

Hance Rules Out MX Positioning Here

By ALLISON RYAN
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance told Deaf Smith County residents he did not think the MX Missile would be placed in the Texas-New Mexico area because of the cost of land and rapidly changing technology.

The second-term Congressman from Lubbock was here Saturday for a Town Hall meeting designed to speak with constituents on current Congressional issues.

State senator Bill Sarpalus of Hereford attended the town hall meeting and in a brief interview at the conclusion, Sarpalus said he fully agreed with "everything Hance has said."

"If you put the MX Missile in the Utah-Nevada and Texas-New Mexico area it will cost the government an additional $3.5 billion, so I don't think there is any way the Reagan administration can justify putting the MX here because of the cost of the land," Hance said.

"The other thing is, it may never be built. What is happening in satellite warfare, is coming so fast that the MX Missile could be outdated before it can be completed," he added.

"And if the MX missile were built and funded as proposed it would be the largest project in the history of mankind by any government," he noted. "Hopefully, the MX missile could be replaced by the minuteman missile or could be placed on submarines."

Hance said Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger will have to decide whether to implement the system and if so, how it should be done. Weinberger's decision will be made in part on information gathered at Air Force hearings on the MX scheduled in Lubbock on April 16 and in Amarillo and Dalhart on April 20.

"We have requested and there is a strong possibility of having a hearing in Hereford," Hance told the approximately 100 people who attended the meeting.

In addition to the MX issue, Hance also discussed tax cuts, the new farm bill and budget cuts and fundings for 1982. Hance said the congress has not been asked to vote on a proposed tax cut that would mean a $48 billion deficit.

"The proposed tax cut is calling for a 10 percent cut across the board for three years which calls for a $48 billion deficit. I'm not going to vote for it. If we vote that tax cut, the federal government would have to borrow that money which would be highly inflationary," Hance explained.

He predicted another proposal would come out of the House that would amount to a five percent cut across the board with a cost of less than $20 billion.

Changes in taxes would include tax free interest on savings and dividends, on accelerating appreciation bill, exemption for independent oil operators and changes in the capital gain and state gift taxation.

"I would predict that some of the things will happen simply because if we are to have increased productivity in this county, the additional money left to the private sector is going to have to be invested in savings or capital rather than be spent," Hance stated.

The congressman told the group the Reagan administration has not put out the proposed farm bill, but he expects to see the bill within the next two weeks.

Hance thought the target prices would be eliminated from the new farm bill because they are too costly.

County Commissioners Table Action On Phone System

By BOB NIGH
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County Commissioners tabled action on a new telephone system proposed for the county court house by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company as the commissioner's court handled mainly routine matters at its regular session Monday.

The system, a "Horizon Telephone System," features a "central answering position" according to SWBT spokesman Jana Watson, and is similar to one to be installed soon at The First National Bank of Hereford. Mrs. Watson met with the commissioners Monday to explain the system and answer questions about it.

In other action the commissioners appointed Beverly Jayroe to the Child Welfare Board, named Linda S. Warren as Public Weigher for Precinct 1, approved the Annual Fire Report, and discussed problems concerning the Bull Barn.

They also turned down a request from Big Brothers-Big Sisters director Petra Benavidez for use of some chairs from the Bull Barn for an upcoming concert sponsored by BB-BS, authorized District Clerk Local Faye Veazey to take bids on carpeting for her office and the office of the court reporter, tabled action on transferring titles of ambulances purchased by the county to Deaf Smith General Hospital, and unanimously voted to oppose House Bill No. 925, which calls for a pension of 60 percent of top salary at retirement for all county judges, county commissioners, and justices of the peace.

County Sheriff's Deputy Dean Butcher was also present at the meeting, interested in information concerning the proposed telephone system for the court house. Mrs. Watson assured Butcher that the system would be compatible with the needs of the Sheriff's Office, routing emergency calls directly to the dispatcher and handling non-emergency calls at the central answering position.

The commissioners voted to table action on the telephone system after voicing concern over the necessity of hiring an additional employee to man the switchboard.

Precinct 4 Commissioner James Voyles spoke for the court in informing Mrs. Benavidez that current policy bans the removal of tables or chairs from the Bull Barn for any use.

The commissioners voted to approve the Annual Fire Report, which covers the period from February 1, 1980 to January 31, 1981. The annual county cost was $45,400 as compared to $32,144 for the same period a year ago. Included in the cost were calls made to 167 fires in the county, 46 percent of the total calls made by the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department during the period. That compares to 127 calls made in 1979-80, a total which was 40 percent of the fire department's calls during that span.

Overall, the fire department's number of calls made rose from 316 in 1979-80 to 363 in 1980-81. The busiest month of the year was July, when 59 calls were made, 36 of them in the county.

Bull Barn custodian Richard Mickler voiced concern about the possible lack of insurance coverage for local youths who use the Little Bull Barn regularly for boxing practice under a program sponsored by the G.I. Forum here. County Treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley was also on hand concerning a misunderstanding with the G.I. Forum about a deposit on the facility. Rinaldo Garcia was present to represent the G.I. Forum, and informed the commissioners that all of the youths involved in their program are covered by insurance.

Standing His Ground

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance visits with a few of his constituents following remarks he made during a town hall meeting held at the high school cafeteria Saturday. Hance brought a group of

Results After Embargo Important Hance Says

By ALLISON RYAN
Staff Writer

Future U.S.-Soviet grain negotiations will be more important to farmers than what happens in the next six months according to U.S. Rep. Kent Hance.

Hance addressed the issue when he held a town hall meeting here Saturday for Deaf Smith County residents. The 19th Congressional District representative from Lubbock, held the meeting to talk to constituents about current Congressional issues.

"The agreement we have with the Soviets where we sell them 8 million metric tons of grain runs out in September. Really what happens on the embargo between now and September is not the big questions. The big question is what happens in September," Hance said.

Former President Jimmy Carter placed an embargo on grain Jan. 4, 1980, in retaliation for Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The order blocked delivery of 17 million metric tons of U.S. corn and wheat, plus some soybeans and other products, the Soviet Union had been expected to take last year. It excepted 8 million metric tons of grain that were specified under a 1975 agreement calling for regular purchases of U.S. corn and wheat by the Soviets.

To help offset the embargo's impact on farmers, the Carter administration spent about $3 billion to buy or otherwise withhold from the market all agricultural exports denied the Soviets.

Farm groups and members supported the embargo at first, however, that support began to fall as grain prices dropped. Many believe the slide occurred because Carter had deprived producers of a lucrative foreign market.

"No one was more critical of President Carter for the grain embargo other than President Reagan," Hance noted.

Even though Reagan promised during the presidential campaign to repeal the embargo, he has taken a less definitive stance. The Reagan Cabinet is still debating the issue.

"The fact on the embargo (to lift the order or not) started within the administration. President Reagan, I'm convinced was thoroughly against the embargo and General Haig (Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.) turned him around," Hance explained.

"Secretary of Agriculture John Block stepped in and did a good job of at least slowing down any final decision," he continued.

In February, Hance sent a formal request to President Reagan that the year-old embargo be lifted and stated the embargo had been a major cause in a 40 percent decline of farm income in the second quarter of 1980.

"My theory is, strategy wise, is to sell them more grain. We should get the Soviet block countries and the Eastern block countries to a position where they are hooked on the grain," Hance explained.

He said the same theory had been used by OPEC countries in the 1960's when they established a long-range strategy of getting the United States hooked on foreign oil.

"They did a good job. Once they did that they started raising the price. If you really want to hurt the Soviets, get them hooked on grain and

Deficit May Top $80 Billion

By DAVID ESPO

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional economists are standing by projections that the federal deficit will be at least $80 billion more than the Reagan administration figures over the next four years.

The Congressional Budget Office says its best estimate is that President Reagan's economic plan will result in budget deficits this year of almost $8 billion more than the administration predicts, $22 billion more in 1982 and $49 billion more in 1984, the year the president has promised a surplus.

The report, prepared for formal release to Congress Wednesday, also envisions a higher deficit than the administration is forecasting for 1983, but does not cite a specific figure.

If correct, the CBO predictions would require higher spending cuts and lower tax reductions than the president is recommending to meet his goal of balancing the budget by 1984.

"The combined effects of CBO's outlay and revenue re-estimates would add $8 billion to the administration's projected budget deficit for fiscal year 1981, and $22 billion to the 1982 deficit. They would also result in a projected budget deficit of almost $50 billion in 1984, instead of a small surplus," the CBO said.

The administration is forecasting a $500 million surplus for 1984.

The differences stem from CBO estimates of inflation, unemployment and interest rates that are higher than the administration's.

Higher inflation, for example, could add $9 billion to the administration's forecast for Social Security spending by 1984. Higher unemployment could add $6 billion to direct aid to the jobless, the CBO said.

The administration is predicting that its economic recovery program of spending cuts, across-the-board tax reductions and regulatory reform will combine to lower inflation and interest rates and stimulate economic growth more rapidly than most private economists believe possible.

When the CBO's preliminary forecast for spending figures were released last week, Reagan at first denounced them as "phony," (See DEFICIT Pg. 2)

More Questions Needed For Candidates Forum

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is still accepting written questions for its "Meet the Candidate" night to be held beginning at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the banquet room of the community center. Each candidate running for the Hereford Independent School District Board or for city offices has been invited to participate in the public meeting. "We need to get the written questions as soon as possible in order to present a printed list of them to the candidates in advance," Chamber Executive Mike Carr said.

During the forum candidates will each be given four minutes to present their overall stands and reasons for running for office. Following the opening remarks the question-and-answer period of the meeting will commence with either Dr. Milton Adams or Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal serving as moderator.

Carr said that all candidates for school board and city commission positions have indicated that they will be at the forum. In addition, Mayor Bartley Dowell will explain the two city charter amendments to be voted on during the April 4 election.

Eight persons have filed for the school board, three of which will be elected to at-large places. Those candidates include Don T. Martin, Johnny Gamez, Tom Simons, James Self, Bill Townsend, Jerry Walls, Anne Ivey, and R.C. Hoelscher.

In the city election Ed Coplen has filed for reelection to place 2 on the city commission. He will be opposed by Rinaldo Garcia. Mayor Bartley Dowell and Place 2 Commissioner Wes Fisher are running unopposed for reelection.

UMW President Against Short Strike

By G.G. LABELLE

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The governing councils of the United Mine Workers are being asked by the union's president to break a no-contract, no-work tradition and derail a strike by 160,000 miners set to begin Friday.

"I think it would probably be better for us to go ahead and work," UMW President Sam Church said Monday, following overnight bargaining in which the union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association reached a tentative contract settlement.

"I can't see really anything positive happening by having a three- or four-day strike that you really wouldn't need to have," Church said.

Under union rules, miners are to walk out at 12:01 a.m. Friday because the tentative agreement has yet to be ratified. But Church said he would ask the miners' bargaining council today to skirt the UMW constitution's prohibition against working without a formally signed contract.

Church and B.R. Brown, the chief industry negotiator, jointly announced Monday's surprise accord after the two sides had returned to the bargaining table at 2 a.m., six days after angrily breaking off talks.

Brown said it would be "inappropriate" to give details, but Church said the proposed three-year contract included a 36-percent wage and benefit package.

Church, who is negotiating his first contract as UMW president, also said the union had squelched industry efforts to open mines on Sundays and after the pension plan.

Even if miners accept terms of the agreement, a strike of three or four days still could occur because it will take about 10 days for the proposed pact to be ratified.

For a walkout to be avoided, the 39-member bargaining council and the international executive board would have to agree to set aside the no-contract, no-work rule.

Only during World War II — when the nation was critically in need of coal — have union miners worked after their contract expired.

Church said he didn't know whether the bargaining council would agree to extending the current pact. "I would agree to go along with it if the rest of the board did and providing the operators would say for these four or five days everything would be retroactive," he said.

Extension of the contract by the bargaining council is by no means certain. Church

Hereford Sailor Dies In Wreck

Former Hereford resident, Greg Hennington, 20, a petty officer 3rd class serving at Whidbey Island Naval Air Station, Wash., was killed following a one-car accident in Ocean Shores, Wash., Saturday.

Hennington died at 8:45 a.m. in Olympia, Wash., hospital as a result of multiple injuries including a head injury, according to a hospital spokesman.

Hennington was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Mike S. He was rushed to St. Peter's Hospital in Olympia for treatment, according to the Ocean Shores Police Department.

Kennedy also was injured in the accident, but his condition report was not made available Sunday night.

Hennington was a member of squadron VA-196 at Whidbey Island NAS.

Hennington was born May 7, 1960 in Albuquerque, N.M. He joined the Navy following graduation from Hereford High School. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Union Says Law Won't Stop Organizing

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A public employees union says its organizing efforts will not be stopped by a new law banning dues checkoffs from state workers' paychecks.

Gov. Bill Clements signed into law Monday a measure that bans deductions of any kind from state employees' paychecks unless the legislature approves.

"This was the end of a campaign orchestrated by Gov. Clements and the Texas Right To Work Committee," the Texas State Employees Union said in a statement.

The law nullifies a January opinion by Attorney General Mark White that Comptroller Bob Bullock could make payroll deductions of union dues with permission of the employees.

Calling the law "nuisance legislation," the union said its organizing efforts had "not been stopped or even slowed."

Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, who sponsored the legislation, denied it was designed to discourage unionization of state employees. He said the measure was Clements' idea, not his.

"I don't know what the governor had in mind," Harris said in floor debate last month. "I was in the governor's office one day and he had this bill and I couldn't turn him down."

Harris said his concern was mainly that the Texas Public Employees Association did not want its members "harrassed" by charitable organizations and others who want to get contributions through salary deductions. The association is not a union.

The Texas Right to Work Committee hailed enactment of the law.

"Today marks the end of a very long and very expensive legal battle," committee spokesman David Ellis said. The group had filed suit to stop Bullock from deducting union dues.

The law takes effect Aug. 30.

Demonstrators

Are Convicted

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Six people who climbed a security fence around a nuclear weapons assembly plant each face a maximum sentence of one year in jail and a $5,000 fine for their trespassing convictions in federal court.

The six were arrested at the Pantex plant near here Feb. 10 and were charged with criminal trespass after they climbed the plant's chain-link fence then sat down and prayed until plant security guards arrested them.

They were found guilty Monday in U.S. District Court here, but Judge Mary Lou Robinson postponed sentencing until a pre-sentence investigation is completed.

Vincent Scotti Eirene, Ladon Sheats, Mary Springer Froese, Stephen Douglas Clements, Kathleen Jennings and Larry Rosebaugh were found guilty of trespassing at the Department of Energy's Pantex Nuclear Plant last month.

All six said they were on a pilgrimage and prayer for peace. They refused to post bond and refused to hire attorneys for their trial.

Sheats said in his closing remarks to the jury that the plant, where nuclear weapons are assembled, is "immoral."

Indictments Returned Against Man

DALLAS (AP) — A San Antonio man who has voluntarily implicated himself in seven murders over the past seven years has been indicted on three counts of murder by a Dallas County grand jury.

David Villarreal, 25, was accused in the deaths of three Dallas men in March and April 1979. Two of the men were former roommates of Villarreal, the third was a stranger, police said.

Officers say Villarreal also has given information about four other killings, two of them in San Antonio, but no charges have been filed in those incidents.

One indictment, returned Monday, said Villarreal stabbed Ernesto Carbajal Garcia, a former roommate, with an ice pick and beat him with a chunk of concrete and a post.

Villarreal himself reported that death to police but he was not charged until his March 10 arrest.

Another indictment charges Villarreal with killing Tony Gutierrez and the third names him in the death of Charles Moya.

Both victims were 32 years old, both had their throats cut and Villarreal has told news reporters he killed both men because, "I didn't like them."

Since his arrest, Villarreal has been interviewed in his jail cell by reporters for both major Dallas daily newspapers and both Dallas network-affiliated television stations

Cease-Fire is Ordered

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas ordered a unilateral 24-hour cease-fire today to mark the first anniversary of the assassination of San Salvador's Roman Catholic archbishop. But the army pressed its offensive against guerrillas entrenched in the northern mountains and towns.

Roman Catholic clergymen across the nation were to hold memorial services today for Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, an outspoken defender of human rights and opponent of U.S. military aid to the ruling junta.

The archbishop was shot through the heart by a sharpshooter while celebrating Mass last March 24. Ultra-rightists were blamed, and more than 100 people were killed in violence that broke out during eight days of mourning and street demonstration's after the slaying.

The Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, a coalition of five of the six anti-government guerrilla groups, announced in a communique to the news media Monday that it would stop all but defensive fighting today in commemoration of Romero's death.

The communique described the cleric as "a standard-bearer of the cause of peace, justice and liberty," and said he was "assassinated by the enemies of our people: the genocidal junta, American imperialism by way of the CIA and the most reactionary sector of the military."

A lone gunman, suspected of belonging to one of the rightist "death squads" operating here, fired the shot that killed Romero. The assassin fled, and police say they have been unable to track him down.

Military sources, meanwhile, reported continued fighting between guerrillas and troops in the mountainous northern region of this Central American country where the government has been pressing a three-week-old campaign to track down and wipe out the guerillas. The sources said the fighting was heaviest Monday around Ciudad Victoria, 42 miles north of the capital. Refugees fleeing Las Vueltas, San Francisco, San Isidro and San Julian reported heavy fighting around those towns also, but army sources denied the reports.

"Quite a number of guerrillas" were killed, said a military source, who declined to be identified. He said government troops suffered "some casualties." No figures were given and the reports could not be confirmed.

Leftist guerrillas have been fighting for more than a year to replace the U.S.-backed civilian-military junta with a Marxist government. Rightist forces have been waging their own war against the left and have threatened the junta over its land reform and other social programs.

Hance

"Even though it is something you may not like, it is one of the area where we are going to cut back," he said.

One of the popular portions of the bill which Hance predicts would not be put into the legislation is the disaster program, slated to end this year. But he noted the Agriculture Secretary does have the option of putting it back in the bill next year for several areas.

However, the loan price program would not be eliminated, Hance said, adding there are several Reagan officials including Agriculture Secretary John Block who would like to see an increase of at least 10 cents on wheat and corn.

Hearings for the 1981 farm bill will be held in Abilene on April 20, in Lubbock on April 21 and Amarillo on April 22.

Hance also addressed Reagan's proposed budget cuts and emphasized several times during the meeting that the only way to stop inflation is to stop spending. "It's not popular to cut the budget, but if it will stop this trend of spending I'll support the cuts," Hance said.

Hance felt confident in that 99 percent of Reagan's proposed cuts will pass, noting that both House and Senate members are going out of their way to try to speed plans and proposals through Congress.

"Some of the area I am questioned about concern the Farmers' Home Administration loans, which will be cut back about 25 percent," Hance said. "That might not seem proper, but it's something that has to be done. Food stamps will be cut about 15 percent. Again, it might not be popular but I will support it."

Another program which might not receive any more federal funding, Hance said, is the Legal Services Corporation. That program has provided about $3 million annually for Texas Rural Legal Aid Inc., which has an office in Hereford for a migrant workers project.

Hance said Legal Services was not included in Reagan's second budget proposal, but the Senate added $100 million to it in committee. The House has not voted on it.

"One of two things will happen, there is a 50-50 chance it will not be funded, and if it is funded, the program will be insurance through their boxing association.

The court also cleared up the deposit problem, notifying Garcia that they could no longer continue to hold a check for the deposit longer than 90 days due to changes in state banking laws. Garcia changed drastically," he explained.

As for budget cuts which some say would hurt the poor, Hance said he does not agree with the thinking that the cuts will be detrimental.

"Poor people are destroyed by inflation, not the budget cuts. We have got to get this budget in control if we are going to be able to help anybody," Hance said.

County

then assured the commissioners that the G.I. Forum would submit a cashier's check or cash with Mrs. Nunley to cover the required deposit.

Commissioner Austin Rose was absent from the meeting Monday.

Suspect in Car Theft Caught

Hereford police have a suspect for the vehicle damage and theft at Pratt Chevrolet which happened sometime early Saturday morning.

According to police reports, someone "rammed" into several vehicles in the parking lot causing extensive damage. A new El Camino was taken from the lot and recovered four miles north on Highway 385 Sunday about 5 p.m. The car was parked off the highway.

Maria L. Ramirez of 301 Knight has been reported missing after she did return from a trip to Amarillo March 14.

Mrs. Ramirez is four feet, five inches tall, weighs 95 pounds and has short, light-brown hair. She was driving a 1977, four-door, red and white Plymouth. The woman has several children at home.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the woman is asked to call the Hereford police department.

Saturday and Sunday police made several arrest and investigated a simple assault.

A man was arrested Saturday for public intoxication after a woman in the 700 block of East Third Street called police to report the man was causing trouble at her home.

A 13-year-old juvenile was arrested for driving a vehicle without lights or driver license. He was turned over to Randy Williams, juvenile officer.

Police investigated a simple assault on east Highway 60. Apparently a man was beating his wife.

Police are investigating several thefts and vandalism cases which occurred Monday. George Thomas Brashear, 143 Juniper, reported that hubcaps from his vehicle were taken sometime Monday night. Value of the items has been placed at $100.

Jack Rogers, 113 Ranger, reported a theft of a tire and rim that were removed from the back of his pickup. The tire was taken from the truck sometime last week.

Gary Robinson, 143 Greenwood, told police someone took knives, jumper cables, a drill and other items from his pickup sometime Sunday night or Monday while it was parked in the driveway.

Lynn Arnold, 207 Elm, told police Monday someone broke into the storage house he owns at 211 Ave F. and broke several of the lights in the building. Some $200 worth of damage was reported.

Police discovered a window at the Pro Shop at the City of Hereford golf course had been broken. The officers discovered the damage at 1:29 a.m. today.

Gloria Orocco, 710 Knight, told police someone entered her house between 11:40 Monday night and 1 a.m. today and broke a baby picture that was hanging on the wall.

Evy Balderaz, 307 Whittier, reported to police that a man was in her backyard Monday night. When members of the family went outside, they saw a man wearing a white t-shirt running down the alley behind the house.

Police issued 39 traffic citations Saturday through Monday, investigated four minor accidents and arrested two people for public intoxication.

Strike

has pointed out frequently during contract talks that his union is a democracy, and twice during the last strike three years ago, the council rejected contract settlements negotiators had tentatively agreed to.

then raise the price," he continued.

Hance told the approximately 100 people who attended the meeting that he was opposed to the embargo because the United States continued to send the 8 million metric tons of grain that had been agreed upon in 1975 as well as technology, drilling and oil field equipment.

"We just cut back from 18 to 8 million metric tons. I voted last year that we should have an embargo on everything or nothing. That was my position then, and I have not changed," Hance added.

Deficit

then said they were based on incorrect assumptions.

Many Democrats say that while they favor Reagan's call for large budget cuts, they object to some of the specific reductions he has proposed, particularly in social programs. Sources say the Democrats are likely to develop an alternative list of cuts to make up the difference for the amount they want to restore to some of their favorite programs.

In the House, Budget Committee Chairman James Jones of Oklahoma is

The proposed contract extension also would come to a vote of the 18 international executive board members whose miners are covered by the contract. Church could cast the deciding vote in event of a tie.

"Hopefully, we will have a new agreement by September," he said. "If Block wins his fight the price of grain will have to tie in with the loan prices."

Hance did say the House would write in the new farm bill that now matter what the reason for an embargo loan prices would be changed.

Negotiations in September will not only include grain for the Soviets but cotton trade in China as well.

"There is going to be a lot of activity in agriculture within the Reagan administration within the next six months," Hance said.

meeting with other Democrats in preparation for voting the first week in April on budget guidelines for 1982. A spokesman said Jones intends to meet with virtually all Democrats in the House before the panel begins voting in an effort to develop alternatives that are acceptable to his party.

In theory, Democrats will be able to make more changes in Reagan's program in the House, where they are in the majority. Republicans are in the majority in the Senate.

Worked in New York

South Africa -- not "southern Africa" -- the nation of South Africa -- is consistently mean-mouthed by some Americans who may not realize they are being used.

Then again -- some may. While not all of the world's restiveness can be blamed on Communist agitation, much of the concerted campaign to malign and diplomatically isolate South Africa derives from Soviet ambitions.

Here's why: What the Persian Gulf is to oil; South Africa is to minerals.

While the Soviet Union is, itself, adequately supplied with most essential minerals -- we are not.

The United States must rely on other nations for 24 of 32 minerals essential to national survival.

While Americans could somehow manage to make-do without any Middle East oil, we would be helplessly impotent without platinum, palladium, manganese, cadmium, cobalt, chromium and other minerals and metals which we get from South Africa.

And our industrialized allies are similarly dependent -- militarily and economically -- on South Africa.

The region from Zimbabwe to Cape Town is the richest area of mineral reserves in the world.

South Africa, smaller than Alaska, has the world's largest known deposits of gold, platinum, chrome, manganese, vanadium and fluorspar -- plus vast quantities of antimony, diamonds, coal, copper, iron ore, lead, limestone, mica, nickel, phosphates, titanium, uranium, vermiculite, zinc and zirconium.

Without South Africa's chrome we could not build your shiny stainless steel appliances.

But also we could not build jet aircraft, cars, refineries, computers, power plants, modern food processing plants and hospital operating rooms.

One jet aircraft uses 3,600 pounds of chrome.

Without manganese there is no steel -- and without South Africa we have no manganese.

So Soviet penetration of the African continent is no happenstance -- and Soviet concentration on subverting and controlling South Africa is also aimed at controlling the sea lanes around the Cape. Then, with what Russia has plus what South Africa has -- and with what we would not have without South Africa and the Soviet Union as sources -- we would be important -- and they would encircle the world.

Decorating Hints Conserve Energy

By PENNY CRIBBS
County Extension Agent

Youth in the 4-H Home Environment Program learn how to create comfortable and carefree living spaces which are also energy-efficient.

The program is conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, and supported by the S&H Foundation, Inc.

4-H'ers in the home environment program suggest these guidelines:

-Textiles can be used in the home to help maintain thermal comfort. Many principles that apply to fabric selection for garments can also apply to home decorating.

-Select fabrics with nap, texture or pile for cold weather because these textiles will feel warmer than smooth fabrics. For hot weather, select absorbent fabrics, such as cotton blends, which have smooth surfaces that are cool to the touch. Non-absorbent surfaces, like plastic and leather, will not absorb perspiration and eventually feel wet and sticky.

-Carpeting also plays an important role in conservation at home. Carpets and rugs keep floors warm in winter and cool in summer. For uninsulated floors above an unheated area, carpeting provides good insulation. The insulating ability of a carpet is determined by thickness and pile density; however, a pad under the carpet can add more insulation.

In the program, boys and girls, 9 to 19, apply energy efficient techniques as they relate to housing, furnishings and equipment in the home. They also develop an appreciation of and skills in care and preservation of old and new housing, furnishings and accessories.

4-H'ers who excel in the program are eligible for annual awards donated by S&H and arranged by the National 4-H Council. Medals of honor are awarded to four members from each county. One Texas 4-H'er will earn an expense-paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago and will have a chance to win one of six $1,000 scholarships awarded nationally.

More information on the 4-H Home Environment Program as well as other 4-H programs can be obtained from the County Extension Service.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas

Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Kansas City

The beginnings of Kansas City, Mo., can be traced to a trading post of fur trappers in about 1826. It became an important trade and transportation center as the overland routes of the Oregon and Santa Fe trails spread westward. As agricultural production boomed, it became an important market and distribution center for crops throughout the Middle West.

Ann Landers

Long Term Effects

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have given lots of advice to people who write to you about drugs. But you have never touched the main subject that hits me square on the nose. I am talking about the long-term effects of grass.

I am an 18-year-old pothead who is having some first-hand experience. I work in a restaurant on the 11-to-7 shift as a cook, or should I say THE cook. (There is no manager, just the waitress and me.) I am in charge.

The waitress is also a pothead. Every night we end up smoking about six joints each. There isn't a day that goes by that I'm not stoned out of my mind.

Anyone who thinks the effects of pot are gone after the high wears off might as well hang it up. I really don't know how to say this, but pot affects your head permanently. I now have a severe mental blockage. I'm losing my memory and it's frightening.

I said I'm a cook. Sometimes when I get an order while I'm stoned, I'll repeat the order and turn around to make it. Then, I'll forget what it was and have to go back and ask.

So, those of you who want to smoke pot or are just starting, ask yourself a few questions. Do you want to lose your memory in your teens and see it get worse every day?

Thanks for listening, Ann, and please keep on printing that terrific column.—Been There And Still There

DEAR BEEN: You mentioned the long-term effects of pot — well, here's the latest: There is growing evidence that pot does indeed interfere with the memory. Heavy pot smoking also can reduce the testosterone level in males and cause fertility problems. Females may also run into trouble when they want to have children.

Pot damages the lungs more than ordinary cigarettes, and as you pointed out, produces memory loss. Thanks for writing. I'm glad you remembered to mail the letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a "happy" problem — if there is such a thing. Our eldest daughter was the first in either my family or my husband's to graduate from college. She has since earned her master's degrees and this June she will get her Ph.D.

There are so many relatives and friends who live in other cities with whom we would like to share our pride in this lovely girl's accomplishments. This is not a hint for gifts.

Are there printed announcements we could send? If we have some made up, what should we say?

Since we want to surprise our daughter, we don't want to ask her about the proper way to go about it. I don't know any educated people we might ask. I can't find anything relating to this in any of the books on etiquette I found in the library. Can you advise me?—Mrs. A.R. in N.Y.

DEAR MRS. A.R.: The reason you can't find anything in the etiquette books is — it isn't done. It would be like sending an announcement informing friends that your child made Phi Beta Kappa or won a Fulbright or a Rhodes.

Your daughter's accomplishments are a justifiable source of pride, but please, dear, enjoy her — don't advertise her. Simply telephone or write notes to family and close friends.

Senator: Age Limit Raise Endangered

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) —

Sen. Bill Sarpalus, D-Hereford, says beer, liquor and grocery store lobbyists are endangering the final passage of his bill raising Texas' legal drinking age from 18 to 19.

The issue, he said, is an amendment added by the House which puts a responsibility on sellers of alcoholic beverage to make sure customers are not under-age.

"I understand they (lobbyists) are putting pressure on some of the senators not to go along with the amendment," Sarpalus said.

The House passed the bill, 104-15, on Thursday, returning it to the Senate for action on the amendment. If senators OK the amendment, the bill goes to Gov. Bill Clements for signature into law. But if they reject it, the measure will be sent to a House-Senate conference committee for compromise talks.

Clements submitted raising the drinking age as an emergency matter and is expected to sign the bill if he gets it.

Sarpalus said he feared losing the entire bill in the fight over the House amendment.

The House amendment puts teeth in the law that says a tavern or beverage merchant may not "knowingly" sell alcohol to a minor — defined in the bill as anyone under 19. A seller would be presumed to know a person was a minor if he did not request a driver's license, military identification card or other proof of age.

Sarpalus said grocers, as well as liquor and beer interests, object to the amendment. "They don't like the idea of being required to ask for an ID, and the responsibility that is being placed on them," he said in an interview.

Sarpalus said he gave each of the 31 senators a copy of the amendment to take home and study over the weekend. He said he would talk to them again on Monday.

"If it looks like I have the support to concur (in the amendment), I will... I support the amendment," he said.

Speaker Bill Clayton, who would appoint House members of a conference committee if one is required, also favors the amendment.

Names in the News

DENVER (AP) — As actors Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Fred MacMurray and Jimmy Stewart crooned "Thanks for the Memory," Bob Hope received the prestigious National Artists Award in a star-studded ceremony here.

The 77-year-old entertainer got the American National Theater and Academy's award during a celebration Sunday at the Denver Center for the Performing Arts.

Members of the Denver Center Theater Company presented a selection of songs from Hope's shows and films, and actresses Eugenia Rawls and Virginia McKenna, and performer Theodore Bikel paid tribute to Hope.

The gold medal was handed to Hope by Lynn Fontanne who was the first recipient of award.

"At moments like this my arrogance fails me," Hope quipped. "I really cherish this award — it's not like those Oscars they give out every year. Comedians seldom get awards as prestigious as this."

AUSTIN — Young Texans waiting to buy alcoholic beverages at age 18 may find their schedule has been postponed a year by the Texas Legislature.

Last week the House approved a slightly amended bill raising the state's minimum drinking age to 19. Sponsored by Sen. Bill Sarpalus, D-Hereford, the measure was aimed primarily at high school students who go to class intoxicated.

Some lawmakers questioned whether the bill was unfair to youngsters who at age 18 are eligible to vote and serve in the military, but support from parents and teachers groups carried more weight. The Senate is expected to send the bill quickly to the governor's signature.

A freshman senator, Sarpalus has maneuvered well his first session, but last week he came up against one of the old masters, Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur.

Parker can alternately with his colleagues with blasts of criticism or crack them up with humorous quips. The effect is sometimes mixed, as when he last week criticized Sarpalus for pushing an anti-MX missile system resolution to Congress.

Calling such resolutions a "waste of time," Parker said the legislative message would not change the mind of Congress one iota.

Jumping to the freshman's defense, Sen. E. L. Short, D-Tahoka, accused Parker of hypocrisy, arguing that if the federal government was "going to put a sewer line through Port Arthur, Senator Parker would be up here screaming his head off."

"Maybe we can get a sewer line from Austin to Washington and we can send these things (resolutions) through it," Parker shot back. "That's the quality of most of them."

The Senate voted not even to debate the proposed missile resolution.

Redistricting
The complicated process of redistricting the state's political fiefdoms began this week as both House and Senate committee's announced a schedule of constituent hearings.

Official population figures are expected to arrive from Washington in early April, dropping the gate on the legislative scramble to complete the task before June.

Citizens from non-metropolitan districts are telling the Legislature this week how they want the new political fence lines built. Hearings for metropolitan areas are scheduled the last half of April.

Higher Education

The Permanent University Fund (PUF), which uses state-owned oil and gas wells to endow the University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems, jumped in value two weeks ago by some $52 million.

Sparked by a record setting sale of oil and gas leases the PUF is now worth $1.378 billion.

And now there's speculation about new attempts to divide the constitutionally protected PUF and share the money with some 19 other under-funded state colleges and universities.

An old Aggie, House Speaker Bill Clayton, has filed a constitutional amendment similar to others already in the hopper which will create a Higher Education Permanent Fund, financed by revenues from a three-cent ad valorem tax.

Clayton, however, wants "double dipping" for predominantly black schools Prairie View A&M and Texas Southern University by allowing general revenue appropriations to those two institutions. He admitted it was a way to gain support from black legislators to revise the higher education construction system.

Clements: "Baloney"

His proposal came almost at the same time Prairie View was awarding an honorary degree to Gov. Bill Clements, who was touring the facilities and promising renovating funds.

The plain-speaking Governor indicated he won't be supporting a bill by Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, to abolish Prairie View A&M. "It's baloney," Clements said.

Shirt Thief
Most everyone knows Atty. Gen. Mark White can run a pretty swift political race, but last week the state's top lawyer proved he's not too bad at outrunning thieves, either.

Meeting a friend for dinner, White found out he wasn't going to get a birthday present because a man on a bicycle had stolen it. The friend had left the gift-wrapped dress shirt on top of the car, a biker came by, put it in a backpack and sped off down the street.

Only a couple of minutes behind, White decided to drive after the thief and luckily located him north of the University of Texas campus. The biker fell off while making a turn, and White chased him on foot.

Stumbling again, the man finally took the gift out of his backpack and threw it back at White, still in hot pursuit.

A winded but somewhat appeased White decided not to chase after the man. He had, after all, gotten his shirt back.

THE CASE OF THE UNFINISHED FUNERAL

Jesus went with His disciples to the village of Nain, with the usual great crowds at His heels.

A funeral procession was coming out as He approached the village gate. The boy who had died was the only son of his widowed mother, and many mourners from the village were with her.

When the Lord saw her, His heart overflowed with sympathy. "Don't cry," He said.

Then He walked over to the coffin and touched it, and the bearers stopped. "Laddie, He said, "come back to life again."

Then the boy sat up and began to talk to those around him! And Jesus gave him back to his mother.

A great fear swept the crowd, and they exclaimed with praises to God, "A mighty prophet has arisen among us," and "We have seen the hand of God at work today."

The report of what He did that day raced from end to end of Judea and even out across the borders. The disciples of John the Baptist soon heard of all that Jesus was doing. When they told John about it, he sent two of his disciples to Jesus to ask Him, "Are You really the Messiah? Or shall we keep on looking for Him?"

The two disciples found Jesus while He was curing many sick people of their various diseases—healing the lame and the blind and casting out evil spirits. When they asked Him John's question, this was His reply: "Go back to John and tell him all you have seen and heard here today: how those who were blind can see! The lame are walking without a limp! The lepers are completely healed! The deaf can hear again! The dead come back to life! And the poor are hearing the Good News!

"And tell him, 'Blessed is the one who does not lose faith in Me'". Luke 7:11-23.

Kentucky, Supreme Court Differ on Ten Commandments Issue

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Thou shalt post the Ten Commandments on the classroom walls, says a 1978 Kentucky law. Thou shalt not, says the U.S. Supreme Court. Help! say confused local school boards.

A group of Crittenden County residents sued when their school board decided to remove copies of the Ten Commandments from the public schools.

In Bullitt County, an angry woman shouted, "And I thought we had Christians on this board!" after her local school board voted 3-2 last week to remove copies of the commandments from classrooms.

Such passion is butting up against the vow of a Louisville civil rights attorney, the lawyer who originally took the matter to the nation's highest court. He says he'll go to court against any school board that votes to leave up the Ten Commandments.

The controversy began three years ago with passage of the state law requiring copies of the commandments to be posted in all public school classrooms. The law was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court last fall.

Backers of the law, led by the Kentucky Heritage Foundation in Louisville, contend the ruling struck down only the law and does not apply to donated copies.

But state Attorney General Steve Beshear, asked for an opinion by state school officials, says he believes the Supreme Court meant to ban the posting of the Ten Commandments in public classrooms under any circumstances.

A random survey by The Associated Press turned up 10 districts whose boards voted to take the copies down and 10 districts whose boards voted to keep them up despite Beshear's opinion that the boards are leaving themselves open to legal action. The state has 180 school districts.

John Wilson, chairman of the Shelby County board of education, said he didn't feel his board was defying the law in keeping up the copies.

"If there was a state law or clear instruction that they come down, I'm sure they would come down promptly," Wilson said.

There is also a political danger involved, as the three members of the Bullitt County board who voted to remove the Ten Commandments found out.

"You're on our list," Kenneth Mills, one in a large crowd that attended the board meeting, said to the three. Mills and others urged that board members Bill Dawson, Charles Hamilton and James Robards be voted out of office when their terms expire.

The Bowling Green Independent school board decided in January to remove the commandments from the classroom walls. The Warren County board voted March 9 to keep them up against the advice of its attorney.

"We felt like the parents don't really want them taken down," said board chairman

Henry Moss. "We were elected to serve the public and if the public wants them up then we will keep them up as long as we can."

The Hopkins County Board of Education passed a motion Feb. 2 saying it would allow the commandments to remain posted "for the time being." The board received petitions with more than 4,000 signatures urging that the commandments remain posted until the question is settled.

A petition containing nearly 6,000 signatures was circulated in Christian County to keep the commandments posted, but the local board voted to take them down.

"It is one of the hardest decisions I ever had to make in my life," said board chairman Richard Brame. "I'm bound by my oath to uphold the law."

Wolfe County Schools Superintendent Richard Jett said, "My recommendation will be that, unless we have a suit, we leave them up as long as we have 'In God We Trust' on the dollar bill."

Tom Riner, executive director of the Heritage Foundation, says his organization has volunteered to pay legal costs for any school board that is sued. It is also providing legal aid for the 90 disgruntled Crittenden County residents who filed suit March 4 seeking to have the Ten Commandments put back up in their schools.

But Bill Stone, the Kentucky Civil Liberties Union attorney who successfully pursued the original suit that challenged the law, predicts the Crittenden County suit won't be the last one on the matter.

He said sooner or later his group will file suits against every district that doesn't comply with the Supreme Court ruling.

Stone says he is waiting to see what the Jefferson County Board of Education, which controls the state's largest school district, will do when it votes on the issue. The Jefferson County board has not scheduled that vote.

"If they do vote to take them down it may influence other counties that are still debating," Stone said.

He added, however, that if it becomes necessary he will go to federal court on a civil rights suit — and seek the largest possible damages against both the local board and its individual members.

"If I have to battle this case any further, I will pick out a situation where the facts best allow me to hit the school districts with a substantial amount of damages," Stone said.

"I don't feel a federal judge will waste 20 minutes on a case that is so blatantly clear."

MM to Ignore Personal Lives

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Moral Majority, conceding that a good public servant doesn't have to be a church-going teetotaler, says it will ignore the personal lives of Reagan administration officials as long as they are true believers in political issues the fundamentalist group considers important.

Denying what it called a rumor that it sought to block confirmation of President Reagan's choice to head the Environmental Protection Agency because of the nominee's private life, the group said it never judges nominees on those grounds.

For example, an official of the group said, the Moral Majority is making no judgment on the decision of Reagan and his wife, Nancy, to reintroduce hard liquor into the White House, even though some of its members have complained.

"We are not interested in whether people are drinking or not drinking, are teaching Sunday school or not going to church. We are interested in people who can run the country," said Cal Thomas, the group's vice president for communications.

"We have some Sunday school teachers who are not really good on the issues as we view them and we may have some other people who have an occasional highball who in our view would vote right," he said. "At some point you have to make a distinction on where the personal life leaves off and the political life begins."

In its statement, the Moral Majority, led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell of Lynchburg, Va., denied it had raised objections to the nomination of Anne Gorsuch as head of the EPA on the basis of her relationship with Bob Burford, nominated to head the Bureau of Land Management.

Both are from Denver and both are in the process of getting divorced. The Denver Post said March 12 that they developed a "close personal association" during the time they served in the Colorado House of Representatives.

Thomas said he issued the statement "to kill a rumor that seems to be floating around Washington" that the Moral Majority was working to block Mrs. Gorsuch's nomination out of displeasure with her personal life.

"We are not opposing her," he said. "As far as her conservative credentials are concerned, it would seem she has them together. Her living arrangements, we would say, would be irrelevant to her ability to do the task."

A spokesman at EPA said Mrs. Gorsuch would have no comment. Burford also said he would not comment on the Moral Majority's statement.

Q. A sudden bright red light from the oil pressure warning signal on my dashboard has caused me to do a fast pull over, only to find that the oil level is fine. Once on the road, the light goes out. What could cause this?

A. Check the obvious first. It could be a defective warning light. Check for a short in the wiring. Secondly, low engine oil pressure could result from using oil which is too light. Simple remedy: Switch to a heavier weight oil. Also, a clogged oil intake screen could cause low oil pressure. This screen, which rests in the bottom of the oil pan should be cleaned if you have not changed oil in a long time, but should be alright with regular changes. There are a number of reasons for a glowing oil pressure warning light and you were absolutely correct when you got off the road as quickly as possible and shut off the engine. Low oil pressure can do immeasurable harm.

Floyd Captures Biggest Golf Prize in History

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A couple of early season disappointments were the spurs he needed, Ray Floyd said, to send him to two consecutive victories and the biggest payoff in the history of golf.

"In a way," Floyd said after collecting $72,000 plus a $250,000 bonus, for his playoff triumph in the Tournament Players Championship Monday, "it was like a young fellow out here. Maybe the first time he's in position to win a tournament, it gets away from him. Maybe the second time it gets away, too. Then, maybe on the third time, he grasps it."

Floyd let a couple get away in California, then reaped a massive harvest when the PGA Tour reached Florida.

A week ago the 38-year-old veteran, a former Masters and PGA champion, scored his 13th career victory in the Doral-Eastern Open.

Then, in the day-late windup of the storm-delayed championship of golf's tournament players, he came from six shots back with a no-bogey 68, tied Barry Jaekel and Curtis Strange for the top spot at 285 and won the sudden death playoff with a par on the first extra hole.

The first prize from the total purse of $440,000 was $72,000. In addition, there was a bonus of $250,000 put up by the sponsors of three Florida tournaments for any man able to win two of them in a row.

Floyd did it. He won his 14th career title with a one-foot par-saving putt on the playoff hole. Both Strange and Jaekel missed the green, and each failed on a 5-6 foot par putt.

Floyd, who said he hadn't really thought much about his one-footer, suddenly was faced with 12 inches of real estate to cover for a total of $322,000.

"All of a sudden the cash register started ringing and I had to back off and think about it a little," Floyd said.

He tapped it in on the green still wet from the inch of rain dumped on the tough Sawgrass links by the thunderstorms that washed out Sunday's play.

"I'd be lying if I said I wasn't thinking about the money," Floyd said. "But coming back and defending my title in Doral, then winning two tournaments back to back — that's something I've never done before — that's reward enough for me. The monetary reward is just icing on the cake."

"I don't feel like I lost the tournament," said Jaekel. "I feel like a great player won it with one helluva round of golf. I have no regrets. I'll have a couple of drinks tonight and get down the road smiling."

Jaekel and Strange each won $35,200.

Miller Barber, Jim Colbert, Bruce Lietzke and Jim Simons tied for fourth, two shots out of the playoff at 287. Barber had a closing 68, Colbert and Lietzke 71's, Simons 73.

Defending champion Lee Trevino was another two shots back at 289 after a 73. Jack Nicklaus fell back with a 76 and finished with a 293 total.

Mays Named On All-Stars

Hereford's Louise Mays has picked up more honors for her performance this season on the Whiteface basketball team.

Miss Mays has been selected to play in the 11th annual Golden Spread High School Girls' All-Star Game. She will play on the West squad in the game next Saturday at 7 p.m. at Amarillo Civic Center Coliseum.

The All-Star game, sponsored by Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, will be played prior to the finals of the National Women's Invitational Tournament.

Last week Louise was also named on the second team of the Globe-News Girls' Basketball Super Team. The 5-8 senior averaged 18 points a game this season while hitting 54 percent of her shots from the field. She also picked up an average of 8 rebounds per contest. She has been on the 4-5A All-District team for three years in a row.

Along with Mays' election on the Super Team, the Globe-News also named Hereford as the "Surprise Team of the Year." The Whitefaces raced to a 20-1 record before district competition started, but had the difficult task of overcoming state runner-up champ Monterey and the strong Plainview squad led by Gay Hemphill. The team, coached by Larry Sowers, finished with a 24-5 mark.

Hill Sparks Bat Attack

One of the big moments in Hereford's 8-5 win over Tascosa here Monday afternoon was a two-run triple by Mike Hill. After lashing the three-bagger, Hill later scored on a single by Matt Collier and Hereford jumped to a 4-0 lead. The Whiteface nine plays here again today, hosting the Amarillo Sandies in a game starting at 4 p.m. (Brand Photo by Bob Nigh)

Whitefaces Top Tascosa

Mike Mason notched his second mound victory of the season and got 12 hits from his teammates as the Hereford Whitefaces scored an 8-5 triumph over Amarillo Tascosa here Monday afternoon.

The Whitefaces were scheduled to play here again today, hosting the Amarillo Sandies. Game time is 4 p.m. Hereford jumped to a 4-0 lead in the second inning Monday as Mike Hill lashed a triple to score two of the runs.

Mason was safe on an error as Hill scored, and Brad Garnett singled across another run.

The Whitefaces came back with three more runs in the third frame. Raymond Martinez and Don Delozier drew bases on balls, then Matt Collier rapped a double to score two runs. Hill then singled across the other run.

Tascosa had eight hits off Mason. Hereford committed four errors in the game, while Tascosa had three miscues.

After today's game with Amarillo, the Hereford team will host Borger here Saturday at 3 p.m. A tournament at Pampa this past weekend was cancelled due to bad weather.

NIT Field is Pared to Two Finalists

NEW YORK (AP) — Syracuse and Tulsa, two teams with identity crises, are solving them in the National Invitation Tournament.

Syracuse, snubbed by the NCAA selection committee, advanced to the final of the 44th NIT with a gritty 70-63 victory over Purdue Monday night. In the opener of the semifinal doubleheader, before a crowd of 14,995 at Madison Square Garden, unheralded Tulsa edged West Virginia 89-87.

Syracuse, 22-11, will face Tulsa, 25-7, for the title Wednesday night after Purdue, 20-11, meets West Virginia, 23-9, in a consolation game.

Syracuse labored through a mediocre 15-11 regular season, then won the Big East Conference tourney only to be snubbed by the NCAA selection committee. And when the Orangemen won their first three NIT games, the critics were to quick to point out that all six postseason wins had come on Syracuse's home court, the 26,000-seat Carrier Dome.

But leaving their home floor almost proved disastrous for the Orangemen. Coach Jim Boeheim ran his players through a short workout Monday morning so they could adjust to the Garden's wooden floor — Syracuse plays on a harder, springier artificial surface at home — and it almost cost them their center, 7-foot senior Dan Schayes.

Schayes stepped on a ball during the workout and sprained his left ankle. He limped noticeably throughout the Purdue game and often trailed the other players on the transition, yet he came through with clutch play down the stretch to help the Orangemen pull away.

"He's a blue-chipper and blue-chippers have to learn to play with pain," said his proud father, former NBA great Dolph Schayes.

Schayes played the entire second half and finished with nine points and four rebounds. But he had three points, two rebounds, an assist and a blocked shot in the final minute to help nail down the victory.

Leo Rautins led Syracuse with 19 points and 11 rebounds, Santifer added 18 points and Tony Bruin scored 16 before fouling out with 2:55 to go. Santifer, Rautins and Schayes each hit tie-breaking baskets down the stretch. Schayes putting the Orangemen ahead to stay 63-61 with a basket from the low post with one minute left.

Forward Mike Searce led Purdue with 18 points and 13 rebounds.

"It was a heartbreaker," said Purdue Coach Gene Keady, whose team fell behind by nine points early in the second half but fought back to tie three times in the final 5½ minutes before fading. "When it was close they made the big plays and that was it. Neither offense played very well, but they hung tough. You have to give them credit."

Credit is something that should also go to the Tulsa administrator who decided that the road to basketball success led to Snyder, Texas. That's the site of Western Texas Junior College, which compiled a 37-0 record under Coach Nolan Richardson last year and won the national Juco title.

Tulsa, coming off a 8-19 season, hired Richardson last summer, and Richardson had the good sense to bring four of his Juco stars with him — center Greg Stewart, forward David Brown and guards Paul Pressley and Phil Spradling. And the 6-5 Pressley was the hero in the Golden Hurricane's victory over West Virginia.

Pressley scored 11 of his team-high 20 points in the final 7:50 and played the point in Tulsa's full-court press that thoroughly disrupted the Mountaineers down the stretch.

"We're not the kind of team that can sit back and let the other team dictate what will happen," explained Richardson. "It's the live and die theory — the press got us here, the press was going to have to pull it out."

Pull it out they did, wiping out a seven-point deficit in the final 8½ minutes. Tulsa went ahead to stay 82-80 on a jumper by Pressley with 3:32 left and stayed ahead by sinking seven of 10 foul shots after that.

Reds Find Hurler Prospect; Astros Snap Streak

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds lost a ballgame Monday but may have found a pitcher.

Bill Bonham, the 32-year-old right-hander who had surgery on his elbow last October, pitched to a major league batter for the first time in nearly eight months. He worked two scoreless innings in the Reds' 5-4 loss to the Chicago White Sox, surrendering one hit and walking two.

Paul Moskau, also trying to come back from shoulder surgery, followed Bonham and pitched two innings. He gave up two hits, one walk and one run while striking out two in his second appearance of the spring.

Another convalescent pitcher, Philadelphia's Larry Christenson, hurled five shutout innings as the Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1. Christenson, limited to 14 appearances in 1980 by arm miseries and a recurring groin injury, gave up three hits and struck out three.

Meanwhile, Doug DeCinces drove in three runs with a triple and single and Mike Flanagan pitched six innings as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Montreal Expos 9-3. The Orioles played without Manager Earl Weaver, who began a three-game suspension for pulling his team off the field against Kansas City last week in a dispute with the umpires over the lineup card.

Rookie Jorge Bell, drafted from the Phillies' organization, and Otto Velez each belted two home runs as the Toronto Blue Jays hammered the Pittsburgh Pirates 12-6.

Rookie outfielder Terry Harper drove in three runs with a double and two singles, leading the Atlanta Braves to a 7-5 victory over the New York Yankees.

San Francisco center fielder Bill North misplayed a fly ball for a three-run error with two out in the top of the ninth inning that allowed the Oakland A's to beat the Giants 4-3.

Alan Ashby drove in the winning run with a fourth-inning single as the Houston Astros snapped a six-game losing streak with a 3-2 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Winning pitcher Nolan Ryan allowed one hit and an unearned run in four innings.

Consecutive home runs by Dan Ford and Doh Baylor plus Beniquez's first single gave California a 3-1 lead in the first inning and the Angels went on to defeat the Seattle Mariners 11-2.

Ex-Cubs Miguel Dilone and

Cindermen 4th in Meet

Led by first-place victories in the 400 and 800-meter dashes by Norman Brown and Felix Soliz, the Hereford Whiteface track team finished fourth in the Mustang Relays at Andrews Saturday.

Coach Lester Kirkland reported the team scored 50 points at the meeting. The team travels to San Angelo Friday for its next competition. Preliminaries are scheduled Friday and finals will be run Saturday.

Hereford recorded three fourth-place finishes at Andrews. The 400-meter relay team, composed of Jeff Coupe, Harold Terry, Rudy Hernandez and Brown, placed fourth.

Also taking fourth places were Alfred Ball in both the 110 high hurdles and the 300-meter intermediate hurdles. Wayne High was sixth in the intermediate hurdles. The 1600-meter relay team was also fourth.

Armando Gonzales finished fifth in the 1600-meter run.

When you buy insurance from an agent who works directly for one insurance company, he's probably not the person you talk to when you have a claim. Most one-company agents have nothing to do with the claims process. So if you have a claim, it's between you and the adjuster.

Your Independent Insurance Agent doesn't do business that way. He's right there ready to serve you when you have a claim... helping you reach a fair settlement.
