Car bomb kills 15 in Beirut near Gemayel's office

By RODEINA KENAAN
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A powerful car bomb exploded in a residential area of Christian east Beirut today. Police said the blast tore off the front of eight apartment buildings, killed 15 people and wounded 68.

No group claimed responsibility for the car bomb, which exploded 500 yards from a branch office of President Amin Gemayel's right-wing Phalange Party.

Police said the explosion may indicate that Moslem and Christian extremists have launched a new round of retaliatory car bombings in Lebanon's civil war.

The bombing occurred about two miles from Beirut's southern slums, where Syrian troops deployed to stop fighting between militant Shiite Moslems.

Police said a blue Volvo car packed with an estimated 220 pounds of TNT exploded on crowded Rmaeil Street in the Ashrafiyeh district at 10:35 a.m. (5:35 a.m. Texas time). Ten of the 15 bodies were charred beyond recognition, police said.

The explosion gouged a crater three feet deep and six feet wide in the road. Three bulldozers were brought in to remove the debris.

The blast gutted several shops and destroyed the fronts of eight apartment buildings. More than 20 other buildings were badly damaged and at least 30 cars were reduced to piles of smoldering, twisted metal.

Firemen battled several blazes ignited by the explosion, and ambulances ferried casualties to hospitals. Radio stations broadcast urgent appeals for blood donations. Severed overhead power cables dangled onto the street and broken glass littered the area for 300 yards around the blast scene.

Phalangist militiamen and others from the Lebanese Forces, the Christians' main militia, cordoned off the blast site and fired in the air to clear paths for fire engines and ambulances through the traffic.

Walking past pools of blood, a jeweler picked pieces of gold bracelets, rings and necklaces scattered outside his devastated store.

Rights, arms on agenda

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, left, gestures this morning as he and President Reagan begin the second day of their summit conference.

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

MOSCOW — President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev neared agreement Monday on a secondary nuclear arms accord during a second round of summit talks that preceded a dramatic effort by Reagan to champion the cause of human rights and religious freedom.

Reagan visited a monastery and implored Gorbachev to permit a new era of religious freedom. Quoting Russia's pre-revolutionary writer, Alexander Pushkin, he said: "It's time, my friend, it's your strength."

But the Soviets were giving no ground on the touchy human rights questions. After Reagan finished an extraordinary meeting with dissidents and refuseniks, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said, "They are not the best of the Soviet public; rather, on the contrary."

His White House counterpart, Marlin Fitzwater, said the formal summit session focused on arms control. There were signs "the two sides were coming together" on an arms-test notification procedure, he said. The accords had seemed sidetracked just last week, but Gerasimov said, "I believe that tomorrow we will have a draft treaty on the launching of ballistic missiles." Gerasimov called the session "businesslike," and said Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Gorbachev still hopes to come to agreement with Reagan on a far more important treaty to reduce strategic arms arsenals. Arms control working groups continue to meet.

To the several dozen dissidents and refuseniks and members of their families arrayed before him at the U.S. Embassy guesthouse, the president said: "I came here hoping to do what I could to give you strength."

"But I already know it is you who have strengthened me. You have given me a message to carry back: While we press for human rights through diplomatic channels, you press with your very lives, day in, day out, year after year, risking your jobs, your homes, your all."

He said the United States "views human rights as fundamental, absolutely fundamental, to our relations with the Soviet Union and all nations."

Reagan said it was "a hopeful time" for the Soviets, with the release of political and religious prisoners and an increase in the number of people allowed to emigrate. Even so, he said the Kremlin does not meet the stan-

Memorial Day '88

Veterans were honored in Howard County this weekend, with ceremonies conducted Sunday and this morning. The mournful sound of buglers playing taps and the cadence of marchers in Memorial Day parades helped Americans remember those who died fighting for their country, while beaches and parks were packed with holiday revelers.

A sea of fluttering American flags marked the 72,000 graves at Willamette National Cemetery in Portland, Ore. Officials planned ceremonies of remembrance today at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia and at the Vietnam Memorial in Washington.

In Gettysburg, Pa., Gen. William Westmoreland, commander of U.S. troops in Vietnam during the war, planned to speak after a parade honoring soldiers who died in the Civil War battle 125 years ago this summer.

In Omaha, Neb., a brass band today planned to wend its way through a pioneer cemetery to salute a 19th century madam called "the hooker with a heart of gold."

And on Attu Island, Alaska, Americans and Japanese erected a monument that was to be dedicated to the thousands of soldiers from both sides of the Pacific who died there — the site of the only World War II battle fought on North American soil.

A snowstorm in the Southwest stranded some campers in Cedar Breaks National Monument in Utah and whipped up waves that sank an unoccupied 60-foot houseboat on Lake Powell, authorities said.

Temperatures in the 80s lured hundreds of thousands of sunbathers to beaches from Massachusetts to South Carolina.

"It's like the people are saying, 'Welcome to summer,'" said police Sgt. William Selig of Rockport, Mass. "It's like this until the cold weather comes. In a few months we'll be looking forward to fall."

In Ocean City, Md., a swimmer drowned in the ocean 90 minutes before lifeguards went on duty Saturday for the first time in the season, police said.

An estimated 100,000 people headed to New York City beaches on Sunday to enjoy sun and sand on the opening weekend of the summer beach season.

Lifeguards were on duty for the first time this year at the city's Jones Beach

State Park, but there wasn't much for them to do because of the cold water.

"Most people are just sunbathing," said Joseph Lescinski, park superintendent.

About 10,000 people, mostly bikers, ended their two-day American Motorcycle Jamboree on Sunday in Cobleskill, 30 miles west of Albany, N.Y.

"I didn't see a single wheeler," Mayor Nicholas Iorio said.

The Prospect Hill Preservation Brass Band planned its eighth-annual Memorial Day tribute to Anna Wilson, who ran Omaha's highest-priced house of ill repute for 30 years before donating it to the city as a hospital shortly before her death in 1911.

In Menands, N.Y., a veterans group took time out from the weekend sun and fun to honor President Chester A. Arthur, who is buried in the Albany Rural Cemetery.

"Nobody else had opted in an official capacity to do anything for this former president," said Martin O'Connell, organizer of the memorial service for the nation's 21st president, who served from 1881-1885. "I think it's shameful that the federal government should ignore the grave of a former commander-in-chief on Memorial Day weekend."

In Hackensack, N.J., submarine veterans Sunday held their 15th annual ceremony in memory of the 52 submariners lost in World War II and peace time.

A wreath was tossed into Boston Harbor from the 190-year-old USS Constitution.

The Dallas Independent School District has yet to appoint women to such key positions, but in 1986, Houston, the largest district in the state, hired as its superintendent Joan Raymond, who had held the

"They're closer to the at-risk kids, and I think their care and concern will make reforms much more successful and help lower the dropout rate," he said. "Now that they're interpreting the law, they can put that sensitivity to the individual student, and I think we'll all come out ahead."

Suspect in slaying tells of death scene

By SARAH LUMAN

A Big Spring man charged with murder graphically described the killing of an inmate man during a hearing Friday.

The man, who was charged with the murder of another inmate, told the jury he had killed the victim because he was afraid of him.

St. Paul, Minn. was the scene of the slaying April 11.

my truck, and Manuel got in the truck and Leroy got in.

"I left my house and drove west on Second Street," till I got to Brown (Street), and turned north on Brown and drove to a trash pit that I knew about.

"I went there because it was a secluded area, and I stopped and got off. I got a piece of pipe out of the back of my truck and I went around to the front of the truck and laid it on the bumper... so (Garcia) couldn't see it."

"And Leroy got off and told Garcia to get out, and he got off and took the pipe, and Leroy was talking to Manuel, and I swung at him."

"Manuel turned and saw me, and he put up his arm and blocked the first swing, so I hit him in the arm. Then I swung again, and I hit him in the head I guess, and there was blood."

I later went and I gassed up my truck and then I left to Odessa.

"He fled Odessa for Seminole and Seminole for Oklahoma City, he said, then went to St. Paul, Minn. He was afraid for his life, he said, because of his brother's threat, in rest, he said his two strongest fears were his brother and the Texas Syndicate."

He described his brother, Ricardo Flores, 32, as a general in the Alamaz gang members. He said gang induced Villareal into the gang during the April 1 party, but he was not allowed to witness the induction.

He said he was not a member of the gang and did not want to be.

"Didn't you get in a fight with your brother because you had just killed one of his friends that he had invited from out of town especially"

Dallas psychic responds to man's loss

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) — A psychic who played a role in finding the bodies of two men in Flathead County six years ago has been consulted in a similar case — again in Flathead County and again involving a missing person from Browning.

The missing man is Larry Running Crane, 21, who was last seen May 14 at a Columbia Falls bar.

The psychic is Bertie Catchings of Dallas, who said last week she feels Running Crane is dead, the victim of foul play.

"I feel that foul play took place," she told the Kalispell Daily Inter Lake. "He is no longer living."

She said she thinks two men he did not know "intersected" Running Crane, "took over his car and took him over and left him in this isolated area."

The "area" is not more than 15 miles from where Running Crane met the men and is full of trees and brush and off the main road, she said.

There is a boulder by the side of the road, and a sign that says something about a route or a scenic route. The car, she said, might later have been used in a crime and been abandoned somewhere in the direction of California.

She said she was contacted by Running Crane's family, who knew of her work from a 1982 case involving two Browning men — Thomas Running Rabbit Jr. and Harvey Mad Man Jr.

The two young men were missing for several weeks before their families called in Catchings, who reportedly described the place where a relative eventually found the bodies — a wooded area near Marias Pass, just off U.S. Highway 2.

"A lot of the things she said were not perfectly accurate, but they were close," said David Running Rabbit, the dead man's brother. "She was a part of finding my brother, although she was not solely responsible for finding him."

Mad Man and Running Rabbit had picked up a trio of Canadians who were hitchhiking along the highway. One of the hitchhikers — Ronald Smith of Red Deer, Alberta — murdered the two Browning men with a sawed-off rifle.

The trio stole the victims' car and was later arrested, and Smith has since been sentenced to death for the crimes. He remains on Montana's death row, and his sentence is under appeal.

David Running Rabbit said Catchings described a monument like the Theodore Roosevelt obelisk that stands at Summit on Marias Pass, and told the searchers to look a specific number of miles west of it.

She said the bodies would be found near a path not far off the road, under some brush, which they were, Running Rabbit said.

Running Crane was last seen at the Blue Moon bar in Columbia Falls at about 1 a.m. May 14, authorities said. Earlier that evening, according to his girlfriend, he left the Columbia Falls motel where they were staying and said he would be right back.

Catchings said she sometimes does psychic readings for pay, but helps in police cases voluntarily. She has advised in the Running Crane matter entirely by telephone. She said she might be able to help more if she had a map or picture of the area.

Running Crane is 5-foot-7, weighs 150 pounds and was driving a white 1971 Dodge Dart.

Traffic prompts shooting

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — A woman was shot and at least two people were injured during fights believed to have erupted because of traffic backups from a Memorial Day weekend concert and a fajita cookoff at the Pasadena Fair Grounds Sunday, police said.

Sherri Longoria, 24, was in "extremely critical" condition late Sunday with a gunshot wound, said Theresa Kowpak, Hermann Hospital administrative manager. Javier Torres, 17, and Joe Torres, 26, were both in critical but stable condition with stab wounds. Ms. Kowpak did not know the victims' hometowns.

Ms. Parks said at least one other person was injured but police were unsure of the number because they were still gathering information late Sunday.

"It was initiated, it looks like, because of traffic problems," said Betty Parks police spokeswoman.

Ms. Parks said 11 people were arrested on a variety of charges and up to 20 witnesses were being questioned on the fights that began at about 8:30 p.m.

"The traffic congestion started there on the northwest corner of the Fairgrounds," Ms. Parks said. "Complicating traffic problems was a car had gone into a ditch. Tempers flared, one guy pulled a gun and it got out of hand."

Ms. Parks said traffic was leaving from a fajita cookoff held at rodeo grounds at the fairgrounds.

"I'm still alive, that's what counts in a country like ours," he said, refusing to give his name.

Zeina Ghobril, 24, a telephone switchboard operator whose home was gutted in the blast, said: "My father died six months ago, leaving us only this house to live in. Now the house is gone and my mother and I have nowhere to go."

Christians and Moslems have frequently attacked each other with car bombs during Lebanon's 13-year-old civil war, killing hundreds of people and wounding thousands.

Five weeks ago, 69 people were killed and 111 wounded in the northern port of Tripoli, a predominantly Sunni Moslem city 50 miles north of Beirut, when a car bomb exploded in a vegetable market. Officials blamed Christians.

Today's bombing came two days after Syrian troops deployed throughout Beirut's southern slums to stop fighting between Shiite Moslem militias.

The Syrians were enforcing a cease-fire between the Iranian-backed Hezbollah and the Syrian-backed Amal militia, who had battled for three weeks for control of the maze of alleyways and cement-block shanties.

Police said 296 people were killed and 1,000 wounded in the street battles, which left Hezbollah, or Party of God, in control of most of the area.

Summit

dards spelled out by the 1975 Helsinki agreement on human rights.

Reagan was applauded warmly by the audience, but likely inflamed Soviet sensitivity on the subject. Before his arrival here, Gorbachev and other Soviet leaders said they didn't want to be lectured on human rights.

Reagan also expressed hopes for religious freedom in the Soviet Union, pointing out that thousands of homes of worship "are now closed, boarded up or used for secular purposes."

The second day of summitry also was marked by a new air of optimism that agreement could be reached on two secondary arms-control pacts that had been stalled.

Explaining the progress, Gerasimov said a compromise now seemed possible in counting cruise missiles carried on warplanes and on placing mobile missiles in defined regions in order to keep track of them.

These are two of the verification problems blocking a new treaty to reduce strategic nuclear weapons.

But the Soviet official said the United States was preventing a resolution of the problem of monitoring cruise missiles on submarines. He said the Soviets had proposed a test in which two ships, one carrying cruises and the other none of the weapons, would be monitored.

He said the proposal had been turned down as an intrusion and probably because the United States has an edge in sea-launched cruise missiles. Gerasimov said that was "an illusion" and "only temporary."

Fitzwater and Gerasimov said the two leaders also reviewed their differences on the U.S. Star Wars missile defense program, but that neither side altered its views. "There was no changing of minds, more an exchange of views," the U.S. spokesman said.

Reagan attended a morning meeting with Gorbachev and then paid a visit to Moscow's oldest monastery, where he was greeted by bearded monks and the peeling of church bells.

Later, he held an extraordinary meeting at the U.S. ambassador's residence with Soviet refuseniks and dissidents. One speaker, Gleb Yakunin, a Russian Orthodox priest, lost his parish 22 years ago and was sentenced to a labor camp.

He said the constraints on religions resulted in a decline of morals, growth of alcoholism and drug addiction and stagnation of the economy, and said that Gorbachev's program of perestroika, or restructuring, "is unthinkable without true freedom of religion."

Reagan's second day in Moscow began with a meeting with Gorbachev in St. Catherine's Hall behind the brick walls of the Kremlin enclave.

About 30 seconds after a clock chimed 10 a.m., the gold doors at opposite ends of the room were opened and, from the left, in walked Gorbachev leading the Soviet delegation, while from the right, the president led the U.S. participants.

They met at the center of the table and shook hands, then shook hands with each member of the other delegation.

The Soviet leader was asked by reporters if he would act on the 14 human rights cases included on a list presented by Reagan on Sunday. "There are too many lists," Gorbachev replied.

Commenting on Soviet willingness to allow his meeting with dissidents and refuseniks, Reagan said, "They did that for me so that I'd feel at home."

Government plans for lab should be studied carefully

In 1972, the major powers signed an accord banning the development, production and stockpiling of biological weapons. It was a historic breakthrough, but it does not mean that the world is safe from the dangers of germ warfare.

Biological and chemical weaponry remain the "poor nation's atomic bombs." And as Iraq's hideous gas attacks against soldiers and civilians in the Gulf war shows, the use of these weapons remains a real possibility.

Because of the threat of clandestine germ-weapon production, the major powers — under the accords of a 1972 pact — maintain bio-weapon research facilities. These laboratories are used to develop countermeasures, including antidotes, protective clothing and detectors.

While the need to maintain a defensive capability exists, the U.S. Army's plans for a new bio-weapon lab at Dugway Proving Ground in Utah should be studied carefully. Residents are concerned about deadly biological agents escaping the lab.

This is an understandable fear, given both the Army's past record of mishandling gas weapon tests at Dugway and a recent congressional report of "serious deficiencies" in safety procedures at other Army chemical and biological test sites.

For these reasons, a full congressional review is justified. Safety is a primary concern. Although the lab is a maximum containment facility, serious consideration should be given to situating it in an even more remote site.

Also, congressional oversight should be strict, monitoring both the number and types of test and biological agents used. These safeguards could reduce safety concerns and international fears that the site could be used for the mass production of new germ agents.

That such a lab is even considered necessary is a chilling reminder of how much further we need to go to ban weapons of mass destruction.

New airline idea might never get off the ground

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

My friend Rigsby, the entrepreneur, currently is hatching another of his get-rich-quick schemes.

He sounded excited when he told me about his idea over lunch.

"You heard smoking is now banned on all commercial flights in California, didn't you?" he asked.

I said I had. There was a near riot aboard a TWA jet when smokers rebelled against the new anti-smoking law.

"And things are just going to get worse," Rigsby went on. "After April, smokers will not be allowed to light up on any flight anywhere in the country of two hours or less. There are going to be a lot of uncomfortable smokers flying around up there."

I agreed, but I wanted to know where all this fits in with Rigsby's new idea.

"An all-smokers airline," he beamed.

"I don't understand," I said.

"It's simple," Rigsby explained. "I'm going to lease some airplanes and start a new airline for smokers only."

"You can smoke all you want on my airline. In fact, I will encourage smoking. Flight attendants will carry cigarettes up and down the aisle like the girls in Vegas. I'll charge five bucks a pack. A smoker who runs out of cigarettes on an airplane is a desperate individual who will pay anything for another pack."

I admitted the idea had some promise.

"What are you going to call your airline?" I asked Rigsby.

"I've got my marketing staff on that now," he said. "We're thinking of something that will really catch the smoking public's attention. 'Black Lung Airlines' was one thought."

"I don't think so," I said.

Lewis Grizzard

"Then, how about 'Air Emphysema'?"

"Keep trying."

"OK," said Rigsby, "but let me tell you what else I'm going to offer on my all-smokers airline."

"First we're going to make certain no non-smokers come aboard and make life miserable for our customers. We will check each passenger's teeth and fingers. If they aren't yellow from smoking, they don't get a boarding pass."

"We're not going to fly high enough to need cabin pressurization so our passengers won't have to worry about ever having to use those oxygen masks and not being able to smoke."

"Our flight crew will all be smokers, as well as our flight attendants, mechanics, reservationists and boarding agents."

"But," I asked, "won't all that smoking make it uncomfortable on the plane?"

"Of course not," said Rigsby. "Smokers love smoke, and we're going to issue a miner's hat with the little light on the front so passengers can find the lavatories regardless of how thick the smoke is in the cabin."

"When will your ad campaign begin?" I asked my friend.

"Shortly," he said.

"What's your hook?"

"It's a great one — 'An all-smokers airline, here to serve you just in the nick of time.'"

Who am I to scoff? They laughed at Wilbur and Orville, too.

Says thank you for band concert

To the editor:

Just a belated "Thank You" for inviting the Army Field Band and Soldiers Chorus to our town. It was an enjoyable affair — let's have more of the high quality affairs — open to all the public.

The auditorium looked nice — but when it is going to get padded seats and air conditioning?

Students should be commended

To all area students:

I want to take this opportunity to express my appreciation for you all. Saturday May 21, Highland Mall hosted a "Celebrate Summer — 1988 GET OUTTA SCHOOL PARTY" for our area kids.

We had Rock and Roll bands to play for us all day and had a lot of fun. This is the second party we have had for the students and we think we have some great kids here. You have made your parents proud.

Teens often get called on errors and rarely praised for their goodness. We have never had to express disapproval to anyone at these parties. They have all been polite and delightful.

Thanks kids — let's do it again next year.

For the employees and merchants at Highland Mall.

SHERRY ROSE

A Pepsi generation in Soviet Union

On the right

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Because I am a journalist, I have here in front of me a pretty little white shopping bag on which is printed, in red and blue letters, first "Stolichnaya," then "Pepsi" and then, "Moscow Summit 1988."

A packet of printed matter begins with, "Dear Editor or Reporter: A hopeful sidebar to the Moscow summit meeting will be improved trade relations between the United States and the Soviet Union."

And then the gifts: one Stolichnaya T-shirt, marked "Moscow Summit 1988," one street map of Moscow, one can of Pepsi, and one two-jigger bottle of Stolichnaya vodka. The packet includes a "news release" from Hill & Knowlton, public relations counselor to Pepsi. The heading is "Moscow Summit leaders might draw inspiration from beverage accord."

It's the last word that does it. Plenty of people get inspiration from drinking vodka. In Russia, its consumption is the principal form of escapism from what another journalist, Henry Kamm of The New York Times, called a few years ago "the greatest assault on the human spirit ever mounted," namely, Soviet communism. But the word "accord" bounces happily about in the material sent to us journalists, in the dithyrambic literature of PepsiCo celebrating Soviet-American trade relations.

We get a printed chronology of the great war stations of Pepsi's cultivation of Soviet trade. It begins: "1959 — Donald M. Kendall, president of Pepsi-Cola International, arranges for a Pepsi exhibit at the American national exhibition in Moscow. U.S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev visit the exhibit and photos of Khrushchev drinking Pepsi are carried by papers around the world."

There are 17 chronological entries carrying through developments in 1988. We are told how the Great Deal was consummated: The Pepsi people can sell Pepsi in the Soviet Union, and in return they import Russian Stolichnaya vodka and sell it to the United States — as of 1988, 1 billion Pepsis sold per year to the Soviet Union, and 676,000 cases of Stolichnaya sold to Americans.

The landmark year, the literature informs us, was 1972. That was then when the deal was made. "President Reagan and General Secretary Gorbachev might consider having bottles of Stolichnaya and Pepsi-Cola on display at the Moscow summit meeting to remind them of the fact that the two countries have been cooperating successfully for many years."

It quite evidently never occurred to Hill & Knowlton that if Gorbachev and Reagan do drink a Pepsi and slug down a Stolichnaya, exactly nothing will be symbolically different from when Nixon and Khrushchev did the identical thing back in 1959.

Nor did it occur to the Pepsi people that the other deal signed in 1972 is called SALT I, which was designed to contract the number of nuclear missiles the Soviet Union has sitting there aimed at the American people. As the sales of Pepsi mounted, so did the creation of nuclear missiles. Eighty percent of existing missiles in the Soviet Union were manufactured since 1972.

One wonders whether Mr. Kendall, who doesn't like to miss commercial possibilities, has put in for Pepsi concessions in Gulag? Now it is assumed that this is nowadays an insignificant market, but Michael Makarenko has recently released a report that startling conclusions that there is more forced labor now in the Soviet Union than there was under Leonid Brezhnev.

Who's he? Makarenko is a founding father of Resistance International (P.O. Box 70265 S.W., Washington, D.C. 20024), and ever since he himself left Gulag (eight years, for political dissent) he has studied, using Soviet data, the population of the Gulag world.

It was down, under Khrushchev, to a mere 3 million. But it rose, under Brezhnev, to 9.4 million. It would surprise the Pepsi people that the figure, Makarenko believes, is higher now — for one very good reason. It is that Russian labor — we are talking about millions of people — is needed in parts of the Soviet Union that no free man would consent to live in.

It is for that reason that "parasites" and "hooligans" are shipped by the hundreds of thousands to Siberia to mine the coal, hack down the lumber, and drill the oil and gas on which the Soviet economy depends, among other things, to make it possible to buy 1 billion shots of Pepsi every year.

Ah, but obviously the public relations people figure it's better for the bottom line to go this way, and who knows? Maybe under perestroika the Gulag people will receive free Pepsi down the line.

One wonders whether Hill & Knowlton would take an account for Pepsi if it decided to crank up the same gemutlichkeit with South Africa? The problem is academic for those of us who pause for refreshment with Coca-Cola.

Dukakis: A dry, competent candidate

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEARS

WASHINGTON — In the privacy of Washington's smoke-filled back rooms, Democratic leaders acknowledge that they have been choosing poor candidates for president.

In 1976, Jimmy Carter was unknown beyond Georgia, untested in national politics and unqualified for the job. Then, the Democrats nominated Walter Mondale, who was qualified, but boring.

Now they are about to nominate a candidate as unknown as Carter and as unexciting as Mondale. Michael Dukakis has emerged too suddenly from national obscurity for Americans to really get to know him.

We looked into this virtual unknown who wants to be president of the United States, and here is our appraisal:

Dukakis comes across as dry and dull, but competent. Yet those who know him unanimously agree he is a politician of broad gauge, deep thought and lofty vision.

He not only believes in the American Dream; he has been living it. His father, Panos Dukakis, arrived on these shores at the age of 15, penniless and unable to speak English. Within eight years, Panos Dukakis was working his way through Harvard Medical School.

He impressed on his son that America is "the land of opportunity."

Prodged by his demanding father, Mike Dukakis became a straight-A student, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Swarthmore College and a cum laude graduate of Harvard Law School. Yet he found time to play the trumpet and participate in athletics.

Dukakis was revolted by the rough-and-tumble of Boston politics, yet inspired at the same time by the sophistication and idealism of his hero, John F. Kennedy.

He has explained his choice of politics as a career: "I was bound and determined to remake the Democratic Party in Massachusetts to reflect what I saw in Kennedy."

If Dukakis lacked the Kennedy magic, he faithfully pursued — in his humdrum way — the Kennedy ideal.

There was a note of equable dignity that characterized Dukakis, the reformer. He demonstrated his ability to suppress his sense of outrage and impulse while he used his analytical prowess to penetrate the system he wanted to reform.

Though he avoided the corruption, he embraced the liberalism that also characterizes Massachusetts. He might even qualify as a flaming liberal, except, of course, Dukakis never flames.

He also has a capacity for reducing provocative liberal orthodoxy to mundane facts and arguments.

A group of University of Utah political scientists has conducted a thorough examination of Dukakis' record for the Voters Caucus, a non-profit voter education group.

They say Dukakis advocates government solutions to the problems that ail America and is willing to raise taxes to pay for more federal solutions.

He believes strongly, for example, that "the government must actively intervene in the economy and attract and promote new businesses with federal tax dollars to develop and create needed employment here in the United States."

On foreign and defense policy, Dukakis adheres to the liberal line: against U.S. intervention in Third World affairs; against military intervention in Central America; for more limits on armaments; for a "substantial" reduction in nuclear arms and against underground nuclear testing.

He would halt research on Star Wars and reduce funding for the space program. Politically, he might be described as Ted Kennedy with eyebrows.

Of small physical stature, Michael Dukakis seems to be larger than he is, through knack of carriage. Those who know him believe he will live up to the illusion.

Footnote: The Voters Caucus is a non-partisan, non-profit, all-volunteer group founded by the International Platform Association to promote voter education. Jack Anderson is president of IPA.

NO TURNING BACK — Once the wheels of government get rolling in the wrong direction, it is nearly impossible to reverse them. The case of the Tongass National Forest on the Gulf of Alaska is a perfect example.

In 1980, Congress declared that 5.5 million acres of the 16.8-million acre forest to be wilderness. At the time, the Tongass was a profitable logging area for Japanese and American pulp mills.

To protect the logging economy, Congress ordered the U.S. Forest Service to spend at least $40 million a year to make timber easily available in the non-wilderness parts of the Tongass.

Since 1980, the timber market has taken a nose dive, but the Forest Service, under a mandate from Congress, has continued to spend money in the Tongass, mostly for roads to reach timber stands that no one wants to cut.

The timber industry interprets the act of Congress to mean that the U.S. Forest Service is supposed to keep the Tongass logging operations profitable, no matter what the market conditions.

The General Accounting Office says Congress never intended to protect the industry from a declining market, but only meant to make the timber readily available.

The GAO recently investigated expenditures in the Tongass and has recommended that Congress should amend the spending requirement to be more flexible to the demand for timber.

MINI-EDITORIAL — Moscovs is about to build its first shopping mall, but they've got it all wrong. The Moscow mall will take only hard currency and will be open only to diplomats, tourists and mucky-mucks.

No credit cards, no video arcades, no kids with spiked hair? We just bet they'll have no chocolate chip cookies and no corn dogs, either. Sorry, Moscow, but that's no mall.

Beached whale dies

ABERDEEN, Wash. (AP) — Two dozen volunteers trying to save a beached 28-foot gray whale shielded it from the sun and poured water on it to prevent dehydration, but the whale died after a few hours.

The whale was discovered thrashing in the surf on an ocean beach Friday afternoon by Naomi Leonardo, a youngster from Kirkland who notified police.

When Lyle Moss, a nearby resident, saw it was still on the beach Saturday morning, he called Grays Harbor County sheriff's deputies. Other residents and high school students also responded.

Cocaine leads to death

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Cocaine led to the drowning death of a 10-year-old boy, an autopsy found, but his grandmother won't believe it.

"I'll go to my grave and they'll never convince me that my grandson used drugs," said Geraldine Baker, who raised Andrew Baker for the first nine years of his life.

But the Will County coroner's office said it found evidence of cocaine in his bloodstream, the Chicago Tribune reported Sunday.

"You wouldn't even expect this in Chicago. Why it happened here, how it happened here, we don't know," said Charles Connor, mayor of this town of 77,000 people, 30 miles southwest of Chicago.

The county coroner's office determined the fourth-grader drowned in a YMCA swimming pool April 16 because cocaine in his blood caused him to lose consciousness.

The pathologist who performed an autopsy found a cluster of fungus in the boy's heart — evidence the boy had been injected previously with a dirty hypodermic needle or impure drugs, said Chief Deputy Coroner William Ferguson.

Sound of falling piano

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — A furniture store owner who had wanted to hear the sound of a piano dropped from a helicopter left money in his will allowing 300 people to hear an English upright's thud, crash, kapow, bang and boom.

"It's the kind of thing he loved," said Jerry Reed, who described himself as John "J.C." Cameron Young's drinking buddy. "I think he would have thought it was wild. Life was a crazy experience for him, and he had his foot to the floorboard."

Young died of under unexplained circumstances three years ago at age 44. He was found in his car at the bottom of a ravine. His will specified that $15,000 from his $800,000 estate go for a party for his friends. It cost $2,000 to arrange the piano plunge Saturday.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Firemen stand outside the charred remains of a central Phoenix home after a single-engine plane crashed into the backyard, killing its pilot and three people attending a Memorial Day weekend picnic.

Plane crashes

Kill eight in three states

By The Associated Press

Separate small plane crashes killed eight people, including four who died when a plane smashed into a Phoenix, Ariz., house and a stunt pilot who slammed into the ground before thousands of spectators at an airshow in Texas.

A family and friends were picnicking by a backyard swimming pool Sunday when a single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza crashed into the house, killing the female pilot, a 10-year-old girl and two adult guests of the youngster's parents, authorities said.

Four other picnickers, including a 9-year-old girl who was in the pool, were injured by debris or flames, and two houses were destroyed, Phoenix fire department spokesman Collin DeWitt said.

"I saw it go down behind trees ... I didn't hear the impact, but then I saw the smoke right away," said David Terrace, an aviation buff who lives in the palm-shaded neighborhood near downtown. "The last I saw it, the plane was going in at about a 45-degree angle."

The pilot had flown the plane from Farmington, N.M., to Sedona, about 90 miles north of Phoenix before backtracking to Sky Harbor International Airport to drop off passengers, police Sgt. Andy Anderson said.

The crash, reported at 5:40 p.m., triggered a two-alarm fire that firefighters put out about an hour later, DeWitt said.

Firefighters found the body of Jennifer Lynn Pedersen, 10, near the pool. Authorities withheld the names of the other victims.

Near Horizon City, Texas, stunt pilot Jerry Lynn

Fowler, 29, was killed Sunday when his Pitts S-25 biplane failed to pull out of a loop, crashed into the ground and skidded into a lake, authorities said.

At least 2,000 people at Mountain Shadow Lakes witnessed the accident, which happened about a mile from where spectators were assembled for a balloon festival and air show.

Many people weren't aware at first that the plane had crashed. Hundreds gathered at water's edge to try to see what happened, but saw only a cloud of dust where the plane hit the ground and skidded into the water across the lake.

On Saturday, three people were killed when a single-engine plane crashed in rugged terrain west of Jamestown, Colo., Boulder County sheriff's officials said.

The victims, from Lakewood, Colo., were identified as Rory Lee Brown, 38; JoJean Marie McCoy, 26; and Christopher Lee Gonzales, 16. Brown was identified as the pilot of the 1957 Mooney, authorities said Sunday.

Officials of the Federal Aviation Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board were investigating the cause of the crash.

In Meriden, Conn., a flight instructor and a student were injured Sunday when the twin-engine Beechcraft 180 they were in slammed into the back of a house just seconds after takeoff from Meriden Airport, officials said.

Three people in the home at the time of the crash escaped serious injury, Assistant Fire Chief John A. Francis said.

VD on the rise in China

BEIJING (AP) — Venereal disease, once virtually eliminated in China, is once again a problem and has in one year increased threefold in a province relatively open to foreigners, a Ministry of Public Health official said today.

Cao Qing, deputy director of the ministry's department of epidemic prevention, told a news conference that cases of sexually transmitted disease have increased in recent years as China implements its open door policy.

In 1987, authorities in Guangdong province, which borders Hong Kong and is one of China's most open areas, recorded 5,600 cases of venereal disease, three times more than the previous year, he said.

Cao said he believes the actual figure to be much higher because those who contract the disease do not voluntarily come forward.

Ship to unload wastes

GENOA, Italy (AP) — For 15 months, the freighter known as the "ship of poison" roamed the seas trying to find a port that would dispose of its 2,200 tons of Italian-produced toxic chemical wastes.

Djibouti, Venezuela, Syria and Greece were tried and refused.

Now, the Syrian freighter Zanoobia has come full circle. It docked Sunday after Genoa officials agreed to accept and incinerate the toxic cargo.

"The condition of my crew is very bad," Capt. Ahmed Tabalo said after the ship docked. "For three months we have not entered a port. Now we are all nauseous and sick to the stomach."

Lawyers for the ship's owner, Tabalo Shipping, say two people have died, possibly after being contaminated by the wastes — a boy in Venezuela and a Zanoobia crewman during the voyage to Italy.

Summer heat kills 23

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — At least 23 people died of sunstroke in northern and central India over the weekend as the region sweltered under the worst summer heat in 20 years, news reports said today.

Seven of the victims died at a temple at Goverdhan town, 90 miles south of New Delhi, the United News of India news agency reported. The victims were walking the circumference of the temple, a necessary ritual in the Hindu religion before entering a shrine.

UNI quoted Ramesh Yadav, a government official, as saying that four other people also died of sunstroke near Goverdhan.

Further south, at least seven people died in Nagpur town, the Press Trust of India news agency said. The central town recorded a maximum temperature of 115.2 degrees on Sunday.

Mother of nine killed at home

NEW YORK (AP) — A mother of nine was holding her month-old baby when she was shot by gunmen firing into her home, and screamed, "Lord help me!" just before she died, a witness says.

Maxine Peterson, a 43-year-old nurse, was shot Saturday night by four gunmen who ran by her home in the Queens borough, firing 18 to 20 bullets into the house, said police Lt. Eugene Dunbar.

The four may have been looking for someone who had visited the house, and Mrs. Peterson apparently was an innocent bystander, police said.

Mrs. Peterson had just wrapped her baby, Tabitha, in a blanket and was preparing to take the infant outside, said Michelle Regean, who lives with the Petersons and was watching television in the living room.

Mrs. Peterson left the living room, entered the kitchen and had just answered the telephone when the shots rang out, said Miss Regean.

The wounded woman screamed "Lord help me!" and fell to the floor with her child, Miss Regean said. Her only other words before dying were to her husband, who was not at home at the time.

"She said, 'Johnny, take care of the children,' and then she died," said Miss Regean.

Mrs. Peterson was shot once in the head and once in the chest and was pronounced dead at the scene, Dunbar said Sunday.

The infant was not injured and landed atop her mother's chest when Mrs. Peterson fell to the ground, said Miss Regean, who is 18 and the girlfriend of Mrs. Peterson's 17-year-old son, Stephen.

Dunbar said police had no motive in the shooting.

Less than 30 minutes before the shooting, Miss Regean said, she and her boyfriend heard five or six shots fired about two blocks away. Neighbors also heard the shots, and reported seeing a man running down an alley behind the Peterson home, according to Miss Regean. She said Mrs. Peterson's relatives, along with neighbors, told police that they believe the gunmen assumed the man seen fleeing was hiding in the Peterson home.

The four ran by firing 9mm automatics into the windows before running away, Dunbar said. Two fired from the front of the brick house, and the others fired from a side, Dunbar said.

Miss Regean said police had been in the neighborhood last week, investigating reports of other shootings.

Mrs. Peterson, a nurse for the past 20 years, was on maternity leave from Jamaica Hospital, Miss Regean said.

EAST LANSING, Mich. — John Bowerbank, 27, takes advantage of Friday's warm weather by bringing his 10-foot-long pet python snake outdoors to get some sunshine and do a little swimming. Bowerbank said he has owned the 35-pound reptile named, "Monty" for about five years.

Husband wears a mask to bed

DEAR ABBY: There is no one in this world I can tell this to but you. My marriage was made in heaven. I have been married for 50 years to a man who adores me. We are financially secure and have a beautiful family of children and grandchildren.

We keep strong lights burning around our home at night for security reasons. About a year ago, my husband began wearing a sleeping mask. Naturally, I thought it was because of the brightness of our bedroom, but I learned differently. He wears it only when we make love. He talks to me at this time about how long and silky my hair is and how firm my body is — just as he did when we were first married, when I was 18 and he was 21.

When I questioned him about this, he said he was "fantasizing" and suggested that I wear a sleep mask, too, so we could both pretend that we are young again!

I can't do that, Abby. He is twice the size he was when we were married — plus, he's bald. Also my hair isn't long and silky now; it's short and gray. And my body at 68 is far from firm. However, since he started wearing the sleep mask, his lovmaking has improved so much, it's unbelievable.

Should I wear one, too?

PERPLEXED IN PASADENA

DEAR PERPLEXED: Why not? If a mask will enhance your enjoyment as it has his, go ahead and wear one.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for asking advertisers (and comedians) not to ridicule the hard of hearing.

Last Easter, I received a beautiful basket of fruit from my granddaughter. It was delivered by a local florist. I was so pleased — until I saw the card that came with it. On the outside of the envelope containing the card was written: "She is deaf, so please wait for her to answer the door."
Abby, dear, it spoiled my day.

HURT IN PATERSON, N.J.
DEAR HURT: To have written those instructions on the envelope for the recipient to see was insensitive. I hope you are not blaming your granddaughter for the thoughtlessness of the person who filled the order.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if secondhand tobacco smoke affects animals? If it's hazardous to the health of humans, it's probably bad for animals, too. I doubt if anything can be done about this legally — but morally, people should consider how secondhand smoke can affect the life span of their pets. I would be sad to learn that my smoking caused the early death of my dog, and I'm sure other people feel the same.

ROBERT J. DMUCHOWSKI, BETHPAGE, N.Y.

DEAR MR. DMUCHOWSKI: That secondhand smoke might harm a dog has never occurred to me. Of course it's cruel to subject an animal to that which might be hazardous to its health — but if smokers don't consider their spouses and children, they're not likely to be concerned about a pet.

Names in the news

SHIRLEY TEMPLE

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black says a woman once tried to kill her and a producer attempted to seduce her during her years as a child actress.

Mrs. Black, a former ambassador to Ghana, spoke to a news conference Sunday at the American Booksellers Association convention. Her autobiography, "Child Star," will be published in October by McGraw-Hill.

The seduction attempt occurred when she was 12, shortly after she switched from 20th-Century Fox to MGM, Mrs. Black said.

She said she was alone in the office of a producer, whom she did not name.

"He seemed to be rearranging his clothing with a certain amount of flourish," Mrs. Black recounted.

"I had thought he was a producer but what he really was an exhibitor. The only person I had ever seen naked was me, and I thought he was pretty funny-looking so I laughed until I had tears in my eyes."

She was ordered out of the office, she said.

The attempt on her life occurred when she was 10, when a woman "pulled out a rather big gun and started to point it" at her while she sang during a live radio appearance at CBS in Hollywood.

Police grabbed the woman and removed her from the studio, Mrs. Black recalled.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Folk-rock singer Richie Havens says his songs of protest were never directed against soldiers fighting in Vietnam, and now is trying to raise money to benefit veterans.

"At the time we were protesting the war, the media tried to make it look like we were against the soldiers," Havens said in an interview with the Sunday Star-Ledger.

"But we were never against the soldiers, we were just against what they were being ordered to do. So I don't see any contradiction in trying to help veterans' causes now."

Havens is the national spokesman for a Salute to Vietnam Veterans Concert, originally scheduled for today at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford. The concert was postponed until July 30.

New topkick lifts Padres

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

After just two games under Manager Jack McKeon, the San Diego Padres are already feeling better.

The Padres defeated the New York Mets 6-3 on Sunday, giving McKeon his first victory since taking over for Larry Bowa, who was fired the day before. It was only the fourth road victory in 20 games for the Padres and the first time they had won a road series since last Sept. 18-20 at Houston.

"It seems we're a little more carefree now," said Jimmy Jones, who allowed eight hits, walked none and struck out three in 8 2-3 innings to improve his record to 4-5. Mark Davis relieved in the ninth with two outs and a runner on first to earn his sixth save.

"You could hear him yelling encouragement from the dugout the whole game," said outfielder Tony Gwynn, a two-time batting champion who was 1-for-4 in his first game since coming off the 21-day disabled list. "He was talking to the batters in the on-deck circle, telling them what to look for."

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Chicago 7, Houston 1; St. Louis 3, Atlanta 1; Los Angeles 2, Montreal 1; Cincinnati 4, Pittsburgh 2, and Philadelphia 4, San Francisco 2.

Keith Moreland's RBI double sparked a five-run seventh inning, the Padres' biggest outburst of the season, and broke open a scoreless duel between Jones and Bob Ojeda, 4-4.

Dodgers 2, Expos 1

Kirk Gibson and John Shelby hit home runs and Orel Hershiser scattered nine hits as Los Angeles won at Montreal.

Hershiser, 7-2, struck out seven and did not walk a batter as he pitched his third complete game. It was Hershiser's first victory over Montreal since May 21, 1986.

Rookie John Dopson, 1-2, allowed only four hits in eight innings, striking out three and walking four.

Gibson hit his eighth homer in the first and Shelby hit his first of the season in the fourth.

The Expos loaded the bases in the eighth with one out on singles by Jeff Reed, Mitch Webster and Tim Raines. Hubie Brooks' sacrifice fly made the score 2-1 but Raines was caught stealing third to end the rally.

Cardinals 3, Braves 1

Jose DeLeon and Ken Dayley combined on a four-hitter for St. Louis' 11th victory in 13 games against Atlanta.

DeLeon, 4-4, allowed four hits, walked one and struck out eight but lost his bid for a shutout when Albert Hall hit his first homer of the season with one out in the bottom of the ninth. Dayley relieved and earned his second save.

Ozzie Smith drew a one-out walk against Kevin Cofman, 2-5, before Willie McGee singled, and Smith reached third when center fielder Hall bobbled the ball for an error. Tom Brunansky followed with an RBI single and McGee scored on Bob Horner's sacrifice fly, a short pop behind first that was dropped by second baseman Ron Gant.

Pirates 4, Reds 2

Andy Van Slyke drove in three runs with a groundout and a double and Bobby Bonilla hit his league-leading 12th homer as Pittsburgh won at Cincinnati.

John Smiley, 4-4, allowed just one hit over the first four innings, then gave up two unearned runs in the fifth. Eric Davis' pinch-hit single drove in one run and Smiley balked, allowing Lloyd McClendon to score.

Smiley allowed seven hits, struck out three and didn't walk a batter in 6 2-3 innings. Jim Gott pitched the final 2 1-3 innings to earn his sixth save. Dennis Rasmussen, 2-5, was the loser.

The Reds had apparently scored a run in the ninth when Dave Concepcion came home on a flyout to center by Paul O'Neill. But Concepcion was called out on an appeal to third base umpire Bob Davidson for leaving the base too soon.

Astros 7, Cubs 1

Rafael Ramirez's grand slam highlighted a six-run sixth inning and Nolan Ryan allowed three hits in 7 1-3 innings as visiting Houston defeated Chicago to snap a four-game losing streak.

It was Ramirez's second homer of the season and the first grand slam in his eight years in the major leagues. He also singled in a run in the eighth.

Ryan, 5-2, walked four and struck out four. Ryan, who has beaten the Cubs more than any other NL team, gained the 266th victory of his career and upped his lifetime mark against Chicago to 16-5. Juan Agosto and Dave Smith finished up as the Cubs were held to four hits.

Jamie Moyer, 2-6, was the loser.

Phillies 4, Giants 2

Bruce Ruffin scattered nine hits over seven innings and Chris James homered and scored twice as Philadelphia defeated San Francisco to complete a sweep of the three-game home series.

Ruffin, 4-4, who was aided by four double plays, struck out two and walked two. Steve Bedrosian pitched two hitless innings to earn his third save. Mike Krukow, 4-3, took the loss, ending a personal three-game winning streak.

After the Giants took a 1-0 lead in the first on Candy Maldonado's RBI single, the Phillies came back with two runs in the second. In the fourth, with two outs, James homered deep to left.

DALLAS — Los Angeles Laker forward A.C. Green (45) gets between Dallas Mavericks forward Mark Aguirre (24) and center James Donaldson (40) during the first half of the teams' fourth game in the Western Conference finals Sunday as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar closes in. The Mavericks won the game to even the series at 2-2.

Mears wins third Indy 500; Fittipaldi officially second

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rick Mears now owns three Indianapolis 500 victories — one for each driver who finished second on Sunday.

Mears, the fastest driver ever to qualify at Indy, struggled with early handling problems, then waited patiently for the right moment and blew untouched through a multimillion-dollar demolition derby.

At the end, it wasn't even close. Confused, certainly, in part but not in whole because of the yellow flag fever that afflicted the race from start to finish.

Only seven other drivers ever won the world's most famous race three or more times. None before the 36-year-old Mears ever had three different drivers finish twice in the same year.

First, the 400,000 or so at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway were told that Jim Crawford was second. Then, they were told that defending champion Al Unser was second. Finally, three hours later, the few still around were told that Emerson Fittipaldi was second, that he hadn't illegally passed in the pits after all and that his two-lap penalty was rescinded.

At one point, Mears' car owner, Roger Penske, thought he would go himself one better for his seventh Indy victory, sixth in 10 years, fourth in five years: a 1-2 finish, Mears and Unser.

Mears' part was never in doubt. It wasn't the fastest of his 11 Indys, but it was perhaps his best in a race in which 10 of the first 12 dropouts were victims of crashes. A record 14 times for 67 laps, the race was slowed by yellow caution flags, the last still waving at the finish to the almost audible yawn of the crowd, and Mears' winning speed of 144.809 mph was the slowest by a winner in seven years.

Unser, a four-time winner, was third, followed by Michael Andretti, Bobby Rahal and Crawford.

Even those standings were unofficial until today's posting by the U.S. Auto Club. That's the SOP for Indy.

"There was all sorts of confusion out there," Crawford said. "Some very famous people came past me under the yellow flag."

The early yellow flags kept Mears close, even when he dropped far behind the leaders, and at the end the yellow kept him in the lead after he found the right setup for his Chevrolet-powered Penske racer, the same one in which he set a four-lap qualification record of 219.198 mph two weeks earlier.

"The car just went loose and couldn't run fast enough to keep up," Mears said. "We had to survive until we could get it running the way we wanted it. I was getting frustrated because of the difference between the way it had been working (in practice and qualifications) and today. When it was loose, I couldn't run on the apron, and I needed to get there to make a run" for the leaders.

Mears, who now has led during eight of his 11 races at Indianapolis, lost his pole-position advantage to another Penske teammate, Danny Sullivan, at the very start of the race. He fell behind by more than a lap, dropping as far back as 10th place before the series of yellow lights allowed him to begin his steady comeback.

Many of the crash victims complained of track conditions, a hazardous buildup of rubber made even more slippery by the 100-degree heat of the asphalt surface.

"There was a lot of traffic," said Mears, who finally found the right setup with a tire change and wing adjustments. "A lot of guys were sliding around because of the heat wave out there. There were some close ones, but everything worked out for us."

Mears knows all about close ones. His third Indy victory put him in select company; but for a flicker or two of fate, it would have put him in a class by himself.

"It's a tough race. It's either your day or it's not. We've had a little bad luck here or we'd have two more (victories)," said Mears, who also was involved in the two closest finishes in Indy 500 history — second to Gordon Johncock by .16 seconds in 1982 and third behind Rahal and Kevin Cogan by 1.8 seconds in 1986.

Sullivan, who started from the middle of the front row, took the lead on the first lap and held it for 91 of the first 94 laps, avoiding the early accidents that wiped out nearly a third of the field.

Scott Brayton, Roberto Guerrero and Tony Bettenhausen all went out on a first-lap crash in the second turn. Later, Sullivan had already started lapping some of the slower cars when Teo Fabi and then former winner Tom Sneva spun out coming out of the fourth turn at the pit entrance.

"The car just got loose coming off the corner," said Sneva, whose crash was his sixth — a record — during his 15-year Indy career.

"The track was getting so slippery," Later crashes eliminated four-time winner A.J. Foyt, Ludwig Heimrath Jr., Steve Chassey, Sullivan and three-time winner Johnny Rutherford. Rich Vogler also went out with 41 laps to go when his car lost a wheel.

None of the drivers was seriously hurt.

"I've never seen a day like this," said Jim Gilmore, the co-owner of Foyt's car. "It's almost like Mavs, Harper overrun L.A.

DALLAS (AP) — Each time Derek Harper plays a great game against Los Angeles, he's reminded of the blunder of his career against the Lakers four years ago.

There were no such mistakes Sunday as Harper scored a career playoff high 35 points and had no turnovers in 39 minutes, leading the Mavericks to a 118-104 victory in the NBA Western Division finals.

"I certainly wasn't thinking about four years ago out there today but I'll never forget about it as long as you guys keep asking me about it," Harper said.

Harper's performance helped the Mavericks even the best-of-seven-game series at 2-2, setting up Tuesday's fifth game in Los Angeles.

The sixth game returns to Dallas Thursday night.

The Mavericks hit 61 per cent of their first half shots but still trailed the Lakers 57-56 at the half.

Magic Johnson, who led the Lakers with 28 points, scored Los Angeles' final seven points of the first half for the narrow lead.

Harper took over in the third quarter with 14 points, including a three-point play that tied it at 77 and a three-point basket that put the Mavericks ahead for good at 80-77.

The Lakers wilted in the stretch for the second straight game. They scored 18 fourth quarter points in losing Game 3 and Dallas ran off a 15-4 charge in the fourth quarter Sunday.

"We had breakdowns and their shooting was excellent," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "Dallas is showing what they are all about."

"We played well for three and one-half quarters and then we disintegrated. They dominated the boards at the end and we couldn't stop them."

The Lakers, outrebounded 52-33 in Game 3, held a 26-13 halftime rebounding lead in Sunday's game. But the Mavericks ended up with a 45-42 lead for the game.

Dallas had a club record 22 rebounds in the fourth quarter, when the Lakers got only five rebounds.

"They've done a great job on the boards," Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said. "They've been consistent and persistent. They've definitely made it tough on us to get second chance baskets."

Mark Aguirre scored 26 points for the Mavericks and had a hot streak of five straight baskets in the fourth quarter.

Pistons' Daly eyeing Celtics

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Pistons coach Chuck Daly is so wary of the Boston Celtics' never-say-die spirit that he's not even sure four victories will be enough.

"I'm afraid that if we win four games, Commissioner (David) Stern is going to declare that we have to win five to beat these guys," Daly said Sunday.

The Pistons led the best-of-seven NBA Eastern Conference finals 2-1 going into today's fourth game at the Pontiac Silverdome.

"I know for sure that their best effort will come in the next game," Daly said. "It's the game they have to have."

Daly said Larry Bird, despite missing 37 of 57 shots in the series, is the most dangerous Celtic.

Isiah Thomas, Detroit's leading scorer in the series with a 27.3 average, agrees with Daly.

"There are two types of people," Thomas said. "There are people who struggle and have a hard time overcoming it. And there are people who struggle and when they overcome it, you better run. Larry is the latter."

But Bird, who was 6-for-17 in Boston's 98-94 loss on Saturday, isn't the only slumping Celtic.

Bird has made 35.1 percent of his shots in the series, Dennis Johnson 37.2 percent, Danny Ainge 40.5 percent and Robert Parish 44.7 percent. The bench is averaging just 11.7 points per game.

"We've been down before and came back to shoot well," Bird said. "We just have to take the same shots we have been and hope they start falling."

Bird said the Celtics will continue to rely on Kevin McHale, averaging 29.8 points and hitting 62.7 percent from the field against the Pistons.

"Our best option is to get the ball to Kevin if he is in the right position in the post," Bird said. "But me and Robert and Dennis and Danny have to score more or we can't win."

"The Pistons have nobody who can guard Kevin. He has a mismatch no matter who is guarding him. If he keeps hitting the way he has been, we have to keep going to him."

Reminded that he is the only Celtics starter who is not shooting poorly, McHale laughed and said, "If I have to take 60 shots to win, I'll do it."

Teams top Crown ranks

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The inaugural West Texas Triple Crown Softball Tournament began with leg one here Saturday and Sunday, according to Triple Crown representative Ken Oldom.

"The Coca-Cola Big Spring leg saw 60 teams vying for points towards the grand finals trip to the National Triple Crown Tournament in Steamboat Springs, Colo.," he said early today.

"Six teams in their respective divisions who continue on and accumulate the highest point totals will win the $3,500 trip Aug. 12-16. "The Coca-Cola Abilene leg will follow June 17-19," he said, followed by the championship leg in San Angelo July 2-4."

First place finishers in each division in each of the three legs of the tournament receive 15 points toward the trip, he said, with second places worth 12 points and third places worth 10.

A fourth place earns nine points, a fifth earns seven points and a seventh place finish earns five points," he said.

The Big Spring Men's A/B Division championship went to Mayfield Brothers of Richardson, followed by Texas Express from Breckenridge. Bud Lite and Tall City Body Works of Midland finished third and fourth respectively.

In the women's A/B division, Fashion Floors of Midland won the championship in a finals game against Midland's Pursuit squad, followed by Blast from Lubbock in third and Slix, from Abilene, fourth.

Men's C division champs were the American G.I. Forum/Coors team from Fort Stockton, followed by San Angeloans Quality Inn, Shook Tire and Sunset Mall.

Men's D division first place finishers were Abilene's Drifters, followed by the Plainview Roland team, Gonzales Trucking, also from Plainview, and DTX from Breckenridge.

Women's C/D champs were Odessa's Challengers, Pee Wee Dalton's from Odessa in second place, Odessa's Trophy Den squad in third and Iraan Women.

The Co-Ed division champs were Larry's Auto from Midland; Mr. Gatti's from Lubbock finished second. Two Abilene teams, Your Ideas and Guys Dirt Work, finished third and fourth.

"Teams interested in entering leg two in Abilene and joining the race for points toward the national finals trip should contact Triple Crown Softball at phone number (303) 224-2502."

Dorsett elated by deal

DALLAS (AP) — Tony Dorsett was elated Sunday and said as far as he is concerned, he is already a member of the Denver Broncos.

"It will be good, something fresh in life," said Dorsett, who attended the NBA playoff game in Dallas Sunday between the Dallas Mavericks and Los Angeles Lakers. "Inspiration. It will give me added incentive."

As early as late this week, Dorsett could be leaving the Dallas Cowboys after an illustrious 11-year career to join the Broncos.

Dorsett, who has sought a trade from the Cowboys since assuming second-string duties behind Herschel Walker last fall, agreed in principle Saturday on a plan that would move him to Denver, his financial adviser said.

Dorsett said his agent, Witt Stewart, and his financial adviser, Bill Love, Saturday cleared the final financial hurdle keeping him from being traded to Denver.

All that remains is for the Broncos and the Cowboys to agree on compensation.

"I don't see any more problems from what I've been told," said Dorsett, who doesn't expect the compensation issue to be settled until later this week or early next.

"I think Tex has finally conceded and will let me go," he said, referring to Cowboys president Tex Schramm.

"The only thing that can screw it up, man, is if Tex changes his mind."

Schramm, in a telephone interview with The Associated Press, confirmed Sunday that Dorsett's days with the Cowboys appear near an end.

"We have reached a tentative (financial) agreement with Dorsett and he believes that he's reached a tentative agreement with Denver," Schramm said. "The agreement that hasn't been reached is what Denver will give us for his rights."

Schramm said he spoke Saturday to Love, but that he had not yet talked to Dorsett and didn't expect to begin talks with Denver officials until Thursday.

Filer's slow, steady pace is winning yet

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Filer is still on pace to break the major-league record for consecutive victories by a pitcher . . . a snail's pace, that is.

After stretching his seven-year winning streak to 10 games Sunday with a five-hitter in the Milwaukee Brewers' 7-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians, Filer can reasonably expect to tie the American League mark of 17 straight sometime before, say, the turn of the century. The major-league record of 24 in a row may take a while longer.

"I have some space in there, that's true. I wish I could have established myself sooner than this," said the 31-year-old right-hander, whose winning streak began in 1982 when he was 1-2 for the Chicago Cubs before spending the next two years in the minors.

Elsewhere in the AL, it was Oakland 5, Boston 4; New York 7, Seattle 3; Minnesota 6, Detroit 3; Kansas City 12, Texas 1; Toronto 4, Chicago 2; Baltimore 3, California 2.

After going 7-0 with Toronto in 1985, Filer injured his elbow and spent all of 1986 on the disabled list. He didn't pitch again in the majors until he shut out Detroit on five hits last Tuesday.

"I've been frustrated throughout my career," he said. "I had torn ligaments they had to go in and repair, and I had a nickel-sized bone spur removed. It's been very hard, with lots of ups and downs. I would turn the corner and have an injury and have to start over again."

Athletics 5, Red Sox 4

Carney Lansford, the major leagues' leading hitter at .396, signaled to start a three-run first inning and doubled and scored in the second to key Oakland's fifth consecutive victory. The Athletics scored all their runs against Jeff Sellers, 0-5.

Gene Nelson relieved Oakland starter Storm Davis with three runs in, runners at second and third and no one out in the fourth and prevented further scoring. He allowed one hit in 3 2-3 innings before giving way to Greg Cadaret and Eric Plunk.

Yankees 7, Mariners 3

Dave Winfield drove in three runs, two with his 11th homer, and John Candelaria pitched five innings for his sixth straight victory before leaving with a sore elbow.

Winfield's homer off loser Mike Campbell followed a two-out double by Mike Pagliarulo in the fifth inning after Seattle scored all its runs in the fourth to pull within 4-3.

Twins 6, Tigers 3

Kirby Puckett drove in three runs with a pair of homers as Minnesota stretched its winning streak to eight games, its longest since 1985. Puckett hit a solo homer in the third inning and a two-run shot in the fifth off Doyle Alexander that gave the Twins a 4-3 lead.

Minnesota starter Allan Anderson went seven innings, allowing the three Detroit runs, two in the first inning.

Royals 12, Rangers 1

Willie Wilson drove in four runs for the first time in six years and Bo Jackson hit a two-run homer as Kansas City batted around in successive innings. The Royals scored seven runs in the second inning off NER Bret Saberhagen scattered four hits in seven innings.

After Kevin Seitzer's single tied the score 1-1 in the second inning, Jackson followed with his ninth home run of the season, a 450-foot shot. Wilson doubled two runs across later in the inning. In the third, Kurt Stillwell had a two-run double and Wilson added a two-run single.

Blue Jays 4, White Sox 2

Rookie Pat Borders tied the score with a solo homer in the seventh inning and the winning run scored later in the inning on pitcher Dave LaPoint's throwing error. Winner John Cerutti scattered five hits over eight innings before giving way to Tom Henke and David Wells.

Orioles 3, Angels 2

Larry Sheets hit a tie-breaking two-run single in the eighth inning as Baltimore snapped its latest losing streak at four games.

First baseman Jim Eppard bobbled Joe Orsulak's one-out grounder for an error and Cal Ripken and Eddie Murray walked to load the bases with two out. DeWayne Buice relieved Greg Minton and Sheets lined his first pitch for a single and a 3-1 lead.

Mike Boddicker, 2-8, allowed four hits in eight innings-plus for his second consecutive victory following a personal 13-game losing streak. He allowed solo homers to Jack Howell in the fifth inning and Brian Downing leading off the ninth before Tom Niedenfuer came on for his fifth save.

Baltimore catcher Terry Kennedy lined a shot off pitcher Kirk McCaskill's right forearm in the fifth inning and a throw by Kennedy struck Wally Joyner on the left shoulder blade as he stole second an inning later. Both players were taken to the hospital for x-rays.

or Friday.

"He (Love) is saying is that he has reached the agreement in principal with Denver as to what his (Dorsett's) situation would be if he is traded there," Schramm said. "And if they have, in fact, made that type of an agreement then we will see if we can make a trade agreement with Denver."

Schramm said he expects Denver to give up a 1989 draft choice that would be conditional on Dorsett's performance this season.

"We expect that Tony will gain a lot of yards next season for Denver, and therefore his value will improve to us," Schramm said.

Dallas probably will ask for a third- or fourth-round draft choice that could be improved to a second-round choice, or possibly a first-round choice, depending on how many 1988 games Dorsett starts and how many yards he gains.

Dorsett's financial advisers apparently broke the trade deadlock by working out the final 2-year, $500,000 payment to a $6 million annuity the Cowboys have been funding for Dorsett. They also will evidently retire the 1985 $750,000 loan from the Cowboys, which Dorsett has yet to repay.

The loan, which was $750,000 of real estate in Arlington, reportedly will be settled by Dorsett giving the land back to the Cowboys.

As for the annuity, the Cowboys and Denver reportedly agreed to each make cash payments to Dorsett that will buy an insurance policy to replace the balance of the annuity. The annuity, when fully funded, will pay Dorsett $300,000 a year for 20 years beginning five years after he retires from football.

Dorsett, however, was not concerned himself with money Sunday. He's just ready to finish out his career under Denver head coach Dan Reeves.

"I've been here 11 years and been accustomed to playing and contributing. But that's no longer the case in Dallas. I go from from one week to running as well or better than I ever had in my career to being chopped liver the next."

Dorsett, though, holds no hard feelings toward Walker, whose promotion to first-team running back last year turned Dorsett into a disgruntled backup for the first time in his career.

"No, I don't think Herschel ran me out of town," Dorsett said. "Let's say, maybe Tex ran me out of town, or Tom Landry ran me out of town."

"Not playing me ran me out of town."

International Rebs bop Indians

Mike Hernandez allowed 11 hits and suffered nine runs Saturday as the International Little League Rebels overcame the Indians, 16-9.

Indian slugger T.J. Rios went three for four at the plate and swatted a home run during the contest, but Mike Hernandez, Jesse Hernandez and Cesar Sifuentes accounted for two hits apiece as the Rebels ran away with the ballgame in the second and third innings.

Redskin scoring was one run in the first, none in the second, one in the third, four in the fourth, two in the fifth and one in the sixth for a total of nine. Indian fielders made seven errors.

The Rebels scored three in the first, five in the second and six in the third, with one run in the fourth and one in the fifth to ice the game on 10 hits. Four errors plagued the Rebels.

Gabriel Aguilar was the losing pitcher; the Rebels run their record to 9-3 as the Indians fell to 5-6.

American Colts corral Pirates

Timmy Rigdon's winning pitching took the American Little League Colts past the Pirates Saturday, 11-9.

Although losing pitcher Todd Parrish struck out 15 Colts but the Ponies' strong hitting prevailed, led by Brandin Hamblin, Mike Jones and Trey Terrazas, with three hits each.

Ronald Allen's two sacrifice bunts were credited with three RBIs.

Terrazas and Jones combined three innings of fine relief pitching for the winners, taking the Colts to a 10-2 record, while the Pirates drop to 9-1-1.

National's Ponies whip Cards

Friday night action saw the National League Ponies, led by pitcher Torbin Lancaster, with relievers Nathan Zarate and Wes Hughes, put away the Cardinals 17-2 in 3 1/2 innings.

Cardinal pitcher Roger Fierro absorbed the loss.

Wes Hughes hit a home run as the Ponies lifted their record to 15-0-1.

International Royals win

The International Little League Royals started Craig Phillips Friday night, but relief pitcher Jessie Miers pitched four innings to notch the win as his team put away the Indians 23-12.

Edward Aguilar took the loss as the Royals collected 20 hits in the game. Trailing 4-6 in the top of the fourth, the Royals came back to score 11 runs in the inning and controlled the remainder of the game to push their season record to 5-6.

Top Royal hitters were Chris Morgan with a homer and five RBIs, Devin Arguello with a triple and two doubles for three RBIs, and Nakee Laws and Jee Van Johnson with two doubles and two RBIs.

Edward Aguilar hit two doubles for three RBIs in the losing cause while Mario Cavazos went four for four at the plate, T.J. Rios hit a home run and two doubles and collected two RBIs.

Queens sign California guard

Howard College Hawk-Queens basketball coach Don Stevens has signed California guard Candice Boyd, who played ball at Lynwood High School in Lynwood, Calif. The 5-6 point guard averaged 15 points, eight assists and three rebound per game this past season. She made the all-league team for three consecutive years and was also named to the San Gabriel Valley team.

Her hobbies include playing pickup games with Laker guard Byron Scott and Laker forward A.C. Green. Another hobby is "going to church every Sunday and singing praises to the Lord because without Jesus nothing is possible. He comes first in my life always," said Boyd.

Stevens is happy over his new find.

"Another excellent guard to bolster a great guard corps for next year's team. Candice can do it all and does it with ease," Stevens said. "She will add that spark of excitement on the floor."

INDIANAPOLIS — Rick Mears, center, is congratulated in Victory Lane after winning Sunday's Indianapolis 500 by car owner Roger Penske, right, and the driver's father, Bill Mears. Penske's team has won four of the last five Indy 500 races.

Indy 500

they're driving on ice out there."

Sullivan lost the lead when he came in for a pit stop after 94 laps.

That gave the lead briefly to Crawford. But Mears, who had pulled onto the same lap as the leaders two laps earlier, quickly made up the difference and took the lead for the first time after Sullivan crashed and Crawford made a pit stop.

Mears, almost effortlessly turning laps above 206 mph, yielded the lead only to Crawford for one lap and to Unser for nine laps over the final 245 miles.

Penske team manager Derrick Walker said he wasn't concerned with Mears' early struggles.

By the 130th lap, Mears' lead was more than four seconds. Five laps later, the lead was more than eight seconds. With under 50 miles to go, Mears was picking up about one second each time around the 2 1/2-mile track.

After Fittipaldi was penalized for passing under a yellow caution light, Mears' lead was more than one lap over Unser, and when the final yellow came out with three laps to go because of a lost sidepod off Andretti's car, Mears was locked in first place and assured of the victory.

But he wasn't completely comfortable.

"You hate to start backing off when you have a lead like that," Mears said of his anxious final three laps under the yellow. "It gets a little bit nerve-wracking when you see the yellow. You just say, 'Oh, no.'"

Dyslexia

Texas student struggles

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Jay Gravink has been willing to do the extra work a dyslexic must to pass college courses. But because he says officials haven't always been willing to work with him, he is quitting college in frustration for the second time.

"I am sick of fighting, period. The negative energy it takes to continue to put up with this is driving me crazy," said Gravink, 25, a junior majoring in sociology at the University of Texas. "There are so many roadblocks, and you can't do anything about it."

Gravink's problems are not unique, said Reed Martin, attorney for Advocacy, Inc., a group that works for the disabled. Some schools, he said, "are pretty hostile to anything except the sink-or-swim approach" for people with learning disabilities, who make up an estimated 5 percent to 10 percent of the general population.

UT officials have refused to allow Gravink to substitute courses for the foreign language and mathematics classes required for an undergraduate sociology degree. Because Gravink's disability includes sometimes seeing numbers or letters reversed or transposed, he says he cannot succeed in those courses at UT even with the extra effort he gives.

Ronald M. Brown, vice president for student affairs, said that although UT makes accommodations for disabled students, the school has a right to guard the integrity of the degrees it confers.

"When we graduate somebody, we certify they are competent at some level," Brown said. "The world has a right to believe that when we hand out a diploma that says 'bachelor of arts in sociology,' that person is grounded in certain elements of sociology. We don't offer a high-grade BA in sociology, and a low-grade, or partial, BA in sociology. We offer one."

Before coming to UT last year, Gravink attended West Texas State University as a music major in 1981-84.

Although he was not required to take a foreign language there, and he was allowed to substitute logic courses for math courses, he was advised to withdraw by an instructor because his disability prevents him from sight-reading music.

"I'm a good musician, and I've done quite well, yet I can't read music, so I can't get a degree in music," said Gravink, who has supported himself by playing piano and singing at a downtown Austin hotel.

Because he has dyslexia, Gravink takes hours longer than most other students to complete homework assignments. He also AUSTIN — Jay Gravink sits in bleachers set up for University of Texas graduation ceremonies, in front of the school's main building. took private German lessons, but said no amount of tutoring would allow him to do well in UT language courses.

"I can't spell very well in any language, but as far as learning to communicate in German, I can do it, and already do it very well," said Gravink, who spent time in West Germany in an exchange program.

On the advice of UT officials, Gravink also took a battery of tests that confirmed his disability, and he used those results when seeking adjustments in his courses.

Although some provisions have been made — including a reduced courseload and extra time to finish examinations — Gravink was told at UT he could not substitute other courses for language and math.

He was advised to either go to the university's learning skills center for help in math or complete that requirement at a community college, but he doesn't think that's fair.

"Sending me to the community college is a big cop-out. When you get here in the bureaucracy of the school, they don't want

Cisneros' aide battled dyslexia

AUSTIN (AP) — Robert Marbut Jr., an aide to San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, doesn't look or act like a man with a disability, but he's been dealing with dyslexia all his life.

At age 27, Marbut is Cisneros' administrative assistant for special projects and a consultant to statewide political candidates. A former member of the Olympic training squad for the modern pentathlon, he also is president of the San Antonio organizing committee for the 1989 Junior Olympics.

Marbut's achievements have come despite the learning disability that makes it difficult for him to read and write.

He did not discover his dyslexia until he was failing as a freshman at Claremont McKenna College in California, but he said its effects have been evident since elementary school.

The discussion in which an English professor identified his dyslexia "was probably the most important 30-minute meeting of my life," Marbut said, because finding out about his disability allowed him to directly attack its effects.

Marbut said his college professors worked with him, making such allowances as untimed tests. In addition, he made changes that included hiring a typist and focusing only on essential material in his reading. He uses similar tactics to cope with his disability today.

"I really equate this to a lot of other disabilities," Marbut said. "If you are wanting to change yourself, and if people who know what they're doing help you, you'll be just fine, and you'll get through. "I think a successful person who can beat dyslexia is a harder worker than anybody on the other side of the fence who doesn't have that learning disability," he said.

Marbut got an undergraduate degree at Claremont with a triple major in economics, political science and psychology. He also received a master's degree in criminal justice there.

The flexibility of educators helped him make it through public school and, success in college, said Marbut. He said that kind of flexibility might not be allowed now in Texas public schools because of requirements in the 1984 education reform law.

House Bill 72 "has done a lot of positive things, but one of the negative things is it's an overly structured system," Marbut said. "I probably could not get through high school now."

Small colleges, in general, more easily accommodate dyslexics than large universities, Marbut added. He said when he took courses at the University of Texas toward his master's degree, one of his classes had 600 students.

"If I hadn't talked to the professor, how would that person ever have known whether I was trying?" he asked.

Marbut emphasized that bending "artificial restrictions" for dyslexics doesn't mean lowering standards.

"You've got to keep your expectations high," he said. "Don't put limitations on people just because they're dyslexic."

to have any special cases," Gravink said. "If they're going to make me and other disabled students take a class, they should have a certain (class) format to deal with this."

"I know I can learn this stuff. It has to do with them having courses that can answer my needs," he said.

Unwilling to start over with another degree plan, Gravink has decided to leave UT. He says he doesn't know whether he will attend another institution.

A policy telling universities how to deal with learning-disabled people could make education more accessible by taking some uncertainty out of the process, Gravink said.

But Brown said he does not see how a policy could be developed for all academic disciplines.

"You've got to allow some room for professional judgment here," Brown said. It is proper to allow the college dean to ultimately decide whether allowances requested by a student can be granted without sacrificing the quality of a particular degree, he said.

Some colleges have special programs for people with learning disabilities, said Margaret Carr, president of the Texas Association for Children and Adults with Learning Disabilities.

Charles Drake runs the Landmark School and Landmark College in Massachusetts for dyslexics, whom he describes as "a very specialized group who are of average or high intellectual ability, who are emotionally sound enough to want to learn, but who are prevented from learning because of the presence of neurological dysfunctions which prevent proper information-processing."

At East Texas State University, a program was developed to "grease the skids" for learning-disabled people, said Martin, the Advocacy attorney.

The program tested and issued a card to learning-disabled students. Students could present the card to professors, who had been informed about the disability and would make certain accommodations, Martin said.

"It's really just remarkable, the difference it makes," Martin said. "If it's up to the student to convince each teacher in each course each semester, it's overwhelming. If there were a unified policy that said teachers will make the following accommodations, it would just be so much better."

Reagan says 'time is ripe' to press for more human rights

MOSCOW (AP) — President Reagan told Soviet dissidents and refugees today the time is ripe to press for human rights because Kremlin leaders "appear to grasp the connection between certain freedoms and economic growth."

Speaking to several dozen dissidents gathered in Spaso House in U.S. Embassy compound after visiting a 13th century monastery, Reagan said that while there have been "hopeful signs" of improvement in the Soviet Union, "there can be no relenting for us now. We must work for more, always more."

"I came here to give you strength, but it is you who have strengthened me," the president said in a meeting that some Soviet officials had criticized as going too far to criticize internal affairs in the country.

"While we press for human lives through diplomatic channels, you press with your very lives, day in and day out, risking your homes, your jobs and your all," Reagan told the group in remarks which brought occasional applause from his audience.

"We hope that one freedom will lead to another," the president said, saying he hopes Soviet leaders realize that economic growth hinges to a large degree on individual initiative.

An individual Soviet citizen, Reagan said, must sense that the government "respects him enough to grant him all his human rights."

During the session, interrupted from time to time by the giggles of children, Reagan was besieged by requests to sign his autograph on placecards.

Summit ladies trying to lay rumors to rest

MOSCOW (AP) — Nancy Reagan, "a little overwhelmed" by her first visit to the Soviet Union, has quickly united with Raisa Gorbachev in a joint effort to squelch reports they don't get along.

Mrs. Reagan, who is scheduled today to visit a prestigious Moscow children's school and the suburban dacha and grave site of the renowned poet Boris Pasternak, spent a good part of her first afternoon in the Soviet capital touring the Kremlin under the tutelage of her fast-talking counterpart.

Asked to explain lingering reports they dislike one another, Mrs. Reagan shot back, "You explain it to me."

Holding hands and smiling, the two women put on an elaborate show of friendship. They dismissed the feuds as "rumors." But when the talk turned to religious activities the Soviet first lady cut the conversation short.

Every time they've met, Mrs. Reagan said, "We've gotten along very well."

On a tour of the ancient Russian fortress and its collection of golden, onion-domed cathedrals, the first ladies were also often shoulder-to-shoulder, discussing the religious paintings that adorned the walls of the Cathedral of the Assumption as if they were a pair of school girls.

The Soviet first lady had a take-charge attitude on the tour as she put her arm about Mrs. Reagan's waist and guided her about the inside the 14th century cathedral, one of the oldest churches-turned museums in the Kremlin.

According to Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Elaine Crispin, the two women discussed the supposed feud over tea, and she quoted Mrs. Gorbachev as saying, "All these rumors are trivial stories."

Mrs. Reagan then replied, speaking of the media, "Yes, but you can't get them to change their minds. I've told them so many times that the rumors are not true," Mrs. Crispin quoted her as saying.

Last December, when Mrs. Gorbachev visited Washington, reports of a frosty relationship emerged from the two first ladies' White House get-together.

Mrs. Gorbachev also sought to dispel the rumors. Displaying the outspoken style she used at the White House, chimed in, "Rumors have it... that there is some misunderstanding between myself and the (president's) wife... I would like to say, I think it's not serious."

Former chief of staff Donald Regan wrote in his recent book that during their first meeting, in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1985, Mrs. Gorbachev dominated the dinner table conversation and when she left Mrs. Reagan asked, "Who does that dame think she is?" Mrs. Reagan was asked Sunday if Regan was inaccurate.

With an icy stare, she replied curtly, "Yes."

LEARNING DOESN'T IMPROVE WITH DISTANCE.

Some people think that you've got to go away to college to get a quality education. Yet nothing could be further from the truth. Because thanks to America's Community, Technical and Junior Colleges, you can get a great education right in your own backyard. Without the expense of living away from home. And without giving up your full- or part-time job. What's more, tuitions average about half the cost of public four-year colleges and universities. No wonder an amazing 55% of all first year freshmen choose Community Colleges. So remember, learning doesn't improve with distance. In many ways, it gets better the closer you are to home. At America's Community Colleges.
