"ALL WHELPS FROM SAME KENNEL" SAYS BORAH IN GEORGIA, OF FASCISTS, BOLSHEVISTS, DRY LAW OPPONENTS

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 18.—Proposed referendums on prohibition in several states are framed "for the purpose of undermining and destroying the constitution through nullification" and such nullification would be "national self-abasement before all the world," Senator Borah of Idaho declared in an address before the Georgia Ministerial Association here today.
"I venture to say there could be no great exhibition of self-abasement, of national degradation, than for this great people to leave the 18th amendment in the constitution and as some have said, forget it and live in daily disregard of it," the senator said.
The address here is the first of several Borah intends to make this summer in various parts of the country. He will discuss prohibition and the world court, but he confined himself to prohibition in his address here.
Arguments advanced by those who are seeking to legalize intoxicating liquors, expressly denied by the constitution "are the practices which are making a hell of Europe today," Borah said.
"Bolshevism in Russia, fascism in Italy, military dictatorship in Poland, promised dictatorship in other countries, increase of arbitrary power everywhere and nullification openly preached in the United States—they are all whelps from the same kennel, they are barking at the same thing, constitutional government."

CLOSED INCIDENT DECLARES PASTOR FT. WORTH CHURCH

GRAND JURY TO INQUIRE INTO SHOOTING OF LUMBERMAN

By United News
FORT WORTH, July 18.—The Reverend J. Frank Norris, fundamentalist revivalist pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth tonight faces grand jury investigation Tuesday over the slaying of D. E. Chippis, prominent lumberman.
Chippis, shot down by Norris in the private office of the Searchlight, a local publication, following a dispute growing out of addresses of the pastor from the pulpit. The killing occurred in the presence of only one witness, L. H. Nutt, member of Norris' church.
In a lengthy signed statement to the police, Norris declared that he fired in self defense, after Chippis had cursed him and made a threatening gesture. Nutt substantiated the pastor's statement.

30 Bondsman Formally charged with murder and bail set at $10,000, Norris secured thirty bond signers and was at liberty two hours after the fatal shooting.

With the grand jury investigation looming, Norris filled the pulpit of his church, which boasts a membership of more than 3,000, Sunday. A requiem communion service was held for the monster attendance with no mention made of the tragedy of the previous night. Hundreds of persons unable to secure admission to the church, jammed the sidewalks outside the building.

"Closed Incident"
Norris, in a statement to newspapermen, declared that he considered the slaying a "closed incident" and probably would not require the service of counsel. "I acted to defend myself," the pastor said. "I consider the incident closed. I have not made an effort to retain counsel, although several lawyers have volunteered their services. In event there is an indictment, I shall probably handle the case myself," he declared.
The slaying of the lumberman, member of a strong faction opposed to the pastor, who is a moving power in civic as well as religious circles, marks the climax of a 20-year period of stirring activity in Fort Worth.

Church Grows

Norris first achieved state-wide attention in 1911, when he was indicted for arson in connection with the burning of his church. He was acquitted and from that date his influence and the size of his church has grown apace.
With the use of the ku klux klan in Texas, Norris boldly championed the hooded order through the columns of the Searchlight. Again he lashed out savagely at his critics and the advocates of evolution with the ascendancy of that issue in the Scopes case.

Case of Trouble

The direct cause of the slaying, according to the belief of the pastor, and from the remarks quoted by Norris as spoken by Chippis preceding the shooting, grew out of a sermon delivered a week ago. In the sermon Norris savagely attacked the alleged dismissal of several members of his congregation from their positions in Fort Worth stores. The employees, according to Norris' sermon, were given their choice between resigning or discontinuance of attendance at Norris' church.

Norris named the store owners, charging them with discrimination due to religious differences.

The events of Saturday night will be ignored in the pulpit at the night sermon—as it was in the morning session, the pastor indicated.

Why Girls Go Back Home

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patry Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Marie Downey, innocently involved in scandal by Clifford Duff, an actor, climbs to stardom because of the notoriety. John, a former sweetheart, writes that he believes in her, would marry her. Marie, testing success, puts him off. For three years she lives with her child, faint, a gay life. She invites Clifford to her birthday party and repents herself by "wounding him" in front of the guests. John, an unannounced visitor, is mistaken for a beggar by the butler.

And now, here he was, and no feeling in his eyes was going to keep him from a sight of her. Not could he say she was not at home. He saw the lighted windows and heard the murmur and shrieks of excitement, voices with a panting heart somewhere in that combined noise was her voice.

The butler, who had pin down a finger of "stare" and a vicious, service door, grabbed John by the arm and pulled him through into a small hall from which the kitchen came.

"Go into the kitchen, you if you want anything to eat."

"Say—I don't—" began John pulling his arm viciously.

The outside hall rang again, and the butler, hurrying, hurried back up the stairs.

"You'll get no money here," he called back grimly to John.

Next possible words were all that John had for an answer. It was no good calling them at the butler's back, so he stood silently, sick with himself for having got into such a muddle, and half resolved to go back through the service door. But why, when he had come such a way? And now, at least, he was inside her house.

He stood and waited for about five minutes, but it seemed interminable. The door between the stairs and down which he had come he could hear sounds of laughter and mirth. He climbed the small flight of steps cautiously and inserted himself through the half-open door. It opened into the outer lobby and a small waiting room now hung with men's coats and hats. Opening from the lobby on the other side was a series of closed doors through which John heard the party at its frantic height. Right in front of him rose the gleaming rails of the staircase.

As John stood, undecided, he saw the handle of the living room door turn, as if someone were about to open it. Obeying the impulse of the fugitive, he fled up the shallow stairs and before the living room door had opened, he had gained the top.

The landing, partly hidden from the front door, had low-cushioned window seats on either side of French windows, now open to the spring air. Part of the landing had been curtained off to form a tiny alcove. The curtains were drawn about it now. Above the landing, after another small flight of stairs, were ranged closed doors. John took his surroundings in at a glance, for footsteps were coming up the stairs. Perceiving the dimness of a balcony through the French windows, of the landing, he stepped through instinctively.

It was a wide balcony, almost like another long, low room, with an awninged top, and the sky creeping in at the sides, over the railing of plastic which fenced it in. It had been built, curiously and especially for a writer who wanted an outdoor workroom, but John did not know this. Another French window led into the curtained alcove. This tiny private space lay in semi-darkness. John could just see two chairs, set at a table a table by the window. He hovered about the second window because it was comparatively dark. The balcony, too, had only the light from the hall and the dim light on the landing.

This part of Marie's house gave John a feeling of peace. There others have a smaller amount. This crop is very promising at present. Irish and sweet potatoes are doing well.

STATE HEALTH NURSE VISITS BAILEY COUNTY

Special to the Avalanche

MULESHOE, Tex., July 17.—Miss Katherine Hagquist, State Advisory Nurse of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, spent several days of this week at Muleshoe working with county nurse, Miss Dorothy Westland, in various clubs and communities of the county.

ONION CROP OF BAILEY COUNTY BEING SHIPPED

MULESHOE, July 18.—The onion crop of this section is beginning to be placed on the market the price received by the farmer being from 3-1/2 to 4 cents per pound. Truck loads are not being sent to Plainview, Lubbock, Clovis and Amarillo. Within a few days marketing of this crop will begin in earnest.

A large acreage of watermelons have been planted, 500 acres being the most in any one patch. Many was something rural about it, the rather wispy plot of grass below, a tree rustling its budding branches on a level with his face. He did not guess how much money this ruralness and simplicity cost in New York, so he was not awed as he had been by the sight of the house from the outside, the silk and lace at its windows, the butler, the cars waiting outside, and the silken collars of men's evening coats in the waiting room.

"Oh, but—Clifford!"

His lips almost audibly and crunched against the darker window of the alcove.

Marie and Clifford had stepped through the other window from the landing, cutting off retreat. They were walking to the rail of the balcony. He strained for a glimpse of Marie's face, but he could only see the green sheen of her dress and hear her voice, soft, but the words clear-cut, carrying, as he did not remember them. An actress' enunciation.

"Clifford, I was just as trenchant. An actor's voice."

"I didn't think you would see me again. I have longed to see you—ever since. But I was afraid—I was afraid you might hate me."

"Perhaps I should!" responded Marie's voice with a distinct catch in it. "Oh, why, why did you do that to me?"

"My dear!" Clifford was really working himself into a frenzy of sincerity. "Oh, my dear! If you knew how they kept at me, forced me, threatened me, I would not blame you if you hated me."

"Perhaps I should hate you—"

said Marie slowly. "But—"

Clifford caught her hands and bent over her.

"But—"

"I—don't—" finished Marie with a little sob.

John crouched lower into the dark window. He put his hands to his ears with some vague desire not to hear the fatal words, but he could not help hearing.

"But you don't," cried Clifford triumphantly. "You don't!"

"Ah, my dear, you hold my heart in your two little hands—"

He drew her closer. Marie heard a slow murmur up the stairs. If it had not been so dim, and if Clifford had not been so occupied, Clifford might have noticed the dim light in her eyes at that. But he was oblivious.

"Oh, my dearest—" he continued. Marie could not help it for the life of her. She murmured gravely. "And my heart will be—"

"Yours," went on Clifford, seizing his cue and looking up in his best manner. "Yours till the stars and the moon!"

They concluded together in a soft chorus: "Are no more!"

The ghost of a "sh-sh" was audible to Marie's ears, on the lookout for it. But Clifford did not hear. He clasped Marie to his arms with thanksgiving and, finding her there, was surprised by the onrush of passion that was not schooled or rehearsed. As she met his kisses, John turned and rushed through the other window into the alcove. He stumbled into a chair and, with his head into his hands, gave himself over to misery.

Marie shook herself free suddenly, still the surprised duday a resounding slap on the cheek.

"Wait a minute, you say. You're crushing my dress."

This was the signal. Sally, leading a group which had been hiding on the landing and up the stairs outside the windows, burst in hastily. And as Clifford whitened, the merry-makers fell upon him, shouting mock congratulations, shrieking mock advice.

"Cliff, don't you ever change that line!"

"Never change the line or the set, do you, Cliff? Good ol' Cliff. Faithful ol' dog!"

The word "dog" brought immediate associations to a blonde, far gone in liquor, who began to yell.

"Here, Towser, here, Towser!" till someone stifled her cries.

The laughter rose to pandemonium. Clifford was pulled this way and that, while people gasped with mirth at his fustered face. Sally's piercing voice kept up a flow of wise cracks in her best manner.

She threw herself against Clifford.

"Here she stands the busiest actor," she enunciated with difficulty, but in a voice that rose cuttingly above the noise, "that Marie Downey ever had the good fortune to meet."

"Hail! Speech!"

"Ya-a-ay, Speech!"

"Three cheers for the loquacious actor Marie Downey evah!"

In spite of herself, Marie sickened at the sight of Clifford's face, through the group, now lost to all reserve, to everything but the sport of kidding. His face flushed and paled by turns, as if it were being slapped at intervals. She avoided hands that were clapping her on the back, that were gliding approvingly about her shoulders and looked about for an escape.

Baileyboys Will Show Good Oil At 300 Feet

LITTLEFIELD, July 18.—Oil was struck last week in a well being drilled four and half miles southeast of Baileyboro, in Bailey county, according to authentic reports received here. The showing was found at a 300 foot level, and was said by the driller to yield between three and four barrels daily. However, it was discovered that the lease title to the land was not valid, and, in consideration of the fact that the hole was not good, the rig was skidded in a new location on the T. W. Kauffman land, which is located about four miles south of the Baileyboro shale.

It is also stated on good authority that George Breshears has ordered a standard rig, and as soon as it arrives will begin drilling on a 10,000 acre lease just east of Baileyboro.

First Christian Church UNION CHURCH SERVICES

The regular union services sponsored by the First Christian, Presbyterian and Methodist churches were held last night at the First Methodist church. They will alternate between the churches and pastors during the summer months.

Dean J. M. Gordon of the Tech had charge of the song services last night and led the audience in some old fashioned songs. Mrs. Lorena Barker of Fort Worth gave a special vocal solo.

Dr. Paul W. Horn preached and chose as the text of his sermon: "O, I say unto you, except as your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees, you shall not enter the kingdom of heaven." He gave a clear and comprehensive analysis of the text and applied it well in his sermon. In his opening remarks, Dr. Horn stated that he thought that the churches of Lubbock were doing a great part in the brotherhood of Christianity with the union services.

His sermon in part: "Taking the lesson from the text, 'O I say unto you, except as your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees, you shall not enter the kingdom of heaven.' Let us draw our attention to how Jesus uses the word, exceed. He gives special emphasis to the word in the text and will use it throughout the lesson. It is a wrong opinion of people that all good comes from Christianity alone. This is the common thought, and it is true in a sense. Righteousness is the direct result of Christianity but some have righteousness who do not have Christianity. Jesus in the text states that the Scribes and Pharisees have righteousness, but still they are not Christians. A man can be righteous and keep back the profession of Jesus as hisavior, this locking himself from Christianity. But Jesus says that one must have more righteousness than the Scribes and must profess Christ and do his planings.

"I know of a man right here in Lubbock who is a man of this type. He pays his debts, he pays his taxes, he takes an interest in civic development, he is kind to his family, he has respect for womanhood, he is honest, but he never goes to church nor professes any religion whatsoever. He is what you might term a Scribe or Pharisee. You may say that he, without knowing it, is part Christian although he denies it. You may say that he is influenced by the teachings of Christianity although he is not conscious of it. You may say that nevertheless he has certain good things about him and he could be called Christian. But I don't believe. Not people should say they are Christians just because they are honest, and pay their debts, and are kind to one another. Honesty, and kindness are not all of the requirements of Christianity. The Scribes and Pharisees had religion of this kind, but Jesus says, 'your righteousness must exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees.' There are homes where Christianity plays no part whatsoever and there is no profession of Christ among the members. You there can be noted a feeling of kindness and good will toward one another of the members. But the text says that there must be more than that before the kingdom of heaven can be entered.

"Now I am sure that if you were asked what are the Christian virtues, your first choice would more than likely be that of self-sacrifice. That would be a good choice. Self-sacrifice is one of the true virtues of Christianity. But what of a man like 'Jim Blodgett', a man who lived in sin and without Christ but who gave his life that man might be saved? Will he reach the kingdom of heaven? What of the countless thousands of men like him? Their self-sacrifice was great, but Jesus says at ours and mine must be even greater. When our boys went out across the sea, some of them were professed Christians and some were not, yet many of them gave their lives and blood for Democracy might live. In order to enter the kingdom of heaven, our self-sacrifice must be greater than that of the Scribes and Pharisees, you shall not enter the kingdom of heaven." Another virtue is to be loyal to your friends.

"I think that you and I should keep in mind the statement of Jesus when he said, 'O I say unto you, except as your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees, you shall not enter the kingdom of heaven.' Another virtue is to be loyal to your friends. It is also one of the virtues of Christianity, yet it is merely a kindergarten part toward the kingdom of heaven. The man who is not loyal to his friends is not even in the beginning of Christianity, and he who stops at this is not even on the first step toward Christianity. Jesus says that you must go even further than this. The average man, the Scribe and the Pharisee, is loyal to his friends. But you to enter the kingdom of heaven, must go farther, you must be loyal to your enemies and love them also. "When we study about the heathens of today, and even of olden times, we find that righteousness in certain forms exists among them as well as among Christians. They have certain virtues and good things which are commendable. Take the Chinese, for instance, it is a predominant virtue of the Chinese for the children to love and respect their parents. Obedience to their parents is one of the foundations of the Chinese people. We, in America can do well in learning this doctrine. But Jesus says that if you or I want to be a real Christian and enter the gates of heaven we must exceed even these in our righteousness. I have the belief in my heart that the hearts and souls of many men are pressed by the spirit of Christ without their knowing it. It is up to them to profess Jesus and become real righteous men for the kingdom of Christ."

"In order to be real Christians, we must accept the plan which Christ has mapped out for us in the text, you must exceed the Scribes and Pharisees in your righteousness. It isn't the thing that you are compelled to do that Christianity plays a part. You are compelled to pay your debts, yet Christianity does not effect you in this way. It is the things which you are not compelled to do which have a part in the work of Christianity. You are not compelled to go to church, yet Christianity counts most when you do. I hope that each one of you as you go away will keep in your mind the words of Jesus in the text.

"Do the things which you are not required to do and go beyond the kindergarten of Christianity. Make your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees and erect a super structure of which the great Christ will approve."

Expert Gives Food Recipes For Campers

Vacation time always brings visions to me of babbling brooks and ferny dells, of meadow larks singing of hills and dales and cozy summer cottages.

I think of the joys of the little bungalow where I spend by own holidays and life seems good indeed. At my cottage door, when the days are calm, the lake shimmers in the sun like a turquoise, or when the wind is fresh, tiny waves, crested with foam, roll like endless regiments of white-manned horses. It is a place of peace and happiness.

In my mind's eye, I see myself getting dinner in the evening. I enumerate the dishes that are my favorites and long for the date of their coming. Preparing the evening meal in camp or cottage is a matter of pride with me. I find interest and joy in preparing novel and appetizing dishes from out of cans and bottles. Many varied and palatable dishes may be handily prepared from canned goods with little effort on the part of the cook. A few examples of what may be done is shown in the following recipes.

Fried Chicken and Gravy
1 three-pound chicken, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup lard, 1-4 cup butter, flour to roll chicken in, 1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water, 2 tablespoons flour.

Clean and joint chicken. Roll in flour. Melt butter and fat in frying pan and lay in pieces of chicken. Brown quickly on both sides, then cover and place in a 350 degree F. oven. Cook until tender. Add salt and pepper the last fifteen minutes of cooking. Remove chicken from pan. Add 2 tablespoons flour and brown, then add diluted evaporated milk and cook for three or four minutes; more salt may be required. Chicken cooked in this manner is tender and juicy.

Lemon Ice-Box Cake
1 small sponge cake, 1-2 cup butter, 1 cup powdered sugar, 2 tablespoons evaporated milk diluted with 2 tablespoons water, 1-4 cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch,

2 eggs, separated, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, rind of 1-2 lemon, 1-2 cup evaporated milk combined with 1-2 cup cream, 1-2 cup of powdered sugar.

Mix the granulated sugar and cornstarch, add the 4 tablespoons of diluted milk and the well beaten egg yolks. Cook until smooth in a double boiler. Add lemon juice and rind just before removing from the fire. Add the 1 cup of powdered sugar and butter, which have been creamed together to the stiffly beaten egg whites. Mix by folding over and over. Add lemon mixture and combine. Split sponge cake and pour on half and pour on rest of filling. Set in ice box for 24 hours. Chill and whip evaporated milk and cream and sweeten with 1-2 cup powdered sugar. Cover cake with whipped cream and garnish with nuts and candied cherries.

Mrs. Emily Josephine Smith, 24, daughter of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, was married to Major James A. Warner, 39, superintendent of state police, Cardinal Hayes performing the ceremony. Pope Pius XI cabled his blessing from Rome.

CANDIDATE FOR STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

The serious defects in the rural school system is not so much the lack of money as the lack of interest. The curse of the age is the grave for money without the sense of obligation in return.

Texas holds thirty-seventh place in the sisterhood of nations; not because of a stingy people or of an indifferent legislature. Taxpayers are beginning to ask and demand a business like administration of the millions. The failure to make appropriations when need may be due to an apparent and an indifferent attitude on the part of the administration.

I have shown in a published article given to the press that over $170,000 is annually wasted in the administration of the free Text books. This fact is gathered from the department of education and must be correct. I shall see to it that this abuse and waste shall not obtain if I am elected.

I shall favor a change in the RURAL AND LAW—so that the County Superintendent may do the inspection which will save the rural aid fund of approximately $40,000 annually. As it is—we have too much politics and too little interest in the child in the sparsely settled districts of Texas.

INTOLERANCE

Georges Clemenceau, France's great war premier, who is a scholar as well as a statesman and journalist, at the age of 85 has finished a pretentious book, written in his little cottage on the sea. It is full of random comment on science, history and things in general, and contains much of his personal philosophy. Here is one little passage quoted in an advance review of the work: One virtue above all I would recommend for obtaining a happy fulfillment of our personal evolution, and thereby of our general civilization. This is tolerance. He speaks of tolerance as "the virtue which facilitates all of our accords," and as "opening every avenue of life leading to the freedom of the human mind." It is a virtue not so highly prized as it ought to be, in these after-war years. The intolerance that created the war has grown since the armistice. Countries, races, groups and individuals all seem intolerant of each other today, to a discouraging degree. America needs to fight against this vice, if she seeks "a happy fulfillment of her evolution."

THE PRESIDENTIAL FISH

The Adirondack mountains are seething with a great discussion, and one that is fraught with great possibilities. It will be remembered that President Coolidge is now summering on Lake Osgood and the very first day he went fishing he came home with a three pound fish. Pressed for an explanation, he stated that he himself had caught it, and, pressed further, he stated that it was a pike. That started the argument, for it is contended that no pike could weigh such a few pounds, not even a baby, and that it must be a pickerel. Not that they dispute pickerel. Dear me, no. The pickerel, it seems is really a gamier fish than the pike and is much more highly prized. Meanwhile the President, in his usual way, keeps on saying nothing. He caught the fish and brought him home and enjoyed the sport but it is doubtful if he even cares whether it was a pickerel or a pike. As a matter of fact the President will never be a really good fisherman. He can't let a fast enough.

HIBERNATION FOR MEN

There is evidence that human beings could hibernate under favorable conditions if they knew how. Russian peasants deliberately enter a semi-torpor, sleeping in a cool, quiet room most of the winter to economize their supply of food and to avoid starvation. In dire need, it might be well to know the possibilities and technique of this prolonged torpor. It might also be utilized to advantage in the treatment of certain ailments. The relation of hibernation to food supply is so close that, in animals at least, it is evidently an adaptation to meet the emergency of short rations. The efforts of scientists to penetrate the habits of hibernating animals may prove of great value to human beings in some future catastrophe. All knowledge is valuable, especially such knowledge as may preserve human life.

WAGE INCREASES

During the last few weeks nearly a hundred wage increases, ranging from 5 to 25 cents an hour have been granted to building crafts all over the country. One of the most significant adjustments was that of the Minnesota Building Employers' Association, representing open shop contractors in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth. In St. Paul 20 trades have been granted increases ranging from 5 to 12 1/2 cents an hour and in Duluth, ten crafts have been granted similar advances. While there are various disaffected areas, the strikes in progress are sectional, affecting different crafts in each section, and are gradually being adjusted. The general increase in wages more than compensates for the few minor reductions. The unusually healthy conditions of trade on labor at this mid-summer season, with unemployment practically non-existent, is another phase of the general prosperity. Labor should prove its worthiness by keeping its demands within reason to insure its continuance.

REAL STRIKE CURE

General Theodore Pangalos, the Greek Dictator, has found a most effective method of dealing with strikes and it is so simple of execution that perhaps more dictators will try it. It simply consists in exiling strike agitators to an island in the Aegean sea until their pugnacious spirit somewhat subsides. When this happens they are allowed to return—to find the strike broken and everyone at work again. Simple? Well, quite. Of course it's drastic and probably wouldn't work with a true democracy. But with a dictatorship its effectiveness can scarcely be doubted.

HOME DEFEND STRONG

At no time in the history of the world has the demand for a personally owned home been so strong. This is the fact underlying the unprecedented success of real estate developments and the unusual activity of the building trades. The desire for a home of one's own has always been a strong trait in the human character and it is encouraging to realize that this has not been sacrificed in the modern struggle after material gain and a "higher" civilization.

TAX ON WATER

Opinions differ as to what are necessities. The city of Munich, Germany, needing more revenue, recently imposed a tax on beer. There was an immediate and widespread protest, on the ground that the city authorities had no business taxing "necessaries of life." So the intolerable tax was repealed, and instead the tax was transferred to water. Water is doubtless a luxury in Munich, as any of the infrequent Americans who have tried to get a glass of it with their meals in that city will testify. Probably the home of Muenchner beer believes, too, that anyone drinking water ought to be penalized.

UNIFORM TRAFFIC LAWS

Day by day the need for uniform traffic regulations becomes more readily apparent. The great confusion existing in the ranks of the motorists today concerning the traffic regulations in the various municipalities in which he drives his car results in a veritable holocaust of traffic accidents many of them serious, due to the lack of knowledge of the various local traffic ordinances and regulations in the various communities. This confusion is but a natural result of a system where each little town or township or borough or city makes its own regulations concerning automotive traffic.

A number of statewide and national surveys have been launched from time to time to study and digest the whole traffic question with a view of presenting a complete program which could be adopted in uniform fashion throughout the country and thus promote motorist comfort and safety and protect the pedestrian. So far, however these surveys, especially from a national standpoint, have been dismal failures. Either the investigators lose heart before their task is completed or else the subject is too big for the organizations which have attempted the surveys. Even the state surveys which have been made have been far from complete and have been productive of practically no result.

One town in New Jersey has become weary of this delay. It is a resort community where the summer automobile traffic compares in volume with that in the busiest parts of the city of New York. This resort, faced continually with an influx of pleasure seekers from all parts of the United States, but more particularly from other parts of New Jersey, feels the crying need of some uniform regulation which would help traffic so it has appointed its own commission to make a statewide survey, at its own expense, of the traffic problem. This commission will report to the next session of the New Jersey legislature on who it deems necessary in its way of uniform traffic regulations. Other cities would do well to follow this resort and take the initiative in what has become a most important movement. If the states won't act to find a way, then the municipalities will.

GETTING AT THE SOURCE

General Lincoln C. Andrews, dry enforcement chief, has done a wise thing in making a journey to England to discuss the prohibition question with English officials in a private way. There is no doubt that much of the liquor sold surreptitiously in this country is of English manufacture or has been shipped from England, not necessarily with her official consent, but certainly with her knowledge. It would be a crushing blow to the bootlegging industry if somehow could only be found to dry up the English rum supply at its source and curtail its shipment into this country, nominally dry but really very wet.

Of course not all the bootleg rum is made and sold in England. Some is being made throughout every town and hamlet in the country, but that is something strictly within the power of the local officials here to limit while the influx of English booze is something that is more or less beyond their capabilities to stop.

The immediate effect of curtailing the inflow of the British booze would be to increase the demand on the local distiller and distributor. This increased demand would make him bolder and more careless and easier to apprehend once the proper evidence is obtained. Thus the responsibility for dry enforcement would be placed where it belongs, upon the shoulders of the local police authorities. Nine times out of ten they know where liquor is being sold but they do not wish, for personal and political reasons, to press a case against their local liquor princes. They simply sit back in their chairs and say, "Oh well, it is the job of the Federal authorities anyway."

But this attitude is all wrong. It is the duty of every local police officer to uphold every provision of the national constitution, one provision as well as another and all diligently. If the outside source of liquor could only be dried up in England by General Andrews we would soon be able to tell which of our local officials were really trying to enforce the law and which of them were not.

Along the Concrete

So Think We

We think if there is anything to the report that people cause hay fever. Lubbock people are certainly going to have it.

We think after the 24th, there will be a large number of reasons assigned for the trip up Salt Creek.

We think that East Texas editor is rather resourceful after all. He says to lead a dog between the rows of cotton and take up all the fleas.

We think it is government for the people of the people and by the people, these days.

We think that after all we fellows who had no playthings much except baby brothers and sisters, were better off than the modern kid who has a houseful of playthings that are easily torn up.

We think a lot of people do not know what their own church teaches but they are past masters on what the other fellow's church teaches.

We think that moving will possibly be a thing of the past soon, when it is possible for people to be carried by automobile a hundred miles back and forth to their work.

We think even golf can be overdone. We read of one fellow who played seventy-two holes of golf in one day and then died at the end of the day. Too much golf!

We think even if scientists are right that kissing is not healthy the majority of married men and women will be safe, this day and time.

We think by the time the grand jury gets through with "sister" McPherson she will probably wish that she had been kidnapped, and no one had redeemed her.

We think the trouble with most of us is that we look at a lot of things that we do not see, and listen to a lot of things that we do not hear, and talk about too many things that we know nothing about.

We think we will be able to give the people of this community considerable information on the election Saturday night. We withhold any information of a definite nature till that time.

We think Jim and Ma will be ready to take the vacation after the 24th anyway, and Jim will know where to go, as he went over Salt Creek several years ago flying the flag of the American party.

We think we would like to have the Ferguson voters and the Moody voters and the Davidson voters and all of the others come out to our bulletin board just south of the Avalanche office Saturday where the candidates have been speaking for the past few days, and we will tell you something about the election in a very substantial way.

We think about the most remarkable thing in many instances is the remarks that some people about things.

We think a number of the candidates have been up salt creek before, and they will likely know where the best stopping place is.

It Is Reported

It is reported that the Amarillo ball team employed an extra conveyance to take back their goose eggs they won on the Lubbock base ball team while down here.

It is reported that several hundred people were here Sunday at the ball game to see the Amarillo gassers shut out by the Hubbers.

It is reported that politics will likely be about a hundred and ten in the shade before the week is over.

It is reported that the corner political ring has been unable to agree on who is going to be elected governor.

It is reported that most of us are agreed that the same lieutenant governor will be re-elected this year—he has no opponent.

It is reported that some of the best campaign thunder is being held up for the very last. We hope it will be a better quality than what has already been put out.

It is reported that Lubbock's crying need for a bigger and better hotel will soon be filled.

It is reported that the Ferguson have agreed that the runoff will be between Moody and the two governors.

It is reported that Lubbock is the fastest growing town in the Southwest that does not have an oil boom. Is just a good easy substantial and consistent growth.

It is reported that there will be a large number of dandy good new homes built in Lubbock within the next sixty or ninety days.

It is reported that the sheriff's office has the odor of a country saloon, and the sheriff's department is to blame for it. Two or three complete still outfits and a lot of the stock is on display over there.

It is reported that there may be twice as many students enrolled in the Tech College this year as there were last year: It would not surprise any of us.

It is reported that there are a number of fleas in the cotton patches of this county.

Texas State Board of Health

Much of the work of the nurses of the public health nursing service during the summer will be given to a "Get Ready for School" program, according to Miss L. Jane Duffy, state supervisory nurse. This work will include co-operation with local parent-teacher associations in their summer round-up of pre-school children, which has as its objective, the entrance into the first grade of children free from remedial physical defects.

The summer round-up of pre-school children was inaugurated in 1925 by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and it had such marvelous success during the previous year that it has been made a permanent activity. A national magazine has offered prizes totalling $500 to be given to the parent-teacher associations scoring the best results, and a large number of Texas clubs have registered for the work. However, the activities of the public health nurses will not be confined to the pre-school child, but will embrace all children of school age.

Other Health Activities
 In addition to home visits to school children needing corrective work, efforts will be made to organize and conduct child health conferences in remote sections not previously reached. The work of the Adult Health Clubs will also be continued during the summer months, as well as prenatal and midwife classes. In a number of counties, plans have also been made for birth registration and Better Milk campaigns.

Home and community demonstrations will be given in the care of child health, infant welfare, and first aid methods. All nurses are receiving the co-operation of local physicians and are assisted in each county by public health committees.

That much work is being done in the state along the lines of sanitary improvements is evidenced by reports received by the state board of health. Towns that have recently voted bonds for sewer systems or improvements are:

Children, $100,000; Dublin, $25,000; Galveston, $300,000; Haskell, $65,000; Panhandle, $100,000; Wichita Falls, state hospital, $25,000; Amarillo, $25,000; Fort Worth, $156,387. New sewer systems are also under construction at Richardson and Wylie.

Towns that are making plans for the installation of no-weser systems are: Cross Plains, $40,000; Olmito, $125,000; Fort Arthur, drainage system, $40,000; Waco, $225,000. Improvements to filter plants are also contemplated at Mercedes and McAllen, and surveys for extensions to sewer systems are under way at Bonham and Temple.

Waterworks improvements
 Towns that have recently voted bonds for the extension of water mains are: Children, $36,000; Harlingen, $25,000; and Wichita Falls, $100,000. A contract for a new water plant has also been let by the city of Mission.

 Other towns planning new waterworks or improvements are: Beaumont, $50,000; Edinburg, $25,000; Lisbon, $65,000; Lorenzo, $40,000; Muleshoe, $40,000; New Boston, $25,000; Olmito, $120,000; Yoakum, $50,000. Preliminary surveys are also being made by the city of Clyde for both sewer systems and water purification plant.

RUMANIAN STUDENTS TO MAKE TOUR OF U. S.

BUCHAREST, July 18—Eighty Rumanian professors, students and attorneys will leave here on July 25 for a brief investigation trip to the United States.

After proceeding direct from Bucharest to New York, the Rumanian visitors will journey to Philadelphia and, after another short sojourn in New York, will return to Rumania via Paris.

Many women of the Russian "battalion of death" of World War fame are now said to have become professional bandits.

Jan Van Albert and Miss Kaatje Vandyk, each more than eight feet tall, will shortly be married in London, and will be the tallest married couple in the world.

An enforcement officer of McAllen, Okla., reported discovering a school in session in tek hills in which the principal course consisted of instructions in whiskey-making.

Lubbock Makes Clean Sweep of Three Games With Mets

HUDSPETH LETS AMARILLO DOWN WITH FIVE HITS, WHILE "ANCIENTS" RACE ROUND BASES IN FIFTH FRAME

"Stingy" lived up to his name yesterday at Merrill Park, while the Hubbers shut out the Amarillo Mets in the fifth frame of the series, 6 to 0. He was right to every degree, and no time was in danger. He let the Mets down with five meager singles; three of them scratched. Besides doing this he struck out and night men and made 7 more hit to his glove. Fonken was hit freely by the locals in the fifth frame and was touched for five runs. Stackton relieved him and pitched fair ball the remainder of the game. The fifth was the fatal one for the Mets, the entire Hubber 'em getting a trip to the plate, six of them hit, scoring five runs.

Eckhart was credited with two hits but both close. Hamilton missed Gibson's hot one in the sixth, but it was too fast to give Red an error.

Connelly hit a pair of doubles, while Don Anderson poked one for three bases.

First Inning
AMARILLO: Ravey struck out. Hayden singled to right. Eckhart hit down the third base line and beat it out. Gibson hit to Hudspeth, who caught Hayden at third. Hill struck out. Two hits, no runs, no errors.

Second Inning
AMARILLO: Nicklaus singled by second. Johnson sacrificed Nicklaus to second. Curtis went out. Hudspeth singled by short. Jackson singled to short. Hill fanned. Two hits, no runs, no errors.

Third Inning
AMARILLO: Ravey struck out. Hayden went out. Sheppard to Quatt. Eckhart flied to Anderson. No hits, no runs, no errors.

Fourth Inning
AMARILLO: Nicklaus singled to Quatt. No hits, no runs, no errors.

Fifth Inning
AMARILLO: Nicklaus singled by second. Johnson sacrificed Nicklaus to second. Curtis went out. Hudspeth singled by short. Jackson singled to short. Hill fanned. Two hits, no runs, no errors.

Sixth Inning
AMARILLO: Ravey flied to Connelly. Hayden struck out. Eckhart laid one in front of the plate and was safe on the play. Gibson hit one by short. Hill fanned. Two hits, no runs, no errors.

Seventh Inning
AMARILLO: Nicklaus flied to Connelly. Johnson flied to Connelly. Curtis struck out. No hits, no runs, no errors.

Eighth Inning

Chandler Plays Great Tennis

NEW YORK, July 18.—Again today, for the second year in succession, of Edward Chandler of the University of California in the intercollegiate tennis champion races the suspicion that he is due for a ranking among the first 10 men players in this country.

It is possible that Chandler might have won a place among the leaders last year had he remained for the important Eastern tournaments. This season it is understood that he will be entered at Agawam and Longwood and possibly will stay for the national championship.

Since the sudden rise of France in the world of tennis, America must look to its colleges for the stars that will succeed Tilden, Johnston, Richards et al. In Chandler and his fellow-California, Granton Holman, there are many potentialities.

Holman has been runner-up for two straight years in the intercollegiate and has given Chandler a great final battle on both occasions. The Stanford youth is apt to wear himself out on impossible "gets," whereas Chandler has more court craft and knows when much can be gained in killing for a game or a set if need be. Both are developing a speedy service and a strong back court game.

The intercollegiate tournament, held this year at Haverford, Pa., was a remarkable demonstration of how perfect the seeding system can become. Not only did the eight seeded players reach the round before the semi-final, but the top four went into the semi-finals and the two outstanding favorites met for the title.

SARAZAN AND McDONALD SMITH TIE AT GOLF

WESTBURY, N. Y., July 18.—Gene Sarazan, the defending champion, and MacDonald Smith finished in a tie after the final rounds of the metropolitan open golf championship here this afternoon. Their scores were 286 each for 72 holes and they will play off the tie in an 18 hole match tomorrow.

The scores were 73, 79, 68 and 75, and Smith's 67, 73, 74 and 72.

Summary—Bases on balls: Off Fonken, 1; off Stackton, 1. Two base hits: Connelly, 2. Three base hits: Anderson. Struck out: By Hudspeth, 8; by Stackton, 2. Left on bases: Amarillo, 5; Lubbock, 5. Sacrifice hits: Nicklaus, Johnson, Sloan. Umpires: McLaughlin and Delong.

BETTER PITCHING IN BIG LEAGUES SUNDAY

By United News

Better pitching marked Sunday's major league base ball games. Zachery of the Browns shut out the usually heavy hitting Yankees 4 to 0, while Covelksi pitched well for the Senators, holding Cleveland to seven scattered hits but losing his game 5 to 3.

McGraw of the Robins won a pitcher's duel from Pete Donohue of the Reds, 2 to 1, while Root of the Cubs beat the Giants by the same score.

Only in St. Louis was the hitting heavy, the Cards beating the Phillies, 9 to 7, when Southworth hit a homer with one on in the last of the ninth.

Michigan Holds 4 Big Ten Titles

ANN ARBOR, Mich., July 18.—Four Big Ten championships in four major sports is the proud record of the University of Michigan in the school year just closed.

The Wolverines won first honors in football, baseball, and track and field, in basketball they shared honors with Iowa, Indiana, and Purdue when the Conference schedule ended in a four-way tie.

Under the guidance of Coach "Hurry Up" Yost, the Wolverines aggregated 227 points to 3 scored against them in football. Never, since the old "point a minute" days has Michigan made such a record.

The victories included a smashing 54 to 0 defeat over the Navy. In basketball Michigan won eight Big Ten games, losing four. Three of the defeats were won by 3 points or less.

On the track the Maize and Blue athletes beat Illinois, Iowa, and Ohio State in outdoor dual meets, then went on to win the Conference championship for the second successive time and the third time in four years.

The baseball team won nine of its eleven league games, breaking even with Ohio State and Wisconsin.

BICYCLING

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17.—Four hundred old bicyclists, survivors of a day when bicycling was a sport rather than an errand boy's means of conveyance, are campaigning for a return of the "wheel" in California.

In the days when young swains went a-courting by bike, when "A bicycle built for two" was an every piano, bicycling was in special favor as a sport in San Francisco.

"Riding the slot" on the cable car lines, up and down the hills of old San Francisco, was the sportiest sort of recreation.

The four hundred survivors, with a return of their fond departed sport in view, are arranging a state championship bicycling tournament to be held in San Francisco, August 8.

They are also seeking to bring San Francisco into the circuit of American cities in which international bicycling contests are held.

When a customer suggested that Anthony Palli, a Chicago barber should give customers an anesthetic before shaving them, Palli beat him up and was sent to jail.

Sarazan and Smith Are Tied Again

SALISBURY PLAINS, N. Y., July 18.—Gene Sarazan and MacDonald Smith just cannot seem to decide which of them is to win the Metropolitan open golf championship.

After tying with 286 for first money after 72 holes of play last week, the smiling little Italian-American and the Scott from California went 18 holes this morning to settle the matter. They tied with 70 each.

Then they went 18 more holes they were tied with 72 each.

Such a succession of ties for an important championship never before has occurred in golf with exception of one women's event, Bobby Jones and Willie MacFarlane ties in the open championship at Worcester, but managed to settle the dispute after an extra day's play.

Rain fell on the Salisbury country club links in the afternoon, but the players who have other engagements this week, went around in an effort to decide the championship.

RED GRANGE QUILTS FILMS FOR ICE-CART

GRID STAR SAYS MOVIE KISSES ARE NOT UP TO STANDARD

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 18.—"Red" Grange's assertion, after four weeks of love making in the movies, that co-eds are better kissers than the motion picture girls, drew some snappy retorts tonight from Mary McAllister, his pretty leading lady.

Grange quit the movies flat today and tomorrow he leaves for Wheaton, Illinois, to pilot his famous ice wagon for the remainder of the summer at $18 per week. Before checking out of Hollywood, the gridiron star declared he didn't think much of his own ability as a film kisser.

Hollywood accepted "Red's" modest retirement at face value, but when he said the movie girls were "peppier" in their kisses, he aroused a wail of protest.

"Why, that's just horrid of 'Red', said Miss McAllister. "He just says that because he's going back home to his co-eds."

"I haven't seen any college girls getting by so big in the movies, though there are plenty of them trying to crash the gates.

"And I don't think Co-Ed puts any more pep in her kisses than the girls of the screen. I bet 'Red' can show the girls back home some new tricks in love making that he learned out here."

Grange's leading lady thinks the ice man is under estimating his own love making prowess. "Red's not a bad lover himself," she continued. "Believe me, I had to make some violent love myself in some of the close ups to prevent 'Red' from stealing all the scenes."

"He can sure make love, and I'll forgive him for what he said about the co-eds being better neckers than the picture girls."

Tech Gridiron Is Shaping Up Fast

By H. C. HERVEY

Another gridiron has come to take its place among the many great ones. The nucleus for the future Tech football field is rapidly maturing into a real gridiron. It has been laid off on the plan of the Texas University playing field. It has been well turtled, the ground worked to seed bed perfection, and then seeded with bermuda grass, which has been up to a solid stand for more than a week. With daily watering and continual protection from the native prairie weeds and grasses the prospects for a rich soil by fall are very promising. One or two men are kept on the field pulling and mowing weeds, etc., every day. The rich sandy loam soil here is proving to be almost ideal for a football field. It gives promise of making a firm grid without the usual hardness, and the soil is so rich the grass is expected to make a mat over the entire oval within a very short time.

This little spot down in the northeast corner of the campus is really beginning to bloom up as one of the very greenest places around the College. This is the same spot that gridiron contests will be played on that which is now only a plot of tender grass shoots. These shoots however, are destined to furnish a cushioned footing for the Tech Matadors in their new home. Soon the goal posts will be set at each end of this field, as forerunners of the pig skin supremacy on that turf. Then, the flashy scarlet and velvety black will adorn those posts to make them immortal. Soon the College pep squads with all their enthusiasm, and the college bands with all their pomp will congregate around this field to contribute to the occasions of the great West Texas grid classics. The loyalty of the young college people of this great section is sure to make this little oval area of ground famous in the eyes of Texas and sacred to the memory of themselves and the Alma Mater of their school.

"The Arena" of Texas Tech is started on its permanent and promising career.

WELLINGTON, Texas, July 18.—Data is ready for the catalogue and premium list of the Collingsworth County Fair which will be held here September 16, 17 and 18, inclusive. The booklet will consist of 44 pages of reading matter, giving detailed information regarding every department of the fair and 40 pages of advertising, sufficient copies being printed that one may be placed in every home in Wellington and Collingsworth County. Expectations are that the poultry, dairy cattle, beef cattle and hog barns will be filled to their capacity as an intensive campaign has been put on in this section for more an abetter dairy cattle, beef cattle, hogs and poultry and interest in this division is already beginning to grow.

Bids are to be received in the office of the Business Manager of the Texas Technological College at Lubbock, Texas, for two temporary frame buildings to house machinery and equipment on the campus on DETROIT, Mich., July 18.—The legions of reform have deeded to arms here in the most spectacular campaign of its kind since Bricker General Smedley D. Butler marched on the tenderloin district of Philadelphia.

If the crusade is a success it will result in a complete renovation of the police department and a utopian loose upon other cities of the country, a horde of gamblers, searlet women and bootleggers.

TO MAKE STUDY OF PLAINS VEGETATION

LUNGHORN BUJANY PROFESSOR PLAINS FIELD TRIP TO WEST TEXAS

AUSTIN, Texas, July 18.—A study of the structure and composition of the native vegetation of the Panhandle country will be made by Dr. R. C. Tharp, associate professor of botany in the University of Texas, and his associates on a field trip to continue throughout the remainder of the summer. The survey will be made of the country north and west of the Texas & Pacific Railway from Fort Worth to El Paso. Dr. Tharp will be aided in the work by two advanced students of botany in the University, E. R. Boguech, of San Antonio, and Robert Cuyler of Austin.

The study of the Plains country will complete a preliminary survey of the entire state made by Dr. Tharp during the period of the last five years under the joint supervision of the University of Texas and the Carnegie Foundation. Several more summers will be necessary to complete the work, Dr. Tharp stated, as it will be necessary to study certain sections of the state more intensively than has been possible in the present survey.

Data obtained from the study of the native vegetation of Texas will be published by the Carnegie Foundation, he said. It will be the first comprehensive publication covering the vegetation of the entire state, according to Dr. Tharp.

The vogue for soft cushions made in the shape of animals and to be used in gardens, has grown so great in England that they are being sold as quickly as they are made.

FIND NEW RELICS OF MAYA CULTURE

OLD TEMPLE, BURIED UNDER ANOTHER OLD TEMPLE, IS DUG UP

By United News

WASHINGTON, July 18—New wonders were dug up by the archaeological pick in ruins of the Maya civilization in Yucatan, announced Friday, throw further light upon the life of the highly cultured Indian people who formed the first "United States of America" more than nine centuries before the white man discovered America.

A study of this civilization, which excelled the Egyptian in many respects and was comparative in some degree to that of the Greeks, is of vast importance to Americans, who are now turning their attention to this almost untouched field, original America, in their own back yard, inspired in part by the recent explorations in Egypt.

Experts of the Carnegie Institute, who are now rebuilding the Maya city of Chichen Itza in northeastern Yucatan, have found beneath the monumental "temple of the warriors" another temple built by an older civilization, similar to the layer of civilization uncovered some years ago about ancient Troy. It can be imagined that this discovery brought the same hated breath archaeologists experienced when they came upon new wonders in the tomb of King Tut-Akh-Amen.

According to the announcement made here today, these older ruins

40 Bushels Barley To Acre in Crosby

RALLS, July 18—L. W. Chance has finished threshing his wheat and barley. He says he planted his barley the fifteenth of April and it about seventy-five days from the time it was planted. It threshed out forty bushels to the acre. That's some barley in a short while, but the Ralls country soil sure produces in a hurry when seasons are anything like favorable.

Mr. Chance also threshed 4,065 bushels of wheat and we presume he is now listed in the prosperous column.

were covered up to prevent damage by the seasonal rains which have begun in Yucatan. The excavation will be resumed next year. Up to the present time, only one "ward" in the ancient city has been uncovered and its pieces put back together, in the manner of a giant puzzle. When the work is completed some years hence, there will be a complete Mayan city, rescued once more from the forests which covered it over with its inhabitants centuries ago.

About $55,000 Worth Wheat Raised, Ralls

RALLS, July 18—Threshing and "combing" is still underway in the Ralls country. And though our wheat acreage was very short this year the yield and quality is good and quite a bit of money is being turned loose among the farmers and laborers from this source.

Up to Wednesday afternoon the Ralls Elevator reports having shipped twenty-four cars of wheat with the probability of ten more cars. The Alexander Grain Company reports having contracted for about seven thousand bushels, which will make a total of about forty-four thousand bushels which means something over $55,000.00 worth of wheat marketed here.

The yield averages from twenty to twenty-five bushels to the acre one fellow reporting having made thirty-seven bushels to the acre. More wheat acreage will be planted this next fall, perhaps, than ever before. This is a diversifying country; so let's diversify. Shoot at prosperity with a shotgun instead of a rifle.

Starving Days Over In Near East

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 18.—On December 5 the world will observe what is known as International Golden Rule Sunday. President Coolidge has endorsed Golden Rule Sunday and he states that it was "begun in an attempt to care for the orphan children of Bible lands." He finds in the movement that "practical help is the best expression of friendship," and he adds the hope that the voluntary observance of this day may become increasingly prevalent. President Coolidge's letter on this subject reminds one that the average American probably thinks of the Near East in terms of millions of starving children and adults. Such a clinging to a conception now obsolete is not wholly fair to the small arm of courageous workers who have been doing battle against hunger and disease since the World War.

The period of starvation has practically passed, thanks to the efforts and support of sympathetic Americans, says a report issued by the Near East Relief, and yet the work of these modern crusaders is not more than well started; there are years of labor ahead of them before conditions in the Near East can even approximate those in the least prosperous sections of the United States. Malnutrition is still a problem, the starvation is not so near. The betterment of deplorable living conditions is a task which will require much ingenuity and much time. The elimination of malaria presents a stupendous field of study and practice for pathologists, physicians and engineers. The problem of education is in no way a mean one.

The recovery of Near Eastern peoples after their period of slavery to economic catastrophe has just begun. But it has begun, and therein is found a notable success, wholly worthy of continued encouragement and support of the most zealous order until the job is done. The Near East is moving up-grade. But it is known that the auxiliary engine is usually most necessary just before the train tops the crest of the hill.

The United States Commissioner of Education has made public a summary of the results of official investigations in the field of teacher-training in city normal schools. The public school system of Cleveland, Ohio, was given special consideration with reference to the training of city teachers. The Federal Commissioner of Education strongly favors higher standards of training for city teachers. Independent investigations made by educators of the teacher-situation demonstrates the fact that women teachers have been deserting their pro-

Horse Shoeing Lost Art Army Finds

NEW YORK, July 18—The vic the army mule has kicked things sky-high.

But Maude's hefty hoofs, instead of demolishing an unoffending machine gun cart or charging a haughty sergeant major during dress parade, this time have taken as a target nothing less than one of the longest standing dictums of the War Department General Staff.

Two hundred thousand hoofs needing periodic re-shoeing have caused the Army to abandon its efforts to find trained horseshoers in civil life and forced the establishment of schools within the army to profession by the thousands, and new recruits have not taken their place for the simple reason that school boards throughout the nation do not pay as high salaries to these workmen as they can secure in other employment. Thrift and impetuosity are working to the detriment of the public school system of the United States.

LITTLEFIELD ATTENDING CHRISTIAN REVIVAL

turn soldiers into expert horseshoers. It's all the result of the passing of the horses from city life. Horse-shoeing has become one of the lost arts, an army announcement explains. During a canvass of New York City only two apprentice horseshoers were found at work.

Where for years the army has depended upon ready-trained mechanics and artisans for the bulk of its technical assistance, the established order is now to be reversed. At every post in the United States army where mounted troops are stationed there will be a school at which horseshoeing will be taught to soldiers.

According to the War Department announcement the army today uses about fifty thousand mules and horses and in a mobilization that number would be increased to at least two hundred thousand animals. A corps of skilled horseshoers would become a pressing necessity during an emergency, in the view of army officers.
