World leaders mix partying, politicking

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

PARIS — Leaders of the world's seven richest nations, turning from partying to politics, opened their annual summit today with talks focusing on the economic struggles in Eastern Europe and the harsh repression of human rights in China.

The initial session of the 15th world economic summit began at the new glass Louvre pyramid, now the main entrance and architecturally controversial structure in front of the famed museum.

The first order of business was a picture-taking session for the "class photo" of President Bush and the leaders of Britain, France, West Germany, Japan, Italy and Canada.

Even before the summit began, Bush maneuvered unsuccessfully to obtain a final agreement between Mexico and its commercial bank lenders on restructuring Mexico's foreign debt of more than $100 billion.

Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari told Bush that no deal is in sight, despite French President Francois Mitterrand's warning that "Mexico is on the edge of an explosion because of the weight of its debt."

Today's first session of the Big Seven industrial democracies coincides with the climax of three days of festivities marking the 200th birthday of the French Revolution.

The salute to the July 14, 1789, storming of the Bastille, which marked the beginning of the revolution, began with a military parade down the Champs Elysees, the most famous thoroughfare in Paris.

FOP endorses Williams as links queried

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

In the wake of a news report linking gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams' pollster with a candidate supported by Panamanian strongman Manuel Noriega, the Midland businessman today received an endorsement from a local police organization.

Williams' campaign officials also believe the tip was leaked to the press by Texas Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance's gubernatorial campaign.

The pollster for Williams Republican gubernatorial campaign helped a candidate backed by Noriega win that country's 1984 presidential election, the Houston Post reported Thursday.

Richard Dresner, based in New York City, confirmed to the newspaper's Austin bureau that he worked for Nicolas Ardito Barletta, whom he described as a "good guy" who was run out of office a year later by Noriega.

Barletta was the country's last civilian president.

"I've never worked for Noriega," Dresner said. "The only person I worked for was Barletta, and I'd work for him today. I'm not ashamed of anything I did in Panama. This is not something I'm trying to hide."

Williams has made his anti-drug sentiment a cornerstone of his 1990 gubernatorial campaign.

Dresner said his involvement with the Noriega-backed candidate, Barletta, was well before Noriega's alleged involvement with drug running became known.

Dresner accused Hance's gubernatorial campaign of trying to make him an issue. Hance spokesman Mark Sanders branded the accusation as untrue and ridiculous.

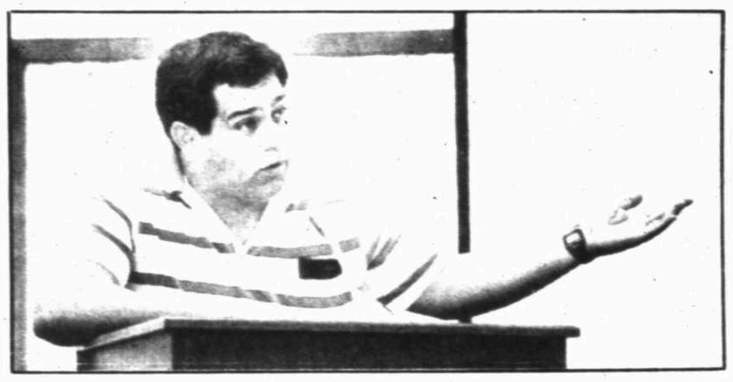

"That's a typical Dick Dresner smokescreen," Sanders said today after calling on Dresner to resign.

"Texas Republicans won't stand for a consultant who tries to get a governor elected when his resume shows he's also helped get Manuel Noriega's henchmen elected," Sanders said.

"I see a tinge of hypocrisy here," the Hance spokesman continued. "Clayton Williams ... is a fine man ... and has launched a valiant effort against drugs, but hired a pollster who's done work with Noriega and his candidates.

"We want Dresner out," Sanders said.

Goddard Junior High School math teacher Gilberto Garcia told Midland Independent School District Trustees that the district's pay system is not competitive for teachers with less than seven years' experience.

MISD trustees approve $1,140 pay increase

By BRIAN PEARSON
Staff Writer

Although Midland school teachers will see fatter paychecks this school year, some complained Tuesday that the pockets of less experienced instructors will remain on the empty side.

Midland Independent School District trustees voted 5-2 to approve a $1,140 pay hike for all teachers with a year or more of experience.

The 4.4 percent raise at midpoint of the salary schedule was made despite the millions extra in costs facing MISD for the 1989-90 school year. Teachers with 13 years of experience are at the schedule midpoint.

Administrators and all other district personnel also will receive a 4.4 percent raise above their respective salary schedule midpoints.

"It's a significant amount considering the economic environment here in Midland," Baressi said.

Midlander gunned down in neighbor's driveway

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 24-year-old Midland man was fatally wounded by a shotgun blast to the throat late Thursday afternoon, as he was talking to two men in an older model blue low-rider pickup truck in a neighbor's driveway in southeast Midland.

The death of the man, Spacio Lynn Shaw of 1309 S. Mineola St., became the third homicide in Midland in 1989 and the year's first by gunfire. The other deaths were by a knifing that resulted in a murder charge and a traffic accident that turned into an involuntary-manslaughter case.

No arrests had been made in the Shaw killing by early today.

Shaw had been visiting neighbors on the front porch of the 1312 S. Mineola St. residence when the low-rider pickup truck, occupied by two men, drove into the driveway and stopped, according to Midland Police Department Cpl. Jim White.

And Shaw, apparently recognizing the men in the cab, walked to the passenger side of truck and was talking to the men when he was struck in the throat by a blast from a 410-gauge shotgun at 6:44 p.m. and fell to the ground.

The pickup immediately pulled out of the driveway, changed gears, and headed south on Mineola Street, White said.

When Midland paramedics arrived, Shaw "had some signs of life," White said today, "but he was going fast." The force of the gunshot was "like literally having your throat cut."

Shaw was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital, where he died from the single gunshot wound. He was pronounced dead by Midland County Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

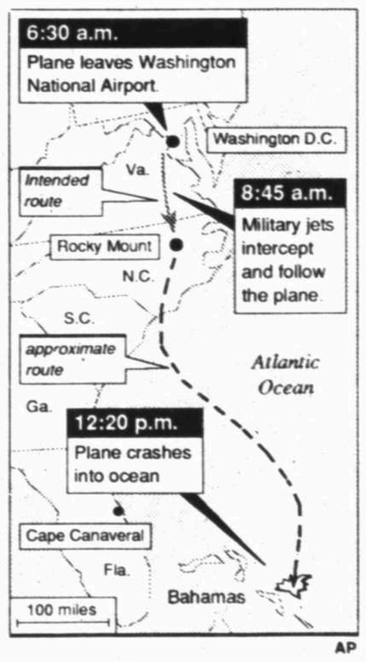

Arrangements for Shaw's funeral are being handled by Thomas Funeral Home of Midland.

"We have no clear motive at this point," White said of the shooting.

Shaw's death was the third homicide in Midland this year.

In January, 41-year-old Alphonzo Smith of Midland was stabbed in a knifing incident just outside the Savoy Club. A dispute had erupted in the club and moved outside the bar where Smith was stabbed. He re-entered the club and collapsed, White said. The death resulted in an arrest and murder charge.

Last May, Sergio Nunez, 19, of Midland was killed when he was struck by a car at the site of a party. The juvenile driver of the car was charged with involuntary homicide.

'Miracle' pilot had been shot, authorities say

MIAMI (AP) — A pilot who miraculously survived an 800-mile flight while he was unconscious had been shot through the abdomen at some point before he crash-landed in the Bahamas and swam to rescuers, police said today.

"It was unquestionably a gunshot wound," said Hollywood Police Chief Richard Witt. "The surgeons at the Hollywood Hospital said there was a wound that passed through the left rib cage (and the colon), exited and struck him in the arm and exited again."

Authorities have not recovered the small-caliber gun that caused the wound and believe it went down with the plane.

Natural gas conferees focus on environment

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

LOS ANGELES — Environmental concerns dominated the first day of a major national conference on natural gas here.

The conference, which brings together producers, pipelines, distributors, environmentalists, scientists and government officials, focuses on the role natural gas will play in the energy future of California and the nation.

California represents a tremendous market for Texas natural gas, said Texas Railroad Commissioner John Sharp, one of the conference sponsors.

"Texas now supplies 80 percent of the Southern California market, and 70 percent of the entire state. El Paso Natural Gas, which purchases gas throughout the Permian Basin, supplies 60 percent of the Southern California market," noted Sharp.

Sharp said that with new pipelines being built in California, Texas could expect to increase its share of the market.

Dr. Larry Berg, director of the Jesse M. Unruh Institute of Politics, set the tone for the meeting with the statement "Let's sell some gas and clean up the air."

Richard Farman, chairman of Southern California Gas Co., said that Southern California represented a huge market for Texas that would get bigger in the future.

The Southern California market is comprised of 14 million customers — which is more than in all of Australia. It uses 2½ to 3 billion cubic feet a day or a trillion cubic feet per year. It accounts for 6 percent of the total U.S. consumption and is the largest gas market in the U.S.

Kenneth Lay, chairman of Enron Corp., said the conference provided an excellent opportunity to focus on environmental problems and examine fuel options.

Said Lay: "As we look at President Bush's clean air plan, we can clearly see that natural gas will play an important role in that plan." He added that Texas is the largest producer of natural gas while California is the largest user of natural gas in the nation, making it only appropriate that the largest producer and consumer get together.

Lay said that as the U.S. moves into the 1990s — environment would be the driving issue behind the U.S. economy.

Lay applauded President Bush's decision to let market forces with environmental parameters rather than regulation determine the fuel of choice.

MISD

He said MISD must raise salaries to remain competitive statewide and attract quality teachers.

Trustee George Staley said that based on studies he has seen, school districts nationwide will average 6 percent raises for next year.

"We need to keep in line in some fashion," Staley said. "We felt we had to give them something.

"This is probably a little bit more than we can afford."

Jim Builta and Adela Marmolejo were the only trustees to vote against the salary proposal.

Builta said that although he supports teacher raises, MISD should spend money on facility renovations in 1989-90 and consider pay hikes for 1990-91.

"I think we addressed salaries last year," Builta said. "I'm not talking about just teachers having to bite the bullet. We're talking about MISD.

"We don't have any teachers starving and our upper management makes a handsome salary."

Ms. Marmolejo said she would have preferred to have three or four salary options to choose from.

"I feel we needed to study it more," Ms. Marmolejo said. "I feel teachers should be given a raise. I keep hearing a lot of people say they didn't want it at midpoint."

She said she wanted trustees to study an across-the-board percentage raise and possibly freezing central administration salaries.

Teachers addressing the board at the regular meeting commended the district for boosting salaries in tough economic times.

"I know the increase in the salary is as much as the economy will allow," said Joy O'Hara, a 17-year MISD employee who will teach first grade next year at Bush Elementary School. "They're trying to do as much as they can for us."

O'Hara, however, complained that district officials are "sugar-coating" the raise, pointing out that teachers will receive part of the $1,140 through their salary schedule step.

"They're putting the best face on it that they can," she said. "Telling teachers in the best light is not necessarily better than putting it down in black and white."

For example, while teachers with two years of experience with no master's degree will see their annual salary jump from $20,550 to $21,690, they would have received $20,750 based on last year's salary schedule. That means this year's teachers going into their third year will see only $940 more than last year's instructors with a year behind them.

O'Hara said the raise means only a $240 hike for teachers at her experience level.

"I can accept my ... $240 raise and be satisfied," she said. "What I can't accept is newspaper headlines saying Midland teachers get a big raise again. 'Some MISD teachers lose ground' would be a more acceptable headline."

Gilberto Garcia, a Goddard Junior High School math teacher, said the bottom steps of the salary schedule still will see too little money.

"A lot of teachers don't last seven years, and that's where we have the least amount of money going in," Garcia said.

He said the salaries at that level make MISD less competitive during recruiting season. When asked by a trustee how he would solve the problem, Garcia said he would like to see the community become involved in teacher recruiting.

MISD will still remain well above state salary bases. State base for beginner teachers is $17,000, while MISD starters is $20,250. At 13 years experience, the district midpoint, the state requires $22,700, while MISD will pay $25,390.

Baressi agreed that below-midpoint salaries are not as competitive as they should be but pointed out that teachers at that level are getting the larger percentage of the raise. The $1,140 is a 5.8 percent increase for teachers with a year of experience and only a 3.6 percent jump for those with 24 or more years.

He also said MISD will be spending as much as it can on salary increases in 1989-90.

The pay increase will will cost the district $1.9 million. Despite a possible 8 percent tax hike and $1.2 million in increased state revenue for the year, the district is still facing a $1.4 million deficit.

The district will use money from the $11 million fund balance account to keep MISD in the black for 1989-90.

MISD also will spend an additional $1.8 million to pay for the 60 new teachers needed to meet the state 22-to-1 pupil-teacher ratio mandate for third and fourth grades.

Teachers who speaking at the meeting applauded trustees approval of two administrative benefits recommendations.

MISD next year will create a "sick leave bank," which will allow participating teachers who suffer from a prolonged illness to take more than their share of sick days.

Teachers donating one of their 10 sick days a year to the pool can use up to 50 days of paid sick time from the bank, unless the employee is earning workers compensation or has an uncomplicated pregnancy.

Trustees also approved allowing the teachers to use their two "business days" for personal reasons. The employees cannot use the days to extend vacations or on state-required work days.

Sam Manning, a Lee High School teacher and president of the Midland Federation of Teachers, said the two extra benefits should give teachers a morale boost.

"I'm extremely happy with what they did with the two business days," Manning said, adding that educators have been trying to get the benefit for the past eight years.

Baressi said that barring abuse of the sick bank system, the district in future years may be able to support the bank without requiring participants to donate a sick leave day.

In other action, trustees approved $20,000 for the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program.

Initially developed by the U.S. Department of Justice for use in Los Angeles schools, DARE is a law enforcement program to prevent drug use among children.

Each MISD elementary school campus will see DARE in action during the coming school year.

Three specially trained Midland Police Department officers will spread out and spend time in each MISD fifth- and sixth-grade class and remain at the school throughout the day.

DARE will arm pupils with drug information, methods to enhance self-esteem, analytical and decision-making skills and the motivation to employ the skills.

Deputy Chief J.R. Smith, addressing trustees, said $10,000 is still needed to meet the $100,000 program cost

Smith said the program has received a $32,000 grant from the state and $10,000 in private donations among other funding.

In other action, trustees awarded the following contracts:

- a $19,825 contract to Coats Construction for exterior renovations to Carver Gymnasium.
- a $10,500 contract to R&J Electric for electrical panel replacement at Burnet and Bunche elementary schools.
- a $5,960 contract to G&O Fence Inc. for fencing at Bunche.
- a $66,344 contract to South Texas Construction for paving and parking area revisions to Emerson Elementary School, Goddard Junior High and Lee Freshman High School.

Thomas and Kathy Root

PLANE

Authorities earlier had speculated that Thomas Root may have had a heart attack or inhaled carbon monoxide.

The chief said a powder burn indicated Root was shot at close range, but did not say it was self-inflicted.

"That's all a matter of speculation right now," he said. "There is always the possibility of (a) self-inflicted wound."

Witt said that Root could have been shot before takeoff, but that the wound is believed to have occurred in the air. He said the investigation may come under federal jurisdiction.

Military pilots who saw Root in the plane didn't see anyone else aboard, according to Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Fred Farrar.

Root remained in stable condition under heavy sedation at Hollywood's Memorial Hospital today.

His odyssey started on a flight from Washington to Rocky Mount, N.C., and ended when he crashed after his single-engine plane ran out of fuel 10,000 feet above Bahamian waters early Thursday afternoon.

For nearly four hours, military jets shadowed the Cessna 210 Centurion as it traveled down the East Coast on autopilot with the 36-year-old lawyer from Alexandria, Va., slumped in the cockpit.

"I thought there was no way he was going to survive that crash," said Air Force Staff Sgt. Scott Tracy, one of four specially trained rescuers who parachuted to the crash site, about 15 miles east of the island of Eleuthera and nearly 800 miles from his planned destination.

Wearing only pants and socks, Root managed to swim clear of the craft minutes before it sank in nearly 10,000 feet of water.

Coast Guard Capt. James Rahman, a doctor who treated Root in Nassau, Bahamas, said Root may have been jarred awake by the impact and flood of water.

"It's definitely a miracle he's alive. He's a little confused by it all," the doctor said. "I asked him what happened. He said he didn't know. He said he passed out in the plane, and the next thing he knew water was coming in and he was sinking."

Rahman, who found no signs of a heart attack and said Root had no history of diabetes, had speculated that the veteran pilot may have passed out from carbon monoxide poisoning in the cockpit.

Prellezo said there are no plans to search for remains of the plane.

He said attempts may be made today to interview Root at the hospital.

Hospital spokeswoman Cynthia Wine said Root's family had requested that no information be released on the exact extent of his injuries. Root underwent 90 minutes of exploratory surgery Thursday.

Root's wife, Kathy, 35, said she plans to visit her husband today. On Thursday, she said she told hospital officials to send her husband the message: "Root, you really did it this time."

She told reporters Thursday night that he had suffered a fainting spell about two months ago. She also said he had often flown private planes on business trips.

"For him to survive a crash like that, it just sent us all into shock," said Petty Officer Veronica Cady, a Coast Guard spokeswoman.

WEATHER SUMMARY

High in 90s likely Saturday

From Staff and Wire Reports

Less than a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms is in the forecast for the Midland area tonight, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. Otherwise, skies will be mostly fair with the low near 70 and winds from the south at 5-15 mph.

Saturday is expected to be mostly sunny with a continued less than 20 percent chance of afternoon thunderstorms. The high will reach into the upper 90s and winds will be southerly 10-20 mph.

Thursday's high of 100 was seven degrees short of the record high of 107 set July 13, 1933. The overnight low of 68 was 18 degrees warmer than the record low of 50 set for this date in 1936.

STATE

Warm, moist air brought scattered showers and thunderstorms to the western half of North Texas, western Panhandle and parts of the Hill Country today and more rainfall was expected later, the National Weather Service said.

The unstable air mass moved over the state early today, along with a series of upper-level storms.

The weather service said skies were cloudy over most of the state. Winds were from the south at 5 to 10 mph over the southern part of the state while a light north wind was observed elsewhere.

Temperatures early today were in the 70s and low 80s with readings in the 60s over the Panhandle and the higher elevations of the Big Bend.

State temperature extremes ranged from a low of 62 degrees at Marfa and a high of 83 degrees at Palacios.

NATION

Strong thunderstorms drenched Oklahoma early today, and tornadoes touched down in Colorado.

Thunderstorms in eastern Colorado early today and Thursday evening spawned tornadoes near Hugo and Limon. Thunderstorm winds gusted to 58 mph at Colorado Springs.

An upper level disturbance over the Oklahoma Panhandle along with warm, unstable air triggered thunderstorms with heavy rainfall in Oklahoma, south-central Kansas and western Arkansas.

Midland statistics

Texas possible 1990 summit site

By VIC OSTROWIDZKI
Hearst Washington Bureau

PARIS — White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Thursday that President Bush has not as yet "focused" on the site for the 1990 economic summit which will be held somewhere in the United States.

Fitzwater said three Texas cities — San Antonio, Dallas, Houston — will be considered along with other sites as possible locations for next year's meeting of the leaders of the seven industrialized nations: the United States, Japan, West Germany, Great Britain, Italy, France and Canada.

Robert Blackwill, a senior national security adviser to the president, said "no one has as yet presented options to the president as to where to hold the summit."

"It will have to be a city with hotels able to accommodate at least 6,000 people," Blackwill added.

The date of the 1990 conference also is undetermined, though May or June have been the most common months for the summits. This year's summit is being held in July because French President Francois Mitterrand, the host by order of rotation, wanted it to coincide with the French Revolution's Bicentennial celebration.

The United States last hosted the economic summit in 1983. That meeting was held at Williamsburg, Va.

SUMMIT

Heavy tanks rumbled past the VIP viewing stand as Mirage jet fighters screamed overhead, trailing streams of red, white and blue smoke.

With more than two dozen heads of state and government invited to the festivities, there was an extraordinary gathering of world leaders from nations rich and poor.

Bush began the day with a hurriedly arranged meeting with Salinas on his country's commercial lenders. Afterward, Sununu reported there was no early prospect for a final agreement.

Sununu said Mexican officials want "to get it done correctly rather than trying to rush it," and the White House believes "there is no requirement to leave the summit ... with an agreement."

The United States offered a temporary loan of $1 billion to $2 billion to help Mexico seal an agreement, preferably before the economic summit ends on Sunday, but Sununu said the negotiations remained snagged over details.

Mitterrand, who is pushing a rival plan for solving the Third World debt problem, said in a French TV interview that Mexico's foreign debt has carried that country to the brink of an explosion.

"No one has an interest in this explosion taking place, which would mean more misery for a suffering people," he said. "We are contributing, I am contributing, as far as possible so that a positive answer could be given in the coming days."

The 15th economic summit marks Bush's debut at the annual gathering of the leaders of the United States, Japan, Britain, France, West Germany, Canada and Italy. Leaders of some of the Third World countries attending the Bastille celebration urged the prosperous nations to hold a summit between rich and poor nations.

Mitterrand has been harshly criticized in the press here for the extravagence of the bicentennial celebration, as well as for holding two separate dinners tonight for have and have-not nations.

Bush, through a spokesman, rallied to Mitterrand's side.

"I don't think the president sees any difficulty at all in the way the French have laid out their plans, their celebrations, or their hosting of the summit meeting," said White House Chief of Staff John Sununu.

Today Williams received an endorsement from the 105-member Midland Regional Fraternal Order of Police whose president urged "all other law enforcement officers to endorse" Williams.

The Midland Republican was aware of Dresner's activities before he was hired by the Williams campaign and has no problems with him, according to Williams spokesman Frank Walter.

"Dick Dresner did not or has not ever worked for Noriega in any capacity," Walter said. "To allege otherwise is a total and complete falsehood."

"This issue has been up in two or three states but it quashed rather quickly," Walter said.

"We thank Kent Hance for improving our name identification about 10 percent statewide with these trivial meaningless stories," added Walter.

According to his resume provided by the Williams campaign, Dresner has been involved with more than 30 successful statewide races including those of Sen. Warren Rudman, R-New Hampshire, Sen. Pete Wilson, R-California, Sen. Jim Jeffords, R-Vermont and Kansas Gov. Mike Hayden.

Prior to his current position, Dresner was senior vice president of the Louis Harris Associates polling firm.

Walter said Sanders' remarks are "just a further indication of them trying to divert attention from the Clayton Williams campaign and his anti-drug program."

GAS

He noted that a more competitive and less regulated natural gas industry would be able to do its job more efficiently.

"There's no question that the supply will be there," he added. "The natural gas resources in the U.S. are very large and very real. We have at least a 50 year supply with today's technology, plus Canadian and Mexican natural gas that we can count on."

Lay said there is a perception that there is a supply problem, when in fact there is only a deliverability problem. "But even the deliverability problem is only short-term."

He said a low rig count was one factor affecting deliverability.

Lay noted that CNG (compressed natural gas) would probably come into demand as the transportation fuel of choice and discounted methanol as the fuel of the future.

"CNG operates cleaner and safer and produces more environmental benefits than methanol," said Lay. "Also, it would take 60 methanol plants to supply methanol for only 20 million vehicles." He added that most methanol would come from foreign countries and do nothing to rebuild the U.S. petroleum indsutry or help the national deficit.

Lay said natural gas could be the "bridge" fuel that would take the U.S. down the road to a completely benign and renewable energy source.

"Natural gas can't take us to zero pollution," said Curtis Moore, an energy consultant to the U.S. Senate. "But it can take us a lot closer."

"If I had a lot of money to invest, I would put it into natural gas," said Moore. He warned that global warming was moving the earth toward an environmental disaster: "As the earth warms because of methane gases in the air, the tundra will thaw and as it thaws it will decay and give off methane, thus speeding up global warming. The environment doesn't go down inclining wheelchair ramps, it goes off cliffs."

Dr. Carl Moyer, a global warming scientist, said natural gas-burning vehicles could reduce warmhouse gases by 40 percent.

Israeli bus tragedy leaves behind grim shrines

By MARJORIE OLSTER

ABU GHOSH, Israel (AP) — One week after a Palestinian forced an Israeli bus off a cliff, the site of the attack and the assailant's demolished home have become grim shrines representing both sides of the Arab uprising.

Hundreds of Jews gathered for a memorial service Thursday on the steep cliff where the bus plunged 200 feet into a gorge. A tepee-shaped monument has been erected from stones, charred tires and twisted metal.

Dozens of Israeli motorists stop on the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway's shoulder to peer at the blackened mark where the bus went up in flames. They leave behind a daily offering of flowers and blue-and-white Israeli flags to memorialize the attack that killed 14 people and injured 27.

WORLD

In the Gaza Strip, the impoverished Nuseirat refugee camp has also become a shrine, one that honors Abdel Hadi Salman Rassem Ghanem, 23. Police and witnesses say Ghanem forced bus No. 405 off the road to avenge a friend who was shot by soldiers and paralyzed during the 19-month Palestinian uprising.

Ghanem's home has been demolished by the army as punishment for the attack.

But that has not erased his legend, inscribed in graffiti on the walls of the camp. Ghanem, who is hospitalized in a prison ward, is considered a martyr because even though he did not die, he was on a suicide mission.

"To the hero Abdel Hadi, the killer of the Jews — a salute of honor and glorification for the fighter Abdel Hadi," said one slogan signed by Islamic Jihad, a militant Moslem group.

"Long live the hero Abdel Hadi, symbol of sacrifice and redemption," said another slogan, signed by the PLO-backed United National Leadership of the Uprising.

At the Jewish memorial service, people gathered at the blackened spot where the bus burned, picking through twisted steel and burned blankets. "They burned to death," an elderly woman cried out.

Several hundred people gathered on a cliff overlooking the crash site and beneath a sign that read "Enough Terror." A week earlier, helicopters rescuing the wounded had perched on that same cliff.

"This is the gate of heaven. From here the holy ones went up to heaven," said Zvi Rosenberg, whose brother died in the attack.

Legislators and clergymen delivered brief speeches as victims' families wept quietly in the front row. Israeli flags fluttered in the breeze and youths lighted 14 torches for the victims.

Transportation Minister Moshe Katsav said the attack proved Israelis are fighting a war for their existence.

At least 560 Palestinians and 35 Israelis have died in the uprising that began against Israeli rule on Dec. 8, 1987, in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel seized from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war.

Tremors marked after undersea volcano erupts

TOKYO (AP) — Scientists detected new volcanic tremors and a weak earthquake in the area where an undersea volcano spewed water and smoke the previous night, and the government warned another eruption appeared imminent.

The government's Coordinating Committee for Earthquake Prediction said an eruption is "highly likely to recur," not only at the same spot but possibly other locations. It said it was broadcasting emergency warnings and news on significant developments to local families.

Most of the 200 residents in Ito who had left their seaside houses about 60 miles southwest of Tokyo to spend the night in Buddhist temples and schools returned home today, but 43 schools closed amid the uncertainty, said Masaaki Mitsuhashi, a spokesman for the resort city of 72,000 people.

"Although there is no immediate danger, we have eight places ready for evacuees just in case anything worse happens," he added.

No injuries or damage have been reported from Thursday night's eruption, but 21 people suffered minor injuries Sunday when two earthquakes measuring 5.5 on the Richter scale hit the area.

Since June 30, about 22,300 quakes, including 480 large enough to be felt by humans, have been recorded off Ito and parts of nearby Izu Peninsula.

The Central Meteorological Agency said new volcanic tremors were measured at 2:47 a.m. today, lasting about 87 minutes, and at 11:42 a.m., lasting about three minutes.

The volcano erupted about 330 feet undersea at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

WORLD IN BRIEF

China stiffening rules

BEIJING (AP) — China said today it was imposing tougher rules on what books and magazines can publish, and there were reports of more executions and prison terms in a continuation of the government's drive to stifle popular dissent.

A foreign source in Chengdu, the capital of central Sichuan Province, quoted local press reports as saying two men were executed last Saturday for their actions during deadly riots in that city in early June.

The executions, which were not reported in the national press, brought to 29 the number of people known to have been put to death for disrupting social order since the June 3-4 military assault on Beijing in which at least 200 people were killed.

Seven soldiers wounded

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — A homemade bomb exploded outside a discotheque in northern Honduras early Thursday and wounded seven American soldiers, three of them seriously, officials reported.

Two other Americans in the group escaped injury. No one claimed responsibility for the fourth attack on U.S. troops in Honduras since Feb. 1.

"Witnesses say the bomb was apparently thrown from a car, but the scenario is still confused," said Anne Sigmund of the U.S. Embassy. "They don't say if the bomb was thrown from a moving car or a parked car. We're still investigating."

The soldiers had gone into La Ceiba, a coastal town 200 miles north of Tegucigalpa, in civilian dress and without proper leave, embassy spokesman Charles V. Barclay said.

Farmer under guard

LUXIOL, France (AP) — A farmer severely wounded in a shootout after killing 14 people with his double-barreled shotgun was under tight guard in a hospital today, partly for his own protection, authorities said.

Funerals were planned today in Luxiol and in nearby villages for the victims. Bastille Day celebrations were canceled, and decorative flags and bunting removed from streets and buildings.

Neighbors said Christian Dornier, 31, frightened them long before the dramatic events of Wednesday afternoon.

Investigators and witnesses described how Dornier shot his mother and sister to death, wounded his father, then got in his car and drove around this village of 128 people and neighboring communities for about two hours, firing at anyone he saw.

The spree ended in the village of Verne, where officers returned fire and hit him in the abdomen, said a spokesman for the Besancon headquarters of the gendarmerie, the military police responsible for public order in rural France.

Verne was to be the site of the largest of the main funeral service. Special security protection was prepared for the large crowd expected to attend.

Seven of the dead were from Luxiol. The others came from nearby Anteuil, Autechaux, Sechin, Fourbanne and Baume-les-Dames, with two from Voillans.

BAT firm's fight grows

LONDON (AP) — The takeover battle for tobacco-retailing giant BAT Industries is developing into a U.S.-style fight, underscoring American dominance of the worldwide corporate buyout scene.

The hostile, $21 billion offer from an investor group led by Anglo-French financier Sir James Goldsmith certainly is American-sized.

It would be the second-largest takeover in the world after the $25 billion purchase of RJR Nabisco Inc. earlier this year by the New York investment firm Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co.

The bidders offer no cash and instead are using an American financing technique not readily accepted on this side of the Atlantic: junk bonds.

Man, woman arrested

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — A man and a woman have been arrested in connection with the near-starvation of an 8-year-old boy who weighed less than 20 pounds when he was hospitalized.

Chihuahua State Judicial Police arrested Hermelinda Aleman and Diego Esteban of Juarez in the case of Carlos Hoyos Rascon Jr., who was found June 27 at the home where the couple lives.

Former HUD aide offers to testify against Pierce

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators eager to determine former Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce's role in abuses at his agency are mulling an offer by a former Pierce aide who reportedly would implicate him in the scandal.

Sources who spoke Thursday on the condition of anonymity said Deborah Gore Dean, who for three years was Pierce's top aide, has told a House panel that if granted immunity she could testify that Pierce personally approved funding for several projects in a program under scrutiny.

Meanwhile, two former HUD officials were to testify today before the panel about a North Carolina housing project that is the subject of questions about Pierce's involvement. Scheduled to testify were Shirley McVay Wiseman and Janet Hale.

A congressional source said the chairman of the House subcommittee on employment and housing, Rep. Thomas Lantos, D-Calif., has "an open mind" about making a deal with Ms. Dean but has made no decision.

Ms. Dean last month refused to answer questions from the subcommittee, invoking her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination. One of the sources said that if granted immunity Ms. Pierce was prepared to testify that Pierce ordered funding for numerous projects under the Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation program.

The program was suspended briefly earlier this year and its selection guidelines rewritten after Department of Housing and Urban Development auditors criticized project selections. Auditors said influential Republicans had successfully lobbied HUD officials in favor of projects involving their clients.

Pierce told the subcommittee last month he had no direct role in HUD funding decisions. Since then, however, there have been reports that Pierce intervened on behalf of associates, including a former law partner who was seeking HUD financing for the North Carolina project.

FBI arrests three suspected IRA terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI says charges that three people made technical explosive devices for Provisional Irish Republican Army use against British targets show the "high level of technical sophistication" of world terrorism.

The three, one of whom had top security clearance, were arrested in different states on federal charges of conspiring to injure and destroy the property of a foreign government.

An arrest warrant was issued for a fourth person believed to be in Ireland, the FBI announced Thursday.

FBI Director William S. Sessions said the three were developing sophisticated circuits for use in remote-controlled explosive devices and the design and development of delivery systems for rockets.

Sessions, noting the three have backgrounds in electrical engineering, said the arrests "demonstrate the high level of technical sophistication being employed by terrorist organizations to further violence worldwide."

The Provisional Irish Republican Army, PIRA, is an underground organization that has been fighting the British Army and police since the early 1970s trying to end British rule of Northern Ireland.

Arrested were Richard Clark Johnson, 41, of Nashua, N.H., and Harwich, Mass.; Martin Peter Quigley, 27, a citizen of the Republic of Ireland who has been living since April in Bethlehem, Pa., and Christina Leigh Reid, 25, of Sunnyvale, Calif., the FBI said.

They were arrested in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and California, respectively.

A federal magistrate in Boston issued an arrest warrant for Peter Eamonn Maguire, an Irish citizen linked to the PIRA's explosive research program. Assistant U.S. Attorney Karl Lunkenheimer in Philadelphia said Maguire apparently has returned to Ireland.

Reid was released on $10,000 bail Thursday and a hearing was set for Aug. 8 to move her to Boston, the lead city for the case.

An affidavit signed by FBI Agent Brendan O. Cleary in Boston detail extensive phone taps, surveillance of conversations, the opening of mail and the inspection of luggage as part of the investigation.

Bush economic approach needed

Although this nation has operated for many years on a policy that sought to help Third World countries by means of massive outlays of U.S. dollars, President Bush is starting to change that philosophy by doing exactly the opposite. Witness his current trip to Poland where he offered Poles economic assistance, but not the major outlay they had wanted.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa obviously was disappointed with Bush's package which includes a planned $115 million in new aid provided Congress agrees, backing for $325 million in loans from the World Bank and support for more help from other nations. The Poles were thinking more in terms of $10 billion in assistance from the U.S. over three years.

But the amount Poland sought was unrealistic. Uncle Sam is tapped out. With this nation's massive federal deficits, trade imbalance and other financial problems, for the U.S. to go on throwing money to other countries left and right as if there were an endless supply would be foolish indeed. Rather, what Bush appears to be angling toward — active help directed at assisting struggling nations in improving their conditions themselves — makes a lot more sense. Bush is wise to recognize that fact.

No doubt there are those who believe that now, at the very moment Communism appears to be crumbling and only in need of a small shove from Uncle Sam to disintegrate, is the time for the United States to go full tilt toward buying freedom for nations such as Poland. That's sheer folly; freedom so acquired would not be held so dearly as that bought with blood over years. Those nations do need assistance, but of another kind.

In other words, the United States needs to encourage the improvement of conditions in nations like Poland on the basis of their people's achievements, not Uncle Money's bankroll. It needs to do that for their benefit as well as the economic need in this country.

There was a time when the policy of hefty foreign economic giveaways was both politically — on the world stage — and socially proper and constructive. Those days appear to have passed, both for most of the struggling nations and the United States.

Government auctions real giveaways

WASHINGTON — Dick Textor catches what the government spills.

His driveway is coated with green Army tennis court paint. His Brandywine, Maryland home shines with a layer of Coast Guard white and Navy gray. He drives an $18,500 electric truck that Uncle Sam sold him for $120. He can serve dinner on hand-painted White House china and sign letters with Ronald Reagan's automatic autograph machine — all picked up at government surplus auctions.

Jack Anderson

Textor drives the government crazy. A self-confessed "loud-mouth," he hangs out at government auctions barking about how our bureaucrats run the worst business in the nation. In a booming voice, he asks his fellow bidders how the government can afford to pay thousands of dollars for something, and then sell it for pennies. He marvels aloud about the Secret Service safe he bought. It had a blueprint of the White House grounds stuffed in the bottom drawer. Then Textor takes home a perfectly good fax machine for $10.

What Textor has seen is the flip-side of the Pentagon's $640 toilet seat. At supply depots across the country, the government runs auctions to flush the products it claims it no longer needs.

Here are some things the taxpayers bought at a premium and then dumped for a pittance: copy machines, televisions, computers, forklifts, video cameras, night-vision scopes, scales, safes, emergency flares and more.

Hydraulic scales go for $5, eight televisions for a total of $110, 62 cases of Xerox copier toner valued at about $6,000 for $2. Monte Hall never dished out better deals.

In February, Textor figured it was time to alert George Bush to the giveaway. He wrote a letter to the president saying that the laws governing the sales are routinely broken, that the government could get much more for its surplus goods, that he has bought radioactive materials without warning labels and military equipment that wasn't supposed to be sold.

Textor bought one auto-signature pen for $25 and sold it for $500. He picked up a scale for $5 and resold it for $500. Why can't the government get a better return too, he asked Bush.

Four months after Textor wrote the letter, the Defense Reutilization and Marketing Service (the Santa Claus at the Pentagon) solved the problem in its own way — it banned Textor from auctions of military goods. Now Uncle Sam can go about its foolish business without being bothered by the facts.

The Pentagon justified its move saying Textor had tried to rig the bidding simply because he bantered with other bidders.

The Pentagon told our associate Jim Lynch that Textor's letter to the president had nothing to do with the attempt to ban him from auctions.

We asked a spokeswoman for the Defense Reutilization and Marketing Service why the government doesn't listen to Textor's marketing ideas. "It's not that kind of marketing," she said, likening the program to a garage sale. "If you have ever had a garage sale, you know things don't go for top dollar."

DENG LOSING GRIP — China's aging leader Deng Xiaoping is still in control of the government machinery, but his grip is shaky. Intelligence reports suggest that many of the junior grade military officers have been infected by the democracy bug and that they were repulsed by the People's Army attack on demonstrators. The officers have also been turned off by the corruption among their superiors. Morale is low, discipline is lax and the troops are not highly motivated.

• • •

MINI-EDITORIAL — The federal government seems to think it can throw money away and then say it doesn't matter, since the money didn't come from the taxpayers in the first place. Waste is waste, no matter who foots the bill. A case in point is the recent ceremony staged on the Capitol grounds to strike a new collectors' coin. The U.S. Mint spent $100,000 to haul its coin presses to the Capitol so members of Congress could stamp their own coins while television cameras recorded the event. Not to worry, taxpayers. The sales of the coin will cover the outrageous expense.

What some people sans brains will say!

Today I am proud to have as my guest on the Lewis Grizzard column the brain of Lee Atwater, campaign chairman for President George Bush and chairman of the National Republican Party.

Lewis Grizzard

"I'm a bit confused as to what to call you, however. Is 'Mr. Brain' OK?"

"Why don't you call me what all my friends call me."

"And what would that be?"

"Slick."

"Fine, Slick. I suppose my first question should be, how was Mr. Atwater able to function and be able to carry on his very important duties, when you, his brain, is off giving interviews like this."

"There's no problem. He's used to it. In fact, when he made the news recently with his statement about the new Speaker of the House, I was vacationing in Jamaica."

"I assume you are referring to his statement that speaker Tom Foley is 'an out of the closet liberal'?"

"That's the one."

"Some felt he was making a sleazy remark and suggesting Mr. Foley is homosexual as is Rep. Barney Frank, Democrat of Massachusetts, who has admitted he is gay."

"It just goes to show you, Lewis, what a guy whose brain is on vacation in Jamaica will up and say."

"Did you, Slick, discuss this statement with Mr. Atwater when you arrived back home, or back in his head, I suppose I should say."

"Indeed I did. I said, 'Master, how could you make such a stupid statement?'

He said, 'It was easy. I figured Barney Frank is gay and he's out of the closet and he's a Democrat and a liberal so what does that make Tom Foley?'

"And I said, 'I don't quite follow you.'

"And he said, 'It's simple, "Barney" starts with a B. Closet starts with a C. Democrat starts with a D. Right?'

"And I said, 'But I still don't follow.'"

"And he said, 'First, there's B and then comes C and then comes D and after that there's E, which you need to spell liberal, and then there's F, which is the first letter of the speaker's last name and what letter follows F?

"I answered, 'G.'

"And Lee said, 'Right and gay starts with G and I rest my case.'"

"Very intriguing, indeed. There was also a statement attributed to Mr. Atwater that President Bush's opponent in the 1988 national election, Michael Dukakis, might have suffered from mental problems. Did the two of you work together on this one?"

"Actually, I put Lee up to saying that. I said to him, 'Lee, you have to be crazy to be a Democrat don't you?'"

"And he said, 'Un-huh.'

"And then I said, 'Michael Dukakis is a Democrat, isn't he.'"

"And he said, 'Uh-huh.'"

"And I said, 'So what does that make Michael Dukakis?'"

"And he said, 'A member of the American Civil Liberties Union.'"

"And I said, 'No it makes him crazy.' It was easy for him after that."

"I suppose what most of our readers would like to know now is what Democrat are you and Mr. Atwater going after next?"

"Jimmy Carter."

"The ex-president. Why on earth?"

"Because he's there."

"I see. Well, that's all the space we have left for today and I would like to thank Mr. Atwater's brain for stopping by."

Next on the Lewis Grizzard column, my special guest will be the brain of House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia — if we can ever locate it.

CHARLEY REESE

Flag issue follows pattern of modern politics

As outraged as I am about the Supreme Court's condoning flag-burning, I am equally outraged by President George Bush's proposal for a constitutional amendment overturning the decision. Once more, we get government by public relations gesture.

Charley Reese

In the first place, if we are going to amend the Constitution everytime we don't like a Supreme Court decision, the Constitution will soon become a bound volume with many, many pages. The Constitution is a basic contract between the people and the federal government and it should be amended sparingly.

In the second place, one dumb decision isn't the problem. The problem is the current philosophy of judicial activism, a philosophy which, in effect, uses the law and the Constitution as mere props by which judges may solve social problems as they see fit — regardless of how legislatures feel about them.

One sensible solution that Bush ought to demand is the repeal of the 30 or more laws allowing lawyers to collect their fees from the taxpayers if they file and win certain categories of so-called public interest lawsuits. Believe me, lawyers are not by nature public-minded servants. Cut off the cash and you'll find fewer cases filed and even fewer winding their way to the Supreme Court.

Another problem Bush and the Congress ought to look at — and which really might need a constitutional amendment — is the problem of senility on the federal bench. Federal judges, from the Supreme Court on down, are appointed for life. At the time the framers of the Constitution wrote that provision, the probability of people surviving long enough to grow senile was small.

Now we have many judges in their late 60s, 70s and even 80s deciding cases. The aging process can affect the mind as well as the muscles, but there is no provision for getting people off the Supreme Court after they have lost their reasoning powers. There should be. There should be a mandatory retirement age.

Some of the liberal justices are such fanatic idealogues that they cling to the bench to prevent a Republican president from appointing their replacements. That merely shows they were bad appointments in the first place, men who put politics and ideology ahead of service to the country.

For that matter, there should be a mandatory retirement for congressmen, senators and other federal officials, including the president. Every individual has his or her own biological clock, but every individual also knows that aging is a winding down of our energy, of our strength, of our reflexes. Mind and body are not separate.

There is too much danger in these times, and we have examples, of bodies holding public positions while staff or law clerks exert the powers of the office. I had opposed President Reagan seeking a second term because I feared the effects of advanced age, and his second term verified my fears. I think he hardly knew what was going on. I voted for him, though, because I thought even a comatose Reagan would do less damage than a wide-awake Walter Mondale.

In these times, the capacity for public deceit is very high. Look back, for example, at the glowing imagery of Camelot built around John F. Kennedy. Then read about the recent book on his widow and compare the sordid, disgraceful truth with that public image.

That's why I'm so angered by Bush's public relations gesture on the flag issue. It's a distraction for the public. Far, far more important matters face us than some nitwit occasionally desecrating the flag. Like most Americans, I'm mad about it but we don't need presidential attention and a constitutional amendment. That's hokum.

This gesture on the flag follows the pattern of modern politics — agitate the public about emotional, but essentially minor issues, and go about the important matters with as little public notice — and input — as possible.

Watchdogs didn't bark about HUD's ripoff

WASHINGTON — It is troubling enough that the Department of Housing and Urban Development was pervasively plundered by greedy political insiders and developers. But how could it have gone on for so long without public exposure?

Marianne Means

All during the Reagan administration, the watchdogs didn't bark. The Congress didn't complain. The press didn't press. Not even Ralph Nader was around when we needed him.

Money on a massive scale that was supposed to go for low-income housing programs went to support the comfortable life style of well-connected Republican consultants and their wealthy friends in the housing industry. The general attitude was that since Congress wouldn't grant the president's desire to end housing assistance for the poor, they might as well do it for him by pocketing the funds themselves.

When the new Bush administration came to power, it discovered things in such a mess that federal investigators finally got busy. Only then did public interest groups, Congress and the press grow alarmed.

These crooks got away with it so long that it became an institutionalized pattern of behavior because nobody cared enough.

Low-income housing, unfortunately, does not get a high priority either with the White House, Congress or the public. Helping to shelter the poor is a worthy cause but not a glamorous one.

President Reagan scoffed at the very idea. Even the public is dubious about the value of housing programs, in part because the ugly, decaying block-long projects that are the programs' most visible symbols have become centers of drugs and violence. The programs are complicated and boring. The paperwork can be overwhelming. Petty graft is not uncommon.

But there was also a practical roadblock to discovery: the cover-up was good. Correct information was hard to come by. HUD either failed to keep accurate data or refused to make it public.

Normal sources of public information that might have revealed taxpayers' money was being used to build golf courses instead of low-income housing were not available to outsiders.

The most glaring example was the cancellation of the annual "Housing Production Report," which was mandated by Congress but last appeared in 1982. That document used to be the major source of operating data on housing programs, providing an analysis of current programs as well as projected goals and needs.

During the Reagan years, one-third of the nonpolitical career HUD employees — who understood the programs and might have objected — left their jobs. The department became the dumping ground for political hacks whose only qualification was devotion to Ronald Reagan's notion of government as the enemy, even while paying their salaries.

Alas, little problems are easy to spot. It is the giant scams that are hard to comprehend.

The upshot of all the corruption is that HUD Secretary Jack Kemp has now wiped out three major housing assistance programs, thus accomplishing Reagan's goal in the name of cleaning everything up. Kemp says it's only temporary; not everyone is convinced.

ITEM: There's a hot rumor in Texas that Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, whose classy vice presidential campaign last year made him a big star in the Democratic party, has told his staff to gear up for a 1992 race for the White House.

Top political advisers and close friends, however, heatedly deny this. They concede that the 69-year-old senator would like to be president, but note that at his age committing himself to a grueling national campaign might be quite another thing.

"Too early," his advisers say. Bentsen is keeping his options open and is currently concentrating on the Senate budget wars.

• • •

ITEM: George Bush's media maven Roger Ailes thinks he has a sure winner in a movie he is producing to celebrate the president's adventures as a World War II fighter pilot.

But a heroic plot line starring a future president under fire is not necessarily the next "Batman," breaking all box-office records. The public may not be all that thrilled about seeing the cautious, bespectacled figure now in the White House as a brave young Navy lieutenant in a distant war a quarter of a century ago.

If history is any guide, Ailes should have second thoughts. He might, for instance, note what happened to the 1962 movie about President Kennedy's similarly courageous World War II exploits in a torpedo boat.

Ailes' film will describe how Bush was shot down while dive-bombing a radio tower on a Japanese island in 1944. Bush bailed out of his Grumman Avenger and floated on a life raft for an hour and a half until he was rescued by an American submarine.

"PT 109" recounted how Kennedy towed an injured sailor to safety by holding his life-belt strap in his teeth for three hours in icy waters after the PT boat he commanded was sunk by a Japanese destroyer in the South Pacific. It was based on a gripping book of the same title that had been a best-seller, and starred handsome Cliff Robertson as Kennedy (although Kennedy's first choice for the role had been Warren Beatty).

The movie bombed, lost Warner Bros. a lot of money, and was quickly withdrawn.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, July 14, the 195th day of 1989. There are 170 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Two hundred years ago, on July 14, 1789, citizens of Paris stormed the Bastille prison and released the seven prisoners inside, in the symbolic climax of the French revolution.

On this date:

In 1798, Congress passed the Sedition Act, making it a federal crime to publish false, scandalous or malicious writing about the United States government.

In 1853, Commodore Matthew Perry relayed to Japanese officials a letter from former President Millard Fillmore, requesting trade relations.

In 1881, outlaw William H. Bonney Jr., alias "Billy the Kid," was shot and killed by Sheriff Pat Garrett in Fort Sumner, N.M.

In 1921, Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were convicted in Dedham, Mass., in the killing of a shoe company paymaster and his guard. (Sacco and Vanzetti were executed six years later.)

In 1958, the army of Iraq overthrew the monarchy.

In 1966, eight student nurses were murdered by Richard Speck in a Chicago dormitory.

In 1976, Jimmy Carter won the Democratic presidential nomination by an overwhelming margin at the party's convention in New York.

NAACP head calls for march on Washington

DETROIT (AP) — Comparing the Supreme Court to the Ku Klux Klan for recent decisions on civil rights and affirmative action, NAACP head Benjamin L. Hooks called for a march on the nation's capital next month to protest the rulings.

"We're not going to let four men and a woman in black robes turn us around any more than we'll let white robes turn us around," Hooks said, referring to the garb traditionally worn by Klan members.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Jesse Jackson challenged President Bush to offer blacks and other minorities more than "kinder and gentler" words.

"(Former President) Reagan laid the tracks and built the engine to take the rights of workers and women and African-Americans and Hispanics and the poor. Bush is putting grease on those tracks, not brakes," Jackson told 3,500 cheering people at the closing session of the group's 80th annual convention.

"We all appreciate President Bush's appeal, a shift from hostility to be kinder and gentler. We appreciate that he is prepared to meet and greet us and even sup with us and even shake our hands.

"But after six months, it is time to look beyond the smile and look at the substance, because thousands of poor people, working people, women, African-Americans and Hispanics need more than kindness and gentleness," said Jackson, who received the group's coveted Spingarn Medal for achievement by an American black.

The harsh criticism of the Supreme Court contrasted with the warm words Hooks had for Bush earlier in the week for his appointments and for inviting black leaders to the White House.

In the term just ended, the high court struck down contract guarantees for minority firms, made it tougher to prove bias in the workplace while making it easier for white males to contest affirmative action, and allowed states to impose restrictions on abortions.

The rulings "have impacted on the civil rights laws already on the books. They have pinched them back so far that they have made them nearly null and void," said Hooks, the group's executive director.

The nation's oldest and largest civil rights organization, addressed this week by Vice President Dan Quayle and Bush cabinet members Jack Kemp and Louis Sullivan, decided to protest the administration's apparent inaction following the court rulings by calling for the Aug. 26 march, Hooks said.

The remarks by Hooks and former Democratic presidential candidate Jackson continued the attacking tone set earlier in the day by Democratic National Chairman Ronald Brown.

"We hear new words from the Republican Party," said Brown, a former Jackson campaigner and the first black to head the national party. "In politics, as in poker, there's a phrase for it.

"I believe it's time that we tell George Bush, Dan Quayle, Jack Kemp, (national GOP Chairman) Lee Atwater and the rest of those Republicans it's time to put up or shut up."

Several other speakers also attacked the Supreme Court, including former U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Chairwoman Eleanor Holmes Norton.

"The Reagan administration is over at long last, but through the court, the music lingers on," she said.

Norton said civil rights activists should turn to Congress and the Bush administration for redress now that conservative Republicans she characterized as opposed to civil rights control the judiciary.

After his speech to the convention Wednesday, Quayle told reporters the president did not feel the court decisions needed to be overturned to advance civil rights.

Man declared dead after second execution attempt

ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — A mildly retarded killer died in Alabama's electric chair early today in the second execution attempt after the first try failed because of a misconnected cable.

Dunkins

Horace Franklin Dunkins Jr., 28, was declared dead at 12:27 a.m., 19 minutes after the executioner first flipped the voltage switch. The U.S. Supreme Court turned down two last-minute appeals to stop the execution.

State Prison Commissioner Morris Thigpen said the jacks connecting electricity to the chair were reversed, and so did not deliver enough voltage to kill Dunkins on the first try.

"I regret very, very much what happened," Thigpen said. "It was human error. I just hope he was not conscious and did not suffer."

Dunkins' attorney, Steve Ellis, described Dunkins' death as a "grisly scene."

When the guard raised the two vinyl shades covering the window in the witness room, Dunkins was already strapped in the electric chair, his face covered by a black veil attached to the hood of the electrodes on his head.

Thigpen said the first throw of the switch at 12:08 a.m. brought no visible response from the condemned man.

A guard in the witness room opened the door to the death chamber, and told another guard directing the execution, "I believe you've got the jacks on wrong." Neither guard was identified.

Two doctors who examined Dunkins determined he was unconscious, but had a strong heartbeat, Thigpen told a news conference later.

"They're torturing him," Ellis said softly to a fellow witness during the medical exam.

At 12:17 a.m., the switch was thrown a second time. Ten minutes later, Dunkins was pronounced dead.

Alabama law allows application of electricity to the condemned until the prisoner is dead.

Dunkins, who according to court documents has an IQ of 69, was convicted in 1981 of murdering Lynn McCurry, a 26-year-old mother of four who was found stabbed 66 times and bound to a tree behind her home. A second defendant, Frank M. Harris, pleaded guilty and is serving a life sentence.

Dunkins became the 115th person executed in the United States and the fifth in Alabama since the U.S. Supreme Court allowed states to reinstate capital punishment in 1976.

Mother guilty of pushing drugs to her newborns

SANFORD, Fla. (AP) — A judge has convicted a cocaine-addicted mother of delivering drugs to her two children through their umbilical cords at birth.

Rejecting arguments that the law under which she was tried was meant only for criminals engaged in illegal drug deals, Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. said he viewed the two children born to Jennifer Clarise Johnson as victims.

"These children had no ability to control what was being introduced into their bodies," Eaton said in handing down the ruling Thursday after a non-jury trial. "The defendant had that ability."

The unmarried 23-year-old woman is believed to be the first mother in Florida — and one of only a few in the country — convicted of pushing drugs to their children under a criminal drug-dealing statute.

Ms. Johnson faces a 30-year sentence, but prosecutor Jeff Deen said he would recommend that she complete a drug program she is undergoing and then serve "a lengthy probation period."

Ms. Johnson was acquitted of one count of child abuse. Other mothers giving birth to so-called cocaine babies have been successfully prosecuted under that law, which carries a maximum of five years in prison.

The defendant, who sat impassively during the trial, refused comment. Her attorney, Jim Sweeting, said he would appeal.

Sweeting, representatives of the American Civil Liberties Union and a doctor who testified on the defendant's behalf had argued that a guilty verdict encourage pregnant addicts to avoid prenatal care and give birth to their babies outside hospitals because they would fear imprisonment.

"I think what we found today is that having a baby is a crime for pregnant addicts," Sweeting said.

Gunmen shoot nine in crowded street

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Three gunmen shot nine people on a crowded street before leading police on a 12-mile chase that ended when their vehicle smashed into patrol cars at a roadblock, police said today.

Police had no motive for the Wednesday night shootings, which witnesses said appeared to be indiscriminate.

"All of a sudden I saw these dudes coming down the middle of the street, shooting up in the air," said one witness, Ernie Dumas. "They were saying things like 'You think you're bad.'"

Stamford police Lt. Joseph Falzetti said today that nine people were wounded.

"None of the injuries are life threatening although some are more serious than others," Stamford Deputy Police Chief John Perrotta said.

After firing at the people, the gunmen led police on a circuitous, 60-mph car chase that ended in New Canaan when their car crashed into two police cruisers and a stone wall, said New Canaan Police Capt. Christopher Lynch.

Charges were pending against the men, Perrotta said. Two were identified as James McGraw, 18, and Damian Jackson, 21, both of New York City. The third was not identified.

'Viable suspect' claimed

SEATTLE (AP) — After searching seven years for one of the nation's worst serial killers, police say a former law student is a "viable suspect" in the Green River slayings of 49 women, and perhaps other killings in the Northwest.

William Jay Stevens II, 38, who is serving a jail term for burglary, was named in an affidavit made public Thursday.

The affidavit was filed to obtain a warrant to search two of Stevens' residences in Spokane, 290 miles east of Seattle.

"Records obtained thus far have failed to provide him with an alibi for any of the 49 suspected Green River homicides, or any of those in the cities of Portland or Spokane," the affidavit said.

Astronauts celebrate

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts kick off a weeklong celebration Saturday to commemorate the 20th anniversary of man's landing on the moon, beginning at the site where their lunar rocket was designed.

They will take part in ceremonies and parties at three NASA space centers and with President Bush in the nation's capital.

Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin left the first footprints on the lunar surface on July 20, 1969, while Mike Collins circled overhead in the command ship.

The three will start their anniversary trip Saturday at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where the giant Saturn 5 rocket that propelled them to the moon was designed and tested.

There they will meet with rocket pioneers and attend a reception and an open house concert where the landing on the moon's Sea of Tranquillity will be re-created by actors on a stage.

B-2 bomber ready to fly

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — The B-2 stealth bomber is ready to fly after successfully completing ground tests, and takeoff could come as early as Saturday, the Air Force says.

The bat-winged aircraft sped down a desert runway Thursday, hitting a top speed of 132 mph and lifting its nose wheel off the tarmac, said Brig. Gen. Richard Scofield, director of the B-2 program.

"We've completed all the taxi tests prior to going to first flight," Scofield said. "The airplane is in good shape."

The bomber, in development for more than a decade, has been subjected to extensive computer-simulated flights but has never actually lifted off a runway.

Congress starts hearings on flag-burning amendment

By JUDY WIESSLER
Hearst Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress forcefully unfurled their flag arguments Thursday at the first congressional hearing about how, or whether, to combat the Supreme Court's ruling that permits burning the American flag in protest.

Without a constitutional amendment like the one President Bush has proposed to ban flag desecration, "people will be burning flags throughout the country on every holiday season," said Rep. G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery, D-Miss. He predicted veterans will take the flag-protection issue into their own hands and "people are going to get hurt."

Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., suggested it would become necessary to "have a dress code when you go across state lines" if Bush's amendment allowed states to pass separate flag desecration laws, because some might prohibit wearing the symbol as an item of apparel.

The chairman of the subcommittee that held the hearings warned against an unprecedented encroachment on a constitutional right.

"President Bush's proposal would implicitly amend and limit (the) free speech provision of the Bill of Rights. It has never been amended before," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who heads the constitutional law subcommittee.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, an opponent of any action to change the Supreme Court decision, said the flag dispute is being used for "shameful and crass demagoguery, all with a cold eye toward the next election."

The Supreme Court, in one of its most controversial rulings of its last term, decided by a 5-4 vote that a man who burned an American flag in protest during the Republican National Convention in Dallas in 1984 was within his constitutional rights of freedom of expression.

Public passions aroused by the court action have incited members of Congress to search for politically and constitutionally acceptable ways to protect the flag.

The main options being debated are:

■ Pass Bush's constitutional amendment, which says: "The Congress and the states shall have power to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States."

■ Pass a bill by Sen. Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Md., that calls for a fine or imprisonment for anyone who "mutilates, defaces, burns, maintains on the floor or ground or tramples upon any flag of the United States."

■ Do nothing, leaving the court decision intact — the route favored by Metzenbaum and Edwards.

Michel contended there is "no quick legislative fix" on the flag issue. "Either we amend the Constitution — as grave and complicated an undertaking as that is — or else we let the decision stand. There is no middle ground."

But Biden, contending his legislation could avoid the drawn out process of seeking a constitutional amendment, said quick passage of his bill could "end this season of demagoguery."

Airport plans blitz to win routes, carriers

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN
Staff Writer

Midland International Airport is taking a different route.

Forget any immediate arrival of a new carrier — airport officials have.

Instead, officials here plan to blitz the home offices of those carriers now using the airport as well as potential ones that might consider developing new markets in Texas.

Beginning in August, the airport — along with a joint-city task force — plans to visit chief executive officers of several airlines, including Southwest and American, to keep the Permian Basin high on the list of potential expansion plans.

According to Marcy Blauvelt, supervisor of administrative services, a backlog of jet orders has made expansion impossible for a number of airlines for the time being.

"Southwest wants to expand but they can't," she said.

Given that fact, airport officials plan to unleash an extensive marketing campaign in an attempt to convince carriers that Midland/Odessa is very much a viable customer base.

"We've indicated all along that that's the best approach," agreed Russell Autry, chief executive officer and director of economic development for the Odessa Chamber of Commerce.

The problem Midland International faces is demonstrating that it does, indeed, have the customers to support different routes.

Some airlines also want guarantees, holding airports financially accountable for routes that prove unprofitable, according to Autry.

While Midland International hasn't given up the battle to attract a new carrier, officials admit that prospects, at least in the immediate future, are dim.

And that's caused a lot of inconvenience for travelers, particularly those that do business in the Greater Denver area.

Prior to its pullout, Continental Airlines carried 30,000 passengers annually. Today, those traveling to Denver must travel through Dallas or Phoenix.

Next month, Ms. Blauvelt said, the airport will begin an extensive mailing campaign showcasing area development in the 17-county region that makes up the Permian Basin.

"We need to begin contacting these people on a regular basis to let them know this area isn't dead, but growing," said Ms. Blauvelt, adding that task-force members will also be writing personal letters to the CEOs of those airlines that best serve Midland International's interest.

That list includes existing carriers and other airlines that might want to develop a stronger market in Texas, such as United, Northwest and Trans World Airlines.

In addition to CEOs, the task force also will focus its campaign on route planners who influence where airlines travel.

"Once we get these (media) packages together, we're going to make a serious effort to knock on their doors," said Ms. Blauvelt.

However, she said Midland will have a tough time bringing back airlines that already have left, given the well-known state of the oil and gas industry.

Still, she added: "I wouldn't be surprised to see Continental back here once they get their house in order."

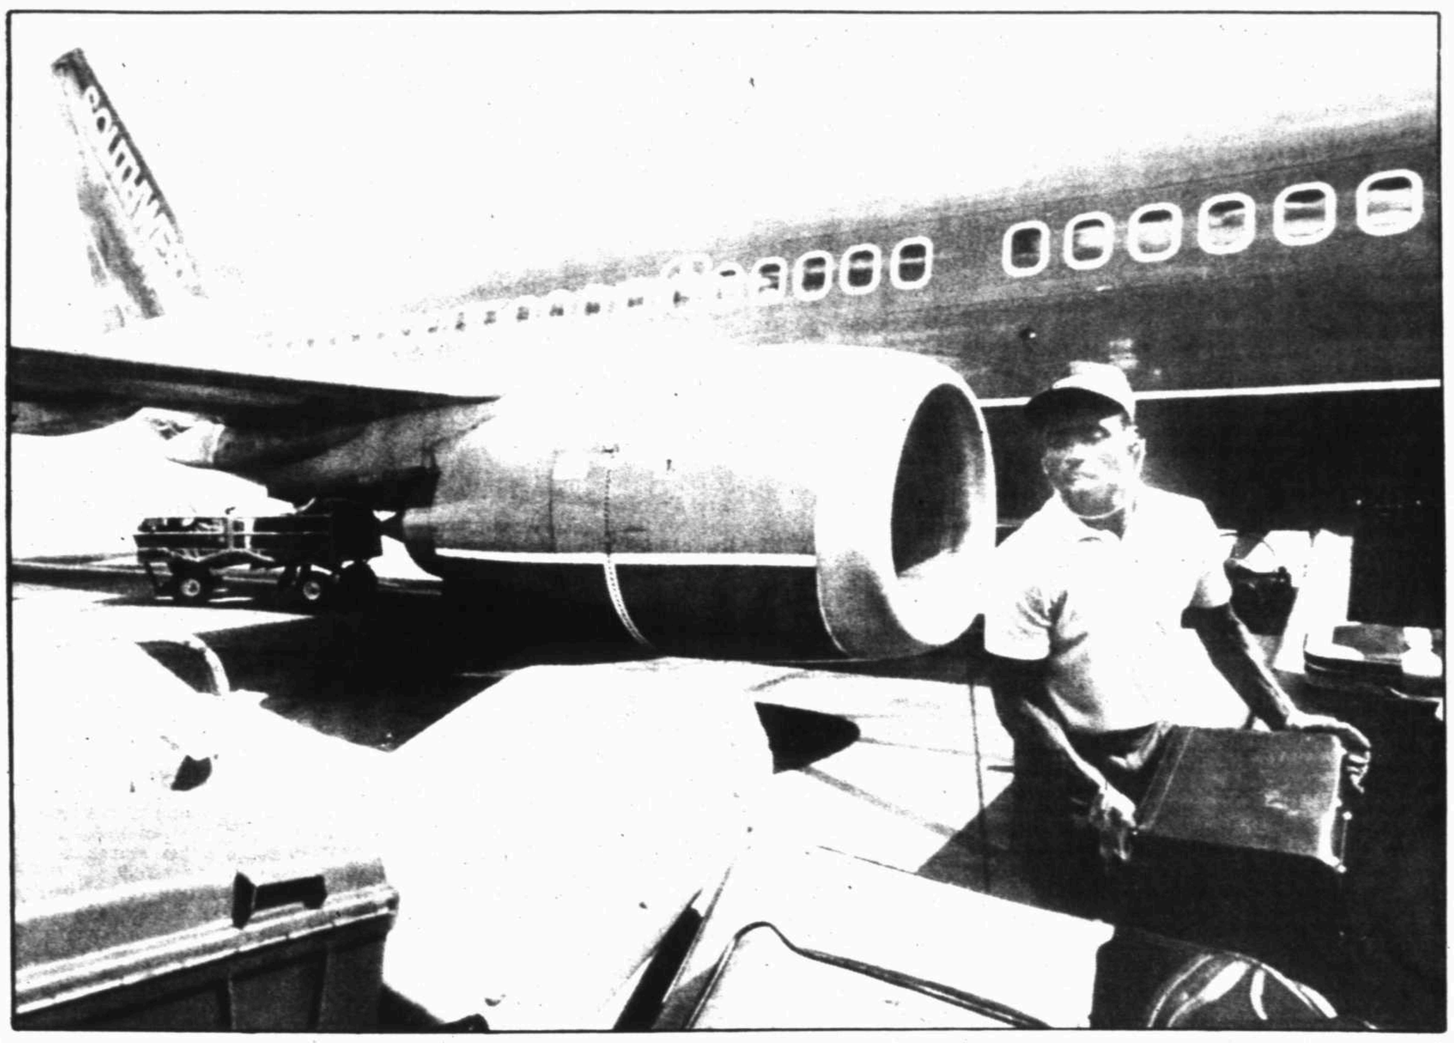

In the meantime, airport officials said they will attempt to convince the city to fund a full-time marketing person.

Midland City Manager Fred Poe said he favors such a position, but only if the city is successful in securing state designation for a proposed enterprise zone.

"I assume if we fund this, the person would work in other areas related to the zone outside the airport," said Poe.

Ms. Blauvelt said ideas like the enterprise zone, the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification and other projects will be used in demonstrating to carriers that the Permian Basin is busy.

"I'm not sure if we can get an (new) airline here, but we think we have enough going on to sell them," said Ms. Blauvelt.

Brian Adamcik Reporter-Telegram

Wille Long, a ramp service agent for Southwest Airlines, unloads baggage from a jet at Midland International Airport. Beginning in August, airport officials plan a marketing blitz that will include visits to the headquarters of Southwest and other airlines as part of a campaign aimed at expanding existing service.

Commissioners ask Painter to cut down on travel costs

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

There's no question that Gary Painter would rather be a lawman than a travel agent.

But there was Midland County's sheriff this week having to defend $11,000 worth of June travel expenses to a money-conscious commissioner's court.

"We've asked him to cut down on his travel expenses however possible," said a concerned Precinct 3 Commissioner Louisa Valencia, pointing out that the sheriff's department travel budget already exceeds what was allocated in 1989 by an estimated $3,900.

Painter is blaming most of the travel overrun on the increased number of felony warrants being issued by Midland's district courts.

During the first five months of 1989, Painter said the courts have issued 122 felony arrest warrants. That compares to a total of 55 warrants issued during the first five months of 1988.

When a warrant is issued by the courts and the suspect has fled to another county or state, deputies must travel to that state or county to apprehend the prisoner, Painter said.

Explained Precinct 2 Commissioner Guy McCrary: "When Midland County issues a warrant it is posted on the Communications Network. If another agency arrests that fugitive, then they will hold him until that warrant can be exercised.

"So, it's not like they (sheriff's deputies) are traveling around out there searching for that person," McCrary said.

Another reason for the overrun is the rising cost of airfare, according to the sheriff.

Frequently, airlines won't allow deputies to travel with a firearm and prisoners in handcuffs, he said.

Therefore, sheriff's deputies must return home on another "more expensive" airline, he said.

So far, the sheriff's department has spent $41,979 on travel during the first seven months of the calendar year. He was given a total of $38,000 for travel expenses for all of 1989.

The department chalked up $11,000 alone in travel expenses during June, according to county records.

Business lobbyists hold lawmakers' feet to the fire on workers' compensation

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Assistant City Editor

ODESSA — Texas business lobbyists aren't toning down their rhetoric as workers' compensation reform nears the final negotiating phase.

In town Thursday for a state board meeting of the Texas Association of Business, George Finger of El Paso, president of the group, said the time has come "to put the posturing behind us and get down to business."

Meanwhile in Austin, lawmakers made a date for the weekend to hammer out the final differences between House and Senate versions of comp reform bills.

TAB and other business interests continue to back the House-approved bill which still resembles House Bill 1 from the regular session, incorporating virtually all of the provisions sought by the state's businessmen. The keys to containing comp costs while fostering safer work environments and providing benefits for injured workers, according to the TAB, include:

- Increasing the maximum allowable benefit from $230 per week to more than $415 a week;
- Providing an objective medical impairment system for determining benefit levels;
- Addressing employers who fail to make efforts to create a safe work place; and
- Creating a system for administering claims that compensates injured workers immediately and adequately.

Candidates for the Legislature campaign on promises of jobs and economic development for the state, "It's time for them to vote what they say," Finger said.

Texas' current adjudication system and lack of a systematic method for setting benefits, "leaves 47 other states that do not use the jury system to determine money awards," which is costing Texas jobs and business.

"In Texas and the two other states where jury trials are used, lawyers are involved in 47 percent of claim cases," Finger noted. In the other 47, the average is 7 percent, he said.

The result, TAB contends, is higher costs without higher benefits being passed through to injured workers.

Finger said companies with multi-state operations estimate that the average cost per claim is 40 percent higher in Texas than in Michigan and even higher when compared to New York — both former "Rust Belt" states which lost industrial jobs to Texas in the 1970s and early '80s — that now have a competitive advantage.

The El Pasoan recounted the case of a wood-processing plant in far West Texas that closed down and moved a very short distance to New Mexico, realizing $40,000 savings on workers' compensation costs in the process.

The reform bill endorsed by business does not legislatively mandate lower rates — a key provision of Senate versions — but relies on economic research, which indicates the systematic changes of the House bill would reduce premiums by 10 to 15 percent once they were fully implemented.

But after premium increases of 148 percent over the last four years, "we can live with a stabilization of rates," Finger said.

House, Senate expected to vote on workers' comp over weekend

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative leaders said the House and Senate will vote Saturday or Sunday on a workers' compensation bill and send it to Gov. Bill Clements.

"I hate to mess up anyone's weekend," said House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth. But he told House members Thursday a lost weekend was worth the price if legislators could finish workers' comp.

Lawmakers have been battling over the method of compensating workers injured in on-the-job accidents since January and currently are in special session after failing to reach an agreement during the 140-day regular session.

But Lewis and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said an agreement has been reached, and legislators were waiting on the approximately 300-page bill to be finalized to reflect that compromise.

"We're going to get a workers' comp bill out. The big differences in the House and Senate versions — we have been able to reach a compromise on those issues," Lewis said.

The major obstacles between the House and Senate were over how to resolve disputed workers' comp claims, how to calculate benefits and whether to require employers to purchase workers' comp insurance.

The House, backed by business, supported reducing litigation of comp claims and computing injury awards based on a specific benefits schedule. It had rejected proposals to mandate comp insurance coverage.

The Senate, supported by labor and trial lawyers, favored retaining the right to a jury trial, basing comp awards on lost wages, and requiring employers buy comp insurance.

Under the proposed agreement, disputed comp claims could be appealed to state district court, but out-of-court settlements would have to be approved by the administrative workers' compensation commission.

In addition, a joint House-Senate panel would oversee the formation of a benefits schedule, and employers would not be required to purchase comp insurance.

Under the agreement, the maximum weekly benefit check for an injured worker would increase from $238 to $416.

'Well-prepared' students continue to do well on TASP tests

By JAMES CULLEN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Students continued to show a high passing rate on a test required of new Texas college freshmen and prospective teachers, although the test director cautioned Thursday the scores may reflect the cream of the crop.

In the second round of Texas Academic Skills Program tests administered June 10, nearly 78 percent of 8,185 Texas high school and college students who took the test passed all the sections they attempted. Eighty-one percent passed the first test in March.

"We're still seeing high quality, well-prepared students," said Joan Matthews, director of the testing program, as she reported the results to the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

Students entering state universities this fall must pass the test of basic math, reading and writing skills before they can take upper-division courses. The test also is used to determine eligibility for teacher education courses.

The June passing rate was 83.6 percent for white students, 65.8 percent for Hispanic and 55.4 percent for black students.

But minority high school students had better success on the test, as 67.9 percent of black students and 69.1 percent of Hispanic students passed, along with 83.2 percent of whites. High school students had an overall 80.1 percent passing rate.

Colleges will be required to provide remedial courses for students who fail any of the three parts of the test, and the Coordinating Board today is expected to approve distribution of $5.9 million to help pay for those courses during the 1990 school year.

The board tentatively approved a formula that would give Midland College and Odessa College $68,389 each for the remedial work and $43,389 for Howard College at Big Spring.

On another item, Higher Education Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth raised the possibility that some state universities might be forced to resort to a lottery of qualified candidates if higher admissions standards do not control growth.

The Coordinating Board staff has proposed putting each public university into one of four categories, ranging from schools that need no enrollment limits to those that need them immediately.

The University of Texas at Austin, the University of North Texas in Denton, Sam Houston State University in Huntsville and Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos were listed as having the most urgent need for enrollment caps.

UT President William Cunningham acknowledged that many people believe the Austin campus is too large, with 50,107 enrolled in the fall of 1988, but he attributed it to forces such as the state's growth, low tuition and fees, the university's reputation, its commitment to recruit minorities and economic conditions that encouraged students to remain in college or return to college.

Cunningham also noted that support for higher education in Texas is based upon student enrollment.

"Accordingly, reducing enrollment is tantamount to reducing appropriations," he said. "If the state requires universities to restrict their enrollments, it may wish to reconsider the basis by which these institutions are funded."

Reforms endangered by board members, Hobby says

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby says he is concerned about the fate of the sweeping 1984 education reforms in the hands of the elected State Board of Education.

"When the voters turned down the continuation of the appointed board, that was a step backward," he said after a Thursday meeting of the Legislative Education Board, which oversees the Board of Education.

"What this board has done has been to attempt with some degree of success to turn the clock back on progress toward quality in education in Texas," Hobby said.

Although he said there are "some very responsible" board members, Hobby strongly disagreed with the support given vocational education by Chairman Monte Hasie of Lubbock.

The board that was appointed to implement the 1984 reforms has given way to the elected board headed by Hasie.

Hobby said members of the board who "are against quality education" should resign, and he included Hasie in that group.

"I don't think he's done a good job, and as I indicated, I don't think he's complying with his oath of office," Hobby said.

Hasie said he has no plans to resign.

"To say that I'm against quality education — I'm real sorry he said that," Hasie said.

During the meeting, Hobby challenged Hasie concerning the board's vote to reinstate vocational education funding in the 7th and 8th grades through the Coordinated Vocational Academic Education program.

Legislative board members said opposition has been demonstrated through such actions as a letter from legislative leaders to the board and the defeat of a bill on the subject during the regular session.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, chairman of the legislative board, and others expressed concern the program had been used as a "dumping ground" for students who are not strong academically.

Lewis recommended to Hasie that the Board of Education reconsider its vote to institute the program this school year. The Texas Education Agency staff had recommended stringent rules for CVAE be developed over the next year.

"You are under legislative oversight," Lewis said. He said he supports vocational education, but studies have indicated the CVAE program has not been successful.

The appointed board generally struck vocational education funding for junior high school programs, except in special education, said Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby.

Schools can use other state money and local funding to offer programs similar to CVAE, if they are meant as alternatives to social promotion.

Hasie said he expects the item to be put on the board agenda at its September meeting.

Homer D. Eggleston Sr.

Services for Homer D. Eggleston Sr., of Midland, have been set for 11 a.m. Saturday at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel with Bill Majors, past Grand Chaplin of the Grand Lodge of Texas, officiating. Masonic graveside rites will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

He died Wednesday at a local hospital.

He was born Feb. 24, 1904, in Denton County, where he was reared. In 1921 he moved with his family to Coahoma where they were involved in cotton farming.

He married Susie Brown on Sept. 27, 1925, in Coahoma. They moved to Mitchell County where they lived for a year and in 1927 they moved to Howard County.

In 1928 they moved to the J.B. Stokes Ranch, southeast of Midland, where he started ranching. He moved to the George Glass Ranch in 1932 where he was the ranch foreman for 26 years. He retired from ranching in 1953 and they moved to Midland at that time.

He was a member of Masonic Lodge #623.

Survivors include his wife; one son, Homer L. Eggleston of Midland; one brother, Luther Eggleston of Midland; and several nieces and nephews.

The family requests memorials be directed to the American Diabetes Association, 3404 W. Illinois, Midland, Texas, 79703.

Jesse Stephens

LAMESA — Jesse Stephens, 62, of Lamesa, died Wednesday at a Lubbock hospital. Services will be held 11 a.m. Saturday at First United Methodist Church. Officiating will be the Rev. Carl White, the Rev. Hugh Daniels and the Rev. Tom Stirling. Burial will be held at Lamesa Memorial Park.

Stephens was born Dec. 25, 1926, in Patricia. He married Wanda Seely on Jan. 31, 1948, in Lamesa.

He was a farmer and a member of the Klondike School Board for 12 years. He was a member of Lamesa Cottongrowers Association.

Stephens served as past chairman of Dawson County Democratic Party and was a charter member of the Northridge Retirement Center Board. He also was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Wanda; four sons, Mike Stephens of Odessa, Val Stephens of Lamesa, Cliff Stephens of Freonia and Mark Stephens of Lubbock; two sisters, Bess Gilden of Lamesa and Ivetta Adams of Lamesa; one brother, Clarence Stephens of Denton; and six grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by one son, Alton Stephens.

Mertie O. Floyd

Graveside services for Mertie O. Floyd of Midland were to be at 9:30 a.m. today at Resthaven Memorial Park with Rev. Roy Roach officiating. Ellis Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

She died Wednesday at her home.

Ms. Floyd was born Jan. 22, 1909, in Snyder. As a baby, she and her family moved to Balinger, where she was reared and graduated from high school.

She worked as a credit manager of retail merchants in Midland for several years. She also worked as a bookkeeper in Midland.

She married W. Otto Floyd on Aug. 22, 1981, in Midland. She was a member of Travis Baptist Church and a former member of Eastern Star.

Survivors include her husband; one son, Keith L. Nutt of Colorado Springs; two stepsons, Max Floyd of Midland and Henry Floyd of Roswell, N.M.; one stepdaughter, Lurline Evans of Greenwood; three sisters, Eula Mosley and Evelyn Evans, both of Balinger, and Hazel Crawford of Big Spring; five grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be directed to a favorite charity.

Thelma M. Greene

LAMESA — Thelma M. Greene, 89, died Thursday in Lubbock.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the North 14th Street Church of Christ in Lamesa with grandsons Joe Coffman, Tim Minnix and Bob Greene officiating. Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park under the direction of Branon Funeral Home.

She was born June 20, 1900, in Taylor County. She married Joe W. Greene Jan. 24, 1918; he preceded her in death in 1975. The couple moved to Dawson County in 1921, she was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include: one son, A.M. "Van" Greene of Lubbock; two daughters, Mrs. Lloyd (Marjorie) Coffman of Lamesa and Mrs. Bill (Joy) Minnix of Lubbock; two brothers, E.H. McCright of Midland and Jack McCright of Seminole; nine grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

Grandsons will serve as pallbearers.

Memorials should be directed to the Childrens' Home of Lubbock.

Edna Clark

Graveside services for Edna Clark of Midland were to be at 3 p.m. today at Fairview Cemetery with Rev. J.B. Stewart officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

She died Wednesday at her home.

She was born Nov. 23, 1899, in Norman, Okla., and was reared in Sulpher, Okla. She married Mike Clark in January of 1916 and they moved to Hobbs, N.M., where he ran a water-well drilling service.

They later moved to Seminole where they owned and operated the Texas Motel for 20 years. They lived in various Texas cities, including Alpine and San Angelo, before she moved to Midland in 1964 following her husband's death in 1962. She was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include one niece, Georgia Brooks of New Braunfels; two great-nephews, Michael Brooks and Mark Brooks, both of New Braunfels, and one sister.

The family requests memorials be directed to the First United Methodist Church.

She died Wednesday at her home.

Pallbearers will be William Bachman, Hy Davidson, Dicker Dawson, George Donnelly, Paul Hopson and Wally Saultz.

Spacio Shaw

Spacio Shaw, 24, died Thursday night in Midland.

Funeral services are pending at Thomas Funeral Home.

Richardson gun dealer offering to sell guns used by Whitman

GARLAND (AP) — A gun dealer is offering to sell the seven guns that Charles Whitman carried to the top of the University of Texas Tower for a bloody rampage that left 16 dead, according to news reports Thursday.

The three rifles, one shotgun and three pistols are said to be the ones used in the 1966 attack in which 31 people were wounded.

The Austin American-Statesman and the Houston Chronicle reported that Wayne Buxton of Richardson has advertised the guns for sale in the past three issues of a gun collectors' publication.

The American-Statesman said Buxton instructed editors of "Shotgun News" not to divulge his name or phone number to callers. But, the newspaper said, it linked the post office box number given in the classified ad to Buxton, who owns a gun and pawn shop in suburban Garland.

Buxton did not return telephone calls Thursday from The Associated Press.

The gun dealer told the newspapers he doesn't want to discuss what the ads call The Whitman Collection because "there's too much pain in the state of Texas" associated with the slayings.

"I have no interest whatsoever in resurrecting pain or any sad feelings," he said. "It's a source of pain to certain people, and I don't want to get into that."

Buxton, describing the pain as "a function of time," said the pistol used to kill President Lincoln is now a tourist attraction in a museum in Washington, D.C.

The Chronicle said Buxton, who is seeking $7,500 for the collection, would not say how he obtained the weapons, but claims they are authentic. He said he is not a Whitman relative.

KDFW-TV in Dallas said Buxton told the station he does not own the weapons, but is acting as the agent for the owner, whom he would not identify.

Austin Police Capt. Robert Gross said the guns used in the attack were turned over to an attorney for Whitman's estate and were later sold at auction.

The ad offers the guns, a radio, binoculars, cameras and a knife for money or in trade for historical Winchester rifles or Colt pistols, the Chronicle said. The ad also offers a copy of a 1966 Life magazine reporting the slaughter.

Buxton, 52, told the Chronicle he is getting phone calls from news organizations across the nation, but is declining interviews because he doesn't want to contribute to the national fervor over gun control.

An Associated Press photo taken in 1966 shows the weapons police say were used by Charles Whitman in a shooting spree at the University of Texas at Austin that same year, which left 16 dead. Gun dealer Wayne Buxton has advertised the sale of what he says are those weapons.

Clements puts WTSU item on special session agenda

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements expanded the special legislative session today for consideration of merging West Texas State University with the Texas A&M University System.

The Senate has already approved merging the school in Canyon with the A&M system, and the House was scheduled to take up the measure today.

Under the bill, the WTSU-A&M merger would require approval by boards of both institutions and the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

The special session, initially called for lawmakers to try and complete work on a proposed overhaul of the state workers' compensation system, ends Wednesday.

In addition to the merger proposal, Clements added to the agenda of the session measures that would:

■ Require a person appointed to fill an unexpired term on a junior college district board to run for election at the next election date to be eligible to remain on the board.

■ Make consistent with federal regulations state child support enforcement and collection of information for enforcement of child support by the Texas Department of Health.

■ Appropriate funds to the University of North Texas for the repair or replacement of facilities damaged by fire.

TRAVEL

McCrary said the excess $3,979 will be taken from the county general fund and be offset by another budgetary line item that is not experiencing overruns.

In the meantime, commissioners want the sheriff to "review his travel procedures and determine if there are any controls that can be installed" to minimize spending, McCrary said.

Sims-backed bill to aid rural hospitals passed

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate passed a bill Thursday that would allow certain hospital and emergency services districts to impose a sales tax, after approval by the voters.

The measure was sent to the governor, 25-2, at the urging of Sen. Bill Sims, who said the tax would be a first and would help rural health facilities.

Sims, D-San Angelo, said in the past 1½ years three hospitals in his largely rural district had closed and two are "fixing to close."

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, objected that if the state shares its ability to impose the sales tax with such local districts, "the only real source of revenue that's going to be left to us is going to be an income tax."

The sales tax, Truan said, "is a very regressive tax that hits hardest at elderly and consumers."

The bill would permit hospital and emergency services districts that are authorized to impose property taxes to also impose a sales tax. The tax rate for a district could be 0.5, 1, 1.5 or 2 percent. But a district could not adopt a tax rate or increase a tax rate if the resulting combined local tax rate would be more than 2 percent anywhere in the district.

"If we're not allowed to do this, we'll see more hospital closings," Sims said.

Teen-age Hispanics explore feelings toward heritage

Hearst News Service

SAN ANTONIO — Being a teenager, it's said, has never been easy. But for Hispanic girls growing up in America, the teen years can be especially tough.

In a seminar here this week, one teen with a mixed heritage said the ethnic biases she encounters have been cruelest at home.

"My dad used to hit me every chance he could because I looked like my mother," the girl said as she wiped tears from her eyes.

"And sometimes," she continued, speaking of her relationship with her mother, "she gets mad at me because I come home with Mexican friends, and because I chose to take Spanish even though I could have taken French, Japanese, Latin or German.

"But I wanted to take Spanish because I wanted to be able to communicate and I'm proud of that part of myself."

What does it mean to be Hispanic in the southwestern United States? That question is being pondered in the classrooms and corridors of Our Lady of the Lake University this week as a group of eighth-grade girls discuss some of their experiences growing up Hispanic.

One participant, Sophie Ortiz, said she worries about textbooks heavy with information about Sam Houston and thin on Hispanic heroes.

Another, Betty Jo Suttles, said she gets angry when her friends refuse to speak Spanish, denying their Mexican heritage.

"What I hate most is when a (Hispanic) person goes around acting like they're white, and won't speak Spanish, or tell you, 'Don't speak Spanish,'" Betty Jo said. "What does that mean?"

TEST

Stephen F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches, Texas Tech University in Lubbock and the University of Texas at Arlington were recommended for limits if officials at the schools do not set up their own limits.

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin is among 12 institutions that the staff would exempt from enrollment limits.

Larry Temple, chairman of the committee on universities, said he is not recommending the board take immediate action on enrollment limits, but he said it should continue to review the situation for "action in the future."

U.S. magistrate raises bail of ex-fugitive to $200,000

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

U.S. Magistrate Robert Sykes of Midland raised the bail of a former federal fugitive from a $20,000 surety bond to a $200,000 cash bond following a hearing which stemmed from a four-count indictment for fraud.

California lawyer Lowell A. Hahn is in the federal wing of the Midland City Jail awaiting trial on the fraud charges which, should he be convicted, could result in a 20-year-old prison term and $1 million in fines.

In a hearing Thursday before the magistrate, Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Beery, who sought a $250,000 cash bond to thwart Hahn's release, argued that Hahn was a flight risk and cited his five years as a fugitive after he failed to appear in federal court in California in 1983 on income-tax-related charges.

Hahn, a suspected "soldier" for tax protesters, was arrested as a fugitive last year in Midland by Internal Revenue Service agents, and was returned to California, where he was acquitted on the tax charges. However, he was convicted for bail-jumping and was sentenced to one year in prison.

In mid-June, Hahn was indicted for fraud by a federal grand jury in Midland for allegedly using the alias Jay L. Woods, a false Social Security number and making other false statements when he applied for a job with the U.S. Postal Service.

He worked for the U.S. Postal Service in 1985 as a letter-sorting machine operator.

Prosecutor Beery noted the seriousness of the false statements and violations of trust Hahn allegedly made in applying for the governmental job.

In his arguments, Hahn's defense attorney, Woody Leverett of Midland, noted that U.S. Magistrate Robert M. Stone of Los Angeles had set Hahn's 10 percent surety bond at $20,000 in mid-June when Sykes ordered Hahn transferred to Midland for trial. For $2,000 — 10 percent of the $20,000 — in good faith money, Hahn could have been released.

Sykes had requested no bond for Hahn, but the California magistrate did not honor his request.

"If he hasn't made it yet, then why up the bond (to $200,000)?" Leverett said.

However, Leverett noted that "the court was not impressed with my reasoning."

"The government," Leverett said, "is saying he (Hahn) is a flight risk, a bad dude, and menace to the Western World."

REFORMS—

"I think the CVAE program definitely has value. I feel like what their concern is that they be quality programs, and I agree with that," Hasie said.

"I'm hopeful that we can have a program at the junior high level that will be for kids that are in danger of dropping out, because of the fact that we have 87,000 kids dropping out, and over half of them are at the junior high level," he said.

Agency says sediment not factor in oil spill

HOUSTON (AP) — The Coast Guard officer investigating an oil spill caused last month when a ship and barge collided in Galveston Bay says he does not believe the buildup of sediment in the channel was a major factor in the accident despite evidence to that effect from the Army Corps of Engineers.

The spill June 23 dumped 250,000 gallons of oil in the bay.

A hearing about the accident was reopened briefly Thursday by Lt. Cmdr. R.H. Arredondo to gather the survey results of Corps depth soundings.

SBC minister accuses Criswell of plagiarism

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas minister said he found passages in a 1969 book by the Rev. W.A. Criswell, pastor of one of the nation's largest churches, that he believes were plagiarized from a 1907 work.

The Rev. Gordon James, an ordained Southern Baptist minister who works full-time as a writer, said Criswell copied the work of Reuben Archer Torrey at least 15 times in his 1969 book, "Why I Preach the Bible is Literally True."

Criswell, 79, has been pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas for nearly 45 years and served two terms as president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

James pointed out the similarities to Criswell's publisher, who wrote him that they may want to review the text with Criswell if a new edition is printed.

James said he read Criswell's book while doing research for a book he was writing in 1986 about the Bible inerrancy movement, of which Criswell is a leader.

"While I was reading his book, I got the impression that I had read some of this material someplace else," he said. "Then I looked around in my own library and it wasn't long before I found R.A. Torrey's book and I found where Dr. Criswell had gotten the material."

James said he found the similarities in Torrey's "Difficulties and Alleged Errors and Contradictions in the Bible," published in 1907.

Criswell denied James' charge and doesn't recall reading the book by Torrey, a Congregationalist who died in 1928.

He told The Dallas Morning News he reads "endlessly" and "part of what I read would stay in my mind.

"But using anything plagiaristically is a million miles from anything I have ever done," Criswell said.

James initially did nothing after making the discovery, saying it made him "literally sick to my stomach because I knew the implications of the material I had found and decided not to do anything about it."

Criswell's appearance on a PBS documentary hosted by Bill Moyers last year caused James to review the two books again.

He told The News Criswell appeared to have "a very mean spirit" on the program.

"It was a period of months that I looked into the material again. Then we find us where we are today," James said.

Criswell's 25,000-member church, the largest in the Southern Baptist Convention, owns four blocks of downtown Dallas valued at more than $200 million, including the church sanctuary, an academy, college, radio station, parking garages, offices and a gym.

Nearly a year ago, Criswell asked his church to find a co-pastor who would succeed him in the Dallas pulpit.

El Paso funeral home hit by stiff OSHA fine

EL PASO (AP) — A funeral home faces more than $50,000 in fines for allegedly violating Occupational Health and Safety Administration rules, including properly instructing employees how to avoid AIDS exposure.

The federal agency accuses Martin Funeral Home in El Paso of not monitoring employees' exposure to formaldehyde and not providing protective clothing to protect embalmers from coming into contact with blood that could be tainted with the viruses that cause AIDS and hepatitis.

OSHA's 18-page complaint accuses Martin Funeral Home of six "willful" violations carrying $8,000 fines each and four "serious" violations carrying fines of $720 each, for a total fine of $50,880.

About half the allegations concerned exposure to formaldehyde, an embalming-fluid ingredient that causes cancer and blindness and irritates the skin, eyes and lungs.

About a dozen embalmers and driver-assistants are affected. Employees declined to comment on the record for fear of being fired.

The federal agency inspected the funeral home in mid-February and issued the intent to fine June 30, OSHA area director Edward Cosgrove said Thursday from his office in Lubbock. Martin Funeral Home has until July 28 to respond, he said.

Bill Barrett, spokesman for Service Corp. International of Houston, the funeral home's owner, said company representatives have arranged a meeting next Thursday with OSHA officials.

"Some of the allegations we were not aware of and agreed with at the time and have since corrected," Barrett said Thursday. "Some we disagree with, and some we want to find out more about what OSHA wanted."

The federal agency said the funeral home did not teach embalmers and assistants how to avoid infection from AIDS, hepatitis and tuberculosis.

It said employees were endangered from being splattered with formaldehyde or tainted blood because they were not provided with protective clothing or with eyewashes and showers.

> "Some of the allegations we were not aware of and agreed with at the time and have since corrected. Some we disagree with, and some we want to find out more about what OSHA wanted."
>
> — Bill Barrett, spokesman for the funeral home's owner

The agency also said the funeral home failed to label containers of blood-contaminated paper towels, scalpel blades and other items, did not warn embalmers about the dangers of formaldehyde and did not monitor their exposure to the chemical.

According to federal regulations that went into effect in February 1988, funeral homes must monitor employees' long-term and short-term exposure to formaldehyde and notify them of the test results within 15 days.

Barrett said the training and monitoring were being done. He said the funeral home had been sending formaldehyde exposure test results to the corporate office, but is now posting them for employees to see.

One allegation — that bottles of chemicals were unmarked — has since been corrected, Barrett said.

Mortuaries are supposed to provide eyewash fountains and showers employees can use if they are splashed with blood or formaldehyde. The OSHA report said an eyewash was not available, and that a shower was being used to store janitorial items. Barrett said the shower has since been cleaned out.

Lawyer may file suit against firm after employees viewed sex tape

Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — The lawyer for a young woman who was secretly videotaped having sex with a former boyfriend says he may file another lawsuit on her behalf after learning that at least four employees of a San Antonio insurance company viewed a copy of the tape.

Ron Krist, attorney for Susan Leigh Kerr, said Wednesday he may file suit against the United Services Auto Association for violating a judge's order prohibiting copying or viewing the tape.

"How am I going to be able to give (Kerr) any assurance that some claims adjuster from that insurance company hasn't gone in and made a copy of that tape and is now circulating it around the city?" Krist asked.

Kerr, 23, last month won a $1 million judgment against Dan Boyles and three of his friends for the mental anguish she suffered after they secretly videotaped Kerr and Boyles having sex in 1985.

Monday, state District Judge David West fined the defense attorneys' firm $2,000 for violating his order after testimony revealed they had sent a copy to the insurance company and had allowed up to 10 law firm employees to view the tape the day the verdict was announced.

Man suspected of abducting daughter found in Nebraska

FORT WORTH (AP) — An Arlington man suspected of abducting his 7-year-old daughter remained jailed today after he was apprehended in rural Nebraska.

Fred Kenneth "Tex" Burke Jr., 32, and a companion were apprehended Thursday in a secluded area along the Platte River in eastern Nebraska. Game wardens captured the two in a parked stolen car between Fremont and North Bend in Dodge County, authorities said.

The child, Guinevere Garrett Burke, has been turned over to the Nebraska Department of Social Services and is expected to be released today to Tarrant County Constable Jim Palmer. The Texas Department of Human Services was awarded custody of Guinevere on May 15, the day Burke missed a child custody hearing in Fort Worth.

"Both her clothing and hair were dirty, but she seemed to be in good physical shape," Tom Tamke, chief deputy sheriff for Dodge County, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. "She was crying and didn't want to be separated from her father. But she calmed down when she got in my office."

Tarrant County authorities had feared Burke was dangerous after a private investigator found cult literature, child pornography and instructions for butchering humans during a search of his home in May.

Burke will remain in Dodge County Judicial Center, pending his extradition, Tamke said. He is wanted in Tarrant County on a criminal charge of interference with child custody.

If Burke refuses to sign the waiver, Tarrant County authorities will have to seek a Texas governor's warrant that will go through the Nebraska governor's office.

"He's not saying much right now," Tamke said. "I don't know what has transpired since he went to jail."

Saline County, Neb., officials are holding the companion in the auto theft, Tamke said. The car belongs to the companion's parents, who are residents of Crete, Neb., officials said.

Burke was reported sighted Wednesday in Milford, about 50 miles southwest of Omaha, with his daughter and the companion. Nebraska authorities contacted Palmer after discovering that Burke was wanted in Texas.

Burke and his daughter had hidden in at least two residences in Nebraska, said Saline County Sheriff Byron Buzek. They spent Tuesday night at a farm belonging to the companion's parents, then camped in the rain near their residence Wednesday night.

The companion's parents became suspicious of Burke and pleaded with their son Tuesday night to not leave with Burke.

Superman collages questioned

NEW YORK (AP) — The authenticity of 19 Superman collages by Andy Warhol has been called into question by two comic book experts who say the Superman cut-outs didn't appear in print until years after the date on the artworks.

"Either they were misdated or somebody has made some work that is not what it purports to be," said Robert Miller, a New York art dealer who owns 18 of the collages.

The discrepancy was detected by comic book experts Arlen Schumer and Richard Sheinaus during independent visits to a Warhol retrospective at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, which ran from Feb. 6 to May 2.

Schumer said in a telephone interview earlier this week that he was looking in the exhibition catalog at an untitled Superman collage, dated 1960-61, when he recognized the inking style of the artist who did the cartoon panel.

"I remembered that Jack Abel did not start inking Superman until the late 1960s, maybe 1969. And I thought 'Hold it, something is wrong here!' "

"When I met Sheinaus a month later, he said, 'Did you notice anything funny about the Warhol exhibition?' " Schumer said. "I looked him right in the eye and said 'One has got to be a fraud.'

"He said, 'You won't believe this but there are about 15 of them.' "

The series of 19 collages has been estimated to be worth about $5 million. Each piece was signed twice and dated 1960-61. The DC Comics they came from — like "Superman's Greatest Blunder" (1968) and "Muto vs. the Man of Tomorrow" (1966) — sold for 12 cents each.

Seven of the collages — cut-outs from original comic books that were pasted on paper and splattered with red or blue paint — were on display during the MOMA retrospective; six were loaned by Miller, one by an unidentified private collector, said Jeanne Collins, a museum spokeswoman.

"In any retrospective of an artist there may be questions regarding dating; however, we have no reason whatsoever to doubt the authenticity of any of the works included in the Andy Warhol retrospective," it said.

ALL PERSONS INTERESTED IN STARTING AN EVANGELICAL METHODIST CHURCH IN MIDLAND!

What Is The Evangelical Methodist Church?

How Did The Denomination Begin?

With a firm conviction that the gulf which separates historic, conservative Christianity and modern, liberal Christianity is an everwidening chasm which can never be healed, the Evangelical Methodist Church came into being as a conservative, evangelical church in the Wesleyan tradition. We accept and proclaim the district doctrines of original Methodism, founded upon the Bible and upon the Articles of Religion as set forth by John Wesley.

A group of preachers and laymen met on May 9, 1946, in the city of Memphis, Tennessee, and after many hours of waiting before God in prayer, they felt definitely led by God to organize the Evangelical Methodist Church.

The Evangelical Methodist Church is fundamental in belief, missionary in outlook, evangelistic in endeavor, cooperative in spirit, and Wesleyan in doctrine.

What Is The Government?

The Evangelical Methodist Church is congregational in government with property rights vested in the local church. It is also connectional with sufficient supervision to provide strength of unity. The local church cooperates with the designated conferences of the church at large.

The local church chooses its own pastors from among conference men. A pastor is not appointed but voted on by the local congregation .

The local church derives its support by tithes and offerings from its members and friends. We urge systematic tithing each week as the Scriptural plan of supporting God's work.

All persons who have been saved from their sin , and who have received Jesus Christ as their Saviour and Lord, and who accept the doctrines of the Evangelical Methodist Church and meet the requirements for membership, are eligible for membership in the local church./

What Are Some Features?

Headquarters
The International Headquarters of the Evangelical Methodist Church is located in Wichita, Kansas. The General Superintendent and other conference personnel operate offices in the headquarters building.

Districts
The denomination is divided into several districts with elected Superintendents in charge of each district. (Names and locations of the superintendents can be secured by writing or calling the International Headquarters).

Church Ministries Institute
The denomination provides training for those awaiting ordination, as well as pastors and their spouses.

Missions
Individuals called of God are sent by the church to strategic areas of service throughout the world. Our work in Mexico consists of an organized conference of churches and the "Life and Truth Bible Institute". Another important field is in Bolivia, South America. A Cessna used in reaching the unevangelized of the lowlands and a number of congregations, as well as a training school for pastors, have been established in the highlands.

What Are The Beliefs?

The Word of God - We accept and believe the doctrines of historic, Bible-believing Christianity. We receive these, not as dead articles of religion which have little meaning or relevance for our time, but as vital truths based upon the Word of God.

The Trinity - We believe in the Godhead, the Holy Trinity, in which there are three Persons of one substance, power, and eternity - the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

God, the Father - We believe in God the Father Almighty. He is a God of love, mercy, justice and holiness.

Jesus Christ - We believe in Jesus Christ, who was God and man; His virgin birth, His sinless life, His substitutionary and redeeming death, and His physical resurrection.

The Holy Spirit - We believe in the Holy Spirit who executes the Word of God in the church and in the world.

The New Birth - We believe that every person must surrender to the Lordship of Jesus Christ and be born of the Holy Spirit before he/she is a Christian.

Sanctification - We believe in entire sanctification, subsequent to regeneration, whereby the believer is cleansed from the pollution of sin, saved from its power, and enabled through grace, to love God with all his/her heart.

A Holy Life - We believe that every Christian is ordered to live a holy life - one that merits the name "Christian".

Sacraments - We believe in two sacraments: Baptism and Holy Communion. The mode of baptism is left to the conscience of the individual.

Resurrection - We believe in the resurrection of all bodies to be judged and receive their due rewards.

Eternal Life - We believe in eternal life for the redeemed and eternal punishment for the unbelieving and lost.

The Church - We believe in the church, local and universal, and that God is in the midst of her.

The Lord's Return - We believe in the literal return of Jesus Christ to receive His church.

Versatile actor-writer-comic finally takes on the Bard

By MICHAEL KUCHWARA
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK — John Amos has worked as an advertising copywriter, a stand-up comic, a variety show writer-performer and even as a regular on Mary Tyler Moore's popular television sitcom in which he played Gordy the weatherman.

But in his more than 20 years in and out of show business, the broad, powerfully built actor never appeared in a Shakespearean play.

That changed recently with his portrayal of Sir Toby Belch in "Twelfth Night," the opening production of the New York Shakespeare Festival's annual summer sojourn in Central Park.

And Amos has found himself in a high-powered company of movie and theater names that includes Jeff Goldblum, Michelle Pfeiffer, Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, Gregory Hines, Stephen Collins and Fisher Stevens.

The actor tried out for the role at the urging of James Earl Jones, a veteran of the Shakespearean repertory and one of the best Othellos of recent years.

They were sitting in a trailer last year while working on the Eddie Murphy movie "Coming to America," when Jones told him, "If you don't try Shakespeare, it will just loom as a bigger and more insurmountable obstacle to you. So you just might as well go ahead and take your best shot. Treat it as you would another play."

"I had auditioned him before for another play and didn't give him the role," recalls Joseph Papp, head of the New York Shakespeare Festival.

"But I thought, 'Gee, he's an interesting actor with an imposing figure and good clear speech.' I told him, 'You should look at Shakespeare's plays because there are many roles you could play.'"

After reading parts of "Twelfth Night" for Papp and director Harold Guskin, Amos got the role of fun-loving, high-spirited Sir Toby.

"My biggest concern was that I didn't develop an affected accent," Amos recounts.

Amos, born in Newark, N.J., didn't start out to be an actor. His big dream was to play football, but nothing came of it.

His acting career didn't get going until he moved to California.

"My entree into show business came because of my writing. During the day, I was working for an advertising agency in Los Angeles.

"At night, I was moonlighting on a local television variety show called 'Lohman and Barkley' as a writer-performer. We'd do 90 minutes of contemporary comedy and satirical bits."

Out of that job came a position as a staff writer on "The Leslie Uggams Show," a short-lived variety show on CES in 1969.

On it, Amos helped write what he calls a forerunner of today's situation comedies about middle-class blacks. It was a 15-minute segment called "Sugar Hill," in which Miss Uggams played the wife, Lincoln Kilpatrick her husband and Johnny Brown her brother.

"'Sugar Hill' taught me a great deal about the structure of situation comedy," he says now. "So that later, when I got involved in performing in a situation comedy, I felt I had a slight edge on some of the other actors."

His job on "The Leslie Uggams Show" won Amos a role the following year on a new comedy series starring Mary Tyler Moore. His role of Gordy the weatherman was his first national recognition.

Amos had studied acting at a small theater in Los Angeles but he likes to think he honed his acting skills working as a stand-up comic in clubs in New York's Greenwich Village in the late '60s.

"I wasn't very good," he says now. "But it's the best training any actor can get, particularly if you use your own material. Then you can gauge whether or not your perception of what's funny is funny to the general public."

Amos lived in California for about 15 years before coming back to New York. He was able to support himself by occasional television series like "The Tim Conway Comedy Hour" and "Future Cop" as well as commercials. But he returned to the East Coast and New Jersey seven years ago to do more theater.

"I had started to loose my hustle," he says. "I'm not the kind of guy who can just lie by the pool waiting for my agent to call."

Last year, Amos became artistic director and artist-in-residence for a theater located in the Grant Avenue Community Center in Plainfield, N.J., after its mayor, Richard Taylor, asked him to do a few fund-raisers.

He also staged the theater's first offering, "Forever My Darling," a play by Dan Owens. It takes place in the 1950s and concerns four black women who want to become the first female rhythm and blues singing group. Amos has even optioned the movie rights.

Work on commercial projects like the upcoming Sylvester Stallone movie "Lock-Up" gives Amos the financial freedom to spend more with his fledgling theater.

"I think I'm pretty much living the ideal life — staying here in the East, so I can be close to my theater, doing, I hope, one picture a year and as much stage work as possible," he says. "That's the best of both worlds."

Model for 'Dead Poets' character believes lies necessary

By DEAN GOLEMBESKI

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Samuel F. Pickering Jr. is not above telling a lie to make a good story better, and he encourages the students in his writing course to do the same.

"You've got to lie to give the illusion of truth," the English professor tells his students at the University of Connecticut.

Given that philosophy, it's not surprising that Pickering finds himself caught up in the excitement over a bit of fiction written by a former student. The teacher John Keating, played by Robin Williams in the movie "Dead Poets Society," is modeled after Pickering.

Like Keating, Pickering has been known to do the unusual in his classroom. He's lectured from a desktop, from outside a window or while wearing wastepaper baskets on his feet. He also returned to his prep school as a young teacher after studying in England.

But unlike the movie, there was never any conflict between Pickering and school administrators, and he left the school on good terms.

"Whatever of me is in that character has got to be small," the 47-year-old Pickering said during recent interview at his home.

"I was a kid and he was a child. Twenty-three years ago. How much of me could there be in the movie? Not very much."

The screenplay was written by Tom Schulman, who was a 15-year-old student at Montgomery Bell Academy in Nashville, Tenn., when he took a course from Pickering. Pickering, who had returned to the United States after a year of study at Cambridge University, taught at the private school for just one year, 1965-66.

Schulman has acknowledged Pickering's influence on his life and the screenplay, and has said much of his love for language and literature originated in that course.

Pickering hasn't seen the movie — his three children were sick and now he's in Canada for the summer. But many of his friends in Nashville have seen the film, and they immediately recognized Pickering as the inspiration for the movie's teacher. The friends began talking and soon the news media picked up on the subject.

"I don't mind being the center of attention if I can control it, but I can't control this," he said of the numerous inquiries he's received from reporters and acquaintances.

Pickering, who was born and raised in Nashville, is puzzled as to why he had so much influence on a former student and how it was that his friends so readily saw him in the movie. He's also flattered.

"I'm the most ordinary guy in the world," he said as he draped his leg over the arm of a chair and picked at a hole in the knee of his jeans.

"Sometimes people remember me, and I don't know why. I don't know if I did anything special then as a teacher. I was young and lively."

What he does in class is unplanned, he said. He does many unusual things to get his students to think for themselves, but a bad back has forced him to abandon such acrobatics as desktop lectures. His classroom is also on the second floor now, making the leaps from windows unwise.

"Sometimes you get bored in the classroom," he said. "This semester when my class was over, the last class, two girls in my class jumped up and gave an imitation of me right in front of the class. They got A's. You'd think they might get F's, but I've learned since."

Pickering bursts into laughter after telling the story. He laughs often and easily as he recalls the past. He finds many things humorous in life and often downplays his own accomplishments.

Since leaving Montgomery Bell Academy, he has completed a doctorate and taught in Syria and Jordon and at Dartmouth College. He's been at the University of Connecticut since 1978, where in addition to teaching, he's become well-known as an essayist.

He writes about his three children, his wife, his mother and father and ordinary things in life. His writing, as might be expected, is humorous and self-critical, but also bawdy and philosophical.

He has published three books of his essays and is working on a fourth.

Scorched earth

Cattle graze in a partially burnt pasture after a fire raced through northwest Nebraska last weekend. A Saturday evening lightning strike started the fire, which scorched more than 50,000 acres of timber and ranch country.

Dry, windy conditions parch topsoil despite recent rains

AGRICULTURE

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Hot, dry weather is favoring and rapidly pushing the state's major cash crops to maturity but short moisture complaints are already increasing in those areas receiving good rains in recent weeks, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Panhandle corn is progressing normally and sorghum is up and growing fast, but topsoils are drying under warm, windy conditions. Wheat yields are low and range grasses are stressing for rain, Carpenter said.

He said soil moisture also is declining in the South Plains, Rolling Plains and in North Central Texas but cotton and other crops are holding up well generally and showing at least average growth. Late-planted cotton is in most need of rain.

Ranges and pastures are mostly in good condition throughout the northern third of the state, Carpenter said, and keeping beef cattle and other livestock in top shape for steady, strong markets. Haymaking is active as farmers and ranchers prepare for the demands of winter feeding.

East Texas, he said, is slowly drying out from two visits by Tropical Storm Allison, which dumped from 1 to 23 inches during the first week of July. Pastures are lush and productive but hay harvesting has slowed. Insects and diseases have increased in vegetables and peaches in the heavier rainfall areas.

In sharp contrast to East Texas conditions are those in western, southwestern and southern regions.

Carpenter said Pecos country temperatures hit 114 degrees during the past week. Early cotton is blooming, dryland cotton is hurting badly for rain and bollworms are a problem. Poor ranges are keeping stockmen busy with maintenance feeding and grass fires are frequent.

Range grass fires also are a hazard in west central counties and some ranchers are shipping livestock to relieve grazing pressures. Animals are still in relatively good shape on ranches not overstocked.

Soil moisture remains short to very short in southwestern and southern areas, including the Lower Rio Grande Valley, Carpenter said. Chronic drought in these districts is now discussed in terms of years instead of weeks or months, Carpenter said.

He said Coastal Bend counties have received scattered showers in recent weeks but the area is still droughty overall. Surviving corn and sorghum are being harvested but yields are down. Cotton bolls are opening.

Extension Service district directors reported the following specific crop, livestock and weather conditions for the past week:

■ PANHANDLE: Soil moisture is generally low. Low yields characterize a wheat harvest now nearly complete. Corn is tasseling and growing well. Sorghum is up to good stands and growing fast. Ranges need rain but are keeping cattle in good condition. Growers are busy harvesting alfalfa hay and onions for favorable markets.

■ SOUTH PLAINS: Soil moisture is mostly adequate but a few counties are short. High temperatures are rapidly drying soils. Cotton is squaring and growing well, especially under irrigation. Wheat harvesting is complete and sorghum planting is almost done. Soybeans, sunflowers and peanuts are growing normally.

■ ROLLING PLAINS: Soil moisture is generally adequate, although young cotton needs rain badly. Livestock are in good condition despite hot weather. Native ranges could use rain. The hot, dry weather is pushing hay production. Sorghum is in all growth stages, from emerging to heading. Mung beans and alfalfa are growing well but will need rain soon.

■ NORTH CENTRAL: Soil moisture is adequate to short. Major activities include hay baling, spraying for cotton bollworms, peanut planting and finishing the wheat harvest. Corn, cotton and sorghum are good to fair, wheat is fair to poor and pastures are excellent to good. Livestock are in excellent condition, calves are gaining weight and stock tanks are full. Peach harvesting is almost complete but supplies are short and quality and appearance have suffered because of unfriendly weather earlier in the season.

■ NORTHEAST: Soil moisture is adequate. Corn is growing well, pastures and cattle are in excellent condition and markets are strong. Rains and wet fields have hampered hay production. Vegetables are producing fairly well and prospects are for a good pecan crop. The peach crop is short and of poor quality.

■ FAR WEST: Soil moisture is very short. Temperatures zoom to 114 degrees. Older cotton is blooming while dryland cotton is burning up, and bollworms are active. Ranges are deteriorating and many grass fires have been reported. Livestock require maintenance feeding.

■ WEST CENTRAL: Temperatures as high as 112 degrees have rapidly sapped soil moisture and range fires are a hazard. Ranchers are shipping lambs but those ranches not overstocked are still in fairly good shape. Irrigated peanuts are growing well but dryland crops need rain.

■ CENTRAL: Recent rains have caused lush, excessive growth in cotton. Some replanting of Spanish peanuts continues. Honeydew aphids and walnut caterpillars are causing damage. Livestock are in fine condition.

■ EAST: Tropical Storm Allison brought 1 to 23 inches of rain during the first seven to 10 days of July. Pastures have responded to the rains but hay production has faltered. In the heavier rainfall areas, vegetables and peaches have been hampered by insects and diseases.

■ SOUTH CENTRAL: Soil moisture is short to ample. Hay production is in full swing, pastures are in good condition, livestock are in good shape and maintenance feeding is not necessary. The peach harvest is complete. Spraying for pecan diseases continues.

■ COASTAL BEND: Soil moisture is plentiful. Recent, heavy rains have hindered rice pollination and some fields have died. Some corn stands are down and sorghum sprouting in the heads are a problem because of soft ground and excessive humidity. Wet fields have stalled soybean planting but pastures are responding to the generous soil moisture.

■ SOUTHWEST: Big winds and high temperatures continue to desiccate soils that are already too dry. Most dryland corn and sorghum fields have been grazed, baled or plowed. Surviving crops are about a third of normal. Irrigated crops, however, are producing excellent yields. Ranges and pastures south of Highway 90 are in especially poor shape. Cattle stocking rates are 30 to 50 percent of normal and there has been some movement of cattle to better grazing areas.

U.S. seeks to lower products' trade barriers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has proposed a technical measure designed to speed the reduction of barriers to trade in farm products.

U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills says the Bush administration wants other nations to convert non-tariff import barriers, such as quotas and restrictive licenses, to tariffs.

"By converting to tariffs, barriers would be more transparent and uniform, making it easier to negotiate worldwide reductions in agriculture support and protection," she said Wednesday in a statement.

The proposal was made in Geneva in trade negotiations with 100 other nations under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which regulates world trade treaties and settles commerce disputes. The current series of talks, known as the Uruguay Round, began in 1986 and are scheduled to run through next year.

In April, GATT negotiators achieved a breakthrough in the talks, which had been deadlocked since December, reaching broad agreement in four key areas, including a compromise on a U.S. demand to do away with all trade-distorting agricultural subsidies. The talks since then have been aimed at nailing down specifics of how to achieve the goals of the larger compromise.

Hills said the U.S. "tariffication" proposal must be part of a more comprehensive package including fundamental reforms in domestic farm subsidies, export subsidies and sanitary rules.

NASA finds sweet potatoes very appealing

New York Times News Service

Sweet potatoes in space?

Imagine it. A sweet potato pie floating about the kitchen of an orbiting space station. Fresh sweet potatoes warming in the microwave in microgravity.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is still preparing blueprints for its space station Freedom, but researchers at Tuskegee University have already patented a system for growing sweet potatoes in space — the first time anyone has succeeded in growing such a plant without soil.

Tuskegee researchers, who spent four years working on the plant, and NASA officials believe the sweet potato could become a staple space food and a welcome change from freeze-dried dinners that now form the common astronaut's daily fare.

Scientists and NASA officials are desperate to find a way to grow plants in space without soil because there is no rocket big enough to carry a farm into space. Green plants can also help replenish a spacecraft's air supply.

The sweet potato is an attractive candidate because the tuber is rich in carbohydrates, which make up more than half of the human diet, and its edible leaves are good sources of protein, iron and calcium. The plant is one of those rare vegetables that has a horizontal growth pattern and does not depend on gravity for growth.

NASA has also funded research at Utah State University and the University of Wisconsin for studies on white potatoes and wheat.

Fall gardens grow from hard toil during long, hot summers

For a successful fall garden, you can't wait until fall to get started. Soil preparation, fertilizing and planting all have to be done during the heat of the summer.

Kiker

Like preparation for a spring garden, fall gardens benefit from generous amounts of organic matter such as hay, peat moss, shredded leaves, grass clippings, compost, barnyard manure or even shredded newspaper.

A 3- to 4-inch layer of organic matter is necessary to physically change the structure of the soil. Till the material into the garden at least 6 to 8 inches deep.

Fertilizer also should be applied at the same time. If your soil is high in phosphorous or you used a high phosphorous fertilizer such as 10-20-10 in the spring, then nitrogen is probably all you will need to add for the fall.

About 1 pound of a high-nitrogen fertilizer, such as ammonium sulphate or ammonium nitrate, can be used for each 100 square feet of garden area. This can be broadcast on top of the organic matter and all tilled in together.

After the summer soil preparation, August to early September is the time to plant most vegetables for fall harvest.

Many vegetables perform better under Texas fall weather conditions. Crops such as green beans, cucumbers and squash need to be planted early so that harvest is completed by the time the first frost occurs.

Other vegetables that can withstand freezes down to 25 degrees Fahrenheit or so, are beets, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, collards, lettuce, mustard, onion, parsley, radish, spinach and turnips.

To request a fall vegetable planting schedule, contact the local Extension Service office.

'Life in Hell' creator hopes Simpsons prove to be big draw

By KATHRYN BAKER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Matt Groening had been asked to pitch ideas for an animated television show before, but network executives didn't quite get it.

"They would say, 'What do you want to do?' " Groening recalled, "and I'd say, 'I want a show with the wit and charm of 'Bullwinkle.' ' And they'd say, 'You don't understand, we're trying to appeal to 3-year-olds.' I'd say, 'I do a cartoon called 'Life in Hell'. Why did you want to talk to me?' "

Producer-director James L. Brooks ("The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Broadcast News") knew exactly w .at Groening's "Life in Hell" cartoon was all about.

The strip is carried by "alternative" weekly newspapers around the country, such as The Village Voice. Brooks asked Groening to create the brief "bumpers," cartoon vignettes, that lead in and out of commercials during "The Tracey Ullman Show," of which Brooks is executive producer.

The Simpsons, a homely, squabbling brood of Middle-Americans, became such a hit on "Ullman," Fox is spinning them off into their own series.

Fox won't yet say when, but sometime during the next season, Tracey Ullman and company will bid adieu to the Simpsons, the week before they embark on their own show. It will be the first prime-time, network animated series since "The Jetsons" and "The Flintstones" in the 1960s.

"The Simpsons" is set in the mythical Midwestern city of Springfield, a burg replete with a nuclear power plant and a toxic waste dump.

The voices of Homer, Marge and their kids, Lisa, Bart and Maggie, are provided by Dan Castellanata and Julie Kavner, both of "The Tracey Ullman Show," Nancy Cartwright, Yeardley Smith and celebrity guest voices, such as Harry Shearer and Penny Marshall.

Brooks, Groening and producer-writer Sam Simon told a meeting of television critics that they just don't know what America will think of the Simpsons once audiences start getting a bigger dose of their darkly funny sitcom antics.

Someone wondered whether America was in fact receiving enough cutting satire of sitcom families in Fox's "Married ... With Children." Simon insisted, almost maintaining a straight face, that the Simpsons are unlike the unscrupulous and conniving Bundys and really do love each other, deep down.

"They don't hate each other," Simon said. "If they do occasionally strangle each other or hit each other over the head, it's just an impulsive act."

"Whether they will go over, whether these drawn figures will go over, we don't know," Brooks said.

The Simpsons, who look very much like the wild-eyed rabbits who populate Groening's "Life in Hell" strip, derived from an "unpublishable novel" Groening said he wrote in high school, "Mean Kids."

Groening said he never expected to become a cartoonist, since "my drawing didn't improve much after sixth grade." He describes the Simpsons as having "large, round eyes, and a tremendous overbite problem" — basically, his rabbits without the giant ears. "Maybe someday Marge will take off a wig and reveal her true identity," he teased.

Groening said he does fervently hope that Binky and the other rabbits from "Life in Hell" might get their own TV series, too, someday.

"Someday," Groening said, "maybe television will be ready for my hellish stuff."

Fox's reality-based "COPS" went on location to the Soviet Union earlier this year, and the resulting special, "COPS in Russia," airs Saturday. Three American and three Soviet camera crews followed the Soviet police as they went about their patrols in Moscow and Leningrad.

The one-hour special includes Soviet police investigations of homicides, suicides, black marketing, domestic disputes and drug offenses.

"We were incredibly pleased with the openness and cooperation that the government displayed in welcoming us to ride along with their police," said Stephen Chao, vice president of Fox television stations.

The special will also be shown in the Soviet Union.

No cure for art fever on horizon

NEW YORK (AP) — Fine art prices are going, going, gonzo this auction season, soaring through the ceiling when the gavel comes down. But even as the art market booms, some experts fear the picture may not stay so pretty.

"A lot of people are being taken in by this sort of fever," said George Goldner, a curator and top buyer at the J. Paul Getty Museum, the nation's richest. "The longer it goes on, the more it resembles a bubble that one day will burst."

For now, the inflation is inescapable, as even Goldner will attest: He paid $32.5 million for a 16th century painting last month, more than tripling the record for an Old Master at auction. And all that glitters is not Goldner's:

■ Records were set for more than three dozen modern, post-modern and impressionist painters at sales in May, including $47.9 million for a Picasso self-portrait — an 800 percent increase from its 1981 price. Only one painting has done better, a Van Gogh that drew $53.9 million in 1987.

■ An 18th-century American bookcase desk sold in May for $12.1 million, quadrupling the record for a piece of furniture. The reported buyer was neither museum nor gallery, but a Texas financier, Robert M. Bass.

■ A Catskill Mountains landscape sold for $8.25 million, tops for an old American painting. A Frederic Remington bronze brought $4.4 million, a new height for American sculpture. "The Birds of America" etchings by John James Audubon sold for $3.96 million, an increase of $2 million in less than two years.

Such prices are reflected in thousands of lesser sales, rippling through the art world in a delicious shudder, at least for sellers. Sotheby's auction house, the world's biggest, gaveled off $1.8 billion in goods last year, up by $400 million from 1987. And this year is far bigger.

"It's awesome. It's mind-boggling," said Milton Esterow, publisher of ARTNews magazine. "Art has become an international currency. The market has exploded. It's a revolution, a renaissance, like we've never seen before."

But the glee is not universal. Art experts say the soaring sums are pricing many museums out of the market, leaving them unable to expand or upgrade their collections. Some say auction hype has falsely inflated some prices.

" 'It's simple and easy: Buy something and you'll get rich.' This is the message of the auction rooms," said Goldner. "It's the wrong message and people eventually are going to get hurt by it. There will be a day when the market will shake out, and bad modern paintings won't be worth what people are paying for them today."

The reason for art's price explosion is simple: Because of worldwide economic good times, many people have much more money. As some of that cash migrated to art, prices rose — drawing finer art to the market and raising prices even higher. And 1986 federal tax changes limited the benefits of donating art to museums, putting even more works on the market.

Additionally, said Harvey Katz, an art market analyst for the investment firm Salomon Brothers Inc., the auction houses have improved their marketing techniques. Catalogs are less intimidating, major works are sent on tour before sales, bidding is simpler and telephone bids are accepted.

"As the auction houses have become more accessible, they've captured more and more business," said Katz. One result: Christie's auction house is rumored as a takeover target. And Sotheby's is splitting its stock, two for one.

But Goldner said auction house promotions can misrepresent the value of some pieces, particularly costly modern art. And he called Sotheby's practice of lending money to buyers a dangerous trend that inflates the market and increases the perception of art as a speculative commodity.

John Marion, chairman of Sotheby's North America, maintained that buyers still are primarily collectors drawn to certain works, not investors seeking profit. And he said marketing, ultimately, does not create sales.

"What weapons do we use to get people into bidding? They do spend real money," Marion said. Sotheby's willingness to loan buyers some of that money, he added, is no different from a bank's loan to a home buyer.

Another concern is the art boom's effect on public museums, many of which are finding themselves unable to afford major purchases or pressed to sell some works to private buyers, which removes the art from public view.

Big Spring second baseman Marvin Rubio looks for a call after slapping a tag on El Paso runner Sid Irvin during playoff tournament action at Angel Stadium Thursday night.

El Paso nails Big Spring in tourney starter

From Staff Reports

El Paso scored five runs in the fourth and five more in the sixth to nail down a 12-3 ramrodding of Big Spring in first round action at the Big League tournament at Angel Stadium Thursday afternoon.

El Paso will now meet Midland in second round action today at 5:30 p.m. The El Paso-/Midland loser will meet Big Spring in losers' bracket action following the first game.

Big Spring and El Paso were scorless through 2⅓ innings. In the bottom of the second, El Paso jumped ahead 2-0 when Sid Irwin doubled home both runs.

El Paso took a 7-0 lead on a triple, two doubles and a single, and added five more in the sixth, helped in part by back-to-back singles by Jesse Munoz and Joe Bejarmo.

Big Spring was hampered by five errors; El Paso was charged with three.

Big Spring scored two runs in the fifth and another in the sixth. Rusty Ginetti had three hits in four at bats, while Marvin Rubio finished 2-for-4. Both had RBI singles in the two-run Big Spring fifth; Kemper Shane singled in the sixth to score Big Spring's only other run.

Midland received a bye in the tournament after Lamesa, unable to field an entire nine-man team, cancelled.

The championship game, originally scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Saturday has been moved to 10 a.m. Saturday. If necessary, a final game will follow. The time change was made in order to allow El Paso time to return home Saturday.

The Big League is the 16-18 age bracket of Little League.

Hostetler blanks Midland Angels

From Staff Reports

SHREVEPORT, La. — Tom Hostetler kept the Midland Angels in a Texas League offensive slump here Thursday night, handing the Shreveport Captains a 6-0 blanking of the Angels.

The victory gave the Caps a 2-1 edge in the five-game series as Midland continues to have problems with Texas League eastern division teams. The Angels now own a 5-13 record against the East and have lost seven of their last nine games.

Even though the Angels have had trouble coming up with victories on the current road trip, Midland still owns a full three-game second half lead over El Paso and 3½ games over first half West champion Wichita.

Hostetler shut down the Angels with just six hits and he struckout seven batters. Hostetler, now 2-1 on the year, only twice let runners reach as far as third base. The Angels had runners at the corners with no outs in the fifth on a key double by Mark Howie, but Hostetler retired the next three batters to get out of the jam.

Midland also left runners stranded at the corners in the seventh with only one out.

Chris Beasley, who tossed a nifty three-hit shutout against Jackson in his last start, took the loss, being tagged with all six Shreveport runs in seven innings of work.

The Caps put the lid on the victory with three runs in the second inning on RBI singles by Craig Cobert and Dee Dixon and a sacrifice fly by Jeff Carter.

Ted Wood scored a single run in the fourth for Shreveport when he scored from second base on a throwing error by Midland third baseman Bob Rose. Shreveport's Dave Patterson drove in two runs with a key single that followed a double steal by John Skurla and Rich Aldrette.

In other league action Thursday, Jackson edged El Paso 2-1, the Wichita Wranglers beat the Tulsa Drillers 3-1 and Arkansas shut out San Antonio 2-0.

Jackson second baseman Dave Joiner's RBI single in the bottom of the 11th inning snapped a 1-1 tie.

Mid City advances to semis

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Jeff Bishop pitched a two-hitter to lead Midland Mid City to a 10-2 victory over Odessa Northeast here Thursday night in the District Little League playoff tournament, advancing to the semifinals at 7 p.m. today against Lamesa at Floyd Gwinn Park.

Bishop had a perfect game going through four innings before Odessa's Denver Nelms reached base on an error in the fifth. However, Mid City quelled the threat when Rick Anthony hit a grounder to shortstop Chad Bayley, who threw to Clay Johnston at first to nail Anthony. Johnston threw to third baseman Shane Denson to double up Helms.

Bishop was tagged with both hits in the sixth when Odessa's Dusty Zimmerson hit a long single to left and Joe Dee Thompson followed with a two-run homer.

Bishop ended the game with nine strikeouts.

Season football tickets go on sale Monday

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The first sign of football comes Monday when season football tickets for both Midland Lee and Midland High go on sale to current option holders at the Memorial Stadium ticket office.

The ticket office will be open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., including the lunch hour.

Option holders will have through Friday, Aug. 11, to renew their options for the coming season. Beginning Monday, Aug. 14, all remaining season tickets will be sold to the general public on a "first come basis.

This is a critical time for current season ticket holders since they can lose their options and the seats they are used to if not renewed at this time. It's even more critical for Midland Lee option holders since all of the available Rebel tickets are expected to be claimed this year and there is a waiting list.

The Midland High season package contains four games for $16. The $4 charge per season ticket represents no change in price from last year. The package also includes a ticket for the MHS-Lee game, Sept. 29. That game is a potential sellout.

The Lee season package contains five games for $20. That package includes a ticket for the game against Odessa Permian, Nov. 3. That game will be televised on a delayed basis by Home Sports Entertainment in Texas and live over SportsChannel America in 40 other states. That game has been switched from an 8 p.m. start to a 7 p.m. contest. With the tremendous interest in this game, there is expected to be no pre-game sale for this contest during the season.

However, the Lee package does not contain a ticket for the Lee-MHS game since Lee is the visiting team this year. Option holders, however, may purchase a sixth ticket for an extra $5 to include that contest. That would bring the total Lee home package to $25.

Fans who wish not to purchase season tickets, pre-game tickets will be sold each week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and until 1 p.m. each Friday at a price tag of $5. Again, this is no increase from last year. Student pre-game tickets are $1.

Fans who usually buy tickets at the gate on Friday nights will see a ticket price increase this year. All adult tickets sold at the gate on game day will be $6 and student tickets will be $3.

King rules after Open's first round

LAKE ORION, Mich. (AP) — Apparently it will take more than the heather and hype in this year's U.S. Women's Open to shake Betsy King.

Currently in the midst of her best year on the LPGA Tour, King fired a 4-under-par 67 in Thursday's opening round at the Indianwood Country Club course, whose heather-infested rough surrendered only three sub-par rounds.

That was one stroke better than Marie-Laure de Lorenzi-Taya, the latest of the European challengers who in recent years have kept the U.S. Open trophy out of American hands.

King tamed the 6,109-yard Scottish-looking course with six birdies and a solid tee-to-green effort that saw her hit 15 greens in regulations and need only 28 putts.

"It's a tough course, but it's not as tough as it looks," King said after her round. "If you keep it in play off the tee, you can score on this course."

King, 33, is seeking her fifth win this season but first U.S. Open title. Her earnings of $423,794 leads the LPGA, and after Thursday's round, King sounded like a golfer in total command of her game.

"I played about as well as I can today," King said. "I made three or four putts from about 20 feet from places it's best not to be on this course."

King turned the front side in 2-under 33, and went to four under with an eight-foot birdie putt on the par-4 11th and a 25-foot, double-breaker on the 456-yard par-5 12th. She nullified a bogey at the par-4 16th with a 20-foot downhill putt on 18 that dropped into the right side of the cup.

King said Indianwood's slick greens, which claimed countless three-putts from the field of 156 players, were ideal for her putting style.

"I think I'm a much better putter on fast greens," she said. "I think I have a good imagination and these greens definitely require that."

LPGA's Betsy King
...taking charge in U.S. Open

De Lorenzi-Taya, winner of 11 tournaments on the European circuit the past two years, stayed in King's shadow with five birdies.

Playing with Hall of Famer Nancy Lopez, the French-born 28-year-old de Lorenzi-Taya was unfazed by both her company and the fact she was playing he first round ever in a U.S. Open.

"I was a little nervous at the start, but once I hit my first tee shot, everything was fine," she said.

De Lorenzi-Taya is trying to become the third straight European to win the Open. England's Laura Davies won in 1987 and Sweden's Liselotte Neumann won it last year as a rookie on the LPGA circuit.

Jane Geddes, the last American to win the U.S. Open — 1986 — was the only other player to break par in the opening round. Playing in the morning, before intermittent rain and wind toughened conditions, Geddes carded a 1-under 70.

"I drove the ball extremely well," she said. "The course is playing very difficult and I'm very pleased with my round."

Thirteen players were at even par, including Neumann, who is trying to become the first back-to-back winner since Hollis Stacy did it in 1978.

Neumann conceded the defending champion label affected her first-round play.

"My putting (25 putts) saved my day," she said. "I was really nervous the first couple of holes. I think the first round is the worst."

Lopez, who has won 40 tournaments in 13 years but never the Open, was two under through 12 holes but bogeyed four of the next five holes and finished with a 73. Also in that group were Beth Daniel, Amy Alcott, Davies, Pat Bradley and the low amateur, Vicki Goetze of Hull, Ga.

Deborah McHaffie, 31, who first touched a club only eight years ago, has won $52,893 on the LPGA tour this year and is making a serious run at the 44th U.S. Women's Open title this week.

McHaffie was one of 13 players at even-par 71.

Mookie gets rich, Reggie smiles

Williamson

The newest applicant for American Express is none other than former Midland College basketball player Mookie Blaylock.

Wednesday Blaylock signed a four-year contract with the New Jersey Nets worth over $2 million. He will be paid $500,000 for his rookie season right off the campus of Oklahoma. He will be making in the $800,000 range at the end of his contract.

Mookie is probably visiting some car lot today or having an extensive talk with some architect. After all, you have to find ways to spend your time and money. As they say, he has it made.

Blaylock was the 12th overall pick in the recent NBA draft, which is the highest draft pick of any former player from Midland College. Ricky Grace was a third round choice last year by Utah. Spud Webb, who is now with the Atlanta Hawks, was a fifth round selection by Detroit a few years back and Robert Tate was a sixth round pick by the Chicago Bulls in 1982.

That should officially make Midland College "Guard U." All of those players are guards.

But the news of Blaylock's recent signing has MC coach Reggie Franklin smiling from ear-to-ear. Naturally, he hopes some fringe recruiting benefits will come the way of the Green and Gold in future recruiting seasons.

"You never know how something like this will benefit Midland College," said Franklin. "After all, when you see Spud on TV, they say he is from N.C. State. And you will hear Oklahoma's name in connection with Mookie when he starts playing.

"A lot of high school kids we recruit know these names, but they don't know they played at Midland College. We hope to publicize our great athletes more. We're adding Mookie to our recruiting highlight film."

Blaylock is one of the recruits Franklin brought to MC.

"He's one of my babies," says Franklin. "I hope he gets even richer. I also hopes he goes on and matures like Webb and Grace. Spud called me the other day and I asked him, 'What do you need?' He said, 'Nothing coach. I just called to see how you are doing.' Spud is a man now. He's not the same shy kid we had here in 1981."

Franklin also remembers his recruiting days with Blaylock and said that Mookie wasn't a tough sell.

"Mookie came along before Prop. 48, but he was only recruited seriously by UTEP and some junior colleges. His grades weren't that bad, but they weren't up to par, and I guess, that some colleges had reservations about him.

"In high school at Garland, he was a great point guard and I saw him for the first time in a high school All-Star game in Houston. I couldn't believe his quickness and intensity on defense. He never wasted a motion or a step.

"When I talked with Mookie about Midland College, I told him if he would come to MC, he would be All-America. He said, 'OK.'"

Franklin remembers that Blaylock had a fear of flying.

"I liked to have never got him out here for a visit because he didn't want to get on the plane," said Franklin. "Now he's going to live on one."

When Franklin recruited Blaylock, he quickly faced a problem.

"Mookie was a true point guard in high school, but we had Ricky Grace at point and he was going to be a sophomore. We put Mookie at the shooting guard and he loved it. He probably scored more points for us than he ever did in high school."

Franklin has a special interest in JC basketball. After all, his living currently depends on it. However, his roots run much deeper into JC soil.

"I believe in junior college ball," says Franklin. "I'm a product of junior college. I was a nobody at Houston Yates, but I got recruited by New Mexico Military Institute because I could dunk the ball. Then I was All-Conference my first year at NMMI."

That experience paved the way for Franklin to SMU and the Harlem Globetrotters. And now he has seen three of the JC players he has coached drafted by the NBA.

So, what is a basketball scholarship to MC worth? Mookie Blaylock just sent the price tag up.

Astros, Phillies split pair

League leading Giants gain ground

Associated Press

This hasn't exactly been a season to remember for Mark Davidson.

That was until Thursday night.

Davidson hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning, triggering the Houston Astros to a 3-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. It was only his third big-league homer.

The win came in the second game of a twi-night doubleheader in which the Phillies won Game 1, 11-3, with the help of rookie Charlie Hayes' three-run double in a six-run third inning.

Davidson this season hit .177 for Portland in the Triple A Pacific Coast League.

Things started to get better for him after the Astros acquired him from the Minnesota Twins the first week in June and sent him to Tucson. There, he had a .357 hitting stretch in 21 games with six doubles, one triple and three homers. The Astros liked what they saw and brought him up July 8.

He had three at-bats going into Thursday's second game against the Phillies. He popped up the first time.

But in his second appearance he sent a 1-1 pitch from Dennis Cook over the left-center field wall to give the Astros a 2-0 lead.

Davidson remembered Cook from Triple-A ball.

"He always gave me trouble," said Davidson after ripping Cook for his first NL hit and the Astros' first hit of the game.

Ken Caminiti started the Houston fifth with a walk, and after one out, Davidson hit his home run.

Alex Trevino then tripled and scored on pitcher Bob Forsch's infield out to make it 3-0.

"That first hit should help me relax," said Davidson, 28.

"I've been trying to be aggressive at bat," he added.

Davidson said he wasn't sure what the switch from the Minnesota system to Houston would mean to him.

"I don't know if it's a better chance, but it's a new look, a change of scenery."

Davidson said he had nobody to blame for his lack of success at Minnesota.

"You have to create your own breaks. I had not played well. Last year I had a late-season slump. I guess they just gave up on me."

Forsch, 39, evened his record at 2-2, going 6⅓ innings, allowing four hits and no runs, striking out three and walking two. It was his 25th victory in his 15-year career over the Phillies, the most by any pitcher.

Giants 3, Pirates 2

Will Clark lined a single to left field to score Brett Butler with none out in the 13th inning, lifting San Francisco past Pittsburgh at Candlestick Park.

Butler led off the 13th with a line drive single off third baseman Bobby Bonilla's glove. Miguel Garcia, 0-2, then allowed a bunt single to Robby Thompson and Clark lined a 2-2 pitch into left to score Butler.

Jeff Brantley, 5-0, pitched the final four innings for the victory.

Pittsburgh's Barry Bonds led off the game with home run for the 18th time in his career.

Expos 6, Reds 3

Dennis Martinez won his ninth straight decision and Spike Owen capped a three-run seventh inning with a run-scoring single.

The Reds have lost four straight and 20 of their last 29 games.

Martinez, 10-1, allowed six hits in six innings and singled home a run as he set a club record by winning his ninth straight decision. His only loss was to the Reds in Cincinnati on April 25.

Charlie Lea won eight consecutive decisions in 1983 for the previous Expos record. Martinez's nine victories have come in a span of 13 starts, including four no-decisions.

Dodgers 3, Cardinals 2

Orel Hershiser allowed two runs in 8 1-3 innings and Eddie Murray drove in two runs as Los Angeles beat St. Louis at Dodger Stadium.

Hershiser, 10-7, allowed six hits before Jay Howell got the last two outs for his 16th save.

Rookie right-hander Ken Hill, who has beaten the Dodgers twice this season, fell to 5-5.

Jose Oquendo extended his hitting streak to 11 games for St. Louis with two hits and an RBI.

Mets 5, Braves 1

Darryl Strawberry and Gregg Jefferies each hit home runs as visiting New York extended its winning streak to four games by beating Atlanta.

Both homers came off Pete Smith, 2-11, with Strawberry hitting his 18th in the fifth inning and Jefferies his second in the second.

Ron Darling, 7-6, pitched a five-hitter and improved his lifetime record against the Braves to 9-1. He had a shutout bid stopped in the eighth when Jeff Blauser led off with his fifth home run.

Cubs 7, Padres 3

Jerome Walton went 4-for-4 and Greg Maddux continued his mastery of San Diego as Chicago beat the Padres at Jack Murphy Stadium.

Franco nails former mates

Canseco returns to lineup with homer

Associated Press

Julio Franco insists there are no hard feelings, no extra incentives, when he steps to the plate against his former Cleveland teammates.

His numbers seem to indicate otherwise.

Franco singled home the tiebreaking run during a six-run 11th inning Thursday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Indians 9-3. Franco went 2-for-five in the game and is hitting .406 against Cleveland, which traded him in December.

"I put those things behind me," said Franco, who had a reputation as an unsettling influence during his six years as an Indian. "What they did, they thought was best for the organization. I'm glad they traded me, because Texas wanted me."

The Indians traded Franco to the Rangers for Pete O'Brien, Jerry Browne and Oddibe McDowell. O'Brien and Browne have played well, but McDowell started slowly and has since been traded away.

"I still talk with them (Cleveland's players)," Franco said. "It's fun being with them. But I love being in Texas."

He's hitting .334 with 64 RBIs for the Rangers, who have won four of their last five games. The Indians have lost three straight.

Cleveland scored single runs in the first and third innings on a pair of O'Brien RBI singles. The second one was his 1,000th career hit.

The Indians added a run in the fourth on Felix Fermin's RBI forceout.

They didn't have a runner in scoring position over the next seven innings against four Texas pitchers. Jeff Russell, 5-2, got the win by striking out the only batter he faced in the 10th.

Texas scored once in the second on Franco's double and twice in the fifth on consecutive RBI singles by Jim Sundberg and Cecil Espy. Espy had a career-high five hits.

"Our pitchers held them for 10 innings," Cleveland manager Doc Edwards said. "They made it sudden death for us in the ninth and the 10th, and we couldn't come through. We had from the fifth inning on to score one run, and we didn't."

The Indians are last in the league in scoring.

Athletics 11, Blue Jays 7

Jose Canseco returned to the Oakland lineup and hit a home run and Mark McGwire and Dave Parker added three-run homers.

Canseco, last season's American League MVP with a league-high 42 home runs, missed the Athletics' first 86 games with a wrist injury. Despite not playing a game this year, Canseco was voted to the AL's starting All-Star team by the fans. He did not play in Tuesday night's game.

For the last few weeks, Canseco had been playing with the A's Southern League farm team in Huntsville.

Yankees 6, Royals 0

Andy Hawkins retired the first 20 batters he faced and finished with a three-hitter as New York beat Kansas City.

Hawkins, 11-8, pitched his second straight shutout and won for the sixth time in his last seven decisions. He struck out a season-high eight and walked one.

American League

Don Mattingly capped a four-run Yankee fifth with his 12th homer of the season after Roberto Kelly doubled in a run and Luis Polonia drove in another with a sacrifice fly off Kansas City starter Mark Gubicza, 8-7.

Red Sox 3, Twins 1

Roger Clemens pitched a two-hitter over eight innings to outduel Frank Viola as Boston defeated Minnesota, handing the Twins their seventh straight loss.

Clemens, 10-6, gave up only two singles, struck out five and walked four before getting relief help from Lee Smith.

Smith pitched the ninth for his 13th save, his eighth in a row since June 13. The save was the 222nd of Smith's career, tying him for sixth place on the all-time list with Sparky Lyle.

Boston scored twice in the eighth to snap a 1-1 tie against Viola, 7-10, who allowed only three hits in eight innings.

Angels 13, Orioles 5

Lance Parrish hit a tie-breaking solo homer in the sixth inning as California overcame an early four-run deficit to defeat Baltimore.

Parrish hit a 1-2 pitch from reliever Mark Thurmond, 2-3, for his 11th homer a half-inning after the Orioles had tied the score at 5 on a sacrifice fly by Joe Orsulak.

After the Angels made it 7-5 on a two-out, RBI single by Wally Joyner, Jack Howell hit a two-run homer off Mike Smith in the seventh. Dick Schofield added a three-run homer in the ninth.

Bert Blyleven, 9-2, won his fifth straight decision, allowing five runs and nine hits in six innings. He reached the 3,500-strikeout level and moved within eight of Walter Johnson, whose 3,508 ranks sixth on baseball's all-time strikeout list.

Mariners 5, Tigers 4

Edgar Martinez's two-out single off Mike Schwabe in the 12th led Seattle over Detroit, handing the Tigers their eighth straight loss. The losing streak is the longest for the Tigers since September 1985.

Harold Reynolds singled with two outs, Greg Briley followed with a single and Martinez knocked in Reynolds from second on a 3-2 pitch.

Bill Swift, 6-2, pitched the last two innings for the victory, while Schwabe, 2-4, pitched the final inning for the Tigers.

The Tigers tied the game 4-4 in the bottom of the ninth on a one-out RBI single by Lou Whitaker off Mike Schooler.

White Sox 5, Brewers 4

Dan Plesac issued a bases-loaded walk to Ivan Calderon with one out in the ninth inning, boosting Chicago over Milwaukee.

Ozzie Guillen reached first leading off the ninth against Tony Fossas, 1-1, when shortstop Gary Sheffield threw wildly to first for the Brewers' league-leading 92nd error.

Bobby Thigpen, 1-3, won his first game since a July 1, 1988 decision against the New York Yankees.

Sutton out to shake PGA Tour's criticism

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — For two years, Hal Sutton has heard the whispers and seen the stories suggesting he no longer has what it takes to win on the PGA Tour.

Now it's his turn to answer the criticism that has been directed his way.

"It's kind of fueled the fire a little bit," Sutton said Thursday after his 7-under-par 64 tied him with Tim Simpson for the lead after the first round of the Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

"If I weren't trying, it might not hurt so bad," said Sutton, a non-winner since 1986, "but I'm really, really trying, and it does hurt."

Sutton and Simpson both had bogey-free rounds to come within one shot of the course record at the 6,776-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course and take a one-shot lead over Tim Norris, Chris Perry and Mike Hulbert.

Opening with 66s were Fuzzy Zoeller, Ian Baker-Finch and Don Shirey.

Eleven players were at 67, and the group at 68 included Curtis Strange, the two-time U.S. Open champion who lives at Kingsmill, and former Midlander John Adams. Also at that figure was Bill Britton, who carded the first double eagle on tour this year when he used a 4-wood to hole his second shot at No. 3, a 514-yard par-5.

Sutton, who like Simpson eagled the third hole, said his round was the latest stage in his effort to return to the form that made him the tour's leading money-winner in 1983.

Between 1982, his rookie year, and 1986, Sutton won seven tournaments and nearly $1.7 million. In addition to going winless since then, Sutton last year was 88th on the money list.

Sutton attributed his recent difficulties to two factors, the first of which was a swing imbalance he was able to correct in recent weeks on the practice tee.

"It took me six weeks of hard, hard work to get my golf game to where I've never gotten it before," he said.

The other factor was his attitude.

"I kind of wish I had listened to my dad," he said. "When I was 26 years old, he told me I was loafing, and I said, 'No, I'm not.'

"But let's kind of put it in perspective a little bit. I'd made more money by the time I was 24 years old than I had ever dreamed possible."

Finks turns attention to unsigned Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Preparing for the New Orleans Saints' 1989 season is more of a worry for team president Jim Finks than whether NFL owners elect him commissioner.

"I'm sick of hearing about it and I think everyone else is," Finks said of the search for a new commissioner. "We've got bigger fish to fry. Our training camp starts in a week and that's what we're focusing on."

The Saints open training camp July 21 at LaCrosse, Wis. Finks said signing the 12 draft choices and 12 veterans still without contracts is his biggest job for now.

"We have 12 unsigned veteran players and we have not signed any draft choices. Our camp starts in a few days, so we have plenty to do," Finks said Thursday. "At this point I'm not going anywhere. I'm not being replaced here. I'm not worrying about anything except this job."

Finks, the only nominee recommended by a search committee to replace the retiring Pete Rozelle, said he was unaware of a pact signed by the 11 owners who blocked the election of a commissioner during last week's league meeting at Chicago.

Finks fell three votes short of the 19 needed for election. In both votes, 16 owners voted for Finks, 11 abstained and one was absent.

Though the abstainees apparently were more unhappy with the selection process than with the nominee, Finks said he couldn't accept that.

"It's a process that's been in this league for 50 years," Finks said. "It takes more than a simple majority. It takes a two-thirds majority to get anything done and why should this be any exception?"

He said it was a matter that would take care of itself.

"I don't want to talk about it or hear about it," Finks said of the commissioner's job. "What is there to say? Nothing. At this point, I'm not going anywhere. I'm staying here and doing my job. There's plenty to keep me busy without worrying about what's going to happen with that."

Finks said he hadn't set any deadline for the negotiations with the league, and hasn't ruled out leaving the Saints in midseason.

"I don't have any timetable, it's never gotten that far. That's just speculation. I'm just getting ready go to LaCrosse and looking forward to the 1989 season."

MID CITY

Offensively, Mid City got things going in the third inning when Clay Johnston hit a solo home run, the first of two big shots on the night. In all, Johnston ended up with four RBI. Mid City held a 3-0 lead after the third after singles by Carlos Montes, Jeremy Bradley, Miles Hartman and Denson.

Johnston hit a towering three-run homer in a six-run fifth, scoring Bishop and Bayley.

Bishop drove in a run with a single in the six-run fifth and Lance Jamerson scored on a bases loaded grounder by Rob Lawson. Miles Hartman later scored on a run down on the same play.

Mid City now owns a 3-0 tournament record and is 23-2 for the season. The victory places the Midland team in the tournament semifinals against Lamesa tonight and it is a key game since the the winner will not have to play again until Wednesday. The loser drops down into the loser's bracket.

Lamesa advanced to the semifinal game with a seven inning 6-2 win over Big Spring International.

Only six of the original 16 teams are still alive in the double elimination event. The other four Midland teams (Western, Eastern, Tower and North Central) were eliminated earlier in the week.

Mid City is coached by Joe Nobles and Clay Givens.

NFL managers play hardball with unsigned

Associated Press

This is the fourth straight year since the demise of the USFL that NFL training camps will open with a lot of players unsigned. It is a situation that leaves agents fuming at general managers playing hardball.

Reggie White and Mike Quick are threatening to stay out of the Philadelphia Eagles camp. New York Giants quarterback Phil Simms may do the same when the New York Giants begin practice.

And, as of Thursday, only 35 of the NFL's 334 draft choices had signed contracts.

Contributing to the situation is the 80-man training camp roster limit established by the owners last March. Many teams are already at the 80-player level and each new player they sign means they will have to cut another. Washington, for example, has 87 players under contract, but has 10 unsigned rookies and three unsigned veterans.

"It's unbelievable," agent Leigh Steinberg said. "They just don't seem ready to do any business."

ACTUALLY, Steinberg has already done business, which may be one reason for the slow pace.

He represents Troy Aikman, the UCLA quarterback who was the first player taken in the draft by the Dallas Cowboys. Before the draft, Aikman signed an $11 million, six-year contract, making him the highest-paid rookie in history. Steinberg has also negotiated a $10 million, five-year deal for Houston quarterback Warren Moon.

The only other first-round draft choice to sign is wide receiver Andre Rison of Indianapolis, who agreed to a $3 million, five-year deal shortly after the draft. Rison was the 22nd player chosen and his signing led to grumbling that he and Aikman had already inflated the cost of doing business.

In fact, of the 35 rookies signed, 27 were chosen after the seventh round.

In the past few years, teams have generally used a "slotting" system basing salary on a player's draft position.

The same kind of system applies to veterans. Washington cornerback Darrell Green wants $1 million a year, but is waiting for the signing of two cornerbacks of comparable worth, Albert Lewis of Kansas City and Hanford Dixon of Cleveland.

"The market will be set by these three guys and it's almost a who's-going-to-go-in-first? situation," Green's agent, Kyle Rote Jr., said.

A few veterans have gone in first, notably Cleveland quarterback Bernie Kosar, who got a new six-year deal averaging more than $2 million a season.

But others are staying put.

White, the Eagles' All-Pro defensive end and the NFL defensive player of the year two years ago, is seeking a contract at least comparable to the $7.5 million over five years given to Buffalo's Bruce Smith. Smith only signed because Buffalo was forced to match a free-agent offer tendered by Denver.

AND QUICK, Philadelphia's Pro Bowl wide receiver, says he's nowhere near agreement.

If there is any consolation for the Eagles, it is that their two chief rivals in the NFC East are also having contract problems.

While Washington worries about Green, the Giants are working on extending the contract of their quarterback. In any event, Simms will almost surely pass Lawrence Taylor, due to make $1.1 million this year, as the team's highest-paid player and perhaps causing problems with Taylor, who stayed out of mini-camp to protest his contract.

Simms, the most valuable player in the 1987 Super Bowl, is due to be paid $800,000 in the final year of the contract he signed in 1985. That makes him 22nd in salaries among NFL quarterbacks, fifth in his division.

He is seeking a three-year contract at $1.6 million, a 100 percent raise. The Giants are offering $1.2 million and Simms' agent, David Fishof, isn't happy.

"We are not going to report until we settle this whole thing," Fishof said. "Phil is committed to this."

Aikman says leadership will come without White

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Rookie Troy Aikman says he, or one of the other new faces on the Dallas Cowboys, will be ready to provide team leadership with the retirement of veteran quarterback Danny White.

The Cowboys will have quarterback talent from which to choose, according to Aikman, the Cowboys' first-round draft choice out of UCLA.

Aikman, of Henryetta, Okla., who played his first two years of college at Oklahoma, spoke to reporters Thursday night prior to a charity dinner honoring team owner Jerry Jones.

The Cowboys also have University of Miami quarterback Steve Walsh, whom they took in last week's supplemental draft. Scott Secules is entering his second season, and last year's starter, Steve Pelluer, is holding out in a contract dispute.

That leaves Babe Laufenberg as the only player at this week's quarterbacks school who has taken an NFL snap. But Aikman and Coach Jimmy Johnson, also attending the dinner, were optimistic.

"Danny was definitely one of the leaders on the football team. It's time for one of us to step to the front and become the new leader, whether it be myself or whoever the quarterback is that's playing next year," Aikman said.

"You just realize what a business it is and how guys come and go," Aikman said, a day after White announced he was ending a 13-year NFL career.

"I've seen a lot of players go and it's been sad. But Danny and I were just becoming really close. He was probably the closest I've been to any of the players," Aikman said. "It was a sad time for me and I didn't know him half as well as a majority of the players did, me being a rookie, and it was a tough time to see him leave."

Of the Cowboys, whose 3-13 record last year was the worst in the league, Aikman said, "I know I would be disappointed if we didn't finish above .500 and I think we've got a realistic chance of getting into the playoffs. Some people might say those expectations are too high but I honestly don't think they are."

Johnson was also enthusiastic about the rookies.

"I think you've got to look at the situation that we have. The ideal situation would be to have an extremely talented individual that has experience," Johnson told reporters.

However, "What we have is a new offensive system with a new coaching staff and really our rookie quarterbacks were as far along as the veterans," Johnson said. "A rookie may very well be better-equipped to go into the season than a veteran."

Houston adds race intrigue

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — The sprinters in New York so far this year have been a gritty but uninspiring bunch.

Every three or four weeks, it seemed, Pok Ta Pok would take on Dr. Carrington and True and Blue, and while the contests were good entertainment, you couldn't help thinking that none of them looked like an Eclipse Award-winning sprinter.

Then along came Dancing Spree, who trounced that familiar bunch in the True North Handicap, but then went on to longer and richer things like winning the Suburban Handicap.

Now Saturday, in the Tom Fool Stakes at Belmont, a whole new cast of sprinters will begin trying to make a dent on the division.

The most intriguing entrant is Houston, the lone 3-year-old in the field of six who is owned by Midland's L.R. French and Barry Beal.

Houston's early sprints were so quick and precocious that he looked like a colt of limitless potential, but he proved unready or unable to run well in longer races when he tried the Derby and the Preakness this spring. Now he has been freshened and may be back where he belongs.

His older opponents are an interesting bunch. Claim looked like the top sprinter in the trainer Shug McGaughey's care until Dancing Spree came along. Sewickley has quietly improved into a top sprinter, and it was no fluke that he was beaten just a head by Seeking the Gold in May.

Quick Call, who was competitive with the best last summer and fall, is back in action after a long freshening. Crusader Sword, who won the Hopeful two years ago, is finally coming around again at shorter distances.

Duplicate pairs can prove to be an interesting game to kibitz if you were to be permitted to follow a particular board from table to table. Most pairs failed to make three no trump on this deal from a pair championship, but a few managed to demonstrate that the contract was unbeatable.

It was a difficult hand to bid, because most players use a secondary jump in their suit as invitational, not forcing. Therefore, three diamonds would have been an underbid, so most Norths chose a jump to three clubs, and that resulted in a three no trump contract.

West's lead of a spade was damaging, since it removed one of the two entries to dummy before it could be put to good use. At some tables declarer came to hand with the ace of clubs, East following with the queen, to lead a diamond to the king. East simply refused to win the trick and the diamond suit was dead, since declarer had only one entry and needed two to establish and run the suit.

Other declarers used the entry to hand to finesse the ten of diamonds. East took the jack and shifted to clubs, and the defenders forced out dummy's remaining entry before the diamonds were set up.

The winning line is to lead the ten (or nine) of diamonds from dummy at trick two. East must win with the jack and let's suppose he shifts to a club (a heart is no better). Declarer wins in hand and forces out the ace of diamonds, and the king of clubs is still on the table as an entry to the diamonds.

Syracuse chooses football scrimmage over Stones show

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Rolling Stones fans will be disappointed that a concert by their rock 'n' roll idols was scrapped in favor of a Syracuse University football scrimmage.

Athletic Director Jake Crouthamel refused to allow the Rolling Stones to open their new tour Sept. 1 at the dome because preparations for the concert would have conflicted with an intrasquad football scrimmage and dinner for the team's booster club scheduled for the previous day.

"I couldn't believe my ears when I heard he said no," said Barbara Hoffman, spokeswoman for the concert promoter.

The rock band will instead open its first tour in eight years at Rich Stadium near Buffalo on Sept. 1.

Pat Campbell, assistant director of the 50,000-seat dome, said the dinner and scrimmage "means a lot — more than any concert — as far as the university is concerned."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roseanne Barr, the hefty star of the top-rated TV sitcom "Roseanne," is divorcing her husband of 15 years, blaming the split on irreconcilable differences.

Barr

Miss Barr filed her petition to divorce William Pentland in Superior Court Thursday. The papers said the couple separated on April 1.

The comedian-actress, who portrays a sarcastic, overweight housewife in her highly successful ABC television show, is seeking joint custody of the couple's three children.

The youngsters, Jessica, 14, Jennifer 13, and Jake, 12, live with their mother, according to the petition.

The divorce petition does not seek any spousal or child support. The couple married Feb. 4, 1974.

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — When Tiny Tim got a request to sing his old hit "Tiptoe Through the Tulips" at a department store, he threw his hands in the air and ran out of the store.

"This came at a very untimely moment," Tim said Thursday at a news conference with other Red River Valley Fair entertainers.

Tim said he was trying to decide what skin-care products to buy earlier this week at Delendrecie's in the West Acres shopping mall when a sales clerk asked him to sing the song.

"I said, 'Listen, I don't get any products free here, and I'm certainly not going to do a number here,'" Tim said.

The singer said he only had about $200 to spend and was trying to choose from about $1,000 worth of products at the time.

Tim apologized for the incident Thursday, and a store spokesman said Delendrecie's hopes there is no hard feelings as well.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Trumpeter Al Hirt has Grammies and gold records, but he says an award from the New Orleans Saints football Hall of Fame means more.

Hirt, who played during halftimes in the Saints' early years, was honored Thursday with the museum's Fleur De Lis Award.

"I love this team," he said.

He said he was the team's biggest cheerleader during the team's beginnings in the late 1960s.

"We used to play right behind the bench and I'd lead the fans in cheering 'Go Saints Go.' Sometimes I'd forget to shut the microphone off and lead them in something I wasn't supposed to," Hirt said.

Hirt, 66, no longer plays at games, but he still goes.

"This is the greatest team ever," he said.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Phyllis George, a former Miss America who went on to become a television personality, will co-host this year's Miss America Pageant with Gary Collins, the pageant's director said.

George

Ms. George's selection is part of the pageant's push to promote "today's modern, educated woman," Leonard Horn said Thursday.

"The Miss America competition helped open doors for her, and with her talents, she has achieved a great deal," he said.

After being crowned Miss America 1971, Ms. George went on to become a television sportscaster and newscaster, an author and lecturer. For eight seasons, she was anchorwoman of CBS Sports' "NFL Today."

Today, Ms. George, 40, operates her own line of food products called "Chicken By George."

Unlike last year's co-host, Miss America 1959 Mary Ann Mobley, Ms. George will not sing and dance. "That's not Phyllis," Horn said.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Sidney Hook, a philosopher, author and educator who had been a leading figure in American intellectual circles since the late 1920s, died Wednesday of congestive heart failure at age 86.

Hook became a leading proponent of philosopher John Dewey's ideals, known as pragmatism. His first book, "The Metaphysics of Pragmatism" was published in 1927.

Hook became an international figure in 1933 upon publication of "Towards the Understanding of Karl Marx."

His best-known work, "The Hero in History," published in 1943, is still widely used in college classrooms.

In 1951, Hook founded the American Committee for Cultural Freedom. He was an early critic of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, a controversial Republican who charged that communists had infiltrated the U.S. government.

Since 1973, Hook had been a senior research fellow at the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace on the Stanford University campus. He took the position after retiring from New York University. Hook had taught at NYU since 1927 and was chairman of the philosophy department until 1968.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Kirk Douglas settled his lawsuit against Sperry Corp., which dropped him as spokesman two years ago when it merged with Burroughs Corp. to form Unisys Corp.

The settlement, for an undisclosed amount, occurred Thursday just as jury selection was to begin in federal court in Manhattan.

"I've never been in a courtroom before except in a movie — and then I always knew my lines," Douglas said after the settlement.

Douglas had filed a breach of contract suit two years ago against Sperry and Unisys, claiming termination of the contract wrecked his chances of getting a "similarly prestigious and rewarding contract with any other major U.S. corporation."

Wholesale prices post small decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell 0.1 percent in June, the first drop in 18 months, driven down by steep declines in energy and food prices, the government said today.

The slight decline in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index suprised most economists, who were expecting a moderate increase of 0.3 percent, and marked a sharp turnaround from the big 0.9 percent jump in May.

In another report, the Commerce Department said retail sales fell 0.4 percent in June — their first monthly back-to-back drop in more than two years — as consumer spending remained sluggish, particularly for cars and other more costly durable goods.

Energy costs, which had soared more than 20 percent over the first five months of the year, fell 3.1 percent in June, the biggest drop in three years.

Food prices fell 0.8 percent, the steepest in a year and a half, reversing an identical increase in May.

Despite the overall decline, economists were likely to read mixed signals from the June report because goods other than food and energy rose 0.7 percent, the largest increase since October 1986.

Because food and energy prices swing widely from month to month and are less influenced by the economy as a whole, analysts look to the inflation rate of other goods as an indicator of underlying inflationary pressures in the economy.

Despite the drop in the index last month, wholesale inflation for the first half of 1989 hit a fast 7.6 percent annual pace, nearly double last year's 4 percent rise.

The Labor Department said prices of tomatoes and celery, which had doubled in May, fell sharply in June. Vegetables overall fell 8 percent last month, following a 26.4 percent rise in May.

Other food catagories posting declines in May were: pasta, 9 percent; fish, 7.3 percent; chickens, 5.2 percent, and beef and veal, 3.8 percent.

Prices rose for pork, turkey, fresh fruit, eggs and candy.

Energy costs fell across the board with drops of 8 percent for fuel oil, 4 percent for gasoline and 2 percent for natural gas.

The department said the increase in other catagories was driven primarily by a 5.8 percent jump in cigarettes and other tobacco products and for ships.

Prices for prescription and over-the-counter drugs, soaps and furniture also rose, while prices for flatware, women's clothing, jewelry, glassware and cosmetics declined.

The overall June decline left the Producer Price Index for finished goods one stop short of retail at 114.1, meaning that a hypothetical selection of goods costing $100 in 1982 would have cost $114.10 last

Differences between negotiators stall S&L bill

AP Laserphoto

Senate Banking Committee Chairman Donald Riegle, left, and House Banking Committee Chairman Henry Gonzales talk Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $157 billion taxpayer bailout of savings and loan losses is snarled in Congress over differences in the approaches of key negotiators attempting to craft a package agreeable to both the House and Senate.

An effort to have a bill ready for President Bush's signature in August stalled Thursday night after Senate negotiators surprised House conferees with an all-encompassing compromise proposal and demanded its consideration.

The chief House negotiator, Banking Committee Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, described the offer as "aggravating" and a "horrendous injustice" to an agreement earlier to consider the hundreds of differences between the Senate and House versions piece by piece.

"We'll be doing all that step by step and it will take us until Christmas," said Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa. "It's to the advantage of all concerned to open the deck and put all 52 cards on the table face up."

The two sides were scheduled to meet again today, but all five senators and several of the 94 House members in the conference said they don't expect any substantive issues to be resolved until next week.

The Senate proposal includes most of the tougher capital and regulatory requirements approved by the House and endorsed by Bush. It also accepts new House-approved housing subsidies opposed by the administration and rejected by the Senate.

But the proposal also supports Bush's plan to pay for the bailout through 30-year private bonds as a way to prevent the costs from swelling the federal deficit.

The House, in the biggest confrontation of the debate dividing Democrats and Republicans along party lines, has demanded some $45 billion of the bailout costs be reflected in the deficits for 1989, 1990 and 1991.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady issued a statement from Paris saying the administration would "strongly support" the Senate offer, but wanted to review its details. Administration officials, meanwhile, worked furiously behind the scenes Thursday night to prevent votes on specific issues.

The dispute brought to the surface major procedural differences in the way the House and the Senate have addressed the S&L crisis and the bailout — the largest in history, with an estimated cost of $1,000 to $1,500 per taxpayer.

Both Gonzalez, a populist Texas Democrat, and Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., are new to their respective banking committee chairmanships.

FSLIC set to auction items from failed S&Ls

HOUSTON (AP) — Everything from hand-carved ivory elephant tusks to office furniture and even the kitchen sink heads for the auction block this weekend as federal regulators liquidate some 20,000 items seized from failed savings and loan associations.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. is hoping the four-day auction, which begins Saturday, will raise some $500,000. Proceeds will go back to the FSLIC in hopes of putting a dent in the government's cost of bailing out defunct savings and loan associations, a cost estimated last year alone at $40 billion.

"What you see are the signs of success that turned out to be the products of failure," auctioneer Mark Thomas, of Texarkana, Texas, said Thursday. "It's continuously surprising."

The auction is the first of four the agency is planning. Another is scheduled for next month in Dallas and the third will be in September again in Houston. The fourth one is not yet scheduled.

Among the 20,000 items are four large wooden elephants — two about 5 feet tall and two others slightly smaller — that at one time were kept in an Austin savings association office.

Bargain hunters this weekend will get to pick from the carcasses of 34 S&Ls — 32 from Texas and two from Oklahoma — that were placed in receivership last year, casualties of the energy and real estate collapse earlier in the decade.

Bids will be taken on everything from 30 cars and trucks, including a 1957 Bentley, to bank safes, desks and chairs, countless calculators and typewriters, computer terminals, paintings, sculptures, Japanese vases, a Persian rug and the three hand-carved ivory elephant tusks.

The Bentley doesn't run.

Of the two kitchen sinks in the inventory, one likely will work. It's still in its original box.

"This is a sign of the old times and once the cleanup is complete, hopefully we won't see this again," John Pace, manager of receivership activi-

EOR research receives more federal funds

From Staff Reports

Congressman Lamar Smith has announced a funding increase for enhanced oil recovery research.

Smith, a member of the House Energy Research Subcommittee, announced that EOR research received a 17 percent funding increase when the House approved the Interior Appropriations bill for 1990, approving $27.5 million for next year.

"This kid of research funding is exactly what I have been pushing for since the start of the budget process," Smith said. "It is money that will go a long way toward advancing the oil industry in the 21st District and across the nation."

A ortion of the approved funds will go to support geosciences research at the University of Texas, Austin. The University has set up a geoscience research consortium to study better ways to effectively extact and use fossil fuels.

In terms of overall funding, fossil energy research and development received a total of $422.6 million, an 11 percent increase over the 1989 budget.

Oryx unveils plans for office tower

DALLAS (AP) — The nation's largest independent oil company will consolidate its offices in a new office tower in suburban Dallas, the first skyscraper announced in years in this city loaded with empty office space.

Gerald D. Hines Interests, developer of ritzy shopping and office complexes in Dallas and Houston, won the intense competition for the new headquarters of Oryx Energy Co., announced Thursday.

The 26- to 28-story building, with up to 590,000 square feet, will be built about 7 miles north of the central business district near the intersection of two major highways as part of the Galleria.

The complex already includes two office towers — one of 24 stories and one of 25 — plus a hotel and four-story shopping mall with Saks Fifth Avenue, Tiffany & Co. and Cartier, plus Macy's and Marshall Field's.

"That'll be fun to see cranes again," said J. Reagan Dixon, who heads the Dallas office of Cushman & Wakefield, located across a freeway from the Galleria site. "I don't know what one looks like anymore."

Texas Safeway stores getting name change

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Safeway stores sold in a in a management-led buyout last year will be renamed AppleTree Markets in a marketing change designed to reflect a neighborhood grocery store image, company officials said Thursday.

AppleTree Markets employs 7,600 people and has 99 supermarkets in Texas, along with a fluid milk processing facility, a bread plant and warehousing and distribution facilities.

The company is based in Houston, and is no longer affiliated with California-based Safeway Stores.

"The change to AppleTree Markets signals our renewed passion for excellence in the retail grocery business," Dean Gantt, President and CEO of Texas Supermarkets Inc., said Thursday.

As part of the change, the brightly colored Safeway design will be replaced with colors of hunter green and almond, developing new decor inside and out.

"We are converting 26 stores per week with everything from employee uniforms, store signs, advertising and packaging," Gantt said.

The company has remodeled a west Austin supermarket as a prototype for its new AppleTree image, officials said. Many locations will be redesigned with juice bars, self-service salad bars and full-line floral shops.

MARKETS

Oil prices remain stable

From Staff and Wire Reports

Oil prices were trading in a narrow range at midmorning.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, August contracts for West Texas Intermediate were down 4 cents to $20.31.

The contrat gained 20 cents to $20.35 in choppy, light trading.

Refined petroleum products traded on the exchange also rose.

The August contract for home heating oil was up 0.50 cent to settle at 49.44 cents a gallon after sliding 0.34 cent on Wednesday.

Wholesale unleaded gasoline for August delivery was up 0.05 cent to settle at 57.46 cents a gallon. The gain added to Wednesday's increase of 0.79 cent a gallon.

Richard Redoglia, vice president at Merrill Lynch Energy Futures, noted that the market came back after Wednesday's technical selloff on fears that maintenance and platform workers on North Sea rigs might go on strike.

"The reports of a further work slowdown ... seemed to hold the market," he said, noting that the impact was felt particularly among crude prices.

Dollar gains strength overseas

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar firmed in light trading in Europe this morning, while gold prices were slightly weaker.

Foreign exchange dealers said their markets were subdued, awaiting release of data on the state of the U.S. economy and the start of the annual economic summit in Paris of the Group of Seven major industrial countries.

"It's going to be a wait-and-see day," said a dealer at a major West German bank in Frankfurt.

Gold opened in London at $376, up 25 cents from late Thursday. At midmorning, London's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $375 an ounce.

In Zurich, gold was trading at $375, down from $375.75 late Thursday.

In Hong Kong, gold closed at $377.39, down from $377.87 Thursday.

Silver bullion traded in London at $5.25 bid a troy ounce, unchanged from late Thursday.

Stock market contnues rising

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices posted their eight straight gain Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed Wednesday at a new high since the 1987 crash, rose another 5.69 to 2,538.32.

That extended the average's gain so far this month to 98.26 points, leaving it about 184 points shy of the record closing high of 2,722.42 it reached on Aug. 25, 1987.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 6 to 5 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 798 up, 671 down and 526 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 153.80 million shares, down from 160.55 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 183.97 million shares.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

Regulators close, sell Brownsville bank

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Regulators closed the National Bank of Commerce of Brownsville Thursday, selling it to Texas Commerce Bank Rio Grande in the 69th such action in the state this year.

TCB Rio Grande will assume about $32.9 million in deposit accounts for a premium of $623,000, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said. In addition, TCB Rio Grande will purchase about $10.5 million of the failed bank's assets, including $1 million in small loans.

The FDIC will provide $22.2 million in assistance and retain assets from the failed bank with a book value of $22.6 million.

Two Texas S&Ls taken over

DALLAS (AP) — Federal regulators took over two Texas thrifts Thursday, and changed the status of two previously acquired institutions to insulate them from creditors' claims.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board took over Cornerstone Savings Association in Houston and First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Waco, placing them in conservatorship to be managed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Regulators took the added step of placing First Federal of Waco, San Antonio Savings Association and Centennial Savings Bank in Greenville into receivership, which effectively protects them from claims of subordinated debt holders.

Assets of those three thrifts were transferred to newly chartered federal mutual institutions with similar names. Depositors are not affected by the transactions and can conduct business as usual, regulators said.

Exxon tape erasure takes new twist

HOUSTON (AP) — A computer operator who was fired from Exxon Corp. after admitting he destroyed data regarding the Alaskan oil spill says he saw "shocking" information about the disaster in documents.

But Kenneth A. Davis, formerly based in Houston, refused to tell the investigator what he had seen because of a "disclosure policy" with his former employer, the investigator said in a sworn statement.

Investigator Rollie Port delivered the statement to an Alaskan Superior Court July 5. Authorities say it sheds new light on destruction of computer files containing information about the grounding of the tanker Exxon Valdez March 24 in Prince William Sound.

Les Rogers, an Exxon spokesman in Houston, said he had "no idea" what might have prompted Davis' reported statement.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Wolfcamp strike flows 410 barrels

From Staff Reports

A Wolfcamp discovery has been recorded in Lea County, N.M., surrounded by production in the Maljamar field.

MERIDIAN OIL INC. completed the No. 2 Federal "A" to flow 410 barrels of 40.5 gravity crude, 400 Mcfd and 59 barrels of water on a 20/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 550 psi. The well flowed from perforations 10,458 to 10,696 ft., which had been acidized with 7,500 gallons of 15 percent HCL. Gas-oil ratio is 975.6:1.

Drilled to 10,800 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 10,746 ft.

The well topped the Rustler at 1,060 ft., Bone Spring at 6,150, and Wolfcamp at 9,450 ft. on ground elevation of 3,772 ft. Pay was topped at 10,458 ft.

Location is 560 ft. from south and 1,880 ft. from west lines of Section 8, T18s, R32e.

Eddy field producer pumps 248 barrels

New production has been added to the North Shugart field of Eddy County, N.M.

HARVEY E. YATES CO. potentialed the No. 2 Parker "5" Federal to pump 248 barrels of 39 gravity crude, 211 Mcfd and 91 barrels of water from perforations 8,023 to 8,331 ft. The interval was acidized with 6,550 gallons of acid and fractured with 120,000 gallons of gel and 100,000 lbs. 16/30 sand. Gas-oil ratio is 850:1.

Total depth was 8,506 ft., where 7-7/8 inch casing was set, and the well was plugged back to 8,454 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 3,690.7 ft., include the Rustler at 503 ft., Yates at 1,915, Seven Rivers at 2,303, Bowers at 2,764, Queen at 3,004, Penrose at 3,215, Grayburg at 3,492, San Andres at 3,860, Delaware at 4,318, and Bone Spring at 4,818 ft. Pay was topped at 8,023 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from south and 1,650 ft. from west lines of Section 5, T18s, R31e.

Drilling continues in West Pecos Slope

YATES PETROLEUM CORP. continues development of the West Pecos Slope field of Chaves County, N.M., adding a new Abo gas producer to the field.

On potential test, the No. 1 Rambler "AGO" State flowed 498 Mcfd on a 5/16 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 200 psi. The well flowed from perforations 2,873 to 2,885 ft., which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons of 7.5 percent acid and fractured with 30,000 gallons of gel and 50,000 lbs. 20/40 sand.

Drilled to 3,200 ft., where 4 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 3,158 ft.

On ground elevation of 3,924.5 ft., formation tops include the San Andres at 50 ft., Glorieta at 580, Yeso at 653, and Abo at 2,693 ft. Pay was topped at 2,873 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from north and 990 ft. from east lines of Section 32, T7s, R23e.

Two producers added to Lea County field

SANTA FE ENERGY OPERATING PARTNERS L.P. has added two new wells to the Querecho Plains field of Lea County, N.M.

The No. 2 Shinnery "14" Federal was tested to pump 97 barrels of 39.9 gravity crude, 64 Mcfd and 66 barrels of water from perforations 8,496 to 8,526 ft.

Santa Fe also completed the No. 3 Shinnery "14" Federal, pumping 59 barrels of 28.4 gravity crude, 72 Mcfd and 21 barrels of water. The well produced from perforations 8,478 to 8,504 ft.

Both wells are located in Section 14, T18s, R32e.

ty for the FSLIC, said while surveying the Houston warehouse crammed with the items up for bid.

On Wednesday, the FSLIC said it had received $1.5 billion from asset sales last year, about $925 million from sales of non-real estate assets. Through May, the agency, which insures thrift deposits of up to $100,000, had liquidated another $309 million in assets and hopes to receive $5.9 billion in income over the next five years.

Officials expect several thousand people to participate in the bidding. In the first couple of hours Thursday that the warehouse was open for public inspection, at least 300 people had signed up.

"We're trying to outfit an office," Brian Steege, who works for a Houston oil and gas company, said as he inspected an executive desk set. "We're hurting. So we're looking for a bargain."

spring, negotiating compromises on most issues — including several provisions to benefit specific companies — before voting on it in public as a package.

Gonzalez had his 51-member panel put the House version together entirely in open sessions.

He called the Senate offer Thursday an attempt to avoid taking stands on specific items in the package that might offend industry and other constituencies.

"For the first time, there is a spotlight on them, everybody is watching, and they're not used to that."

Among other key elements of the Senate offer are:

■ Acceptance of the House's plan to require S&L owners to risk $3 in real, tangible capital for every $100 in lending by Jan. 1, 1995. The Senate bill had provided a laxer standard of $1.50.

■ A compromise limiting S&L ownership of junk bonds to 6 percent of their assets. The House had wanted to require S&Ls to sell their junk bonds within two years, while the Senate bill has a more liberal junk bond limit of 11 percent of assets.

■ Adoption of a Senate clause guaranteeing Federal Home Loan Bank Board Chairman M. Danny Wall the right to keep his job for the next two years and retain his authority over state-chartered S&Ls.

month, 10 cents less than in May but $6.40 more than a year ago.

The news from inflation measures earlier in the production process was also good. The price of intermediate goods fell 0.2 percent in June after rising only 0.1 percent in May, while crude goods dropped 2.0 percent following a 0.9 percent rise. An example of the three processing stages would be finished — bread; intermediate — flour and crude — wheat.

Most economists believe inflation will continue to moderate over the next several months, but they're divided over the long-term outlook.

Analysts point out that much of the price spurt earlier this year was fueled by a once-and-done run-up in crude oil prices in the spring.

Lower interest should raise fund values

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I am a widow, 77, who depends on Social Security benefits and interest from some certificates of deposit. In 1987, when CD interest rates were low, one of my CDs was up for renewal and I let my bank talk me into putting the $9,564.57 into a GNMA mutual fund.

It was fine for a while, sending me $88.13 monthly dividend checks. Then, the dividends started to drop and were down to $56.30 by February 1988. I went to the bank people and they had me change into a "high-interest government trust" mutual fund, which then was paying higher dividends.

When I got my next statement, it showed my investment was worth $8,335.83 — not the $9,564.57 I had put in. As you can see, I lost $1,230.74 in a short time. The value has gone even lower since.

Should I leave that money where it is or take it out, before I lose all of it?

Doyle

A. You're not going to lose all. The market values of the securities that mutual fund holds — U.S. Treasury bonds and federal agency securities — rise and fall from time to time, taking the value of your fund shares up and down. But they never drop to zero.

The market values of fixed-income securities, including those issued by the U.S. Treasury and federal agencies, go in the opposite direction of interest rates. Interest rates moved up after you made your investment, so the value of your fund shares went down.

Because interest rates have trended lower recently, the value of your fund shares should now be moving up. Assuming that's the case, I'd cast a cautious vote to keep what you have.

That $1,230.74 loss you mention did not take place all at once. You paid one commission when you invested in the GNMA fund, which holds Government National Mortgage Association securities, and still another commission when you switched to the fund you now hold.

Those commissions came right off the top, greatly reducing the value of your investment. Your bank and its affiliated brokerage unit did you no favors. This is prime example of why it is wise to steer clear of mutual funds with commission "loads."

Q. A mutual fund I have been watching charges an 8.5 percent commission on the purchase of its shares. I'll be darned if I'm going to pay that fat "load." However, there is no load on the money market mutual fund run by the same fund management organization.

An idea came to me, upon learning that no load is charged when an investor switches from one fund to another within that management group.

Here's my plan. I'll put a bundle into the money market fund and, after a bit, transfer to the fund I really want. "EUREKA," no load!

A. Forget it, Archimedes. Your plan won't work.

Many groups of load funds permit transfers within the group, free of additional commission, when the fund you move out of and the fund you move into have the same load. However, when you switch into a fund with a higher load than the fund you switch out of, you're hit with a commission.

Q. At the time I invested in a government securities mutual fund, I was told I could "get back, at any time, the full amount" I paid. Now, I know that is not true. What can I do?

A. If the broker or other sales type who put you into the mutual fund said what you say he or she did, that was an absolute violation of securities laws.

There is risk of loss, as well as potential for gain in almost all mutual funds. The exceptions are money market mutual funds — where risk is virtually nonexistent and there is no potential for gain because share values remain constant.

You can complain to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and to your state securities regulatory authority. But unless you have the statement you quote in writing, it will be mighty difficult to prove your case.

Parenting skills are learned, not inherited

By JIM MAY

May

DEAR FAMILY: I have been reading your column about adult children of alcoholics and have started reading some of the books that you have recommended. I want to thank you for your advice, it really helped me understand why I feel the way I do sometimes.

My concern is should I be a parent? My husband and I are getting to the age that we have to make that decision. We both think that we want to have children, but both of us grew up in alcoholic homes and are scared that we might ruin our children. Both of our homes were abusive and we would never want to do that to our children. What do you think? WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Thank you for your kind words. It only took me 41 years to realize that growing up in an alcoholic home might have made a difference in my life. One of the major reasons I began the recovery process was having to face my own fears about parenting.

Parenting is a learned process, not a skill we are born with. We can learn good parenting skills ourselves, even if our own parents had few such skills of their own. Start by reading about parenting.

Go to the library or bookstores and look for books on parenting. Identify which match your and your husband's beliefs about parenting. Find the one that is most comfortable to both of you.

Local churches often offer courses in parenting, including "Active Parenting," "P.E.T" (Parent Effectiveness Training), or "S.T.E.P" (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting). I encourage you and your husband to attend one of these courses.

Finally, I encourage you and your husband to start attending an Adult Children of Alcoholics group. Call 682-4721 for times and places that the various groups meet. You are not alone. Your recovery will help your parenting.

DEAR FAMILY: I am very depressed. I am overweight and don't want to go out of the house. I have tried to talk to my husband about how I feel and he won't listen. He spends all his time talking to our daughter. I feel like an outcast in my own home. I feel sad and lonely and like nobody will listen to me. Am I too far gone to be helped? DEPRESSED

DEAR DEPRESSED: Of course you can be helped, but I encourage you to seek professional help at once. Depression is a serious and very painful problem. You have a number of issues that create a lot of sadness; the coalition between your husband and daughter, your weight, your loneliness. Those not experiencing depression can't really empathize with those who are.

Call Glenwood Hospital for a free consultation (563-1200). Depression can be dealt with very effectively with the proper treatment.

DEAR CONFIDENTIAL: I encourage you to reread your letter very carefully. Supporting your son is different from pressuring him. There is a fine line between creating the necessary level of stress to encourage a child to do his best, and creating too much stress, causing him to give up. Too little stress (pressure) and the child floats along, too much stress and he fails.

Have a meeting with your son and husband to establish realistic and attainable academic goals. Avoid creating goals that he cannot meet. Establish rewards as well as penalties for performance. Help him build confidence in himself through attainment.

Experts believe condition of skin reflects stress of lifestyle

Associated Press

Dry itchy patches, reddish blotches and other skin problems may be caused by tension taking its toll of your complexion.

There's a relationship between skin and stress, according to an article in the current issue of Redbook that quotes dermatologists, psychologists and skin specialists.

"I believe emotions are a factor in all skin problems," said Ted Grossbart, a psychologist at Harvard Medical School who specializes in stress-related skin disorders.

Among the skin conditions involved are severe scratching, multiple spreading warts, rosacea, itching, hives, psoriasis, eczema (not including contact eczema) and acne.

Skin experts agree there is an effective treatment for almost every stress-related skin disorder, but they emphasize that treatments only work on the symptoms, not the stress itself.

It's important to have realistic expectations," said Dr. Richard Kaplan, associate clinical professor of medicine-dermatology at the University of California-Los Angeles. "If there's a manifestation of stress on the skin, all we can do is control and manage it, we can't cure it. To keep stress-related skin troubles at bay, a patient must address the causes of tension as well as the symptoms."

Grossbart believes self-hypnosis, relaxation and visualization techniques, combined with short-term psychotherapy, can get to the root of the stress-related skin troubles.

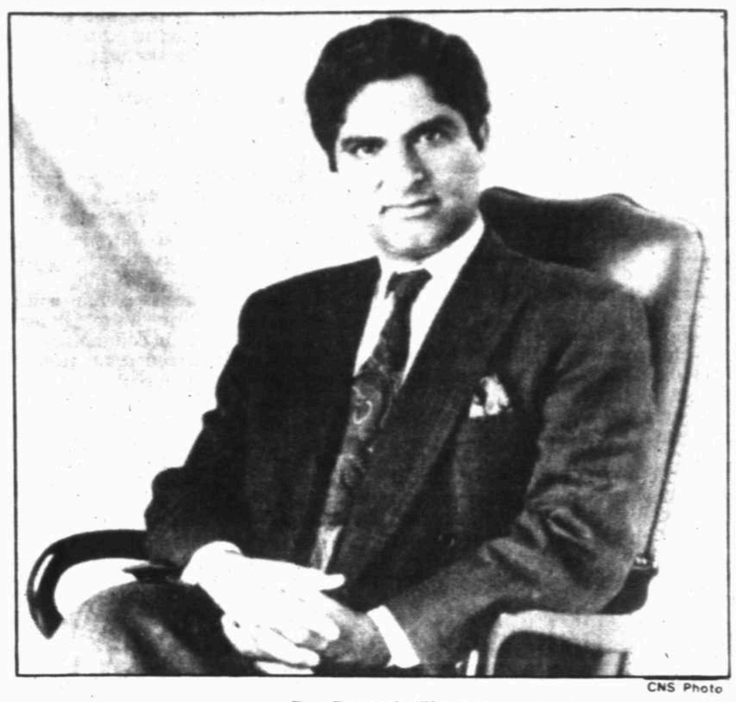

Dr. Darrell Rigel, a New York City dermatologist and clinical instructor of dermatology at the New York University Medical Center, recommends that patients with stress-related problems "go on a vacation or build more free time into their lives. Time off can significantly alleviate problems such as acne or psoriasis."

Diet also makes a difference, according to Dr. John Romano, a dermatologist affiliated with New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

"Those who have stress-related skin disorders should avoid caffeine, alcohol and spicy foods, especially those containing cayenne pepper or curry," he said. "They aggravate skin disorders."

Dr. Deepak Chopra

Elizabeth Taylor, George Hamilton, Barbara Carrera, Joe Namath, European royalty and South American politicians are among the many who have visited Dr. Deepak Chopra's clinic in Stoneham, Mass.

And, within one recent month, Chopra traveled to Geneva, Paris, London, Manchester, New Delhi, Moscow, Leningrad, Boston, Fairfield, Iowa, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Portland, Ore., San Francisco and Los Angeles.

He was not only extolling the extraordinary results of mind/body medicine, which he has documented in his latest book, "Quantum Healing," but also teaching the Ayurveda methods of rejuvenation.

In his book, Chopra, the revered New England endocrinologist, discusses miraculous spontaneous remissions (cancer and others) that have occurred through "positive visualizations" with his patients.

"You can say I've been influenced by the culture I grew up with, the Vedic tradition in that the mind and body are one unity and inseparable.

"In the Newtonian world, one views life in the materialistic sense that the body is a physical machine that learned to think.

"The Vedic view is the opposite: our thoughts and learning created the physical machine, and we're just beginning to reconcile the Vedic world into modern medicine.

"YOUR THOUGHTS, feelings, emotions become molecules that are neuropeptides in your brain, and we now find if you have sad thoughts, you'll have a sad heart, sad skin, sad liver. Literally, not metaphorically! But if you have happy and loving thoughts, the activity in your system increases.

"The body is made up of atoms and particles, and what we experience is a fluctuation of the energy in the larger field of energy we know as the universe.

"What we must do is reinterpret our bodies in such a way that is consistent to this science. And given this insight there are therapeutic techniques, 20 of them, that one might call biofeedback without a machine, that will enhance our health.

"The body/mind is the best pharmacy in the world and manufactures its own drugs — anti-depressants, tranquilizers, sleeping pills, anti-ulcer and anti-hypertension aids, just about any drug you can imagine, even morphine.

"And the body/mind can secrete a drug at the right time to a right organ, correlating its activity without any side effects.

"Look upon the body as a river, and while it may look the same, every moment it's new — the Greek philosopher Heracleitus said, 'You can't step into the same river twice because new water is always flowing in.'

"Your skeleton changes every three months, every six weeks you have a new liver, and brain cells appear daily that weren't there. Your 1989 body is different from your 1988 model — we're the ones who remold or condition it through force of habit."

Chopra believes the miracles of today will become the science of tomorrow, and he has helped patients with cancer, who have gone into remission, AIDS, heart disease, hypertension, diabetes and arthritis.

HE PROGRAMS the pharmacy of the body, which he claims is influenced by: stress, when our system is threatened physically, psychologically, emotionally; nutrition; biological rhythms.

He adds that there are seven body types, and each responds differently to nutrition and emotional states.

"When rabbits were fed a high-cholesterol diet, one group that had the food tossed at them had their cholesterol rise, while the other group that was petted, played with and even kissed didn't have any increase. In other words, it's not what you eat, it's what's eating you.

"Nonetheless, one should eat fresh food without pesticides, foods high in fiber, beans and lentils, a minimal amount of animal fat.

"Also, one should enjoy the full range of the six tastes: sweet, sour, salt, bitter, astringent, pungent.

"About biological rhythms, it has long been a fact that the body/mind is affected with changes during the time of day and seasons, the lunar months and the ocean tides. A dose of radiation at 4 a.m. can kill a man, while at 4 p.m. it will have a beneficial effect.

"At our clinic, we analyze each person, find out what their day is like, do they enjoy their food, are they comfortable with their body, try to understand what makes the metabolic end product of each person's experience.

"TO STAY young: (1) Look upon your age as a psychological age, you are as old as you think you are; (2) Exercise moderately — a brisk walk, swimming, yoga. Running and jogging tear down cartileges and predispose one to arthritis; (3) Follow the principles of good nutrition; (4) Eliminate fear; (5) Learn to laugh at yourself; (6) Read and pursue mental activities — crossword puzzles, stock markets, etc.; (7) Establish happy relationships at home and at work; (8) Have a minimum of six to eight hours of sleep a day, some body types require 10 hours; (9) Learn to handle stress through TM; (10) Be a spontaneous optimist — look upon difficult situations as opportunities and challenges, not problems; (11) Body hygiene must be free of toxins (alcohol, tobacco, caffeine, diet drinks); (12) Most importantly, experience joy, which isn't only happiness, but appreciating the miracle of being alive. Once you establish inner security and peace, the balance will fall into place."

DEAR ABBY

Boy who's reaching out needs reining in

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My 2½-year-old son is entirely too friendly with strangers. He runs up to people he has never seen before and puts his arms up, asking to be held — and, of course, these strangers pick him up.

He's an adorable little boy, and I am glad he's not a shy and withdrawn child, but I am concerned that his friendliness might lead to his being abducted someday. I have tried to tell him not to act that way, but he turns right around and does it anyway.

Is this something I should be worried about? If so, what action should I take to discourage this behavior without offending the stranger? — ARIZONA MOM

DEAR MOM: Don't worry about offending strangers — they should understand a mother's concern about a child that age approaching strangers.

Do more than just "tell" your son; FORBID him to speak to strangers. Explain that there are people who could do him harm — and one cannot tell by looking at a stranger who is harmless and who is not. If your child defies you, punish him by depriving him of something he considers a treat — but make that punishment memorable.

Be firm, Mother. Your child needs to be protected, and it's your responsibility to protect him.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Striking Out," the 27-year-old man who was still a virgin, interested me. It seems that when his dates learned of his virginal status, they wanted nothing more to do with him.

Why didn't you answer him with the following "Dear Abby" letter that appeared in your column about 12 years ago? (I saved it because I thought it was wonderful, but there's no date on it.)

"Dear Abby: Whether this is true or not, I cannot say, but it has an important message, so use it if you wish:

"Several worldly-wise teen-agers were chiding one of their group because of her virginal status. She took it good-naturedly for a while, then quickly silenced them with this remark: 'Should I ever become dissatisfied with my status, I can change it. How about you?' — No Name, Please" — R.R.C. IN BEND, ORE.

DEAR R.R.C.: I would have, but I didn't think of it. I'm glad you did, and I thank you for it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's brother and his off-again, on-again live-in girlfriend were visiting us one evening. During the visit, I was stunned when this woman asked my husband, who is 32 years old, "What would you do if you were 21 again, and knew you were going to be married and have three children 11 years later?"

He answered, "I'd get a shotgun and blow my head off!"

Abby, I thought we had a good marriage. I also thought he loved his children. He is rather moody and can be verbally abusive at times, but I never thought he was that miserable.

Should I leave him and take the children? They are 1, 2 and 3 years old. I am a good wife and mother — or so I thought. — CONFUSED AND HURT

DEAR CONFUSED: Have a heart-to-heart talk with your husband. Tell him you were hurt by his remark because it not only put you down, it was an insult to your marriage. If he really is dissatisfied, and his moodiness and the verbal abuse continue, the two of you should consider family counseling before those little sparks become a bonfire.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "LOOKING FOR MR. WONDERFUL": Don't place so much emphasis on age. If a man looks young, he's probably young. If he looks old, he's probably old. If he looks interesting — smile.

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS, how to prevent unwanted pregnancy and how to handle the pain of growing up. It's all in Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send your name and address, clearly printed, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Postage and handling are included.

Expert doubts self-help tapes work

Copley News Service

Subliminal self-help tapes are a total waste of money.

That's because the chance of a recorded message changing an emotionally learned behavior is slim to none.

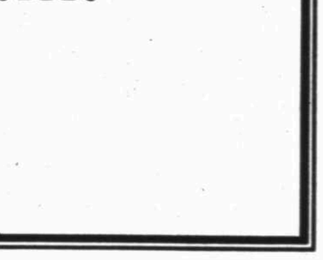

So says self-educated author Charles Hayes. In his book "Self University," Hayes claims subliminal self-help tapes are all hype and no help.

In fact, he says the so-called experts who produce the tapes spend more time and money on marketing than they do on the message itself.

Granted, some people do seem to benefit from the tapes, but Hayes says it's not because subliminal messages are some sort of cure-all.

Instead, Hayes says people overcome their problems because they tap into what he calls "the law of expectancy." They expect to get better and they do. Thus, the tape merely has a placebo effect.

Bonds help pay for education

Associated Press

The cost of a college education has skyrocketed in the past few years, and it doesn't look like it is going to get cheaper. Now there is a new way to help ease the burden of paying for your child's college education.

U.S. Savings Bonds purchased after Dec. 31, 1989 will be tax-free if redeemed to pay the expenses of higher education. There are, however, a few stipulations.

To qualify, the bonds must be purchased by an individual 24 years of age or older, and they must be used to pay tuition and fees for a degree or certificate program. Vocational schools are included.

Also, the exclusion begins to phase out for taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes of $60,000. Taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes of $90,000 or more are not eligible for the exclusion.

Bonds purchased to fund a child's college education should be purchased in the parent's name, not the child's, so interest can be excluded from the parent's tax return.

The exclusion is available not only for educational expenses of one's child but also for educational expenses of the taxpayer or his/her spouse.

WHAT DO WE TEACH?
As Christians we are dedicated to a message of hope, help, healing and inspiration with a fresh concept of religion.
• You can be master of your own destiny. Nothing is hopeless.
• It is done unto you as you believe -- health, abundance, happy relationships, success and all good things in life can become yours by practicing what Religious Science teaches.
• In simple language, Religious Science brings together that which the greatest minds of all ages have taught us and which constitutes the only Divine Knowledge we have on earth. We believe that God lives in and through all people and is immediately available and responsive to their needs.
• We are each heirs to a magnificent inheritance. When we establish our own center by contacting the Divine, and live from it we won't be separated but for the first time will really be unified with all life.
• We teach that which has been the fundamental basis of every great religion the world has ever had, including Christianity. Christianity is a recapitulation of the antiquity of the Jewish, Egyptian, and Hindu peoples and Grecian thinkers, influenced by the concepts of Jesus.
• The will of Spirit, universal Will, God's will, must be goodness, truth, and beauty. As we imbibe its nature, we come into its harmony. The will of God IS peace. As we enter the atmosphere of peace our confusion vanishes.
• We believe in spiritual mind healing. At the same time we do not disbelieve in any form of healing, whether it be medicine, surgery, psychiatry, diet, or exercise.
• Religious Science is a correlation of laws of science, opinions of philosophy and revelations of religion, applied to human needs and the aspiration of man.

A Life Design Workshop
William E. Gladstone said of Life; ..."Life is a great and noble calling, not a mean and groveling thing that we are to shuffle through as we can, but an elevated and lofty destiny."
Jesus Said..."I am come that they may have life and have it more abundantly"
Do these two descriptions of life describe your life?
Are you living an elevated and lofty experience?
Is your life dominated by an abundance of good, including health, peace of mind, personal relationships and financial security?
Are you doing the work that you love doing?
The truth is that you were not set adrift in the sea of life without a means to influence your destiny, not at all. In fact you were DESIGNED TO PROSPER.

San Antonio City Councilman Weir Labatt Thursday holds one of the voodoo dolls that he and another city councilman received in the mail Wednesday at city hall.

Citizen spells out feelings to councilmen

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two city councilmen have been told to expect a voodoo spell if they cut public safety programs in working out a budget with a projected $31 million shortfall.

Black nylon dolls, which sported spikes of corn husk hair, arrived in Wednesday morning mail addressed to City Councilmen Weir Labatt and Nelson Wolff.

"I'm not worried about it," Labatt said. "I think it's funny. I'm more scared of dogs."

The doll's face was painted white and yellow, with small, colored beads for earrings and a necklace. An attached label said, "New Orleans voodoo love doll. Make wish. Stick pins."

A neatly typed letter warned: "Attempts to cut the 100 police officers, public safety budget or helicopters will result in a spell being cast upon your body by that big guardian angel in the sky that wears a six-gun on his hip, a tin star on his chest and smokes a big, black, ugly, long, smelly cigar."

The note was signed, "Sincerely, John Wayne, Deceased-Retired. P.S. Tell your council colleagues, 'Big John is looking down upon them also.'"

Labatt said the letter appeared to allude to last year's efforts by himself and Wolff to counter city spending by cutting some police programs.

Although Labatt said he considered the doll comical it was turned over to police for closer inspection.

Wolff, meanwhile, was out of town and not available for comment.

STATE IN BRIEF

House bill prods teachers to learn drug counseling

AUSTIN (AP) — Teachers could be required to learn how to help students who are using alcohol or drugs, under a bill approved by the House.

Rep. Fred Hill, R-Richardson, said Thursday many school districts already require that teachers receive training on drug and alcohol abuse.

Hill's bill would allow the State Board of Education to include in its list of in-service training subjects, drug and alcohol workshops for teachers. The cost of the program statewide would be approximately $1.3 million, he said.

Rep. Glenn Repp, R-Duncanville, opposed the measure, saying the state was requiring the training, but not willing to pay for it.

"We continue to send mandates down for local taxpayers to pay for," Repp said. He said the cost of the state requirements "affect economic development."

Hill countered that drug abuse in schools is "one of the major problems facing our country today and it's a crime if we ignore it."

Court rejects divorce damages

HOUSTON (AP) — A state appeals court, while upholding the divorce of a Houston businessman from his wife, has thrown out a $1.5 million damage award for emotional distress in a case that had been viewed as setting a precedent in family law.

The 14th Court of Appeals made its ruling Thursday in the divorce involving Patti Sue Sullivan and Jerry Chiles. Chiles is the son of Fort Worth businessman Eddie Chiles, former owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team.

The court cited a premarital agreement in which Ms. Sullivan gave up her right to the couple's community estate in exchange for about $250,000. In their 1987 trial, a jury ruled the agreement was unfair and awarded $900,000 as Ms. Sullivan's half of the community estate.

The appeals court, however, said the agreement could not be voided just because it was unfair, noting that the woman had legal counsel when she signed the agreement.

The court also threw out a $500,000 award for "intentional infliction of emotional distress," refusing to recognize that type of damage as a basis for a lawsuit between spouses.

Missing woman resurfaces

AUSTIN (AP) — A woman missing since April called Austin authorities Thursday and told them she had just escaped from her captors who had abducted her at a Dallas business school.

Rochelle Hodges used a convenience store pay phone to call police about 10 a.m. after first calling her sister, police said.

"I got away from them — I got away," Teresa Hodges said her sister shouted. "I need you to help me."

Rochelle Hodges told police she was abducted on April 21 by a man with a gun, blindfolded by a woman in a waiting vehicle, and held in a room with a mattress and no windows at an unknown location.

Austin police questioned Rochelle Hodges for more than 12 hours Thursday. Police also declined to say if the woman was harmed in any way during the ordeal.

A police written statement on the case issued Thursday afternoon made no mention of other officers' reports that Rochelle Hodges told police she was abducted by satanic worshipers who tried to convert her to their cause and prepare her to recruit other followers.

WILLIAM MOORE, et al. v. EL PASO PRODUCTS COMPANY, *et al.
No. 88-034911, 295th JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT OF HARRIS COUNTY, TEXAS

NOTICE OF PENDENCY OF CLASS ACTION AND PROPOSED SETTLEMENT

TO ALL PRESENT OR FORMER EMPLOYEES OF THE REXENE CORPORATION, A DELAWARE CORPORATION, REXENE PRODUCTS COMPANY, A DELAWARE CORPORATION, (FORMERLY KNOWN AS EL PASO PRODUCTS COMPANY, INCLUDING ITS PREDECESSOR, A TEXAS CORPORATION), OR ANY OF THEIR DIRECT OR INDIRECT SUBSIDIARIES (COLLECTIVELY, THE "COMPANY") WHOSE DESIGNATED EMPLOYMENT LEVEL AT ANY TIME FROM JANUARY 1, 1984 THROUGH APRIL 13, 1988, INCLUSIVE, WAS GRADE 9 OR BELOW (THE "CLASS");

Your rights may be affected by a lawsuit pending in the 295th Judicial District Court of Harris County, Texas, William Moore, et al. v. El Paso Products Company, et al., Civil Action No. 88-034911 (the "Class Action Lawsuit"), and a proposed settlement of the Class Action Lawsuit. The three named plaintiffs, Messrs. William Moore, Michael Gibson and Richard Siler, are the designated Class Representatives (the "Class Representatives"). Class Counsel are Ronald G. Franklin and Gregory N. Jones of Hill, Parker, Franklin, Cardwell & Jones of Houston, Texas, and Jacks C. Nickens and Justin M. Campbell III of Miller, Bristow & Brown also of Houston, Texas (the "Class Counsel"). The Class Representatives, Class Counsel and all but two of the Defendants have agreed to the proposed settlement, and they recommend that all Class members accept the proposed settlement.

William Moore, Michael Gibson, and Richard Siler commenced the Class Action lawsuit on behalf of themselves and the other members of the Class on June 16, 1988. The defendants are Rexene Corporation, El Paso Products Company (now known as Rexene Products Company), Ellen W. Noel as Independent Executrix of the Estate of W. D. Noel, deceased, O. R. Clements, John B. Mason, Bobby E. Seltz, Val G. Bennett, Patrick E. Munn, Andrew J. Smith, Werner F. Goeckel, Miller C. Hawkins, and Fred S. Valles. The plaintiffs allege that the individual defendants, on behalf of themselves and the Company, in an effort to induce the Class to contribute their labor to the Company and join them in the struggle to save the Company, promised the Class stock ownership in the Company. The Class alleges that the defendants misrepresented their intent, failed to satisfy their promises, and made other fraudulent misrepresentations and omissions through which they obtained the benefits of the Class' commitment to the Company and profited at the expense of the Class.

Defendants deny the Class's allegations of wrongdoing in all respects. They deny having made any misrepresentations or material omissions, and they affirmatively contend that the Company was employee-owned and that they satisfied any obligations to the employees by establishing a Stock Bonus Plan pursuant to which all participants shared in the ownership of the Company.

On June 8, 1989, the Court determined that this lawsuit should be maintained as a class action on behalf of all present and former employees of the Rexene Corporation, Rexene Products Company, formerly known as El Paso Products Company (including its predecessor, a Texas corporation) or any of their direct or indirect subsidiaries whose designated employment level at any time from January 1, 1984 through April 13, 1988, inclusive, was grade 9 or below. The court has preliminarily approved a settlement between the Class and the settling defendants. If you are a member of the Class, you may be entitled to a portion of the Settlement Fund. Also, if you are a member of the Class, you have the right to exclude yourself from the Class or to object to the settlement. In either event, you will be required to mail certain information to the Committee of Counsel.

Persons who have been identified as possible members of the Class are being advised by mail of their rights with respect to the lawsuit. This Notice is being published because some Class members may not receive the mailed notice either because they have not been identified as members of the Class or the mailing information is inaccurate or otherwise incorrect. If you are (or may be) a member of the Class but do not receive individual notice of your rights by June 30, 1989, you should notify immediately the Committee of Counsel, Rexene Products Company Litigation, P.O. Box 53353, Houston, Texas 77010, giving your correct name, telephone number, current address and social security number. You will then be mailed a more detailed explanation of your rights in this litigation and be placed on the mailing list for any future notifications regarding this suit.

A hearing for final approval of the settlement is scheduled in the 295th Judicial District Court of Harris County, Texas, on August 2, 1989, 8:00 a.m. If you have not received notice by mail, you should notify the Committee of Counsel immediately at the address listed above. To exclude yourself from the Class or object to the settlement, you must do so in writing and mail your exclusion request or objection to the Committee of Counsel postmarked no later than July 26, 1989, or you may forfeit and lose forever valuable rights.
