Wichita Falls Oil Producers Seek Readjustment Of Market For District

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Americans compare their crime records with other countries—England, for instance—and are shocked at the disparity in the records against our country. Americans appear to be a bad lot in comparison and we jump to the conclusion that our administration of justice and our law enforcement agencies are at fault.

There is some basis for this conclusion, but whatever our delinquencies in this respect may be, they are not the whole cause and we can reach no solution of our problems without taking into consideration other elements in the situation.

Our very democracy itself—the urge for freedom, self expression, desire for advancement and betterment, our refusal to stay in the niche in which we were born, our discontent with things as they are, our unrest and our refusal to accept class distinctions are all in the soil from which grows our crime record.

A friend sends Talker a copy of an address delivered by Hon. Andrew A. Bruce, professor of law at Northwestern university, on "Why We Are Lawless," in which some of these factors are discussed. He says we are on the wrong track when we think the reform of the criminal code and the imposition of more drastic penalties will cure the whole matter or that a greater certainty of arrest and conviction will go far toward solving the problems.

He says that our very democracy has something to do with our troubles. "We will never get anywhere," he goes on to say," until we realize that crime is the problem of adolescent youth and adolescent democracy. Where there is democracy and opportunity, there will always be discontent and where there is discontent, there will be crime. In Europe boys and girls are taught to do their duty in that sphere of life in which it has pleased God to call them. Here everyone is urged to better his condition and get out of his sphere.

A criminal career, he points out, is a misdirected career. "It is due to a false ideal." Mr. Bruce continues. "It is due to a desire for action and for excitement. England, in a large measure, is law-abiding, because through the centuries its people have been taught to do their duty in the sphere of life in which it has pleased God to call them. Here in our American democracy we encourage everybody, not to do their duty in that sphere of life in it has pleased God to call them, but to try to get into another sphere."

Answering the question of where our gangsters and confirmed criminals come from, and how do they originate, Mr. Bruce goes on to say: "It is a question of environment. It is a question of tradition. Crime is progressive and most criminal careers start in early youth. In the early youth the influence of home, of environment, of tradition, is all important and it is because in the cities of America so much of the right environment and tradition is lacking, that crime flourishes. A bad citizen is the result of bad environment."

The answer to much of this problem, he concludes, is to take away the profit from gambling and vice and illicit liquor selling. The moral to this, "every one of us who purchases liquor contributes to the fund for which bandits are fighting and to the maintenance of the gunmen whom organized liquor sellers and organized gamblers and vice promoters recruit."

This answer, of course, is only a partial one. The complete answer to the problem will only come when we face our democracy squarely and find opportunity for expression in striving toward the fulfillment

PROTEST MADE HERE AGAINST NEW OIL SLASH

Independents Deplore Action of Humble and Others In Reduction

FLUSH FIELDS CITED

Local Contention Is That Old Fields Should Not Have to Suffer

Taking the leadership in attempting to bring about an equitable re-adjustment of crude oil prices in North Texas and other stabilized oil districts, about 150 independent producers of Wichita Falls have registered a formal protest against the recent reduction in oil prices, it was revealed here Sunday.

In a meeting at the Wichita club the Wichita Falls operators adopted a resolution deploring the drastic cut in oil prices and setting out the contention held here that proration in new and flush fields should be made to care for the overproduction problem.

Companies Get Resolution

Copies of the resolution were dispatched late Saturday to the Humble Pipe line company, instigator of the reduction; Gulf Pipeline company, Magnolia Petroleum company and Texas Pipeline company.

Major companies in this area which have not yet cut the price are Continental, Prairie and Sinclair.

Signatures of N. H. Martin, Roy B. Jones, J. F. O'Donohoe, J. S. Bridwell, E. H. Eddleman, P. B. Flynn, J. T. Harrell and E. B. Lawson, comprising the committee on resolutions, were attached to the resolution.

Meet Next Saturday

It was announced Sunday that another meeting of the independent operators will be held here next Saturday afternoon, Jan. 25,

Presbyterian Editor Explains His 'Dismissal'

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 19. (UP)—Presbyterian fundamentalists intend to wage a militant fight to awaken the younger generation to the truth of the Bible, Dr. Samuel G. Craig told the United Press today in explaining what he termed his "dismissal" as editor of "The Presbyterian."

Directors of the publication, a weekly issued at Philadelphia by the Presbyterian church, requested Doctor Craig's resignation because his fundamental views had led to frequent clashes between him and other leading churchmen.

Lindys Explain Their Absence From Wedding

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 19. (UP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh explained here today just why they did not attend the wedding in Los Angeles Saturday night of their close friends, Lieut. D. W. Tomlinson and Miss Virginia Sullivan.

The explanation was that they did not want to steal the show. So Mrs. Lindbergh just sent the couple a note, explaining they had been chagrined by attracting more attention than the bride and groom at two other weddings.

Missouri and Arkansas Bear Brunt of Flood

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 19. (AP)—Southeastern Missouri and Northeastern Arkansas tonight bore the brunt of a fan-like spread of water from five gaps in a 25-mile stretch of embankment along the flood-swollen St. Francis river in Dunklin county, Mo. Approximately 25,000 acres of fertile farm land in Missouri gradually were being inundated and the water had moved into Holcomb, a town of about 500 persons.

U. S. Birth Rate Falls; Death Rate Increases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (US)—The birth rate of the United States fell from 20.7 to 18.7 per 1,000 population, while the death rate increased from 11.4 to 12.1 during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1929, the U. S. public health service reported today.

James E. Ferguson Breaks Collar Bone in Fall From His Bed

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—Tossing in the throes of a nightmare, former Gov. James E. Ferguson fell from his bed early Sunday morning, sustaining a broken collar bone.

He will be confined to his bed several days, at his home, his shoulder encased in a plaster cast, as a result of the injury.

The injury was declared a painful one, but not expected to prove serious, according to his physician.

Death Strikes Iowa Park Pioneer Following Speech To Sunday School Members

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Jan. 19.—Death removed another of Wichita county's pioneers today when N. L. Lowrance, 83, dropped dead in the First Presbyterian Sunday school.

Mr. Lowrance, for 39 years prominent in church and civic affairs of this section, had just completed a talk on the birthday offerings of the Sunday school when he was stricken with a heart attack which was immediately fatal.

In his talk he had announced that he had subscribed to a church publication for all mothers of the church. He delivered the amount for the subscriptions to the leader of the services and returned to his seat where he collapsed. Relatives attempted to revive him.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon with the Rev. E. S. Lowrance, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and nephew of the deceased, in charge. Burial will be in the Iowa Park cemetery.

Mr. Lowrance was born in Fayette county, Tenn., and moved to Oxford county, Miss., in 1856. He served two years in the Confederate army. In 1891 he came to Wichita county, settling near Iowa Park. At the time of his death his home was on the Wichita Falls highway, two miles from Iowa Park.

He is survived by his widow and four children, all of whom live in Iowa Park. They are Locke and Gayle Lowrance, sons, and Miss Clara Lowrance and Mrs. Gayle Park, daughters.

STANDS ALONE

General Lee Only Leader Of War to Escape Vilification

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (US)—General Robert E. Lee, of civil war fame, "seems to be the only outstanding historical figure who has totally escaped severe vilification," Sen. Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, declared tonight in a radio program celebrating General Lee's birthday.

"It is a remarkable fact," he said, "that northern commanders, northern soldiers, and northern historians have never abused General Lee. All the leaders of the civil war on both sides have been criticized and attacked with the sole exception of General Lee.

Senator Hawes' father and several uncles served in the army of Northern Virginia under General Lee.

HIT-RUN AUTO INJURES GIRL

Aprilla Moore in Critical Condition at Hospital

Miss Aprilla Moore, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lon P. Moore of 1410 Seventh street, is at the Wichita General hospital in a critical condition as a result of being struck by a hit-and-run driver near her home about 8 o'clock Sunday night.

She was found lying unconscious in the street a few doors from her home by a group of passersby who carried her into the house. An ambulance from the Merkle Undertaking company was summoned and the injured girl was rushed to the hospital.

An X-ray examination revealed she had suffered a fracture of the skull. No other injuries except bruises were found, physicians reported. She remained in a semi-conscious condition during most of the night.

The girl had been visiting at the house of a neighbor Sunday evening, according to her mother. She telephoned to tell Mrs. Moore she was coming home shortly before 8 p. m. She was alone at the time of the accident.

Police immediately began an investigation to locate the driver of the machine which struck the girl. She regained consciousness sufficiently at one time to tell attendants the car which struck her drove on without stopping to pick her up.

Besides her parents two brothers, Butler and L. P. Moore, and a sister, June Marie Moore, also live at the family home.

Young Reparations Plan To Be Adopted Today

THE HAGUE, Jan. 19. (AP)—The Young plan for reparations payments by Germany will be adopted tomorrow in a formal session of the second Hague conference. Eleventh hour difficulties that had seemed likely to prolong negotiations had about all been solved tonight.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19. (US)—Sabbath traffic accidents in and near Los Angeles caused three deaths and the serious injury of 11 persons.

Paraguay Trooper Killed by Bolivians

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 19. (AP)—The Paraguayan legation announced today that Bolivian troops had attacked a Paraguayan detachment and that one of the Paraguayan soldiers was killed in action.

The engagement was said to have taken place at Islo Poi in the vicinity of Puerto Casada, which is about 250 miles north of Asuncion on the Paraguay river. It is on the western bank of the river in the general section known as Chaco Boreal, to which claim is laid by both Bolivia and Paraguay.

The legation stated at the same time that Bolivian forces on that frontier had been displaying great activities during the past few days.

Public Utilities To Set Building Record

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—A new peace time record for construction and maintenance of public work and by public utilities is expected during the present year by Secretary Lamont on the basis of reports indicating that $7,000,000,000 will be spent in these fields.

This total does not include expenditures for residences, commercial and industrial structures and other private operations which last year amounted to more than $3,000,000,000 and which, if continued at the same pace, would bring the outlay for 1930 to more than $10,000,000,000.

Parrot Expert Says Psittacosis Is 'Bunk'

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (US)—Miss Peggy von der Goltz, parrot expert, says that the psittacosis, or parrot fever scare, is largely hysteria. She makes an offer and a challenge to demonstrate that she is sincere in her belief that parrot owners are needlessly alarmed. "Any parrot that has been kept in a home for a month or so, is positively immune."

Miss von der Goltz said that in her opinion the so-called psittacosis is really ordinary pneumonia, and is not communicable from birds to human beings.

Arrest of Writer's Assailant Expected

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (US)—Two women and two men witnesses to the shooting of Garet Garrett, well-known writer, in the midst of a party in a French cafe Saturday night, identified police photographs of his assailant today.

It was learned the man agreed upon by the four is an ex-convict released from Sing Sing prison after having served a 10-year sentence. Police withheld his identity, saying they hoped to have in custody in a matter of hours.

Longview Yardmaster Killed in Train Mishap

LONGVIEW, Texas, Jan. 19. (UP)—Tom Callahan, 50, general yardmaster for the Texas and Pacific railway at Longview Junction, was instantly killed today when he lost his hold while attempting to board the engine of an incoming passenger train.

Callahan's body swung under the train when he slipped, and he was decapitated. His head was completely severed from his body and crushed by the wheels of the train.

Ice Mantle Fades Slowly as Sun Beams Down on Wichita Area

Northwest Texas was slowly thawing out Sunday and great dark patches were appearing where, two days before, all was covered with a mantle of spotless white. The sun aided greatly in melting the ice and snow although the temperature remained about the freezing point and began a slow drop toward evening.

At 12 o'clock Sunday night the temperature stood at the 25-degree mark, a drop of 7 degrees from the low mark for the day. The maximum for the day was 32 degrees, freezing temperature. The howling winds which several days ago were bringing tastes of the icy northland to Wichita Falls had subsided to light breezes Sunday and the skies were only partially overcast with clouds.

Forecasts predicted colder weather Monday or Monday night for West Texas and Oklahoma, with snow in the north portion and rain in the south. Unsettled conditions for the entire region will prevail during the coming week, according to the government forecast.

Railroad service which had been running behind schedule during the blizzard, especially on trains from the north, had speeded up Sunday and most of the trains into Wichita Falls were on time, according to dispatchers.

JOHN W. BRADY READY TO WAGE COURT BATTLE

Stay in Jail Aids Physical Condition of Accused Former Judge

SURPRISES COMING

'Boy Prosecutor' Intimates He Will Spring Secret During Trial

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—John W. Brady, white-haired jurist whose voice for years has been heard with deference in the state's highest courts, conferred today with two of his nine lawyers on the eve of his trial for the murder of Miss Lehlia Highsmith, 28-year-old capitol stenographer, stabbed to death here on the night of Nov. 9.

Brady's long stay in the county jail, where he has been held since the killing, appeared to have aided him physically, the county jailer said. The former judge had gained weight and seemed in favorable spirits, the jailer reported. Brady himself could not be seen.

More Witnesses Called

Meanwhile, the defense called 14 additional witnesses to supplement the list of 73 already summoned.

Each side indicated it would announce ready. The 14 new Brady witnesses included C. N. Avery of Austin, a former city commissioner; Tom and Carl Nelson of Round Rock, capitalists; D. H. Hart, federal district clerk here; Dr. Lee Edens, city health officer; Dr. Howard Granderry and six police officers.

Sheriff Coley White announced that he and three of his deputies would keep order at the trial. He said he would search "certain" spectators, but not everybody.

Sheriff Makes Bond On Liquor Charge

HOUSTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—Sheriff H. W. Collins of Fort Bend county, one of 16 persons charged in liquor raids at Richmond last night, was released under $10,000 bond at Galveston today. The other 15, including his four deputies, remained in jail there pending a hearing tomorrow. In addition, 48 other persons caught in the dry net awaited the filing of charges against them at Galveston tomorrow, making a total of 64 taken prisoner. Evidence against them will be presented to a federal grand jury now in session at Galveston.

Confession Obtained In Arizona Slaying

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 19. (AP)—Walter Glenn Dague early today confessed to Sheriff C. H. Wright of Maricopa county that he, Mrs. Irene Schroeder of Benwood, W. Va., and "another man" were involved in the slaying of Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol Corporal Brady Paul and wounding of Private Ernst Moore near Newcastle, Dec. 27.

Dague did not admit firing the fatal shot himself. He laid it to either Mrs. Schroeder, or the "other man," whom he declined to name.

Eighth Victim Of Parrot Fever Reported

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19. (UP)—The list of persons here believed stricken by parrot fever swelled to eight today when Edward Johnson was placed under surveillance in the General hospital.

Health authorities said the illness of Johnson and the others was not grave. The death of two persons here recently has been attributed to the parrot disease, or psittacosis.

Doran Blames 'Inflamatory Attacks' For Slaying of Two Dry Enforcers

Prohibition Commissioner Says Denouncements Lead Criminals to Shoot Men Doing Duty

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—Prohibition Commissioner Doran said today that "the recent inflamatory attacks upon our personnel" were largely responsible for the killing of two prohibition agents in Florida yesterday in a raid upon the home of a suspected bootlegger.

Expressing regret over the slaying of F. R. Patterson and Robert K. Moncure in a raid upon the home of George W. Moore at West Palm Beach, the commissioner laid the responsibility for the shooting upon recent "inflammatory attacks" upon the enforcement squad "which leads weak minded criminals to attack honest and efficient officers acting in the performance of their duties."

Officers Attacked

There have been frequent attacks upon various groups of enforcement officers during the prohibition controversy that has swept Washington recently.

The commissioner, in a monograph which he made public today, outlined what was required of prohibition agents and said many of them were recruited from college graduates and that generally they were a high type of citizen.

The commissioner had received a short preliminary report of the killing from E. R. Tuttle, prohibition administrator at Savannah,

WRIT CALLED ILLEGAL

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 19. (AP)—E. M. Baynes, attorney for George W. Moore, charged with the slaying last night of two prohibition agents here, asserted tonight that the agents attempted to enter Moore's home without legal warrant.

"They just overstepped their bounds and the shooting resulted," Baynes declared. He asserted that "the agents made an attempt to break into" the Moore home and that the warrant they held did not permit search after nightfall.

He said Moore repeatedly warned prohibition officers not to attempt to search his home after dark without a warrant permitting night time entry.

LEGISLATURE TO CONVENE TODAY

Governor Completes Message for Lawmakers

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—Austin was assuming its usual legislative air tonight, as members of the legislature from all parts of Texas were gathering for the extraordinary session called by Gov. Moody to convene at noon tomorrow.

Judging by the early arrivals, a quorum will be available in both houses, when speaker of the house, W. S. Barron of Bryan and Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller of Dallas let their respective gavels drop.

While the governor asked the legislators to return specifically to consider concentration and relocation of the Texas penitentiary system and revamping of the fee system regulations to correct certain alleged evils, it is generally believed that a number of other subjects will be submitted to the legislators before the session is very old.

He has virtually agreed to propose appropriations for the summer schools of universities and colleges and legislation for the relief of public utilities. He will also likely submit the matter of adjusting the Panhandle boundary line between Texas and Oklahoma.

The governor had completed his message and will probably deliver

Return of Daylight Enables Aerial Search

MOSCOW, Jan. 19. (US)—Now that daylight has returned to the icy wastelands in the vicinity of Cape North, the Soviet airmen concentrated at Krashnoyarsk are expected to take off momentarily in the search for Carl Ben Eielson, missing American aviator, and his mechanic, Earl Borland. A report several days ago that Eielson had landed 200 miles from Cape North has not yet been confirmed.

Immigration Problem Faces House Again

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—A view of the immigration problem as it relates to the western hemisphere will be presented to the house immigration committee tomorrow as it re-opens the old controversy over whether this country should restrict the entry of aliens from Mexico, Canada and other nations of the new world.

Two bills to limit such immigration to approximately 50,000 annually are to serve as the vehicle for this new study of an old problem.

Crack Italian Flier Killed in Speed Test

ROME, Jan. 19. (US)—Tomasso dal Molin, crack Italian airman who captured second place for his country in the Schneider trophy race, off Cows, England, last year, today met his death when a plane he was piloting plunged into Lake Garda. At the time of the accident Dal Molin was testing a machine with which he hoped to break the world's speed record of 368.80 miles per hour, set by Major A. H. Orlebar, of England, three days after the Schneider trophy race.

Tariff Would Steady Business, Says Derby

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (US)—Uncertainties in industry will be dispelled as soon as the tariff bill is passed. This was the statement today of H. L. Derby, chairman of the tariff committee of the national association of manufacturers.

'Highbrow' Drinkers Objects Of Sheppard's Proposed 'Buyers' Law'

DETROIT, Jan. 19. (AP)—A defense of his proposed law to make the buyer of liquor subject to the same penalty as the seller was made by Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas in an address here today.

The senator addressed a rally which concluded the Anti-Saloon league's national convention.

"We need to make but few examples of the highbrows who think they are above the law in order to smash the bottom out of the bootleg market," the Texan asserted.

"Too often," he said, "buyers are persons of standing, using the exemption accorded them by the law as an excuse for its moral infraction. It is true that in punishing possession we get the purchasers by one foot. If there is any one we need to get by both feet, however, it is the individual of high standing who flaunts and defies the law."

A large part of the senator's speech was occupied with praise of prohibition as a benefit to humanity. When it was written into the constitution, he said, "we demonstrated the constitution was made for man and not man for the constitution."

The rally closed a convention which expressed repeatedly its approval of the policies of President Hoover and its conference in the sincerity of those who have charge of the enforcement of the prohibition law for the federal government.

BIG TRANSPORT EXPLODES AS MOTORS FAIL

Fourteen Passengers and Two Pilots Killed in Disaster

LANDING ATTEMPTED

Witnesses See Engines of Doomed Craft Sputter Before Wreck

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif., Jan. 19. (US)—Sixteen persons were burned to death early tonight in a spectacular crash and explosion of a Maddux Airlines tri-motored plane returning to Los Angeles from Agua Caliente, Mexico.

The plane, attempting to make a forced landing, struck the ground with great speed and force, immediately burst into flames and killed all persons aboard.

Witnesses stated that the plane was heard flying between Oceanside and San Clemente when the motors began missing. The roar of the motors subsided, started up again and once more were heard to sputter and miss.

Pilot Seeks Landing

The pilot swerved inland, seeking a favorable spot for a forced landing. He flew toward a small cleared field, 10 miles south of here.

"Every person on the plane is dead!" was the tragic message flashed to San Clemente hospital.

Doctors and police sped to the scene of the crash. Upon their arrival the plane—a mass of twisted wreckage—was still burning.

"Several bodies had been thrown out of the plane," said Bob Hanson, son of 'Ole' Hanson, millionaire realtor. "One body was pinned beneath one of the motors and other bodies were visible in the burning cabin."

The plane, with a capacity load of well-known passengers, and with Pilot Basil Russell at the controls, left Agua Caliente for Los Angeles shortly before the fatal crash and explosion.

Light Rain Falling

One report stated that a second plane was following the Maddux passenger ship and when the explosion occurred it whirled around and sped southward toward San Diego.

A drizzling rain was falling at the time and the huge ship apparently became mired in the muddy field when its landing gear contacted the ground.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who was in San Diego during the day making glider flights, was one of the first persons to be informed of the plane tragedy.

The flying colonel indicated that he would hasten to the scene of the crash to compile a complete report of the crash for the Transconti-

STIMSON AND FRENCH CONFER

Tardieu and Briand Promise 'Something Sensational'

LONDON, Jan. 19. (AP)—Premier Andre Tardieu and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, the chiefs of the French delegation to the five-power naval conference which opens Tuesday, in interviews with newspaper men today pledged themselves "to give you something sensational later."

This statement followed a long interchange of views with Henry L. Stimson, United States secretary of state, at the French embassy. Premier Tardieu arrived in London this morning and Mr Stimson motored in from his country home to complete his round-robin of talks with the delegations to the conference by seeing the French leaders.

M. Tardieu described his conversation with the secretary of state and engendering a very happy atmosphere for the beginning of the five-power negotiations. He warned however that the conference tasks were only beginning and that too much should not be expected by the public.

M. Briand was in his characteristic jovial mood and he interjected the atmosphere as the hour of convening approaches is one of "confidence and cordiality."

The attitude of the Frenchmen was the more pleasing to the other delegations because it had been felt that France was a bit sensitive toward the close Anglo-American viewpoint on naval matters and also was somewhat perturbed by failure to reach a preliminary agreement with Italy over naval needs before the conference opens.

Oil Men Protest Cut in Prices

at which time the association hopes to receive replies from the purchasing companies addressed.

The resolution follows:

"We deplore the recent drastic price cut in crude oil inaugurated by some of the major purchasing companies, and feel that such a reduction in price is not for the best interest of the oil industry. This cut is a severe blow to this entire community, and we feel that it is unfortunate that you deem it necessary to take this action.

"We call attention to the fact that the production in this area is approximately the same now that it has been for the past 10 years.

Urge Restoration

"The operators attending this meeting have felt that proration in new and flush fields was going to take care of the situation, and stabilize the price of crude for the year 1930. Apparently this is not the case. We therefore urge you to restore the price of crude to its former place, and you can rest assured that we will cooperate in every way possible, in this district, to shut down the drilling of every well that it is not absolutely necessary to drill, until conditions become better.

"We further believe that this bespeaks the attitude of all of the independent oil operators in the Midcontinent field.

"We realize that crude oil is a very valuable, natural resource, and should be conserved in every way possible, for the welfare and happiness of this and other generations, and we see no reason why a constructive program of conservation cannot be put into operation in the Midcontinent field, so that this most valuable product can be conserved; and, we believe that this is possible, providing the major oil companies are as willing to cooperate in this movement as are the independents."

DEATHS

EDGAR DERRICK MORROW

Edgar Derrick Morrow, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Morrow, 1803 Buchanan street, died in a local hospital about 6.45 o'clock Sunday evening. The body was taken in charge by the Hines mortuary.

Funeral services will be held at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon from the chapel of the Hines company with Rev. E. F. McGaughey, pastor of the East Side Presbyterian church officiating. Interment will be in Rosemont.

The infant was two days old at the time of death. There are no other children in the family.

it in person before a joint session of the two houses either Monday or Tuesday, more likely on Tuesday.

Governor Moody announced that he would request the legislature to go in a body for an inspection of the prison properties at Huntsville and in South Texas, and it is likely both houses will act on this proposal tomorrow or next day. It was predicted that in the event the trip is made, the departure from Austin would be taken about Thursday so that the entire week-end could be devoted to the trip.

This will be the fourth special session of the 41st legislature, which convened for the regular biennial session on Jan. 8, 1929. The third called session was ended on last July 20. To date this legislature has been in session a total of 144 days.

A special session is limited by the constitution to 30 days, a regular session has no limitations, except for remuneration for members.

The legislature will have before it recommendations of three groups bearing on penitentiary centralization and reorganization.

Revamping of the fee system laws will be proposed in a report of the committee headed by Senator Pink L. Parrish of Lubbock, created by the legislature and authorized to make an investigation and recommendations.

The city attorney's association will meet here Wednesday to draw a public utilities bill, acting under a promise from the governor to representatives of the association Saturday that he would submit the subject.

The Texas-Oklahoma boundary line dispute will come to the fore at a conference set for Friday between Governors Moody of Texas and Holloway of Oklahoma. Oklahoma is endeavoring to persuade Texas to permit the approximately 28,500 acres placed in Texas and which was formerly considered Oklahoma territory remain a part of the Sooner state.

State Veterinarians Invited to Wichita

Dr. Fred Gross has returned from Waco where he attended the annual January meeting of the State Veterinary association in session during the past week.

Doctor Gross, in a small animal surgery clinic, demonstrated to the veterinarians at the meeting two of the most important operations necessary in small animal practice. They were tonsilectomy or removal of tonsils and the debarking operation or removal of the vocal cords in dogs. A cordial invitation to the association to hold its next January meeting in Wichita Falls was extended by Doctor Gross and the members present accepted the invitation for consideration at the summer meeting to be held in June at College Station.

Briscoe County Grain Seeds in Demand

Special to The Record News.

SILVERTON, Texas, Jan. 19.—Orders for grain sorghums, some for planting purposes and others for student work in school, have been received by vocational students in high school as far away as El Camp and Garza counties. J. C. Turner, high school boy, has received five cents a pound for milo which he grew last year as one of his projects. R. D. Wheelock, another student, produced four times as much milo maize to the acre as his father did under same conditions, except the son had a superior seedbed. Publicity from this accomplishment has brought several orders for specimens.

nental Air transport, of which the Maddux line is a component.

Lieut. Virgil Westwood, San Diego flyer who resides here, was one of the first persons to arrive at the scene. He, too, was compiling a complete report.

All who arrived at the scene soon after the crash stated that every passenger, with the pilot and mate, were dead when they reached the plane. That the bodies were badly burned and that several of them had been hurled from the wreckage by the terrific explosion that took place when the heavy metal air liner overturned in the mud, testified, they said, to the force of the crash and subsequent explosion.

The transport was a huge Ford trimotor, all metal plane, powered with three Wasp engines capable of creating 1275 horsepower in all. It was numebered "NC 9689," and was a 14-passenger plane with a compartment for two pilots. All seats were filled at the time of the wreck.

The plane was filled with week-end pleasure seekers. Returning from the race track and the gambling casinos at Agua Caliente and Tia Juana.

San Clemente is the picturesque little village built by Ole Hanson, former mayor of Seattle, Wash., and is limited to houses and buildings of Spanish architecture.

For motorists it is the half-way point between Los Angeles and San Diego and is situated on the ocean.

THREE KILLED IN CRASH OF PLANE

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 19. (US)—While hundreds of Palm Beach residents looked on, Bill Lindley, Daytona Beach seaplane pilot, and four passengers crashed into Lake Worth here at 4 o'clock this afternoon within sight of the fashionable Everglades and Embassy clubs.

Lindley and two unidentified mechanics were killed or drowned when their Ryan monoplane Miss Dayton dived from the height of 500 feet into the water.

Elvir Stossell, of West Palm Beach, escaped with a broken leg and Ed Butler, of Miami, was in Good Samaritan hospital with a crushed face, broken hip, and internal injuries. Dr. Berney Clay, who treated him, said he had little chance for life.

of our ideals for all the unrest which our democracy engenders.

Our youth will be something besides gunmen, panderers and law breakers when they are grounded in the best of traditions, surrounded by the right environment and allured and inspired by the opportunities, the tasks and duties which face us all.

Every week sees new candidates announcing for public office and the controversy over the status of the bolters becomes a little more uncertain. These are some of the reasons why you will want to be qualified to vote in the primaries and elections this year. There are only 10 more days in which to pay your poll tax so that you can vote. Every day between now and election time may present another reason why you will want to vote.

Everybody must join in the hope that the cold weather will abate this week; that there will be sunshine and warm weather so that closed houses can once more be opened and children play again in the open air without fear of colds and pneumonia. The present cold spell has, indeed, been severe. We wonder, though, whether unusual weather like we have had isn't useful in showing us just how blessed we are most of the time in winter with mild and pleasant days. Anyway, when they come again, we will appreciate them more.

Total bad debt losses resulting from 57,039 bankruptcies in 1929 amounted to $817,282,301, says a bulletin of the National Association of Credit Men. This figure compares with bad debt losses of $762,577,888 due to bankruptcies during the preceding year. Of the total, the loss to unsecured creditors was $610,804,811 in 1929. These creditors received only $5.53 of every $100 owed them. The encouraging fact shown by an analysis of the figures, says the bulletin, is that the cost of administering bankrupt estates declined slightly last year. Court costs, fees and other expenses of administration took 22.42 per cent of the assets realized, whereas, during the previous year expenses of administration took 23.76 per cent of the assets realized.

You have heard it said that the lawyers get most of assets realized in bankruptcies. But they do not. Last year attorneys got 7.89 per cent of the total amount realized from bankrupt estates. The previous year they received 8.49 per cent of the total. And it should be pointed out that these percentages are not in comparison with the total of the claims, as are the percentages referred to in the case of the unsecured creditors.

GAS EXPLOSION KILLS TWO MEN

Laundry Owners Die When Boiler Explodes

DALLAS, Jan. 19. (UP)—Two men were killed and another was hurt here today when a gas boiler in the Blue Ribbon laundry exploded, completely wrecking one building and damaging another.

J. B. Gilliland and R. C. Gilliland, brothers, are the dead. Both were badly mangled by the blast which hurled pieces of machinery 100 yards.

The explosion occurred next door to a fire substation, and 13 firemen, shaken by the blast, ran into the laundry to carry out the dead and injured.

Windows in business establishments and homes for several blocks around were smashed by the concussion and flying debris. Pieces of sheet iron landed on housetops a block away.

The Gilliland brothers were owners of the plant.

The boiler house was in a galvanized iron shed in the rear, and the men were in it at the time of the blast. The main building suffered only nominal damage.

The explosion was laid to frozen pipes by Fire Chief Jesse Coffman.

EIGHT MINERS DIE IN GAS EXPLOSION

BECKLEY, W. Va., Jan. 19. (AP)—Eight miners were killed and four others injured, one probably fatally in an explosion early today in the No. 1 mine of the Lilly Brook Coal company at Lilly Brook, 10 miles from Beckley.

The bodies of the victims, six negroes and two white men, were recovered by rescue crews four hours after the blast, described as local in character. All apparently had been killed instantly.

The miner most seriously injured was found lying beside the dead men, unconscious from burns about his body. The other three injured men walked unaided from the mine before rescue crews reached the entry in which the explosion occurred, a mile back in the hills.

Tenth Street Home Damaged by Flames

Flames thought to have originated from defective wiring caused damage estimated at $700 to the house occupied by Miss Laura Hines at 1715 Tenth street about 11 o'clock Sunday morning. A large part of the damage was due to water which ruined furniture and interior fixtures while firemen were fighting the flames in the roof. The blaze began in the upper portion of the house and was confined to a comparatively small section by the firemen.

The house belongs to C. E. McCutchen and was occupied by him and his family until some time ago when they moved into the Country Club Estates. At the time of the fire, Miss Hines was occupying only a small part of the house, the remainder having been vacant.

TAXI PILOT TO PUBLISH BOOK

'Steering Wheel Spinoza' Goes in for Philosophy

By H. ALLEN SMITH

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (UP)—There are more taxicab drivers in the city of New York than there are men, women and buttonhooks in Wichita Falls, Texas, and David Betts, a wry-faced little man of 47 eventful years, is the most intriguing of the lot.

Betts is known as the taxi philosopher. He something of a hubcap Hippocrates, a steering-wheel Spinoza, or a Plato of the nickleplate. He's the rare kind of a person who would have inspired the late O. Henry to execute a charwoman's interpretation of a buck-and-wing.

He has been cruising the streets of Bagdad-on-the-subway for quite a number of years, satisfied to nick an occasional fender, take home a drunk, thumb his nose at an occasional bluecoat and share with his 70,000 fellow cabdrivers the joy and sorrows of life on four wheels. But unlike his compatriots, David Betts is a philosopher, "a guy wot thinks with his head once in a while," as he might put it.

His philosophy, in fact has attracted such widespread attention that it is being put into book form. David Betts the cabbie will soon be David Betts the philosopher, or the author.

The ruminations of Betts first attracted public notice when the chauffer started writing letters to the daily press. The letters landed regularly and before long the newspaper editors dubbed their author "the taxi philosopher."

One of the subeditors of a publishing house became interested and after considerable search and then considerable negotiation, convinced Betts that he should write a book. The volume is to be published shortly.

Betts, in his writings, out-Lardners Lardner with no attempt at imitation. He sticks to his own way of expressing an idea and spells his words to suit himself.

The dashboard Descartes is quite proud of the fact that he was born in February. "Greatest of men born in Febby, they say," he writes. "There's me and the Lone Eagle to start with, just one day different. We got the same long necks, faces and smiles. He's bashful and I usta be. Same kind of a head and we both got holes in our chins. Women like that, they tell me."

Betts was born in England and before meeting his destiny as taxi philosopher in New York, saw service as a cowboy in Colorado and was a hobo all over the country.

Silverton Hatchery Opens for Business

Special to The Record News.

SILVERTON, Texas, Jan. 19.—The Briscoe County Hatchery opened for business here last week under the management of J. H. Lee, formerly of Memphis. A brick building on the square has been secured and two incubators with 12,000-egg capacity each has been installed. C. Murphy of Hereford will superintend the operation of the plant.

Most of the owners of the largest standard bred flocks of the county have contracts with the hatchery for baby chicks, and the poultry industry for Briscoe county will be greatly augmented this year through this cooperative effort. The hatchery has opened several weeks earlier than usual this season.

Doran Deplores Officers' Deaths

Ga., under whose direction the agents were working.

Doran said he believed the body of Moncure would be brought to Washington for burial as his home was here before he went to Florida.

Lauds Slain Man

"I brought Moncure into the prohibition service several years ago," Doran said. "He was a fine, clean chap and an efficient, honest officer. He was a member of the Moncure family of Virginia, with whom I have been on intimate terms since I came to Washington 20 years ago."

After talking with Tuttle over the telephone late this afternoon, Doran said the search of Moore's home yesterday, was decided upon after 12 quarts of whisky had been purchased there by a single buyer. Less than two hours later the prohibition agents, he continued, obtained the search warrant based upon that purchase and returned to the home where two of them met death.

TUTTLE ARRIVES AT WEST PALM BEACH

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 19. (AP)—Federal prohibition officials today pressed forward their investigation in the slaying of two dry agents last night during an attempt to search the residence of George W. Moore, alleged bootlegger.

Robert E. Tuttle, of Savannah, prohibition administrator for the ninth district, arrived at noon to take personal charge of the inquiry. Tuttle declared that the slain agents, Robert K. Moncure and F. R. Patterson, had been killed while engaged in the legal performance of their duties. He said he would turn over the evidence to the state courts and ask that Moore be prosecuted for murder.

Meanwhile, Moore, who was arrested at his home shortly after the shootings, maintained silence in his cell at the county jail. No formal charges have been placed against him, pending further inquiry, but federal officials charge he shot the agents when they tried to raid the residence with search warrants issued by United States commissioner Earnst.

Four men were in the raiding party, but two escaped unharmed and summoned aid. Officers said no one was in the house at the time except Moore, his wife and small daughter.

Police Chief Matthews, the first officer to arrive on the scene was held at bay for 20 minutes with a shotgun in the hands of Moore, but persuaded the man to submit to arrest.

Officers said the Moore home had been watched all day yesterday by customs men and asserted they had evidence that a truckload of liquor had been taken into the residence the night before. Moore had lived here several years and police said he had a reputation as a bootlegger.

Accompanying Tuttle here for the investigation was W. T. Day, deputy administrator for the Southern Florida prohibition district with headquarters in Jacksonville. Clarence H. Parks, local enforcement chief, reached the city from Jacksonville where he was doing grand jury work yesterday.

BRADY READY TO FACE TRIAL

Former Jurist in Good Physical Shape

led the J. Frank Norris murder defense several years ago, went into the jail, which looks like a feudal castle, to see Brady this afternoon.

The state, represented by District Attorney Henry Brooks, a young man in his twenties, County Attorney Roy Archer and Assistant County Attorney Hardy Hollers, had called only 11 witnesses. Chief among them was Frank Graham Jr., university student, who arrived at Miss Highsmith's residence at about the time she was stabbed. Others were Mr. and Mrs. A. G. B. Highsmith of Houston, the girl's parents; W. R. Baker, Baytown; John Simmons, Wichita Falls and Mrs. Bessie Richardson, Austin.

State Has Secret

There was more than the customary mystery in the air about the murder trial. District Attorney Brooks had surprised everybody by dismissing special prosecution that had been retained and announcing that to give his reason would be to reveal the nature of his case. The defense was equally as non-committal. The fact that two physicians who perhaps could qualify as alienists had been called led to speculation that insanity might be pleaded, but there was nothing from the Brady camp to support this theory.

Brady's long public career here and the peculiar circumstances of the killing had whetted interest keenly and 150 additional seats were put in the old courtroom where he frequently had argued as a private attorney and later as an attorney for the state banking department.

ENDED HEAD COLD CAUSED BY TRYING TO START CAR

Doctor Showed Quickest Way to End Cold and Help Avoid Risk of Pneumonia

Acting on the advice of his doctor, Charles V. Hutchins, like so many Wichita Falls people, has found the quickest, safest and most pleasant way to end a cold instead of enduring needless misery.

When Mr. Hutchins went to start his car several nights ago the starter got stuck. Working for more than an hour to get it started, he became so overheated that his clothes were wet with perspiration. Instead of cooling off gradually, he jumped into the open car, hurried through the chilly air to his appointment and developed a severe, feverish cold.

The following evening he called his doctor who advised Ayer's Pectoral. Taking a tempting half-spoonful every 15 minutes, as directed, he was able to sleep without coughing. He continued the treatment and in a day or so, the doctor reports, his cold had disappeared entirely.

Note: See other cases being reported daily in this paper—all certified by the attending physician.

Ayer's Pectoral was hospital certified as the best medicine of different widely used methods tested for head colds, coughs and chest colds because it gave the quickest, surest relief—with absolute safety. It is now featured by all leading druggists.

Miss Bash Honoree At Pretty Farewell Party

One of the prettiest sub-deb parties of the season was the Valentine bridge given Saturday afternoon by Miss Charlotte Joiner at her home on Victory avenue honoring Miss Marjorie Bash, who leaves Monday to make her home in Des Moines, Iowa.

Baskets of flowers furnished the floral decorations and the place cards and nut cups emphasized a dainty Valentine motif.

In the games, Miss Mary Louise Ruff won high and received a lovely dance handkerchief; the cut was won by Miss Kathleen Cason who was presented with a French vanity and the honoree received a beautiful piece of costume jewelry.

A delicious refreshment plate was served. Bridge and tea guests were Misses Lida Lea, Jane Adams, Una Gose, Margaret Bone, Mary C. Boone, Dorothy Cline, Mar' Sue Shanklin, Maxine Pendleton, Marie Maule, Kathleen Cason, Mildred Johnson, Geneva Taylor, Bertha Mae Kruger, Sadie Shain, Mathilde Donnell, Catherine Minter, Dorothy Lee Taylor, Elizabeth Hines, Margaret Spangle, Roberta Wolford, Merrill Strong, Mary Louise Ruff, Mary Clare Burton, Ruth Keevil, Emmaline Lewis, Frances Tyson, Margaret Biedenharn, Mrs. J. V. C. T. Christensen, Miss Juanita Kinsey and the honoree and hostess with her mother, Mrs. R. Lee Joiner.

Open house was held during the evening for the friends of the young people. About 25 guests called informally.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

In a Saturday afternoon headline we read another of the reasons why editors leave home: "Many Autos Stalled on Snow-Banked Highways Since 1899."

We would say a word in praise of the Izaak Walton league of Oklahoma that went up in the air to drop 1,600 pounds of oats and chops for the wild birds.

We fed our sparrows, the only birds in sight; then when the second blizzard came, mourned because there were no birds to be seen.

We heard that in 1886 all the birds froze; but in Sunday's sunshine these came forth from some shelter.

In the shrubbery and from the eaves round our breakfast room and little sheltered terrace, the ice hung in solid sheets. We have wondered where their shelter was.

Last week in one day three women talked to us about our column. One said "I certainly do enjoy your column. The one you had this morning was splendid." The next, happening to see us, said "I wanted to know you because I always read your column; of course it isn't always as good as the outstanding ones, but no one could be their best all the time;" and the third said flatly, "Your column wasn't so good this morning."

We won't tell you what one person who didn't approve of what we said in our column once, wrote us anonymously. We don't think it would be ladylike.

But, dear reader, we will assure you we believe what we say and the reader is free to reject it at will.

And we would like to express the feeling we had last Friday night after the worst day in recorded history of the city. We heard call after call for papers that had failed to be delivered at the farthest points in the city. We would have needed news badly to have caused a boy to make a special trip on a night like that. It's just as you think about it.

And an interesting item that has met our eyes is the news that the blind may read the Bible in Braille in room 223, Perkins-Snider building.

It's rather against the rules to talk about ads, but the White Elephant sale advertised in Sunday's paper is about the cleverest thing we've seen in a long time.

To advertise things that are "dying of old age," that the "buyer must have been drunk when he bought" and that have been "pawed over," makes going shopping for such things as exciting as going to a party.

Originality—as much as variety —is the spice of life.

50 Attend Floral Heights League

More than 50 members and visitors attended the meeting Sunday of the Epworth young people of Floral Heights Methodist church.

Hal Roper was in charge of the program which opened with a song service, followed by the Bible lesson. Tom C. Scott led in sentence prayers which were closed by Mrs. George Truitt.

Leon Deaton talked on the settlement work for Mexicans, describing the type of mission work done by the Mexican mission at Dallas, the Homer Toberman mission and clinic at Los Angeles, the Wesley community house at San Antonio, the Wesley house at Houston and the Wesley house at El Paso.

A story, "Augusta Finds a Friend" was given by Lenora Walker, showing the help which the port missionary at Galveston gives to immigrants coming to the United States.

During the business meeting, Mrs. George Truitt explained the standard of excellence the society has attained each year.

Announcement was made that the program on Sunday, Jan. 26, would be the first in the home mission study book, "Pioneers of Goodwill."

Miss Thelma Jane Meyer, Durwood Park, Ben Marcus and J. W. Collins were visitors.

The meeting was dismissed with the benediction after a song by the group.

Homely Girls Are Just as Likely To Snag a Husband

The Homely Girl May Not Have as Easy a Time Of It as the Raving Beauty, But She Is Just As Likely to Find a Good Husband, and Even More Likely to Keep Him, Thinks Dorothy Dix.

"Do men ever fall in love with homely girls?" a young woman pathetically asks. Of course they do, daughter. Look about you at any assemblage of married women. Precious few of them would ever have qualified for the Follies even when they were young and lithsome, yet some man has loved each and every one of these ladies well enough to assume her board bill and shopping ticket for life. There is no denying that good looks are a girl's greatest asset and that lucky is the maiden who has been endowed by nature with a peaches-and-cream complexion, hair with a permanent wave in it and the come-hither look in her soulful eyes. Her shop window has a display of fancy goods in it that catches every masculine glance, but while every man stops to look and for to admire, not every man desires to possess himself of these charms. He looks at a pretty woman as he does at a diamond sunburst or a string of matched pearls. Fine and lovely. But not for him.

It is a curious fact, but it is a fact, that the men who rave the loudest about their worship of beauty in women and who are keenest in the pursuit of women who are human peacocks almost invariably pick out some plain little wren for a wife who hasn't a single gaudy feather with which to bless herself.

Also, it is a notorious fact that beauties seldom make the best matches, and whether this is because men are not really as artistic as they believe themselves to be or whether they think it will take too much money to furnish a suitable frame for their living pictures or whether their vanity shrinks from marrying those to whom they will present an invidious contrast, nobody knows.

However this may be, this is balm to the soul of the homely girl, and shows that she need not mourn as one without hope. But she must not trust too much to chance, and she must early realize that if her fairy godmother failed to put woman's traditional weapon in her hands, it behooves her to get busy keeping bright and sharp such tools as she has.

In other words, if a girl lacks good looks she has to supply the deficiency by doubling up on other attractions. There is intelligence to begin with. Only the beautiful can afford to be dumb. A homely girl who is stupid is sunk. A girl with large, violet eyes that look like violets washed in dew can ask fool questions and get away with it. Or she can sit up by the hour and say nothing because she has nothing on earth to say and men will be content to just look at her.

Not so with the ugly woman. No man will stand for being bored by a girl with a lumpy figure and a face that is just a scrambled assemblage of features. She has to have brains and be able to entertain and amuse him if she expects him to take her out or seek her society, but if she can do this he forgets whether her nose is pug or Grecian and whether her mouth is a cupid's bow or like the slit in a letter-box.

Also, realizing that she will never be sought out as an ornament to any party, it is up to the homely girl to assemble a bag of tricks that will insure her a welcome wherever she goes. We all have to pay our way in society. The beauty pays hers by adding to the picture. The ugly girl must pay hers by not only making herself agreeable and interesting, but by being an expert in all sorts of games and sports and parlor accomplishments.

The girl who can sing, who can bang out ragtime or play an accompaniment, who can always think of new and diverting things to do, who is the life of a party and makes everything go, is never left out, no matter if she is as ugly as a mud fence. The girl who is a marvelous dancer never lacks for partners, even if she has red hair and a freckled face and no profile to speak of. Nobody cares a hang whether the girl who plays an expert game of bridge is a bathing beauty or not, nor are they concerned with the looks of the girl who is the local golf champion.

But no man would cut in on the Venus de Milo if she danced like a ton of hay, nor would he forgive Dolores Costello for trumping his ace, nor would he spoil a good golf game with Venus herself if she played as if she was hoeing potatoes.

The homely girl has also another trick up her sleeve and one that wins out with men oftener than anything else. It is humility. It is inevitable that a beauty should be spoiled and selfish and self-centered. From her cradle up she is petted, admired, flattered, given the best of everything as her divine right, and this causes her to treat men when she is grown as mere slaves who are honored in being permitted to take her around and spend their money on giving her good times.

The homely girl, on the contrary, is grateful for small favors. She doesn't expect anything from men, and when they are nice to her she overflows with gratitude and appreciation. Moreover, not having to spend any time admiring herself, she has leisure to perceive their virtues and achievements and give them the glad hand.

If you look among a man's women friends, the women to whom they go with their troubles and their joys, the women to whom they go for sympathy and comfort and counsel, you will find they are nearly always homely women.

For it is the ugly women who are not always thinking about themselves and their looks and what admiration they are exciting who are the good listeners and who enter into a man's plans and hopes and joys, and that is why so many homely women are popular. For it doesn't take long for a man to get tired of flattering a pretty woman, but he never gets weary of being flattered by a homely one.

So don't get discouraged, daughter, and think that no man will love you because you are homely. Brains win a man just as often as beauty does. And they hold him after he is caught, which beauty does not always do.

Conventions Sought By Frederick Chamber

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 19.—At a meeting of the directors of the Frederick Chamber of Commerce Thursday night invitation was extended to the Southwest Oklahoma Teachers' association, Group No. 1 Bankers' association, City Service company, Oakland dealers and Southwest Lumbermen to hold their next convention in Frederick.

Five or six hundred individuals attend each of the first two conventions and heretofore Frederick was unable to offer adequate hotel facilities. With the completion of the Hotel Frederick which with the other hotels, rooming houses and private homes which will be thrown open for the entertainment of guests it is believed by the directors that no other town in this part of the state can better handle a large convention.

Kiwanis to Observe 15th Anniversary

Celebration of the 15th anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis International will feature the program to be given before the weekly meeting of the local Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday at noon, in charge of Rev. William D. Bratton, chairman of the education committee.

The first meeting of the organization was held in Detroit, Mich., on Jan. 21, 1915. Its roll now consists of 1,840 clubs, comprising a membership of more than 102,000 persons, residents of the United States and Canada.

Reports of the district trustees' meeting held at Dallas last Monday will be given by P. M. Cordell, who represents the local club in that body.

New Hotel at Altus Plans Formal Opening

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Jan. 19.—Date for the formal opening of the new Abbott hotel will be between Feb. 1 and 10 with definite information to be announced later.

Elaborate plans to make the opening of the four-story, strictly modern structure one of the gayest of midwinter social events for Altus have been started.

Exterior construction work is completed and workmen are now employed in finishing details of the interior.

Coffee shop fixtures will be installed in a few days. Fixtures for the barber shop and drug store are ready for installation in the new hotel.

All lighting equipment and plumbing fixtures have been installed.

'GHOST PLANE' BIG MYSTERY

Strange 'Aircraft' Seen In Colorado Mountains

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Jan. 19. (US)—Is it a phantom or an airplane of new design?

This question was being debated here today by a score of persons who within the last three months observed a strange device floating along the mountain sides. It was first observed on Sept. 22, by Frank Sylvester, a pilot testing out a plane at 7,000 feet. The mystery ship hovered 2,000 feet above him, then disappeared over the mountain. A short time later Sylvester crashed to his death.

The strange plane made no noise and observers declare that they have seen its wings flapping, like the wings of a bird.

Since then the plane has been observed at rare intervals but the most detailed description was given today by Clarence Hornaday, president of the Alexander industries. After patient waiting he succeeded in picking up the apparition with his binoculars.

"It had about a 20-foot wing spread," he stated. "The wings were similar to those of a bat and quite short in length, unlike any airplane I have ever seen.

"It soared long distances without wing movement at an altitude of about 2,000 feet. A glider could never have gained that altitude. As it neared the mountains it dipped toward the earth with a flying motion. The usual roar of a motor was not heard."

Airplane, bird or devil, the observers agree that their vision was not playing them a trick. They saw it but from whence it came or where it went is a mystery of the mountains. Observations are being continued and air pilots hope to give chase should it appear again.

JACKSON LEADS IN TERRACING

Farm Improvement Work Spreads Over County

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Jan. 19.—Jackson county is leading the state of Oklahoma in the number of farms that are employing terracing principles in farming, was the belief expressed by Dan Diehl, district agricultural agent from the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college at Stillwater, when he visited in Altus this week and spoke before farmers and business men.

That terracing in the county has been doubled many times since its first introduction 12 years ago is seen in figures of the recent report which was sent into the state department from the office of the county farm agent.

The annual report which has been completed by W. B. Forrester, county agricultural agent, shows that 25 adults in the county are partly trained in terracing work. There are 15 juniors who are partly trained and four adults completely trained in the work. Five juniors are completely trained in running lines for the terracing.

There are 42 farm levels in Jackson county.

An even more extensive program of terracing is anticipated for 1930.

Crops on the terraced land are producing from two to three times the amount produced by the same land previous to the terracing.

Small Increase In Sunday Attendance

Twenty-nine Sunday schools of the city registered a gain of 227 on Jan. 19 over the total attendance reported by 30 schools on Jan. 12, according to reports given the Record News Sunday afternoon.

The narrow margin of gain obtained in the attendance at individual schools may be seen in the fact that 21 of the reporting participated in the total net gain for the day.

Due to unusually severe weather, the first three Sundays of the year have shown a total gross attendance of 16,189 at 30 Sunday schools. Normal attendance in the same period would total more than 24,000.

Apartment and Hotel Dwellers Find What Chickens Are Before Cooking

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (UP)—The New Yorker's yearly freudian escape from his suppressed desire to get back to the farm is in progress at Madison Square garden in the form of 10,000 chickens, geese, ducks, pigeons and rabbits of the 41st annual poultry show.

Under the pretense of being amused by the fine points of breeding and egg-laying, thousands of the apartment dwellers of Manhattan are paying good money nightly just to see a few plain and fancy chickens before they have been immersed in savita sauce.

Even the chicken raising industry, however, has attained a highly specialized state confusing to a bond broker who still harbors memories of gathering eggs in the crown of a straw hat.

Systematic Hens

The prize hens, product of scientific selection and breeding, reared on ultra-violet rays and cod liver oil, have a certain air about them which makes it distinctly surprising when they condescend to lay an egg. The champion Austrolorp hen, which hails from Neenah, Wis., for instance, operates on a cost-accounting system which proves conclusively that her production for the fiscal year of 1929 was 346 eggs. But to look at that hen among all her blue ribbons you would no more expect an egg from her than you would a granddaughter from a Follies girl.

A little more in character are a group of hens owned by Henry Silverthorne, of Riverside, L. I. These hens are very dainty in appearance and they do not disappoint you with their eggs. The eggs have a baby blue tinted shell. Each one seems to be the product of considerable artistic endeavor on the part of the little prize hens. They are thoroughly satisfactory, even though when fried "looking up" they are indistinguishable from any other eggs.

The "No" Girls

Mottled Houdons, which are hens that have learned to say "no," occupy a popular section. They are buff with flecks of white and they shake their heads constantly. The expert observers of mottled Houdons assert, however, that the hens really mean nothing in their constant negatives, it being merely a way they have of keeping their French bangs, which are stylishly long, out of their eyes.

A black variety of mottled Houdons have five toes, the customary number for chickens being four, three in front to walk on and one behind to lean against. The extra toe on the black mottled Houdons is located in the rear and serves no purpose except for head-scratching, according to poultry scientists.

BARTLETT CASE OPENS TODAY

Former U. S. Officer to Face Court on Charge

Both sides are expected to announce ready Monday morning when the case of John J. Bartlett, former deputy United States marshal charged with criminal assault, is called for trial in the 30th district court. Bartlett was indicted several months ago after complaints brought by the parents of a 7-year-old girl. The defendant is 62 years old. He was suspended from the marshal's office shortly after the complaints were filed. The assault alleged in the indictment was described as taking place in the marshal's office in the basement of the courthouse here.

Sam B. Spence, district attorney, said Sunday afternoon that the trial would probably be completed by noon Tuesday. Bartlett will be represented by Harry Bunnenberg and Walter Nelson Jr., attorneys.

Wrong Time of Month

To some women the calendar is a tyrant, with certain days set aside for pain. Such martyrdom is needless! Midol—acting directly on the organs affected—disposes of every bit of pain at such a time.

Midol is not a narcotic. It does nothing to interfere with the natural and necessary menstrual process, but it eases the organs in five to seven minutes in even the most severe cases. Furthermore, the woman who takes a tiny tablet of Midol in time will experience no suffering at all.

For your own sake, investigate Midol and see how reliable and complete is its relief—no matter how hard a time you've always had. At every drug store in trim aluminum case for 50 cents.—Adv.

Architect's Nightmare

THERE is something very frightening about the pictures of the city of the future which our architects are painting for us these days. The skyscraper seems to have gone to the architect's heads. Magnificent to look upon, they seem to be making it into a be-all and end-all of existence—and if their current guesses are right our children are going to be living in a dizzy sort of world a few decades hence.

New York realtors, in blind enthusiasm, are pushing up new buildings that tower over anything yet seen; and the architects are telling us that the buildings of the future will make even these seem small and insignificant.

We shall have buildings of 150 stories, they tell us, each of which will house some 20,000 people. The upper 40 or 50 floors will contain apartments—"homes," the boosters dare to call them. Under these, for a dozen or more floors, will be schools, colleges, recreation halls, movie theaters, indoor golf links, restaurants, churches, swimming pools and other modern conveniences. Then will come stores, for a dozen floors or more; and below these, all the way to the ground, offices.

Thus it will be possible for an American 50 years hence to pass his entire life in one building. He could be born, go through childhood, get his schooling, indulge in all kinds of recreation and perform all of his work without ever stepping outside of the super-skyscraper in which he came into existence. And if you have ever heard of anything more horrible than this, now is the time to speak up.

A city filled with skyscrapers of that kind would be a breath-taking spectacle, to be sure. But what sane man would want to live in it? And what man, living in it, could stay sane very long?

The skyscraper represents a triumph of science. The mere fact that we are able to erect such buildings speaks volumes for our technical skill. Putting up the Hanging Gardens of Babylon was an infant's job compared to putting up the Woolworth building.

But there is one thing more important than knowing how to build skyscrapers—and that is knowing when to build them. It is very doubtful that all of our great towers have increased human happiness in the least. Consider the unspeakable crowding of New York's subways, Chicago's elevateds or any large city's surface cars during the rush hour, reflect that this crowding is born of the skyscraper, and ask yourself how many 150-story buildings you want in your city.

Our one hope is the probability that these architects are mistaken. The modern city needs, not to be concentrated still further, but to be spread out. We need better rapid transit facilities, not taller buildings.

Our Political Groupings

THE editor of Collier's Magazine sat down the other day to find out how many political parties we really have in the United States today. He made out a list something like this:

Progressive Republicans, Grundy Republicans, the Larger-Minded Republicans, the Hoover Republicans, the Southern Democrats, the Al Smith Democrats, the Western Progressive Democrats, the Democratic-Progressive-Republican Coalition Party—

And then he quit in despair.

Probably you can think of three or four more classifications; and the matter is complicated by the fact that some people belong to two or three of these groupings at once.

The whole situation emphasizes anew our need for a new political alignment. If the present chaotic situation in the senate helps to bring such a thing about we shall all be better off.

Closing a Speakeasy

HERE'S a sidelight on prohibition that probably doesn't prove anything to speak of, either way, but that is rather interesting nevertheless.

Cleveland recently had a big garment-workers' strike. Some 5,000 men and women were called out, and extra details of police were on duty patrolling the streets where the factories were located.

It happened that there was a certain speakeasy near one of the big factories. And after two days of the strike the proprietor of this speakeasy closed up. There were too many police around.

But don't rush to conclusions. He wasn't afraid of being pinched. You see, these extra details of police got to dropping in on him and drinking his liquor—the weather was very raw—and of course he didn't dare charge them anything for what they drank. So his profits vanished and he closed, to reopen when the strike should be settled.

As we say, that probably doesn't mean a thing. But isn't it interesting?

Dr. Sullivan as a Prophet

DR. MARK SULLIVAN, publicity agent for the Hoover administration, on the occasion of the departure of the American delegates for the London conference, told it to the readers of his newspapers "the central fact is that everyone of them expects success."

Does this success include the surrender of control of the seven seas by delegates of Great Britain?

If not, then the early Americans fought three bloody and costly wars in vain.

Quotations Worth Noting

"Modernity can't even talk leisurely without a stimulant. The little real conversation we have is simply anachronistic."—Rachel Crothers.

This Town of Ours

An attorney in the MGM legal department is handling Ina Claire's abrogation from John Gilbert. . . . Edna St. Vincent Millay, the love poem writer, just bought a new set of store teeth. . . . Eastman Kodak is in back of William Fox, who hasn't signed those trusteeship papers yet. . . . Rudy Vallee is described as the "It" boy. . . . "It" means neither masculine nor feminine. . . . The James Hazen Hydes are having it Reno-vated in the Deadly Feud Malone manner. . . . Barbara Newberry, one of Mr. Ziegfeld's better-lookers, is that-waying it with a Brave from the Stotesbury tribe. . . . The Carl Forsman-Bee Jackson romance has curdled already. . . . Joe Whitehead and Laura Schofield will center-aisle it soon. . . . It's a girl at the Fred Lawrence's. . . . There are so many speakeasies on West 54th Strasse that the owner of No. 39 has posted a sign out front reading: "Private House."

James A. Stillman is building a manse in the Almandares sector of Havana, where his squaw won't tepee. . . . Elsa Lazarus, who plays the consumptive in the play "At the Bottom," is the frau of the guy who coughed up the coin. . . . Stewart Baird, who once yodel'd in the Shubert musicals, has slipped into the Sussill Register and certain eyebrows are Away Up to Here. . . . Incidentally, John C. Wilson, sec'y-mgr for Noel Crawford, can point to a line in that tome. . . . Richard Rodgers will Lohengrin it the first wk in March. . . . Betty Compton will not return to the "Frenchmen" show. . . . The Paul Gallicos (Alva Taylor), of the Daily News, anticipate a blessed event. . . . His full name is William Crapo Durant. . . . It is all set for Gilbert Miller to be Sir Gil when he returns to London in the Spring.

Herman Mankiewicz, who didn't even have an accent before the Horrorwood invasion, is in town, honey. . . . One of the better known drama defender's magazine reviews will stop with the March issue. . . . Wm. A. Barber, principal director of Childs', will dine 100 execs at the Savoy-Plaza branch Wensdee, and will make his first statement since the new management won control. . . . Doubleday-Doran will put Russ Crouse's Nieu Yaukur pieces between covers. . . . The George Warrens (Blanche Harte) have phfft! . . . It's a lad over at the Maurice (Norma Mason) Malletts'. . . . S. N. Behrman and George Gershwin are plotting a musical romance. . . . Britain has changed Vina Delmar's "Loose Ladies" to "Ladies of Fortune" . . . Economy waves are sweeping Park Row. . . . Lindy's press agent, Harry Bruno, and Nydia D'Arnell will positively be welded in Manhattan this week.

Instead of ejaculating "I thought I'd die!" the locals now put it: "It left me in sections!" . . . Walter Huston, who will play Abe Lincoln for D. W. Griffith, is a Canuck. . . . The Avon Theater, where B. Pemberton's "Strictly Dishonorable" is a smash, has eliminated its $1.50 seats and tilted the others. . . . The producer being one of the leaders in the movement to "save the public from the brokers' high prices." . . . Incidentally several managers are waiting until the middle of Feb'y to renew their long distance "buys." . . . That ultra night place, the Candle-Light Room at 10 E. 60th, folded up after the first week. . . . The Lester Ladens (Edith Babson) are telling it to a judge after a year. . . . "LOVEJOY" : By : Beatrice Burton

What Has Happened Before

Tom Nicholson and his young and beautiful wife are happy with their baby and tiny bungalow until their wealthy neighbors, the Aldersons, come into their lives. Mrs. Alderson, whose husband is elderly has an affair with a man named "Jack." Tom's suspicions are unjustly directed to Lovejoy when Jack telephones and hangs up abruptly. Lovejoy speaks to Mrs. Alderson about it. When Lovejoy takes Tom to a card party at the Aldersons, Norrie Shane comes to look after the baby. Lovejoy is amused to discover Norrie's fondness for Tom.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XIV

It sounded to Lovejoy as if the Alderson's big house was filled with people when she and Tom stepped into it that night.

From behind the thick velvet curtains that hung in the doorway of the living room there came a babble of loud voices and the silvery clink of ice in glasses.

"We're not having a real party—there are only eight of us," Aline told her coming out in the hall with a cigaret in one hand and a high-ball glass in the other.

"You go on in, Tom, and tell Al to give you a good stiff glass of 'likker'—we're three drinks ahead of you!" And she gave Tom a shove towards the living-room. "I'll take the little woman upstairs to powder her nose. It needs it. Go ahead, Shiny!"

She followed Lovejoy up the wide steps that led to the second floor.

"You're white as a sheet tonight, aren't you?" she asked when Lovejoy had slipped out of her coat and was beginning to powder her nose.

"I'm tired," Lovejoy answered, "I've been up since 6 this morning, and I've cleaned the house from the front door to the back porch today!—I'm fairly walking on rubber legs. May I borrow some of your rouge? I left mine at home."

Aline pulled out the top drawer of her dressing table.

"Help yourself!" she said generously, "There's five kinds of rouge there and about 15 lip sticks. Put on plenty—you need it!—I stayed in bed today until noon so that I'd be wide awake tonight! We never go to bed before dawn on Saturday nights."

Lovejoy nodded, her face close to the toilet mirror, as she outlined her lips with bright scarlet paint.

"I know," she said. "I've seen your house lighted up lots of times and wished I was over here . . . Tom and I just sit at home night after night. He seems to like it," she sighed.

"Don't you ever think he likes it!" Aline exclaimed, her eyes meeting Lovejoy's in the mirror. "Men are all alike! They try to whitewash themselves to their wives and pretend they like the quiet life—but they don't really! What they honestly want is a hot time and the bright lights. And don't you forget it!"

She snubbed out her cigaret in a blue glass powder bowl on the dressing table.

"And if they haven't a Bright Light at home, they're going out somewhere else to look for one," she went on, laughing a little. "I'm quite a Bright Light, myself, I am!"

She certainly was. She shone and twinkled and radiated pep from the fluff of spun-silk hair on her head to the rhinestone buckles on her feet.

"Put on some more lip-stick!" she said, "I want you to look nice tonight. There's an old friend of yours, downstairs."

"Friend of mine?" asked Lovejoy. She swung around from the mirror, her eyes wide with curiosity . . . . What friend could they have in common, she and this spoiled rich woman?

Aline laughed.

"Stephen Oglebay," she said, "He's an old friend of my husband. The other night he was here for dinner and he asked us if we knew you. He said you lived back here in Stallings Lane—He's an old sweetheart of yours, isn't he?"

Lovejoy nodded. How on earth, she asked herself, had Steve Oglebay found out that she and Tom had moved to Stallings Lane?

He must be keeping track of me, she thought.

The thought made her heart beat a bit faster, somehow . . . Not that she cared a snap of her fingers for Steve any more, but it was oddly exciting to know that he still thought about her and knew where she lived.

"I met Steve ages ago," she said, turning away from the glass. "He was buying a watch one day in the jewelry store where my Uncle James works, and we saw a lot of each other after that until I got married. He's awfully nice, isn't he?"

"He plays a slick game of poker," answered Aline. "You'd better watch your step tonight, Lovejoy. These people downstairs are sharks at poker—especially Larry and Jane Goodsell. They say that they paid for all the Oriental rugs in their house with their poker winnings!"

She took a small gold-mesh bag from the drawer and stuffed it with bills and silver that she shook out of a leather shopping bag.

"I always lose my shirt," she said cheerfully.

Lovejoy's heart sank. She couldn't afford to lose a dollar tonight or any other night.

"I didn't bring a penny with me," she murmured, following Aline down the stairs.

"Oh, Tom will write you a check if you lose," the other woman called back over her bare shoulder, "and beginners always have grand luck, anyway."

The big living room was filled with a gray-blue haze of cigaret smoke. Around the wood fire in the grate was a group of people, all of them with highball glasses in their hands.

Steve Oglebay leaned up against the mantel, facing the doorway. His blue eyes caught Lovejoy's as she came in and held them.

"Here's your drink, Lovey," Aline said, picking up a tall glass from a tea-wagon just inside the door.

"Don't give it to her! She never drinks!" Steve called out.

Then, remembering himself, he turned around suddenly and stared down into the blazing pine logs, his broad back to the room.

In the old days, before her marriage to Tom, Steve often had taken Lovejoy out among his friends. And he never had let her take a drink, carefully keeping a promise that he had made to Aunt Em who called liquor "the broth of the devil."

The Goodsells were a merry looking couple with loud voices and wide, happy smiles. Jane Goodsell, a tiny brunet, sat on a floor pillow at Allen Alderson's feet with her head against his knees.

Beside her sat a girl named Mary Mont, who was evidently Steve's partner for the evening. She looked like the fashion magazine beauties, with her brown hair cut in a "wind-blown" shingle and her black dress cut to the waistline at the back, showing a great deal of skin as white as powdered sugar.

I wonder if Steve likes her, Lovejoy wondered, sitting at the poker table a little later, with a pile of chips before her and her third glass of rum-and-water beside her.

Only a year ago Steve had not been in love with anybody except herself. He had been in love with her even after she had married Tom. . . . She had seen that in his face the day he had taken her to lunch with Norrie Shane.

She looked across the table at him now. He was studying his cards and his face was a mask—a poker face. It told nothing. Nothing at all.

By midnight the air in the room was so thick with smoke that it could have been cut with a knife.

One of the straw-covered jugs of Bacardi rum had been emptied, and Al Alderson had brought another one in from the kitchen.

The roses in the room were wilting in the heat, and the flushed faces of the women around the card table made Lovejoy think of wilting roses, too.

She had five of the Bacardi highballs, and she felt anything but fresh herself.

She was dizzy, and every now and then the room would seem to float far away from her and then come slowly back.

On the other side of the table the girl named Mary Mont kept putting her head down on Tom's shoulder every now and then to laugh hysterically at the cards she held.

Lovejoy didn't like that. She didn't like that at all!

Tom shouldn't let her do it, she thought in a confused, vague sort of way. If he didn't like it, he wouldn't let her do it!

She made up her mind not to speak to him when they got home. She wouldn't speak to him tomorrow, either. She'd show him that he couldn't let strange women slop all over him like that—and get away with it!

I'll fix him! she told herself furiously, I'll show him!

When the game broke up at 2 o'clock she went straight to Steve Oglebay.

"It's so hot and close in here, Steve," she said to him, laying her hand on his arm. "Take me out into that nice cool hall for a minute. I'm dizzy."

The hall was dim and quiet. There was a big bunch of pink roses on a table against the wall, and they smelled like June in the country.

Someone had turned on the radio in the living room, and everybody was dancing. Through the long curtains in the doorway, Lovejoy had a flying glimpse of Tom dancing with Mary Mont. Her head was on his shoulder.

"Steve," Lovejoy half whispered, "sometimes I think I hate Tom Nicholson. . . . Steve, you haven't kissed me for a long time, have you?"

She lifted her face to his in the dimness of the hall.

I'm getting even with Tom, she thought, I'm getting even!

Rabbit Dog Imprisoned In Old Hollow Log

CALEDONIA, Mo., Jan. 19. (AP)—"Shorty" Hull's dog was entirely too zealous in its quest for game. The dog, after 10 days' absence from the Hull home here, was found by hunters with its head fastened securely in a hollow log where it had evidently chased a rabbit. The dog was unable to walk home, but soon rallied and now is recovering.

The Eyelids

The skin of the upper eyelid is thinner than the skin of the rest of the face, and for this reason is frequently affected by inflammation. In young children the skin may be so delicate as to seem almost transparent. The eyelids present two surfaces open to attacks of disease, the outside surface and the inner surface, which is against the eyeball.

Possibly the most familiar affection troubling the eyelids is sties which are in reality small boils. The most painful period of the sty is during the swelling process while the hard lump is raising. This causes the rest of the eyelid to be sore, irritated and sometimes swollen. By applying warm poultices or packs to the eye the sty is encouraged to break open so that the pus may drain out more readily. As soon as the pus has discharged, the condition subsides quickly as a rule. If you are frequently trouble with sties you probably have a constitutional weakness as well, and I suggest that you send for my special article on this subject.

Granulated eyelids or trachoma is an inflammation of the delicate membrane lining the interior of the eyelid next to the eyeball. The patient will first complain of a grating feeling in the eye as of sand. Then the whole lid may become very red and the inner lining inflamed and painful. A secretion of mucus takes place which has a tendency to dry along the edges of the lid, forming white scales or crusts. When the patient awakens, the eyes will sometimes be glued together. The lids as well as the eyes are angry and swollen. A cool compress placed lightly over the eye will give a great deal of relief. The catarrhal form is very mild and occurs during a cold. In the granulated form there are small elevations on the inside of the eyelids. I have also a special article on inflammation of the eyes, which deals with these subjects, and I will be glad to mail it to you if you desire.

A swelling of the eyelids may follow stings from bees, hornets or wasps, and can be relieved by the application of cold cloths.

Burns may cause the eyelids to grow together or to grow to the eyeball. Usually, surgical methods are required when this occurs. Cysts on the eyelids must usually be removed by a surgeon, but cold compresses applied over the eyelids for several hours each day or at night will tend to prevent their recurrence. It is also advisable to overcome any tendency towards systemic acidosis which frequently is present in these cases.

Mild herpes or fever sores may attack the lids as the result of wind, sunburn or other irritations. A red spot occurs, and burns and resembles a blister. At first the fluid is watery and later may turn into pus. A scab follows, covering the sore which heals underneath in a week or so, and the scab falls off, leaving a red spot, usually without complications.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Large Veins

Question: Mrs. D. writes—"Please advise treatment to use for broken capillaries on the face and neck. Skin is very fine, without pimples or blackheads."

Answer—The broken capillaries you write about are no doubt enlarged veins. These can be partially reduced through applying ice to the skin several times daily. Hold the ice in a dry towel, and press the ice directly against the part to be treated, holding it in each place for about a half minute at a time. The cold makes the muscles of the face and veins contract, and thus induces the veins to return to their normal size.

Olives

Question: E. K. writes—"Please tell me if eating olives three times a day is too often and what would be the results. We are very fond of them, and eat a lot at a meal."

Answer—There can be very little harm come from eating as many ripe olives as you wish. In some cases the excessive oil produces a tendency toward pimples or acne, but if your skin and hair are not too oily, you can use any reasonable amount of olives without danger of harm.

Kidney Plasters

Question: K. D. S. asks—"What is a good medicated healing astringent plaster for use over inflamed kidneys?"

Answer—It is doubtful if a medicated plaster over the kidneys would have any effect whatsoever upon the kidney functions. These plasters keep the back warm and make the patient feel more comfortable, but the heat from a hot water bottle would be more penetrating. The best local treatment for the kidneys is to use an electrical treatment known as diathermy. With this treatment the kidneys can be heated to any desired temperature, even as high as 130 degrees F. Such heat created in the kidneys tends to dilate the capillaries and increases the functional activity of the kidneys.

Game Birds Dying In Snow Blanketed Kansas

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., Jan. 19. (AP)—Quail were hard hit by the recent heavy snowfall. They are reported dying by the thousands over southern Kansas and northern Oklahoma because of lack of food. Other birds are in the same plight. The quail burrow into the snow and keep warm, but they cannot find seeds or other food they live on in the winter.

Farmers were urged to scatter food for the quail, while travelers along the roads may help considerably by taking bread crumbs and scraps and throwing them out for the birds.

Leprosy Cases Total 3,000,000 Says Report

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (US)—Some 3,000,000 persons in the world are afflicted with leprosy. Improved diagnosis has increased the recorded number of lepers in the United States. These facts were presented today at the annual meeting of the American mission to lepers.

TEXAS AGGIES SNEAK INTO LEAD OF BASKET BALL RACE

STEERS SPLIT WITH PORKERS

Honor Expected to Be Short Lived With Farmers

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

GAYLE TALBOT, JR.

DALLAS, Jan. 19.—The Southwest conference basket ball chase still was a wide-open arrangement today, with no team yet giving evidence of a real superiority over the field. Either Texas or Arkansas was expected to emerge from the crucial series at Fayetteville with bright prospects for a title, but their split in the two games left little to choose between them.

Meanwhile, the Texas Aggies, by virtue of a victory over Southern Methodist in their only conference game sneaked into the leadership. That they have the power to retain their present exalted position is doubted in the best basket ball circles.

Texas Duplicates Feat

The Longhorns duplicated their feat of last season in breaking even with the Razorbacks. Last year, it is remembered, Texas was the only team to gain a decision over the champions. Last night's 29 to 27 loss was the first an Arkansas quintet had received on its home court in four years.

The Razorbacks might win their fifth straight crown, but there no longer is any doubt they have a real scrap on their hands.

Rice institute's promising team continues to puzzle the critics, also to cultivate one of the finest crop of whiskers seen in the conference in years. Picked to finish high in the race, the Owls have dropped their first four starts. They promised a week ago not to shave until they won a pair, and it is certain now they will go at least until Feb. 8 before the herbage is removed. They should be a snappy looking lot by the time they meet the Aggies on that date at College Station.

Southern Methodist and Texas Christian found Coach Daugherty's dribblers almost easy the last two nights.

Four Games Scheduled

Four bouts are scheduled this week, with the Baylor-Texas tilt at Austin Saturday night due to supply the principal feature.

Tuesday night Baylor and Southern Methodist clash at Waco, and Rice and the Aggies at Houston. Texas Christian invades College Station to play the Aggies on Friday night.

The standing.

MISSOURI, KANSAS LEAD BIG SIX

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 19 (UP)—The Missouri and Kansas university basket ball squads held unblemished records in Big Six conference standings as most teams deserted the basket ball court for a week of semester examinations.

The Missouri Tigers eliminated Nebraska from joint leadership in percentages Saturday night, administering a 27 to 21 defeat and maintaining a perfect record in three conference games.

There was considerable optimism in the Missouri camp due to the fact that the Tiger's next game, Feb. 1, will be played against Oklahoma university, loser of both games played this season.

Nebraska holds third place with one game lost and one won, while Iowa State gained fourth place as the result of its victory over Oklahoma Saturday night. The Iowans have won one game in three starts.

The Kansas Aggies occupied the lower rung of conference standings along with Oklahoma, having suffered defeat in two games.

Although the crucial game of the week was played between Missouri and Nebraska, the most outstanding bit of individual play came in the Iowa State encounter with Oklahoma. With but three minutes to play and a seven-point margin to beat, Jack Roadcap, Iowa State guard, looped four straight field goals to give his team a 34 to 33 victory.

The standings.

Teams—	W.	L.	Pct.

Workers Council To Meet at Hollis Jan. 28

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Jan. 19.—The Harmon County Workers' council meeting will be held at the Hope Baptist church, better known as Sandy, on Tuesday after the fourth Sunday, which is Jan. 28. A fine program has been arranged and it is expected that many will be present for the meeting. The song service will begin at 10 a. m. and will be led by R. B. Bryant. Rev. John Hawkins of Duke will lead the devotional. At 10:30 Rev. H. F. Cole will give a talk on "Why Should We Be Thankful for the Church." At 10:45 Rev. J. H. Pluckett of Gould will talk on "Our Responsibilities to the Church, God and Man." Rev. O. K. Webb, pastor of the First Baptist church of Hollis, will deliver an address on "The Second Coming of Christ." At noon there will be a bountiful dinner spread to all. The board meeting will be held at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. This will be followed by an open discussion of the "Milliennial Reign of Christ, Where and When," and will be opened by Rev. J. M. Setser. The public is cordially invited to be present and enjoy the day.

When She Hits 'Em They Stay Hit

Down in Old Kaintuck, where the mountaineers still do their squirrel shooting with cap and ball rifles, is a young school teacher who outshot everything in the field in 1929 for the women's national trapshooting title. Her name is Miss Eunice Haggard.

VANDALIA FIELD, Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 19. (AP)—Miss Eunice Haggard, Winchester, Ky., school teacher, has been proclaimed the national champion woman trapshooter of 1929.

Records released at headquarters here by the Amateur Trapshooting association of North America show she finished the season with the remarkable average of 9281, giving her the title of national high average champion of the United States.

The average was computed on 1,100 16-yard targets.

Miss Haggard took up trapshooting four years ago, in addition to her teaching duties. Her rise in the clay pigeon sport was meteoric. After two years of "seasoning" on the range, she stepped out in 1928 to win the Kentucky state women's singles championship with 93 hits out of 100. She successfully defended the title in 1929, breaking 94 out of 100.

Late last summer Miss Haggard crowned a very successful season by winning the North American Clay Target championship for women, staged here. She broke 190 out of 200 targets to gain the title.

Miss Haggard is a typical American girl. In addition to teaching and trapshooting, she goes in for horseback riding.

Kentucky friends recently presented Miss Haggard with a trap gun and other testimonials.

Only Three Western Coaches Left As Eastern Grid Mentors Migrate

By CARLE H. BENNETT
United Press Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19.—In the never-ending battle between East and West over athletic supremacy the chorus of those east of the Rocky mountains that coaches from their territory turn out winning teams for the West may be louder this year.

Two outstanding grid mentors of the Big Ten last year, James Phelan and Dr. Clarence W. Spears, have been signed by leading Pacific coast colleges. Out of 13 prominent football coaches in the Far West this year only three can claim the distinction of being real westerners.

Four Contributed

The Big Ten has contributed four men toward building up athletics in this region. Four of the coaches are students of the Notre Dame style of play, one came from Pittsburgh, another from Lombard in Illinois and one has claimed allegiance to the Army.

The latest move in the annual spring maneuvers to bolster coaching staffs was the announcement that Doctor Spears will guide the gridiron destinies of the University of Oregon this year, and as a consequence an ancient rivalry will be enhanced.

Several weeks ago the University of Washington announced that Phelan had signed a contract to teach sports at that school, which is an old enemy of Oregon.

Phelan coached Purdue to a title position last year without a defeat. Doctor Spears proved a constant threat to Phelan's ambitions. His University of Minnesota team swept into a tie for third place.

Anxious for Showing

Both men naturally are anxious for an impressive first year, and this is something that may be determined to a large extent in the annual tilt between their new schools. Phelan has demanded a big job and his graduate manager secured seven conference games. Oregon will not meet any major California teams this year so a win for Doctor Spears over Phelan would insure him of a place near the top.

Another interesting prospect will be a contest between Oregon and the University of California at Los Angeles. Doctor Spears succeeded W. H. Spaulding, now coach at U. C. L. A., when the latter left Minnesota.

The other man that came from the Big Ten is Howard Jones, who left Iowa to become a popular campaigner at University of Southern California.

Then there is the noted craftsman of reverses, Glenn "Pop" Warner, who is well established at Stanford university after being induced to leave Pittsburgh.

Graduates of Coach Knute Rockne and his successful art of touchdown scoring who are now head coaches in the Far West are "Matty" Mathews at Gonzaga, "Clipper" Smith at Santa Clara and "Slip" Madigan at St. Mary's, none of them coast conference schools, and Phelan.

Paul J. Schissler at Oregon State, noted for his intersectional victories came from the state of Illinois.

The Army veteran is Major Frank Milburn at Montana.

This leaves the list of three real westerners—Orin "Babe" Hollingberry at Washington State; Clarence "Nibs" Price of California and Leo Calland at Idaho.

ART HUMBLED BY MR. LANDIS

Whataman Shires Decides To Quit Boxing

CHICAGO, Jan. 19. (UP)—For almost the first time in months, almost since he pasted Lena Blackburne on the nose, the name of Art Shires was missing from the sport page headlines here tonight.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball high commissioner, was the cause of all black ink being used to tell about something else than what a man's latest prize fight, his next prize fight and whether he thought boxing and baseball would mix.

Ordered to Quit

Landis told Shires yesterday that if he wanted to play with the Chicago White Sox this year he would have to forget his boxing career, a meteoric splurge which has given Shires more newspaper space then any other young man outside of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and the Prince of Wales.

The judge also told Shires that he had had his name too frequently in print and his blonde curls too often in newspaper photographs.

Shires, variously known as "The Unbearable," "The Shrinking Violet," and "I Love Me Art," apparently took Landis' words to heart.

He refused for the first time in his life to let photographers take his picture and flabbergasted reporters when he said he had nothing to say other than that he had given up boxing for good and that he hoped the White Sox would let him play first base again this year.

Wooed Spotlight

Shires first obtained notoriety as a fighter of parts when he fought with Blackburne, then manager of the Sox. After the baseball season was over, he took up professional boxing with indifferent results against indifferent opponents. Large crowds came to see Lil' Art attempt to fight, however, and it was estimated that Landis' ruling cost him approximately $50,000 in guarantees for future prize fights he had contracted for.

Hollis Debate Team Is Chosen

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Jan. 19.—The debate teams to represent the Hollis high school were selected last Friday, according to an announcement of Ryan Kerr, debate coach. Those who have been chosen for the affirmative are Maulcie Hollis, Josephine Coleman and Ruth Wilson with Loise Snider as alternate. The question that they are studying for debate is, "Resolved, That Installment Buying of Personal Property as Now Practiced in the United States Is Both Economically and Socially Sound."

Students who make the debate team will receive half credit on their extra curricular credits. Sixteen regular credits and two extra credits are required to graduate.

The debate schedule for Hollis is as follows: Feb. 18, the affirmative team debates at Hobart, the negative team debates Frederick at Frederick.

March 18, affirmative team at Mangum, negative at Carnegie, here.

The debates that will be held here will be at the high school auditorium and will probably be held in the afternoon. Everyone is invited to attend.

Temperatures of 50 and 60 degrees below zero are not uncommon in Little America. During last September the average temperature there was 44 degrees below.

Foreign Entries Likely Won't Race in U. S. Derby

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (UP)—The latest word from England is that promoters of the proposed $100,000 international horse race at Arlington park next summer are altogether too optimistic about the likelihood of French and English owners sending valuable thoroughbreds to Chicago in quest of the rich stakes.

Even the prospect of winning a $100,000 stake has failed to tempt English owners in view of the following factors:

1—The expense involved;

2—The probable detraction from a horse's value for racing or stud in the event of failure;

3—The likelihood that foreign horses would be beaten by American trained thoroughbreds, under the conditions.

LONGHORN LOT OPENS FEB. 3

U. T. to Play Both Giants And Yankees

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—Weather permitting, baseball practice at the University of Texas will begin Feb. 3 and from then on it will be a sequence of practices, games with professional clubs, tilts with northern college teams and conference contests until late in May or early June.

So far 24 games are on the schedule and "Uncle Billy" Disch, veteran mentor, is anxious to get more contests with college teams which train in Texas. A trip through the East after the conference season is over has been discussed but has not been definitely arranged.

To Meet Giants, Yanks

Both major league teams from Gotham are due to perform here this spring. The Giants, who train in San Antonio, are scheduled to open the Longhorn season March 6 and the Yanks, Babe Ruth and all, are due to pay Austin a visit on "All-Fools" day, April 1.

One of the chief worries of university officials is how to take care of the crowd expected for the fray with the Yanks. Seats probably will be placed on the center field embankment to take care of the kids who will want to see the Babe clout one.

Northwestern and Iowa already have signed to play games here and four contests with every other conference team except Arkansas have been carded. Orders have been placed for bats, balls and other equipment. The base paths have been worked over and will be in the best shape since the field was built two years ago. Winter rye grass on the infield will be green by the opening of the season.

Scheduled Games

So far the following games have been scheduled:

March 6—New York Giants here.
April 1—New York Yanks here.
April 4-5—Rice here.
April 11-12—Baylor here (tentative).
April 16-17—Iowa here.
April 19—Northwestern here.
April 21-22—A. & M. at College Station.
April 25-26—S. M. U. at Dallas.
April 28-29—T. C. U. at Fort Worth.
May 2-3—Baylor at Waco.
May 5-6—Rice at Houston.
May 12-13—T. C. U. here.
May 16-17—S. M. U. here.
May 20-21—A. & M. here.

Golfers to Get Largest Cash Prize in History

By MAX STILES

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 19. (US)—Presenting the largest money prize in the history of golf, the Agua Caliente $25,000 open gets under way here tomorrow.

The field numbers 96 starters. Play will be 72 holes, 18 holes a day. This schedule brings play to a close on Thursday.

The Agua Caliente open offers the winner a purse of $10,000; second place draws $5,000, third $3,500.

The outstanding figures among the starters are the two Smiths—MacDonald and Horton—Walter Hagen, Denny Shute, winner of the Los Angeles open; Gene Sarazen, Bobby Cruickshank and Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente's home pro.

Other prominent golfers scheduled to start in the big purse event include Al Espinosa, Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Harry Cooper, Craig Wood, Johnny Farrell, Henry Ciuci, Joe Turnesa, John Golden, Fred Morrison, L. Watrous, Ed Dudley, Joe Kirkwood and Olin Dutra.

The course has dried out since the recent heavy rains and players were allowed to practice on it for the first time today. They reported the course in good condition for the tournament.

RICE POINT GETTERS LEAD

Hart and Hess Lead All Others in Scoring

DALLAS, Jan. 19. (AP)—Although their team is at the bottom of the Southwest conference standing, with four straight losses, Ray Hart and Jake Hess, crack Rice forwards led the parade of individual point-getters through the second week of play.

In four games Hart tossed 14 field goals and 10 foul throws for 38 points; Hess 15 field goals and six free throws for 36 points. Rose, giant Texas university forward, holds down third place with 34 points, followed by Schoonover of Arkansas with 32.

Army to Meet Notre Dame At Stadium Next Fall

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (UP)—The Army will meet Notre Dame at Yankee stadium for their annual football game next fall, Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York American league baseball club announced today.

Agreement to hold the 1930 game on a flat rental basis has been made, Barrow said. He was disturbed over a report that the Yankee club had been receiving 33 1-3 per cent of the gate receipts at the Army-Notre Dame game.

Barrow said that no school had ever paid the ball club more than 20 per cent of the receipts, and said that for three years Army and Notre Dame officials had leased the stadium for a flat rental, which was "less than 10 per cent of the total receipts."

Girl of 12 Rates As Expert Pilot Of Glider Planes

HAWTHORNE, Calif., Jan. 19. (US)—Southern California lays claim to America's youngest glider pilot—in a 12-year-old Hawthorne grammar school girl, who has won three prizes for her daring in the air.

She is Betty Leekley, a niece of Jay Buxton, secretary of the South Bay Glider club.

Betty, who is a member of Hawthorne school's 8-A class, has already official credit for six months of glider flying and she is rated by the South Bay Glider club as one of their best contest pilots.

In the western glider meet at the Hollywood Riviera recently, Betty was awarded three cups for her proficiency in her glider. She won third place in spot landings from all other pilots; the title of youngest pilot, and an award for the best woman's performance.

The 12-year-old girl has one ambition—to be the pilot of a real airplane, a motored vehicle that will soar above the 100-odd feet to which she is limited now by her engineless craft. Age limits, set up by the department of commerce, will prevent Betty from flying air planes until she is 16, however.

School Girl Hurt In Motor Bus Accident

Special to The Record News.

OLUSTEE, Okla., Jan. 19.—A tire chain broke and one of the school trucks of the Victory school went into a ditch Thursday afternoon. Curtis Boswell, driver, had taken his load of children home after school and two of the girls were returning with him to attend a play at the schoolhouse that night. Kathaleen Settles, one of the girls, was badly cut about the face. A passing car took her to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Holley, where Dr. Crowe was called and sewed up the wounds. She was able to return to her home Friday morning. Beulah Bilbrey, the other girl in the car, escaped without injury. The Victory school was dismissed Friday on account of the blizzard.

C.-C. Budget Drive At Vernon Opens Today

VERNON, Texas, Jan. 19.—The Vernon Chamber of Commerce drive for the 1930 budget of $20,000 will get under way here Monday with a luncheon of the membership committee at noon. The 55 members of the committee will start the drive for funds immediately after the luncheon.

This year's budget is approximately $1,000 under the total expenditure made by the organization last year, but it is planned to make only one drive this year. Six major campaigns were made for the organization last year.

Body of Aged Woman Sent to Liberty Hill

The body of Mrs. Martha E. Jones, 85, pioneer Williamson county resident who died here Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. L. Caywood, 2112 Kemp boulevard, was forwarded at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the Hines mortuary to Liberty Hill, Texas, for interment.

Mrs. Jones lived the greater part of her life in Liberty Hill but had been a resident of Wichita Falls for the past six years, moving here to make her home with her daughter. Interment will be Monday.

Survivors include five sons, Oscar and Arthur Jones of Austin, John Jones of Liberty Hill, Leslie Jones of Clarendon and N. W. Jones of Idaho; three daughters, Mrs. Caywood and Mrs. J. H. Hearn, both of this city, and Mrs. W. H. Johns of Duncan, Okla.

LIQUOR RAID

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Jan. 19.—Thursday proved a red-letter day for the office of the sheriff and county attorney, three stills, some whisky, mash and fruit jars being captured and two arrests made. Both men pleaded guilty before W. D. Scott, county judge, for possessing stills, mash and liquor but the court has not yet assessed punishment.

You will not be bothered with collectors if you bring your Want Ads to The Times and Record News office and paying cash, besides saving 15 per cent of the regular Want rate. Phone 4391 for rates.—Adv.

STIMSON HOLDS WORLD 'SPOT'

London Parley Heads News Of Week Abroad

(By The Associated Press)

Col. Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state and head of the American delegation to the London naval conference, it has been authoritatively predicted, Monday night will dilate upon the hope of the momentous gathering to forward world peace through naval limitation. The speech is to be delivered at a dinner given to all the delegates by the British government.

Also, in "keynote," it was additionally forecast, he will stress as the chief field in which the conference must work the feeling of national security which arises in a country possessing strong defense as opposed to the feeling of insecurity which may spring up in a neighboring state because of the size and efficiency of that defense.

Gigantic Task

This gist of the world problem points to the magnitude of the task that confronts the delegates. It has been more concretely illustrated by announcements of the pre-conference positions of the various governments and by the rumblings of criticisms that have come from opposition sources, especially nationalistic elements in the various countries.

So strong have been the terms of most of these pronouncements, that at this stage it appears that the only definite result that seems certain to come out of the London deliberations is an extension until 1936 of the building holiday on capital ships. Divergent views exist on all other aspects of the question, including even the desirability of reducing, instead of merely limiting, sea armaments.

Hague Conference

The discussions, prognostications and activities connected with the assembling of the big conference, dimmed to nearly the extinguishing point the positive accomplishments of the second reparations conference at The Hague. The task of "liquidating the war," which has kept European chancelleries busy for a decade, was brought to the point of fruition by agreement upon final details of the Young plan.

Probably the outstanding achievement at The Hague was the agreement on sanctions between France and Germany. The solution of this problem was hailed by the German government as constituting acceptance of Germany's word as a pledge for payments and thus restoring the nation's prestige on an important point of honor.

League Council

The council of the league of nations held a perfunctory and harmonious session at Geneva. The Palestine affair was about the only subject that provoked discussion.

Communistic activities broke out in half a dozen countries. Serious affairs took place in Berlin where police fought with communistic demonstrators and the government was forced to forbid all open air meetings and processions save funerals, weddings and religious pageants.

The Mexican department of justice is preparing deportation proceedings against communists who boasted of having organized demonstrations in front of the Mexican embassies in Washington and Buenos Aires.

Reports from China gave grewsome pictures of famine conditions, with typhus and cannibalism pushing unfortunate hordes toward elemental savagery. One-third of the 6,000,000 inhabitants of Shenshi province were reported dead and another 2,000,000 doomed.

"Doctrine of Repentance" Urged In Martin's Address to Bible Class

Many Holding on to Church's Altars With One Hand And Sin With Other, Says Speaker

With the declaration that many church members have become a sort of "hyphenated hybrid trying to serve God and Mammon at the same time," Judge P. A. Martin Sunday morning made a plea for the old "doctrine of repentance" in his address before members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church.

"Many of us are holding on with one hand to the altars of the church while with the other we are toying with the sins of the world," the speaker declared. "In the effort to recruit the numerical strength of our modern churches, I feel that we too often fail to stress the necessity for repentance."

A brief outline of the address is quoted below:

"We come today to speak of the good old doctrine of repentance; a doctrine which has been lost sight of in the modern plan of salvation to a great extent, but which constituted the strong point of early Methodism as well as the early teaching of other evangelical churches.

Need of Repentance

"You will remember that John, the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, as a fore runner of the Christ said, 'repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.' Repentance was the burden of his daily preaching and his baptism was the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins. He called men to repentance, as a preparation for the incoming kingdom of the Christ. Then we have learned that Christ was also baptized of John, in Jordan, not indeed for the remission of sins, for He was sinless, but that 'all righteousness' might be 'fulfilled.' Then he suffered temptation of the evil one for a season and then he began to preach 'and to say repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.' He used the very words of John the Baptist. They are most meaningful words.

"Repentance has been defined to be 'a godly sorrow for sin and a turning away from it.' So the preaching of John and of the Savior was a call to the people to be sorry for their sins and wickedness and to turn away from such things and each of them gave, as a reason for this, that the 'kingdom of heaven is at hand.' This expression is full of meaning. In my judgment it means to every man, woman and child in the world the announcement that there exists, here and now, 'at hand,' a great spiritual kingdom, with the Christ at its head inviting the fealty and the citizenship of the sons of men everywhere to its allegiance and to share in its beneficient privileges. It is an invitation, in other words, to a change of citizenship, from the kingdom of sin to the kingdom of righteousness, the only condition being that of repentance and renunciation of sin and faith in the kingdom accepted.

New Citizens

"When men come to the United States from foreign shores and seek to become citizens of our country, they are required to specifically renounce their allegiance to any king or potentate to whom they have formerly given allegiance. In like manner, in my judgment, the new citizen in the kingdom of heaven, before he can become a real citizen must renounce all allegiance to 'the world, the flesh and the devil' and before he can do this he is bound to suffer the pangs of a sorrow, growing out of his realization that he has heretofore been a subject of the spirit of evil and led captive to his will. The immigrant is also required to convince the court of naturalization that he is really attached to the constitution of the United States and willing to obey its mandates. So, the weary, wayfaring man, sick and tired of sin, becoming really attached to the beauties of the kingdom of God, renounces the errors of his way, seeks forgiveness with a Godly sorrow, finds peace in the complete forgiveness that he feels, enters into a new citizenship and we call this 'the new birth.'

"In the effort to recruit the numerical strength of our modern churches, I feel that we often lose sight of the necessary preparatory work to fit the incoming member for citizenship. We too often fail to stress the necessity for repentance. As we study the life of the Savior and His preaching, we find that the first word of preaching He uttered was 'repent.' Too often nowadays our evangelists throw wide the doors of the earthly kingdom and invite men and women to enter, without having first renounced their allegiance to the world; and it is thus that so many of us today are holding on with one hand upon the altars of the church while with the other we are toying with the things of the world and the sins of the world. Having a divided allegiance, we live a weak and joyless life, not a true citizen of either kingdom but a sort of hyphenated hybrid trying to serve God and Mammon at one and the same time. Such a life is a miserable failure at the very best."

VODVIL BILL PLEASES FANS

Which Is Real Test of Good Program, Says Critic

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

Remembering that the sole object of vaudeville performances is to entertain the customers satisfactorily for an hour or so, the task of appraising this week's Interstate offering at the Majestic is reduced to an easy and pleasant formality. There may have been a bill here in the 1929-30 season to which the audience more generally manifested that a good time was being had by all; but the only one we skipped was passed up on good advice.

Trained Seal Act

Presentation of the last two acts was required to prove that they really could be ranked over the first pair. Much sly fun-making has been poked by upstage columnists at the rustics who still get a kick out of the trained seal, but it might be appropriately remarked that Ray Huling's sleek and garrulous "Charlie" does his stuff with more eclat than many of his two-legged competitors. And that in spite of having stolen some of their tricks. He starts his own applause, for instance, in the approved night club master-of-ceremonies style. More direct plagiarism was involved however, in Charlie's impersonation of Nick Lucas and Al Jolson in his passionate, writhing rendition of a typical heart ballad. The seal does redeem his singing, granting slight imperfections, with phenomenal bits of juggling, balancing, and mimicry.

The piano and dancing skit presented by Ray Hall and Edith Ermine definitely broke down a theory which resolved itself recently, that no further embellishment or verisimilitude could be evolved under the caption of tap-dancing. The last score or more of such acts could be put down as just some more of the same thing—but Mr. Hall proceeded Sunday to put that dud definitely in the wash. His feet and legs found new routes to travel and new places to land, believe that or not, considering the deluge. Dancing isn't all Mr. Hall does—not until you've seen him play with a small smoke. Incidentally, Miss Ermine's sparkling contribution from the piano included a highly effective score of the Lucia "Sextet," played by the left hand alone.

Britt Wood is supported in his monologue as "The Boob" by a stage band condensed into one very small mouth-organ. More important than the tiny harp in the near-landslide which he precipitated was a disarming vaccuity of expression and a genius for impersonation of types where you might expect to find such expressions worn. Detailed analysis might reveal the pungent appeal of all save the one chorus which he yodeled. Yodeling, as ever, must speak for itself.

Apache Dance Good

Lee Gail's ensemble presents such a cyclonic and unusual program of dancing that it must be pardoned for introducing, just for brief rest periods, perhaps, a few more terrible moments of revolving splits. Each such visiting troupe apparently labors under the delusion that we are not yet convinced that doing the strenuous act three times daily keeps the lads and lasses in superb physical condition. To register that highly important fact, some lovely but muscular miss must be hurled before us every week in that round-and-round the stage combination of the double-split, a gyroscope, and —a seal! It's hard to do, but so was it the first 16 times.

Featuring a remarkable variety of brilliantly executed dances, Leon and Jean Lee Gail present the most vigorous Apache dance seen here in many years. Their performance provided a whirlwind finale for one of the best bills brought to Wichita Falls during the present season.

Hal Skelly and William Powell enact a heart story of back-stage life on the talking screen, "Behind the Makeup," with Fay Wray playing the girl in the case. The trouper gets over, of course.

Funeral services for Edward L. Vaughn, 35, who died in a Silver City, N. M., hospital last Tuesday, were held here at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the chapel of the Merkle Undertaking company with Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. Interment was in Rosemont.

Mr. Vaughn, a world war veteran and member of the American Legion, had been ill for some time, having been confined in the hospital at Silver City for about a month.

Active pallbearers for the services were Pender Peavey, Perry Parker, J. M. Ealy, W. C. Shaver, Casey Jones and H. A. Madison.

Survivors include the widow, two brothers, George Vaughn Thompson of Jacksonville, Texas, and Maben Vaughn Onstott of Lone Wolf, Okla.; and one sister, Mrs. J. J. Finney of San Antonio.

Body of J. A. Haley Sent To Seymour for Burial

The body of J. A. Haley, 47, who died Saturday morning at the family residence, 1523 Smarsh street, was forwarded at 2 o'clock Monday morning to Seymour by the Merkle Undertaking company. Funeral services and interment will be held in Seymour Monday afternoon.

Funeral services were held here at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the home with Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating.

Mr. Haley is survived by his widow, two sons, J. A. Haley Jr., and Gordon Haley; and one daughter, Miss Lois Haley, all of Wichita Falls; and one brother, John Haley of McKavett, Texas.
