GALLOWAY MEN CRUSH BUFFS IN TWIN BILL

1927 Dixie Champions Run Rough Shod Over Leading Rivals

10,000 IN CROWD

Record Attendance Mark Set at Sunday Bargain Pastime

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Money players. That's the Wichita Falls Spudders.

Arising to the occasion as only a gallant, great ball club will do, the Spudders Sunday rolled back the threat of the Houston Buffaloes, taking a double header out at our playground in a continuation of superb baseball that has marked an extensive winning streak. The scores were 4 to 2 and 8 to 3.

By capturing both contests yesterday, their third straight in the four-game series with the Buffs, the Spudders won their 13th and 14th consecutive games, bettering their record of straight wins of last year by two.

They also now are five games in the lead of the Buffs for first place, a margin that except for some unforseen mishap or direful slump, will carry them to the winning of the second half and a playoff with the Buffs, victors in the first half.

Record Crowd

As was befitting the occasion the largest crowd ever to see a Texas league championship game here viewed the pastimes, the paid attendance being 9,617, and there were enough policemen, prominent citizens, newspaper men and other privileged of tolerant gate crashers to swell the number to 10,000. This crowd was the second largest to attend a ball game here, being excelled in numbers only by the attendance in the first game of the Dixie series, which was more than 11,000.

As on Saturday, when they shutout the Buffs, 6-0 in the series opener, the Spudders left no doubt as to their superiority in winning both games yesterday. They outhit, outfielded and outpitched the Buffs.

Back of that excelling in mechanical play was their fighting spirit. Money players, in the parlance of the game, means athletes who are at their best in the clinch. And the Spudders were at their best yesterday at the most critical times, while an erratic defense, including fielding and pitching and an attack that except for flashes was impotent, marked the Buffaloes as a beaten team.

All Spudders Star

There wasn't a Wichita Falls athlete who played through one or both games yesterday, who at one or more times didn't come through with brilliant fielding or a timely hit to save the day or advance the cause of his club. One could name the entire roster of the team and say, "There was a star yesterday."

SMITH REPLIES TO HIS CRITIC

Governor to Answer Letter Of Dr. Straton

NEW YORK, Aug. 12. (US)—Governor Smith will answer tomorrow the Rev. John Roach Straton's recent letter. The governor's reply will decide whether or not the proposed debate on morality will be held. The prospect tonight was that there will be no meeting of the preacher and the presidential nominee.

The governor is expected to remind Mr. Straton that he asked permission to meet the clergyman's charges where they were uttered—in Calvary church. He is expected to say that in reply he received an acceptance of his challenge without specific consent to the designation of the church for the debate. Since accepting the governor's challenge, Mr. Straton has decided that we will not sanction the governor speaking in Calvary church, which, those in the executive's confidence say, virtually nullifies his original acceptance of the challenge.

Unless the governor's attitude changes overnight, he will reject the suggestions of the clergyman for a debat either in Madison Square garden, through the southern states, at Columbus circle, in St. Patrick's cathedral, or on the radio. Since he is not to be allowed to answer the charges 'that he was the deadliest foe of moral progress in the country,' where they were made, he will meet them, it is believed, at a time and place selected by himself. But they will be answered, his friends are certain, and soon.

Mr. Straton spent the week-end at Greenwood lake. He professes unconcern over the governor's attitude and a determination to carry on the campaign to demonstrate the justice of his allegations.

Siamese Operation May Be Delayed

NEW YORK, Aug. 12. (US)—No application had been made today at the Park West hospital, for the reported impending operation to sever Margaret and Mary Gibb, 17-year-old "Siamese" twins.

Absence of a formal notice of the operation was interpreted to mean it would not take place until after tomorrow and possibly not for a week. Dr. Francis P. Weston was declared to be out of town for the week-end.

The twins continued to remain at the hospital "under observation." Dr. Weston has been quoted as saying he intends to cut the cartilaginous tissue which joins the twins at the base of their spines.

FARM LEADERS GO TO ALBANY ON CONFERENCE

Prominent Western Republicans to Talk With Al Smith

SPEECH PREPARED

Nominee Expected to Hit Directly at Utterances Of Opponent

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 12. (UP)—Gov Alfred E. Smith having brought his formal speech of acceptance to within a few hours work of completion, was expected to confer here Monday with a score of prominent agricultural representatives from the middle west and south.

Included in the delegation scheduled to meet with the governor some time in the afternoon, according to present indications, are a number of men prominent in state Republican are:

Among those expected are:

George N. Peek of Moline, Ill. who recently announced his decision to support the Democratic nominee in the corn belt.

Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, and a delegate at large to the Republican convention and supported in a speech from the convention floor, the minority farm report.

William Hirth, chairman of the corn belt committee and publisher of "The Missouri Farmer" at Columbia, Mo.

X. Caverno of Canalou, Mo., president of the Missouri Cotton Growers' association. Caverno also is a Rpublican.

W. H. Suttle, president of the Indiana farm bureau federation and a Republican.

Al to Strike Issue

There had been no formal announcement of the conference but it was understood the delegation would arrive Monday morning and that they would meet with Governor Smith later in the day.

With Herbert Hoover's position outlined in his acceptance speech at Palo Alto, Calif., Saturday night, it was believed probable that the Democratic nominee would put finishing touches to his own declarations with a view to striking definite issues with the Republican standard bearer. Governor Smith listened attentatively to Hoover's speech as it came over the executive mansion radio but he declined to comment.

Principle interest here today centered in the nation-wide reaction to Hoover's speech.

Apparently, comment from various sections of the country reflected partisan viewpoints and portrayed Hoover's words as "a declaration of vital convictions" or as "an evasion" of important issues, according to various political faiths. All—or nearly all—agreed that the Republican nominee had taken a more definite stand in favor of prohibition than was written into his party platform.

Works at Night

Governor Smith gave no indication that Hoover's speech was cause for disturbance in Democratic ranks. Observers pointed out, however, that the speech would undoubtedly, would influence final preparation of the address which the New York executive will deliver August 22.

Governor Smith had been working on his acceptance speech at night, he said, and probably will continue the system in rounding out his final phases.

Edtorial opinion, as well as the opinions of party leaders, was well divided on the policies outlined in Hoover's speech, according to despatches received here.

For the most part, comment followed on one of two lines:

First, that Hoover had failed to break away from orthodox Republican lines as had been expected by many observers; that he had failed to offer constructive ideas to correct what he admitted were evells of prohibition and the farm situation. For the most part such indictment of the Republican nominee came from Democratic strongholds.

"American Document"

Second, that the speech of acceptance was "an American document" filled with "common sense" policies which "left no doubt" as to where he stands and " will saltify the middle west." Naturally, such comment issued from Republican or non-partisan sources.

Babe, 3, Drowns In Bathing Pool Near Electra

Overby Child Disappears in Shallow Water; Anxious Crowds Search to Find Body

ELECTRA, Texas, Aug. 12.—Billy Overby, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Overby, was drowned Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Kuykuehahn pool, six miles north of Electra, where a score of children and older persons were finding respite from the day's heat.

Billy had been left in a shallow portion of the pool while the elders swam into deep water. The gay, laughing crowd became alarmed the baby's absence was noted. An immediate search began, and the baby's body was found.

The body was rushed to the Barmsley-Ogden hospital here. Physicians worked frantically over the body, but the child was dead.

Mr. and Mrs. Overby lived on the Tibbs farm in the County Line community. The child is survived by his parents, two brothers, Cecil and Floyd, and two sisters, Emmaline and Geraldine. Funeral arrangements had not been completed Sunday night.

Youth Attempts To Fix Roulette Wheel in Casino

SAN REMO, Aug. 12. (US)—The strictest watch to prevent fraud against the municipal gambling casino in being kept here these days following the arrest of Jean Ferri, a youthful engineer of Milan, on charges of an illegal scheme to break the roulette bank.

Ferri was seized dramatically at a roulette table, the authorities asserting that if his plan had worked the bank would have lost more than $800,000 in short order.

The gaming which is carried on here with higher stakes than at any other casino in the world, had ended for the night, and the attendants had locked up the building and gone home, when the nightwatchman heard sounds coming from the roulette room. He switched on the light, and, it is alleged, found Ferri inserting a piece of magnet in one of the roulette wheels.

Meteoric Shower Fails to Appear

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. (UP)—Astronomers at the U. S. naval observatory were unable, due to heavily clouded skies, to take observations regarding the spectacular meteor display which they had predicted would occur early today.

Reports from some points were that the display had failed to be observed. Having been unable to make observations, the observatory was reluctant to comment. It was suggested however, there might have been a gap in the meteor field through which the earth was due to pass Saturday night and Sunday morning.

This field is composed of the scattered remnants of the shattered comet perseids, the earth was due to pass directly across it, an annual event. Normally a meteor display takes place as the earth goes through, due to the fragments coming within the earth's atmosphere at such a terrific speed that the friction causes them to reach white heat. It is possible, it was said at the observatory, that this year there was a break in the field at the point where the earth crossed.

SOLDIERS ROUT GAMBLERS IN NEW ORLEANS

Govern r Long Carries Out Threat to Suppress Games of Chance

REPORTER HURT

Newspaper Photographer Severely Beaten By Angry Men

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 12. (AP)—Threats of Gov. Huey P. Long to suppress gambling in St. Bernard parish were executed today when national guardsmen, acting on the governor's orders, raided two fashionable clubs and seized the gambling paraphernalia.

Names of approximately 225 persons found in the two places—the Jai-Alai Fronton and the Arabi club located just outside the New Orleans city limits—were taken for future reference. The patrons, many of whom were women, were released after being questioned.

The only casualty of the raid was Neil Simmes, staff photographer of the Times-Picayune, attacked and beaten by about 50 men as he attempted to take a picture. Guardsmen rescued him. He was unconscious when found.

Governor Long, who was in New Orleans last night heard that the two places had reopened, he issued an order to Adjutant General Raymond H. Fleming to see that they were closed. Unwilling to trust the order to a messenger, the governor traveled several miles in a taxicab to deliver it in person. Within half an hour the raid was over.

Fleming Acts Swiftly

When General Fleming received his instructions he also acted swiftly. Within half an hour the raid was over and General Fleming telephoned Governor Long, who had returned to his hotel, that the order had been carried out.

Col. E. P. Roy, who was placed in personal command of the raids, warned his men not to shoot unless ordered but to shoot without hesitation if the order was given.

"You are about to deal with desperate men," he said, "remember that you are soldiers and that you are engaged in serious business of your state. You are to enforce its law."

The men climbed into automobiles and crouched down so their uniforms would not be seen. Three officers and five men went to the Jai-Alai club and two officers and five men to the Arabi club. The establishments face each other on the same street.

Heavily armed, the soldiers entered the club. Women screamed and several fainted. A shot rang out, believed to have been fired by a sentry on guard to warn the gamblers. There was a quick grab for money on the gambling tables.

Order Restored

Order, however, was restored in a few minutes. And then the two captains in charge at the time barked out:

"If you want to shoot it out we are perfectly willing, but we don't want any shooting if it can be avoided. We want to make it as easy on you as possible."

There was no further disturbance and the money and gambling equipment quickly was secured and the names of the patrons obtained without difficulty.

A big bon fire was held this afternoon when all the gambling paraphernalia that was inflammable was burned. The remainder was hacked to pieces with axes. What disposition will be made of the money had not been decided today, although it was generally understood it would revert to some state fund.

ELECTRA MAN JOINS SHOOK IN JAIL HERE

Former Constable Held On Burglary And Robbery Charges

JOINT INDICTMENTS

Court to Set Shook's Trial Today in Knife Slaying

Ed Pryor, former Electra constable indicted Saturday on two felony charges by a special grand jury, was arrested and returned to the Wichita county jail Sunday by W. G. Bralley, sheriff, and Dick Morris, deputy.

The two Wichita county officers left Wichita Falls afout 10 o'clock Saturday night, following a trail which led them to Childress, where Pryor was finally located. The return trip began immediately and Pryor was placed in jail here shortly before noon.

Two Former Officers

With the confinement of Pryor, two former peace officers of Electra were lodged in the county jail. Tom Shook, former chief of police thereindicted for murder Saturday, was arrested early Friday morning in Electra, seven hours after W. O. Daugherty had been fatally stabbed.

Pryor and Shook were jointly indicted for burglary on three counts and robbery on three counts by the Wichita county special grand jury which completed its investigations into the activities of the erstwhile Electra peace officers Saturday afternoon.

The burglary indictment grew out of the blowing of a safe at the Grand theater in Electra on June 18, and the indictment for robbery resulted from the holdup by a lone bandit of J. E. Earley, employe of the Jefferson hotel, also at Electra, the following night.

The two former officers are indicted on counts as principals, accomplices and assessories after the fact in both charges.

It was only a short time after the hotel employe was robbed that Henry Shumate was arrested and placed in jail. Early in July he was indicted for the robbery and twice indicted for burglary.

These indictments were returned after Shumate had escaped from the county jail on the morning of June 24, to be recaptured the following morning at the Electra home of Pryor.

Faces Five Bills

Immediately after Shumate's arrest Pryor and Shook also were arrested and brought to Wichita Falls, where charges of concealing a prisoner were filed against them. Later the two men were indicted by the grand juryp on three counts of bugiary in connection with the looting of the King news stand at Electra on the night of May 29.

With indictments returned by the grand jury Saturday, Shook is under five indictments, two charging burglary, one charging driving an automobile while intoxicated, one charging robbery, and one charging murder. Pryor is indicted three times for burglary on two bills and for robbery.

The murder indictment charges Shook with fatally inflicting a wound Thursday night upon W. O. Daugherty, 42, in the home of Ace Sperry of Electra. Funeral services for Daugherty were held Saturday afternoon at Electra.

Case to Be Set

The capital charge against Shook tentatively is set for court call August 22, with a definite date to be agreed upon at a conference Monday morning between Ben F. Allred, district attorney, Fred Weeks, special prosecutor, W. W. Cook, Judge of the 78th district court.

The three indictments jointly returned against Pryor and Shook, do not charge the two men with being present at the time the acts were committed, but all charge the two foremr officers with encouraging Shumate to engage in the burglaries and the robbery.

Tex Thornton Fails to Put Out Oil Well Fire in Dash Through Flames

WINK, Texas, Aug. 12. (AP)—Protected by an asbestos suit, Tex Thornton, veterah oil well fire fighter, today dashed through flames which licked upward 150 feet, and "shot" a well on the Roxana lease about a mile from here in the Winkler field in an attempt to check a spectacular fire which had been raging for the last three days.

The shooting of the well did not extinguish the blaze and Thornton planned 40 press 15 steam boilers into service.

The well, which has been flowing 3,000 barrels daily, was set aflame by lightning. Brilliantly illuminating the skies, the fire can be seen for 15 or 20 miles.

Although damage caused by the fire so far is unestimated, it was known to total several thousand dollars.

One Dead, Three Ill, Six Arrested In Wives' and Husbands' Death Plot

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 12. (AP) One person was dead, three others were seriously ill and six were under arrest today as the result of what police term a murder plot on the part of discontented wives and husbands to get rid of their spouses.

S. W. Daniels, alias Professor Brandorini, who posed as a fortune teller and crystal gazer has confessed, police said that he sold poison to Mrs. E. F. Pressley, at that time Mrs. L. M. Lockamy, knowing that she intended to use it to cause the death of her husband.

Lockamy died on June 8. His widow married E. F. Pressley three weeks later. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pressley were arrested yesterday and were charged with murder.

The others in the custody of the police, Mrs. L. M. Prigden, Mrs. Lilly Townley and J. H. Moore, negro preacher, were said to have bought poison from Daniels and to have given it to their mates, who are seriously ill. The trio were charged with conspiracy to murder.

Authorities said that Daniel obtained from $15.50 to $500 for the poisoned powder that he sold. His arrest came as the result of the statement of a girl whom police took into custody for shoplifting.

CHRIST BUILDS HIS CHURCH ON FRAILTIES OF MAN, SAYS PASTOR

WHITE GIVES PARK SERMON

Men Must Learn Christ By Experience

Choosing for subject "The Christ of Experience," Rev. Alvin F. White, pastor of the Grace Methodist church, delivered the second of the summer series of union services sponsored by the Wichita Falls Ministerial alliance at Bellevue park Sunday evening. Dr. Floyd Allen Bash, pastor of the First Christian church, presided and Dr. Paul Henry Packard, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church, led the evening prayer. The men of the First Presbyterian church served as ushers. R. E. Shepherd led the opening song service and sang a special solo number.

Those who will learn the living Jesus Christ who is enshrined in the heart of man, must learn Him through actual experience, Rev. White said in his sermon. For it was through such intimate knowledge of the work and the power of the Lord that Simon Peter learned the Savior and was entrusted with the fate of Christianity after the crucifixion of Jesus Christ.

Opportunity Today

"The laboratory in which Peter and the other disciples worked is open to us today, 'come unto me' is the invitation and in the acceptance of this invitation is the real knowledge of Christ's divinity," the speaker said in concluding his sermon.

The sermon given by Rev. Mr. White is in part, as follows:

"He said unto them, 'but who say ye that I am?' and Simon Peter answered and said, 'Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.' And Jesus answered and said unto him 'blessed art thou Simon Bar-Jonah, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father who is in Heaven.'"—Matthew 16:15-17.

Caeserea Phillipi is an important milestone in the earthly pilgrimage of our Lord. In his own consciousness he was facing an approaching event which was to be climatic and significant. It was to be a crisis fraught with many unpromising possibilities. It was his approaching death. He had hinted at it a few times, but as yet he had never discussed this matter with his disciples.

Another proposition weighed heavily upon the Master's mind. It is revealed in the questions he asks his disciples in this chapter. "Whom do men say that I, the son of man, am?" He was anxious to know what impression he had made on the minds of men. What has been th eeffect of my life? Do men understand me? Is there any one who really knows me? These were the questions that concerned Him so mightily just now.

Christ Son of God

In answer to this question the disciples reply: "Some say that you are John the Baptist; some, Elijah; and others, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets." Well that was good so far as it went, but it did not go far enough. It was the testimony of casual observers. I twas the superficial judgment of the indifferent who by chance had been privileged to witness some of his miracles. Nothing had happened in their lives to impress upon them the true meaning of Christ's personality.

And now I can imagine Christ moving closer to His disciples and looking straight into their eyes as he propounds the second question: "Whom do ye say that I am?" What a tremendous moment. Everything depends upon the answer. The suspense was not long, for Simon Peter answered and said, "Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God." Now Jesus is satisfied. This matter is settled. Here is one man at least who understands. One who has been convinced of His divine personality, and identity. Christ has not lived here in vain, for one disciple has developed under His influence a strong, clear faith.

And now Jesus is ready to pass on to the other great matter which is constantly upon his mind. A thing he could not discuss with men of less faith. It is in the 21st verse of this chapter. "From that time forth began Jesus to show unto his disciples, how that He must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raise dagain the third day." Now Christ can face the cross feeling confident that all will be well here after his going. The story of His life will not be forgotten. The seeds of the gospel will not die out. For here is a man who has grasped the full meaning of his master; a man who knows his Lord. He will not forget and he will be true. My church shall be established. Though I go back to the Father, my gospel and my church shall be secure. Here is a man to be trusted, and the Master feels satisfied to leave all in his hands. Jesus did not reduce to writing the principles of His religion, that they might be preserved in the form of philosophy of life; but he wrought them into the life of a man, and through that man's life the message was to spread. Jesus is now ready to utter the great statement so familiar to us all: "And I also say unto thee, that thou are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it."

Simon of Strange Faith"

I know there has been a lot of theological quibbling as to what this passage means. Some think Christ intended to say that He would build His church on Peter's faith. Others believe that He meant to build on Peter. Have it any way you please. I am not much concerned with hair splitting interpretations here. I am inclined to think that Jesus is here that He will build His church out of the material furnished in the life and personality of Peter. But says some one; how can that be? Peter is not perfect, and at the trial a little later he denies his Lord. Yes, that is true. Peter was a weak, impetuous sort of man. He was afflicted with human frailty, just like the rest of us. I do not know how Jesus builds His church out of weak, sinful humanity. This, however, I do know, that he has nothing else with which to build it. If He builds His church, he must build it out of such materials as he finds at hand. Yes, He must use ordinary human beings with all their foibles and failures, like Peter and the rest of us. For the most of us, there is a bit of consolation here. How conscious we are of our failures and shortcomings, but in spite of these Christ loves us, holds on to us and uses us.

I take my stand with Peter, and with a faith like his I lay hold of Christ; then I shall fear nothing. Though a hellish world war shakes the foundations of nations, I am secure in Him. I want my faith founded in Him where the blasts of ever-advancing science cannot shake it. When foes organize and make battle against the program of morality and righteousness in the land, I shall be true to Him. Christ proposes to take frail humanity and with it build His church so strong that even "the gates of hell cannot prevail against it." His church is not made strong by the doctrines formulated by the theologians of the fourth and twelfth or the twentieth century, but by the very thing that our Lord said He would found it on, viz, men of strong faith.

Christ of Experience

Now we come to the most important phase of this whole subject. How did Peter come to possess this great faith by which he was able to grasp the idea of the divinity of Christ? Did he get it from the reading of books containing the record of Christ's life and teachings? No, for Jesus wrote nothing save what he wrote in the shifting sands, and no other record of His life had been penned at this time that we know anything about. Neither did Peter receive the story from the lips of any mortal man for as Christ here says: "Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but My Father which is in Heaven." Peter's faith in Christ and his knowledge of Christ came as a result of experience. He had dealings with Christ and was convinced.

Let us hurriedly trace his footsteps from the day he met Jesus, to Caeserea Philippi. "Come ye after me, and I will make you fishers of men," was the invitation of Jesus to Peter and his brother Andrew by the shores of Gallilee. He was there and then initiated into the school of Jesus to learn the great lesson of life. Jesus won Peter by an appeal to motive, The students who matriculated with Jesus did not have to pass any psychological or thelogical test. The first question was as to purpose. Do you want to be helpful to men? Peter did, so he enlisted.

Simon Learns Jesus

Once enlisted in Jesus' company Peter heard Him teach. He heard the limpid, sparkling beatitudes drop from the lips of Jesus. And untutored fisherman though he was, he knew what Jesus was talking about, for meekness, purity and mercy are democratic virtues. He learned of Jesus the simple, practical truths of everyday life about anger, adultry and vengeance. He listened with wonder and yet with haunting conviction to the Master's strange counsel to go the second mile and to turn the other cheek. He learned that righteousness of conduct was the real test of discipleship. But Peter is still in the beginners' class. His first lessons are of helpfulness to men and obedience to Jesus. The sermon on the mount is his primer. Wonderful lessons in the amazing goodness of Jesus are to be learned. His goodness is better than that under the law of Moses better than that of the Pharacas.

As Peter followed Jesus in simple obedience he began to see that his Master possessed a bewildering power in addition to His unprecedented goodness. Peter had seen his wife's mother cured of a fever. He had seen Him send palsied men stepping forth with the elastic step of health. He had been present when Jesus touched the leper and gave him the thrill of clean blood. He had been present when the Master made the distorted minds of demented persons to grow clear.

Christ Has Calm Power

Another quality in Jesus impressed Peter. It was His omable calm. Jesus' followers did not always keep poise and self-possessed. They had many disquieting questionings in spite of His repeated advice, "Be not anxious." But He was sustained and soothed by an unfaltering calm. During a storm at sea He slept peacefully and when He was awakened by His frightened disciples, He arose unbewildered by the exciting spectacle and proceeded to calm the storm, still the sea and sooth the distrbed minds of His disciples.

Again Peter must have been overwhelmed by the authority which Jesus assumed. He professed to be Lord of the Sabbath, and proceeded to take liberties with its conventional observance. He assumed to power to forgive sins, and boldly claimed, "All things have been delivered to me of my Father."

Peter came to know Jesus in His goodness, power, confidence and authority by entering with Jesus into experiences that revealed these qualities. His knowledge of Jesus came not of observation but from experience. There are two methods of learning. The lecture room and the laboratory. Peter went in to the laboratory with Jesus to try out his new religion. The instruments used were the yoke of service and the cross of sacrifice. "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me." "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow me."

Likes His Weather Cold--Sports Hot

Wichita Pastor Once Dashing Halfback

Few persons lay more stress upon the heat of the day than does Rev. Alvin F. White. It is difficult to determine whether he has or has not yet learned Texas' special brand of summer, for when he is asked to perform a special task, his first remark will be "it depends upon how warm it is tomorrow."

Aside from the weather, the home of Rev. Mr. White is ruled chiefly by Bob White who is only a few years old, but has learned the age-old ruling power peculiar to the youngest of the family. And with five children, two boys and three girls in the family, even the weather has had little time for dominance in the life of the pastor.

REV. ALVIN F. WHITE

The minister would probably spend more time at his favorite recreation of watching baseball games, if baseball were a winter sport. His dislike for hot weather is the probable reason for his preference for football in which game he excelled as halfback when he was a student in Tennessee Wesleyan in Athens, Tenn., and at Ohio Wesleyan in Delaware, Ohio, some 17 or 18 years ago.

He has been active in the ministry of the Methodist church in Indiana, Oklahoma and Texas since his graduation.

In religion, as in friendship or music or art, we learn by experiment. We do not become friends by reading Damon and Pythias, or Jonathan and David, or by witnessing the warn friendships of the people around us. We must enter into friendly comradeships for ourselves if we would know the meening of friendship. We do not develop the finest appreciation for music by attending opera season after season; but by the discipline of practice, by the mastery of some instrument, we usher ourselves into the inner room of appreciation where we can enjoy all good music. Peter entered the laboratory of life with Jesus for an absolute and final test, and emerged with this glowing testimony: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Jesus has become the Christ of experience. He is not a sactimonious dreamer among the shadows, but a man among men. Ah! more than that. He is the divine one dwelling within the hearts and lives of men.

The laboratory in which Peter and the other disciples worked out their unmistakable convictions is open to us today. All the materials are ready and at hand. The facts which these men discovered about Jesus are all recorded in the gospel story. Will you take them and try them out in the laboratory of life? If you will do this, you will find rich treasure which moth and rust cannot soil, nor can it be stolen by thieves. "Come unto Me," is the invitation; and in the acceptance of that invitation comes the real knowledge of Christ's divinity. Are you ready to take Him for your leader and guide, "For better for worse, for richar for poorer, in sickness in health, till death brings us closer to Him still?"

NOTED JUDGE DIES IN STREET

Body Found in New York Gutter

NEW YORK, Aug. 12. (US)—Down, out, dead in the gutter—they found George A. Reading today. Years ago he served as a city magistrate, later he became one of the most forceful, picturesque attorneys in New York and he counted friends by the hundreds.

Today, after Patrolman Duffy stumbled on his body, it was hours before he could be identified. Many persons recalled the man, but none recalled his name until Andrew B. Keating, president of the Keating Democratic club and leader of the district, looked at the body and exclaimed:

"Good Heavens, that's George Reading—everybody knows him."

Dr. H. Zinan, of Knickerbocker hospital, examined the body thoroughly, but could detect no indications of violence and ventured the diagnosis:

"Alcoholism probably, maybe wood alcohol."

Police learned that Reading had lived in a room at No. 321 West One Hundred and Twenty-Sixth street in a house owned by Joseph Schultz who knew him well. Schultz incerased the air of mystery around the lawyer's death, with this statement:

"Only recently, Reading was called as a witness under subpoena by the grand jury investigating the Queens sewer scandal."

Whatever the cause, Reading's fall was rapid and complete. Only a few weeks ago, he sold four automobiles. He was married, but Mrs. Reading moved to Boston recently.

In the neighborhood, Reading was known as "the Judge" and several persons recalled that he was believed to possess a most tenacious memory. Often, they recalled, he was referred to as "the man with the double brain," for he never took notes in court and could remember a lengthy address, word for word, at one hearing or the most obscure details of events of years before.

Peasant Hordes Pay Last Homage To Champion Killed in Debate

ZAGREB, Jugoslavia, Aug. 12. (AP) For more than seven hours today thousands of Croatian peasants paid final homage to their Militant leader, Stefan Raditch. Then his body was lowered into a tomb to rest beside the bodies of deputies killed in the parliamentary outbreak last June when Raditch himself received wounds which contributed to his death.

The ceremonies began at 10 o'clock this morning and did not end until 5:15 this evening. In the funeral cortege walked more than 200,000 peasants and their wives who had come from all parts of Croatia.

The cortege was headed by mounted sokols (patriotic-athletic organizations) and then followed the peasant delegations in their national costumes and carrying the flags of their associations, cultural and economic organizations.

After the funeral the peasants returned to the railroad station and made their plans to leave Zagreb tonight. The day, which had been awaited with misgiving because of racial differences in the Kingdom on the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, passed without incident.

Stork's Impending Visit to Chateau Of Maharajah Announced in Paris

PARIS, Aug. 12. (US)—Over the beautiful chateau in St. Germain, where Louis XIV was born, the stork is hovering again and the former Maharajah of Indor, who married Nancy Miller of Seattle, expects an heir. The infant will be destined to wealth and doomed to permanent exile, for the Maharajah abdicated the throne of Indore in favor of a Hindu son.

News of the impending event was given out by Mrs. Jennie Miller, mother of the bride, who came to Paris with her 16-year-old daughter, Ruth, to join the former Indian potentate and his American wife. The latter are visiting Switzerland now, on a tour that will retrace the route of their courtship. Mr. Louis Scheafer, who was with the American girl when she met the Maharajah, is accompanying them.

The young wife's family will live with her and her husband in the St. Germain chateau which the Maharajah bought for their home. Under the agreement made on his abdication, neither he nor his heirs may return to India.

It isn't any secret that clothes lose their life after they have been worn for a period of time and absorb smoke, dust and dirt. And it's no secret that if they are given a trip to the DeLuxe their original color and life will be restored and they will give you more appearance mileage.

Lover Hires Hypnotist to 'Aid Him

And 'Charmer' Takes Youth's Fortune

NEW YORK, Aug. 12. (US)—Anna De Lucie is the heroine of this romance, although Anna may not know it yet. For months, Frank Melaccio, a young electrician has been infatuated with her. But he was so shy that when he visited her home, he never went alone and never dared to do more than discuss the weather.

Yet, the lad's heart flamed with love and told his secret to a friend, whom he knew only as Joe, and Joe said it would be easy to win her—just hire a hyponotist to charm the girl. The idea appealed to Frank, who is 20, but he knew no professional charmers. Joe oddly enough knew a chap named "Coonie," who was a wonder-worker on women's hearts. They'd get him, but it would cost money.

Frank, feeling like Dante when Beatrice passed, parted with $85 to retain the charmer. The other day, Joe told him that everything was fixed, that Anna was utterly under the spell and they could be married today at the church of our lady of Pompeii. But did Frank have any bank acount?

Yes, $798.12 in the Bushwick Savings bank.

"Good," commented Joe, "draw it out and make it $800 because Anna has $3200 and that makes a fine fortune to start on a honeymoon."

Frank did all that and met Joe and the hypnotist. He gave them the money because they said Anna had given them her fortune to add to it. Then they led Frank to the church and told him to kneel and pray and soon Anna would come with the Priest to be married.

Frank knelt and prayed from 9 a. m. to noon when Sexton Garatti interupted him. When the youth told his story, the Sexton called a policeman.

Major Party Selections Divide Big Business Support in Campaign

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Aug. 12. (US)—Whether Wall Street indorsement is a political asset or liability has long been debated.

In my opinion, Wall Street support is less harmful to a candidate than prior to 1914. One reason for this is that organized Wall Street has in the meantime raised its standard of ethics and its canons of service. Another reason is the fact that in the last 14 years millions of citizens have for the first time acquired stocks and bonds, which were conceived and nurtured in Wall street. There is accordingly not only an investors' bloc, but also wider public experience with the leaders of finance, and this experience has on the whole been favorable.

Unamity Lacking

Perhaps never before in its history has the Republican party been less entitled to be called the sole party of Wall street. Though the majority of financiers will probably vote the Republican ticket this year, there is nothing like unanimity of opinion. This arises partly from personalities. Before the nominating convention, it was an open secret that some of the large financial interests were cool toward Herbert Hoover. On the other hand, Alfred E. Smith is unusually popular with Wall street men despite the Democratic label.

Pierre S. Du Pont's espousal of Smith's cause emphasizes the likelihood of a split in the commercial and financial vote this year. Big business will by no means vote as a block in a November election. On the Democratic side are well known financial and industrial names including John J. Raskob, Owen D. Young, chairman of General Motors corporation and radio corporation of America and James H. Sabin, chairman of the Guaranty Trust company, and Thomas fortune Ryan.

Apart from immediate political considerations, it is a wholesome development for the business vote to divide. It shows that business men are voting in accordance with their conscience, not purely in response to the pocketbook nerve. When business lines up as a solid block, outsiders are more inclined to look upon the business participation in politics as sinister.

Of course, the division of the business vote reflects the growing belief that both of the two major parties are safe for business this year. Such a division of the business community regarded the Bryan economics as heretical, and dangerous for the business organism of the country. If, in the future, the parties divide on some major economic issue, a new solidarity of the business vote may be expected.

The Republican party feels that prosperity is associated with its record. To offset this advantage, the Democratic party has left no stone unturned to bid for business support in the platform, the selection of the chairman of the national committee, and the utterances of the candidate.

No names have been more conspicuously associated with Coolidge prosperity and bull markets than Raskob and Du Pont, and with those men, supporting Smith, prosperity has become a non-partisan issue.

Political observers exaggerate the effect of politics on business.

Usually economic forces jump over political barriers, even though they may prove a handicap.

Out of Lax Discipline of Today Will Grow Better Understanding

The Lax Disciplining of the Present Generation Will Be Offset by Their Strictness With the Next, Says Dorothy Dix, and the Result Will Be Parents and Children Who Understand Each Other, and Perfect Propriety.

A correspondent inquires: "What sort of parents are the younger generation going to make? What kind of mothers are these bobbed-haired, short-skirted flappers going to be?"

If you ask me, I'll say fine. For this reason: It seems to be almost an impossibility for people to strike a happy medium in bringing up their children. Like a pendulum, parents vibrate between extremes, and, this generation having gone the limit in spoiling their offspring, the coming generation is swinging back to discipline.

The one rule that appears to prevail among parents is not to bring up their children in the manner in which they themselves were reared. This it not the result of humility, or because they consider that their own fathers and mothers made a poor job of child-rearing and that they would have been finer men and women if developed in some other school of thought, but because there rankles in their memory some juvenile grievance that the years have never been able to efface.

Nothing is more common than to hear men and women speak of deprivations they endured in their childhood, or hardships they had to undergo, and to hear them say: "Thank God, I have saved my children from that."

So universal is this feeling that you can look at children and guess almost with certainty at the childhood their parents had. No little girls are so overdressed as the daughters of the woman who went shabby and wore somebody's cast-off clothes in her childhood.

It is the children of women who went barefoot-ed who wear $3 silk stockings to school. It is the fathers who in their own youth walked because they had not even a nickel to pay carfare who buy high-powered sport cars for schoolboys. It is the men and women whose own childhood was filled with toil, and who never knew any playtime, who rear their sons and daughters up in absolute idleness.

And it is the parents whose own parents were grinding tyrants who enslaved them, who enforced absolute obedience and who denied them every pleasure and enjoyment, who have cast all parental authority into the discard and left children free to follow their own sweet wills. It is the men and women who still tremble before their own parents, and fear to disobey them, who tell you that they can't do a thing with their own 10-year-old children.

That explains the present generation of flaming youth. Most of the parents of today were brought up in homes where a strict and narrow morality prevailed, and by hard-handed fathers and mothers who conceived it to be their duty to bring their children up in subjection, and scourge them in the way they thought they should go. Nobody then had advanced the heterdox theory that a child was a problem, or that it had any rights that parents should respect, or that it was entitled to any personal freedom of thought or act. Like the high gods, mother and father settled the children's fate, and they were rated dutiful or undutiful according to the meekness with which they accepted the parental dispensations.

It is the reaction from this stern upbringing that has made the modern parents too lax. It is because the Joneses still smart under the recollection of the petty tyrannies of their parents that they do not attempt to control their children at all. It is because Mr. Jones remembers how he was never given a penny of pocket money that he gives too much money to his own boys. It is because Mrs. Jones recalls the harsh scoldings her mother gave her when she stayed out until 11 o'clock at night that makes her say never a word when her daughter comes in at 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning.

And now we are getting the reaction against the too easy parent, as we have had it against the too hard one. The pendulum is swinging back again and the generation of children who have been allowed to run wild are clamping the lid down again on their own youngsters, so that just as we used to say that in this country it was three generations from shirt sleeves to shirt sleeves, we might now say that it is three generations from spank to spank.

These indulged young people who have been permitted to run wild, whose parents never enforced obedience or taught them self-control, have had some hard and bitter experiences from which they wish to save their own children. They have run risks where only the mercy of God saved them from disaster that they do not wish their children to take. And they have found out that the discipline their parents failed to give them in their childhood life failed them mercilessly when they became men and women.

If you will make a tour of the nurseries of the modern young mothers, you will find no babies being rocked to sleep; no weary mothers with howling little demons who won't go bye-bye unless they are walked to sleep; no spoiled little brats who rule the house with a rod of iron, who have to be persuaded, cajoled and bribed into taking their milk, and during whose brief siestas everyone has to go on tiptoe and speak in whispers.

On the contrary, the modern baby, instead of being spoiled as his father and mother were, is reared by the book and disciplined like a soldier. He is made to obey and behave, and is altogether taught to be a little Spartan.

And if you talk with the flapper mother about how she is going to bring up her children, the first thing she will tell you is that she isn't going to let her daughters do the things she was permitted to do, and that she is going to watch over them and take better care of them than her mother took of her, because she is wise to life, and she knows how close to the precipice she came many and many a time.

And so because the people of the younger generation are young, and are keeping young, they are going to be young enough to sympathize with their children and understand them, and perhaps they will achieve the ideal of parenthood, which is the iron hand in the velvet glove. Force and authority so subtly masked in gentleness that the children will not know it is there at all.

Anyway, I expect this coming generation to be perfect lambs. Stickiers for propriety, and as conventional as Mrs. Grundy.—Dorothy Dix.

'Fashion Bar' Now Adds Distinction To Fashion Center

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN

PARIS, Aug. 12. (US)—"Fashion bars," or the brass rail and massive mahogany of preprohibition days have made their appearance in the exclusive precincts of fashionable dressmakers in Rue Cambon. To an American girl, Viola Cross, this startling innovation is due.

Mrs. Cross lately assumed the directorate of the famous dressmaking establishment of Mademoiselle Chanel, who was frequently been reported as engaged to marry the Duke of Westminister. This new fashion bar is decorated in white and gold with lacey and frilly curtains of dainty Chints. The coverings of the slender spindly Louis Quinze high chairs are made of satin with chiffon tops. A French bartender presides over all.

Old Plaint Goes

The familiar plaint: "It is a long time between fittings," will no longer be heard now, as Chanel's chic clients in various stages of deshabille sip their cocktails while waiting for their fitters.

Interest in her new bar threatened to overshadow the importance of Mlle. Chansi's collection for winter. The high lights of her offerings are in her sport and evening clothes. Tweeds and woolens in two or three pieces have a dazzling spectrum of rainbow colors woven into the materials.

For the first time sports attire is borrowing the brilliant color schemes of afternon or dinner dresses. The effect is altogether exhilarating. Scottish plaids have previously been seen for golf togs, but the bewildering Gamut of colors such as Chanel showed at her opening—colors ranging from delicate orange to deep purples through all the various intermediate tones—created a real sensation.

Produces Own Tweeds

The first dressmaker to open her own mills for the exclusive manufacture of her own materials, is Mlle. Chanel. She has discontinued her contracts with Scotch fabric makers and will start producing her own designs in tweeds, woolens and shetlands at her own French and Belgian mills.

The second feature of this collection is that her "peacock" evening gowns are still short in front with slendering, trailing length in the back. What New York smart women will acclaim as the peak in costly dressmaking prices is a magnificent evening gown entirely made of semi-precious stones. Diagonal strips of nut shaped diamonds, sapphires, rubies, pearls, emeralds, aquamarines and amethysts are set, not woven, into the material, to make a stunning evening gown whose price on arriving at New York will easily be more than $10,000.

CHIC CHERIE

(Copyr't. 1928, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Evening gowns have coats to match, this summer—that is, if you can call them coats. The wrap over Cherie's evening dress of pale green chiffon is transparent velvet a shade or so darker. The coat to Dina's printed chiffon dress is made of the same stuff and since neither of them is lined, of course, there's not much more than a wisp of covering for protection against the night air. Cherie has just asked Edwin if he knows this new young man who seems so attractive, and Ernest has taken pains to tell her that he doesn't and he isn't going to. The guy is probably a bootlegger or some sort of a wrong 'un—Edwin is so British in times of emotional stress and strain!

"If he is a bootlegger," says Cherie, "don't you think you'd better meet him? Any man with such good taste in women ought to be reliable for the finer things of life"—a remark which does nothing to make Edwin feel any happier.

LATEST FASHIONS

What's more the young man looks at Cherie, which ought to be forbidden by law, and Cherie looks at nothing very soulfully, and we look at the costumes of the ladies Cherie has just referred to—in the young man's party. The costume to the left has a chiffon cape with dots of metal embroidery and flounces of plain fabric which match the frock beneath it. The dress of plain and printed chiffon has a bolero jacket with sleeves of the plain material.

Cupid Keeps Close Contact With Administration of Gov. Dan Moody

AUSTIN, Aug. 12 (UP)—Cupid still hovers over the administration of Governor Moody. Cupid's reign has been felt ever since the campaign that preceded the governor's election in 1926.

The engagement of the youthful governor and Miss Mildred Paxton was announced just before Moody's 1926 campaign got underway. Part of Moody's campaigning was done in the "honeymoon car" presented by the bride's father.

Cupid's next score in the administration was in the recent wedding of State Highway Commissioner Cone Johnson of Tyler and Miss Ethel Hilton of Galveston. Miss Hilton was the first woman to become an assistant attorney general Texas.

Cupid's latest thrust at the Moody administration is the announcement that Carl Phinney of Brownwood, former private secretary to Governor Moody, and Miss Louise Snow, formerly of Raymondville and assistant in the secretary of state's office, will marry August 15.

Miss Snow succeeded Phinney as chief clerk of the house of representatives when he gave up that post to go into the governor's office. She was the first woman ever named for chief clerk of the house.

Texas Garden Spot Once Cheap Land

M'ALLEN, Texas, Aug. 12. (UP) Interesting facts concerning early land grants in the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas, land that once produced sage brush, cactus and wildflowers but now grows citrus fruits, related by J. T. Canales, local attorney.

Canales is one of the oldest settlers in the valley and has examined and passed on many titles which have been handed down from the original grantor, the King of Spain.

Two hundred and sixty thousand acres of land in what is now the heart of the valley was purchased by Jose Salvador de la Garza from the king of Spain for $480. This amount frequently is paid for one acre at present. According to records, the largest grant in this section was the San Juan de Carricitos grant, containing 500,000 acres and made to J. N. Cavazos. The maximum price paid under the grants was approximately 10 cents an acre, Canales said.

Typewriter Noise Cause of Suicide

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. (UP)—The clicking keys of typewriters were held responsible tonight for the suicide of pretty Miss Dorothy Sherlock, 23-year-old stenographer employed at the bureau of internal revenue.

Miss Sherlock shot herself to death in the bathroom of her home today. Her mother, Mrs. Florence Sherlock, found the girl's body. A suspicion that something was wrong when the girl failed to emerge from the bathroom after some time, prompted her to try the door. It was locked. Mrs. Sherlock found her daughter's body crumpled on the floor, a .38 caliber revolver beside it.

"The noise of these typewriters is driving me wild," Mrs. Sherlock said her daughter had told her after returning from work one day this week. Today, Mrs. Sherlock said, the girl had said she did not feel able to endure another day of the noise, and she remained at home.

On the floor beside her body was a piece of cardboard, with the words: "I am sick and weak."

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK.—Did you ever stop to think what New York's window cleaning bill amounts to each month? If you have you probably never came anywhere near the cost of this gigantic business. More than $1,000,000, it is estimated, is spent monthly on cleaning the windows in office and apartment buildings here.

All this work is done by contracting companies and the figure is based on the labor supplied by them. This does not include the private porters working for individual owners and employers. The pay these cleaners get averages $45 for a 44-hour week. It is a costly business in men as well as money.

The insurance companies class this work as one of the most hazardous of industrial occupations. Standard policies are not issued as a rule to window cleaners. Window cleaning in a big city has its bearings on architectural plans, insurance decisions and workmen's compensation rulings.

Under the law window cleaners must wear safety belts and "life hooks" must be provided by the owners of the building. The most approved type is the one where the hooks are long enough to reach clear through the wall fastening on the inner side with a nut.

Authorities differ in dividing the blame for accidents between the carelessness of the window cleaners themselves in ignoring the safety belts and the failure of the owners in buildings to supply the proper kind of "life hooks."

Martin W. Greenhut, an official of a large window cleaning company, is authority for the statement that more accidents are happening since the present safety laws were enacted than ever before. He attributes this situation to the use in many cases of screw hooks that are merely screwed in to the window casings. Such hooks easily become loosened with the warping of the wood or the weathering of the brick if the hook is screwed into the mortar. He says too that cleaners trust less to their own footing because the safety belt is there and they naturally rely on it. The greatest trouble comes from old construction and summonses are frequent to compel owners to put in the lifebelt hooks to make this work more safe.

George White has just about decided, it was reported during the week, to bring forth a musical show based on Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." And for such a project he will, of course call upon his dependable trio, De Sylva, Brown and Henderson.

Balieff, that rotund impresario of the "Chauve Souris," is returning to New York this fall to stage a new revue under the sponsorship of the Messrs. Shubert, according to reports from Paris. Details of the project indicate that the Russian director will produces an American revue in a Moscow manner, to be developed according to his own ideas.

Following the tour of the "Chauve Souris" in this country last season, the company was disbanded, several of the players remaining here. M. Balieff said then that it was unlikely that he would attempt another of his noted international variety programs.

In this "Chauve Souris" M. Balieff has often touched upon American subjects and his revues for the Shubert program will bring that same humorous Muscovite attitude to skits based exclusively upon life on these shores.

Say, put away
Your frown today.
And stop your life reviling;
Good luck eludes
The one who broods,
And helps the one who's smiling.

Your chance is lost?
Why let the cost
Be bitter tears, and wailing?
The one who sighs,
And sits and cries,
Admits that he is failing!

Chicago: 100 Per Center

NEW YORK is the largest and most famous American city. Broadway, Fifth avenue, Riverside drive and Harlem are familiar words even to people who have never been closer to Manhattan island than Buffalo. The town has been publicized as the most absorbing, confusing, interesting and spectacular city in the country.

Yet, to our way of thinking, Chicago is really more worthy of notice. It, too, is vast, formless, strident, challenging. Like New York it is pulsating with quick life, housing a thousand tragedies and a thousand comedies in its obscure byways. And it is even more typical of America.

New York is New York, unlike any other city. Chicago is more than Chicago; it is every other American town put under a magnifying glass. It is the real 100 per cent American city. Its virtues and its faults are typical of the nation. No other city has a Big Bill Thompson or a Scareface Al Capone, perhaps; yet every city has miniatures of these men.

It is surprising that more writers have not tried to interpret Chicago. In another generation or so the city will have outgrown much of its present amazing turbulence, and it is a pity that the authors and poets (with a few exceptions) are concentrating on New York. Good stories centering about the Chicago of today will be unutterably interesting to Americans 50 years from now—interesting, and almost unbelievable.

One young Chicagoan has tackled the job. He is MacKinlay Kantor, and his new novel, "Diversey," is the kind of book that ought to be coming out in floods. The young man has an eye for his city. He presents a vivid picture of it, with its gangsters, stenographers, newspapers, politicians and overlords in colorful procession. The terrifying, overpowering life of the place becomes real; one understands how it is that Chicago can be the sort of place it is, although one wonders, now and then, how people can live there without going mad.

That is the sort of book that needs to be written; not an "expose" and not a tract, but a simple graphic description of the city and the people who live in it. Chicago is the most significant of American cities. It is fairly crying for the attention of artists, novelists and poets. New York is a great city; yet for color, lustiness and power it cannot compare with Chicago.

You might read this book, "Diversey," if you're curious about the city. And then you might begin hoping that the publishers will issue some more books in the same vein. For Chicago, with all its appalling blindness and clamor and cruelty and lawlessness, is the heart of America. It will bear a great deal of study.

The Coin for Old Age

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, obviously, would not have liked Belle Livingstone at all.

Belle Livingstone, it should be explained, is more or less the queen of New York's Bohemia—which means that she is the feminine leader of the forces who like to flit about the joy-haunts of Broadway and adjacent streets.

Now in an interview the other day Belle Livingstone went directly counter to old Ben's most cherished maxims. She announced that no one should save money.

"Spend your money while you have it," she remarked airly. "Spend it while you have it, even if you'll need it later. Take it and have a good time. You never can forget the memory of a good time."

There will always be Benjamin Franklins in the world, and there will always be Belle Livingstones. And the two classes will never understand each other. Their philosophies are diametrically opposed. They are the ants and the grasshoppers of this world, and they never will be able to see with each other's eyes.

Indeed, most of us have these two divergent personalities within us. When an occasional windfall in the shape of an unexpected check arrives, we are torn between two desires. Shall we put it in the bank against future needs, or shall we take the wife and go downtown for a large evening? Save it or spend it? Have a good time now or exercise prudence and foresight? It's always a hard question.

The Belle Livingstones often come to grief. They often reach a point where it is a question how bills are to be paid, and sometimes they don't even know where the next meal is to come from. But if you have the right temperament, that sort of thing isn't the worst thing that can happen to you. As Belle Livingstone says, "you never can forget the memory of a good time." And while memories cannot be classed as coin of the realm, they are, nevertheless, a rare and valuable kind of currency. They buy other things than meat; serenity, contentment, happiness, sometimes.

We tend to get just a trifle too serious. In our eagerness to lay away money for a secure old age we forget that old age needs other things besides cash in the bank. It needs, most of all memories; memories of laughter and song, of days and nights of carefree, youthful happiness. Those are the things that bolster one up when the shadows begin to lengthen.

We don't need to go the whole way with Belle Livingstone. But we might listen to what she has to say. There are worse crimes than improvidence.

The Value of Bicycling

A NEW ENGLAND MAN recently returned to his home after a 1200-mile bicycle trip through New England and Quebec. Although the man is over 50, he made the long trip without difficulty, and came home to report that he had a fine time and improved health.

Bicycling was once a craze. Now it has become a minor utility. Few people consider bicycle trips through the country any more. Wheels seem to be used only by children and messenger boys.

That is a pity. There is nothing that is much better for the body than bicycling, in moderation. It is a fine sport as well. We would be a good deal better off if the bicycle could return to some of its old-time popularity.

ONION CROP AT FARMERSVILLE

It has been said that a big part of the onion crop of Farmersville has been plowed under for fertilizer, but in making an auto trip through that country one realizes that not near all of the onion crop is discarded as wagon after wagon is seen carrying the "perfumery" to the loading station where there are literally hundreds and hundreds of boxes awaiting shipment. It is believed that there will be in the neighborhood of a thousand cars of onions shipped from that vicinity. However, there have been enough of the onions plowed under and thrown away to permeate the air with an odor that would make a gas mask of some service.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster is in love with Nathaniel Dann, but she is tricked into promising to marry Frederick Dean in one year if she fails to earn $100,000 that he alleges her father cheated him out of. Brewster had lost his fortune before his death and Virginia is left destitute.

She pawns her jewelry and Oliver Cutter promises to invest the money for her. She seeks work without success, and discovers that Dean has bribed the agency not to help her. Oliver gains her confidence and shows her attention which Niel resents, but she does not like the way his model, Chiri, treats him.

Finally Virginia obtains a position she likes. Shortly afterward she is charged by Cutter's wife with trying to alienate his affections.

She appeals to him to explain, and demands an accounting of her investments. He confesses that he has not made any money for her, but promises her any amount if she will go away with him. She denounces him and leaves his office.

Her firm requests her to go on a voyage as ship hostess. This separation, together with the Cutter affair and the misunderstanding about Chiri, causes a lovers' quarrel which is not mended before Virginia sails.

She and Niel both suffer, but her work and the hope of getting aid from a friend of her father, O. D. Leigh, in Haiti, help her endure the heartache.

Arriving at Haiti, she goes out to the home of Leigh but finds the plantation terribly run down. Leigh is quite ill, and Virginia comes away in despair when she realizes that he is in no position to help her raise the hundred thousand.

Now Go On With the Story
CHAPTER XLVI

Virginia was sadly disappointed. Nathaniel's letter had told her nothing of his feeling for her . . . it lacked tenderness.

It was entirely in the nature of the repressed conversations that had usurped their old, free exchange of confidences after Niel's discovery of her association with Oliver.

He hoped, and Virginia failed to see, that it was ironical, that she was having a fine time.

He spoke of his work, nothing definite. The bad weather she was lucky enough to escape. The artists' ball and, near the end: ". . . Chiri's a peach. Been a little off my appetite but she keeps me going with stuff she says I ought to have. I think I used to misjudge her. Remember the time we talked about the sawdust and the quicksand? I'm beginning to believe we were both wrong and that the kid's full of gold-dust."

Virginia finished the letter, folded it, and put it away. There was a dull, heavy oppression in the region of her heart and a band seemed tightening round her head. Breathing was difficult and painful.

Wisely she had chosen to read the letter in the privacy of her stateroom, but remembering the doctor's warning against letting herself go, she closed her eyes, clenched her hands and waited calmly for the little horses that were stamping their hoofs up and down her nerves to leave her.

She had told the medical man that it felt like that and he had replied that she might visualize her nerve torture so if she wished, if she would promise to think of the horses as intruders that she must banish quietly, and never once feel that they were beyond her control.

Virginia smiled them away, willed herself not to suffer because the thing she had set out to accomplish seemed done.

Niel was not unhappy. When he heard of her marriage to Frederick Dean he would thank his stars she had found out in time that she wanted a rich husband.

Virginia had accepted the price of her father's honor. There was no way to escape now. Before the end of March she must become the wife of the man she despised.

The Agena would return to New York early in January. Just a few short weeks after that day in which to make $100,000. It was hopeless.

Despair became her constant companion during the remainder of the cruise. But no one on the ship, excepting the doctor, knew that she was suffering. For her protection he circulated carelessly-dropped remarks concerning her health—the tropics did not agree with her . . . touch of the sun . . . too much work.

His campaign had a beneficial result. Thoughtful passengers relaxed their demands upon Virginia's attentions and no one quizzed her about her pallor and nervousness.

Virginia no longer felt herself urging the ship to speed by mentally conceiving herself down in the furnace room furiously feeding coal to the fire as she had done on the way from Havana to Port au Prince. She'd have preferred not to return to New York until the end of her year of freedom.

It would be easier to be parted from Nathaniel by distance than by a love grown cold.

But the day came when the ship was berthed in the home port. There was the red tape that delayed immediate landing, and then Virginia was back again, filled with mingled yearning to rush to Nathaniel and reluctance to see him at all.

She had not written to him. She could not write in the vein he had employed. Silence would help to maintain the impression that she was growing indifferent toward him. For these reasons she had stifled her longing to reach him by mail.

He could ascertain easily enough when the Agena was due to arrive if he wished to know, she consoled herself when she thought of the welcomeless homecoming she was inviting. But she did not expect to see him at the pier.

She was long in leaving the ship, having remained to speed her "guests," and to receive their expressions of gratitude for a pleasant voyage.

She walked listlessly down the gangplank without a glance at the pier which was nearly deserted now.

Suddenly a pair of arms opened out before her and she walked blindly into them. They closed about her, held her with her face pressed tight against a rough overcoat while Nathaniel confessed his joy at having her back.

Happiness surged over Virginia like an ether that wiped out everything but this great, this indescribable, relief of being with Niel again.

But trouble does not vanish until it is conquered. Nathaniel knew nothing of Virginia's momentarily overwhelming joy. He only knew that she broke from his embrace before he was ready to release her, and looked at him with eyes already wiped of truth.

"How good of you," she murmured. "I didn't expect you."

Nathaniel clamped his lips close, and scanned her face through narrowed eyelids for a few seconds.

"I know you didn't," he replied, with a short, rasping laugh. "But I'm such a poor fool that I came anyhow."

"Coming up to my hotel?" she asked indifferently.

"No, I'm not," he growled. "I've had enough. But I'll take a taxi with you, and drop off at the studio."

He was furious with himself because he could not resist lingering in her company.

He had come because he could not keep away. He had meant to greet her with no more warmth than she herself displayed.

He'd take his cue from her. Her silence had proved her love was gone, but he wanted additional proof. That everything was at an end between them now was incontrovertible.

He wanted to turn on his heel and walk away. And he hadn't been able to do it. He took some pride in his refusal to accompany her to her hotel, but it hardly made up for his weakening enough to go as far as his studio.

Virginia was mired in a strange mixture of emotions. She was elated one moment because his love had endured despite her casting him to the spell of her rival, and depressed the next because she could not reveal her elation to him.

No matter now what he said or did she would know that he loved her. That one moment when he held her in his arms with unrestrained fervor betrayed him. He was her man, her man!

Her heart sang the words in a paean of enchanted ecstacy. But so accustomed had she become to living one character in her heart and another for the world to see that Nathaniel never heard the song, or even suspected its existence.

To him she was just a cold, indifferent, uninterested girl whom he had kissed against her will.

They rode to his studio in a silence that was broken only by an occasional remark from one or the other. Nathaniel did not invite her to enter, though Virginia both hoped and feared that he would do so.

She drove away with a little nod through the door he had closed behind him—a door he had closed with a feeling of having stepped forever from a paradise to which there is no re-entering.

Heartless, cold, unreal—call her what he would, he loved her. Disrespect, hate, contempt, all had failed him when he sought to use them to tear her out of his heart.

Her face was sweet, her voice and body lovely. Nathaniel despised himself because they enthralled him, but he had not succeeded in loosening the leash that bound him to her.

It was impossible really to believe what he knew of her.

Virginia grieved deeply for him as the taxicab carried her uptown. And she grieved for the lost hours they might have shared together.

In spite of all she had done to protect him from the final hurt he would experience when he learned she was going to marry another man, he must go through the ordeal just the same.

His pain would not be softened by the weeks of her absence. The cruise had been a needless, a useless sacrifice all around.

Virginia obtained her key at the desk, exchanged greetings with the hotel attaches whom she met, and went to her room with the knowledge that she had made a mistake.

She might as well have lived her year of life to the fullest—the cost would be the same.

She had not started to get herself settled, her things unpacked and put away, before there was a rap on her door and she opened it to see Chiri Mond standing in the hall.

"I know I'm rushing you," the girl said before Virginia could recover from her surprise sufficiently to speak. "But I wanted to talk to you before you saw Niel."

Virginia stepped back and held the door open for her to enter.

Chiri came in, pulled off her hat, tossed it onto the bed, rubbed up her shaggy bob and settled herself in the only comfortable chair in the room before she said another word. Then she asked for a cigaret.

"I'm sorry," Virginia said. "I haven't any."

"You wouldn't," the other returned. "Well, I won't be able to get it across quite so well without a smoke, but I think it's for the good of all hands to have it out."

She crossed her knees and threw herself back in the chair while she regarded Virginia with a set grin.

Virginia poised herself on the edge of the bed, near the end, and leaned on the footboard.

She knew intuitively that Chiri had not come here at this hour for any light purpose. It must concern Niel. They had nothing else in common.

Virginia decided not to tell her that she already had seen him.

"I dare say Niel hasn't written you anything about it," Chiri began. "Well, things have changed since you went on your delightful southern cruise, Miss Brewster."

Bootlegger With Sunny Disposition Helps Raiders Ruin His Business

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. (UP)—Antonio Papali has a sense of humor. He demonstrated this today to the satisfaction of a police captain and sergeant, four patrolmen and a revenue officer, when they raided his home, destroyed a still and arrested him for illegal manufacture and possession of liquor.

Antonio, at work inside his home with the paraphenalia of his trade about him, was startled by a loud knock on the door. To his astonishment, when he opened it, there were nothing but policemen there.

"We hear you are running a still in here," Police Sergeant Little informed Papali.

But instead of a denial, Papali smilingly invited the group into the house. Amazed, the officers entered and Papali escorted them to the second floor, where, in full blast a 150-gallon still was running. There were also 24 barrels of peach mash and 72 gallons of peach brandy.

The police started to smash the still and Papali, maintaining his sunny Latin smile, pitched in and helped them dismantle the still and wreck his business, after which he accompanied them to the station house where formal charges were lodged against him.

Underground Cables Laid On Iowa Park Streets

IOWA PARK, Aug. 12.—Underground cables are being laid for the electric light wires to the new lamp posts which have been erected on the main streets of town. The pavement has been broken with an air hammer to make a place for the lines. Twenty-three poles have been erected. The simple green poles surmounted by a white globe make an attractive appearance, and when the lights are on will light the business section of town very nicely.

Since 1912 the Ancient Order of Druids, London, has collected 427 tons of tinfoil, which realized $58,000 for distribution among hospitals.

TERRELL FLAYS COTTON TRADE

Exchanges Called 'Damnable' by Commission

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 12.—Characterizing cotton and grain exchanges, as now operated, as a menace that should be oblished, as a menace that should be abolished, George B. Terrell, state commissioner of agriculture, stated that Democrats of the south, through demands on congress, should take steps to wipe out these most "damnable legalized institutions" in this country.

The government's estimate of the cotton crop, given out on August 8, is accepted by Commissioner Terrell as "fair and consecutive" and bears out his investigations," and I am in as good position as anybody to get a correct estimate of the cotton crop." The government's estimate indicated a yield of 14,281,000 bales. The antics of the cotton market following publication of the government's report, shows that the public generally, and especially cotton brokers, accepts this report.

"This shows that the government report is accepted by the cotton gamblers when it is in their favor and aids them to run the price of cotton down, like they did last year when the government predicted lower prices," Terrell stated, "and cotton declined $10 per bale, but the report is discredited when it does not suit them, which is demonstrated by the big decline yesterday in the face of a short crop."

"The cotton and grain exchanges, as now operated, are the most damnable legalized institutions in this country and should be abolished, or regulated in such a manner that they could not arbitrarily cause great fluctuations in prices every day by buying and selling millions of bales of cotton that do not exist, and which they never deliver. No other business could long exist under such conditions as these, and farming must fail unless these fraudulent raids are stopped."

Terrell added that "both parties seem afraid to tackle the job."

Waco Boy Thrives On Supposedly Unlucky 13

WACO, Aug. 12. (UP)—One of the best Friday the 13th stories which ever came to light, with an odd set of circumstance linking the subject wiht the "voodoo" number 13, has been discovered.

Emmett Walter Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Johnson, Waco, was born on Friday the 13th. That was in August, 1913. His birthplace was on Thirteenth street in Houston. He was the 13th male descendant of A. J. Johnson, pioneer Texan. On January 13, 1922, he joined the Methodist church. On August 13, he will be 13 years old.

But it doesn't worry Emmett. He plays football, enjoys his studies and doesn't anticipate ill luck. He has never been run over by an automobile or bitten by a dog, has never been sick in his life, and in a lot of other ways seems to have escaped the misfortunes of most other boys. Emmett is one reason why the numerologists might designate 13 as one of their favorite symbols.

Leatrice Joy allowed herself to be socked by custard pies in comedy after comedy before she threw them all back and turned dramatic.

"Hell's Highroad" was Leatrice Joy's path to fame—that picture being her first stellar vehicle. In her next, Leatrice was "The Dressmaker From Paris" and later was seen in "Eve's Leaves." At present she is divorced, and her current release is "Nobody's Widow."

She is scheduled to appear soon in a picture opposite John Gilbert. Leatrice used to be Mrs. John Gilbert. Heaven help the director, if he so far forgets matrimonial history as to megaphone the old order to put more pep into the love scenes.

"In one of my recent pictures," Miss Joy told me, "we were using a little boy who grew to be quite well known to movie audiences.

"One morning he came into the studio and said, triumphantly:

"'Well, we're going to have a little boy at our house!'

"'A little boy?' asked some one. How do you know you are going to have a new brother?

"'Cause,' replied the young fellow, 'a year ago when mother was ill, we had a little girl—and now father is ill'."

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Catarrh, while often considered a local disease, is really of constitutional origin, and is caused by an acid formed from the waste products of fatty and carbohydrate foods. This acid is partly discharged through the mucous membranes and causes irritation of them so that they excrete a large amount of mucus.

Mucus is a normal lubricating discharge of the mucous membranes, and it is only the unusual quantity that is pathological, as any opening from within the body to the outside is lined with mucous membranes, and they are all liable to this mucus inflammation.

When the body suffers a condition of acidosis, the membrane becomes chronically clogged, and it only requires some acute irritation like an invasion of bacteria, dust, or cold air to bring on an attack.

It is not of very much importance where the catarrh is located, since the treatment is to alkalinize the blood. If the trouble is located in the colonic, bladder, nose, sinuses, or inner ear, the cure occurs just as soon as one has rid himself of surplus waste and supplied the needed alkaline food elements.

There are a number of diseases having a catarrhal foundation, such as hay fever, asthma, tuberculosis, mucous colitis, and sinusitis. In any of these, it is important to avoid those food combinations which are most apt to result in a fermentation of food in the digestive tract, as this fermentation will produce some of the irritating acids that inflame the mucous membranes.

I have prepared special articles on these diseases, and I will be glad to mail them to any who send their request with a large self-addressed, stamped envelop for a reply.

The best way to rid the system of toxic material is to use a fruit fast for a few days. There is a method of alkalinizing the blood that has come into vogue recently which uses large quantities of bicarbonate of soda. As this is an alkaline, it makes the blood temporarily alkaline and will usually abort a cold. I never prescribe this method unless the patient has some important engagement, as on the stage, where a cold would be an impediment. While it alkalinized the blood temporarily, it does not free the blood of the toxins which cause the catarrh in the first place, and it is possible that such a large amount of inorganic mineral may be harmful to the body.

In all cases of catarrhal trouble or colds, one will notice digestive disturbances and liver congestion. A person with a catarrhal tendency who allows himself to become enervated or tired out will in all probability develop a cold. Stuffing a cold with food is wrong. One who stuffs a cold is very apt to develop some serious fever diseases. Benjamin Franklin states this tersely in the following words, "Stuff a cold and starve a fever." He was not giving advice, but was simply stating the fact that if you eat too much while having a cold you will have to starve out the resultant fever.

The most satisfactory method of alkalinizing the blood and improving the digestion is to use a diet of oranges or their juices from 10 days to two weeks, using enemas of plain warm water during that time. One should follow this fact with the use of a well balanced diet, avoiding the use of any large amount of sugar, fat or starch. The body is usually quick to respond to the right treatment. It has an inherent power of self healing if it is only given the opportunity. Avoid sickness as much as possible by living right, but if it does come, the shortest and most permanently valuable route to health is via the "diet special."

Question: Reader writes: "Am reading your articles with much interest. In speaking of fasting, do you believe a person having mental work should do with absolutely no food for three days, or should some liquid such as fruit juice be taken if one keeps at work."

I trust hadn't been able to do. It broke him. You'll find him only "It did to Leigh what the sugar

Answer: I usually recommend a fruit fast rather than a plain water fast. It seems that patients eliminate better while taking the fruit juices. Of course, there is some stimulation from the fruit sugar which makes it easier for one to keep on with his work while taking the fast.

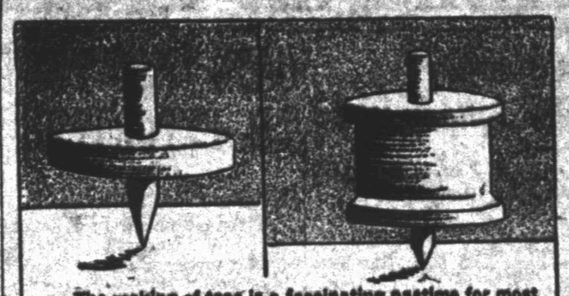

Question: M. J. writes: "When I eat a large amount of lettuce it makes me sleepy. Why is this so?"

Answer: Lettuce contains a certain hypnotic agent called lactucarmine, and when this vegetable is used in great quantity it does produce drowsiness to a certain degree which causes a slowing up of the digestive process. Those whose digestive powers are not strong should use lettuce in small quantities, as these ill effects are not at all pronounced if lettuce is used in only a moderate amount.

Question: Rose asks: "Will you kindly publish the symptoms of tapeworm and what to do?"

Answer: There are no definite symptoms of tapeworm which can be depended on. Sometimes the patient loses weight, and has a ferocious appetite, but this is not always the case. If you suspect you have a tapeworm, I suggest that you go to your druggist and have him give you a tapeworm remedy. Then watch the stools. There are many different kinds of intestinal worms besides the tapeworm, and some of the others will produce trouble such as nervousness, rectal itching, nausea, etc.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

The making of tops is a fascinating pastime for most boys. The top to the left may be made easily with a large round button or disc of wood. A peg is fitted into the button or disc. The peg should be about a quarter-inch in diameter and made to fit snugly. The top shown to the right is made in the same way, a spool being used instead of a button.

This top, with an attractive design cut in its top, can be made with an ordinary pocket-knife. Draw the pattern, then cut it out.

A large spool cut in half makes the top pictured above. The spool can be whittled or shaped to the proper size.

Bright colored paints will improve the appearance of the tops. The top-maker can plan and cut out a number of discs, which will fit one top. If designs are cut out or painted upon the different discs, and then those discs placed one above another, the result, as the top whirls, will be surprising. Colored paper strips may be used instead of cardboard. (Next: A Model Stage)

Champs' Fighting, Brilliant Play Subdues Houston

But of course there were some tossers who had better days than others who glittered with particular brilliance.

Probably the luminary who shone with brightest ray on the defense, both because of the amount of chances he was called upon to handle and the difficulty of those chances, was Pete Turgeon. This really great second baseman, ailing half the season with an injury and illness, played an inspired game yesterday at the keystone bag, roaming all over the infield for ground balls and into the outfield even for such hits and flies. He also hit a home run and a double in the second game.

Lyman Lamb, playing right field in place of the crippled Brick Eldred, also was an important factor in both games, offensively and defensively. One remarkable play in the first game saved at least one run and his batting in the second contest, in which he hit two doubles and a single in three times at bat was a vital factor in the attack.

Stanton Hits Homer

George Stanton, the kid himself, in person and not a moving picture, also was very much in the limelight. Very much, indeed. For did not George bank a home run over the right field wall with THREE comrades reposing hopefully on all the bases? He did, and there were, and that Ruthian smack was the blow that cinched the nightcap. George also got three other hits and fielded around that first bag with his usual grace and aplomb.

Then there was Wally Swenson. A few days ago I wrote a piece about Wally, who like Turgeon had been incapacitated much this season. I said he had the spirit and courage to win. In other words, a money ball player. He showed it Saturday, and he showed it yesterday. Twice yesterday he hit in the pinch, and he walked twice in the second game to give a perfect average at bat in that contest.

And Lapan. He smacked a timely blow in the first game and made a great throw that nipped an incipient rally and is narrated at more length below. And Smith handled the pitching in the finale and he too, banged a hit his only time up and caught like the steady, expert receiver he is.

Jenkins and Fitz

There in the left and center fields were the figures of those two fleet gentlemen, Jenkins and Fitzgerald, assuring disaster to the Buffs who batted balls their way. And Tom, the swarthy, mighty-macing Tom, swung his bat for three hits and and was passed intentionally once, which led to Stanton's home run. And Rabbit Benton, who fielded superbly, working in perfect unison with Turgeon and clouting a hit, the Spudders' first knock of the day.

While the boys were thus disporting themselves, George Payne and Joe Kiefer stilled the bats of the once-feared Houston clan. Payne pitched the first game, hurling beautiful ball, limiting the Buffs to eight hits and except in the sixth and ninth, when they bunched two blows in each round for a run being master of the situation at all times. George's "screw ball" was controlled to the ninth degree, causing the Buffs to bang flies or grounders to a willing helper. He passed only one and struck out three.

The Spudders got to Bill Hallahan, the southpaw, in that first game. Seven hits produced four runs in six innings and Whitworth went to the relief. He gave up two blows the rest of the way.

Kiefer Bewilders

Now about Kiefer. Herb Cobb started the nightcap. But Herb wasn't himself. So after the Buffs had pounded him for four hits and both their runs in the first two innings, a dangerous proceedings, particularly in a short game (it was seven innings by agreement) Mr. James Galloway, who does such an excellent job of petting and driving his athletes, called upon Cvengros to pinch-hit, which he didn't that time, in the Spudders' half. Milt Steengrafe had been a willing and ready bullpen worker in the first game, so Mr. Jeems, who is called "Bad News," gave out some startling news that Joe Kiefer would pitch.

Which he did. And how!

Starting the third inning, Mr. Kiefer turned back the Buffaloes IN ORDER, one-two-three as it were, for four consecutive innings. His fast ball and his dinky slow one had those exasperated Houston boys angered beyond expression. In fact some of them probably expressed it.

Until the seventh, when after one was out, a Buff hadn't reached first base off Mr. Kiefer of Utica, N. Y. Then Watkins hit one over the right field fence, but it was a final gesture, like batting with a sweater on, for although Schuble doubled with two out, Tom Jenkins was under the talkative vivacious Bubber Jonnard's fly.

Ken Penner was the victim of the Spudders' barrage in the afterpiece, the husky right-hander going all the way. Frank Snyder being too disgusted to make a move to change hurlers, even after the Spuders scored five runs in the fifth, thanks to the aforementioned homers by Turgeon and Stanton. Penner gave up nine hits in the six innings.

Kiefer is credited with the victory in the second game and Hallahan is charged with the defeat in the first.

It was, in all respects, a perfect day for the good folk of Wichita Falls and vicinity, who attended the game. Perfect day for baseball, the Spudders won two games—and the umpiring was all that could be desired.

Umpiring Is Excellent

Harry Kane, who worked back of the plate in the first contest, in particular distinguished himself with his impartial and excellent calling of balls and strikes. Donahue and Irwin had some close plays to call during the afternoon but they handled their jobs with distinction and credit.

The games were free from wrangling and except for a couple of questioning of close decisions were devoid of protests. The crowd was orderly and conducted itself in a most sportsmanlike manner.

Boss Pancho Snyder of the Buffs retired to the dugout after the first game. An injured foot, the result of an infection following the sustaining of a spike wound, is paining the Buff skipper. But he's in there valiantly trying to rally his faltering club, with a most commendable display of courage.

Cvengros Works Today

The Buffs will have their first look-see at southpaw chucking today in the final of the series. Mike Cvengros, the mite left-hander, doubtless will be Jeems' hill choice. Jim Lindsey seems the likely hurling selection of Frank Snyder.

Benton Gets First Hit

Hock hit the first ball pitched in the opener and was out on a roller to Turgeon. Payne tossed out Selph, also on the first ball tossed to Carey. Worthington was hit by a pitched ball and his teammates vigorously rubbed his arm before he walked to first base Watkins forced Worthington, Benton to Turgeon No runs, no hits, no errors.

Benton smashed a harsh bounder to Schuble's left and was safe on the hit to open the Spudder's half. Hock fumbled Turgeon's grounder and recovered too late to make a play, Benton reaching second and Pete first. Fitzgerald fouled to Hock. Umpire Kane halted the game while two cops and two other fans were asked to please move from the playing field in left. The Spudders were halted when Worthington came in fast for Lapan's drive and doubled Turgeon at second.

The Buffs again failed to hit the ball out of the infield in the second. Benton and Turgeon made fast plays on grounders by Peel and Schuble. Snyder struck out.

Jenkins grounded to Selph and Hock made a fast play on Swenson's grounder. Stanton rapped a single to center but Watkins went back for Lapan's drive.

Lapan Catches Baker

Fast work by Lapan helped turn back the hostiles scoreless in the third. Punk Baker doubled to the boards in right-center but was picked off second on a perfect peg by Lapan to Benton. Hallahan fanned. Hock lifted to Fitzgerald.

A magnificent catch by Homer Peel probably saved a run. After Selph made a fast play on Payne's grounder, Benton strolled. Turgeon hoisted to Watkins. Peel went to the fence near the foul line for Fitz' smash.

Jenkins and Fitzgerald came in fast to take liners by Selph and Worthington and Lamb got his finger in the pie by pulling down Watkins' deep fly in the fourth.

Spudders Score Three

Schuble threw high on Lamb's grounder and Lyman was safe. The crowd roared as Jenkins came to bat, but Tom forced Lamb, Hallahan to Schuble. Selph stopped Swenson's grounder in short right and threw out Jenkins at third. Selph dropped Snyder's excellent peg to catch Swenson stealing and Wally was safe. Stanton singled to left, his second hit, scoring Swenson, and George went to second when Peel fumbled the ball. Lapan doubled to left, Stanton racing home. Payne punched a hit into right, Lapan scoring the third tally, and George streaked for second on Worthington's wild throw to the plate to catch Pete. The crowd was in an uproar. Snyder went out to steady Hallahan. He visibly needed it. Benton walked for the second time, maintaining his 1,000 batting average for the game. Turgeon fouled to Hock.

Snyder singled to left in the fifth after Peel and Schuble had flied to Lamb and Stanton. Baker forced Snyder, Turgeon to Lamb.

Fitzgerald was passed on four straight balls. Snyder made a valiant, unsuccessful try for Lamb's short foul. Jim Galloway was chortling with glee out on the third base coaching lines. Baker dropped the ball starting to throw to second on Lamb's grounder to force Fitz but recovered to tag Lyman. Jenkins singled into short right, Selph knocking down the ball, Fitzgerald racing all the way home. Schuble threw out Swenson. Stanton was called out on strikes.

Buffaloes Tally

The Buffaloes scored their first run and the Spudders made their first error of the series in the sixth—and Lyman saved a run, maybe more. Hallahan singled to Benton and went to second on Rabbit's wild throw into the crowd. Hallahan moved to third while Turgeon was tossing out Hock. Selph's lift to Fitzgerald scored Hallahan. Worthington singled to center. Lamb came tearing in for Watkins' shoestring smash, and made a diving catch, somersaulting and coming up with the ball.

Lapan and Benton grounded out and Payne fanned in the Spudders' half.

Turgeon saved a run or two with a graet play in the seventh after the bases were filled. Peel led off with a single to right. Jenkins and Turgeon took lifts by Schuble and Snyder. Baker singled to left, his second hit, Peel stopping at second. Penner batted for Hallahan and Turgeon fumbled his grounder, putting three runners on. Then Pete raced far to his left for Hock's grounder and threw out Eddie.

Whitworth Again Hurls

Whitworth went to the hill, his second straight game in the role of relief chucker, and retired the Spudders in order, Turgeon rolling out to him, Fitzgerald hoisting to Watkins and Lamb fouling to Schuble.

Jenkins raced into the crowd for Selph's foul in the eighth but stumbled over a spectator. Selph protested when he was called out on strikes. Lamb took Worthington's fly. Turgeon tossed out Watkins.

A pretty girl walked down the aisle in the box seat section.

Jenkins started the Spudder eighth with a single to left and went to second on Swenson's sacrifice, Baker and Selph making a fast play. Selph also came in fast for Stanton's grounder, Jenkins going to third. Schuble threw out Lapan.

Peel fouled to Swenson in the ninth. Schuble crashed a hit off Payne's shins. Turgeon held Snyder's harsh grounder to a single, Peel stopping at second. Walker ran for Snyder. Baker strolled, filling the bases. Powell batted for Whitworth and holsted to Jenkins, Schuble scoring. Jenkins took Hock's fly.

Buffs Start in Second

The Buffs started the nightcap with a run in the first inning. Hock doubled to left and went to third while Turgeon was tossing out Selph. Worthington singled to right, scoring Hock. Benton grabbed Watkins' harsh liner and doubled Worthington at first.

Galloway's men went right out and promptly tied it in their half. Turgeon doubled to center with one out. Fitzgerald was out on a hairline decision on his grounder to Schuble, Turgeon moving to third. Lamb singled to left, Turgeon scoring. Lamb was out stealing, Schuble taking Jonnard's peg.

Houston tallied again in the second and would have had more had it not been for brilliant fielding by Turgeon. Peel led off with a single through short. Schuble hit to right, Peel going to third. Turgeon came in fast for Jonnard's bounder, touched Schuble and doubled at first, Peel scoring. Turgeon went back to second base for Walker's grounder through Cobb.

A wit in the stands said, "There goes the Buffaloes" when an airplane zoomed over the field.

Kiefer to Mound

Jenkins singled to right and was sacrificed to second by Swenson. Walker to Selph. Stanton grounded to Selph, Jenkins going to third. Smith was passed. Cvengros batted for Cobb and fanned.

Kiefer retired the Buffs in order. Stanton took Penner's grounder. Kiefer tossed out Hook. Selph flied to Lamb.

Schuble ranged back of second base for Benton's grounder and Rabbit was called out on a decision by Donahue. Turgeon's homer over the left field wall tied the score. Fitz was out, swinging. Lamb doubled to the center field fence Jenkins was purposely passed. Pandemonium reigned for the 'steenth time. Swenson walked, filling the bases. Then Stanton smashed HIS circuit drive, over the right field barrier, scoring three comrades ahead of him. Smith strolled. Kiefer flied to Watkins.

Jenkins speeded into foul territory to haul down Worthington's lift in the fourth. Lamb backed against the fence for a superb catch of Watkins smash. Turgeon went to his right and threw out Peel.

Benton bounced to Selph. Hook threw out Turgeon. Fitzgerald fouled to Jonnard.

Schuble started the fifth by grounding to Turgeon. Jonnard tapped to Kiefer. Walker skied to Lamb.

Lamb Hits Again

Lamb doubled to left, his third hit and second double of the game. Jenkins rolled to Walker, Lamb going to third. Swenson poked a slow ball into short center for a single, Lamb scoring. They used to call those kind "Texas leaguers." Swenson was out stealing, Jonnard to Schuble, and Bubber as riled and said things to Stanton when Buck stuck his bat in front of the ball. The kid let Jonnard jaw a while and then smashed a single to short. Smith doubled to left, giving him a 1,000 day at bat. Stanton scoring, Schuble threw out Kiefer.

Penner rolled to Kiefer in the sixth. Hock grounded to Turgeon. Swenson threw out Selph.

Benton led off for the fourth time in the game and grounded to Selph. Schuble and Walker retired Turgeon. Worthington was under Fitzgerald's hoist.

Worthington bounced to Benton in the seventh. Watkins hit a home run over the right field barrier, the first hit in five innings off Joe. Kiefer tossed out Peel. Schuble doubled to center. Jonnard flied to Jenkins.

"Sec" Guy Airey and his capable corps of assistants handled the ticket distribtion at the park in their usual efficient and courteous manner.

Fugazy Seeks to Sign Sharkey For Battle With Johnny Risko

Signor Humbert Overlooks Mill Thursday Night in Which Roberti Stands Chance of Whipping Rubber Man

By DOMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The offices of the good Signor Humberto Fugazy were agog today with gentlemen of the press.

It seems that the good Signor Humberto Fugazy was trying to sign the Terrible Sharkey Man, of Boston, to box Rubbery John Risko, of Cleveland.

This struck me as a most naive proceeding on the part of the good Signor Humberto Fugazy, because he has Rubbery John boxing Signor Roberto Roberti, the tall aspen of the Alps, under his auspices in Brooklyn on Aug. 16.

Now Signor Roberto Roberti is apt to knock Rubbery John nine ways from Tuesday, and in that event why a match between the terrible Sharkey Man and Rubbery John? Why not a match between the Terrible Sharkey Man and Signor Roberto Roberti?

My Detroit operatives inform me that Rubbery John looked none too good against one John Squires, of Johannesburg, South Africa, not long ago, and, in fact, Rubbery John's manager, Dan'l Dunn, said Rubbery John needs a rest, which is why he wouldn't sign for the Terrible Sharkey Man.

Roberti Tough Fellow

Under the circumstances, Signor Roberto Roberti, trained to the very half minute by Old Har' Willis, the Brown Panther of New 'Lean, has a right good chance of licking John. On behalf of the Black Shirts of Mulberry Bend, I resent the implication in the good Signor Fugazy's attempt to sign the Terrible Sharkey Man and Rubbery John, that the affair between Signor Roberti and Rubbery John may be one-sided.

I have the word of Old Har' Wills that Signor Roberto Roberti will Jes' natch'ly ann-ily-hate Rubbery John, and old Har' Wills is said to be a most veracious man. I note in the public prints that Commodore Rickard, that big sea-faring man, names Signor Roberto Roberti among the first 16 blood-sweating behemoths eligible to compete in his tournament, if any, and this really amounts to social recognition.

I note in the public prints that the loyal baseball fans of Brooklyn all four of them, are demanding an investigation of the story that the reason your Uncle Jilbert Robbingson's Bobbins aren't doing so well in the National league race is because of John J. Barleycorn.

The tale runs that on the western trips some of the Bobbins have been bending their elbows until their funny bones ache—that they are drinking, and what's more, are drinking ale. I join in the demand for investigation. I wish to know where they get that ale, and is it good ale?

Whenever I hear of those noble pastimers of the national obsession going in for dramming, I always think of the bright morning some years ago when the Messrs. George Herman Ruth and Ping Bodie ambled out of the dawn into the Friars' club and announced that they wouldn't attend the double header in which the Yankees were involved that afternoon unless Mr. Miller Huggins personally invited them.

They Win Both Games

The boys had been out all night, and around and about, drinking cuckoo cola and what not, and their friends were somewhat perturbed over their state of mind. The Yanks needed some baseball games about that time, and eventually the Messrs. Ruth and Bodie were induced to attend the double header and the assurance of Mr. George Perry that Mr. Huggins requested their presence. R. S. V. P.

As I recall the circumstance, Mr. Bodie won one of the game with a homer, and Mr. Ruth won the other with two homers, and I always felt it was a most unfortunate occurence because of its effect on many good Friars, who could never afterward be brought to believe that cuckoo cola wasn't a right odd thing.

Notes of the Game

Otto McIver, formerly an outfielder in the Texas and National leagues and now of the foremost citizens of Quanah, led a delegation of fans from his home town.

The Panhandle Refining company band, led by Paul Seeds played sweet and inspiring music to add zest to the occasion.

At 1:45 the right wing of the grandstand had been completely filled and patrons were swarming into the left field stands.

There were more than 5,000 in the stands at 2 o'clock—and few of reserved and box seats—for which there was a sellout—were occupied. It was just like grand opera at the Metropolitan, where the box holders are perennial late-comers.

The Spuders were out at 1 o'clock for an extensive batting practice, with Chick Galeria, the Abilene southpaw, helping in the hurling. Snyder led his subdued but determined Buffalos onto the field at 2:05.

Slim Love tossed a few to Pete Lapan and then took his turn on the hill in batting practice.

The stands, except for reserved seats, were full at 2:25 and a corps of workmen were roping off a section in right field.

J. Doak Roberts, president of the Texas league, graced the occasion with his presence.

The left field foul territory was roped off at 2:40 as it became evident that space in right field would be inadequate.

Available parking space for automobiles from the ball park to the railroad tracks was occupied at 2:45—and cars and pedestrians were still trekking to the orchard in a steady flow.

The crowd cheered as the Spudders went out for fielding drill.

Ed Roetz made a flashing one-hand stab of a grounder and the croud cheered. The kid is available for infield duty or pinch-hitting if needed.

There were numerous women in the overflow crowds.

Colvert's ice cream was served to the Spudders between games, a refreshment greatly appreciated by the athletes.

U. S. Invites World To Olympics in 1932

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 12. (US)—"We bid the youth of all nations to foregather at Los Angeles in four years time for the tenth Olympiad."

With these words Count de Baillet Latour, president of the international Olympic committee, formally declared the Amsterdam games closed this evening. Amid a salvo of artillery and fanfare of trumpets the Olympic flag was struck and the column of smoke emerging from the top of the marathon tower was stifled.

Prior to this Queen Wilhelmina, who developed a keen interest in the games as time went on, presented the first prizes to the delegations of all nations lined up on the field in front of the royal box.

General MacArthur took the lion's share of the prizes on behalf of the United States.

Champions Beat Red Sox While Macks Are Idle

NEW YORK, Aug. 12. (AP)—The New York Yankees made it four in a row over Boston and five straight in the league when they blanked the Sox by 8 to 0. This victory increased the Yankees' lead to five games as the Athletics were idle. Score:

INDIANS WIN IN NINTH

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 12. (AP)—Cleveland broke through the brilliant fielding defense which had saved Earl Whitehill for eight innings and beat the Detroit Tigers with a three run rally in the ninth today, 3 to 2. Double by Morgan and Jamieson and singles by Lind and Pinch Hitter Autrey made Cleveland's last stand good after ninth inning threats had barely fallen short in two earlier games of the series. ## James Brothers Nine Beats Electra, 13-5

James Brothers Creamery baseball team from Wichita Falls invaded Electera yesterday and carried off a 13 to 5 victory over the Electra nine. Ronie Glidewell hurled the game for the visitors and held Electra to only four safe taps. Glidewell also led the hitting with a triple and two singles in four times up.

Farmer Ray started on the hill for Electra but was relieved by Williamson who finished the game.

Shires Returns to Waco And Says He'll Join Sox

WACO, Aug. 12. (AP)—Art Shires, who bolted the Waco team recently in preference to being sold to the Chicago White Sox, appeared unexpectedly here today and announced he would leave for Chicago.

Shires would not state whether he accepted a bonus to agree to his sale. He was notified that he had been declared ineligible from organized baseball by Commissioner Landis. Shires did not know what effect his sudden decision to report to the Sox would have on Landis' ruling.

PROPOSED constitutional amendment—authorizing legislature to grant confederate pensions regardless of date pensioner came to Texas or when widow married pensioner or when she was born. H. J. R. No. 15. House joint resolution. Proposing an amendment to section 51, article 3, of the constitution of the state of Texas, authorizing a tax levy for confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows, and providing for submission of same to the qualified electors of this state at any election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1928, and providing the necessary proclamation and appropriation to defray expenses of proclamation, publication and election. Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Texas: Section 1. That section 51, of article 3, of the constitution of the state of Texas be amended so as to read as follows: "The legislature shall have no power to make any grant or authorize the making of any grant of public moneys to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporations whatsoever; provided, however, the legislature may grant aid to indigent and disabled confederate soldiers and sailors under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient, and to their widows in indigent circumstances under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient; to indigent and disabled soldiers, who, under special laws of the state of Texas during the war between the states, served in organizations for the protection of the frontier against Indian raids or Mexican marauders, and to indigent and disabled soldiers of the militia who were in active service during the war between the states, and to the widows of such soldiers who are in indigent circumstances, and who are or may be eligible to receive aid under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient; and also grant for the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, their wives and widows and women who aided in the confederacy, under such regulations and limitations as may be provided for by law; provided the legislature may provide for husband and wife to remain together in the home. There is hereby levied in addition to all other taxes heretofore permitted by the constitution of Texas, a state ad valorem tax on property of seven (¢.07) cents on the one hundred ($100) dollars valuation for the purpose of creating a special fund for the payment of pensions for services in the confederate army and navy, frontier organizations and the militia of the state of Texas, and for the widows of such soldiers serving in said armies, navies, organizations or militia; provided that the legislature may reduce the tax rate herein levied and provided further, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed so as to prevent the grant of aid in cases of public calamity. Section 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the state at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1928, at which all ballots shall have printed thereon "For the constitutional amendment authorizing aid to confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows in indigent circumstances, and authorizing tax levy therefor," and "Against the constitutional amendment authorizing aid to confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows in indigent circumstances and authorizing tax levy therefor." Each voter shall scratch out one of said clauses on the ballot, leaving the one expressing his vote on the proposed amendment. Section 3. The governor shall issue the necessary proclamation for said election and have the same published as required by the constitution and laws of this state. The sum of $5,000 or so much thereof as may be needed is hereby appropriated for the expense of publication of said amendment.

Wichita Operator Teaches Sooner Oil Men How to 'Play' in Stephens

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 12.—A Texas oil man is teaching the operators in the Duncan district of Stephens county, southwest Oklahoma, how to complete oil wells successfully in the soft formation found there.

George Pace of Wichita Falls, is the operator and he has become one of the most active operators in the Duncan district. He has found it possible to drill with standard tools into the soft sands, penetrate the sands, wash them, and bail and swab the well into flowing. The sands are so soft that they cannot be shot.

Practices that he has originated are being adopted by other operators and rotaries are being discarded there.

Wichita Falls parties have assembled a block of 3,000 acres in township 2 south, range 6 west, also in Stephens county.

REFINERS USE BRIGHT TERMS

Shipments of Motor Fuel Continues Brisk

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 12.—"Brisk, firm, steady and strong."

These vocables are generally used today by Mid-Continent refiners in discussing the gasoline situation. Inquiries shows that shipments of motor fuel continue brisk, with many refiners behind with their orders. Inquiries from jobbers are reported coming in so steady that many are being placed with Kansas and Arkansas-Louisiana refineries.

U. S. motor grade gasoline—(58-60, 437 endpoint), is quoted at 9⅛ to 9¼ cents, being held early in the week at 9⅛ to 9⅜ cents. This range of price also applies to Chicago territory.

The 60-62 endpoint grade is pegged at 10 to 10¼ cents, with the 64-66, 375 endpoint at 10¼ cents. Exporters are not as active today as they have been.

Natural gasolines are firm at 10½ to 10¾ cents, and while demand continues good, it is understood that the supply is not as scarce as a week ago. Manufacturers, however, expect spot prices to advance.

Burning oils are firm, the 41-43 grade of kerosene being held at 5¾ to 6 cents, and the 42-44 grade at 6¼ cents. Fuel oil is so so at 60-65 cents a berral for the 24-26 grade.

Refiners report bright stock firm, with shipments large, but still behind demand. The grade D is held at 25 cents flat.

INTERNATIONAL DANCE RACE

C-C Pyle Puts Marathon On New Plan

By CORINNE RICH

NEW YORK, Aug. 12. (US)—A great dance derby of international proportions loomed today as the climax of the spidemic of dance marathons that, like Job's boils, have broken out all over America this summer.

C. C. Pyle, who specializes in the promotion of odd and spectacular sporting events, announces that next January he expects to stage in New York this dance affair which will be by all odds the ne plus ultra of modern terpsichorean happenings.

Meanwhile, he is taking three couples, dancing all the way, to Europe to act as pace-makers for the coming big event.

Mr. Pyle gave out his surprising plans today. Here they are in his own words:

"The middle of next month six lucky boys and girls are going to dance to Europe, the first in the history of the world to do such a thing. Who can tell but what they will start a fad?

Leave Times Square

"One couple will undoubtedly be chosen from among the survivors of the late-lamented marathon at Madison Square garden which was closed by the health authorities after running three full weeks. The other two couples will be selected later.

"The six will choose their partners and leave from Times Square at a certain hour. They will dance to the pier on a truck, dance onto the gangplank and onto the deck of the ship. Their days and nights on the ocean will be spent dancing on the deck and in the ballroom.

"Of course I realize that there may be one important hitch in this plan. My girls and boys might get seasick."

At that thought Mr. Pyle chuckled to himself. He was probably thinking of another dance marathon that came to such an ignominious end a few years back when a dozen couples, run out of every dance hall in town by the health authorities, finally got onto a boat to finish the race. But old man sea stepped in with the laugh.

In Big Centers

"At any rate," Mr. Pyle continued, "once in Europe, we will stage marathons in London, Paris, and Berlin with my American couples acting as spurs and inspiration. Out of these marathons will emerge a champion couple from England, France and Germany.

"Then next January these winners will come to New York for the international competition. Not only the foreign couples, but dancers from all the big cities in the United States will compete. They will have been chosen in the meantime through elimination competitions. We are asking 300 dance halls, representing every section of the country, to begin getting these couples for us.

"The January meet will be different from these others. Heretofore the marathons have been endurance contests, lasting for days and weeks, just as long as the dancers had feet to stand on.

"But the international derby will be a speed contest, prizes being awarded, as in the six-day bicycle races, for the most laps around a circular track in a given time. There will be a half hour rest period after every hour of dancing. It should all be over in five or six days.

"It's going to be a good show."

Council to Discuss Ordinance On Chicks

The discussion started by Mayor J. W. Akin at the council meeting last week as to the number of chickens an individual may keep in the city limits will be continued by the city alderman Monday night when they meet in the council chambers to discuss the "48 chicken" bill.

The ordinance was ordered drawn up by the councilmen, and probably will be presented by Thelbert martin, city attorney, at the meeting.

Two ordinances, passed on previous readings, will come up for reading. They are to change the time of council meetings in the summer to 8 o'clock, and to prohibit and regulate the use of explosives in the city limits.

U. S. Bankers Refuse To Participate

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. (UP)—For the first time in about 20 years American bankers have declined to participate in a loan to Central America. It was definitely learned at the state department that negotiations for a $12,000,000 loan to Nicaragua, which the state department had tentatively approved, have collapsed.

Officials here and in Managua have been informed by New York banking houses, which were asked to consider the loan, that they do not care to take part in the proposed plan to lend Nicaragua this sum, despite reports by the recently resigned American collector of customs for Nicaragua, that the republic's fanances are in better condition than in many years.

Reasons Not Disclosed

New York bankers did not disclose their reasons for declining to handle the proposed loan. In many quarters, however, the view has been expressed that their action was based on congressional and other criticism of alleged "Wall Street interference" in the internal affairs of Central America.

It is believed the refusal of New York banking interests to back the loan were based primarily on two reasons. One was that the criticism which has attended their participation in other financial undertakings in Central America, may prove harmful to their other interests. The other is that it might have made difficult the sale of Nicaraguan bonds to float the loan.

The state department had worked out the details for the contemplated loan and three banking houses were interested in the transaction. There had been several rumors recently that they would decline to carry through the proposal. Of the bankers in the United States active in foreign financing, the three who were considering handling the Nicaraguan loan, were virtually the only ones who, during the last 25 years, have risked extension of credit to the republic.

Plans Worked Out

Plans for the loan were worked out at a recent state department conference, together with a scheme for the financial reorganization of Nicaragua.

The loan was to have been used to meet costs of the November presidential elections, new public works, highways, an extension of the national railways, and to pay off claims arising from the recent revolution, which United States Marines quelled. At least half of the $12,000,000 was to have been used for refunding present government obligations.

Now comes a man who, in his singing, can strike a lower note than any one of his fellow men. He holds the Royal Gold Medal as evidence that he has merited the distinction.

◇ ◇ ◇

His name is Phil Coleman, and he will be at the Majestic theater starting Wednesday. He sung for the King of England and the King of Belgium, and he has achieved much notoriety from these and other royal commands of lesser note on the continent.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. Coleman is an American and has been in Europe 20 years. The way he was invited to sing before a "royal command".

◇ ◇ ◇

Now, here in Texas, we will be just plain glad to have the chance to hear an artist of the first magnitude. There will be no "royal commands", unless Phil considers the jingle of the silver in the till as a "royal command."

◇ ◇ ◇

Imagine yourself in the world's greatest theater, the Paramount in New York, listening to the great orchestra of 75 pieces, as Richard Dix brings to you the first Paramount's picture with sound at the Strand. This show, "Warming Up" moved from the Paramount a few days ago to another one of Broadway's great theaters to give the folks up the street a few blocks the chance to see it. If all the folks in the one block in which the Paramount is located would see the picture, it would be several weeks before anyone would have a chance to get in. The gigantic Times Square hotel, the elegant new home of the New York Times and other tremendous places which hold human beings by the thousand are in the block. The Paramount building itself is 42 stories high and includes thousands of persons in its daily business.

◇ ◇ ◇

Wichita Falls is getting something new in "Warming Up", Richard Dix' new picture. When Wichita Falls sees the first of Paramount's pictures with sound, or "vitaphone" pictures as many term them, at the same time the pleasure seekers of the Great White Way see it, we are not so far behind the times.

◇ ◇ ◇

In fact, it looks as though we are ahead of the times.—distance and time and other conditions being considered fully.

◇ ◇ ◇

Just take a look forward a few days to what is coming at the Olympic theater! "Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath", is the title. What a name! It is going to be either the world's worst or one of the good ones with a handle like that on it.

◇ ◇ ◇

In advance, this column goes on record as saying it won't commit itself on that show. On name alone, "Ladies Night in a Turkish Bath" is too ticklish a thing. Safety first is our motto.

LONDON TALKS KELLOGG PLAN

American Peace Project Is Widely Discussed

LONDON, Aug. 12. (UP)—Sec'y of State Kellogg's anti-War pact and the recently anonunced secret Anglo-French naval agreement continues to be the most discussed diplomatic moves in which Europe has been involved for some time.

Unlike the usual diplomatic agreement which receives considerable attention throughout the various countries for a few days or a week and then becomes little more than a matter of memory, these two moves are still attracting great interest both here and on the continent.

The mere fact that the important liberal newspaper, The Daily News, published a report this morning that the Kellogg pact would indirectly result in an immediate possibility of the complete abandonment of the proposed gigantic British naval base at Singapore, which already is under construction, has attracted great interest despite emphatic official denials by the British admiralty that there was any basis of fact in the report.

Repors from Geneva that the Kellogg pact would be brought before the league assembly at its September meeting for active discussion with the posibility that it would open the way for the pact to become universally accepted by all nations received a welcome echo in liberal circles here which so far have steadfastly supported the porposed pact.

It can well be said that the eyes of Europe have never been turned toward an event with such interest since the signing of the famous Locarno pact several years ago than they are now toward the 27th of this month when the delegates sign two copies of the treaty for the outlawry of war, one copy to be placed on file in the Qual D'Orsay beside the Versailles treaty and many other treaties dating since the American revolution, and the other to be filed in the state department at Washington.

A movement for a second ceremony to be held in Paris at which other nations would be invited to sign for this ceremony have been made as yet, however.

WAGE CUT ACCEPTED

LONDON, Aug. 12. (UP)—A meeting of railway shop men today accepted the two and one-half per cent reduction in wages proposed by the companies to relieve the serious financial position with which roads are faced. The engineers' and Firemens' National Union already had accepted the reduction.

The lower floor of the building has never been used for anything but a bakery, there being a large brick oven in the rear.

COTTON CROP OUTLOOK POOR

Martin County Set Back By Rains

STANTON, Aug. 12.—Cloudy and rainy weather, combined with the work of the boll worm, or the insect commonly known as the corn ear worm, is cutting Martin county's prospect of an average per acre production of cotton from one-half bale to considerably below that figure.

Some of the leading farmers state that "this insect is doing more damage in spots over the county, right now, than they have ever seen in the history of the county." Dry, hot weather with plenty of sunshine will do much to check the ravages of the insect, states County Agent J. V. Bush.

The grain sorghums throughout this entire section of the country are doing nicely. If no unforseen hindrences arise later on in the year, thousands of acres of maize and other grain sorghums over the county will produce from one to two tons of grain per acre and few acres will produce less than a ton per acre and the feed crop for Martin county will be far above the average for this section.
