TDA program to help jobless farmers

AUSTIN (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower is pushing a new job training program he says can provide assistance and hope to financially troubled farmers and ranchers being forced off their land.

"We have got to reach out to these farmers and help them make an adjustment. We just can't say, 'adios, chump,' as they go out of business," Hightower said Monday.

Hightower has asked 34 job training agencies around the state to include farmers in the list of Texans eligible for programs that now help displaced homemakers, steelworkers, refinery workers and others.

The state gets $7.5 million in federal funds annually for such programs.

Help would include job counseling, retraining, advice on starting a small business and other assistance for up to 1,000 farm families, officials said.

Officials of the Texas Department of Agriculture and local agencies met Monday to develop guidelines for the program. TDA spokesman Andy Welch said it should begin Jan. 1.

Hightower said he also wants to establish a toll-free telephone hot line where farmers can call to learn of legal, financial and mental health assistance available locally.

According to a TDA survey, 2.6 percent of Texas farms failed last year due to financial problems. About 100 farms and ranches are failing weekly, Hightower said, and about 47 percent of farm borrowers are behind in loan payments.

With job training

Hightower estimated as many as 20 percent of Texas family farms could fail next year.

"We are at a crisis situation," Hightower said.

"This is not a temporary recession. It is a full-fledged depression in the rural areas that's killing some of the most efficient, most productive, most intelligent and most innovative people we know."

Crosby County farmer Joe Rankin, president of the Texas Farmers Union, said many farmers seem to just quietly disappear from rural communities.

"These people are going through a really traumatic change. Anywhere they can find a job, that's where they quietly move off to. You don't hear from them. You don't know what happens to your friends," he said.

Rankin said there are personal tragedies taking place in the countryside.

"Within five miles of my place in the last two years ... we've had two suicides. These are hard times out in the country. It's a heartbreak situation," he said.

While the average price for cotton received by Plains farmers is 65 cents per pound, it costs about 80 cents to grow, Rankin said. "When you fall 15 or 16 cents below the cost of production, you're losing money fast. We're going broke en masse and in a big hurry."

Seven Midwestern states have started job training programs for farmers. Gary Dick, who has run a program in eastern Iowa, said helping farmers can present some special problems.

"Many people don't want to be identified as needing help. Especially farmers, who are a very independent group," he told the Texas officials.

The Iowa program targeted for help not just farmers, but others in rural communities who suffer from the farmers' financial woes, he said.

"The farm implement dealer, the little cafe on Main Street, all of these became part of the displaced worker program. This is a rural problem, not just a farm problem."

Swift Independent board approves purchase by Cox

The sale of Swift Independent Corporation to the Edwin L. Cox Jr., family trusts of Dallas has been approved by the Swift Independent board of directors, subject to negotiation of a contract.

A letter of intent to purchase SIC, a Chicago-based company, by the Cox group was approved by the SIC board Thursday, according to a Swift Independent news release The Brand received today.

The proposed sale was not initiated by Swift Independent, stated the news release. "The transaction is subject to negotiation of a definitive merger agreement. Financing, regulatory approval (by federal agencies) and stockholder approval must also be obtained," according to the report.

The proposed sale is of much interest in Hereford because the Swift Independent Packing Co. plant was closed here last June. In addition, Cox is the primary investor in Valley View Energy which has scheduled construction of a manure-fired electrical generating plant just east of Hereford. The $98 million project is now scheduled for completion in 1987.

The Cox holding company also purchased the Texas-based Friona Industries about four months ago. Swift Independent is the parent company of SIPCO, which operates a beef packing plant near Dumas with 1,000 employees. SIPCO owns three other beef packing plants and is the nation's largest pork packer with nine plants across the U.S.

The Cox trusts have made a leverage buyout offer valued at $135 million for Swift Independent, according to news reports. The transaction will be submitted to stockholders for approval in January, the Swift news release stated.

The transaction contemplated by the letter of intent provides for each share of Swift Independent to be converted into $21 in cash and $7 face value of a cumulative exchangeable

Conservatives push Loeffler

AUSTIN (AP) — A conservative political action committee says Texas Republicans should pick U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler over Kent Hance in next year's GOP gubernatorial primary because Hance isn't conservative enough.

"Few candidates have captured the hearts and the votes of Texans like Ronald Reagan ... The record clearly shows Rep. Tom Loeffler is far closer to Ronald Reagan than Kent Hance is," says a brochure distributed Monday by the Texas Conservative Action Fund.

The dew was on the pumpkins this morning, not a welcome sight for Hereford-area farmers who have already had the harvest of row crops delayed too long. Some warm, sunny days finally allowed harvest operations to resume last week but farmers need several weeks of dry weather to complete the harvesting.

The sugar beet harvest cranked up again last week and Holly Sugar had all its pick-up points in operation. The remaining corn crop is being harvested and many farmers are beginning to combine their maize. The area still has not had a complete killing freeze and some cotton is not ready. Farmers were hoping the forecast of scattered showers this week would miss this area.

Among all the user fees increased by the last legislature, there is one we just learned about recently. Can you believe you've got to have a hunting license to hunt jackrabbits and coyotes?

We're not kicking about the higher license fees for the Texas Parks & Wildlife for boats, hunting and fishing licenses and other revenue for that agency. But a new law requires that hunters possess a valid hunting license to hunt any bird or animal anywhere in the state.

If you're over 17 and under 65, you've got to have a hunting license to hunt in the county in which you reside. Only persons hunting on land on which they legally reside are exempt, and they must have a $6 exempt license to hunt deer or turkey.

We checked with Chuck Cosper, local game warden, and he confirmed the fact that you have to have a license to hunt any bird or animal, not just those classified as "game" species.

The state legislators have stopped preaching and started meddling!

County mulling decision on PARC service contract

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

The Deaf Smith County Commissioners heard from Jim Anderson of the Panhandle Alcoholic Recovery Center (PARC) concerning the contract between Deaf Smith County and the facility during the regular meeting of the commission that was held Monday.

Until recently the county was involved in a purchase of service agreement with PARC where the county would pay only for services rendered to persons that the county would send to the facility. PARC serves all the counties in the Panhandle but only Deaf Smith and Randall Counties are under the purchase of service contract, the other counties participate in a per-capita contract where the county pays a set amount for each county resident. Deaf Smith County Commissioners are currently deciding weather to continue with the purchase of service contract or enter into the per-capita contract.

In the per-capita contract the county would pay, for example, .50 cents for each person living in the county. This money would go to PARC for operating expenses, PARC would then charge each client for services rendered. The county would pay only one flat fee per year.

During the past year the county paid $15,800 to PARC for services. under the per-capita contract, the county would have only paid $10,500 for last year.

Anderson felt that the county should enter into the per-capita contract since it is less expensive for the county and much less complicated when it comes to billing.

Anderson said that at PARC all clients pay $90 per day for services and the funds from the counties are used to maintain the facility and keep the patient fee at a minimum.

Currently PARC has the lowest price for primary care in the state,

Dole has farm plan in pocket

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Senate begins looking this week for ways to trim the cost of its $117 billion, four-year farm bill, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole will have a plan in his pocket.

The idea, borrowed from a Dole farm bill that passed the Senate in 1978 but failed to clear later legislative hurdles, is to tie farm income supports to the amount of crop land a farmer is willing to idle. The more land you take out of production, the higher the government payment rate on what's left.

The rewriting of the nation's long-term farm policy comes this year at a time of distress in U.S. agriculture unparalleled since the 1930s Depression. Because of the number of financially ailing farmers, the costs of almost every approach tried by Congress have been high.

Now before the Senate is a version that would spend at least $55 billion on crop price supports and income subsidies over the next three years — some $20 billion or more above the budget level adopted by Congress.

No one, not even President Reagan, believes spending will be chopped back to the $34.8 billion initially earmarked for crop programs in the congressional budget blueprint. But Agriculture Secretary

Stewart Dike hearing rescheduled

The Texas Water Commission's hearing on the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's application for a permit for Steward Dike at Buffalo Lake has been rescheduled for Jan. 7. The continuance will allow attorneys for the F&WS to review transcripts of earlier hearings on the permit application.

The F&WS plans to maintain Stewart Dike as an alternative to restoring Umbarger Dam. James K. Rourke, TWC hearings examiner, earlier this month recommended the F&WS permit application be denied because the dike maintenance posed a threat to public welfare. He said neither Stewart Dike nor Umbarger Dam could withstand a flood.

However, the F&WS says there is not a safety threat since all public use areas ar at an elevaton below the dike.

HISD board decides on three items

'Star Wars' paying off

AUSTIN (AP) — A science adviser to President Reagan said Monday Reagan's "Star Wars" proposal already is paying off by "rolling back the frontiers for continued economic growth."

Dr. John McTague, deputy director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, executive office of the president, said in a speech that progress in science has been a benefit of the Star Wars effort.

"Just since 1983, we've seen breakthroughs in laser technology that we expected to be a decade away," said McTague. "At the heart of any effective ballistic missile defense system will be a computerized battle management system capable of analyzing millions of pieces of data every second.

"The concentrated research effort into supercomputers, artificial intelligence and computer software being conducted under the SDI (Strategic Defense Initiative) will enormously benefit society, which finds more helpful uses of computers every day," he said.

McTague spoke to a meeting sponsored by the Texas Institute of Constructive Capitalism, or IC-squared; the Large Scale Programs Institute, which operates out of IC-squared; the RGK Foundation of Austin and Deloitte Haskins & Sells, an accounting firm.

No firing for teacher in strip-search

CEDAR HILL, Texas (AP) — With a crowd of bystanders in the hallway outside, the Cedar Hill school district board met behind closed doors and decided not to fire a physical education teacher and an administrator over the strip search of 15 junior high girls for a missing $1.85.

Some parents of the Cedar Hill Middle School students who were searched were enraged by the action and asked the board at its Monday night meeting to fire teacher Janice Ellis and Jeanne Cothran, an assistant principal who was involved with the search.

The meeting room was packed but before the crucial vote the board went into a closed executive session, leaving spectators to debate the matter among themselves while board members made their decision inside.

The board voted to transfer Mrs. Ellis to another school and place reprimands in the files of both educators.

Students were ordered to remove their clothing Thursday when a girl in a seventh-grade physical education class reported $1.85 missing. The missing money was not found.

Even the girl whose money was stolen, Michelle Younger, 13, said she felt "humiliated and embarrassed" over the search.

Guru will spend 3 nights in jail

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, whose normal temperature-controlled, scent-free home and fleet of Rolls-Royces ensure his comfort, will spend three nights in a county jail awaiting a hearing on charges he tried to flee the country.

U.S. Magistrate Barbara DeLaney on Monday rejected a request by the guru's attorney that Rajneesh be allowed to wait for Thursday's hearing in a hospital at his own expense.

"I have been sleeping on a steel bench ... not even a pillow," Rajneesh, 53, said Monday at a hearing following his arrest on federal charges of trying to flee the country to avoid prosecution on 35 alleged immigration violations.

Rajneesh, the spiritual leader of a sect that claims up to 500,000 adherents, mostly in the United States, Western Europe and Australia, was indicted Thursday in Oregon with seven followers in an alleged conspiracy to cover up sham marriages to keep illegal aliens in the United States.

Reagan nominates youngest judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 32-year-old Texas judge says President Reagan has nominated him to the federal bench, which would make him the youngest U.S. district judge in the nation.

Sid Fitzwater, a state district judge in Dallas, said Reagan called him Monday to tell him he is being nominated to fill a vacancy in the Northern District of Texas.

"I am grateful to President Reagan for nominating me," Fitzwater said.

A White House spokesman said there would be no comment on the nomination until it is officially announced after it is sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Sakharov's wife will be allowed to leave

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet journalist said Tuesday reports that the wife of dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov will be allowed to go to the West for medical care are true, and that the United States is a probable destination.

The West German newspaper Bild, quoting reliable sources in Moscow, reported Monday that Yelena Bonner had been told by Soviet authorities she could "fly immediately to wherever she wants."

Victor Louis, a Soviet journalist who in the past has provided information to Western journalists that has proved accurate, said of the Bild report:

"That is what I understand. As far as I am concerned it is authentic, that she will be allowed to go, that it will not be a one-way ticket, that it is up to her when and where."

Japan tries to keep AIDS out

TOKYO (AP) — A Tokyo "sento" or public bath recently turned away a foreign resident of Japan who had grown to like the neighborhood spa's relaxing steam. The reason: fear of AIDS.

Although only eight Japanese have been stricken by the deadly disease, its spread in the United States and Europe has spurred steps, some of them misguided, to keep AIDS a foreign problem.

Some doctors warn that the virus thought to cause AIDS already has found its way into Japanese blood. They believe the island nation will soon face an outbreak of acquired immune deficiency syndrome lifting the number of victims from a handful to perhaps a thousand.

Peres wins approval

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres, praising King Hussein for making concessions for peace, won the Israeli parliament's approval to consider an international conference as a means for direct peace negotiations with Jordan.

Peres' victory in the Knesset, or parliament, late Monday came after a day of bickering with hardliners in his coalition government who fear an international conference would undermine Israel's demand for direct negotiations with Jordan.

The argument threatened at one point to topple the 13-month-old government, but the final vote was 68-10 in Peres' favor with 10 abstentions.

Hurricane stalls

HOUSTON (AP) — Erratic Hurricane Juan continued a slight eastward drift along the Louisiana coast early today, but rain continued to fall in Texas and forecasters remained uncertain about where the late season hurricane will make landfall.

A flash flood watch remained in effect for East Texas.

The heavy rains and the threat of street flooding Monday morning caused school officials in Orange and Jefferson counties to dismiss schools by early afternoon. The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation also closed Texas Highway 87 because of high tides.

But officials in the Golden Triangle area said they are taking a "wait and see" attitude before preparing to activate emergency services. Only one of 10 evacuation centers setup along the Texas Gulf Coast remained open Monday night.

Hurricane warnings remain in effect from east of Port Arthur to the mouth of the Mississippi River. Gale warnings are in effect from Port Arthur to Brownsville and east of the mouth of the Mississippi River to Apalachicola, Fla., a statement from the national weather service center in Miami said.

Forecasters said the eastward movement might mean they would have to extend the hurricane warning eastward past the mouth of the Mississippi later today.

At 2 a.m., the hurricane's center was located near latitude 28.9 north and longitude 91.5 west, according to the weather service. Juan has remained nearly stationary just offshore to the south of Lafayette, La. and will probably continue to drift erratically on Tuesday, a national weather service statement said.

The hurricane was drifting eastward at 5 to 10 mph forecasters said.

But Steve Harned, with the national weather service center in Alvin, said, "If this motion continues, perhaps we will be out of the woods. Right now it looks pretty good."

A flash flood watch, however, was issued through today for areas from Palacios to College Station and to the Sabine River.

Forecasters said they were especially concerned about the threat of heavier rains because most of Southeast Texas already has recorded rainfall nearly every day for the past two weeks.

"This is the greatest threat for widespread severe flooding that Southeast Texas and the Houston area has experienced this decade," according to a weather service statement.

Rain from the hurricane covered most of Southeast Texas. Parts of the Beaumont-Port Arthur area have recorded more than 6½ inches over the past two days.

"The combination of saturated ground, overtaxed drainage systems and a prolonged period of torrential rain from the slow and erratic movement of Juan could cause record-breaking floods," the weather service said.

"It's a minimal storm," said Gary Shearer, Port Neches civil defense director, said of the hurricane.

But Juan, packing winds of 85 mph, toppled over several oil drilling rigs in the Gulf which caused the death of a crew member aboard a Penrod Drilling Co. rig. The body of a crew member whose body was swept away has been recovered but his name is being withheld pending notification of next of kin, a statement released by Dallas-based Penrod said.

Winds reached up to 60 mph at Galveston Monday while the Jefferson County Airport reported winds gusting more than 50 mph.

Forecasters said Juan is an unusual storm because it formed late in the hurricane season, which started June 1 and ends Nov. 30.

San Antonio judge stops in Hereford

Judge Preston Dial of San Antonio, in his third year as Justice of the Fourth Court of Appeals, visited in Hereford Friday for his campaign for the Court of Criminal Appeals. He is seeking the position being vacated by retiring Judge Tom Davis.

Dial, a Democrat, served as a district judge in the 175th Judicial District for more than 12 years. "I believe criminal defendants are entitled to speedy, fair trials, but not necessarily perfect trials," said Dial. He objects to appellate decisions reversing convictions for reasons having nothing to do with the fairness of the trial or the guilt of the defendant.

Dial said he hoped to contribute his judicial experience to improve the quality of justice for all people of Texas–"those charged with crime, those who are victims of crime, and all those involved in the criminal justice system."

Pledges being made

Workers at Hereford Satellite Center will particpate in a Bowl-A-Thon to be held Friday in Canyon at West Texas State University's Activity Center.

Each worker will bowl two games and pledges for each pin are being accepted. To make a pledge call 364-5861 or come by the Center at 218 N. 25 Mile Ave.

Proceeds of the Bowl-A-Thon will help the workers to compete at the Special Activities Olympics.

FARM

John Block has signaled that failure to make at least some substantial cut would tempt a veto.

Several approaches are likely to be tried as farm bill consideration continues this week and next. Among them are reducing the bill's proposed four-year freeze on income supports down to one or two years.

The supports, also known as "target price" or "deficiency" payments, supplement the per-bushel, pound or bale price a farmer gets for his commodities up to a fixed "target" rate set in law. Levels are now $4.38 a bushel for wheat, $3.03 for corn, 81 cents a pound for cotton and $11.90 per hundred pounds for rice.

Another cost-cutting approach would pay income supports just on the amount of a farmer's production needed to meet domestic and export needs and a reasonable cushion, but not on the 15 percent or so deemed to be surplus output.

Still another idea, championed by Agriculture Committee Chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., would slice in half the current $50,000-per-farmer ceiling on direct government income support payments.

If those and other approaches fail, however, Dole may trot out the retread version of his 1978 "Flexible Parity" bill, now under the new title of "TOP" — Target Option Program.

But instead of tying income subsidies to parity, a largely outmoded measure of farm purchasing power keyed to prices and income in the period 1910-14, the new plan seeks instead to guarantee farmers a constant return after production expenses.

Under the plan, target prices would be frozen at current levels for 1986. Then in 1987 and 1988, farmers who participate in the program would be able to choose their own target price from a range tied to the proportion of acreage they are willing to idle.

A wheat grower, for example, would be able to idle as little as 15 percent of his cropland in 1987, but would get an income guarantee of only $3.95 a bushel. Or he could choose to plant just half of his normal wheat acres and receive a $6-a-bushel guarantee on the remainder.

For corn, the 1987 range would run from 15 percent idled land at $2.90 a bushel to $3.65 if the farmer takes 40 percent out of production.

"It would be aimed primarily at giving middle-income farmers a little more protection," Dole said recently in outlining the proposal. "It would give the farmers a voluntary option."

Dole estimates his idea would save about $5 billion over the first three years of the four-year farm bill. Much of the savings comes from the proposal's incentive for cuts in production, which reduces the amount of commodities on which the government is obligated to pay price-support and income subsidies.

The E.B. Black House was the setting for a bridal shower Saturday morning honoring Cynthia Ann Easterwood, bride-elect of Paul Aaron Buckles.

The couple will exchange nuptials Nov. 16 at First Baptist Church.

The dining room, decorated in contracting shades of dusty rose, was the setting where refreshments were served by the honoree's maid of honor, Mary Moss of Amarillo. Guests were served hot cider, coffee, cinnamon crisps, sausage balls and fresh fruit.

The table was laid with an ecru lace cloth over a rose underlay and centered with a large white silk gladioli floral arrangement. It was flanked by crystal candle holders holding rose colored tapers. Also, enhancing the table were crystal and silver appointments.

Special guests included Lanelle Tucker of Dimmitt, the bride-elect's maternal grandmother; Beradine Easterwood of Amarillo, her paternal grandmother; and several out-of-town guests from Dimmitt and Amarillo among local guests.

A large brass vase on the registry table held brass key holders tied with white bows which were gifts from the hostesses.

Serving as hostesses were Mmes. Elmore Rains, Charlie Bell, Gerald Hamby, Doug Bartlett, Richard Ottesen, Charles Hoover, Paul Scott, Lee Drake, Bobby Owen, O.G. Nieman and Dean Herring.

Ann Landers

Judge too lenient

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your recent column about our judicial system being only as good as our juries made me start to look for a pen and paper.

Recently a landlord in our town was tried in circuit court for 46 housing code violations, from hooking up to the wrong side of the gas meters and endangering the lives of his tenants, to having 10 apartments in a dwelling where he should have had no more than two.

The jury found him guilty, fined him $46,000 and sentenced him to 13½ years in jail. The judge suspended all but two days of the sentence, deferred payment on the $46,000 fine and allowed the man to pay it off at the rate of $25 a month without interest. I figure it will take 153 years.

I feel the jurors wasted their time and the taxpayers' money. P.S. I'll eat this paper if my letter ever gets into print.–MR. B. IN PORTSMOUTH, VA.

DEAR PORT: Start nibblin', Buster.

It's difficult to evaluate the decision without knowing all the facts. However, it is apparent that the judge who listened to both sides felt the sentence was unduly harsh and opted to soften it. In my humble opinion, the jury may have been too tough, but that judge was too lenient.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A very good friend of mine (I'll call her Maggie) has set her wedding date for January.

I have known Maggie since grade school and I love her dearly. She was my maid of honor when I married last fall. The problem: Maggie does not love the man she plans to marry. Her true heart ditched her for another woman several months ago and it nearly killed her. Maggie started to see "Joel" on the rebound and sees marriage as a way to save face.

Three weeks ago Maggie's voice began to get raspy. She ignored it for several days and it got worse. Finally I insisted that she go to a throat specialist. He could find nothing wrong.

A few days ago she lost her voice completely. I am no psychiatrist but I have a hunch the problem may be psychological and is related to the upcoming marriage. When I told her what I thought she said I was crazy. She plans to see another throat specialist next week. Please give me your views. What do you experts say?–NEWSDAY READER (L.I.0

DEAR L.I.: A second opinion is always a good idea. If that doctor finds no organic problem, Maggie should see a therapist. Your hunch is a good one. It is entirely possible to lose one's voice because of an emotional problem.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Flies love me. Especially at night. I have lost a lot of sleep because of those pesky critters buzzing around my head. I've tried swatting them with a towel but they're too fast for me. This is a small problem compared to most you get, but can you help?–RED-EYED RITA

DEAR RED: Keep the bathroom light on. Flies gravitate toward light. When the buzzing stops, close the door. Go after the critters the next morning with a fly swatter – not a towel. Pleasant dreams, dear.

Dwight Gooden is top vote-getter

AP all-star baseball team announced

By The Associated Press

Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets, who dominated National League batters en route to a 24-4 record, scored another landslide victory when he was named today to The Associated Press' major-league baseball All-Star team.

Gooden received 114 of a possible 117 votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters to nail down the right-handed pitcher's spot on the squad. St. Louis' John Tudor beat out the New York Yankees' Ron Guidry, 80-26, as the left-handed hurler.

Gooden paced the the NL in victories; earned-run average, 1.53; complete games, 16; innings pitched, 276 2-3; and strikeouts, 268. He also reached double figures in strikeouts 11 times, running his two-year career total to 26.

"Even when he's not getting double figures, he's amazing," said the Mets' Gary Carter of Gooden. "When he gets into trouble, how can you not be excited by what he can do to bail himself out."

At 20 years, 9 months, 9 days Gooden became the youngest pitcher to win 20 games, besting Bob Feller's major-league mark and Christy Mathewson's National League standard set at age 21 in 1901.

Carter topped the catcher's list with 75 votes, 35 more than Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox. Carter, who was obtained from Montreal last winter, led the Mets with 32 homers and 100 RBIs.

Tudor, who started the season at 1-7 and went on to win 20 of 21 decisions, wasn't far behind Gooden in most categories. His 10 shutouts led the majors and were the most since Bob Gibson posted 13 for the Cardinals in 1968.

The closest race was for AP Manager of the Year, where St. Louis' Whitey Herzog edged Cincinnati's Pete Rose 44-42. Herzog guided the Cardinals to 101 victories, the NL pennant, and within one game of a world championship.

Few gave the Cardinals much of a chance to win the National League's East Division title after ace reliever Bruce Sutter took his 45 saves and signed as a free agent with Atlanta on Dec. 7, 1984.

"Nobody expected us to go anywhere," said Herzog after the Cardinals dropped the seventh game of the World Series 11-0 to the Kansas City Royals. "We ended up losing the seventh game of the World Series. We just didn't hit very well."

After Gooden, the next highest vote-getter was first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, who received 107 votes.

Mattingly supplemented his major-league leading 145 RBIs with a .324 batting average, 35 homers, 48 doubles and 21 game-winning RBIs.

Mattingly's 48 doubles were the most by a Yankee since Lou Gehrig hit 52 in 1927, and he is the first AL player to lead the majors in doubles in consecutive years since Tris Speaker completed a four-year run in 1923.

The Cardinals' Tommy Herr, who with eight homers and 110 RBIs became the first player since Detroit's George Kell in 1950 to drive in more than 100 runs with less than 10 homers, beat out the Cubs' Ryne Sandberg 84-30 at second base.

The voters chose offense over defense at shortstop by going with Baltimore's Cal Ripken over St. Louis' Ozzie Smith, 67-48.

Just as they battled most of the season for the American League's batting crown, Boston's Wade Boggs and Kansas City's George Brett staged a tight race at third base. Despite Boggs' .368 average and 240 hits, Brett won out by an 11-vote margin, 63-52.

Brett hit .335 and belted a career-high 30 homers while driving in 112 runs. He also led the AL with a .585 slugging percentage while leading the Royals to a world title with some spectacular post-season play.

"What makes me popular?" asked Brett. "Is it hitting a home run against (Goose) Gossage? Is it the pine-tar incident?

"I've gotten some big hits in big games, but it's hard to pinpoint what makes me more popular than other players."

The three outfield positions went to the Cardinals' Willie McGee, with 86 votes; Rickey Henderson of the Yankees, 79 votes; and the Dodgers' Pedro Guerrero, 64 votes.

Atlanta's Dale Murphy, the top vote-getter two of the last three seasons, was fourth with 50 votes, while Cincinnati's Dave Parker collected 45.

McGee broke the highest previous average for a National League switch-hitter with a .353 mark to lead the league. The former record by a switch-hitter in the NL was .348 by Rose in 1969, and Frankie Frisch in 1923.

"I want to succeed personally because I feel the better I do the better it helps the team," said McGee, who also posted a .503 slugging average.

The relief pitcher spot was a tie at 39 votes for Montreal's Jeff Reardon and Kansas City's Dan Quisenberry.

Detroit's Darrell Evans was voted top designated hitter, edging Oakland's Dave Kingman, 21-17. Evans led the AL with 40 homers, and at the age of 38 became the oldest player to lead the league. He was also the first major-leaguer to hit 40 homers in both leagues.

Brand sports editor Gary Christensen cast a ballot for the AP All-Star Team. He voted for Mattingly, Herr, Boggs, Ripkin, Murphy, Parker, Henderson, Fisk, Gooden, Browning, Quisenberry, Kingman and Rose.

Sport Briefs

By The Associated Press

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Coaches Stan Albeck of the Chicago Bulls and Chuck Daly of the Detroit Pistons have been suspended for one game apiece and fined because of a shoving incident during an Oct. 26 game at Chicago.

Scotty Stirling, the NBA's Vice President-Operations, said Albeck was fined $1,000 and Daly $500, plus the $250 they were assessed for being ejected from the game.

The incident took place when Albeck got into an argument with Daly late in the fourth quarter and both coaches began pushing and shoving each other and had to be separated by the officials.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Iowa remained a unanimous No. 1 as the nation's top college football team for the second week in a row in the Associated Press poll, while defending national champion Brigham Young skidded from seventh place to 17th after suffering its second loss of the season.

The 7-0 Hawkeyes, 49-10 winners over Northwestern, received all 58 first-place votes from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

GYMNASTICS

BERLIN (AP) — Maxi Gnauck, the Olympic gold medalist and three-time world gymnastics champion, announced her retirement, one week before the world championships in Montreal, the state-run ADN news agency reported.

Gnauck, 21, took the gold medal on the asymmetric bars at the 1980 Moscow Olympics and three times won the world title on the same apparatus. She retired because of a back injury suffered in training.

TENNIS

ANTWERP, Belgium (AP) — Tim Wilkison beat Horacio De La Piata of Argentina 6-4, 6-1, in the first round of the $850,000 European Champions' Championship of Indoor Tennis. First place is worth $200,000.

Wilkison, of Asheville, N.C. and ranked 35th in the world, outclassed De La Pena, who had earned a berth in the tourney after winning the Marbella Grand Prix.

Spain's Sergio Casal also won his opening-round match, downing Ricky Osterthun of West Germany 7-6, (7-3), 6-2.

HORSE RACING

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP) — Four horses died in a fire that destroyed a barn at the Ocean Downs Raceway near here, track officials said.

The fire broke out about 1:20 a.m. in barn "K," according to Ocean Downs president John Burbage. He said the fire apparently started in a tack room and spread through the stalls where the horses could not escape.

Follow-up exams to be given

Infants and children in Hereford and surrounding areas will get regular follow-up exams by Texas Tech Medical School pediatric faculty members beginning January 1 without Traveling to Amarillo for the services.

"These are infants who weighed less than 2,500 grams at birth and must be watched closely for normal development during the first several years of their lives," said Dr. Mary Slater, pediatric psychologist in the Amarillo medical school's department of pediatrics.

The satellite clinics are made possible by a grant of $32,000 for each of the next two years from the National March of Dimes in New York. Dr. Slater and Dr. Mubariz Naqvi, neonatologist at Tech, will coordinate the program.

Dr. Naqvi said an abnormally low birthweight places a child at high risk for normal development.

"The child might develop into an academic underachiever or one who is slow to crawl, walk, or talk, or who might be at risk for neurodevelopmental disorders," said Dr. Naqvi.

Tech medical school at Amarillo has had a regular developmental program since 1983. High risk infants are examined when they are one month old, again at six months and 12 months, and then annually until they are eight years old.

"Some of these chidlren are not seen regularly because they live a great distance from Amarillo," said Dr. Slater.

Dr. Leora Andrew, developmental pediatrician at Tech, said clinics will be held once each month at Dalhart, Pampa, and Hereford and a fourth clinic will float in and out of areas with the highest concentration of babies and children needing follow-up services, "perhaps at Perryton or Childress or some other Panhandle town," said Dr. Andrew.

Mothers facing what doctors call a high-risk pregnancy are sent to Northwest Texas Hospital for care by Tech physicians. Patients come from all over the Texas Panhandle and parts of Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Colorado. The Amarillo hospital has the only facilities to care for low birthweight babies within this broad area.

Physicians from Texas Tech Medical School staff the nursery. After mother and baby are released from the hospital and return home, sometimes many miles away, parents might find it impossible to bring the child to the Amarillo clinic as frequently as they should. So far, only about 40 percent of families with chidlren at risk of underdevelopment have been able to participate in the follow-up program. The satellite clinics will help solve the travel problem for many families.

The purpose of the follow-up program is to identify early any developmental delays and provide the right training and stimulation to help the child develop normally.

Apprehensive

Suspicion is aroused in peacocks when approached by a camera. Brand photographer Shawn Cockrum found the bird guarding a ranch house east of Hereford.

PIPE VIDEO

CLEVELAND — A self-propelled miniature television camera system has been developed to inspect steam and chilled water pipes to detect obstructions or cracks that cause leaks in energy systems, reports Energy User News.

According to the publication, the system includes a 6-inch probe, a motor and rubber wheels that can move the probe at up to 30 feet a minute inside the pipes.

The probe is connected by cable to a TV monitor which receives a televised image on a 6-inch video screen. The monitor also has videotape capability to preserve a permanent record.

By identifying the exact area of the pipe that requires service, the user can avoid having to dismantle large sections of pipe to expose the affected area.

While designated for horizontally laid pipes 1.5-to-12 inches wide, the system also is able to negotiate bends in piping up to 45 degrees, the publication reports.

PHONE COMMERCIALS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Extended telephone waiting time is being adapted for selling time through a taped service that intersperses music with promotional and customer service by a Miami travel agent.

According to Travel Agent magazine, the agency uses taped recordings with an appropriate mix of entertainment and information to retain caller interest and help reduce caller irritation.

The programming incorporates theme music and brief discussions on upcoming air tours, cruises, special sports packages and weekend specials.

The publication estimates the travel industry makes some 90 percent of its bookings via the telephone.

Pennsylvania men get donor hearts

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Doctors watched today for signs that a man kept alive for 11 days by a Penn State artificial heart might reject a human heart, and said that a man who spent four days on a Jarvik-7 pump before receiving a transplant had survival "well within his grasp."

Anthony Mandia, the first recipient of the Penn State heart, was in critical but unstable condition today after receiving the heart of a 155-pound woman who died in West Virginia.

Across the state in Pittsburgh, Jarvik-7 heart recipient Thomas J. Gaidosh also was in critical condition. Gaidosh, 47, a factory worker, received a human heart earlier Monday that had been offered to Mandia but rejected as too big.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, 33-year-old Richard Dallara of Sonoma, Calif., was in serious but stable condition at Pacific Presbyterian Medical Center Monday night as he was kept alive by two fist-size external pumps attached to his failed heart while doctors sought a donor heart.

The five-hour surgery Monday night for Mandia, 44, of Philadelphia, took longer than expected because of bleeding, said Hershey Medical Center spokesman Dr. John W. Burnside. "We were a bit surprised at this oozing," he said, comparing it to the kind of bleeding that follows a brush burn.

Burnside said the bleeding may have been caused by medication used to prevent blood clots and the transplant coming 10 days after the initial implant surgery.

Mandia has received the anti-rejection drug Cyclosporin, and doctors say the immediate dangers are rejection of the donor heart, bleeding and infection.

The woman whose heart Mandia received had type O blood while Mandia is type B. Burnside said that "adds a little bit more concern to us about rejection."

Acute rejection could occur within 24 hours and chronic rejection could come months to years after surgery, he said. If necessary, the Penn State heart could be reimplanted if the donor heart fails.

The donor was not identified at the family's request, said Nathan Howard, executive director of the Delaware Valley Transplant Program. The heart became available after doctors said a traffic victim's heart was too big.

That heart, belonging to James Randall Riege, 26, of Alexandria, Ohio, was given to Gaidosh during a 3½-hour operation that doctors at Presbyterian University Hospital described as routine.

"The new heart took over from the Jarvik-7 very nicely," said Dr. Bartley Griffith, who led the surgical team. "The early indications are that survival is well within his grasp."

Riege, who died Sunday night of injuries received Saturday, was about 6 feet tall and 190 pounds. Gaidosh is 6-foot-3 and 220 pounds; Mandia was about 170 pounds before his implant surgery Oct. 18.

Gaidosh had been on the Jarvik-7 artificial heart for four days.

Women's lives joined by officer's slaying

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — While Sally Williams tried to explain to her children how their police officer father was slain, Elain Havard was thinking of ways to tell her son why his father was sentenced to be executed.

Mrs. Williams' husband, Kevin, was shot with a .22-caliber rifle on March 9, becoming the first Huntsville police officer ever killed in the line of duty.

Mrs. Havard's husband, Pat, was convicted of capital murder in the slaying and on Oct. 10 was sentenced to die by injection. He has not yet received an execution date.

"He was kind and loving when I married him," Mrs. Havard said. "He wasn't like this way all his life. He's not really a green-eyed monster like they made out in the courtroom."

Kevin Williams, 28, was shot in the head while responding to a report of a domestic disturbance at Mrs. Havard's apartment. Pat Havard, who had been arguing with his estranged wife when police were called, claimed he shot Williams in self defense.

The Havards have only been married a year. Mrs. Havard, 23, said she filed for a divorce before the killing because the couple fought violently. The divorce is still pending.

She said that for months after the slaying, she wanted to apologize to Mrs. Williams.

"I've always wanted to say something for her, and I really hurt for them," Mrs. Havard told the Houston Chronicle.

But Mrs. Williams, who is 36, said she does not hate the Havards.

"I never felt anger towards her or her husband," she recalled. "It doesn't solve anything to hate, and at that time (of the killing) I was feeling pretty bad anyway."

Special program to be launched Nov. 1

"Read-A-Texas-Book-A-Month," a special Sesquicentennial program of the Texas State Library, offers every Texan an opportunity to join in the excitement of commemorating the state's 150th anniversary of independence.

Each individual, both young and old, can celebrate with a personal observance by reading from a wide variety of Texana books available in public and school libraries. Readers can set their own goals and challenges for achieving one-book-a-month. Choices include fiction, folklore, biography, history, and poetry by an about Texans or participants may spotlight a certain facet such as wildflowers, rivers, battles, shrines, and heroes. There have been more books written about Texas than any other state in the Union.

In addition, readers are encouraged to share with others by donating a Texas book to their local libraries to enrich materials available for future generations.

"Read-A-Texas-Book-A-Month" will be launched Nov. 1 in Austin in conjunction with the opening of the State Library's Sesquicentennial exhibit, "Texas Books and writers: 150 Years."

This is the first in a series of seven special commemorative exhibits which will be on display at the Lorenzo de Zavala State Archives and Library Building during 1986. Priceless manuscripts, original documents, books, photographs, and other historical treasures from the Archives will showcase early Lone Star development and heritage.

Sealed bid sale set

AUSTIN – The Texas General Land Office today announced a December 3rd sealed bid sale of 3,700 acres of state land owned by the Texas Department of Corrections and located in Ft. Bend and Harris counties.

During the recent legislative session, the Land Office and TDC were directed to sell about 6,000 acres of land in Ft. Bend and Harris counties to raise $125 million. Proceeds from the land sale are intended to finance new prison facilities in Texas.

The state failed to receive any bids Sept. 17 when the first two tracts, valued at $17 million, were offered for sale. As a result, these tracts, totalling about 128 acres, will be included in the Dec. 3 sale but on a reduced per acre basis.

Interested parties should contact June Middlebrooks at the General Land Office, 1700 N. Congress, Austin, Texas 78701. Or call (512)475-5679.

DR. GOTT

Eating disorder needs treatment

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a 29-year-old female and I have bulimia. I have been making myself throw up for one and a half years now. Last year my parents got worried because I started losing weight so fast; my mother took me to a specialist in internal medicine. I was too ashamed to tell the doctor what I'd been doing. After a series of tests, he decided to do exploratory surgery and ended up taking out my gallbladder. I really do want to stop, but I just can't. What are the dangers of what I am doing? Is there any way I can stop? I'm so afraid I'll gain weight.

DEAR READER — Bulimia is an eating disorder related to anorexia nervosa. In your question you have given a clear description of the ailment. You have also communicated the feelings of terror, helplessness and loss of control that are central to the disease.

Obviously, you will not be able to obtain help as long as a sense of shame prevents you from being honest with your doctor and your family. Many illnesses — such as bulimia, drug and alcohol addiction and venereal diseases — are embarrassing. But they are, after all, diseases that can be treated once they are diagnosed.

I urge you to adopt an attitude of scrupulous self-honesty. You seem to me to be at the point where you are able to look at your problem objectively. At least you are willing to acknowledge you have a problem and are helplessly in its grip. You have taken the first step toward recovery. I think you are courageous to have written me.

Your next step is to seek professional help. Be candid with your physician and ask for a referral to a practitioner, preferably a psychiatrist who is qualified to treat eating disorders. You can be helped; however, you must seek that help. Let go of your shame; it is nonproductive and will ultimately prevent emotional growth.

I might add that if you had been honest with your doctor in the first place, you might have been able to avoid unnecessary gallbladder surgery.
