Ford, Carter meet face-to-face tonight

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Two men, candidates for president, meet face-to-face tonight to debate their plans for America before an audience that may number 100 million people.

And as Jimmy Carter and President Ford prepared for the debate, a U.S. Steel Corp. lobbyist confirmed that the company was host to Ford, when he was in Congress, at two overnight stays at a company house near Disney World in Florida.

Ford and Carter have taken vastly differing routes in their efforts to attract voters. Ford stayed in Washington, campaigning only once out of town and then at his alma mater in his home state of Michigan. Carter criss-crossed the country to shake hands and make speeches.

And the candidates crammed for tonight's debate in different fashions.

But Republican Ford and Democrat Carter planned to spend the day of the debates in much the same way. For both, rest was planned along with flights to Philadelphia where the debate begins at 9:30 EDT.

Their vice presidential candidates carried on the campaign in the field. Ford running mate Bob Dole was in Nebraska seeking the farm vote and Carter running mate Walter Mondale was stumping Wisconsin.

In a statement issued early today, U.S. Steel lobbyist William Whyte said Ford's overnight stays at Disney World in 1972 and in 1973 were in addition to three golfing weekends for Ford paid for by U.S. Steel at the company lodge in New Jersey.

The White House had no comment on the report of U.S. Steel's role in the Florida tays. But earlier this week, Ford spokesmen said there was "no evidence of wrongdoing" in the New Jersey trips.

In his statement, Whyte said he had been friends with Ford for more than 20 years and that "to my direct knowledge, Congressman Ford shared the use of U.S. Steel overnight accommodations, as my personal guest, on five occasions over the last dozen or so years."

A company spokesman said he did not know whether U.S. Steel paid Ford's travel expenses but that the company did pay for Ford's lodging in all five instances.

There have been questions raised that Ford might have violated the code of ethics of the House of Representatives, adopted in 1968. It prohibits members from accepting a "gift of substantial value, directly or indirectly, from any person, organization or corporation having a direct interest in legislation before the Congress."

For weeks the two presidential nominees have prepared for tonight's debate, the first of three. Each has studied thick briefing books.

Ford has rehearsed with stand-ins who threw questions at him and critique his answers. Carter has crammed largely in solitude.

At the same time, both have tried to play down the amount of work they were doing in preparation for the confrontation.

"I've not lost any sleep," Carter replied when recently asked about his upcoming debate with the Republican President.

Ford danced until 1 a.m. Wednesday at a state dinner at the White House. Was he ready for the debate, reporters asked?

"Of course I am," he said. "I'm getting in training by dancing."

No one could predict whether the debate would be a slugfest or a fencing match, whether the outcome would be a knockout, a narrow decision or a draw.

Not since 1960, when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon debated, have two presidential candidates met in a face-to-face exchange of their views. Political scientists still discuss what effect the Kennedy-Nixon debates had on the outcome of the 1960 election, won by Kennedy.

Carter has said he doesn't believe the 1960 debates led to a dramatic shift in voter sentiment and he doesn't expect his meetings with Ford to be the decisive factor in the election.

"I don't think the performance over a 90-minute period, even repeated three times over, is going to dominate the final judgment of the American people," Carter told reporters in Plains, Ga.

Tonight's debate will take place in Philadelphia's Walnut Street Theater. There are 250 seats in the theater for the general public. But the television audience is expected to top 100 million. The debates are being carried by all four national networks.

Carter had said during the primary campaign that he would like to debate his Republican opponent. Then Ford grabbed the initiative during his acceptance speech at the GOP convention, issuing a challenge to Carter to debate him. The applause at Kansas City had barely died when Carter issued a statement agreeing to a series of debates.

The League of Women Voters agreed to sponsor the debates, leaving them open for coverage by broadcast networks without the need to grant equal air time to other candidates.

Representatives of former Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, an independent candidate for president, and Tom Anderson, the American party nominee, went to court with claims the arrangements were aimed at evading the equal time provisions of federal communications law.

McCarthy wants a court order forcing the league to include him. Anderson wants the debate halted. U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson rejected their petitions. They have appealed his decision.

The second debate, set for Oct. 6, will cover foreign policy and national security. The third, on Oct. 22, will have no subject limitation.

During the week between the second and third presidential debates, the two vice presidential candidates will debate.

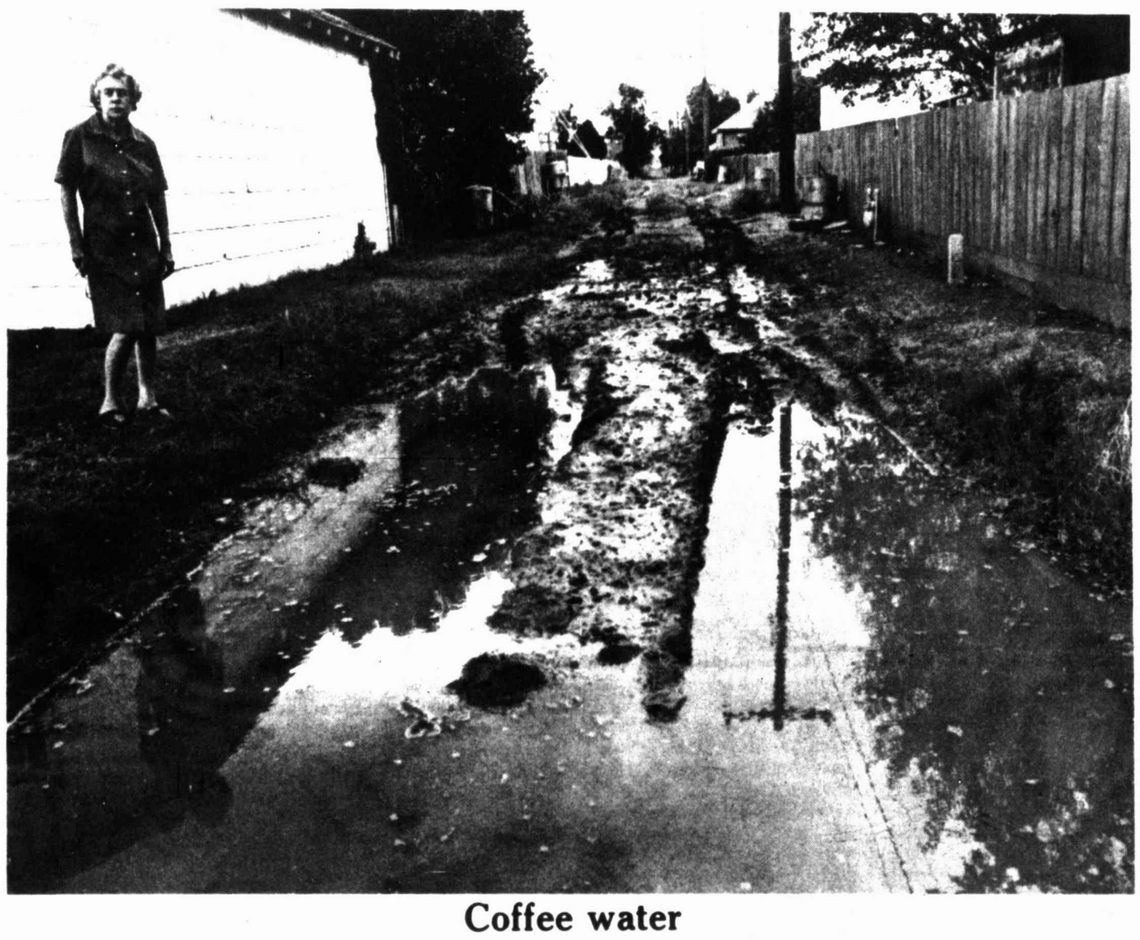

Edwin Newman of NBC will serve as moderator of the first presidential debate. On the three-member panel of questioners will be James P. Gannon of the Wall Street Journal, Elizabeth Drew of the New Yorker and Frank Reynolds of ABC.

Coffee water

Mrs. Frances Perkins, 2000 Coffee, has been plagued by a drainage problem for six years, she said. She has complained to the city, but officials say any answer supplied by that governing body would cost thousands and probably require a bond issue since from 150 to 200 other property owners over Pampa have a similar problem.

Puddle problem creates scum, smell, insects

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Mrs. Frances Perkins is tired of her lakeside home at 2000 Coffee. It isn't supposed to be and she wishes it wasn't... lakeside.

"For six years I've been having problems," Mrs. Perkins said of the water that stands in gutter in front of her home and in the alley behind it. "I'm not getting anyplace."

She said the puddle problem has been pretty constant all summer since, "it just takes an eighth of an inch of rain to fill it up."

It isn't just the inconvenience or the looks of the dirty water that has upset Mrs. Perkins. She described a "terrible smell," a mosquito problem and a "green scum."

"I've been half sick all summer," she added.

Mrs. Perkins has complained many times over the years, taking her problem to both the city manager and the mayor.

"I've talked to Mrs. Perkins over the last 10 years probably 50 times or more. We get calls from her about many things," said Mack Wofford, city manager. "I don't want to take issue with her. She's a taxpayer and a good citizen of Pampa. But I don't see the problem in the same light as Mrs. Perkins does."

Wofford explained that he felt the drainage problem at 2000 Coffee is caused by sections of the curb and gutter shifting with the subsoil. The curb and gutter, he added, are the responsibility of the property owner.

"There are 150 or 200 other places in Pampa with similar problems," he said. "There is really nothing that we can do about it without some kind of long range project. We're probably talking about a bond issue."

He said that for the city to replace all the faulty curb and gutter systems would entail thousands of dollars of expenditure.

The city manger explained that the problem is an old one.

"When that area of the city was built," he said, "they did not require underground drainage."

In some of the newer areas, when the topography makes it necessary, Wofford explained, underground drainage systems are required and must be installed at the developer's expense.

"It would probably cost more than the street and gutter, I suspect," Wofford said.

He said that Mrs. Perkins "contends that the city should replace it (the faulty curb and gutter). If we do, we'll have to do it all over town."

The city manager said that a street sweeper does work the area "to try to force the water out," and if mosquitoes become a problem, "We will treat the water for mosquitoes."

While Mrs. Perkins has not purchased new curbing and gutter, she did recently pay for a load of gravel for her driveway because the backed up water had washed holes in it.

And a similar problem exists in her alley.

"Everytime that big trash truck comes through it gets deeper," she said. "I told Mayor (R.D.) Wilkerson that we are getting tired of paying for the lack of service we are getting."

Mrs. Perkins said that when she last talked to the mayor of her alley pool problem, he told her he would, "get it taken care of before the next rain."

"That was two weeks ago," she said, "and we've had two rains since then. I don't know when they intend to fill it in. I guess in the year 1980. We're getting pretty tired of it."

The alley problem, apparently, is caused by water backing up because the curb and gutter system does not drain the area in front of the house.

"Pampa is basically very flat," Wofford commented in explaining drainage problems in the city. "And there's no way I know of to keep these curbs and gutters from moving because of the sub soil."

He said he does "not know of a good answer" to Mrs. Perkins' problem and the similar problem shared by many other Pampa property owners.

"It is a common problem," he said, "and it's just something we're going to have to live with."

Water found on Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Viking 2's discovery of frozen water at the north pole of Mars raises the possibility that some form of life may be locked beneath the icy surface, scientists say.

Crofton B. Farmer, an atmospheric scientist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here, said the discovery announced Wednesday constitutes "another shred of evidence" that conditions on the red planet may once have been suitable for life.

As a result, he said, future searches for traces of Martian life may turn to the planet's north pole.

The discovery by Viking 2's orbiter counters theories that Mars' polar regions are composed mostly of frozen carbon dioxide gas, with only traces of water. Water is generally considered a basic ingredient for the evolution of life.

"I think this shows a much stronger possibility for past life than for present life," said Farmer. "I think future tests will now hold more significance in detailed studies of the polar regions."

Viking 2's orbiter discovered water by using an atmospheric spectrometer to measure the absorption of infrared light by molecules at the planet's north pole, Farmer said.

Tobias Owen, an astronomy professor, said the presence of frozen water at the Martian north pole may mean that organic molecules — the building blocks of life — or actual life forms are frozen in the Martian icecaps "much like on earth where we have dug prehistoric creatures out of the ice."

Farmer said he believes that great quantities of ice were melted by volcanoes erupting sometime in Mars' past, sending rivers cascading across the planet's surface, cutting wide channels.

From there, water probably was absorbed into the Martian soil, Farmer said, where it is now locked in permafrost.

Most of the water that dissipated into the air probably condensed at the north pole, while the rest boiled off into space, he speculated.

Farmer said this theory is supported by the discovery by Viking 2's lander of the rare gases krypton and xenon. They indicate that the Martian atmosphere was once dense enough for water to flow on the surface.

"But whether that was 100 million years ago or three billion, there's just no way of telling yet," said Tobias Owen, an astronomy proessor who supervised the rare-gas test.

He said that question should be answered by Viking mission geologists sometime in November.

The Viking 2 lander is conducting tests of Martian soil for possible traces of organic compounds that could indicate the presence of life. Viking 1's lander made similar tests which suggested the possibility of life forms, but they were inconclusive.

Crime continues upward

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thefts increased 11 per cent and violent crimes declined 6 per cent as the over-all U.S. crime rate edged upward during the first six months of this year, the FBI reported today.

Of the seven crime categories measured by the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, theft was the only one showing an increase nationally. But that 11 per cent jump boosted the over-all crime rate 3 per cent, compared with the same period in 1975.

The FBI statistics are based on the number of crimes reported by 9,160 state and local law enforcement agencies. Other studies, however, have shown that the number of crimes reported to police is far lower than the number actually committed.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi noted that the 3 per cent overall increase is much less than the 13 per cent surge in the first half of 1975, compared with the same period a year earlier.

"While the trend is encouraging," he said, "there remains a net increase in serious crime — a clear reminder that all segments of the criminal justice system must continue working to solve the problem."

Nationally: the FBI reported that murder was down 12 per cent, rape and assault each declined 1 per cent, robbery dropped 10 per cent, burglary dropped 5 per cent and motor vehicle thefts fell 3 per cent.

The sharp increases in theft occurred in all population categories and in all parts of the country. The surge ranged from 5 per cent in Western states to 18 per cent in the Northeast, and from 9 per cent in cities between 500,000 and one million in population to 16 per cent in cities over one million.

Murder and robbery declined in all population categories.

Lady Bird hurt

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson said today she was "distressed, hurt and perplexed" by Jimmy Carter's remarks about her late husband in a magazine interview.

Mrs. Johnson's statement was made through her secretary, Betty Tilson, who said it was issued after Carter talked to the widow of the late president to apologize for the remarks.

In an interiew with Playboy magazine Carter had linked Presidents Johnson and Richard Nixon, saying they lied, cheated and distorted the truth.

Mrs. Tilson said, "Mrs. Johnson would say only that she was 'distressed, hurt and perplexed' and that's all she would say.

"I do know that he (Carter) called her but I don't know what took place in that conversation. I don't even know if he offered her an apology."

Debate score card offered

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Want to keep your own score of tonight's debate between President Ford and Jimmy Carter?

Want to compare notes with the experts?

Here's how.

Five leading university debate coaches will judge the debate for The Associated Press.

You can score the debate yourself, using the same kind of scorecard the experts are using, and compare your results with theirs, when they are reported in Friday afternoon's edition.

The judging panel is using a scorecard modeled after the form used by the American Forensic Association for student competition.

Prof. James J. Unger, director of forensics at Georgetown University in Washington, prepared the accompanying ballot and the instructions for its use. Unger, whose teams have reached the final round of every major national debate tournament, is a graduate of Harvard Law School and will serve as one of the panelists.

The other panelists are:

Dr. Barbara O'Connor, chairman of the Department of Communications Studies at California State University, Sacramento. She directs one of the largest speech programs in the nation.

Dr. Donn Parson, director of forensics at the University of Kansas. His team won the national intercollegiate debate championship in April.

Prof. William Soutworth, director of forensics at the University of Redlands in Redlands, Calif. His teams have the most successful record in the Far West.

Prof. Melissa Maxcy Wade, director of forensics at Emory University in Atlanta. She is director of the largest debate tournament in the South.

The debate scorecard uses a point system of evaluating Ford and Carter on each of six aspects of their performance.

In addition, each of the panelists will briefly explain his or her evaluations.

Here is the Associated Press ballot you can use to score tonight's debate between Jimmy Carter and President Ford:

Whatever happened to civil defense?

While America sleeps, the USSR is constantly improving and refining its Civil Defense system against a possible atomic war.

The difference between USA and USSR defenses was clearly spelled out by Lt. Gen. Daniel Graham, former head of the U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency (the DIA) in a recent interveiw by the Reader's Digest magazine.

General Graham explained that while the Soviets are building their armed and civilian forces to fight and to survive an atomic war, we pursue a policy of "deterrence" to such a war. As a result, fully 75 per cent of the national resources of the Soviet Empire are given to preparation for war, with only 25 per cent going to the production of civilian goods and the services sector. And while the Communists spend over a billion dollars a year for civil defense, the U.S. Congress had allocated for that purpose less money than we spend on the running of the private office of the President.

General Graham told the Digest that "About 20 million young Russians receive civil defense training every summer as part of their annual war games. Sample exercises are: convoy evacuation practice at Leningrad; the adaptation of large refrigerator ships for evacuating the population of Sevastopol; the nation - wide organization of ambulance and bus convoys to carry the sick away from major cities; and, in rural areas, readiness tests for people assigned to receive evacuees from the cities."

Surely, an adequate and functional civil defense program in the United States would be an added deterrent (if we insist that "deterrence" is our policy) against a possible strike by the USSR. To put it another way, the Communists will be far less likely to launch the bombs against us if they know that we are prepared. By being unprepared, we invite attack.

Most of us can remember when Civil Defense was very much a part of American life. We were provided with voluminous information on survival techniques, and thousands of Americans built fall - out shelters in their homes, complete with air ventilation equipment and supplies of food and water.

Isn't it about time to get our Civil Defense preparedness program back on the track?

Criminals finally blamed

What has been called a major new study of the causes of crime amounts almost to heresy by today's crazy standards.

"The Criminal Personality," by psychiartist Samuel Yochelson and clinical psycholgist Stanton E. Samenow, actually blames crime on criminals instead of society.

The authors in fact state flatly that the belief that mental illness, a poor home environment or other factors outside the control of the individual are responsible for criminal behavior are "simply excuses." What is needed to combat crime, they say, is not so much society's improvement or conventional therapy but an offender's "conversion" to an entirely new lifestyle, along with a rigorous moral education.

They reached their conclusions, which is the opposite of the one with which they began, on the basis of 15 years of investigation of criminal offenders at St. Elizabeth's a government - run hospital in Washington.

The researchers at first used traditional psychiatric methods, but eventually realized that the criminals were making fools of them. They then abandoned permissiveness and "understanding" for a much more judgmental approach in intensive sessions of "moral inventory." Instead of trying to allay feelings of guilt, they attempted to bring out a criminal's latent disgust with himself, at the same time indicating a willingness to work with him.

In the process they discovered that there is no such thing as a "first offender."

"The criminal gets away with far more than is ever known by anyone else," they say. "By the time he is apprehended, he has more than likely committed hundreds, if not thousands, of offenses."

It is not clear how many St. Elizabeth patients were successfully converted from crime. Also, the question of how society is to accomplish the wholesale, rehabilitation of the tens of thousands of offenders in its prisons, where they are in daily contact with fellow criminals, remains unanswered.

But it is encouraging to learn that some criminologists are beginning to realize that there is only so much society can do, and that the true rehabilitation of the criminal personality must proceed from the criminal himself.

Soviets pressured in Mideast

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 — Ironically, Russia is getting a gruff dose of its own medicine in the turbulent Middle East.

It is being baldly squeezed by Egypt — only a few years ago the Soviets' principal Arab cohort and major weapons customer. Then Moscow called the tune, and Cairo paid heed.

Now it's the other way around.

Egypt is brusquely nudging Russia, and the latter is warily minding its tongue and watching its step.

That's what is really behind Sadat's bristling saber - rattling and massing of troops on the Libyan border.

The oil-rich, sparsley populated domain of strongman Muammar Quaddafi is not the real target of the war - threatening muscle flexing. While Sadat has a number of personal and other scores to settle with frenetic Quaddafi, the Egyptian ruler has his eye on bigger stakes.

He is putting the heat on the Soviet Union by menacing Quaddafi with armed intervention.

For Russia that would be a virtual cataclysm for a variety of reasons.

Primary reason for Moscow's dire discomfiture is of its own making.

It has built up an immense stockpile of armaments in Libya — which Qaddafi couldn't remotely hold on to if someone grabbed for them.

With an army of only around 25,000, with no fighting experience, and an insignificant air force with untried pilots, Libya is no match for any country in the Middle East — least of all Egypt, largest and most massively armed.

Further, there are around 1,500 Soviet military personnel in Libya — "advisers," technicians, mechanics to maintain and keep an eye on the vast arsenal.

In the event of war, they would be caught squarely in the middle.

That would put Russian agonizingly on the spot on what to do about them — to bring them out forcibly or leave them to their fate. While the latter is hardly likely, rescuing them would assuredly risk perilous repercussions.

Qaddafi is venomously in the bad books of most of the Arab rulers — with good reason.

Sadat, neighboring Sudan's President Numeiri, Tunisian President Mabib Bourgiba, Jordan's King Hussein, Moroccan King Hassan and other Arab leaders have all publicly accused Qaddafi of trying to murder them.

Only several weeks ago, a group of terrorists hijacked an Egyptian plane and ordered it to fly to Libya. When overcome by Egyptian commandos, the guerrillas attributed the attack to Qaddafi, saying they had been promised $250,000 if they forced the Egyptian aircraft to land in Libya.

This was the second terrorist outrage in August charged to Qaddafi. On Aug. 11, PLO killers threw hand grenades at passengers boarding an Israeli airliner in Istanbul. Later, one captured by Turkish police laid the affair at Qaddafi's doorstep.

There is little doubt the fanatical Libyan strongman's suppression or outright elimination would be welcomed throughout the Middle East.

Gigantic Arsenal

The immense stockpile of Soviet arms now in Libya verges on the unreal.

Ranging from automatic rifles to some 1,200 T-62 tanks, sophisticated missiles and several more late - model jet fighter bombers, their cost runs into billions and they are enough to equip some 75,000 combat troops and a sizable air force.

The estimated $4.5 billion price tag put on this vast arsenal is particularly remarkable because only a few years ago Qaddafi was virulently anti - Communist. He rated Russia second only to Israel in his hates. Yet now he and Moscow are cheek by jowl.

In fact, due to the huge weapons arsenal, he is to a considerable extent a Soviet "captive."

In large measure, Moscow is really calling the tune. Qaddafi is doing the sputtering and fulminating, plotting and conspiring and financing and instigating PLO and other terrorist atrocities and lunacies. But the Kremlin has the final say.

Sole reason for the Soviets' giant buildup of combat hardware in Libya is for use against Israel.

That's why Qaddafi swallowed his professed hatred of Communism and readily lent himself to playing Moscow's game of seeking the destruction of Israel. As between two abhorrences, Qaddafi hates Israel more than Communist Russia.

But whether it works out that way is another question.

Events in the Middle East (the tragic Lebanon catastrophe, Syria's harsh crackdown on the Palestinians, the Israeli - Egyptian agreement on Sinai) are setting forces and trends into motion that are unpredictable.

It could be that Qaddafi and his come - lately Russian pals may find themselves out in the cold holding the bag.

Hard To Believe

Affairs at the United Nations get curiouser and curiouser!

Head of the UN Security Council for this month is Mansur Rashid Kikhis, so - called permanent representative of Libya at the international organization. For September, Kikhis will preside over this key UN body.

How that squares with the basic UN tenet of keeping peace in the world is unexplained.

Letters to Editor

Editor:

I have just learned that the women who work in the Tax Office are not allowed to wear pant suits to work. I cannot understand what Mr. Back's idea is in not allowing the women who work in his office to wear what they feel comfortable in.

I am a working woman and I can imagine how these ladies feel, especially in cold weather, having to wear dresses.

I think it should be called to his attention that he lives in America, where freedom abounds, and where working women should be allowed to choose for themselves what to wear to work.

I am in complete sympathy with these women.

(Name on file)

Editor:

I just returned from the office of Jack Back, Tax Assessor - Collector, and have a complaint. My complaint is not because of the service I received; it was very courteous and efficient.

My complaint is that the women that work in that office are not allowed to wear pants - suits. I understand Mr. Back will not allow his employees to wear pants to work. They have to wear dresses. I am a working woman myself, and I feel the women that work for Gray County should have the freedom of choice to wear either pants or dresses; whichever they prefer. I understand even the women in the Federal courts in Amarillo are allowed to wear pants to work — they are now a way of life.

What is Mr. Back's idea behind this? Is Gray County that far back in the dark ages? A woman can still maintain her identify and not necessarily lose her charm with pants on.

Mr. Editor, please publish this before cold weather comes — we want everyone to be comfortable.

(Name on file)

Editor:

It has been brought to my attention that the ladies in the Tax Department are not allowed to wear pants suits to work. As a taxpayer I wish to offer my opposition to this matter.

If Mr. Back is so old - fashioned in his views, maybe he should be replaced when election time rolls around again. As a working lady I can certainly vouch for the comfort of pant suits and I think that the ladies in the tax department, or any other department, should be given the choice, without any repercussions on the part of the Department Head, of whether to wear pant suits or dresses.

MISSOURI DEBATE:

Competency tests for high school graduates?

By MAX RAFFERTY

Missouri's state board of education has been brooding and meditating over a proposal to require graduating high school seniors to pass a competency test in reading, writing and arithmetic before they could walk off with the coveted sheepskin on commencement day.

Board member Dale Thompson puts it this way: "A high - school diploma needs to mean something. Is it too severe to say that nobody deserves a high school diploma unless he has certain basic skills in reading and writing?"

If you're asking me, sir, the answer is a loud, reverberating "No!" If you're asking the parents and taxpayers of the nation, the response is identical and downright deafening. But if you're asking Missouri's education commissioner Arthur Mallory, the reply is a tremulous and highly equivocal "Maybe."

"Requirements for such a statewide testing system would have to be very low if the test were to be fair to all students," quoth commissioner Mallory, backing and filling and pawing the ground nervously.

To which I ask simply, "Why?"

How are we being "fair" to all students by reducing a serious test of basic competence to the status of a hallow joke?

Why shouldn't everybody be required to measure up before everybody gets a diploma?

And if you're worried about minority and inner city children not being able to pass the tests and get the diplomas, commissioner, shouldn't the solution to their problem be the upgrading and improvement or the teaching in the ghetto schools rather than the emasculation of the testing requirements? Whom are you trying to kid? Either they know how to read, wrote and cipher or they don't. Where they happen to live is totally irrelevant. A child can be taught to read if he lives in a mud hut, an igloo or in a space capsule, for that matter.

It may console the Missouri board that it's going to be in pretty good company if it perseveres in its effort to exhume and to revive that well - nigh forgotten little word "standards."

In Duval County, Fla., all the public elementary school pupils were tested last May 10 to determine whether they had learned enough reading and mathematics to warrant promotion to a higher grade. The Florida folks had no problem in establishing minimum standards, and I'm sure would be glad to share their findings with you Missourians.

Then there's good old Chicago. Beginning last June, superintendent Albert Briggs began requiring eighth - graders in 19 schools under his supervision to read at sixth - grade level before they were allowed to enter high school. Of 296 such students in his district, only 26 could read at even seventh - grade level as of last spring. Said Briggs grimly: "We have to start somewhere."

Yea, verily, brother. And high time, I may add.

Finally, Philadelphia's new "fundamental" school will require its pupils — as in Duval County — to "pass minimum requirement examinations before passing on to the next grade."

(I'm quoting a recent wire service story on the Philadelphia experiment, pausing every few words to lay down my goose quill and applaud.)

So I'm urging the Missouri state board to grit its collective teeth, hunker down, lay back its ears and weather the howlings, rantings, screechings, bawlings and sundry Macedonian cries and ululations which I'm sure are currently emanating from the Show-Me State's educational Establishment.

You are not alone, brethren. So while you're at it, why not show everybody?

Energy specialist John Dawkins

Future fuels displayed

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

Energy problems and energy solutions are attracting a lot of attention in a two - trailer exhibit on display at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo through Saturday.

The exhibit is making its Texas debut in Amarillo and John Dawkins, PhD candidate in communications, is one of two men traveling with the exhibit to answer the public's questions and observe its reaction.

Energy, Dawkins said, "is big in the schools and lots of kids are interested in it."

But while the young people might have more background in the energy crisis, Dawkins said the display is designed to acquaint the "average" person with problems and hopes on the energy scene.

Most people, Dawkins said, are unaware of scope of waste of energy before they tour the two trailers.

He said that visitors repeatedly express surprise that 50 per cent of the gas to a stove is used to fuel the pilot light, or that 90 per cent of petroleum's energy value is lost in refining.

Other people, Dawkins said, appear interested in solar power for their homes. And in this part of the country, he added, there is a very large interest in harnessing the power of the wind which is a constant companion on the plains.

"We went through our total supply of pamphlets on wind power the first day," Dawkins said.

He said that the energy crisis "could be a rip-off by some oil companies, but everything runs out. It is underground, but it is not infinite. The important thing to know is that it (fossil fuels) won't last forever."

And that knowledge that fossil fuels will run out is viewed with optimism by Dawkins who said that the display shows how alternate energy sources may be developed and used.

"It takes 10 years to build a reactor," Dawkins said. "We just can't do it overnight. Americans are really not used to a time lag."

Most young people, Dawkins said, have accepted the "idea that new sources of energy and conservation are married." The two - trailer exhibit is geared spreading that idea among all age groups.

As visitors reach the end of the energy problem exhibits in the first trailer, they turn the corner — literally and figuratively — into a second trailer filled with possible solutions to those problems.

Static and moving displays take visitors on a mind - bending — but probable — journey into the future so they can see just how those appliances will be powered once the oil and coal are gone.

Visitors become acquainted with nuclear fission which is already in use in some nuclear power plants around the country as well as nuclear fusion — a process which Dawkins said is much more powerful than fission, does not require a radioactive fuel, and which will not be in operation until the 21st century.

Most of the new energy sources — things like geothermal wells — occur in the western United States, Dawkins said, which is one reason for the concentration of nuclear power facilities in the East.

"It's because they don't have alternate sources," Dawkins said.

He also predicted that as old fuels are depleted and new energy sources are developed the country can expect more bickering between states which don't have the energy sources and those which do.

Development of the new sources will also require re-evaluation of the land.

Dawkins said that many people are "not up to date" in their energy knowledge and are guilty of using "old information" in evaluating proposed solutions.

An exhibit like the energy trailers is "one of the few opportunities to give the average public the correct information," Dawkins said.

More than 8,300 persons visited the exhibit Monday and a check at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday showed that 1,600 had toured the trailers.

The numbers of visitors, Dawkins said, is an indication of the public's concern over the energy situation.

The public knows, he said, that when conventional energy sources are gone "you better have something or you'll be cold and you'll be in the dark."

Waste products and pollution, he added, are "one of the prices we have to pay for a throwaway society."

The trailers are equipped by the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration. The exhibit, based out of Richland, Wash., is one of five such displays in existence and is the only one operating west of the Mississippi River. It is staffed by the Northwest College and University Association for Science.

CATHEDRAL RESTORED

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The 181-year-old St. Louis Cathedral has been renovated at a cost of $950,000 as part of the New Orleans Catholic Archdiocese's Bicentennial Observance.

All the interior walls and ceilings were repainted, with light tones replacing dark colors. Art specialists restored paintings and replaced deteriorating portraits of the apostles on the vaulted ceiling.

To complement the scrolls and curlicues in the ceiling and arches at each end of the church, chandeliers were added to replace the drum-type light fixtures.

As a finishing touch, the organ was rebuilt, and its pipes were restored and replaced.

'How much is that cookie in the window?'

So near and yet so far, these girls appear to be thinking as they look longingly at cakes, cookies and other delectable baked goods kept behind glass at the Tri - State Fair in Amarillo. Two - year - old Debbie Bright and Brenda Bright, 4, both of Amarillo, visited the fair Tuesday. The top entries in the annual exposition's culinary and textile divisions are on display through Saturday in the Art and Agriculture Building. Area winners in the show were reported in The Pampa News Wednesday.

Meany may retire next year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top officials close to AFL-CIO President George Meany say there is a strong possibility that Meany will retire next year after more than 20 years as head of the giant labor federation

Meany, who at 82 remains the dominant force in the American labor movement, has been slow to recover from a recent illness. Aides say that while his basic health is good, he has lost his usual vitality and has been forced to curb some activities.

"While he seems in good shape and continues working, you would have to say that at 82, after this illness, there is that possibility" of retirement, said one associate.

Meany added to the speculation when the question was raised during a network television interview Sunday.

"I've not set any date for retirement, but I want to say very frankly that I've given a little more thought to retirement since my recent illness than I had before," he said.

It marked a sharp departure for Meany, whose pat answer had always been that he would retire when either he or the international union presidents felt he could no longer do the job.

The one-time Bronx plumber has kept an iron grip on the 14-million-member federation since 1955 when he brought together the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations. He outplotted, outfoxed and outlasted his opponents and is the sole survivor of the federation's original 35-man executive council.

Meany hasn't discussed his future plans with even his closest associates. But his aides say his physical condition is getting him down. He has been hospitalized twice since February for treatment of a bronchial condition.

"I've often heard him complain before," said one associate. "But this is the first time there is a note of despair in it."

Meany's current two-year term expires in December 1977 when the AFL-CIO holds its next convention. That could provide an occasion for retirement, but there is speculation he may step down sooner, particularly if he can cap his career with a labor-backed victory for Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

Another factor could be a decision next May by the United Auto Workers on rejoining the AFL-CIO. Meany would regard the UAW's return as vindication of his feud with Walter Reuther, who led the auto workers from the AFL-CIO in 1968. Reuther died in a plane crash in 1970.

Often mentioned as a possible successor to Meany is Lane Kirkland, 54, the federation's secretary-treasurer and Meany's most trusted associate since 1960. Although Kirkland lacks a power base that some labor chiefs believe is necessary to hold on to the job, there are presently no other union leaders on the executive council believed to have built any strength outside their own union.

HS rodeo begins tonight

Tri-State high school rodeo action will begin at 8 p.m today at the Top o' Texas Rodeo Arena when the first of 240 contestants compete in an 11-event program.

Bog Skaggs, advisor of the Pampa High School Rodeo Club, said the contestants will come from New Mexico, Kansas, Oklahoma and from as far south as Lubbock in the Texas Panhandle.

Skaggs added that a comparison of this year's entries with records from past years shows the 1976 rodeo will be "the largest one ever."

"Most of the 240 contestants are entered in at least two events," Skaggs said.

Stock contractor is James Martin of Spearman and judges will be Peeler Haning of Fritch and Ed Jessup of Hereford.

Both judges, Skaggs, said, have professional rodeo experience and they have competed on bulls and broncs on the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association circuit.

"They have many years experience," Skaggs said.

The Tri-State high school rodeo year begins "about July 1," Skaggs said. The Pampa date is one of the early rodeos of the season which will include 28 contests.

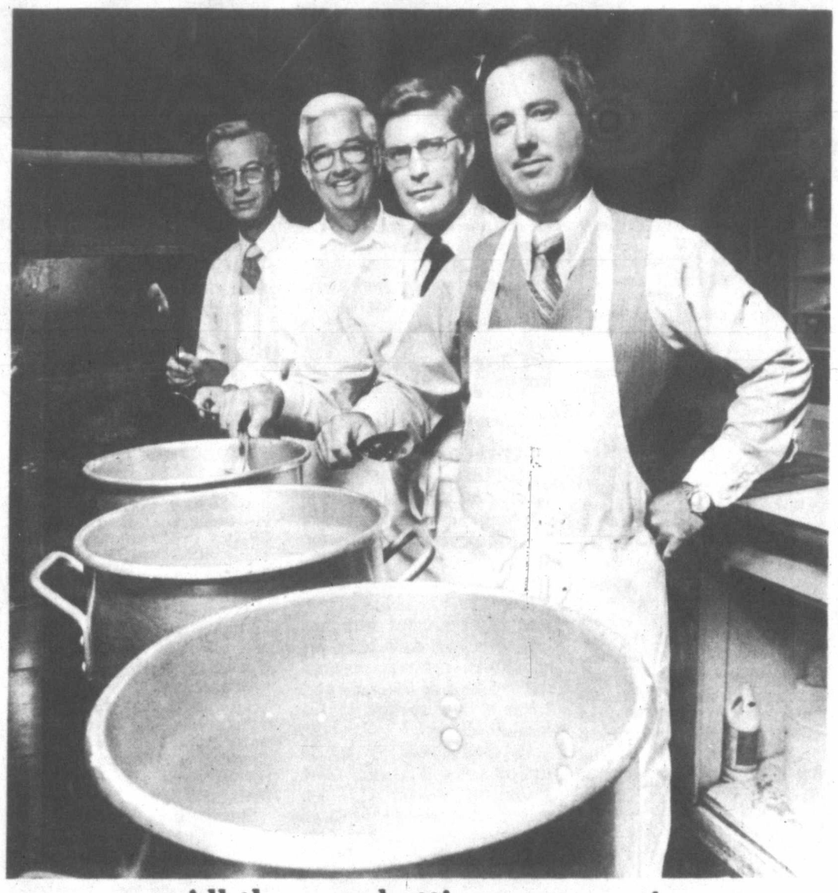

The Pampa High School club is the largest club by membership in the Tri - State district, Skaggs said.

Contestants will compete in bull riding, bareback bronc riding, calf roping, bull dogging, team roping, barrel racing, pole bending, ribbon roping, goat tying, breakaway roping and steer riding.

Skaggs estimated that 35 of the 240 contestants will be from Pampa. Competition will be for one go-round.

Performances will be at 8 p.m today through Saturday and there will be a 1 p.m. matinee on Saturday.

Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students, Skaggs said.

All the spaghetti you can eat

The Choir Booster Club of Pampa High School is sponsoring a spaghetti supper Friday night before the Harvester - Borger football game. Serving will be between 5 and 8 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Tickets are $2. Among the chefs will be, from left, Bob Carmichael, Dick Stowers, Lee Fraser and Eddie Duenkel.

Judge okays utility tax

CARTHAGE, Tex. (AP) — State District Court Judge Frank Wear of Paris has denied Texas Utilities a temporary injunction in the company's efforts to stop Panola County from taxing its lignite property at $340 per acre.

Texas Utilities, the parent company of Dallas Power & Light, Texas Power & Light and Texas Electric Service Co., has filed suit against the county in protest of a $340 per acre assessment placed on its lignite holdings by the county's board of equalization.

According to Panola County Atty. Joe Jackson, Judge Wear denied TU's request on the basis that the giant utility had not filed a plan which entitled the company to a temporary injunction now.

Jackson said Panola County is now free to continue preparation of the tax rolls and to assess lignite property at the $340 per acre figure.

However, he added, Texas Utilities, has until July 1 before it would actually have to pay these taxes before they are declared delinquent.

Jackson said the lawsuit come come to trial before then, although no trial date has been set.

Texas Utilities filed suit against Paonola County Sept. 10 and the case has been placed on the jury docket to be heard at judge Wear's convenience.

TU spokesman Dick Ramsey of Dallas concurred with Jackson.

"Although we would have liked to have the injunction, this decision will have no effect on the final outcome of the lawsuit."

Ramsey said the judge had indicated there was not enough evicence to warrant an injunction but assured Texas Utilities that it had done everything "necessary to assure our rights have been preserved."

When Texas Utilities announced it would file suit against Panola County and the Beckville Independent School District, a TU spokesman siad the main objection was the taxation of lignite which had not yet been mined.

Texas Utilities rendered its property at $1 per acre on the premise that lignite or any other mineral has no absolute value until it is taken from the ground.

GOP selects Venora Cole for JP slot

Mrs. Venora Cole, daughter of the late Mr. E.L. Anderson, has accepted the Republication nomination for the justice of the peace slot vacated at the Sept. 10 death of her father.

Mrs. Cole is currently serving as court - appointed justice of peace.

She and Peggy Baker had applied to the Democratic executive committee for the nomination but it went to Mrs. R.W. McPhillips.

Two years remain of the four - year term.

"Since we think she's the better qualified candidate we're happy to back her," said GOP representative Joe Curtis.

Dr. Julian Key added "We feel she's doing a fine job and we believe she'll continue." The decision was made at a Wednesday luncheon.

Carter to visit Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter visits Texas Friday and a co-chairman of his Texas campaign says the candidate's comments in a Playboy Magazine interview might actually help him in the state.

Carter will campaign in Houston and Dallas and his combined time in both cities is expected to be less than six hours.

He will speak at a noon rally in downtown Houston and then move on to Dallas for a late afternoon speech and a fund—raising reception before departing for the West Coast.

Calvin Guest and Bob Armstrong, co-chairman of the Carter Texas campaign, said Wednesday Carter will return to Texas and that his vice presidential running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, also will campaign in the state.

Armstrong, state land commissioner, was asked about Carter's "adultery in my heart" statement to Playboy.

"What you are really seeing, maybe uniquely for the first time, is a candidate who is willing to be absolutely candid, absolutely open," Armstrong said. "The fact that he agreed to do that interview showed strength.

"I don't know whether we are ready to accept that kind of candor as a nation. We'll just have to see whether it makes a difference. It should have a positive effect because it is time for people to level with us."

Guest, state Democratic Party chairman, said Carter's remark to the Playboy interviewer that one committed adultery in his heart if he looked lustfully at a woman was "perfectly biblical."

"It is in the Bible, in Matthew, the Sermon on the Mount . . . I think we do have a man who is very honest and candid," Guest said.

The Dallas Times Herald reported that Carter personally apologized to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson for comments he made about the late President Johnson in the Playboy interview.

Carter apologizes to Mrs. Johnson

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter has apologized to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson for comments he made about the late president in an interview in Playboy magazine, but other Johnson Democrats said they were offended by the comments.

The official party line today, however, remained one of unity and it was stressed Wednesday at news conferences by Texas Democratic cochairmen Calvin Guest and Bob Armstrong, who are running Carter's campaign in Texas.

Carter is scheduled to arrive in Texas Friday for quick campaign visits to Houston and Dallas.

Guest declined to answer direct questions on Carter's comments about Mrs. Johnson's late husband.

Mrs. Johnson was in San Antonio Wednesday to meet Rosalynn Carter who came to Texas on a two-day campaign trip for her husband.

In the Playboy interview Carter described Johnson, along with former President Richard Nixon, as "lying, cheating and distorting the truth." His complete statement was: "But I don't think I would ever take on the same frame of mind that Nixon or Johnson did—lying, cheating and distorting the truth. Not taking into consideration my hope for my strength of character. I think that my religious beliefs alone would prevent that from happening to me. I have that confidence. I hope it's justified."

Carter press secretary Jody Powell said Carter telephoned Mrs. Johnson at her home after reading the quotes contained in the November issue of the magazine.

"He called to express his regrets about the story and in particular that implicating that he considered Nixon and Johnson were in the same category," Powell said.

Powell said Carter was not trying to make excuses for the statement, but apologizing for it.

Powell said the point Carter was making was, "We all have our shortcomings and because of that we ought not to judge others too harshly for their mistakes. And I am sure his hope was that Mrs. Johnson would accept his regrets and apology in that spirit."

Armstrong and Guest told the Wednesday news conferences that Texas Democrats were united behind the Carter campaign effort.

Smith shows British plan for blacks to his party

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith held a crucial meeting today with members of his party to submit the British-American plan for black majority rule in Rhodesia for their approval.

Smith emerged from the session at midday and told newsmen "I got a good reception." But he gave no indication if the ruling all-white Rhodesian Front party would accept the plan.

The party has rejected two previous British proposals for passing power from Rhodesia's 278,000 whites to its 6.4 million blacks.

Smith said there was "realistic talking from all of the members," and said the caucus would meet again after lunch to "think over the tremendous problems that confront us."

He added that any decision made by the caucus would not be announced until "hopefully tomorrow evening."

The prime minister scheduled a radio-television broadcast Friday to outline his white-minority regime's position on the plan, proposed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in talks with Smith last weekend in South Africa.

Smith, who reportedly told Kissinger he would recommend approval of the plan, ended two days of conferences with his 20-member cabinet Wednesday.

He gave no indication of the cabinet's reaction, saying the decision would be made by the caucus, which holds 75 per cent of the 66 seats in Parliament.

Smith was expected to encounter resistance from hardliners still adamantly opposed to handing over power to Rhodesia's 6 million blacks, who outnumber the whites 22-to-1.

Kissinger's African mission ran into new obstacles Wednesday. A top Rhodesian black nationalist said the Rhodesia plan had "very serious flaws," and the vice president of neighboring Mozambique said his government would not support it.

Joshua Nkomo, head of the African National Council faction inside Rhodesia, said in Lusaka, Zambia, that he could not discuss the "flaws" publicly until he had met with the leaders of other factions that are waging guerrilla war against the Smith government. But he said parts of the plan were "ambiguous" and could be distorted by Smith, whom he called "a professional twister and a professional distorter."

"What is done next will hinge on what is done about the flaws," said Nkomo, who has met with Kissinger three times during the secretary's current African trip.

Mozambique Vice President Marcellino dos Santos, also in Lusaka, said his Marxist government has no interest in Kissinger's African peace shuttle and does not support his peace proposals for Rhodesia and South-West Africa, the South African territory where black insurgents are also trying to end white rule.

Stabbing death investigated in Perryton

PERRYTON — Law enforcement officers in Ochiltree County are continuing their investigation of the stabbing death of a 23 - year - old local woman Wednesday.

Mrs. Loura Lou Buck's nude body was discovered about 8 a.m. Wednesday after a neighbor notified authorities that Mrs. Buck's three children were screaming and crying inside the mobile home.

She was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Hardy Hulsie. Officers here who found the body said Mrs. Buck had been stabbed at least twice in the chest. They estimated she had been dead about five hours.

Ochiltree County Sheriff Ray Phagan said an autopsy in Amarillo had been ordered to determine if the woman had been raped.

Buck, a construction worker, was working in Capitan, N.M. when the stabbing occurred.

Harrises to be arraigned

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The cross-country drama of Patricia Hearst returns to the college community where it began, as William and Emily Harris appear in court charged with kidnaping her 2½ years ago.

Their arraignment today on a 19-count complaint comes just one day before the newspaper heiress herself goes into federal court across the bay in San Francisco to be sentenced for a bank robbery conviction.

The Municipal Court site of the Harrises' arraignment is a few miles from the apartment where Miss Hearst, then a 19-year-old sophomore at the University of California, was kidnaped by members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army on Feb. 4, 1974.

Attorney Susan Jordan said she would ask Judge Wilmont Sweeney that the Harrises, both avowed SLA members, be given a preliminary hearing instead of being subject to grand jury indictment.

The Alameda County Grand Jury is scheduled to begin hearing evidence Monday against the Harrises — including the testimony of Miss Hearst. Officials said Wednesday they planned to install partitions on the second-floor grand jury wing of the county courthouse to shield the 45 scheduled witnesses from public view.

A grand jury indictment would replace the original criminal complaint and send the case to Superior Court with no preliminary hearing. The distinction is important to the Harris defense because witnesses can be cross-examined at a preliminary hearing, but not at a grand jury hearing.

The Harrises have been transferred to separate jails in Oakland from state prisons where they are serving 11-year-to-life terms for kidnaping, robbery and car theft in a Los Angeles crime spree. Miss Hearst also is charged in that case but has not been tried.

She faces sentencing Friday by U.S. District Court Judge William H. Orrick Jr. for armed bank robbery and the use of a firearm in a felony. She was convicted by a jury last March 20, then sent to the San Diego Metropolitan Correction Center for a psychiatric evaluation for use in sentencing.

Her sentence could range from a minimum of jail time already served and probation up to a maximum 35 years in prison.

Miss Hearst, after being dragged kicking and screaming from her apartment, later announced through tape recordings that she had joined her captors in their revolutionary cause.

Most of her new comrades were killed in a fiery Los Angeles shootout with police in the spring of 1975, after which she hid out in California, Pennsylvania and other states. She and the Harrises were captured in San Francisco on Sept. 18, 1975.

The 19-count complaint against the Harrises includes charges that they kidnaped a man and used his car as a getaway vehicle for the Hearst abduction, that they assaulted Miss Hearst's then-fiance and a neighbor, and that they fired several shots as they fled.

Texas weather

By Associated Press

Texas basked in mild and pleasant weather today.

Except for occasional high clouds in the south part of the state, skies were cloudless. Chances were seen for a few showers and thunderstorms in extreme West Texas late tonight.

Temperatures near sunrise ranged from 53 degrees at Marfa in the far west and 54 at Dalhart in the Panhandle up to 70 at Galveston on the coast. Three cities shared the state's top mark of 89 degrees Wednesday—Alice, Brownsville and McAllen in the south.

Another cool night was in prospect with overnight temperatures from the 40s in the West Texas high country to the 50s and 60s elsewhere.

National weather

By The Associated Press

Frost or freeze warnings went up for tonight in the eastern Dakotas, northern Minnesota and western and northern Wisconsin.

A frost warning also was posted for the mountains and deeper valleys of western Pennsylvania.

Some showers and thunderstorms preceded the advance of cold air.

Heavy rain fell in parts of Kansas and Nebraska Wednesday night. Showers were scattered over Michigan, eastern Wisconsin and northern Illinois.

A few widely scattered showers dampened areas in Washington, the northern Rockies and the Florida Coast.

Outside the shower area mostly clear skies prevailed except for considerable cloudiness along parts of the California and Oregon coasts.

Temperatures before dawn varied from 26 at International Falls, Minn., to 84 at Phoenix, Ariz., and Blythe, Calif.

Some other reports: Atlanta 55 clear, Boston 56 clear, Chicago 69 clear, Cincinnati 52 clear, Cleveland 51 cloudy, Detroit 53 showers, Indianapolis 8 clear, Louisville 51 clear, Miami 78 partly cloudy, Nashville 50 clear, New Orleans 62 clear, New York 55 clear, Philadelphia 49 clear, Pittsburgh 45 clear, Washington 52 clear, Anchorage 49 cloudy, Denver 51 clear, Des Moines 66 thunderstorms, Fort Worth 65 clear, Kansas City 69 cloudy, Los Angeles 68 hazy, Minneapolis-St. Paul 50 clear, Phoenix 83 clear, St. Louis 67 clear, Salt Lake City 59 clear, San Diego 72 cloudy, San Francisco 58 clear, Seattle 60 cloudy.

Carrillo found guilty

JOURDANTON, Tex. (AP) — Jurors who convicted Oscar Carrillo of felony theft return today to weigh his punishment.

The panel of eight men and four women jury arrived at a guilty verdict Wednesday night after deliberating six and a half hours.

Carrillo, a former state representative from Duval County, was charged with stealing about $200 worth of postage stamps. Jurors found that he used a meter machine at the Benavides Independent School District office to mail out campaign literature.

Carrillo testified Monday in his own defense. When asked by Asst. Texas Atty. Gen. Gerald Carruth if he believed the charges against him were part of a conspiracy, Carillo yelled, "Everyone and the judge!"

The trial was moved to Jourdanton on a change of venue from Duval County.

Carrillo is a member of a once powerful South Texas political family. His brother, O.P. Carrillo Jr., was removed from office as a district court judge earlier this year.

FLICKER FESTIVAL

LITITZ, Pa. (AP) — Each year since 1843 America's only candle festival has been held in this small Pennsylvania Dutch community.

The event features more than 5,000 candles, placed on wood lattices over a stream in Lititz Springs Park.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our son, Jimmy, a junior in college, has just informed his father and me that he is moving out of the house to live on campus, just 30 minutes from here. He plans to share an apartment with another college student.

We can't understand why he wants to move. He has a lovely big room here, with all the privacy in the world, and it's free. He says he wants "total independence."

Jimmy has always worked and saved his money so we know he can handle it financially. He's a good boy, makes good grades and has never given us any trouble.

He says after he moves, he hopes he'll be welcome to come home for dinner maybe once a week. We assured him he'd be welcome for dinner anytime. Then he asked if he could bring his dirty laundry home for me to do. I said, "No, not as long as you're living somewhere else."

Was I wrong? My husband agrees with me, but my sister doesn't.

BUFFALO MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'm with you. A totally independent person shouldn't rely on his mother for laundry service.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I plan to adopt a baby without friends and relatives knowing it was adopted. We feel that we would be shielding the child from the many embarrassing questions and remarks to which most adopted children are subjected. We plan to announce my "pregnancy" three or four months before we actually bring the child into our home.

Could you please tell us where we could buy some "padding" that actresses wear to make them look like they are carrying a child? Thank you.

FUTURE MOTHER

DEAR FUTURE: Frederick's of Hollywood has foam rubber fannies that look (and feel) like the real thing. Maybe they could come up with a foam rubber tummy.

DEAR ABBY: Where did the custom of kissing a lady's hand originate? And what is the purpose of it?

MADE A BET

DEAR MADE: It originated in France. And I suppose it's as good a place to start as any.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to know about body temperature. Mine is never 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. When I am well it is always 98 degrees.

Since my temperature is never 98.6 degrees I figure that I must have a mild fever whenever it is 98.6 degrees.

DEAR READER — That 98.6 degrees F figure is just an approximation. A person's temperature may vary as much as three degrees in 24 hours and be perfectly normal. The temperature is lowest in the early morning hours while you are sleeping. Since few people take their temperature at that hour this point is not generally recognized.

The temperature is highest in the late afternoon or early evening and it can be as high as 100 degrees F, particularly in active children, in the absence of any medical problem at all. Many mothers get alarmed because their children have temperatures higher than 99 degrees in the afternoon when in fact it is perfectly normal.

I suspect that a temperature of 99 degrees F for you is quite within your normal range but you are correct in assuming that it could be more important in your case than in others. To evaluate a temperature you must know what time of day it is taken and under what circumstances. Having just drunk cold water will lower it or having drunk or eaten hot items will raise it.

To give you a better idea about body temperature I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever. It will also give you some tips on the problems people have with thermometers. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could I have some advice on kidney stones? What causes them? Can these be cured? Also what about a diet? I know a man who has been in and out of the hospital several times with them. The last time the stone could not be removed, but finally he passed it. I would appreciate whatever you can tell me.

DEAR READER — Anyone who has a kidney stone should have a complete medical examination in an effort to determine the cause. They can be caused by medical problems that in turn cause a high level of calcium in the blood. They can occur as a complication of kidney infections.

Other than those formed as a complication of infection there is usually little that you can accomplish by diet. Some doctors do recommend limiting calcium intake but if the increased calcium is from other causes, such as that dissolved out of the bones, that will not help much.

The best recommendation I can give to anyone with kidney stones, other than getting a complete evaluation, is to be sure to drink lots of liquids. If you drink lots of water all through the day so the urine is never concentrated you will have less chance of the minerals clumping and leading to the formation of a stone. How much water should you drink? The important point is to drink whatever amount is needed to cause regular passage of large volumes of urine. In hot weather, or if sweating, that may mean drinking more water than you would on cooler days or when not working.

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with shower curtains that do not have metal grommets in the holes, where the hooks are inserted to hang the curtains. I find this is the first place they start to tear, when the rest of the curtain is in good shape. Having grommets in all shower curtains would certainly be a life saver for us. It seems after a month or two of wear the holes are tearing away. — MARIE.

DEAR POLLY — Like Valentine we had tiles on our floor that had cracked. We used a heat light bulb in an old table lamp that was the right height from the tile to heat it. When a tile became soft enough, we put our bathroom plunger on it. This pulled the tile up without damaging any of those around it. — M.E.S.

DEAR POLLY — The easiest way I have found to remove splinters is to fill a small bottle with hot water, empty it while still hot, put the neck of the bottle over the splinter, hold it tightly until the bottle cools and the splinter should pop out easily. — L.F.

DEAR POLLY — Before starting on a trip, I wet washcloths and put them in a plastic bag. I find they stay damp and can be used for many little cleanups while traveling. This saves money we used to spend buying those pre-dampened paper towels that come in packages. — BARBARA S.

DEAR POLLY — When going to the circus, zoo, fair or on any outing with toddlers along, buy a helium balloon for each child. Tie the string on the blown up balloon to a child's shirt. Not only will the child be able to keep track of the balloon but you will be able to keep track of the child. — MABEL.

DEAR POLLY — If you have trouble spreading stiff cooky dough in a pan, dip the bottom of the spoon in water and use it to spread the dough easily. — S.L.D.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers care of this newspaper.

Communes:

not just for dopers and dropouts, they attract those with common interest looking for economy

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

The commune, once the almost exclusive haven of the drug culture and social dropouts, is slowly re-emerging as a practical way of life for a wider cross-section of Americans.

Communal living is still heavily tinged with religious cultists, far-out dissenters and pursuers of the unconventional. But it's also attracting a scattering of people who have no thought of cutting their ties with the workaday world — ordained ministers, bank executives, schoolteachers, lawyers.

Communes vary tremendously — urban middle-class people trying to save money, homosexuals avoiding the hassles of the straight world, religious zealots trying to establish new Edens. Whatever the style or goal, most members came together because they shared a common interest — a religious belief, a social or political ideology or simply a low bank account.

Some communes are in brownstones and brick buildings in some of the nation's large urban areas. Some are nestled between lookalike houses in middle-class suburban neighborhoods. Others are stretched across acres of farmland or woodland in the South, West and Northeast.

Thus the commune house attorney Ben Richards and his wife Alyce live in with two other married couples isn't that much different from those of their northern New Jersey neighbors. Their commune is designed to save the members on household expenses.

Joan Spielholz, a member of beekeeping commune in the New York Finger Lakes region, lives in a yurt, a circular, domed hut that has no toilet. Her commune seeks to be totally self-sufficient.

The 800 members of Stephen Gaskin's financially independent and successful commune in southwestern Tennessee live in homes they built themselves. They can also call each other on their own push button telephone system.

No one knows just how many Ben Richards', Joan Spielholzes and Stephen Gaskins there are in the United States.

In 1971, the New York Times estimated that over 2,000 communes existed. The Census Bureau thinks this figure has increased substantially.

Here is a look at four communes which represent a variety of aspects of this unconventional, but growing lifestyle:

SUBURBAN: The commune Ben and Alyce Richards live in consists of three married couples and their three children. Their values and practices are very conventional, they say.

Unlike some communes, there is no open nudity. Sexual relations between husband and wife, are just that: between husband and wife in the privacy of their own bedroom. Meals are taken together as a "family" with heads bowed for silent prayer or meditation before eating. Household finances are shared, but individual incomes and investments are privately held.

"What we have is a real live middle-class community under one roof," says Richards, a 33-year-old lawyer. "We have all the benefits of an extended family and some of the handicaps too. Like just plain wanting to be alone sometimes. But we work it out."

The house in the hills of northern New Jersey is actually two ranch-style structures combined by enclosing two carports to form a large family room. There are separate bedrooms for each couple and two for the children.

"I never knew my neighbors," says Roland Stein, 32, as he peels his way through five pounds of shrimp for the evening meal. "Every night I'd go home, and the two of us would make another attempt to get to know the people across the street. It was forced, always forced.

"Finally, Myra and I decided we really didn't want to spend the rest of our lives so isolated.

"The women think all of this has freed them, but I think the men have attained even more. Two years ago it never would have occurred to me to cook. We've come a long way, baby."

RURAL: The idea of learning new ways attracts many to group living. Joan Spielholz, 25, knew nothing about beekeeping before joining Daws Hill, a rural commune in a wooded, Finger Lake farming region.

Mrs. Spielholz, who has a 2½-year-old son, scrapes wax from honey combs while she talks about her experience. Two other Daws Hill members dump the honey into a giant, wooden vat for churning.

"This type of living really suits me in terms of accomplishment," she says, licking a glob of honey from her hand. "We as a group accomplish more than I would as an individual. Of course it means sharing responsibilities but that's okay."

Mrs. Spielholz has lived on the commune for four years. She says it was started in 1969 by political protesters and social resistance people.

Daws Hill hopes to produce about a ton of honey this year. The old, weathered barn across from the commune's main structure, a long cabin, holds two work horses, cows for milking and hundreds of chickens.

The eight commune members live in cabins and yurts. They are building a wind generator for electricity, receiving technical assistance from Cornell University. A well supplies water. There are no toilet facilities.

RELIGIOUS: The dirt farmer neighbors of the 800 or so inhabitants of The Farm in Sumertown, Tenn., are beginning to warm up to the transplanted flower children since their arrival by bus caravan seven years ago.

Perhaps the nation's largest commune, The Farm is run by Stephen Gaskin, a bearded and bespectacled former acid head who got religion and developed his own homespun brand of Christianity that has touches of Buddhism.

The Farm has risen from its soybean fields to a $1.5 million per year enterprise. It has gone from the ninth line on a country telephone party line to its own push button telephone company patched into Ma Bell. It has a trucking company to deliver its produce throughout the nation; a publishing company and printing press that so far has produced a vegetarian cookbook, as well as books on midwifery, the sayings of Stephen and citizens band radio.

"It's a good, strong beginning, but it's just a beginning," says Stephen, who just returned from lunch with the local Rotary Club. "I'd like to see a lot more of these in the country."

The Farm occupies some 1,800 acres. It has grown from the 200 or so original San Francisco dropouts who lived in tents and buses when they first settled, to its current population, who live in well constructed houses.

The Farm has a reputation among commune people all over the country. Its productivity inspires others who have not been able to sustain themselves. But for many, the rigid soybean diet and the adherence to Stephen's thought is difficult to live with.

No one idles on The Farm. Work begins before sunrise. There are construction crews, carpenters, field hands, cooks, plumbers, electricians, machinists, baby sitters, blacksmiths — all trying to make the community work.

Members of The Farm are not paid salaries for their work and live with two or more families sharing one house.

URBAN: Most urban communes aren't as tightly structured as rural communes like The Farm or even Daw Hill. They are often formed for purely economic reasons and are often temporary arrangements.

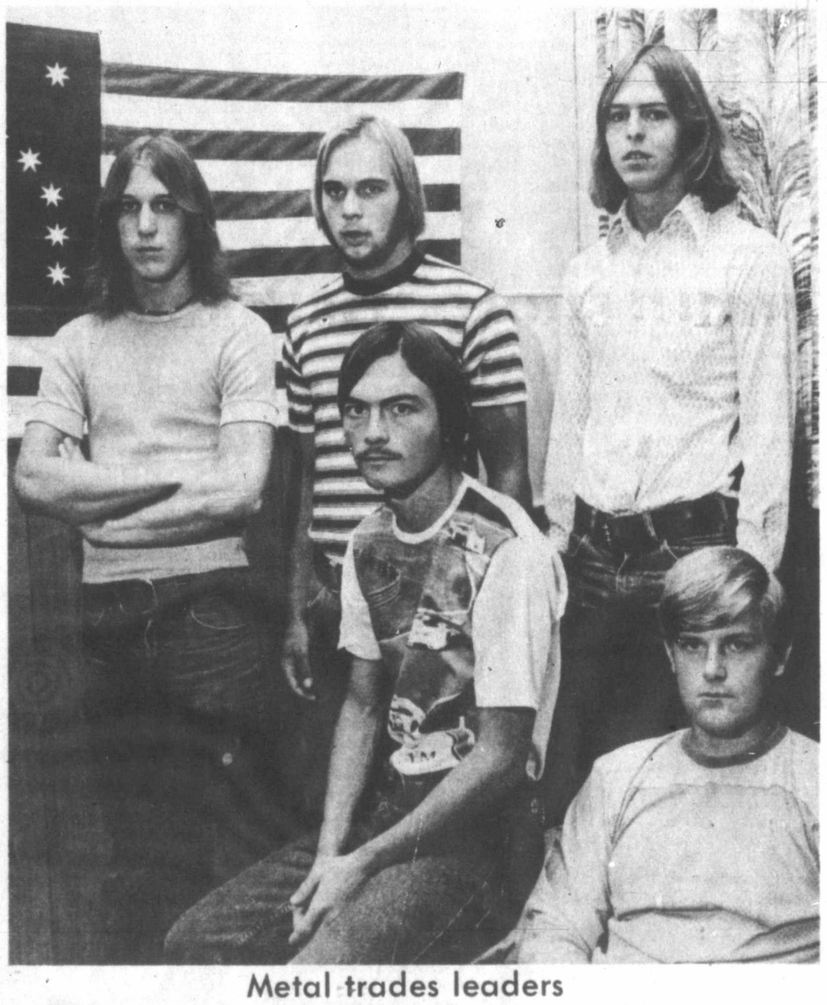

"I don't think we know each other as well as we'd like to or as well as we should," said Sharon, 28, who shares a large frame house with eight other young men and women in the northwest section of Washington, D.C. Sharon, as well as the other members of this commune, asked that her name not be used.

"We've been together for almost two years, and the only times we really see each other is at Saturday night dinner and Sunday brunch," she said.

"I think much of the distance we accuse our suburban parents of committing against their neighbors we now have," added Barry, 20. "Maybe we spent too much time organizing who would pay what and do which chore, instead of coming to grips with who we really are and trying to grow with each other."

Communal living is not easy. Even in the more structured communes — those with some sort of ideological raison d'etre — many members say they won't always live in a group situation. And those who have left communal living point to the heavy workloads and the lack of privacy as reasons for giving up the lifestyle.

But there are plenty who see the commune as simply the only natural place for them to live.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a five-month lapse, "9-30-55" has resumed filming.

The Universal Picture was forced to suspend April 5 when star Richard Thomas broke an ankle in a motorcycle accident. Susan Tyrrell has joined the cast. The title "9-30-55" derives from the date that actor James Dean was killed in a highway accident.

Oriental emphasis creates a stir

By Aileen Claire
Food Editor

The harvest holiday period for the Chinese traditionally begins with the grand appearance of the first full moon of autumn. It combines the theme of romance inspired by lunar presence and one of thanksgiving for fall's bounty. Fall also is harvest time in America and a time of feasting to celebrate. This fall, in addition to the typically American harvest dishes, why not try something different with an Oriental emphasis? This may include circular flat cakes, delicate soups, plump fruits and fresh vegetables for your Moon Festival dinner.

As an entree start with a harvest pepper steak which really is a quick stir-fried dish based upon a pepper steak mix. With this serve fresh zucchini, a Moon Goddess salad of fresh tomato slices and crisp white water chestnuts. Wind up with cupcakes with a yellow icing and crisp American Golden Delicious apples and tea, of course.

HARVEST PEPPER STEAK
- 1 medium zucchini
- 2 tablespoons oil
- 1 large garlic clove, crushed
- 1 pound round steak, 3/4- to 1-inch thick, sliced paper thin
- 1 cup water
- 1/4 cup red wine
- 1 box (2¾ ounces) stir-fry pepper steak mix
- Soy sauce

Cut ends from zucchini. Then cut into strips 2 inches long and one-fourth inch wide; set aside.

In wok or large skillet, heat 1 tablespoon of the oil with the garlic. Add beef and stir-fry until meat loses its red color, 4 to 5 minutes. Remove to bowl. To wok or skillet, add remaining oil. Add zucchini. Stir-fry until tender-crisp, 2 to 3 minutes. Add water, wine and sauce mix from box. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Add drained pepper steak, vegetables and meat. Mix thoroughly and heat through. Serve with soy sauce. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

MOON GODDESS SALAD
- 3 tomatoes, sliced
- 1 can (8½ ounces) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
- 1/4 cup salad oil
- 4½ teaspoons vinegar
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- 1/8 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

Arrange tomato slices in ring around edge of plate. Place water chestnuts in center. Mix remaining ingredients. Pour over tomatoes, cover and refrigerate until serving time. Makes 6 servings.

STIR-FRIED pepper steak and zucchini make entree for harvest moon time.

Smoked turkey dip

AUSTIN–Many persons think of turkey as a meat to be served only for special occasions such as Thanksgiving and Christmas.

But its nutritional value and reasonable price make it ideal for year-round serving.

Smoked turkey is especially appropriate for summer meals. It is especially convenient since it can be served cold.

The Texas Department of Agriculture home economist suggests using leftover smoked turkey in a tempting dip.

Texas Turkey Dip
- 1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 cup smoked Texas turkey, ground or finely chopped
- 1 tsp. onion powder
- Pinch of salt

Combine cream cheese and sour cream. Add remaining ingredients and blend well. Serve as a dip with crackers, tostadas or potato chips. Yield: approximately 2 cups.

Mozzarella meatloaf makes favorite merry

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

There must be something soothing in Italian dishes since so many Americans enjoy versions of Old Country favorites. Since most families still are stretching their food dollars, another good ground beef recipe is in order. This one makes use of canned spaghetti sauce with meat, mozzarella cheese (that makes pizza such a treat) and olives to turn out a different mozzarella meatloaf. Serve with a super salad or vegetable salad sandwiches (a good way to use leftovers) and possibly a fruit-wine punch for company.

Youngsters will enjoy this meatloaf as a hero sandwich filling since it is good when eaten hot or cold.

MOZZARELLA MEATLOAF
- 2 to 3 medium-sized onions, grated
- 2 pounds ground round or chuck
- 1/2 cup chopped olives
- 2 pieces of stale sliced bread, crumbled
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 can (15 ounces) spaghetti sauce with meat
- 1/2 pound mozzarella cheese, sliced
- 3 or 4 olives, sliced

Combine all ingredients except mozzarella and sliced olives. Use half a can of spaghetti sauce with meat. Divide meat mixture in half. Place half in bottom of baking dish. Form into 8x4x1-inch loaf. Place mozzarella slices on top. Then use remainder of meat mixture to form top of loaf. Seal sides and ends. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Pour remaining sauce on top; bake for 10 more minutes. Garnish with sliced olives. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

MACARONI LUNCHEON SALAD
- 2 cups elbow macaroni (8 ounces)
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 quarts boiling water
- 1 can (12 ounces) luncheon meat, diced
- 1 can (4 ounces) pimientos, drained and chopped
- 1 cucumber, cubed
- 3/4 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon celery seed
- Pepper to taste

Gradually add macaroni and 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander. Rinse with cold water; drain again.

Mix together luncheon meat, pimiento and cucumber. Blend sour cream, mayonnaise, onion, lemon juice and remaining seasonings. Combine with macaroni mixture. Chill. Serve on crisp salad greens garnished with additional pimiento, if desired. Makes four servings.

MOZZARELLA MEATLOAF uses canned spaghetti sauce for tastiness.

DUCK SAUCE
- 3 pounds firm, ripe red plums, pitted and cut into ½-inch chunks (about 2 quarts)
- ½ teaspoon peeled, crushed garlic
- ½ pound onions, peeled and finely chopped (about 1 cup)
- 1 cup rice wine vinegar or cider vinegar
- ½ teaspoon dried crushed red pepper
- 1 teaspoon ground coriander
- ½ teaspoon ground allspice
- 2½ cups sugar

In a wide 4-quart saucepan over medium heat bring all the ingredients except the sugar to a boil, stirring occasionally. Boil steadily about 30 minutes. Put through a food mill and return puree to the pan. Add sugar and over medium heat stir constantly until mixture boils again. Boil steadily about 30 minutes, stirring often to prevent sticking; continue boiling about 15 minutes more, stirring constantly. Sauce is done when about ½ teaspoon of it holds its shape on a chilled saucer. Spoon at once into hot, sterilized half-pint jars and seal. Store at least a week to mellow. Makes about 5½ cups. Combine custard, crepes

Custards and custard fillings have provided many a dessert lover with some ecstatic moments of tasting. Put a delicious fruit and vanilla custard inside an easy-to-make crepe and you have a very special treat for family or friends. Many may want to enjoy the fruit-custard without the crepe or use the custard as a filling for a favorite pound cake recipe or cupcake. It is versatile enough to go many ways in the dessert spectrum.

CREPES WITH FRUIT CUSTARD
- 2½ cups diced assorted soft fresh or canned fruits
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 12 crepes
- Low sugar custard sauce

In a small bowl combine fruit with vanilla and nutmeg. Spoon about 2 tablespoons of the fruit in center of each crepe. Fold into cylinder shape and arrange on platter. Pour custard sauce over all and serve. Makes 12 portions.

CREPES BATTER
- 2 eggs
- 2/3 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- 1/2 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg

In a small mixing bowl beat eggs. Add milk, oil and vanilla extract; mix well. Add flour, salt and nutmeg; beat until smooth. Lightly grease and heat a 5-inch skillet. Pour approximately 2 tablespoons crepe batter into skillet, quickly tilting pan to spread over bottom. When delicately brown, turn to brown on other side. Repeat, lightly greasing skillet each time. Makes approximately 12 crepes.

LOW SUGAR SOFT CUSTARD
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg

In a medium saucepan mix cornstarch, sugar and salt. Blend in 2 tablespoons of the milk until smooth. Stir in remaining milk. Cook and stir over moderate heat until mixture thickens. In a medium bowl mix egg yolks, vanilla extract and nutmeg with 2 tablespoons of the hot custard mixture. Blend in remaining custard. Cover surface with waxed paper and cool. Serve over fruit filled crepes. Makes 2 cups.

Ellis A super supper treat! CORNED BEEF HASH

Fluffy peanut butter pie

Whip 8 ounces softened cream cheese until soft and fluffy. Beat in ½ cup smooth or crunchy peanut butter and 1 cup powdered sugar. Slowly add ½ cup milk and blend thoroughly. Fold in one 9-ounce package frozen non-dairy topping which has been thawed. Pour into prepared 9-inch graham cracker crumb crust or baked pastry shell. Sprinkle with chopped peanuts if desired. Freeze until firm.

Snacking deviltry with peanuts

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

With the youngsters back in school it is always pleasant for them to have special after-school treats. Keep crisp vegetables such as carrots or celery and fresh fruit on hand at all times. To salve their sweet tooths bake a cake such as a peanut devil's food that will keep well and some peanut crackerjacks. All ages will be tempted to dip into these filling goodies.

PEANUT DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) margarine softened
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup unsifted flour
- 3/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup buttermilk
- 3 eggs
- 2 squares (1-ounce each) unsweetened chocolate, melted
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 3/4 cup finely chopped cocktail peanuts

In large mixing bowl, cream margarine and sugar. Set aside.

Sift together flour, baking soda and salt.

Alternately add combined dry ingredients and buttermilk to sugar mixture. Beat 1 minute at medium high speed or with rotary beater. Add eggs and chocolate. Continue beating 1 minute longer. Stir in vanilla extract and chopped peanuts. Turn batter into greased and floured 9-inch square baking pan.

Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes, or until done. Cool in pan on wire rack 15 minutes. Turn out onto wire rack to finish cooling. Frost with Orange Frosting when cool. Makes one (9-inch) square cake.

ORANGE FROSTING: In small deep mixer bowl, cream one-fourth cup (one-half stick) softened margarine. Gradually beat in 1 box (1 pound) confectioner's sugar. Blend in 3 tablespoons milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract and 1 teaspoon grated orange peel. Blend in enough additional milk to make a smooth, spreadable frosting.

PEANUT CRACKERJACKS
- 10 cups warm popped popcorn
- 1-½ cups cocktail peanuts
- 1/2 cup margarine
- 1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1/4 cup dark corn syrup
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract

Mix together popped corn and peanuts in a very large bowl. Keep warm in 250-degree oven.

Melt margarine in a heavy two-quart saucepan. Stir in brown sugar, corn syrup and salt. Bring to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Boil, without stirring, for 5 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in baking soda and vanilla. Quickly pour over popcorn peanut mixture, tossing until kernels and nuts are well coated. Spread out in shallow baking pan.

Bake at 250-degree for 45 minutes, stirring once or twice. Remove from oven. Turn out on aluminum foil to cool. Break into pieces. Store in tightly covered container. Makes 3 quarts.

Candidates may sound familiar

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

President Ford and Jimmy Carter are sure to cover some familiar ground in their debate tonight on domestic and economic issues.

Here is a brief guide to what the candidates already have said on some of the questions involved:

ABORTION: Both men personally oppose abortion. Carter also says he does not favor "a constitutional amendment which would prohibit all abortions, nor one that would give states local options to ban abortions." Ford opposes a national ban on abortion, but supports "an amendment which would permit each state, or the voters in each state, to make the decision on that state's abortion policy."

AMNESTY: Carter says, " ... I am going to issue a blanket pardon for all those who outside our country or in this country, who did not serve in the armed forces. I am going to issue a pardon, not an amnesty." Ford set up a program in 1974 offering conditional pardons to draft evaders. GOP Vice Presidential nominee Robert Dole says: "Let there be no confusion as to President Ford's position on this issue. It is unequivocal ... — no blanket pardon, no blanket amnesty, no blanket clemency."

BUSING: Both men oppose forced busing. Carter says he will support the rulings of the federal courts, however, and does not believe the subject should be "reopened with a constitutional amendment." Ford says "busing as a remedy ought to be the last resort and ... limited in scope to correcting the effects of previous constitutional violations." He sent legislation to Congress to limit busing.

EDUCATION: Carter urges increased federal aid for public schools and allowing revenuesharing funds to be used for education. Ford sent Congress a plan to consolidate federal aid for elementary and secondary schools and has said he will try to find a way to use the tax system to help families "who choose to send their children to nonpublic schools." He also says, "No student should be denied access to a post-secondary education because of financial barriers."

ENERGY: Carter has urged increased emphasis on solar power and coal and says, "U.S. dependence on nuclear power should be kept to the minimum necessary ... Atomic power itself should be relegated to the last priority as far as energy sources are concerned." Ford ordered a concerted review of U.S. nuclear policy. He supports development of nuclear energy and has proposed an Energy Independence Authority to provide $100 billion in loan guarantees to encourage investment in energy projects and speed up nuclear production.

FARM POLICY: Carter and Ford say they are against embargoes on foreign grain shipments except in extraordinary circumstances, such as a shortage at home. Carter told a crowd in Des Moines, Iowa: "Under my administration, if I'm elected, there will never be another embargo that singles out farm products." He said any embargo "would have to be an extreme case." Ford, who imposed a temporary embargo in 1975, said in accepting the presidential nomination, "We will never use the bounty of America's farmers as a pawn in international diplomacy. No embargoes!"

HEALTH INSURANCE: Carter urges "a national health insurance program, financed by general-tax revenues and employer-employee shared payroll taxes which is universal and mandatory." He says the added annual federal expenditure might be $10 billion, but has not provided specific details. Ford opposes an all-inclusive national health insurance, but has proposed a catastrophic illness plan to cover everyone now covered by Medicare. No one over 64 would pay more than $500 a year for covered hospital or nursing home care or more than $250 a year for doctor bills.

HOUSING: Carter says, "A direct subsidy of new housing units is essential." He also says that the $10 billion to $11 billion in tax breaks now provided to homeowners represents about the right level "of encouragement for home construction and home ownership," but he is not sure whether he will retain those breaks in their present form or in some new program. Ford said last week that he would recommend reduced down payments on lower and medium-priced homes to encourage home ownership and would and order the Department of Housing and Urban Development to expedite implementation of a new program under which mortgage payments are lower during the early years of home ownership and rise gradually with family income.

INFLATION: Carter says he believes inflation — now over 6 per cent — can be cut to 3 or 4 per cent by 1979 or 1980 by comprehensive planning, controlled budgets and businesslike management of government. He says, "I'm against acrossthe-board permanent wage and price controls, but I do favor standby controls ..." Ford says, "My first objective is to have sound economic growth without inflation." He opposes wage and price controls, but adds, "We do have a wageprice council that ... on several occasions has been helpful in trying to get a moderation of a price increase."

JOBS: Carter says, "The major priority of the next administration has got to be unemployment." He supports the Humprey-Hawkins bill aimed at reducing adult unemployment to 3 per cent by 1980, but says he prefers job creation in the private rather than the public sector. Ford also stresses private employment. "But," he says, "the federal government can create conditions and incentives for private industry to make more and more jobs." He says he expects unemployment to fall below 7 per cent this year and 6 per cent next year. Ford's goal is 2½ million new jobs a year. That would take care of the 2 million who normally join the labor force every year and would reduce unemployment by 500,000.

REORGANIZATION: Carter says, "I believe the present 1,900 federal departments can be reduced to no more than 200 with a great savings in tax money and a streamlining of services to our people." He has not said which agencies will be eliminated. Ford also condemns the size of government bureaucracy and urges cutbacks. The President Ford Committee says that during the first two years of the Ford administration, the number of federal forms that have to be filled out by individuals at all levels was cut by about 12 per cent.

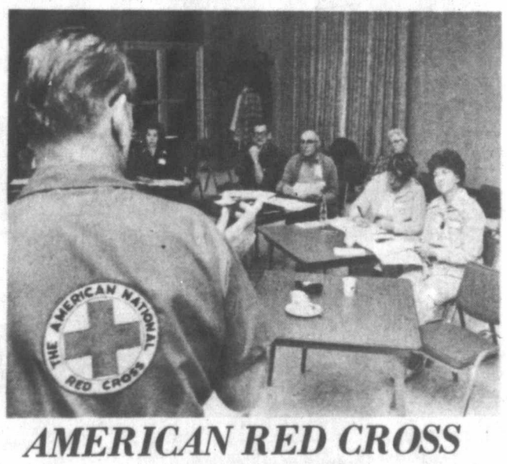

SPENDING: Carter says,. "We can attain a balanced budget with full employment by 1979..." He urges zero-based budgeting, with government programs required to rejustify all expenditures annually. He says, "There will be no new programs implemented under my administration unless we can be sure that the cost is compatible with my goal of having a balanced budget ..." Ford proposed a $394 billion spending ceiling for fiscal 1977 — almost $20 billion below that approved by Congress. Ford also says, "We will submit in the fiscal year 1979 a balanced budget."

TAXES: Carter promises a comprehensive reform plan by the first part of 1978. He says he cannot provide specifics now, but has four principles: "Treat all income the same ... tax income only once ... a progressive tax rate ... greatly simplify the whole system." He says his aim is to increase taxes for those earning higher incomes and decrease taxes for those in lower and middle-income brackets. When pressed in an AP interview for a definition of what he meant by higher, Carter said: "I don't know. I would take the mean or median level of income and anything above that would be higher and anything below that would be lower." He said repeatedly that he did not know where the tax burden would shift, but Republicans jumped on the "median income" statement, claiming Carter would raise taxes for everyone earning more than the median, now around $13,000 a year. A Carter aide said later that families earning up to $25,000 would be considered middle income. Ford says his tax objectives "are threefold — greater equity, greater simplification, and lower taxes." He says benefits should be "directed toward middle and lower income tax payers and incentives for creation of new jobs by business." In an interview in the October issue of Reader's Digest, Ford said: "I favor giving greater tax relief to the socalled middle income taxpayers — those in the earning brackets of $8,000 to $30,000 a year."

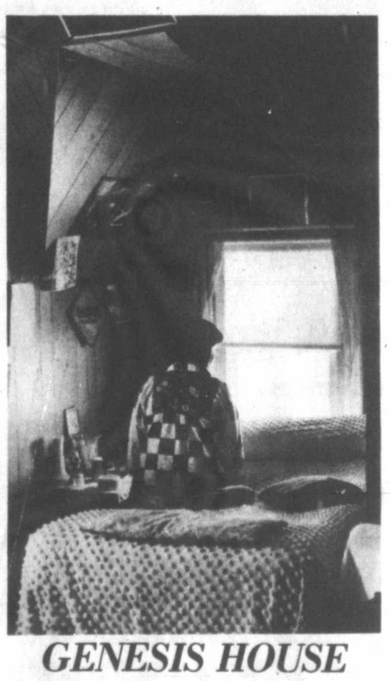

URBAN AFFAIRS: Carter says many costs, including welfare, should be shifted from local governments. He urged a Federal Municipalities Securities Corporation to help cities market their bonds. Ford proposed consolidating some government grant programs to give cities greater leeway in spending. He told the U.S. Conference of Mayors and League of Cities: "The success of the community block grant program, like the success of the general revenue sharing program, points to one central fact: you know what to do to improve your cities and you know how to do it ... I have faith in you..."

'If you belive eco-threats, duck'

By RAYNER PIKE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — True or false?

1. Lake Erie is dead.
2. DDT causes cancer.
3. The world's oxygen is being depleted.
4. Watermelons falling from airplanes are a major threat to life.

If you think the first three are true, then you may as well say "Yes" to No. 4, too, says a New York scientist who believes Americans are under the thrall of what he calls ecological fantasies.

Cy Adler, oceanographer and engineer, says messengers of ecological doom often raise alarms about dangers almost as remote as airborne melons.

"During the 1960s I began to notice that many of the technical reports crossing my desk conflicted with stories of environmental disaster then rampant," he said.

For example, technical data indicated air quality improving in cities, but one day his mail brought another message.

"This pamphlet from the air pollution commissioner said the average New Yorker was breathing 730 pounds of air pollution a year. Now that's a lot. It's two pounds a day. I figured I should at least be gaining weight from it."

As an engineering consultant and former teacher of physics, math and oceanography, Adler says he'd be the last to claim pollution is not a problem. But he maintains that much of human progress is marked by acceptance of some undesirable consequences in exchange for tremendous advances.

"Before the era of mass communication, myths propagated slowly from individual to individual," Adler writes in his book "Ecological Fantasies." "But now a lunatic with a microphone and money can spread his version of unreality across the face of the land."

In a recent interview in his journal-cluttered office in downtown Manhattan, Adler said ruefully that scientists who share his outlook haven't access to large audiences.

His book was first published at his own expense, but since has been picked up by Delta Books. Articles by Adler also have appeared on the OpEd page of the New York Times and in a recent Oui magazine.

"The media," he said, "are interested in scare stories: 'Lake Erie is dead!' Big TV thing. 'Who killed Lake Erie?'"

Paul Ehrlich, the Stanford University biologist Adler calls a "stern minstrel of fairy tales," wrote an obituary of the lake that said: "No one in his right mind would eat a Lake Erie fish."

"He's wrong," said Adler. "People in New York and all over the country are eating them, and they're not lunatics."

Adler depicts the lake water as wretched smelling and evil looking around industrial sites on its south shore, but says it otherwise is clean, potable, supports more fish than all the other Great Lakes combined.

Ehrlich, reached by telephone on a field trip, stood by his description of the lake as dead and added: "The alarm that was raised by environmentalists about 10 years ago has done a lot to start it on the road to recovery."

As for Adler's general view of the environmental movement, Ehrlich commented: "If you understand exponential growth and the data that exist on the assaults mankind is launching on the ecological systems of the planet, you'll see that historical experience is no guide whatsoever to the present-day situation, which in fact is unprecedented."

From 1769-1782, Fra Junipero Serra founded nine Franciscan missions in California.

Committee buys, nixes Bentsen bills

By BILL CHOYKE
Pampa's Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A House - Senate conference committee rewriting the 1976 tax reform bill both bought and bounced a number of the special interest tax provisions pushed by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

The joint panel, which recently completed laborious work on the massive tax reform package, incorporated a number of Bentsen - sponsored provisions benefitting special interests ranging from a Texas educational group to Encyclopedia Britannica, the book publishers, into the final bill. Other narrowly - drawn provisions pushed by Bentsen, such as ones for the Federation of American Hospitals and Tenneco Inc., will apparently have to wait until at least next year for any favorable action.

A member of the tax - writing Senate Finance Committee, Bentsen attracted national attention the past few months for pushing about 10 narrowly - drawn tax provisions. (Criticizing the Houston Democrat's work on the tax bill, his senatorial opponent, Rep. Alan Steelman, R-Dallas, has tabbed Bentsen as "Loophole Lloyd.")

However, the bill - writing conferees, which included Bentsen, apparently thought some of the senator's proposals had merit. Those measures surviving after the two - week conference included:

—A fairly non - controversial provision which would allow for the first time multi - county districts to sell tax - exempt bonds. The proposal will specifically assist the South Texas Higher Education Authority, a new group covering 51 counties and two million people in South Texas. The Bentsen language would allow non - profit corporations to issue the bonds for the purpose of raising funds for student loans.

—A measure which would allow publishers to continue deducting costs of research and other prepublication expenses until the IRS issues new regulations. Previously, the IRS had ruled that such expenses must be capitalized and may be depreciated, but then suspended the effect of the ruling to study the matter further. Encyclopedia Britannica is known to benefit from the provision.

—Favorable tax treatment for Roy Huffington Inc. of Houston, Natomas Corp. of California and possibly other oil and gas firms doing business in Indonesia. The conferees decided to delay the effects of an IRA ruling which would have denied a foreign tax credit to oil companies in Indonesia, though they trimmed the original Bentsen proposal from a five year delay to one year.

Although he endorsed the final confernece committee report, Bentsen strongly took issue with the decision to strengthen the treatment of certain tax - shelter ventures, such as in oil and gas.

Debate may be pivot point

An AP news analysis

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

Despite Jimmy Carter's 15,000-mile campaign log, despite President Ford's high-visibility home stand, despite the promises and the polls, the crucial phase of the contest for the White House begins tonight.

What is past is warmup.

The 90-minute debate in Philadelphia tonight is viewed in both camps as the likely pivot point for the 40 campaign days that remain.

In large part, it is the lack of a single, compelling issue or set of issues that has raised so high the stakes in the first of three Ford-Carter debates.

Image and voter impressions of the Republican President and the Democratic challenger are therefore the more important. And those are precisely the perceptions that the debate can shape, or reinforce, or erase.

Furthermore, by any measure, the race is closer now than on the steamy night in Kansas City, Mo., when Ford told a cheering Republican convention that he wanted to meet Carter face-to-face to debate the issues, the first incumbent president ever to do so.

Not that Ford has overtaken Carter at this point; his own campaigners acknowledge he is still behind. But as one Republican put it, a real contest is in prospect now, where once it seemed there would be none.

Carter, who has from the start cautioned Democrats against overconfidence, makes that point from his own campaign platforms:

"It's a very difficult political undertaking to defeat an incumbent president with a unified party. And that's what I face."

Nonetheless, Carter claims a healthy lead. On the eve of the debate, his spokesman said September polling showed Carter ahead in 35 states with about 440 electoral votes, Ford in 13 with about 100 electoral votes. It takes 270 to win election.

According to Carter aide Jody Powell, the polling by Patrick Caddell showed Carter leading by margins of less than 5 percentage points in states with about 120 electoral votes.

To which William Greener, spokesman for President Ford's campaign, replied, "It would appear that Mr. Caddell's poll verified that we're closing the gap all over the nation."

Greener recalled the published polls conducted before the Republican National Convention that showed Carter leading by wide margins, up to 29 percentage points in a Louis Harris survey between the two party conventions.

The most recent Harris poll, based on surveys completed on Aug. 30, gave Carter an 11-point lead. The latest Gallup poll gives Carter a 15-point lead.

The Ford camp contends the gap has since been narrowed.

A Harris survey of 2,844 likely voters, conducted through mid-September, reported doubts among some about Carter's experience and stance on issues.

Harris said a 49 per cent to 34 per cent plurality felt Carter had ducked stands on issues.

Carter said he thinks the debate will alleviate such concerns, and show him to be a substantial candidate with the knowledge to handle national problems.

"And if I can project that image in the debates, it would be a great asset for me," he said.

Ford will be trying to project himself as a decisive, informed and intelligent leader, to eliminate what one Republican said are voter misgivings about him on those points.

In the campaign the debate will indelibly mark, the record to date underscores the divergent strategies of the two candidates.

Carter took to the road on Labor Day, and has covered more than 15,000 miles, with scores of appearances in 41 cities, 25 states, already behind him.

Ford has been out once, on Sept. 15, to address some 14,000 people at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. But he has been busy at home, with a ceremony for almost every bill-signing, an appearance before the cameras for almost every evening's television news.

He will be traveling this weekend, to campaign by riverboat and motorcade in Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

Carter has at times criticized Ford for staying home, although he also has claimed that it gives an advantage to the Democrats.

But he also has discovered the perils of the road.

First came the controversy over his tax position, with Republicans asserting that he would never raise taxes on lower-and middle-income Americans.

That didn't silence the Republican offensive. Ford said Tuesday that "those who advocate additional expenditures" want to raise taxes on middle-income groups to pay for new programs.

Carter has said his plans for new programs would have to wait for financing.

Then came publication of the Playboy magazine interview in which Carter said he had "looked on a lot of women with lust," and used street language to describe adulterers.

While Carter was featured in Playboy, Ford was in the Ladies Home Journal, talking about his faith in his family. Ford headquarters was delighted.

Carter, on the stump, casts himself in the tradition of Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy, Johnson, and asks his audiences to contrast that kind of leadership with Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Nixon. He inevitably omits the name of Eisenhower from the list of Republicans he finds wanting.

So far, he has not made a major issue of the Watergate scandals that drove Richard M. Nixon from office and made Ford president.

Instead, he hammers hardest at ecoomic themes, saying he can put Americans back to work, curb inflation and — by the end of a term — balance the federal budget. So far, at least, those economic arguments do not seem to have become cutting issues for him.

The argument about image is built into his speeches, for Carter describes Ford as a well-meaning, ineffectual man, claims he has done nothing "that indicates a capacity for leadership."

Ford contends it is Carter who can't demonstrate the capacity to lead. The President says he already has. "Trust is not being all things to all people . . . trust is not having to guess what a candidate means," Ford says. Again, the issue is the image.

A conspiracy to assassinate Gen. George Washington in New York was discovered in 1776 and its ringleader, Thomas Hickey, one of the general's guards, was hanged. The mayor of New York was implicated and imprisoned.

EPA says new cars get better gas milage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency says the new 1977 model cars are getting better mileage per gallon of gasoline and that 11 of 13 auto makers already meet a 1978 mileage requirement.

The EPA said Wednesday that 1977 model cars will yield 6 per cent better gasoline mileage than 1976 cars and 34 per cent better mileage than 1974 models.

The agency, which said foreign cars are leading the way, found that 1977 model cars tested in its laboratory averaged a theoretical 18.6 miles per gallon of gas, or one mile per gallon better than the 1976 models tested a year ago.

The figure exceeds the 18.0 miles per gallon federal fuel economy standard which will go into effect with 1978 model cars. There was no federal requirement for 1977 models.

Only Ford's and Chrysler's 1977 models did not meet the 1978 standard, the EPA said. The other 11 automobile manufacturers equalled or bettered it, and seven manufacturers, all foreign makers, met the 1980 standard of 20.0 miles per gallon. They are BMW, Nissan-Datsun, Toyo Kogyo-Mazda, Toyota, Volkswagen, Audi and Fuji-Subaru.

The improved mileage is the result of better engines, new engine combinations and changes in the average weight of cars, the EPA said. Slightly more than half the improvements resulted from better engines and new engine combinations, the agency said.

Here are the top performers:

—The diesel-powered Volkswagen Rabbit with an average 44 miles per gallon. The 90-cubic-inch Rabbit diesel averaged 39 miles on its simulated city driving and 52 miles on the simulated highway cycle.

—A four-cylinder Toyota Corolla with a 71-cubic-inch engine averaged 41 miles per gallon.

—The Volkswagen Dasher diesel, 40 miles per gallon.

(The Rabbit and the Dasher diesel models will not be available in this country until next summer.)

—The Mazda 808 with a 78 cubic inch engine, 38 miles per gallon.

—The top American finisher, the Chevrolet Chevette with a 98-cubic-inch engine, finished fifth with 36 miles per gallon.

All of the top finishers had manual transmissions. The top finisher with an automatic transmission was the Chevrolet Chevette, which averaged 30 miles per gallon.

The biggest over-all improvement by a manufacturer came from Mazda, which improved the mileage of its line by an average 19.2 per cent. The EPA said 11.4 per cent of that improvement came from changes in vehicle weight an in the mixture of models being offered for sale, and the remainder came from changes in the engine and in new engine combinations.

General Motors also made a large improvement over-all, EPA said, increasing its average by 10.4 per cent. The agency estimated that 6.4 per cent of GM's improvement came by reducing vehicle weight and the mixture of cars being sold.

American Motors posted a 4.8 per cent improvement and Chrysler's average went up by 0.5 per cent. Ford's dipped by 1.4 per cent.

STUDENT AMBULANCE

KENT, Ohio (AP) — More than 60 Kent State University students are putting in at least one four-hour shift a week to provide emergency ambulance care for the 25,000 members of the Kent State community.

To qualify as a volunteer, each student must complete an 81-hour course in emergency victim care, plus an advanced first aid course from the American Red Cross, and observe patient care both in the ambulance and in hospital wards for 20 to 40 hours.

Fossils point to ocean land bridge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists say they have found the first fossil evidence indicating that a land bridge once spanned the northern Atlantic Ocean between North America and Europe.

Fossils of mammals, birds and other animals found this summer on Canada's Ellesmere Island, located above the Arctic Circle west of Greenland, match similar remains found in western Europe and the western United States, they said.

Dr. Robert M. West of the Milwaukee Public Museum in Wisconsin and Dr. Mary R. Dawson of the Carnegie Museum of Natural History in Pittsburgh announced the findings Wednesday at a scientific meeting in Montpellier, France.

The scientists said fossil similarities on the two continents traditionally have been explained as evidence that animals came to North America via Asia and a land bridge across the Bering Sea near Alaska.

More recent geological evidence leads some scientists to believe that the North American and European continents once were joined but gradually split apart, with the Atlantic forming between them.

Drs. West and Dawson said their findings go a long way to prove that theory is correct.

The last continental connection probably stretched between the northernmost tips of the continents by way of Greenland, Iceland and Spitsbergen, an island north of Scandinavia, they said. This probably split apart 45 million to 48 million years ago.

The fossils found along barren, rocky Ellesmere Island also show the climate was different. At the time these animals lived, this area just 500 miles south of the North Pole apparently was somewhat swampy with a temperate climate, the scientists said.

Panhandle Hereford takes two

Area youth captured almost all the top awards in the Junior Hereford Heifer show at in the Tri - State Fair in Amarillo Wednesday.

Sheila Martin of Panhandle exhibited both the grand and reserve champion animals in the show which was judged by Dr. John McNeill, Texas Agricultural Extension Service beef cattle specialist from Amarillo.

BR Miss LI Adv 5049 was shown by Martin to a first place win in the Jan. 1, 1976 or before class and then went back to win the grand champion honors. Martin also exhibited SM Lady LI Adv 516 to a win in the winter calves competition and then took reserve with the animal.

Martin has been exhibiting livestock for eight years.

She also handled the winner of the spring yearling class, B&C MS LI Domino 118.

Another Panhandle contestant, Mike Fuston, took a first in the senior calves class with IMF Golden Ann 518. His MDF LI Press Dom 07 was second in the Jan. 1, 1976 and before class. He showed JM Pretty Lady 9 to second place in the spring yearling competition and his entry in the winter calves class, M Press Sterling 3, was third.

Pampa's Sue Smith won the May - Aug. 1975 class with Tex Lady Evan L5573 and took third place in spring yearlings with Lady Mark 4.

Second in the winter calves was B&C MS LI Domino shown by Melinda Phifer of Miami and FP Blanche SZR 87E, shown by Elson Rice of McLean, was third in the senior calves class. Kellye Wood of Groom exhibited the third place entry in the May - Aug. 1975 class with BW D-Four Maid 367.

Christo's fence coming down

VALLEY FORD, Calif. (AP) — The shimmering curtain of white cloth that artist Christo Javacheff stretched across 24 miles of countryside to the ocean is coming down — just as he planned.

Soon it will be but a memory for its many beholders, who created traffic jams on local roads, fore away sections of it for souvenirs and took helicopter rides to view it.

A contested portion of the 18-foot-high fence that dipped into Bodega Bay about 50 miles north of San Francisco was removed Tuesday. The state Coastal Commission had refused to issue a permit for the final 1,000 feet of the project, but it mysteriously appeared there anyway on Sept. 7, the day before the formal start of the enterprise.

Workers on the unique example of "process art" said, however, that it will be November before the dismantling is completed.

"It'll be a lot of hard work and energy to take it down, just like it was to put it up," said Patrick Morris, a member of the fence crew. He said about 75 people would dismantle it.

Christo, a Bulgarian-born artist who eschews his last name and once draped a curtain across a Colorado canyon, raised $2 million to finance the fence, composed of 2,000 pieces of nylon fabric attached to steel poles. Some 300 students and other volunteers helped erect it over a two-day period.

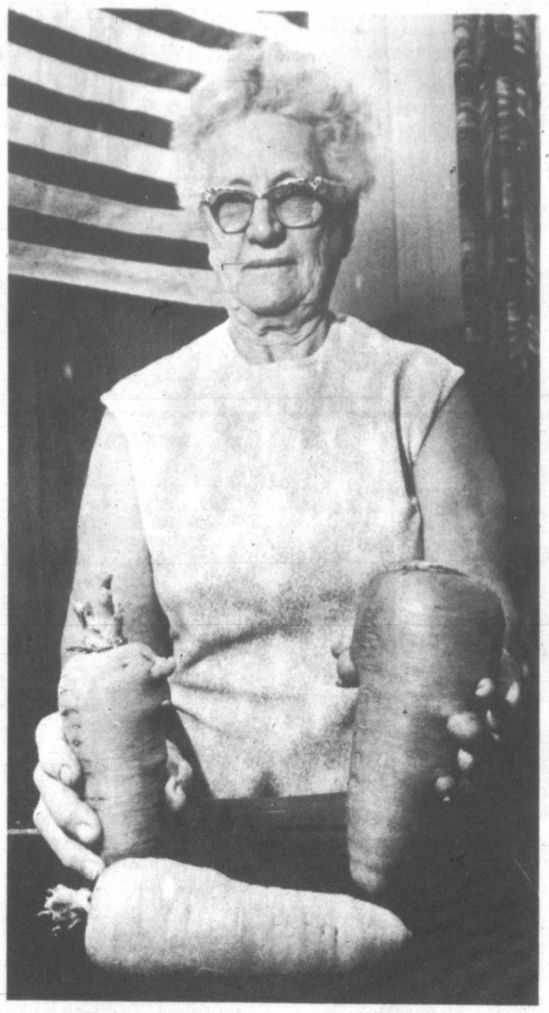

"It was exhilarating," said Elizabeth Whitney, who was paid $113 for her labors. "We just saw little parts of it while we worked on it, and now here's this connected, graceful beautiful thing."

Christo had said from the outset that he planned to display the fence for a fixed period of time and then take it down.

So many came to see it last weekend that traffic was bumper to bumper on some of the area's rural roads. A local entrepreneur who offered helicopter overviews reported a brisk business.

Louis Baccala, owner of the Valley Ford Market, said the ranchers over whose land the fence made its way were pleased with Christo's handling of the project and angry at authorities for setting deadlines for its removal.

"Like I told Christo, I just hate to see it go," Baccala said. "I got kind of accustomed to getting up in the morning and seeing it reflect all the colors of the sunrise."

Old need transportation

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Elderly persons need transportation more than anything else, a House subcommittee's tentative report concludes.

Mobility would allow them to take care of a number of their other needs, according to the report.

"Lack of easy access to transportation limits the independence of the elderly, restricts their activities and impedes their ability to take advantage of desirable services," the report says.

"Many other problems could be alleviated by adequate transportation—medical care may be difficult because of lack of transportation to the doctor and nutrition may suffer because of inability to get to a grocery store. The lack of transportation is at the heart of various service delivery problems. The problem of adequate transportation is especially acute in rural areas," the report says.

The Special Areas Subcommittee of the House Social Services Committee held public hearings in Austin, Arlington, Waco, Houston, Lubbock, El Paso, McAllen and San Antonio.

Record bond issue okay

HOUSTON (AP) — Supt. Billy Reagan says he is disappointed by the small turnout but pleased by the 2-1 margin when voters in the Houston Independent School District approved a $297 million school facilities improvement proposal.

Less than 9 per cent of the estimated 620,000 qualified voters cast ballots Tuesday.

"We had been concerned the last few days because of the county tax increase announced recently," Reagan said.

Proposition 1 on the ballot will finance a seven-year building program with $140 million in bonds, the largest single issue ever proposed by the school district. Voters approved it by a 35,389 to 16,171 vote according to complete but unofficial returns.

Proposition 2 will set aside seven cents from the present tax rate of $1.70 per $100 of assessed valuation, based on a 53 per cent assessment ratio, to provide $147 million in building and renovation projects over the next 17 years. Voters approved it by a vote of 35,920 to 16,148.

Bowling alley burglarized

Two weekend burglaries are being investigated by officers of the Gray County Sheriff's Office.

Deputy Ken Keith said burglars entered the Harvester Lanes bowling alley, 1401 S. Hobart, about 1:15 a.m. Monday through the air conditioning duct on the roof.

They took approximately $200 in change from vending machines, causing extensive damage to the machines. Keith said they also took several hand tools, before leaving through the back door.

Thieves hit Moody Farms, east of Pampa, Saturday.

Rex McAnelly, Moody Farms manager, said the burglars broke a window in the mill office door to gain entry. They took a CB base station from the office and also a mobile CB radio from a pickup. McAnelly said that $100 worth of tools is also missing.

That burglary is being investigated by Gray County Deputy Sheriff Randol Nichols.

33 claim they're related

HOUSTON (AP) — Claims for 33 persons, who say they are relatives of Howard Hughes, have been filed against the estate of the late billionaire recluse.

W.A. Jones of Nashville, Tenn., who descrived himself as a genealogical investigator, filed the claims Tuesday in the court of Harris County Probate Judge Pat Gregory.

The list also will be filed in Nevada, California and Delaware where legal actions concerning the multi-billion dollar estate also ar pending.

Twenty other Hughes relatives have already signed an agreement to divide the estate in the event no will is authenticated and admitted to probate.

"I think it is obvious Mr. Hughes died without a will," Jones said. "The so called Mormon will that names Noah Dietrich as executor is an obvious fraud. A man with a mind like Howard Hughes would never write a document like that.

Jones referred to a document found in April in the Morman Church headquarters in Salt Lake City which named Dietrich, a former Hughes aide, as executor of the state.

However, George Parnmam, Houston attorney who represents Dietrich, said he was confident the Morman document was valid.

"There are a lot of people keeping their fingers crossed hoping Mr. Hughes didn't leave a will but I think they will be disappointed," Parnham said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The tireless Katharine Hepburn will go from a strenuous movie to a lengthy stage tour without a breather.

"They're already rehearsing the play without me," said the actress as she finished the film "Olly Olly Oxen Free," in which she dangled from a flying gas balloon.

The play is Enid Bagnold's "A Matter of Gravity," in which Miss Hepburn appeared in New York last season.

Contract feud causes polio vaccine shortage

ATLANTA (AP) — Polio vaccine shortages are being reported by two state health departments because of a contract disagreement between a federal agency and a vaccine supplier anxious to protect itself from possible lawsuits.

The federal Center for Disease Control here said the impasse comes at the height of the traditional school pupil vaccination season and a time when federal health officials fear declining immunization could lead to new outbreaks of the paralyzing disease.

An assistant secretary in the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Dr. Theodore Cooper, said in a recent memo, "I am fearful that curtailment of childhood immunization activities in a number of states may result in outbreaks of the disease."

Eight polio cases in the United States have been reported to the CDC so far this year.

Negotiations are at a stalemate between the CDC, which distributes vaccines to most states, and Lederle Laboratories, the principal supplier of the vaccine, a CDC spokeswoman, Betty Hooper, said Tuesday.

Most severely affected by the lack of vaccine are South Carolina, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

Early district 1-B game may be crucial

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

The season's not yet a third over but Friday's District 1-B showdown between Lefors and host Wheeler may go a long way in telling whether one of the two will unseat state power Groom.

The three schools, along with Booker, are unbeaten in 1-B games. Lefors, Groom and Booker are tied at 2-0, while Wheeler is 1-0 in district play. Groom should drop few — if any — district games, so a loss by either Lefors or Wheeler may prove critical.

Lefors, 3-0 for the season, has run up 83 points and held opponents to 14. Wheeler also owns some impressive credentials, outscoring two opponents by a total score of 28-0.

"It's going to be a close football game," Wheeler Coach Preston Smith said. "We feel if we can slow them down offensively, we've got a good chance to win.

"It's going to be one of the first real key games in our district this season."

Discovering how to slow down the Pirate offense has already been a problem for the Mustangs, who will face the Notre Dame Box Friday. The box offense has no quarterback, and the ball is snapped to one of two backs, depending on the play.

"We have to use freshmen in practice to simulate the opponent. Sometimes, it's real hard," Smith said. "This week, it's been hard but I'm not sure it's any harder than option teams. But, it's been pretty tough running the box."

Tailback Phil White is the key to Lefors' box offense. The 150-pound senior has been awesome to date, piling up 507 yards on 67 rushes in three games. When he's not running, Kenny Howard, the wingback, usually is.

About White, Smith said, "He does everything for 'em. He runs for 'em, he kicks for 'em, he throws the ball for 'em and I think he probably sells popcorn for 'em at halftime.

"That wingback carries the ball good too. We're going to try to use basic defense against them. We haven't changed things a whole lot. It's going to be a challenge."

In Lefors' 35-0 win over McLean last week, Coach Jim Allen praised his offensive line, which probably had its best game of the season.

"They did an outstanding job. We got some tremendous blocking," Allen said of the line, which is anchored by center Tony Eldridge and guard Randy Squiers.

A big task for the line Friday will be keeping 245-pound Jim Verden from making plays. "He's big and strong and quick," Allen said.

"We won't double team any more than anybody else, though. We double team everywhere on the box. That's what it's based on."

Verden is also an offensive tackle and he's been a reason for much of tailback Don Brown's yardage. Brown, who has "been just tremendous," according to Smith, has gained 260 yards on 50 carries.

Sophomore Marvin Grimes, a surprise this season, has added 200 yards on the ground.

"Brown's a fine running back," Allen said. "He runs at daylight real good. The other back is the same way. They're both 185 pounders. You can't concentrate on just one of them."

Wheeler, a six - point favorite, already has won half as many games as it won all last season. The Pirates won only two games last fall.

In other area games Friday, Groom is at McLean and White Deer is at Canadian. Saturday afternoon, Texline is at Miami.

Groom at McLean

Groom (2-1) still isn't as good as last year but the Tigers seem to be getting there. Last week, "we weren't sharp at all," said Coach Russell Roberts, but the Tigers still whipped Texline, 32-6. When they put it together, there is no telling how awesome Groom will be. A running attack led by fullback Chris Britten and halfback Thomas Reed could be ferocious if an experienced offensive line jells.

McLean (1-2) needs to avoid mistakes — fumbles and penalties — to be competitive in 1-B. The Tigers lost six of 10 fumbles last week against the Pirates. They also moved the ball, racking up 188 yards rushing and 65 passing. Fullback Ken Parker and tailback Curtis Simpson gained 56 and 55 yards, respectively.

A mismatch — Tigers (Groom, that is) by 30.

Canadian at White Deer

Sunray stunned favored Canadian (2-1), 21-0, a week ago, as the Wildcats failed to generate much offense — rushing for just 140 yards. Quarterback Gary Bob Hutcheson leads the potentially dangerous attack.

White Deer (2-1) have one of the quickest Class A teams in the Panhandle. Steve Williams was the hero in last week's 19-7 win over double-A Panhandle as he returned a kickoff 97 yards for a touchdown and ran back an interception for another score.

Canadian, another double-A opponent for the Bucks, should bounce back — Wildcats by five.

Texline at Miami

Texline (0-2) has had problems finding offensive balance, even though Terry McNabb is one of the area's most capable runners.

Miami (1-1), led by running back Kirk Flowers and a stout defense, blanked Higgins, 14-0 last week in a 1-B contest.

Could be closer — Miami by 10.

Buck tackle

White Deer tackle Rodney Miller will be in action Friday night against Canadian.

Anti-trust question still question after committee decides nothing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House sports committee has held its final hearing with the panel's leaders saying no decision has been made on whether to recommend that baseball be subjected to the nation's anti-trust laws as are the other sports.

Chairman B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., and the vice chairman, Frank Horton, R-N.Y., said the committee will meet next Wednesday to begin the formulation of any recommendations for its report to Congress, which will be made in January.

Sisk and Horton talked to newsmen Wednesday after hearing Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, and Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, recommend that Congress strip baseball of its special immunity from the antimonopoly laws.

Miller said there could be a major labor confrontation in baseball when the current collective bargaining agreement expires in three years if the sport is permitted to keep its immunity from the antitrust laws.

He said the owners might try to unilaterally reverse the gains made by the union because they know they could not be sued in court.

Sisk said the hearings held by the Select House Committee on Professional Sports have "made me wonder if any sport should enjoy an immunity to the antitrust laws. The immunity may have been used as a prop — a prop that is not necessarily needed."

Sisk said informal discussions with others of the 13-member committee indicated to him that some want to take away baseball's immunity while at least one "strongly felt we should not touch it."

Horton said there was a real need for a continuation of an oversight committee for sports because there is no panel in the Congress that covers such a wide range of subjects such as antitrust, labor, immigration, gambling and violence in sports.

Horton said many letters have been received asking the committee to expand its study from baseball, basketball, football and hockey into golf, tennis, soccer and auto and dog racing, among other sports.

The House sports committee, which heard nearly 80 witnesses in 26 hearings and accumulated a record of more than 2,000 pages, was created last spring after baseball refused to put a team into the nation's capital, which has been without a club since the Washington Senators moved to Texas in 1971.

Sisk and Horton were members of an ad hoc congressional committee which attempted unsuccessfully for five years to persuade baseball to replace the Senators.

The two congressmen said many times during the hearings that the committee's primary purpose was not to pressure baseball into putting a team into Washington but to study the affect of the law on sports.

Promoter plans boxing tournament

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You knew this was going to be a big announcement when Howard Cosell walked into the room.

But then promoter Don King deals only in big announcemens.

King summoned Cosell and a few other friends and associates, including his bankers, for a less-than-intimate brunch at the posh 21 Club Wednesday to announce his latest creation, the United States Boxing Tournament of Champions.

He used old films of some of the classic fights of the 1940s and 50s involving boxing greats like Jake LaMotta, Tony Zale, Sugar Ray Robinson, Marcel Cerdan and others to recall the sport's glory days. Then he explained his plan for resurrecting that glory.

Throwing adjectives as if they were jabs and multi-syllable words around like uppercuts, King described his plans for the tournament to crown American champions in every weight classification.

"This is a monumental moment for boxing," he said. "This tournament will revitalize boxing. It will contribute something meaningful and constructive to (the country's) prosperity and longevity."

The tournament, which begins in January, will be televised by ABC, which explains Cosell's interest. The purses will total over $1 million, which explains the bankers' interest.

"They will prevent any 'trickeration' with the money," explained King.

Buried ball gives 'Dogs inspiration

Borger's performance last year against Pampa was both pathetic and expected.

The underdog Bulldogs, plagued by injuries and in the midst of a slump (they lost all five district games, fell, 33-0, to the Harvesters.

Borger played so badly, the team held a meeting, autographed the game football, buried it and made a vow.

"We took a good beating last year from Pampa and we decided we weren't going to let that happen again," Borger Coach Jim Breckenridge said. "We took the game ball, signed it and shoved it in a hole.

"We felt like we needed to bury all our mistakes."

The non-conference rivals will meet again at 7:30 p.m. in Harvester Stadium, with vengeance on the minds of the Bulldogs.

The general attitude in workouts this week, Breckenridge said, shows that the Bulldog players haven't forgotten that vow. "We've had good workouts," the coach emphasized.

Borger started slowly this season, losing to Lubbock and Snyder by identical 14-6 scores. The Bulldogs last week might have had their finest hour in two years as they whipped Hereford, 28-21.

Hereford is the only team to beat Pampa this year.

"We're getting better week by week," said Breckenridge, in his second year at Borger. "In spots against Hereford, we felt like we played real well. We made some improvement in every phase of the game.

"Our kicking game made a great difference in that game. We blocked a punt and ran a kickoff back for a touchdown."

Ricky Ennis, a 140 - pound sophomore tailback, returned a kickoff 75 yards for a Borger touchdown and scored two others on one - yard runs.

"He's not real fast but he has very good quickness. He runs for the goal line as well as any runnrer I've ever seen for a kid that size," Breckenridge said.

Ennis, wingback Danny Hinds and alternate tailback Miles Parker are nearly look - alikes, all standing 5-7 and weighing between 140 and 150 pounds. "The only difference that you'll see is their numbers," quipped the Borger coach.

"Hinds probably has the best quickness and maybe the best overall speed of anybody on the team. He's probably the best catching receiver we have, too."

Ennis knocked Parker, the Bulldogs' leading rusher this season with 245 yards and two touchdowns on 56 carries, out of the starting tailback position.

Kurt Smith, at 6-1 and 215 pounds, is a giant compared to the other backs and starts at fullback for the Bulldogs. Smith has gained 141 yards on 37 rushes to rank No. 2 among Borger ball carriers.

Borger's quarterback is Robin McCarty, who saw a little action against Pampa last season after starter Brett Lang reinjured a thumb and second - teamer Randy Meek suffered a pinched nerve in his neck.

McCarty, "probably the most improved player on the team," said Breckenridge, has completed nine of 25 passes for 149 yards and one touchdown, which came on a 47-yard strike to 200 - pound tight end Bobby Scott.

Outside of 6-4, 260 - pound right tackle Jeff Griffin and 200 - pound left tackle Ronnie Gibson, Borger's offensive line is small. Guards James Dennis and David Grimmer and center David Washer all weigh about 170. That, said Breckenridge, hasn't been a detriment.

"Most people (including Pampa) play a 5-2 defense with the linebackers over the guards. We really like to have quick guards that get out on the linebackers ... We may not knock them down but we like to get in their way."

Borger will run out of a combination of the Wishbone and Southern Cal-I offense. Hinds will line up "all over the field."

According to Breckenridge, "We also work all of our wingbacks and tailbacks in the same positons. It's possible that Ennis will go in at wingback." The offense if designed to confuse opponents.

Defensive standouts for the Bulldogs have been end Toby Haynes (175), tackle Wesley Fick (190) and linebacker Tony Elrod (180), a cousin of former Oklahoma all - American Jimbo Elrod.

"He (Elrod) has more potential probably offensively then defensively. He'll probably move to offense when district starts."

Borger has been reclassified from AAAA to AAA this season. Last year at the start of District 3-AAAA play, the Bulldogs were minus nine starters because of injuries.

Breckenridge said a reason for that is several players went both ways — on offense and defense. So, this year he has installed a two - platoon system, identical to Pampa's. When conference play starts, some of the Bulldogs may go both ways.

"We just decided we'd go two - platoon to avoid injuries. Perhaps by the time we get into district (Oct. 15), we'll play our 11 best.

Concerning Pampa, Breckenridge said, "They have another good team. Their offensive backfield is tremendous and we're pretty impressed with the defense again."

Cubs outlast Pirates in crucial game, 4-3

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The numbers are against them, and those numbers are getting worse each day. But the Pittsburgh Pirates are not yet ready to throw in the towel.

"Maybe we'll have to win our last 10 in a row and the Phillies will have to lose 10," said Pirates outfielder Al Oliver. "It's not logical, but it's still possible."

Each day, however, the possibility grows more and more remote. The Pirates took another step towards elimination Wednesday when they dropped a 4-3 heartbreaker to the Chicago Cubs on a run-scoring single by Joe Wallis in the ninth inning.

That loss, coupled with Philadelphia's 9-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, sank the Pirates six full games behind Philadelphia in the National League East. The Phils have 12 games remaining, the Pirates just 10.

Team leader Willie Stargell agreed, however, that there's no point to the Pirates rolling over and playing dead.

"We've just got to keep playing, that's all," said Stargell. "We've come too far for me to say anthing else. Our attitude just can't change. No matter what the outcome, we can't say we lost because we didn't put forth an effort."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers topped the San Francisco Giants 3-1, the Cincinnati Reds edged the San Diego Padres 4-3, the New York Mets beat the Montreal Expos 4-2 and the Houston Astros defeated the Atlanta Braves 5-2.

The Pirates have lost seven of their last 11 games, including three of thier last four — each in heartstopping fashion. On Monday, Mets rookie Lee Mazzilli hit a two-run homer with two-out in the ninth to beat Pittburgh 5-4. They lost the second half of a doubleheader Tuesday 2-1 to Chicago on a two-out single in the 13th inning.

And Wednesday it was Joe Wallis' single off relief pitcher Kent Tekulve which drove home Jerry Tabb from second for a 4-3 decision. Tabb, a pinch-hitter, had walked to start the ninth and taken second on a sacrifice. After Rick Monday was intentionally walked, Wallis delivered his game-winning hit on a 3-1 count.

Phils 9, Cards 4

Philadelphia erupted for eight runs in the eighth inning to beat St. Louis. Dick Allen's two-run single off Cards relief ace Al Hrabosky snapped a 4-4 tie, then Bob Boone added a two-run single later in the big eighth-inning outburst.

Dodgers 3, Giants 1

Right-hander Don Sutton became a 20-game winner for the first time in his career when he stopped the Giants on six hits to raise his record to 20-9. Sutton, who compiled 19-9 records in 1972 and 1974, struck out five and walked four in posting his eighth straight victory.

Reds 4, Padres 3

Cincinnati became the first team in National League history to have seven pitchers post 10 or more victories in one season when Don Gullett raised his record to 10-3 by beating the Padres.

Yanks, Royals closing in on division titles

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals still are drifting above their respective divisions in a holding pattern.

The Yankees' "magic number" for winning the American League East remained at three and Kansas City's stayed at five in the West after fruitless efforts Wednesday night.

"Until those three games are won, there's danger," said New York's Lou Piniella after the tenacious Baltimore Orioles kept their desperate hopes alive with a twi-night doubleheader sweep over the Yankees, 2-0 and 5-2.

Had the Yankees won but one of the games, they would have clinched a tie for the East Division title. But the Orioles have been perched on the East leader's shoulder with tireless persistence recently — winning the last five games between the teams.

Jim Palmer, Baltimore's strong right-hander, sees little hope for his team, despite the Orioles' uncanny domination of the Yankees.

"I have to be a realist about the pennant — I think we just delayed the inevitable," said Palmer.

Oakland Manager Chuck Tanner was a little more optimistic about his divisional race after an 11-1 rout of the Royals Wednesday night.

"Thursday night's game is more important now than it would have been if we'd lost," said Tanner cheerily. "I'd have to say it gives us great satisfaction, winning by a large margin."

In the other American League games, the Texas Rangers shaded the California Angels 2-1, the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Chicago White Sox 6-3, the Boston Red Sox turned back the Milwaukee Brewers 6-3 and the Cleveland Indians blanked the Detroit Tigers 3-0.

Red Sox 6, Brewers 3

Jim Rice collected four hits, including a pair of doubles, and Carlton Fisk hit a two-run homer, powering Boston over Milwaukee.

Indians 3, Tigers 0

Jim Bibby hurled a three-hitter to lead Cleveland over Detroit. Bibby, 9-4 since the All-Star break when he rejoined the starting rotation, improved his record to 13-6.

Billy's meaner, trimmer at Texas A&M this year

COLLEGE STATION — No more Mister Nice Guy — that's the new credo for Texas A&M's Billy Lemons, at least when he steps into his left tackle spot in the Aggie offensive line.

"Being a preacher's son I had been taught to be nice to people. I carried this attitude over into my first three football seasons at A&M. My opponents were taking advantage of my good nature and were outplaying me. This spring I adopted a mean attitude, and this has helped me become more aggressive and to be a better player," said Lemons, who was graduated from Pampa High School in 1973.

Another thing which has contributed a great deal to his outstanding play in the line has been a slimmer profile. From a high of 285 pounds last year, Lemons now checks in at 258. But it wasn't easy.

"I have always loved eating, so a diet was rough on me. They had me eating boiled eggs, salads, baked meat and unsweetened tea. But it was worth it because I'm quicker and more aggressive. It has also made me stronger and surprisingly reduced my appetite."

With the change of attitude and appearance, the senior three - year letterman also had to deal with a change of position. "The coaches changed up our offense in the spring and moved the guards to tackles and tackles to guards. I've had to learn a lot of new assignments, but I enjoy playing tackle."

One thing that hasn't changed for Billy is the part that religion plays in his life. "I have always been a religious person. When I made my first visit to A&M, Coach (Emory) Bellard set up a meeting for me with an area pastor. He told me of the religious programs in the area and I was impressed. I liked the coaches, players, townspeople and the facilities.

"I would like to go to seminary when I'm through at A&M and be a minister."

Church-related activities have always played a big part in Lemons' life. "My father traveled quite a bit as an evangelist, and the family would go along and sing gospel music. I've always loved to sing."

His pure tenor voice coming out of a rather large body has been a big surprise to a lot of people. Last December at a Liberty Bowl party for the players, Lemons was asked to sing following rock music star Isaac Hayes. Lemons' rendition of "Close to You" got a standing ovation and praise from Hayes.

"You talk about pressure," Lemons said. "Following Isaac Hayes was pretty tough. I could only remember one song, and that was Coach Bellard's favorite."

Palo Duro, Caprock head district statistics

Amarillo Palo Duro, 3-AAAA's only unbeaten team, is the district's total offense leader, averaging 284.7 yards for three games.

The surprising Dons, 2-0-1, have rushed for 659 yards and passed for 195 for 854 yards total. Amarillo High, 1-2, is next with 257 yards, followed by Pampa, 237.3; Amarillo Caprock, 229, and Amarillo Tascosa, 185.6.

Defensively, Caprock, 2-1, ranks first, having allowed an average of 169.3 yards per game. Tascosa, 1-2, is second with 177.3. Others are Pampa, 243; Palo Duro, 255.7, and Amarillo, 265.6.

Pampa is 2-1 for the season after having been picked by district coaches to win the 3-AAAA title. The Harvesters ranked first in defense last season en route to the district co-championship.

Mike Stumbo of Palo Duro is the rushing leader with 375 yards on 56 carries for a 6.7 average. He has scored four touchdowns, and his 24 points leads the district.

Robert Hueber of Caprock has the district's second - best rushing average with 6.9 yards per carry. He ranks second with 247 yards on 36 tries. Pampa's Ricky Moore is next with 227 yards on 39 attempts for a 5.8 norm. Caprock's Dennis Skelton ranks 10th but has the best average — 7.4.

Moore is second in scoring with 20 points.

The top passer in the district has been Palo Duro's Bill McElduff with nine completions out of 18 tosses for 195 yards and two touchdowns.

Thursday, Tascosa visits Lubbock Coronado. Friday, Pampa hosts Borger, Palo Duro meets El Paso Coronado in Amarillo and Caprock travels to Perryton.

Hartsfield named manager of Jays

TORONTO (AP) — Roy Hartsfield wants the Toronto Blue Jays to be fleet-footed and clean-shaven.

The 50-year-old Georgian, who officially became the first manager of the Jays Wednesday, admits he may have to compromise on speed, depending on what the expansion draft turns up for the new American League baseball team.

"If you're blessed with jack rabbits they can open up a lot of innings," he told a news conference at which his appointment, rumored for at least a week, was confirmed.

"If we got some guys who can hit it out of the park, then we'll play it station by station, but that kind of hitter isn't easy to find."

Hartsfield, whose appointment was a payoff on a 1973 decision to go back to the minor leagues after he established himself as a major league coach, sounded less flexible on the subject of long hair.

"I don't especially like it, or mustaches or beards. Kids look up to major league players and it's to our benefit to present as good an image as possible."

The former National League infielder, who has won five pennants in seven full seasons as a Triple A manager, fits almost perfectly the job requirements laid down by Toronto General Manager Peter Bavasi.

Bavasi stressed patience, a proven ability to win, a talent for working with young people and experience as a coach or manager at the major league level as important qualifications.

Hartsfield has all of those qualifications — he coached the Atlanta Braves and the Los Angeles Dodgers at the major league level — and, as a bonus, the Toronto general manager knows him well.

Bavasi was in the front office with the Dodgers when Hartsfield was winning three Pacific Coast League pennants in four seasons at Spokane, then was general manager of the San Diego Padres when Hartsfield was hired as manager of Hawaii Islanders, their top farm team.

Earlier this month he led the Islanders to their second PCL pennant in as many seasons.

Hartsfield, who was first contacted by the team two months ago, got only a one-year contract, but Bavasi said it will be the Jays' policy not to give managers multi-year contracts.

Hartsfield said he would confer with Bavasi and Pat Gillick, the player personel director, and expects to name four of five coaches within a week to 10 days.

King: loss was 'disappointment'

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Kent King isn't one to waste words.

"Our girls played badly ... they went out there on the court and did nothing. They spun their rackets and hit the ground," the Pampa High tennis coach said after his netters dropped a 15-9 decision to Borger Tuesday.

The match opened Pampa's fall schedule. It also gave King reason to be disappointed. The Harvester girls won four of 13 matches "even though we should have won the majority of the matches," said King, "and it's a disappointment."

The Pampa boys lost by a single match, 7-6. "The boys could have gone either way. I knew it was going to be close."

Both of Pampa's top singles players were knocked off. Tommy Faulkner of Borger whipped Curtis Henry, while Laura Jack downed Deanna Davis. In No. 1 doubles play, Pampa also dropped both matches. Faulkner and Dennis Boren outlasted Henry and Kenny Barrett, 6-3, 6-3, and Laura and Vicki Jack bounced Linda Bowman and Anne Henderson, 6-2, 6-1.

Borger traditionally is strong in girls tennis, and King still has high hopes for his team, particularly in doubles.

"If our girls want it bad enough, the doubles team might have a chance to place in district, then go to regional. They've got an awfully long way to go — it's achievable but they're going to have to want it so bad they can taste it.

"I'm going to put all my cashews and pecans in one basket and shoot for it in boys doubles this year ... It's going to take an above - normal performance by Curtis and Kenny."

Barrett's position on the No. 1 boys doubles team isn't solidified yet. "I've got four or five players to choose from," King said.

About the whole team, the outspoken coach said, "We're going to be a lot better than last year. Last year, we'd play with a hope and a prayer. This year, any matches we win are going to be a dogfight tussel.

"Mentally, we're going to have to get super, super tough."

The Harvesters will meet Amarillo Palo Duro Oct. 2 in Pampa. Tournaments have been scheduled in Plainview and West Texas State Oct. 8-9 and Oct. 22-23, respectively. Pampa will play a dual match against Borger Oct. 19 and a triangular match against Palo Duro and Amarillo Tascosa Oct. 30.

That constitutes the rest of the fall schedule. Competition will resume in the spring and culminate with the District 3-AAAA qualifying matches. Harvesters finishing first or second will earn a spot in the regional playoffs.

"There's one school I don't think we can touch," King said. "Amarillo High. At least not with their boys team. One through six, they're as tough as some of the top - ranked teams in the state.

"Caprock has a good, medium - solid team. They've got some good individuals and their depth isn't bad. They're a good, average team, and I mean that as a compliment.

"Tascosa is just the same way, with the exception of their girls. They've got strength in their girls."

King added, "This year, we could be a darkhorse."

King is in his second season as the Pampa tennis coach.

Prices for sugar, milk going up

By The Asiociated Press

Slowly, over weeks and months but in pennies that add up to dollars, the prices you pay for food are going up.

—The Agriculture Department says food prices as a whole may go 3 to 4 per cent higher through June of 1977 than they did in the first half of this year.

—Sugar producers say the price of their product should go up because of President Ford's actions Tuesday in tripling the tax on sugar grown outside the United States.

—And the Agriculture Department also announced that the second increase this year in price supports for manufacturing-grade milk will have some effect on consumers.

The government announced on Tuesday that consumer prices increased by five-tenths of 1 per cent in August. The rate of increase has not changed in the last three months.

Labor Department statistics showed that inflation is running at an annual rate of about 6 per cent, in line with administration forecasts. The department said a decline in meat prices failed to offset higher costs for most other foods, fuel and clothing.

On the eve of the first debate of the presidential campaign, the White House noted that consumer prices have been relatively stable for nearly six months, and spokesman Ron Nessen said President Ford feels "it is essential to continue steps to hold down inflation."

And Ford, under pressure from Southern congressmen from areas he will visit next week, took steps to bolster sagging sugar prices.

Saying he was protecting domestic sugar producers, Ford tripled the imported sugar tariff from 62.5 cents per hundred pounds to $1.87½.

Sugar producers predicted that the decision by Ford would mean retail prices will increase in the short run by about a penny a pound. Some producers complained that the tariff hike wasn't enough.

At the same time, the Agriculture Department said Americans are eating more red meat than they have in four years, and it said that if the trend continues it will insure stability for beef prices.

But Rep. William R. Cotter, D-Conn., said Tuesday the department is ignoring the drought and its effect of cattle feed. He said taking the drought into consideration indicates consumers will have to pay up to 50 per cent more for beef by the second half of 1977 and 1978.

Some economists say short production of beef next year will push food prices higher than the Agriculture Department predicts.

The department also said Tuesday that the second increase this year in price supports for manufacturing-grade milk will have only a slight affect at most for consumers.

On Oct. 1, the support price for milk used in making butter, cheese, ice cream and other by-products will increase 13 cents a hundredweight, to $8.26.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "He's our single link between the three movies," producer William Frye explains about the casting of George Kennedy in "Airport 1977."

Kennedy will take time out from his "Blue Knight" television series to reprise his role as Joe Patroni, the super Mr. Fixit of the air world. In "Airport" he was the airfield boss who cleared a runway during a blizzard. "Airport 1975" had him promoted to airline executive and he helped rescue a damaged 747.

Playboy interview won't hurt campaign--Carter

By LAWRENCE KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter said Wednesday he is not dismayed by reaction to his statements that he has "looked on a lot of women with lust" and "committed adultery in my heart." He said he doesn't think it has hurt his campaign.

Carter responded to questions from reporters as he got into his car after completing an early morning inspection of his peanut processing operation.

Asked whether he was dismayed by some of the reaction to his statements, made to an interviewer from Playboy magazine, the candidate replied, "No."

Q. "Do you think it's been misunderstood?"

A. "I don't think it's hurt in any way."

Q. "You don't think it's hurt at all?"

A. "I don't believe so."

But Carter said he did not want to conduct a news conference on the matter without his staff present.

His brother, Billy, accompanied him on the peanut-operation tour, and the candidate described the harvest as average. He took a personal look at all phases of the operation, at one point wading into the center of a huge pile of peanuts and inspecting them as they trickled through his fingers.

In the Playboy interview, made public earlier this week, Carter said he would not attempt to impose his own religious beliefs on others. "Christ set some almost impossible standards for us," he said, adding that to sin is human and "God forgives me for it."

In one excerpt, Carter declared:

"I've looked on a lot of women with lust. I've committed adultery in my heart many times. This is something that God recognizes I will do — and I have done it — and God forgives me for it. But that doesn't mean that I condemn someone who not only looks on a woman with lust, but who leaves his wife and shacks up with somebody out of wedlock.

"Christ says don't consider yourself better than someone else because one guy screws a whole bunch of women while the other guy is loyal to his wife. The guy who's loyal to his wife ought not to be condescending or proud because of the relative degree of sinfulness."

The candidate's statements brought mixed reactions.

His wife, Rosalynn, said in New York they caused her no anxiety about his fidelity.

"I trust him completely. I've never had to worry about that at all," she said.

Dr. Harry N. Hollis Jr., a denominational authority on social ethics, said in Nashville that Carter's statements on morality accurately reflect Southern Baptist teachings.

But Hollis, a staff member of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Conference, said he "wouldn't have used the same language."

He said: "What he (Carter) says about lust and forgiveness reflects deep insight and knowledge of the teachings of his religion ... There's a man who is struggling to be moral. I believe people are hungry for morality in their leaders."

But Hollis said individual Baptists cannot speak for the denomination as a whole or attempt to impose their views on other Baptists.

Dr. W. A. Criswell, pastor of the 20,000-member First Baptist Church of Dallas, Tex., declared: "I am highly offended by this. I think he's mixed up in his moral values, and I think the entire church membership will feel the same way.

"The whole thing is highly distasteful," said Criswell. "I'm very hurt by it."

Dr. Jerry Vines, pastor of the Dauphin Way Baptist church in Mobile, Ala., and a former president of the pastors' conference of the Southern Baptist Convention, said: "This appears to be another instance of (Carter) accommodating himself to his audience. I would prefer that a man running for high public office would use more refined language.

"A lot of us are not convinced that Mr. Carter is truly in the evangelical Christian camp, and this tends to indicate to us that he isn't."

Willam A. Powell, editor of the Southern Baptist Journal in Atlanta, said he was "flabbergasted" by what Carter said.

Acting Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd said Tuesday in Washington he wished the interview "had not occurred."

But he added: "I don't think it's terminal by any stretch of the imagination."

Byrd's Republican counterpart, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, quipped: "I think a fluff a day makes plenty of hay."

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said President Ford would have no comment on the Carter interview.

NETS HOME 41 TIMES

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Nets, one of four new members in the National Basketball Assn., will play 41 home games at Nassau Coliseum here this season. They face each of 21 NBA teams at home twice, except the Chicago Bulls.

The Nets will face the Bulls only once on the Long Island court.

Vietnam wins in UN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist Vietnam is now in a position to seek major loans after winning membership in two organizations to which the United States contributes substantial amounts of money.

The United States was unsuccessful Tuesday in blocking Vietnam's membership in the World Bank. U.S. officials also were unsuccessful in keeping Hanoi out of the International Monetary Fund last week.

The two international institutions annually dispense billions of dollars in financial assistance under various lending programs, and Vietnam is expected to qualify for aid under some of the these.

The United States contributes substantially to both institutions.

Charles Cooper, the U.S. representative who cast the lone vote against admitting Vietnam into the 127-nation World Bank, emerged from the closed-door meeting of the bank's directors to say: "I voted against it. No other country did so."

Because of the potential for financial assistance, membership in the IMF and World Bank may be of more importance to Hanoi than belonging to the United Nations, where the threat of a U.S. veto has kept Vietnam out for the time being.

Hanoi is now eligible to apply for the World Bank's International Development Association, which is the single most important international program for wealthy nations to help the very poor.

The United States contributed $1.5 billion of the IDA's $4.5-billion budget during the current four-year lending program. In addition, the United States contributes about 22 per cent of the IMF's resoures.

The IDA made nearly $1.7 billion in interest-free loans for development projects in poor nations last year, mostly in nations where per capital income is below $200 annually. Vietnam's per capita income is $160.

The United States lacks veto power over membership questions in both the bank and the IMF.

Highland professionals get look at biofeedback

Beginning at 12:30 p.m. today and continuing through May 1977, local health professionals at Highland General Hospital in Pampa will participate in a series of 16 therapeutics seminars on treatment concepts and discoveries in health care.

The first seminar will be "Use of Biofeedback" and will survey the clinical uses of the new treatment in which a patient is taught to notice and control bodily processes such as muscle tension.

The series of programs will originate for the seventh year from The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio and local participants will be able to view slides and ask questions of the San Antonio panel by means of a "teleconference" telephone hookup with the San Antonio school.

For the first time this year, the telephone network, which includes small local hospitals and large medical centers throughout Texas and surrounding states, will be a "dedicated" network, that is, available 24 hours a day for use in continuing education programs.

This full time availability will allow more programs to be aired on topics in medicine, nursing and allied health.

Moderator for the first seminar will be Dr. Timothy Caris, associate dean for continuing medical education and professor of medicine at the San Antonio health science center.

Panelists from the center will be Dr. Kenneth Gaarder, professor of psychiatry, and Ms. Penny Montgomery, instructor of psychiatry.

Future seminar topics will include heart attacks, Parkinson's disease, foot problems, viruses, pneumonia and other commonly encountered maladies.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Flip Wilson will be joined by Olympic gold-medal-winning Romanian gymnast Nadia Comaneci in a one-hour television special to be shown Thursday, Nov. 18, on CBS-TV.

The program, which will also be seen throughout Europe, will be the first coproduction involving U.S. television and the official state broadcasting organization of Romania.

The gymnast received an unprecedented seven perfect 10-point scores and won three gold, one silver and a bronze medal at the Montreal Olympics.

LONDON (AP) — Singer Mel Torme, 50, and his English wife will let a Los Angeles court decide a custody battle over their two children.

This agreement was reached Tuesday after legal arguments before a High Court judge in London and out-of-court negotiations.

The couple's 10-year marriage broke up last month.

Torme's wife, actress Janette Scott, 38, agreed to return to California with Daisy, 6, and James, 3, to await a ruling.

One of Torme's hits is "A Foggy Day (In London Town)."

CLEVELAND (AP) — Roy L. Ash, who was U.S. budget director from 1972 through 1974, has been named board chairman and chief executive officer of Addressograph-Multigraph Corp.

Ash, 57, said Tuesday he will be paid $225,000 a year and has bought 300,000 shares of common stock from the company at $9 a share. This will make him one of the largest individual shareholders.

Ash succeeds Frank Woods, 71, as chairman and Charles Davis, 56, as chief executive officer. Davis continues as president and Woods remains on the board, although he is expected to retire after the annual meeting in November.
