More prison beds may be built here

...Junell announced Tuesday

REPRESENTATIVE ROBERT JUNELL (left) talks with Colorado City residents George Martin and his son Geory Martin following a joint-civic club luncheon Tuesday. Representative Junell, the special guest speaker, gave an overview of the recent legislative session.

Colorado City is in a prime location to be the site of a 667 bed TDCJ facility, Representative Robert Junell told the audience at a joint-civic club luncheon here Tuesday.

The last session of the legislature authorized 8,000 new beds for TDCJ and a location was surveyed for one of the 667 bed facilities needed by the state prison system, Junell told the 90 local residents who attended the luncheon held at the Colorado City Civic Center.

"I'd like to see it placed here," said Junell.

"We'll know more in the next several months," he said, adding that this will help offset the three month delay in the opening of the state jail facility here.

The appropriation does not go into effect until September, Junell explained. However, if approved by

One inmate dies during prison riot

One inmate died and five were injured following a gang related fight at the Wallace Unit Prison here Sunday night.

Rene Guerra, 23, of Abilene was stabbed in the upper part of his body and beaten to death, receiving several severe blows to his head, prison officials said.

Guerra, a Hispanic, was serving a ten year sentence for theft and robbery in Taylor County. He had been in the Texas Prison system for a year and had been at the Wallace Unit only three months.

His death was the first fatality to occur at the "80" John Wallace Unit since it opened last May.

The violence erupted around 6 p.m. when suspected members of a Hispanic gang were caught off guard and attacked by a rival Hispanic gang at three different locations in the prison, said Warden Rodney Cooper.

The attacks occured all about the same time, leading investigators to believe that the attack had been carefully pre-planned and organized.

Five inmates were treated at Mitchell County Hospital for minor stab wounds and were returned to their cells Monday.

Seven inmates, suspected of being involved in the murder, have been isolated from other inmates. All are suspected of being gang

Fireworks are banned within city limits

A city ordinance prohibits discharging or selling fireworks inside the city limits, the Colorado City Fire Marshal reminds citizens.

Celebrating the fourth by shooting off firecrackers can be expensive entertainment since a fine of up to $200 can be imposed and fireworks confiscated, said police department officials.

In 1993 the Colorado City Fire Department was dispatched on 10 or 12 fire incidents (grass fires and injuries) caused by fireworks, said Billy Ray Williamson, fire marshall, who added that it costs approximately $100 for the fire department to respond to a call.

CISD dress code issue resolved by high court

The Texas Supreme Court, in a 7-2 majority vote, ruled that courts should not interfere with public school district dress codes, clipping a lower court's decision that Colorado Independent School District's dress code violated the Equal Rights Amendment.

The state's decision last Thursday came in the case of Austin Barber, a 1992 Colorado High School senior, who was forced to cut his hair to avoid in-school suspension.

Austin Barber's case was the first in the state to question public schools' denial of constitutional rights to 18-year-olds (legal adults). The courts in previous cases had held that equal rights protection does not extend to juveniles.

Barber, now a sophomore at West Texas A&M University in Canyon, had asked for changes in CISD's dress code in September, 1992, arguing that the hair and earring codes granted privileges not enjoyed by adult males to adult females.

Barber called the codes a violation of the state constitution's equal rights amendment, which guarantees equality under the law regardless of sex.

By a 4-2 vote, CISD trustees voted to keep the policy that was in force at that time.

RODEO COORDINATOR Charles Rice (left), Carl Guelker (center) and Larry Don Dawson (right) were putting the finishing touches to the Mitchell County Rodeo Arena Tuesday in preparation for this weekend's Junior Rodeo. The first performance will be Thursday night.

Rodeo set for this weekend

The High Plains Junior Rodeo will be held here on the Fourth of July weekend, beginning Thursday June 29 and continuing Friday and Saturday evenings.

Performances at the county rodeo arena start at 7 p.m. each night with the grand entry scheduled for 6:45 p.m. Admission is $2 per person with proceeds going towards the DARE program.

The DARE program and the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring the rodeo this year.

Events include barrels, poles, goat tying, breakaway roping, ribbon roping, chute dogging, team roping, calf and steer riding, calf roping, steer stopping; bull, bareback and saddle bronc riding.

Competitors will be divided into seven age groups—8 and under, boys and girls 9-12, 13-15, and 16-19.

Prizes will be awarded at Saturday night's performance. Wood's Boots has donated the prize belt buckles.

Tickets are still available for the drawing for the 1995 Ford Ranger. The number of tickets are limited so participants have an excellent chance to be a winner, said DARE Officer Charles Rice.

The winner will be announced at the rodeo Saturday night. Tickets can be purchased from any

Garage sales a tradition

Garage sales have become almost as much an American tradition as apple pie and the fourth of July. Yankee thrift and the pioneer spirit of putting everything to good use have their place in garage saleing which has become a major form of weekend entertainment for many over the last several decades.

It's entertainment that initally costs little more than a few cents in gas and can reap big savings.

Bargain hunters who enjoy finding treasures for a fraction of their retail prices will have a field day this Saturday during the city-

TAAS results compared

CISD students scored better in some subjects and worse in others this spring in comparison to last year's scores on the Texas Academic Achievement Tests (TAAS).

Results of the required statewide achievement test were presented before the Colorado Independent School District's Board of Trustees at their regular meeting last week.

Test score statistics show that last spring's fifth, sixth and eighth grade classes tested lower overall this year than last year.

Students who completed eighth grade last year scored lower in all areas except writing in comparison to the previous year's (1993-1994) eighth graders. However, those same students who were in the eighth grade this spring raised their scores in two out of three subjects when compared to scores on the tests they took in the fifth grade. Students' writing scores of 71 in the fifth grade improved to a score of 77 last spring in the eighth grade; reading scores jumped from 56 in the fifth grade to 77 in the

COOK'S CORNER

Susan Anderson

Susan Anderson is a name you hear quite often in connection with Hutchinson Elementary and other "fun" activities. As P.E. teacher at the school, she stays so busy working and attending her own kids' functions, cooking is not one of her priorities. Therefore, she looks for quick, easy recipes which are also good. She will be sharing four of those with you today.

Susan never learned to cook growing up. In fact, she doesn't remember ever going into the kitchen until after meals. She and her sisters always had clean-up duty, since mom cooked. She did learn to cook after she married Woody, her husband of 23 years. He could cook, so he did most of the cooking when they first got married and Susan learned from watching him.

Before Woody's expert advice, she did try to pop popcorn while living at home with her parents. There was only one problem—she used Karo syrup instead of oil (now think about it, they do look alike). Needless to say, it was a mess and the pot had to be thrown away.

Susan and Woody have two teenagers, Brad, 17 and Kendra 14. The family is vary rarely at home for a meal all at the same time, like so many busy families these days, so Susan keeps things that are easy to heat up and serve in little time.

Susan's best kitchen tip is one she practices faithfully. She always prepares a double recipe of whatever she is cooking and freezes one batch for later. That way you get two meals and have only cooked one time! Sounds like a great idea to me. Double up on the chicken spaghetti and the squash casserole, you'll be glad you did.

CHIEF LONE WOLF

By Jim Baum

Colorado City without Porter Richardson? You gotta be kidding. I remember the day Porter decided to retire from KVMC Radio. He had worked in various capacities through the years, mainly as an engineer.

"I'm too old to do this anymore," he told me some four or five years ago. No amount of negotiating could change his mind. He had stopped by the station to quit. I asked him to reconsider.

"My hands shake and I don't see well anymore," he answered. Seconds later I was momentarily distracted, then turned back to talk to Porter. All I saw was his back as he shuffled out the door. On my desk he had left his key to the station's front door.

Porter started to work at KVMC less than a year after the station was signed on the air in 1950. He served as announcer, salesman, engineer and manager over the years. Eldon Mahon, one of the original owners of KVMC, recalls Porter could do anything. "Always agreeable. So loyal," Mahon told us.

Richardson had moved to Colorado City from Gatesville at the age of 11. His father was a ginner and Porter gravitated toward music. He was a member of the 1931 Colorado High band, which had won the state competition in its class, then went to the national band contest in Tulsa, Okla., where the band earned a seventh place finish nationally, in concert.

A high school pal, Gus Armstrong, remembers the great flood of 1939. Waters from the Colorado River spilled over into downtown Colorado City. Richardson and Armstrong got a boat, which had a one cylinder Maytag washing machine motor, and decided to cruise through town.

"We launched it at the courthouse," Armstrong recalls, "went through town to West Second, then turned around and headed back in the opposite direction."

As the small (pleasure) craft passed in front of Thomas Dry Goods, Nat Thomas stood in the doorway armed with a shotgun. Noting the six-inch wake which caused water to splash into his store, he yelled, "You guys come by here again I'm gonna shoot a hole in that boat." The cruise ended a few minutes later.

The folks at the Colorado Playhouse have a bevy of stories they tell about Porter Richardson. Several have the same theme, but different variations. For instance, the time Porter forgot to join Tandy Curlee on the stage for a scene. Marie Jackson has a good version of that episode.

"One night Tandy got on stage and there wasn't any Porter," she recalled. "There was nothing to do but do the scene by himself!" Turns out Porter had gone outside to smoke a cigarette and he was across the courtyard when he heard the music and Tandy singing.

Marie says Porter figured it was too late for him to dash on stage, "so he just stayed outside and smoked."

The unflappable Porter Richardson. Nothing ever seemed to bother him. At the radio station he would put a piece of broken equipment on a table, light up a cigarette, then sit there for what seemed forever. Eventually, he would think himself through the problem. There was never a machine that could outsmart Porter.

Marsha Moore can vouch for Porter's mild mannered disposition. "He poured a patio one time and we went over to his house; our children were little at the time. He cautioned the youngsters, Dillon and Amy, about the wet patio."

Of course, the first place they stepped was right where they had been told not to. "He didn't get upset or anything. I think Amy's footprints are still in his patio."

Laid-back is the word George Womack used to describe Porter. During World War II, Richardson finished radar school and was sent with some 30 other specialists to the Aleutians to test airborne radar in B-52s. The Aleutians were selected for the training because of the adverse weather conditions.

"He would take a nap," Womack stated, "and the crew would have to wake him up when it came time for him to perform his radar duties." That's laid-back.

Later, Richardson was sent with the 509th Composite Group to the tiny island of Tinian in the South Pacific. For more than a year, the group had trained in Utah, completely bewildered by what they were doing. Upon arriving at Tinian, a meeting was held to explain what the men were expected to do. Their mission was to bring in the atomic age.

"It was then we knew we [the United States] had an atomic bomb," Richardson told us in a 1983 interview.

After the war, Porter eventually wound up back in Colorado City. He was active in all kinds of civic activities and much of the success of the Tumbleweed Festival of the early 1960s was attributable to the creations which were fashioned into beautiful floats by Richardson. He continued to work at KVMC and Virginia Dearen recalls Porter always enjoyed a good prank.

"He built a box in our front office," she said, "and put a note by it which read, 'Press the Button.' When people would come along and push the button, here would come a head and hand up from the box." It never failed to get a good laugh.

There's little doubt that Porter's first love was the Opera House. He once said, "I immodestly might say I designed the Opera House" when it was an unsightly old two-story boarding house.

Marie Jackson says he has left his mark on the Opera House in many ways. "The playhouse people were always talking about the Arwood lights," she stated. Unfamiliar with backstage equipment, Marie paid little attention to the lights. Then, one night, someone asked what Arwood lights were.

"A playhouse worker said, all those overhead lights that shine down to make spotlights were made by Porter. They're called Arwood lights because that's his middle name."

One hundred days before his death, Porter electrified Colorado City by winning the Texas Lottery. At the age of 80, he was a millionaire. The comment we heard expressed more than any other was, "it couldn't have happened to a more deserving person."

When I called him at home to get a comment on his winning, he hesitated. Earlier in the day he had told lottery officials he didn't want any publicity. Now, I thought he was going to refuse to make a statement. Finally, after what seemed a lengthy pause, he spoke very slowly.

"It's only money. It's not going to change anything about me."

And he was right. Oh, he did buy a white Camaro and he did pay someone to pick stickers out of his yard, but winning the lottery was nothing more than a challenge to Porter. Just like the challenges he used to face at KVMC when he would stare down a piece of broken equipment.

"I expected to win the lottery," he told us. Three days before Porter died, I stopped by his hospital room. He was asleep, breathing deeply with his oxygen mask on. I left feeling deprived of a chance to say goodbye.

Early Monday morning the telephone rang at the radio station and I was told Porter had passed away. Just like the day he left the key on my desk, he had gone as far as he could go. We never filled Porter's slot at KVMC. I'm sure we'll never be able to in Colorado City, either.

Antique show planned Aug. 5 & 6 in Big Spring

Big Spring's Dorothy Garrett Coliseum will host the Big Spring Antiques and Collectibles Show Saturday, August 5 from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday, August 6 from 12 noon-5 p.m. There is no admission charge.

In addition to the antique show, an auction will be held on Saturday beginning at 6 p.m. in the East Room of the coliseum.

Sponsors of the show hope to attract tourists to the antique stores in the community.

"We'll be combining antiques, collectibles and collectible crafts the first year in order to get the event off the ground," said Katie Grimes, chairman. She said there could be such items as quilts, dolls, cedar chests, stained glass and original art.

Advertising is slated regionally as well as locally. If the event proves to be as successful as organizers predict, it will become an annual event.

"It should succeed," Grimes said, "because it offers our citizens something different."

A standard 10-ft. by 10-ft. booth for the weekend sells for $70. The fee includes one eight-ft. folding table, two folding chairs and an electrical outlet. Larger sizes are also available.

TU Electric files request to refund $89 million

TU Electric filed a request last week with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) to refund $89 million to customers, including interest through July, due to lower-than-projected fuel costs from July 1994 through May 1995.

Subject to PUC approval, the refund will be made as a credit on August bills.

The timing of the refund will partially offset higher summer electric bills caused by increased air conditioning use.

A TU Electric residential customer with an August bill for 1,000 kilowatt-hours would receive a credit of $8.62. The amount of the refund will depend on the quantity of electricity used.

The proposed refund is due to declining natural gas prices, which recently fell to their lowest point in two years on the spot market.

Electric utilities under PUC jurisdiction recover their fuel costs from customers through a fixed per-kilowatt-hour charge approved by the commission. When actual fuel costs vary materially up or down from the approved projection, the utility files a request to refund or surcharge the difference.

Since 1986, TU Electric has implemented 10 fuel refunds totalling $685 million and two fuel surcharges totalling $238 million.

Teen Night well-attended by Mitchell County youth

Teen Night at the Colorado City Swimming Pool has turned out to be more popular than ever expected.

Held on Thursday evenings each week, on Teen Night the pool is set aside strictly for young people who are in the sixth grade through high school seniors.

One hundred thirty teens showed up for the first Teen Night three weeks ago and the following week there were 111. Last Thursday there was again an attendance of more than 100 young people with 60 people signing in within 15 minutes.

"We thought there might be twenty or thirty the first night and were surprised at the big turn-out," a lifeguard said.

Police Chief David Montgomery who was manning the sign-in desk last Thursday said he anticipated the pool's popularity.

"It's one thing for kids to do this summer. Sometimes they don't take advantage of all the activities that are offered but that's not the case here," he said.

Chief Montgomery said there haven't been any major discipline problems.

"If attendance keeps going this well and continues with no problems, we're planning on having a Back To School Pool Party the last Thursday before school," the chief said.

General pool hours have also been well attended, with an average of 100 people every day using the city swimming pool.

Appraisal Board hears 13 protests

The Appraisal Review Board heard from 13 citizens protesting valuations on their properties during public hearings June 7, 8 and 9.

The first two days of the public hearings held in the CISD administration building considered real estate while protests on utility and oil businesses were heard on June 9.

Protests of the determinations given at the June public hearings are scheduled for July 7 at 9 a.m. Three protests are scheduled.

PUBLIC NOTICE

On June 26, 1995, Texas Utilities Electric Company ("TU Electric"), in accordance with Substantive Rule 23.23(b) of the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("Commission"), filed a Petition with the Commission seeking authority to refund on its customers' electric service bills an overcollected balance of fuel cost revenues existing as of May 31, 1995, in the amount of $89,063,486.48, inclusive of a previously approved fuel surcharge scheduled for the month of June 1995 in the amount of $15,098,784.90 and interest through July 1995 (which assumes the refund to be implemented in TU Electric's August 1995 billing month, with additional interest being applied if the refund is made after August 1995). All of TU Electric's customers and classes of customers whose electric service rates include charges for fuel costs pursuant to TU Electric's tariffed Rider FC, titled "Fuel Cost Factor", and all territories served by TU Electric are affected by the Petition. These changes will be subject to final review by the Commission in TU Electric's next reconciliation proceeding at the Commission. Persons who wish to intervene in the proceeding or comment upon the action sought should contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757, or call the Commission's Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 (telecommunications device for the deaf).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter concerning girls' athletics at Loraine High School.

Girls' athletics have been pushed to the back burner for the past two years. I understand Loraine has had problems keeping coaches, but why do the girls have to suffer because of it?

I know the citizens of Loraine are very proud of the boys' accomplishments in all the sports, as well they should be, but in this day and age, girls should be just as important.

Athletics are not just about winning; they are about building self esteem, confidence and much more. What kind of self esteem do the girls at Loraine have? Last season, they had an English teacher as a sponsor to attend their games. It was very nice of Ms. Pilzner to volunteer her services, but a basketball team needs a coach, not a sponsor.

The only sport the girls have left at Loraine is basketball, and this is quickly being phased out by lack of interest in girls' sport. Where would Michi Atkins be today if the administration and school board had taken this attitude when she was a young high school ball player?

I do hope that the school board will look into hiring someone solely for girls' athletics, someone who will take an interest in them, and be willing to mold young athletes.

Concerned,
Coach Tonya Troutt
ex-student

Dear Editor:

I am writing this to comment on the Answerline June 22nd.

I hear from people often about how good the park was for the Bluegrass Festival and how "neat" other places in our communities look. Pictures and articles show a lot that has been done.

If you will, think about the money that is being saved by the city, county and state with the work the prisoners do. I think they deserve a burger every once in a while. A thank you would be nice, too!

Roger D. Upshaw

Letter to the Editor:

The Rock-a-thon held for Chris Sanchez was a huge success. Lots of people in our community deserve a big thanks.

First, to the more than 50 rockers—we had fun, didn't we! To the parents who stayed and helped and to those who brought their kids, thanks.

The third grade teachers from Hutchinson helped contact the rockers and all came and rocked, too.

The promotions on KVMC, Cable 6 and in the Colorado Record stirred up the interest of our donators.

Higginbotham-Bartlett, First Baptist and First Methodist loaned us buckets and rocking chairs.

My biggest thanks goes to Fuller Foods for the use of their front porch.

Again to our community, Thank You All!

Greetings from Loraine.

Hello, dear friends and how are thee?

Twix Tweedledum and Tweedledee lies a quaint little village you should see.

Attention

Our city employees are working hard to make Loraine a cleaner, safer and more attractive place to live. We appreciate all their good work.

Also, thanks go to Wallace inmate workers and to Commissioner Bill Preston. Also to Mayor Cat Martinez, city councilmen and women, Edgar Haltom and our fire department and last but not least, residents helping in their own ways to clean and clear trash.

The only way we can fight the problems of insects, rats and disease is to keep garbage, trash and wood piles cleaned up and away from our houses.

Our city council department heads are as follows: Mayor Cat Martinez; Mayor ProTem, Lee Matlock; Water and Sewer, Arthur Zuniga; Parks and Cemetery, Chrystene Hall; Streets, James Merrell; Police Department, Pat White.

After the good rains, green lawns and pretty yards are noticeable all over town.

Both parks are beautiful and the post office has numerous roses now in bloom, plus flowers blooming along the north side of the building and in pots.

If you are in the west part of town, drive by the southwest corner of Smiley and Campbell to enjoy either yard, and also up and down Lightfoot and Main.

Please let me know about other pretty yards and I will mention them next week.

My neighbor Bea Looney has pretty flowers in front, as do my neighbors to the west of me on Market.

Our sympathy is extended to the family of Raymond DeLoera of Loraine and also to to the family of Porter Richardson of Colorado City, a longtime friend of many residents of Loraine.

We have concerns for Ralph Carter, Sue Lankford, Mason Richburg and Mr. Earl Phillips.

Activities director Jill Grant at the Loraine Manor reports that Ann Parham passed away recently. She had a niece in Little Rock, Ark. and one in Louisiana, as well.

She and Vera Mae Robinson had been roommates at the nursing home for 50 years. Our hearts go out to Mrs. Robinson now, and to Mrs. Parham's family.

The 26th was birthday party day and now residents are looking forward to a big Fourth of July bash, with brisket, potato salad, beans and apple cobbler.

Jill is asking if any of our readers have a recipe for sugar-free homemade ice cream. She would like to have it before the Fourth of July. Call her at 737-2209.

They plan to have outdoor games such as an egg toss, water balloon volleyball and basketball as well.

It sounds as if they will have a nice Fourth of July. Don't forget about the recipe.

Local man commits suicide

An 88-year-old Colorado City man was found dead the day after Father's Day of a gun shot, the apparent victim of a suicide.

John Henry, 205 W. 7th Street, had been a resident of Colorado City for fifty-five years. Henry, a farmer whose wife had died in 1977, was seen by a son on Father's Day, the day before his death.

His body was discovered Monday morning, June 19, when a friend came to check on him at his duplex and notified the Housing Authority manager when Henry failed to answer the door knock.

"He was found lying in bed with an obviously self-inflicted wound to the left side of his chest," said Lt. Patrick Taylor, the investigating officer.

The house was secured and there was no suicide note, said Taylor.

The shooting was believed to have occured around 3 a.m. Monday, June 20, with the exact time of death to be determined by the pending results of the autopsy, Taylor said.

Graveside services were held Saturday with burial in the Colorado City Cemetery.

the Prison Review Board, the third facility would be located south of the Wallace Prison Unit.

The prison facility would be an administrative segregation facility consisting of single cell segregation units.

This is a new concept that's in the planning stages right now, said TDCJ Public Information Officer Larry Tood in Austin.

While segregation units are now contained within prison units, a separate facility is a new concept.

TDCJ staff are working with architects on designs for the facilities which will be located in various areas around the state.

"It's an exciting opportunity," said Todd. "With massive growth these administrative segregation units are attractive concepts."

Todd said that Colorado City is in a good geographical location for this type of unit, centrally located and open to the economic benefits of the hundred or so jobs which would be created.

Lotto payments pass on to heirs

Colorado City's $4.3 million dollar Lotto winner, Porter Richardson, 80, died Monday in Mitchell County Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Lottery officials said he was the first Lotto winner to pass away before the payments had all been paid out and the first winner to pass on his payments to his heirs.

Richardson collected $217,513.84 a few days after the March 18 drawing. When he won the lottery, Richardson said all he wanted was a white Chevrolet Camaro and "someone to pick the sticker grass" out of his yard.

He bought the Camaro and hired a yard-worker.

The remaining 19 annual payments of $216,000 will go to his heirs as stated in his will, a lottery spokesperson said.

CODE

Roxie Strain, Jesse Munoz, Billy Bridgford and Larry Blassingame voted to keep the policy as it was at the time and Diana Garza and Yolanda Molina voted against.

Judge Jess Holloway of the 350th District Court in Abilene ruled in favor of the Barbers in November 1993, with a decision that the Colorado High School dress code was unconstitutional.

The ruling led to the district eliminating the portion of the school district's policy dealing with hair length and earrings for male students 18 years of age and older.

For males under 18, the code permitted boys to wear hair only to the bottom of their collars and earrings were prohibited.

The 11th Court of Appeals in Eastland, however, overruled Judge Holloway, contending that courts should not intervene in the matter. The appeals court's opinion said that school board trustees have the "exclusive power" to adopt regulations "as they may deem proper."

When the case was argued before the Texas Supreme Court last November, Tom Rees, attorney for the school district, said the grooming code is needed to teach Colorado City students the community's societal values.

Pat Barber, the student's father, and James Harrington, an attorney for the Texas Civil Rights Project, argued that a rule prohibiting male students in Colorado City schools from wearing earrings and hair below the collar is unconstitutional.

The state Supreme Court, the highest state court, said in its 7-2 majority opinion that the constitutional rights of students in public high schools are not the same as those of adults in other settings.

Justice Raul Gonzales wrote, "We refuse to use the Texas Constitution to micro-manage Texas High Schools."

In separate dissenting opinions, Justices Rose Spector and Bob Gammage said the court should have found the dress code unconstitutional based on gender bias.

The "court turns its back on an indisputable finding of sex discrimination, and unashamedly proclaims that such matters are not worthy of this court's consideration," Spector wrote.

Pat Barber, who represented his son in the suit, said that the decision Thursday was unreasonable.

"It was a political, not a legal decision," he said, noting that the last session of the legislature emphasized local control in Texas schools.

"It gutted the equal rights amendment, is offensive and anti-family," said Barber, adding that it set a "dangerous precedent."

"It teaches young Texans that when their constitutional rights are infringed, they can expect no remedy in the courts of law," said Barber.

"How then can we expect young Texans to respect the law," he said.

Rees, who represented the school district, said that the decision confirms the way the state laws have looked at the ERA.

"It's nothing new. We feel comfortable with local authorities passing dress code rules that are applicable to the local community," said Rees.

In affirming the judgment of the court of appeals, the Supreme Court upheld the "take nothing" judgment against Barber, reversing the earlier court which had awarded Barber $13,600 in attorney's fees.

Current Board of Trustees president Larry Blassingame said, "We're proud of the way it came out. It's just that some things are left up to the school administration and school boards. Our main concern is educating students in the best environment possible and that's what we want to do."

CISD board of trustees is expected to amend the current dress code to also apply to students over 18. The board will probably review the handbook before the beginning of school, Rees said, depending on future litigation.

Barber said Monday he has "no intentions of asking for a motion for a re-hearing."

This case is concluded "but the issue is still open," said Barber, noting an applicable state civil practices and remedies code which allows an injunction on a school district (106.001) and a case in Bastrop, currently on appeal, which he is following closely.

members.

Warden Cooper explained that all of those involved in the incident have been suspected of being gang members but were not confirmed members. If an inmate is confirmed as belonging to a gang, he is transferred to another unit, said Cooper.

As many as four gangs may have been involved in the incident, Sheriff Patrick Toombs said. The gangs have members in prisons throughout the state.

Gang members at the unit were said to have an agreement but one gang apparently violated the pact, catching the other gang and surprising prison officials who said there had been no unusual tension among the inmates prior to the fight.

Warden Cooper praised the staff for its quick response. No members of the staff were injured in the fracas, which was contained within four minutes.

The attacks occurred in three day rooms which are guarded by two staff members each who rotate.

Guerra was in J Building. The incident occured as a guard left the room to go to his next assignment, Cooper said.

The guard in the control room, where all rooms are watched constantly, immediately saw there was a fight taking place and alterted the staff.

Guerra was taken to the Wallace Unit's medical facility and was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Glenda Haltom.

Mitchell County Sheriff's Office, Texas Rangers, prison officials and TDCJ internal affairs are investigating.

Investigators worked through Sunday evening until Monday morning interviewing inmates and guards. Sheriff Patrick Toombs said he has sent off 40 articles of evidence to a Dallas lab that is also handling the autopsy.

Handmade knives and locks, such as a combination lock and padlock, which were wrapped in a sock were used as weapons in the fight, Toombs said. Knives were made from 8-inch metal rods that had been sharpened to a point.

Cooper said autopsy and investigative reports will have to be completed before any charges are filed against the suspects.

"There will no doubt be several charged," said Cooper.

Capital murder charges are brought when a murder occurs inside a prison and is gang related, he said.

The reports and evidence will be turned over to District Attorney Frank Conard to be presented to the grand jury July 20th.

The Wallace Unit has been in lockdown since the incident. Prisoners are confined to their cells with minimal movement allowed around the prison except for essential jobs while guards continue to search for weapons.

Warden Cooper said the lockdown will continue until the investigation is complete, racial tension has subsided and tempers have cooled down.

T-shirt and cap fans will again have the opportunity to buy souvenirs with the imprint "Colorado City July 4th Fly In."

Airplane lovers will get their fill of steady traffic coming and going, and all kinds of planes will be parked for viewing. Connie Edwards usually brings the Catalina PBY flying boat, the Grummon Goose, or one of his other seaplanes. "It depends on what airplane is closest to the hangar door," he says.

Connie's son, Tex, has accompanied his dad for several years flying World War II aircraft as large as the Grummon Avenger TBF, the Consolidated Vultee Corsair and the Texan.

The Big Country Squadron of the Confederate Air Force in Abilene has been coming for several years, bringing at least two aircraft each year.

About 100 planes fly to this event in Colorado City each year, close to 500 breakfasts are served and general overall attendance is between 1,500 and 2,000.

The Fly In is sponsored by the Colorado City July Fourth Committee and the Colorado City Area Chamber of Commerce.

House of Representatives pays tribute to the late Elmer Martin

The Texas House of Representatives paid tribute to lifelong Colorado City resident Elmer Martin May 1 by entering a resolution in the House honoring Martin and adjourning the meeting in his memory.

His widow, Billie Martin, was invited to the Texas Capitol to be present for the ceremony.

Others attending from Mitchell County were George Martin, a nephew; Dorothy Shurtleff, district aide for Rep. Rob Junell; Nancy Sullivan and Woody Anderson who served with Martin on the Mitchell County Board of Economic Development; Ken Kendall; and Warren Anderson.

Representative Robert Junell escorted Mrs. Martin to the House floor, then went to the podium where he read the resolution which paid tribute to former Representative Martin's life and extended sympathy to the members of his family, his wife of 47 years, eight nieces and nephews, and friends and relatives.

The resolution began, "Whereas, the family and many friends of the Honorable Elmer Martin suffered a great loss with the passing of this public-spirited Texan on January 22, 1995, at the age of 79...."

Born June 24, 1915 in Scurry County, Martin was employed by the local Soil and Water Conservation Service from 1945 to 1958, "when he began his distinguished tenure as Mitchell County judge."

"Highly regarded by his friends and neighbors for his honesty and fairness, he was elected to the Texas House of Representatives in 1973, in which capacity he served with distinction until 1979."

He declined to serve a fourth term in the state legislature, but served as mayor of Colorado City from 1980 to 1987.

"This tireless community activist further devoted himself to the public good by contributing his time, expertise, and leadership skills to numerous civic improvement groups, including the Colorado City Industrial Team, the Chamber of Commerce, and several agricultural organizations," the resolution read.

"Working with Representative Robert Junell, Mr. Martin was instrumental in passing legislation to allow economic development boards in small counties, thus paving the way for the creation of the Mitchell County Economic Development Board; since then, the county has received a much-needed economic boost by earning selection as the site of a new 1,000-bed prison unit.

"The citizens of Mitchell County commemorated his remarkable record of service by instituting the Elmer J. Martin Award, which recognizes exceptional service in behalf of Colorado City, Mitchell County, and the State of Texas; Mr. Martin was honored as the first recipient of the award that was named in his honor at the annual chamber of commerce banquet in 1993.

"Despite his many civic obligations, Mr. Martin always made time for service projects and social activities with the Colorado City Kiwanis Club; he also was a devout member of First United Methodist Church, and his numerous friends in that congregation will miss his many spiritual contributions to the church.

"A man of integrity, honor and compassion, Elmer Martin left an indelible mark both on the Mitchell County community and on the lives of all who knew him, and the magnitude of his gifts can never be measured; although his special presence will be missed, the enormity of his contributions to his community and to the State of Texas will never be forgotten."

Solar-powered electric car to make Sweetwater stop

Sweetwater will be the first homecoming stop for a student-built car that is competing in the biggest race under the sun.

The solar-powered electric car will be welcomed to Sweetwater by TU Electric, one of the car's sponsoring partners, and the Texas State Technical College faculty.

TU Electric invites everyone to see the demonstrations Monday, July 3, 9 a.m.-12 noon. With college classes closed for the holiday, there will be ample space in the parking lot in front of the flag poles.

The Texas A&M Sunrayce '95 Team of six engineering students, two faculty advisors and solar-paneled car will head back to College Station after completing a 1,150-mile race using only the power from the sun.

With 66 entrants, Sunrayce '95 is the largest solar car race ever held in North America. The route is from Indianapolis, Ind. to Golden Colo. June 20-29, to coincide with the summer solstice.

Sunrayce is an ongoing program open to colleges, universities, trade schools and other educational institutions to increase public awareness of solar photovoltaic research and stimulate science and engineering eudcation. It is sponsored by the Department of Energy, the National Renewable Energy Laboratory and nine electrical or automotive companies.

TU Electric supported the Texas A&M entry, called the Aggie Beamer, to further the development of clean solar, electric transportation and to encourage engineering students to explore renewable energy, according to Linda Edwards, TU Electric's Sweetwater manager

"This solar electric car is part of TU Electric's continuing effort to evaluate the potential of different uses for solar and other renewable energy applications," Edwards said.

At TU Electric's Energy Park research and demonstration center in Dallas, the company began this year to generate electricity from two different types of solar projects that can power about 20 homes.

In West Texas, the company's largest renewable energy project will break ground next year in Big Spring with the construction of 80 wind turbines that will generate enough electricity for 8,500 homes.

"It's the students who will help carry us into the future of renewable energy," Edwards explained. "Supporting such development and demonstration activities as the solar car may attract students to pursue careers in energy and in protecting the environment."

The Aggie Beamer is no NASCAR vehicle. Instead, it is made of very light aluminum tubing covered with fiberglass. A wing containing the solar cells extends over the rear half of the vehicle. The solar array, made of over 700 individual cells, produces enough power (about a kilowatt) to propel the car at "in-town" speeds. For faster driving, energy can be stored in batteries and replaced later with solar energy.

Over 100 students enrolled in electrical, mechanical or agricultural engineering participated in the design and construction of the Aggie Beamer as part of their course work.

"It helps the student get a feel for real engineering, budgets, schedules and performance objectives," says Dr. Tom Tally, one of the team faculty advisors.

"This is our first try at a competition like the Sunrayce," says Tally. "We are using this first attempt to see what it takes to be competitive, and it's tough. MIT, Cal Poly-Pomona and other teams are able to run for extended periods of highway speeds.

"The successful teams have been working for many years on several generations of cars," Tally explained. "Aerodynamics and systems efficiency are the keys," he said.

"This is our first generation vehicle, and we have performed well for a newcomer," Tally said.

The Aggie Beamer qualified for a 14th place start in the qualifying event held in Indianapolis on June 16.

JERRY TREDAWAY

New redfish record set at Lake Colorado City

A new Colorado City Lake record for redfish was possibly set June 18 by a summer lake house owner. Jerry Tredaway, a Midland resident, caught a redfish that weighed 25 pounds, 12 ounces and was 44-3/4 inches long. The record catch, pending certification from the state, tops the old record for a 25 pound redfish caught last summer.

The lake was stocked with 300,000 redfish on June 13th, said Game Warden Randy Bullard. It was restocked with 161,000 hybrid crappie April 2.

Overall, there's been a five percent survival rate due largely to predation from bass and adult crappie, said Game Warden Randy Bullard.

The crappie should be adult size in about a year. The redfish are expected to be legal size in 18 to 20 months.
