ROAD LOGGERS BOOST O. S. T. HIGHWAY

One of the large road inspecting and logging cars of the Automobile Club of Southern California passed through San Antonio last week inspecting and relogging the Old Spanish Trail eastward to Jacksonville, Fla. The logging crew explained that inquiries were increasing about the Old Spanish Trail and the Club needed first hand information. They explained that the Old Spanish Trail was the seventh trunk-line highway they had recently inspected and that they were surprised to find it averaging so good. It was better they said, than any western route south of the Lincoln Highway.

The crew had made no inspections south of the Lincoln Highway. They particularly commented upon West Texas conditions. In that ranch country they were prepared to find some hard roads, but instead they found 90 per cent good roads with interesting scenery, spring water streams, camping resorts, good garage and hotel service—all of special interest to tourists.

Toward evening they started on the 65-mile drive from Sonora to Junction. When they reached Roosevelt, half way between Sonora and Junction and at the headwaters of the Llano river, they were so pleased to find camp huts with electric lights and running water, also swimming conveniences at the river, that they stopped and spent the night there. They said there was no question but that tourist travel should now be routed straight through on the Old Spanish Trail—San Antonio Express.

COUNTY TAX RATE SAME AS LAST YEAR

Tax Assessor Joe Bisset has recently completed his assessments for the year, and his report was approved by the Commissioners Court last month. After going into the matter of financing the county for the coming year, the court found that it would be necessary to levy the same tax rate as of last year, which was 82c on the $100 valuation.

It is presumed that the rate will be the limit of 75c as heretofore.

The total valuation for the county this year was $4,147,705, as compared with $4,210,357 for last year.

In the Junction School District there is a maintenance tax of 50c and a bond tax of 25c. In the London-Creek District there is a maintenance tax of 75c and a bond tax of 25c. The London district is an independent district, the only one in the county, and has the largest school tax rate. Other school districts over the county run from 10c to 75c.

If the state tax rate is the same as of last year, this county will pay into the state treasury $31,102, as compared with $32,958 in 1922.

Henry Land of the Yates community was in town Saturday with a car load of cabbage, raised on his farm. Mr. Land is usually the first to have cabbage for the market in this county and grows this vegetable in rather large quantities. This was his second load marketed this year.

FINE CRAPPIE CAUGHT ON SOUTH LLANO

Members of the Paech camping party on the McKee ranch caught a fine lot of crappie this week, the first of a considerable number and of size large to eat that have been reported this year.

These are doubtless some of those placed in the big hole in the river along the McKee ranch about two years ago by the Junction Hardware Co. They were secured from the Dallas Hatchery and brought over on a truck from Menard. As the Eagle Editor was one of those who went to Menard thru rain and mud to bring them here, he is naturally interested in seeing them protected for a year or two more, then there ought to be a sufficient number in the river to provide all the fish needed for everybody.

It has been suggested to us that if the ranchmen, and those in town coming in contact with fishermen, would suggest to the fishermen that they throw back all crappie that are caught, this year, it will go a long way toward getting this fine eating fish started in the Llano. So far as we know the shipment referred to and their offspring are the only crappie in the river.

It is thought that there are only a few fishermen who would not be willing to return the few crappie they catch to the river, if the matter were mentioned to them in the proper manner. Of course there is no law to protect them, except below a certain size, but most of the people who come to the county are good sportsmen, want to come again, and will be glad to do this small act in the interest of better fishing in the future.

John Fish, ranchman from the Owensville country, was in town Monday and reports about five inches of rain in his part of the county.

MRS. BRALEY DIES IN SAN ANTONIO

Mrs. Lena Braley died last Saturday at a San Antonio sanitarium after an illness of many months, during which time she had been in the home of her son in Junction, until about the first of this month when she was taken to San Antonio.

Mrs. Braley came to Texas in 1871 from Mississippi, where she was born in 1857. Since 1871 she has been a resident of this state except for a period of five years spent in Mexico.

When only a small child she united with the Baptist church

SOUTH AFRICAN GOATS ARRIVE AT CAMP WOOD

After a trip covering thousands of miles, 117 head of South African registered goats arrived at Camp Wood Wednesday.

The goats stood the trip from New York well, and immediately after the arrival of the two cars they were unloaded and transferred to the sheltered pens in the peak.

Messrs. Eric Manley and Edgar Hobson, prominent breeders, accompanied the shipment from South African shores to this city.

The goats are to be sold here at a sale June 18, 19 and 20, and breeders from all parts of the U. S. are expected.

Auctioneer McGinnis of Chicago has been selected to auction the goats. Mr. McGinnis was the auctioneer at the goat sale at Rio Frio last year.

These animals are beauties. They are pedigreed Angoras and are the cream of South African flocks. E. Cawood, who is in charge of the billies, has a record of each animal and will be glad to answer questions concerning them.

Preparations are being made to care for several thousand people in a way that will reflect favorably on Camp Wood. An ample supply of tents and cots has been secured. Barbecued meats and bread are to be sold at cost.

During the three days there will be plenty of amusements and entertainment for old and young, and Camp Wood wants to see a large crowd here every day and evening—Camp Wood Crows.

and in later years joined the Methodist church. Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon by Rev. Davis at the Methodist church and interment was made at the local cemetery.

Deceased is survived by one son, Burt Braley, of Junction, one sister and three brothers.

COMMISSIONER'S COURT MET MONDAY

County Commissioners Court was in session Monday attending to routine business, but this session was unusual for the number of orders passed. Only one was acted upon, that being the accepting of two notes in payment for a horse sold recently, which belonged to the county.

The Court discussed the feasibility of buying a catapillar tractor for road work, but no definite action was taken. Since the rains, the commissioners have been busy making necessary repairs on the roads, especially at creek and river crossings, so traffic will not be interfered with.

At the meeting prior to the one this week, the Court continued the wolf bounty until August 15th. The time had expired May 15th. During the few months this order has been in effect, six bounties have been paid. This bounty of $25 is paid only on grown wolves.

The county is in excellent financial condition, as shown by the Treasurer's report as of May 11th. Total funds on hand amount to $32,514.75, not including a note of $1,300 in favor of the county and a Time Certificate of Deposit for $6,875.

DECHERT-FISHER

On last Wednesday morning at eleven, Ben Dechert and Miss Cora Fisher were quietly married by Rev. J. Virgil Davis at the Methodist Parsonage in Junction.

The groom is a son of Mrs. W. O. Dechert of this place and has grown to manhood here where he has many friends to extend congratulations and best wishes.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Fisher of the Red Creek community. She was reared in this county, attended C. I. A. at Denton and for the last year has been a member of the local school faculty.

They will make their home in Junction.

WHAT A RIDE IT WOULD BE

Hon. Jim Lowrey of Honey Grove has assembled the information that we have in Texas as 800,000 motor vehicles and a population of slightly more than four millions. He has estimated the autos as having a seating capacity of five people and accordingly has conceived the idea that we might all pick up some day and have a ride.

We in Texas have the highways to roll these autos over and we have the folks to fill the cars, so as editor Lowrey suggests it would be a great trip. We might just take a turn across state from El Paso to Texarkana, a distance of about one thousand miles over a hard surface highway, and then we might motor along down to Laredo and the Rio Grande country where the orange blossoms grow and after looking over at our neighbors in Mexico for a spell, we might take a little scenic drive into the wonderful Kerrville country, climbing from San Antonio and a sea level of six hundred feet to an altitude of more than two thousand feet in a stretch of seventy miles. The soft flowing crystal waters of the Guadalupe River is music to the ear, the silent mountains upbourn on the shoulders of rugged precipices, give solace to the tired mind, and the wonderful blue of the overhanging sky is inspiration for the poet. The dreamer of dreams will here pitch his tent and refuse to journey further. But on across the plains to the canyons, the great 800,000 auto procession will doubtless choose to go, and by the far famed health giving waters of Mineral Wells, Marlin and Glen Rose the motorcade of 800,000 will pass, and pause to drink to the progress, to the future Texas, the greatest state in growth and development of the Union.

Truly editor Jim Lowrey has had a prophetic vision. We are going some day to try and see Texas. We have the highways, and we have the autos.

KERRVILLE OFFERS WOOL ON JUNE 11

Kerrville will be the scene of the first sealed bid auction in Texas this season of 1925 spring wool, according to announcement reaching San Antonio. Charles Schreiner on Thursday, June 11, will offer 1,000,000 pounds of fleeces, consisting of about 500,000 pounds of twelve months clips and 500,000 pounds of eight-months fleeces. Sales at San Angelo—America's largest wool concentration and shipping point—Del Rio, Mertzon and other centers are expected to follow that at Kerrville.

Ordinarily, shearing of Texas' spring wool is over by June 10. But buyers now estimate that but little over half the wool has been shorn, and shearing will likely continue throughout most of June. Rains have retarded shearing, which again got under full headway Monday after almost a week of moisture.

The rains have washed much of the dirt out of the wool, but buyers say the shrinkage will be greater than in several seasons owing to the dirt accumulated during the dry winter and early spring. The quality of the wool has suffered as a result but is better than was expected. The average staple is said to be shorter than in 1924.

It is estimated that Texas' 1925 spring wool crop will total from 18,000,000 to 19,000,000 pounds, a gain of approximately one million pounds over last year. This, adding in the fall clips, will keep Texas first among the States in wool production. Around 40 per cent, or nearly 8,000,000 pounds of the spring clip, was sold by contract during the fall and winter. With the market continuing stable, the growers believe they will get fair prices for the remainder of the clip sold by the home commission firms. Probably 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 pounds of wool has arrived in San Angelo.

The above item is from the San Angelo Standard. As the Eagle is printed on the day the sale is scheduled, no information as to the outcome is available until next week.

HISTORY OF THE 1925 HIGH SCHOOL CLASS

By Buddie Richardson

Members of the Graduating Class, Ladies and Gentlemen: It is my privilege and honor to outline for you the history of this graduating class since it came into existence in this place in the year 1924.

Our school days together are limited to the past few years. All of this class of students have joined the class since that year.

School days in our lives have been for the most part a pleasant and happy association with all the teachers, each other, and all the others who have given their efforts to assist us in accomplishing this, our goal, graduation.

However, with the many pleasant occurrences and incidents of our school career, have come the ironies and misfortunes that would usually occur at any similar period of life. Ironies, in that we have lost by withdrawal from the school since this class begun in 1914, many close and dear friends made while in school. Many of our former associates and school mates, who have made easy our school burdens, are now in the fields of business and some are housewives in our land. The Grim Reaper, too, has not exempted us, as he has passed his shadows over the land, and tonight, mayhap, there would be other young men and women among us had they not departed to that land from whose borne no traveller ever returns.

Our class is no exception to other classes of young men and women who are this year graduating from other schools of the State. We only hope that our work and conduct in school have been such that we justly merit the reward it is ours, tonight, to enjoy. If we can repay our friends, teachers and parents for the honor you have conferred on us and the confidence you have bestowed in us by using the knowledge attained in school life to make useful and honorable citizens, we will feel satisfied.

The ambitions of this class is not to stop at this graduation, but to make it a real commencement on an educational career that will fit us to become intelligent, energetic, collaborators with you when taking our places where ever under our American government it may be our lot to live.

As I think back over my eleven years of school life, I do so with a mingled feeling of regret and happiness. Of regret, because I remember that 34 boys and girls started toward the goal which this class has succeeded in reaching tonight, and with the exception of myself, none remain of the original 34. This has not been due to any exceptional ability possessed by me above that of my fellow students, but to the fact that circumstances, bad judgment and death took from our class all except myself. Had there remained in the class the original 34, I feel sure the class would number tonight 47 instead of 13.

We all know that no matter what the super-structure may be, that if the foundation is faulty the whole building will soon wreck. In the beginning of school life, our inimitable and beloved teacher, Miss Ausie Durst, laid the foundation upon which we have erected our educational careers. The fact that she has been retained through these many years in our school is an evidence that the beginning of school life was a proper one under her direction. In those school days, we only had five rooms in the school building and the second year Miss Ausie led her flock to the Goat Shed used for a school building west of our present fine house. There under circumstances that would have discouraged many people and with no equipment of any character, she taught us our second year.

At the begging of the third year Miss Mary Willis took the helm of our boat and directed us into another department of our goat shed, where through a winter of cold and unpleasant surroundings we climbed on up the hill, with Miss Mary standing by to assist us, by persuasion or otherwise, in the task. It was during this year that we had added to our class a former student of the London school, who has since that good day been as asset in our midst, Clara Fritz. Our class was further boosted by friend Bill Wright, who by dint of hard work had caught up with the class. Bill since that time has hit the line of school work as hard as he ever hit the line of football.

The fourth year of our school life was spent in the Main building, where conditions were better, but not altogether ideal. Miss Ruth Stevenson, now Mrs. Gardner Franks, successfully completed the task of our instruction. She was an able and determined teacher and imbued us with an ambition for an education.

Our fifth year was made pleasant and profitable by one of the best teachers we ever had, Miss Jessie Smith. It was during this year that our class prodigy, one of the best students that this school has ever produced joined us, Verena Lawler.

In our sixth year of school Mrs. Ona Reese, a very beautiful and accomplished young lady, carried us over the problems of school life. It was in this grade more than others that we lost attendance from the class. More than half of the original 34 had quit school.

Our seventh year, and one in which the girls and boys of the class began to smile more pleasantly at each other, and occasionally pass notes, was a rocky and turbulent road. Nevertheless Mrs. Baze never lost her vigilance, and by one method and another graduated something like half of the original 34 into the High School department.

It was at this stage of our lives, and I believe that you all have experienced it, that we conceived ourselves educated young men and women. A good many thoughts were in our minds as to how the various business institutions should be run and our parents should demand themselves toward us and for the best way for schools to be taught. However, after we got into the High School under the superintendency of E. M. Barnett and an able corps of teachers, we soon learned there was something yet to learn.

As you probably know, all standard high schools are taught on the departmental plan divided into four years of work. Our school was not at that time classified, but thru the proper authorities we received the classification.

Our second year was without any special incident, except we were informed at the beginning of the term that the school expected to get affiliation on our work. This may not mean much to you, but to us it meant work morning, night and noon.

Upon that work our school received several units of affiliation. Since that time to this most of the work in the high school has been placed on a standard basis and our school has received 16 1-2 units of affiliation, which means to us that, our diplomas are a passport to any standard higher educational institution, without examination.

During our high school life our class has increased by the addition of Miss Marguerite Wright, Miss Sallie Blackburn, Miss Ruth Beasley, Miss Lura B. Taylor, Albert Mayfield, Jack Richardson, John Blackburn, Vic Urban and Ira Fleming, all of whom are splendid young men and women and have added to a great extent, to any success which this class has attained. It is needless to say that we appreciate the aid and advice rendered us by Supt. Miller, Prof. Wright, Miss Merchant and Miss Blackburn in our last high school year. They have been faithful and ever ready to assist us in our work and if it should be our fortune to accomplish any worthwhile things in life, we feel deeply grateful to them for the help they have given us toward that end.

This last year was made pleasant by the provision for us of a modern, well-equipped school building. We feel that we can tell you from experience that it is material help to all those who follow us in doing the work required by our Department of Education for the State.

This concludes a brief narrative of our school lives. We wish to thank from our hearts all who have contributed to our success and sincerely hope that no one will ever have cause to regret the confidence which has this night been placed in us.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By E. R. Waite, Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

That fair competition is the life of trade.

That home business institutions that are helping to pay for the maintenance and improvements of a city are entitled to the trade of the citizens of the home city.

That outside business concerns do nothing towards the building of the home city and local merchants should not be forced to compete with them.

That buying away from home should be stamped out forever. Every dollar and every activity should be united to make business of the home city better. Now is the time to get busy and make local business better.

That every citizen should take an active and positive stand on all things that go to make local business better.

That all should take a mental inventory and find out how they stand in ability and honesty of purpose and willingness to make the home city bigger and better.

That no man is a success who only enriches himself. The man is a success whose success enriches the community.

There is only one city in the world in which to live and prosper and that is the city in which you live.

A good way to boost the home city is to buy from the local business concerns who add vertise in local papers.

Local advertisers are the people who lead in the things that keep a city moving forward in the march of progress.

The fine ranch home on the V. H. Ranch is now receiving its finishing touches and is one of the finest in the county. Also the supply house and the entrance to the ranch is completed and certainly presents an inviting attraction to those passing along the road. One can hardly pass by without stopping to admire it. Camp cottages, too, are still being built to accommodate the trade that is keeping the camp full to overflowing. While the tourist season has hardly begun, Mr. Hardeman states that he has been overrun to date and has many reservations for the future summer months.

People passing along the South Llano road at night are attracted by the display of electric lights at Prices Camp which were installed last week. Numerous recent improvements at the camp, including the lights, are adding to the comfort and attractiveness of the camp. A long shed, accommodating more than a dozen carriages are now being made with all cottages and shower baths will be provided for the vacationists who are keeping the camp filled, even at the beginning of the season.

If, when you go into the Junction Furniture Co. Store, and are met by the proprietor with the suggestion that you buy a baby buggy, a baby bed, chair or walker, don't be alarmed as George has just returned from San Antonio and has a fine boy that he says can almost say "papa." William, or "Bill," as he will be called, was born Sunday the 31st and he and his mother are doing nicely.

W. H. Nethery and Buddy Richardson spent last week in Abilene. Mr. Nethery was there to visit his daughter, Mrs. L. L. Camp.

Judges Stevenson and Blackburn were in Austin this week to present an application for a new hearing in the Jim Turman case which was recently affirmed by the Court of Criminal Appeals. The case was appealed from this county more than a year ago.

According to a report from the Sul Ross Normal College at Alpine, Louis Loeffler, son of Emil A. Loeffler of Junction, made straight "A" grades in all his five courses during the past year. He has been a paid coach in mathematics and during the summer will be cashier of the College Cafeteria. This is his first year at this school.

Misses Louise and Maurine Farmer arrived from Austin Monday. Maurine has been visiting her sisters there. She and Louise came back with Mrs. S. P. Misses Margaret Holland, Etta Hoggett and Mrs. Clay Holland of Junction, Miss Hatfield and Mrs. Driscoll of Sonora, will leave Monday for Del Rio for a vacation trip and while away expect to cross the border for a visit in Old Mexico.

The Eagle reporter had the pleasure of looking over the Baker Breeding Dairy Tuesday of this week and was agreeably surprised to see the modern methods employed by Mr. Breeding in handling this dairy. One of the largest barns in the county is used for storing feed, and providing stalls for cows and a large milk room. The milk room and cow stalls are screened. The stalls have concrete floors that enables Mr. Breeding to keep them thoroughly washed and in a sanitary condition. The milk room is equipped with separator, automatic bottler, sinks, hot water apparatus, bottle washers, etc., and is modern in every respect.

Postmaster Tracy advises the Eagle that a change in the manner of handling the incoming mails will be made this week in the interest of better service to the patrons of the office. Upon the arrival of the mails, the daily papers and the first class mail will be worked and as soon as this is completed the windows will be opened. Parcel post and circular mail will be worked as soon as possible. As comparatively few of those, especially transient people, who call at the window get parcel post, this change will take care of these people immediately after mail for box holders has been worked and will to a great extent eliminate the usual long line of people waiting for their mail at the window, as most of these are interested only in first class mail and can be waited on more rapidly.

Sallie's Temptations

SALLIE FINDS HERSELF IN A NEW SITUATION

Morning in Miami and a new day of blue and gold brilliance. Ellie and I sat alone on the open terrace. The others had gone down for a swim in the dazzling ocean, while still others had strolled off to one of the secluded nooks of the extensive gardens.

"What's up?" Ellie demanded. "All I've heard is a whisper about your breezing in at some time in the early, pearly dawning. Mrs. Divine was about as communicative as a pound of cheese when I asked at breakfast about our fair Sallie."

In spite of all that happened, I was forced to smile at Ellie's amusing phraseology.

"Oh, the less said, the better, I suppose," I answered, wishing to forget all about the episode with Warren Fisher. I would not have to see him again for I was sure he would not follow out his intentions of attending the house party while I was on it.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," she exclaimed in a most exaggerated manner, "can you really beat it—me in a role of the prying scandalmonger? Really, Sport, I'm sorry, it was not idle curiosity that made me pester you with abominable questions. Never you mind whatever it is—or whatever you did, it's all right with me and I'm for you."

She came over and gave me an affectionate pat on the shoulder.

"Oh, Ellie, you're so fine and loyal. I don't know what I would do without you. It wasn't that I did not want to tell you everything, it's just so joy-killing that I hate to blow your candle out even for a few minutes."

"I may be wrong but I had an idea under this permanent wave of mine that friends were useful for just such a purpose."

"Well, I'll tell you, it's really very simple after it's all over but I went thru the devil's own time with a man last night. He thought I was—well—"

"a little prairie flower?" prompted Ellie.

"Uh-hum," I nodded, "and only after a strenuous argument which ended in me taking to my heels, could I convince him that I was not."

"Never mind, Kid, it's all over now and it happens in the best of families. It's part of a girl's education," Ellie was cynical. I forgot my own worries momentarily and asked for the reason.

"Oh, just a disappointment. I got a telegram a minute ago from—oh, well from the suitor I told you was going to join the party," a pause, then, "business has called him to other places."

"But to get back to your case, Sallie, are you going to let that silly experience dampen your usual dashing spirit?"

"I don't know yet how I feel about it, somehow, I'm sick of the whole business. This thing has sorter taken the starch out of me, Ellie. Of course, I've made a few such silly mistakes before, but this one was worse—the man was much older, and there was a sort of deliberateness about it that was grossly common."

It never occurred to Ellie to question me in regard to the identity of the man to whom I was referring. She was an ideal friend. Her attitude gave me to understand that if I chose to tell her—well and good—and if I didn't, it was well and good also. That was Ellie.

I refrained from revealing the name of Warren Fisher—not because I thought he deserved any consideration but I instinctively shrank from dragging in another person on whom to hove the blame for something that had been the result of my own indiscretion. The maid appeared and said that Mrs. Divine would like to speak with Miss Mitchell. It soothed my nerves and gave me a feeling of complete relaxation.

In just a few moments Ellie returned. Her face was dark and forboding.

"Why, Ellie, what is it?" I started up from the swing in which we had been sitting.

"Damn her narrow, little mind and soul!"

I knew that the interview had been frightfully unpleasant. I likewise knew that the thing that upset Ellie had to do with my being at the villa. We are all more phsyic than we realize and as a rule, we never go wrong on these first telepathic impressions.

"Now, Ellie, you might as well be perfectly frank about it. You can't hurt my feelings. What did Mrs. Divine say about me that left you in such a fury—why, Ellie, old girl, look—you're trembling all over."

"I suppose I'll have to tell you. I'd want you to under similar conditions."

"Of course you would. You're a perfect brick. Come and sit here," and taking her hand I drew her forward.

"No, sree—not in this house. Not in any swing or chair owned by that—heartless piece of alabaster."

"Careful, Ellie, you're talking about our hostess," I warned. After all, we had broken bread with Mrs. Divine and like the Mohammedans, that rite alone should keep us loyal.

TRANSPORTATION

To get a correct idea of the advancement made in transportation, San Francisco is now as close a New York in point of time transit between the two as Philadelphia was a century ago.—Mineral Wells Index.

To bring the matter closer home, a man who lives 20 miles in the country on a good road and owns an automobile is as near town as the fellow who lived out a mile or two a few years ago and depended on horse transportation. New inventions have almost obliterated distance, and within a few years the inhabitants of all the world will be neighbors made possible by the radio, the airplane, etc.—Denton Record-Chronicle.

SENIOR CLASS
PROPHECY OF 1925
(By Bill Wright)

In the spring of 1935 as I entered New York harbor with a bunch of polo ponies I was feeling very blue and lonely in the large city when I felt some one place their hand upon my shoulder. Turning, I recognized one of my old class mates of 1925, Jack Richardson. He told me that he was located there in a big stock exchange. After talking of old times for a while, he asked me to his house for dinner. When he drove up to his house I was faced by a large brick mansion. As we entered the house he ordered the cook to prepare dinner for three. Presently a very charming little lady appeared, very beautifully dressed. After greeting her husband she turned to me for an introduction and to my surprise I found her to be Clara Fritz. They had been married four years and had prospered much in that time.

I asked Jack about his brother, Buddie. He said, "Oh, Buddie joined the movies four years ago and is playing the part of another Rodolph Valentino. I suppose you heard of another member of our class becoming a movie actress?" Then he told me of Margarette Wright becoming very famous for her accuracy on the stage.

I boarded the west bound evening train. I was looking out of the window when the conductor came through for the tickets. I thought I recognized the voice and on looking up I saw it was Vic Urban. He sat down and talked to me for a while. He said he was just working on the train so he could see a lot of our country and was soon going to take charge of a large power plant at Niagara Falls.

I stopped over for a few days at Kansas City and visited the packing house there. I was honored by being introduced to the manager of the firm, Ira Fleming.

The next day as our train was rolling along all at once a noise was heard, and a rolling of cars. It happened to be near a small village in Oklahoma. The passengers had to spend the night because the cars could not be lifted so quickly. As I walked down the street who do you think I should happen upon but Johnnie Backburn and Ruth Beasley, whom I had prophesied to be married soon. John was running a grocery store. He and Ruth were closely connected with the church, John being a deacon. They told me of Sallie and Verena, who were missionaries in China, doing a great deal of good in their line of work.

I came on to Dallas where I had a severe attack of appendicitis. I was advised to go to the Mayfield Hospital where I underwent a most successful operation, performed by my old class mate, Albert Mayfield.

While I was in the hospital a lady passed the door whom I recognized as Lura B. Taylor. Her husband was in the same hospital. I called to her as she passed back. She told me she owned a beauty parlor in Dallas and was making plenty of money.

LAWN PARTY

Monday afternoon Mrs. O. H. Patterson and Miss Elizabeth Patterson were joint hostesses in entertaining the Merry Wives and La-fa-Lot Clubs with a lawn party honoring Mrs. Cummins Patterson of Chicago and Miss Dixie Patterson of El Paso.

Hanging baskets of flowers graced the boughs of the China trees, under which six tables had been arranged for the game of bridge. The Victrola furnished music for the players throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. Van Martin won high Merry Wives score and Mrs. Lee J. Corkill high La-fa-Lot score and each received a china flower basket, while Mrs. Carl Wolf and Miss Lura B. Taylor were consoled with wicker fly swatters. The guest prize, a dresser scarf, went to Mrs. H. E. Luhers. Each of the honorees were presented with a pair of silk hose. A chicken salad course and ice tea was served.

It takes a hundred men to make an encampment, but it takes only the influence of one woman to make a home. I not only admire woman as the most beautiful object ever created, but I reverence her as the redeemed glory of humanity, the sanctuary of all perfect qualities of heart and head. It is because women are so much better than men that their faults are considered greater. The one thing in this world that is considered constant, the only peak that rises above the clouds, the window in which the light burns forever, the one spark that darkness can not quench, is woman's love. It rises to the greatest heights, it sinks to the lowest depths, it forgives the most cruel injuries. A woman's love is the perfume of the heart. This is the real love that subdues the earth; the love that has wrought miracles of art; that gives us music all the way from the cradle song to the grand symphony that bears the soul away on wings of fire; is greater than power, sweeter than life and stronger than death.—Robert Ingersoll

Gifted Englishwoman

Elizabeth Smith was born in 1776 at the family seat of Burnhall, County Durham, England. She understood mathematics, drawing, Hebrew, Syriac, Arabic, Persian, Greek, Latin, Italian, Spanish, German and French. Her works, "Fragments," "Translation of Job," and "Translation of the Life of Klopstock," have been published. She was also a poetess of ability. She died in 1806, aged thirty.—Chicago Journal.

METHODIST REVIVAL

The revival begins at the Methodist church Sunday morning, June 14. I need not emphasize the need of a revival here. All Christian people know that any church will die without one. There is not a church in Christendom but what would be glad to have a genuine Holy Ghost revival of religion. Any town or city is a better place to live in, a more fit place to rear a family, where neighbors are kinder to each other, where business is better and safer, children are more obedient to parents, and all the community happier and more peaceable after a revival has visited the church.

To secure a revival, first, we must believe in them. Every church in existence today is a direct result of a revival. Nearly all Christians today will testify to the fact that they are what they are by what the revival have done for them. In other words, nearly all the people who have been saved were converted in a revival. They make better workers and do not backslide so quickly. The longer I live the more I believe in revivals.

Second, we must get things out of the way for a revival. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord," cried the prophet of old.

Third, we must pray for it. It is not preaching we so much need; it is praying. "Whatsoever ye ask in my name that will I do," is the Master's promise. "Call a solemn fast and prayer," was the prophetic exhortation.

But, fourth, we must also work for a revival. "Let him that heareth say come." Talk to your friends and your children who are unsaved and insist on them coming to the meeting. An earnest message, a sound gospel sermon, the best the preacher is able to give is promised every service. No controversy, no scolding, no intimidating of anyone will be given. To snatch souls from the Devil's burning brand, is our only aim and purpose. Be on hand next Sunday morning and every day and every night from then on, to the close of the meeting, and let us work together for the glory of God and the salvation of the souls of men. Encourage us with your presence, your prayers and your co-operation.

Services every day at 11:00 o'clock and every night at 8:45. There will be no day service Monday at 11 o'clock, but service at night. You are wanted and you are needed. Be sociable and courteous and help create a free and brotherly atmosphere around our people and in our church. Visitors are always accorded a hearty welcome.

OBITUARY

Death has again invaded one of the homes of our town and plucked another of earth's fairest flowers, that of Mother. In the gong of Sister Lena Braley the town and community, the church and family, sustain a great loss.

For several months Sister Braley had been in failing worse until she was carried to a sanitarium a few days ago in San Antonio, hoping she might be treated and made better. But to no avail. She grew weaker instead, and Saturday morning, June 6, she passed to her eternal reward.

She had reached the age of 67 years, 10 months and two days when her earthly pilgrim age quietly came to its close. She was born Sept. 4, 1857, in the state of Missouri. She moved to Texas in 1871, and later went to Mexico where she lived for five years, then returned to Texas where she has since resided.

She belonged to the type of early settlers and knew how to appreciate her many friends, who reciprocated her love for them.

She is survived by an only son, Burt Braley, with whom she made her home, one sister and three brothers, a number of other relatives and a large circle of friends and acquaintances to mourn her departure.

The funeral services were conducted by the writer at the Methodist church Sunday at 3 p. m., and we quietly laid her body to rest beneath an elaborate and beautiful floral offering in Junction cemetery to await the resurrection morn, when the earth and the sea shall give up their dead. Sleep on, dear Sister Braley, and take your rest. We know you were tired; tired of earth's battles and sorrows. We know Heaven is richer, and some glad day we shall meet again where death never comes.

J. Virgil Davis.
