Navigation board practices challenged

By Ted Norman

Local businessman Homer Faber has been spending a lot of his free time digging in the files of the Aransas County Navigation District and he believes he has found proof that the navigation district may be operating illegally, as well as not treating everyone fair when it comes to writing leases.

Faber says he is very upset with the way things are going at the navigation district and he believes the members of the board aren't conducting the navigation district in a business-like manner.

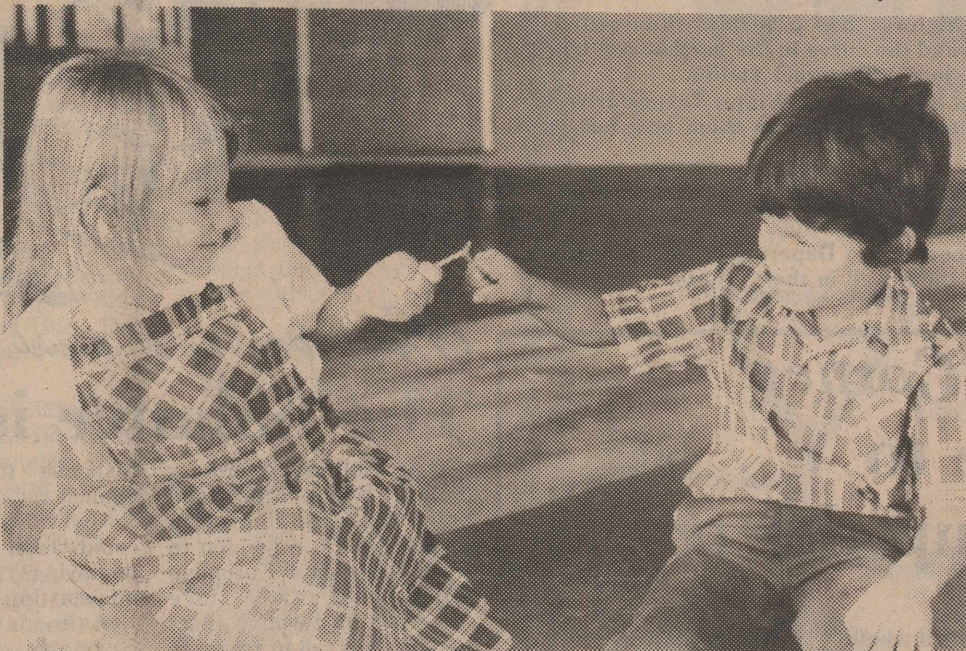

While explaining some of the documents he has found in his search of the district files the Rockport businessman says, "I'm just trying to get them to go on the record that they are treating everyone equal."

In an interview at the Pilot office Faber said he has many complaints about the navigation district and so he has been spending eight to ten hours a day investigating them.

Faber, a candidate in the last election, said, "I ran because I am displeased with the way the navigation district is going."

During the interview Faber explained some of the many documents he has uncovered in his investigative work.

The best part of Thanksgiving

The best part of the Thanksgiving leftovers is the wishbone, right? Sacred Heart Elementary students Angie Bracht and Conrad Ochoa pulled and pulled, Documents he believes show the navigation district is operating in a very unbusiness-like manner.

His main concern is some of the business that has been discussed and voted on during workshop meetings. He backs up his concern while pointing out a statement in the Open Meetings act.

Section one, part b of the act reads — it shall not be construed that the intent of this definition is to prohibit the gathering of members of the governmental body in numbers of a quorum or more for which is conducted by the body or for attendance of regional, state, or national conventions or workshops as long as no formal action is taken and there is no deliberation of public business which will appear on the agenda of the respective body.

Faber said he believes the navigation district board members are violating this act of the open meeting act by taking action during workshop meetings.

Faber has produced copies of documents found during his investigation that he believes show the navigation district board members held a workshop meeting Nov. 10, 1981 in which the board members took action and voted on a motion.

The document, a copy of the minutes of a workshop meeting on Nov. 10, 1981, shows that navigation district commissioner David Maguglin made a motion that the Aransas County Navigation District No. 1, submit a formal request to the Corps of Engineers for application under Section 107, of the 1960 River and Harbor Act, for construction of a small navigation marina at Rockport. Commissioner Dominguez seconded the motion. All voted in favor. Motion carried.

In another action taken during the workshop meeting the minutes of the meeting show that — Commissioner Hal McKnight moved that the district seek funding under the Section, 107, of the 1960 River and Harbor Act, for an Industrial site under plans for Cove Harbor North Project — commissioner Maguglin seconded the motion and according to a copy of the minutes, all voted in favor. Motion carried.

During the interview Faber also produced a copy of a document that shows that navigation district board members R.W. Landrum, Hillis Dominguez, Hal B. McKnight and Kirk

For county-provided services

Commissioners drop money request

Representatives from the Navigation District and the City of Rockport were on the agenda at the most recent meeting of the county commissioners, held Wednesday, Nov. 25.

City Secretary Herman Johnson and Navigation Commissioner Hal McKnight both appeared before the commissioners with requests. Johnson was the more successful of the two, having asked the commissioners to reconsider a request for more city funds to help pay for dispatchers and other county-provided services to the city jail and police.

McKnight was requesting permission for the Navigation District to rent a large county bulldozer to replace a dirt levee moved during last summer's dredging.

Secretary Johnson told the court that the city's budget went into effect on Oct. 1 and, as the request submitted by Sheriff Hewes with the endorsement of the commissioners, came in on Sept. 21, it could not be considered.

It would not be feasible for the city to amend their budget to handle the request, explained Johnson, due to the cost entailed in making an amendment.

"I'm not up here to cry about it," said Johnson, "I just want you to reconsider it."

He added that he expected no problem with extra funding next year, as he felt there was a legitimate need for it, as long as the request was submitted early enough.

Medical Arts Clinic opens Monday in Rockport

A new Medical Arts Clinic is opening Monday at 1704 Jenkins in Rockport.

Staffed by Dr. Stephen Smith of Rockport, the clinic will be a "satellite" of the parent Medical Arts facility in Aransas Pass, according to Robert Bailey, administrator of the Aransas Pass clinic. Dr. Smith is a graduate of the University of Kansas Medical School.

Bailey added the new clinic is part of an overall design by the Medical Arts Clinic to provide better medical service to surrounding communities. A Medical Arts satellite opened Aug. 1 in Portland.

The new Rockport clinic has facilities for two physicians and is "fully equipped for family practice," Bailey said. This includes six exam rooms, X-ray facilities, a lab at the clinic, a complete nursing and administrative staff, cardiac equipment and pulmonary function equipment.

The Rockport clinic "will be able to do all the standard chemistries and physiology," Bailey added.

Business operations of the clinic will be through the parent clinic in Aransas Pass.

The Rockport facility will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, Bailey said. Dr. Smith will be on fulltime service in the clinic and Dr. Wendell Roberts and Dr. Delbert Ed-wardson, both on the Medical Arts staff in Aransas Pass, will be in Rockport on a rotating basis.

In addition to the Rockport and Portland clinics, Medical Arts is considering additional "satellites" in Ingleside and Port Aransas. Dr. Roberts said.

Operating the clinics is a group of nine medical professionals — six doctors and three physicians' assistants. In addition to Drs. Roberts and Edwardson, Dr. Richard I. Hults is based at the "home clinic" in Aransas Pass.

Drs. J.H. Bertheau and James A. Mobley work in the Portland clinic.

Physicians' assistants are Craig Smith, Jerry Lynch and Frank Rinaldi. Bailey said an open house is planned at the Rockport clinic, probably some time in early December.

Youth 'critical but stable' after accident

Tony Goodwin was reported "critical but stable" in Memorial Medical Center's Intensive Care Unit late Wednesday morning after suffering injuries in an accident on Highway 35 north of Rockport Monday afternoon.

Goodwin, a student at Rockport-Fulton High School, was injured when the small pickup he is believed to have been driving went off the road then, as it was returning to the road, flipped and rolled over. The accident happened about 3:40 p.m.

Aransas County paramedics took him to Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi suffering apparent head injuries. The youth reportedly underwent surgery Monday night.

Sheriff Hewes agreed to get in his next request earlier. County attorney James Anderson then asked Johnson, "Is tomorrow too early?"

McKnight's request to rent a bulldozer was turned down due to the fact that the work would be done, in part, on private property. Anderson advised the court against renting the dozer for that reason. The use of county-owned equipment on private property is against the law. "I know nothing that will allow us to put it on private property, though I realize that you have a legitimate reason," Anderson told McKnight.

The cost to the navigation district of renting the dozer from a private concern is expected to be high, in light of the fact that some 60,000 cubic yards of dirt will have to be moved.

The recurring problem of drainage regulations again surfaced at the courts session. Noting that a Palm Harbor citizens group recently concerned with Bahia Bay drainage was unable to obtain a map of the drainage system, Commissioner J.M. Spriegle asked the court if "something shouldn't be done about this map problem."

Radio station proposed

Rockport will be the site of a new radio station if the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) approves an application filed earlier this month by a 22-year-old New Jersey woman.

Lori Anne Brotman filed Nov. 6 for permission to construct an FM broadcast station operating on frequency of 102.3 Megahertz. A copy of the application is on file in the office of Rockport Realty where Vivian Welch is handling the search for a site for the proposed station.

At this time, Mrs. Welch said, no site has been selected for the station although Miss Brotman and her father, Sherwin Brotman of Dallas, have been looking at sites.

A location has been selected for the 300-foot-tall transmitter and antenna, on Enterprise Blvd., 700 feet east of Sparks Colony Road.

The guved tower will be of "standard design" according to the application and the station will have power of three kilowatts day and night.

No new road construction or land clearing will be needed for the tower, according to the application which was filed by Robert L. Purcell of Washington D.C., consulting engineer for the project.

Miss Brotman is shown as "sole proprietor" of the proposed station which is anticipated to have seven employees and will be in operation a minimum of 18 hours per day. The application shows station equipment will be leased from Media-West Inc. for a total price of $39,761.

Purcell said the FCC will probably take about six months to process the application "if nothing goes wrong." Neither Miss Brotman nor her father could be reached for additional information on the project.

Miss Brotman is a research specialist and, according to the application, her father owns radio stations in Texas.

Almost caught -- and glad of it

By Ted Norman

They almost caught me, but I still hope they succeed in their efforts. Last Thursday morning I was driving from my home going to work, on Highway 35 in the southbound lane, drinking hot tea, thinking about work and trying to shift gears in my small car.

Just before rounding the curve at Super D I spilled some hot tea on my leg, jerked my foot from the gas pedal and began rubbing at the stinging liquid.

When I spilled the tea I was doing perhaps 55 miles per hour; by the time I rounded the curve I was doing 41 miles per hour and staring down the barrel of a radar gun being pointed by an officer of the Rockport Police Department.

As I cruised past the parked patrol car I offered a good morning smile and continued on my way to work.

Even though I almost became a victim I am more than glad to see this effort to control speed in this particular area. We are destined to have a very major and perhaps fatal accident in this area along the Ski Basin.

Only last month some punks came around the same corner and, while driving at least 20 miles over the speed limit, rammed my car in an effort to get me out of their way so they could pass.

The 18-wheelers coming through town can be clocked at any given time at 60 miles an hour in this area. The truckers have absolutely no regard for the posted 40 mile per hour speed limit.

And anyone who uses this part of the highway has probably witnessed the making of an accident as a speeder comes around the curve in the northbound lane, only to find a car parked, waiting to turn left in the Shamrock station.

Almost everyone in town complains about how slow our Winter Texans drive in their Winnebagos and pickups — but the visitors also complain about how fast we drive in Rockport.

Although it seems like I spend most of my winters behind a visiting pickup lumbering down Fulton Beach Road at seven miles per hour, I believe they have a valid point in pointing the finger at some Rockport residents.

Congratulations to the overworked Rockport Police Department for making an effort to slow things down in town. We wish them well in their efforts.

Blair's Corner Time to put up the tree...

It's official.

The Thanksgiving turkey is today's leftovers. Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade has ushered Santa Claus into New York and very soon, hundreds of youngsters will be climbing onto Santa's lap (some with a lot of coaxing from Santa and Mom...) to tell him what they want for Christmas.

At the Rockport Pilot, we've dug our special North Pole mailbox out of storage and started preparing it for all the letters Aransas County youngsters will be entrusting us to forward to Santa.

Children have a lot to choose from these days. There was a time when a doll that wet when you gave her a bottle was a big deal — now she not only wets, she gets diaper rash!

And the old wooden spring horse has not only been updated by plastic models that look more like the real thing, it's been surpassed by one that makes clip-clopping sounds and whinnies.

In the years since Barbie was introduced, she's gained a boyfriend, Ken, a couple of girlfriends, sportscar, sauna and a wardrobe that could turn Jackie Onassis green with envy. She comes as Malibu Barbie (also Malibu Ken) able to take a better tan than I ever could and Western Barbie (and Ken) with wardrobe to match.

There's a Barbie that's nothing more than a head with a lot of stylable hair. And among the more recent additions to the Barbie clan — Barbie's horse and dog (an afghan, with its own brush...) —

Of course there's a whole line of updated favorites — dollhouses and furniture for same, stuffed animals, trucks and cars, cowboys and Indians... "Star Wars" toys and games don't seem to have dwindled much (if at all) in popularity and the line based on the original movie has been enlarged by the addition of items based on the "Empire Strikes Back" sequel.

Educational toys that teach youngsters to count, add, recognize shapes, spell and perfect other skills are abundant and there are still all the old familiar games like "Monopoly," "Sorry," "Scrabble." The games, too, are another good indication of what movies and TV shows are popular — or are expected to be popular — and there are board games versions of "M.A.S.H." and "The Legend of the Lone Ranger" among others. (Including at least a couple of games versions of "Dallas.")

And then there are the electronic games. You can get "Simon" or "Merlin," play electronic baseball, football, tennis, hockey (just to name a few) and there must be at least 101 ways to zap the aliens and save the world from the intergalactic invasion...

But now we're into a realm that isn't just for kids. Electronic games must be at least as popular with adults as they are with the youngsters.

In fact, guess what I've asked Santa to bring me for Christmas...

Austin At Wharf A badly built boat

THERE'S AN OLD AND respected friend who would have me desist from political commentary and return to some of the seafaring years which I sometimes used to spin.

Funny, he's a chap who almost literally hates the sea. He saw all of it he wanted aboard a troop ship in that last of great wars to end all wars. Long since I gave up all hope of luring him onto one of our lovely bays.

He looks askance if not with terror at the thought of leaving terra firma under sail. It is of little use to assure him that even my small sail boat does have a small engine — in which I have little faith. I distrust anything of a mechanical nature.

I used to like to assure my friends that even if the motor did fail, I had at least three others, more or less God given, a mainsail, a jib and a genoa — and even then, if the mast fell, I could jury rig another with the spinnaker pole. Ah but no, he preferred a tiny boat with a powerful outboard engine and not even an oak aboard in case that should fail.

Power boat people have an immense amount of faith in engines. I have none. Different ships, different long splices, another way of saying, each of us to his own taste.

BUT TO POLITICAL commentary. I view this world's changing scene as I do a good knock um down, shoot um up novel, endlessly exciting. Sometimes I get on the stump and rage. Some of you have heard me, but few know that in fact I am not really disturbed at all. I find it fascinating rather than up-hauling that before I finish this sentence all that we know, love and cherish on this globe can be blown to bits, and the while we have the choice of making this the best possible of all worlds. Damned funny, when you think about it!

OF COURSE THE greatest problem with this world is people. And by the same token they are the nicest thing about it. The basic trouble with people their desire, no, their determination to find security. In that respect they have improved since the days of my youth, rather I should say childhood. Remember? Time was when a young man was expected to have a house, something like $10,000 in a savings account before he approached the father of his fancy to ask for her hand. That was so long,

Allen and The $1000

The balance is now tipped against us

U.S. Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger used blunt language during a recent speech in London to warn America's European allies that they face "destruction through inaction" if they fail to rearm to confront an unprecedented Soviet military challenge.

While Weinberger spoke, about 500 anti-nuclear demonstrators chanting "Weinberger Warmonger" milled around outside. This was one of several demonstrations in four European countries protesting a U.S.-Soviet arms buildup they claim threatens world peace.

Weinberger declared: "We are no longer dealing with armed forces whose quality is far below that of our own..." The needed balance is now seriously tipped against us.

There is a rising tide of neutralism in Europe and Weinberger's speech apparently was intended by the U.S. to be a clear response to the clamor against the arms buildup.

The wave of neutralism could crush U.S. hopes of deploying 572 upgraded nuclear-tipped missiles in Britain, Italy, West Germany, Belgium and Holland beginning in 1983.

Meanwhile, the Soviet arms buildup continues unabated. The Russians pay no attention to protests and do not understand why the West cringes when thousands march.

U.S. officials do not share the view that the more than 300,000 arms protesters who have staged rallies in four European countries reflect true European sentiment.

Secretary Weinberger said, "I believe what we are seeing is a highly publicized, comparatively small minority..." but we should keep in mind that demonstrations are proper, and manifestations of public opinion are important. Certainly whatever the motivates 350,000 people to do anything is a strong force."

The world arms buildup, which has been going on for many years at varying rates, shows no signs of abatement because nations do not trust one another.

In The Pilot's opinion, the allied arms buildup should continue.

I awakened the other morning and for the first time in my life, I was 35.

Thirty-five. When I was 10, I wanted to be 16 so I could drive. When I was 16, I wanted to be 21 so I could go into a bar and have a legal drink. When I was 21, I wanted to be 30 so that when I pontificated on some great issue, people would listen to me instead of saying, "What on earth is that kid talking about?"

When I was 30, I didn't want to be any older because I think 30 is the perfect age. At 30, you can do all the adult stuff, like invest in a tax shelter, but you're still young enough to go to your left and buy sports cars and consider yourself immortal.

But 35, it's a weird age. In my head, I still think I'm 21, of course. But my feet and my back remind me now that I'm not after a day playing tennis. The fact that I am blind until well past noon after a night about provides the same message.

I think 35 is the time to take stock. Thirty-five is halfway home. Bring out the marching band, the twirlers, and the flag girls, it's intermission.

Live Oak Peninsula philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grasshopper farm is offering to help the government save money. Dear editor:

How to cut government spending has become such a big job that it's clear Washington is going to need some outside help. The people up there have simply had no previous experience in that line of work.

I can help a little. I just read that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, the outfit that prints money, wants some new presses. The ones they've got can print 8,000 32-bill sheets an hour, which comes to 4 billion pieces of currency a week. But they print on one side at a time. When that side is printed, the sheets have to be dried, turned over, and then fed back in to be printed on the other side.

Officials say that's too slow. They're working night and day and still can't produce enough paper money. They want some presses that'll print on both sides of a sheet at the same time, thus doubling production, and are willing to pay $21 million for seven of them.

They've got it backwards. They don't need faster presses, they need slower presses. Don't they know the faster they print money the faster Congress will grab it?

For a small fee I will undertake to save the government the $21 million it wants to spend on new-fangled presses.

Somewhere in the shop of some country weekly newspaper there's bound to be stored an old foot-powered, hand-fed press like Benjamin Franklin used. A man with a good led can turn out possibly 200 sheets an hour on it, containing maybe 800 bills, against the government's press turning out 8,000 sheets containing 256,000 bills.

I will be glad to undertake the job of finding such a press and delivering it to Washington. A 5 percent commission on the $21 million saved ought to cover my expenses.

Not only will the government save on the cost of the press; think what it'll save by shutting off the flow of the 4 billion pieces of paper currency it's now printing per week.

If you've got such a press stored in The Pilot plant, let me know. Also, how much would you charge to crate it and ship it to Washington? Better send it C.O.D.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

The Lewis Grizzard column

Thirty five and holding

I think 35 is when you strip yourself down to your lowest common denominator and take a hard look.

What do I have? What do I need? What do I have that I don't need? If it applies, how did I get myself into this predicament? And, if it applies, how do I get myself out?

What 35 is is an opportunity to change directions in midstream. So you played a lousy first half. You can be down at 35, but not out.

I am beginning to like 35 more and more. At 40, they give you a surprise party and make fun of you because you're getting fat. At 50, people begin to talk about how "distinguished" you look, which is a nice way to say you still have some of your hair.

But nobody pays much attention to the fact that you've reached 35, so you can spend some time on yourself, in gentle reflection.

I drove 250 miles on my 35th birthday. I was alone. I drove through beautiful, mountainous terrain, abundant in the colors of the season.

And I took stock. I can't tell you it all, but I'll hit a few of the high points:

It's been interesting, the first 35. I've lived in a lot of different places, including Camp Chafee, Ark., Tallahassee, Fla.; Arlington, Va.; Athens, Ga.; Chicago and Atlanta.

I don't remember much about Arkansas. Chicago was cold and lonely and everybody in Chicago eats hard bread. I missed Atlanta like I have missed a good woman and I embraced her as the same when she took me back in.

I've seen the sun come up on Venice, Italy, and I've seen it go down over the Rockies outside a train window. I've ridden a bus across Texas and once I had dinner with the blond from Sweden who used to say "Take it off..." on those shaving cream commercials. She kissed me goodnight.

I've shaken hands with President Jimmy Carter, Vice President Hubert Humphrey, Gov. Lester Maddox, Mayor Richard Daley, Willie Nelson, Eddie Arnold and Tom T. Hall. I've drunk a beer with Rod Laver and once I guarded Peter Maravich in a basketball game at a summer basketball camp. He was nine, I was 14. He got 36.

I've never been fired from a job, I held my daddy's hand while he died on me, and I've owned some good dogs.

And what I am going to try to do with the next 35 is listen more, get my wisdom teeth pulled, and if you happen to be somebody I love, I'll tell you to your face every chance I get.

Time injects itself into lives and turns us in one direction or another. It is the controlling factor in attaining desires if we have decided to give a gift of life.

The Living Bank is making such a gift convenient by handling the arrangements for those who wish parts or all of their bodies to be donated after death for transplantation therapy.

More than 100 years ago Horace Greeley said: "Go west young man, go west." In his recent book, "The Real War," Richard Nixon said the lands of opportunity today are Brazil and Australia. Were I 20 I should most certainly investigate that. If "tricky Dick," as his detractors like to call him, is wrong — well young man, you are only 20. Certainly no time to seek the security of solid walls and monthly payments. The Living Bank has been functioning since 1968 as a non-profit organization; coordinating the gifts and the needs of the recipient. The address is P.O. Box 6725, Houston, Texas 77005. There, during the critical time period, contacts are made with the appropriate medical facility nearest to the place of death where someone is waiting, life or death depending on a call.

Everything must fall into place. Donors who have signed registration forms are issued identification cards to carry. They may wear identification jewelry inscribed with the 24 hour number of the Living Bank, 713/528-2971. Family members should know what your desires are so they can make sure doctors are aware of them. To use time most effectively, emergency medical service personnel, law enforcement officers and others who are frequently present where death occurs suddenly should be alert for indication that the person is a donor.

As medical advances make life-saving methods possible, interest in becoming a donor is increasing rapidly. This is not totally altruistic. Somewhere in the back of the mind is the hope that someone else will register as a donor to fill a critical need that I might have someday. Eye banks, kidney transplant centers and many other such facilities depend on the Living Bank.

Research and the education of medical personnel are also a part of the network which is tuned into the living bank as the system's satellite. There is not always a need in medical schools for donations to be made at all times. So it is good to make alternate arrangements. But the offer is important because the need does exist with some frequency.

Donors can offer only specific organs, any organs, or their bodies. If they wish to change their minds at any time, they can do so by simply notifying the Living Bank.

Many people get off to a good start in life. It is later that the rocks on the trail begin to bruise their feet. Soon they're stumbling along on bleeding soles — wondering why God doesn't smooth the road for them.

Spiritual renewal is God's answer to the rough roads of life. It is one more of the blessings that come to men through faithful religious worship.

The earnest church-goer cannot expect fewer rocks on the path ahead. Why then does he walk the trail with such a firm and steady gait?

Because no road is too rugged if we won't let our shoes wear out!

The Shepherd's Staff

By Reverend Charles Fake
First Baptist Church

We are thankful for the release of the Americans who were held hostage in Iran, but did you know there is another group of ambassadors who are yet prisoners?

Perhaps some of those prisoners are reading this now. They are ambassadors for Christ (2 Cor. 5:20). Their duty is to entreat the people of the world to be reconciled to God through Christ. Many of these ambassadors have been captured by the Enemy (Satan) and are doing no work for their Lord.

Some are prisoners of the "cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches" (Matthew 13:22). While the world awaits word from the King of Kings, these ambassadors sit huddled near their earthly treasures, where their hearts are.

Other divine diplomats are prisoners of "the flesh" (Romans 7:14). Their credentials lie in a dresser drawer as they wander about the embassy of this world, having forgotten who they are. How sad. They cannot tell who they are and what they know of Jesus.

Then there are the ambassadors who are prisoners of self. Their prison rooms are filled with thermometers and mirrors, as they continually contemplate new ways to spell "Me." The lost people outside keep wondering who Jesus is, but the ambassadors inside no longer want to tell them.

Are you an ambassador for Christ? If you are a Christian, you are. Are you "entreating others to be reconciled to God through Christ?" Or are you being held prisoner by your selfishness and sinfulness? Let us pray for each other to be released from our spiritual bondage so that we may tell the good news: God loves the world and gave His Son so that all may have eternal life!

Annual opera highlights 1981 Christmas season

CORPUS CHRISTI — The best known and most-performed of Menotti's operas, Amahl and the Night Visitors will open the Christmas season in Corpus Christi on Friday, Dec. 4 at 7:30 p.m. This free performance, open to the public, will be held at the First United Methodist Church, Shoreline at Furman.

The production which began rehearsal in August, includes 13 year-old Jeff Schlimmer as Amahl, professional opera singer, Laura Mann Dexter, as his mother and well-known local television personality Walter Furley, as one of the three kings. Chorus, dancers and full orchestra enliven this beautiful story of the impoverished crippled shepherd-boy who gives his wooden crutch as a gift to the newborn Christ Child.

Cast members include Laura Mann Dexter, the mother who sang for six and one-half years with opera companies in Germany, singing most of the major soprano roles in the opera repertoire. She is married to the organist/choirmaster, John Dexter, at the First United Methodist Church; John Dexter, director, was on the faculty at Eastman School of Music, and has staged as many operas, oratorios, and choral concerts as any opera house conductor; Jeff Schlimmer, Amahl, is in the Youth Choir at First United Methodist Church. He sang his first Amahl last year, and will repeat the role this year.

Fulton Mansion restoration plans approved

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, meeting in Austin last week, approved interpretive development plans for Fulton Mansion State Historic Structure in Aransas County and accepted additional property for Starr Mansion

State Historic Site in Harrison County. The commission authorized expenditure of $270,557 for purchase, repair and transportation of furniture for refurbishing the first two floors and basement of the four-story Fulton Mansion.

Also planned is an exhibit area and audio-visual program.

The mansion was built more than 100 years ago by George Ware Fulton, a man of varied talents who played a prominent role in the mercantile development of the Coastal Bend area both before and after the Civil War.

The house is located on State Highway 35 in Fulton, facing Aransas Bay.

Bill Dolman, head of the Interpretation and Exhibits Branch, told the commission the department is fortunate to have access to a remarkable portfolio of documentation on items purchased for the mansion since its early days. He said the furnishing plan goal for the house is reconstruction of a specific family's domestic interiors of the period 1877-85.

Officials said they anticipate the mansion will be opened for tours by late spring or early summer 1982, although all aspects of the refurbishing projects will not be completed until later in the year.

Police report

A pistol and 24 boxes of shotgun shells were taken in two burglaries in Rockport Monday, Nov. 23.

port motel.

The vehicle was unlocked, according to the police report. Also taken was a 35 millimeter camera valued at about $100.

The incident occurred about 6:12 p.m.

Also taken was $6 in cash.

driven south on Austin by Raymond Joseph Cruse of 1220 S. Church.

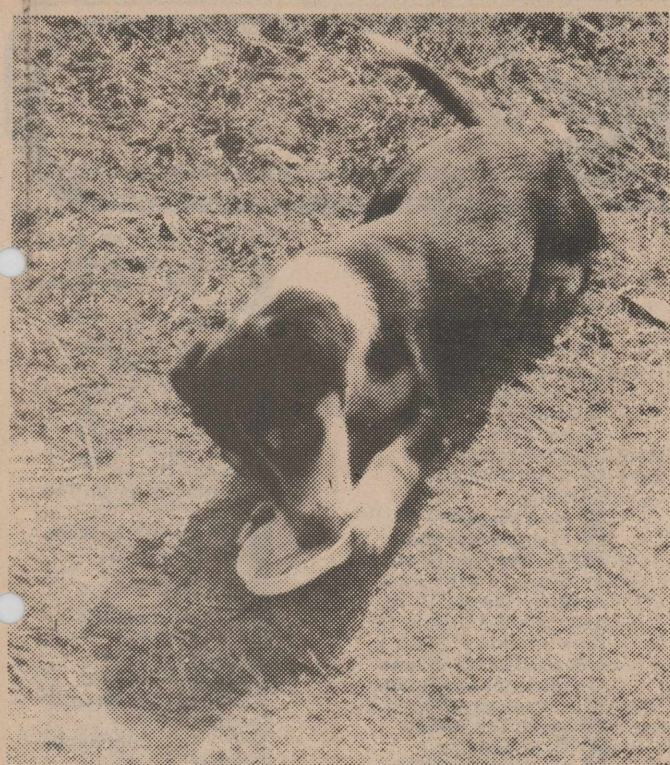

No injuries were reported in the mishap.

Two men were charged with public intoxication in separate incidents this past week. One of the men, arrested about 9:30 p.m. Monday, was also charged with disorderly conduct and fined a total of $112.

Seven unforgettable days in Hawaii

By Dr. Hap Lutz

The Hawaiian Veterinary Association held their yearly seminar in Honolulu and the cruise, along with study of the latest advancement and treatment and surgery of dogs and cats was part of the deal. How could I refuse a vacation with graduate work like that?

A paradise vacation without pressure, cruising the Hawaiian Island chain, I couldn't refuse so my wife and I went.

Since she doesn't like to fly this was the ideal way to see all the islands without plane hopping.

The ship, the Oceanic Independence, is a floating resort with a crew of 300 and a passenger capacity of 50. It cruises at 17 knots and can do 23 knots maximum.

The vessel is 682 feet long and houses 400 deluxe cabins and suits with seven elevators and three lounges, a night club and a conference room and theatre.

It is also equipped with a health spa, two swimming pools and a hospital with a medical doctor and nurse.

For seven days we sailed on our floating island visiting the five most popular ports-of-call on four of the islands in the chain. Each island has its own personality but each has a hospitality most people in this world seem to have forgotten.

Never before have I experienced more gracious, polite, smiling people anywhere.

At each port, arrangements had been made by the ship's most efficient staff for various shore excursions, some for half day, some for all day, and others you just do yourself.

When the ship is underway there is continuous entertainment. You can participate or rest and get a sun tan. However, to name a few of the activities there is bingo, shuffleboard, table tennis, ukelele classes, hula instructions and dancing.

The staterooms are spacious and clean. There is a three channel music system, individual climate control and a telephone in each room.

The last night at sea is the formal Captain's party with unbelievable floral arrangements and truly delicious food. The entire event is a never to be forgotten gala.

The seven days of spending cruising passes all too quickly but it will last in our memory forever.

Biologist is determined to prove legendary jungle creature exists

Deep within the unexplored jungles of the Congo, tales of a fierce, dragon-like beast have been told by the native pygmies for the past 200 years. Dr. Roy P. Mackal, an American biologist, is convinced that the stories are true, and he has set out to prove the existence of a legendary beast the pygmies call mokele-mbembe.

The first report of the mokele-mbembe emerged in 1776 when a French priest wrote of seeing in the jungle strange footprints resembling an elephant's, but with claw marks, Mackal explains.

When more reports of the creature's existence emerged in the 1800's, four separate expeditions set out from 1812 to 1938 to solve the mystery behind the beast, also likened to a dinosaur.

All four searches were unsuccessful. The heat, swamps, disease and hostile natives proved too much for the explorers.

Then, last year, Mackal and James H. Powell, a crocodile specialist, set out to find the mokele-mbembe. The only way to cross the uncharted jungles of the Congo is no foot or by air. Mackal and Powell walked. The biologist describes the trek:

"The smell of the swampy muck was horrible. The heat was over 90 degrees each day. It seemed that every living thing tried to bite us or suck our blood. We had only freeze-dried food, smoked meat and a little fruit to eat. Finding drinking water was always a big problem. I was never so glad to see anything in my life as the village that was to be our base camp."

Although most of the natives were afraid to talk about the mokele-mbembe, some did claim they had seen the animals. When shown pictures of different kinds of dinosaurs, they would always point to the brontosaurus and cry, "Mokele-mbembe!" From the pygmies', descriptions, Mackal found he was searching for animals with bodies the size of a hippo's, with long snake-like tails and necks. Their feet were supposedly clawed, their skin reddish brown or gray and hairless. Some of the creatures were said to have rooster-like combs along the backs of their necks.

The natives led Mackal and Powell to river banks where a vine called the molombo grew. The pretty flowering vine was supposedly a favorite food of the mokele-mbembe. About 20 years ago, the pygmies said, the beasts began coming to a lake where molombo grew and where the natives liked to fish. In an attempt to stop the creatures the villagers sharpened large trees into stakes and drove them into the river bottom near the entrance to the lake. But the huge fence didn't stop the mokele-mbembe.

"The last time anyone reported seeing one of the animals was in 1979," Mackal writes. "The natives urged us to stay and perhaps see one for ourselves." But because they were running out of money and supplies, Mackal's expedition had to leave.

For his 1981 expedition Mackal and Powell recruited two other scientists and planned to venture into the jungle with 10 porters. They planned to take video equipment to set up on the river banks where the molombo grows. With a sonar-like device that bounces sound waves off the underwater objects they also hoped to scan jungle waterways.

Does the mokele-mbembe really exist? "My companions from my last trip and I are sure that some strange animal is really out there," says Mackal, 56, a former research associate in biology at the University of Chicago. If Mackal's hunch is right — and his camera works — he may bring back a video-cassette of the strangest animal ever taped for TV.

Windmills may throw money to the wind

COLLEGE STATION — Rural residents and agricultural producers may throw more money to the wind than they get from it with windmills and other wind machines.

In most areas, wind machines are not yet economical for pumping water if another means is available, says an agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Without electricity or an engine-powered pump, however, a windmill is the best way to pump water for home or livestock use, says engineer Wayne Keese. "But the choice between a windmill and existing electrical power for pumping water should be thoroughly analyzed," he cautions.

For comparison, select a windmill and an electric pump that can provide the necessary amount of water. "Then compare the cost of owning and operating both systems," suggests Keese, including depreciation, interest on investment, repairs, the cost of power for the electric pump and the cost of water storage for the windmill system.

Irrigation generally requires a higher pumping rate than a multi-blade farm windmill provides. Keese notes that modern wind turbines are being tested in combination with electric pumps to provide "wind assistance" for irrigation.

Sheriff's Report

Rods, reels taken from truck

Herbert Liles of Dallas told deputies some $170 in rods, reels and assorted fishing tackle was taken from the back of his Chevy Suburban about 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Liles told deputies two men in a black coupe pulled up behind his vehicle while he was at a table cleaning fish at a Rockport motel. He said while one of the men engaged him in conversation, the other man apparently took the fishing gear from his truck.

The theft was still under investigation this past week.

Growing the beautiful amaryllis

By Ted Brice
The Garden Editor

The original home of the amaryllis is the Cape of Good Hope. It is also a native of Mexico and Peru as well as Brazil. The amaryllis is one of the most magnificent of indoor winter-blooming plants. The large bulbous plants have long narrow leaves and large funnel-shaped flowers. Each of these large bulbs will produce one to three leafless stems of two feet or more with enormous bell-shaped flowers which will be up to 10 inches across. The red flowered amaryllis has been closely associated with the Christmas holiday season. Today we have many hybrids such as white, salmon-pink, pale pink as well as dark red and variegated streaked petals. After the amaryllis flowers, the plant may be set outside in a warm spot. In some of the warmer areas of the Southwest the amaryllis may be grown outside year round but the amaryllis is better known as a pot plant at the holiday season of the year. The amaryllis bulb will grow year after year producing their beauty for this particular season of the year.

The culture suggestions for the amaryllis will apply for amaryllis grown in pots as well as out of doors. They like a high light to a very high light, therefore for pot plants they should be in a sunny south or east window. The temperature range for the amaryllis is 70 to 85 degrees maximum with a 35 degree minimum.

Allow the surface of the potting mixture to dry out between watering. During dormancy withhold all the watering. The amaryllis likes an average humidity of 25 percent or higher. You should fertilize monthly during the growing season with an even balance fertilizer. When the foliage turns yellow or brown and withers after the flowering you should cut the foliage off and then let the plant go through the dormancy stage.

If the amaryllis is grown in a pot you may store the pot in a warm, dry, dark location during this dormancy period. The amaryllis bulbs are sold in accordance to size of the bulb, therefore do not wait until all the amaryllis bulbs have been picked over before you purchase yours. The bigger the bulb, properly taken care of, will produce the best flowers.

Good gardening until next week from your garden editor, Ted Brice.

R-F Pirates put it together and dump Taft 45-37

Looking more like a team, the Rockport-Fulton Pirates eased past Taft Tuesday night in a 45-37 win in Taft.

Michael Simmons came off the bench to pace the Pirates with 17 points and 11 rebounds for the three quarters he played. Coach Bobby Flanagan used almost a complete new starting unit against Taft in hopes to find a workable combination, and they worked out well. Orlando Pina, Aaron Commander, Jon Shaw, Dwayne Walls, and Rory Morgan started out against the Grayhounds before Flanagan made wholesale changes in the second quarter. Simmons entered the game in the second quarter and took charge of the game, especially on the offensive backboards for the Pirates where he put in four points on rebounds.

The Pirates managed to hold a single point lead after a quarter at 12-11 before Simmons and his mates entered the game. Morgan hit for six in the first period, and Pina nailed four.

Both teams warmed up in the second period, but Simmons kept the Pirates in front as he crashed the boards and snared rebounds and then put them back in. Three times during the second period the Pirates extended their lead to as many as five points, going on to lead by a narrow 25-23 margin at the half.

Taft came back in the third period to tie the game at 27 all, after Tim Redden had hit a shot to put the Pirates on top by a pair. Then Simmons took a perfect inbounds pass and hit a basket, and from that point on, the Pirates never trailed or were tied again. By the end of the third period, Rockport held a 34-30 lead as Taft cut away at the lead the Pirates had established.

Tough defense by Dennis Hull, Morgan, James Walls, Redden, and Simmons held the Hounds to only seven points in the final quarter.

The JV lost a tough game to the Hounds, but they looked more like a unit. Jay Roberts, John Longino, and Charles Showalter each hit for eight points in the 56-41 loss. The Pirates came back to within ten points late in the game, but could never quite recover from a terribly slow start when no one could find the range to the basket. The Pirates scored only two points in the opening quarter, and trailed 15-2 at the end of the first eight minutes.

Rockport's Freshmen racked up their second win by downing the Hounds 69-26 behind the double

Bill Mott popped the threads for 18, Trinel Walls found the mark for 14, Steve Odem hit for 12, and Louis Solis added 10 points. The young Pirates blitzed the Hounds with a 24 point outburst in the first period, and then never looked back. This win follows a big win by the Freshmen over Port Lavaca on Monday night.

Steel shot booklet offered by TP&WD

AUSTIN — Wildlife officials in Texas and elsewhere believe the switch from toxic lead to nontoxic steel shotgun loads is vital to conserving waterfowl resources for the future.

The booklet addresses concerns of waterfowl hunters about crippling rates, shotgun patterns, firearm damage, cost and other factors involved with the changeover to steel loads.

To obtain the booklet, write the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX, 78744, or call 1-800-792-1112.

Pirates looking for winning combination

Coach Bobby Flanagan, looking for a combination to produce another winner at Rockport-Fulton, has his work cut out for him in 1981-82 as he tries to shape a team really hit hard by graduation. Missing this season are the intimidating figure of Marty Davenport and the exceptional leaping ability of Donnie Frels.

The Pirates do return two starters in James Walls and Dennis Hull. Both players have had two previous seasons of varsity experience. Walls has the ability to out-class everyone in the district when his game is going right, but he is a slow starter at times. Hull is known for his solid defense and good position under the boards, and on occasion will bomb the bucket from the outside.

Joining Walls and Hull with experience is Michael Simmons who showed last year that as a player, he can catch fire and burn the nets without mercy. Simmons was called on as a starter much of the season last year. Rory Morgan, the only "big" man for the Pirates at 6' 4", draws a starting call from Flanagan in hopes that he will assert himself as a dominate figure around the backboard. Junior Tim Redden, with perhaps the best pure touch as a shooter, rounds out the starting five.

Zachary Green, who gained some experience toward the last part of the season a year ago, is a junior with tremendous ability if he can just harness that potential. Jon Shaw, a steady player on the JV last year, gives Flanagan some bench strength at the "big people" positions. Aaron Commander who started for the JV last year, and early in the season carried much of the JV's scoring load, gives additional depth.

Sophomore Dwayne Walls is expected to pull lots of playing time because of his strength and quickness. Rounding out the team are playmakers Orlando Pina and Billy Washko.

After two games the Pirates have not yet found the groove, but Flanagan has solved similar problems in the past, and there is no reason to expect any different in '81-82.

Modern Floors has good first year

Modern floors of Rockport will be celebrating its first anniversary this month, and according to owner Jennifer Ledbetter, it's been a great year for business.
Jennifer and her husband Bob are co-owners, with a Victoria concern, of Modern Floors. The Ledbetters had worked in commercial floor covering prior to their move to Rockport. Bob is now in his eleventh year in the floor covering business and his experience is part of the high quality service offered by the company.
Modern Floors carries the top brands of carpeting - Custom Weave, Evans Black, Armstrong, Columbus, Galaxy and Salem as well as all the name brands in sheet vinyl, ceramic tiles and hardwood flooring. Everything they sell they can install as well.
In addition to floor covering, the Ledbetters handle "anything to finish out a house - window blinds, mini blinds, shutters, wallpaper, wall tiles - "we've got it," says Jennifer, "and that way when someone needs it all, they don't have to run around between four or five different places."

The company handles business, commercial and residential jobs and orders and, says Jennifer, nothing is too big or small. "We can tackle it all," she says.
They carry the latest in styles and Jennifer adds that she is receiving new samples every week.
If Modern Floors does not have a particular item, Jennifer says that they can order it at any time. "I will always try to find it for them." That includes old or out-of-date tile covering, which is often hard for the home owner to match.
The Ledbetters enjoy doing business in Rockport. "We love it here," says Jennifer. "It's been good for us here in Rockport."

Winners of an afghan, hook rug and ceramic tree, given away during last weekend's Christmas Bazaar have been named by Mary Casey, chairman of the Bazaar sponsored by the Women's Committee, Aransas County Medical Services, Inc.

Jim Little was the winner of the afghan and Jesus Corpus of the ceramic tree. The hook rug went to H. Burgoyne of Houston.

Holman approved the Phase 1 Grant, comfort station specs presented by Goldston Engineering, Inc., on Nov. 4, 1981 after the regular meeting was adjourned. Faber also makes note that the item was not on the agenda for that meeting.

During the interview Faber described the districts decision to require a $50 deposit when placing a name on the boat slip waiting list as, "The beginning of wrecking the old regime." He also says the deposit requirement is, "Probably the first important policy change that has been made there."

Faber has also requested that the navigation district produce the leases or sub leases that are due for renewal in the next 90 days. He said he knows of four of them coming due but says Dominguez told him there are only two leases that will come up for review in the next 90 days.

The subdivision resolution passed by the commissioners calls for a drainage map to be "made available" to the court when a subdivision is approved.

Noting that no provisions for approval of drainage prior to the approval of an entire project had been made, attorney Anderson suggested that the court adopt a new resolution calling for advance drainage approval and the availability of a drainage map at the courthouse. He also advised that the commissioners approve the restrictions imposed by subdividers prior to the approval of any project. No action was taken by the commissioners at this session, but they agreed to act on such a regulation when it was drawn up by Anderson. Anderson told the court he would work on it.

Doug Munro, developer of the airport apartment house project appeared before the court with a problem. The project calls for the renovation of existing barracks buildings into basic apartments. Munro told the commissioners that a sewer line serving the barracks could not be opened because it

In the interview, Faber produced a copy of a document that shows four leases coming up for review during this period, including one for Casterline Fish Company on seven lots.

The present lease to the Casterline Fish Company is for $5,062.50 and is due for renewal in January 1982.

According to the document another lease, one to Coastal Properties, Inc. for ten lots will be due for renewal in January 1982. The present lease is for $3,487.50.

The Rockport resident said he is going to continue his investigation in the future and he said he is presently looking into what he calls very high salaries for the navigation district members. He says the five members make a total salary of nearly $30,000.

The navigation district will hold its next regular meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 1, 1981 at the navigation district office in Rockport.

was "crushed." The line is at present running under a concrete walkway, and due to the extensive time necessary to repair it, Munro asked for a six-month moratorium on the lease payments for that one building only, until the sewer repairs were completed. The court granted his request unanimously.

The Rockport Volunteer Fire Department has received five bids on an approved chassis for a new truck, approved by the court in August. Tom DePuma, representing the volunteers, advised the court that the department would accept the low bid from Trade-winds Ford, of $19,177.

The companies bidding on the installation of fire fighting equipment onto the chassis varied in bid prices greatly, said DePuma, with the low bid coming in some $7,000 under the others.

A trip to the manufacturer in question is to be made by two firemen before acceptance of any bid.

Total cost of the fire fighting unit is approximately $55,000. The fire department is pledged to raise $10,000 of the cost, with the county picking up the rest of the total.

Questions and answers

Dear Dr. Lutz,

My cat is 5 months old and we live in an apartment. The apartment rules are such that pets are not allowed on the premises without a leash. Can a cat be taught to lead? We would like to be able to take him outside for exercise.

Signed,
W.J.

Dear W.J.

Many cat owner's have taught their cats to walk with a leash. Your cat is at an ideal age to start this training. The learning process will be faster if you would attach a plastic leash to his collar and let him drag it around inside the house for a week. Be patient, praise and reward him with a "tid-bit"

"In Washington I button-holed this Congressman, saying: You being the most prominent of Democrats, and a leader in your party, can you give me an inkling of what the Democratic Party is going to do?"

"He said: 'By what right do you come here to insult me? I am no leader! If I was their leader, they would be going a different way. Moses couldn't lead that gang!'"

"I left him chewing up a New York Times editorial entitled 'Benefit of Humanity.'" May 1, 1926.
