Pledging that he "will be available" to all the people of his district, newly-elected State Senator James "Buster" Brown came to Rockport Wednesday, November 6, to personally thank the people who helped elect him.

No one section of State Senatorial District 17 was responsible for his victory, Brown emphasized, saying, "Every section was the key element."

Brown also replied, in answer to a question at the Wednesday afternoon press conference, that he did not believe an editorial in the November 2 Pilot Weekender "cost (Senator Babe) Schwartz the election."

"The last 20 years is what cost him the election," Brown said — a statement that drew applause from his audience at the Little Bay

Club.

Of the editorial, Brown said that, from a political viewpoint, the incident probably gained some votes for Schwartz because of sympathy.

"I'm sorry it happened," he said, "but people make errors. I feel confident that there was nothing intentional in it."

Brown was introduced at the 1 p.m. press conference by Richard Beck, his campaign manager in Aransas County, who pointed out that the new State Senator-elect began his campaign for office in Aransas County.

"This very room," Beck said, "was the first place we came."

Brown told those at the conference — which included officials from Aransas County, both cities and the Navigation District — "We had a fun time running this race." He added that he felt it was a clean campaign, one that concentrated on issues and not on "Mudslinging."

Referring to the relatively narrow majority by which he won the election, Brown said, "I haven't adopted the name 'Landslide Buster'." But, he added, "Many basketball games are won by one point."

"No section of the district is more important than any other," he continued, emphasizing that he plans to represent all the people in all sections of District 17.

His plans include a visit to every county in his district every month to hold a "town hall type meeting" open to the public.

In addition, he said, he plans to talk to officials with the city and county governments and the navigation districts so when he goes to Austin in January, he will know the needs of the various counties he represents. (See BROWN, Page 12)

'Bet Your Boots' On A Good Time

By Pat Blair

Acts I and II open with a Lone Star Beer commercial starring "The Armadillo," then things take off with plenty of music, plenty of dancing, drama from the Alamo and a look at Texas' love affair with football.

It's a patchwork quilt of Texas, called "You Bet Your Boots," and it premieres Friday, November 21 (with a second showing on Saturday, November 22) at 7:30 p.m. in the Rockport-Fulton High School Auditorium.

It's being presented by some 45 students in the RFHS drama department, under direction of David Rice, and it's an original adaptation of Texas literature and music in a celebration of this state.

The idea took root this past summer, Rice said, when he attended a theater conference presented by the International Thespian Society. A group of high school students from Hawaii did an adaptation of a play in which they incorporated music and literature about their state.

Rice decided if it could be done for Hawaii, it could be done for Texas. "Texas has more lore, literature and music about it than any other place on earth," he said. He started work that night on the basic idea for "Bet Your Boots."

Like the state of Texas itself — and like one of the songs proclaim — "Bet Your Boots" has "a little bit of everything."

With two narrators, Linda Rinche and Beth Randow, tying things together, the production goes from the opening production number — "Texas Cookin'" — and "There's A Little Bit of Everything in Texas" — to a poem called "Hell in Texas" that tells how the Devil got to make over Texas to suit himself.

Then the performance takes a dramatic turn as students enact a series of vignettes at the Alamo.

Rounding out Act I is an adaptation of the short story, "Brown Flowers," written by Ray Von Rosenberg, drama director at Taft.

Rice says this is "One of our big nonmusical scenes" and it leads into another production number, "El Rancho Grande."

Several of the songs are by local people. For example, "Texas Cookin'" and "Rita Ballou" (a song in the second act) are by Guy Clark, son of Ellis Clark and an RFHS graduate who is now making himself known on the (See BET, Page 12)

County Voters Elect Lee, Sanders In Record Numbers

Aransas County voters flocked to the polls in record numbers Tuesday to put two brand-new commissioners on the county commissioners' court.

In Pct. 1, Democrat John M. Lee defeated Republican opponent Bill Wilson by 870 to 530.

In Pct. 3, Republican challenger W.B. "Pete" Sanders upset Democratic incumbent Raymond Owens 903 to 822.

Voters headed for the polls as soon as they opened at 7 a.m. Tuesday morning, and by the time the polls closed at 7 p.m., a record 5,331 county residents — more than 72 percent of registered voters — had cast their ballots in the 1980 general elections.

With the exception of the Pct. 1 commissioner's race, county voters showed a preference for the Republican candidates in this year's elections, starting with presidential candidate Ronald Reagan who received 3,081 votes in the county.

Reagan's victory in Aransas was a local version of what happened nationwide as the Republican standardbearer took a landslide win over incumbent President Jimmy Carter.

Carter received 1,800 votes in Aransas County. Rounding out the presidential race, Ed Clark received 53 votes in the county and John Anderson, 134.

Because of the method of counting ballots in Aransas County — by computer — no precinct-by-precinct totals were available on Election Night.

First returns came in shortly after 7 p.m., but an influx of late voters in Pct. 3 followed by the breakdown of two of the counting machines being used delayed final returns until after 10 p.m.

In the race for U.S. Representative, District 14, Dr. Lewie Concklin carried Aransas County 2,804 to 2,207 for his opponent. (See VOTERS, Page 12)

Jottings By Johnnie

By Johnnie Littleton

Okay, we have a new president. I wish I didn't have to hear another political word for a long, long time. But it will be a matter of months before the new leader is ensconced in the White House and we will be hearing and reading every day about his comings and goings and goings-on.

Meanwhile let's rest up and talk about kids.

The other day in a supermarket I heard a grown woman who looked intelligent tell her small boy — about 3 years old — that if he didn't behave she would take him to the doctor for a shot. I stopped dead in my tracks and listened. Eavesdropped, actually. The poor child started screaming worse than ever and was finally assured that if he sat still with his hands in his lap he would be rewarded at the end of the shopping expedition.

Sure hope he got lots of good, sweet, sticky candy to help his little psyche over the trauma his mother inadvertently laid on him.

That's not the first time, nor will it be the last, that I've heard parents threaten children with doctors, dentists and law officials. A neighbor of mine used to tell her little ones that she would call the cops and the clinic if they didn't toe the line. The kids are now 22 and 20 and are afraid of doctor visits.

I'm not Dr. Spock, Ann Landers, Dear Abby or even Heloise — but I have raised three children without threatening them with someone or something that may one day be very necessary and vital to their health and safety.

The first time my older son asked if a shot would hurt, I told him yes it would. Kinda like a small, sharp sting, then it would be over and he would get "all well."

Why lie? Any idiot knows the average person doesn't have his skin punctured with a needle without at least a small amount of discomfort. Always seemed to me that if I said "It won't hurt" and it did, that the kids wouldn't trust me anymore.

The dentist is a different story in our case because his nickname is "Painless." And he really is. The kids could never tell when he used the needle. So thanks to him, they have been through fillings and braces and even oral surgery without much of a whimper and nothing traumatic. Oh, that their mother were so brave! I can sure wear the bravado — but getting me to the dentist is another matter. I also know it won't hurt. It's an anxiety trip, basket case kind of thing with me. And I'm sure glad it didn't rub off on them.

Then there are the cops. I told my son one day that the cops were friends to be called on in case of emergency. In case he got lost, or someone was injured, or he needed help of any kind, he could call them. The kids were taught to trust the men in uniform and marked cars.

When I realized that little boys were just as apt to be picked up, abused and kidnapped as were girls, I sat them down and gave another lecture on accepting candy, money and rides from strangers.

I worked like a charm.

Late one evening I was preparing supper when my son, then about five years old, came running in the back door yelling "Call the cops, a man wants to buy me some candy." With heart pounding, I ran to the back door to see a friendly neighbor, whose name the kid didn't know. Thankfully the man was smiling and complimented me on teaching him the right thing.

You do have to draw a line somewhere — carefully.

Anyway, kiddos have enough trouble trying to understand their elders without having heavy things like a threat put to them.

When the child needs a shot (injection), a dentist, or a cop, what will he do if he's terribly frightened?

You know as well as I do. Now if I could only teach them to pick up wet towels.

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassy ranch discusses the high cost of children this week.

Dear editor: According to the latest figures out of Washington, it now costs $85,000 to rear a child from birth through college.

I don't know whether the figure is right or not, but what has floored me is the fact that nobody, neither parents nor kids, has brought up the subject of how much the kids contribute to that $85,000 cost.

Trying to get a teenager to point that out I asked him "How about the value of the chores you perform?" "What's a chore?" he asked.

I started to explain that a chore, for example, is shucking corn for the family's plow horses or milking a cow twice a day seven days a week or chopping wood for the fireplace, but I gave up when he said "Why chop wood when you've got a thermostat that handles the heating problem?"

Understand, I'm not saying kids these days are any lazier than kids of the former generation.

After all, practicing football two hours every afternoon is just as hard as shucking corn or milking cows. It just doesn't show up in the family budget.

Moreover, very few parents in earlier time furnished their kids a car to drive from the house to the cow shed.

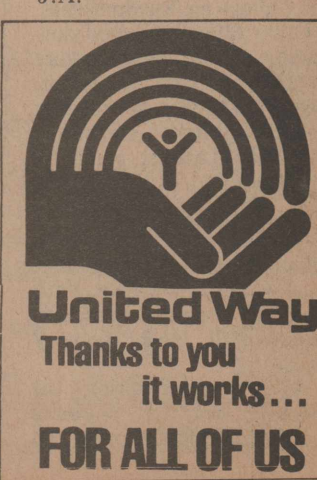

Also, it didn't cost the earlier generation a million dollars a year to keep a Congressman in Washington. We've got to adapt to the times.

Actually, looking at the average young man after he's cost $85,000 or whatever, you can't tell whether as a youngster he shucked corn or played football.

Most of them seem to turn out all right and it'd be unfair to expect them to start paying back that $85,000 when they've got kids and Congressmen that'll cost even more than that.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Sonic Drive In Opens Monday

It's a long way from building tank cars to building hamburgers — but that's just what David Landrum will be doing when the new Sonic Drive-In opens Monday, November 10.

Landrum and his wife, Laura, have moved to Rockport from Cleveland, Texas. They reside on Glass Avenue in Little Bay with their children Donna age 7 and David Wayne, age 9.

The couple enjoy Rockport and said "everyone is so nice in welcoming us here and we certainly appreciate it. We have never lived in a town where strangers are so friendly."

The new fast-food restaurant is no more than that — they offer good food, and fast. Laura Landrum estimated that on a good day it would take five minutes from order time until your tray is hooked on the car.

In addition to hamburgers, of which there are several kinds, they offer grilled cheese sandwiches, tater tots—plain or with cheese—fries, a Steak Ranger, which is a chicken fried steak served on a bun with lettuce, tomatoes and a tangy sauce, and of course, onion rings, that are cut and fried fresh daily.

Sonic has 24 stalls for eating and a walk up order window. Or you can phone in an order and get it at a pick-up station. The new company will employ 20 persons to insure good service.

Landrum stressed the come-as-you-are, informal atmosphere the drive in will offer. Without dressing up, you can enjoy a Coney, corn dog on a stick, chili pie, fruit slushes and soft drinks. Freshly brewed tea, four flavors of milk shakes and chocolate and vanilla Twists are also on the menu.

About the soft drinks — if you should desire a soft drink mixed with any variety of fruit slush — just ask. You may even request that hamburgers be cut in half for children to share and they will be built to your exact specifications.

The drive-in, which is across the highway from Cinema 35, will be the place for a cup of coffee or hot chocolate this winter.

The Landrums, along with Doug and Jay Hill, are owner of the local franchise and they invite you to come by and get acquainted.

Hours are Sunday through Thursday from 9 a.m. until 11 p.m. and Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. until midnight.

If you would like to call in an order ahead of time dial 729-9511.

NEW SONIC OWNERS

Laura and David Landrum of Rockport, will open the doors of the new Sonic Drive In at 9 a.m. Monday, November 10. Different types of hamburgers, drinks, ice cream specialties, sandwiches and even chili will be offered at the new drive-in restaurant which boasts 24 stalls and two windows to serve the public. It's located on Hwy. 35 North across from Rockport Plaza.

Warning Issued On Phony Vacation Offers

Las Vegas vacation offers that promise much more than they deliver are now being sold by mail across the nation, Postal Inspector in Charge W.R. Newsome has warned.

Newsome said at least 12 separate companies now contacting prospective buyers by mail and telephone are under investigation by the Postal Inspection Service. Complaints have been received from Texas consumers in Fort Worth, Dallas and Houston.

In response to inquiries about vacation "certificates," the companies ask for a "service charge" of from $25 to $50, sometimes requesting personal credit card numbers, supposedly to confirm identity but actually to bill prospective buyers through credit card companies.

The firms claim the "certificates" are good for three days and two nights lodging for two in Las Vegas, and include meals and a gambling package valued at $250.

Typically, those who take the bait have to pay additional fees and reservation deposits, and the so-called "service charge" is not refunded as represented in an initial offer.

Newsome said when certificate holders send hotel reservation requests they are met with "regret" letters advising that no rooms are available on the days requested, and when refunds are requested they get letters asking them to be patient.

Anyone victimized through the mails should report it to Postal Inspector D.C. Swindle, Consumer Protection Specialist for the Fort Worth Division of the Postal Inspection Service, P.O. Box 1230, Fort Worth, Texas 76101, or telephone (817) 334-2001.

First National Rotary Topic

Founding and growth of First National Bank of Rockport in the past 90 years were described by R.D. Mosier, Jr. (executive vice president) and comptroller of the local financial institution, at a Rotary Club luncheon meeting at Sandollar Restaurant Wednesday.

Mosier said the bank opened for business October 8, 1890. He added that corporation minutes going back to the date are in the bank's archives. Also, a list of original stockholders included three family names still owning First National stock: Heldenfels, Bracht and Sorenson. Members of the Bracht family have been First National depositors for six generations, and the late Fred Bracht Sr. was a director for almost 60 years.

Mosier singled out the late A.C. Glass, early cashier and executive vice president, and James H. Sorenson, Jr., current president, as the two men having most influence on the bank's policies and progress through the years. He added that Margaret Schuster Touchstone, cashier since 1970, was the first member of the bank's present staff, to join the organization. She started in 1944 when the staff totaled four.

It is believed that First National Bank first operated briefly in a frame building whose exact location is unknown. Next it moved into a three-story brick building at Main and Water streets where it remained until it transferred operations in 1958 to a new one-story modern building directly across Main street. There it remained until 1974 when it moved to its present building at 1 Broadway Plaza.

The bank was chartered as the First National Bank of Arkansas Pass with a capital stock of $60,000. When the original charter was renewed in 1903 the name was changed to the First National Bank of Rockport, the town's name having been similarly changed.

Mosier noted that early in the bank's history a competing bank was established, but it soon went out of business. He added that the present situation with two banks serving the community was good for both banks.

Introduction of electronic devices, including complicated computers, by the banking industry is one of the most revolutionary developments in the history of banking, according to Mosier who said additional progress in that direction is inevitable.

Commenting on the use of unmanned tellers units as approved in the election November 4, Mosier was of the opinion that they will be more widely used in the larger communities.

He also discussed the Negotiable Order of Withdrawal program, commonly called "NOW", which is scheduled to go into operation at banks throughout the country the first of the year after a trial run in the New England states.

drawal program, throughout the country the first of the year after a trial run in the New England states.

The plan authorizes payment of interest of not more than 5 1/4 percent on checking accounts, probably computed daily. Participating banks, and Mosier said he expects all banks to make the plan available because of competition, will, establish the interest they will pay and set a minimum account balance on which interest will be paid.

Police Report

Three men were arrested on charges involving alcohol and marijuana Tuesday night, November 4, after police were called to the scene of an alleged attempted break-in on Live Oak Street.

The three arrested, and charges filed, were George S. Walton, 40, of Derry, New Hampshire, driving while intoxicated and possession of less than two ounces of marijuana; James F. McGuigan, 40, of Manchester, New Hampshire, public intoxication and possession of less than two ounces of marijuana; and Gene Francis Foote, 41, of Freeport, charged with the same offenses as McGuigan.

Police said they were called to a residence on Live Oak on a report that three men had attempted to enter it. When the officers arrived, the men had left. Police followed the three to the Woman's Club Building on Austin Street where the arrest was made.

McGuigan and Foote pleaded guilty to the public intoxication charges and were fined $63.50 each. Bond on the possession of marijuana charges was set at $500 each.

Walton was placed under $1,000 bond on the DWI charge and $500 on the charge of possession.

A loose wheel resulted in a traffic accident for Anthony Gorge Soliz, 19, of Fulton about 3:10 a.m. Sunday, but no one was injured and no tickets were issued.

Police said Soliz was on Austin at Concho when the wheel came off the hub causing Soliz to lose control of his vehicle. The car struck the center traffic island, spun around and finally came to rest at the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Happy Eating!

The new Sonic Drive In, located on Highway 35 North across from Rockport Plaza, will open for business Monday, November 10. Concrete workers put the finishing touches on the driveway for the new eating establishment.

Desk Top Computer For Fishermen Coming To County

A desk top computer provided by the Texas A&M Sea Grant Program to convert LORAN-A readings to LORAN-C for the Western Gulf of Mexico will be available in the Coastal Bend area periodically for the next several months.

Fishermen interested in converting "hangs" and secret fishing locations should contact Jeff Messenger, County Marine Agent, at 729-1211 to arrange for a time to use the computer.

The computer uses 3H2/3H3 readings for the conversion. Single LORAN readings with a corresponding depth of water cannot be accurately converted.

As a result much of the present bottom information from Aransas Pass to Brownsville and from Isles Dernieres to the Southwest Pass is useless, Messenger said.

Gary Graham, the fisheries specialist who produced the shrimpers' "Hang Book" is in the process of completing a LORAN-C Hang Book for this area. He anticipates the publication will be available around the first of December.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages, regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Government Assesses 'Marriage Penalty'

COLLEGE STATION — Who brings home the bacon in your family?

If it is both husband and wife, then you are assessed more taxes than if just one spouse earned the same total income, says Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist.

Mrs. Granovsky is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Here is her analysis of the tax situation for working marrieds:

If each spouse earns $5,000, they will be taxed $202 more than they would be if they were single and earned $5,000 each.

That $202 "extra" amounts to a 40 percent increase in their total tax bill — hence, a $202 "marriage-tax penalty."

In 1979, a person earning $15,000 would have been taxed $1,635 if married to a non-working spouse.

That same person with the same salary if married to a working spouse who also earns $15,000 would be taxed $2,796 on that one $15,000 income.

A single person making $15,000 would be taxed $2,345.

In other words, just because you're married and both work outside the home, you're "penalized" that extra amount, according to current tax regulations.

Some people call this the "sting" of the "marriage-tax penalty."

It happens only to working marrieds.

It works this way: the presence of a second income means the couple's total earnings are thrust into a higher tax bracket.

In fact, the government looks at both salaries as one total salary.

The "first dollars" earned by the second worker — which would be subject to lower rates if he or she were single — are taxed at the maximum rate (a higher rate) applied to the "last dollars" earned by the other spouse.

It all started back in 1948, with a tax provision to help the majority of families, Mrs. Granovsky explains.

In 1948, the majority of families depended on one wage earner for financial support.

So, to "take pressure off" of families who depended financially on just one wage earner, the 1948 tax provision began "penalizing" married couples with two wage earners.

But the nation's majority has changed since 1948.

Today, 32 million working marrieds are affected by the 1948 tax provision — as more than half of the nation's married women work outside the home for wages, Mrs. Granovsky points out.

Working marrieds need to become aware of both the obvious and the hidden costs entailed in earning a living, the specialist advises.

They must grapple with making enough from the second income to offset the higher taxes they'll have to pay when they are both working — in addition to other extra expenses that the "second" job will create — such as transportation costs, clothing costs, and, perhaps, babysitting fees.

Since they cannot break the tax rules, some couples simply do not marry in order to avoid the "marriage-tax penalty," while some working marrieds have actually divorced to avoid the "penalty."

This is causing greater awareness among national policymakers, Mrs. Granovsky adds, who are beginning to recognize that current tax regulations do not meet the needs of today's families.

Most probably, Mrs. Granovsky says, tax rules will change.

But here's where things get rather complicated.

It isn't a simple matter of just "throwing out" the "marriage-tax penalty."

Since the provision that created it depends on the idea of "lower tax brackets" and "higher tax brackets" — and on married persons, single persons and "unmarried-head-of-household" persons, then any changes in the tax rules must deal with all of these factors.

Here's what Mrs. Granovsky says about the future:

Although we do not know when changes will occur, the U.S. Congress is definitely involved in ideas for change.

The House Ways and Means Committee held hearings last April on the tax treatment of married and single taxpayers.

Bills to reduce tax inequities have been introduced in both the U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate.

At the three White House Conferences on Families held this summer, the proposal to eliminate the "marriage tax" drew more support than any other issue, Mrs. Granovsky adds.

By a margin of 17-1, the 2,000 delegates specifically called for permitting a married couple the option of filing joint or separate returns.

Support for the issue cut across regional, economic, ideological and political divisions within the delegations. Several ways to resolve the issue have been proposed, Mrs. Granovsky says.

Each proposal has potential benefits — and costs — for families, as well as for American society as a whole," she said, adding, "The possible impact of each proposal to change tax rules needs careful evaluation before specific tax-reform measures can be adopted."

Here are some ideas that have been proposed:

Allow married two-earner couples the option of being taxed on each spouse's own income according to the rates for single persons. Such a policy would permit a tax system that is neutral with respect to marriage, advocates of this idea say.

Return to the mandatory individual filing which was the law before 1948.

Permit a tax deduction or credit for the secondary wage earner in married couples.

Eliminate the tax-rate schedule for married couples filing separate returns.

On the other side of the coin, if the "marriage-tax penalty" were "thrown out," it would cost the United States government billions of dollars, some experts argue.

They estimate it would result in a loss to the government of about $8.3 billion a year.

Whatever the changes, the public will be affected, Mrs. Granovsky says.

How satisfactory and fair to the majority these changes might be will depend largely on the public's understanding of these issues and their effects: on the nation's individuals and families and on the nation's economy, the specialist concludes.

DEFENSIVE DRIVERS

The AARP-sponsored defensive driver's class met last week for eight hours — in four two hour sessions on Monday and Wednesday. There were 34 persons who took part in the course — some repeaters. This is the tenth year the local AARP Chapter has sponsored the class in Rockport, and the ninth year George and Helen McCague were in charge of the class. By taking the course, the drivers find that most insurance companies give a ten percent reduction in rates and the earned certificate is good for three years. Placards, signs and movies illustrated potential driving hazards for the class which is taught by Gilbert and Grace Schweiker. Another course will be held in March.

FLAKY FOLDOVERS USE AMERICA'S FAVORITE FRUIT

"An apple a day" has been popular advice for more than 300 years, and this crisp, delicious fruit is still America's favorite.

Flaky Apple Foldovers are an excellent way to savor the tart, tangy goodness of the season's fresh apples. The flaky turnovers are good warm or cool, so you can serve them for dessert, then enjoy any leftovers as snacks. Using refrigerated biscuit dough for the crust makes them especially easy to make.

Calorie counters will also be delighted to learn that this apple treat has only 167 calories, less than half the number for a piece of regular apple pie.

FLAKY APPLE FOLDOVERS

- 10-oz. can Hungry Jack refrigerated flaky biscuits
- 2/3 cup sugar
- 3/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 1/4 cups finely chopped, peeled apples
- 1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted

Heat oven to 375° F. Separate dough into 10 biscuits. Press or roll each to a 4-inch circle. In small bowl, combine sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Spoon about 2 tablespoons apples onto center of each flattened biscuit. Spoon 1 teaspoon sugar mixture over apples.

Fold dough in half over filling; press edges with fork to seal. Dip both sides of each in margarine, then in remaining sugar mixture. Place in ungreased 15x10-inch jelly roll pan or 13x9-inch pan.

Bake at 375° F. for 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pan to cool. Serve warm or cool. 10 turnovers.

All day Friday they dressed in costumes and also on Friday night they came dressed as well as the band and their families. Mary Frances and Robert played for our dance and everyone agreed this was the best party we have ever had.

We also had some other great parties. Monday afternoon, the Future Homemakers of America from Ingleside High School came and they were decked out in their Halloween costumes. They put on a program which was really a hit with all our residents — and staff too. They brought bags of homemade cookies for our residents to have for dessert at the dinner hour. Their sponsor, Sharon Lippke, brought them.

Fuel costs for gas appliances can range from one-half to one-third what they are for electric models of the same size and type, reminds Nancy Granovsky, a family resource management specialist.

Most adults treasure the right to enjoy a degree of privacy — adolescents need the same privilege, says Diane Welch, a family life education specialist.

The Aransas County Emergency Medical Service (EMS) may be one of the best bargains around, say those who work with the service.

Funds to operate the service also come in the form of fees paid by patients who actually use the service.

The rest of the funds come from the City of Rockport and the Aransas County Commissioners Court. This is originally paid by the residents in the form of taxes.

During the last year, ending June 30, 1980, the City provided $17,500 and the county, $22,000 during the same period, making the total tax money $39,500.

For the 27 cents, residents are given emergency care and transportation of the sick and injured in the county. The services are provided by the Aransas County Medical Services, Inc., a Texas non-profit corporation based in Rockport. There is no hospital in the county but the modern stabilization center has two well equipped emergency rooms, x-ray and lab facilities, and twelve patient examination rooms, takes care of most of the county's emergencies — or provides transportation to a hospital elsewhere.

The corporation is governed by a 16-member Board of Directors consisting of local citizens. It operates two Mobile Intersive Care Units which are operated by paramedics who are backed by a volunteer staff or paramedics.

E.M.T.'s, and E.C.A.'s.
The service handles approximately 1,150 cases per year.

Carla Tijerina, an employee at the Nu-Way Drive In, reported theft of $200 worth of gasoline about 6 p.m. Monday, November 3.

She told sheriff's deputies a man in a 1975 brown and beige Mercury stopped at the grocery store's pumps and filled his car with 18.3 gallons of regular gas — valued at $20. The man then got into his car and headed toward Rockport on Highway 35 "at a high rate of speed."

The theft is under investigation.

The American G.I. Forum Building was burglarized and a cigarette machine was taken sometime Saturday, November 1, or before 12:30 p.m. Sunday, November 2.

The blue vending machine belongs to the Huffmeister Vending Machine Company of Aransas Pass. Entry appears to have been gained through a broken window on the east side of the building.

Karol Kay Litman reported theft of a Sportsman trailer, valued at $950, from a vacant lot across the street from her residence at 507 Lauderdale.

Two men were arrested after witnesses called the sheriff's office to report seeing two white males running out of a house at the end of Hailey Drive about 11 p. m. Sunday.

Deputies were told the two men had run "into the brush." Several officers drove to the scene of the incident, behind the Big Fisherman, and found two men in the brush.

Corno for 'evil eye'
One of the most highly esteemed talismans used by Italians is the corno, or animal horn, which supposedly can destroy the power of the "evil eye."

Victoria Theater Launches Season

By Danny Goddard
Victoria Arts Council
Including three comedies of varying types of humor and a tender drama, the Victoria Community Theater's 1980-1981 season should be "entertaining and challenging," said Gene Sutphen, VCT president.

The season officially opens Thursday, November 13, with "See How They Run," a hilarious British farce of the 1940s which will be directed by Bettie Hunt.

Other plays to be offered during the year include "Harvey," the classic comedy about a man who befriends an invisible six-foot rabbit; "Goodbye Charlie," a contemporary comedy about a dead man reincarnated as a woman; and "Flowers for Algernon," a tender drama about a retarded man who briefly becomes a genius through the wonders of science.

After three years of drifting around town without a facility, the VCT has taken up residence at the Goldman Building, 207 E. Constitution.

Variances recently granted by the Building Board of Appeals have paved the way for the theater to begin its season on schedule.

"We have a good season and being in a building will be highly motivational," Sutphen said. "The first play has been in rehearsal for several weeks but we weren't sure if we would be able to go ahead on schedule until a week ago. But once we got the word, the actors really picked up and we have a lot of enthusiasm in the group now."

Also for the first time in a couple of years the VCT plans to sell season tickets. Approximately 5,000 brochures have been mailed.

Season tickets will cost $12 per person and are available through the Victoria Arts Council.

"Right now, all our energy is directed toward getting the building ready for the opening and launching our first play. I think the community is going to be impressed with the work that we have done. All our plans won't be finished, but we want the place to look nice when we open."

"We have about 15 people helping us fix up the building and about 25 involved in the first production. We could still use some professional carpenters to help us get some of the work done, but other than that we're in good shape," Sutphen said.

The first production, "See How They Run" is set for November 13-15 and 20-22.

A long-running hit by Philip King, much of the humor is based on mistaken identities as a USO actress, now the wife of a vicar in England, takes up an old romance with her long-lost acting partner from America.

Director Bettie Hunt served as president of the VCT last year and has directed two previous local productions, "Moor Born" and "The Curious Savage."

"Harvey," set for February 5-7 and 12-14, will be directed by Jim Caraway, who has taught therapeutic drama for the Devereux Foundation.

Open auditions for the show will be held December 15-16. "Harvey" received the Pulitzer Prize as the best American play of the season when it opened in 1944 and ran for more than four years.

Jimmy Stewart immortalized the play's protagonist, Elwood P. Dowd, in the film version of "Harvey" and Stewart and Helen Hayes performed in the television version of the play.

"Goodbye Charlie," a comedy by George Axelrod, is set for March 12-21 and 26-28.

The play will be directed by Carol Karpe, who has been active in several local productions. Auditions will be held February 16-17.

The story concerns a man who dies in a boating accident and comes back to life as a beautiful girl. His encounters with his old beer-drinking buddy and one of his former mistresses provide the premise for most of the comedy.

"Goodbye Charlie" is a very funny contemporary comedy and should be a lot of fun," Sutphen said. Lauren Bacall played "Charlie" in the original Broadway production.

The final production of the season will be "Flowers for Algernon" set for May 7-9 and 13-15.

Lynne Smith, former theater director at Victoria High School, will direct. Auditions will be held April 6-7.

"Flowers for Algernon" will be a real change of pace and should offer some balance to the rest of the season," Sutphen said.

While fixing up its new home and preparing for the first play, the theater group is also looking for new members. Persons interested in becoming involved in Victoria theater should contact Sutphen at 573-5388.

Season tickets, $12 per person, are available at the J.C. Penney's Ticket Outlet in the Town Plaza Mall or by writing to Victoria Arts Council, P.O. Box 1758, Victoria, Texas 7790

Please include a self-addressed, stamped envelope with all orders.

Season ticket holders can make reservations to "See How They Run" by calling 576-1317 or 576-2441.

Mixed Drink Revenue Returned

More than $10,000 in mixed drink sales taxes have been returned to Aransas County and its cities as their share of the third quarter gross receipts tax revenue.

According to a report from the office of State Comptroller Bob Bullock, Aransas County's share of the taxes comes to $6,052.14. Rockport receives $836.97 in mixed drink tax rebate, and Fulton's share is $2,487.44.

Another $1,144.15 goes to Aransas Pass as that city's share of the revenues collected from sale of mixed drinks in the part of the city that's in Aransas County.

Texas cities and counties receive a 15 percent rebate on tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries. The rebate was established by the law that legalized mixed drink sales in Texas.

Taxes rebated to the county and cities are for the

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What I have always wanted to know about my Pet but was afraid to ask:

Dear Dr. Lutz, I have a seven-year-old female collie named Dolly. I am concerned about the condition of her skin. For the past year or more, she has lost most of her hair between the hind legs and over the groin area. The skin is inflamed, also. In some small areas, the skin is sort of peeling off. She doesn't seem to have any fleas.

She is very playful for a dog her age and she never misses a meal. However, she will not eat anything except meat. Do you have any idea of what the problem may be?—Gloria

Dear Gloria, If your dog is eating nothing but meat, the possibility of a nutritional imbalance comes to my mind. Statistics show that dogs that are fed nothing but meat over a period of time will develop an iodine deficiency. This results in all the above symptoms you mentioned.

Dear Gloria, If your dog is eating nothing but meat, the possibility of a nutritional imbalance comes to my mind. Statistics show that dogs that are fed nothing but meat over a period of time will develop an iodine deficiency. This results in all the above symptoms you mentioned.

Let me advise you to take your dog to his doctor for a complete examination. If it is an iodine deficiency, I'm sure he can correct it and recommend a balanced diet that Dolly will eat.

Dear Dr. Lutz, I have an eight-year-old male Siamese cat named Scat. I have just moved to Rockport from the Valley. Two months ago my cat had to have an operation because of a blockage of the urinary tract due to stone formations in the bladder. The operation was successful and Scat had an uneventful recovery.

When Scat was discharged from the hospital, my doctor advised me to increase the cat's water intake. Even though I have put out more water in several different places, I can't get him to drink any more than he did before the operation. Do you have any suggestions on how I can get him to drink more water?—Amos

Dear Amos, Increasing water intake is definitely an aid to prevent urolithiasis in cats. An easy way to accomplish this is to add extra salt.

To be specific, add one teaspoonful of salt per pound of canned cat food.

APPROACHING THE GOLDEN BROWN Dorothy and Sam Harris, residents of Rockport for about 17 years, reminisce about some of their experiences during an interview at their home on Raven Drive. sents. On a more immediate basis, he said, he plans "to try to get some rest. Our immediate goal is to go back to the people who elected us, let them know we appreciate them — then take a couple of days and get to know the kids again . . ."

Responding to comments that successful Republican candidates "rode in on the Republican president's coattails," Brown said that, in this district at least, that "was not the only factor."

"The two-party system in Texas is here," he said. He pointed out Republican Pete Sanders who defeated a Democratic incumbent to become the new commissioner for County Pct. 3 and introduced Gene Matthews who failed in his bid to oust Democratic incumbent Leroy Wieting from the Texas House of Representatives.

Although Matthews was defeated, Brown said, he performed a service by running for the office. "A few years ago," Brown said, "you wouldn't see good candidates running for office as Republicans in Texas."

Brown also deflated the belief that victory depends on outspending your opponent. "The final figure will probably show that my music scene in Nashville. Another song, "Rio Grande," is by Bobby Roberts, a former junior high teacher here.

"There's a lot of good stuff that has come from this area," says Rice who describes Clark as "perhaps the most creative country songwriter today."

Act II starts off with a look at the Texas cowboy and features — in addition to Clark's "Rita Ballou" song — "Faded Love" by Bob Wills, "A Waltz Across Texas" and "Cotton-Eyed Joe."

opponent outspent me two to one," he said.

"You don't need more money to win the election — but you do need the people."

The crowd attending Wednesday's press conference included Rockport Mayor Walter S. Falk Jr. and Fulton Mayor L.E. Caster-line, council members from both cities, Aransas County Republican Chairman Harold Shirey and Vice-chairman Tony Thorn, representatives from both area banks, Navigation District commissioners and a number of area business and civic leaders.

to a look at the football craze in Texas with a cut from the first act of "Vanities," a play by Texan Jack Heifner that focuses on three Dallas cheerleaders getting ready for the big game on the day President Kennedy was assassinated.

Featured as the cheerleaders are Carolyn Farnsworth, Shelley Beattie and Jamie Meeker. Miss Meeker is also featured in a dance number with Chris Iles.

In preparing for the production, Rice praised his student director Connie Flores who "has done everything on this show." Surya Laqua, pianist for the rehearsal and one of the members of the band that will provide the music on the performance nights; and Janis Rice who has "done all the choreography."

All of the students involved have helped put the show together, Rice said. "They've all been working real hard."

"This," he added, "is what theater is all about — finding new ways to do things that haven't been done before."

Area residents will have a chance to see the results of all this work in little less than two more weeks.

It should be a good show.

Democrat Bill Patman. Districtwide, however, Patman carried the race.

In the State Senate race, District 17, Aransas County voters gave Republican challenger Buster Brown 2,699 votes over 2,117 for incumbent A.R. "Babe" Schwartz.

Districtwide, Brown also carried the race, taking a victory, in complete but unofficial returns as of Wednesday morning, by a vote of 70,796 to 70,507 for Schwartz. A spokesman at Brown's "Victory Headquarters" in the Houston area Wednesday morning said Schwartz had conceded defeat.

Rockport resident Gene Matthews carried Aransas County in the State Representative race, District 41, against incumbent Democrat Leroy Wieting.

Outside Aransas County, however, Wieting pulled the votes and held on to his legislative seat against his first Republican challenger in 18 years as a state representative.

Less than 2,000 of Aransas County's 7,318 registered voters failed to cast their ballots in the 1980 elections.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office reports gross sales in Aransas County during the second quarter of 1980 at $30,255,919.

This is favorable in comparison with surrounding counties.

Refugio County reported $13,981,919 and San Patricio County reported $126,486,579.

Bullock's office noted recently that Texas continued to climb in the second quarter of 1980. A sales tax analysis of gross sales for April, May and June of this year shows that gross sales totaled more than $64.7 billion, up $3.8 billion over the first quarter of 1980.

Didn't Like It At First, But Now

Rockport Is 'Paradise' For Sam, Dorothy Harris

By Pat Blair

Although his wife, Dorothy, once declared she'd "never live here," Sam Harris describes Rockport as "paradise for retired people."

And Dorothy, a native of Athens in East Texas, has come to enjoy living here — which is a good thing, considering the Harris have been here for 17 years.

It was Sam's job that brought them here to live. He was an employee of the City Service Oil Company and did a lot of traveling for the firm.

The Harris first came to this area while they were on vacation, and they stopped at the Seagun. "I said, 'Oh, this is a nice place to visit,'" Dorothy recalls, "but I wouldn't want to live here." That was in August. Then in October, we got transferred."

Adds Sam: "They (the oil company) told me if I wanted my next paycheck, it would be in Rockport."

Sam continued to work for the oil company for several years after moving to this area, finally retiring about eight years ago — two weeks short of being employed 40 years by City Service.

He started to work for the oil company in its sales division, then transferred to production and driving a truck.

That was back in the 1930s, the Depression days. In those days, Dorothy says, "it was good to get anything."

It was also the days of the East Texas oil boom, and Sam worked around Glade-water in the mushrooming oil fields there.

He also recalls one location not far from Tyler where an oil rig was set up in the middle of a rose field. "The farmer charged us 50 cents a bush for every bush we destroyed," Sam recalls, "and my superintendent told me to bring all the bushes to the office."

Sam did what he was told: he gathered up the damaged rose bushes and brought them to the office.

In those days, the office was part of a general "camp" which included housing units for the oil field workers and their families — even a recreation building.

"It was kind of like some of these trailer parks around here," Sam said. The rose bushes he brought to the office got distributed around and, Dorothy added, "the whole camp had roses."

Sam and Dorothy met in Terrell — he's a native of that city — and this coming June (1981), "God willing," says Sam, they'll be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

Asked how they got together, Dorothy replied, "I didn't get together with him. He saw me on the street and told some guy he was going to marry me. That was before we met."

In those days, she added, there was one main street in Terrell — "the drag. You always made the drag to see who you could see."

After Sam saw her the first time, Dorothy recalls, "everywhere I went, there he was." Finally, they were introduced — and they married eight months later. They have two sons and each son has two children — a boy and a girl.

Dorothy is a "good wife and a good mother," Sam commented, "but she's the spoilingest grandmother you ever saw!"

An active member of the Lions Club — a Lion for 25 years total, Sam said — he joined the Rockport organization soon after moving here. He's had a perfect attendance record for the past 13 years although he points out that isn't a record for a member of the Lions.

"One guy, Charlie Roe, has 25 years perfect attendance," he said.

But he enjoys being a Lion, describing it as "a good way to help and have fun doing it." Especially he enjoys being the club's "tail-twister" — a post he's held practically since he joined the Rockport Lions (except for one year's service as president).

The tail-twister can create humor in the organization, Sam said. He's the fellow who "fines" other members for "breaking the rules" and the fines — usually a dime or a quarter — can be assessed for "any silly thing."

You can fine the president for not addressing a member as "Lion Sam" (or whatever his name is), or for eating with both elbows on the table — things like that," Sam elaborated.

The money he collects goes into the Lions' fund for its philanthropic activities, such as providing glasses for children or money for the Crippled Children's Camp in Kerrville.

Besides being tail-twister, Sam also has headed up the Lions' fruitcake sales every year since those started, about 10 years ago.

In addition to his activities with the Lions, he's also a Mason — "but I don't attend those too much" — and a member of the United Methodist Church.

"One of my favorite hobbies," he added, "is aggravating my wife."

Dorothy adds another: matching quarters. "He and some of these other men will stop anywhere, anytime, and match quarters."

"You know," Sam said, phrasing what could be called his philosophy on living, "today is all you have."

Sam and Dorothy enjoy their "todays."

County Sales Up

State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office reports gross sales in Aransas County during the second quarter of 1980 at $30,255,919.

This is favorable in comparison with surrounding counties.

Refugio County reported $13,981,919 and San Patricio County reported $126,486,579.

Bullock's office noted recently that Texas continued to climb in the second quarter of 1980. A sales tax analysis of gross sales for April, May and June of this year shows that gross sales totaled more than $64.7 billion, up $3.8 billion over the first quarter of 1980.

With Our Military

Private Toby T. Fine, son of Sharon Owens of 1601 Sorenson, Rockport, has completed One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School in Fort Benning, Georgia.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations.

This qualifies the soldier as a light-weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman.

Soldiers were taught to perform any of the duties in a rifle or mortar squad.
