Retrial is to be in L.A.

Officer's attorney to appeal decision

■ Judge thinks that despite recent rioting, impartial jury can be found to retry Laurence Powell.

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The white police officer accused of delivering the most blows to black motorist Rodney King will be retried in Los Angeles, despite three days of deadly rioting here, a judge ruled Friday. The prosecutor claimed victory.

Judge Stanley Weisberg, who sent the first trial to a largely white suburb, said an impartial jury could be found in Los Angeles County despite the rioting that followed the April 29 acquittals of four police officers.

Officer Laurence Powell will be retried after a five-month "cooling-off period," the judge decided. Jurors in Simi Valley acquitted Powell and the other officers of all charges but one. The jurors of 10 whites, one Asian and one Hispanic deadlocked eight to four in favor of acquitting Powell of excessive force.

The Superior Court retrial is to take place in Los Angeles' downtown criminal courts building, less than two miles from the South Central area, which was hit hardest by the three days of rioting. The riots left 52 people dead, and caused $750 million in damage.

Powell's attorney, Michael Stone, requested that the retrial be held in Simi Valley. He said he expected to appeal Weisberg's decision.

"I feel confident we have a very strong position to argue," he said, suggesting that Los Angeles jurors would feel more deeply

TAKING AIM AT TAAS TESTING

School administrators and teachers are taking another look at the Texas standardized test which stumped Midland students and their peers statewide. Everything from extending the school day to a homework hotline has been suggested to get Midland pupils on task with the TAAS (Texas Assessment of Academic Skills). The three-part series "Taking Aim at TASS Testing," which begins Sunday, looks at local options to improve student performance.

OPEC accord

VIENNA, Austria — OPEC patched together an accord Friday that calls for only a modest increase in oil production. Cartel members hope this will nudge prices higher this summer. The agreement officially calls for all 13 nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, except Kuwait, to hold their oil pumping steady in the July-September quarter. But it unofficially lets Saudi Arabia, the world's largest crude exporter, pump at a slightly higher level of about 8 million barrels a day, delegates said. Kuwait, its oil industry rapidly recovering from the ravages of the Gulf War, would be allowed to pump as much as possible.

Fiesta Texas

SAN ANTONIO — Fiesta Texas, a $100 million musical theme park, kicked off its grand opening weekend Friday with live song and dance performances and park dedications. This marks the start of the park's daily summer operations. Fiesta Texas opened for weekends only starting March 14. The park includes four theme areas: Rockville, Los Festivales, Spassburg and Crackaxle Canyon. They feature rock-and-roll, Hispanic, German and country-and-western music.

High winds rip through Midland area

By Michael Kashgarian

Staff writer

Several weather warnings were issued in West Texas and southeast New Mexico Friday night after a storm, packed with high winds and heavy rains, overtook the area, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Winds in excess of 50 miles per hour were reported in north Midland County and the entire county was under a severe thunderstorm warning for a portion of the evening. Although only .09 of an inch of rain was officially recorded at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport, higher amounts were reported in other parts of the county.

Cable service was reported out in various parts of the city and technicians were working Friday night to determine the cause, although it was assumed it was weather-related, according to the answering service.

Vandals break trunks of trees at Ulmer Park

By Debbie Lincecum

Staff writer

Doris Sire remembers when Midland's Ulmer Park was little more than a gravel pit.

That's why the city resident is so angry about what happened there Thursday night. Someone deliberately broke the thin trunks of at least nine young trees.

"I've seen this place grow from nothing, from just a big pit of gravel when we came here, to what it is now — a beautiful park," Mrs. Sire said. "It's our dollars that have done that."

But even though she thinks raising the trees from seedlings must have cost the city several hundred dollars, it isn't the money that bothers Mrs. Sire.

$1,150 suitcase on royal couple's wedding gift list

LONDON (AP) — What to give a royal bride?

According to Lady Helen Windsor's wedding wish list, published in a London newspaper, matching his-and-her, blue-and-pink water bottles would be welcome, as would a suitcase for $1,150.

Brian Sewell, art critic for the London Evening Standard, won't say how he got hold of the list of 294 items totaling $32,400.

The list also included a Nintendo computer game, an $800 croquet set and a brass standing lamp with a mahogany table for $1,600. For the more practical giver, there were an $860 Hotpoint washing machine and a $770 dishwasher.

The cheapest present was a glass butter dish for $1.35.

Some ClayDesta Corp. employees are laid off

By John Paul Pitts

Business/Oil editor

Employees at ClayDesta Corp. confirmed Friday there have been layoffs but would not comment on the nature or number of the layoffs.

Both Clayton Williams and Paul Latham, president of the corporation, were unavailable for comment.

Among those laid off were Thomas Moore and John Brose, both of whom had headed Williams' oil operations, sources said. Other executives were reported to have been put on half-day status, and sources say additional layoffs could follow.

Moore, who had been president of Clayton Williams Jr. Inc., was contacted at home, but said he would be unable to comment until Tuesday.

Last year Clayton Williams noted that he would take his company public in an effort to raise money for his expanding drilling program in the Austin Chalk trend.

However, a stock issue planned for November, was withdrawn after PaineWebber advised the company that it probably would not receive its asking price for the stock.

Williams is one of the largest participants in the Austin Chalk, and has been one of the most successful drillers in the trend. But, rapid production declines have made some of the wells less promising than first thought.

Chevron deal turns out to be less lucrative

■ In agreement struck this week, oil company had backed down from its original demands.

By Louis Uchitelle
N.Y. Times News Service

As new details come to light, it appears that Chevron Corp.'s oil venture in Kazakhastan, hailed as a breakthrough for foreign investment in the former Soviet Union, will be much less lucrative for Chevron than the deal that the company had negotiated with the Soviet Union before Mikhail S. Gorbachev's government disintegrated.

Government officials from Kazakhstan, in interviews since the agreement was signed in Washington on Monday, have credited two investment advisers hired last fall — Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. and the government of Oman — with guiding them in negotiating a much tougher agreement than they could have managed on their own, given their inexperience in making commercial deals.

"Our advisers valued the fields and set up satisfactory terms last February," Kalyk Abdulayev, Kazakhstan's deputy prime minister and chief negotiator in the Chevron talks, said in New York Friday. "It was only after February that we could have serious talks."

The agreement makes Chevron and the Kazakhstan government 50-50 partners in developing the Tengiz oilfield, one of the world's largest. Some of the terms might serve as precedents for giant oil deals that Exxon, British Petroleum, Texaco, Marathon and other oil companies are seeking, principally in Siberia.

No other area in the world has so much untapped oil as Russia and Kazakhstan, but until this week's Chevron agreement, only small foreign ventures, involving less than $30 million apiece, had been undertaken.

"The Chevron deal is a tough one financially, but where else in the world can you find nearly nine billion barrels of recoverable oil," said John H. Lichtblau, president of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, explaining why Chevron eventually backed down from its original demands. "It is another Alaska, and the oil is already discovered."

Among other things, Chevron had persuaded the Gorbachev government last year to give the San Francisco-based company 28 percent of the profits from the venture.

The Kazakhstan government, in a compromise, agreed to pay Chevron 20 percent of the profit, after taxes. Earlier this year it demanded that Chevron accept less than 15 percent — responding in part to press criticism in Russia and Kazakhstan that Chevron was seeking too much.

Pace quickening at Perot headquarters

By Scott Shepard
N.Y. Times News Service

■ An Analysis

DALLAS — The hustle and bustle in Ross Perot's spacious headquarters leaves little room for doubt about his political intentions.

Phones ring constantly, the sound of angry Middle America calling. Volunteers, polite suburban rebels, answer in soft murmurs, the sound of a revolution advancing like the tide.

Perot won't declare when, or even if, he'll become a candidate. But the sights and sounds of these offices are those of a presidential campaign in full swing.

That is, with one important exception: Perot himself is seldom seen here, lest someone get the idea that there is something more afoot than just grassroots populism.

Perot's volunteers, most looking like suitable subjects for Norman Rockwell, arrive throughout the day at the glass-and-brick office building that serves as Perot's headquarters.

They sign in on the first floor, then proceed to the second floor, where Perot's now-famous toll-free hot line is located.

Security is tight. No one without proper identification gets beyond the first-floor sign-in desk. Locked double doors on the second-floor provide a back-up barrier to unwelcome visitors.

Homemade banners ("Ross for Boss"), slickly designed posters ("Perot" with the Lone Star of Texas surging through the "o"), and phones, phones, phones are everywhere.

When word reached the office this week that new national and state polls show Perot surpassing President Bush in popularity, the pace quickened.

A second phone bank was added to begin canvassing political organizations and, once Perot makes his candidacy official, the voters themselves.

"This definitely represents a new phase in the campaign," said Sharon Holman, a longtime assistant to Perot.

Campaign?

Perot steadfastly insists that before deciding on a race for the White House as an independent candidate he is waiting to see whether his supporters will put him on the ballot in all, or nearly all, 50 states.

But no one here believes he has any intention of walking away from the challenge.

"Politics has always been a dirty word to me, but this is different," said J.B. Tilley, a middle-aged housewife from Dallas. "America is a business, and Ross Perot knows how to run a business."

"This is the people working together, and that's what I'm seeing," said Ed Campbell, who supervises the hundreds of volunteers who spend several hours a day fielding calls.

PARK: Vandalism angers resident

(From 1A)

"If the people in Midland knew about this, maybe they could do something," she said. "Vandalism is just on a rampage."

Mrs. Sire and her husband, Jack, moved into their home only a block from Ulmer in 1942. Now they walk there every day, he at dusk, she at dawn.

It was on her Friday walk that Mrs. Sire discovered the broken trees — some of them flattened, others torn and scraped.

"I think I see some tire tracks here," she said, pointing next to one of the torn trees. "I've been trying to figure out how they did it.

"But what I want to know is just what good did it do?"

Assistant Community Services Director Chuck Swallow said vandalism is common in city parks, but normally occurs to the buildings and fixtures — not greenery.

Ulmer Park houses fields for Midland Junior Baseball and Midland United Girls Softball leagues. Those young trees were donated by the United Girls Softball League.

"We're going to evaluate how much damage has been done," Swallow said. "If we can, we'll try to replace those trees."

He estimates coping with park vandalism costs the city at least $30,000 annually.

"We've got to do something about this," Mrs. Sire said. "I'd be willing to give a reward for the people who did it.

"It's such a shame."

L.A.: Trial delayed until October

the wounds of rioting and would be biased against Powell.

The first trial was moved to neighboring Ventura County because of the politically charged atmosphere that King's March 3, 1991, beating had created in Los Angeles. The beating followed a high-speed chase and was captured on videotape by a passerby.

Stone said he agreed with Weisberg's decision to delay the start of the retrial until Oct. 19 to allow for a cooling-off period.

"It's very difficult for Officer Powell to get a fair trial now," Stone said. "It was difficult in 1991. It's near impossible now."

Asked why Powell didn't try to plea bargain, Stone said, "because he's not guilty."

In returning the case to Los Angeles, Weisberg said Ventura County officials told him they had no court available this time. He also said that heavy publicity about the first trial and ensuing riots was not limited to Los Angeles County.

"No one in the state of California is unaware of the verdict in the first trial and of the events that followed the verdict in the first trial," he said.

Deputy District Attorney Terry White, who handled the prosecution, said he wouldn't change his strategy.

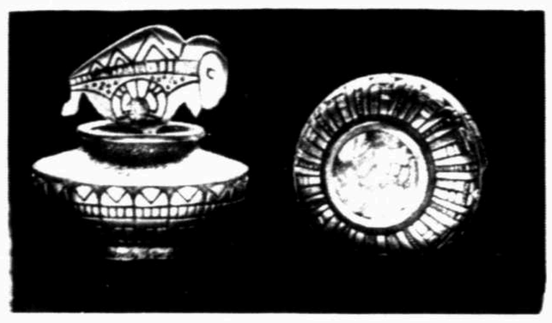

"We're going to put on the evidence as we did last time and we think we will have better results," he said. "We disagreed with the verdict in Ventura County and we think the evidence is strong enough that we're going to get a guilty verdict."

Coalition abandons Thailand's prime minister

N.Y. Times News Service

BANGKOK, Thailand — Thailand's prime minister was abandoned Friday by the political coalition that appointed him and presented with what amounted to a demand that he resign for his part in the most violent political unrest in the nation's recent history.

There was no immediate response from the prime minister, Suchinda Kraprayoon, to the announcement by officials of his five-party coalition that they had drafted constitutional amendments that would require him to step down.

The amendments would require the prime minister to be an elected official, which Suchinda is not.

The constitutional amendments drafted by the five political parties will be debated by the Thai Parliament on Monday. Pro-democracy groups have said tens of thousands of their supporters will rally outside the Parliament building.

The amendments were part of an agreement reached between Suchinda and the leader of the pro-democracy opposition, Chamlong Srimuang, during a meeting with King Bhumibol Adulyadej on Wednesday aimed at ending the violent clashes.

THE MOVE by the political parties unleashed a flood of rumors in the Thai capital: that Suchinda would resign, that he would dismiss the Parliament and call new elections, that his supporters or his enemies in the military would stage a coup.

The effort to oust the prime minister came as evidence mounted that the government had intentionally underestimated the death count from three days of street clashes between soldiers and anti-government demonstrators.

While the government has put the death toll at 40, private groups reported Friday that at least 350 people are still missing, and that many of them are thought to be dead.

Medical workers reported that military vehicles had gathered bullet-riddled bodies from hospital emergency rooms on Monday and Tuesday before they could be identified, and then had them cremated on the outskirts of Bangkok.

"Dead people were certainly put into trucks and carried away — many people have said this," said Thavitong Hongviratana, a vice president at Bangkok's Mahidol University who has organized a telephone hotline to report the missing.

"I do not believe that only 40 people were killed. It must have been several times higher."

OTHER PRIVATE organizations in Bangkok also set up telephone lines to accept reports on the missing. One of the registries, Thailand's National Institute of Development Administration, said Friday that it had reports of more than 350 missing people.

Among those abandoning Suchinda Friday was his foreign minister, Pongpol Adireksarn, who, choking back tears, said at a news conference that the prime minister must take responsibility for this week's violence.

"The information and opinions and comments which I have received point to one conclusion, that we must change the prime minister," Pongpol said. "The image of the country can only improve after we change the prime minister."

Hundreds of employees at the Thai Foreign Ministry wore black Friday in protest over the government's brutal crackdown on the demonstrators. Pongpol received a letter from scores of staff members at the ministry condemning the killings.

Suchinda, until last month the nation's supreme military commander, was the architect of a February 1991 coup that toppled Thailand's last democratically elected government, which military leaders described as corrupt.

He and allies in the Thai armed forces then oversaw another rewriting of the Thai Constitution to grant broad new civil powers to the military, including control over appointments to the upper house of Parliament.

MANY THAIS were not surprised when Suchinda emerged last month as Thailand's new prime minister, appointed by the five-party coalition that has a majority in Parliament and that is close to the military. Suchinda had refused to run for a Parliament seat in elections in March.

Public demonstrations over his appointment began almost as soon as it was announced, with protesters demanding he resign and that his successor be named from among the elected members of Parliament.

The protests turned violent on Sunday night, when security forces dispersed what had been a peaceful march through the streets of central Bangkok as it began to move toward the prime minister's office.

Thousands of Thais gathered once again Friday at Bangkok's Democracy Monument, the focus of this week's clashes, to mourn the dead and to bear witness to the horrific scene there earlier in the week as soldiers opened fire on crowds of demonstrators.

The monument, which in its own way is a reminder of the military's meddling in Thai politics, since it commemorates the first of 11 constitutions imposed on this coup-plagued nation since the 1930s, was draped in black Friday.

Thais of all ages walked solemnly past the winged monument, many kneeling and praying before makeshift Buddhist shrines and leaving wreaths or small bundles of flowers. Some of the protesters handed out photographs of friends and relatives killed in this week's violence.

The nation's supreme military commander, Air Chief Marshal Kaset Rojananil, has insisted that the soldiers acted with restraint and that "all Thai people are responsible together for the crisis."

"All have to help keep the nation at peace," he said at a meeting with Thai reporters.

ROYAL: Wedding gift list includes $800 croquet set

(From 1A)

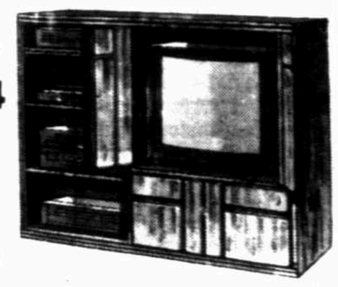

"Two things emerge from the list — extravagance and vulgarity," Sewell wrote in the newspaper's Thursday edition.

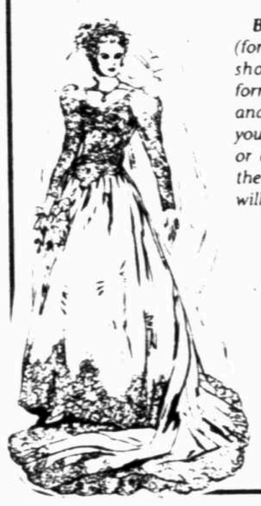

Lady Helen, Queen Elizabeth II's cousin and the 21st in line to the British throne, will marry Timothy Taylor, a 28-year-old art dealer, on July 18 at St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent reportedly have invited 800 guests for their daughter's wedding.

Most other London newspapers published the list in Friday's editions, including the sober Daily Telegraph, which lamented the leak. "Oh, the shame of it. Every intimate housewifely detail is there in the public prints," the Telegraph said.

WEATHER SUMMARY

WINDS: Tornado spotted

(From 1A)

Electric transformers were struck by lightning in the city but no fires or damage was reported, law enforcement officials said.

Outside Midland, high winds and marble-sized hail were reported in parts of Ector County, which was also under a severe thunderstorm warning.

The most severe weather and warnings were in Lea County, N.M., which was under thunderstorm, flash flood and tornado warnings.

Reeves and Ward counties in West Texas also were under tornado warnings and a tornado was spotted eight miles southeast of Orla in Reeves County. No damage was reported.

Golf-ball size hail was also reported in Reeves County.

Throughout the Memorial Day weekend, a chance of inclement weather will persist.

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies with a 40 percent chance of thunderstorms possibly severe in the afternoon. The high is expected to be in the lower 80s and winds will be from the east to southeast at 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight will be mostly cloudy with a 50 percent chance of thunderstorms and a low in the upper 50s.

Sunday is expected to be mostly cloudy with a 40 percent chance of rain and a high in the upper 70s.

For Memorial Day, the NWS predicts mostly cloudy skies with a chance of thunderstorms, lows in the upper 50s and highs in the upper 70s.

After an overnight low of 66, Friday's high was 83 compared with the record high for that date of 107 set in 1953. The record low for today's date was 47 set in 1988.

STATE

Texas was partly to mostly cloudy and warm Friday with thunderstorms in South and West Texas.

An invading cold front and low pressure over West Texas combined to create some severe storms, with afternoon tornadoes spotted in open range along the Texas-New Mexico border and in Reeves County. Large hail was reported near Hobbs, N.M., and heavy downpours drenched the area.

NATION

Warm-weather records fell in cities across the Northeast on Friday as temperatures soared into the 90s. Cold weather swept across the northern Plains, and snow fell in mountains in Arizona.

Rain and thunderstorms were scattered across much of the southern and central Plains, and heavy rains continued to cause flooding in some parts of south Texas.

Thunderstorms also struck eastern Minnesota, western and northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan's western end.

Temperatures topped 90 degrees across much of the Northeast by mid-afternoon.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Court OKs city-county flood control plan

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

The Midland County Commissioners' Court in a special meeting on Friday agreed to enter into an inter-governmental contract with the city of Midland on the administration of a county-wide flood-control plan.

The plan would benefit homeowners, buyers, sellers, builders and mortgage companies.

Additionally, the commissioners adopted regulations on flood-damage prevention and property development in rural Midland County.

"It's a make-sense plan," Midland County Commissioner Guy McCrary said. "It's another example of the city of Midland and Midland County cooperating together and eliminating some duplicative costs.

"We think it is a good agreement, a good resolution, to help Midland County get reinstated back into the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP)."

In the county-wide program, the city of Midland would maintain flood-zone maps and equipment so that home builders, for example, would know how far above the ground to set a house's floor to avoid flooding.

Maintenance of the flood-zone maps and the county's inclusion in NFIP would result in "easier access to mortgage money and insurance," Commissioner Durward Wright said.

Heretofore, Midlanders in a federally designated flood-zone "couldn't sell a house or get a mortgage on a house," Wright said.

In the past eight months, the county has "not been a participant" in the NFIP, McCrary said.

Last summer, the federal government issued revised flood-zone maps with new isobars — lines on maps — to depict flood zones throughout the county.

"This put a number of properties into flood zones that heretofore had not been in a flood zone and were not prone to flooding," McCrary said. "Many of these properties are, in fact, not prone to flooding. That's the kind of irony of this deal."

The federal government "basically said wherever there's an area that's going to hold water, obviously, that's a flood zone," McCrary said. That stance, he said, is "argumentative."

"There are a number of homeowners who do reside in the newly designated flood zone who, by our reinstatement (in NFIP), would be able to liquidate their homes through financial process."

Without NFIP, those homeowners and prospective buyers or sellers would be unable to get flood insurance, McCrary said. "They can't purchase their home short of a cash transaction."

"If you are not insurable, then you can't get the insurance, and you can't get protection for the mortgage holder or the mortgage lender."

After Midland County is reinstated in NFIP, rural homeowners may "obtain federally subsidized flood insurance."

Fatal shooting

Staff report

ODESSA — An altercation that stemmed from a car accident led to a West Odessa man being fatally shot early Friday morning, according to Ector County sheriff's officials.

George Dominguez, 21, was shot in the head with a small caliber gun about 12:30 a.m. while in his car at Damascus and Clovendale roads, officials said.

He died about 7 a.m. at Medical Center Hospital.

Law enforcement officials said there is a suspect but no arrests had been made.

Dominguez was sent to the Travis County medical examiner for an autopsy.

Food stamps

The 12th person targeted in an undercover investigation for allegedly illegally acquiring food stamps was arrested Friday, federal officials said.

Mohan Balu Patel, 38, was arrested on a warrant charging him with unauthorized acquisition and possession of food stamps. Eleven others were arrested earlier this week.

The maximum penalty for fraudulent dealing in food stamps is a $10,000 fine and/or five years in prison.

The investigation was a joint effort by the Midland Police Department, the Department of Agriculture and the FBI.

CHEVRON: It's tough deal, analyst says

(From 2A)

The 80 percent going to Kazakhstan is high on the international scale of payments to governments in oil ventures with foreign companies. The range is 85 percent to Britain in North Sea ventures down to 65 percent in East Asia.

In addition, Kazakhstan officials said Chevron had agreed to make "substantially higher" up-front payments than the company had envisioned, the main one being a $400 million deposit that was not publicly announced after the signing ceremony on Monday.

The announced terms called for Chevron to invest $750 million over the first three years and $10 billion over the 25-year life of the agreement, and for Kazakhstan to invest an identical amount.

The announcement did not mention the extra $400 million, to be deposited probably in January; the money is to be used by Kazakhstan to help pay its $10 billion investment share.

Kazakhstan will not be required to repay the $400 million. The money is in effect compensation for another unannounced provision, one that favors Chevron, Kazakhstan officials and their advisers said.

Director slashed

TOKYO (AP) — Popular movie director Juzo Itami, who recently made a film about gangsters, was slashed in the face near his home in Tokyo, police said today. He was hospitalized in stable condition.

Itami, 59, who directed "Tampopo" and "A Taxing Woman," was attacked by three or four men as he got out of his car Friday evening in front of his house in a residential area of Tokyo, police said.

Police said they did not have any suspects or motives in the stabbing and would not say whether it was related to the release earlier this month of Itami's latest film, which deals with gangsters.

Carson bids America 'a very heartfelt good night'

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Carson ended his 30-year reign on late-night TV on Friday, choking back tears as he closed his final "Tonight Show" by telling America, "I bid you a very heartfelt good night."

Longtime sidekick Ed McMahon yelled the traditional "Heeeere's Johnny" at the start of the show and Doc Severinsen struck up the NBC Orchestra. But little else was the same during Carson's farewell broadcast, with no big-name guests and an invitation-only audience of family and staff.

Carson, 66, began by introducing his wife, Alex, and sons Chris and Cory — and remembering his son Richard, who was killed in a car accident last year.

"It would have been a perfect evening if their brother, Rick, had been here with us. But I guess life does what it's supposed to do and you accept it and go on," Carson said.

Carson delivered his last monologue sitting on a stool instead of standing on the star that marked his spot on the floor of NBC's Studio One.

His usual retinue of political jokes, however, remained constant and he took a last shot at Vice President Dan Quayle, a frequent butt of his jokes.

"I really want to thank him for making my final week so fruitful," Carson said of Quayle's headline-grabbing statements about single-motherhood and the sitcom "Murphy Brown.'

Carson moved from his monologue to a montage of clips from memorable interviews with subjects ranging from Richard Nixon to David Letterman.

The next segment was a highlight of all the musicians who appeared over three decades, including Louis Armstrong, Richard Harris, Ella Fitzgerald, The Jackson Five and Luciano Pavarotti.

Carson took several opportunities to thank McMahon and Severinsen.

"It would have been impossible to do this show without these two guys," he said.

McMahon, who joined Carson in 1962, said, "I just found out there were seven other people up for that job. I thank you. My family thanks you."

Carson took one last jab at NBC's parent company, General Electric, saying, "G.E. named me employee of the month and God knows it was a dream come true."

He told the audience that the best thing to come of his retiring was that "you won't have to see or read one more story about the end of this show. ... The end of the Soviet Union didn't get this much press."

At the end, Carson said, "And so it has come to this.

"I am one of the lucky people in the world. I found something that I always wanted to do and I have enjoyed every single minute of it."

Then, noting his appreciation for his staff and his audience, Carson choked back tears and said, "I bid you a very heartfelt goodnight."

The audience rose to its feet. Many in the audience cried. Severinsen led the band in "I'll Be Seeing You."

After the show, the reclusive Carson planned to throw a first-ever party at his home in Malibu for "The Tonight Show" staff. On Friday morning, workmen erected white canopy tents on the grounds of his sprawling seaside estate.

Thursday night's show, the last with celebrity guests and a public studio audience, was hailed by "Tonight Show" staffers as one of Carson's best.

Preliminary ratings indicated an estimated 23 million people — 42 percent of the viewing audience at that hour — watched. Final ratings won't be available until next week. The highest rated "Tonight Show" was in 1969, when an estimated 45 million people saw singer Tiny Tim marry Miss Vicki.

Thursday's show had rollicking comedy from Robin Williams, tear-raising tribute songs from Bette Midler and a sharp-tongued monologue from the host.

At one point, Williams brought down the house with observations about the size of his 6-month-old son's testicles, saying, "I hope he grows into those things."

"We're outta here tomorrow," Carson gasped, throwing up his hands. "What do I care, what are they going to do — can me?"

Friends, fans 'not prepared' for nights without Johnny

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Television without Johnny Carson? Inconceivable, say fans and former guests of "The Tonight Show."

"I don't think it's really dawned on people," said comedian Bob Newhart, a friend of Carson's and frequent guest on the show. "It's like an awful silence. I'm not prepared for it."

Ready or not, Friday was Carson's last appearance as host of televison's premiere late-night talk show. It marked the end of a 30-year era.

"Isn't it enough that we have riots and other problems in this country, but to top it all off we must now lose Mr. Carson," said singer Tiny Tim. His 1969 marriage to Miss Vicki drew "The Tonight Show's" largest audience, 45 million viewers.

From around the country, tributes to Carson continued to pour in.

A zoo in Royal, Neb., 40 miles from where Carson grew up, has named the comedian an honorary lifetime board member.

Carson donated $55,000 two years ago for the building that houses Reuben the chimpanzee, the Northeast Nebraska Zoo's star attraction.

In Los Angeles, a bronze statue of Carson was unveiled Friday at the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences. His likeness joins such television legends as Lucille Ball and Jack Benny.

Praise for Carson even rang out on the floor of the U.S. Senate on Thursday.

"Of course, Congress has made America laugh for about 200 years, but 29 years still isn't a bad record," said Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole of Kansas.

Residents of Dayton, Ohio, marked the entertainer's retirement with a "Johnny Carson Goodbye Gala." Organizers brought in a big-screen television to watch the final show.

Kurdish elections end with split, runoff

Associated Press

IRBIL, Iraq — The Iraqi Kurds' first democratic elections resulted in a parliament split between the two major parties and will require a runoff for president, the Kurds' electoral commission announced Friday.

The commission said neither Massoud Barzani of the Kurdistan Democratic Party nor Jalal Talabani, of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan, won 50 percent of Tuesday's vote for "single leader" of the Iraqi Kurdish people. There were several other minor candidates.

The Kurdistan Front, the umbrella organization for the seven Kurdish parties, said the runoff would be held within two months.

The parties of Barzani and Talabani each won 50 seats in the 105-seat Parliament, with the other five seats divided between two Assyrian minority groups, the electoral commission said.

The results were greeted with volleys of rifle and gun fire in Irbil, the unofficial capital of the Kurds. Kurds danced in the rain-soaked streets, shouting their support for Barzani and Talabani.

Talabani said the results showed the "Kurdish people were worthy of democracy, human rights and the right of self determination within the frame work of a democratic Iraq."

Kurdish guerillas discuss the outcome of the recent election.

He also hailed the new atmosphere of cordiality between the two main parties, saying both would cooperate in and outside parliament.

Barzani, appearing at a news conference with Talabani, also praised the election and the spirit of cooperation.

"Our appearance here together shows that we are prepared to override our interests for the sake of the Kurdish people," Barzani said.

Barzani and Talabani each control tens of thousands of fiercely loyal guerrillas. Kurds traditionally have followed clan ties and have no experience of democracy.

Barzani and Talabni are divided on how to deal with Baghdad, which declared the Kurdish election illegal and said it would not respect the results.

Barzani prefers to reach an understanding with Saddam Hussein to obtain autonomy for the Kurds, while Talabani believes the Kurds should not negotiate with Saddam.

Fighting flares in south Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (NYT) — Israeli soldiers and pro-Iranian guerrillas exchanged artillery and rocket fire on Friday in southern Lebanon, prompting thousands of civilians to flee the area, security officials said.

Muslim fundamentalist guerrillas of the Party of God fired Katyusha missiles at three towns in the so-called "security zone" that Israel maintains in southern Lebanon with the help of a client militia called the South Lebanon Army, said the security officials, who under policy rules cannot be identified.

The pro-Israeli militia's radio station said the guerrillas' rockets fell on Marjayoun, Jezzin, and Reihan but caused no deaths.

The authorities reported an exodus of civilians from Iqlim al Toffah and the Israeli-patrolled buffer zone. Ain Bouswar looked like a ghost town.

China confirms underground nuclear explosion

BEIJING (AP) — China confirmed Friday that it had conducted an underground nuclear test explosion in the far northwestern region of Xinjiang.

Western experts estimated the blast was equal to about 70 bombs of the size dropped on Hiroshima during World War II.

China conducted the test Thursday despite agreement by other superpowers to scale back or stop nuclear testing.

Recent commentary in the official media indicates Beijing is concerned that it has become isolated in a hostile world dominated by the United States. Chinese military spending has increased over the past three years.

The United States and the former Soviet Union have signed an agreement limiting their underground nuclear tests to 150-kiloton explosions, but China has not.

The State Department said it disapproved of the test and had protested to Beijing.

But Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, speaking at a business group gathering in New York, said he would be concerned "if they conducted it in an unsafe manner, so that there was some kind of leakage. But I don't have any reason to think it was unsafe."

With the smallest arsenal of the nuclear powers, China has said it will join in nuclear disarmament only after the other nations reduce their arsenals to China's level.

Western experts say China has eight single-warhead strategic missiles carried on a submarine and 60 single-warhead, medium-range missiles.

The Foreign Ministry confirmed in a statement Friday that China had conducted an underground test "recently."

Thursday's explosion was detected by Swedish and Norwegian seismologists, who estimated the bomb was 1,000 kilotons, 70 times the size of the Hiroshima bomb.

Korean border clash results in three dead

TOKYO (NYT) — In their first serious military clash in recent years, three North Korean soldiers were killed and two South Korean soldiers wounded Friday after the North Koreans crossed into the southern part of the Demilitarized Zone, United Nations and South Korean officials said.

The gun battle disturbed a climate of calm and improving relations at the place where cold-war hostilities remain the sharpest.

Details of the encounter along the world's most heavily armed and well patrolled border were sketchy, but military officials in South Korea made it clear that they regarded it as an infiltration attempt by the North Korean soldiers.

The officials said they had not seen such an attempt since 1986, long before the two sides began holding high-level talks to improve their relations and edge closer to a reunification of the divided peninsula.

But neither government had any official reaction to the incident, and it was unclear how it would affect an intensifying series of meetings between North and South.

With the collapse of the Soviet Union, which had been North Korea's principal backer and trade partner, talks aimed at easing tensions had gathered momentum over the last two years.

The two Koreas signed a nonaggression pact in December, and their prime ministers agreed this month to permit 100 elderly people whose families were divided by the Korean War to be reunited with their relatives on the 47th anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japan at the end of World War II, on Aug. 15.

There are cat-and-mouse type encounters among patrols along the Demilitarized Zone all the time, soldiers there say, but this was the first deadly exchange since 1986.

That year a North Korean patrol boat was sunk in South Korean waters, killing two.

An official at the United Nations Command in Seoul, under whose auspices the United States and South Korean military operate, said the North Koreans who crossed into the Demilitarized Zone were wearing South Korean-style uniforms, including insignia, and were carrying American and South Korean weapons. The North Koreans were reported to have been carrying surveillance equipment.

A South Korean squad of 10 soldiers spotted the three North Koreans at about 11:30 A.M. in an area known as Chulwon, near the central part of the 2.5-mile-wide Demilitarized Zone, officials said.

Dissident's wife goes home

MOSCOW — Natalya Solzhenitsyn returned to Russia Friday, 17 years after she and her husband, Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn, the writer, dissident, and Nobel laureate, were forcibly expelled from the Soviet Union.

Now, the Soviet Union is gone but Solzhenitsyn, a man of towering stature both here and abroad, has yet to come home. But when Mrs. Solzhenitsyn arrived on Friday at Sheremetyevo Airport, with two of the couple's three sons, she made clear that her main mission is to set the stage for her husband's own dramatic homecoming from the United States.

"He will return by all means," Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said at a brief meeting with the press at the airport's VIP lounge. "It has been decided. It will be a very serious step. He thinks, and he is right, that it will be the last move of his life, and it should be well prepared."

"This is what we have been living for all these years in exile," she said, after being greeted with flowers and embraces by a small crowd of friends, official and unofficial. "Our main purpose is to come to our motherland."

Solzhenitsyn, whose Soviet citizenship was restored in 1990, has repeatedly said he would not return to Russia until all his books were published here first. Last year, he made his first foray into local politics, with a lengthy essay arguing for the restoration of a Greater Russia, that would bind Russia, Ukraine, and Belarus, without the other former Soviet republics.

Since then, his own prophecy, which came true briefly last December with the agreement among the Slavic republics, has been swept aside by the rapid disintegration of the old Soviet empire, and by heightened tensions between Russia and Ukraine.

U.S. plans sanctions for Serbia

N.Y. Times News Service

LONDON — The Bush administration, seizing the initiative after weeks of apparent inaction in the face of Serbian aggression in Bosnia, Friday announced new sanctions against Belgrade.

The measures, while limited, put the United States ahead of Europe in efforts to deter the Serbian leadership of Yugoslavia.

The administration ordered Yugoslav consulates in New York and San Francisco closed and their diplomats expelled. The government also expelled Belgrade's military attaches in Washington, Secretary of State James A. Baker III announced in London Friday night. The third consulate, in Chicago, will remain open.

Calling the situation in Bosnia and Herzegovina a "humanitarian nightmare," Baker also said that the administration would urge the European Community to consider similar measures.

He said he expected to take up the subject Saturday in Lisbon, Portugal, where all the European nations will be represented at a meeting on aid to the former Soviet republics.

The actions came as Belgrade's Serbian-dominated army and Serbian irregulars in Bosnia and Herzegovina continued to attack non-Serbs and block relief supplies.

Baker, who has been criticized along with President Bush for not taking stronger measures against the government of President Slobodan Milosevic of the now-truncated Yugoslavia, said that if diplomatic, political and economic measures failed, "then and only then" would the United States consider discussing whether a European force should be sent to Bosnia.

Such action has been proposed by the Western European Union, a defense group of European nations.

The administration has also decided to withhold recognition of the Serbian-dominated government in Belgrade until Serbian forces are withdrawn from Bosnia and Herzegovina and peace is restored to the former republic, Baker told reporters after a meeting with British Prime Minister John Major.

Baker, speaking at 10 Downing St., said the United States had two immediate objectives: to see Sarajevo Airport reopened and humanitarian aid get through to Bosnia.

"We feel that what is happening in Bosnia-Herzegovina is unconscionable," he said, urging cooperation from "others in the civilized world, who, like us, are unwilling to sit and watch what is really a humanitarian nightmare."

The U.S. ambassador to Belgrade, Warren Zimmermann, who was recalled last weekend for consultations, will not be returning to Yugoslavia, Baker said, and the embassy staff in Belgrade will be reduced.

The Bush administration, which lagged behind the European Community over the last year — first in recognizing the breakaway Yugoslav republics of Slovenia, Croatia, and Bosnia and Herzegovina, and then in withdrawing ambassadors from Belgrade — is now expected to urge the Europeans to take stronger measures.

The European Community's executive commission has recommended a trade embargo on Serbia and Montenegro. In a report, the commission said that an embargo on exports from Serbia and Montenegro could have "an important impact" on the two republics since more than 50 percent of their foreign sales are to the community.

The commission recommended freezing the federation's assets at the International Monetary Fund, but noted that most other assets have already been withdrawn from Western banks.

Community foreign ministers are expected to discuss the report — and announce new sanctions — after they meet with Baker on Saturday.

Three former Yugoslav republics join United Nations

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The former Yugoslav republics of Slovenia, Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovnia were admitted to the United Nations on Friday, raising the U.N. membership to 178 countries.

The three states were admitted by acclamation in the vaulted, green-carpeted General Assembly hall. Their flags were raised outside U.N. headquarters in the bright midday sun.

Haris Silajdzic, the foreign minister of Bosnia, appealed for international assistance for his country, about two-thirds of which has fallen to Serbian forces in the past three months.

"Stronger action is needed and it is needed immediately," said Silajdzic. He appealed for U.N. help in staunching Bosnia's "big bleeding wound ... before more lives are lost and misery grinds our nation down to dust."

In an interview after the ceremony, Croatian President Franjo Tudjman urged U.S. military intervention, including deployment of the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

Armenian, Azerbaijani fighters clash near Mount Ararat

ARMASH, Armenia (AP) — Armenian and Azerbaijani fighters traded gunfire under the shadow of Mount Ararat on Friday in a widening of their four-year ethnic conflict.

Turkey sent a medical team to the territory but denied reports it would intervene militarily. Appeals from Azerbaijan and threats by some Turkish officials have heightened fears that Turkey and Russia could become involved in the fighting.

The Turkish military issued a statement denying an Azerbaijani report that troops were massing at Turkey's border with the autonomous region of Nakhichevan, where fighting has claimed 16 lives this week.

The Russian defense minister, Gen. Pavel Grachev, said his 7th Army will be withdrawn from Armenia despite Armenian protests. He said Russia had no intention of sending its young men "to undergo military service in those hotbeds of tension."

Armenian and Azerbaijani fighters traded machine gun and rocket fire around Armenia's mountainous border with Nakhichevan, an autonomous region of 300,000 people, mainly Azerbaijanis, that also has a 90-mile border with Iran and a seven-mile frontier with Turkey.

Ararat, the mountain where Noah is said to have landed, towered behind them.

"We haven't stepped one foot on the territory of Nakhichevan," said Col. Mikhail Arutunyan, the Armenian official in command.

He said his troops had evacuated Armenian civilians from the zone, "so the populations cannot work the fields."

Armenians accuse Azerbaijan of starting the fighting in Nakhichevan to draw Turkey into the war against Armenia. Azerbaijan claims Armenia attacked Nakhichevan in a land grab.

"If events continue the way they are, Azerbaijan will apply to Turkey to intervene," Azerbaijan parliament leader Tamerlan Karayev said in Moscow.

Turks and Armenians have long been foes; Turkey massacred 1 million Armenians during World War I. Azeri is a Turkic language and Azerbaijanis and Turks share the Islamic faith, while Armenia is predominantly Christian.

Turkish Health Minister Yildirim Aktuna announced that a 10-member medical team had left for Nakhichevan to treat the wounded.

U.S considers options for dealing with Haitians

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Searching for a new policy to stem the tide of people fleeing Haiti, senior administration officials met Friday to consider a wide range of options, from expanding the overcrowded tent camps at the Guantanamo Bay naval base in Cuba to speeding the forcible return of new refugees.

That such differing alternatives were under consideration suggested uncertainty among Bush aides about how to deal with the continued exodus of Haitian refugees.

The policy review has also prompted a reconsideration of the administration's overall approach in attempting to force the Haitian army to restore the Rev. Jean-Bertrand Aristide to the Haitian presidency.

"We're holding the bag with a lot of bad options," a senior Defense Department official said.

The administration stepped up diplomatic efforts Friday to persuade the Dominican Republic, Haiti's neighbor on the island of Hispaniola, to accept the overflow of refugees. But those efforts have so far been rebuffed.

Officials are preparing to widen their search for other sanctuaries by approaching Jamaica, the Bahamas, and the Turks and Caicos Islands to help set up temporary camps where Haitians can be screened for entry into the United States or returned. Officials said they would probably have to offer economic aid in exchange for such a diplomatic favor.

The White House has asked the Defense Department, the State Department and the Immigration and Naturalization Service to offer new policy suggestions by the middle of next week, but officials said that all the options being considered were fraught with political or legal problems.

Meetings including Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence S. Eagleburger and other senior aides came a day after the Coast Guard announced that it would no longer pick up all Haitians bobbing in their rickety boats in Caribbean waters because the refugee camp at Guantanamo was now overflowing with more than 12,000 people.

According to the new policy, only those Haitians without sufficient food and water, or sailing in leaky boats, will be rescued.

Officials expressed some optimism when the Coast Guard reported Friday that few Haitians tried to set sail Friday, presumably because the Voice of America's Creole-language service has blanketed the airwaves with reports on the restrictive new procedure.

A senior State Department official said the United States has not yet come up with a formula to help install a stable democracy in Haiti, one that would spur the kind of economic development that would discourage Haitians from wanting to leave.

Mandela blames woes on de Klerk

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Nelson Mandela said Friday that President F.W. de Klerk was behind the violence that has killed almost 1,000 people in South Africa this year.

"It's a serious responsibility to accuse a head of state of himself fueling violence, the killing of innocent people, but facts indicate that de Klerk himself is involved in this," the leader of the African National Congress told reporters during a trip to Finland

Mandela did not elaborate on the charge against de Klerk, with whom he is negotiating a new constitution and national, multiracial elections.

Mandela has long charged the highest levels of government with instigating black factional fighting to destabilize the opposition.

The government denies the charges.

Most of the violence in the South African black townships has involved fighting between supporters of the ANC and the Zulu-based Inkatha Party.

Jewish group gets Klan member fired

NEW YORK (AP) — A worker fired by a black-owned employment agency for being a grand dragon in the Ku Klux Klan said Friday that Klansmen are not hatemongers. "If anything, we're love-mongers," he said.

Hoff

William Hoff, 57, said that when he joined the KKK, it "was a very violent group."

"I know 20 years ago I was an extremely violent man. I was almost possessed by hatred," he said.

But for 15 years, Hoff said, the Klan has been a "strictly legal and politically oriented" white-pride group.

Hoff was fired from his receptionist's job Wednesday at Third World Personnel Services after the Jewish Defense Organization identified him as a Klan member.

The company's owner, Angel Wilson, said it was a mystery to him that a Klansman would work for Third World Personnel Services, which helps minorities find jobs.

He also said he was "shocked, chilled and totally appalled" to learn of Hoff's background, adding that Hoff had been friendly with his black and Hispanic co-workers.

"Mr. Hoff was a very likeable man," said Wilson. "It's still very difficult . . . to believe he is who he is."

Hoff, a native of South Carolina, served several years in prison in the 1960s after being convicted of conspiring to kill civil rights activists.

In a telephone interview, he espoused racial equality and blasted the Jewish Defense Organization for exposing him.

"They're just out to harm people, out to make money by threatening people, firebombing, planting explosives," said Hoff.

Brown: Perot is 'stealth' candidate

FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (AP) — Texas billionaire Ross Perot is a stealth presidential candidate who has found it easy to be popular because no one knows what he stands for, Democratic National Chairman Ron Brown said Friday.

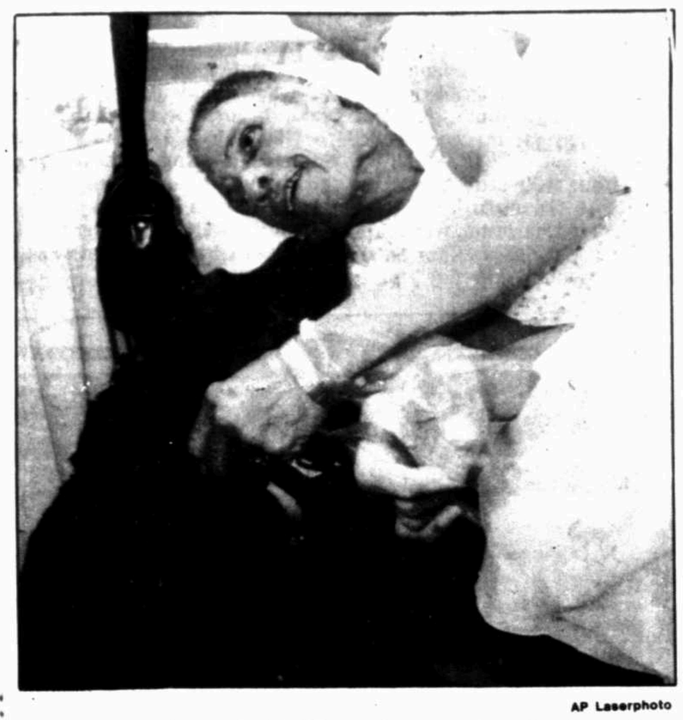

"My own judgment about the Perot factor is that nobody knows what effect it's going to have," Brown told the National Federation of Democratic Women's 21st annual convention. "It's easy to be popular when you're a blank slate.

"He's going to be a factor. But I believe it's going to be a two-person race: George Bush versus Bill Clinton," Brown said.

Perot, the independent presidential candidate, flew to the Kentucky Capitol in Frankfort on Thursday to file petitions signed by 40,000 Kentucky voters — eight times as many signatures as he needed to get on the state's presidential ballot in November.

Perot said again Thursday that he will discuss his positions on various issues when he is ready.

"There is a long time between May and November. We've got a lot of work to do," Perot said. "Out there in the grass roots, Americans are not interested in platforms, they are interested in principles."

Thomas Armstrong holds his seeing-eye dog, Smokey after the two were reunited.

Blind beggar, guide dog together after accident

By Kiley Armstrong
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A blind beggar and pencil-peddler who was maimed by a runaway taxi was tearfully reunited Friday with his injured guide dog, Smokey.

"I will never forget this," gushed Thomas Armstrong as he met with his Labrador retriever for the first time since the accident more than six weeks ago.

Armstrong, 64, who is still in a hospital bed, beamed and hugged his 10-year-old dog, who reciprocated by licking his face.

"That love is going to help him heal," said a friend, Frank Perino, who showed up at Bellevue Hospital with his own guide dog, Sheba, just to "hear Thomas' expression when he met Smokey."

Armstrong and his dog, a fixture on midtown Manhattan's Fifth Avenue, were struck April 7 by a taxi that ran onto the sidewalk when its driver was cut off by another motorist.

New Yorkers, many of whom had seen Armstrong over the years, sent him thousands of dollars, hundreds of get-well cards and other gifts as he recuperated.

His injuries included a broken leg, dislocated shoulder and damaged blood vessels in his foot.

Smokey has 30 inches of scars on his chest and abdomen from being dragged by the car. He also lost his vision in one eye.

"He should be dead by all accounts," said his veterinarian, Dr. Philip Fox.

Armstrong is expected to remain hospitalized for another two months, and Pamela S. Brier, Bellevue's executive director, said Smokey will be allowed frequent visits.

After his release, Armstrong has said he and Smokey will live with his sister, Charlotte Ellis, in Louisiana.

Gang peace spreads to San Francisco area

Hearst News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — The shaky peace between the Crips and the Bloods, rival gangs in Los Angeles, has helped forge a truce among rival San Francisco neighborhood gangs, according to teen-agers and officials with the city's Gang Prevention Program.

"Some guys from Hunters Point and Fillmore met on Harbor Road, a hot spot on the hill (in Hunters Point)," said Tom Mayfield, head of the Mayor's Gang Prevention Program. "They decided they wanted to stop the violence. If the brothers from L.A. can do it, we can do it."

San Francisco Police Officer Mike Lewis, who follows black gangs as a member of the police Gang Task Force, said that although gang violence in San Francisco was not the problem it was in Los Angeles, 10 to 15 gang factions were operating between the neighborhoods of Hunters Point and the Western Addition (also known to gang members as the Fillmore).

"They are responsible for most of the crime (in their respective neighborhoods)," he said, "and the members are getting progressively younger. They've got more attitude because of TV, video and music that promotes or condones violence. We have these kids imitating what they see."

At a meeting Tuesday night, youths from the neighborhoods formerly at odds talked about the declared peace.

They began getting together Monday and since then have met daily in one another's neighborhoods, talking, hugging and repudiating the violence that has made them fearful of visiting other areas of the city.

"Twenty people from Fillmore went over to Hunters Point to talk," said Pooh, the nickname for a former Western Addition gang member who is now in college. "Later, five, six, seven carloads from Hunters Point came over to the Virgo (a market in the Fillmore). We were hugging and saying it was time to stop. We went back and forth, hugging and shaking hands. I hope it stays like that."

Some of the young men involved can hardly believe peace is at hand. And because even discussing it is a delicate matter, the gang members interviewed are not identified by their full names.

"I never stepped a foot in West Point (a street in Hunters Point)," said a young man named Joe from the Western Addition. He explained that he was wary of heading into turf outside his own. "I told Pooh, 'Come on, let's chill.' But it was cool. I hope it's real. It feels like it's real."

Ron, who is attending Grambling University in Louisiana with the help of scholarship aid from the Omega Boys Club, returned home to Hunters Point Monday and saw Fillmore and Hunters Point guys mingling.

"I didn't know what to think," he said. "I thought something was going down, but then I saw guys hugging and shaking hands. I hope it lasts."

Jermaine from Hunters Point warned that although the older guys might understand the truce, the younger ones "trying to earn their stripes" might not.

Inmate sues for return of artificial arm

WHITE TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Warden Leonard McGhee calls it a security risk, but inmate Joseph La-Pan calls it an everyday necessity. At issue: La-Pan's artificial left arm, equipped with a metal hook.

After his Feb. 26 arrest on kidnapping and sexual assault charges, Warren County Jail officials confiscated the limb. Now La-Pan is suing to get it back.

La-Pan, 48, of Bay City, Mich., said Friday he needs the prosthesis, which ends in a two-pronged hook, for medical reasons. Without it, the stump swells and becomes unbearably painful. He said the prison doctor prescribed a pain killer that doesn't help.

He rejects the warden's contention that the artificial arm is dangerous. If he swings his arm abruptly, the hook falls off, he said.

"To use this as a deadly weapon, I'd have to take my shirt off and then my harness," La-Pan said in an interview at the jail. "It would take two minutes. By then, I'm a dead man.

"Mike Tyson, they didn't take his hands — and they're deadly weapons."

"In this facility," countered the warden, "if the item is not needed for everyday use and survival, they don't get it. The safety of the officers and inmates comes before everything."

La-Pan had his left arm amputated just below the elbow in July 1972 after receiving a 1,500-volt shock from a telephone wire during a roof repair job.

Warren County Correctional Facility Warden Leonard McGhee displays Jospeh La-Pan's left arm.

State Corrections Department spokesman Jim Stabile said it is state policy to let the inmates keep their artificial limbs provided they do not misuse them.

"If he did use it in a dangerous way or hid contraband, we would take it away and give him a non-lethal prothesis," Stabile said.

Hardy Rauch, national director of standards and accreditations for the American Corrections Association in Laurel, Md., said medical and security considerations determine if inmates are allowed to have artificial limbs.

La-Pan had his left arm amputated just below the elbow in July 1972 after receiving a 1,500-volt shock from a telephone wire during a roof repair job.

"It is rather rare that it is necessary to withhold medical prostheses, however, it does occur," he said. "There are several cases in which prostheses have been used to hide contraband."

La-Pan pleaded guilty in April to charges that he kidnapped a 17-year-old boy from his home in Knowlton Township. Under a plea bargain, La-Pan faces 15 years in state prison. His hearing in federal court is set for June 8.

La-Pan said he does not have a lawyer and filed the papers himself — a basic form that requests a federal judge review alleged violations of a prisoner's civil rights.

"That hook is me," he said. "That's part of me. I've had it almost 20 years. I call it my hand, not hook."

Pentagon sets cuts in Europe and Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. military will shut down or curtail operations at 61 more sites in Europe and two in South Korea, the Pentagon announced on Friday.

The latest round of cutbacks will affect some 6,000 U.S. military jobs in Europe and more than 200 in South Korea, the Pentagon said in a statement.

The changes are part of the overall reduction in U.S. military forces planned by 1997, and bring to 559 the number of military posts overseas at which operations will be reduced or ended, the Pentagon said.

Beer money fight ends in deaths

ALUM CREEK, W.Va. (AP) — Two high school students were killed at a keg party Friday after an argument over who would pay for the beer, police said.

About 200 students from George Washington High School in Charleston were gathered at a picnic area for an annual "senior skip day" party when the shooting occurred, said state police Trooper R.L. Seacrist. Students traditionally skip school for the party.

"They had kegs there and started arguing because some had put money in and some hadn't. Guns were drawn and shooting started," Seacrist said. He said the shooting was random.

Virginia governor levels smear allegations at Sen. Robb

AP Laserphoto

Virginia Gov. L. Douglas Wilder said Friday Sen. Charles Robb engaged in a "smear" campaign.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Sen. Charles S. Robb, a Vietnam War hero who married Lyndon Johnson's daughter and was once considered presidential material, is fighting to save his career from an investigation of political spying.

Robb, 52, has seen his squeaky-clean image seriously undermined in recent years by allegations involving sex, drug parties and, most recently, his long and occasionally bitter rivalry with Gov. L. Douglas Wilder.

Wilder charged Friday that Robb and his aides had engaged in a campaign "to smear and discredit me" with a negative publicity campaign that has "not been seen since Watergate." He stopped short of calling for his fellow Democrat's resignation.

Robb's political maneuverings have come under scrutiny in a yearlong grand jury investigation of political eavesdropping that focuses on an illegally-recorded phone conversation of Wilder's.

Robb, who was elected to the Senate in 1988 after serving one term as governor, has remained silent on the probe but lashed out this week at U.S. Justice Department leaks that led to the disclosure that he is a target. He testified voluntarily before the panel last summer.

"I can only repeat here what I have said before," he said. "I have told the truth and I stand by every word I have ever uttered on the subject."

Since January, three of Robb's former aides have reached plea agreements on charges stemming from the Wilder tape probe.

The latest was David K. McCloud, Robb's chief of staff until last summer and chairman of his Senate campaign committee. McCloud pleaded guilty Wednesday to a misdemeanor campaign fraud charge and wire tapping violations. He was fined $10,000 for the violations and faces up to a year in prison and a $100,000 fine ,for the misdemeanor. Sentencing is scheduled for July 27.

McCloud admitted using $2,375 in Robb's Senate campaign funds to buy telephone records of a private investigator who was looking into Robb's social life.

The investigator, Billy Franklin, has written a book that makes allegations of womanizing and drug partying by Robb when he was governor from 1982 to 1986, claims that Robb denied.

Wilder's cellular telephone call was recorded in October 1988, a month before Robb's landslide Senate victory. The tape was made by a Virginia Beach electronics buff and acquaintance of Robb who intercepted the call by chance while operating a scanner and arranged to send it to Robb's staff.

In the conversation, then-Lt. Gov. Wilder talked about published reports alleging Robb attended parties where cocaine was used. Wilder speculated that the reports would ruin Robb politically.

Jurors hear final round in Yahweh trial

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The government accused Yahweh Ben Yahweh of torturing and murdering dissident members of his black sect because he claims he is the son of God, his attorney said in closing arguments Friday.

"My client is guilty," attorney Alcee Hastings said. "He's guilty of preaching, caring, teaching ... guilty of loving people. ... He's guilty of saying he's the son of God. But he's not guilty of any racketeering murder."

Prosecutor Richard Scruggs replied that Yahweh's religious beliefs had nothing to do with the prosecution.

"Yahweh Ben Yahweh, through his own words and writings, sees a world of enemies and preaches violence against those enemies," Scruggs said.

The prosecutor said the testimony of government witnesses, some of whom feared for their lives, backed up crime-scene evidence and was consistent in all but insignificant details.

"Don't abandon your common sense when you go back in there and deliberate," Scruggs told the jury.

U.S. District Judge Norman Roettger said he would give the case to the jury Saturday and sequester the panel for deliberations over the Memorial Day weekend.

Yahweh and his 15 co-defendants face up to 40 years in prison if convicted of conspiring to commit 14 murders, two attempted murders and arson to enforce discipline and intimidate non-members of their Nation of Yahweh separatist movement.

Hastings, an impeached former federal judge who plans to run for Congress after the trial, accused the government of stringing together unrelated crimes under a racketeering indictment to destroy the Yahweh movement.

That tactic also puts the case into federal court where rules of evidence and law are more favorable to prosecutors, Hastings said.

"How dare these prosecutors come into this pit of advocacy and say to you religion is not on trial," he said. "Why else was a Bible introduced as evidence?"

Yahweh, 56, warned followers about the evil influence of "white devils." Yahweh, whose former name was Hulon Mitchell, encouraged business enterprise among the sect, encouraged polygamy and told them they were the true Hebrews delivered from Egypt in biblical times.

Hinckley loses bid to register

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. lost a bid Friday for permission to register to vote in the District of Columbia.

Superior Court Judge Rufus King ruled that Hinckley cannot establish he is a legal resident of the district since he is involuntarily confined to a mental hospital.

Hinckley was found innocent by reason of insanity in the 1981 shooting of President Reagan. He has been confined to St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington since the 1982 verdict, and he did not attend Friday's hearing.

"One who is involuntarily confined ... may be qualified to vote," argued Hinckley's attorney, David H. Dupree. "The right to vote has been one of the most controversial issues since the founding of this country."

Dupree contended Hinckley was entitled to register because he had lived and paid taxes in the district, and because he had said during a September 1990 hearing that he intended to remain in the district.

But William H. Lewis, general counsel for the Board of Elections, argued that Hinckley had no choice but to live in the district and pay taxes there for work he performed at St. Elizabeths.

EL PASO — Stormy Case hit a solo home run in the eighth inning here Friday at Dudley Field, sending Odessa Permian to a 4-3 victory in the first game of a best of three Class 5A area baseball series against El Paso Coronado.

The two teams meet again at noon today at Dudley in Game 2, with Game 3 to follow if necessary. The win moved Permian's record to 15-14-1.

Rose hurt

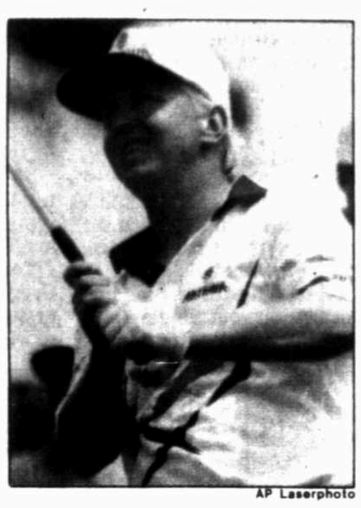

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Former Midland Angel Bobby Rose, who sprained his right ankle when a bus carrying the California Angels from New York to Baltimore crashed in New Jersey early Thursday, was placed on the 15-day disabled list Friday.

Rose, 25, is hitting .214 with two homers and 10 RBIs in 30 games. He was placed on the disabled list retroactive to Wednesday.

California recalled infielder Luis Sojo from Edmonton of the Pacific Coast League. Sojo, 26, was the starting second baseman for the Angels most of last season.

Pavin finds putt magic

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Corey Pavin has his putting touch back, a situation that spells nothing but bad news for the other members of the PGA Tour.

"I feel like I've had only two good putting tournaments this year," Pavin said, then named them: "Honda and the Masters."

He won the first and was third in the gathering at Augusta.

The $1.3 million Colonial, he said after taking the 36-hole lead Friday, is the third.

Pavin used only 25 strokes on the soft, wet greens at the Colonial Country Club — he had nine one-putts and one no-putt — in a 6-under-par 64 that gave him a one-shot lead at the half-

Welcome home, Angels

■ Arkansas greets Midland with 10 early runs, but nasty weather saves an ugly start to a homestand.

By Bill Price
Staff writer

The Midland Angels and pitcher Paul Swingle were the elated recipients of a large dose of Heavenly intervention Friday night at Angels Stadium.

Midland was to have opened a 10-game home stand and a five-game series against Arkansas, but when first the wind, then the rain rendered the game unplayable, nobody in the Angel clubhouse was complaining.

That's because Midland was behind 10-1 when play was stopped in the top of the fourth inning. With a little help from Mother Nature, Swingle (2-4) avoided seeing the 10 earned runs he gave up in two innings figure into his ERA.

"I'm the luckiest man in baseball tonight," Swingle said. "I just didn't have it. The last time I pitched against them they hit me pretty good (five earned runs on 10 hits in 6⅓ innings at Little Rock May 11).

"They just might be one of those teams that hits me pretty well. We needed something to turn it around. Luckily the weather did."

How bad could it have been for Swingle had the game been official? His ERA would have ballooned from 5.27 to 7.12. Midland manager Don Long doesn't necessarily think the Travelers have Swingle's number. His opinion was Swingle just wasn't throwing well.

"He threw pretty good in Jackson (one earned run in eight innings during his last start a week ago). He just didn't have his good stuff tonight.

"We got lucky. We played horrible baseball for three innings," said Long, who saw his Angels commit two errors in Arkansas' five-run first inning.

Joe D. Williams Reporter-Telegram

Paul Swingle (26) leaves the mound after giving up 10 runs to Arkansas in two innings, but rain came and washed out the statistics.

Despite the errors, a three-run home run by Cliff Brannon made all the runs earned because the miscues came on base hits and just cost Midland extra bases for the Trav runners.

"We had a lack of concentration in certain situations, like catching the ball and handling relays," Long said.

The rainout will be made up in a Sunday doubleheader beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday's game against Arkansas was already scheduled for the afternoon, so game time will be unchanged. Tonight's game begins at 7 p.m. and will feature a laser light show afterward.

WITH THURSDAY'S bus crash at Deptford Township, N.J. that injured 12 California Angels, the baseball community was forced to recite its contingency plan had any fatalities occurred.

California manager Buck Rogers was the most severely injured with a broken rib, knee and elbow. Former Midland Angel Bob Rose is the only player expected to miss any playing time.

Had the need to fill many roster spots arisen, though, Long said the impact in Midland would not likely be great.

"It's my understanding that the major league clubs protect a certain number of players, then they have a draft. They might decide to move some people from here up, but I'm just glad we're not in that situation."

Andrettis ready for Indy

■ The first family of auto racing — Mario, Michael, Jeff and John Andretti — set sights on Sunday's 500-mile race.

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — The first family of auto racing stages its annual reunion at the Indianapolis 500 Sunday with Mario Andretti on the front row and two of his two sons and a nephew sitting behind him.

That's the way the patriarch of the clan likes it, too.

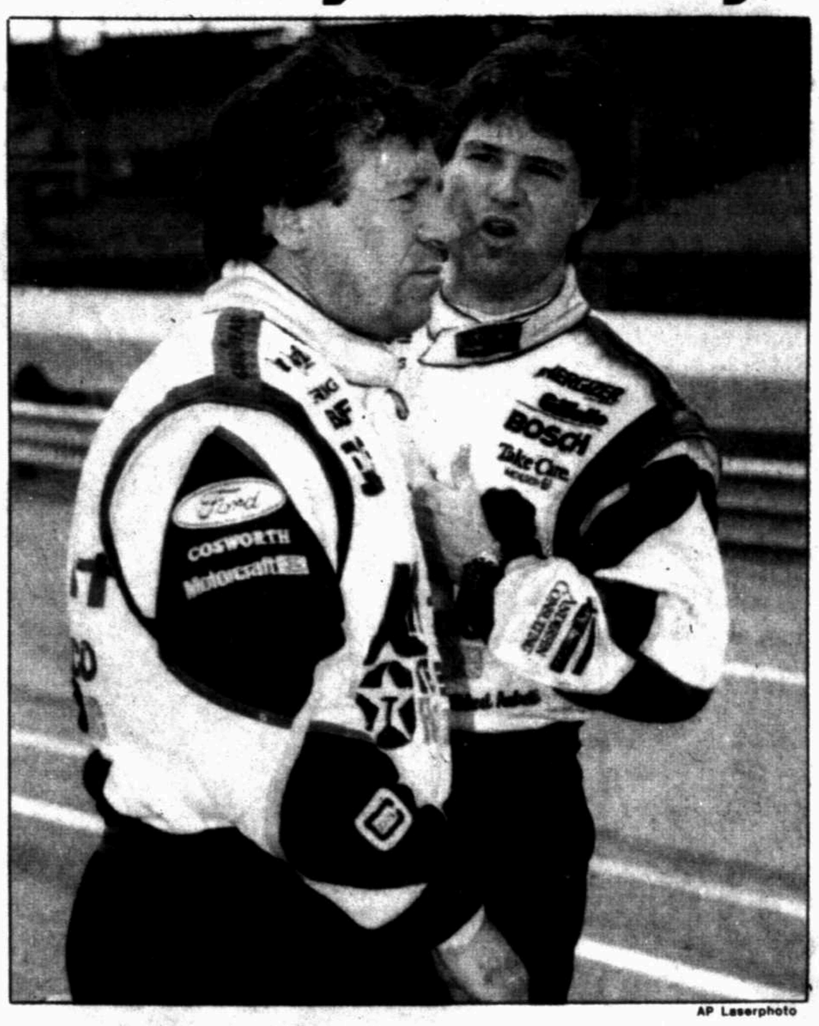

From Andretti's standpoint, racing against Michael, Jeff and John is easier on him than just sitting on the sidelines while they run against other drivers.

"I feel much better driving in the same race with them than just watching," said Andretti, who won Indy in 1969 and has been a crowd favorite here ever since. "As a spectator, I fail miserably.

"I don't know how I handle that after I retire. I'll have to find a way. I'm just not as comfortable watching them as I am driving against them. On the track, I know what's going on. On the side, there's anxiety. I can see things coming, see how a race is shaping up. I get uptight watching."

And Mario knows that will be a problem for him eventually. He is 52 now, running Indy for the 27th time. He knows this cannot go on forever.

"Some people can age gracefully and others are miserable," Mario said. "I'm not ashamed of my age. I'm proud of what I've accomplished. I'm happy to still be here and be competitive. Some people call you a legend and that's a compliment. Some people say, 'You're too old.' That's not my fault. I'm 52. I can't help that."

Age has not mellowed Mario, either. He remains bitter over last year's race when he finished seventh after starting third and leading the race for 22 laps. He was penalized for driving over the yellow line, a dividing marker to warn drivers away from the

Malone's 39 rips Blazers

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Karl Malone scored 25 of his 39 points in the second half as the Utah Jazz rallied from a 10-point deficit to defeat Portland 97-89, cutting the Trail Blazers' lead to 2-1 in the NBA Western Conference final series.

John Stockton had 14 points and 10 assists and Jeff Malone and Mike Brown added 11 points each for the Jazz, which ran its NBA-best home record to 44-4. Utah has won seven straight playoff games in the Delta Center, and can even this series 2-2 with another home victory on Sunday. Game 5 is at Portland next Tuesday.

NBA

Clyde Drexler and Jerome Kersey each scored 26 points for Portland, which routed Utah in the first two games of the series at Portland. Terry Porter, who had 41 points in Game 2, was held to 13 Friday on 3-of-13 shooting.

Portland, which led 55-45 early in the third quarter following two straight baskets by Kersey, watched its lead disappear under a 21-8 Jazz run. Karl Malone, who made 14 of 23 shots in the game, scored 11 points during the spurt, which gave Utah a 71-69 lead going into the fourth period.

The Mailman added 8 points over a seven-minute span of the final period to push the Jazz lead to 83-75. Portland got no closer than 91-87, on Kevin Duckworth's jumper with 2:04 to play.

From the start, the game pitted Utah's inside attack against Portland's perimeter shooting. Karl Malone repeatedly drove to the basket on the way to scoring 10 points in the first quarter, but Drexler answered by popping jumpers from the perimeter for 10 points of his own.

The Jazz led 20-19 with two minutes left in the period, but two baskets by Danny Ainge and Drexler's fast break layin off Buck Williams' steal from Utah's Jeff Malone gave the Trail Blazers a 25-20 advantage.

MC hopes to put tennis to rest in style

Staff report

Midland College's legendary tennis program ends next week in Corpus Christi with the men's National Junior College Athletic Association team and individual championships.

Play starts Sunday for the team championships, followed by the individual titles for singles and doubles. This year's NJCAA men's tourney is being held at the HEB Tennis Center.

When the Chaparrals play their final matches late next week, the program will be concluded. Due to lack of available competition and costs, the college's men's and women's tennis programs are being halted.

The women went out with a sparkling performance at Tyler, winning their eighth national team title, the last three in succession. They also took seven of the nine available individual titles, including the top five spots in singles and the top two in doubles.

"The women did their part in our goal to finish with both national team titles," said MC tennis coach Joe Williams. "Now it's up to the men and we feel pretty confident about their chances."

Williams, who will remain at Midland College as a fulltime faculty member, is pleased with the timing of this year's tournaments. "In past years we played the two tournaments on consecutive weeks and it was difficult to keep both teams focused and ready to compete."

Williams has had his team working out just once daily this week, usually for three hours in the morning. "I think the team may be fresher and better prepared mentally since I have been with them all week," he said.

Ranked No 2 in the nation, the Chaps will have to overcome strong challenges from Anderson, S.C., the top-ranked team in the country; from Tyler, Texas, ranked third; and McLennan College, Waco.

Midland College is 11-0 this season after going 22-1 last year and winning third in the national championships. In the team competition, teams are seeded and play in a bracket. Each team competition is concluded when one team wins five matches from among six singles and three doubles events. The winning team advances to the next round until a champion is decided.

The individual championships have players competing in each of six flights of singles and three flights of doubles. Winnning players advance until champions are determined in each of the nine flights.

"Our women's team was dominant this year and we didn't have to play doubles against any team all the way through the team championships. But the men will have a much tougher time. We'll probably have to play doubles against every team if we expect to advance," Williams said.

Expos destroy Braves to greet new manager

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Felipe Alou was a winner in his debut as manager of Montreal as Dennis Martinez pitched a two-hitter in the Expos' 7-1 victory over Tom Glavine and the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

Alou became the first Dominican manager in major league history when the Expos fired Tom Runnells on Friday and replaced him with the three-time All-Star.

Martinez (4-4) walked none and struck out four en route to his third consecutive win, including two against Atlanta. He lost a shutout when Damon Berryhill homered in the eighth.

Ivan Calderon's RBI double in the sixth inning broke a scoreless tie and the Expos pulled away with six runs in the seventh, including an RBI single by Martinez.

Glavine (6-3) allowed five runs and six hits in six-plus innings, falling to 2-10 lifetime against the Expos. Glavine lost 5-4 at Atlanta on May 17.

National League

With one out in the sixth, Marquis Grissom singled, moved to second when Delino DeShields was unsuccessful on a drag bunt and scored on Calderon's double.

Both Grissom and Calderon added two-run doubles in the seventh as the Expos batted around.

Astros 3, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS — Mark Portugal pitched two-hit ball for 8⅓ innings and Eric Anthony had a two-run double as Houston beat St. Louis.

Portugal (4-1) retired the side in every inning but the fourth, when the Cardinals got their run, and the ninth, when he was lifted after Ozzie Smith singled with one out. Smith had both hits for St. Louis.

Doug Jones got the last two outs for his ninth save as Houston improved to 7-2 in Portugal's nine starts this season.

The Astros took advantage of early wildness by Jose DeLeon (2-3). DeLeon walked the first two batters he faced and both scored on Anthony's double.

Craig Biggio added an RBI double in the second.

Portugal retired the first 10 batters he faced. Smith got St. Louis' first hit with one out in the fourth, moved up on a walk and a hit batsman, and scored on a fielder's choice grounder by Milt Thompson.

The start of the game was delayed an one hour and 17 minutes because of rain.

Phillies 8, Reds 2

PHILADELPHIA — Dave Hollins' RBI double and John Kruk's two-run homer in the fifth inning helped lift Philadelphia past Cincinnati.

Philadelphia snapped a 2-2 tie with three runs in the fifth on Mariano Duncan's one-out single followed by Hollins' RBI double and Kruk's third home run. The home run was only the third off Tim Belcher (3-5) in 61⅓ innings this season.

Winner Cliff Brantley (2-2) pitched seven innings, giving up four hits and two unearned runs. Brantley struck out one and walked seven before Wally Ritchie pitched the final two innings.

Belcher worked five innings, allowing seven hits and five runs.

Padres 2, Cubs 0

SAN DIEGO — Andy Benes pitched a three-hitter for his first complete game of the season and Gary Sheffield snapped a scoreless tie with an RBI double in the eighth inning as San Diego beat Chicago.

Sheffield, who also had a ground-rule double in the third inning, extended his hitting streak to 15, tying Terry Pendleton of the Atlanta Braves for the longest streak in the NL this year.

Tony Fernandez opened the eighth off starter Greg Maddux (4-4) with an infield single, and moved to second on Oscar Azocar's sacrifice bunt before scoring on Sheffield's double.

Rangers win rare home game

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Bobby Witt pitched eight effective innings and the Texas Rangers routed the Kansas City Royals 10-7 Friday night for a rare home victory.

The Rangers entered the game with a 5-13 home record, the worst in the major leagues. Texas' 17-8 road mark is the best in the majors and the best in team history after 25 games.

Witt (4-4) gave up three runs, two of them earned, on eight hits. He struck out seven and walked one. He has not pitched a complete game since April 18, 1991, against Cleveland.

Kansas City scored three runs in the ninth off Jeff Robinson.

Texas won for the fifth time in six games. The Royals had won four of their last five.

The Rangers battered Mark Gubicza (4-3) for seven runs and 11 hits in 4 2-3 innings. Gubicza had won four straight, three with complete games.

Texas broke it open with four runs in the fifth inning for a 7-2 lead. Ivan Rodriguez hit a two-run single with the bases loaded and two outs, and the other runs scored on a single by Dean Palmer and a passed ball by Mark Macfarlane.

Ruben Sierra hit a two-run homer, his seventh, off Neal Heaton in the sixth inning. Sierra went 3 for 5, and also doubled.

Macfarlane, whose three-run homer in the ninth inning Thursday night lifted the Royals to a 7-5 victory over Texas, hit a solo home run in the fifth. His fifth homer of the season cut the Rangers' lead to 3-2.

Mariners 2, Indians 1

SEATTLE — Tino Martinez singled home two runs in the seventh inning, rallying Randy Johnson and Seattle past Cleveland.

The Mariners took advantage of shortstop Mark Lewis' 16th error of the season and ended a three-game losing streak. Cleveland has lost six in a row and 11 of 12.

American League

Orioles 5, Angels 3

BALTIMORE — California, playing for the first time since manager Buck Rodgers and 11 others were injured when the team bus crashed, lost to Baltimore.

Rodgers was the most seriously hurt when the bus, taking the team from New York to Baltimore, swerved off the New Jersey Turnpike early Thursday and drove into a grove of trees in Deptford Township, N.J., about 20 miles from Philadelphia.

Ben McDonald (6-1) allowed five hits in seven-plus innings. Gregg Olson pitched the ninth for his ninth save.

With the score 1-1, Cal Ripken and Glenn Davis hit one-out singles off Julio Valera (2-3) before Randy Milligan drilled an RBI double off the 25-foot high scoreboard in right field. Milligan was the 1,530th batter since the park opened and the first to hit the structure.

Chito Martinez followed with a sacrifice fly and Leo Gomez hit an RBI single to make it 4-1. Mike Devereaux added a solo homer in the seventh, his eighth of the season.

Athletics 5, Red Sox 3

BOSTON — Dave Stewart beat Boston for the 12th straight time despite a one-man attack by Wade Boggs, and Oakland won its fourth straight victory.

Boggs hit his first two home runs of the season and also doubled off Stewart (3-4). Boggs scored Boston's other run on a double by Phil Plantier.

Jose Canseco hit a solo home run, his ninth, and an RBI single off Frank Viola (5-3). Rickey Henderson batted leadoff for the 1,729th time in his career, tying Eddie Yost's AL record, and had three hits, drove in two runs and stole his 20th base.

Stewart gave up five hits in 7⅓ innings. He has not lost to the Red Sox in 15 starts, including playoffs, since Boston beat him at Fenway Park on Aug. 19, 1988.

Dennis Eckersley pitched 1⅓ innings for his 17th save in 17 chances.

Tigers 6, Twins 3

DETROIT — Cecil Fielder homered for the first time in a month and Rob Deer hit two home runs, powering Detroit past Minnesota.

Fielder hit a three-run shot in the third inning off John Smiley for his eighth home run of the season and first since April 22. Fielder had gone 65 at-bats without connecting, a span interrupted by a stay on the disabled list because of an injured wrist.

Deer stopped an 0 for 17 slump with a two-run homer in the second inning. He hit a solo shot, his 13th, in the sixth for a 6-3 lead.

Blue Jays 6, White Sox 2

CHICAGO — Undefeated Juan Guzman stopped Chicago for eight innings and Toronto hit four home runs off Jack McDowell.

Guzman (6-0) gave up five hits, struck out seven and walked three. He left with two on and no out in the ninth, and Duane Ward finished for his sixth save.

McDowell (7-2), hit hard in losing his last start to Baltimore, again was ineffective. He allowed six runs on nine hits in 6⅔ innings.

Brewers 10, Yankees 9

NEW YORK — Greg Vaughn hit a solo homer in the 14th inning and Milwaukee overcame a six-run deficit to end New York's four-game winning streak.

Vaughn's home run was the seventh of the game. Dante Bichette, Franklin Stubbs and Dave Nilsson also connected for the Brewers and Danny Tartabull, Kevin Maas and Charlie Hayes homered for the Yankees.

The Brewers scored five times in the eighth to tie it at 9. Milwaukee rallied against three relievers and got the tying run on Kevin Seitzer's RBI double.

Alou replaces Runnells

MONTREAL (AP) — Felipe Alou became the first Dominican manager in major league history when the Monreal Expos fired Tom Runnells on Friday and replaced him with the three-time All-Star.

Alou, who has been in the Expos' organization for 16 years, became the third minority manager in the majors, joining Hal McRae of the Kansas City Royals and Cito Gaston of the Toronto Blue Jays. He also joined McRae as the second current manager with a son on his own team.

"I was one of the first Dominicans to play in the major leagues, and now I'm very proud to be the first Dominican to manage in the majors," said Alou, a career .286 hitter with seven teams from 1959-74.

Runnells, 37, was the youngest manager in the majors when he replaced Buck Rodgers on June 3, 1991. Montreal was 20-29 at the time and went on to go 51-61 under Runnells, finishing last in the National League East. This season, the Expos are 17-20 and in fourth place, five games behind the division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

"We feel we have an interesting and exciting ball club. We don't think the ballclub has jelled the way it should," Expos general manager Dan Duquette said. "I thank Tom Runnells for his discipline, work ethic and enthusiasm, but we felt we needed an experienced person to get us back to a contending level."

Alou, 57, had 2,101 hits, 206 homers and 852 RBIs for San Francisco, the Milwaukee and Atlanta Braves, Oakland, the New York Yankees, Montreal and the Milwaukee Brewers.

Longhorns capture win

AUSTIN — Clay King hit a homer and went 3 for 4 to back the combined seven-hit pitching of Jay Vaught and Doug Pettit as host Texas blanked Virginia Commonwealth 2-0 in the first round of the NCAA Central Regional tournament Friday.

The top-seeded Longhorns (43-14), won their 12th straight regional opener.

King connected off Matt Williams (12-5) in the bottom of the second inning. It was his fourth homer of the year but first in 42 games.

Charles Abernathy's infield single in the fifth scored Calvin Murray to make it 2-0. Murray, who had a single and a double, swiped three bases to push his season total to 42.

He became the first Southwest Conference player to steal at least 40 bases in three consecutive seasons.

Vaught (7-2) scattered five hits in five innings while walking two and striking out a career-high six. Pettit earned his fourth save with four innings of two-hit relief.

Williams gave up eight hits and six walks while walking four.

Leadoff hitter Rob Grimes went 3 for 3 for the Metro Conference champion Rams.

Georgia Tech 3, Texas A&M 2

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Georgia Tech got an RBI single from Michael Smith in the 10th inning for a 3-2 win over Texas A&M (39-19) in the East Regional.

Nomar Garciaparra opened the 10th inning for Georgia Tech (45-17) with a double and then advanced to third on a sacrifice fly. Smith's single drove in the winning run.

Georgia Tech starter Brad Rigby threw no-hit ball over the first five innings before yielding a bunt single in the sixth. Brett Binkley (9-2) picked up the win in relief.

Blackhawks land another playoff sweep

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — The Chicago Blackhawks are heading for the Stanley Cup finals for the first time in 19 years, and they're taking a playoff-record 11-game winning streak with them.

The Blackhawks earned their first trip to the finals since 1973 on Friday night when they completed a four-game sweep of the Campbell Conference finals with a 5-1 rout of the Edmonton Oilers.

Brian Noonan scored twice as the Blackhawks put the game away with four second-period goals to advance to a meeting with the Wales Conference champion, either Pittsburgh or Boston. The defending champion Penguins lead Boston 3-0 and can advance with a victory on Saturday night.

Chicago has won 11 straight since losing Games 2 and 3 of their Norris Division semifinal series to St. Louis, setting an NHL record for most consecutive victories in one playoff year. The previous mark was 10, set by Boston in 1970. The record for most consecutive wins in more than one year is 12, set by Edmonton in 1984-85.

NHL Playoffs

The Oilers, who upset Los Angeles and Vancouver to win the Smythe Division title, had no answers for the hard-hitting Blackhawks, who dominated play throughout the series. They scored only two goals after the first period in the four games and were as outmatched as some of the teams they dominated during their own dynasty years of the 1980s.

The Blackhawks took a 1-0 lead 9:35 into the game when Rob Brown converted the rebound of Steve Smith's shot for his second playoff goal and second in two games.

But Edmonton's failure to score was ominous. The Oilers came into the game having scored six of their seven goals in the first period and had not trailed entering the second period in any of the first three games.

The Oilers then fell apart in the second period under the weight of penalties.

Bernie Nicholls got a five-minute major at 3:44 for bloodying Brian Marchment's mouth with an elbow and Norm MacIver made it a two-man disadvantage when he cross-checked Chris Chelios in the head.

Chicago capitalized quickly on the two-man edge when Jeremy Roenick, who scored the overtime winner in Game 3, rocketed a slap shot from the left circle that caught the far post at 4:59.

Kelly Buchberger's goal 1:23 into the final period served only to break up Ed Belfour's shutout bid.

Allison has incentive for Coca-Cola 600

CHARLOTTE (AP) — In case he needs it, Davey Allison has plenty of incentive to win Sunday's Coca-Cola 600 stock car race at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Allison can earn a special $1 million bonus if he wins the race. But standing in the way is pole sitter Bill Elliott, who earned the nickname "Million Dollar Bill" after collecting the Winston Million for winning three of Winston Cup racing's most prestigious events in 1985.

Allison has other obstacles to overcome to make it to victory lane.

He's still bruised from a wreck with Kyle Petty a split second after he nudged his Thunderbird to victory in NASCAR's all-star race, The Winston, last Saturday. He also lost his favorite car, which he had driven to victories in four of the last five races at the 1.5-mile superspeedway.

Elliott, who trails Allison in the points race by 67, also has plenty of reason to win Sunday.

"I've had good success in the 600, but I've never won a 600, and that's the next thing I'd love to do," he said. "I know we have a good car here, and if it'll stay under us, maybe we can have a shot."

Allison qualified a disappointing 17th for Sunday's 600-miler after his car — nicknamed "007" after fictional British secret agent James Bond — was destroyed in the crash.

He's been resting his sore right shoulder and legs following his wreck. He asked longtime friend Neil Bonnett to break in his new car. Meanwhile, he withdrew from Saturday's Busch Grand National race.

Elliott, also driving a Ford, grabbed the pole in Wednesday's qualifying with a fast lap of 175.479 mph — a new Coca-Cola 600 record.

It was Elliott's second pole of the year and 43rd of his career.

Elliott, who won four straight races in March, will line up on the front row next to Petty, who qualified his Pontiac at 175.353.

The car Elliott will be driving Sunday is the same one he drove to the four victories. It's also the one his team owner, Junior Johnson, bashed up when CMS staged a special race for NASCAR's legendary drivers last year.

Connors gets tough draw

PARIS (AP) — Jimmy Connors delighted French Open fans last year with a stirring third-round battle against 1989 champion Michael Chang before succumbing to cramps in the fifth set.

Connors, 39, is back at Roland Garros stadium this year, but his stay may be shorter. On Friday he drew 1991 Wimbledon champion Michael Stich, the No. 4 seed, as his first-round foe.

Defending champion and top-ranked Jim Courier drew a qualifier but is likely to face Austria's Thomas Muster, a tough clay-court player, in the second round. Muster won the Monte Carlo tournament in April.

In the women's draw, two-time champion and top seed Monica Seles faces France's Catherine Mothes in the first round. Steffi Graf, also a two-time winner here, meets Canadian Rene Simpson-Alter.

Connors hasn't forgotten how the organizers let him into the tournament last year despite a ranking of 322 due to inactivity following hand surgery.

Pyle, Burton streak to 66 at RHCC golf Stampede

Staff report

The Stampede is on at Ranchland Hills Country Club, and Don Pyle and Travis Burton aren't looking back after a first round 66 in the club's annual partnership golf tournament.

Pyle and Burton stand on top of the leader board by three strokes over the team of Brian Gilley and John Young. Gilley and Young figured to be a major threat for this title, but a first-day 69 has them looking up at Pyle and Burton.

Three teams are four strokes off the pace at 70. Gerald and David Burnett are still in the race as are the teams of Sam Terry and J.J. Wagner and Harold Davidson and Ken Sewell.

In all, nine pairs are still within seven strokes of the lead with two rounds left to play. Action continues today and concludes Sunday at the RHCC course.

Over 240 golfers have paired up for the three-day event, playing in 10 flights.

COLONIAL: Pavin starts fast, ends fast

way point.

"I feel confident that if I can get my putting back on track I can play better than I did last year, because I'm hitting the ball better," Pavin said after completing two rounds at 132, 8 under par.

The statement had a certain ominous ring to it in that all Pavin did last year was win two tournaments and lead the tour in money-winnings.

Craig Stadler, who said he came to this tournament only at his wife's insistance, had a bogey-free 67 and was a single stroke back at 133 as the PGA Tour managed to complete a round on the same day it started for the first time in two weeks.

"I wasn't going to play here until my wife talked me into it," Stadler said. "I was going to take two weeks off. I only decided to come last Thursday or Friday."

Davis Love III, a three-time winner this year and a co-leader after 18 holes here, birdied the last hole for a 69 and was tied for third at 134 while Billy Mayfair, the other first day co-leader, fell further off the pace at 136.

"A little bit of a struggle," Love said. "Not a great day, but at least I had a good finish and got in with a decent score."

At two strokes off the pace he was tied with Blaine McCallister and Fulton Allem. McCallister had a 67 and Allem, a South African, closed in with a 65.

While Pavin was crediting his putting prowess and an altered putting grip with his high standing, the key shot in his round had nothing at all to do with putting.

After scoring his lone bogey on the 14th and finding himself in danger of drifting back into the pack, Pavin holed a 40-foot sand shot from the right bunker for a birdie on the 15th.

"I was in that bunker and I was thinking, 'oh, no; you're letting a good round get away.' When I holed it, it just turned things around," he said.

Pavin followed with a 7-iron shot that missed the cup by an inch and set up a 30-inch birdie.

Trevino holds Seniors lead

MALVERN, Pa. (AP) — Lee Trevino shot a 5-under-par 65 Friday for a one-stroke lead over former U.S. Amateur champion Gary Cowan after the first round of the $550,000 Bell Atlantic Classic.

Trevino, who has won four Senior Tour events this year, sank a 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole to move past Cowan, who had led much of the round over the 6,608-yard Chester Valley Golf Club.

Gibby Gilbert and Harold Henning shot 67s and Cowan's playing partners, Jack Kiefer and Bob Reith, each had 68s.

Gary Player, who birdied the last two holes, and Arnold Palmer were among five players at 69.

Trevino, who has shot 27 consecutive rounds of par or better, had five birdies.

"I did three things extremely well today," Trevino said. "I seem to be driving the ball better. I'm chipping and putting the ball well. I'm not pleased with my iron play. My irons are kind of crazy."

Trevino, the tour's leading money winner with $472,988, dropped an 8-footer for birdie on No. 3, sank a difficult 18-foot uphill putt on No. 5, made a 30-footer on No. 12 and a 2½-foot putt on No. 14 before taking the lead.

ANDRETTIS: Family 12 percent of field grass that once grew on its other side, before the track was widened a few years ago.

"The yellow line is to separate you from the grass," Andretti said dryly, "but there's no green on the other side of it. They black flagged me and penalized me a lap. That's like killing a bird with an Uzi."

Then there is the matter of the plaque the Indy winner gets. It is a miniature that pales compared to some of the other hardware Andretti has collected over the years. Twenty-three years after he won his 500, Andretti still brings up the issue of the little award. "I'm embarrassed to display it," he said.

Of course, he keeps trying to get himself another one, anyway.

Andretti's oldest son, Michael, finished second at Indy last year and won the overall series championship. Starting outside on the second row Sunday, directly behind his dad, he is one of the favorites in this race. Nephew John, the son of Andretti's twin brother, Aldo, is in the middle of Row Five in Midland's Hall/VDS entry. Second son Jeff is two rows further back.

Michael marvels at the zest his father brings to the track. "He's still hungry," Michael said. "I guess the fact that he has not won here for a while makes him hungry. That's his real carrot. He'd love to catch that carrot this weekend."

Mario and Michael are teammates. Jeff, the younger son, and nephew John drive for other teams. They are all Andrettis, though, and together they account for 12 percent of the 33-car field. On Sunday, each of them shoots for 100 percent of the world's most famous auto race.

arral squad, playing No. 1 singles and doubles. He has a 25-3 record in singles and is 8-1 in doubles with Toby Curtis. Curtis was injured in the fall, so they had a limited record for the season.

Sophomore Cyril Buscaglione, who transferred from Palm Beach, Fla., Community College in January, will play No. 2 singles. He is 10-1 this spring. Sophomore Berhe Serekebrhan is 13-3 at the No. 3 singles position. Fadel Berthe, a freshman, is 10-5 at the No. 4 singles spot. He and Serekebrhan are 6-2 as the No. 2 doubles team.

Sophomore Robin Van Beveren has a 20-4 mark in singles, playing No. 5. Freshman Gene Highfield will play No. 6. He is 11-5. Highfield and Van Beveren are playing No. 3 doubles with an 11-2 record.

Chaparral men's teams have won two previous national titles. They tied with Odessa College and New Mexico Military Institute in 1978, then won their only unshared title in 1989. Since Williams' arrival in 1982, the men also have had two third place finishes, three fourth places, and a fifth place.

Walker keeps one-shot lead

LPGA

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Colleen Walker held off charging Jody Anschutz on Friday to maintain a one-shot lead after the second round of the LPGA Corning Classic.

Walker, who began the day at 7-under, birdied four holes and bogeyed two in a round of 70 and was at 9-under-par 135.

"I couldn't get it to 10 under," Walker said. "But it wasn't too bad."

Anschutz, who started the day at 3-under, shot a 67 on Friday that included an eagle at the par-5 fifth hole and four birdies. She's at 136.

Hot, dry weather made the greens bumpy on the second day of play at the 6,064-yard Corning Country Club course, Walker said. That meant her putts weren't quite as certain to drop in as a day earlier, she said.

In those conditions, "all you can do is try to get it around the hole, and if it goes in, fine," she said.

"It's been a while since I've had two good rounds in the 60s."

Texas relievers Ryan's curse

By Arnie Stapleton
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON — Nolan Ryan's luck is as bad as his bullpen.

The Texas Rangers' relievers blew a Ryan lead for the third straight time Thursday night, falling to last-place Kansas City 7-5.

Mike Macfarlane hit a three-run homer off Jeff Russell in the ninth as the Royals ended an 0-21 mark when trailing after eight innings. It was Russell's fourth blown save of the season. He led the AL with 10 blown saves last year.

Ryan has never gone this deep into a season without a victory. He is winless despite a 1.84 ERA and 23 strikeouts over his last three starts.

Ryan gave up just one hit — a bloop double — and retired the final 18 batters he faced before leaving the game with a 5-1 lead after seven innings. It was his best performance since stifling the Toronto Blue Jays May 1, 1991, for his seventh no-hitter.

But he's stuck on career victory No. 314, which came way back on Sept. 25 against Seattle, eight starts and what seems a lifetime ago.

"It's a heck of a shame that Nolan's still stuck on that number," Russell said. "Somebody's got a hex on him."

Or maybe it's the bullpen that's cursed.

Russell hadn't given up a home run all season, and he hadn't ever given up a hit to Macfarlane. But he wasn't the only one who got taken deep.

Kenny Rogers served up an eighth-inning three-run shot to the less-than-swaggering Terry Shumpert, who was called up from the minors Wednesday.

"I was glad to see Ryan go," Shumpert said. "I don't think we could have gotten five runs off him."

"Shump really woke us up," Macfarlane said. "Here Ryan was unhittable. I mean, I've been hitting the ball well, but it's hard to tell when you're facing Nolan throwing Mach 2.

"But then the bullpen comes in and it's a totally different feeling."

Rogers (0-2) gave up four runs, three earned, in 1⅓ innings for the loss.

Entering Friday night's game against the Royals, the Rangers' bullpen was 9-9 with a 4.80 ERA. Rangers relievers had allowed a major league-high 21 homers, including three grand slams in 16 games.

"You just don't know what to expect from some of the guys," shrugged Texas manager Bobby Valentine, somewhat unable to fathom his relievers' latest failure.

Texas has had 19 pitchers on its active roster so far this season, four shy of the club record set last year and six shy of the AL mark set in 1969 by the expansion Seattle Pilots. Nothing seems to work.

Ryan, who watched his bullpen blow leads in his previous two starts, both against Milwaukee, said he didn't second-guess Valentine for pulling him after he had thrown 111 pitches, 45 of which came in the first two innings.

"I feel like I've been throwing well," Ryan said.

Villagers welcome ex-POW when he returns to Vietnam

By George Esper
Associated Press writer

September 16, 1966. 4 p.m. The sun is setting over the hills of Cong Hoa village. Commander John Robertson and his co-pilot, Hubert Buchanan, are on a bombing mission against a bridge near Hanoi.

Over the horizon, four North Vietnamese MiG-17 interceptors close in on them. "They're getting in beautiful firing position," Buchanan radios Robertson. "They're going to fire pretty soon."

Shells explode over their canopy. The MiGs are only half an airplane away.

"He's even in a better position now," Buchanan radios. "The next time's going to be it."

With a burst of 37mm-cannon, the F4 bursts into flames. Buchanan bails out.

"I didn't really remember doing it myself," Buchanan recalls more than 25 years later. "It's sort of dreamlike. I can feel this force. I couldn't see what was going on. Maybe the G-forces took the blood from my eyes.

"It was an eerie thing. I could tell something was going on. I felt the parachute open. I felt the pop and then I could start seeing things. I could see Hanoi in a distance, floating in a parachute, fire on the ground."

Le Cong Su, a tiny peasant, captures Buchanan. The villagers are more curious, nervous and afraid than hostile. The crowd swells to about 100 people; to the children, he looks like a giant.

Few of the villagers are armed. Buchanan sees only one rifle and a number of machetes. They give him some water. Only when a political leader appears an hour later and whips up the crowd do things turn nasty.

He is marched past jeering Vietnamese in three villages, and then to the Hanoi Hilton prison. He would spend the next 6½ years in Vietnamese hands.

Dec. 17, 1991. 4 p.m. Buchanan no longer is that 25-year-old farmer's son from Austin, Ind. He is 50 years old, married with four kids, living in Amherst, N.H., a pilot for Delta Airlines.

Like other American veterans he is revisiting Vietnam, reconciling the horrendous events of his youth with middle-age perspective.

The sun is setting over the hills of Cong Hoa village. Buchanan arrives in an Army jeep bearing photographs of his four children and stuffed animals, chewing gum and candy for a new generation of Vietnamese children. But the old generation is there, too, giving him a warm welcome.

"As we drove up, it was 4 p.m.," says Buchanan. "The day I was captured, I hit the ground just about 4 p.m. It was totally unplanned. It just happened that way. The whole village was there. It looked just about like it did 25 years ago. The scenery was remarkably unchanged.

"Some guy came walking up wearing a Boston Red Sox hat. . . . I said, 'Wait a minute. I got to get a picture next to this guy.' He had no idea of what the hat said. But it's so ironic to be there in this place halfway around the world with a guy standing there wearing a Boston Red Sox hat."

He and the villagers laugh a lot when a Japanese television crew photographs him with Le Cong Su, his capturer.

Su was on the lower side of a hill, which made him look even smaller. "Wait a minute," Buchanan yells. "Put him on the high side. He's supposed to look real fierce. He captured me."

"Come over here," Buchanan shouts. "You're supposed to be big and fierce because you captured me."

Negotiations going slowly between U.S. and Vietnam

By George Esper
Associated Press writer

December 22, 1961. Adviser Tom Davis, 25, is in the fields of Vietnam, his first Christmas away from his wife and baby daughter in Livingston, Tenn. Suddenly, there's an ambush. A road mine disables his truck. A shot from a Viet Cong marksman pierces his head.

April 29, 1975. North Vietnamese artillery guns bombard Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Air Base for three hours. Marine guards Charles McMahon Jr., 21, of Woburn, Mass., and Darwin Judge, 19, of Marshalltown, Iowa, will not survive the final day of war. The U.S. Embassy evacuates and Saigon surrenders to the communist-led Vietnamese the next morning.

Today, the United States and Vietnam are trying to heal the wounds of war, more than 30 years after Davis became the first American to die in that combat, and 17 years after McMahon and Judge took their tragic place in history as the last casualties.

The United States and Vietnam only recently began the first negotiations in nearly 40 years to restore full diplomatic relations that were broken with Hanoi in 1954 after the defeat of the French in the first Indochina war.

Diplomats met for the first time in New York last Nov. 21. They met a second time in Washington on Jan. 29.

The healing has been painfully slow and the negotiations have not been progressing as fast as American officials had hoped. Their success depends on how quickly Vietnam returns the remains of those MIAs it is able to gather from its killing fields and reveals what happened to those it can't.

A delegation of U.S. officials led by Richard H. Solomon, assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, met with Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi in March to discuss MIAs and humanitarian issues — discussions that have been going on since 1987.

Solomon said afterward that the earliest full diplomatic relations could be resumed would be a year from now, when elections are scheduled in Cambodia. But, he said, if progress on the MIA front is slow, it could take longer.

More than 2,200 Americans still are listed as missing.

The United States had envisioned that it would move ahead on the MIA issue, and at the same time ease the trade embargo that has strangled Vietnam economically and hampered postwar recovery.

Solomon and Le Mai, Vietnamese vice foreign minister, agreed that they had made substantial progress in their March talks.

The Vietnamese approved a two-year plan under which they and the Americans jointly would investigate as many outstanding MIA cases as possible.

During this time, the highest priority will be given to 135 so-called "discrepancy cases" in which Americans were alive when last seen, and the United States has reason to believe they were taken into captivity or turned over to Vietnamese authorities.

The Vietnamese agreed to allow the United States to carry out instant field investigations of reports of Americans being held prisoners. There have been 1,500 such live sightings over the years; none of those investigated thus far has panned out. The United States is still working on about 100 such cases.

The Vietnamese also agreed to give U.S. investigators greater access to their military records and to soldiers and officials who had past contact with American POWs.

Vietnam provided some access to military records last fall when it turned over an 84-page operations report for a military region of central Vietnam.

18-year-old earns 3 John Hopkins degrees

N.Y. Times News Service

BALTIMORE — Pankaj Merchia graduated Thursday from Johns Hopkins University, having earned degrees in three majors in three years. His grade-point average of 3.8 out of a possible 4.0 got him into Harvard Medical School, but he has deferred his entry for a year while he studies medicine in India on a $15,000 fellowship he won.

He is all of 18 years old.

"I think I'm fairly bright, but I don't think I'm a genius," said Merchia last week. "I'm just glad I like to learn, and I'm glad I have the opportunities. I'm not uncommon."

On the Johns Hopkins campus, that is almost true. Since its founding in 1876 the institution has been an incubator for budding scientists, doctors and engineers who are 18, 17 and 16 years old when they graduate.

In the next academic year, Johns Hopkins expects to enroll 17 of these students in what university officials believe is one of the largest contingents of college students who are two to three years ahead of their peers.

Once they arrive they delve into mathematics and science courses, pursue research in Johns Hopkins Medical School laboratories and even serve as tutors, usually to students older than they are.

As a child, Merchia was overshadowed by two older brothers, Vikas, now in medical school, and Ambikeshwar Raj, a lawyer. But the younger son also demonstrated early flashes of brilliance, according to his parents, Jagjiwan and Usha Merchia, of Marlton, N.J., who are natives of India.

At 4 years old, he computed addition and subtraction problems in his head. By the time he finished seventh grade, he was so advanced he skipped eighth grade and became a high school freshman. He was 12 years old.

"I was known as the ninth-grader who should have been an eighth-grader who was taking tenth-grade classes," said the soft-spoken Merchia, adding that classmates teased him for being so intelligent. "If I made any comment in class, they would say, 'There he goes again.'"

He graduated in three years at the age of 15 from Marlton High School and applied to Johns Hopkins, where his brother Vikas had graduated. "Initially I was a little worried because I didn't know what to expect," Merchia said. "But then I met the guy down the hall and I felt better. He was 16."

Although there are no special programs on the campus of 7,800 students for these bright teenagers, Merchia felt accepted, he said, "because of the openness of the students who are the normal age, and the professors, who think who you are is more important than how old you are."

By taking 18 to 28 credits a semester, he earned bachelor's degrees in mathematics, biomedical engineering and electrical and computer engineering in three years. "But Latin was my downfall," he said in a concerned tone. "I made a C-plus. I was shocked."

Professors who know him marvel at his relaxed demeanor. "He's very bright, but he really doesn't come across that way," said Dr. David T. Yue, a biomedical engineering professor at Johns Hopkins Medical School, where Merchia was a laboratory assistant last summer.

Merchia's father had not been keen on his son going away at such a young age. "I had gone to college early in India and had a very bad experience, and I didn't want him to face the same problems," said the elder Merchia, an accounting and computer science professor at Drexel University in Philadelphia. He said he was just 12½ years old when he enrolled in Punjab University.

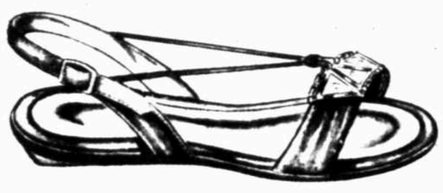

The father also tried to persuade his son to defer his research study. But he relented on the fellowship, too, and concedes that his son has done better than he did as an under-age college student. The younger Merchia plays squash, parties with friends and dates on occasion.

In India, he will study medicinal uses of yoga and meditation to see whether they can be incorporated into Western medicine.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

JUDAS ISCARIOT, THE BETRAYER OF JESUS, WAS THE ONLY MAN AMONG THE ORIGINAL TWELVE DISCIPLES WHO DID NOT HAIL FROM GALILEE. THAT HE WAS STRONGLY DISLIKED FROM THE OUTSET BY THE OTHERS IS APPARENT FROM THE VERY WORDS OF JOHN (JOHN 12:6). JUDAS WAS THE TREASURER OF THE GROUP—"HOLDING THE BAG" WAS THE EXPRESSION THEY USED—DENOTING THAT HE RECEIVED ALL GIFTS AND MONEY CONTRIBUTIONS FROM THE PUBLIC, PAID FOR ANYTHING THE GROUP MIGHT NEED (FOOD, CLOTHES, ETC.), AND DISPENSED MONEY TO THE POOR, ALL IN JESUS' NAME. BUT JOHN SPOKE FOR ALL OF THEM WHEN HE SAID JUDAS WAS A THIEF WHO DIDN'T CARE FOR THE POOR AT ALL, BUT CARRIED THE BAG OUT OF HIS LOVE FOR THE MONEY THAT WAS IN IT AND THE SENSE OF POWER AND IMPORTANCE IT GAVE HIM!

WHY HE BETRAYED JESUS HAS ALWAYS BEEN A CONJECTURE OPEN TO LENGTHY DISCUSSION. SOME HAVE SAID IT WAS PURELY HIS GREED FOR THE THIRTY PIECES OF SILVER, OTHERS MAINTAIN IT WAS OUT OF ANGER AT THE REBUKE HE RECEIVED FROM JESUS... (JOHN 12:1-8), ANOTHER THEORY IS THAT JUDAS, ALWAYS ANXIOUS AS TREASURER TO GET MORE MONEY, SAW AN EASY CHANCE TO ENLARGE THE TREASURY WITH NO REAL DANGER TO JESUS—FOR, HE REASONED, THAT THE SON OF GOD COULD COMMAND LEGIONS OF ANGELS TO RESCUE HIM WHENEVER HE WISHED! BE THAT AS IT MAY, ONCE THE DEED WAS DONE AND THE COLD LIGHT OF REASON REVEALED TO JUDAS THE ENORMITY OF HIS CRIME, HE REPENTED IN A FRENZY OF DISPAIR, HURLED THE BLOOD MONEY BACK AT THE PRIESTS AND RUSHED OUT AND HANGED HIMSELF!

LEGEND SAYS THAT THE TREE ON WHICH JUDAS HANGED HIMSELF (SINCE CALLED THE JUDAS TREE) WAS THE LOVELY REDBUD TREE, A FLOWERING ORNAMENTAL SHRUB WHICH CAN ATTAIN HEIGHTS OF FORTY FEET!

NEXT WEEK: A SOUTHERN QUEEN—WHO WAS WISE!

Prize winner urges nation to recapture spiritual force

NEW YORK (AP) — An American missionary helped lead the Rev. Kyung-Chik Han to Christianity, and it was this country he turned to for his college and divinity school degrees more than 60 years ago.

But in his first visit back since winning the 1992 Templeton Prize for Progress in Religion, the 89-year-old Han said he encountered a different nation from the one he remembered as offering a haven to immigrants.

Now it is a country torn apart by racial conflict, with Koreans being a particular target in the riots in Los Angeles after the Rodney King verdict.

And there is no "Christian force" powerful enough to promote racial and ethnic harmony, Han said.

"Why don't you send missionaries to black people right here in this country" is the question the slight, 89-year-old Han poses to religious leaders on his trip. "It seems to me the only way to solve social problems in this country is through mission efforts among the black people and the new immigrants."

Han was given the more than $1 million Templeton Prize in April for his career as an evangelist who gained international attention for his work with refugees and the poor. Founder of Seoul's 60,000-member Young Nak Presbyterian Church, Han has started over 500 churches around the world, including the 5,000-member Young Nak Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles.

In an interview this week, Han gave credit to an American missionary who founded a country church and day school in his small village with providing him the opportunity to learn about Christianity.

With the help of the church, Han was sent to a Christian high school. He later came to the United States to study, graduating from Emporia College in Kansas in 1926 and from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1929.

After a bout with tuberculosis, he returned to Korea in 1931, and established an orphanage in 1939. In 1942, he was briefly imprisoned and later stripped of his ministry at a church because he refused to worship Emperor Hirohito.

State in brief

■ Officer finds bobcat in apartment kitchen

SAN ANTONIO — When Gloria Garcia summoned police to her apartment, it wasn't a usual domestic disturbance call.

Patrolman Eliseo Noriega encountered a 35-pound bobcat Thursday in the small apartment kitchen on top of a refrigerator. He made a quick exit and called a wildlife specialist.

"I was the first one out the door, and I'm not ashamed to admit that," the officer said. "The cat chased me out in a big hurry."

Ms. Garcia said the full-grown male bobcat arrived in a cage Wednesday evening with a homeless woman friend who was staying with her for a while.

"A friend asked me if I would let her stay and bring her pet cat with her. I thought it was just a cat," Ms. Garcia said.

Ms. Garcia said she told the woman not to let the bobcat out of the cage, but she did it anyway. Ms. Garcia said she spent a tense night as the bobcat roamed around the one-bedroom apartment.

The woman said she insisted again Thursday morning that the cat be put back in the cage, but the woman refused. Both women left for work.

Ms. Garcia returned at noon and said she grew panicky when she was alone with the animal. She tried to force it out the front door with a broom, but the bobcat wouldn't leave and became angry.

Then she called police.

Wildlife Specialist Bob Littlefield of the Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation Sanctuary in Boerne, 25 miles northwest of San Antonio, tranquilized the bobcat and returned it to its cage.

■ Lawmaker says he'll push for new tint law

SAN ANTONIO — A state legislator said Friday he plans to introduce legislation that would crack down on illegally tinted car and truck windows.

State Rep. Ciro Rodriguez, D-San Antonio, said he will push for the legislation during the 1993 legislative session. The bill would go after motorists who have the dark tinting and companies that agree to install it.

Rodriguez's remarks came after a WOAI radio report Friday revealed many window tint companies often are willing to tint windows darker than allowed by law. A 1989 law sets the tint limit at 35 percent.

The extra dark tinting usually is done on a cash-only, no-receipt basis, the radio station reported.

A WOAI reporter visited a dozen tint shops with a microphone hidden in her purse. She reported that more than half the shops were willing to make the under-the-counter deals.

■ Judge sentences teen-ager to die by injection

HOUSTON — A teen-ager has been sentenced to death for kidnapping a bank clerk, raping her in a desolate field and then fatally shooting her in the back after he ordered her to run away.

Jurors in State District Judge A.D. Azios' court deliberated for about nine hours over two days before imposing the maximum penalty on Robert James Campbell, 19. The jury convicted Campbell last week of the capital murder of Alexandra Rendon, 20.

Under Texas law, the verdict automatically will be appealed.

Ms. Rendon was abducted from a gasoline station by Campbell and another man Jan. 3, 1991. She was robbed and allegedly raped by both men.

Witnesses said Campbell told her to run. As many as four shots were fired at her as she fled barefoot and partially clad. The fatal .38-caliber round struck her in the back, and she was left to die.

State executes man for hiring wife's hitman

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A laughing and cheerful Robert Black was executed early Friday for hiring a hitman to kill his wife.

Black, 45, who found gunman John Wayne Hearn though a classified ad in Soldier of Fortune magazine, became the 50th convicted killer to be executed in Texas since the state resumed the death penalty in 1982. The total by far is the highest in the nation.

Black, strapped to a gurney, greeted reporters, three family members and his attorney by name as the witnesses entered the death chamber.

"I look stretched out like a cooked goose," he laughed, looking around and speaking to the witnesses.

When prison officials said they were ready to proceed, Black began reciting the poem "High Flight," which includes verses that glorify a pilot's thoughts of freedom as he soars through the air.

"I have slipped the surly bonds of earth," he said as the lethal drugs began. When he reached the line, "And done a hundred things you have not thought of ...," he gasped about four times and stopped breathing.

He was declared dead at 12:20 a.m. CDT, five minutes after the drugs began flowing into his arms.

The execution came after the U.S. Supreme Court rejected by a 6-3 vote appeals from Black's attorneys that the former Marine captain should be spared because of post traumatic stress syndrome brought on by his combat experiences in Vietnam.

Black was convicted of hiring Hearn to kill his wife, Sandra, at their Bryan home Feb. 21, 1985. Hearn had run a classified ad in the magazine offering himself for "high-risk assignments."

Hearn pleaded guilty to fatally shooting Mrs. Black and testified against Black in exchange for a life prison term.

Black never denied trying to arrange the murder-for-hire deal, but insisted he didn't believe anyone actually would follow through.

"I had no idea it was going to come off," he said.

Evidence showed Black paid Hearn $10,000 for the killing so he could collect on his wife's recently purchased $175,000 life insurance.

Black said medication prescribed for him since he arrived in prison controlled his depression.

On Thursday, in the hours before his death, he visited with family members, including his son, Gary, who discovered Sandra Black's body the day of the shooting. Black's mood throughout the day was described by prison officials as upbeat.

Black's son and mother-in-law in 1988 won a $9.4 million judgment against Soldier of Fortune magazine for running the ad that led Black to Hearn. A year later, a federal appeals court threw out the award.

Black was the eighth Texas inmate to be executed this year and the second this week. Early Wednesday, Jesus Romero, 27, was put to death for the rape-slaying of a 15-year-old Rio Grande Valley girl.

Perot says Republicans 'going nuts' over him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ross Perot said Friday that sharp criticism of him by Republican officials shows "they can't figure out what to do" about burgeoning support for his expected presidential bid.

"These people are just kind of in lockstep going nuts right now," Perot said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

Perot was reacting to recent harsh comments by White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater and House Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois.

Fitzwater, in an interview published in Friday's Los Angeles Times, warned that a vote for Perot would be supporting "a pig in the poke and a dangerous and destructive personality."

Fitzwater added that Perot's refusal to explain his positions on major issues makes it hard to criticize him but "being afraid of the unknown may soon make people ask, 'What kind of monster are we buying here?'"

Perot, asked about the comment on Friday, said, "Well, it's completely inconsistent with what the president has said about me publicly over the years. You sure they didn't say Cookie Monster?"

He added that "maybe they're going through their Willie Horton phase again. I don't know what's happening, but anyhow ... it's fun. It has nothing to do with reality."

Perot also noted that Michel on Thursday had said the Texan's silence on the issues was "frightening."

"They can't figure out what to do," Perot said of the GOP officials. "Now, Congressman Michel is a good guy. He's sent me a Christmas card for years. ... I basically wonder if I'll get one this year, though, you know? It kind of makes you wonder, doesn't it?"

Democratic Party Chairman Ronald Brown has offered his share of criticism of Perot in recent days, as well.

"I think the press is now feeling a little guilty that (Perot) he has gotten a free ride," Brown told a group in Louisville on Thursday. "My own judgment is he's a little dictator."

Job will take teamwork, commissioner says

AUSTIN (AP) — The man named Texas' first health and human services commissioner is a former truck driver who says he once struck a nursing home industry official who called him a liar.

But Richard Ladd — who calls that altercation "unfortunate" — also stresses the importance of treating people who need aid with dignity and compassion.

As assistant director of the Oregon Department of Human Resources, he was responsible for reorganizing that state's health and social service programs. That's much the same job he'll do here, for $150,000 a year.

And he likes Murphy Brown.

Ladd said Friday he doesn't think much of comments by Vice President Dan Quayle, who criticized the unmarried television character for bearing a child. In a speech on causes of the Los Angeles riots and inner-city problems, Quayle said Brown set a bad example.

Ladd, 53, said that teen-age mothers generally are not mature and have difficulties.

"That aspect of what I think Vice President Quayle was saying has probably got some truth to it," he said. "But most of the rest of it is typical, reactionary, trying to blame the problems in human resources on people's lifestyles.

Ladd went to work for Oregon's Human Resources Department in 1976. Before that, he served aboard a Navy fast-attack submarine in 1957-1961, then held various positions in private industry, including a job as a truck driver.

Ladd was appointed Texas' commissioner this week by Gov. Ann Richards, and will start the job June 15.

'I think it's a job that can be done. There's no question about it, it's very difficult. It can only be done if we get a lot of teamwork.'

— Richard Ladd

The set-to with the president of a for-profit nursing home association occurred about seven or eight years ago, he said. It earned Ladd a month's suspension from his Oregon state job, without pay, he said.

Ladd said he doesn't remember why the official called him a liar, and he said of his hit, "I kind of brushed him."

"That was an unfortunate incident ... I hope that I'm more mature than that now," he said.

Ladd said he doesn't expect similar incidents in Texas, where he will head a "super-agency" created to oversee all health and human service agencies in Texas.

The Legislature voted to form the agency in 1991 to coordinate services and budgeting of 11 existing state agencies. The largest are the Departments of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, Human Services and Health. They have a combined budget of $18.2 billion and 57,224 employees.

Attorneys question Lubbock pathologist's military work

LUBBOCK (AP) — An indicted pathologist says he has been cleared of any wrongdoing while performing autopsies in the Army Reserves, but defense attorneys are seeking more information.

According to a motion filed with the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, Lubbock pathologist Ralph Erdmann may have broken federal law by accepting military pay for time he spent performing civilian autopsies.

Erdmann, who was indicted by a Hockley County grand jury in February, says he was cleared of any wrongdoing with an honorable discharge from the Army Reserves in 1990.

But Lubbock attorney Rod Hobson wants the records of a 1989 military investigation into Erdmann's practices disclosed.

"The Army investigators found that Erdmann was performing civilian autopsies on Army time," Hobson said in his motion. "What else was found by the investigation will not be known unless the records are unsealed."

Hobson is appealing the capital murder conviction of Jack Wade Clark.

Clark was sentenced to death for the Oct. 16, 1989, rape and stabbing death of Melissa Ann Garcia, 23, in Lubbock.

Erdmann performed the autopsy on Garcia and was a witness in Clark's trial last year.

Hobson is asking the criminal appeals court to unseal records dealing with the Erdmann investigation because the records were quashed during Clark's trial.

State District Judge Brad Underwood of Lubbock sealed the records and determined they contained "no admissible evidence" after a private review.

Erdmann said Hobson's filing was part of an effort by criminal defense attorneys to "smear" him.

"They're just trying to throw mud and discredit me," Erdmann said.

Erdmann said he has been "cleared of all charges" and claims the investigation was prompted by two disgruntled servicemen.

District can't account for hiring people with criminal backgrounds

DALLAS (AP) — Records used by the Dallas school district to screen out employees with criminal histories contained the information the district said it needed to do so, a state official said.

An investigation by The Dallas Morning News found nearly 200 people who had committed felonies in Dallas County who were also Dallas Independent School District employees.

School officials had blamed incomplete state criminal records for their failure to screen out some employees with criminal histories. They maintained that cases resolved through non-adjudicated probation had not shown up in the state records.

Non-adjudication allows a dismissal of criminal charges once a probation is successfully completed.

But David Gavin, chief of crime records for the Texas Department of Public Safety, said the state's background checks include not only convictions, but also cases of non-adjudicated probation, as well as arrests.

Since September 1989, state law has required school districts to check the criminal histories of new employees. Dallas sends a computer list of its new hires to Austin for comparison with the department's records.

"We are providing to the Texas Education Agency for certification of teachers and to local school districts for all their applicants all the information we have in the file on any individual," Gavin said.

By providing both arrest and court information, the state gives school districts two chances to find an employee in Department of Public Safety records, Gavin said.

He said although the state's records are not flawless, "if there is something in the Dallas County system, it should be in our system." The DPS records include all 254 Texas counties.

The newspaper found at least 36 employees hired since September 1989 who had been convicted of a felony in Dallas County or were placed on a non-adjudicated probation.

Among them were a substitute cafeteria worker convicted of murder and unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon and a custodian awaiting trial who was later convicted of murder.

Producer wants 'real kid' to play 'Dennis the Menace'

CHICAGO — A nationwide search is on for a "real kid" to play 5-year-old Dennis the Menace opposite Walter Matthau's curmudgeonly Mr. Wilson.

Matthau

Movie producer John Hughes said he doesn't want another McCauley Caulkin, whom he made famous in "Home Alone."

"I don't want somebody who has learned how to act yet," Hughes said Thursday in announcing the search. "I want a kid who's learned how to be a kid. We'll take care of the rest."

Producers of the Warner Bros. movie want boys ages 5 to 7 who are asked to submit videotapes up to five minutes long with a photo. Hughes and producer Dick Vane will choose children for auditions.

"It would be much easier for us to get a small 9-year-old," said Hughes. "You'd get a lot more hours out of the day, you'd get someone who could read so script changes wouldn't take an hour, but you'd lose the charm."

The movie is based on Hank Ketcham's cartoon about the mischievous boy with the blond cowlick. Filming begins this summer in Chicago. Release is set for 1993.

Matthau will play Mr. Wilson, the retired postal worker who lives next door to Dennis and is the boy's favorite target for his vexations.

"This 5-year-old boy drives him crazy, but he desperately needs this 5-year-old boy to drive him crazy," said Hughes. "He can't tell the kid that he loves him. Hank Ketcham said if Wilson didn't have Dennis, he'd be dead within a year."

BALTIMORE — Lee Iacocca told students at Johns Hopkins University they will be forced to solve problems and pay bills left over by his generation.

Iacocca

"My generation did something to yours that was never done to us or to any other generation of Americans," Iacocca said Thursday during a commencement ceremony. "We stiffed you, I'm sorry to say. We didn't pay our bills."

Iacocca, chairman of Chrysler Corporation, said today's graduates are saddled with a $4 trillion debt, which amounts to $16,000 for every American. Interest alone is 10 times what the government spent on education and twice that spent on poverty programs, he said.

"You have to start digging yourself out," he said. "What's at stake is the country's ability to compete in the world."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Singer-songwriter Bill Anderson said country performers celebrate a No. 1 record differently than during his heyday 25 years ago.

Anderson wrote the recent No. 1 song, "Tips of My Fingers," recorded by Steve Wariner. To mark the achievement, Anderson and his wife took Wariner and his wife out to dinner.

"The manager of the restaurant found out we were celebrating Steve's No. 1 record and sent over a bottle of complimentary champagne," Anderson wrote in his fan newsletter.

"I told Steve that just proved how far country music has come since the days when I had lots of No. 1 records and songs. Back then, we celebrated with a hot dog and a Coke at a drive-in movie."

Anderson, a Grand Ole Opry star, also is the composer and singer of such hits as "Still" and "City Lights."

SEATTLE — John Frohnmayer says serving as chairman of the politically turbulent National Endowment for the Arts made him "a First Amendment radical."

Frohnmayer said Thursday he was fired over six lines of a poem, a move to appease a White House dominated by "a conservative and, in my view, a destructive faction" of the Republican Party.

He spoke at the meeting of the Cornish College of the Arts.

Afterward, he praised members of two advisory panels that quit this month to protest funding vetoes by acting NEA chairwoman Anne-Imelda Radice.

"I think I probably would be reluctant to serve if I thought that my recommendations could be overturned by the political whims of someone in the White House," Frohnmayer said.

The theater and art review panels cited Radice's veto of recommendations for grants to two exhibits that include the portrayal of sex organs. One exhibit was at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the other at Virginia Commonwealth University.

Frohnmayer was fired by White House Chief of Staff Samuel Skinner on Feb. 21, he claims, because of six lines in a poem that contain an account of oral sex behind a church altar.

The poem appeared in "The Portable Lower East Side, a small New York magazine that received NEA funding.

"There's no question that I was changed" by the experience, said Frohnmayer, a Republican. "I went in as a moderate and I left ... as a First Amendment radical."

POWs: Many return to Vietnam to find out why they were there the village. The shadows signal it is time to leave. Le Cong Su doesn't want the evening to end. "You can stay with me and we'll get a chicken and get something to drink," he tells Buchanan through an interpreter. "We can talk more."

Seventeen years have passed since the U.S.-backed South Vietnamese government fell to communist-led North Vietnam, with the American Embassy personel in retreat on that fateful last day of April.

America and Vietnam are on a negotiating course that inevitably will lead to a restoration of diplomatic relations. The U.S. Embassy will hoist the American flag in Hanoi. The U.S. trade embargo that has crippled Vietnam economically will be lifted. But there is a great deal of uncertainty when.

"Vietnam vets were pivotal in making this happen," said John Wheeler, a fund-raiser for the decade-old Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington.

"There's a lot of leadership among these vets and a lot of respect for them. There never would have been this healing unless the vets sought and affirmed it," Wheeler said.

The old soldiers and the peasants have found it easier to heal wounds than have their governments. "They're farmers in Vietnam and my people are farmers in Indiana," Buchanan said. "Humanity's pretty much the same everywhere."

So the vets go back. Some seek a meaning for the war and why they were there. Others are there for the sake of adventure, curiosity or obsession, to recapture their youth and that elusive peace of mind.

Some feel guilty and bring food and friendship to compensate for the destruction they reaped. Buchanan, for one, never felt he was directly dropping bombs on women and children.

"I had 16 missions before I was shot down," he said. "Targets were always bridges, even though civilians can easily get killed in those situations. It was an unintentional thing, but I think war's pretty stupid anyway."

Buchanan had a simple mission for his return visit. John Robertson, the Seattle native who was the commander of his aircraft, never made it home. Vietnamese accounts of his fate had been conflicting; Robertson's daughter had talked to Le Cong Su, who said yes, it had been her father he had captured.

A spate of photos that surfaced last year purporting to show live American POWs — photos denounced as frauds by both American and Vietnamese officials — included one identified as Robertson by his wife.

Buchanan's trip was paid for by Mirai, USA, a Japanese television production company that was filming a documentary on MIAs. His aim was to find Le Cong Su and confirm that he had captured Buchanan, not Robertson.

He did that, and more. "What an adventure," Buchanan said. "They have no hostility toward Americans. ... The soldiers are like old comrades rather than enemies."

Sept. 16, 1966, to March 3, 1973. Buchanan is held in a number of prisons, mainly the Hanoi Hilton. The routine is the same: Deprivation and torture.

9 a.m. Breakfast: rice, cooked cabbage and pumpkin.

Noon. Lunch: None.

4 p.m. Dinner: rice, cooked cabbage and pumpkin.

"The main thing was to sit around and talk about food, think about food," Buchanan says. "We did a lot of that, especially when the weather was cool. You get hungry. You're always thinking about food."

Activities: None. "You were locked in your room all the time. You'd get to go outside and wash once a day about six days a week. The POWs had an exercise program — a mental one.

"You weren't allowed to have anything, so you couldn't draw or write or read. Every communication was by tap code because we were isolated in our cells whether we were alone or whether we had a small group in our cell. So communication was time-consuming and it made the time pass."

Often the POWs, including Buchanan, were caught and put through "the ropes" as punishment — their wrists were put in tight irons behind their backs, and their elbows manipulated. It was excruciating.

But Buchanan emerged in good physical and mental health, bearing no bitterness or vindictiveness.

"Some of the individuals were sadistic," he says. "But it was wartime and they'd been bombed. I wouldn't expect them to be kind to me. If people were bombing the United States and we captured some of them, I would suspect they might get mistreated."

Dec. 15, 1991. Buchanan is standing outside the Hanoi Hilton.

"It was difficult to describe the irony," he says. "A few years before, I was on the other side of that wall. Who knows how long it would be before I get out or if . . ."

The sadistic guards are gone. Instead, he is greeted by new generation of children, in English.

"Hello, hello. How are you?"

NEGOTIATIONS: U.S. gives Vietnam more aid

(From 1C)

The report gives details of planes that were hit but flew off and of other aircraft that were knocked down. It tells whether any crewmen survived.

Vietnam agreed to trilateral investigations with its western neighbors, Laos and Cambodia, into cases where it is believed there are MIAs or where there are live sighting reports in the tri-border region.

Vietnam also agreed to exchange experts with the United States. They would share information on specific cases in which the United States believes that remains should be readily available to the Vietnamese.

The United States does not know how many remains of MIAs the Vietnamese have. But there is a striking correlation between the number returned by the Vietnamese each year and political developments.

When progress was being made in negotiations, a significant number of remains were returned. But when talks were stalled or the United States issued a statement the Vietnamese perceived as hostile, there were almost none.

Many American officials have concluded that the Vietnamese have been storing remains and returning them when it suits their political agenda.

American experts have found that many of the bones that have been returned show signs of having been stored. They are not deteriorated from being in the ground, and show signs of being treated with preservatives.

The Vietnamese deny this, or that they hold any POWs. Although the official U.S. line is that there is no evidence that the Vietnamese are holding live American POWs, many families of the missing men and veterans are not convinced.

"We have said definitely that there is absolutely no living American here held against his will in Vietnam," declared Le Mai.

The talks also led to increased U.S. support for Vietnam's humanitarian needs. American medics accompanying MIA-POW investigators into the field will care for villagers as well.

The United States is giving Vietnam more money to provide amputees with artificial arms and legs and to care for the country's orphaned children. It is also providing Vietnam with $250,000 in medical equipment.

U.S. military planes will fly food, medical and other supplies sent to Vietnam by nongovernmental humanitarian organizations.

Le Mai termed the American humanitarian aid modest compared to the needs of Vietnam and the resources of the United States. And the trade embargo remains in force.

"The trade embargo is an abnormal thing in relations among nations," said Le Mai. "As long as they apply the trade embargo, it means that they still have a hostile policy toward Vietnam."

Vacations are things of the past

By Wendy Sloane
Associated Press writer

YALTA, Ukraine (AP) — Communism was good to chambermaid Galina Khromtsova. She had a small salary and small apartment, but every year she put down her broom, threw off her apron, and had a big vacation on the Black Sea.

No more. Now prices are so high that a three-week vacation would cost her almost a year's salary.

"This life isn't made for holidays anymore," she said sadly.

Under Communist rule, trade unions and enterprises issued Khromtsova and other workers special vouchers entitling them to hefty discounts at resorts and sanatoriums throughout the country. Similar vouchers provided access to hard-to-get train and plane tickets.

But most of these organizations lost their government backing following the collapse of the Soviet Union last year. Previously subsidized transportation costs have more than quadrupled. And the rising cost of food and clothing has forced many people to spend savings on necessities.

Also, many once-popular vacation spots have become off-limits because of civil unrest, rising crime and polluted beaches.

And some people are staying away from other popular resort areas, such as in the newly independent Baltic states, saying they don't want to feel like foreigners in what used to be their country.

"Before perestroika we always went on holiday to Foros or Sochi (Black Sea resorts), but now we can't go anywhere," complained Khromtsova, whose vacations used to be paid by her Communist-run trade union.

The Crimean peninsula, with its rocky Black Sea beaches, government-subsidized coastal resorts and fancy sanatoriums for high-ranking Communist Party officials, was a favorite Soviet vacation spot for decades.

But the powerful political elite no longer stroll the boardwalks. The tourist season has begun, but few sun worshipers are on the beaches and the cafes are almost deserted.

The clientele also has changed. Most of the tourists who come to the Black Sea now are rich.

Anatoly Fetisov, director of the Rossiya Sanatorium, an elegant coastal resort in downtown Yalta, said he expects fewer guests this year because the Rossiya now is open to anyone who can afford it. In the past, it catered only to members of the Communist Party's Central Committee.

The sanatorium, whose sprawling lawns and white-columned facade recall an Italian villa, charges 18,000 rubles ($150) for a 24-day visit with board and access to recreational facilities and a private beach. Last year, it charged only 200 rubles (less than $2) and the party picked up the rest.

"An individual doesn't necessarily have to be rich to come here now, but his enterprise has to have money," Fetisov said.

Other regions and businesses also are suffering. Pressa Publishers, formerly Pravda, used to issue employees vouchers for health resorts in the Latvian city of Jurmala, the Georgian town of Pitsunda, and just outside Moscow, said chief manager Valery Zhukolenko.

But the Jurmala resort has been reclaimed by the Latvian government. People are hesitant to travel to Pitsunda because of the Georgian civil war. And the Moscow mayoral office has taken over the resort outside Moscow and turned it into a children's sanatorium.

Some resorts hope that attracting foreigners with hard currency can help them solve their financial problems.

Although visiting the Crimea is relatively cheap for Westerners, like most places in the former Soviet Union, it lacks Western amenities.

Toilet paper and coffee are in short supply in the Hotel Yalta, the largest hotel on the Black Sea. Only one shop there offers such luxuries as beach towels, sunglasses and suntan lotion. Restaurant service is bad.

"After I saw what was going on here, I would rather have gone somewhere else," said Martin Hinze, 49, a German computer consultant who spent about 1,000 German marks ($1,000) for an eight-day package tour to Yalta.

Chinese dissident's battles not over

BEIJING (AP) — The man sometimes called "China's Lech Walesa" spent 22 months in jail but hasn't lost his will to fight. His latest battle is against eviction from his home.

Han Dongfang, 29, was imprisoned after the 1989 Tiananmen Square democracy movement for founding an independent labor union. He contracted tuberculosis in jail and thought he would die.

But far from being broken by the experience, the former railway worker says: "My beliefs are even stronger, even more firm."

Authorities said two weeks ago that Han is free to go abroad. But he is not sure if he will take the offer.

Instead, he wants to revive his now-banned union, believing that government-run unions fail to serve the interests of Chinese workers.

Just recently, he has been distracted from all that by a dispute with a new landlord trying to evict him and his pregnant wife from their two-room apartment.

Last Thursday, a district court summoned Han over the dispute. The meeting ended with court staff beating him and throwing him handcuffed into a cell for an hour, Han said. He was hospitalized a few days later.

He is suing the court staff for illegal detention and assault. Several other Chinese dissidents also have tried in the past year to obtain legal redress for wrongs committed by authorities. None has been successful.

In interviews over several months, Han showed himself to be a soft-spoken man, quick to chuckle over life's ironies. But he repeatedly expressed unwillingness to compromise his sense of right and wrong, and acknowledged he can be hot-headed.

"Other people may be able to accept these things as unavoidable, but I can't," he said.

In March, for example, he boldly applied to stage a one man demonstration during the annual meeting of the national legislature in order to press for free labor unions. Police refused permission.

At about that time, Han began openly giving interviews to foreign journalists and discussing his hopes for reviving his union.

He takes none of the precautions other Chinese dissidents usually take. He uses his name when calling foreigners on the phone, invites them home despite police surveillance, and says, "Why not?" when reporters ask to quote him by name.

Han shrugs off concern that he will land back in jail.

"A dead pig doesn't fear being scalded by boiling water," he said, quoting a common Chinese saying.

Sometimes called "China's Lech Walesa," Han Dongfang has been in conflict with authorities since he founded an independent labor union during the 1989 pro-democracy movement.

That makes him a threat to the system, which has lost its means of scaring him into obedience as it does most citizens.

Before 1989, Han was an ordinary worker at the Fengtai Railway Maintenance Yard.

The son of a peasant father and an illiterate maid, Han received only a high-school education. He served in the army before starting work.

He had no grand dreams of trying to change China, only a nagging dissatisfaction with a system that fails to treat citizens equally.

But when Beijing college students began demonstrating for democracy in 1989, Han and four other men established Communist China's first non-official labor union. They set up office in a tent in Tiananmen Square, the students' protest headquarters.

When troops crushed the protests, Han became one of China's most-wanted criminals.

Many protest leaders went into hiding or fled China. Han marched into a police station, protested his innocence and demanded the wanted notice be retracted. Police arrested him.

After a few months in a filthy, overcrowded cell, Han became seriously ill. Guards said he was faking and took away his blankets despite severe cold.

A prison doctor stuck eight-inch needles into his abdomen and hand, trying to force him to confess.

"That was hell, really a hell," Han said. "I don't know where the strength came from to live through that."

He began a hunger strike to demand medical treatment, but guards tried to force-feed him. They inserted a hose in his nose and pumped in hot milk and rice gruel, but the hose did not go down his throat.

Authorities finally released him in April 1991 after he contracted tuberculosis and they feared he would die. He emerged from prison a skeletal 110 pounds.

Kuwaitis file claims against Iraq

KUWAIT (AP) — Zeid al-Houti's seven new teakwood fishing boats, worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, went up in smoke after Iraq invaded Kuwait in August 1990.

Saddam

The 30-year-old civil servant is one of an estimated 200,000 Kuwaitis, about one-third of the current population, who are expected to claim losses from the occupation that ended in February 1991. So far, 30,000 have completed the complicted process of filing claims.

'No amount of money can compensate me for just one day I spent in Iraqi detention camps, but I insist on getting the money because it will give me the satisfaction of taking something from Saddam.'

— Thamer Majid, police sergeant

Al-Houti did not disclose how much he seeks, but a teak boat can cost up to $100,000. The Iraqis sank or set fire to hundreds of boats along the Kuwaiti coast.

He also asks payment for damage to three ransacked apartment buildings and a store. Like many Kuwaiti government officials, al-Houti owns real estate and other commercial interests.

Claims are expected to total at least $100 billion and may come to twice that, said Adel Assem, director of government agency handling them.

Most losses were suffered by the oil industry. Iraqi soldiers sabotaged or set fire to hundreds of wells before withdrawing from the emirate, and most installations were damaged in some way.

Lack of documentation is a major obstacle for private citizens making claims, and many fear they will not be able to prove their losses.

"Because we don't have an income-tax system, nobody keeps any record of any purchased item," Assem said.

About his own case, al-Houti said: "I didn't register the boats in my name before the invasion. They're gone and I've nothing to prove they were mine."

Officials say the government might accept, as proof of loss, such documents as bank records, affidavits and census lists of personal belongings.

Claim forms provided by the U.N. Compensation Commission cover a wide variety of situations.

The 400,000 Kuwaitis who fled the country or were abroad when the invasion occurred are eligible to receive $2,500 per person, or $5,000 for a family. Payment for rape, injury or death is $2,500 per person or $10,000 per family, and imprisonment during the occupation is worth up to $10,000.

Losses of possessions and businesses of up to $100,000 per claim are included, but U.N. approval for greater losses still is pending.

In the case of al-Houti's boats, he can put in a separate claim for each.

"No amount of money can compensate me for just one day I spent in Iraqi detention camps, but I insist on getting the money because it will give me the satisfaction of taking something from Saddam," said Thamer Majid, 22, a police sergeant imprisoned for five months.

Agencies are springing up to help Kuwaitis fill out the complicated forms. Their clients range from Bedouins who lost camel herds to owners of factories and of vegetable farms still infested with Iraqi mines.

The government has said 75 buildings were destroyed and 425 damaged during the invasion and occupation.

A junkyard north of the city received about 40,000 abandoned cars that were collected after liberation, most of them beyond repair. The Iraqis drove away thousands of other cars.

By some estimates, it may take 20 years to get all the money for reparations from Iraq.

Kuwait's 50-member National Council, a partially elected assembly, has suggested the government pay each claimant up to $52,500 now and reimburse itself when the Iraqis pay up.

"I don't believe we're going to see a single penny from Iraq before Saddam dies," said Jawad Awad, an agent for a pavement-cleaning equipment who claims hundreds of thousands of dollars lost in stolen goods and voided contracts.
