Ring Candidates . . . Across Asphalt . . . Drum Corps . . . Shrine Nobles Greet Two Governors

—Photos for The Record News by S. & S. Commercial Studio.

Outstanding events of the opening day of Maskat temple's fall ceremonial are shown in the above pictures. The celebration attracted some 3,000 nobles of the Mystic Shrine, including two governors and the wildest set of ring candidates seen here in many a day, according to veterans of the organization. From left to right: A truck and band used originally to boost only the campaign of Walter Nelson Jr., for the Shrine ring, was soon taken by other candidates in entertaining the crowds. Mr. Nelson is the distinguished gentleman in tramp attire, while the pajama-clad fellow blowing the trombone is none other than R. A. Barton, Olney's prominent resident. In the center, novices are dragged across the hot sands by a rope, and below the Maskat drum corps is leading the parade to the auditorium. At the right, distinguished guests and officials at the ceremonial here, including (from left to right) A. L. Masrush, potentate of India temple at Oklahoma City; Lester Jones, chairman of the governor's reception committee; Walter Caldwell, potentate of Maskat temple; Mayor J. W. Akin, general chairman of the reception and entertainment committees; Gov. Dan Moody of Texas shaking hands with Gov. W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma; Walter D. Cline, chairman of the entertainment committee.

ONE JUROR DELAYS VERDICT IN GRUNDY CASE

Wichita Falls To Observe Thanksgiving In Appropriately Balanced Program

CHURCH RITES AND FOOTBALL ARE FOREMOST

Union and Special Services To Be Followed in Afternoon by Game

By FRED D. THOMPSON
Record News Staff Writer

According to the history books, a group of Pilgrims gathered in a log hut late in autumn about a couple of centuries ago, offered thanks for their state of well-being, hoped things would be the same next year and ordained that from then on one day in the year was to be set aside as Thanksgiving day.

The occasion was more solemn than anything else, according to the history books. As the years rolled on, however, their hoped for well-being was steadily maintained, and even grew in leaps and bounds, and so merriment entered the rites.

Nation-Wide Custom

And so Thursday we—all Wichita Falls, all the state, all the nation—will carry on the tradition of Thanksgiving day, for Thursday is the stipulated time. There will be solemnity and fun, intermingled.

There will also be turkey, and in addition to turkey, cranberry sauce; and in addition to cranberry sauce, turkey, and more turkey; and as for drinks there will be coffee, milk, tea, water, or what have you.

Wichita Falls' program for the day is appropriately balanced: Churches will hold Thanksgiving rites in the morning, and in the afternoon, the Wayland Baptist college of Plainview will send its team to Spudder park to meet the Wich-

Woman Saves Baby When America's Largest Airplane Crashes Through House Roof

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (US)—The giant Fokker F-32, largest airplane yet built in America, thundered down from the sky onto a dwelling near Roosevelt field this afternoon, scattering terror among scores of onlookers.

A mother inside the residence snatched up her baby and fled, horrified as the blazing meteor on the roof set fire to her home.

Only two men, M. A. Boggs, former department of commerce engineer and Harry McDonald, Teterboro airport mechanic, were inside the immense 32-passenger plane. They escaped death by what seemed a miraculous margin.

Fliers to Survive

The crowd saw their two smoke-blackened figures wriggle from the flaming hulk, roll off the roof and fall into the street. They were unconscious from broken bones when picked up, but will survive.

Only a few hours earlier in the day a much smaller airplane, piloted by James Pisani, 20, who until recently was a student, struck the roof of a building at Westbury, L. I., and tumbled into the street. Pisani was killed instantly.

The crash of the mammoth Fokker was the third time in a week that live of city dwellers has been menaced by ponderous objects falling from the clouds.

Spectacular Crash

The Fokker weighed 13,800 pounds—more than six and a half tons. Wrecking of the monster airplane which had successfully flown 75 hours, was attended by many spectacular circumstances.

The huge flying machine took off from Roosevelt field with three of its four motors droning but gained altitude with difficulty. One of the motors began to sputter and miss, while it was reported that two of the others burst into flames.

Boggs, a veteran pilot, fought to control the great machine with its 99 feet of wing spread. He found it an impossibility. The plane hurtled lower and lower, clipping a wireless aerial from the residence of Mrs. Cora Fagan, of Carle place, a short distance from Roosevelt field.

CANDIDATE?

Hidalgo Sheriff Urged To Enter Race For Governor

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 27. (UP)—Friends of Sheriff A. Y. Baker of Hidalgo county today urged that he announce his candidacy for governor, and pledged their support. The move to put Baker in the race at once resulted, they said, in the circulation of a rumor he would resign as sheriff. They branded the rumor as an attempt to forestall his candidacy.

BANKS CRASH IN OKLAHOMA

H. A. McCauley's Death Precedes Closing

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 27. (AP)—Defeated in his desperate struggle to keep alive a dozen banks crippled by the deflation period of 1920, H. A. McCauley, 55, former mayor of Sapulpa, and board member of 13 Oklahoma banks died of apoplexy last night on the eve of their failure. The 12 banks did not open their doors today.

Graves Shull, Oklahoma bank commissioner, who placed the banks in charge of examiners, attributed their failure to "frozen assets." Their total deposits as of Oct. 4 were $2,520,976 and their capital stock aggregated $310,000.

They are the Sapulpa State bank; the Bank of Mounds; Henryetta State bank; Bank of Commerce, Weleetka; First State bank, Vian; Citizens State bank, Webber Falls; Davenport State bank; Oilton State bank; First State bank, Teriton; Avant State bank; Keystone State bank, and the Bank of Kellyville.

C. J. Alexander, assistant state bank commissioner in charge of the Sapulpa State bank, said he understood McCauley was in Tulsa yesterday attempting to float a loan with which to carry the bank over the crisis and that he was unsuccessful.

Hope destroyed, McCauley returned to his home. He collapsed as he started to retire, and died,

MOODY DENIES DEATH RESPITE FOR MERRIMAN

Insanity Issue Settled By Dallas Jury, Governor Says Here

Gov. Dan Moody, here Wednesday for the Shrine festival, was interrupted in his fun by the plea of a condemned man for life.

The plea was denied.

The case was that of Lee Roy Merriman, sentenced to the electric chair from Dallas county on a charge of assaulting a Dallas girl. His brother was in Austin Tuesday, according to Associated Press dispatches, seeking to obtain from Governor Moody a reprieve that the condemned man might be examined by a mental expert. He failed to obtain an interview, the dispatches said.

Governor Moody, advised of the attempt of the brother to see him, said that during the time he had open in Austin Tuesday Merriman's brother did not appear for the interview.

Settling the issue, Governor Moody said:

The jury which convicted Merriman passed on his sanity, for insanity was his defense. I decline to take any action or to interfere in this case."

Merriman is scheduled to be electrocuted at the state penitentiary at Huntsville early Friday morning.

Merriman, with a companion, was convicted of attacking girls in Dallas a little more than a year ago after driving off their escorts, according to dispatches. Merriman's companion, Bennie Aldridge, was also sentenced to death for the alleged crime, and is to be taken from the Dallas county jail to Huntsville in a few days. He is scheduled to die Dec. 17.

Fort Sill Officer Is Notified of Promotion

Special to The Record News

LAWTON, Okla., Nov. 27.—Col. George P. DEATH PENALTY GIVEN BERWICK

Port Arthur Slayer Convicted of Murder

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 27. (AP)—Taking the life of William Byrd, 21-year-old Port Arthur youth, must be paid for by Luther Berwick with his own life, The jury convicted him here today in less than three hours deliberation.

Berwick was indicted on a charge of murdering Byrd the night of Oct. 20 in Port Arthur. Another indictment against him charged Berwick with killing his own sweetheart, Belle Crow, age 18, who was with Byrd at the time of the double tragedy. Both victims were found on the sidewalk in front of the girl's home, Byrd dead and the girl dying, a few minutes after a car had been heard to drive up and several shots had been fired. Berwick was arrested about an hour later in his room. There were no eye-witnesses, but Berwick admitted the killing and on the witness stand described the tragedy. He said he was beside himself with jealousy at seeing Miss Crow, whom he had hoped to marry, out with another man. He declared however, that he fired the gun at Byrd when he thought Byrd was about to attack him, and that the girl was hit by accident.

TESTIMONY OF CASTNER GIVEN SECOND TIME

Jury Asks Re-Reading Of Mental Expert's Evidence in Trial

A single juror, according to reports from the 89th district courtroom Wednesday night, prevented the return of a verdict and left the fate of Roy Grundy, charged with the murder of June Hilburn here last Oct. 17, undecided until Thursday. The case was given to the jury shortly before 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and after more than six hours deliberation, the jury retired for the night, announcing they could return no verdict until further debate.

The jury appeared to be standing 11 to one, according to reports from the courthouse, when a request for a re-reading of part of the testimony was sent out about 3:45 o'clock. Opinions conflicted, however, as to the stand of the lone juror.

Testimony Re-Read

Less than an hour after the jury had retired, a note was sent out to Judge P. A. Martin asking for a re-reading of the testimony given Tuesday by Dr. C. W. Castner, superintendent of the Wichita Falls state hospital, who conducted a brief examination of the defendant Tuesday morning. At the same time, the jury informed the bailiff to order supper for them, indicating the possibility of a prolonged debate.

Spectators Remain

The court room remained partially filled for almost two hours after the jury took the case. When the knock on the door of the jury room sounded, the court room became suddenly quiet. Persons standing sought seats and Judge Martin took the bench. A noticeable wave of relief swept the spectators when only a note was handed out to the bailiff.

19 NOVICES WALK SANDS

Shriners Make Merry in Fall Ceremonial

streets since early morning working up a following for each of the quintet of candidates for the mythical Shrine ring.

Throng Greets Governors

More than 300 persons gathered at the union depot at 2 p. m. to greet Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, who arrived on a Fort Worth and Denver train from Fort Worth. After being greeted hilariously by former associates and fellow Shriners, the governor stepped before the cameras with Governor Holloway, W. H. Caldwell, potentate of Maskat temple, Mayor J. W. Akin, Walter D. Cline, chairman of the entertainment committee, Lester Jones, chairman of the reception committee, and others of the local organization. The two state executives, Mr. Caldwell and A. L. Masrush, potentate of India temple, Oklahoma City, of which Governor Holloway is a member, rode in a car which headed a parade from the depot to Maskat temple headquarters. They were followed by about 150 uniformed and fezzed members of the organization.

Earl Baker, manager of the transportation committee of India temple, and Bob Byrum, second ceremonial captain of that temple, accompanied Governor Holloway to this city in Mr. Baker's Ryan monoplane. Landing at the Municipal airport just ahead of the private plane, 15 members of India temple alighted from an S. A. F. E. passenger plane to greet their governor upon his arrival.

From about 10:30 Wednesday morning until the hegira to the Memorial auditorium began at about 6 p. m., the principal downtown streets were heavily congested with the increasing horde of local and visiting wearers of the fez. The corner in front of the Renfro Drug store, at Eighth and Scott, early became the center of activity, principally because of its selection by the ring candidates as the most advantageous point for electioneering. Headquarters of the ceremonial assembly was established at the Kemp hotel, while the Oklahoma City delegation was registered at the Holt hotel.

Shrine ceremonials probably have never produced a more varied nor versatile group of ring candidates than those which dominated the business section Wednesday. R. A. Barton of Olney, sailing under the caption "Hot Air" and clad in dappled gray silk pajamas; "Preacher" Frank Mack of Quanah, attired from tip to toe as an old time cowpuncher; George Blackerby, hard-swinging outfielder of Texas and American league classification, gangling in shrunken Spudder uniform and with cinnamon whiskers athwart his jawline; Paul Montgomery, manager of the Holt hotel, very Spanish in conventional toreador attire, and Walter Nelson Jr., local attorney, dilapidated in Charlie Chaplin's worst tramp makeup, comprised the quintet from which members of Maskat temple were implored to select a worthy custodian of the ring.

Candidates Entertain Crowds

During the earlier hours of the campaign, Mr. Nelson was impossingly mounted upon a commercial truck, and was supported by an orchestra in charge of Frank Bird, of KGKO. Later in the day, however, other candidates appropriated space on the truck to their own purposes, and competed loudly with "Red Nose" Nelson for the attention of crowds which blocked the corner at Eighth and Scott practically all day. Different salvos of oratory which were delivered in ensemble formation at various times during the day were terminated only when the vocal powers of the candidates failed completely, a contingency which apparently never did arise for George Blackerby.

Mr. Nelson's campaign was engineered by "Firebug" Williams; J. W. Pyland managed the ballyhoo for "Juarez Pistol" Montgomery; F. E. Shoop guided affairs of Mr. Blackerby, while Rev. Mr. Mack and Judge Barton were their own promoters.

Members of the class of novices were kept on the griddle throughout the day by pranks both old and new in order to develop immunity to the "burning sands" through which they were to make their way at 6:15 o'clock. Conspicuous among the performers was A. L. Stubblefield, city detective here, who sat handcuffed to a lamp post at a busy intersection, assiduously selling packaged popcorn for the benefit of the Shrine charity fund. W. A. Dunn of Margaret, Texas, M. A. Thomas of Nocona, H. A. Crabb, Wichita Falls, and J. D. Montgomery of Seymour were leashed with steel chains to lamp posts at Eighth and Scott where for several hours they sold quantities of William Wrigley's product at bargain prices.

Several of the novices, among them "Cowboy" Mack of Quanah, enjoyed the accommodations of the city's "black Maria" during the day, and also learned by experience the sensation of looking out from behind cell bars. Following the usual afternoon parade, the entire squad of 19 initiates engaged in a tug-of-war with a Merkle ambulance in front of the Kemp hotel. The ambulance won.

Governor Holloway was entertained at luncheon in the Wichita club at noon by a large number of Texans, and extended a cordial invitation to Shriners and other citizens of this city to avail themselves of gubernatorial and Shrine hospitality in Oklahoma City. He was introduced by Mayor J. W. Akin, who also presented Walter Cline as chairman of the entertainment committee.

The two visiting governors had adjoining suites at the Kemp hotel, and during the entire day received many callers from among the hundreds of Texas and Oklahoma citizens present in the city for the fall ceremonial.

Parade at 4:30

The parade which was staged at 4:30 p. m. under the direction of Horrace Robbins, was headed by "Red Nose" Nelson, ring candidate, supported by a quintet of musicians, the group being precariously mounted on a small truck. The following line included the Maskat temple band, directed by Leon Taylor, Arabic patrol, drum corps and uniformed bodies, and the special car bearing the Oklahoma and Texas executives, Mr. Caldwell and Mr. Masrush. Candidates Blackerby and Montgomery were color bearers. India temple of Oklahoma City was represented by a formation of uniformed members, and was followed by several score of local Shriners, all in fez.

At 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening the 19 initiates enacted a lockstep to the Memorial auditorium under the guidance of P. B. Curd, where the ceremonial was held. The entire assembly returned to Maskat temple at 9 o'clock, where the customary Shrine dance was held.

Approximately 300 persons were at the Municipal airport to greet Governor Holloway on his arrival Wednesday morning. The Oklahoma executive is to leave early Thursday morning for Texarkana, where he will eat Thanksgiving dinner with relatives. Governor Moody left the city late Wednesday night, and will take in the Texas-A. & M. game at College Station Thursday afternoon.

Program Thursday

Visiting Shriners in large numbers will remain in the city over Thursday, it was said, and will be guests at the Junior college-Wayland college football game at Spudder park in the afternoon.

Wives of Shriners and members of the Daughters of the Nile entertained the large number of visiting ladies. A dance was given Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Maskat temple, followed by theater parties, and a dinner at the Wichita club at 8 o'clock. Shriners' ladies were guests at the dance given at 9 o'clock in Maskat temple auditorium.

Sid A. Gaines, assisted by Kindel Paulk, Claude Williamson and Ed Tschabold were in charge of the ceremonial. The following acted as divan officers:

Walter H. Caldwell, potentate; W. B. Hamilton, chief rabban; W. J. Morgareidge, assistant rabban; Ed Peterson, high priest; C. A. Rogers, oriental guide; J. W. Spoonts, first ceremonial; J. W. Akin, second ceremonial; C. S. Richardson, marshal; Bentley Bacon, captain of guard; George Spencer, outer guard; C. C. Randle, inner guard; and C. I. Francis, Charles Johnson and Charles Fuller, orators.

The following committee chairmen were in charge of the different phases of Wednesday's program:

Entertainment and reception, J. W. Akin; governor's reception committee, Lester Jones; entertainment, Walter D. Cline; working unity, Guy Rogers; street activities and parade, Horrace Robbins; registration of visitors, Dr. George Hampshire; registration of ladies, Mrs. Walter H. Caldwell; wardrobe, Charles Fuller; men's room, Kemp hotel, George Spencer; ladies' room, Kemp hotel, Mrs. W. H. Caldwell; Shrine dance, Thursday, Eli Morgan; football and athletics, Thursday, J. T. Yeargin; dansant Wednesday, Leon Taylor; ring candidates, Joe Bailey.

Moody Outlines Program of State Development While Guest Here

"I believe that Texas will show a greater percentage of progress in public improvements in 1930, in proportion to population, than any other state in the union," Gov. Dan Moody declared to a representative of the Record News Wednesday afternoon between engagements in connection with the Shrine ceremonial, at which he was a guest of honor.

"Replies to inquiries which I sent to 30 representative cities of the state recently indicate that in those communities alone public improvements scheduled for the coming year will amount to more than $250,000,000. The report of such projects to be submitted to President Hoover about Jan. 1 will be really surprising to the people of Texas in its reflection of unusually rapid development."

Declining to discuss national politics now, "because a national election is still three years away, and political thought now should be in terms of the future rather than the past," the governor added that "if an election were to be held in Texas tomorrow, the state would go overwhelmingly Democratic."

President Hoover's energetic efforts to stimulate all branches of industry, and to speed up public works in all parts of the nation, Governor Moody said, are one of the most interesting and valuable factors in the current life of the United States.

Governor Moody left Wichita Falls late Wednesday night, and will attend the Texas University-Texas A. & M. football game at College Station Thursday afternoon. He declined to hazard a prediction as to its outcome.

GOV. HOLLOWAY COVETS TEXAS

'I'm Going to Annex the North Part,' He Says

"Being here four hours ahead of Gov. Dan Moody of Texas by virtue of air travel's possibilities, I am going to annex that part of this state bordering to a depth of 50 miles from the Red river, for Oklahoma," Gov. W. J. Holloway of Oklahoma jocularly declared Wednesday morning shortly after arriving here for the Maskat temple Shrine ceremonial.

"A vote should show the population of this borderland favorable to such annexation, for more than 30 per cent of Oklahoma's population came from Texas, and everybody will feel at home together. I lived in Texas back in 1896, and have been in Oklahoma 19 years. I can appreciate both states, for the intervening period was spent in Arkansas."

Before leaving Oklahoma City Wednesday morning, Governor Holloway said, he gave the lieutenant-governor specific instructions to call no special sessions of the legislature during the chief executive's two-days' absence, the object being to discourage a resumption of the state's bi-ennial impeachment policy.

Governor Holloway will leave Wichita Falls early Thursday morning by plane for Ardmore, from which place he will drive to Texarkana to spend Thanksgiving day with relatives.

ita Falls Junior college Indians. A terrible, terrible battle is expected.

Many will go out of town for the day, the Wichita Falls Coyotes, high school football aggregation, being scheduled to froth and foam in a struggle with the Amarillo High school team at Amarillo. And then there will be that inevitable classic, the University of Texas Longhorns' heave-boys-heave with the Texas Aggies at College Station. Governor Moody, a temporary Wichitan Wednesday when he was here for the ceremonial, left here Wednesday night for College Station, where he will witness the expected mauling of one or the other teams. Not many Wichitans are expected to attend the game, it is indicated, but scores of ex-students from either of the colleges will take keen interest in it. Radios will be in use during the game.

Special church services will begin at 10:30 o'clock, except for those at the Sacred Heart Catholic church, which are scheduled for 8 a. m., and except for those at the First Church of Christ and at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, which will start at 11 o'clock.

Union Services

The Protestant denominations will meet at the Floral Heights Methodist church for union services. The Rev. Patrick Henry, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church, will preside, and Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, will deliver the Thanksgiving sermon. His subject will be "The World's Richest Man." R. E. Shepherd will be song leader, and a varied musical program will be rendered.

The St. Paul's Lutheran church will conduct special services in the English language at 10:20 o'clock, with the Rev. C. M. Beyer, pastor, delivering a sermon on "It Is a Good Thing to Give Thanks Unto the Lord."

An elaborate musical program has been prepared for the services at the Church of the Good Shepherd, which are also to begin at 10:30 o'clock.

All stores, all county offices and courts, and most of the city departments will be closed for the day, according to announcements from officials concerned.

Schools Close

Schools likewise will be closed, the thrill of the two football games, here and at Amarillo, replacing long hours over texts. Aside from the athletic events here and over the state, many events of a different nature, including dances and parties, are to be held Thursday evening and over the week-end.

The non-athletic events which are of most concern to the younger ones will be the free turkey dinner for all newsboys, to be given by W. I. Cameron at his cafeteria on Eighth street Thursday afternoon, and the special school children's entertainment Thursday night at the Memorial auditorium. The entertainment is sponsored by the Playground band, and has been arranged under the direction of C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent. Many song and dance numbers will be given.

Concert for Newsboys

"After the dinner, the concert.' This routine of the 400 will be the routine of the newsboys and messenger boys Thursday night, for Mr. Bunnenberg announced Wednesday that all of them have been given tickets to the Playground band's program, which they will attend after the Cameron turkey dinner, which is to be given beginning at 2:30 o'clock.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED FOR UNION SERVICES

The annual Thanksgiving service in which all the Protestant churches will participate will be held at the Floral Heights Methodist church Thursday at 10:30 o'clock it was announced Wednesday.

Rev. Patrick Henry, pastor of the new Highland Heights Christian church, will preside and R. E. Shepherd will act as song leader. "America the Beautiful," led by Mr. Shepherd will be the opening song and will be followed by a prayer from Dr. F. M. Brooke, evangelist of Waco, who is holding a revival at the Highland Heights Christian church.

Powers to Speak

Dr. Gaines B. Hall of the First Southern Presbyterian church will conduct the scripture reading. A special feature of the program will be the quartet composed of Mrs. George Thorburn, soprano; Miss Katherine Sullivan, contralto; R. E. Shepherd, tenor and E. F. Bohmfalk, baritone, which will sing Spainer's "Ye Shall Dwell in the Land." Following the offertory, W. E. Young will sing "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings," by Liddle. Mr. Young and the quartet will be accompanied at the organ by Mrs. O. E. Nicholls.

Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church will deliver the message of the morning. His subject will be "The World's Richest Man." The closing benediction will be given by Dr. N. F. Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

Other Services

Thanksgiving services in the English language will be held at the St. Paul's Lutheran church at Eleventh and Holliday streets at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. C. M. Beyer will talk on "It's a Good Thing to Give Thanks Unto the Lord."

A special Thanksgiving mass will be held at the Sacred Heart church at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. Members of the First Church of Christ will also celebrate Thanksgiving with a program at the church at 11 o'clock.

The special Thanksgiving program to be given at the Church of the Good Shepherd will include "Thanksgiving Chant," (Elvy), "Gloria," (Goodson), "Te Deum," (Dykes), "Jubilate," (Aldrich) and the anthem, "The Desert Shall Rejoice," Nichol.

The program will begin promptly at 10:30 o'clock and the public is cordially invited to attend, it was announced.

Booze Ring Leader Is Sentenced to Prison

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (US)—Titus A. Faffa, convicted leader of a $5,000,000 booze ring, must serve a two-year term in the penitentiary and pay a $11,000 fine. This was the decision of the circuit court of appeals today in affirming the conviction of the former alderman and four others on 11 counts on Feb. 13 last.

COMPOSER DEAD

LONDON, Nov. 27. (UP)—Duvergne Henry Barnard, 62, composer of "Whisper and I Shall Hear" and many other ballads, died today.

Governor, Wichita Falls Visitor, Proclaims Thanksgiving Day

Gov. Dan Moody, a visitor in Wichita Falls Wednesday and Wednesday night, has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation:

To all to whom these presents shall come:

Thanksgiving day has since it's inception meant to the American people just what the term implies—a day for the giving of thanks. We as a people have been richly blessed during the past year, not only have we benefitted in industry and commerce—we have enjoyed many spiritual and social blessings. No war nor national disturbances has marred our peace and tranquillity.

Dan Moody

We should on this day of the year especially take stock of our manifold blessings and render thanks as a nation to Almighty God, the Giver of all gifts.

Now, therefore, I, Dan Moody, governor of the state of Texas, in accordance with the proclamation of the President of the United States, the laws of this state, and with the beautiful custom prevailing throughout the country, do hereby designate Thursday, Nov. 28, A. D., 1929, as and call upon the citizenship of our state to appropriately observe the same by the rendering of thanks to our Maker for His blessings.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto signed my name officially and caused the seal of the state to be impressed hereon at Austin, this the 21st day of November, A. D., 1929.

DAN MOODY, Governor of Texas.

Giant Airplane Crashes on House

ing crash as the great plane dug a hole into the roof of the home of Joseph Sentori. That impact broke a wing of the plane but still it soared headlong across the street.

It tumbled down onto the home of Joseph de Beaver. Mrs. De Beaver's 4-year-old son, Joseph Jr., was asleep upstairs. Mrs. De Beaver dashed upstairs, seized the child, and ran out into the yard screaming.

The house caught fire and was completely destroyed. The flames were communicated to the home of Arthur Wicks, next door. That home also was destroyed. The occupants were absent at the time of the crash.

Boggs suffered a broken leg. When he recovered consciousness he kept murmuring in half-delirium:

"I believe the plane struck a child."

Police said they had made a check-up of the children in the neighborhood and found none missing.

The Fokker was built by the Fokker company at a cost of $110,000. While the Western Air Express had arranged to buy five planes of similar size and design, it was announced today that ownership of the plane rested in the Fokker company, which recently was taken over by General Motors.

The F-32 was not only the largest but one of the most luxurious ever built in this country. It was powered by four 525 horsepower Pratt and Whitney Hornet motors. It was 69 feet long and 16 feet high. The interior was handsomely fitted with mahogany with sleeping quarters for 16.

England's doctor bills amount to more than $300,000,000 a year.

BANKS CRASH IN OKLAHOMA

H. A. McCauley's Death Precedes Closing

his wife said, less than an hour later.

The banks taken over by the state banking department and their condition, as of Oct. 4, follow:

Sapulpa State bank, Sapulpa; deposits, $1,042,000; capital stock, $100,000.

Bank of Mounds, Mound; deposits, $132,000; capital stock, $25,000.

Henryetta State bank, Henryetta; deposits, $456,000; capital $50,000.

Bank of Commerce, Weleetka; deposits, $62,000; capital, $25,000.

First State bank, Vian; deposits, $73,000; capital, $10,000.

Citizens State bank, Webber Falls; deposits, $157,000; capital, $15,000.

Davenport State bank, Davenport; deposits, $151,370; capital, $15,000.

Oilton State bank, Oilton; deposits, $169,000; capital, $25,000.

First State bank, Terlton; deposits, $76,000; capital, $10,000.

Avant State bank, Avant; deposits, $121,000; capital, $15,000.

Keystone State bank, Keystone; deposits, $58,000; capital, $10,000.

Bank of Kellyville; deposits, $114,000; capital, $10,000.

McCauley was in addition to his banking interests, a civic leader in Sapulpa. He was mayor for one term, and one of the first commissioners under the city manager form of government now in effect.

The only bank which McCauley controlled and which did not close its doors, was the American State bank of Porum.

Shull indicated there was a possibility that the banks at Henryetta and possibly one or two others might re-open soon.

Grundy Verdict Expected Today

the jury instructed a verdict of not guilty if the defendant was believed insane when he shot June Hilburn. The burden of proving that Grundy was so mentally unbalanced as not to know right from wrong, however, rested upon the defendant, the judge stated. The verdict, in case the defendant was found unbalanced to that extent, the judge continued, must specify "by reason of insanity."

Three special charges offered by the defense were submitted to the jury. One instructed that "insanity is a complete defense to crime, including murder." Another charged that the jury might consider all circumstances surrounding and leading up to the homicide in reaching its decision. The third instructed the jury that statements made by Grundy to police as he was being led to headquarters after the shooting could be considered only for the purpose of deciding the issue of insanity.

The remainder of the charge included routine instructions. Judge Martin told the jury that if it should be decided Grundy killed Hilburn with malice aforethought, it should find him guilty and fix the sentence as death in the electric chair or a term of not less than two years in prison. In case of a verdict of guilty without malice aforethought, the maximum term would be five years, the judge said.

UPSET BY BAD SICK HEADACHES

Disagreeable Feeling All Went Away Following Use of Black-Draught.

Paducah, Ky.—"For a long time I suffered with severe sick headaches that would unfit me for my work for two or three days at a time," says Mrs. C. H. Hall, of 825 South Fifth street, this city.

"I would have these headaches if I let myself get constipated. I would also feel very dull and stupid and have a very bad taste in my mouth.

"After I heard of Thedford's Black-Draught and began taking it, all this bad feeling would disappear and I would not have the headache, so that now I just keep a box of Black-Draught on hand, and when I feel the least bit bad I take a dose and it relieves me at once. I am glad to recommend Black-Draught, in fact I have done so many times, to friends and neighbors."

Thedford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable cathartic or laxative medicine, composed of selected medicinal herbs and roots. Black-Draught is finely powdered, which enables the juices of the stomach to extract its medicinal properties in an easy, natural way.

U. S. FAR FROM READY FOR WAR

Months Would Be Needed To Prepare for Strife

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (UP)—Gen. Charles P. Summerall, the army's highest officer and chief of staff, expressed the opinion today months would elapse in case of war before the United States could make use of its potential military strength.

Summerall discussed this problem in his annual report made public today.

"Any great nation," he said, "which fails to provide for the utilization of mechanization to the utmost practicable degree must suffer the consequence of neglect in future war.

"Even in our first line troops, our basic units are far from complete and much time must elapse before divisions are ready for combat, even if necessity did not require the utilization of their personnel for training new troops."

There were 89,453 regular army officers and men available for immediate service in the United States on June 30, 1929, the remainder of the regulars being in territories, the Canal Zone, insular possessions and other stations, Summerall reported.

State Asks U. S. Court for Delay In Hearing on New Barber Law

Coincident with the disclosure Wednesday that a Dallas barber college had joined with Louis R. Munoz, Dallas barber, in his attack on the constitutionality of the recently enacted state barber law, it was indicated that a continuance of the case might be made Saturday when the trial is scheduled in federal district court.

Judge William H. Atwell has received a telegram from the office of the state attorney general requesting such a continuance, and urging that the hearing be held in Dallas, it was announced. The request will be considered when the case is brought up Saturday, Judge Atwell said.

Munoz in his original attack on the law applied for an injunction asking that Gov. Dan Moody and other state officials be restrained from putting the barber law into effect. The fee of $10 for a barber law, according to the petition, would be class legislation and discriminatory and the creation of the board of barber examiners as specified in the law would deprive barbers of the right to trial by jury by placing arbitrary powers in the hands of the board.

An intervention in behalf of the Burton Barber college of Dallas and Fort Worth has been filed by J. Cleo Thompson, Dallas attorney, joining with Munoz in his attack on the constitutionality of the law. The barber college contends in its petition that the new law would be confiscatory and would abridge the right of contract, and that the provisions providing that applicants for licenses must have the equivalent of grammar school education and be at least 16½ years of age would make it impossible for barber colleges to continue in business. The petition further alleges that the law was adopted as a public health measure as a subterfuge and "it is in truth and in fact not a public health measure."

General Shake-Up in Senatorial Committees May Help G. O. P. Cause

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—The overwhelming Republican majority of 102 in the house forecasts a general shake-up in most committee memberships that will strengthen the Republican and weaken the Democratic representation.

Republican leaders have indicated to Representative Garner of Texas, minority leader, they desire to increase their membership on the major committees of 21 members from 13 to 14. This would reduce the Democrats from 8 to 7, and would necessitate the transfer of several to other committees.

The Republican majority was increased by the 1928 elections from 34 in the 70th congress to 102 in the 71st congress. The house membership of 435, has 267 Republicans, 165 Democrats, one Farmer-Laborer, and two vacancies.

Will Organize Committees

When the regular session begins on Monday, only five committees organized in the special session, will be functioning. The remainder will be organized later in the week after the Republicans and Democrats have selected their committee slates, and submitted them to the house. In them the changes will be made.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, majority leader, has called a meeting of the committee on committees for next Tuesday, second day of the regular session. At that time it will be decided whether to increase Republican membership, and committee slates will be prepared.

The minority members of the ways and means committee, headed by Represenative Garner, will meet Monday to draft the Democratic slate. With the loss of members in the last election and by death, there are about 60 vacant Democratic posts, but Republican action may reduce that number.

Favor Reductions

Many Republicans favor reducing the judiciary and interstate commerce committees' membership from 23 to 21, cutting off two Democrats and leaving 14 Republicans. Garner opposes this, holding the importance of the committees justifies the larger membership.

Although they may lose much committee representation, the Democrats are gratified that the quotas fixed for three of the most powerful committees will remain unchanged under an agreement between the parties in the house. The ways and means committee is divided 15 and 10, appropriations 21 and 14, and rules 8 and 4.

The Republicans have two chairmanships to fill, those of the military and invalid pensions committees. Representative James of Michigan, undoubtedly will head the former, having been ranking member when former Representative Morin of Pennsylvania, was chairman. Some difficulty may be encountered with respect to the latter since the two ranking members are heads of other committees.

DRY FOR GAME

Pre-Thanksgiving Raids Remove Sources of Students' Gin

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 27. (UP)—Drinking at the Oklahoma-Missouri game in Columbia tomorrow is expected to be at a minimum as the result of prohibition raids in Central Missouri this week which have driven bootleggers to cover.

Many of the raids were made in Columbia and are believed to have cut off former sources of supply at games.

Dry agents here refused to say whether they had been ordered to "cover" the game tomorrow.

Row Over Plans for School Party Fatal

HARRISBURG, Ill., Nov. 27. (INS)—Dwight Organ, 26, rural school teacher, today is held in the local jail charged with the murder of one of the directors of his school district with whom he is alleged to have quarreled over the changing of the time of a Thanksgiving program at Organ's school.

Organ is alleged to have shot Leslie Lightfoot, 33, twice, killing him almost instantly after the two had argued over the change in the program at Organ's school which had been ordered by Lightfoot and two other directors.

The shooting took place last night. Lightfoot is also a school teacher but teaches in a district other than the one of which he is a director.

KIOWA PLAN TO SECEDE FAILS

Move to Join Tillman County Defeated

HOBART, Okla., Nov. 27. (UP)—A 30-square-mile strip across the south end of Kiowa county, residents of which have been seeking to secede and become a part of Tillman county, will remain in Kiowa county as a result of a vote of citizens Tuesday.

One hundred thirty-seven votes were cast, 78 for secession and 59 against, but 60 per cent of the votes were needed to carry the proposition.

The dispute arose through the idea of citizens in the area that the southern part of the county does not receive its share of county road work.

Five Cars Raided By Thieves Here

Thieves apparently were taking advantage of the large number of cars parked on the streets of Wichita Falls Wednesday during the Shrine ceremonial festivities of the afternoon and night, according to police records. Other violations of the law were recorded on the police blotter in large numbers.

Five cases of theft of articles in parked automobiles had been reported to headquarters Wednesday night. Three times during the evening, police were called to arrest participants in affrays, several drunks were booked and lodged in jail and motorcycle officers were scouting the city for two automobiles said to have crashed into parked cars.

Mrs. L. H. Franklin reported the theft of a gladstone bag and a suit case from her car. G. D. Anderson notified police of the theft of an overcoat and mans hat from his car while it was parker at the Memorial auditorium during the Shrine ceremonial. Dee Curry of Waurika, Okla., reported that an overcoat had been taken from his automobile while it was parked in the 900 block on Scott ovenue. J. H. Cable reported thieves had taken a shotgun and leather case from his car and J. H. Pendergrass, of the Cashion school, had a leather coat taken from his car while it was parked in the 1000 block on Indiana avenue.

Old Colonial Club In Chicago Burns

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (UP)—A handful of aging millionaires stood on the curbstone today and watched what once was the most exclusive club in Chicago go up in smoke and flames.

The Old Colonial club, once the gathering place for the Swifts, Armours, Morrises, Rothchilds and other millionaires who helped to build Chicago on a swamp, was abandoned 15 years ago by the fast disappearing coterie of rich pioneers with only a caretaker in charge.

Early today fire broke out in the three-story, weatherbeaten mansion and destroyed it.

A. M. Thompson Sr., above, of Walters, Okla., conducted the special election in Oklahoma Tuesday which determined that the southern strip of Kiowa county should not secede to join Tillman county. A map is shown below pointing out the area involved. Mr. Thompson was named special commissioner for the election by Gov. W. J. Holloway.

Two Men Killed In Oklahoma Gunfight

BUTLER, Okla., Nov. 27. (AP)—Two men were killed and another was wounded probably fatally in a gun fight in an alley here last night as a result of what officers said they believed was an attempt to rob a poker game.

Dola Langston, 35, cotton picker, and Ollie Hood, 46, farmer of near Butler, were the dead men. Murrell Folsom was in a hospital here not expected to recover.

FAUBLE FACES SIX CHARGES

Extortion Plot to Be Aired At Tecumseh

TECUMSEH, Okla., Nov. 27. (UP)—Arthur Fauble, Shawnee wholesale merchant, will be tried on six counts of attempted extortion. He was bound over to district court for trial after his preliminary hearing today before Peace Justice J. J. Dutton.

He was ordered released on $6,000 bond.

Fauble was taken into custody at Wichita, Kan., when he asked police protection from what he called a "gang of eastern blackmailers who threatened him with death." Returned here, he was charged with extortion against several wealthy Shawnee residents. Details of the extortion plot were given in a lengthy investigation.

He was given a sanity hearing but was declared rational.

Man Wanted at Burk Held in Arizona

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 27. (AP)—Charles Barnett, who gave Dallas, Texas, as his address, was bound over to action by the federal grand jury today when arraigned before a U. S. commissioner on the charge of transporting a stolen automobile from Burkburnett, Texas, to Arizona.

William Purtle, of Texas, charged jointly with Barnett, is being held in jail pending receipt of identification records from Washington. When he was first arrested, officers believed Purtle was an escaped prisoner from Huntsville prison, Texas.

Federation Day Observed In Joint Club Program

Federation day and a South American musical program were features of interest when Mrs. Clyde Gibson was hostess to members of the Standard and 1922 Study clubs at her lovely home in Country Club Estates Wednesday afternoon.

An entertainment committee, consisting of Mesdames R. A. Lincoln, J. M. Isbell and W. T. Westmoreland, was thanked for its work.

Mrs. A. C. Price presided during the program, introducing Mrs. Jack Dale who made an interesting talk on "What the Federation Means to Us," and Mrs. T. P. Kelm, who gave a splendid report on the recent Texas Federation of Women's clubs meeting in Mineral Wells.

Mrs. Price made a short talk on "Music in South America," and following it, several interesting musical numbers were given. Merrill Strong gave a violin number, "La Media Noche," accompanied at the piano by Frinces Wise. Katherine Wilson sang, to the guitar accompainment, "An Old Guitar and An Old Refrain," and "Ginnina Mia."

The guests, who were seated for the program, were invited into the dining room where the tea table was lovely with a filet cloth over yellow, a large center of golden chrysanthemums, and yellow tapers in silver holders at each side. Presiding before handsome silver services, were Mesdames W. R. Little and Phil Lesh, who poured the coffee.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Money is certainly a good thing to have. We are not avaricious but the older one gets the more one realizes what "accumulation" of money means to peace of mind. The young people know what it is when they are unable to have what they desire, but it takes long education in poverty to teach that accumulation should begin early—and often the knowledge comes too late.

The phantom of misery that haunts so many men and women as they grow old is that ghastly thought of being dependent. No matter how much one loves a person, being dependent is a situation that will often bring wretchedness.

You can't have your cake and eat it. We do not believe in eating unbuttered bread through life; but forethought is wisdom.

We know of a woman in Wichita Falls, who recently, intending to be saving, decided that a Kansas City mail order house could better and more economically serve her wants than the stores in the city.

She needed a piece of fur, and looking into the catalog, she found what she thought was the very thing, ordering it, (as per instruction) cash in advance. The $12.98 piece of fur did not suit at all and when she wrote again, the mail order house, intent on pleasing a customer, told her to return the goods.

Of course she had to pay parcel post each way again and the additional 80 cents made her fur come to $13.78 and the fur would not match.

Then she walked into a local store and found the very thing she wanted, on sale for $5.

Not only a lesson in thrift, but one on shopping at home.

Reading an article on Tom Watson recently, we noted, "His time went in declamation and debate and dispute. But he could not argue away his poverty."

"People recognized him as a man of promise, but the recognition could not be drawn on at any bank."

Rockefeller and Carnegie and Ford will be remembered for the things they were able to contribute to man's welfare, long after those men enlivening congress with speech, have faded from the memory of all but a small minority.

Mrs. White Hostess To Unity Juniors

Mrs. J. H. White was hostess to members of the Unity Junior club at her pretty home on Morningside drive Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. J. H. S. Bonner gave a splendid paper on "The Religious and Moral Development of Childhood" and Mrs. F. J. Elbert discussed "Sex Education."

Following a short social session a delightful salad plate was served to Mesdames W. S. Abbott, J. M. Bonner, J. H. S. Bonner, C. W. Cahoon, C. E. Clough, J. P. Coleman, G. W. Gutzman, J. L. Sorosis Club Members Study "The Puritans"

Mrs. W. E. Timblin was hostess to members of the Sorosis club Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. W. P. Lowry the leader in an interesting program on "The Puritans."

Roll call was answered with quaint stories of Puritan customs and Mrs. Lowry, in a splendid talk, gave a glance at the real Puritan.

Mrs. A. W. Burnside gave "The Courtship of Miles Standish" as a special Thanksgiving reading, after which a delicious salad plate was served to Mesdames M. H. Glover, A. W. Burnside, Joe D. Harris, O. R. Haynie, R. E. Hilburn, I. W. Karrenbrock, W. P. Lowry, Stanley McGregor, Howard Renfro and the hostess.

Thank Those Who Make You Happy, Says Dorothy Dix

We Call Out "Merry Christmas" to Every One We Meet, and Wish "a Happy New Year" Even to Our Enemies—Why on Thanksgiving Day Don't We Say "Thank You" to Those Who Make Us Happy?

To me Thanksgiving day is the most beautiful festival of the whole year. Every year I thrill anew to the gesture of noble humility that the president makes when in solemn proclamation he sets aside a day upon which the peoples of these United States are commanded to return thanks to Almighty God for bountiful harvests, for peace and prosperity and health and the blessings they have received during the last 12 months.

It is an official reminder of our debt to a beneficent providence that most of us need, for we are all too prone to accept our good fortune as nothing more than our just deserts, and not half of what we would like to have, while we make the welkin ring with our complaints and cries of anguish over our misfortunes. But while it is fitting that we should celebrate Thanksgiving day by first expressing our gratitude to God, I should like to see it also brought down from Heaven to earth, and made a little more personal, so to speak.

What I mean is, I should like to see Thanksgiving celebrated by making it the day on which people express to each other their appreciation of the love, the friendship, the tenderness, the sweetness, the generosity that has been showered upon them, the sacrifices that have been made for them and that has made life worth living for them.

On Christmas we go around wearing the smile that won't come off, calling out "Merry Christmas" to all we meet. On New Year we forget our little spites and prejudices and wish even our enemies a happy and prosperous New Year. Why, then, on Thanksgiving shouldn't we say "Thank you" to those who have done so much to make us happy?

Believe me, if we did, with a few kind words we would bring more real cheer and happiness into the world than we do with mountains of ribbon-tied Christmas gifts and tons of New Year greeting cards, for what our family and friends yearn for is some little sign of appreciation, some little indication that we haven't taken all that they have given without even a passing thought of gratitude.

Of course, we are not as selfish and as callous and as greedy as we seem, nor are we as dull and insensible. We are merely dumb. We bury in our hearts what we think of our beloved and wait to carve it on their tombstones.

Whether a wandering ghost gets any pleasure out of roosting on a monument and reading a flowery epitaph, we do not knew, but we do know that every living human being yearns for a few bouquets and a little warm appreciation.

So wouldn't it make it a beautiful Thanksgiving day if our friends wrote us, or telephoned us, or wired us, or came to us and said:

"I want to thank you for all that you have done to make my life happy during the last year. I want to thank you for the companionship that you have given me, without which my soul should have starved to death as surely as a hungry man would for bread. I want to thank you for the patience with which you have listened while I talked about myself and my small affairs. I want to thank you for the tears that you wept with me in my sorrow, and the gladness you added to my joy when you rejoiced in my good fortune.

"I want to thank you for the helping hand that you held out to me in my hour of need, and most of all for the comfort it has been to me to know that I had a friend on whose loyalty I could rely and to whom I could go in any time of trouble."

And suppose on Thanksgiving day their grown and married children should go to their parents and tell them how much they appreciated all they had done for them and that they thought, if their father and mother had their deserts, that they would be covered from head to foot with distinguished service medals. For it takes a lot more heroism to stand over a cooking stove and bend over an office desk for 20 years than it does to stand five minutes on the firing line of battle.

Suppose these children should say: "We know the miles upon miles you walked us when we had the colic when you were ready to drop with fatigue. We know the sleepless nights you spent bending over our beds when we were sick. We know how often you have gone shabby that we might be dressed as well as the boys and girls we went with. We know how you slaved and starved to educate us and give us the chance you never had.

"We know the divine patience and forebearance you showed in dealing with our youthful follies and conceit, and with what wisdom you steered us along the right paths. We know that all of our lives you have given everything and asked nothing of us in return and we want to tell you how much we appreciate it and how much we love you and thank you for all you have done for us, and to tell you that we hope we will be half as good parents to our children as you have been to us."

And suppose on Thanksgiving day every husband said to his wife:

"Mary Jane, I want to thank you for the happiness you have given me since we have been married, for the children you have borne me and the peaceful home you have made for me. I want to thank you for the help you have been to me, the courage you have instilled into me, for the unselfishness and devotion you have shown me."

And suppose every wife said to every husband on Thanksgiving day: "John, I want to thank you for your tenderness and your goodness to me and for keeping me soft and warm so that I do not have to battle with the world as so many women do. I want you to know that I appreciate that life is hard for a man who has to struggle to support a family, and that I think the saints and the martyrs gave no nobler example of self-sacrifice than you do when you toil year in and year out, to feed hungry little mouths and buy shoes for restless little feet and lay all that you make on the altar of home. And I thank you for calling my temper nerves and not seeing that I have got old and fat and am sometimes trying to live with."

Wouldn't it be a grand and glorious day if on Thanksgiving day we would all say "Thanky?"

—DOROTHY DIX.

Members of Reader's Club Hear Splendid Program

One of the most interesting programs of the season was given by members of the Reader's club when they met Wednesday morning with Mrs. J. T. Harrell at her home on Buchanan street.

Mrs. Harrell was leader and the first number she introduced on the program was the interesting reading by Mrs. Porter Oakes of "Magdalena."

A one-act play, "The Valiant," was a splendid characterization by Miss Mary Hamilton.

The play, "Men Folk," was a tragedy acted by Miss Marguerite Fisher. Mesdames B. M. Bell and J. S. Crumpler, which is said to have brought tears to every eye. The story was that of three generations of women of the sea; the grandmother's husband had been lost at sea; the mother's had died in the same way and the husband of the granddaughter dies at sea in the progress of the story. Wonderfully acted, the play stirred deep emotion.

Plans were made for the Christmas tea which will be given the afternoon of Dec. 11 at the home of Mrs. Porter Oakes. Each member will be permitted one guest and with the program, a Christmas tree will be enjoyed.

Members present Wednesday were Mesdames J. S. Crumpler, A. D. Duck, E. L. Fulton, J. T. Harrell, Ed Bristol, Porter Oakes, W. F. Pagan, Cecil Putty, Charles Reid, John Rhea, Claude Ruffner, John Thomas, J. G. Oakley, B. M. Bell and Misses Marguerite Fisher, Dorothy Nolen, Mary Hamilton, Miss Katherine Ralston of Iowa Park and one visitor, Mrs. Paul Harrell.

Quartet Makes New Bid For Position In Modern Music

By LEONARD LIEBLING
Universal Service Music Critic

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Nothing original of much value is materializing in music just now. Perhaps the once staid art of quartet-playing senses the situation. At any rate, by garbing itself in new and strange habiliments it is making a typically modern bid for added public notice.

The London string quartet came along recently and gave a cycle of four concerts here which it called "From Haydn to Hindemith." In the old days the course would have been entitled simply, "Historical Series." Another ensemble foursome of dignified membership has no hesitancy in press-agenting the prices of the valuable instruments upon which its players perform. A third string aggregation is brought from a remote European point to appear at one or two concerts subsidized on this side of the ocean by a wealthy patron of chamber-music. A fourth little band of the same kind chooses a celebrated violinist as its head; a fifth is led by a woman.

Special Platform

The Lener string quartet, latest of the foreign visitors, plays upon a specially constructed platform and makes no secret of the fact that the tiny ensemble is trying to produce some of the effects of a reduced string orchestra.

And so it goes—a far cry from the times when chamber music was in truth chamber music, cultivated chiefly in private homes and for a small and devoted circle of the most serious listeners who looked upon the performers chiefly as mediums through whom to become acquainted with the great trios, quartets, quintets and other chamber compositions of the eminent masters.

A most novel appeal is made by the Aguilar lute quartet, from Madrid, Spain. The three Aguilar brothers and their sister hark back to an ancient period for their musical means. They revived the obsolete lute, once the most popular of all instruments, and set about to perfect themselves in its application to modern musical, tonal and technical requirements. They built up a faultless ensemble in those departments, amplified the possibilities of execution on the lute, minimized its choppiness of tone and developed mastery in the true artistic interpretation of the best music written for and adapted to the many stringed instrument which intrigued the musicians of the olden days and inspired the poets of those ears to dedicate to it many romantic lines.

Lute Revival

Even such really musical lyricists as Milton, Shakespeare and Moore paid rhapsodic tribute to the instrument upon which Apollo was supposed to have strummed, and to its "lascivious pleasings" and "gently warbling strains."

The Aguilar quartet is in a class with Segovia, who came here and conquered with his equally romantic guitar, that also harks back into the distant shades of the past.

It is a significant fact that the Aguilars and Segovia both are from Spain, a country which, after centuries of almost total eclipse in art music, suddenly shines forth full-fledged with such gifted composers as Albeniz, Granados, Nin, De Falla and others, whose works now are an integral part of the programs at our best instrumental, vocal and orchestral concerts.

The Neo-Spanish musical creators have invaded even the sacrosanct precincts of opera, for "Goyescas," by Granados, and "La Vita Breve," by De Falla, were produced at the metropolitan within the memory of the present generation.

P.-T. A. Council Hears Report In Morning Session

A report of the P.-T. A. convention recently held in Waco was the feature of the Wichita Falls Council P.-T. A. morning meeting at the Memorial auditorium Wednesday.

Mrs. Karr, the council delegate, gave an interesting detailed report of the convention and announced that she will give the report to any local P.-T. A. that did not send a delegate.

"P.-T. A. tries to supply the soul of education," Mrs. A. J. Newby, chairman of education, said in explaining the meaning of the P.-T. A. emblem and answering the main question of "Why a P.-T. A." Mrs. Newby displayed the P.-T. A. emblem and explained the meaning of all its parts.

Dr. F. R. Collard made a short talk on the progress of the work being done by the tuberculosis society of Wichita county and announced that a nurse had been employed to visit the homes where the disease had developed and would give instruction how to treat it.

Mrs. Willis announced that the council will try out the all-day meeting plan with each member bringing a covered dish for the luncheon.

Those attending the meeting were Mesdames H. R. Cloughley, M. E. Sansbury, G. Galmiche, Alex Michael, Otis Nelson, I. R. Sheldon, J. L. Ware, L. R. Hall, R. A. Bailey, J. E. O'Brien, George Halstead, W. L. Goodson, O. E. Baumgardner, R. A. Yeager, E. E. Ray, H. W. Conn, Harold Murph, J. L. Fooshee, John M. Fox, A. J. Newby, O. H. Karr, H. J. Strief and R. P. Willis.

Marriage for Two

By Arthur Somers Roche

Shortly after an interview in which Helen Wilson tells Larry Tracy that she wishes to break their engagement so that she can marry the wealthy, middle-aged Frank Burton, and Larry swears, in pique, to marry the first girl who will have him, he rescues from a park bench a starved but beautiful girl.

In the smart little restaurant to which the taxi driver takes them Larry orders dinner for her. He is amazed at the bravery with which she faces life, and at the bitter cynicism of her regard for men.

"Do you think I have reason to be anything else?" she demanded.

"I know nothing of your reasons. I'm not going to ask about them," he told her. "I simply want to know what you are going to do."

"Is it your affair?" she asked.

"It certainly is," replied. "If a ship picks up a shipwrecked sailor, he isn't fed and cast into the sea again."

"I can swim now," she said.

"How far?" he inquired. "Why," he went on brutally, "you'll be hungry again in the morning—tonight, probably. You can't be famished for days—"

"Weeks," she interposed dryly.

"And recover with one meal," he continued. "Why—I don't believe you have any place to sleep tonight."

"So," she said quietly, "you are going to offer to remedy that lack—"

"I haven't insulted you," he cried. "Why should you insult me? You—you owe me something."

"I knew," she said wearily, "that you would shortly present your bill."

"You make me," he said angrily, "want to strike you. I—mean that—I can't let you leave me in the condition—why, you're barely able to stand."

A Gift

It was true, and even as she started to deny the fact she caught at the table edge and sank down into the chair from which she had risen.

"I said you owed me something, and you do," he went on. "You can't assist a drowning person halfway out of the water and then let him fall back."

"I'm a her, not a him," she said.

"What difference does that make?" he cried. "You permit me to aid you momentarily, but refuse to accept an aid that means something. If I—did nothing for you—I'd not be able to sleep."

"And that," she mocked, "would bring lines to your forehead, would gray your hair—"

"Have you any place to go when you leave here?" he asked.

"Well?" she evaded.

"You have no money. You have—my God, if you haven't a place to sleep, then you can't have any clothes beyond what you're wearing—"

"So you'll see that I have a bed, food, clothes—thank you, but I'm not having any."

"What a rotten, dirty mind you have!" he said.

Her eyes lighted with anger. Tracy had never known that black eyes could hold fiery glints.

"What do you mean?" she demanded.

"I mean that you must have perfectly filthy thoughts, or you would not be so quick—"

She laughed aloud, and in her laugh was an anguish, a self-mockery so poignant that for a moment he feared she would become hysterical.

"I have filthy thoughts?" she said. "I have a rotten mind? Well, my dear man, where do you suppose I acquired those thoughts and that mind? Who gave them to me do you think? The men that—"

"Why blame me for what other men may have said or done?" he interrupted.

She appraised him. Never in his life had Tracy been subjected to a scrutiny as searching as this girl gave him now. It was not merely his features that she examined; he felt, eerily, that she was looking into his mind, into his very heart.

Then she nodded, as though she had come to a decision.

"You want to help me?" Her words were more of a statement than a question.

"Of course," he said.

"Then you may. What do you want to do for me?"

"I want to give—lend—"

"Call it give," she interrupted. "I shall never, save under the most fortunate circumstances, be able to repay you."

"All right, then. I want to give you money enough to tide you over—"

"A hundred? A thousand? Ten thousand?" she inquired. The subtle mockery in her voice made him redden.

"Whatever," he said stiffly, "you choose to ask."

Quixotic Chivalry

"Even to the half of my fortune," she quoted. Her cynicism was revelatory not of herself but of those whom she had met. "Very well, I'll let you give me $500. On the absolute condition," she added, "that you agree never to make any attempt to meet me, to know me, to see me. What about it?"

He stared at her. Somehow, this continuance of distrust hurt more than it angered him.

"Very well," he said.

From his pocket he drew a roll of bills.

"You carry that much money with you?" she asked.

He smiled wryly. It happened that he had intended buying Helen an antique bracelet today, a bracelet that she had admired.

"I do—sometimes," he said.

"You'll keep your word?" she asked.

Despite his pity, he could not keep a sneer from his voice.

"You rate yourself too highly," he said.

"I deserve that," she answered.

Into a tiny handbag, as shabby as the clothing she wore, she stuffed the bills. Then she held out her hand.

"Good-by," she said.

"Good-by," he said stiffly.

She turned from him, reeled slightly, and he was just in time to catch her as she fainted.

Dismay fought with pity in Tracy's heart. The unconscious girl, whose starvation he had allayed by the purchase of a meal, whose immediate future he had rendered fairly secure by the gift of $500, aroused his pity, but the fact that he held her in his arms aroused dismay.

Thank heaven, this little restaurant, while smart enough at luncheon and dinner, had no tea patronage. Save for an idle waiter or so, it was deserted. But still, to have it told all over town—for all he knew he had been recognized. . . . Then he cursed himself for a snob.

How light she was! For a girl of her more than average height she weighed almost nothing. All traces of the snobbery-inspired dismay were gone now. She couldn't weigh much over 100 pounds, and she ought to weigh 25 pounds more. Somehow or other this fact made her starvation more dreadful.

A waiter was by her side now, consternation visible on his expressive Gallic countenance. Mademoiselle had died? But no—it was a faint. Oh, well, women were like that. The waiter's wife, for example, had been known to faint at the so-unimoprtant bite of a mosquito. Mademoiselle, perhaps—

"For God's sake, do something," said Tracy. "Get me some brandy—quick."

There was a cushioned bench along one wall, where, when the restaurant was crowded, patrons sat in discomfort assuaged by the fact that they were dining in a haunt of fashion. Upon this narrow couch Tracy laid the girl. He felt a queer regret as he relinquished his burden. Although she was in his arms through no volition of her own, her helplessness aroused something that was more than protective. He stared down at her.

The waiter arrived with brandy, and also with a maid from the coat-room, who knelt beside the girl, chafed her hands, touched her temples with the cognac. Beneath her ministrations the girl sighed, opened her eyes. Her lips rejected the liquor, and Tracy wiped her chin with his handkerchief. She did not acknowledge the service even by a flicker of her lashes. Her eyes closed again.

"The lady is ill," said the maid. "I know that myself," retorted

NINE BILLION DOLLARS TO BE SPENT ON BUILDINGS DURING 1930

CONSTRUCTION WORK LISTED

All Branches of Industry Plan Expansion

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (UP)—Construction and improvement programs in the United States during the coming year will aggregate more than $9,000,000,000, divided among industrial, public utility, railroad and state and municipal programs, according to a survey by the United Press.

These figures were compiled from various statements of state governors, industrial leaders and railroad executives after President Hoover's series of business and economic conferences. As a result the nation is facing the greatest building program in its history in 1930.

Next year's construction program is estimated as follows: Industrial corporations, $3,500,000,000; public utility $2,000,000,000; state and municipal, $1,921,800,000; railroad, $1,250,000 and federal government, $750,000,000. Total $9,421,800,000.

In addition to the programs already announced, a number of uncompleted projects might be undertaken which would swell next year's construction total to more than $10,000,000,000.

The following table shows prospective expenditures by some of the country's leading corporations and railroads:

American Telephone & Telegraph $700,000,000; Pennsylvania railroad (estimated), $200,000,000; Commonwealth & Southern, $77,500,000; U. S. Steel corporation (estimated), $75,000,000; New York Central (estimated), $75,000,000; Chicago-Northwestern, $70,000,000; Standard Gas and Electric, $63,700,000; Utilities Power and Light, $60,000,000; Union Pacific (estimated), $60,000,000; Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific $59,000,000; Southern Pacific, $50,000,000; All others (estimated), $3,250,800,000. Total industrial and railroad, $4,750,000,000.

Most of the industrial and railroad budgets have been obtained from official estimates by the companies themselves, although a few of the larger company's budgets not reported, have been based on last year's expenditures, giving a conservative estimate. In most cases, next year's construction programs eclipse any others on record.

State Expenditures

Since publication of President Hoover's message to various governors, the following states have estimated their 1930 budget. Those not reporting actual figures expressed their willingness to cooperate with the government:

New York, $750,000,000, (estimated); Pennsylvania, $158,000,000; Illinois, $114,000,000; Missouri, $87,500,000; New Jersey, $35,000,000; Minnesota, $36,000,000; Tennessee, $35,000,000; Iowa, $31,000,000. Arkansas, $30,000,000; Kentucky, $28,000,000; Ohio, $25,000,000; South Carolina, $23,000,000; Virginia, $18,000,000; Nebraska, $16,500,000; New Mexico, $15,500,000; Maryland, $8,500,000; New Hampshire, $6,500,000; Montana, $6,000,000; Nevada, $1,500,000; all others, $500,000,000. Total $1,921,800,000.

Federal government plans call for an expenditure of $100,000,000 in buildings outside of Washington and $75,000,000 in Washington. In addition, congressional action might be expected on plans for a $2,000,000,000 super transcontinental highway, part of the work possibly to be undertaken next year. Other federal projects which may meet early consideration are Boulder dam, improvements at Niagara falls Mississippi valley and Muscle Shoals.

Farmers Meet at Seymour to Plan Extensive Terracing Demonstration

By MRS. J. C. HENSON
Record News Correspondent

SEYMOUR, Texas, Nov. 27.—A large and representative meeting of farmers was held at the court house Tuesday to perfect plans for terracing schools to be held in each community in the next few weeks. This movement has been under way for some time, and organization is now perfected, and machinery has been secured so that demonstration schools will start immediately. Committees from each community have been appointed and the first school will be held in the Lively district Dec. 5 and 6, supervised by J. E. Holman, E. A. Jones and F. T. Hons on the latter's farm. In the Levelview district Buck McKenzie and Joe Cox will have charge, the date being set for Dec. 13 and 14 on the McKenzie farm. The place has not been designated for the Red Springs demonstration, but it will be held Dec. 16 and 17 in charge of H. A. Smith and Lee Powell. In the Ogden community the school will be in charge of J. W. Fite and R. D. Norton and will be held Dec. 18 and 19. The next school will be held Jan. 7, and 8 in the Lake Creek community, under the direction of R. J. Austin and son and W. S. Garner on the latter's farm. Then follows the one at Cache creek in charge of John Kubena and Antone Mocek on the Mocek farm, Jan. 10 and 11. The Mary's creek school will be held Jan. 13 and 14 at H. M. McLarty's farm under his direction assisted by A. Holub. The Plainview date is Jan. 16 and 17 in charge of R. L. Eddlemon, J. W. Olsen and R. F. Hewitt, place to be designated later. The Miller creek school Jan. 20 and 21 on the J. E. Chambers farm in charge of Roy D. Butler. The Bomarton dates are Jan. 23 and 24 under the direction of G. W. Prichard on his farm. Other schools will be held at Round Timber by Hubert Parker, Shady by L. L. McDaniel and Henry Mozak, at Richard by Cline Morris and J. W. Elkins, at Corn by J. E. Fritz, at Westover by W. H. Hale and Will Cockrell, at Shawver by A. J. Hayley and Rufus Matrin, at Hash Knife by H. C Parker and Milt Howe, at Jeter by B. M. Higgins and at Self by Walter Self. The dates and places for these demonstrations will be announced later. County Agent S. A. Palmer assists in each of these terracing problems and gives instructions on the use of the farm level.

A committee composed of R. L. George, president of the chamber of commerce, W. N. Hart, district manager for the Texas Electric Service company and Lem Bellows, manager of the Musser Lumber company, has been appointed to work out plans to finance the purchase of a farm level for each community, which will cost approximately $20 each. There has been some terracing work done here in the past two years as an experiment. In every case the terraced land has produced more in these dry years, because it has held the moisture better, and in many instances has saved the farmers from replanting after the early spring rains. This movement has had added impetus in Texas since the federal farm board has employed an expert to assist the farmers in this work, as land which was good security 10 years ago, has become practically worthless from erosion. Few farms have come to that state in West Texas, but it is hoped that this movement will gain such impetus that in a few years the druths will not be able to cause the cotton slumps of the past few years.

Britain Ready to End Russo Trouble

LONDON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Great Britain is prepared to participate with other powers in joint action to bring the Russo-Chinese dispute in Manchuria to a peaceful termination, if such action proves possible.

Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson made this reply to a questioner in the house of commons today. He said he would consider whether Great Britain should take the initiative with the other powers.

Mr. Henderson told Sir Austen Chamberlain, his conservative predecessor at the foreign office, that communications had passed between the American and British governments with reference to the possibility of joint action Manchuria. The question had been discussed in the early days of November. "I think that since then no further communication has been received, but I think a communication has come through a telegram from another government, and if joint action can be taken we are prepared to participate."

ROAD WORTH BILLION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—A final valuation on the New York Central railroad of $1,573,206,614 was placed today by the Interstate Commerce commission as of June 30, 1918, to 1919.

GRAND JURORS TAKE PICTURES

Jail Break at San Antonio Investigated

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 27. (AP)—Armed with a camera, a grand jury today gathered information regarding the escape Monday of S. C. Shipp from the Bexar county jail.

Shipp indicted for arson, robbery and forgery, was captured at Floresville Monday afternoon.

The grand jurors visited the jail in a body and had Shipp re-enact his escape. Meanwhile Porter Loring, grand juror, made movies of the scene. Shipp slipped through a 7 by 18-inch slit in the bars, where one had been sawed out, and climbed down the jail side while grand jurors looked on.

Two men, J. A. Ford and R. "Bob" Barrett, are at liberty on bond, having been charged by complaint with aiding and abetting Shipp to escape.

Farmer Classified as 'Spender' by Thompson

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (AP)—The farmer, "broke," a few years ago, was ranked as a spender today by Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation.

Back from Washington where he conferred with President Hoover and American agricultural leaders on the economic situation, the farm bureau leader saw a return of confidence and of buying power in rural America as the result of the manifest intent of the government to extend the protective system to agriculture.

Norris Presses Move To Bar Vote Recount

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—In the face of a demand by William S. Vare for an additional recount of votes in 31 Pennsylvania counties in the 1926 senatorial election, Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, said today he would seek immediate action on his resolution to deny the Republican senator-elect his seat as soon as congress reconvenes next month.

TAX REDUCTION MARCH SLATED

Labor Head Urges Unions To Join Observance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (INS)—In accepting membership on the advisory committee organizing the earned income tax reduction parade to be staged here on Dec. 7, when a petition bearing the signatures of 1,000,000 persons is presented to congress, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today urged organized labor to participate en masse in the pageant.

Following a conference at labor temple with Major Joseph Caccavejo, chief of staff of the parade, President Green said:

"This is a splendid and necessary gesture to make and it has my wholehearted indorsement and enthusiastic support. I shall urge all the organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor to participate in this parade and by their presence bear witness to the fact that the movement for a reduction in the taxes and surtaxes on earned incomes has the solid and unqualified support of the working classes.

"The Hearst newspapers have rendered the people of this country a wonderful service by conducting this nation-wide campaign.

"There can be no doubt that professional and business people who pay high taxes on their incomes add this on to the bills.

"With all, this is a movement in which all unionized men and women should join in a whole-souled way. The bigger the parade and demonstration, the more congress will be impressed with the fact that the people of the country behind this movement mean business and want legislation for a downward revision at the regular session soon to convene. There should be no delay. The sensible and just thing for congress to do is to make the taxes and surtaxes on earned incomes at least 50 per cent less than the rate on unearned incomes derived from cutting coupons or chasing dividend checks."

Theater People Honor Hitchcock

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Nov. 27. (INS)—Amid the massed floral offerings of his associates of the theater and film studio and from grateful members of his audiences, Raymond Hitchcock today was paid the final tribute of sorrow.

Sam Hardy, president of the Masquers club, spoke the eulogy. The blessing was pronounced by Rev. M. M. Mangasarian, Armenian pastor and father of Mrs. Flora Zeabelle Hitchcock, the widow of the famous musical comedy star.

Hundreds of stage and screen folk, saddened by the sudden death last Sunday, of their friend, thronged the chapel of the Hollywood cemetery. Mrs. Hitchcock planned to convey the ashes of her husband to his New York birthplace.

The pallbearers were Richard Garlo, Wallace Beery, Ray Hubbell, Taylor Holmes, Robert Edeson, Sam Hardy, Jacques Pierre and Jed Prouty. There was a long list of distinguished honorary pallbearers.

Electra to Crown Football Queen

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 27.—Belva Hannah, senior, will be crowned Tiger football queen Thursday afternoon on the athletic field a short time before the Tigers play the Vernon Lions.

Miss Hannah was declared winner in the contest held between the different classes to determine who should be crowned queen. Each class sold tickets to the football games and the seniors sold the greatest number of tickets to all the games in which the Tigers were contestants. Lillie Mae George, junior candidate, was second and was beaten by a very small margin.

Those who will take part in the coronation are the pep squad, which is composed of 60 students; Bill Crass, captain of the Tigers, and Ralph Prince, president of the senior class.

Detective Slays Man Who Passed $46 Void Check

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Nov. 27. (INS)—George M. Hoe was dead here today, after being shot yesterday by City Detective Joseph Downs, when the detective attemted to arrest him for his alleged passing of a worthless check.

Downs arrested Hoe when he was pointed out by a store clerk as a man who presented a worthless check.

The detective and his prisoner started for police headquarters. They had gone only a short distance when Hoe struck the officer and started to flee.

The detective took direct aim and fired. The fugitive fell with a bullet in the right leg and another in the right hip. He died from loss of blood before he reached a hospital.

According to the manager of the store, Hoe presented a check for $46.96 for a shotgun and case. Inquiry at the bank revealed the check was worthless, he said.

MOVIE MERGER DRAWS CHARGE

Competition Eliminated Says Attorney General

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (INS)—Charging that mergers sponsored by Warner and Fox interests have eliminated competition in violation of the Clayton act, United States Attorney General William D. Mitchell today commenced action to compel the two firms to dispose of recently acquired control of rival concerns. The actions were filed here, one naming Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., Stanley Company of America and First National Pictures, Inc., the other naming Fox Theaters corporation, Fox Film company and William Fox as defendants.

In one complaint, demand is made for an order setting aside the acquisition by the Fox interests of Loew's, Inc., which in turn controls Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, proprietor of the M. G. M. producing and distributing organizations.

The producing capacity of the combined Fox and Loew concerns is 40 per cent of the country's motion picture production, the complaint declares, while the theaters controlled by the two concerns in the New York district alone, have a seating capacity equal to all the other houses in the district.

The Fox interests, it is alleged, obtained control of 435,000 shares of Loew common last February and still plan to obtain more.

Warner Brothers, it is charged, have eliminated First National Pictures as a competitor through their control of the Stanley company and the purchase of 71,893 shares of First National stock.

Demand is made that the federal court require the defendant to relinquish holdings which set up a monopoly, and enjoin them against voting their newly acquired stock.

Illinois Youth Found Dying in City Street

DECATUR, Ill., Nov. 27. (UP)—A homemade blackjack and a glass cutter seemed the only leads today toward solution of the mysterious death of Evaret Barker, 15-year-old junior high school student, found dying on the main street.

Everett was shot in the head and died before he could tell how or why he was attacked. The lad had been beaten.

Hours of questioning of his schoolmates brought no information and a search of the street yielded only the improvised blackjack and a glass cutter.

SNEERS, JEERS AND CHEERS
Daily Editorial

AN ARMY, fired with confidence, marches to the fray better armed than an enemy with outranging artillery—and heavier hearts.

Zeal is far more potent than steel. A sword loses half its length when swung by doubt.

Caution is a greater danger than recklessness—if its price is inaction. Over-eagerness may send venture off at half-cock, to stall in mid-thoroughfare—but that's fifty per cent farther than it will get, if over-conservatism holds the situation at a standstill.

Generals are recalled, managers are replaced, statesmen are retired as they fail crises and emergency. When they lose faith in their own judgments, they've gone bankrupt.

From that moment, they cease to be creative—they remember too much and dream too little; exaggerate obstacles and neglect to note exits; begin to acknowledge impossibilities and dull their outlooks on the sort of difficulties which once honed their enthusiasms.

The percentage in favor of a loss grows as leaders distrust their capacity to win.

Hope is the yeast of courage—the only compass in the wilderness of hesitation. Determination demands no paths—it makes them.

Patience and pertinacity are twin forces against which no circumstance or opposition can lastingly stand. Cowards alone continue to be failures.

Dogged purpose achieves more for the centuries than all their brilliance.

The sailors who reach lands beyond the charted seas, seldom ranked among the first navigators of the period.

TRIUMPHS over common despairs have been oftenest consummated by die-hards, who preceded to establish the needed precedent when tradition could guide them no further.

They looked upon contemporary rules simply as the expression of prior, and therefore limited, experience, and refused to accept them as final authority.

When faced by issues with which no predecessor had dealt, they whittled the necessary instruments to solve dilemmas.

New ways are always found where worn roads end. New tools are compelled into existence by the inadequacy of the old.

Too many folk are content to believe that the ultimate efficiencies were pre-attained by their forerunners.

The majority mind is an incompetent agent of progress. Most of us are prone to measure values by our own short yardsticks, and dismiss as impractical, such theories and plans as superficially appear unreasonable or infeasible.

Humanity is slow to adopt revised habits of thought or work. The comforts, simplifications and visions to which civilization owes most were forced into reluctant acceptance.

The bitterest struggle before the pioneer and the evangelist will ever be waged with the intended beneficiaries of their efforts.

Exceptional intelligence seldom escapes an indeterminate sentence to the dunce-stool.

Revolutionary conceptions regularly graduate from the fool's cap to the myrtle wreath.

They were all "cranks" at the outset of their endeavors—Peter and Paul with their "Brotherhood of Man," Archimedes with his fulcrum and lever, Daguerre with his camera, Patterson with his welfare work, Crooks and De Forest with their "preposterous tubes," and Langley with his flying planes.

The scholarly Athenians conferred a beaker of poison upon Socrates, and Florence lighted Savonarola's quenchless beacon with a brand from the fagot pile.

Incredulity, indifference and discouragement weren't tailored to your special measurement.

There's a patch of poison ivy in front of every laurel grove.

The jeers and sneers invariably precede the cheers.

Henry Ford has bought a western gold mine, says a newspaper dispatch. That makes two he has now, including the one in Detroit.

"Lest We Forget"

DISPATCHES from England carry the news that Rudyard Kipling, poet and author, has been ordered by physicians to leave that country because of failing health. The announcement will be interpreted by the world at large as indicating that one of the brightest stars in the literary firmament of the past half-century is nearing its western horizon.

Kipling has been one of the most widely read of modern authors. His stories of India, woven principally about the presence of England's arms in that country, have in some measure aggrandized the British soldier, but primarily have given his readers intimate pictures of the Indian natives which are paralleled in no other literature. "Soldiers Three" strikingly illustrates the accomplishment of race portraiture through the medium of fascinating fiction.

Kipling's poetry contains numbers which are favorites round the world. Without including "If," his verses have been adopted numerously for readings and musical settings. The British soldier has been created almost as largely through Kipling's verse as by his own military exploits.

But the greatest influence of the famous English loyalist probably is exerted through the agency of his stories for children. The amazingly intimate knowledge of wild life which makes his "Jungle Books" excellent natural histories is not the outstanding feature of those works. Presented as animal lore, one of the most exalted codes of moral conduct which could be conceived for children is made the foundation of the jungle stories. The impressions of fair play, cleanliness, and courage which the child gains from reading Kipling's stories are lasting because they are presented through the fascinating subject of wild animal life. He has made no finer contribution to the world's literature.

The Men Who Do Things

THE STORY writers who picture business and military leaders who really do things as square-jawed, fist-pounding, bull-voiced individuals—quick of action and emphatic of purpose—are all wrong.

Take it from Col. Leonard P. Ayres of Cleveland, Ohio. He is vice president of the Cleveland Trust company now and one of the nation's most celebrated experts on business. He was chief statistician of the A. E. F. during the war. Thus, Colonel Ayres is in position to know the leaders in both of these fields.

Addressing a convention the other day, Colonel Ayres recalled many of the war and business leaders with whom he is acquainted and declared that not one of them is the fire-eater that is usually pictured. Instead, his experience has proved, the men who accomplish the most are of the quiet, unassuming type who use their brains more than their voices.

There are no dashing leaders in commerce or in war, he said. It is the unassuming person—perhaps just a little bit bashful, but nevertheless thinking all the while—who does the most to whip the enemy in war and the business competitor in peace.

Thus, it seems that the moral of all this is: Never mistake noise for ability; real ability needs no theatrics to advertise it because the best advertisement a man can have is the ability to get results.

Exit the Loan Shark

THE DAY of the old-fashioned loan shark, with his usurious rates of interest and heavy-handed methods of collection, is fast passing.

Twenty-eight states have passed laws governing small loans which carry as punishment for violation both fine and imprisonment. Twenty-three states do not permit the charging of "fees," limiting the cost of the loan to interest only. Twenty-seven states require that the interest be computed only on the unpaid balances. Practically all of the larger industrial states have enacted regulatory laws.

It is difficult to estimate the toll the unscrupulous loan shark exacted from salaried men who, through sickness or other misfortune, were in need of ready cash. However, with regulation and control some idea of the size of the business can be obtained. Fairly accurate figures show that approximately $500,000,000 of such loans are made yearly. The average loan is $123, which would place the yearly number of loans at 4,000,000.

The largest single company in this business, making loans at 21 per cent a month, reports $30,000,000 out on loans with 235,000 customers on its books.

A Suggestion to President Hoover

WE SUGGEST that the next conference President Hoover calls be of leaders of the Republican party to see what can be done about coordinating the factions of that organization and getting it on a working basis.

It is a fine thing to call together the leaders of industry and labor, and commerce and finance and agriculture and to have announcements made of plans for greater acivity and cooperation, and to speed up a program of public improvement. This spirit of cooperation and these announcements ought to be reassuring and helpful.

But the Republican party has been invested with control of the government. President Hoover is head of the government; he is head of the Republican party. There seems to be anything but harmony among the representatives of the Grand Old Party in Washington. There seems to be no plan and there seems to be diverse leadership.

It is a situation that seems to call for a chief engineer. There is just a little bit of impatience over the country at large over the silence of the chief.

The Broadway Parade From Forty-second Street

He was the life of the parties back home in Worcester, Mass., with his imitations and card tricks. But when his father finally got up enough courage to ask him if he didn't think it time he started looking for a job, he "asserted" himself and left home in a huff.

He is now helping to congest the Broadway traffic.

The little thing with the pimples and the long blond curls is en route to Glen Falls, N. Y., from Hollywood where she discovered that she wasn't another Mary Pickford.

Her alibi is that she "is off men forever!"

The Scranton, Pa., Republican editor probably will get a letter from them about it. They have been sitting in the Chinatown bus for over an hour "and the man who sold them the tickets said it would start any minute!"

Down in Atlanta her chums told her she could make Helen Kane's baby-talking songs look sick if she went to New York and "hung around Sardi's restaurant" where "you meet the celebrities and other influential people."

She has been sitting there for months and all she has to show for it is "a columnist," a columnist for the theater programs.

In her handbag is a certified check for $20,000. Her share of the settlement in her divorce suit in Wichita Falls, Texas.

On her arm is a gentleman she met on the train.

That brusque personage who brushed aside three women, one with a child in tow, to be first in line when the Paramount box office opened is the international secretary of the Keep-Sunday-Holy-League.

He is holidaying here from Madison, Wis., to address a convention on "Womankind Imperiled."

He is confident two young women with eyes turned in his direction recognize him. He is Victor Barco of Barco & Barco, acrobats, on his way to the Grant Central station to play 20 weeks of Pantages time.

He is toting a copy of Galen's "On the Natural Faculties," an unexpurgated version of Wolff's "Theoria Generationis," a new nozzle for the garden hose and a bag of apples.

He is Ph. D. (Harvard); a United Cigar store clerk, and he is doing a book to be called: "Are New Yorkers People?"

To use the words of the Akron, Ohio, Beacon-Journal she went to New York to accept a position as a cashier in a restaurant in the "thriving metropolis."

She is very weary after shopping all day for $56 worth of clothes with which she is going to dazzle Akron when she returns for the holidays.

He is returning to Chicago to rejoin the paper he left a few months ago.

The editor of the N. Y. Rag, it seems, said that he had the longest nose of all the reporters, but the shortest for news.

That girl standing on the corner is from Richmond, Va., and she came to town only a few moments ago and is waiting to catch the eye of the traffic cop who hasn't enough to worry about without people asking him if he knows the way to New Wayburn's Dancing school.

That distinguished looking old gent eyes the crowd in the aloof manner, not realizing that Johnny Broderick, Broadway's most fearless detective, has been eyeing him for over 30 minutes.

She is taking him back to Sherman, Texas, where he owns one of the better whoopee parlors. He is deathly pale, suffering from a stomach attack he had the night before in a Broadway speakeasy.

They used to own a grocery store in Louisville, Ky., before he decided to come to New York and be in closer touch with his Wall street broker. They are on their way back home to live with their son and daughter-in-law.

Back in Springfield, Mo., where he owns one of the principal stores, all except employes, call him Henry.

Here in New York he is made a fuss over by the Garment Center magnates who call him Mr. Rosenfeld and take him to see leg shows.

He is on leave from the U. S. S. Mississippi and is standing against the Times building looking over the girls, none of whom are prettier than those back in New Haven.

From his nose glasses a black ribbon grandly droops. He is Monsieur Jacques Henri on his way to Washington to teach French, piano, dancing, expression and art appreciation in a young ladies' school.

He wishes that there were first, second and third class compartments in American trains.

Presidential Yacht May Replace Macom

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (INS)—The yacht Mayflower, which has served five presidents, may soon carry Mayor James J. Walker down the bay to greet celebrities.

Mayor Walker today confirmed reports that a group of his friends were interested in buying the presidential craft as a gift to the city to replace the tug Macom as official reception vessel.

Marriage for Two-- By Arthur Somers Roche

Tracy savagely. "But can't you do something?"

"She should be home—in bed—with her doctor," said the maid.

Blankly Tracy stared at her.

"Of course," he said, "immediately—"

His voice died away as he looked at his guest. Home? She had no home. Why, the poor thing owned the clothes she stood in—rather, lay in—and nothing else besides.

"Shall I get a taxi?" asked the maid.

"Why—yes," he replied uncertaintly.

He clutched at the maid's shoulder as the woman turned away.

"She—she isn't going to—die, is she?" he asked.

"I don't know—I wouldn't think so—looks to me as though she's just played out. The poor thing," she added impulsively.

The impulse made her richer by exactly $10.

"Thanks," she said. "I'll get that taxi. If you'll carry her——"

"Do—do you think we'd better get a doctor first?" he asked.

The girl on the bench answered him, not by words, but by actions. She stirred, moaned faintly, and opened her eyes. She sat up and as she looked at Tracy recognition stirred in her eyes. Also, bravery was there.

"All right—now," she whispered.

Then, in instant negation of her boast, her head fell loosely back and she would have rolled to the floor but that Tracy caught her.

"Sorry," she managed to gasp.

She had not fainted this time, and by an effort she reassured him.

"Won't faint—again," she murmured.

But he did not release her. Instead, he lifted her from the floor, and her complete relaxation was sufficient indication of her utter weakness.

The maid called to him from the restaurant entrance.

"The taxi's here."

In various doors that probably led to pantries and kitchens, appeared faces. A buzz of speculation reached Tracy's ears as he carried the girl out, and his face burned. He hated to be conspicuous, and he felt a momentary anger toward the girl who had made him, so.

Then he felt contempt for himself. What right had he to feel embarrassment because he played a part in tragedy? What was his wounded vanity as compared to the torments this girl had suffered?

Larry's Obligation

"Where to, boss?" asked the taximan.

Tracy hadn't thought of that. Vaguely he had decided that some hospital. . . . What explanation could he make to the hospital attaches? Not, he told himself, that he would be embarrassed at his inability to tell anything about the girl, but she—she'd die if a whole hospital staff knew that she was suffering from the effects of insufficient nourishment.

Her blazing pride had assured him that. The fact that she had accepted money from him made no difference. Her humiliation. . . . She wasn't dying. She was stirring in his arms now, nestling like a child, almost seeking a greater comfort in another position.

He had saved her, when he took her from the avenue bench, from death, perhaps. Gifts bestowed bring greater obligations to the donor than to the recipient. What he said to her. That one couldn't half save a drowning person. He had saved her life, perhaps, but she had sacrificed—nearly—that life to her pride. She could have begged and avoided starvation, but she had chosen not to. Could he, having saved her life, refuse to save her pride?

He gave the taximan the address of his own home. Then, ever so gently, he deposited his burden in the taxi and sat beside her. She was still to weak to sit erect. His arm went around her, and with a sigh she leaned against him, surrendering herself to his embrace as completely as when he had carried her from the restaurant.

"She should be home—in bed—with her doctor," said the maid.

He thanked heaven that no sufficiently attractive offer had been made for his old-fashioned house on West 38th street, just off Park avenue. It had been in the market for a year, because he had decided that a bachelor didn't need a whole house. But now he was glad that there was no apartment house lobby, with its uniformed gossiping attendants, its other tenants, to wonder at his extraordinary procedure. For it was extraordinary to bring to one's home a strange girl, especially a girl in the condition of this one.

But—where else could he take her? The hospital, out of consideration for her pride, was out of the question. She had no home of her own. He had no woman friend who, moved by his appeal or her own charity, would take the girl into her house. Once—and his lips curled sardonically—he would have been fool enough to have thought that Helen would have received his pitiful guest, but even if, by some miracle, they were reconciled, he would know better than to approach Helen.

It took, in this late afternoon heavy traffic, nearly a quarter of an hour to make the trip downtown, and during the journey the girl never spoke. And when the machine drew up before the door of his house, he saw that she was asleep.

The chauffeur eyed him as doubtfully as had that other man who had conveyed them from the avenue bench to the restaurant.

"Lady sick?" he asked.

"Obviously," Tracy replied.

The man looked at the girl as Tracy lifted her gently through the door of the machine, and then eyed Tracy closely. The shrug of his shoulder that followed his scrutiny of the young man was as high a compliment as had ever been paid paid Tracy. It meant that while it was funny business, still it was none of the taximan's and further, the young lad looked O. K. So the taximan, later that evening, said to his wife.

Hogan

Across the sidewalk, up the four steps to the door, Tracy carried the sleeping girl. He dared not put her down while he fished in his pocket for the key, so he twisted until his thumb was against the bell-button. Almost instantly, Hogan, Tracy's butler, answered the ring.

On the sidewalks, attracted by the unusual sight of a young man carrying an apparently unconscious girl up a flight of steps, stood a half a dozen people, sating their curiosity by stares. Hogan was amazed—much more so than the street spectators, but his dignity enabled him to overcome surprise. Further, it annoyed Hogan that the rabble—his usual description of people who did not know his master—should stare at a Tracy, no matter what a Tracy did. He had worked for Tracy's father, and 40 years of service in one family is apt to result in an estimation of that family's importance which exaggerates fact.

"Get Dr. Blanchard on the phone, Hogan," said Tracy. "Then bring—damn it, I don't know what to give her."

"Brandy," suggested Hogan.

"She's had that," said Tracy. "Oh! bring water—"

"But she's not fainted; she's asleep, isn't she?" asked Hogan.

"Yes—at least I guess so—get the doctor," snapped his employer.

Hogan disappeared into a closet beneath the stairs that led from the surprisingly wide front hall to the upper floors, while Tracy carried his burden into a large room that once had been a parlor, later did duty as a drawing room and that, finally, was a comfortable library. There remained in it, even through its drawing-room period, an extremely broad and comfortable couch, and upon this Tracy deposited the girl.

He sighed with unconscious relief. Fifteen minutes of cramped position made his muscles ache. He revised his earlier estimate of her weight; she was heavier than he had thought, although he still conceded that she must be fearfully underweight.

Her lashes were black—black as her eyes—he noted. Her hat had fallen off as he carried her to the couch, and her black hair was pushed back from a low, broad forehead. An intelligent face, as well as one that might be lovely, he silently commented. The straight nose and the rounded chin, whose delicacy indicated no weakness, bore out the impression of mentality. A damn shame, he told himself.

Hogan appeared at the door. He was on tiptoe, and he whispered.

"Dr Blanchard on the phone," he said.

Tracy, unconsciously imitating the butler's caution, also tiptoed. In the understairs closet he picked up the receiver.

"That you, Jimmy?" he asked.

"What's this tale of Hogan's?" demanded the doctor's voice. "Has Manhattan's only servant with a record of more than four months in any one house finally taken to drink? He says that there's a girl—"

"Come right over, Jimmy, will you, please?" pleaded Tracy.

"Accident?" asked the physician.

"Starvation," said Tracy.

The doctor whistled. "Be over in a jiffy," he promised.

He kept his word. In less than five minutes he had rung the front bell, and in another moment he was bending over the girl. The touch of his fingers on her pulse awakened her. Her eyes fastened, with an odd disinterest, upon the kindly features of the physician.

"Don't be frightened," he said. "I'm just Larry Tracy's doctor."

"Larry Tracy?"

"You're in his house," said the doctor.

"Oh!" she said. She started to rise.

Gently the physician pushed her back. "You're in my hands, young woman," he said, with mock severity. "And when I give orders I intend them to be obeyed. Now let's look at your tongue."

Tracy withdrew from the room. It was fully 15 minutes before Doctor Blanchard joined him in the hall.

"Why in hell," demanded the doctor, "did you feed a starving girl chops?"

"How do I know what to feed a starving girl?" countered Tracy. "Anyway, she ate very little—showed remarkable restraint, and—"

"Stubborn brat," said the physician. "Won't go to a hospital—"

"She isn't stubborn," Tracy rallied to the defense of his guest. "Has a decent pride, that's all."

"Well, proud or stubborn doesn't matter," said Blanchard. "I gave her a little something, and she'll be asleep in a moment, and we'll send for an ambulance—"

"We will not," said Tracy.

"Why won't we?" asked the doctor surprisedly.

Tracy floundered. "I knew—just from talking to her—that she'd not go to a hospital—and she—trusted herself to me—I won't—double-cross her."

"Well, where's her home?"

"I don't know—she hasn't any," replied Tracy.

"Hasn't any? Hell's bells, she must have a place to sleep," cried Blanchard.

"She didn't have a place to eat," commented Tracy dryly.

Blanchard pursed his lips.

"Well, what on earth are we to do with her, then?"

"Is she very ill?" asked Tracy.

Blanchard shook his head. "Needs a careful diet, that's all. But she's been through some dreadful experiences—I don't mean just starvation, though God knows that's bad enough. But—some sort of shock. May come out of it in a couple of days and—may not. That all depends on how she looks at life when she wakes up."

"All the more reason she shouldn't go to a hospital, declared Tracy.

"You may be right. Well, the young woman's evidently flat broke. She can't very well take a suite at the Ritz with a private nurse."

"She can," said Tracy. "I mean she could—I'd pay—but she wouldn't take it."

"She evidently, from what I gathered from her, took a meal from you," said the doctor.

"And five hundred in cash," said Tracy. "But still, I don't think she'd take more—"

Blanchard grinned with the disillusionment of the physician.

"Once start 'em taking and there's no finish. Well, hell's bells, something's got to be done about her. The poor child ought to be in bed now. Let me send for an ambulance—"

"Couldn't she go in an ordinary car?" asked Tracy.

The physician shrugged. "When people collapse—after a period of starvation, and have also experienced some shock or other—the girl's suffered, I tell you—an ambulance is best."

"If she's that ill, she stays here," declared Tracy. He hadn't intended to say anything like that at all. But once it was said, he knew he'd stick to it. Damn it, a sensitive girl, one that had skirted the edge of death, rather than apply to some charitable organization, deserved a break, and he'd see that she got it.

The Farmers' Thanksgiving

This harvest time of the year is not always the time for rejoicing. The farmer who has labored hard all year, hoping for favorable weather is often disappointed when the time comes for the ripening of the harvest. So many times the winds have blown too hard, the hurricanes have come, the frosts have bitten the tender buds, or the spring rains have been so great as to destroy any possibility of a good fall crop.

The Viking farmers, who were the first settlers in New England, had their troubles in battling the elements, but their problems were no greater than that of the farmer of today. With all of our progress in a scientific way, we have so far accomplished very little in controlling the wind, the frost, and the rain, so that every year in the same way the same soil will yield a plentiful harvest.

There are just about as many crops destroyed today as there were several centuries ago when the pilgrim fathers anxiously watched their crops and prayed for favorable weather.

The modern farmer has many advantages as far as improved implements are concerned, but he still has the same bad weather conditions to fight and the same fear of damage to the crops and possible complete loss of all of his year's work.

The first Thanksgiving in America was celebrated because of an especially plentiful harvest, but there were many lean years after that when these sturdy pioneers of the frontier must have searched hard to find something to be thankful for at the official Thanksgiving time.

Our farmers today are crying for relief from the uncertainties attending their hard work. As long as I can remember, most politicians have been talking about the subject of farm relief, but certainly very little has been done about it. When we speak of the farmer's hard luck and a bad year we do so with a feeling of pity for the individual farmer, when we really should be concerned with the food supply which concerns every man, woman and child in America.

A laborer receives his wages each week, the professional man usually has a steadily increasing income, but the farmer's yearly returns are very uncertain. The varying from plentiful to poor crops makes food prices uncertain.

Perhaps very little can be done to control the destroying effect of bad weather, but certainly a great deal can be done towards stabilizing prices through financing the farmer through the lean years and providing proper governmental storage facilities, so that the supply of food stuffs can be regulated to suit the steady demand. The farmer, alone, should not be made to bear the burden which comes from the destruction of crops by bad weather.

One season farmers in certain sections have poor corn crops. Another year in another part of the country the fruit may be entirely destroyed by the frost or insects. If these damages to certain sections could be blended with the results from good crops in the rest of the country, the individual farmer would not have to suffer and, in fact, every individual would be benefited through a stability of food prices.

Let us hope that some adjustment can be made so that not too many Thanksgiving roll around before every farmer in America will have cause to be thankful when the end of the harvest season comes—when he can feel that we are all helping him to stabilize his business of farming so that he will not have the feeling that his business is a gamble and that he is shakinug dice with the elements.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Intestinal Poisoning

Question—Mrs. J. S. asks: "Will you please tell me if there is any difference between inflammatory rheumatism and what is called arterio-sclerosis, and what you would advise in the cure of both."

Answer—There is no connection between inflammatory rheumatism and arterio-sclerosis, except that both are caused from a toxic condition of the body and both come mostly from extreme intestinal poisoning. The treament I would advise takes up too much space to be put in this question and answer department, so please write again, giving me your full name and address so I can send you articles on both these disorders.

Deep Breathing

Question—A. W. asks: "Is it true that food which has been re-heated several times is injurious? Also, what is the correct way of breathing deep, vitalic, abdominal or lung? All dietictians I have heard speak on the subject have conflicting opinions."

Answer—Most foods may be reheated many times without injury to the food value, of course, this heating tends to preserve them and to avoid the development of poisonous bacteria. Most of your breathing exercises are those which will contract and relax the diaphragm to the fullest possible extent. There should be very little action to the abdomen or to the chest while taking this deep diaphragmatic breathing. Any physical culture teacher, or any singing instructor should be able to show you such breathing exercises.

Rockefeller Agency Finances Child Study

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (UP)—A grant of $1,500,000 to the University of Chicago for specialized studies in child and college education has been made by the general education board of New York, a Rockefeller agency.

The gift, announced by President Robert M. Hutchins, brings the total given the university by the Rockefellers to more than $47,500,000. The studies will deal with children of pre-school age, backward and abnormal children and college education.

By W. G. CHAMBLESS

A Pack of 24 Wichita Falls Coyote football gladiators together with their coach, Barry Holton, were encamped on the soil of Amarillo Thursday morning, ready and waiting for the zero hour which will send them into deadly conflict with the mighty roar and power of the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm at Butler field at 3 o'clock. The great game between these two ancient foes of the gridiron will mark the renewal of their annual Thanksgiving day tilt and will bring together two of the best teams in Northwestern section of the state of Texas. Ten thousand spectators, probably the largest crowd ever to witness a high school football in this part of the Southwest, will jam the huge stadium at Butler field.

In Great Shape

Both elevens went through only the lightest limbering up exercise on Wednesday afternoon and then retired to the seclusion of their hotel and homes and rest. Coach Barry Holton announced that his Coyote legion is in the best shape of the season. Coach Russell "Dutch" Smith avers that his charges await the fray with every confidence of victory and a clean conference slate. The gridders are all of them trained to the minute and on edge for the game for which they have pointed the whole year long. Mingled spirits of youth-pride, revenge, school patriotism, and the will to win coupled with the courage that comes of the last word in football training and preparedness should go toward making this game a historic event in the annals of the Wichita Falls Coyotes and the Amarillo Golden Sandies.

Curtain on Veterans

The game Thursday at Butler field will mark the closing of the high school football careers of many veteran players on both elevens. For Wichita Falls, Morris Lee, Bunny Norwood, Jerry Elliott, Captain Monk Hodgkiss, Tom Beaty and the Carstarphen brothers, Bob and Jack, will be wearing the colors of the Maroon and Black for the last time. And for Amarillo, Clayton, Blair, Woodward, Alexander, Nicklaus, Meyers, Sheppard, Lockhart, Phillips, Gibson, Short, Twadell, Bivens, Blanton, Buntin, and Nolan will be playing their last year on what is most likely a championship Amarillo football team.

Sandies Favorites

Though the Amarillo Sandies are favorites to win the game by virtue of their long series of victories this season, it can never be foretold about these great grudge scraps. Anything may happen and often it is the team that gets the breaks that wins the game. At best the dope only gives the Sandies an advantage of two or three touchdowns. And it must be remembered that the line of comparison comes through the Lubbock game in which the Pack was decidedly not at its best. If the Coyotes should cop off this game, the Sandies would find themselves tied for the district title with the Lubbock Westerners.

The Sandies boast of a ball-carrying department par excellence. Such superb performers as Nicklaus, Gibson, Noland and Blair would do credit and grace any team in the country. They carry a powerful running attack which is noted for bringing home the touchdowns. The Coyotes play an all round good game—hard, clean cut tackling, unyielding power in the line, a pretty, fair driving attack, and an aerial game that is dangerous enough, once it begins to click, to put the best team in the district on their mettle.

Last year the Sandies invaded the lair of the Pack and defeated them to the tune of 26 to 0. The year before the Coyotes travelled to Amarillo and lost the game by a 23 to 6 count. What they will do Thursday, Nov. 28, 1929, cannot be known until the dust of battle settles over the gridiron battlefield at 5 o'clock.

GIANT PEP MEET AND BIG PARADE

Special to The Record News

AMARILLO, Nov. 27.—Advance sale of tickets to the Amarillo and Wichita Falls High school annual Thanksgiving football spectacle has reached such proportions that officials declare at least 10,000 fans will witness the struggle.

The Coyotes arrived in town today accompanied by their coach, Barry Holton and two student managers. They took a light workout at Butler field and went to their hotel where they will remain until game time.

One of the greatest pep rallies in the history of the city was held tonight when the high school pep squad girls of over 230 and the high school band directed and led a long downtown parade. The accompanying crowd of frenzied fans repaired to the high school where the entire group of students and Sandy followers joined in the loud and long cheering and the singing of pep songs.

At noon tomorrow another great parade will start at the high school, wend its way through the downtown section and proceed to Butler field. A great crowd will greet the special train of Coyote followers and transportation for the entire visiting delegation will be provided by private autos.

SPECIAL LEAVES

Fans and Partisans Follow Team to Battle Front

A gala holiday crowd of between 300 and 400 football fans, partisans, and students left Wichita Falls on the "Amarillo Special" early Thursday morning for the scene of the annual Thanksgiving day gridiron extravaganza between the Coyotes and the Golden Sandstorm at Butler field at 3 o'clock.

The special will arrive in the Panhandle city around noon Thursday and will start on the return trip at 7 o'clock of the same day, bearing the fans and football team.

A great interest has been manifested in the game this year and for this reason the Junior chamber of commerce got behind the project to sponsor the special to the game. The feud between the Coyotes and the Sandies is one of long standing and because of its glamorous closing of the season for both teams, has always drawn a huge gate. It has been estimated that some 10,000 spectators will see the big fracas at Butler field Thursday.

30,000 TO SEE HISTORIC GAME

New College Station Stadium to Be Dedicated

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 27.—A rivalry nourished through 34 years, almost since there was football in the Southwest, will have its annual renewal tomorrow at College Station. The Orange of Texas university and the Maroon of Texas A. & M. long emblematic of all that is spectacular and colorful on the gridiron, will clash before some 30,000 fans, including Gov. Dan Moody.

The state's chief executive, an alumnus of Texas university, will participate in ceremonies dedicating the Aggies' new concrete stadium. After that part of the program is finished, the rank and file will settle back to see the structure dedicated right. The Longhorns and Aggies are capable of doing just that.

Outcome Is Toss-Up

No matter that both have been eliminated from the Southwest conference championship race, either will account the season a success if it is victorious tomorrow. Texas, defeated only once in one of the most strenuous schedules ever undertaken by a conference school, will enter the game favored by a majority. The Aggies, however, are extremely stubborn about losing on Kyle field, and the very fact makes the game a toss-up.

Thanks to the forethought of the scheduic committee, many thousands of those who witness the Thanksgiving bout will be able to flock back up to Fort Worth for the championship tilt Saturday between Southern Methodist and Texas Christian. Up to this year it was the custom for all conference schools to shut down on Thanksgiving day. In self protection, T. C. U., S. M. U. Rice and Baylor got together and decided to play their final games on the Saturday after Thanksgiving. They had grown tired of seeing the Steers and Aggies grab the day's big crowd and leave them to eat at second table.

Rice and Baylor Play

As things turned out, it was a fortunate move for everybody concerned, including the Longhorns and Aggies. It will enable Rice and Baylor to close their season at Houston Saturday without competition from College Station, nearby.

The Arkansas Razorbacks are matched with the Oklahoma Aggies in their final engagement tomorrow, but as they play at Stillwater, Okla., it will not serve as a rival attraction to the big ruckus at Aggieland.

While all of the choice seats of the 34,000 available were snapped up many weeks ago, several thousand tickets were said still to be available to the Longhorn-Aggie contest. These were expected to be nabbed by the thousands of late arrivals who will pour into College Station on special trains just before game time.

Both Veteran Teams

The day's feature bout should provide a brilliant brand of football. Both are veteran teams. Included in the line-ups are several of the section's outstanding stars. Nona Rees, and Eddie Beular, stellar backs, and Gordy Brown, Big 'Un Rose, Curtis Beaty and Mac Burnet, crack linesmen, will be playing their final game for the Orange. Captain Tommy Mills, Ralph Dorsey and Brooks Conover, backs, and Chuck Richter, Pinky Alsabrook, Joe Brown, Roy Varnell and Walter Ewell, forwards, will face the Longhorns for the last time across the chalk marks.

For the Mustangs and Frogs Thanksgiving will be just another day of practice for their title bout two days away.

Conference standing:

Team—	Won	Lost	Tied	Pct.
T. C. U.	4	0	0	1.000
S. M. U.	3	0	1	.875
Texas	2	1	2	.600
Arkansas	2	2	0	.500
Baylor	1	2	1	.375
Aggies	1	3	0	.250
Rice	0	4	0	.000

Tie counts half game won and half game lost.

AGGIES COMPLETE TRAINING WORK

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 27. (AP)—The greatest crowd in the history of College Station will throng Kyle field tomorrow for the annual Texas university-Texas Aggie game, James Sullivan, business manager of athletics, announced tonight.

Indications are that the record of 25,000 attendance set at the same attraction two years ago will be broken by several thousand. He predicted that if the weather remains clear every one of the 33,000 seats will be occupied at game time.

Coach Matty Bell's Aggie squad closed its two-week period of drill for the Turkey day clash with a light signal drill today. Every man on the squad will be available for the contest.

The tentative lineup announced follows:

Officials are Meyer, T. C. U., referee; Winters, umpire; Braun, Sewanee, head linesman; Frazier, Baylor, field judge.

STEER WARRIORS READY FOR BATTLE

AUSTIN, Nov. 27. (AP)—After watching his Longhorns loosen up their muscles today on the eve of the 36th annual battle with the Texas Aggies at College Station, Coach Clyde Littlefield professed almost complete satisfaction with their condition.

The coach was not all smiles as he promised that his charges would give a good account of themselves. He wished that Claude Meadows, quarterback and passer, were able to play and he was sorry that Milt Perkins was weak from illness. He undoubtedly sighed when he thought of the fact that 13 members of the squad would bid farewell to college football tomorrow.

The coach never predicts a victory, and all he said today was that the team was ready to go and that it would be battling from the opening whistle.

The lineups in practice this week indicated Coach Littlefield would start the following combination:

Rose, Brown, Burnett, Beaty, Hargrove, Rees, Beard, Beular, Cheatham, Hawn, Nemir, guard, and Nixon and Mills, tackles, will be doing their football bit for the Orange for the last time tomorrow.

HAMMON MAY DO S. M. U. KICKING

Yet It May Be Just One Of Morrison's Tricks

DALLAS, Nov. 27. (AP)—The Southern Methodist squad went into complete seclusion today as the Mustangs further polished up the plays they will employ against Texas Christian Saturday. Everyone, including newspapermen and the Pony publicity director, found the gates of Ownby stadium closed against them.

Every member of the S. M. U. squad was reported in good shape, including Bruce Kattman, halfback, who was suffering from a heavy cold early in the week. Morrison announced he would start the same line-up in the title game that faced Rice last week.

Ralph Hammon, big tackle from Electra, may do the team's punting Saturday. In fact, it has been announced that he will take over this chore, but it might just be another Morrisonian trick to fool the opposition.

Olton and Littlefield To Play Thanksgiving Day

Special to The Record News.

LITTLEFIELD, Texas, Nov. 28.—The Olton High school football team will play the Littlefield team on Thursday at Littlefield. This will be a game of much interest, as these two teams have had several hard fought battles. J. T. Allen, fullback and Johnny Smith, halfback, have both developed quite a lot of speed, and the team is looking to them to make some good runs.

Waco Tigers Win Over Temple, 20-0

WACO, Texas, Nov. 27. (AP)—Paul Tyson's Tigers, the weakest team Waco high school has had in several years, became champions of district four, class A, today, by defeating Temple high school in Temple, 20 to 0. They remain undefeated this season.

Billiard Champion Nurses Bum Finger

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (AP)—Johnny Layton, world's three cushion billiard champion, arrived here today for treatment for a broken finger on his right hand and two fractured ribs, suffered in an automobile accident while en route from Sedalia, Mo.

The champion is scheduled to meet Welker Cochrane in a 600 point match in New York next week, but may not be able to hold a cue.

Each Texas League Club Represented At Final Rites for J. Doak Roberts

Loop President Buried in Home Plot at Corsicana With Baseball Notables Attending Services

CORSICANA, Texas, Nov. 27. (AP)—Funeral services for J. Doak Roberts, president of the Texas league, were held here today.

The services were held several hours after the body had arrived from Dallas, where he died Monday after a long illness. Burial was in the family plot in Oakwood cemetery.

Every club in the circuit headed was represented at the last rites along with men from all branches of baseball and childhood friends.

Eulogy Delivered

Dr. Floyd Poe, pastor of the City Temple Presbyterian church of Dallas, delivered the principal eulogy and was assisted in the services by the Rev. P. Martin Baker of Corsicana.

In his eulogy, Dr. Poe said, "I believe this is about the most fitting thing we could say today of Doak Roberts: I have played the game; I have run the bases, and I have made home at last."

The doctor termed "first base" as Roberts' interest in life in all its forms; "second base" was his industry and ability to work without counting the personal cost; "third base" was his loyalty, and the "home plate" was his faith in God and man.

He said the deceased leader was not a "home run" hitter, but scored after a hard fight. He prefaced his eulogy with a brief account of Roberts' baseball career from his early days on the sandlots to the presidency of the league as a member of the national baseball commission.

Baseball Heads Attend

Active pallbearers were Fred Ankenman of Houston; J. Walter Morris of Memphis, Tenn.; R. L. Stuart of Beaumont; Homer H. Hammond of San Antonio; C. L. Turner of Waco, and T. S. Hickman of Shreveport.

Other leaders in baseball who attended the services included:

Bobby Stow of Fort Worth; Art Phelan of Shreveport; Jack Zeller, scout for the Detroit Americans; Bob Tarleton of Dallas; T. L. Denman, president of the East Texas league; J. Alvin Gardner of Wichita Falls, acting Texas league president; William B. Ruggles, league statistician; Fred Marberry of the Washington Senators, and Julius Scheppe of Dallas.

Among the outstanding floral tributes was the offering of the Texas league which consisted of a huge baseball of white flowers with the seams worked out in a red and blue design mounted over crossed bats.

Hundreds of other floral offerings and telegrams were received from all parts of the nation.

Army-Notre Dame Ticket Sales, Record

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (AP)—The demand for tickets at almost any price to the Army-Notre Dame football game this Saturday at the Yankee stadium breaks all records for sporting events in New York in the opinion of Broadway ticket brokers.

Speculators today asked and received fancy prices for pasteboards of any description for the contest which will bring the Eastern gridiron season to a climax and determine Notre Dame's national championship ranking. The prices ranged from $35 a pair for tickets of less desirable location to $100 a pair and upward for locations between the 30-yard lines.

FROGS MAY TRAVEL

Victory Over Mustangs Might Bring on Post Season

FORT WORTH, Nov. 27. (AP)—Provided they win from S. M. U. Saturday, the gridiron Horned Frogs of Texas Christian university may engage in a post season game with some undefeated team from another section. Nothing official has been done towards arranging such a contest, but some indirectly connected with the university's athletic department have considered the possibilities and put out feelers in several directions.

There is little or no chance to get the tournament of roses date on the West coast, but arrangements may be made to play either Tulane or Tennessee for the Dixie championship. Both of those Southern conference teams are still undefeated and untied to date.

There are only three other major all-victorious teams, Notre Dame, Purdue, a member of the Big Ten—a group that seldom allows its members to play after Thanksgiving week, and Pittsburgh, which is expected to go to California for the New Year's game.

Tulane is the most logical opponent, but it is doubtful if the Greenies would care to prolong the season.

Committee Rules Lamesa Eligible Will Play Ralls

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Nov. 27.—After a long and rather heated meeting, the executive committee on class B football in district No. 2, voted here this afternoon to overrule the objection filed by L. T. Green, superintendent of the Slaton High school, protesting Lamesa's eligibility to compete for the championship on account of not playing a representative schedule.

Superintendent W. E. Patty of Floydada, served as temporary chairman due to the fact that V. Z. Rogers, chairman of the committee is superintendent of the schools at Lamesa.

Lamesa has defeated Slaton 32 to 12, as well as Tahoka and Paducah a third team forfeited to Lamesa. A game for Thanksgiving was called off with Post by the executive committee when Lamesa Ralls and Lockney were found the only undefeated teams in the district. V. Z. Rogers and L. T. Green presented their case to the committee in a long drawn out hearing. After length the committee voted to overrule the Slaton protest and ruled that Lamesa play Ralls for championship Friday. The game is to be played at Lamesa. The committee recommended that the district be divided into four sub districts, each team to play a representative schedule in his own district then compete for district honors. This is expected to be worked out next year. Members of the committee follow: W. E. Patty, temporary chairman; Harry Taylor, coach Post; G. F. Lovvorn, coach, Ralls; W. D. Biggers, superintendent, Lockney; and W. W. Nicklaus, coach, Tahoka. A number of other school officials from over the district also attended.

INDIANS FIGHT FINAL BATTLE OF SEASON WITH WAYLAND

The Sportlight

By GRANTLAND RICE

Thanksgiving for Us Average Coves

I'm thankful that I haven't got enough
To bother about losing wealth or fame,
And that my head's not high enough to be
A target for the mob's unerring aim;
I'm thankful that I've got a job to do,
And health enough to live as nature meant,
With not enough to loaf and drift along
To softness and to fatness and content.

I'm thankful I can see a patch of blue
That opens in some gray November sky;
That I can hear the songs of endless roads
From all the roving winds that hurry by;
And some of them are dim, and dipped in dreams,
And some of them are lusty in their roar,
Where some wild god of darkness sends his chant
Of brave, defiant wrath along the shore.

I'm thankful through the years that drift along
To winter and the twilight and the night,
That I can still keep April in my soul,
And hold my grip on morning and the light;
That I have found how little years can mean
As measures of age when time is drawn
As long as one can look beyond the dark
And see the golden glory of the dawn.

I'm thankful for a dream or two that's left,
From those who stop and answer back your hail—
Bereft of hate and envy in the strength
Of friendships that can weather any gale;
Square shooters to the finish of the show,
All ready with the hand if you should slip
As long as you belong and prove your place
Along the happy roads of fellowship.

I'm thankful for a dream or two that's left,
Of all the endless dreams that one may dare,
Before they turned to shadows and to ghosts,
To leave their mocking laughter on the air;
For even one brave dream that one may hold
Can shine through any storm that sweeps along,
Or turn the weary tumult of the world
Into the golden music of a song.

The Sophomore Year

This season has featured more sophomore stars in football than any campaign from a dozen years. Accounting for a few mistakes that may creep into the summing up, there is Booth, of Yale; Wood, of Harvard; Masters and Gentle, of Pennsylvania; Kawal, of Illinois; Smith, of Georgia, and a number of others who have occupied as many headlines as the seniors have known.

Harvard has several sophomore stars who will be at their best next fall. The average football player is better as a junior. He lacks experience as a sophomore and he is often nursing injuries or is somewhat football jaded as a senior.

You might be surprised at the number of seniors who have lost most of their early flame and enthusiasm. This doesn't always follow, but it is no uncommon occurrence.

"Watch Shipwreck Kelly stop McEver and Tennessee," wires a Kentucky rooter. Business of adjusting the telescope.

"How does one judge whether a football team is listed as one of the strong teams or one of the weak ones?" asks L. F. A good football team may be beaten once or twice or three times, but it must show its ability to beat at least one high-class outfit in the course of the year—or else give two or three good teams a hard, close battle without any one-sided aspect.

Wakeman, of Cornell, who plays his last game today, has been one of the best tackles in the East for three years.

The Vanderbilt-Sewanee game and the Virginia-North Carolina party are among the oldest of all the traditional rivalries.

Tickets for the Army-Notre Dame meeting are hardly a bit scarcer than radium. Not enough to speak about, at least.

Nineteen hundred and twenty-eight was not one of his best years, but for all of that, Dr. Zuppke, of Illinois, has nothing to cry about, when you figure up his total count.

Place: Athletic park.

The Wichita Falls Junior college Indians will close their 1929 football schedule on Thanksgiving day against one of the most powerful elevens they have yet faced this season, the Wayland college Jackrabbits. The Jackrabbits, 24 in number, arrived in Wichita Falls late Wednesday afternoon and immediately repaired to the Athletic park for light limbering up exercises. The Indians also went through their last light workout out at their practice field.

The Indians will enter the Thanksgiving day scuffle with the Jackrabbits decidedly the under dogs. For the Wayland team has a most impressive season record. In their last game played they humbled the strong Cameron, Okla., Aggies to the tune of 41 to 20. It will be remembered that the Indians lost an early season game with the Cameron Aggies by a 6 to 0 count. Though much water has flowed under the bridge since that time and the time of the Turkey day encounter, the Indians still are probably outmatched in the game with the Wayland eleven.

Indians Play Well

Coach Baggett's Redskins have played the best football in the history of the team and despite a season featured chiefly with defeats the young collegians have never failed to give a most creditable account of themselves under the worst that the enemy could offer. A week ago the Indians tangled in mortal conflict with the John Tarleton Plowboys and battled them a solid hour of the best football that the young farmers have been up against during the season and came off the field with a scoreless tie. This, Coach Baggett and close followers of the team believe, is a credit in itself. For the team went into the game somewhat crippled up.

Wayland Is Formidable

Wayland has an unusually formidable Junior college football team on account of their eligibility rules. They do not belong to the Texas Junior College Athletic association and are therefore able to play much older men on the teams than the conference elevens are allowed to play. The Jackrabbits have thus assembled a strong team and have defeated good senior college elevens. They played the Texas Tech outfit in the early part of the current season and came close to beating them.

Coach Baggett pronounces his Redskins in fine fettle for the game and says that they are ready for a great scrap. This announcement is bolstered up by the fact that Captain Emil Hutto, hefty tackler, and Roy Smith, halfback, are both of them back on the squad after what seemed a spell that would debar them from further participation in games this season. Bill Habern has been groomed to be pulled out of the line to back up the backfielders. Habern performs ably either on the terminal positions or in the backfield.

Cox Big Gun

Bob Cox will bear the brunt of the Indian attack. Cox does everything in the backfield like a star. Against the Tarleton Plowboys he played what is termed a sweet game. He is a good passer, runs like Chris Cagle and is a reliable defensive back. Once in the game with the Plowboys, when the safety man had missed a runner and a touchdown seemed imminent for the opposing team, Cox made a flashy run from behind to stop the fleeing runner.

Hardly less to be mentioned is the splendid trio presented in Luttrell, Perkins, and Allred. Luttrell is a heady little quarterback that has proved his mettle on several occasions and against the Plowboys his field generalship probably saved the team a defeat. Perkins is a punter extraordinary. He distinctly outpunted the opposition a week ago and the Indians gained yardage on practically every exchange. Indeed, for a while the game was a punting duel between the kickers of the two teams. Fans look for Perkins to outpunt his adversary in the Thanksgiving day game with the Jackrabbits.

Shriners Attend En Masse

Among the great throngs of people expected to attend this last game of the season will be Gov. Dan Moody and W. J. Holloway, Oklahoma City, and some 800 Shriners. The Shriners are holding a convention in the city of the Indians and have included as a special feature on their program an attendance in a body of all the Shriners in the city.

Buda Farmer Struck By Saw Blade Dies

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Nov. 27. (INS)—Will G. Lock, 46, Buda farmer, was dead today after being struck in the abdomen by a piece of a power driven saw which broke as he was using it. His body was cut almost in two when hit by the flying blade.

Texas Aggies Will Be in Pink of Condition Against Texas Longhorns

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 23.—With the exception of Hollis Bible, halfback who has been declared definitely out of the game as a result of infected elbow that has kept him on the injured list since midseason, every man on the Texas Aggie grid team is in fine physical condition for the annual Thanksgiving day football classic with the Texas Longhorns at Kyle field. It will be the first time this season that Coach Bell has had the entire complement of his squad ready for action.

Although advance ticket sales indicate the largest crowd in the history of Aggie athletics, there are still plenty of good seats left in the new concrete stadium at Kyle field and fans who have not yet bought their tickets for the game may do so by getting in touch with James Sullivan, business manager of athletics at A. & M. Price of the tickets is $3.00. The new Aggie stadium, which will be dedicated with the Longhorn fray, has a seating capacity of approximately 33,000 and if necessary temporary stands will be erected at the south, or open end of the huge concrete horseshoe, Mr. Sullivan said.

Intensive Preparations

Coach Bell has been drilling his charges hard in their intensive drill in preparation for the coming battle, scrimmaging against the freshmen, who have perfected Longhorn plays and formations, and smoothing the rough edges off their style in the new plays introduced particularly for the benefit of the Steers. Though cold, rainy weather and a muddy practice field handicapped them the latter part of the week, the Aggie coaches have not let up in their drive for the Longhorn contest and daily signal practice and scrimmages behind locked gates have occupied them during the entire week.

Fans need not worry about a wet or muddy field during the battle between the ancient foes Thanksgiving day, however, for unless rain falls during the game the immense field cover now in use by the athletic department will keep the gridiron in excellent shape for the game, and the rival coaches and quarterbacks will be enabled to open up with whatever type of tactics they please.

Electra Tigers Will Be at Throats Of Vernon Lions Thanksgiving Day

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 27.—The beasts of the football jungielands of district 1 will be at each other's throats when the Lions of Vernon and the Tigers of Electra engage in a Thanksgiving day tilt of the gridiron at Electra Thursday, 3 o'clock.

Both elevens have been humbled on the field of football warfare this year but they look forward to this battle with the eagerness of well trained aggregations. The Tigers will enter the fray somewhat crippled up from their hard game with the Sandies two weeks ago. Hib White, ace of the Tiger ball carriers, has a badly smashed nose from the Amarillo game but he is expected to take the field Thanksgiving day against the Lions. The Tigers will also have the services of Audry Smith, a fast travelling halfback, in the coming game. Last week against the Quanah Indians he did not play but saw the game from the sidelines.

The Lions have evolved a new ball carrying combination made up of Baird, Manis, Gelhausen and Watson. These boys worked like a well oiled motor against the Lubbock Westerners even though they were turned back to the tune of 12 to 0. Followers are looking for the Lion backfielders to launch a beautiful running attack against the Tigers today. Like many other high school teams over the district the Lions have many of their veterans playing their last game for their high school alma mater. Those players on whom the 1929 grid curtain will forever close their high school football career are: Thomas, Manis, Crawford, Richards, Wall, Bowden, Rodman, Gelhausen, Pennington, Neas, Baird, Thompson.

Fighter Wins Decision In Divorce Hearing

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (AP)—"Cowboy" Eddie Anderson, who earns a livelihood in the prize ring, has transferred his training quarters from home to gymnasium.

Anderson won a one-round decision from his wife in superior court today on grounds of cruelty. Admitting a modicum of skill in dodging and blocking, he protested his wife's barrage of plates and vanity cases was too fast for him to sidestep.

Midland Gets Regional Conference of W. T. C. C.

BIG SPRING, Texas, Nov. 27. (AP)—A conference of members of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in region six will be held in Midland Dec. 13, B. Reagan of Big Spring, regional director, announced today. Ten counties are in the district.

Stamford Bulldogs to Enter Title Scrap Slight Favorites Over Roscoe

STAMFORD, Texas, Nov. 27.—When Acton McCallum, coach of the Roscoe Plowboys, brings his squad of scrapping schoolboys to Stamford to meet the Bulldogs of the local school Thursday in a game which has as its stake the championship of district 9, class B, they will be slight favorites over Leonard Hagar, captain of the home team, and his mates.

The Plowboys played three conference games to win the right to represent the western section of district 9 in the finals. On top of that they played three games with opponents outside the district, and they won five of the six scraps, losing only to Ballinger by a score of 24 to 13.

Roscoe Scoring

During the entire season, to date, the Roscoe team has scored a total of 118 points to 54 for their opposition. They walloped Colorado 15-0; Snyder, 12-6; and Rotan 30-0 to win the sectional honors.

Roby lost to the Plowboys 30-12 and Winters was on the little end of 18-12 battle with the Nolan county boys. The Ballinger game was the sixth played by the Roscoe team.

To put in comparison, Stamford has a record hardly so good. The Bulldogs have played nine games. They lost two of them, tied one and came out winners in the other six. Only six of those contests counted on the conference schedule and of those the Stamford team won four, lost one and tied one.

The conference schedule of the Bulldogs follows: Oct. 11, Stamford 0, Merkel 6; Oct. 25, Stamford, 28, Hamlin 0; Nov. 1, Stamford 31, Roby 0; Nov. 11, Stamford 0, Anson 0; Nov. 18, Stamford 21, Haskell 0; Nov. 29, Stamford 20, Merkel 0. The November 22 game with Merkel was necessary in order to break a tie for first place in the eastern section between the two towns.

In non-conference games Stamford lost early in the season to Post and defeated Breckenridge high school seconds and the Simmons university reserves.

Bull Dogs All Set

The Bulldogs will go into the Turkey Day game at almost full strength and despite the prevailing opinion that they will start as the under-dogs, they are primed for the fight and will be in there battling every minute for the contest.

The Stamford team started the season looking very ordinary, but they have shown much improvement and now stand as one of the best balanced class B teams in the western part of the state. Football specialists who saw their last two games, the one with Haskell on Nov. 18, and the sectional final with Merkel on Nov. 22, declare that the Stamford team is equal to many of the class A teams in the state.

Although the Bulldogs have no one really outstanding player, Coach Lee Walker has the entire team playing real football and the backfield group of Hagar at full, Sherman Corley, Baker and Gardner at the half and quarter slots, are all dependable ball carriers and they are equally as good on offensive effort. The Thursday game will be a real scrap and a record crowd for football game in Stamford is expected.

BIG GAMES ON DOCKET TODAY

Unbeaten Teams Will Be On Mettle

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Five of the foremost unbeaten college football teams hope to have their appetites for the Thanksgiving feast stimulated by victories tomorrow.

All the facts and figures, so far as they can be relied upon, point to decisive triumphs by Pittsburgh over Penn State, Tulane over Louisiana State and Utah over the Utah Aggies.

Tennessee is a strong favorite to beat Kentucky and keep around the top of the Southern conference heap but the memory of a scoreless tie with the Wildcats last year may haunt the Volunteers when they dash on the gridiron at Lexington.

On West Coast

St. Mary's, the fifth unbeaten outfit, entertains the strong University of Oregon eleven at San Francisco in the outstanding holiday battle on the Pacific coast. St. Mary's has not even been scored on so far, being checked only by California in a scoreless tie, but figures to be pressed to gain any decided edge over the Webfooters from the north.

Here are the records these five undefeated teams seek to embellish:

	W.	T.	Pts.	O.P.
Tennessee	8	0	270	13
Tulane	8	0	258	45
Pittsburgh	8	0	257	36
Utah	6	0	183	16
St. Mary's	7	1	167	0

The games involving these teams are the most important, so far as the somewhat debatable claims to national championship honors are concerned, but traditional contests occupy the major part of the Thanksgiving program and will attract equally as keen interest.

Traditional Rivalries

There is traditional rivalry as well as title interest in such a game as Pittsburgh-Penn State, which may draw close to 70,000 to the huge Pitt stadium, but the flavor of a long standing feud will attract around 75,000 to the Pennsylvania-Cornell contest at Franklin field. These two games are the high spots of an eastern holiday slate, also including Colgate-Brown at Providence in the morning, Columbia-Syracuse at New York, New York university-Carnegie at the Yankee stadium and West Virginia-Washington and Jefferson at Morgantown, W. Va.

Penn beat Cornell 49 to 0 last Thanksgiving day, but the Quakers may be fortunate to have any kind of a margin this year, so marked has been the improvement of the Ithacans. Colgate, Syracuse, New York and West Virginia are favorites of a varying sort in the other encounters.

In the South

Aside from the efforts of Tennessee and Tulane to continue their neck and neck race for the Southern conference title, Dixie will witness a number of entertaining games, with Alabama and Georgia likely to wage one of the most thrilling. Florida figures to beat Washington and Lee, Vanderbilt to trim Sewanee and Georgia Tech to have little trouble with Auburn. Ancient rivalry prevails in the Virginia-North Carolina and Virginia Military-Virginia Poly encounters.

The Big Six championship will be settled in Nebraska's favor if the Huskers do the expected and beat Iowa State. Missouri and Oklahoma meanwhile clash at Columbia while the Kansas Aggies step out of the conference to tackle the rugged Marquette eleven at Milwaukee.

The big game of the week in the Southwestern conference is slated for Saturday, between Texas Christian and Southern Methodist, but the holiday fare features Texas against A. & M., as well as Arkansas against Oklahoma Aggies.

Razorbacks Arrive In Stillwater To Battle Okla. A & M

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 27. (AP)—Twenty-three husky gridiron gladiators of the University of Arkansas arrived in Stillwater today in time for a short limbering up practice preparatory to their clash with the Oklahoma A. & M. college eleven tomorrow.

The Oklahomans loosened their muscles for the game with a short formation drill.

The Razorbacks and Aggies will face each other for the 12th time tomorrow. Since the schools first clashed in 1912, the Arkansans have won six games to the five victories for the Aggies.

By special dispensation the game will leave its mark for better or worse on the Arkansas Southwestern conference record, although the Aggies are members of the Missouri Valley conference. Arkansas has not had enough games within its own conference to complete its normal schedule.

This season, both Arkansas and the Aggies have lost two games.

Coach Lynn Waldorf will start six players who were not in the opening lineup against the University of Oklahoma last week. However, the veteran players will be prepared, he said, to replace the less experienced if the need arises.

Both teams were pronounced in good condition by their coaches.

Working of Prisoners On Outside Prohibited

AUSTIN, No. 27. (AP)—The attorney general's department today held the prison commission has no authority to work convicts except within the penitentiary walls and on the farms. The opinion was written by L. C. Sutton, assistant attorney general, in reply to a letter from Joseph Wearden of Goliad, member of the prison commission, asking if convicts might be sent down to Beeville to do work on the state park there.

Olney Cubs and Seymour Panthers Battle For Distrist 3 Title

The two strongest teams in class B, district 3 conference high school football will settle differences for the title when the Seymour Panthers clash with the Olney Cubs at Olney on Thanksgiving day. Both elevens have swept through all opposition of the season without suffering a single reverse and will enter the title fray with every confidence of keeping their record unmarred. Thus the stage is set for a worthwhile and thrilling football game.

Neither team has had more than 13 points scored upon them during the entire season. The Seymour Panthers are slight favorites if the dope of the game is to be gone by, for they have won all of their five games played, while the Olney Cubs have won four of their games and tied one. On the other hand, the Cubs have piled up a total of 151 points to the 85 points amassed by the Seymour outfit, but they have not played against the same teams and this could easily account for all dope and paper differences that might exist.

Three teams on the Olney schedule were not allowed to cross their goal line. They are Iowa Park, Chillicothe and Burkburnett. Megargel, Iowa Park and Archer City could not score upon the Panthers.

Seymour boasts of the strongest forward wall in the district but on Thanksgiving day it will be a case of "wall to wall" for this department of the game is also one of the special prides of the Cubs. During the entire five-game schedule the Cub forward wall has permitted only 15 first downs to be made over them.

Only one other time, two years ago, have the Panthers been within striking distance of the district title. In that year the Panthers defeated everything in the district, including Olney, only to be nosed out by Strawn 13-12 on Thanksgiving day. In the four years which the Panthers and the Cubs have played the Seymour eleven has invariably handed the Olney eleven a sound drubbing. They boast that the coming struggle will not be an exception to the rule started back four years ago.

The long wrangle over the question of the officials for the title game was settled late Wednesday, according to dispatches, and John Roach, S. M. U. all-conference tackle, will referee the game. Coach Oliver of the Jacksboro High school will be the head linesman, and Roach will bring his own umpire with him. The game will start at 2:30 sharp.

CHARGES DROPPED

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (AP)—Charges of murder against Police Lieutenant Phillip Carroll, four members of his detective bureau squad and four hoodlums in connection with the death of Octavius Granady, negro politician, on election primary day in 1928, were dismissed today.

Ex-King Manuel of Portugal is an expert in gardening, and author of an important book on Portuguese literature.

GRANDFIELD VS. FREDERICK GO

Teams Are Bitter Rivals In Football

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Nov. 27.—The Grandfield Bearcats were on the warpath early Thursday morning and headed in the general direction of Frederick where they will meet the team of that town in a Thanksgiving day battle. The two teams are bitter rivals and will try and settle their scores in this closing contest of the 1929 football season. Last year the Frederick eleven handed the Bearcats a pretty sound thrashing when they tangled at the "Big Pasture hub," though the 7 to 0 score was no discredit to the losing team.

With but one exception, the Bearcats have kept their slate clean this year. They dropped a hotly contested bout to the Walters Eagles by the close count of 13-12.

Certain regal proceedings will take place between halves of the game. The coronation of the football queens of the two teams will be performed, Miss Cecil Johnson being the royal head for the Frederick team.

All of the Frederick team members will be eligible for the game. The probable starting players for Frederick will be: Neely and Schrimsacher, ends; Billingsley and Byrns, tackles; Jared and Prichard, guards; Olibell, center; Clark, quarterback; Isbell and Allison, halfbacks; Cecil Byrnes, fullback.

SUNRAY BUYS OPERATORS OIL

$2,000,000 Paid for Tulsa Concern

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 27.—The Sunray Oil corporation, being developed into a new major company by Dillon, Read & company of New York, today bought control of the Operators' Oil company of Tulsa for $2,000,000, part cash and part stock.

The deal gives Sunray more than 10,000 barrels a day production, as all of Operators' 4,000 barrels a day output was in Finley, Brown and Bowers pools of Gray county, Texas.

The Sunray recently bought control of Homaokla Oil company and Anderson-Prichard Oil corporation, and has several other deals on hand.

Progress Made in Gathering Cotton

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (UP)—Considerable progress was made in cotton picking in the northern portion of the belt for the first part of the week but the weather for the latter part of the week was generally unfavorable, and deterred picking to some extent.

Heavy snowfall occurred in the central belt as far south as northwestern Louisiana. Much cotton remained in the fields in some parts of the northeastern belt and on the lowlands of the north central area while considerable low grade staple was still out in parts of Oklahoma. In Texas scrapping was at a low ebb because of the severe weather.

Visit to Proposed Park Site Planned Sunday

Special to The Record News.

CLAUDE, Nov. 27—Dr. W. A. Warner, of Claude, who is Armstrong county director of the Palo Duro State Park Board association, has returned from the meeting held in Amarillo yesterday afternoon. At this meeting an option committee was appointed consisting of the following: Dr. W. A. Warner, Claude; W. H. Patrick, chairman, Clarendon; Mr. Green, Memphis; L. A. Wells, Amarillo; Mr. Underwood, Amarillo; W. M. McCreary, Canyon. After the regular meeting, the option committee held a meeting in which they decided that a party would leave Amarillo next Sunday morning on horses and travel down the Palo Duro canyon past Claude and on near Clarendon to investigate as to who wishes to sell property in the canyon, what they will have to pay for the land, and how much they may be able to buy for the proposed state park. Some of the members of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce will accompany this committee. A report will be heard at the next meeting occurring Dec. 19. Mrs. Phoebe K. Warner, secretary of the state park board association, and who resides at Claude, is aiding in every way possible, both by pen and mouth, to land the state park in Palo Duro canyon within the next year.

Burk Stores to Close For Holiday Today

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Nov. 27—The business houses of Burkburnett will be closed part of Thursday in the observation of Thanksgiving day, according to a report issued today by local merchants. The majority of them are expected to close early in the morning to attend the final football contest of the season with Iowa Park. The game is called at 10 o'clock in the morning on the local gridiron. According to Coach N. P. Craig, everything is in readiness on the Bulldog's edge.

The Burkburnett Public schools will be closed Thursday and Friday Supt. Butler Westerfield announced.

Wheat Prospects at Burk Are Excellent

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Nov. 27.—According to J. F. Kelley, local grain operator, one of the brightest prospects for wheat in many years now exisits in and around Burkburnett. Planting was started sometime ago, preceding the recent heavy rains which afforded an excellent moisture for wheat growing.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (AP)—Early declines in response to weakness in Liverpool were followed by partial recoveries in cotton today on trade buying and pre-holiday covering. The bulges were not fully maintained. After selling up from 17.21 to 17.31, January closed at 17.24 compared with 17.35 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 11 to 16 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 10 to 14 points with active months soon showing net losses of about 13 to 17 points under liquidation of recent buyers together with some southern and local selling inspired by a sharp break in Liverpool. The market there sold off 8 or 10 points just before the local opening, and Liverpool had some selling orders here during the early trading.

The decline to 17.09 for December and 17.48 for March was checked by trade buying or covering, however, and the market steadied up during the middle of the day. December advanced to 17.18 and March to 17.58, making recoveries of about 10 to 12 points from the lowest and to within 4 or 5 points of yesterday's closing quotation on most of the active months. Trading became very quiet on this rally, and the demand tapered off during the afternoon, with prices easing again in the late trading under realizing or liquidation and a little southern selling.

Cable advices received during the morning attributed the break in Liverpool to American selling and said there had also been continental and Bombay selling.

The first of the trade and November crop reports was issued by a local firm today placing the indicated crop at 14,785,000 running bales, which was considered about in line with expectations. Exports today 18,408 bales, making 3,099,623 so far this season. Port receipts, 4,344. U. S. port stocks, 2,630,968.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27. (AP)—Cotton was under pre-holiday influences today, trading consisting mainly of evening up for over Thanksgiving. Following a morning decline the market rallied on covering and trade buying but final prices showed a moderate loss for the day. January declined to 17.40, rallied to 17.80 but eased and closed at 17.47 or 14 points net lower. The general market closed steady at net losses of 11 to 14 points.

Unfavorable Liverpool advices were reflected in an opening decline here of 14 to 16 points. The market eased off further ultimately broke below the 17-cent line to 16.93 and active months generally dropped to levels 18 to 22 points below the previous close.

Near mid-session the market became steadier. December rallied to 17.05, January 17.32 and March 17.50, or 10 to 13 points up from the lows. For the remainder of the session the market ruled quiet and fluctuated within the early range. December closed at 17.04 and March 17.45.

Trading Dullness Rules Market As Operators Begin Holiday Early

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (UB)—Holiday dullness ruled in today's stock market as the volume of trading declined to the smallest total in months. Prices on the average were r mewhat better than on Tuesday, but few issues displayed outstanding strength. It was purely a professional market punctuated infrequently by renewed liquidation in a comparatively limited group of issues or by real investment demand in as limited a group of high grade stocks. The trading element apparently was inclined to delay more aggressive operations until the extended holiday had passed. Developments of the day exerted only moderate influence on prices, a weakening factor of course on certain of the moving picture stocks being the government suit but even in these stocks the setback was minor.

Considered from all angles, the market was of a nature which was most pleasing to the banking fraternity and the conservative brokerage element. A period of sustained dullness with relatively unimportant price fluctuations, it is argued, will permit proper stabilization of the market. During such a period it is probable that whatever sizeable blocks of stock are still overhanging the market may find more or less permanent lodgment. Furthermore, a period of stability would also encourage renewed buying by investors, who at the moment are hesitant to enter a market which has not yet displayed evidence of a complete turn about.

In a few issues it is becoming apparent that the short interest has again grown to sizeable proportions. As a matter of fact, the short interest is one of the chief arguments advanced by many brokers for temporary optimism on the metal group of stocks. These issues, it is pointed out, have been particular targets for renewed bearish operations, but with producers intent upon holding the price of the metal at least for the time being, there is basis for possible squeezing of the shorts. This was shown today in the recovery of several points in the leading coppers.

There is universal agreement that the business and financial interests are doing everything possible to prevent the stock market debacle from having serious effect on general business. The immediate endeavors of the government to bring about a general feeling of optimism in industry and trade, it is hoped, will have a most appreciable influence in preventing widespread unemployment with consequent adverse effect on purchasing power. The money powers are also lending every assistance toward this end, and the federal reserve of course has adopted a definitely easier money policy. There will be plenty of credit for industry at probably lower rates than even now prevailing. In other words, everything will be done to maintain public psychology in an optimistic mood with respect to general business. It is to be expected naturally that cancellations will be frequent in important lines of industry for the immediate future, but if this movement can be prevented from becoming widespread the prospects are quite favorable for a resumption of prosperous conditions throughout the country.

Co-Eds Go by Air On Holiday Trip

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 27. (INS)—To be sure of getting home on time for Thanksgiving day dinner, two girl students in private schools departed in airplanes today for home.

Miss Betty Yager, student at the Barstow school here, left by plane this afternoon for her home in Wichita, Kan. Miss Mary Taliaferro, student at Notre Dame De Sion here, took a plane for her home at Ponca City, Okla.

Further interest among students in aviation was shown here today when 50 members of a class at the Kansas City Teachers college went to the Kansas City airport to take rides in planes.

Electra Society

Gilbert Birdsall, president, was in charge of the senior young people's meeting at the Church of Christ Sunday evening. The opening songs were "I Am a Stranger Here" and "Just a Few More Years," and were followed with the Scripture reading by Miss Lacy Mae Robertson. Gilbert Birdsall led in prayer, and the discussion was taken from the 13th chapter of First Corinthians. A reading, "The Value of a Smile," was given by Norma Louise Bullard and special papers, "Love for the Lord" and "Love for the World" were read by Arrington Beasley and Marie Simmons. The closing song was "Wonderful Words of Life." Arrington Beasley dismissed with prayer.

There were 22 members present and three visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Hughes and E. E. Rogers.

L. B. Stevenson, assisted by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Stella Hughes of Wichita Falls, entertained at his home in Brannon Heights with a dinner honoring his wife on the occasion of her birthday.

Those who enjoyed the occasion were Messrs. and Mesdames Marion Bray, Orville Richardson, Milton Woolard, John Daggs and son, Dave Daggs and daughter, Anna Bell, Amos Bates, D. L. Dickson, Charlie Horton, Burn Shoffner, L. B. Stevenson and family and Mrs. Stella Hughes of Wichita Falls.

The Christ's Ambassadors met at the Assembly of God church Sunday evening at 6:15 with the president, Mrs. E. B. Crump, in charge of the meeting. The opening song was "Living by Faith" and was followed with prayer by all. Sidney Eubanks was in charge of the program and discussed the first two parables recorded in the 20th chapter of Matthew. The president appointed Miss Christine Andrews to lead the program next Sunday. There were 20 members present.

The Women's Missionary council of the Assembly of God met Monday afternoon at the church. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. E. B. Crump. The opening songs were "I Know My Name Is There" and "When I Go Home." Mrs. C. W. Hedges led the devotional which was taken from the fourth chapter of First John. Mrs. M. F. Pierson will be the leader at the next meeting.

Those present were Mesdames M. W. Hedges, O. E. Ray, Nannie Gault, C. W. Hedges, E. B. Crump, Oma Davids, Vada King, Ida Crebbs, and Rev. E. B. Crump.

Mrs. H. D. Miller was hostess to the members of the Friendship class of the Methodist church at her home on East 7th. The rooms were beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and other autumn flowers.

The meeting was opened with the class song and was followed with prayer by Rev. C. L. Bounds. Mrs. Vaught, president, was in charge of the business session, and reports were given by the secretary, the officers, and committees. Mrs. R. L. Hagdcock was elected treasurer, and Mesdames F. W. Weaver and George Lindop were named for the room committee by the room chairman, Mrs. W. A. Sandefer.

During the social hour the following program was rendered: Solo, Mrs. G. F. Hawley, with Mrs. Earl Halton at the piano; reading, Jimmie Yarbrough; piano solo, Nell Adams Jackson; musical reading, Imogene Goodman; costume reading, Hazel Rippy; contests, with Mrs. M. L. Wilson in charge; short talks, Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Bounds.

Mrs. Miller and her group closed the program with a playlet, "Seeking a Servant," with the following in the cast of characters: Mesdames H. D. Miller, A. Fisher, H. E. King, J. H. Harris, E. S. Rippy, J. P. Hamilton, A. C. Rippy, C. C. Wynn, George B. Ansell jr., Jimmie Yarbrough, C. C. Gilbert and Miss Nell Jackson.

At the close of the program a delicious salad course was served by the hostess to Mesdames T. H. Parmley, W. C. Martin, C. C. Adams, M. L. Wilson, J. A. Coker, J. L. LeBout, Leo Moore, F. W. Weaver, L. D. Staton, Theo Youree, G. M. Mount, Frank Fisher, Jere Barnes, S. C. Massengill, H. E. Barrett, May Stalcup, F. L. Hudpeth, George Lindop, C. L. Bounds, W. E. Vaught, M. A. Beahara, E. L. Blain, W. A. Sandefer, G. F. Hawley, Earl Halton, R. G. Goodman, W. B. Lane, Corrine Vaught, C. D. Thornley, W. C. Trainer, L. J. Crawford, S. P. Clark, Joe Hunnicutt, T. H. Moore, L. S. Tinsin, W. T. Oliver, G. D. Williams, G. L. Henson, C. C. Brasher, Misses Hazel Rippy, Imogene Goodman, and Nell Adams Jackson.

Miss Mary Jo Bates was the leader of the junior young people's meeting at the Church of Christ Sunday evening. Special papers on "Love for the Lord," "Love for the World" and "Love for the Church" were read by Mary Kate Woolard, Mary Elizabeth Orr and Catherine Robertson.

Two Boys Held for Series of Holdups

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 27. (INS)—Two 18-year-old boys, Walter Mitchell of St. Joseph, Mo., and Clarence Wright of Leavenworth, Kan., were in jail here today accused of six hold-ups in which they injured a man and a boy after terrorizing a big section of Milwaukee county for several hours.

The bandits obtained $338 in the hold-ups of road houses and filling stations, police said.

Those wounded by the bandits are: Fred Komeskey, 35, a one-armed world war veteran, shot three times and John Kernzal, 17, driving an automobile bearing a Missouri license.

Wright and Mitchell arrived here late yesterday and inaugurated their rapid fire of robberies and shooting a few hours later, they told police.

$15,000,000 DAIRY MERGER INVOLVES WICHITA FALLS PLANTS

COMPANY TO OPEN FARMS

Southwest Dairy Properties Acquired in Deal

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (AP)—A $15,000,000 merger of dairy plants through the purchase of the Southwest Dairy Products company by the Foremost Dairy Products, Inc., has been announced by Burdette G. Lewis, president of the Foremost organization.

The new organization plans to establish dairy farms adjacent to the larger plants. Leading cities, where there are now plants operated by the two organizations included in the merger, are Texarkana, Monroe, Shreveport, Fort Worth, Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Wichita Falls, Big Spring, Mineral Wells, with other plants forming a general network of milk plants, ice cream plants and other operations throughout the states included.

Confirming reports received from New York of the merger of the Southwest Dairy Products company with Foremost Dairy Products, Inc., P. R. Freeman, local manager of the former concern's interests, declared that officers and working organization of the Southwest Dairy Products company will remain unchanged. Consummation of the deal followed several months of negotiations, Mr. Freeman said.

The Southwest Dairy Products company's headquarters is in Dallas. Its officers are C. M. Conway, president; C. S. Dowley and E. P. Laubscher, vice presidents, and T. F. Kennedy, secretary-treasurer.

The company's interests in this city include the former Kraft cheese plant, Dairyland, formerly the James brothers' creamery, and the Producers' creamery.

Stroke Blamed For Car Wreck Fatal To Aspermont Man

Special to The Record News

STAMFORD, Texas, Nov. 27.—The body of Dr. F. V. McKnight, Aspermont physician who was killed when his car overturned six miles east of Aspermont last night, was forwarded to Abilene from here late today, and from Abilene it will be taken to Alba, Texas, for burial.

Doctor McKnight, who had left his Aspermont home to make a call, was found dead near the wreckage of his car early today. A deep bruise over the left eye, sufficient, physicians said, to have caused death, was discovered. This led to an investigation by officers. In the end, however, it was learned Doctor McKnight had previously suffered from paralytic strokes, and physicians said he probably had suffered a stroke while driving Tuesday night in the course of which he lost consciousness.

Doctor McKnight's wife, suffering from a collapse, is under treatment in a hospital here. Besides his widow the physician is survived by a son, Payton, a daughter, Mrs. S. B. Pope, both of Dallas, and a sister, Mrs. A. R. Low of Abilene.

Elimination of Four Toll Bridges Likely

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 27. (UP)—Definite assurance of elimination of four Red river toll bridges was expected before the end of the week.

Owners of the toll bridge between Woodville, Okla., and Preston, Texas, are considering a joint offer of the two states of $100,000.

W. C. Burnham, highway department engineer, and W. C. Lewis, assistant attorney general, were in Fort Worth today conferring with Texas officials on construction of three spans paralleling three major Red river toll bridges.

I Had Lost Hopes Of Ever Seeing Well Day Again

"I Know What Orgatone Will Do From Actual Experience; I Gained Three Pounds First Week," Says Lubbock Visitor.

"I had actually given up all hopes of ever seeing a well day again," said Mrs. B. L. Kinsey, of 3809 Harrison street, Amarillo, who was visiting her brother, who is deputy sheriff at Lubbock, and gave this interesting statement while en route to Amarillo, at the South Plains Drug store, at Plainview, recently.

"I had suffered," she continued, "for about 13 years with just a general run down condition, my stomach troubled me, and I was bothered with gall stone and kidney trouble. I couldn't hardly do a thing, and all the doctors told me I would never be well again, and the fact was I never expected to be, for I was just about all in. Everything I ate caused me indigestion, and I didn't have any appetite at all, and food soured and formed gas, and hurt me so I got to where I was afraid to eat, and ate less and less every day. I was so weak that I didn't have enough strength to even do my own housework and life was just a dread from one day to another and every day seemed a week long.

"My brother at Lubbock, Texas, recommended Orgatone to me, and it was the luckiest day of my life when I began taking it. It is the most wonderful medicine I have ever taken or even heard of. I eat anything I want, and am not nervous or restless and go to bed and get a good night's sleep. My kidney trouble doesn't pain me any more, and gas does not sour on my stomach as it did, and in fact, everything I eat digests properly, and it seems to do me some good. I am feeling better than I have in the last 13 years, I just feel a different woman, and have gained three pounds this week, and am so strong and well again I think I can do anything I want to. All my strength and energy has returned and I am just too thankful to Orgatone. I can't find enough words to tell about it. Orgatone has surely saved my life, and I am so well and happy I can't endorse it too highly, and I am certainly glad to tell others about it."

Today — At the Theaters

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

MAJESTIC: "Hard to Get." Dorothy Mackaill, Jack Oakie and Charles Delaney in a fair comedy. Eddie Cantor black-facing in a follies setting. Thanksgiving pictorial feature. Sound news.

STRAND: "The Cock Eyed World." Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen in a sequel to "What Price Glory." Paramount sound news.

OLYMPIC: Gypsy Strollers company on stage. "The Drake Case," all star cast, on screen. Comedy. Pathe review.

GEM: Ken Maynard in "The Royal Rider." Comedy.

Considerable entertainment might be derived from a deliberate attempt to analyze the production, "Four Feathers," which showed at the Strand, to ferret out the elements on which reviewers generally throughout the country have rated it above the average film in its capacity to entertain. First of all, of course, from the standpoint of customary publicity sources, is the array of Dick Arlen, William Powell, Clive Brook, Fay Wray, George Fawcett, Noah Beery—all established stars—in the cast.

But it has other ace cards. For instance, a story so close to "Beau Geste" that the author might be suspected of altering only where memory failed. The thirsty, endless desert of northern Africa creates, by the very background which it furnishes, men of great courage—an impression enhanced by makeup and skillful photography. And there is always a "kick" in the clear-eyed, straight-limbed young man's efforts to clear his name of a smirch unjustly smeared upon it.

The picture has rated high with many critics, but with two meanings, each referring to individual reactions to "Four Feathers" by two groups of spectators. Most audiences thrill to the display of bravery, even on the screen, and the situations presented in this film certainly convey definite pictures of valorous deeds. The sweetheart left behind in old England, the two-fisted fighter overcoming seemingly impossible odds, life cheerfully risked for the boyhood friend, and the reunion of young love once more in England's April—all this old furniture has been dusted and polished gloriously for those who inhale deeply the joy and sorrow of the story.

Another element in "Four Feathers," accompanied either with or without the intention of its producers, has not failed to register poignantly with a smaller group of followers. That is the extremely subtle burlesque accompanied by very slightly exaggerating the melodramatic acting of the principal characters. Gestures carried to just the proper degree represent the highest form of artistic support to lines of spoken drama. Carried one shade beyond that mythical line, they enter the field of mild caricature, which on the stage is burlesque. Except for connecting subtitles, all narration in non-talking pictures is accomplished through gesture. Being of that variety, "Four Feathers" depends almost entirely on gesture. And therein was contained the covered element of humor.

At a moment when every fraction of a second counted vitally in the scheme of things, Faversham (Arlen) posed dramatically for exactly 20 second (by the clock) gazing fixedly at the old uniform while deciding whether to do on the instant what the situation demanded be done on the instant. Rough stubble on the chin of William Powell would have indicated that safety razors had not been furnished to prisoners in the Black Pit, but William doesn't do things half-way—nor does his beard. It waved lazily in the wind while he emoted generously.

But "Four Feathers" has pageantry. The spectacle of hundreds of native Soudan-ese "fuzzy-wuzzies" swarming across the sands to resist the British column is vitally interesting. Few there are who have not received lasting impressions of these African warriors made famous by their stubborn fight against the English Tommies, and by the poetic eulogy of those fighting qualities by Rudyard Kipling. The specimens used in this picture appear genuine. Great twists of kinky hair "spoking" upwards from the narrow forehead which surmounts his glinting eyes lent nothing of a peaceable aspect to his ensemble.

Harry Hines Tells of Changes Wrought by Deep Oil Discovery

By HARRY HINES

A few months ago barren red clay hills and sand with a scattering of scrub oak here and there to the southeast of Oklahoma City could well be referred to as a land of waste, unattractive and unproductive. It would have taken a great deal of imagination as one rode over this territory and passed the dry hole pretty well in the middle of it some 4,000 feet deep to realize that they were riding over a great reservoir of oil, or what is frequently referred to as underground earthen storage. But if one reads the press dispatches of Nov. 25 they will notice a flashing headline across the first page reading:

NEW 20,000 BARREL GUSHER COMES IN

Many on hand to see I. T. I. O.-Foster No. 2 Trosper et al. blow oil over block. Another oil well increasing production by approximately 20,000 barrels per day was added to the Oklahoma City field when the I. T. I. O.-Foster No. 2 Trosper et al. SWC 12-11-3w blew in shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday morning for more than 800 barrels an hour. The flow was turned into storage at 10:35 and during the next five hours and 25 minutes the gusher made 4,404 barrels with a strong supply of gas. From 1 p. to 2 p. m. the well made its best flow, 1,060 barrels. A large crowd of spectators saw oil and mud gush 50 feet above the crownblock as the new producer cleaned out. Depth was 6392 feet with pay coming from the big sand, 6⅝ casing set at 6374 feet.

One is startled by the realization that this land of waste which was so peaceful and so quiet only a few months ago is now a raging and bustling mob of humanity, drilling rigs and oil tanks. Though this new well is an offset to two producers which have been in for some time, still this mammoth production was still available.

Prospects Here Better

Those who are contemplating deep oil in the Wichita Falls-North Texas district have a great deal more to look forward to in the way of scientific analysis than they had in this field near Oklahoma City for that area was considered condemned and a 4,000 foot dry hole stood as proof thereof in the minds of the people; whereas, on the other hand in the Wichita Falls-North Texas district where oil is now being produced from so many sands that it is recognized as one of the great oil producing areas of the world. Prior to the discovery of the Oklahoma City deep pool that area was considered as being in a territory which in all probability could not or would not produce oil from any depth by reason of the heavy thickness of the red bed section known to exist there.

Great accomplishments, important discoveries, marvelous inventions only come to us as a result of vision, faith and belief, and while there may not be any deep oil in this territory, in view of the oil already discovered and the money already made therefrom in this district which has so materially helped the growth and prosperity of this entire trade territory, it behooves us as a people to see to it that this exploration work is done and the deep oil development company is the agency by which the public can reasonably expect such an exploration program.

It is generally said and the statement is often quoted that when the Deep Oil Development company goes into operation the drilling activity will undoubtedly attract huge sums of money from oil companies and the oil operators throughout the entire country who are interested in deep oil drilling.

Other Capital Attracted

The attraction of many millions of dollars to the Wichita Falls-North Texas district over a period of the next two years and the putting of those dollars into circulation, alone is worth the expenditure of $1,000,000 on the part of our citizenship. And even this $1,000,000 that the Deep Oil Development company will expend does not pass out of existence as a very large proportion of same will remain in circulation in this general trade territory for in the drilling of these deep wells it will be paid out for labor, trucking, material and supplies, to people who in turn will place a large part of same into further circulation through our mercantile channels.

The citizens of North Texas should consider the vital elements entering into this project and by placing their shoulders to the wheel should see that the stock of the Deep Oil Development company is placed in the hands of investors largely in this district at once. No one should wait for a stock salesman to come see you, for we have no stock salesman. For the citizens of our district—the oil men, the merchants, the doctors, the lawyers and the men of all vocations in Wichita Falls and surrounding towns are taking time for their business and devoting this time to the selling of stock in the Deep Oil Development company for it is a community enterprise.

Volunteers Asked

But these volunteer stock salesmen, of course, cannot see everyone and every citizen in the Wichita-North Texas district should make it a point to either call at the office of the Deep Oil Development company, ground floor, Hamilton building, Eighth street entrance, Wichita Falls, Texas, or write in for a prospectus of the company and same will be mailed to you. If you feel the ambition to do something for your community, then make it known at the office of the Deep Oil Development company and you will be given some work to do.

Everyone should have a part in this great enterprise, for the launching of the company, the financing of same, and the eventual operation of the company's affairs should be of mutual concern to every citizen of North Texas.

Nature Dance—Edna Mae Shoop.
Doctor Pattillo—Songs.
Phyllis Seeds—Dutch Dance.
Mrs. Harrell and Fisher.
Paul Sisk—Mirambe.
Bonnie Pearl West—Tap dance.
Ernest Reeves—Songs.

Permit Issued For $10,000 Brick Building

Permit for the erection of a $10,000 business building at 1501 Eleventh street was granted Wednesday by the city engineer to M. F. Parrish. The contract for construction of the building was awarded to Mytinger & Walker, the permit reads. The structure is to be of brick, and is to be completed in four months.

A building line for the structure, set to comply with the city building code, was ordered prepared by the city council Monday night on application of Mr. Parrish through his attorney, Walter H. Caldwell. It was understood the building would house a cleaning and pressing establishment.

Government Wins In Insurance Suit Here

The suit brought by W. S. Ross against the federal government for recovery of war risk insurance was decided in favor of the defendant by a jury in federal district court Wednesday. When court adjourned Wednesday afternoon, the trial of the suit brought by Mrs. Nannie Grey, et al, against the federal government on a similar claim had not been completed.

School Land Head Stripped of Powers

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 27. (UP)—Walter Hart, secretary of the state school land commission, has been stripped of executive powers in the school land department and hereafter will act only as an employe, it was reported today.

Four members of the commission, Governor Holloway, State Auditor A. S. J. Shaw and State Superintendent of Schools John S. Vaughan and Harry Cordell, president of the board of agriculture, held a secret meeting late yesterday. Members refused to discuss the meeting. Governor Holloway denied Hart had been discharged.

It was said Hart was criticized for exercising too much authority.

Bottling Company Upheld In Suit Here

A jury in the 78th district court Wednesday afternoon returned a verdict in favor of the defendant in the suit brought by Rex Gilmore against the Coca-Cola Bottling works on a claim of $20,000 damages. The plaintiff alleged that he had swallowed broken glass in the bottom of a bottle of carbonated beverage. The case was brought to trial Monday.

Jealousy Motive Seen In Tortuous Slaying

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Nov. 27. (INS)—Jealousy was revealed today as the probable motive for the mutilating and burning alive of Connie Franklin, 20-year-old farm hand, who soon was to have married Tillie Ruminer, 17, whom several other men are said to have admired. Charles Ruminer, father of Tillie, and for whom Franklin worked as a farm hand, told Sheriff Sam Johnson several of the men under suspicion of slaying the youth and attacking Tillie had been refused "dates" by his daughter.

Bodies of 75 Soldiers To Arrive Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (US)—The bodies of 75 soldiers who died while members of the A. E. F. in Russia, will arrive here on the President Roosevelt tomorrow. To honor them, Mayor Walker has ordered all flags on public buildings at half mast. The Macom, New York's welcoming tug, will carry Commissioner Whalen and a group of military and veterans' association leaders to the liner.
