State Money Bill Increases After Governor Tells Solons To Slash Funds

APPROPRIATION GAINS DESPITE MOODY'S WORDS

Finance Committee Adds $162,500 to Fund for Education

BILL 'LOW ENOUGH'

Senate Re-Convenes With Bare Quorum While House Is Idle

AUSTIN, July 3. (AP)—The senate finance committee refused to reduce three of the five major appropriation bills vetoed by Governor Moody when it met today, after the chief executive had convened the 41st legislature in third extraordinary session to put the money bills within wnat he called the available revenue.

The committee added $162,500 to the $16,496,545 educational bill. Of this amount $137,500 was allowed for a new building at John Tarleton Agricultural college, Stephenville, and $25,000 was given the East Texas Teacher college at Commerce to replace a similar amount inadvertently left out when the conference committee drew up its report yesterday.

Bill at Minimum

Representative John F. Wallace of Teague, chairman of the house appropriations committe, joined with Senator Tom Pollard of Tyler, chairman of the senate finance committee, in declaring the educational bill as low as it is possible to make it without crippling some institution.

The judiciary bill appropriates $5,056,465 to support the courts the next two years, and the eleemosynary measure carries a total of $10,482,836.

The departmental bill appropriates $12,638,225. This may be reduced.

Three Vetoes

While the governor told the legislature in his message reconvening it that he would veto the major appropriations, he actually had vetoed only the judiciary, eleemosynary and educational measures. It was not clear if he intended to include the $5,800,000 rural aid appropriation in the lot. It was taken for granted he would veto the departmental bill.

The house did not have a quorum today and adjourned until tomorrow. It cannot do anything but adjourn from day to day until there is a quorum.

There were 24 senators on hand, the number necessary for a quorum. The senate adjourned until Saturday, when it may take up and pass the three appropriation bills reported favorably by committee today. The 58 members of the house who registered participated in a roundtable discussion of the situation created by the governor's action in vetoing the appropriations.

Wichita Suspends Business For Old Time July 4th Joys

Lakeside Program Headlines Holiday Activities; Students Pick Weeks Park, as Entire City Observes Day

Wichita Falls will begin at dawn today to make the most of the Fourth of July, joining the nation's celebration of its 153rd birthday.

The more explosive joys of the day were heralded Wednesday night when the brilliant flares of the "Battle of the Clouds" colored the skies about Lake Wichita. Hardly had the spectacular demonstration died away when the day's fishing began, and at 5 o'clock an orchestra playing at Lakeside park was to greet the dawn.

Day for Fishermen

Practically all the work in the city stopped early Wednesday afternoon to give time for the final preparation for a thousand excursions planned for today. While the potato chips and deviled eggs were being fitted into lunch baskets, fishing tackle was being dragged from the corner of the garage and the spare tire hopefully refilled with air.

Weather forecasts were promising, and the city looked to the out-of-doors, preferably the distant out-of-doors, for the traditional meaning of the day. Fishermen and picnickers will be starting early for Lake Kemp, Diversion lake, and Medicine Park. A double-header between the Cats and Spudders, abetted by reduced railroad fares, will attract dozens. Theaters, swimming pools, parks and private entertainments will draw the others.

Junior college summer school students, to the number of about 400, picked Weeks park for their all-day celebration, which is to be packed with races, games and contests, to say nothing of a generous supply of the same kind of fireworks that have made the day famous. The Boy Scouts are staging the biggest jamboree of the year beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at Weeks park, leaving plenty of time before and afterwards for the hurling of baby giants. The dancing at Lakeside park will be intermittent throughout the day and into the evening. Charlie de Sautelle's orchestra planning to see the day out as well as in.

Business Suspended

And for those who aren't expecting to participate in the day's strenuous playing, at least there will be no work. Business houses, offices and banks will be fast

GRAND JURY FILES 22 BILLS

Stanley and Butler Named In Silver Robbery

Hub Stanley and Hugh Butler, former acting assistant manager of the Silver store here, were named in indictments charging theft and burglary in four of the 22 bills returned in the report of the 30th district grand jury shortly before noon Wednesday. The charges grew out of the loss of $700 from the safe in the Silver store on June 23.

Bonds Set at $2,500

Stanley and Butler, sought in connection with a shooting affair on Taylor street three days before the rifling of the safe, were arrested in Breckenridge. They are specifically charged with the theft of more than $50 from R. J. Whaley, manager of the store, and with burglarizing property owned and occupied by him. Their bonds were set at $2,500 each in each case.

The grand jury, which adjourned Wednesday until July 24, also returned a count of murder against Raymond Lewis, negro, charged with the fatal stabbing of Henry Toles, another negro, in a crap game dispute on May 19. Lewis is at liberty under bond.

Other bills returned were against W. L. Gorman, charged with forgery; Eddie Boone, negro, accused of burglarizing the home of C. E. Deaton on May 10; Grover Johnson, charged with the theft of two diamonds from the Kirby Jewelry store several weeks ago; and Ben Jones, another negro, accused of receiving and concealing stolen property in connection with the same offense. Frank Houston was indicted for burglarizing the home of Tom Ballard about six weeks ago, and Bailey Craig was billed for an attempt to rape. Several bills charging swindling by check and one named driving while intoxicated were also returned.

Jury Returns July 24

Officers said Wednesday afternoon that the grand jury will probably have several days' work to do when it reassembles on July 24. The early adjournment Wednesday was planned in order to make it possible for Judge Allan D. Montgomery to attend the meeting of the state bar association now underway in Amarillo, it was explained.

Girl Injured Here In Auto Accident

Mary Dailey, 15, of Edwardsville, Ill., who was visiting friends near Wichita Falls, was seriously injured shortly before 7 o'clock Wednesday evening when the car in which she was riding overturned following a collision between a Chevrolet sedan, driven by Lloyd Detlefs, 1062 Collins street, and a Nash sedan, driven by Merwyn Hudgins, 1811 Buchanan street, at the corner of Ninth street and Kemp boulevard.

Miss Dailey was riding with Mr. Detlefs at the time of the accident, the car crushing her hip when it turned on its side. She was rushed to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital where X-ray pictures revealed three fractures of the pelvis. Attendants at the hospital stated that she would have to remain there for several weeks to allow time for the bones to heal.

O. P. Maricle Elected Postmasters' President

O. P. Maricle, Wichita Falls postmaster, was elected president of the Texas Postmasters' association at Greenville Wednesday in the closing session of the organizations' annual convention, according to an Associated Press dispatch to The Record News.

Echoes of the Brookhart senate investigation of patronage in Texas were heard in the closing hours of the convention when resolutions were adopted expressing resentment toward statements that their "appointments were purchased by political contributions or otherwise."

Houston was selected as the 1930 convention city.

MINSTREL FIRST ON INDEPENDENCE PROGRAM

Holland's fiddle band. All of the artists are of radio station KGKO.

WOUNDED GIRL NAMES JILTED MAN AS SLAYER

Houston Youth Killed When Couple Is Fired Upon While on Beach

SUITOR RELEASED

Rejected Lover Rides in Ambulance With Girl After Shooting

HOUSTON, July 3. (UP)—Revenge of a "jilted" lover was the only clue police had to work on tonight as they investigated the tragic death of Howard Gouge, 20, Houston contractor, and the serious injury of Miss Lillian Bissett, who were shot down last night on the beach at Morgan's point.

Miss Bissett, lying at the point of death in a hospital here, rallied sufficiently late today to make a brief statement.

Names Jilted Suitor

She named the suitor whom she had told a few weeks ago "I don't want to go with you any longer," and intimated that jealousy might have prompted him to follow the couple to the beach and shoot them.

"I don't know who could have shot us unless it was he," she said. "Since I gave him up he has followed me, no matter where I went."

Miss Bissett said she and Gouge were sitting on an automobile cushion in front of his car. The lights were turned on, she said.

"Suddenly I heard a couple of explosions, which seemed to come from under the car behind us. Charlie jumped to his feet and grabbed me by the arm. We started to run toward the beach, but turned around and came back to the car. Charlie had blood spurting from his mouth. Suddenly he fell down at my feet, dead."

Man Released

The girl, wounded seriously in the head, could not remember when the bullet hit her, but was found beside the body of Gouge, moaning and crying. Gouge's body was half under the running board of the car, as if he had been trying to reach the assailant when he died.

The alleged suitor, who the girl said got in the ambulance with her as she was being taken to the hospital and asked her who shot her, was arrested by police, but released after questioning.

"He rode with me in the ambulance," the girl told police, "and explained that he had been in La Porte when the ambulance went through and had followed it to Morgan's point.

"He seemed awfully nervous. It may have been that he cared for me. I don't know. Again it might be."

Her voice trailed off.

The girl had been kept under the influence of opiates since the shooting. She is given an even chance of life by physicians.

Gouge, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Gouge, of Houston, was shot once. The bullet entered his left arm pit, punctured his lung and did not leave the body.

Mrs. N. A. Segall, operator of a soft drink stand near Morgan's point, found the wounded girl beside the car after she had gone to investigate after hearing shots. She called police and an ambulance and administered first aid to the wounded girl.

NEW TRIAL FOR JOHN RAMSEY

Man Convicted With Hale Wins Appeal

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 3. (AP)—John Ramsey, cowboy-farmer, convicted in Oklahoma of murdering Henry Roan, Osage Indian, was granted a new trial by the United States circuit court of appeals, under a decision announced here today.

HALE'S ATTORNEY GAINS NEW HOPE

PAWHUSKA, Okla., July 3. (UP)—A new trial has been granted John Ramsey, who was convicted jointly with W. K. Hale, former "king of the Osages," for the murder of Henry Roan, wealthy Osage Indian, according to advices received today.

The information was received by Fred Tillman from the clerk of the United States district court of appeals at St. Paul. The opinion was written by Federal Judge Charles B. Farrie of St. Louis who sat with Judges Stone and Lewis in the court which heard the appeal at Okalhoma City last January.

Ramsey had failed to file an appeal following his conviction in 1926. Last fall he requested that Tillman be appointed to file a brief of the case and make an appeal for him.

The appeal was based on the grounds that Ramsey should have been tried separately from Hale; that he was convicted principally on a confession which he later repudiated and that he should have been tried in Osage county.

Tillman, who is also attorney for Hale, said he believed new hope in Hale's battle for freedom from Leavenworth penitentiary was contained in the granting the new trial for Ramsey. Hale is serving a 99-year term in conviction of murder charges in connection with Roan's death.

Tillman contends that Hale had been convicted principally by the repudiated confession of Ramsey that was introduced at Hale's trial last January.

Incidents in Tulsa Beauty's Past Life Revealed by Surprise Witness

Ann Livingston's 'Wartime' Room-mate Jolts Plaintiff's Balm Case by Stories of Indiscretions

By W. F. SULLIVAN

CHICAGO, July 3. (UP)—Ann Livingston's love for the material things in life, contrasting her story of a desire to be a home-loving mother, was brought to the fore again by the defense today through a "surprise witness" in her $250,000 breach of promise suit against Franklin S. Hardinge, oil burner magnate.

This story of the past life of Ann came shortly after Hardinge, at the point of exhaustion, completed five days of testimony in which he accused Miss Livingston openly of being a "gold digger" and of wanting to marry him only for his money.

Indiscretions Told

Mrs. Bessie Heath, the surprise witness, who said she had been a room-mate of Miss Livingston back in the "war days," told the jury in Ann's presence of alleged indiscretions she had seen and of conversations with the complainant in which she admitted accepting gifts of hosiery, perfume and other articles from men.

Mrs. Heath, wife of Victor Heath, a warrant officer of Fort Omaha, Neb., who said she came here to see that "Mr. Hardinge got justice" began recital of her story dating back to 1917 "when I was 17 and Ann said she was 19."

Finds Door Locked

She accused her former room-mate of having intimate relations with Lieut. Robert Puderbaugh, Ann's former husband, in Little Rock, Ark., before their marriage.

After further accusing Miss Livingston of "taking several articles of wearing apparel from my room," Mrs. Heath told of one night when she went to her rooming house and found the door locked.

"I knocked and it was several minutes before anyone answered and unlocked the door," the witness said. "When I went in Lieut. Puderbaugh had his blouse off and Ann was partly undressed.

Pair Enters Room

"Another night I went to bed early and was awakened when two persons entered the room. Is that

HOLIDAY BEER STORES SEIZED

Police Obtain 1500 Pints, Some of It Iced

A field of growing corn holds no comparison with the field of flowing beer discovered by officers late Wednesday night near Bailey street. Attracted by the activities near the location of the field, probably caused by persons preparing for zealous celebration of the Fourth, Officers Summers, A. L. Stubblefield and John Sewell investigated the place and found, hidden among the high weeds, corn stalks and sunflower plants, almost 1,500 bottles of beer.

One negro man was arrested and is being held in the city jail for investigation Thursday. The same man had been arrested a few days ago on a similar charge, but no large amount of evidence had been discovered until the raid Wednesday.

The bottles were well hidden in all parts of the deep underbrush and weeds, small paths leading the officers to some of the beer, part of which was in barrels and kegs, ice cold. The greater portion of the haul was found in a ditch below a board fence, covered with brush and made to appear as solid ground. The bottles were in sacks, their color blending with the ground, making discovery difficult.

About eight full sacks, two barrels and one tub were brought to the police station. The raid was one of a series of "personal visits to the homes of bootleggers" in Wichita Falls, several of which have already been made by Officers Summers and Stubblefield, who are conducting a campaign to rid the city of all such illegal traffic.

The officers will probably continue their activities Thursday when Independence day celebrants are seeking firecrackers and fire water.

WASHINGTON, July 3. (US)—The first formal step toward actual construction of Boulder dam was taken today when the Union Pacific railroad, through one of its subsidiaries, asked the interstate commerce commission for permission to construct a 23-mile branch line to haul materials to the dam site. The petition was filed by the Los Angeles & Salt Lake City railway.

City Throws Every Police Squad Into Search for Slayer of Family

DETROIT, July 3. (UP)—Every police squad in Detroit was ordered to join in a city-wide search today for a fiend or maniac who hacked an entire family to death, leaving a scene of horror in the home of Paul Evangelist, 43, Herb "Healer," and leader of an Italian religious cult.

Evidences of the slayer's fiendish work were found throughout the home of Evangelist.

In the first floor office of Evangelist, the herb doctor's body was found seated in a chair and on the floor, nearby, was his head.

In a second-floor bedroom were the bodies of Mrs. Evangelist and her 15-months-old son, Mario, the mother's head crushed. The blunt end of an axe had taken the life of the baby. They had been slain in bede

Lying in their twin cribs across the hall in another room were the bodies of Angeline, 7, and Margaret, 5. Their night gowns were torn by the slayer.

Near the little cribs lay the body of the sixth victim, Jeanne, 4.

Several squads of police were ordered to search the neighborhood for the axe and sharp instrument that had been wielded to claim the lives of the family while the entire city was searched for the slayer.

MORAN PRAISES PROSPECTS FOR WICHITA UNITS

Continental-Marland Head And Officials Tour Texas Properties

FEW CHANGES HERE

Outlook Considered Good In Area for New Oil Production

All production, refining and marketing properties of the Continental Oil company located in Wichita Falls and vicinity are considered sound and attractive investments, with excellent prospects for prolonged future operation, according to D. J. Moran, president, who arrived in this city Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Moran was told that many local citizens were interested in the attitude of his company toward its industrial units in this community since the recent consolidation with the Marland Oil company, and was questioned as to any changes in operation which might be contemplated.

SO HERE'S WHY SOME CALL HIM "HARD BOILED"

What's in a name and why was conclusively answered by D. J. Moran, president of the Continental Oil company, when quizzed Wednesday night by a Record News reporter relative to the origin of the monicker "Hard-boiled Moran" which has been persistently applied by the oil fraternity generally, if lobby talk may be accepted as evidence.

"They call me that?" queried the apparently even-tempered boss, with a dubious smile.

"Why, I never even met 'Hard-boiled' Smith of A. E. F. fame. If there's a reason, it's this: I expect every man on the payroll to earn his salary. I demand more of myself than of any employe. If he is not driven by his own conscience to do his work completely and carefully—well, he ought not to expect to stay."

Mr. Moran was formerly with the Texas company, going with the Marland as its head about a year ago. He became president of the consolidated Marland-Continental companies recently.

23 Officials in Party

President Moran and 21 other representatives of the company, whose headquarters are in Denver and Ponca City, Okla., arrived in Wichita Falls about 1:30 p. m. Wednesday in a large bus especially equipped for a three-weeks' tour of company properties in the Rocky Mountain area.

The Continental Oil company is now one of the largest organizations of its kind in the world, it was said, as the result of the recent merger. The tour is designed, officials said, to acquaint executive and department heads of the company with the marketing, refining, and producing territories of the Continental Oil company which are

Speeding Train Left Driverless As Engineer Jumps, or Falls, to Death

MACON, Mo., July 3. (UP)—A Burlington train, carrying 300 passengers, today raced at 50 miles an hour down its tracks, the throttle open and unattended, the engineer dead, half buried in a shallow creek along the track to the rear.

There were two versions tonight of the incident. A coroner's jury had decided Engineer Elmer Daugherty tired of life and jumped to his death. Burlington officials and Fireman Roscoe Cassity of the train, however, rejected this verdict. Cassity, who sprang to the controls and brought the train to a stop after it had gone three miles without an engineer, said Daugherty must have become dizzy and fallen from his cab.

"No one ever took more pride in his responsibilities," Cassity said in a tone indicating there is one thing an engineer never do.

Railroad officials cited the man's 37-year record against which there was but one minor mishap. Daugherty recently had been censured for driving his locomotive into a ditching machine. This censure might have preyed on his mind, it was suggested at the inquest.

A searching party found the body after Cassity brought the train to a halt when he noticed there had been no whistle for Macon and discovered his engineer had vanished.

BORGER WHEAT FIELD WILL YIELD 45 BUSHELS PER ACRE

JUST THE Baer Facts

By Bugs Baer

NEW YORK, July 3. (US)—Just when we were figuring whether to eat a dab of watercress or fan ourselves with an ostrich fan of parsley we read the scientific, but uncomfortable, information that a man eats almost 200 pounds of meat every year.

Every citizen eats his own weight in meat every 12 months.

The worst of it is that it's a lot of bologna.

The embarrassing detail about scientists is that they spout their endorsed information at the wrong time.

When the weather is hot they dish up their heavy, woolen winter facts. Why don't they give us some cool, alpaca conversation about mint juleps and laughing waterfalls?

There is no r in the month of July. Therefore we should limit our diet to quick sales and small profits.

There is no w in the month of August, no matter how you pronounce it. This month should be devoted to lettuce leaves and call money.

We do not eat 200 pounds of meat a year because we eat lamb chops. In order to get an ounce of meat from a lamb chop you have to nibble on a ton of lamb's elbows.

A man could live on lamb chops all his life and still be a strict vegetarian.

There is a little more meat on a pork chop. But even at its best, any kind of a chop is something like a Chinese orchestra. A lot of strings and very little music.

Deriving nourishment from a chop is even more difficult than finding the Azores on a vest pocket map.

Trying to nibble at the meat on a chop is something like peeling bark in the petrified forest.

We do admire a big, corpulent sirloin steak with the gravy breaking in roars on a rock-bound shore. But July is too hot for anything like that and we wish the scientists would go back over their books and give us the answer in chocolate sodas.

Who wants to eat two cwt. of frankfurters when the temperature is muttering in its socket and even the hoss flies have decided to walk for a while?

Why do butcher shops close on Saturdays during June, July and August? Because even cannibals are living on birdseed and swimming in one-piece rain barrels.

July is no month in which to be educated. The schools closed in June. Why don't the scientists close up shop and give the adults a holiday?

There should be a law against intelligence during the airedale days.

If the average man eats 200 pounds of gristle and meat we bet that he does it from Thanksgiving to Washington's birthday.

And we hope that the scientists have not included the wing and the neck of the turkey which falls to the lot of the average man. Anybody who claims a turkey wing is meat could probably dine heartily on an autographed banjo.

60,000 BUSHEL YIELD IS SEEN

Previously Idle Elevators Now Busy

Special to The Record News

BORGER, Texas, July 3.—Sixty thousand bushels of wheat from one wheat field, an average of between 40 and 45 bushels to the acre.

This is the record which A. P. Borger, who owns some 7,500 acres of wheat in Hansford county, around Gruver, says his largest field near that town, will make.

"I have a field of 1,500 acres in one lot, south and west of Gruver," Mr. Borger said. "We are cutting the wheat now and the boys tell me it is running between 40 and 45 bushels to the acre.

"I have never seen any finer wheat than in that field. The heads are all longer than my fingers and well filled. We will get at least 60,000 bushels of wheat from that field."

Owns Other Fields

Mr. Borger has about 1,500 more acres in the same community as the big field, but they are all in section lots. The yield is about the same.

All told Mr. Borger expects to get about a quarter of a million bushels of wheat from his nearly 12 sections of land.

He is interested in a string of elevators along the new Rock Island line between Amarillo and Liberal, including those at Stinnett, Pringle, Gruver and Hardesty.

"At Gruver the first three days we bought about 70,000 bushels of wheat and we shipped 40 cars of wheat in that time," he said. "I believe at Gruver our elevator will handle half a million bushels of wheat this year."

Mr. Borger said he was following his combines with plows turning under the stubble and that he expected to put out 29 sections of wheat land this fall. He owns some 35 sections of land in Hansford county.

ELEVATORS BUSY WITH 1929 CROP

Special to The Record News

BORGER, Texas, July 3.—Working night and day, all of the elevators along the Amarillo-Liberal line of the Rock Island, are handling and shipping car load after car load of the 1929 wheat crop as fast as the railroad can handle the shipments.

There are more than 20 elevators on the 151 mile line and all but two of them have never shipped wheat until this year. Last year the elevator at Stinnett shipped out thousands of bushels.

Greatest activity at present is at Gruver where five elevators are all handling wheat. Hitchland, on the state line, has four elevators. Hardesty has two, both new ones.

All of these elevators are operated by electricity, the Panhandle Power and Light company's new high line having been cut in.

Two Shipping Points

Wheat is being shipped south from Hardesty to Amarillo. North of the Beaver creek, beginning at Adams, wheat goes into Liberal, Kan.

South of the Beaver it is expected between 10,000,000 and 12,000,000 bushels will be harvested this year. That figure may be surpassed if the present increase in yield is maintained.

Wheat was not expected to average over 25 bushels to the acre. A heavier stand, with larger heads, is boosting the yield to 30 bushels, with many reports of 40 and 45 bushel yields.

Most of the wheat is being cut by combines. Following the big machines are gang plows breaking the sod out over land for next year's crop.

FIRST LOAD LEAVES HARDESTY ELEVATOR

Special to The Record News.

BORGER, Texas, July 3.—The first car load of wheat to be shipped out of Hardesty, Okla., on the new Amarillo-Liberal line of the Rock Island was to be shipped this week, A. P. Borger, owner of the Borger-Morral Grain company elevator there, said.

How I Bleach My Skin White

"The camera is a merciless eye," says Miss Genevieve Barr, noted New York model, "and we girls who have to face it have a method of our own for keeping our skins white and flawless.

"We buy no ready-made preparations, but get three ounces of Orchard White at the drug store and add to this the juice of two lemons. This makes several weeks' supply of a very fine skin bleach which softens, refines and whitens the skin without any harm or irritation. And because you use it while it is still fresh, it is twice as effective as any ready-to-use preparation. I find it a dandy bleach for tan and freckles, too. Every girl who takes up posing in New York, sooner or later learns this studio secret. The bleach costs only a few cents to make."—Adv.

Room for Joint Use of All Civic Clubs Urged at Lions Meeting

Plans for the establishment of a joint clubroom in which all service clubs here would be served luncheons were discussed Wednesday noon at the regular meeting of the Lions club, and a committee consisting of Frank Cripliver, C. W. Nelms and Bart Magee was appointed to investigate the proposition.

James King, new president of the club, stressed the importance of increased membership and improved attendance in a brief address concerning the work of the coming 12 months. J. S. Pitman, Judge R. O. Kenley, Roy E. Carter, and A. B. Maples also made short talks.

C. C. Hudson of the Iowa Park club announced that plans are being made for a Wichita county Lions picnic near Iowa Park during the latter part of July. It was announced that next week's meeting of the Lions club will be held in the Kemp hotel, the Y. W. C. A. having suspended its services to the organization during the summer.

Musical numbers were given by Mrs. P. M. Cordell, soprano, accompanied by Mrs. F. R. Collard.

Spiritual Qualities of Parents Create National Greatness, Club Told

"National greatness is created by the spiritual qualities of the fathers and mothers making up its citizenry," declared Rev. Patrick D. Moreland, pastor of the Grant Street Methodist church, in an address before the Optimist club Wednesday noon at the Kemp hotel.

"So long as clean manhood and womanhood has maintained in any nation, it has stood. Political collapse has invariably been due to corruption within. The world thus far has produced no nation capable of withstanding the onslaughts of time. England's history is one of centuries of commendable triumphs, but this modern state has yet to parallel the position which ancient Rome maintained for 1,000 years.

"Every age shows evidence of the dreams of men, dreams which have been the measure of man's progress. It has been a long upward climb, but spiritual elements never grow old," the speaker said.

Rev. Patrick Henry presided at Wednesday's meeting. Joel MacGregor led a singsong of pathetic airs, and sang as a solo the Welsh national anthem, accompanied by Miss Lorene Tucker.

QUANAH TAX ORDER BANNED

Rate to Stand at $1.75, Council Orders

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, July 3.—The storm of protests following the announcement of taxable figures based upon 100 per cent values of the equalization board selected by the city council to make such appraisement has caused the city council to rescind the order.

The council stated that as servants of the people they would abide by the wishes of the people, which was so strongly voiced as unfavorable to the 100 per cent plan of taxation with lower rate.

This leaves the tax rate at $1.75 the full limit of Quanah's rate. The necessity for additional funds for the operation of the city will therefore require that the equalization board materially raise the present renditions, leaving the rate stand at $1.75, according to members of the council.

TEXAS BOOSTS OIL OUTPUT

National Production Attains New High Record

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Production of crude petroleum in the United Stated during May totaled 84,415,000 barrels, a new high record and 12 per cent over May, 1928.

"Increased production in Texas, which again raised the daily output of the state to a new record of over 800,000 barrels, was mainly responsible for the gain in national output," the commerce department said.

"Daily average production in California showed little change from the previous month but that of Oklahoma increased 15,000 barrels to slightly over 700,000 barrels. The production of Kansas reached a new high level as production in the Sedgwick district continued to increase. The majority of the other producing states increased, the two most notable exceptions being Arkansas and Louisiana."

Moran Outlines Policies Here

located west of the Mississippi river.

Expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars on the Continental properties here in the months preceding the merger has made the Wichita Falls units of the company among the most important in the state, it was pointed out. The continued operation of these units at the maximum of efficiency is in line with the policies of the new company since the merger, Mr. Moran said, although no immediate manufacturing improvements are contemplated or needed.

Future Production

Mr. Moran expressed satisfaction with the oil producing possibilities of areas in and near Wichita county, with reference not only to land already developed, but to productive levels not yet tested. He indicated his belief, however, that drilling of new sands in this section will not call for tests to a depth of 6,000 feet, as has been suggested.

"Of course no man can say definitely what may prove true in the discovery of future oil production, but it is my belief that the undiscovered sands of the Wichita area may lie nearer the surface than 6,000 feet," the Continental president declared.

"This feeling may or may not prove true, but if additional horizons can be added to the producing levels of this section at less depth, so much the better for the producer. In other words, it appears possible that this section of Texas may have considerable production yet to be secured at depths less extreme than 6,000 feet."

The group left Ponca City, Okla., Tuesday July 2. Wednesday afternoon was spent at the refinery here, where the party was escorted through the plant by Walter N. Alexander, district superintendent of production, D. W. Hyler, refinery superintendent, T. H. Lawson, district manager, and J. G. Davis, assistant division manager of the marketing department, all of this city. The tour will be resumed early Thursday morning. The itinerary will carry the party as far south in Texas as Pecos, thence northward to Salt Lake City, through Wyoming and Montana to Great Falls, and eastward to Kansas City, totalling more than 6,000 miles of travel.

Members of the party expressed themselves as greatly pleased with the physical equipment, the organization efficiency, and cleanliness found in the Continental Oil company's refinery here.

The huge Mack bus chartered for the Continental officials' trip is a veritable parlor car on wheels. A radio, writing tables, water cooler, reclining chairs, and other equipment designed to contribute to the general comfort and convenience of passengers have been provided. Ample space for its 22 occupants is assured by the fact that it was built to accommodate 29 passengers. The bus has a speed capacity of 75 miles per hour.

Airplane transportation was resorted to Wednesday night in order to effect a replacement in the traveling personnel, made necessary by a message calling Fred Searles, one of the directors, to New York. One of the Continental Oil company's Lockhead planes en route from Marland, Texas, to Ponca City, Okla., picked up Mr. Searles here late Wednesday afternoon and placed him aboard an eastbound train out of Tulsa at 7:10 p. m. The ship will leave Ponca City at 4:30 a. m. Thursday bearing James J. Cosgrove, general counsel of the company, who will leave Wichita Falls with the officials' group at 6:30 a. m.

Personnel of Party

The personnel of the party is as follows: D. J. Moran, president; E. T. Wilson, chairman of the board of directors; S. M. Keoughan, chairman of the executive committee; E. J. Nicklos, vice president in charge of production; Walter Miller, vice president in charge of manufacturing; E. S. Karstedt, vice president in charge of marketing; W. H. Ferguson, executive vice president; H. H. Markham, comptroller and assistant to the president; J. J. Cosgrove, general counsel; O. B. Lloyd, sales; Harry Moreland, pipe line; Tom Kenney, pipe line; E. O. Bennett, chief engineer; G. C. Clark, geological; J. M. Hollister, general manager of plants and equipment; H. B. Sister-In-Law of Governor Dies Of Injury Received Scrubbing Floor

GARY, Ind., July 3. (INS)—Mrs. Edith Leslie, 37, sister-in-law of Gov. Harry G. Leslie of Indiana, received the scratch which caused her death, while assisting a scrub woman to wash floors at a bakery here in return for some stale bread for her children, Paul Staedel, owner of the bakery, declared today.

The scrub woman reported to him, Staedel, that Mrs. Leslie ran a sliver into her arm while helping wash the floors.

Mrs. Leslie considered her injury trivial. Blood poisoning developed and she died last night.

Mrs. Leslie's husband, William Leslie, 55, a plumber and brother of the governor said that since his brother had been elected governor he had been unable to secure employment. The family had been cared for the past six months by a welfare association, it was said.

you, Ann?' I asked and she answered: 'Hush, someone is with me. It's Lieut. Puderbaugh, he wants to stay all night because he missed his car to the camp.'

"I was only 17 and didn't know what to do. Ann said, 'he can lie on my side of the bed and won't bother you'."

Mrs. Heath said that when the landlady learned of it, she ordered Miss Livingston to leave.

"I objected to such goings-on, too," the witness added, "and Ann and I had a fight. She pulled my hair, slapped me and flung me around. I asked why she did such things and she said, 'This is not the first time. I've done this since I was 13.'

Ann Took no Money

"She told me that she took no money from men but that she did accept gifts such as hosiery and perfume."

Miss Livingston was recalled to the stand after her attorney sought to impeach Mrs. Heath's testimony.

"I never saw her before in my life," she said under the guidance of her attorney.

Ann also sought to point out discrepancies in Mrs. Heath's testimony. She said her mother is a tall woman weighing 180 pounds while the Omaha woman had described her as "short and stocky."

In his effort to impeach Mrs. Heath's testimony, the plaintiff's counsel brought out that her expenses in Chicago are being paid by Hardinge, that the Heaths are living at the Hardinge home and that they have accompanied Hardinge on several sight-seeing tours in the city.

The plaintiff's counsel failed to shake Mrs. Heath's story during cross examination and she held to all essential points of the story told on direct examination.

The same packed courtroom that has attended the sessions daily was on hand today and remained until adjournment until Friday was taken.

closed. Every department in the postoffice, except the mail order window, will stay open between 8 and 9 o'clock only. That window will be closed all day. The courthouse will be occupied by only such members of the sheriff's and the constable's department as aren't out shepherding the crowds. Every other office will stay closed. In the city auditorium, the health department alone will open its doors.

Golf and other athletic and social diversions will complete an all-day program Thursday at Wichita Falls Golf and Country club in observance of Independence day. The pairings for the mixed golf foursome, to be held in the morning, were completed Wednesday by Bill Strachan, club professional.

A men's handicap tournament and a putting contest, and a croquet tournament and children's swimming events at 5:30 o'clock complete the athletic bill.

Dancing will be from 7 to 9, to be followed by a display of fireworks. A buffet luncheon will be served from 11 to 2.

Climaxing the first night of the spectacular two-day celebration at Lakeside park which began Wednesday night, the huge bombshell, "Battle of the Clouds," burst into myriad flaming balls and miniature airplanes which glided through the air, throwing streamers of fire and exploding in true battle fashion, accompanied by 100 other bombshells which completed the spectacle of an aerial battle. The specially built dock, in mid-lake, from which the fireworks piece was shot, crumbled into the waters at the final bomb explosion, the last fading streamers of fire illuminating the waves which rose over it.

15,000 See Display

Climaxing the first night of a two-day celebration at Lakeside park, a spectacular fireworks program was staged at the resort Wednesday night at 10 o'clock. "Battle of the Clouds," an unusual miniature airplane battle, was only staged in part, the force of the 500 pounds of powder necessary for exploding of the bomb driving it into the water as it was set off. Charles J. Wisdom, special shooter from the Pan-American Amusement company of Iowa, sent to Wichita Falls for staging the event, was slightly injured as his foot was caught in framework of the shell.

A crowd of 15,000 celebrants thronged Lakeside park Wednesday night, in advance of the 4th of July program proper which begins at 5 o'clock Thursday morning with a sunrise dance in the pavilion, sponsored by the R. J. R. club of Wichita Falls. An old-time 4th of July celebration, with band concerts and other attractions, will constitute the remainder of the day's program.

Earlier in the evening, the crowds began gathering at the park and by the time for the fireworks display, the concessions, the pavilion, the amusement devices and the boardwalk were filled with eager, ever-moving throngs. Dancing drew hundreds to the pavilion and continued through the evening.

Picnic sites at the Lakeside will be numerous. Motor and row boats may be chartered all day, and the peers will be available for fishing. Special arrangements have been made to supply the crowd with holiday meals at the pavilion all the day. New concessions will be opened and every amusement facility at the park will be running to capacity. And in the evening the celebration will close as it began, with the sudden burst of fire and light of a second fireworks display.

REAL BATTLE

Brick, Butcher Knife and Ice Pick Used by Negro Women

A scrap in which three negro women, a brick, a butcher knife, and an ice pick all equally figured late Tuesday, resulted Wednesday in the filing of assault to murder charges against the alleged weilder of the ice pick. There was a fourth figure in the background, a gold-toothed negro boy, who looked on while the women fought.

It was Annie Mehi Kelly, who received the ice pick wound, after the brick had been hurled and the butcher knife brandished, according to an account of the affair given to George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney. Charges were filed against Cora Wilson, who told the officer that she used the pick in self-defense.

ATECA GRANTED HIS FREEDOM

Former Rebel Paymaster Released by U. S.

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—Salvadore Ateca, who had $700,000 alleged to have been seized from the Mexican federal government in his possession when he was arrested here two months ago, was freed today from the custody of the United States at the conclusion of extradition proceedings brought by the Mexican government.

Ateca, former Mexican rebel paymaster, and three other men were arrested last May 4 in the Hotel McAlpin where authorities seized a black bag containing the cash and securities. At that time government authorities said the men were absconding to Spain.

Ateca's release was ordered by United States Commissioner O'Neill after David Siegel, counsel for the Mexican, had attacked the complaint of larceny and embezzlement submitted by counsel for the Mexican government. Siegel said the complaint showed no larceny as the 20,000 pesos alleged to have been stolen from the state tax collector's office at Juarez, had been legally taken since Benjamin Revilla, agent for Ateca, gave a receipt for the money. He also said payment was authorized by Augustin Gallo, mayor of Juarez, acting under orders of the rebel general of the district.

In 1900 Judge Orr came to Oklahoma and Jackson county beginning the publication of the Altus Weekly News on March 15 of that year. He was publisher of that journal for the next 20 years, ceasing publication in 1920.

He has been justice of the peace with an office in the Jackson county court house since 1924.

The court house whose dedication will be begun by Judge Orr, was recently erected at Vernon at a cost of $375,000. The ceremonies will be a part of the Independence day program at which the Vernon $100,000 city hall and municipal airport will also be dedicated.

Postal Receipts For June Total $25,492

Postal receipts for June totaled $25,492.44, indicating a decrease of $1,119.66 from the receipts of June, 1928, when a total of $26,612.10 was recorded. The decrease might be explained by a falling off in the volume of postal matter sent out by large concerns in Wichita Falls, it was said, the records indicating that much smaller amounts of certain printed matter had been mailed during June this year than were sent out last June.

The Mexican jumping bean does so because of a little worm inside which coils itself and lets itself go like a catapult, carrying its house along with it. The worm lives in the bean all the time, and if a hole is made in the shell, it fills it up again.

Houston Negro Indicted for Attack; Woman's Relatives Disarmed in Court

HOUSTON, July 3. (AP)—Robert Carmack, 21-year-old negro from Clarksdale, Miss., was indicted for criminal assault today by the Harris county grand jury. His trial was set for July 22.

Carmack was alleged to have attacked Mrs. Maggie Morgan at her home here June 8.

Mrs. Morgan identified the negro as her attacker. Carmack, arrested at Monroe, La., admitted he was at the Morgan home June 8 but denied he attacked the woman.

H. L. Morgan, the woman's husband, and his 18-year-old son, Earl, were disarmed and charges of carrying pistols were filed against them Monday after they went to the criminal courts building to see the attack suspect.

Wichita Boiler Maker Out With Facts

Took All Kinds of Treatment But Got No Relief Until He Began Taking Orgatone; Feels Like New Man Now

"Orgatone has really worked wonders in my case," said W. H. Derrick, of 808 Fifth street, Wichita Falls, Texas, who is a boiler maker, and while talking with the Orgatone man the other day while in Allison's Drug store.

"For over 10 years I have suffered from a severe case of stomache trouble," he continued. "I had to be very careful of what I ate, for the food sourced on my stomach, and would make me very dizzy and bilious. I would have severe gas pains, and a very puffed-up, bloated feeling. At times I would have specks form before my eyes, caused from my liver, and I would have to hold to keep from falling. I was nervous and restless and didn't get a good night's sleep. I could taste my food several hours after eating. In fact, I was just in a general run-down condition and needed something to build me up.

"Orgatone was recommended to me by Mr. Schram, this city, and I got a bottle. After taking one half bottle of the medicine I could feel immediate results. I can eat anything I want now, without the slightest disturbance. I am feeling better in every way, and am glad to say a good word for this Orgatone, for it has made a new man of me."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug store, who are direct laboratory agents.—Adv.

"GO WEST, YOUNG MAN!"

THE MILLS OF Washington grind slow, but they do eventually produce grist. The Northern Pacific, which for 50 years considered itself owner of 2,800,000 acres of right-of-way land, now finds that its balance sheet has been counting chickens before they hatched.

Uncle Sam, turned Indian giver, admits he presented this tidy parcel to the N. P., but with a string tied to it, to-wit: that the line from Tacoma to the Pacific should be laid by 1879.

The contract wasn't so fulfilled, consequently the nation asserts right of recovery, and twenty-five million dollars' worth of additional forest reserve joins America's rainy day estate, steadily to increase in value and utility, until your grindchildren will see its natural resources rated at billions.

Our own and Europe's standing debts might be liquidated with the accruals from congressional grants to the various transcontinental and west coast systems, promoted since the civil war.

But individual states have just as recklessly overpaid for services which their several incomes could not, at the time, afford.

The capitol building at Austin was erected by John V. Farwell, Chicago merchant, who received from Texas a three-million acre slice of the Panhandle in payment. But he didn't follow John Jacob Astor's example and instruct his heirs to sit tight, so most of the district, where America's bumper wheat crops and deepest oil wells are respectively sprouting and spouting, was long ago cashed in at less than one per cent of current market prices.

SMALL PROFITS and quick sales never left a man poor, but they occasionally bilk him of the chance to match pennies and fortunes with Fords and Rockefellers.

The Klebergs, whose ranches cover more ground than Delaware or Rhode Island, discovered that when St. Louis and Brownsville locomotives went chugging across their pastures, the bulk of which were largely picked up on the dime and quarter counter.

A dozen towns already flourish where their longhorns browsed, and the sites of a thousand more are safely tucked in the family pocket.

That's how getting in on the ground floor works—provided judgment assists at the job.

Idaho is filled with folk who aren't living the life of Croesus only because they didn't think it worth while to homestead a power location and clip coupons unto the nth generation.

The interior department estimates that four million odd horsepower lies within her borders, with less than a tenth of it in harness—not to mention a 268,000-acre stretch of phosphate and 60,000 unexploited acres more or less indicative of oil and gas.

There are still pots of gold at the end of the rainbow trail, and the biggest of all, under Boulder dam, ready to transform another sterile chunk of the continent into gardens, orchards and stock farms, comparable to those of the Imperial valley—once an arid sink and useless as the Sahara, until Harriman's vision detected Ophir and Golconda drowsing under the sands and brought the cup that wakened fertility and prosperity.

Take Horace Greeley's advice and quit rubbing elbows in the crowd. It isn't yet too late to "Go West, young man!"

NEW AUTOMOBILES

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., July 3.—Sixty-one new cars and 10 new trucks were bought by people of Jackson county during the month of June.

Mary Garden says the talking movies are going to finish grand opera. Maybe some of the critics have been a little hasty in their condemnation of the talkies.

Flies, army worms and straw worms aren't the only pests working on the wheat crop. There are a couple of others working on the prices.

The Cheapness of Life

A BANDIT walked into a little confectionery store in a middle western city the other evening. At the counter stood a business man, buying a box of candy. The bandit leveled a gun at him and demanded his pocketbook. The customer, emptying his pockets, protested that he had no money with him except a little small change.

Thereupon the bandit, enraged, pulled the trigger and shot the man dead.

This little story, not considered unusual enough to get more than a few inches of newspaper space, is as revealing as anything you could find in your paper.

It tells more about the attitude which makes our "crime wave" possible than a whole volume of learned sociological dissertation. For it proves, graphically, that human life has become cheap in America. Killing a man is no longer a dreadful deed for which a man must nerve himself beforehand; it is a triviality, something that can be done casually to gratify a moment's disappointment of vexation. Murder has ceased to be a terrible word.

The easiest thing to do is blame it all on the war; and, surely, the violent deaths of 2,000,000 soldiers are hardly calculated to teach the sacredness of human life. But that explanation is altogether too easy. We would have this same willingness to kill even if we had not been through a war. It is an outgrowth of our national character.

The whole trend of the times is to minimize the importance of the individual.

In every factory in the country the machine is more important than the worker, and is steadily forcing him out.

It is taken for granted that no big building can be erected without at least one laborer being killed on the job.

The automobiles that our machine-manned factories turn out kill more than 20,000 people every year, and nobody dreams of getting excited about it.

Law enforcement officers, when they suspect a person of smuggling, shoot him first and investigate afterwards.

The coal that heats our houses and furnishes steam for our industries is taken from the ground at the cost of scores of lives annually; yet no one suggests that the price is scandalously high.

You could go on multiplying instances of that kind indefinitely. And, in the end, what you would prove would be just this: that the individual is coming to count for less and less in our civilization each year. He is being lost track of in the whirring of machinery and the confusion of modern haste.

So the rise of murder rates is only a reflection of the cheapening of human life that has taken place all over the country. It won't be remedied much until we get a new attitude.

Commendable Action

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS COURT is to be commended for its action in making provision for two motorcycle officers for service throughout the county to lessen the danger of traffic accidents.

The immediate occasion for this provision is to handle traffic on the highway in the vicinity of the new Lakeside park. Here nightly and on Sunday afternoons there is congestion of traffic and parking of cars that is a serious menace to life and limb. This condition can best be handled by uniformed traffic officers whose authority will be respected and who will not be dependent upon fees from arrests for their compensation. It is fortunate that the appointment of these officers has come before the Fourth of July when there will be heavy traffic to and from the lake.

But Lakeside park is not the only locality where the need of traffic officers is great. A celebration or an entertainment in any part of the county draws crowds which make traffic hazards, and under the direction of the sheriff these traffic officers can be assigned to duty anywhere in the county.

Last fall during the migrations of cotton pickers there were many accidents on the Iowa Park-Electra highway due to lack of tail lights on cars, to the repair of blowouts on the pavement and other causes. A patrol of the highway during that season will lessen the number of such accidents.

We particularly like the statement of Sheriff Bralley that he has instructed the officers he has appointed that their efficiency will not be measured by the number of arrests they make and that they are to be "good will agents" whose principal will be to eliminate conditions that lead to traffic accidents.

More Deadly Than Diphtheria

THE ACUTENESS of our automobile traffic situation is aptly shown by figures recently compiled by the New York state department of health.

These figures show that in New York City, in 1927, automobiles killed 18.3 persons per 100,000 population; in the rest of the state they killed 26.6 per 100,000.

Yet such a disease as typhoid fever, in the same area, caused a death rate of only 2 per 100,000. Measles, another dreaded malady, had a rate of only 7 per 100,000. And diphtheria's rate was only 13.6 per 100,000.

Ten times as deadly as typhoid fever—nearly twice as deadly as diphtheria—that is our automobile traffic! How much longer are we going to accept this state of affairs complacently, anyway? When will we be shocked into taking the drastic action that the situation demands?

TOONERVILLE FOLKS By Fontaine Fox

The GREEN SHADOW - By Herman Landon

(Copyright by Public Ledger)

Police Captain Summers is meditating on the escapades of the Picaroon, whom he is convinced is really his friend, Martin Dale. Mr. Alexander Ferryman calls to relate a tale of strange happenings at 262 Bank street and requests police investigation. Axelson, a watchman employed by Ferryman, has heard footsteps and seen an eerie green light. Ferryman is showing the captain a picture when the telephone rings. A voice tells of finding a woman's body at the above address—the dead woman is Ferryman's wife. Summers finds only one clue, a bit of green lens.

Meantime, the Picaroon has written a note to Adele Castle requesting a meeting in Central Park. Adele has had a terrifying experience. Taken by a mysterious Miss Conway to a strange light through which she could glimpse only the faint outline of a man, calling himself Dr. Moffett, she is told that her father has been connected with a crooked financial deal. Dr. Moffett demands $100,000 for his silence and certain papers.

Adele and Dale meet. He tells her he was present during her strange interview with Dr. Moffett and promises to help her. Dale also meets Adele's friend, Paul Ainsworth. They become suspicious of one another. Dale "on his own" enters the house where the murder occurred and is trapped within by Summers, Ferryman and Axelson, who discover Dale taking a rope of pearls from behind a sliding panel. Dale darkens the room, throws Axelson through a window, and in the resultant confusion escapes.

Summers at luncheon next day receives a note and package from the Picaroon. In the package he finds the missing pearls.

Meantime, Dr. Moffett is getting anxious and telephones, giving Miss Castle just 24 hours in which to make payment to save her father from disgrace and prosecution.

Dale draws cash from his bank and makes an appointment with Adele. He then visits the Ferryman home, agreeing to capture the murderer within a week.

Adele Castle is instructed by Dale how to handle Dr. Moffett when he telephones. Wambley, a servant, is revealed as a spy.

The Mummer's Frolic

The Roman emperor had made frequent trips to the punch bowl, and now he was showing the effects of excessive imbibing. He staggered noticeably and his face was a little flushed. There were vine leaves in his hair and he wore a flowing toga with a broad purple border such as Nero might have worn when he fiddled to the burning of Rome.

There was a pause in the general dancing while two professional entertainers performed a fandango to the accompaniment of guitar and castanets. The imperial tippler adjusted his mask, squared his shoulders and threw out his chest. He hiccuped and looked irresolute. Then, with the exaggerated erectness of one who can't trust his legs to behave, he started toward a row of chairs in the rear. For a few paces all went well, and then he collided with a swaggering caballero with trailing sword and flowing curls.

"Scush me," said the emperor.

"Why don't you look where you are going?" was the churlish response. A wrathful look out of the slits in the mask accompanied the reproach.

The emperor sat down, but his eyes followed the caballero's haughty progress. A little smile played about his lips.

"Thought Ainsworth wasn't coming," he mumbled under his breath. "Anyway, he might have left his bad temper at home."

Then, through eyes that looked a little groggy, he fell to watching the gay, colorful revel. A Paul Jones followed the fandango, and then a little band of Tyroleans in bright native costumes sang several songs. The next number was a jazzy fox trot which brought the majority of the gathering out on the floor.

The emperor's head slumped down toward his chest, but his eyes missed no detail of the scene. It was a scene full of dash and color. All the centuries, with their shifting garb, manners and follies, were there, from the shepherds of Arcadia and the languorous princesses of the Nile to the apaches of Paris and the black shirts of Italy.

A dusky Cleopatra flirted outrageously with a fierce-looking pirate. A furry Eskimo paid court to a veiled charmer from the harem. The inevitable Pierrette was there, coquetting with a gorgeous and aggressive sheik. A mendicant monk hobnobbed with a Russian princess of the old regime. And in the background, apart from the general gayety, was a carmen with roses in her hair.

The emperor gazed at her for a moment, and again a hint of a smile hovered about his lips. Then his eyes narrowed slightly behind the holes in his mask. A maid in tinsel armor—Joan of Arc, perhaps—had just approached Carmen in a usual sort of way.

Soon they were chatting pleasantly. The emperor rose, walked unsteadily to the punch bowl, and refreshed himself again.

"Your imperial majesty has a magnificent thirst," remarked a flowery court attendant of the time of little Louis.

The emperor regarded him loftily. "It was Shake—Shakespeh," he pronounced unsteadily, "who discovered—hic—that a gen'lman can drink—hic—himself sober. I am following hish ex—exshellent precept."

He rocked on his feet, took another drink, and moved away. As if to justify the Shakespearean precept, he carried himself more erect now. He did not return to the chair he had previously occupied, but chose one in closer proximity to Carmen and Joan of Arc. The hubbub was too great to permit him to hear what they were saying, and soon a plumed knight came forward and claimed Joan for the next dance.

The orchestra, concealed behind a wall of exotic foliage, struck up a waltz. The emperor stood up, steadied himself, approached Carmen and bowed.

"Will you do me the honor?" he murmured, soberly enough.

She regarded him doubtfully through her mask. The vine leaves in his hair were awry and his imperial toga did not hang quite straight.

"I am Nero," he announced while she hesitated. "I am not accustomed to being refused anything. I rule the earth. Everybody—blue devils or yellow Chinamen—must obey my desires."

"Oh!" she exclaimed with a start. "Then you are—"

"I am Nero," he interrupted.

She smiled vaguely, tremulously. "But I am neither a blue devil nor a yellow Chinaman."

"You are Carmen," he said, holding out his hand.

She rose reluctantly. "But you are intoxicated," she objected.

"No matter. You may have observed that a man, even when he is too tipsy to walk straight, can usually dance with no difficulty whatever."

It proved true. His waltzing, as she discovered after a few graceful glides, was perfect. But for her worry and anxiety she could have surrendered herself wholly to the charm of the dance.

"I don't believe you are drunk," she observed presently. "You are only pretending."

"Your roses are falling our of your hair," he observed. "Let us step out here where you can arrange them."

They edged their way through the churning, laughing, mirth-drunken crowd and stepped out on a balcony. He handed her a rose he had caught as it fell from her hair.

"You were right," he told her. "I wouldn't get drunk tonight, of all nights. A semblance of inebriety has its advantages, however. When people see a man drunk, they are not likely to suspect him. What was Joan of Arc talking to you about?"

"She wants to get in the movies," said the girl, absently. "She wanted to know if I happened to have any influence with the directors."

He smiled. She had spoken with a trace of caution, hostility and nervousness. In the meager light out there on the balcony he studied her face.

"Well, Miss Castle," he murmured, "did you bring the money?"

Her slender shoulders shook a little. "How did you recognize me?" she asked, evasively.

"Oh, that mask you are wearing doesn't conceal much of your face. Besides, I had received confidential information that you were to appear as a Spanish gypsy."

"Oh, Wambly told you," she said, contemptuously. "You have bribed him."

"Suppose we don't stress that point. What about the money?"

"What about the papers?"

"They are here, inside my imperial togs."

"All of them?"

"Half of them. That was the agreement. You don't think for a minute that I would cheat you?"

"Oh, no!" She tossed her head a little. "I know you are the soul of honor. May I see them?"

He laughed derisively. "Not so fast, my charming little gypsy. I have had some experiences with feminine wiles. You haven't answered my question. Did you bring the money?"

"It's here." With a vague gesture she indicated her silver-trimmed bodice.

"Fifty thousand?"

"That was the amount, wasn't it?"

"H'm. That isn't a direct answer. Did you or did you not bring fifty thousand dollars?"

"You are at liberty to count it," said the girl, evenly, "as soon as you have satisfied me that there will be no trickery."

"Splendid!" exclaimed the emperor, in a suddenly altered voice. "I think you will carry it off very well, Miss Castle."

She started. "That voice!" She had removed her mask, and was gazing at him out of dilated eyes. "Oh, Mr Dale!"

"Not so loud, Carmen. Some one may hear. Well, our little rehearsal came off in fine shape."

She relaxed. All at once the caution and hostility faded out of her eyes. "But you said you were to appear as the Picaroon."

"And what did you expect the Picaroon to look like?"

"I hardly know. I certainly did not expect to see him in a Roman toga, with a purple border and with vine leaves in his hair."

"Well, you see, the Picaroon isn't committed to any particular style of apparel. He dresses according to the occasion and the mood he happens to be in. Tonight—"

He paused touched her arm, and glanced back over his shoulder. "Call me a drunken bully," he whispered, "and slap my face—slap it hard. Quick!"

She gasped as he wound his arm about her shoulder endearingly. There was a little sound at the door opening on the balcony. Instantly, as he drew her face to him as if to kiss her she caught her cue.

"You drunken beast!" she cried indignantly, delivering a smart blow on his cheek. "How dare you? Go away—instantly!"

She pushed him from her. He lurched drunkenly, reached for her again, but another resounding slap sent him staggering toward the door, almost colliding with a figure that had just stepped out on the balcony. For a moment he paused, leering at her in the dusk, and then the door slammed and he was gone.

"The—the contemptible cad!" she cried, breathing hard from the exertion and the apparent humiliation. "I never was—"

She stopped. For the first time she appeared to notice the new arrival.

"Oh, you!" she exclaimed, recognizing Joan of Arc with her blond curls and her intriguing baby features. She had vaguely expected someone else. It seemed Dale had staged a useless piece of mummery, but there was nothing to do but go through with it now.

"Did you see what that despicable ruffian tried to do?" she cried hotly.

"No, I just missed it," said Joan in her cooing voice. "But I can guess. Men are so beastly. Tried to steal a kiss, I suppose? The wretch!"

"He was drunk," said Adele, growing a little calmer. "Disgustingly drunk. Otherwise I might not have minded so much."

"I understand, dearie." By the way of showing her sympathy Joan wound her arm around the other girl. "A kiss is rather nice sometimes, especially on a balcony in the moonlight, but who wants to be kissed by a distillery?"

Adele laughed. "I'm all right now. It's foolish to get angry with a drunken man, but I couldn't help it."

"He seemed to be all right while you were dancing," Joan observed. "I was watching you two. But then men are funny. They are all right until they get you out in some moonlit nook, and then—look out! My Billy is that way. We had a dreadful spat the other day. Billy is awfully hot-headed, but I know how to manage him."

"How?" asked Adele, mildly amused by the naive chatter. "Give me your recipe, and I may try it on the next Emperor who comes along."

"Well, I guess men are all like, whether they are emperors or just plain citizens. It's the little things that please them most. They like a girl to remember their favorite colors in neckties and socks and such things. It needn't amount to much, just so it's something that falls in with their taste. Well, after our quarrel the other day I dashed over to the haberdasher's and bought Billy the darlingest necktie you ever saw."

"And did he approve of your selection?" asked Adele absently. With so many graver problems on her mind this conversation was becoming a little wearying.

"Did he approve?" Joan gushed. "Well, I guess he did! It was a lovely tie, a bright blue with little yellow dots in it."

Of a sudden Adele leaned weakly against the balcony railing.

"Blue—yellow," she mumbled. The words, by contrast with the inconsequential appearance of the speaker, had conveyed an added shock in addition to their intrinsic significance.

"Yes, blue and yellow—Billy's favorite colors," said Joan. She laughed lightly. And then, with a subtle change in her manner, she came a little closer to Adele. Her smile had altered; it was less open and naive. She seemed more mature, even a little taller as she stood with the moon gleaming on her tinsel armor.

"Drop it over the railing," she whispered.

"Drop—what?" asked Adele dully.

"You know. The money, of course. You brought it, didn't you?" There was a vague hint of menace in her voice.

Adele nodded. Her mind, stunned by the sudden surprise, was not functioning as yet.

"Then let's hurry and get it over. It has all been arranged in advance. I am to drop a lighted match over the railing. That will be the signal." She produced a small silver case and extracted a match. "The moment the match falls you are to drop the money. Some one is waiting below to catch it."

Adele looked down, but all she could see was a black, yawning depth. Her brain swam a little. She glanced at the door, wondering whether Dale was on the other side, trying to overhear what was being said. She wished he could send her a thought wave advising her how to act. Again her eyes scanned the abyss outside the railing. Who was waiting down there? Whoever he was, he had certainly guarded in a most ingenious way against being caught in the act of receiving blackmail money.

She shook herself as if to banish a stupor.

"The papers?" she asked feebly.

"They're here." Joan loosened her flimsy armor at one side and took out a bulky envelope. "Most of them are in Daniel Forresters' own handwriting. If you have any doubts, look them over."

It sounded candid and above-board. Adele removed the contents of the envelope, about a dozen papers of various sizes. It was too dark to see much, and the written characters swam in blurs before her eyes. From the inside came the orchestral din, adding to the confusion in her mind.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, July 3.—What amounts to a tidal wave of sanity is engulfing Coney Island and other New York beach resorts. No longer do people gamble their hard earned wages on such trinkets as French dolls, guinea pigs and useless, ugly bric-a-brac. Instead, the winners at ring-the-cane and throw-the-baseball are carting home such eminently useful prizes as baskets of fruit and selections of canned goods. The concessionaires who have wrought this change report good business. Two cans of peas, it seems, are more worth gambling for than a pound of warm chocolates.

Wholesale Gambling

One of the most successful of beach games this year is one that requires no exertion—the old Italian pastime of Tombola, which was known in the wild west as Keno. You have a card with numbered squares, and little discs to cover the numbers. The concessionaire draws at random from a box of numbered pellets, and calls each figure drawn. The first person to fill a card wins a handsome basket of fruit—but I suppose everybody in the world has played the game, and it hardly needed description. The beach feature is, however, that the concessionaire makes use of a loud speaker, so that several hundred may play the game at once. When 900,000 persons visit a beach in one day, business is done wholesale.

Sun Baths

The New York roof is coming into its own. Even on tenements one may see whole families sitting around in their sun suits, getting whatever ultra-violet rays the sun has been able to jam through the metropolitan atmosphere. And, on the terraces of Park avenue, many a millionaire labors gloriously at his garden, being careful not to spade up the waterproofing that underlies the loam.

When Beauty Isn't

Speaking of roofs, the elevated lines are continuing their somewhat ineffectual campaign for more business. All sorts of inducements are offered to draw patrons from the overcrowded subways. "Ride in comfort in the open air," says the elevated posters. "See the glories of New York's architecture." As to the glories, a trip on the el shows the world's most dolorous collection of chimney pots, mattresses on window sills and laundry that will be dirty before it dries. Our fine architecture has avoided the elevated right of way; indeed, probably nothing would cause so swift an improvement of the city skyline as the elimination of the el.

The Rise of Woman

An editor of my acquaintance told me the other day that an amateur fiction writer—a woman—had sent in several manuscripts, stating: "Please publish these stories, as they will help pay for my instruction as an airplane pilot. They tell me I have quite a talent for flying." But, sadly enough, her talent for writing was not so promising. And so the world moves, with women getting into everything. The editor I spoke of is a woman.

Move On Daddy

Edward West Browning, of whom I spoke recently, is not going to give up his Chinese office suite after all. Nor is he going to retire, after having sold all his real estate. He declares that he must make several more millions, in order that he may buy toys for children. He has stocked his offices with expensive playthings, ranging from $5 elephants to $750 doll houses. The doll houses are really not for dolls at all, but are big enough so that small children may play in them. It is Browning's wish to provide them for hospitals, orphan asylums and settlement houses.

A Neat Trick

It has been a more or less standard joke that New York erects new buildings at so furious a rate that wreckers begin to work on the lower floor of "old" buildings before the construction men have completed the upper stories. The reverse of the joke is true now, down in Wall street, where the Bank of the Manhattan company is building one of the tallest structures in the world. The old Manhattan building is still in the process of being torn down—but beneath it the foundations for the new structure are being laid.

For Cliff Dwellers

When the Chanins bought the block containing the Century theater and Daly's theater, and announced that these two playhouses would be razed, they said something vague about putting up a new wrinkle in buildings. But they did not say what it was going to be. It now turns out that it will be a little bit of everything. Offices and apartments will be combined, so that dwellers therein will not even have to walk to work. They could, conceivably, slide down a brass pole from living quarters to office suite. There will be a garage floor and a theater, a gymnasium, a swimming pool, and stores. The happy dwellers in this Utopia need never go out on the street.

INTIMATE INTERVIEWS WITH FAMOUS INDORSERS

No. 2—Florenz Ziegfeld

Q.—Mr. Ziegfeld, you are the All-American indorser, are you not?

A.—If I am not I have been wasting a lot of ink.

Q.—Is there any nationality known product which you have not indorsed?

A.—Nothing that comes to mind at the moment. I've indorsed about everything in the country except George White's Scandals, the income tax, and the electric chair.

PHILLIPS

Q.—Isn't it quite a strain to testify for so many things?

A.—Well, it is hard on a beginner, but one gets used to it. A few years ago when I first began indorsing products I couldn't turn out more than one or two testimonials a day. Now I can shake out a hatful on five minutes' notice. It's a system.

Q.—I see you have indorsed the Blue Rajah cigaret.

A.—That's one of 'em, yes. I am proud to say that I consider the Blue Rajah cigaret makes shaving easier, softens the beard and leaves the skin feeling clear, cool and comfortable. I rub just a little on each cheek and . . .

Q.—You're thinking of Woofett's shaving cream.

A.—Maybe you're right.

Q.—By the way, what was it you said in indorsing Woofett's shaving cream?

A.—I said it removes tartar, strengthens the gums, keeps away mouth germs and kills halitosis. I know of no other preparation that . . .

Q.—You're mixed up again, Mr. Ziegfeld.

A.—Well, you'll have to pardon it; I'm a very busy man.

Q.—I saw an advertisement last night in which you also indorsed Speevick balloon tires, did I not?

A.—Ah, yes, indeed. I am delighted to state that for aiding indigestion and helping the tired business man fight off the ailments of middle age the Speevick balloon tire is without an equal. I always carry a little box of them in my grip when I am away on the road.

Q.—And I observe, also, an indorsement under your photograph and signature of Whatsias Beans for beautifying the hair.

A.—Did I indorse that?

Q.—Don't you know you did?

A.—I never could be sure without looking up the check.

Q.—Getting down to business, I am here to see if I can get you to say a word for the B. & K. electric ice box.

A.—For how much?

Q.—Would $5,000 interest you?

A.—Not ordinarily, but this is a dull day. You may say to the American people that I believe the B. & K. electric superior to any car I have ever driven. It contains no nicotine, gives hair that luxurious look, doesn't discolor the teeth and will give three times the mileage of any other complexion cream. I heat my home with a B. & K. and have never been sick in my life.

Twelve Schools Represented In New P.-T. A. Organization

The Parent-Teacher Association Vacation Study circle met and organized Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the council room of the city auditorium, with representatives from more than a dozen schools present.

Instigated by the City Council Parent-Teacher association of Wichita Falls, with Mrs. R. P. Willis, president, and having as advisor and teacher, Mrs. Frank B. Creighton, president of 13th district, P.-T. A. the Vacation Study circle was launched by an eager and enthusiastic group of workers. Its asserted prime object is to create an informed leadership in Parent-Teacher proceedings, and its lessons are to be based primarily on the correspondence course consisting of 20 lessons as outlined by Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, national president, and which constitutes a complete course in parent-teacher training.

In a preliminary talk Mrs. Creighton said that the great need of parent-teacher workers is authentic information as to the history, aims and objects of the organization's founders, its accomplishments to date, its duties, its policies and the high ideals of parenthood toward which it is reaching. Quoting from Martha Sprague Mason's book, a parent-teacher association authority written by a National P.-T. A. vice president, the speaker gave clear and concise ideas of the foundation work to be done, and the points to be studied.

The following questions were asked, answered and discussed by the group and some very interesting and unique points were touched on:

What is the name of our national organization?

When was it organized? By whom?

Under what name was it organized?

What was the first change in the name? Why the change?

Explain the significance of the present name.

Give correctly the name of the Texas branch.

When was it organized? By whom?

How many members in Texas?

Mention five outstanding achievements of the Texas branch.

How many local units has Texas? County councils? City councils?

What is a parent-teacher association?

What is a parent-teacher association—Not?

Give five reasons for a parent-teacher association.

Name 10 specific objects to be attained.

Mention 10 essentials to a successful association.

It is the plan of the publicity committee to publish a list of the questions taken up at each lesson study so that a complete copy of the questions in the course can be available. The answers can be found in the national and state handbooks which can be secured at Capitol Station, Austin.

Talks and papers are being prepared by the following workers, for the next meeting to be held on Wednesday, July 10, at 9 o'clock at the auditorium: Mrs. R. H. Graham Mrs. T. R. Boone, Mrs. R. P. Willis, Mrs. John M. Fox, Mrs. C. A. Morris, Mrs. J. T. Osteen, Mrs. W. T. Westmoreland and Mrs. R. L. Underwood. These papers will include duties of officers, program planning, state departments, essential committees, principles of the congress, publicity and its function, and representation at conventions.

W. O. W. Circle Delegate Leaves Friday for Meet

Mrs. Pearl T. Somers will leave Friday afternoon for Seattle to attend the Woodmen circle national convention which opens Wednesday afternoon, July 10. Mrs. Somers, who was elected supreme delegate at the state convention held last spring in Mineral Wells, is a district manager of the society. She is guardian of Wilson grove No. 1751.

Texas will send about 150 officers, supreme delegates, drill team members and visitors to the convention. Most of them will take the special train leaving Dallas, July 5. Delegates from Missouri and Arkansas will join the Texas train at Kansas City, Mo.

The opening exercises, which will be a joint session of the Woodmen circle and the Woodmen of the World, will be featured by a roll call of 38 states to be answered with the presentation of state flags. National Director and State Supervisor Etta Davidson of Houston will present the Texas flag.

Past junior national president, Henrietta A. Thomas of Cleburne, will take the part of "Time" in a beautiful special degree, the "Court of Hearts' Desire," which will be conferred on a number of members at the convention in recognition of meritorious service to the society. Mrs. Maggie Hyde of Dallas, national treasurer, will represent "Music." Mrs. Jessie Willard of Denison, national drill instructor, "Patriotism," and Mrs. Davidson, "Sculpture." Mrs. Somers was among the number who received this degree in Omaha when she won the trip there.

A decorative scheme centered around the blue bonnet, state flower of Texas, will be used for the Texas tables at the "Golden Chain of Progress" banquet. All of the women members from Texas will wear evening gowns of various shades of blue at this banquet, carrying out the blue bonnet colors in an impressive and unique way.

The national champion drill team of Stamford, captained by Mrs. Tressie Goldsticker, chairman of the national legislative committee, will seat the officers when the convention opens. The first bugle and drum corps in the society's history, composed of members from Amarillo, will attend the convention and there will also be uniformed degree teams from Houston and Denison. In addition, there will be an all-Texas team made up of members from all parts of the state.

The two local groves are planning to entertain the Stamford and Amarillo teams when they are here en route with a sunrise breakfast at Weeks park, followed by a drive over the city and at noon a luncheon at the K. of P. hall, followed with a drive out to the lake.

They will leave at 4 o'clock for Denison, where all leaving for Seattle will meet and go in special Pullmans. The delegations will be entertained at places where they will have to wait for trains. Sight-seeing drives and banquets will be the main features at stopovers.

Each of the five teams from this state will form one letter of the word "T-e-x-a-s" as a feature of field day. Another striking formation will be the American flag presented by the members of the Houston, Denison and all-Texas teams. Mrs. Willard is general chairman of field day and also of the Texas stunts for the "Golden Chain of Progress" banquet.

Mrs. Somers has already won a three-day trip which the society is offering to Sherman. The trip will be in May, 1930, when the first building of the organization's home for aged members and orphan children is dedicated.

Miss Bessie Dolan of Taylor and Mrs. Fannie Benkendorfer of San Antonio are among the delegates. Others going from the local groves as visitors will be Mrs. W. E. Douthitt, Mrs. R. Young, Mrs. A. J. Berry and Mrs. J. A. Conner. Mrs. Somers and Mrs. Douthitt will return via California, Salt Lake City and Denver, and Mesdames Young, Conner and Berry via El Paso.

D. Dix Tells Wife How to Deal With Mother-In-Law

How Can a Loving Wife Deal With Her Jealous Mother-in-Law?—A Devout Prayer for Guidance. Should This Girl Marry to Please Her Mother?

Dear Miss Dix—I am married to a wonderful man whom I adore and we would be perfectly happy except for his mother, who considers that I should have no influence with my husband and that she should boss him as if he were a little child. She says that the mother comes before the wife, because a man can have six or seven wives, but just one mother.

My mother-in-law complains that I never let my husband visit her without me, but the reason of that is that when he goes alone she fills him up with criticisms of me. She has another son who is married to a wonderful woman and I have heard her tell him all kinds of things against his wife when the wife was absent. I don't want to lose my husband, and I don't want to make a break between him and his mother. What is his duty toward his mother? It is a moral obligation, as she has plenty of money. And what should we do under the circumstances?—M. C. R.

Answer—There is nothing you can do with an arbitrary and tyrannical old woman, because she has become a law unto herself and she thinks that all of her opinions are sacrosanct. Also she is so self-centered and selfish that she considers nobody but herself. She doesn't want to change, and she couldn't change if she would because she has hardened into her mold. The inability to change, to get a fresh viewpoint, is what ages really is. As long as we are open to conviction and to getting a new angle on a situation and to conceding that there is something to be said on the other side of a question, we are young. It is not our stiff muscles that make us old. It is our stiff brains.

So as your mother-in-law will never adapt herself to you, you will perforce have to adjust yourself to her the best way you can and put up with her fault-finding and nagging with what philosophy you can muster. The best way to get along with her is never to get in an argument with her and never to defend yourself. Just receive her strictures in silence and pay them no attention, as the querulous nagging of a disgruntled old woman who has soured on life and who is taking out her ill-nature on all those around her.

I grant you that the advice I am giving you is hard to follow, to do so is the greatest proof of love that you can give to your husband and one that he will be eternally grateful to you for giving him. For in the fight between a man's mother and his wife, it is the man who is the victim who is torn in twain between them. He loves them both. He has duties and obligations to both, and he is miserable if he has to listen to their complaints against each other.

In a case where a man's mother is kindly and friendly and human, and where she treats his wife like a real daughter, I think the wife should not be willing but should urge her husband to go alone to see his mother every now and then, for naturally every mother would like sometimes to have her married children alone with her, as they were when they were little boys and girls. But in your case, where you know that your mother-in-law is your enemy, and that she is trying to make trouble between you and your husband, you are quite right to be always on the ground and to take every precaution that you can against her stabbing you in the back.

There is something very pitiful, as well as terrible, in the fierce mother jealousy that makes a woman willing to break up her children's homes and bring sorrow and calumny upon them and half-orphan their children in order to gratify her own lust of possession. Your mother-in-law's very soul is torn with this unholy passion. She cannot endure to see her sons love some woman better than they do her. She cannot stand the knowledge that they consider their wives more than they do her; that they are more companionable with their wives than they are with her, and so she disparages their wives to them all the time and tries to show their wives to them in an unfavorable light.

Left alone, the sons and daughters would never have found out that there was anything wrong with their mates, but they have the habit of childhood of thinking that mother always knows, and mother is always right, and the constant dropping of her little hints and fault-findings wears away their faith in their wives and husbands and makes them dissatisfied with their bargains.

As for the duty of a son to such a mother, it is to be kind and courteous and show her the proper attention, but it does not involve his letting her break up his home and prejudice him against his wife. His highest duty is to his wife and his children and he is a weakling if he permits his mother to bulldoze him into failing in that.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Before marrying, my husband was quite a sheik, if you can believe him, and daily I am regaled with tales of his conquests and of the extraordinary ability he had to make women pine away for love of him. I don't think he flirts any now, but he has beautiful eyes with long curling lashes, and whenever he meets a good-looking woman he stares and stares at her in a way which is most embarrassing to me. This may seem a small matter, but a wife dislikes to find that her adored one is interested only in the looks of other women and does not care whether there is an ounce of gray matter under their permanent waves or not. God grant us understanding of these men.

—WEWILDERED WIFE.

Answer—Amen, sister. It is a prayer that every wife in the world should put up every day of her life, because we certainly do need a divine dispensation of knowledge in order to deal with the contradictory creatures to whom we are married.

How else, save by a miracle of insight, are we to know when to spank and when to kiss; when to shut our eyes and be as blind as a bat, and when to be sister Anne on the housetops with our gaze riveted on the little cloud of dust no bigger than a man's hand on the horizon; when to be credulous as a fool, and when to let our husbands know we have their numbers; when to jolly and when to lambast; when to forgive and when to hustle to the divorce court?

How else, save through supernatural wisdom, is a woman to know that a big, strong, husky man, who perhaps manages hundreds of other men, wants her to treat him like a little boy and pet him and call him baby names and coddle him just as his mother used to when he was 3 years old? How else is a woman to know that it is no sign that a man has ceased to love her because now and then he wants to have a little flirtation just as he used to have to play hooky from school?

And how else is a woman to know that when a man has big, beautiful eyes with curling lashes he just simply has to roll them at every woman he meets, and that he doesn't mean a thing, and the wise thing for his wife to do is just to laugh at him.

All women join in your prayer: God give us understanding of these men.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—My mother insists upon my marrying a man who is utterly repulsive to me and says that after I get married I will settle down and be contented, but I believe that if I cannot be happy with him now I will never enjoy my married life. Who is right, my mother or I?—H. C. S.

Answer—You are. Don't let your mother force you into an uncongenial marriage. If you dislike this man now, you will hate and loathe him after marriage and you will not only be unhappy yourself, but will make him miserable. Your mother is exceeding her authority when she tries to pick out your husband for you. That is a matter of individual taste, and inasmuch as you are the one who will have to live with him, you are the one who should be suited.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

CHICAGO, July 3. (US)—He manufacturers oil burners (not midnight lamps) and he is 62 years old.

It's all right to be 62, even 62 and lonely. But not 62 and lonely and rich. It spells trouble.

He thought he wanted to marry Ann, 32 and not rich. He changed his mind, a thing no man rich or poor has any right to do after he mentions marriage.

The old saying that a woman has a right to change her mind, has evidently been interpreted to mean that a man hasn't. It doesn't cost a woman a single copper to change her mind, but Ann wants $250,000 because the 62-year-old suitor got scared and backed down after he mentioned that they would look pretty standing up before a minister saying I will. Now he says I won't, and she still says I will. Which, interpreted, means he should (in Chicago language) be "put on the spot," which interpreted again, means shot at sunrise.

At the trial Ann, in a naive manner, told of going into his wine cellar with her fiance, and saying to him: "What is that awful racket?" and he answered her saying: "That is my noiseless oil burner."

There is always the little matter of letters, without which there would hardly be any suits. Many a smart letter writer has wished, after the moon went down, that he could follow the air mail through the clouds and reclaim the evidence. Will Carlton said it:

"Boys flying kites haul in their white winged birds.
You can't do that when you're flying words.
Thoughts unexpressed may sometimes fall back dead,
But God himself can't kill them when they're said."

Read that to your children, more especially the little boys.

When they grow up they will be warned by the newspapers which print records of suits filed by women for breach of this and that.

The crying need—and there should be enough men in power to put the law through—is a law for breach control.

A suggestion for mottoes to hang in the boy's room:

A rich old man is legitimate prey.
For the active determined divorcee.
Somebody ought to get in cahoots
With the makers of laws about funny suits
Decide love's a mutual thing, and so
Keep 'em from getting the old men's dough.

And someone arises to remark: "Well they ought to pay. Why not make them behave?

But dear lady, a man can't misbehave alone.

It's the woman who collects and collects!

Senior C. E. Society Social Held Tuesday

A "lemon" social evening was enjoyed by the program and lookout committees of the Senior Christian Endeavor society of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Eason, 2008 Buchanan street.

Each member attending the meeting took a lemon, and after the business session, the lemons were squeezed and the seeds counted. Lemonade was made from the juice and the seeds were placed in a glass. A lemon colored yo-yo was given to the contestant guessing the nearest correct number of seeds in the glass.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

Woman's Declaration of Independence

A curious psychology has always befogged the struggle of woman to establish her equality with man. There seems, however, to be a rift in the sky of time through which the light of a new point of view is shining. All women no longer look up blindly to all men. To an increasing degree, men are looking up to women.

The "chivalrous attitude" men have had towards women in the past was by no means pure chivalry. Mostly it was compounded of condescension. It was man's way of keeping woman subjugated.

Women fell for honeyed words and a florid, gallant manner in the past. Today women not only think but also are able in the art of self-defense and counter-attack.

The purring cat-woman uses her mind more than her claws. And men are responsible for that. For it was man who first resorted to artifice and it was centuries before woman could see through the subtle intent of his "chivalrous attitude" and properly consider its enslaving effects.

I am not decrying chivalry. I'm for it. Strong. But there is chivalry and "chivalry." That which reduces or attempts to reduce woman to a lower level of life is not chivalry. Men have always tried to do that and the slogan, "Woman's place is the home," was their battle-cry.

America started to grow when America started to think for itself. That was 1776. It is still growing. But woman has never made her declaration of independence. Man flatters her by referring to her as his "better half" but was there ever a man—knowing men as we do—who rated his wife on the same intellectual level with himself?

It is only when the pretense of equality becomes oppressive that we think in terms of release and expansion and develop a broader outlook upon life. This has been happening to many women the world over in recent years and the result is that a new type of woman has evolved. She is the woman who thinks for herself, will not accept the ways of the past without first examining them to determine their validity, and insists that her life is as much her own as any man's is his.

Woman has discovered that where there is intelligence there is all as well as a way to a sane, healthy and righteous independence. And that way is the way of the mind, the free yet measured way of a free and measuring mind.

Add to that a considered courage, and every intellectually fit woman can declare her independence and achieve it.

Betty Brainerd will be glad to help her readers with their problems. Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to her in care of this paper.

Charles Bennett Weds Fort Worth Girl Here

The marriage of Miss LaNette Haynes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Haynes, formerly of Burkburnett, now of Fort Worth, to Charles C. Bennett of Wichita Falls was solemnized Sunday at 12 o'clock in the First Christian church here, with the Rev. Floyd Allan Bash officiating. R. E. Shepherd sang the prenuptial solo, "I Love You," accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd at the piano. While Mrs. R. E. Strange played the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin, the bride, wearing a periwinkle chiffon dress, with accessories to harmonize, and carrying an arm bouquet of yellow rosebuds, entered with her sister, Miss Hildagarde Haynes of Fort Worth, her only attendant. Miss Haynes wore an orchid chiffon dress and carried a bouquet of pink and salmon colored gladioli. Mr. Bennett was attended by John Keevil of Wichita Falls as best man.

The bride formerly attended Kidd-Key college at Sherman, and is a graduate of the Wichita Falls Junior college. Mr. Bennett is a former student of the University of Arkansas.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Bennett left for a wedding trip to New Mexico, after which they will be at home in Wichita Falls, where the bridegroom is engaged in business.

SPUDDERS PLAY DOUBLE-HEADER TODAY AT FORT WORTH

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THREE MATTERS of great import to baseball enthusiasts of the Texas league occurred Tuesday. They were the splitting of the schedule, the retention of J. Doak Roberts as nominal president of the loop with William B. Ruggles as active head, and the supplanting of Jake Atz by Frank Snyder as Fort Worth manager.

The decision of the moguls to divide the season was no great surprise. Perhaps it was justified in some quarters. I'll grant that for sake of argument. But the stand of J. Alvin Gardner and O. L. Biedenharn, owners of the Wichita Falls and Shreveport clubs, respectively, in opposing the split, was logical. Why should the campaign have been halted, when it was one of the closest ever enjoyed in the Texas league? There would be as much logic should the National league split its schedule. Indeed, the race of the Texas league, when split Tuesday, was even closer than the hectic battle now prevailing in the National.

But the Wichita Falls and Shreveport club heads would not have raised their voice against the split had it been deferred a few days later, even though it was opposed by them as unnecessary. But to hand the first half championship on a silver platter to Dallas, with the second half starting on the same day the division was voted and with Shreveport half a game and Wichita Falls two games back of the Steers, was a high-handed procedure that the Sport and Spudder magnates could not countenance.

AS FOR THE split helping the clubs of the southern end of the circuit, San Antonio, Beaumont, Waco and Houston, which were in the second division when the schedule division was ordered, that is to laugh. There may be renewed interest in those cities over baseball for a week or two. Then their clubs will fall back to submerged places in the standing, farther back of the leaders even than if there had been no division because the strong clubs are just now hitting their stride, and the race will be resolved into an affair between Dallas, Shreveport and possibly Wichita Falls and Fort Worth, just as it would have been with no split.

Too, there is an angle to the split that the magnates, with lack of foresight customary to the average baseball club owner, have overlooked. The split has UNDERMINED public confidence in the club owners' word. For until a week before the split was voted, it was indicated by at least four presidents of Texas league clubs in a poll made by the Associated Press, that they would oppose a division of the schedule. And a majority vote of the eight club owners was necessary to bring about the split.

IT WAS natural, probably, for owners of second division clubs to desire the split. But for the Fort Worth and Dallas clubs, particularly the latter, to join in the movement for the division indicates a striking lack of confidence in their clubs and the stability of the league.

Indeed, the stand of the Dallas club, in demanding that the first half championship be handed them as it was by the voting of the split season, smacks heavily of unsportsmanlike conduct and commercialism, with no thought for the future standing of baseball in this territory.

◇ ◇ ◇

EVIDENTLY THE proponents of the split season, particularly the Fort Worth and Dallas club owners and especially the latter, never have heard the fable about the man killing the goose that laid the golden egg.

THE RETENTION of Roberts as league president to complete his five-year term, which has two more years to run, was a wise move. Roberts, identified with the Texas league for more than a score of years, has done more to advance the cause of baseball in this territory than any man. J. Doak has been a sick man for a year and the relieving of him of duties concerning the loop, except the most important decisions, will take much from him and possibly hasten his recovery.

Ruggles, a sports writer and statistician of the league for years, is a man capable in every way to administer affairs of the circuit. As active head of the league he now is empowered to make certain moves to better conditions in the circuit, and to observe the league umpires in action. A shakeup of the staff of arbiters or at least the forcing of a few of the indicator holders to hustle more and set an example for some of the basehit players who think more of their batting average than winning ball games, would make the game more attractive.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE TEXAS league will miss Atz if Jake is not acquired by some team in this circuit as leader. Atz is one of the most successful and popular managers who ever led a ball club in ANY league. Pop Boone, veteran sports editor of The Fort Worth Press, who knows Atz better than any man, is more qualified to write of Jake, beloved by all fans, even in rival cities, of the Texas league, than any one else. The following beautiful and fitting tribute to Jake was written by Boone in his column, Pop's Palaver:

◇ ◇ ◇

IF MY stuff doesn't sound so good today, I ask everybody to overlook it. With such a knockout of a topic, I realize I should have written a classic on the exit of Jake and the entry of Pancho. But I'm surprised I could write anything at all. We've seen tragedies on the stage and screen written on the theme of "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," but even that tragic episode or incident isn't any more heartbreaking than the blow dealt this poor old man today.

◇ ◇ ◇

I HAVEN'T always agreed with Jake on some of his managerial policies. Sometimes I've argued with him a little about taking too many good balls at the plate. I've argued that he should try a squeeze play once or twice a year just to make the other guy expect it and play accordingly. Once or twice I've thought he worked his pitchers too hard.

◇ ◇ ◇

BUT, AFTER all, these few little items are infinitesimal when weighed against the greatness of the man in other ways. I've roomed with him on the road for ten years; in all those years I've never heard him say a nasty thing about any man. He's one of God's children in every sense of the word. He's a perfect husband and father, if that means anything to you. Some psychologists say this one trait is the greatest index to true character that can be found.

◇ ◇ ◇

IN THOSE ten years I've roomed with Jake and been associated with him, I've lived through the triumphs of victory and the dregs of defeat with him—and when you do that you've lived on the heights and in the cellar, so to speak. No man lives anything until he has lived through a baseball campaign with Jake Atz. Poets rave of love; fanatics live their religion; politicians breathe nothing else—but no man wraps himself up in anything like Jake Atz wraps himself in his baseball.

◇ ◇ ◇

OLD-TIME fans will go back to the days of 1918 when Jake came back to them and was welcomed by a brass band. They will think of the times he returned from the crusade with the spoils of victory draped on his banner; they will remember the glorious achievements of him in his quest for honor on the diamond and of the special trains and the joy of beating a hated rival.

◇ ◇ ◇

BUT MY heart is heavy because Jake was my brother. If he had never won a ball game I'd love him; somehow I don't remember his achievements, his glorious successes. I see him in the hours of his defeat, when the world was black. And the fondest picture I carry of the man in my heart is lying asleep in the glare of a hotel room chandelier, an open Bible on his chest—open at the Twenty-third Psalm.

LEFTY WILTSE HURLS OPENER

Steengrafe or Smith Work Second Game

Special to The Record News

SHREVEPORT, La., July 3.—The Spudders headed for Fort Worth tonight after rain today prevented their playing the second of the series with the Sports. Failing to check the Shreveport streak which has extended to 13 consecutive victories did not dampen the spirit of the Wichita Falls athletes and they are invading Fort Worth tomorrow for the Independence day double-header, set to hand a pair of defeats to Pancho Snyder's athletes.

Hal Wiltse, the blonde southpaw is a practical certainty to be Jim Galloway's hill choice for the first game tomorrow. Milt Steengrafe or Cy Smith probably will chuck the nightcap.

Improved play of Al Hermann, known as the Duke, has been particularly encouraging to the Spudders. Hermann's hitting in recent games has been hard and he clouted a home run in the last tilt at home Monday in addition to his circuit drive here yesterday. Confidence is held that Hermann is becoming acclimated and that he will prove satisfactory in every way as guardian of the Spudder hot corner.

The rain yesterday gave the Spudder pitchers a somewhat needed rest and if they can work in rotation to a great extent the Galloways may figure on some efficient hurling to again put them back in the pennant fight.

The Spudders are very much contenders for the second half gonfalon. They have played their best ball in the past when least expected—in fact, they are real money players.

Atlanta Accords Jones Reception

Bobby Gets Another Rousing Welcome

ATLANTA Ga., July 3. (AP)—Bobby Jones came home from the golfing wars today to receive the customary rip-roaring welcome from several hundred of the home town folks who were just as excited about it as if they hadn't been whooping things up for Bobby for the last eight or nine years.

As usual, Bobby was laden with silverware. He brought back for the third time the huge chalice emblematic of the open championship of the United States Golf association which he won at Winged Foot last week.

Today's greeting was different from the Jones homecoming parties of the past. There was no band and no parade and no non-stop flights of oratory. The welcomers simply stood by, stepped on each other's toes and craned their necks as the Piedmont limited thundered into the station, gave Bobby a few rounds of lusty cheers and then let him do just what he pleased—which was to make a bee line for home to play with his babies.

Texans Are Victors In Tennis Tourney

DENVER, July 3. (AP)—Jed Welsh running under the Los Angeles Athletic club, clipped 1-10 of a second from the Junior A. A. U. record for the 120-yard hurdles here today by running the event in 14 9-10 seconds.

The 100-yard dash was won by Cy Leland, Texas Christian university. Alf, Denver A. C., was second.

The time was 9 8-10 seconds, equalling the Junior A. A. U. record.

Mick Walker Charges Wife With Desertion

RUMSON, N. J., July 3. (US)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, charged today that his wife, the former Maud Kelley, in deserting him last Saturday, took not only their son, Mickey Jr., 5, but also all his savings of years—$250,000.

"I haven't a quarter left," the fighter declared.

Because of his distress, Walker said he had demanded a postponement of his scheduled bout July 29 with Leo Lomski in Philadelphia.

Cub Manager

JOE M'CARTHY

ATZ CONSIDERS SEVERAL BIDS

Nothing Definite, Jake Says; Rest Few Days

FORT WORTH, July 3. (AP)—All reports of connections made by Jake Atz, veteran manager of the Fort Worth baseball club who was replaced by Frank Snyder, were denied tonight by Atz. One rumor has him signed as manager of the Chicago White Sox, with which club he played in his big league days.

"I have no plans as yet," said Atz, for 15 years with the Fort Worth Cats, all but two of them as manager. "This change was made suddenly. I'll probably go to Galveston and loaf there for a week with my family.

"No, I wouldn't quit baseball. I expect to get lined up with some club in a few days but have no definite idea."

Two Southern association clubs sought Atz as manager last winter and it will be no surprise if he becomes a pilot in the loop where he played years ago and where he has led five victorious Texas league teams in six Dixie series.

TILDEN'S STAR IN TENNIS SETS

Bill Defeated in Straight Sets by Cochet

By HENRY CAVENDISH

WIMBLEDON, England, July 3. (US)—The fame they sought to regain at royal Wimbledon was denied Big Bill Tilden and May Bundy here this afternoon, and when the gray shades of dusk settled over the lawns of the all-England club, they enveloped also the figures of these two of America's greatest tennis players of all time. Gone but never to be forgotten—Bill and May!

Tilden, it was demonstrated by the result of his 6-4, 6-1, 7-5 defeat at the hands of Henri Cochet of France in the semi-finals of the men's singles, is, beyond the peradventure of doubt, finished.

Mrs. Bundy's romantic but futile struggle against Miss Joan Ridley of England showed that an effective comeback at her age—she won the championships in 1905 and 1907—is impossible. Joan defeated Mrs. Bundy in the quarter finals of the women's singles, 6-3, 6-2.

The balmy summer weather served to draw the greatest crowd that has yet seen this year's matches on the Wimbledon lawns. In the middle of the Tilden-Cochet match, King Alfonso of Spain entered the royal box and watched the matches interestedly for the remainder of the afternoon.

George Lott and John Hennessey provided the only victory for America in the men's matches, when they defeated the English pair, C. H. Kingsley and J. S. Olliff, 6-3, 7-5, 6-2.

Helen Wills and Francis T. Hunter continued their winning streak in the mixed doubles when they went through the quarter-final round in easy shape, defeating Donald Greig and Mrs. McIlquham, of Ireland, 6-1, 6-1. Previously the Irish team had taken the measure of R. Malcolm and Miss D. Cole, of South Africa, 5-7, 6-3, 6-1.

The Wanderer's Shrine

The folks who travel are many,
You may find them everywhere,
From the man who scales the mountains
To the farmer who jogs to the fair.
And most, when they go a wandering,
And leave both hearth and home,
Would like some kindly providence
To guard them while they roam.

That is the reason I take it,
That in rainstorm or in shine,
If you tramp the Old World highways
You come to a wayside shrine.

I remember when I was marching,
With my regiment plodding behind,
Through the hills and fields of Picardy
That I would always find
Some tiny shrine by the roadside
Battered and weathered and gray,
With some figure standing within it,
To which the people might pray.

On the wartorn slopes of the Argonne,
Where the Soissons wheatfields lie,
I have seen these wayside guardians
Under a battle sky.
And some were ruined by shell fire,
But a headless virgin would tell,
That man though he may be ruthless,
Has faith in his heart as well.

I've seen in the plains of China
Where teeming millions toil,
To sweat a bare existence
Out of the fertile soil,
By a bridge that spanned a river,
In a shed of plaster and boards,
For the comfort of those who traveled,
Some brilliantly painted gods.

On the desert plains of Asia,
Where the dust devils whirl and shift,
I've seen a wayside temple
Half buried beneath the drift,
Frozen under the starlight,
Or scorched by the hot noon sky,
It stood its guard on the highway
While the caravans plodded by.

On the bitter heights of the mountains,
Where the snow and the glaciers hold
An age old joint dominion,
With the winter wind and the cold,
At the top of a barren rocky pass
Where a man must fight for air,
I've seen through a swirl of snowflakes
That a cairn of rocks was there.

I've seen the mountain fellow
That guided me up the steep,
Pick up a stone from the hillside
And add it to the heap.

So whether it be to the Virgin
As some Toaist deity,
To Allah, Brahma or Buddha
Or a Chinese trinity,
When I see a shrine by the roadside,
Bedded in sand or grass,
I, though a Dutch Reformer,
Bow my head as I pass.

—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

These verses were sent to "The Sportlight" by Colonel Roosevelt, from "somewhere east of Suez" and somewhere north of the Khyber pass.

Ten Years Ago

Just 10 years ago today Jack Dempsey stood over the battered form of Jess Willard and watched him stagger up six times. Willard never rose the seventh time, for the bell saved him from further mauling. Dempsey had then just passed his 24th birthday. Whether or not he was the greatest of all fighters, he was easily the greatest looking ring animal that ever tore into action.

Another champion has come and gone since that July day in 1919, and yet Dempsey still remains the only chance for another million-dollar gate. Just how he might look today is another guess, but it would have to be a far different Dempsey from the purple-tanned thunderbolt that bowled over big Willard. Yet even 10 years later he would be no playmate at close range. He is still younger than Ruth, Hagen, Tilden, Alexander and several others still slogging along. But they also happen to be in different games, where youth isn't quite as big a king.

Fifteen years ago at this date the Boston Braves were just struggling out of last place. Or maybe they were still in last place. But when October came around they were National league champions and a few days later had beaten the Athletics four straight games. This is mentioned now because the beating they gave the Athletics was one of the main reasons Connie Mack broke up a championship club and at this date, 15 years later, it begins to look as if he had picked up another.

Rarin' to Go!

It is natural for us to be joyous and cheerful. It is not natural to wake up feeling tired and grouchy. A good disposition is an indication of a good digestion; a sour disposition, a sour stomach.

Instead of anticipating the day's possibilities of activity and accomplishment as a well person would, the sick person arises tired, cross and irritable. He dreads the day's problems rather than welcomes its possibilities. Yet, that tired feeling may be changed to that grand and glorious feeling if one will but take the trouble to cultivate health and the right mental attitude.

One who tires easily or becomes trembly and winded after a short walk should have a careful physical examination to discover what needs to be done to avert the impending disease, because listlessness and tiredness are two of nature's warning signals. The increasing enervation is the forerunner of disease, as it indicates that the patient's energy is gradually stealing away or being dissipated which leaves him weaker and weaker.

A pronounced tired feeling is one of the first indications of tuberculosis, diabetes, anemia and other serious diseases, yet many times people will feel tired simply because of autointoxication, without any serious disease having yet developed.

Often, people who are cheerless and weighted with care will find that they quickly enjoy the beauty of the sky and the song of the bird after they have used a short cleansing fast and cleansing enemas which removes the poisonous toxins which were sending fatigue and irritation to the brain.

One who wishes to look at the world through rose colored glasses must first cleanse his system of the blues of biliousness. A pure blood stream means a brain that can function naturally and a frame of mind which makes life worth living and attracts success to us.

Endeavor to so build your health that you will wake up in the morning ready to race over the hurdles in your path, and you will find that the road to success is not difficult but easy. Success often depends upon just such a simple measure as changing that tired feeling—those worrisome blues into a feeling of pep—of being ready and rarin' to go!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Catarrh

Question—Mrs. W. M. writes: "I would be thankful if you would tell me of a way to get rid of catarrh. Have much phlegm in my throat and severe headaches. Have had my eyes tested and properly fitted with glasses which reduce the headaches a little. Am taking ——— to build up, as I only weigh 102 pounds. I am 28 years old."

Answer—Do not try to put on weight while you are getting rid of catarrh. A muculess diet will probably reduce your weight to some extent, but through following a well balanced diet afterwards and taking vigorous physical culture exercises, you will be able to build up a strong body, and perhaps more weight, if nature considers it good for you. Temporarily, eliminate all heavy starches, also sugars and fats with the exception of a small amount of butter. Send for a special article on the cure of catarrh.

Excessive Hair Growth

Question—Mary F. Writes: "I am a young girl, and have a heavy growth of hair on limbs and arms. In fact, there is a visible hair in practically every pore on my entire body. Will you please tell me what is the cause and how to overcome this condition?"

Answer—It is perfectly natural for some persons more than others to have a growth of hair on their limbs. It is foolish to do anything to remove it as long as it covers such a large area, as in your particular case.

Pickles

Question—J. K. G. asks: "Are pickles harmful to one's health?"

Answer—you will notice I do not recommend pickles in my menus. They are classed as condiments and not as food. If used at all they should be used with a meal containing no starches.

Nervousness

Question—George B. Writes: "My mother is a very nervous woman and has had so much sorrow in the last 10 years that she has hysteria and cries until she is so weak she is bedridden for a day or two. Lately a friend recommended her taking bromides and, in fact, got them for her. We do not want her to take 'dope' and would like to know about these tablets."

Answer—The steady use of bromides is a very serious mistake. Your mother should first get herself in good physical health through diet, exercises, etc., and then consult a good psychoanalyst or psychologist and learn the science and art of constructive thinking.

Dizziness

Question—E. H. G. asks: "What can be the cause of violent dizziness when lying on the back of right side? Bowels are regular."

Answer—The dizziness may come from high blood pressure or hardening of the arteries. In some cases, plain biliousness is responsible.

DRY LEADERS MISS JIM REED

Because Tirades Always Increased Donations

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON, July 3. (UP)—Dry organizations are now discovering that they lost some of their best financial campaigners in the departure from the senate of "Jim" Reed, arch foe of prohibition, and other outstanding wets who left congress a few weeks ago.

Every time Reed made one of his characteristic biting attacks upon prohibition, dry leaders said, contributions would pour in to headquarters of prohibition organizations here, especially the Anti-Saloon league.

Tirades Drew Funds

It seems that Reed was so well regarded by prohibitionists that his tirades against the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act carried weight. He stirred them up to contribute to defense of prohibition.

Reed's speeches usually were worth between $25,000 and $50,000 each, dry organization authorities said today.

Reed is not the only nationally known "wet" who left the senate last March 4. Senators Edwards, New Jersey, and Bruce, Maryland, Democrats, who took the floor often to attack prohibition, lost their seats in the Hoover landslide. Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, formerly one of the wet leaders, who is still in the senate, accepted the election as referendum on prohibition and has not lifted his voice since.

These four, whose voices are no longer raised, were dubbed the "B-E-E-R Quartette" by the Anti-Saloon league from their initials, Bruce, Edge, Edwards, and Reed.

The most effective of all, from the standpoint of inspiring prohibition contributions, was Reed. Perhaps his major effort was his "Swan-song" speech in the now famous debate with Senator Borah of Idaho, who was president Hoover's chief prohibition campaigner, in the closing days of the last regular session.

Not Broke Yet

But while the war-chests of the Anti-Saloon league and other dry organizations no longer receive the sporadic large contributions which followed Reed's attacks, they are well replenished by the regular flow of contributions from churches.

The Anti-Saloon league spends a million dollars a year in its education program, which pays for the thousands of pamphlets and booklets distributed and for speakers, including congressmen who make addresses for an honorarium.

Boy Scouts Lease Craterville Lodge

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., July 3.—Craterville park scout lodge has been leased by the Navajo Mountain council of the Boy Scouts of America from Masonic officials of Lawton.

With a non-profit policy in mind, the Navajo Mountain council hopes to maintain the lodge at a minimum fee for the use of all Boy Scouts and to develop every possibility of the camp.

Plans have all ready been made to build permanent bunk houses of cement and rock within the near future.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—An opening decline, influenced by relatively easy cables, was followed by advances in cotton today on pre-holiday covering promoted by fears that the South was getting too much rain in some sections. October contracts sold up from 18.22 to 18.39, or 10 points net higher, and closed at 18.34, with the general market closing steady, net unchanged to 17 points higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of 3 to 12 points under liquidation together with some local and southern selling in response to the Liverpool showing and a fairly favorable view of the early weather news.

Reports of heavy boll weevil infestation and prospective damage by these insects continued to reach here from the South and the firmer tone of July was accompanied by reports of an improved spot demand and inquiries for cotton out of the local stock.

Private cables said there had been hedge selling and liquidation in the Liverpool market and that buyers of cotton cloths in Manchester were cautious with only a limited demand for both cloths and yarns.

Port receipts today, 1,169. U. S. Port stocks 764,185. Exports today, 12,843, making 8,013,539 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 3. (AP)—The cotton market primarily was a pre-holiday affair today with trading consisting mostly of evening-up for over tomorrow's Independence day lay-off. A bullish weekly weather and crop summary induced enough support to absorb moderate realizing and October contracts advanced from 18.11 to 18.26 and closed at 18.21, or 3 points net higher. The general market closed steady at net advances of 3 to 5 points.

The market opened easy in sympathy with the lower Liverpool cables than due.

The bullish weekly weather report coupled with two private weevil reports indicating increased spread of the insect brought out considerable covering and trade buying which ultimately carried October to 18.26 and December 18.46, or 15 points up from the lows.

Drop in Call Rates and Further Ease in Time Money Boosts Prices

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 3. (US)—Drop in call money from renewal of 12 to 6 per cent coincident with further ease in time money and acceptance rates influenced sufficient new buying to close the stock market in new high territory today. Steel soared to within a fraction of $200 a share before succumbing to pre-holiday profit-taking and closed fractionally higher for the day. Radio gained 4⅞, Greene Cananea Copper 6½, American Tobacco 4¾, Auburn Auto 34¼, American Power & Light 8⅞ and Allis Chalmers 6¼. American Can closed 1⅞ higher but other standard industrials ruled unchanged. Oils remained quiet and irregular while the railroads held close to Tuesday's final quotation. Announcement after the close that the rediscount rate was unchanged was expected. Turnover increased to over the 4,500,000 share level drop from the 15 per cent. Call rate of Tuesday to 6 per cent today, resulted from the return of July 1 money. There were call loans made on the outside at as low as 5 per cent and at the same time further drop in acceptance rates was reported. These developments further strengthened belief expressed here last week that the easiest money conditions of the year would be experienced after the July 4th holiday. They also indicate that a good deal of activity in the money market for the last several months was tied up with the plane of international bankers. If this view were correct, and an improved bond market is the main desire it would seem likely that the stock market should run into "corrective reaction" very soon for during the past few days the pace has been too fast and threatens outbreak of too wild public speculation.

Wise traders are keeping out of the radio activity. There is one the Radio activity. There is one group that talks bullish and another spreading bullish reports. The bulls maintain deal with Columbia Graphaphone will be announced but this report is scoffed at in circles usually reliable. The bears talk of the forthcoming income report and it is learned that his report will be "disappointing." In fact it is likely to show red figures. It will be issued early in August. Steel's new high was no surprise for everyone now is talking of the "melon" that was forecast exclusively here last week. Directors at the end of this month are expected to declare an extra cash dividend with the real melon.

Those interested in Phelps Dodge were more active. It is expected that the forthcoming six months report will show earnings of $4.80 a share. As current dividend rate is $3 such income opens the way for extra dividend later in the year. Earnings estimate is based on output of 120,000,000 pounds of copper at cost of about 10 cents a pound. There was quiet picking up of General Asphalt coincident with rumors of special developments in the near future. The group in Skelly were active early in the day as special analysis was issued pointing out the stock was selling only seven times earnings. Fleischmann's power was accompanied by further talk of announcement with a few days of further expansion plans.

Tobaccos joined the rails in attracting attention from the industrial list. "New leaders for the next advance" was the talk but the main influence was the belief that the new interests that will dominate the industry will do away with disastrous practices of the past. The price situation already is more stabilized and at the same time reports from the trade indicate steady gain in consumption. Although Central slipped off there was report that the bankers planned to split the stock on a three for one basis before going ahead with plans for consolidating subsidiary lines. The northwestern's persistent strength is due to knowledge that the first half year's income established a record with car loadings indicating further gain this period.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, July 3. (AP)—Advancing rapidly in the late dealings today, wheat closed strong at the highest point reached since May 31. The maximum intervening gain shown from that date is 25¼c a bushel. Reports were at hand telling of drought-stricken crops of spring wheat burning up under temperatures above 100 throughout widespread districts in the Northwest, sections of Canada in particular, but with wheat prospects being blighted in the Dakotas, Nebraska, Montana and Colorado.

Wheat here closed 1⅜c to 2¼c above yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¾c to 1¼c up, oats ½c to ¾c advanced, and provisions varying from 12c decline to 5c gain.

Corn prices reflected the advance of wheat, and also were high. December oats here established a new high-price record for the season.

In line with hog values, the provision market held steady.

As a result of a plan of reorganization of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor corporation, the present company was incorporated in 1923. The company owns stock in six other aeroplane manufacturing or aviation companies, all of which bear the Curtiss name in conjunction with other distinguishing titles. The company has two factories, one at Buffalo with a capacity of 65 aeroplane engines a day and 200 planes a month and one at Garden City, L. I., with a capacity of 100 planes a month. Curtiss field formerly owned has been sold but part of this field may be used under the terms of sale as a flying field by the Curtiss company. A new plant at Buffalo will be in commission shortly. RECEIPTS OF WHEAT CLIMB

Panhandle-Plains Crop Moves Here

A heavy and constantly increasing stream of new wheat from the Texas Panhandle is pouring into Wichita Falls daily on its way to export points and to milling centers in this country, according to local grain dealers.

Shipments from the South Plains have been moving for about two weeks, while the output of the Panhandle proper is just now reaching a heavy volume. Numerous Oklahoma communities also are contributing materially to deliveries here, among them Devol, Grandfield, Frederick, Turpin and Elmer.

More than 30 cars of wheat arrived at the J. C. Hunt Grain company's elevators Wednesday. Last week's receipts totalled more than 70 carloads. Several hundred carloads have been received for the Wichita Mill & Elevator company, it was said. Much of this wheat is being forwarded promptly to coast cities for export, part is being transferred to other milling centers for storage, and a large amount will remain in the local elevators.

Practically all of the grain now moving is of strictly No. 1 grade, grain buyers stated.

One of the largest yields reported in the Wichita Falls section was that of R. K. Callan, who lives north of this city, the harvest showing about 20 bushels per acre.

RAIN WELCOME AT FREDERICK

One to Two Inches Fall in Tillman County

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., July 3.—Fully an inch of rain fell in Frederick Monday evening but about twice this much is said to have fallen on the Walter Duncan farm, about seven miles west of this city. Little wind accompanied it here but a barn is reported to have been blown down on the Ira Nigh farm, near Manitou. Some damage is also said to have resulted from hail south of Manitou.

The rain will prove highly beneficial to cotton, Tillman county's major crop, which is making rapid progress. It will also help feed crops and all other growing vegetation. Harvesting of the small grain crop, which is rapidly drawing t on close, was retarded a short time because the grain was too wet to combine. The rain has been followed by delightfully cool weather.

June proved a dry month, but 1.12 inches of rain fell in that period according to the local weather observer. Rainfall on the fifth was .56 of an inch, highest in the month; there was .24 inches the sixth, 16th of an inch the seventh and .08 of an inch both on the 22nd and 23rd.

REVIVAL TO CLOSE FRIDAY

Many Cases of Healing by Prayer Reported

Friday night's services will mark the close of a six weeks' evangelistic meeting conducted by Rev. R. L. Cotnam and Rev. George E. Gray of San Antonio at Twenty-second street and Yale avenue, it was announced Wednesday.

The Rev. Mr. Cotnam will preach Friday night, he said, on "The Mark of the Beast," using as his text the 12th and 13th chapters of the book of Revelations.

Evening services during the six weeks have been in 30-minute sessions devoted to prayer for the sick, followed by preaching in the main auditorium of the tabernacle. The Rev. Mr. Cotnam reported that a large number of conversions and cases of definite healing have resulted from the meetings. Converts have been given to local churches, it was said. Deafness, rheumatism and other ailments have been successfully relieved by prayer, according to the evangelists. The converts were said to include prisoners in the county jail, where meetings are still being held by the Rev. Mr. Gray.

The Cotnam-Gray party will go to Childress from Wichita Falls, and in August will conduct a meeting in Colorado, Texas, it was announced.

Twenty-one new occupants for the cages at the Municipal zoo were installed Wednesday in their new quarters, it was announced by C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent. The animals were donated by local and out-of-town persons interested in the development of the zoo.

A honey bear, one of the most interesting little animals to be found in this part of the United States, was donated by E. L. January of Denton. A Canadian goose, donated by A. H. Borgfield, route No. 1, Wichita Falls, was installed in the pond cage.

Two native skunks and 17 wild ducks were presented to the zoo by the traffic department of the police force. The animals are all in their cages and ready for the public view.

Points will be awarded to the troops having the largest number of new members, the largest percentage of advancement in ranks, and the largest percentage of scouts in uniform, it was said. All troops were urged by Mr. Creighton to participate in the jamboree because of the large number of boys who will be out of town on the holiday and because of those at the camp at Diversion lake.

$125,000 ASKED IN OIL SUIT

Case Sent to U. S. Court by Judge Cook

Charges that an inadequate vacuum station cost $125,000 in lessened production from six Wichita county oil wells are made in a suit brought by the Hanover company, incorporated, against the Tidal-Western corporations, transferred from the state to the United States district court by an order entered here Wednesday. The case was removed to the jurisdiction of the federal courts by Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court upon a motion filed by the defendant.

The petition of the complaining company alleges that the Tidal-Western corporation failed to meet the terms of a contract for pumping the oil from half a dozen wells on a 10-acre tract in the Red River valley lands. The plaintiff claims that the vacuum station, pump, and appliances maintained by their defendant were not adequate in relation to the pressure from off-setting wells, and that the production was lost through that weakness. They ask $125,000 damages.
