for the American Football Conference's Central Division lead.

Phillips and his predecessor as head coach, Sid Gillman, present a Dr. Jeckyl and Mr. Hyde contrast.

While Gillman whipped the Oilers back to a 7-7 record last season with tongue lashings and computer read-outs, Phillips gets the job done with man-to-man communication and country wisdom.

"You can lead me a lot farther than you can drive me, so I figure the players are the same way," Phillips said.

Phillips, who started his career in coaching as a B team coach at Nederland High School also offers contrasting opinions of many football proverbs.

"Winning football games is important but I don't think it's the only thing," Phillips said. "There's a lot more in the world a helluva lot more important."

Phillips also shuns training camp scrimmages, long workouts during regular season and doesn't time players after they're signed.

"We almost cut G. L. Whittington from our squad last year because he wasn't as fast as some of the others," Phillips said of his cornerback and specialty teams standout. "But in a game, he outruns those guys who beat him in practice."

Phillips draws on his country background to describe his team's performances, often confusing both players and members of the news media.

After Houston's narrow victory over Washington, a young reporter returned from a dressing room interview with Phillips, a look of puzzlement on his face.

"I don't know what he meant but he said the Oilers had a lot of chances to let their milk drop," the reporter said, scratching his head.

Phillips meant that the oilers had chances to give up in the game but his expression took more explanation.

"You know what that is," Phillips chuckles. "It's a country expression. You know, give up. In other words, that's what a cow does when you go to milk her. She just don't want to give up to start with."

Oiler receiver Jerry LeVias, who later was cut from the team, complained during training camp he couldn't understand Phillips.

"This is a great training camp except for one thing, I can't understand the coach," LeVias joked. "Right now I'm trying to find out what he means by "happy as a June bug on a hot rock."

Michigan School Hasn't Lost A Game Since '68

HUDSON, Mich. (AP) — Hudson is Main Street, U.S.A. But it is about to set itself apart from the rest of small-town America.

Hudson, population 2,546, could be any small town in any state. What sets it apart is a high school football team that hasn't lost a game since the opening of the 1968 season.

Hudson is the old stone library on Church Street with the museum, financed by Andrew Carnegie, in the basement. It is the 117-year-old weekly newspaper, the Hudson Gazette. It is the "Happiness is Hudson" motto on the city limit sign. And the muscular young man painting one of the old gabled houses.

On Friday Hudson moved within one of tying the national high school football record of 71 consecutive victories set by Jefferson City, Mo., 1958-66. Hudson beat Bronson 30-0 for its 70th consecutive victory in Class C football.

The last time Hudson lost was the 1968 season-opener to Blissfield. In 1967 they also lost the opener to Blissfield, then won the rest.

Friday's opponent is Hillsdale, which lost to Bronson earlier this season. Should Class C—357-703 pupils—Hudson beat the Class B—704-1432 pupils—opponent in the away game, it might not get a chance to break the record until the opener next season—against Blissfield.

There is a chance the Tigers could qualify for the first state playoffs in modern history and play a tough opponent on Nov. 15.

Coach Tom Saylor figures the school wouldn't make much money by playing the record-breaking game in the playoffs and would rather wait until next year. "But we have to play," he said. "We love football. Why shouldn't this group's seniors be given a chance to break the record?"

Should Hudson break the mark, the next hurdle would be the 82-game unbeaten streak of Bedford County Training School in Tennessee, which tied four games during the streak from 1943-50.

Of the thousands of high schools in the country, how did Hudson—some 10 miles from the Ohio border just south of Jackson—become a winner?

"Football is an institution here. It always has been," said John Monahan, owner of the Bi-County Herald, a shopper.

"Fathers and mothers are interested in it and because of that their kids are interested. I think you could almost call it hereditary — football at Hudson. Our kids grew up with a football in their hands."

A front-page story in the Gazette's first issue, published March 26, 1858, suggests an attitude that remains today: "It is a noticeable fact that boys under twenty constitute a majority of all ordinarily engaged in broils and riots. This results from the neglect and bad influence of careless and criminal parents and from the inefficient provision made for the education and care of street children."

WTC Golfers In Tie For Second

ODESSA—Western Texas College's golf team fired a 313 on the par 288 Odessa Country Club course here Friday to finish in a three-way tie for second place in the fifth Western Conference Golf Tournament.

Odessa College finished first with a four-stroke better total of 309. Midland College and Howard College tied for second with WTC. New Mexico Junior College was fifth with a 327.

Other team totals were Amarillo College 328; Frank Phillips College and South Plains College 346; and New Mexico Military Institute and Clarendon College 349.

Individually, WTC was led by sophomore Ross Wortham who carded a 76, for runner-up medalist honors. Other individual scores were Arnold Madril 77, Grant Collyns 80, Brown McCrory 80, and Dave Foster 83.

The Wranglers' win increased their margin in first place in the conference to four points, and gave them a 45-point total on the year.

Midland College is in second place in the conference with 41 points, half a point ahead of Western Texas which has 40½ points. Howard College is in fourth with 33, and Amarillo College fifth with 31½.

On Thursday Western Texas College finished in a tie for third in the fourth Western Conference Golf Tournament with 305 at the Ranchland Country Club course in Midland.

Odessa placed first with a 300 on the par 284 course. Midland College fired a 304 to place second and nudge out the Westerners and Amarillo College by one stroke. South Plains College was fifth with a 310.

Other team totals were NMJC 314; HC 315; Clarendon 326; NMMI 327; and Frank Phillips 328.

Individually, Western Texas was led by Sophomore Grant Collyns, who fired a 73 for runner-up medalist honors. Other individual scores were McCrory 75, Foster 77, Madril 80, and Wortham 80.

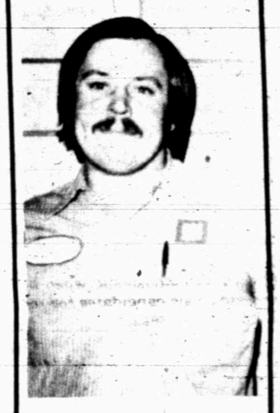

In conference play on the year following this meet, Odessa was in first with 35 points, Midland College second with 33, WTC third with 32½, Amarillo College fourth with 26½, and Howard College fifth with 25.

The loop meet on Friday was played in a sandstorm with winds gusting 40 to 45 miles per hour out of the south.

This closes the fall conference golf schedule with five more in the spring. WTC will close out the fall schedule by participating in the 54-hole Jimmy Demaret Tournament next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in Brownsville. There will be three divisions, 15 major colleges, 15 junior colleges, and 15 high schools. It will be played on three championship golf courses.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Persons who are overweight have to expend more effort to walk, stand, breathe, or even to sleep than slimmer persons. This 'cost of living' for the obese shows up in higher blood pressure, faster heart rates, and rapid breathing patterns, says a team of U. of Wisconsin medical researchers. Their tests with normal men weighing 165 lbs. and fat men of 300 lbs. riding a stationary bicycle showed that fat men had to work much harder to perform the same task. Excess weight not only threatens ones health and life span, but many of the pleasures of an active life are missed because the exertion is just too much to abide.

Women Step Down In Exline

EXLINE, Iowa (AP) — Mayor Jessmaria Steele and members of her all-women city council are stepping down and leaving the government of this town of 225 to the men.

"The menfolk thought the womenfolk had run the town long enough," Mrs. Steele said. "And I'm 79. I'm ready to stick to my rocking chair and let the men take over."

She first took office in 1969, and women won three of the five council seats after they charged the all-male government had failed to keep weeds cut in Exline, a south-central Iowa town five miles from the Missouri line.

Two years later, the four women incumbents and two other women were elected without opposition and all were re-elected in 1973.

Mayor Steele says the women have kept the weeds cut, renovated the city hall, added land to the city cemetery and park and have made arrangements for a city water system.

"And we've taken care of the streets and all the other things that councils do," she added.

The women are not running for re-election in Tuesday's election, leaving the all-male slate unopposed.

"It was time to let the men have a chance," said council member Pauline Printy. Her husband, Alvin, is a candidate for the council.

"I thought it'd be a good idea for my wife to run again, but the ladies didn't want the jobs any longer, and a bunch of the neighbors wanted me to run," Printy said.

Eugene Albright is the only candidate for mayor. He said he learned of his candidacy "when I got home from a trip, found out the women weren't running and neighbors had put my name on the ballot."

"It just remains to be seen if the men will do as well," said Mayor Steele. "I wish them well."

Lines Warn Of Flash Floods

HONOLULU (AP) — Can a telephone call outrace a surging, destructive flash flood?

Yes. "Hawaii has recorded an average of five serious flash floods a year since 1965," says Edward M. Carlstead, meteorologist in charge of the National Weather Service's office here.

The Hawaiian Telephone Co. provides 22 special telephone lines to remote rain gauges in the island chain to gather detailed reports on rainfall for the Weather Service.

Dr. Lamb

First child ended 'magic'

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I've got to talk to someone, and I just can't talk to any of my family about my problem. To use the old phrase, the magic has gone out of our marriage, and I don't know why.

I'm 22, and Tom and I were married two years ago. Our first child is nine months old, and he may be the only child we have if I get my way. As far as I'm concerned sex is for the birds and bees, and they can keep it.

Tom and I were very much in love, and we thought we would have a perfect marriage. We both enjoyed sex, and the first year of our marriage was really great. He was everything you could ask for in a lover. I guess we did well not to have a baby sooner. We even had a super time during most of my pregnancy.

Everything has changed since the baby was born. I had always thought a child would make a marriage better, but it has ruined my marriage. We both wanted children very much. I thought it would be really super to have a little Tom and to know that my child was going to be part me and part the man I really loved.

From the day I came home from the hospital, it has been a nightmare. I never dreamed that one small child could take up so much time and energy. It is really a full-time, 24-hour-a-day job. I'm so tired I could drop. Tom helps as much as he can, but I have the responsibility all day and the feeling is always there.

We still have sex, but it isn't the same. I'm not frigid, and I always respond without any problem. It is just that it isn't romantic any more, and I'm too tired to enjoy it. I know that I look tired and suspect that my husband sees a lot of better looking women at work than I am now.

Just what is wrong with me? My doctor has examined me for my feeling of being tired, and he says I'm all right, and it is normal to be tired when you have to care for achild. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER— You were right to have a checkup to be sure you had no medical cause for fatigue, such as a severe anemia.

I am afraid your experience is not unique. Many a woman enters marriage with a romantic idea about a rosy future. The first child and each subsequent child makes her life harder. The day-to-day care of children may be demanding but may not require much intellectual effort. The day becomes void of experiences you once enjoyed and counted on to fill your days with riches you could share with your husband.

The fatigue, mental stagnation and responsibility combine to alter one's attitude toward sex and often one's mate.

There are several things young people can do to avoid this all too frequent trap. First, wait a while after marriage to have children. Have a longer period of time to enjoy each other and build mutually rewarding experiences. During this period you can improve your financial position so you won't have added unpaid debts or other problems that new responsibilities make worse. If you save enough you can better afford to alter your life style and not be trapped.

You can become one of those other working women that you think are more glamorous than you are. A wife often needs the outside stimulation of a job. A woman who has learned some skill before marriage is better able to do this. With both parents working you can better share the responsibility of child-rearing.

These are just a few thoughts. The frequency of your problem has a lot to do with new life styles that have been appearing in our society and experimentation on what works best for couples rather than the old stereotypes. Finding the style that suits both you and your life-time partner is part of the challenge of a modern marriage.

DEAR DR. LAMB— My husband is 63, weighs about 100 pounds and is 5-feet-7. He drinks beer 365 evenings a year and eats very little. He has diarrhea periodically every day and night. I tell him he has no solid food in him to stop his diarrhea and his food gushes straight through his system. How much longer can he live this way?

DEAR READER— Diarrhea can be caused by excess, persistent use of alcohol. A large number of medical illnesses and disorders are actually caused by alcohol. The cause of the problem may go unrecognized because the patient doesn't think his or her alcohol habit is important. And sometimes the doctor is not as alert to the wide spectrum of problems alcohol can cause. You might be interested in reading more about the effects of alcohol on the body. Just address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer.

Many people do not realize that a daily intake of alcohol, short of being stoned, is part of alcoholism. I am talking about the person who drinks four to six cocktails or beers a day. He will not be identified as an alcoholic, but his performance and his health may be seriously affected.

Diarrhea in some people, from such levels of daily intake of alcohol, is not just because of the liquid diet, far from it. Liquid is absorbed and eliminated through the kidneys. The diarrhea is caused by the toxic action of alcohol itself on the digestive tract.

DEAR DR. LAMB— In several of your articles you mention avoiding permanent nerve damage. I would like to know what occurs with permanent damage, beyond not having any feeling in a given area.

My left thumb is numb and has been for two years. The top of my right foot has been numb for three years. I have had surgery twice on my back. To what extent can this get worse?

DEAR READER— Since you don't state why you had back sugery I can't really tell you what to expect. However, I can tell you about nerve damage.

The brain and spinal cord are called the central nervous system, and once you destroy a nerve cell here it won't work again or be replaced. You can have swelling and minor injuries that heal, but you can't regenerate the cells.

The nerves coming out of the spinal cord and going to your legs for motions and sensations are peripheral nerves. You can cut one, and it will regenerate in time like a pruned limb on a tree growing back, only more orderly.

The function that is impaired depends upon what nerve cell or nerve is involved. You have different areas for sensation, movement and even for your automatic sense of where your foot is and other important inputs that make normanl movement possible.

I presume you are talking about my remarks about ruptured discs. Whenever there are changes in the spine that begin to put pressure on the spinal cord, it is important to relieve the pressure, and often this requires surgery. In any case you don't want to neglect the condition until the damage to the cord area has already occurred and can't be corrected.

VIEWPOINT

The Uneducated Linger

Figures publicized by researchers the past week indicate that America's educators still have a big chore ahead of them if the nation is to become 100 per cent literate.

The initial reaction might be an indictment of the educational system, but commonsense says the problem is deeper than that.

The research figures revealed that a third or more of the adult population has problems in coping with one or more everyday, routine functions, such as filling out a bank deposit slip calculating the best buys in the grocery store, or simply reading signs and directions.

We would assume that many present-day adults who have such problems dropped out of school long before graduation. And we suspect, but cannot confirm because the researchers did not cover this aspect, that those who were in school long enough to acquire a basic education had little interest in school work. Moreover, we suspect that some received scant direction and motivation in the home and that some were victims of inept school programs.

Beyond this, many possibly acquired enough education to "get by" before leaving school but in subsequent years shut themselves off from participation in activities that require use of knowledge acquired via public education. In time, they have found themselves out of touch.

We are often amazed while standing in check-out lines in super markets at the number of people who apparently never go inside a bank, but instead cash their paychecks at the store, and presumably handle all of their transactions by cash. It is a paradox in a society that champions the checking account and the credit card.

Fastest Growing Tax

Taxes on motor fuels have been increased more often than any other tax in 1975, reports Commerce Clearing House.

So far, eight states have upped their gasoline tax rates since January. Massachusetts, South Dakota, Oregon and Wyoming raised theirs by one cent a gallon (although in Oregon the increase was suspended by referendum petition and Wyoming's will not take effect until next March 1.) Minnesota and Rhode Island each raised theirs by 2 cents, Montana by 2.5 cents and Hawaii by 3.5 cents.

The increases continue a 10-year trend toward higher and higher tax bites on this essential commodity, says CCH. Only eight states—Alabama, Alaska, Iowa, Nevada, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas—have not raised their gasoline taxes between 1965 and 1975.

Farm Prices Slip During October

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lower prices for livestock and grain contributed to a slight decline in the government's Farm Price Index last month, but some important commodities such as milk and cotton continued to climb.

On an over-all basis, the Agriculture Department said Friday, prices farmers get for what they produce dropped one-half of 1 per cent from Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. It was the first decline since the index dropped 2 per cent last March.

The price index rose for five of the six months following March, holding steady in August. The increases included: April, 4 per cent; May, 5 per cent; June, 2 per cent; July, 3 per cent, and September, 3 per cent.

Mostly responsible for the October slip were price declines for corn, soybeans, eggs, cattle and apples, the department's Crop Reporting Board said. Higher prices for milk and upland cotton partially offset those losses.

Even so, the price index was 4 per cent above its Oct. 15, 1974, level. Meat animals as a group, for example, declined 1 per cent during the month but still were 29 per cent above a year earlier.

Prices for cattle, including all kinds sold as beef, dropped 40 cents to $34.40 per 100 pounds in the month ended Oct. 15. A year earlier they were $30.60 per hundredweight. Hogs, at $58 per hundredweight, were off 50 cents from Sept. 15. Prices of hogs as well as cattle have weakened further since mid-month.

Corn at $2.62 a bushel was down 14 cents from September and 83 cents below its farm average of $3.45 on Oct. 15, 1974. Wheat dropped nine cents during the month to $4.02 a bushel and also was 83 cents below a year earlier.

Record corn and wheat crops this year have been reported by USDA as well as a near record soybean harvest which also has left its imprint on farm prices. By Oct. 15, the report said, soybeans were $4.92 a bushel, down 40 cents from September and $3.25 below their average on Oct. 15 last year.

Eggs brought 52.8 cents a dozen at the farm, down three cents from mid-September. A year earlier they were 54.9 cents. A huge apple crop caused prices to tumble to 9.3 cents a pound from 11.7 in September and 11.4 a year earlier.

But milk prices rose 37 cents to a record high of $9.53 per 100 pounds by mid-month. That was a "blended" price for all milk sold by farmers and compared with $8.34 per hundredweight on Oct. 15 of last year.

Bell Ordered To Release Gravitt Details

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has been ordered by a federal magistrate to release details of a company statement that alleges the late T.O. Gravitt incurred $16,000 in fictitious and fraudulent expenses.

U.S. Magistrate John P. Giles' issued the order here Friday along with five others in connection with the $28 million libel suit filed against Southwestern Bell.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Oleta Gravitt, her family, and James Ashley, a former Bell executive, shortly after Gravitt, former head of Bell operations in Texas, committed suicide in Dallas on Oct. 17, 1974.

Ashley and Gravitt had been targets of an internal probe by Bell, company officials said. Ashley was fired by Bell shortly after Gravitt's suicide.

The suit contends that the probe was a factor in Gravitt's suicide. Gravitt left notes accusing Bell of engaging in illegal rate-setting practices in Texas.

In the other orders, Giles:

—Denied plaintiffs' motion for Bell reports that allege fiscal and corporate improprieties on the part of Gravitt and Ashley.

—Denied plaintiffs' motion to disolve a gag rule by 166th State District Court Judge Peter Michael Curry imposed when the case was still in state court.

Profit Reports In The Spotlight Last Week

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Third-quarter profits reported this past week by top oil, steel and car companies gave a cloudy picture.

Marking what may be its sharpest profit rebound ever, General Motors said third-quarter earnings were $243 million, up more than 1,400 per cent from levels a year ago.

But does this mean the end of troubles for Detroit's car makers? Not for Chrysler Corp., which reported a third-quarter loss of $79 million, nearly 10 times as much as its deficit a year ago.

And while Ford Motor Co. surprised many on Wall Street by scoring a 19 per cent profit climb in the period to $56.3 million, the company noted that its U.S. car operations lost money and the bulk of the gains came from overseas.

Oil and steel producers continued to suffer a recession hangover. Texaco said third-quarter earnings were down 38 per cent, Gulf Oil 36 per cent, and Atlantic Richfield 32 per cent compared with a year ago when profits still were soaring from high demand and high prices.

Leading steel producers, in the midst of a two-quarter profit slump that industry spokesmen now say could last through much of 1976, also reported sharply lower third-quarter profits this past week. U.S. Steel Corp., the No. 1 producer, said earnings declined 38 per cent from a year ago and Bethlehem Steel Corp., second in size, said profits dropped 66 per cent.

Economic statistics from Washington didn't help clear the picture, either. Last week the government's September index of leading economic indicators, which is supposed to show where the economy is headed in the coming months, declined 0.9 per cent, the first drop in seven months.

While some economists jumped to the conclusion that the index was signaling a bumpy recovery or even a relapse into recession, others cautioned that a one-month drop could be meaningless.

New York City's battle against default was dealt a setback last week as President Ford in a televised speech stated he would veto any congressional measure aimed at preventing a default. There remained hope that the city's pension funds, reportedly controlling $8.5 billion, might agree to back up $4 billion in city borrowing. But key figures in the drama did not sound optimistic that such a plan could clear the legal hurdles in time to prevent a default either on Nov. 14 or Dec. 1.

The city's situation failed to set off panic waves on the financial markets. In general the bonds of corporations, municipal governments and the U.S. Treasury bore up well with scattered price gains.

The stock market showed only a small, 4.48-point loss for the week at 836.04. On the day of Ford's New York City speech, though, the Dow Jones average slid 12.83-points.

US To Offer Egypt Nuclear Reactor

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will offer Egypt a nuclear reactor before Egyptian President Anwar Sadat ends his state visit here next Wednesday, diplomatic sources said Friday night.

The sources said that the administration is expected to make a similar offer to Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin when he makes a state visit to the United States. The sources said Rabin is now expected to arrive here in mid-December.

This development comes at a time when Israeli officials are complaining to the State Department that they are being short-changed in President Ford's foreign aid request. Ford asked for a record $2.24 billion in economic and military aid for Israel.

There is considerable Israeli dissatisfaction also with the phraseology in Ford's message to Congress Thursday accompanying the $4.7-billion worldwide aid package.

In it, Egypt is credited with a "bold decision" to negotiate a resolution of its dispute with Israel. There is no parallel credit given Israel, Israeli officials say. Moreover, last summer's Sinai accord is referred to as a "withdrawal" rather than as a partial settlement.

More important in the Israeli view is that only one-third of the $1.5-billion in military sales credits would be in the form of grants instead of loans.

State Department officials say the Israelis are complaining that they were led to believe a larger percentage would be in the form of grants.

It is understood that Israel was counting on $1 billion worth.

Ford's request also includes $740 million in economic assistance, which can be in the form of grants or low-interest loans.

While no decision has been made on the precise mixture, State Department officials counter the Israeli complaints with the fact that the administration will ask Congress to make repayment of military aid loans easier.

These are now paid back over 10 years at the rate it cost the government to borrow the money. The officials said Congress will be asked to stretch the repayment period to 15 to 20 years and to allow a lower rate. In effect the government would be taking a loss.

New TV Set Skinny And Tells Time, Too

By DICK KLEINER

LOS ANGELES—(NEA) - What's ahead for television?

We're not talking about what will be on the TV screen—whether there will be variety shows or westerns or series about two alligators who become private eyes, but about what your TV set will look like in the future.

And there are some exciting things coming. Skinny sets. Sets that project the picture onto large wall-sized screens. Sets that tell time. Sets, like phonographs, on which you can project your own library of films.

First, though, television manufacturers are going the same route as automobile manufacturers. Out of necessity, they're becoming energy conscious.

Tucker P. Madawick, RCA's vice-president of design, says that energy conservation is the prime consideration in their design planning for the near term.

"Can the set be driven with 25 to 30 per cent less power?" Madawick asks. "That's what we're worrying about. Utility rates are going up. Power may be getting short. So we have to have sets that deliver the same performance with less power."

Many manufacturers are working with sets that will be battery-driven, or can be battery-driven as an alternative to the normal plug-in electricity source. These will be able to produce pictures as good or better than today's but demanding less power to do so.

That's the practical future. But in the realm of the more exotic, there's the video disc system. Using discs that look like phonograph records, you will be able to slip them into a player-unit attached to your TV set and project on your own screen a variety of pre-recorded shows—movies, educational things, musical performances, whatever.

This device is almost available now, but at prohibitive cost. By 1978, Madawick says, they will be down to the $500-$600 range.

Another problem, besides price, to be licked before the video disc can become widespread is the matter of grooves. The ones now have 5,555 grooves per inch, and a disc will produce a half-hour of picture per side . They'd like to squeeze an hour on each side, so a disc will be able to give you a complete movie.

But that means finding a way to squeeze some 10,000 or so grooves to the inch. That's a lot of grooves.

Another company, however, has developed a video disc system with discs that have no grooves and are played by a laser beam, thus eliminating the problem of too many grooves.

Projection TV is another gimmick that's here now, but with limitations. At the moment, their use is confined to a sprinkling of high-class bars and restaurants, where it is a gimmick, like TV itself was in its infancy.

"The picture quality is not there yet," Madawick says, "but people get involved when they see it. After all, they're seeing events on big screens—four-by-six or five-by-seven."

It will obviously take some years and some improvements before projection TV is ready for home use. But it, like the video discs, is coming.

Coming, too, are sets that are skinnier, front to rear. In the experimental stages now are sets that are only three inches deep, including screen and everything. The use of miniaturized components makes that possible.

Also in the dim distance are sets that are powered by solar energy. Coupled with the narrower design, this will enable you to tote a TV set, briefcase-sized, with you wherever you go. You won't need a plug or battery—just a sunny day.

Remote controls for TV sets are here now, but this feature will become standard in the home in not too many years. In fact, Madawick believes the sets in a few years will have no controls on them at all. The only way you will be able to turn them on and off, switch channels and control colume will be by a little box which you can set on your coffee table.

Even now, RCA has an advanced type of remote control gizmo called a Control Center. Madawick demonstarated it. It looks like a fat calculator.

Turn the set on via the Control Center and the first thing that happens is the time flashes on the screen. He says that ultimately this can be programmed to project other vital statistics if you want—pollen count, temperature, pollution count.

Another future development will be sets which automatically adjust themselves to the brightness of the room. Turn it on in daytime, with sunlight streaming in, and they look fine.

As the sun sets and the room becomes darker, they automatically brighten themselves to compensate for the natural light conditions.

Because of our nation's increasing mobility, TV set sales are following that trend. Today, 70 per cent of TV sales are in the portable area, with only 30 per cent the big consoles.

So, naturally, the set manufacturers are aiming at this portable market with smaller and more lightweight sets. and colors are getting wilder, to appeal to the younger people.

But consoles are still selling, although tastes in styling are changing, Madawick says.

"The most difficult trend to track is consumer taste," he says."

So the future for TV sets seems interesting—but the big problem still remains. What will we see on them?

FROM POSTWAR BABY BOOM CHILDREN

No Severe Population Increase Is Expected

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The children of the postwar baby boom are now in their child-bearing years, but experts say these potential mothers aren't likely to produce a population surge like the one they were born in.

But the possibility of a smaller and socially significant population increase is there. It all depends on how many children the women decide to have, something the experts say is difficult to predict.

Most of these women say they expect — and "expect" is a key word — to have two children. If they do, it would produce an increase in the fertility rate and large jump in population.

But population experts aren't convinced that the women will actually have two children. And even if they do, the experts say the population increase won't be as severe as the one that followed World War II. During that boom, woman often chose to have three, four and five children.

But any large increase in the number of children born would have major social and economic implications for the country. It would mean new schools, more teachers and increased pressure for child-oriented social services. In fact, there's little in American society that is not affected by a major shift in population growth.

The experts, while agreeing that the potential for a new American baby boom exists, say there's no evidence a boom has started yet.

Social scientists say that large numbers of women in their child-bearing years have been postponing their first child. Others are postponing their second. And some of these women, now in their early 30s, are running out of time.

Take Marcia Taube, 30, of Springfield, Ill. She had her first child three months ago — seven years after she married.

And Vicki Burson, 29, of Forth Worth, Tex. She is expecting her second child — seven years after her first.

Or Arlene Sampson, 29, of New York City. Her first child was born four months ago — eight years after she married.

Why did they wait? Their reasons reflect the answers of women all across America: finances, careers, a skyrocketing divorce rate, modern contraceptive techniques, an increasing acceptance of non-traditional living arrangements — and a general feeling among a lot of women that they want to live it up before settling down.

Also, there has been what demographers call the "marriage squeeze." Since women traditionally marry men two or three years older than themselves, the women born during the baby boom years reached marriage age before the men born in the same years. The result was there was an excess of young women and not enough older men to go around.

Demographers are divided on the question of whether the country will see the total fertility rate rise from its present all-time low of 1.9 — which means that if 1,000 women went through their reproductive years and had children at the same rate as women did in 1974, their completed families would average 1.9. In baby boom year of 1957, the total fertility rate was 3.8 children per woman.

Examining population trends is complicated by the fact that a population can continue to grow in total numbers even though the fertility rate remains at a low level. Thus even if all of the women born during the postwar baby boom average 1.9 children throughout their child-bearing years, they will still raise the total population of the country.

If the fertility rate remains at a constant 1.9 level, it eventually will produce a leveling off of population growth several generations from now. But the population bulge represented by the postwar baby boom will continue to increase the total number of Americans for many years to come.

If these women increase the rate at which they have children, the effect on total population will be larger. Instead of a steady number of children entering the social service pipeline each year, the number would start to increase. Depending on how big the rate increase was, it also could decrease chances that in the early part of the next century American population will reach a stablization point where the number of deaths and births are equal.

A recent Census Bureau survey showed that most women say they expect two children. This has prompted some social scientists to argue that since there are a lot of women of childbearing age, they will produce a "boom," or rise in the fertility rate, if they have the children they say they expect.

Others insist that there probably will be no boom because the longer women postpone having children, the less likely they are to have them — or have the number they say they expect.

"Likely" ... "If" ...

It's hard to get a demographer to use a sentence without these qualifiers because nobody really knows what combination of factors influence a woman to have children.

Dr. Suzanne Keller, a sociology professor at Princeton University, put it this way: "Looking at the statistics, I think there could be a small boom. The image of many women is that they have to have at least one child to fulfill their fantasies, to prove their feminism. That a woman should remain childless forever is not a popular theory. Girls want everything — husbands, babies, glamorous jobs. What you see is a struggle.

"Change takes time. There aren't that many job opportunities for women. What do you do with love anyway? Most people try to pin it down — one way is to have a baby. It's a powerful motive. Life is everything in this culture."

Dr. Judith Blake, a demographer at the University of California at Berkeley, argues that many of these young women are going to settle into traditional roles after a period of experimenting with different lifestyles and careers.

"When people say everything has changed, I say no," Dr. Blake said. "I see a period of time when society allowed people to do crazy things, and we're now settling into a traditional life. I doubt you'll continue to get the same patterns of behavior that you've had in the last five to six years."

Not necessarily, said Dr. Sara Kiesler, a social psychologist in Washington. "Look at the rewards for not having children. Are women getting good jobs? Are they more free? Is there more tolerance for not having children? Yes. Women are being rewarded for not having children."

Dr. Keisler, who has adopted two children, said that her findings from interviews with about 1,000 women in Kansas show that although women say they want two children, they aren't necessarily having them.

"They have positive attitudes about going back to school and having careers; they have the attitude that you shouldn't have children unless you want them; they have the attitude that the prevalence of divorce makes it risky to have children ... You still have the idea that it's good to have kids, but people who postpone having children for a number of years and find the rewards are great are less likely to have them."

Census Bureau demographers say there is no statistical evidence yet on a national level that a repeat of the post-World War II baby boom has started.

Census Bureau figures show:

— During the first half of 1975, compared to the first half of 1974, the number of births rose by 1½ per cent, which demographers say is an indication that the total fertility rate is remaining fairly constant.

— During the first half of 1975, there were 980,000 marriages, 4 per cent fewer than in the first half of 1974.

— In 1974, 40 per cent of the women 20 to 24 were single, compared to 28 per cent in 1960.

— In 1974, 40 per cent of women ages 20 to 24 were childless, compared to 24 per cent in 1960.

— In 1974, there were almost 4 million American women enrolled in college, more than three times the number in 1960. Between 1970 and 1974, college enrollment of women between the ages of 25 and 34 doubled.

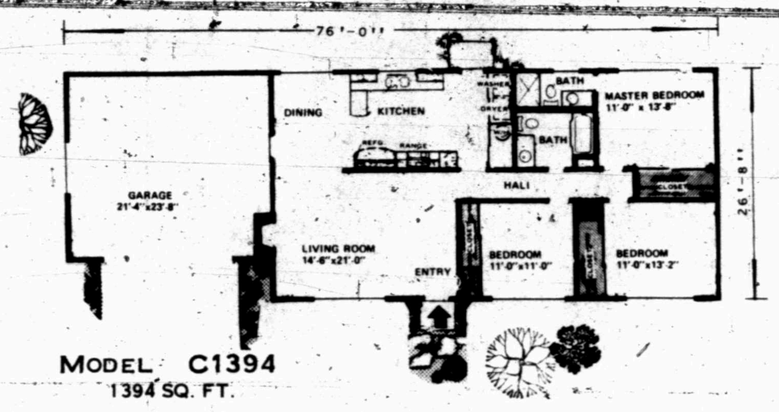

— In 1974, 43 per cent of married women were in the labor force, compared to 30.5 per cent in 1960.

"There is no sign of an increase in the rate of childbearing so far," said Campbell Gibson, a Census Bureau demographer. "The potential for a fairly sizable increase in the number of children born is there, but there is a limited amount of time in which these births can be made up.

"It's awfully hard to say how long that time is. If the economic conditions for having babies are bad, they might postpone having babies for another year or longer."

Sweet, Simple And Highly Satisfying

MODEL C1394
1394 SQ. FT.

HOME DESIGN LIBRARY
by Larry Farnsworth

The basic rectangle is used in a simple house plan which clever designing has made extra special. Careful attention to the major functional requirements and extra regard for the niceties of comfortable, satisfying living have made this plan one which merits careful consideration.

Note its extremely excellent traffic flow pattern. There is no separate entry yet the front door's location at the corner of the living room leads household traffic to the working areas and the bedrooms without intruding upon the living room at all.

Next, note that living room carefully. It is large in itself and gains still further spaciousness from the open plan dining area which, in turn shares a feeling of increased roominess with the kitchen just beyond the handy dining counter. The living room has a raised hearth fireplace too; the dining area enjoys a pleasant view through its large rear window.

Note also the basically parallel kitchen work area and, just a step away, the practical laundry alcove. These two sections are separated by the back door so that traffic through it does not "pop" directly into the kitchen's heaviest work area.

Next to the laundry area are the main and the master bedroom baths and this convenient plumbing core arrangement achieves the most economical plumbing installation costs possible. It is also practical from a functional standpoint, placing laundry facilities right where they are most usually needed.

There are three bedrooms; all nicely large, the master bedroom, of course, bigger than the others, and the bedroom closets are all more than ample.

Look carefully at the pleasing front elevation of this plan. The large double garage joins the house to produce a long, low extremely attractive look. And the simple, but satisfying interior plan makes living in this house an equally attractive proposition.

Catalog for 300 plans is $2.95 postpaid. Working plans available at $30.00 for first set and $5.00 for each additional set from: Larry Farnsworth, Box 1841, Las Vegas, Nevada 89101.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

For Sunday, Nov. 2, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This should be a fun, active day, but if the festivities spill over into the evening you're likely to run out of steam early.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be sure to consider your mate's wishes today when making plans. If you're not in accord, friction will result.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have buyer's remorse about anything you buy impulsively today. Think before plunking your cash down.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Concentrate on having a good time today. Dismiss financial and business thoughts for the time being. They can be attended to later.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Toward evening you'll lack patience with those who do not jump immediately to your commands. Be careful or you'll stir something up at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're going to do any traveling today, check connections and accommodations well in advance. Something could get fouled up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't make any deals with a friend at this time who wants a piece of the action for helping. Wait till he produces, then talk terms.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others will resent it today if you place your self-interests too far above theirs. Be cooperative, not demanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you're a rather optimistic and self-assured person, but today you'll harbor doubts about something you're involved in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful today you don't make a commitment for a friend without first talking it over with her and getting her consent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You tend to do things today without fully appreciating all the ramifications. What appears easy may in reality be very complicated.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid getting into philosophical or political discussions today with friends. The conversation could turn into a very serious debate.

Your Birthday
Nov. 2, 1975

This coming year you will be able to bring off situations you had difficulty getting off the ground in the past. The lessons you've learned have prepared you for success.

For Monday, Nov. 3, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful in your business affairs today. Matters could suddenly take an unusual turn. You might be caught off-guard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Agreements you enter into today should be screened very thoroughly. Be sure even the smallest clause is spelled out clearly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're very inventive today. You'll come up with a better method for doing a repetitious task that tied you down previously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be fortunate only with carefully calculated risks. Should you press your luck too far it won't stand the strain.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An unusual day for you, one of endings and beginnings. Something from the past will be terminated as your interests shift to something new.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Weigh your words very wisely today or you might blurt out something that shouldn't be divulged now. Think before speaking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are unique for you materially. Gains could come from two least expected sources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be both bold and clever in handling situations affecting you today. The results will be gratifying, yet your tactics will surprise others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your best ideas will come to you today if you're off somewhere alone where there's peace and quiet. Jot them down for later use.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An interesting new acquaintance will suddenly enter your life. This person will be introduced to you by an old friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll not be deprived at this time of rewards rightfully due you. Just be patient. Let events run their course.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Success is yours today if you add a new twist to something you've recently learned from an unusual experience.

Your Birthday
Nov. 3, 1975

The coming year has some pleasant surprises in store. Your routines will be disrupted occasionally. Though you may complain at the time, you'll like the end result.
